Maynard Andreae, internationally known industrial magnate, (he's president of Syncro Corp. in Oxford) had Dr. Saburo Kitamura as his house guest last week.

"Kit" is from Tokyo, and since Maynard is president of the Oxford

Rotary Club, he asked his guest to speak to us.

Interesting man, Dr. Kitamura. He's a doctor for international consuls in Japan and helped found Rotary in his native country after World War II. But that's beside the point.

We asked Kit....Since Japan has many more people per acre than we do is there the shortage of fuel and food that we have?

"Our government does not tell us the truth," he said. To which I added, "Neither does ours."

Kit said a close friend, who was with the petroleum industry, told him very recently that Japan had 45 days supply of gasoline. He said, "Our government has not told us this. We drive around like crazy. At least you have been warned and can conserve if you wish."

Before getting into the food shortage, Dr. Kitamura told of pollution in his land. The contamination (smog) in Tokyo is an everyday menace. "Here it is clear, you can see the sun. One whole city was evacuated in Japan when industry was allowed to expand so much people could not survive the contaminates."

He said a famous beach overlooked by Mt. Fuji is now completely uninhabited. "People cannot stand it on the beach and the fish are crippled in the water. In the last 15 years the paper pulp processors in that area have so polluted the water nothing can live," he said.

He told how fish had so much mercury people's ration had been cut to 47 pieces a week. "This is like nothing to us. Fish is our main food."

When asked the price of beef, Dr.

Kitamura just dropped his head. A good steak dinner is $15.00.

Kit was a little encouraging, however. He said, "You have such a great country here. It is like comparing a whale with a little fish, your country to ours."

So, on this day when many things have gone wrong, I can take some hope in thinking maybe it ain't all bad.

And in closing let me tell you how one of our classified ad takers handled an obscene call.

The caller wanted to sell a motorcycle. Thing is he added a few parts or descriptions not generally included in the "For Sale" columns.

As the caller hesitated, or took a breath, our calm receptionist said, "Okay, now can I have your name and address for billing?"

They hung up!

Pine Knob to seek advice of sound experts

The advice of experts on sound control is going to be sought by owners and operators of the Pine Knob Music Theatre.

A study for "further definition of the problem" apparently will be the next stop in negotiations between Pine Knob and Independence Township officials, according to Township Attorney Richard Campbell.

Under order of Oakland Circuit Judge Richard D. Kuhn, representatives of the township and music theater met Monday to begin hammering out an agreement to control the level of noise coming from the theater.

Hearing was held last Friday on a petition by the township for an injunction against the owners and operators of the music theater.

Kuhn adjoined the hearing indefinitely to allow the parties to negotiate a settlement of their dispute.

The matter may be taken back to circuit court on four days' notice, Campbell said.

Theater representatives agreed Monday to contact sound engineering firms and "begin to work toward resolution of this problem with due haste and speed," he said.

They are to meet again with township representatives by Aug. 2.

Township Supervisor Robert Vandermark said sound experts will be asked to describe the scope of a possible study of the Pine Knob problem and to estimate the cost to the theater of such an undertaking.

"In the meantime, they have promised to make every good-faith attempt to keep the sound at a reasonable level," Vandermark said. "I really think they are working in good faith."

Builder's arrest approved by homeowner

LeRoy R. De Masellis, former Oakland County builder, was arrested Friday by state police, who charged him with embezzling $20,000 from three persons with whom he had business dealings.

Jack Hanna and Bill Hampton, men who were associated with De Masellis, were arrested Thursday, July 19.

The arrests followed protests staged by a group of nearly 30 pickets who demonstrated early Thursday morning outside the office of L. Brooks Patterson, Oakland county prosecutor, protesting his inaction.

Trouble with homes built by De Masellis was first reported in The Clarkston News in February, 1972, when Gloria Bellairs described the nightmare the dream home recently purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brancheau had become.

Brancheau related, "If somebody had listened to me two years ago, a lot of grief could have been saved.

He says he's glad the builder has been apprehended, despite the fact that most of the problems connected with his Farley Road home have been solved.

"That's due to my wife, who called all the media and township officials. She had so many people out here, De Masellis had to take care of the problems," Brancheau reported.

"I had objected most to the lack of inspections on De Masellis homes. Even the banks knew what was going on, but I guess money is God. Sub-contractors owed money by De Masellis refused to blow the whistle because they thought they'd stand to make more later.

"I called everybody I could think of in Lansing and they sympathized," Brancheau recalled. "Everybody wants laws, but when money is involved, nobody wants to enforce them."

The Brancheau home was beset by water seepage in the family room, sewage leakage from the upper level bathroom, buckles in the slab floor, a flooded garage, cold air that entered through light switches, and frost which formed on the dining ell wall.

"It was better than a year of mental torture," Brancheau recalled.

Violators weeded out

Some 150 violations of the weed control ordinance were being processed this week by Independence Township Ordinance Enforcement Officer Tim Palulian.

Most of the violations, he said, concerned property owned by absentee landlords.

Palulian explained that under the present ordinance the violator must be notified by certified mail that the township intends to take action. The owner has ten days from the time he receives the letter to take steps to control the weeds. Palulian then inspects the property after the deadline, and if the weeds are still there, the township sends in its own cutter and bills costs to the landowner with his yearly tax notice.

Palulian said the process is a long one, some people never pick up certified mail and the Post Office delaying 15 days before returning the letter to Palulian. Palulian said he cannot act until he has notification of receipt of the letter.

In an effort to speed up the process and take care of situations which irritate neighbors and which in some cases are traffic hazards, Palulian said he is busy making plans to revise the ordinance.

Next year, he said, the township intends to send out only one notice—with the December tax bills—informing landowners that if their weed growth exceeds 12 inches during the summer, the township will cut the weeds and bill the owner.

"We'll be cutting, probably from mid-June until the end of August, and such an ordinance will give us as free hand," the officer said.

He noticed some of the complaints received at the office deal with weeds on county rights-of-way. "We have control there. About all we can do is inform the county," Palulian said.

Palulian anticipated stricter ordinance regulations might encourage absentee landowners to "not be so absentee".

"The effect may even fall over into the litter area," he anticipated.

Palulian said the intention was to enforce the ordinance only where the weeds are a distinct nuisance. "It would not be legitimate to have someone cut down a 5 or 10-acre parcel and then bill the landowner," he said.

New bottles center opens at Dixie and M-15

A new collection center, to accept Bottles for Building, will be open to accept materials Saturday, July 28. Located at the A & P Shopping Center at M-15 and the Dixie Highway, the center will accept glass, newspapers and aluminum.

All glass must be rinsed and metal removed, separated by color. Newspapers must be tied or bagged, and aluminum cans — rounded on the bottom and easily squeezed by hand — must be separated from steel and bi-metal which the center does not accept.

Mrs. Carolyn Place, bottles director, said continued community support has made the center possible. She said the cost of the materials for the center were shared by the village of Clarkston and Independence Township. Use of the land where the center is located was donated by Buddy Atchoo.

Volunteers and trustees of the Oakland County Jail provided construction manpower.

Bottles for Building, Inc. is a non-profit organization dedicated to recycling glass, newspapers and aluminum. All profits, after expenses, from the sale of the donated material is placed in trust at Pontiac State Bank. Some $6,000 now in trust is earmarked for a Community Activities Building which will probably be located on township park property at Clarkston Road past I-75, Mrs. Place said.

Since the first collection in January of 1971, more than 770 tons or about 23 million bottles and jars have been recycled from Independence Township.

Mrs. Place said about 35 percent of the population saved recyclable materials during the days of door-to-door pickup. She said she believed the number has dropped since the drive has gone strictly to collection points, but currently about 15 tons of glass per month are sold to the Oakland County Recycling Center at the going rate of $10 per ton.

Jail trustees provide the transportation from the collection center to the county, she reported.

Mrs. Place said the new center would be self-service, that materials can be left at anytime, however the site will be manned between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Saturdays.

She said people are being hired to check the site daily. Anyone interested in assisting Bottles for Building is invited to contact Mrs. Emma Turner, 673-0090 or plan to attend a recruitment meeting at 7 p.m. Friday at Mrs. Place's home, 5615 Chickadee.

Bottles for Building can be dropped off at a new collection center in the A & P parking lot beginning Saturday, July 28. The new center, constructed with the help of village and township funding, is being erected with the help of volunteer labor.

Keep your eyes open for creeping conversion to the metric system—it's sneaking up on us.

For those of us whose mathematical comprehension dwindles appreciably somewhere in the middle of the sixes on the times table, having to deal with the metric system instead of "real" measurements is a major threat.

They tell us that the system will be adopted in the U.S. within the next decade (10 centicenturies?). Get ready, they warn.

Now comes the word that the Michigan State Highway Commission is conducting an experiment to post signs with both millage and metric distance on one of the state's highways.

The dual markers going up on U.S. 27 between Lansing and Grayling will advise the motorist that, for instance, he's 61 miles (98 km) from Clare.

If you want to ignore the signs and figure it out for yourself, you start with the fact that a kilometer is approximately five-eighths of a mile. So you just multiply the number of miles by 1.61.

Try doing that in a car traveling 105 kilometers per hour with two kids haggling over a window seat, a third dripping ice cream down your neck and a fourth making impatient demands for a gas station.

Or, if you're as bad off as I am, try doing it in an empty, quiet room with nothing but a calculator and slide rule to help you.

My only encounters with the metric system thus far came during a trip to Europe a few years back.

When I was driving (and therefore the only person awake in the car), it was up to me to watch road signs, the map and guidebook to determine how far we were from our next destination.

Fortunately, we were on vacation and could take a when-we-get-there-we'll-be-there attitude.

Then there were the quarter-liter wine glasses I bought in Munich, where everybody drinks Liebfraumilch by the quarter-liter. At home, we emptied a good-sized bottle of wine on the first round when we had another couple over.

Fortunately, our friends drink cheap wine.

Then there was the fabric sale I hit in Paris. Trying to hold onto my chosen bolt while figuring how many meters, centimeters or kilometers I wanted was no joy.

Fortunately, there wasn't that much left on the bolt, so I bought the whole thing. (Someday I'll get around to making that six-piece suit.)

I was discussing my metric ineptitude the other day with a new acquaintance, who came to the States from Belgium seven years ago.

How long, I asked Mary Helen, did it take her to adjust to our system?

"Not long, really," she said.

Did she still find herself mentally converting U.S. measures to those she had grown up with?

"Oh no—I don't have to convert to them, but I do compare..."

She may have measurements down pat, but she has not yet adapted to my usage of the English language. To me, the difference between converting and comparing in this context is a millimite.

I'm sorry, Mary Helen, but I'll just never be a meter maid.

Cadets attend encampment

Four Clarkston Composite Squadron Civil Air Patrol were awarded honors during the recent 1973 Michigan Wing Cadet Summer Encampment at Phelps-Collins Air National Guard Base, Alpena.

Cadets Lori Martin and Joseph Rivers were named honor cadets while Sam Glover and Jeff Rooding were named to the honor flight at the graduation ceremony which concluded the week-long activity.

They were among 26 Clarkston cadets attending the encampment. Serving on the encampment staff were Captain Barbara Glover, 1/Lt. Charles Gorecki, 2/Lt. Gary Klann, CWO Barbara Carey and CWO Mike Saile.

Cadets took part in the operations of the Air Force base as they worked with air National Guard personnel in the communications center, administration office, dispensary, mess hall, parachute loft and with air police. They also visited Wurtsmith Air Force Base in Oscoda.

Nice people do exist

There were a couple of stories in last week's paper about the humanness of officialdom.

One dealt with Mickey Gonzalez, the Davisburg postmaster who really likes people. The other was a story of a major airline and its stepping beyond regulations to please a small boy.

Too often in these days of torture chambers in Florida, hijackings everywhere, and corruption in high places, we overlook these kind of events. The result is general dissatisfaction and a tendency to grumble.

There are mentally sick and criminals in this world, but it's a disservice to all the rest who really do try to do their jobs honestly to lump humanity in their terms.

Maybe if we made a point of emphasizing the good, the meek really would inherit the earth.

They say I look rested—fresh back as I am from a two-week vacation.

What they don't know is that I came back to work to rest, and the moral of the story is—NEVER TAKE A VACATION AT HOME!

Have you ever tried to "vegetate"—to sit calmly reading while all about you the world is falling down around your ears? It's impossible.

This was going to be one of those delightful interludes devoted exclusively to "vegetating".

Sleep 'til noon, read a lot, practice the piano again, talk to the family. Those were the items on my agenda. I had just one goal—get the upstairs hallway cleaned out—store in a newly weatherproofed attic all those boxes of things collected over the years by two adult and six juvenile pack rats.

Hah!

My family, which was not thinking "vegetation", chose those two weeks to start painting the house, help tear down an old barn, plan a trip to Cedar Point in Ohio, and part of them left in a flurry for Western Canada. One son cut his head open, requiring eight stitches. Two daughters cut out garments which required sewing.

Work also intruded—the doorbell rang at 8 a.m. the first morning. There were meetings, some writing, and a trip to New Jersey (which wasn't all bad considering it was free.) And there were phone calls...

I looked forward to returning to work Monday. It would be calm, I reasoned.

First thing I did was plug in the typewriter and blew a whole circuit. Then I moved a heavy desk to get at an extension cord and short circuited my back.

Things had not changed, at all! Next year I will send Clarkston News readers a postcard from Outer Mongolia. This year, do not ask me how my vacation went.

I REPEAT. DO NOT ASK ME!

Betty and Aunt Clara

By Jim Fitzgerald

There they went, 2 chunks of my childhood, both in the same week. Betty Grable and Aunt Clara Embury. In the wake of their wakes, I am not pleased with myself. I did not drip a tear.

Not cry at the death of Betty Grable? How could that be? I loved her.

About 1941, I saw her in "Down Argentina Way" 14 times by actual count. It was a contest between me and a kid named Tom Studer. He insisted he loved her more than I did. The only way a guy could prove his love was by how many times he'd pay a dime to see her movies.

I would tell Studer I was going to stay home and study algebra that night. Then I'd run to the Pine Grove Theatre and watch Betty make Alice Faye look like an old bag again.

And someone would whack me on the back. There was Studer sitting behind me.

This was not lusting after a pinup, ala the soldiers who made Betty Grable a latrine legend during World War 2. I was no soldier when I fell in love. I was a 15-year-old kid just beginning to wrestle with life's problems; just beginning to make the important decisions which would determine the pattern I would follow the rest of my years.

Such decisions as: breasts or legs? Jane Russell or Betty Grable?

As constant readers (Mother and Aunt Madeline) well know, legs won out. Betty Grable made a legman out of me when I was 15 and I have never since wandered from my chosen path. Show me a pretty girl and I'll show you a girl I'd rather walk behind than toward.

Ask me today what has been mankind's greatest advancement, the Salk vaccine, and I'll have to tell you the mini skirt. The world's greatest perversion is Shirley Jones in elephant pants . . .

But most of you are probably wondering about Aunt Clara Embury. She was no movie star. In fact, I'm certain she and Betty Grable never had 1 thing in common until they died the same week.

Mrs. Embury wasn't really my aunt. She was simply a neighbor, in the 1930s, who had no children of her own so she adopted the Fitz kids as honorary brats. She called me "Jimmie Dugan" but I can't remember why. No one else ever called me that.

Mrs. Embury's husband was blind. I suppose my sisters and I brought some welcome cheer into their gloomy little home, but I never looked at it that way then. I was there for Aunt Clara's rhubarb and pecan rolls and whatever else I could gnom onto. I used to force my younger sister to beg the blindman for candy —

"or I'll throw you in front of a truck." I was a real sweetheart.

I was 40 years old before Aunt Clara stopped mailing me $2 on my birthday. I guess she finally decided I was never going to write her a thank-you note. Once I wrote a column about how I'd owed her a letter for 30 years. I meant it as sort of an apology but I don't even know if she read it.

When I heard about Aunt Clara's death, I phoned my mother and said I thought I should drive over for the funeral. "You wouldn't visit her the last 15 years she was alive, so it seems silly to come look at her when she's dead," my mother said.

Mothers say things like that to sons who don't grow up all the way.

I feel worse about Aunt Clara than I do about Betty Grable. You can say that for me. And you haven't said much.

Letters to the Editor

Supports bus drivers

To the editor:

Upon request of the President of the Clarkston Bus Drivers Association, the Broadway brothers and I met with a group of the bus drivers, School Board and the administration, including Dr. Greene, at the scene where the accident of Mrs. Mary Sweat occurred five weeks prior.

We were told we would be asked to explain what we observed on the day of the accident, as we were the first ones to reach the bus and the driver.

After we had been there about 10 minutes, a school bus with the board members approached from the west on Rattalee Lake Road and a pickup truck from the east with Dr. Greene (who never put a foot on the ground). The bus just stopped before reaching the place of the accident. Everyone got off except the driver.

She then (on request) proceeded to pass the truck, which was almost impossible, as there had been several cars, a tractor, a truck and the school bus pulled in by the soft shoulder. You could not begin to compare the conditions of the road to that day of the accident.

We were asked no questions—we were completely ignored by all, with the exception of one man, who you could plainly see was there in the interest of justice.

Never have we witnessed a group of ladies being treated so cold and rude. These women are not slaves as some would have them to be. They are not to be looked down upon and treated as floor mats.

They fight these buses through mud, rain, sleet and snow, transporting your children to and from school—a job with far more responsibility than most of us would accept—for substandard wages, putting in eight to ten hours a day for four to six hours' pay.

Why do they do it? Well, I guess they have got more backbone than most of us on-lookers. It's a job that needs to be done and they do it. So I believe they deserve more courtesy than was shown at this farce called a meeting.

Wake up ladies—you are going to need more support than your own organization can give you.

An interested taxpayer and voter,
John H. Sexton

Young entertainers

Sacco's on the Dixie Highway is drawing Clarkston customers Friday and Saturday night as the J.S.R.B. group entertains there with old time jazz, easy listening and rock and roll music. The group is composed of five Clarkston High School students and graduates—Darla Hoopengartner, vocalist, with Brent Agar on bass, Chris Jacques on piano, Ron Cozadd on guitar and Jeff Weichel on drums. They've played three weekends on a trial basis and are looking forward to more.

At sea in Clarkston

I am sure happy to see the Clarkston village council taking on the village parking problems. In trying to understand their new parking rules, I find my intelligence taxed to its full capacity. As you may know, I was never fancy educated like them school-teacher people or them fancy bookkeeping fellers. In trying to understand, it is kinda like havin' your Geritol quit you cold while you are in a massage parlor.

Now, perhaps, all it will take is an ordinance, but then again, people are bound to learn that it is easier to go some other place to spend their money than it would be to spend 90 days in jail.

I read section one of the ordinance and learned that in the future, when you are in Clarkston: Don't ever park within fifty feet of a railroad, closer than fifteen feet of a fireplug, in a street tunnel, or on the village bridge. (They must mean the Blue Water Bridge.) And whatever you do, don't put anything in a Clarkston parking meter but U.S. COIN Absolutely no marks, francs, yen or pesos.

When I read this ordinance, I went to Clarkston, parked my car downtown right in the midst of all the fireplugs, railroad yards, street tunnels and the bridges, and then I went hunting for the fireplugs, the railroad yards, the tunnels and the Clarkston version of the Blue Water Bridge. After hunting about four hours and twenty minutes, I gave up and started for my car. On the way to it, I stopped for a double shot of Geritol at a local spot noted for its libations.

When this potion had climaxed, it dawned on me that I had been out smarted by this school teacher and that fancy bookkeeping feller.

Only one conclusion was possible. My mentencephalon (rear of the brain) did not have the same dimensions as theirs. They had built a railroad, fireplugs, another Windsor tunnel and a Blue Water Bridge, all on paper.

Why didn't they build the sewers that way? Imagine how low the sewer tax would be!

I used to be jealous of teaching fellers that had a B.S. degree. But now, when I find out some of them only have a partial degree of B.S., it don't bother me so much.

Sincerely,
Lucky Fletcher
P.S. Better let the people know that if they did not get to read the Parking Ordinance, THE CLARKSTON NEWS may have a few copies of the News left, with the ordinance in them.

DOWN IN FRONT! by Barb Gibson and Grayce Warren

"Class" that's the word that best describes Burt Bacharach last week at Pine Knob Music Theatre.

From the moment he appeared on stage, the audience was thoroughly engulfed in the Bacharach sound. The intricate beats were melodiously played by his 50-piece orchestra, and his eight songsters, two of them especially outstanding, contributed to the mood.

One could not help feeling what an extremely talented man he is as, one by one, many favorites were played. He seems to know all the devices that bring pleasure to his listeners.

Time after time he develops music for or about children. "The World is a Circle" was such a number and children were brought out to assist him. These same children were brought on later for one of his encores.

He finished the concert with the difficult "Promises, Promises," much to the audience's delight.

Later on in the week Johnny Mathis and Michel Legrand shared the spotlight offering contrasting performances in music.

Michel Legrand, noted for his many accomplishments and academy awards as a composer, demonstrated his talent by both singing and playing such selections as the theme from "Summer of '42," and the music from "Lady Sings the Blues."

One composition blended the art of jazz and the world of classical music into a delightful combination of pure listening. Throughout the number, the strains of 18 century Bach wove in and out in varying rhythmic patterns and improvisations of the jazz media.

The orchestral arrangements seemed at times to be heavy and busy, but this could be the result of too much amplification. An orchestra consisting of 40 members many times over powered the capabilities of the piano. Adding to the variety of music offered, a selection entitled "Gossiping" represents the avant guard of jazz, utilized choral chanting by orchestra members.

Later Legrand used a small combo for a medley of his famous melodies. The combo gave him more freedom at the piano and his talent could really be appreciated.

Johnny Mathis, the king of the love song, used his flowing, rich voice to cradle each number in an aura of romance.

Two novelty numbers, "Mother Came Too" and "Begat" added a nice variation to the otherwise slow, romantic program. "It's Not for Me to Say," "Chances Are," and "Misty" were performed with characteristic grace and tonal resonance.

Concluding the concert Legrand joined Mathis on stage for a duet and Mathis encored with his rendition of "Maria" from "West Side Story."

BY THE THIRD EYE

I see the water at the south end of the Lower Mill Pond very red -- it must be very infectious -- and there's a black area about four yards off the parking lot which could cause extreme illness because of concentrated contamination. In the outlying red area, the illness would not be so severe.

The downtown coffee shop, due to open this week, may run into trouble with a water break.

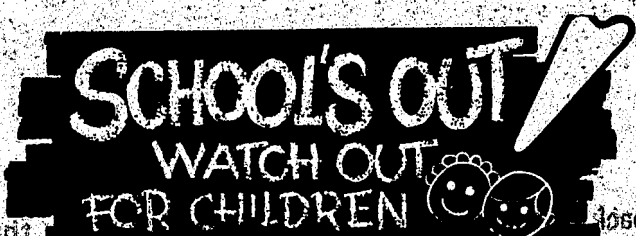

The Post Office will eventually settle on land north of the present location. It will move out of the village.

I see IBM office machinery installed in Hawk Tool, with cars like those used by the telephone company parked behind it off Depot Road. The business is for sale, but will not be sold right away.

The village sewer tax problem will be resolved to the benefit of merchants who have protested the necessity to pay on both real and personal property tax in order to meet sewer costs. The change may come about because of merchant threats to close up and move out.

Clarkston may one of these days have a woman clerk, the present clerk moving on to other things.

I'd like to issue a special warning to visitors or residents at the North End of the Mill Pond. There is danger surrounding a small boy in connection with the water.

At seventy there is no one prouder than Harry Bart, the bantamweight fighter in England for thirty-nine years. He has said that he was knocked out more than 650 times and claims that that is a record! "I was cast iron," says Harry. "I wasn't a defensive boxer, and I had no fear." It's a good thing because the high point of his whole fighting career was a twenty-round bout in which he won the bantamweight championship of his country.

Move in close to the diamond and you're witnessing a new phenomenon in Independence Township - organized softball for girls.

About 120 girls aged 10 to 14 have been participating on the six teams set up by the Independence Township Recreation Department.

The 10-game season was to culminate today, with a 4 p.m. game at Clarkston High School between Pine Knob and the Cold Cuts to determine the championship.

Pat Lovelace, a Clarkston teacher who has directed the program, is satisfied with the first year's results.

She's proud of the girls, grateful to the seven men and one woman who have served as managers and pleased with the high school girls who have been umpires for the games.

The main difference they've noticed between their games and those for boys, she said, is that both the participants and the onlookers seem more relaxed.

"The crowds and the players are not so interested in the kids becoming star athletes--they're just there for the fun of it."

From Keith Hallman

Prescriptions

The basis of all medical therapy has been described as "a calculated risk."

At one extreme, the doctor faced with the certain death of a patient within a short time feels justified in using a therapy that could be dangerous, if it will help the patient. There is no safe alternative available, and the risk of withholding therapy is greater than the potential hazard.

At the other extreme, the use of a powerful drug early in the stages of a disease may not be justified if the drug has little known benefit—and may cause some harm.

In between are the vast number of cases a physician deals with by calculating the risk and weighing the benefits. This is the basis of good medicine: an accurate diagnosis, knowing what to expect if an agent is used and anticipating what will happen if it is withheld.

This is true of everything he orders for you, from aspirin to the latest wonder drug: it's what you need right now.

Unfortunately, the doctor must often consider what will happen if the patient fails to have his prescription filled; if the drug isn't taken on schedule, according to directions; or if too much or too little is used.

Don't add to the "calculated risk"—follow the doctor's orders to the letter, for your own sake.

Day camp starts at Bay Court

Day camp experience for Independence Township youngsters started Monday at Bay Court Camp on Greens Lake.

The pilot program, which will continue through Aug. 16, resulted from a leasing agreement the township signed with the United Foundation.

The foundation has leased the 58-acre facility to the township for the rest of the summer, with the possibility that the program will be continued next year, according to township recreation director Tom Doyle.

A lodge, cabins and beach are available on the site.

Nature study and crafts are being emphasized at the day camps, which also will offer swimming opportunities.

The program is designed for youngsters seven to 15 years old.

Participants are being bused out to the camp from their playgrounds—from Sashabaw and Clarkston elementary schools every Tuesday and Thursday and from Andersonville, Bailey Lake and Woodhull each Monday and Wednesday.

The buses pick the children up at their playgrounds about 12:15 p.m. and drop them off between 3:40 and 4 p.m.

Application forms for the day camp program are available at the township recreation department office and the playgrounds.

David Williams, pitcher for the Evan Trailer Sales team in the Widget Division, came on really strong in the last game of the year, pitching a no hit and no run game.

Walking only four batters during the game, the umpires ended it after the completion of the fifth inning, with Evans Trailer leading Mr. Gray by a score of 27-0.

Ortonville kicks off birthday fun

Ortonville will enter its 125th year to the sound of music as the village presents "I've Always Believed in Tomorrow" Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

Music, lyrics and book for the program have been created by Russell M. Harvey.

It will be presented at 8:15 p.m. each evening at Brandon High School on M-15.

The program kicks off a series of festivities which will culminate in a three-day celebration August 3, 4 and 5 in downtown Ortonville.

Parades, a carnival, and several contests will follow opening of the Ortonville Historical Society Museum at 10 a.m. Friday, August 3.

There'll be style shows, an ice cream social, church dinner, cross cut saw, pie baking, hog calling and greased pig contests, Indian pageantry, and plenty to eat throughout the three-day affair.

Highlighted in Saturday morning's parade, due to start at 10 a.m., will be Oakland County 4-H members portraying "A new day and a new way" in 25 separate entries.

The 4-H contingent will be in addition to other entries marking the village's "Century Plus 25."

Ortonville Girl Scouts have invited the public to their doll and pet parade at 1 p.m. Friday, August 3. The event is part of the village's 125th anniversary due to continue August 4 and 5.

One-year-old tot's in the swim

Jennifer swims from edge of pool to her mother.

By Pat Braungel
Watching a year-old baby float face-down in a pool is not a very pleasant experience, if only for a few seconds.

It's a much happier moment when the observer knows the tot is calmly paddling her way over to the side of the pool, where she'll crawl out, turn around and jump back in again.

Watching Jennifer Chester swim is initially a bit of a shock. But the first reaction turns to amazement and then to relieved confidence as the 13-month-old, diaper dipper demonstrates her ability again and again.

It's not that Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Chester are starting early to push their daughter toward Olympic gold-medal glory—they simply are concerned about her safety.

The Chesters' home at 6161 Neilson, Davisburg is on Big Lake, and Mrs. Chester's parents, the Richard Smiths, have a pool at their home in Clarkston.

Between the two, Jennifer toddles around a lot of water edges.

The Chesters decided last winter that it was imperative for Jennifer to learn to swim before her first summer of outdoor walking.

They wanted her to be able to paddle to safety should she topple into a lake or pool.

They wanted her to have no fear of water and to enjoy that which is available to her.

So when Jennifer was seven months old, she and her mother enrolled in classes at the Pontiac YMCA.

The 'Y' encourages parents to enroll their offspring in swimming classes as soon as they are six months old.

"They older they get, the more they develop fear," said Mrs. Chester.

Babies adopt an affinity for water gradually, and it helps when Mom is with them in the pool.

"Some of them really cry a lot," Mrs. Chester said. "It takes time to let them know there is nothing to be afraid of."

Jennifer, who celebrated her first birthday June 15, now "likes to be under the water more than on top."

She hasn't yet learned to turn her head to draw in new air, so her range is limited to one breath's length. With a push from one of her parents, she can make it across the width of her grandparents' pool.

A helping hand is never far away, but the biggest help to the aquatic enjoyment of both Jennifer and her family is the tot's ability to keep afloat by herself.

It's an ability which will be further developed this summer and when classes start again at the 'Y' in the fall.

Briefing the board

What's the difference between a study session and an executive session, between an informational meeting and a closed-door caucus?

The Independence Township Board has again considered the thin, elusive line between violating the public's right to know about governmental decisions and boring citizens with mountains of minutiae when they attend public meetings.

Trustee Keith Humbert brought the subject up at the board's July 17 meeting, voicing his frequent complaint that the two township trustees have a more difficult time getting information on routine township business than do the three fulltime officers.

He would like, he said, to have more background discussion on items which appear on the regular meeting agenda. Preparation is easier for the three officials who are at the township hall daily, he noted.

Trustee Jerry Powell said he tended to agree with Humbert, although Powell's job permits him to stop in at the township hall more frequently than his fellow trustee.

Powell would favor holding informational meetings, he said, "if it would cut down on the length of (regular) meetings."

"However, I would hate to see us get to the point where we have planned executive sessions," Powell said, noting that "people have a right to know what went into a decision."

Supervisor Robert Vandermark commented that all board members talk at each other on the telephone and that three conversations constitute executive sessions.

He said he personally is opposed to regular executive sessions because the board "should not have all decisions made in a rubber-stamp manner to the reasoning and logic behind our decisions."

COUNTRY LIVING COUNTRY LIVING COUNTRY LIVING COUNTRY LIVING

Betty Hecker

Georgian "Pine Log" stone adorns the front of the Capistrant's 5-year old ranch style home on Waterford Hill.

The rusty colored rock blends perfectly with the sand colored brick and dark brown trim and wood panels.

The Capistrant's found their home in a Better Homes and Garden Idea Book. They kept the exterior but Norm designed the floor plan.

The double doored center entrance opens into a large foyer. Earth colors in the russet brown hexagon shaped quarry tile floor, the amber glass window panel next to the door, and the gold foil on tan and brown design wallpaper dominate here.

A buff colored sculpture, entitled, Big Brother, was a Christmas gift to Cheryl from Norb.

The living room is large, big enough for two furniture groupings. Matching full size sofas, in moss green antique velvet grace the room.

One sits in the area near the sand colored fireplace. A massive hexagon cocktail table and two orange velvet chairs complete this grouping.

The other sofa is flanked by two high backed striped cut velvet chairs in beige and russet orange. The chairs are separated by two small glass topped tables. The carpeting is a soft gold, almost candlelight yellow in color, and the walls are antique white.

The decor is Spanish, completed with pictures, accessories and wall hangings. Norb said, "This room was our pride and joy until we started on the basement."

The basement has been divided into three sections with the use of half walls and three different floor coverings.

The Old English Pub has red and black plaid carpeting. Norb built arches and beams from rough sawn pine boards, stained to look like weathered barn wood. White stucco walls between the arches have unique lamps. They are windows with amber glass panes, and give the illusion of sunlight.

Norb built the bar (complete with leather arm rest), and benches all along the opposite wall. A red and white tiffany type lamp hangs in the pool table area, and smaller red and white lamps hang over the bar.

The center section has an American type brick floor and rough sawn pine board walls. Three changing rooms (indoor cabanas) and a bath lead off this room.

It's their idea home

Red shag carpeting and another fireplace make the third section into a comfortable family room.

The walkout basement doorwall opens onto a redwood deck in the terraced and beautifully groomed backyard. Trees and shrubs add shade to a second, upper deck (that extends off the living room) offering a lovely view of the in-the-ground swimming pool and many apple trees.

Three bedrooms and a combination TV/den/sewing room lead off the hallway on the right of the foyer. The large country kitchen, the formal dining room, and laundry room are on the left.

The master bedroom is decorated in shades of blue and green. The blues include pale blue walls, royal blue drapes tied back over white sheer curtains, and a blue bedspread. The greens are featured two graceful chairs and on the to-the-floor table cloth on a small round table between the chairs.

Jill's attractive bright red and white bedroom features wicker furniture on red shag carpeting.

The open wall shelves are also red, holding a miniature doll collection.

All dolls on the top shelf once belonged to Cheryl. The dolls on the second shelf were Jill's grandmother's and the ones on the next shelf are Jill's.

The room is dominated by one poster - a big picture of a cuddly puppy and the words "puppy love."

Brian has his gerbils in his blue and green room, right at the foot of his twin size bed, where he can watch their tricks and antics. Pennants of the Detroit Tigers and a chalk drawing of himself are hung on the wall - as reminders of ball games and trips to Cedar Point which he has enjoyed.

Norb and Cheryl both think that subdivision living is great. Cheryl said, "All the neighbors are about our age. We have get-togethers and parties and a lot of fun!"

Will Rogers, of great fame for his dry humor and pithy sayings, once said: "Buy land—they ain't making any more of that stuff!" Land is a limited commodity, and land values in America are on the increase. This means that opportunities to invest in land are also opportunities for investments that will be both solid and profitable. Whatever you are most interested in, whether it be in raw land, farmland, vacant lots, recreational or industrial land, now is the time to buy!

Springfield park runs into opposition

Residents of Springfield Township have been finding material opposing park development in their newspaper boxes or under the wiper blades of their car the last few weeks.

The notice is directed to "To The Property Owners Involved In The Huron-Clinton Park and All Other Springfield Township Land Owners."

This paper expresses opposition to the proposed park, 1,750 acres to be located in Springfield Township. The park property will be tax exempt. The paper asks, "Who pays?"

The readers are directed to contact Claude Trim and the township board to express opposition and closed with the statement - "Your Home and Land Might Be Next!!"

There have, as yet, been no presentations made at any official township meeting, however. The notice is signed, "From the Concerned Land and Home Owners - Against the Huron-Clinton Metro Park Proposal and Development."

Claude Trim's name was used in the notice, but without his knowledge. In fact, he says he was very much surprised when he found one of the notices in his paper box.

Township board approves development plans

Property owners and Independence Township officials have reached a compromise on how the 104-acre Singer-Kaplan parcel or property should be developed.

Rezoning for the property, an issue which has been in litigation for over four years, was among the land development decisions made by the township board at its July 17 meeting.

The board agreed to a consent agreement negotiated by attorneys for the township and Singer-Kaplan to rezone the property to multiple residential.

Therefore, maximum density on the property near I-75 and Clintonville Road can be 8.5 units per acre.

The property owners originally sought to develop a mobile home park, but their rezoning request was among those denied in a referendum election. The issue has been in Oakland County Circuit Court since.

Also approved at the meeting were two rezonings recommended by the township planning commission and the Oakland County Planning and Building Committee.

A 32-parcel on Clarkston Road northeast of Pine Knob Resort was changed from agriculture to commercial recreation zoning to permit an equestrian training facility.

David R. Lackey of Walled Lake plans to build a 40-stall horse barn and paddocks for the instruction of dressage.

The rezoning was permitted with the idea that once the township's new zoning ordinance is approved, the land could be classified as rural residential and safeguards built in to keep the facility from becoming a public riding stable.

A 19.8 parcel on the east side of Perry Lake Road south of Crooked Lake was rezoned from agriculture to suburban farm, permitting three-acre lots. The property is owned by Earl Fortin.

Final plat approval was given to Bob Dieball and Don Arsen for a 30-lot subdivision on the south side of Maybee Road a quarter mile west of Sashabaw. Lots in the 20-acre Spring Lake Estates No. 2 subdivision will be at least 15,000 square feet.

Plat for a 10-acre subdivision to contain three lots on the east side of Hadley Road south of Oak Hill Road was given preliminary approval. The property is owned by Richard Nelson of Royal Oak.

There is nothing like a braided rug to add the finishing touch to your Colonial styled house. Whatever room you use them in will benefit by the choice. A softly toned large braided rug for the living room is always effective. Small area rugs for bedroom and hallway are definitely in keeping with the Colonial motif. It is good to know that braided rugs are of easy care fabrics which make them practical even in the kitchen.

And it is good to know that HOUSE OF MAPLE, 6605 Dixie Hwy., 625-5200 has a wide selection of quality furniture for the Colonial and Early American decor. ## Women's Club adds boutique to tour

Something new has been added to plans for this year's fall home tour sponsored by the Clarkston Community Women's Club.

Besides the tour of selected homes in the area, the club is planning a boutique for the sale of gift items.

Now is not too soon for area handicrafters to begin making articles for sale in the booths, which they can reserve by calling boutique chairman Jeannette Vandermark at 394-0745.

Admiring some of the craft items created for the fall home tour boutique are [from left] Linda Irwin, Clarkston Community Women's Club president; Jeannette Vandermark, boutique chairman; and Peg Irwin, whose hand-painted china will be available at the boutique.

The boutique will be open from 1 to 5 p.m. Oct. 7 at Independence Center, the starting and finishing point for the tour.

Application for a booth in the boutique must be accompanied by a sample product. Deadline for applications is Sept. 22. There is a limited amount of space available, making early requests advisable.

The Women's Club will take a 10 percent commission on items sold at the boutique.

The next clinic is scheduled for September 6.

For further information, call independence center at 673-2244, or the Oakland County Health Department, 332-9255.

CEA and board meet on contract

Clarkston Education Association and the Clarkston Board of Education will meet for a briefing session relative to current teacher contract negotiations on August 2.

Little progress is reported in the effort to draw up a new contract relative to salaries, fringe benefits and teaching conditions. The previous two-year contract expired June 30.

"Springing up"

Alaskan voyager

by Betty Hecker
625-5726

Mrs. Albert Petersen of Orion Road is home from her exciting trip to Alaska. On July 1, she flew to Chicago, then on to Seattle.

Boarding the ship, Princess Italia, they traveled in Inland Pass nights, stopping to sightsee and to take tours during the day. At the Stopover in Victoria, she saw beautiful gardens. In Prince Rupert, she visited the remains of a really old and beautiful Russian Church.

About Anchorage she said, "Oh, gosh, it was so much to see. There were geraniums that come up to your shoulder. And the wild flowers were so beautiful. One called Fire Weed was a flaming color and had a bloom as big as a dinner plate. And the people there say that in August the flowers are even more beautiful."

In Mt. McKinley National Park she reported seeing bighorn sheep and lots of other wild animals.

"It's unbelievable! It's only dark for about 2 hours, from about 12 until 2 a.m. I woke up one morning, and thought that I had really overslept. The sun was shining so brightly that I thought it must be at least 10 o'clock. I phoned the desk for the time and was really surprised when they said it was 4:05 a.m."

"The people are so friendly. You can walk the streets at all hours, and people talk to you in coffee shops, everywhere."

Mrs. Peterson went with a group of 35 others to walk about a mile and a quarter to a glacier. "Oh, the wind was blowing, 30 of us caught a cold." But she said, "It was a pleasure to go, from one end of the trip to the other. It has been my dream for 30 years and now I have gone."

Other highlights of her trip included a small spur railroad trip to the Yukon and a two day bus tour of Fairbanks.

Mrs. Peterson is ready to go again, especially at the end of August. She wants to see the harvest of the Manitoba cabbages, which are claimed to weigh as much as 100 pounds. Now, that's some cabbage.

...and as she said, "It's only 5 hours (by plane) from Anchorage to Chicago."

Last weekend, Carolyn and Don Place and Bill and Joette Kunse hosted a going away party for Jack and Pat Belby.

The evening started with hors d'oeuvres on the lawn at Pine Knob, where they all enjoyed seeing and hearing the Temptations.

A buffet supper at the Places' place for about 20 people followed.

The Belbys will be moving to Westchester, Penn. as Jack was transferred in his work. Joette said, "We hate to see them go. This is his last weekend here and he's helping to paint independence center."

A double celebration was held last Sunday at the Glen Sommers home on Clark Road.

Their daughter, Glenda Baker, will be 21 this week and her husband, Charles Baker III received his certificate, stating that he is now a journeyman millwright. He is employed at Pontiac Motors.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker, Jr. of Whippleshore Drive were at the Sommer's home for the celebration.

Glenda's sister, Lynn arrived home from a week at Camp Wathana, the summer camp for the Detroit Camp Fire Counsel, in time for the party.

Maranatha Baptist Church on Flemings Lake Road was the setting for the July 18 wedding between Erma Larson and Pat Cremer. The marriage ceremony was witnessed by Erma's children, Mr. and Mrs. Jack (Marilyn) Williams and Mr. and Mrs. Ed (Beverly) Oxley, both of Clarkston and her sons, Larry Sutton and George Larson, Jr., both of Pontiac.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce (Karen) Turner of Lapeer and another daughter, Nancy, and her family from Cadillac, Michigan, came to see their father married.

Jack and Marilyn held a reception for the newlyweds at their home on Drayton Road.

After a honeymoon in Bermuda, the Cremer's will make their home in Warren, Michigan.

"The phone rang early Monday morning and our daughter said, 'Hi Grandpa, Wake up!' That's the way that Mr. and Mrs. John Eiden of Ellis Road found out that they had just become the grandparents of twins.

Derek and Heidi Finman were born to Joan and Wayne Finman on July 23, in Marquette, Michigan. Joan and Wayne are former residents of Clarkston, living on Church Street while Wayne was a teacher in Ortonville.

Wayne's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finman live in Escanaba.

Joan and Wayne have a three-year-old daughter, Lisa.

The annual Etobicoke Bridge Tournament featuring Bill and Mary Ellen Hanson, Dom and Louise Mauti, Jim and Barb Cowan and Ron and Juanita LePere took place last weekend at the PHYC in Port Huron.

A wit has compared the intricate bidding system of the Clarkston players to the famous Italian Blue Team, whose system nobody as yet fully understands. Ron and Juanita LaPere, winners of the tournament, will be playing next year at Marco Island, Fla.

The LePeres did a little antiques, and spent Sunday polishing a brass clothes tree for Juanita's new shop soon to open on Main Street.

Three area students at Central Michigan University have been honored by the university for achieving straight A averages for the winter semester, which ended in May.

They include two seniors from Clarkston, James L. Benson, 6092 Middle Lake Road, and Eva H. Karbownik, 9530 Columbia, and a senior from Ortonville, Sigrid L. Medlin, 400 Sashabaw.

On the honors list for maintaining a cumulative grade average of B or better were Clarkston sophomore Baron C. Munchausen, 8790 Ortonville, and Sigrid Medlen.

Mike Humphries, son of Mr. and Mrs. L.W. Humphries, 6695 Laurelton, has been accepted into the 1973 marching band at Northern Michigan University in Marquette.

Mike, a Clarkston High School graduate, will join the Wildcat band as a percussionist.

Children of Mr. and Mrs. Don Dougherty, 4816 Mohawk, hosted a 25th wedding anniversary outdoor luncheon Sunday for their parents. Bob and his wife, Sandy; Janet, and her husband, Ron King; John, and his wife, Sue; Tom; and Joe were all present to help as were Mrs. Dougherty's mother, Mrs. Burr of Royal Oak. Mrs. Omer Dougherty, Don's mother, was also present.

The former Marguerite Irene Burr and Don Dougherty were married July 23, 1948, by Judge Brondige at his Royal Oak residence. The couple resided in Berkely for about ten years before moving to Independence Township.

Charles Larson, whose wife is the former Agnes Baynes of Clarkston, has been elected American Legion department of Michigan commander for the year. It's the first time there has been a department commander from the 18th district.

Shirley Lynch was named one of two pages from Michigan to serve at the national convention next month in Hawaii.

Mike D. Klann, son of the Charles Klanns of Pear Street, has spend a busy week at a Civil Air Patrol sponsored course at Vance Air Force Base in Oklahoma. He was one of 23 CAP cadets chosen for the course.

Holly takes part in scout service

During Margaret Koch Memorial flag pole dedication ceremonies at Northern Oakland Council's Camp Sherwood in Lapeer, Christian Koch [left] of Orchard Lake accepted a floral tribute from Senior Girl Scouts Mary Gaukler of Pontiac and Holly Hawke of Clarkston. The ceremonies honored a former Girl Scout leader.

Spiritual Message

A frequently used invitation to attend church worship services reads like this:
"to all who sorrow and need comfort;
to all who are weary and need rest;
to all who are weak and need strength;
we bid you welcome. Come to the house of God and here lay your burdens down."

There are many times when we need to do this, but it is also true that we need the Church when we face exactly the opposite situation in life. It could read like this:

"to all who are joyful and want to thank God;

to all who are confident and want to lift up the exhausted;

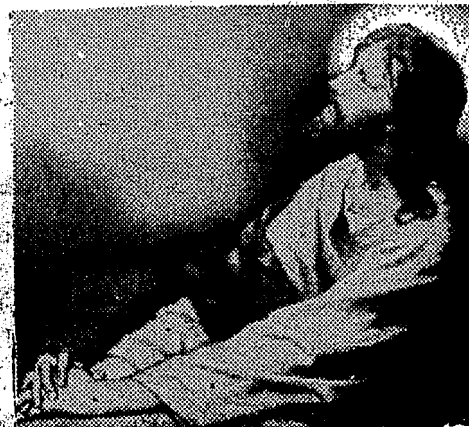

to all who are strong and want to find worthy purposes for their strength;

we bid you welcome. Come to the House of God and here take up your burdens."

Sometimes it is assumed that the Church is only needed when life gets rough. When we are strong, we tend to think we can forget the Church. The truth, however, is that the Church is not only a refuge for us when we are weak, but also a "despatcher" when we are strong. For we do not have two kinds of people in the Church, because every one of us have our strengths and weaknesses. We are so complex that on the same Sunday a part of us can be exalting in strength while at the same time, there is another part of us that is crying out for help. We always need to be responsive in every situation of life to God. Your Church provides the stimulation and opportunity to do this.

In Christian bonds

Kid's-eye view of garage sales

That popular summer pastime--the garage sale--is not just for ladies who either sit and sell or drive and dicker.

The garage sale also is an event which involves their children.

Kids are drawn to the activity in the temporary commercial establishment set up in the family garage, especially if the items being offered are theirs.

Thirteen-year-old Bryan Thomas, for instance asked his mom to sell some of his toys to give his Cedar Point fund a boost.

Colleen Swindlehurst, a pert two-year-old, was urging people at her mother's garage sale to at least pet her bunnies if not purchase them.

For youngsters who accompany their mothers on garage sale rounds, the stops can frequently be fascinating--much like open-air visits to Grandma's attic.

Mrs. Arthur Thomas, suddenly a middleman, listens as her son Bryan explains the intricacies of the football game he's hoping she'll sell for him.

Five-year-old Mike Lotan hears a story one last time as he and his mother, Mrs. Larry Lotan, wait for customers. Mike's book was among the outgrown items offered for sale.

"Just looking" at a saddle while their mother shops at a garage sale are eight-month-old Buddy Little and his sister Donnette, children of Mr. and Mrs. Regis Little.

Softsell salesgirl is Colleen Swindlehurst, who helped her mother, Mrs. Elton Swindlehurst, with a garage sale.
