Theater owner to halt hard rock

Independence Police Director says
Foghat performance 'worst ever'

Joey Nederlander of Pine Knob Music Theater has agreed to halt hard rock concerts at the theater as a result of events occurring during the Foghat performance August 21.

"I guess we can't have a concert for teeny-boppers. They get booze, I don't know where they get it, and they can't handle it. This is the first hard rock concert we've tried since the James Gang, and it looks like it will be the last," the theater entrepreneur said.

His decision was in line with recommendations made by Independence Police Director Jack McCall to the Independence Township Board following the performance.

Nederlander said he hoped to be present for the next township board meeting September 3 to talk with officials about mutual problems.

"I've never seen it so bad at Pine Knob!" is Independence Township Police Director Jack McCall's evaluation of crowd behavior at the August 21 hard rock performance of Foghat.

"There is not enough police or ranger supervision to provide any control. You hardly dare go in there when there's a hard rock concert," he said.

His report notes that Rangers employed by the theater and Oakland County Sheriff's deputies had made every effort to control the area, but he counted 12 violations of propriety and said the county had received four other complaints (one of which was learned to be unfounded.)

As a result he has advised the Independence Township Board that further hard rock concerts be stopped until adequate controls can be gained. McCall stressed his report and recommendations on the Foghat performance has nothing to do with other types of concerts presented at the outdoor facility.

His report states:

1. Many young people intoxicated wandering around inside and outside the theater. In one area around the rest rooms several people were noted laying on the ground in a stupor condition. In other cases female subjects were being carried by male subjects leaving the theatre entrance.

2. Open use of marijuana from the hill area.

3. Very poor lighting conditions on the walkway between the seats and the hill.

4. The theatre grounds covered with litter and beer and wine containers.

5. The language of many inside the theatre area was obscene, coming from both male and female subjects.

6. Uniformed officers found it necessary to duck thrown objects as they patrolled the grounds.

7. Crowd control was completely out of hand.

8. Tickets for the performance were being sold at the front gate although at the same time, parking was not available even in the north field area.

9. The sound level outside the theatre at the corner of Sashabaw and Clarkston-Orion was loud and above normal surrounding noise levels.

10. Talking with several Pine Knob Rangers, (we found) they felt that the crowd was among the worst they had seen this year.

11. Talking with several patrons who left the theatre earlier, (we found) their remarks to be, "Those people are nuts inside."

12. A female subject, age 21, was thrown from a car by her boyfriend as they left the theatre.

McCall said the county had received reports on an overdose at the front gate before the show, a female exposing herself from a car as she left the grounds, and a large fight on the grounds inside (the latter proving unfounded.) He also said there were numerous other complaints such as juveniles consuming alcoholic beverages.

No contract in teacher negotiations

Negotiations between the Clarkston Board of Education administration and Clarkston Education Association over teacher contracts broke off shortly after 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Another meeting, scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, was the last before CEA officers were due to meet with district teachers Wednesday night. Without a settlement at that time, the subject was sure to be school strike, CEA negotiators said.

As best as could be determined from spokesmen for both sides, the main unresolved issues Tuesday involved salary, agency shop, dual carrier for medical insurance, and recognition of the 11 teachers employed by the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center.

Neither side seemed to think the salary figures were very far apart, the CEA contending they'd settle for that offered Oxford and Lake Orion teachers this year.

The recognition of the NOVEC teachers has been mandated by the Michigan Employment Relations Commission decision and "two words" in the contract seem to be holding up approval.

"No criminal intent" found in Springfield missing funds

No criminal warrant will be issued against Springfield Township Treasurer Margaret Samuel whose record, according to a State Treasury audit, revealed a $6,098.26 shortage in the years 1967 to 1973.

Oakland County Prosecutor Brooks Patterson said an investigation by his office and the Michigan State Police "revealed that the shortage was a result of the poor accounting procedures of the treasurer rather than of criminal misconduct."

A decision is still to be made by the Hartford Insurance Co. which holds Miss Samuel's treasurer bond, according to Springfield Supervisor Claude A. Trim. The company has not yet decided the liability for the missing funds, he said.

Miss Samuel, long time Republican treasurer of the township, is expected to continue in office until after the November election. She has declined to seek reelection.

The treasurer's post will be filled at that time by either Anna Marie Quinlan Democrat, or Patricia Kramer, Republican who won their parties' nominations in the August 6 election.

Patterson reported the audit of the treasurer's office was conducted by the state at the request of Trim who became concerned over the unusual number of tax levies returned delinquent in error.

Treasurer Margaret Samuel

"Over the six year audit period, the treasurer received $4,207,243.91 and deposited $4,201,145.65 into the bank, a shortage of $6,098.26," Patterson reported.

Miss Samuel reportedly stated to investigators that during tax collection time, she kept tax monies received by her at home since the township had no safe or vault in which the money could be safely stored.

Patterson continued, "Since the investigation began, the township has taken steps to correct her accounting procedures to conform to the procedures of tax collection suggested by the State Department of Treasury.

"The conclusion of the prosecutor's office not to issue a criminal warrant in this matter was made after full discussion of the results of the investigation by members of the Prosecutor's Office, the Department of Treasury, Michigan State Police and Supervisor Trim," Patterson concluded.

Trim told The Clarkston News, "From here on out we hope the new accounting procedures will insure that this won't happen again."

"I felt under the state statute I had no other recourse than to file with the state to get the matter cleaned up," he continued. "Everyone is criticizing government, and we had to prove local government can take care of its affairs in a credible manner."

He said the safe at the township hall was for a time not in operation, but it has been in operation for the last year. "It was just a matter of working on the combination," he said.

More: No contract yet

On agency shop, a classification causing all teachers to pay CEA dues whether they are members of the organization or not, the two sides appear tied up on paid leave for "association" days. Six days of paid leave have been granted in the past to CEA officers; now the school district is asking that in return for agency shop the CEA reimburse its teachers for CEA business. The CEA says it would reimburse the less costly substitute.

CEA negotiators have asked that MESSA as well as Blue Cross insurance be offered teachers. Administrators contend MESSA is closely tied with the MEA, yet they admit that most districts in Michigan offer MESSA insurance to their teachers.

Also being discussed in whether elementary teachers should be relieved of all non-teaching duties. Last year noon hour duty was rotated; this year the administrators reportedly requested that such teachers be "on duty" as opposed to "on call."

Old styles had us all using lip outliners, then filling in the outlines with lip brushes full of the same or a contrasting color. But times have changed. Now the belief is that a lip outline often defeats its own purpose by having an effect the experts call too theatrical. This is especially so if the lips are outlined in a shade darker than the rest of the lipstick. If you must outline, use a paler, softer color for a soft blending of the lips into the facial contour.

Traffic enforcement promised on Maybee; other steps recommended

Promise of intensive radar checks along Maybee Road in front of the Sashabaw schools was made to about 30 neighborhood residents Thursday night at the township hall.

Township Police Director Jack McCall said the radar checks would begin immediately.

He also recommended to the Oakland County Road Commission a reduction in the 45 mile per hour speed limit in front of the school either permanently or during those times when children use the road for school or recreational activities.

He asked, too, that both the speed limit and the signs identifying the approach to a school be made more visible.

The meeting had been called by Supervisor Robert Vandermark in response to complaints of parents in the area following the traffic death of 6-year-old Gayle Cocking a month ago.

Vandermark recommended reimplementation of the school safety study committee, the findings of which resulted in a joint effort by the schools and the township to construct sidewalks in front of schools on both Maybee and Waldon Road this summer.

Also present at the meeting were Milford Mason, assistant superintendent of Clarkston Schools, who asked for a reduced speed limit in the area. Dick Folkers and David Allen of the Oakland County Road Commission and Cpl. Gerry Girard of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Folkers said a traffic count to be taken by the Michigan State Police August 20 had been postponed a month until September 24, however McCall reported four separate surveys he'd made in a total period of one hour and 55 minutes.

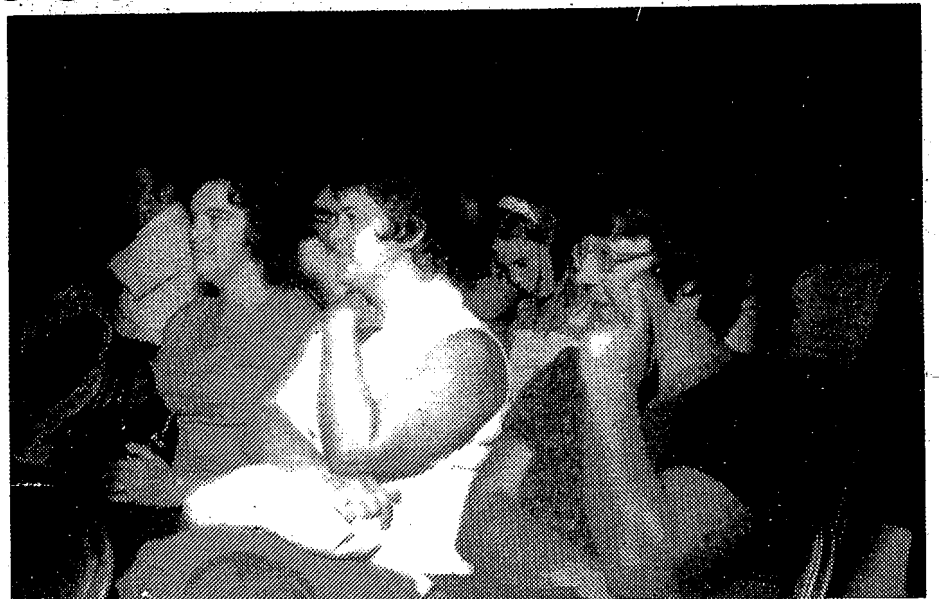

"Of 294 cars counted, 25 were recorded at 65 miles per hour and a total of 64 were exceeding the 45 mile per hour speed limit," he said. "The volume of traffic averaged one car every 30 seconds. Of the 294, 109 were west bound and the rest east bound," McCall reported.

Folkers, who said the road commission has responsibility for maintenance and traffic control on Maybee Road, reported that recent legislation has enabled the superintendent of schools to take part in a survey team—also including the road commission and the state police—in arriving at school road safety measures.

Factors to be considered by the team, he said, involve radar speed checks, the accident picture, volume of traffic, the driving of the area under study, and the counting of curves, hills, etc. The number of driveways and whether or not sidewalks were available were also to be taken into consideration, he said.

He said the last survey of the area had been in 1970, shortly after the death of another child.

Both deaths occurred outside regular school hours, the 1970 accident happening at 5:03 p.m. on a Thursday and the most recent at 3:48 p.m. during summer vacation, Girard reported.

Parents show concern over Maybee Road 45 m.p.h. speed limit.

The Cocking child lived in Lake Orion and had been visiting friends in the area. She and they were returning home from a township-sponsored summer recreation program at South Sashabaw Elementary School when she was struck.

Her mother, a member of the Thursday night audience, reported that the car which struck her had been going 45 miles per hour and thrown her child 75 feet.

"Had the car been going 25 miles per hour, it might not have been able to stop, but would not have thrown my daughter far enough to suffer fatal injuries," the bereaved woman said.

Ballpark figures of $3,000 for flashing yellow lights to be operated on a time clock mechanism twice a day and $20,000 for a pedestrian bridge—$50,000 for one that would support bicycles—were offered by those present. The flashers should be used in conjunction with a crossing guard, Folkers said.

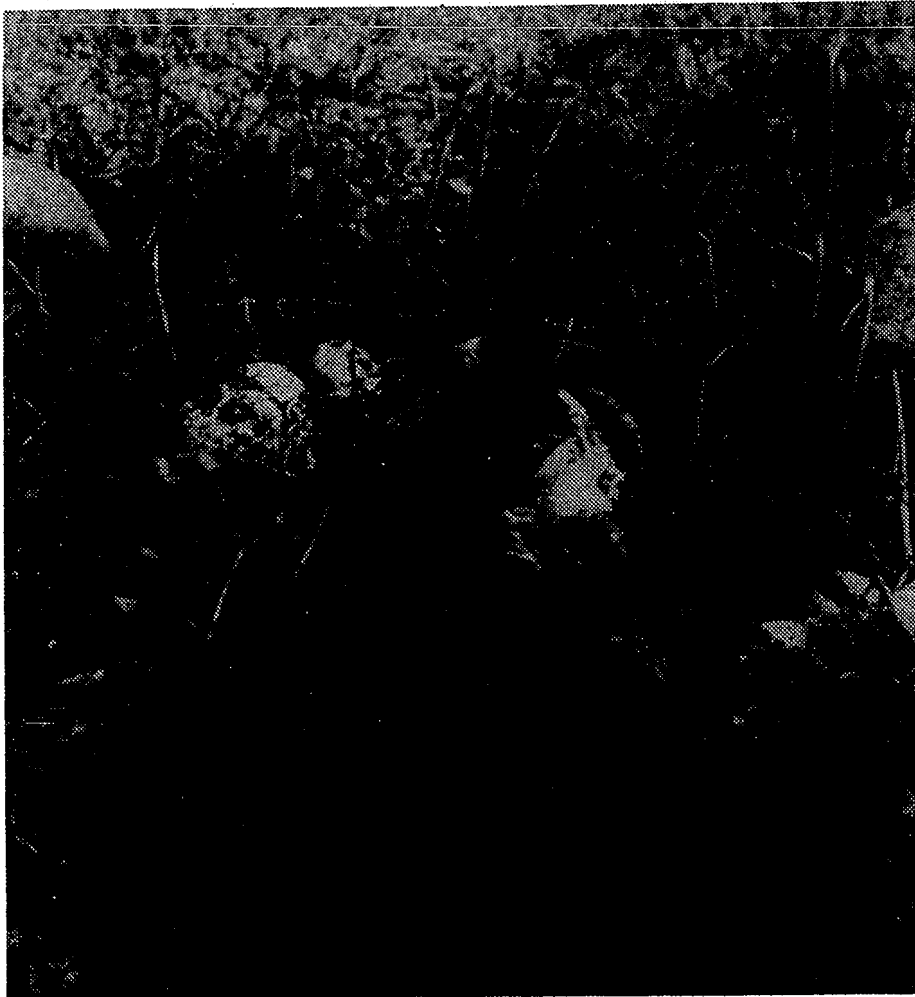

The road commission will not pay for those items, he said. He also contended that any reduction in speed limit would have to be somewhat self-enforcing, past experience having proven that more realistic speed limits get more compliance.

Mason noted that the last study made in the area showed that many safety violators were those parents rushing their children to school at the last minute to avoid being late.

"Most of those parents wouldn't be taking their children to school if there was more assurance of them being safe," retorted a mother.

"It seems ironic to me," said Mrs. Betty Mulherin, "that we could reduce the speed limit on I-75 from 70 to 55 miles per hour to save gas and that we get such a hassle when we're trying to save children's lives. It's appalling that the speed in that area wasn't reduced before this."

Folkers had earlier stated the findings of the 1970 survey did not justify increased controls.

Invaded by the 'blob'

What green and slimy thing doth dare to grow beside the house of Mr. and Mrs. Oavel Daniels on Buffalo Street in Clarkston?

Answer—"Some kind of fungus," with a green gel coating on the top, that looks like a tomato on the outside, but looks and feels like styrofoam on the inside. Oavel found the "foul-smelling thing that smelled as if something in my yard had died" in the garden on the side of his house last Thursday. He promptly dug it up, to the delight of neighbors who could smell it, too.

Oavel's wife Joyce said she and her husband had never seen anything like it, and Joyce called the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service to find out what it could be. She was told it was probably a fungus of some sort, but the agent she spoke with said he had never heard the like of it either. Unless it pops up again, though, Oavel and Joyce won't have to worry about whether or not a little green monster took residence in their front yard.

Architect finds old church worth preserving

Clarkston Village Council trustee Ruth Basinger, acting on the advice of architect Edward Francis of Franklin, Mich., will be consulting structural engineering firms to determine the cost of a structural study on the Old Methodist Church at Buffalo and Church Streets in Clarkston.

Basinger will be getting estimates by firms recommended by Francis, who has dealt with engineers in the past while working on projects for the Franklin Historical Commission in Franklin, Mich.

Francis made the recommendations as part of a presentation made at the Monday night Village Council meeting. He had reviewed the church earlier Monday, and was enthusiastic about its restoration.

The council is looking into the possible restoration of the church for use as village offices for community activities.

Francis made the voluntary inspection of the church Monday via a request of the Clarkston Historical Society, which is interested in preserving the church as an historical landmark.

Francis suggested to the council that members look into the possible acquisition of funds from the National Trust for Historic Preservation, which gives grants for the consultation needed in the beginning stages of restoration work.

Francis advised that federal funds were hard to come by for historical preservation right now because there is a great demand for them.

But there are limited federal funds available if the council can get them, he said. He stressed the importance of getting good advice from qualified advisors on restoration.

After Francis' perusal of the church, he said that "from a design point of view, the building is well worth preserving."

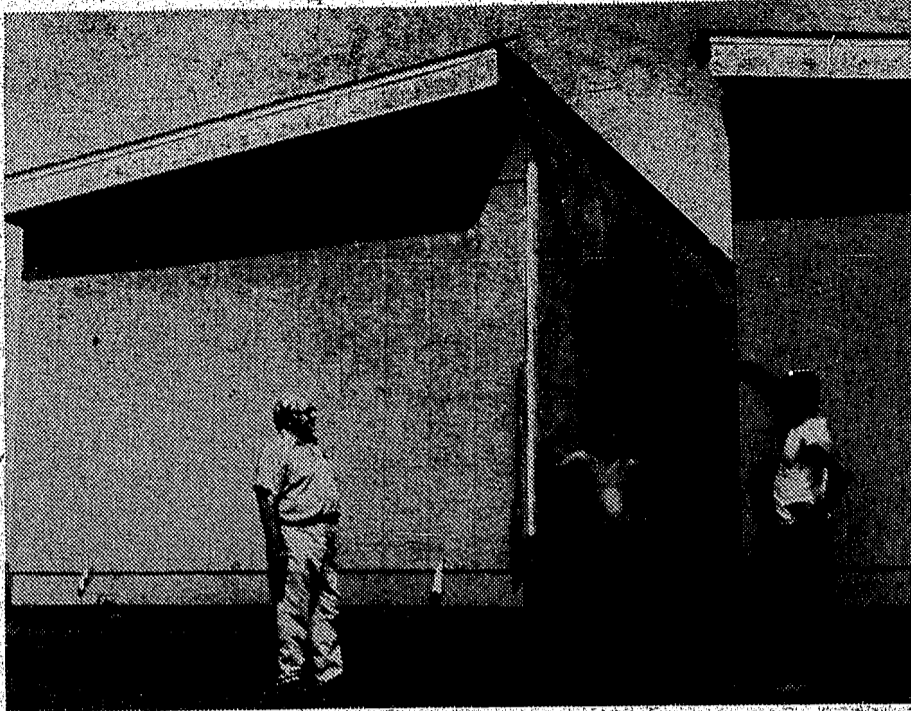

He said the building looked like it was in pretty good shape structurally, but has questions about the shape the roof is in, and whether the first and second story flooring will be able to withstand heavy loads.

Francis was enthusiastic about the historic significance of the church, citing as an example the Greek revival church door.

Francis, who is much involved in restoration work in Franklin, a well-known historical area, suggested that the council consider designating a portion of the Clarkston as a historical district and establish a historical commission.

That way, he said, there will be a "conscientious nurturing of the basic architecture of Clarkston."

Trustee Basinger will also be compiling a more detailed analysis of the planned use for the building, including what kinds of revenues the council may expect by renting it to community groups. That study was requested by the council.

Anderson Plumbing and Heating workers deliver new modular classrooms at Andersonville Elementary School. Three classrooms will be set up at Andersonville, and another three at Pine Knob Elementary. The moduls will house special services, library facilities and possibly a kindergarten class.

Sashabaw passes CJH in enrollment

There will be a few more students at Sashabaw Junior High School this year, but less at Clarkston Junior High, if you discount the two rooms of Andersonville Elementary sixth graders who will be housed there.

Attendance at the Sashabaw facility is figured between 1010 and 1030 this fall as compared to 972 last year. There are now sixth graders housed in the building.

Clarkston Junior High 7th, 8th and 9th grade enrollment is down about 50 students, however the difference is made up in sixth graders.

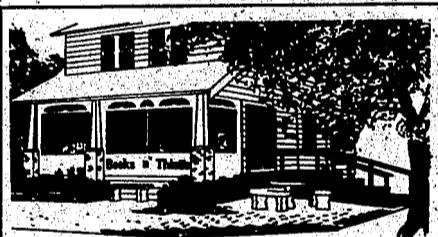

CJH Principal William Potvin stressed that the figures are estimates. "We had 17 new students enroll last week," he reported. Total building enrollment is estimated at 980.

Classes at SJH will remain substantially the same, however two new classes are being tried out at CJH this year.

Six weeks of co-ed health instruction will be incorporated in the physical education program and ecology will be taught to two groups of eighth graders on a semester basis. Chuck Keegan, the teacher, is the same one who last spring took several students and their parents on a weekend camping trip on the Au Sable River in Northern Michigan.

Three former Clarkston High School teachers have been transferred to Sashabaw this year because of changing enrollments. They are Jerry Granlund, science and math instructor; Sharri Doty, English; and Mike Olivier, history. Four new teachers have also been employed by the school. They are Nick Kyros, who will teach physical education and science and double as assistant football coach; John Pew and Mark Davis, math instructors; and Jan Meyers, home economics teacher.

At Clarkston Junior High Wayne Samuel has been hired to teach 7th and 8th grade math, and Linc Smith, learning resource teacher in the elementary schools, will assume that function at the junior high.

Lake Oakland folks gear to avert pollution

Now that the bacteria count has been reduced in Lake Oakland, at least 30 of its residents are hoping they'll be able to avert further pollution.

Gathering Saturday night at the independence center, they heard Dorothy Aszurek, Oakland County sanitarian, discuss means of curtailing weed growth in the water.

She also described the testing process which earlier this year had determined the lake was unfit for swimming. Homeowners efforts to repair septic tiles which had been broken for as long two years as a result of sewer construction have resulted in a cleaner lake, it was reported.

Mrs. Peg Wiederhold said the county had hired a private contractor to make the file repairs when Ackron Contracting Co., the original contractor, failed to fulfill his obligations. She noted however that some $2,000 in front yard work and the repair of two sea walls remains.

The homeowners also invited Gene Komarynski and Curtis Kime, representatives of Occidental Developers Ltd., which plans a 250-home subdivision on the shores of the lake.

Present plans call for the deeding of some lakefront property to the township for a proposed beach and marina. "We don't want the beach or marina," Mrs. Wiederhold said residents told the developers. "We're afraid of what they will do to our lake."

Appeal board office weighed

Appeals member Robert Kraud

By Pat Braunagel

Involved in a campaign for a seat on the Independence Township board, Robert Kraud also is concerned about the office he's presently holding—secretary on the township zoning board of appeals.

His candidacy for township trustee brings up the recurring questions concerning an appointed official seeking elective office.

The possibility of his resigning from the board of appeals is "under consideration," Kraud said, although he has received no request to give up his position on the three-member board.

On the contrary, his fellow board members encouraged him to stay on the board at their last regular meeting. So did Supervisor Robert Vandermark, who is a fellow Republican, and William Patrick, Democratic candidate for township supervisor.

Kraud's Democratic opponent for the trusteeship, Frederick Ritter, said in an interview after the meeting that he thought Kraud should resign.

The Republican candidate for the trusteeship said he asked for opinions on his position because "I feel strongly that the board of appeals should not in any way become political."

He wants, he said, to remain on the board.

"I'd prefer not to resign. I like the job," he said.

But he also wants to know how others feel about it, and that's why he brought up the matter at the board of appeals meeting.

"It seemed to be the consensus of the people there that they prefer that I stay on at the present time," he said.

I don't feel he should resign before the election," said Mel Vaara, chairman of the township planning commission and zoning board of appeals. "I hate to see any changes made unless it's absolutely necessary, because that's such an important position in the township.

The board of appeals is composed of the chairman of the planning commission, township trustee and a representative of the township at large. If Kraud were to be elected to the township board, he could no longer serve as the at-large member on the board of appeals.

Trustee Jerry Powell, the third member of the zoning board of appeals, also does not feel Kraud should resign from the appointive post.

It's his decision," said Powell, a Republican. "As long as he feels he can make the kind of decisions he has in the past, not worrying about the political consequences, I feel he should continue as a member of the board of appeals."

The discussion about Kraud's position came at the end of a four-hour meeting during which the board had made a decision in a highly controversial case over keeping livestock, particularly pigs, in suburban farm zones.

It was a general opinion that this was the case which had attracted the most attention and, therefore, could have the most political overtones.

"I don't have any idea what the case load's going to be between now and the election," Kraud said. As far as controversy is concerned, the board may already have "crossed that bridge" with its piggery vote.

Supervisor Robert Vandermark, a Republican, noted the board of appeals seat is "probably the toughest appointed position in the township."

"I don't think it's necessary for him to resign. I think it's a matter of his own judgement," Vandermark said. "If the truth be known, it's not a very good place to get votes. All decisions except someone."

"I think he's made some of the most independent, level-headed decisions on the board," Vandermark added.

Patrick, the Democratic nominee for supervisor, also was in attendance at the meeting and commented that he felt the matter was a "personal decision" for Kraud, although he had confidence in Kraud's integrity.

"From what I know of the man, I don't think it would make any difference in any decision he would make," Patrick said. "I've only met him twice, but I've followed the work of the board of appeals. I don't think he now would make a decision that would be contradictory to what he's done in the past."

"I sat through that last four-hour meeting, and I think he was trying to be fair to both sides."

"You should never make a decision that's contrary to what you believe in. That's what I've always lived by, and I think Kraud feels the same way," Patrick said.

Ritter said he opposes Kraud's staying on the board as a matter of principle.

"I think anyone who's running for an elected office should resign from an appointed office," he said. "I'm not just singling out Bob Kraud."

Midway through a four-year term on the board of appeals, Kraud said he has not made any final decision on the possibility of resigning.

"I would like to know if there's anyone out there who feels I should be off the board," he said. "And I'd like to know it now."

Lower speed limit

Sometimes bureaucracy seems to swell up around us like fungus, stifling action and slowing progress.

The Oakland County Road Commission, which admittedly and by law has certain rules and regulations it must adhere to, has seemingly buried any action that might be considered to slow traffic at the Sashabaw schools under a mountain of red tape.

Further... said a road commission spokesman, any reduced speed from the current 45 mile per hour limit on Maybee Road must be largely self-enforcing, and he indicated he didn't think there'd be much compliance for a limit under 45.

Great! We believe in self enforcement. We also believe that most drivers don't want to get caught speeding, and while they might exceed a posted speed limit, they will not exceed it by more than 10 to 15 miles per hour. They want to be able to slow down if perchance they spy a police car.

As proof of our contention, we cite the latest Michigan State Police speed survey on I-75 where the limit is at least temporarily 55 miles per hour. Most people are driving at between 62 and 65 miles per hour, admittedly a violation of the currently posted limit, but considerably lower than the speeds clocked when the limit was still 70 miles per hour.

There is always that minority who will violate any limit with little regard. They're the ones clocked going 65 miles per hour in front of the Sashabaw schools despite the 45 miles per hour limit.

Reduce that speed on Maybee Road to 25 miles per hour from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Give us prominent signs letting us know the limit is low because there's a school there, and we think there'll be an improvement.

'If It Fitz ...'

Ford a failure in kitchen

by Jim Fitzgerald

Does this country really need a leader who makes his own breakfast?

For months we've all been told that Gerald Ford is somewhat of a dummy but not to worry. After Nixon, what this country needs in the White House is a dummy. So say the political pundits.

A political pundit is a "longtime observer of the national scene" whose savvy and experience qualify him to tell the rest of us what makes the Washington Monument sway. They are called pundits because, when you ask them what to do in the face of a national crisis, they advise you to punt.

I always figured the pundits were wrong about Ford. I thought he was being misjudged simply because he used to play football for the University of Michigan. It isn't true that you must be a husky dummy to make that team. Actually, the only intellectual requirement is that you be too dumb to gain admittance to Michigan State University. A lot of good men fall short of MSU's high standards and are forced to detour toward Ann Arbor. This is no disgrace and it is unfair to hint that the source of Gerald Ford's education might automatically disqualify him from holding high office. Even if he was a lineman.

As an MSU graduate myself, I consider it an indication of my more sophisticated education that bristled when the pundits said Ford's lips move when he reads.

It is not only that I refused to believe my President was a dumbbell. I also refused to accept the theory that the reign of Nixon had made a dumb replacement desirable. No matter what Dan Rather hinted, I didn't think this nation needed the duh-duh fumbling of a Boob McNutt to help forget the wickedness of Richard Nixon.

The flip side of this theory is ridiculous. The pundits are saying Ford's dumbness is a refreshing change from Nixon's smartness. Well, I don't think Nixon was so smart. He bugged himself to death, which seems pretty dumb to me. He misjudged the intelligence of an entire nation and he surrounded himself with crumbums who could carry their scruples in their navels. He was the first U.S. President to leave Washington one step ahead of the posse.

I was sure Gerald Ford could never be that dumb.

Notice, I said "was". I just read that Gerald Ford does not require his wife to make his breakfast. Now I'm not so sure about his intelligence.

"But all he needs is a toaster," said Mrs. Ford in explaining why she stays in bed while Our Leader is in the kitchen, trying to find some soft butter.

What has happened since is probably a collage of many things -- more population and more competition, some very poor laws, some leaders who believed that the end justifies the means, and television commercials which lead us to believe we are all entitled to the very best.

I don't think the overthrow of moral codes has done us much good or made us very happy -- one indication being the nation-wide acceptance of Gerald Ford, his honesty and candor despite some previous muttering about his lack of intellectualism.

None of us can have everything, but the fact that each of us can have personal honor seems to be headed for an improved status.

There's a man in the manhole!

Cesidio Longo, Rocco Ferrara Co. worker, climbs out of the manhole on Depot Road which holds the business district sewer lines. The job on Monday ended the flow of raw sewage into a nearby field.

I'm looking for a battle with Women's Lib. If the wife is also a wage earner, then her husband should bear a fair share of the domestic tasks, including frying the morning eggs. But if the wife is strictly a homemaker, her duty is to make breakfast, just as it is her husband's duty to pay for it.

That's it. One of the big reasons I got married was so I could quit making my own breakfast. It isn't that I can't operate a toaster. It's that I don't want to. I want to read my newspaper and brood upon the cruel day ahead. The food should be supplied quickly, quietly, and as intravenously as possible without piercing my tender skin.

After a housewife has accomplished this for her husband, she can take her lazy body back into her lousy bed. But not until. That's the way things should be and it is incredible that our President doesn't know that. What a dummy!

Letters to the editor

Neighbors can work together

Dear Editor:

There is no question that there is merit to your call for individual rights in your editorial of August 22nd regarding the keeping of pigs. I would like to point out as a matter of correction however, that the current ordinance does not prohibit the keeping of pigs; although it does prohibit the keeping of pigs and some other animals when they are not properly penned and cared for. Pigs are prohibited when the operation becomes commercial and then is termed a "piggery."

It has consistently been the goal of the current Township Board and also the Zoning Board of Appeals to protect individual rights and to permit the kind of rural living that most of our residents have moved here for. There is nothing better for children or families than the healthy and proper raising of farm animals of all types. It should be noted that there have been a number of instances in North Oakland County and in this township in particular, when improperly cared for animals has resulted in starvation and death. We have had two instances of this kind that I know of.

It should be noted that almost all of our ordinance enforcement is done on the basis of citizen complaints. We are sometimes asked to enter into disputes that would be better resolved amongst the individual parties. Most of my relatives are Illinois farmers. We always settled our problems among ourselves "eyeball to eyeball". There are times when I wonder if the best thing for everyone would be to erase all laws and revert to the Ten Commandments and the U.S. Constitution.

It is time for people who wish to raise animals in a healthy way, and for those who may at times be irritated by this, to decide whether they wish to have the kind of healthy rural type of living that is so much a part of this township maintained for the future.

Only if people can work together as neighbors to solve their problems can this be done.

Respectfully,
Robert O. Vandermark
Township Supervisor

The piggery appeal

Gentlemen:

We want to take this opportunity to publicly thank the members of the Independence Township Board of Appeals for all the time, research and careful consideration given to all parties concerned in what is now known as the PIGGERY appeal. Our thanks also go to all of the concerned citizens who attended the meetings showing their interest in our community affairs.

Very Truly yours,
Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Beach

Jaycees explain carnival location

Dear Jean,

I want to take this opportunity to address those people who have expressed concern over the new location of the Jaycee Carnival. I have received a lot of feedback from disappointed business people in the village when they heard the carnival was going elsewhere.

I would like it understood that the Jaycees did not want to take the carnival out of downtown. I think the carnival is more than a tradition but a part of the Village itself and drew people together to help preserve our beautiful village of Clarkston.

However, it started last year when the Village Council expressed concern over the new trees that had been planted in the Village Parking lot. The concern was that the trees might be damaged by the rides and people. This year when we started to finalize plans, the Village Council raised the same objection and voiced the concern of some business men over shoplifting and people using their facilities. In short, without an official vote, the Village Council did not want the carnival downtown.

We started to look for another location near town and the School board was approached on the Junior High facilities. At our first meeting with the School board, they were not optimistic and tabled it for a month. With time running out we still looked elsewhere. When we approached the Eagles they were glad to have us use their facilities, on Maybee near Sashabaw.

The Jaycees are sorry to be moving and we apologize to anyone we might be hurting by doing so, but we had no other alternative. My only suggestion is that if people are concerned, they write the Village Council or the School Board and let their feelings be known.

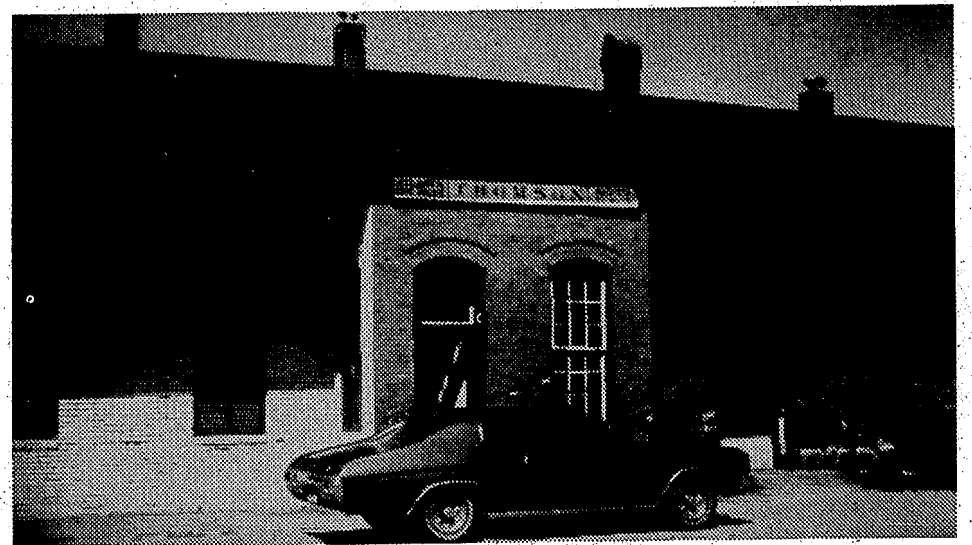

I would also like to hear from you. Thank you and I hope to see you at our Carnival.

Depot beautification sought for Artrain

Clarkston's Depot, once the jumping off point for summers of fun at area lakes, is no longer a train station. Now used by Clarkston Village Players as a theater, the old depot will become the site of the Artrain visit in November. Artrain committee members are in hopes of raising money to spruce up the exterior of the building and create a suitable site for the Artrain visit.

This old Georgia railroad depot, built of granite and brick, was an eyesore until Artrain came in 1974.

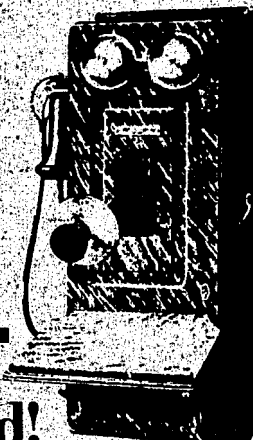

In honor of Artrain's arrival, the old depot which was built in 1860 was painted and renovated. Grass, flowers, trees, shrubs and benches were added.

New village laws conform with township

Seven ordinances controlling littering, nuisances, disabled and abandoned vehicles, soliciting, use of motorcycles and revising the village criminal code and traffic code were passed by the Clarkston Village Council Monday night.

The ordinances are identical to existing ordinances in Independence Township, and were submitted by Township and Village Police Chief Jack McCall to facilitate more uniform enforcement of the areas involved in the ordinances.

The anti-litter ordinance No. 77, designates what litter is, prohibits littering on both public and private roads, and allows for the dumping of refuse in only designated dumping areas.

The nuisance ordinance, No. 76, is a broad statute covering the public health aspects of controlling the environment, and includes a long list of what nuisances are considered to be, such as loose dogs making trouble for residents.

The motorcycle ordinance No. 75, designates times of operation for the vehicles, plus where people are allowed to ride them. A part states that anyone riding on private property must get written permission from the property owner.

The abandoned and disabled vehicle ordinance No. 78, outlines procedures for dealing with cars left on the side of the road, and old junkers sitting around on private property.

The solicitation ordinance, No. 79, covers almost every kind of solicitation there is, and requires that solicitors apply for permission to the council. It also states that a person who does not wish to have anyone soliciting on his property may put up a card to that effect and his wish will be enforced.

The criminal-code ordinance No. 74, formerly the disorderly persons ordinance, covers a wide range of offenses that are against the law in the village, including loitering, public drunkenness, property destruction and false police alarms.

The seventh ordinance does not involve coordination with township ordinances, but is rather a switch from the council from the outdated uniform vehicle code to the more standardized uniform traffic code.

Parke Lake use control is sought

The Clarkston Village Council is requesting that the Michigan State Department of Natural Resources hold a public hearing on watercraft controls for Parke Lake.

The council voted to send a letter stating their request after a presentation by Clarkston resident Nelson Kimball, 72 N. Main at the Council's Monday night meeting.

Kimball lives on Parke Lake, and recently conducted a survey of Parke Lake property owners on the use of boats on the lake.

Kimball found from his poll that an overwhelming majority of those having lake privileges preferred the elimination of high-powered speed boating, but wanted to retain low speed fishing boats and float boats.

"It's impossible on a small lake to have high powered boats and swimming both," Kimball said.

The public hearing by the DNR, if held, he said, will be conducted to find out the problems of recreational boating and surface water use. Then the DNR will establish what rules should be used on the lake.

The village could then enact an ordinance conforming to the DNR recommendations, he said.

Kimball said he has already talked to Independence Township officials about the control of Parke Lake, as part of the lake lies in both the village and township.

Kimball hopes to coordinate efforts by the two municipalities with regard to Parke Lake, and announced that the township board has the matter scheduled for discussion at its Sept. 3 meeting.

Put-and-take:

Hunting pals can get licenses

With the start of a new hunter control system at Bald Mt. Recreation area's put-take pheasant areas this fall, the Department of Natural Resources is informing license dealers that they will be permitted to sell licenses out of sequence.

New regulations this year for 4 put-take areas permit hunters with license numbers ending in even numbers to hunt only on even-numbered days. Those with odd numbers can only hunt on odd-numbered days.

If a father and son or old friends wish to hunt together, they may now ask the license dealer to sell them licenses which have either odd or even similar last numbers.

Besides Bald Mountain, the odd-even system will be in effect at the Gourdneck State Game Area near Kalamazoo and the Holly Recreation Area and Wetzel State Park north of Detroit.

The DNR put-take pheasant program provides a longer hunting season on state-owned lands. This year's season will run September 18 - November 14 and December 1, - January 5, 1975. This will permit deer hunting in the put-take areas without complicating put-take pheasant regulations.

Shooting hours have been shortened and will be from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. but hunters will be allowed to hunt for all seven days of the week during the season with two exceptions. Last year there was no hunting on Thursday and Friday.

The two exceptions to seven-day hunting are Wetzel State Park and Gregory State Game Area, the latter not under the odd-even regulation. Local regulations prohibit Sunday hunting in these areas.

The length of season and shooting hours also apply to the other areas not under the odd-even hunting program. These are: Barry, Dansville, Deford, Flat River, Gratiot-Saginaw, Gregory, Lapeer, Portland, Rogue River, Sharon-ville and Three Rivers State Game Areas; Ionia State Recreation Area and Sleepy Hollow State Park.

In another effort to ease hunting pressure in all 17 areas, two pheasant releases are planned for each area each week. These releases will be made on varying days to permit more uniform usage of the areas and better hunting success.

Additional information on the put-take pheasant season is available from local DNR conservation officers and in the 1974-75 Michigan Big Game-Small Game Hunting Guide at local license dealers.

The Waterford Hill Golf Course clubhouse was demolished by its owners last week, bringing to an end negotiations over the building on the property which has been the subject of litigation.

Oxford Mining explosion hurts man

An Oxford Mining Company employe was hospitalized Saturday with injuries he sustained in an explosion at the plant, 9820 Andersonville Road, Springfield Township.

Earl Johnson, 61, of Ortonville was in satisfactory condition early this week at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital. His left leg was broken and he sustained bruises and cuts on both legs in the mishap, shortly before 9 a.m.

Johnson was injured and the front-end loader he was operating was damaged when a hydraulic cylinder next to the cab exploded, according to Oakland County Sheriff's deputies.

Bicycle program off to good start

The first weekend of bicycle registration in Independence Township was a "huge success," according to Director of Police Services Jack McCall, who reported that more than 500 bikes were registered by local and county police last Saturday and Sunday.

About 1,000 bicycles were registered during the month the Oakland County

Nancy Bryan wins state championships

Nancy Bryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bryan, 4945 Clarkston Road, walked away with a number of honors at the recently held State 4-H Horse Show in Lansing.

Nancy took Reserve Grand Champion in Fitting and Showing, Grand Champion of the Stock Seat Equitation, a silver medal in Western Horse Pleasure Class, and an honorable mention in dressage.

Nancy is a June graduate of Clarkston High School and belongs to the Lake Orion Saddle-Lites 4-H Club.

She took the honors with the help of her quarterhorse, Leo's Red Devil.

Nancy went to the state competition with the same wins already under her belt from the Oakland County 4-H Fair. There she took Grand Champion in both Fitting and Showing and Horsemanship.

Nancy Bryan, Clarkston, won Grand Champion and Reserve Champion in the Fitting and Showing competition during the 1974 State 4-H Horse Show at Michigan State University, Aug. 20. Over 400 4-H members and their horses participated in the annual day-long event.

Sheriff's Department conducted the program in Avon Township, which is more densely populated.

McCall said he hoped enthusiasm for the program would continue during the second weekend. Police will be in the parking lot of Clarkston High School from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 31 and Sept. 1.

The Tire Bin Tigers Pee Wee Little League team made a fine showing this year with a record of 9 wins, 1 loss and 1 tie. This won them a 1st place in the American League.

Schools gear for fall sports

by Mary Warner
Sports editor

Football may be dominating the sports scene in Clarkston this fall, but there are many other sports activities scheduled in the Clarkston schools that will be interesting to follow.

Clarkston high school will be sponsoring cross-country and golf teams again this year, and will begin competition as soon as school starts.

The cross-country team, coached by Errol Solley, has already held three time trials with about 15 boys, and will be holding the first meet against Davison and Lake Orion at Davison on Sept. 4.

There are eight dual meets scheduled for the team, plus five multi-school cross-country competitions, during the fall.

Coach Solley said he lost a lot of last year's team to graduation, so will be working with a younger team. But so far, he said, the team looks pretty good.

Doug Pierson will be coaching the golf team, which is pitted against Holly on Sept. 4. Sign-up has not yet been completed for that team, and will begin sometime this week, according to Coach Pierson.

The Clarkston and Sashabaw Junior Highs will be extending girls' athletics this year, with the addition of a ninth-grade intermural girls basketball team.

Dennis Bronson will be teaching the girls at CJH, and has thus far had 34 girls sign up. Their first game, one of 13 scheduled, will be Sept. 26 against Sashabaw. Practice will begin for the team when school starts next week.

The Sashabaw girls' basketball program will be headed by physical education teacher Sue Kosloski, who will also be starting practice when school starts to prepare for the battle against Clarkston.

An intermural cross-country team at CJH will be starting practice when school starts, coached by Chuck Keegan. The schedule for the team is still indefinite. Sashabaw was unable to sponsor a cross-country team because it could find no meets, according to athletic director John Kirchgesner.

There are also several intramural activities scheduled for the two junior highs, including eighth grade tackle football and seventh and eighth grade girls' basketball at Clarkston Junior High, and eighth grade tackle, seventh grade touch football, and seventh and eighth grade girls basketball at Sashabaw.

Village approves Deer Lake plat

The Clarkston Village Council Monday night approved a request for tentative preliminary plat approval made by developer Hubert Garner for property on the northwestern edge of the village.

The property involves parts of four lots which are part of a larger developmental proposal by Garner for the northern end of Deer Lake.

Voting yes to a motion to approve

Village sewer cost explained

Clarkston residents who wish to connect to the new village sewer system already have a lot of the bad news behind them, according to Neil Granlund, village trustee and a member of the village trustee and a member of the village's sewer committee.

The $1 million project is being paid for by an ad valorem tax, spread equally upon all property holders in the village. In July they paid $12.50 per $1,000 of assessed valuation, the average homeowner bill being somewhat in the neighborhood of $190. The sewer tax will continue until the bonds are paid for - some 20 years down the road, Granlund said.

Those homeowners who decide to connect to the sewer and they have 18 months to do so under state law - will face only the expense of connecting their household systems to the sewer lead, at the property line and inspection fees for the job, Granlund said.

The village will charge no tie-in fee.

In contrast, the township charges a flat $2,260 fee, payable over 20 some years, at the time of connection. Homeowners in the township are also responsible for connecting from the property line to the house.

Both township and village users will be charged a $21.25 quarterly maintenance fee. Bills will be sent out separately by the township and by the village, the council having decided recently to undertake billing on its own.

Every three months, village property owners will receive a payment card - styled like a utility bill - and have 30 days in which to comply. Payment may be mailed to the village office or be made in person at the Sashabaw and Clarkston branches of Pontiac State Bank.

Granlund said the village is in process of contracting with the bank to handle the payment fees.

"We've never billed for our own utilities before," Granlund reported. "This time we found that it would be $1,000 a year cheaper to hire someone part time, and Mary Ann Pappas (wife of village treasurer Artemus Pappas) has been engaged to send out the bills and answer people's questions."

"Bills will be sent to 262 residents and 63 businessmen," Granlund said. He said the usage fee would start when the quarter ends after a resident taps-in to the system.

Granlund explained that the quarterly fee is determined by a list drawn up by the county determining what the average use for the sewers is per home. That use is determined by units, and each home will generally be billed for one unit of usage.

Granlund also stressed that the 12.5 mills of the total 15-mill levy in the village must be used for sewers.

"We are investing the money not needed at present for bond payments. The interest accumulated should help us in future years to lower the sewer millage," he said.

were trustees Katherine McCall, James Weber and Michael Thayer. Abstaining were trustees Ruth Basinger and Neil Granlund.

The trustees voting yes acted on advice from village attorney John Steckling, who told the council that it is not economically feasible for the council to get dragged into a lawsuit right now - a possibility for the council if the request were denied.

Steckling also advised that the council has no real legal grounds for denying the request, as it meets all the specifications for a tentative plat proposal.

Those specifications include lot size, street orientation and the conformity of the planned use to existing zoning for the property.

He advised that a denial made on the basis of a foreseeable traffic problem that might arise from the entire 372-acre development would not be a proper reason for denial if the matter were brought to court.

Steckling stressed that approving the tentative preliminary plat did not hurt the council's power to control the possible access routes from the development and work out some kind of feasible traffic flow.

But he said that matters such as possible traffic problems would have to come up for approval by the council during later plat and construction requests that the Garner development must make before they can begin the project.

Steckling also stated that the council decision would have little or no effect on a lawsuit now pending between Independence Township and Garner over 372 acres of the proposed development lying in the township.

Steckling said he felt the council was not backing off from a denial because it feared a lawsuit - something that had been threatened by Garner representative Jim Scharl at an earlier council meeting.

Rather, he said, the council felt that there were adequate safeguards down the road to final plat approval whereby the council could fight Garner on the problems of traffic.

Trustee Weber agreed with Steckling, saying that "the council has nothing on which to base a refusal now. We'd be wasting money on a possible lawsuit if we denied it now, but later on we'll have more grounds to fight."

Trustee McCall also echoed that "we haven't a legal leg to stand on right now. But later on, perhaps we can stop them." She said she is against the proposed Garner development due to the traffic problems it might cause for the village.

Trustee Thayer agreed with McCall and Weber that a fight would be better off fought further along in the development process.

Trustee Granlund abstained, saying that "I cannot vote yes to something I don't feel I can ever say yes to again."

And Trustee Basinger thought that the proposed development would "have disastrous repercussions in the village," saying that since the majority of the development lies outside of the village, the village would have no means of controlling the traffic from the proposed subdivision.

Park development due to start

Bids were to be opened today (August 29) for the construction of 2,000 feet of roadway and parking for 60 cars at Independence Township's new 36-acre park off Clarkston Road.

The parking and roadway is conceived as the initial development phase in a program expected to cost $130,000. Like the purchase of the park itself, costs will be met 80 percent by state and federal agencies - the township responsible for 20 percent.

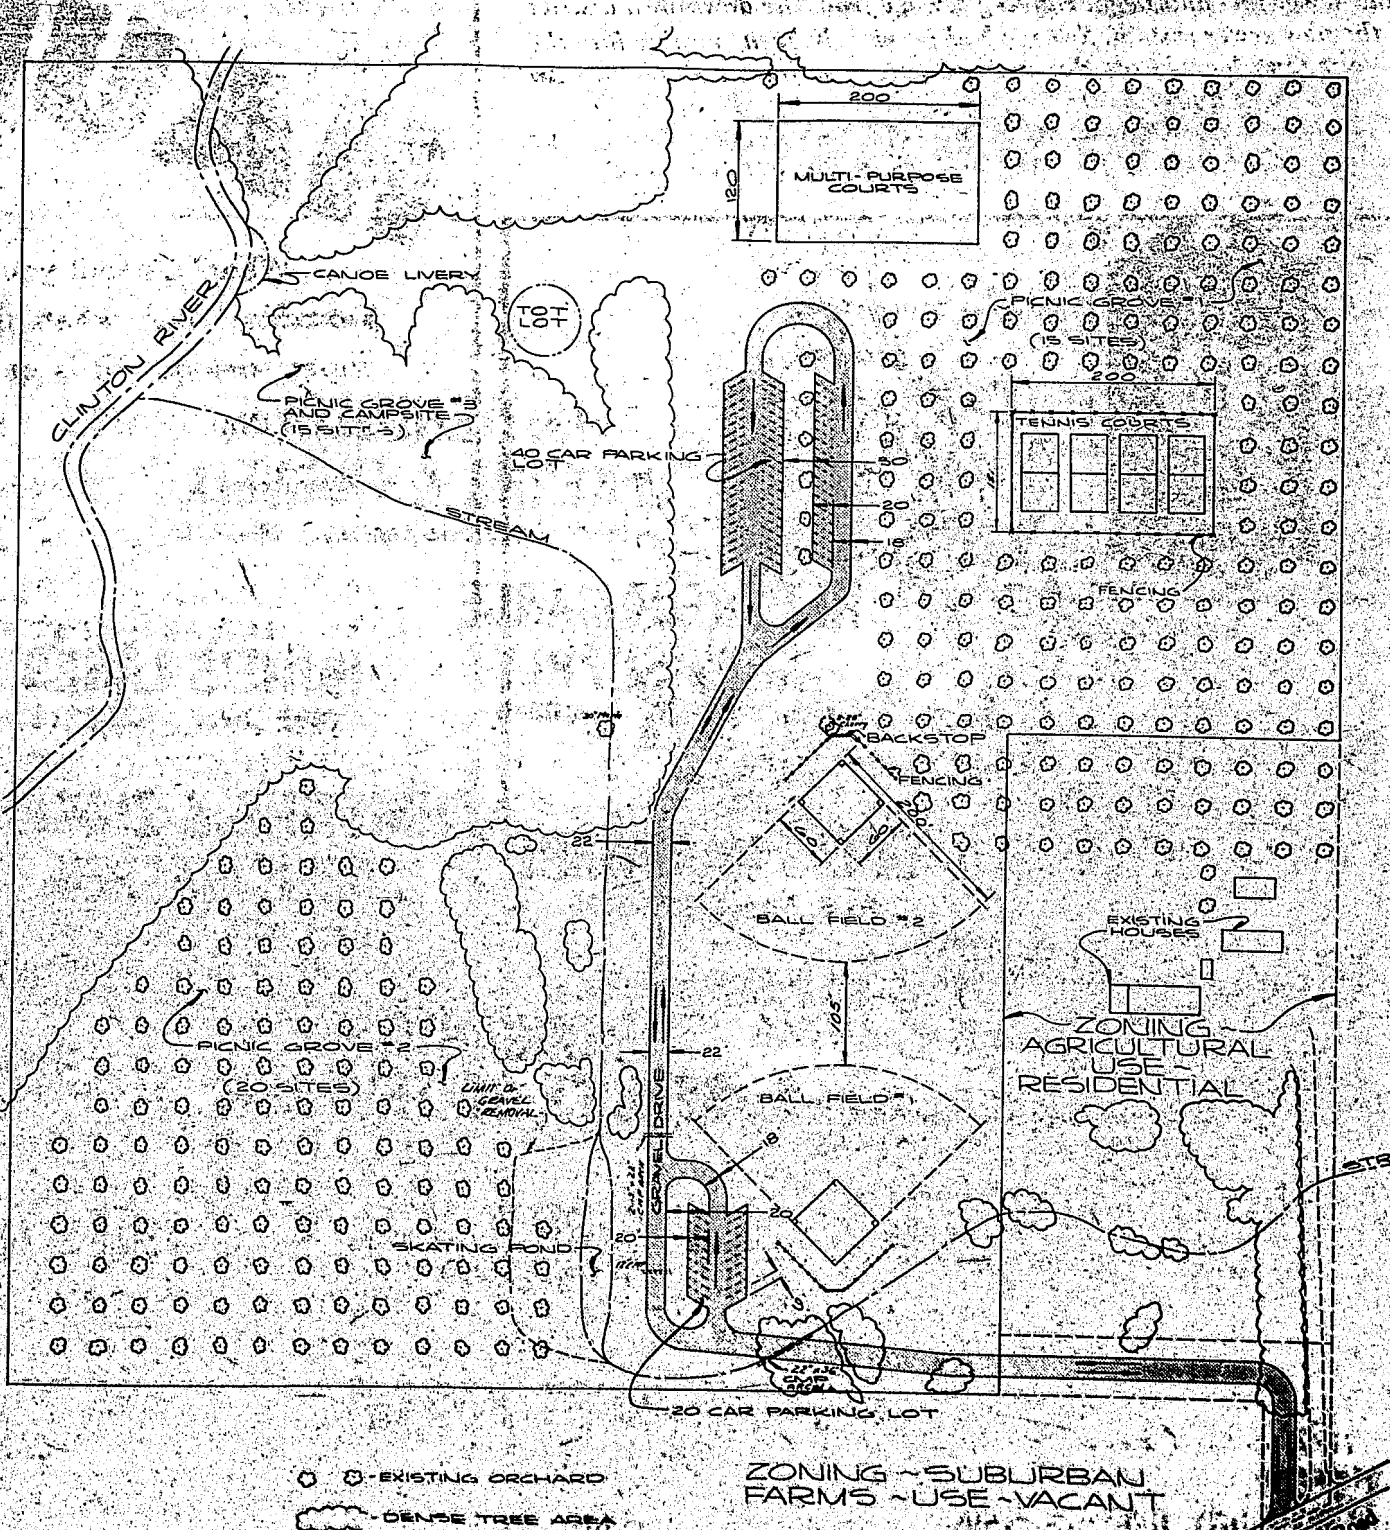

Supervisor Robert Vandermark said two ballparks near the parking areas will be constructed by Clarkston Area Jaycees. Future plans include the development of tennis courts, multi-purpose courts, a picnic grove and tot lot.

The park pond should be open to ice skating this winter, Vandermark said. The ball fields are planned to be ready for use in the spring.

Vandermark noted that most of the site is now covered with orchard and he said most of the trees would be saved. There is some heavy natural tree growth along the Clinton River which will also be preserved as well as approximately six acres of wetlands.

The road and parking project is estimated to cost $50,000. Vandermark said the township would cover the costs with reimbursement from the federal and state governments due within about six weeks.

Village sewer system in use

The village sewers are 100 per cent connected! Clarkston Village President Keith Hallman and Village Public Works Director Gar Wilson watch as Rocco Ferrara Construction Co. workers complete the procedure which will allow the downtown business district to run their sewage through the new sewer system.

Harold Frank, William Henry and Cesidie Longe pump out the manhole housing the old and new village sewer lines, so they can cover the old sewer line and begin running sewage from the downtown district into the new sewer system. Sewage had previously been running into the old septic tank located off Depot Road and sometimes spilling into the fields and the Clinton River beyond.

The manhole work was done on Monday, the company then moving on to dig out the old septic tank and fill in the polluted area.

2 foreign students to attend CHS

Two foreign exchange students, one from Sweden and one from Japan have arrived in Clarkston to spend a year with Clarkston families while they attend Clarkston High School.

Elizabeth Lindgren, 17, arrived Aug. 20 in Detroit, flying from her home town of Bjursas, Sweden. Elizabeth was picked up by her host family, the Douglas Prestos, of 4832 Clinton Drive.

Elizabeth will be taking senior-level courses at the high school and will probably participate in the high school choir. She recently toured the east coast of the U.S. for two weeks with a choir group from her home town.

She speaks English well, according to Douglas Presto, and has already gone water skiing with the Presto family and begun getting acquainted with the Presto's four children.

Hisao Torii, 17, just arrived in August 19, to stay with his American Family for a year, the Gary Ushman's of Church Street in Clarkston. Hisao will also be a senior at CHS.

This is Hisao's first time to America, but so far he has adjusted well, according to Ushman. He has a black belt in Karate, Ushman noted.

Talk about paper that can be recycled!

Young Jeff Hattabaugh, a volunteer at the Bottles for Building Center, has $20 to put into circulation--and so does his mother.

Jeff tossed a bundle of papers onto a pile at the center with a bit too much gusto, it busted open and $20 bills started coming out--12 of 'em. Jeff and his mother, Mrs. Charles B. Hattabaugh, of 4616 Second, Drayton Plains, searched through the pile of discarded paper until they had a clue about its owner.

Grateful to get his $240 back from the two honest volunteers, the owner gave each a $20.

Pine Knob has made its final payment for last year's Oakland County Sheriff's Department patrol of summer concerts. Assistant Civil Counsel Jack Hays said the final payment of $15,000 on the $42,000 bill was made last week. He said the theater is all caught up on this year's payments, with the exception of a bill for one month's service due in 15 days. Total cost of deputy patrol this year is about $25,000, or close to half what it was last year, he said.

If your sinuses are acting up, you're not alone. This is the year for allergies according to an unofficial survey. Even those people who are ordinarily not allergic are having problems this summer, we hear.

Residents on the Upper and Lower Millponds who expressed concern about the dumping of refuse into the lake at the Monday night Clarkston Village Council meeting may be able to solve the problem through two new ordinances passed by the council.

The new ordinances, No. 76 and 77, regulate littering and nuisances in the village.

According to village attorney John Steckling, the enforcement of these ordinances could prevent people from dumping refuse into the Millponds.

Gar Wilson, Department of Public Works director for the Village of Clarkston, is looking for designs to put on the side of the new village truck.

Gar doesn't want to just put "Village of Clarkston" on the side, and wants a design to uniquely symbolize the village.

It can be something relating to Clarkston's historical heritage, its antique setting, or anything else would lend itself to an insignia identifying Clarkston.

Anyone who has any ideas or designs should write the Village Hall, 25 S. Main, Clarkston.

Village President Keith Hallman last week turned over a $200 check to the Clarkston Area Bicentennial Committee. The money was from the production company which during the July 4th weekend filmed part of an automotive film here.

A letter we received last week:

Dear Ms. Saile and Braunagel,

The H.A.I.-M. organization wishes to extend its deep appreciation for the kind article on page 10 of the August 15th Clarkston News.

Rest assured that your publication will be widely distributed. The success of our organization rests with individuals of your caliber.

After our struggle you will be honored guests in Armenia.

Golf, apartments proposed in Springfield

Lack of a quorum at the Aug. 20 meeting of the Springfield Township Planning Commission delayed for a month a decision by the commission on two rezoning petitions.

Three commission members were vacationing, leaving only three commission members to sit in the informal session—four are needed for a quorum.

The remaining members did hold a scheduled public hearing on the rezoning of 200 acres north of Bridge Lake Road on the corner of I-75 and Dixie Highway.

Petitioner John Szeremet of Waterford was asking that the property be rezoned from single family residential to multiple residential and recreation zoning.

Szeremet plans to use 140 acres of the property for a golf course, and build 100 units of apartments on the remaining 60 acres.

About 30 Springfield residents were on hand to pose questions about the rezoning, according to Springfield Planner Tod Kilroy. Kilroy said there didn't seem to be any major objections to the rezoning by the people in attendance.

He said some residents did question the type of access routes out of the proposed development, citing worry about flow onto Bridge Lake Road.

But Kilroy said that Szeremet's planned access routes would only include the Dixie Highway.

The commission had to delay a decision on the request until the next commission meeting the third week of September, and also delayed a request for a rezoning to light industrial.

Petitioner for that rezoning was Leroy Smith of Springfield Township, who asked that 10 acres on Crosby Lake Road just west of Andersonville Road be changed from residential to light industrial.

Smith wants to use the property for storage of construction equipment.

Since the area is planned for industrial use in the Springfield Master Zoning Plan, according to Kilroy, the Springfield planners have advised the commission that it should recommend approval to the township board.

Lake board seeks Mill Pond bid

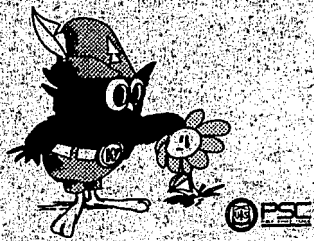

The Independence Township Lake Board this week will make a second attempt to engage a contractor to clean the Upper Mill Pond.

The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Independence Township Hall with the prospect of opening bids on the project.

An earlier attempt to obtain bids on the clean-up met with no response from contractors, who apparently were reluctant to make further commitments on their equipment this late in the season, according to Township Trustee Keith Humbert, one of the lake board members.

So the board has agreed that the work need not be done until spring, as long as it has a firm agreement now.

"This isn't going to make people happy, but it's the best we could do," Humbert said.

A rose by any other name?

By Mary Warner

What is one of the most misspelled, mispronounced, switched-around, goofed up, joked upon and otherwise malaproposized proper nouns in the English language? Our names, of course, the thing we live with from birth to death, the thing that is integrally linked with our identities.

So what happens when someone is snatched out of the crib and unceremoniously dubbed Ada Scrace?

It isn't any fun for Miss Ada Scrace, 54 Buffalo St. in Clarkston, who thinks that her parents just got sick of naming kids--"cause all the other kids got full names with at least an initial in between!"

Ada Scrace isn't the only one with name woes. Springfield Township Planner Tod Kilroy gets "zapped at least twice a week" with the fact that his name has been immortalized on the battlefields of Europe and stateside bathrooms ever since World War II.

Tod has a way of getting in a punch or two of his own though. He pointed out that it's mainly the older generation which remembers the little guy peeking over the wall announcing that "Kilroy was here," and gleefully exclaims, "Now I know how old YOU are!" when they tease him.

People with famous names are just as likely to suffer pun-filled fare of friends, like the Harold Fords on Cranberry Lake Road.

"How's old Uncle Gerry," they ask, referring to the new president, Gerald Ford.

They also make reference to almost any of the Ford automobiles ads coming out, like "Hey, there's a Ford in your future," or announcing when the Fords' five daughters come into Clarkston--"Hey watch the Fords go by!"

Mrs. Ford also has a few laughs of her own. She has dubbed next door neighbor seven-year-old Mickie Moffett "Little Miss Moffett," and also tells about Mrs. Harvey Gauthier of Pontiac, who used to live in this area with a maiden name of "Mona Leece."

Then an occasional name pops up in a political campaign, like the recent primary race featuring Warren G. Harding as candidate for State Senator.

And even the name Nixon still rings a few bells, but a call to a telephone book listing under "R. Nixon" was to no avail, the ruffled speaker adamantly refusing to reveal his first name, saying "I'd rather not say."

Teachers have their share of name troubles, too. Sashabaw Junior High drafting teacher Neil Granlund (who has probably had enough trouble protecting his own surname from tongue-twisting blunders) spent a whole semester pronouncing one of his students' names "weasel" until he found out the correct pronunciation was "Wize-el" -- spelled, by the way, Weisel.

He also had a student named John Adams. "Don't tell me your middle name is Quincy?" Neil quipped. "It sure is," came the reply, leaving Neil to wallow in his own backfired missile.

And there are those who even take advantage of little kids, leading them to believe they're really the famous person whose names they own.

Like Jack Frost of Cramlane Drive in Clarkston. He pretends to the little ones that he really is the one that paints all those windows snowy white come wintertime. (It's all in the name of fun, though.)

When Jack's son, Jack Frost Jr., was three years old, his mom tried to explain to him that his name meant something other than just a normal-type name. She thought she'd convinced him, only to wake Jack Jr. one morning when frost had coated the windows.

"Mommy, look what daddy did," little Jack piped.

And there's Tom A. Hawke, of Bald Eagle Lake Road in Ortonville. He used to work at the Pontiac Parks and Recreation Department, and had the kids believing he was an Indian.

Tom has played up his tomahawk name during the years in the Boy Scouts. He has been honorary Chief of Billie Sunday Farnum is a man with a famous name, and he's gone on to make it even more famous. Former auditor-general of the state and a former Congressman, he now dispenses financial advice to such bodies as the Clarkston Village Council.

the Pottawatomie Indian Tribe of the Clinton Valley Council for some years.

He also attended Central Michigan University, home of the Chippewa football team, and now presides (as a hawk should) over the corner of Bald Eagle Lake and Bird Roads, Ouch!

And we have a local Jaycees official who has been called everything from Bruck to Briggs to Brook to Buick, the latter when Jim Brueck (Brew-ick) bought a Buick. And another Jaycee named Don Foote who was nicknamed "Fa-toot-ski" by one of his teachers while he was in high school.

Sashabaw Junior High assistant principal John Kirchgessner said that his name stands for "caretaker of the church." Even such a lofty title couldn't get him past his in-laws, though, he said. His wife's family is Polish, he related, and wanted their daughter to marry a Pole.

"So when she asked them for permission to marry me," he said, "she told them that my name didn't have a 'ski' on the end, but it had 12 letters, and wasn't that good enough?"

Chicago

The best just seems to get better. Chicago, probably the nation's premier rock group, Monday night opened its five-night stint at Pine Knob -- its third series of sellouts in three seasons -- with a performance that sent the 10,000 or more in attendance into ecstasy.

It was a night geared for superlatives, and Chicago was equal to the promise. The warm weather, the friendly flying of Frisbees and bouncing of beach balls, and the ever-present wine and pot built the crowd to a happily anticipatory edge.

Then the group casually sauntered out -- no warm-up act, no introduction -- and proceeded to lay down about 2 1/2 hours (minus intermission) of a tight, beaty, brassy jazz-rock the group is famous for.

Chicago -- Peter Cetera, Terry Kath, Robert Lamm, Lee Loughnane, Walter Parazaider, James Pankow and Danny Seraphine -- time time was augmented by an eighth instrumentalist -- a Brazilian conga drummer who was introduced but whose name was lost in the sound system.

In introducing him, Pankow said, "He's changed our minds about people from other countries," whatever that means.

Anyway, he added some fine percussion work to Seraphine's drumming, giving new versatility to Chicago's horns-strings-keyboards sound.

Otherwise, the group was visually pretty much the same, although it's interesting to note the annual changes in facial hair.

There were bassist Cetera's familiar grimaces as he vocalized such numbers as "Just You and Me." Kath's casual puffing a cigarette as he nimbly fingered one of the meanest guitars in Rockdom; Lamm's amiable manner as he moved from keyboard to keyboard, and trombonist Pankow's hamminess, this time mercifully minimal.

Aurally, however, the evening was extraordinary. The group sprinkled its numerous hits liberally throughout two sets of numbers that, at one time or another, gave everyone on the stage a chance to solo, often spectacularly.

And the ocean of sound flowing from the stage was met, again, and again, by return waves of applause, sometimes rhythmic, sometimes frenetic and always appreciative.

"Saturday in the Park" was the first song to bring large numbers of fans to their feet, and for the last 25 minutes, virtually everyone was standing, with many dancing.

Probably the only ones not enjoying themselves immensely were the Pine Knob Rangers, apprehensively eying the milling crowd. Their fears weren't eased by one exuberant fan, who tossed his small (apparently empty) beer keg on the stage.

But nothing untoward happened. Chicago played a couple of encores and the audience filed out happily, coming down from one incredible community high.

Even the lighting, while not exceptional, added to the evening's enjoyable effect. In all, the concert comprised a nearly perfect blend of decibels, candlepower and adrenaline.

Eagles

The Eagles appeared at Pine Knob August 20 and showed why their sound is so popular on the charts.

It was unusual to see such a small crowd for a popular group, however they put on a fine show anyway.

The group started out with "Take It Easy," a real foot stomper. The energy level never came down, but flowed through the entire performance. They also did title songs from two of their albums, "On the Border" and "Desperado." Glenn Frey sings lead on most of the songs and his voice on "Peaceful Easy Feeling" and "OL 55" was superb.

The performance was well balanced with the band changing guitars after nearly every song. The three guitarists blend very well together and between them they played 11 different stringed instruments. Bernie Leadon's blue grass banjo picking led into a fine rendition of "Midnight Flyer." Leadon also sang lead on a moving version of "The Train leaves here this morning."

Western Folklore is evident in the Eagles' music. As they performed "Desperado" and "Doolin Dalton" one could feel the western roots. The stage backdrop for the evening was a huge colorful abstract drawing of an eagle. The drawing also appears on their latest album cover. The drums were brightly decorated with feathers like those of an Indian headdress and the amplifier bore a colorful Indian design.

As The Eagles performed "Witchy Woman" the music added strong Indian influence to the mood. But they can also rock and roll and saved it for "dessert" as Glenn Frey put it. Suck rockers included James Dean, a song devoted to the rebel himself. The performance was professional and they did two encores for the appreciative crowd.

Changes greet 1,600 CHS students

Some 1,600 students will report to classes Tuesday at Clarkston High School, the largest number in the 15-year history of the building and about 50 more than were enrolled there last year.

Principal William Dennis said the 63 teaching positions of last year will be maintained, however, a new counselor has been hired to assist students with school problems.

Victor Hart joins Marilyn Hanson, Margaret Lay and William Bonnell on the counseling staff, and they will be assigned students this year on an alphabetical rather than a grade level basis.

"Such a system," Dennis said, "should provide more continuity and better communication between students and counselor."

Another first to be employed this year involves use of an adult parking lot attendant at the school.

Dennis said, "His main responsibility will involve the security of the lot and the curtailment of vandalism and thievery which tend to take place there."

He added the attendant would be charged with restricting parking in the lot to those vehicles registered with the school. Dennis said no sophomores would be permitted to drive, and he hoped to keep car use of the upper grades confined to those students who have permission to leave early -- either through the co-op work program, early dismissal or sign out.

"We will register all junior and senior vehicles on request, but because of limited parking we encourage those who don't need to drive to leave their cars at home," Dennis explained.

He also said that smoking in the school's "smoker" -- the lobby outside the gymnasium -- would bring warnings to those students under 18 years of age and a phone call to their parents.

"Those who violate the school smoking policy will be reprimanded," he said.

School dances -- the first scheduled following the Oxford football game September 13 -- will continue on a one-to-one basis, the principal said. Problems arising at a dance last fall caused the curtailment and then reinstitution of dances on a one-by-one basis. Dennis said the policy will be adhered to this year.

Some 600 new sophomores will enter the high school this year and were registered for classes last week along with juniors and seniors.

"There was a sincere effort to provide the classes students requested," Dennis said, "however those who are not satisfied will be given the opportunity to discuss schedule changes with their counselor during the first week of classes."

Scheduling is handled by the Oakland Intermediate School computer, the principal explained.

Bus regulations and the student code of conduct both the same as last year, were to be mailed to all parents of students in the secondary schools this week, Dennis reported.

"We'd like the parents to study and discuss the contents with their children. If they have a question, they should call the high school office," he said.

Attendance will be taken on a hour-by-hour basis and kept track of by computer, the principal reported. Weekly reports will be made on excessive absences.

"We'd like parents to notify the school in the case of prolonged absence," Dennis said.

The dress code remains the same in that the school has none. "We encourage students to dress adequately. Those who are improperly dressed to the point of creating health hazards or distraction will be asked to leave," he stated.

Dennis admits that with more students in the building, some disciplinary procedures have had to be tightened. "Before we might have attempted to live with it, but with more kids some situations are unliveable," he said.

Persons involved with drugs -- whether narcotic or alcoholic -- will be dealt with as in the past according to the student code of conduct, Dennis said. The code identified such involvement as an illegal act.

The high school's outdoor classroom remains an unknown factor. Waiting to find its place on the Board of Education's priority list, it is as yet without fencing.

"We believe it will have to be fenced in order to maintain it as a nature study center," Dennis said. "It should be treated as a classroom."

The center is proposed for the 10 acres located behind and to the south of the school. It would be used by science classes for instruction in the environment.

New items the students will find this year include a new sound system at the football field, a partial re-roofing of the school and new ceiling tile throughout the gymnasium level.

Driver education after the regular school day will be discontinued this fall, due to a lack of need, but may be implemented again in the spring, Dennis said.

Students who have 15 credits and who applied at the end of their junior year will be allowed to graduate in January, he reported. They will not, however, receive their diplomas until June.

And most of all -- there'll be new teaching faces. Dennis reports Lee Romeo has been hired to teach electricity and welding in the industrial arts department; Dorane Speraw has been employed as a new physical education teacher; and there are two changes in the business education department.

Ann Reeves, formerly a teacher, will take over the cooperative job program replacing Pat Schebor who resigned, and Kathy Peirson will take over Ann's old teaching job. One home economics teaching position has not yet been filled, the principal reported.

Dominic Alessi has been hired to teach social studies.

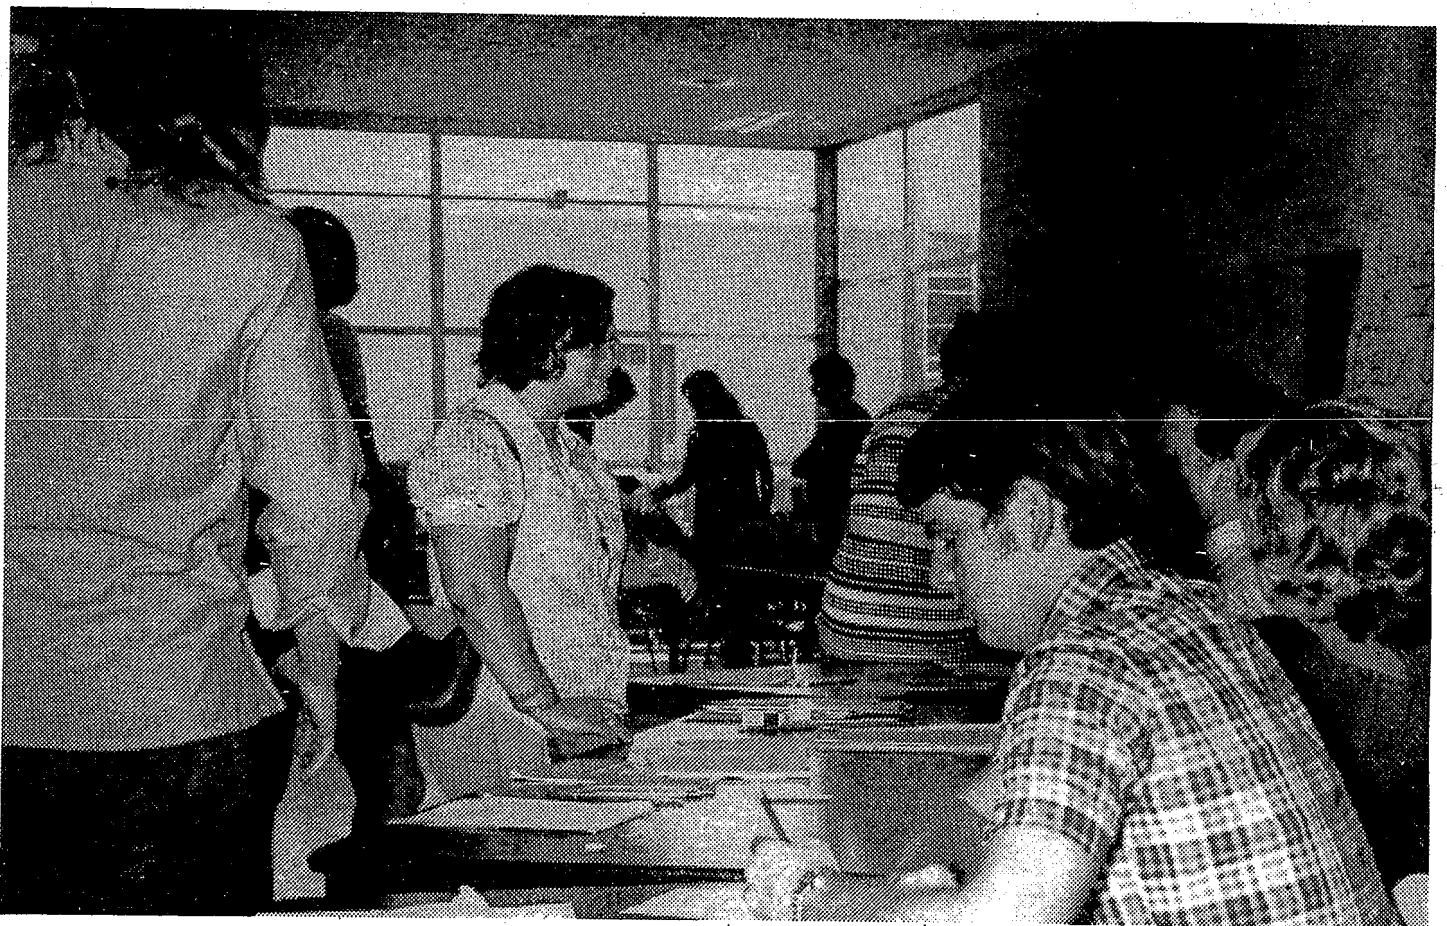

Despite the changes marking the start of a new school year, Dennis stresses one factor which remains constant -- parental involvement.

He said further back-to-school days for parents will be tried, but he hopes for better response than that obtained last year. Parents are welcome to meet with the administration at any time, but need to make prior contact before sitting in on classes, he said.

Clarkston High School students avail themselves of computer scheduling during early registration.

Expected enrollment down

Clarkston School District student enrollment is anticipated at 7,060 or about 40 students less than last year, according to Asst. Supt. Mel Vaara.

He points out however that indications are that kindergarten enrollment may be up slightly from last year.

Of the 7,060, about 70 percent or nearly 5,000 students will get to class via the district's fleet of 43 buses.

Three new ones, replacing some that are 10 years old, are due to be added within a couple of weeks, according to Norm Cilley, transportation supervisor.

The buses in service ply 36 regular routes, driven by a corps of bus drivers numbering 44, including substitutes.

There'll be five new faces behind the wheels for some of the area students this year. Cilley reports Joan Spence will be driving bus No. 66 which carries students to the high school and to Andersonville Elementary. Marilyn Bixby, driving bus No. 67, will be plying a similar route.

Kay Miller, behind the wheel of bus No. 72, will be delivering students to Sashabaw Junior High and Bailey Lake Elementary; while Lois Thomas and Cynthia Miracle on buses 85 and 83 will be taking children to Sashabaw Junior High and the Sashabaw Elementary schools.

Other than the new routes made necessary by the transfer of 96 Walters Lake area students from Bailey Lake to Sashabaw and the return of 36 Pine Knob students from Sashabaw to their home school, routes will remain the same, Cilley said.

Six new modular classrooms were being installed last week -- three at Andersonville and three at Pine Knob -- to accommodate special services classrooms and libraries.

The added space was made necessary when the State Fire Marshal last year cited the schools for using halls for libraries and the showing of films and blocking some entrances with chairs.

Overall there will be about 20 new teachers in the schools. They have been hired due to retirements and resignations, Vaara reported. Four new positions, including three which have been filled, have been opened in the special services division to enable the district to implement the state's mandatory special education act passed last year.

Some facelifting, involving the stage and minor items, has been accomplished at Clarkston Junior High School. Locker room repair is due later in the year, Vaara said.

Students will find new 7th and 8th grade math textbooks, which put less emphasis on modern math and more on basic drill and skill work, Vaara said. Also new this year are new music texts, he added.

The fourth grade has been added to the first three in the Scott Foresman reading skills program, the idea being to add a grade a year until all grades are included, Vaara reported.

Elementary teachers who last year worked to outline performance objectives will be getting back their report as organized by principals during the summer. Further revisions are expected, Vaara said, but the whole thing adds up to more effective teaching and what to expect a child to learn in a given year of class.

Clarkston founder built Smith home

by Mary Warner

Bittersweet Farms, five-year home of Betty and Jim Smith, is not just an old farmhouse and barn in Independence Township.

Back in 1834, Jeremiah Clark, founder of the village of Clarkston, got a land grant from the government and built a wooden frame house on his property.

Later, in 1859, Clark built the farmhouse owned and occupied by the Smiths. Next the the newer Farmhouse still sits the original Clark home, now occupied by one of the Smiths' children.

Although the farm hasn't been in one family long enough to become a centennial farm, its 115-year history is reflected in the old-style architecture and flavor of the house.

The rooms are low-ceilinged yet spacious, with an old and charming staircase originally swept by the long skirts of women of the 1800's.

The Smith's moved to Bittersweet Farms in 1969, after discarding apartment living as not their style. Their apartment furniture is still used in the farmhouse, but the Smith's hope eventually to stock it with more period furniture.

Right now, the Smith's are busy tending to almost two-acre vegetable garden they grow in their huge backyard.

"We haven't bought any vegetables for three years," Betty said, as she cans and freezes the produce from their garden.

There's nothing bitter about Bittersweet Farms, either. The area is beautifully landscaped, with huge trees and thick underbrush leading a contrast to the wide, well-trimmed lawn and neat clusters of bright flowers.

Although tending to all that sweetness takes a lot of the Smiths' time, they also take time to become involved in their community.

Jim, when he is not working at his firm in Madison Heights, is likely as not found pouring over zoning maps and other paraphernalia connected with his responsibilities as the Independence Township Planning Commission secretary.

He is very active in the Detroit Area Council Boy Scouts, and recently helped lead a drive by area residents to stop a proposed landfill on the northern part of the township.

Meanwhile Betty is busy at the St. Anne's Mead retirement home in Southfield, where she sits on the board of directors and is secretary for the women's auxiliary.

She also knits, and for many years sat on the Royal Oak School board where she and her husband and their four children lived while the children were in school.

For relaxation, the Smith's take part in the Wednesday Night Dance Club at the church of the Resurrection on Clarkson Road.

Glass cases in the living and dining rooms holding delicate, porcelain birds attest to another interest.

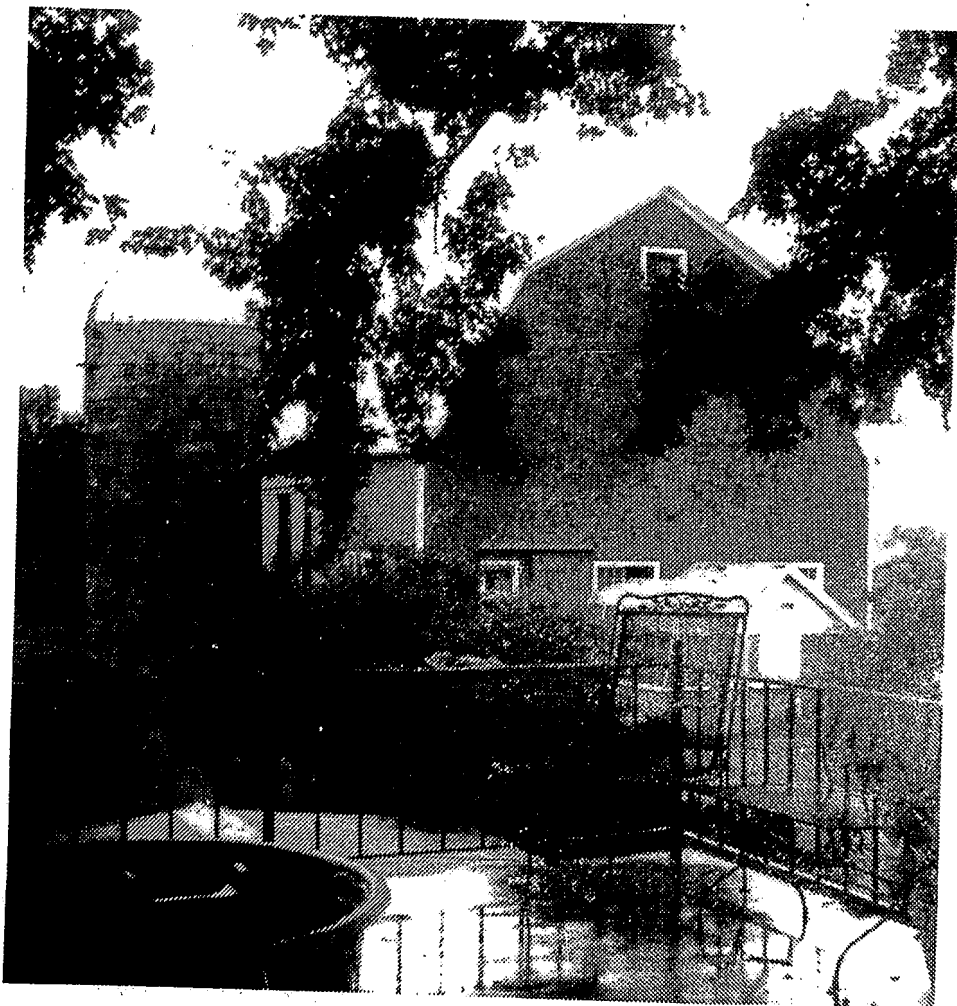

Last Tuesday the Smith's celebrated their 36th wedding anniversary, but from the long list of activities they are involved in, including the care of 115-year-old landmark home, it looks like they've only just begun.

Inconsistent discipline patterns

by James and Ellen Windell

Psychological staff members of the Oakland County Juvenile Court and Clinical Resources, Incorporated

"If you're not strict enough, you will lose control. It's very hard to keep control. It's better to be too strict, than too lenient."

This came from a father who has been accused of being overly severe in his discipline of his children.

We have mentioned before the problem of being inconsistent. Some parents punish minor misbehaviors while virtually ignoring more serious anti-social behaviors. The above quote from a father is characteristic of parents who are too consistent. They tend to be consistent to a fault, often punishing every misbehavior as if each were a test of their adequacy of a parent.

Such parents say, "If I would let him, he would sink to being a bum. If I didn't make him wear his hair short, he would have it down to his ankles." Another parent, a mother who always appeared harassed said of her eleven year old son, "He's always getting out of control. You have to constantly clamp down on him or he would be running the streets."

These are examples of over-control. Parents who tend in this direction are fearful of losing control not only over the child, but over themselves. Therefore, in an attempt to continually be on guard against immoral or child-like behaviors in themselves and others, they become very rigid. Their rigidity is reflected in statements like, "If I didn't whip him with a belt, he'd think he was getting away with something" or "The only reason she wants to go to a rock concert is to use dope."

For such people, being flexible and understanding age-appropriate and peer-influenced behavior is extremely difficult. Often such parents had similar treatment for their own parents which featured much discipline and love. They are keenly aware of their own fantasies or actual behavior as children and adolescents, and they are not willing to allow their children to make their own way in the world with the mistakes and learning that this entails.

Children living under a too strict regime sometimes act out the parent's worst fear, not because they are innately bad, as the parent thinks, but because the forbidden and guarded against behavior seems extremely appealing and eminently more interesting than what they observe at home. Essentially, they may produce behaviors which they have desperately tried to ward off.

Dealer inventories low

By Jim Sherman

Before the end of the week you should be able to buy a 1975 General Motors car. In some cases, if you want a new GM car, you have HAVE to take a 1975.

The 1974's will be all gone.

GM announced last week that dealers would be able to sell '75's before the previously established announcement date of Sept. 27.

In checking with local dealers we learned why. We also learned why only GM among the top 4 auto producers made the decision.

In a way, both answers are the same. General Motor dealers have very few cars. And, while Chrysler and Ford dealers (we have no AM dealers locally) are lower on inventory this year than last, they still have numbers if not complete selections of models.

BOB EASTMAN, General Sales Manager for Russ Johnson Pontiac, Oxford, told us he had "just 37 cars now. At this time last year we had 140. That 37 includes demonstrators, driver education cars and everything in the 1974 line we've got to sell."

The Ventura and Firebird are in the "can't get" category.

Eastman figures that GM, like everyone else in the automobile field, was scared by the energy crisis, and by the time buyers started returning to the middle and larger size car market there was no way to turn production back on.

"We expect LeMans, Grand Prix, and Grand Am and regular size cars this week. These have been certified by the United States," Eastman said. The US is certifying all cars for safety standards and emission controls before they can go into production.

"As soon as we get the paperwork, it follows in a couple days; we'll start delivery," he said.

Eastman added something else, the used car market is "much stronger" now. He said the 1972-73 and 74 models are all increasing in value.

He expects the demand for these cars to go up when buyers see the new car prices.

DON MILOSCH, owner of Milosch Chrysler-Plymouth, Lake Orion, told us he had received no word from Chrysler about selling 1975's prior to the proposed early October announcement.

However, he doesn't expect to have any 1974's by the first of October. "When the people realize the price of the new models, they'll eat up the 1974's," Milosch said.

He described his inventory of Chrysler's and Plymouth's as "balanced." "It's way below the number we carried over at the end of the 1973 car year. We're not long or short on any models, but we have a month and a half to go.

"People who intend to buy a 1974 should do so right now. There won't be any choice come October first," he predicted.

Ford Motor Company told a meeting of dealers last week they should "pre-sell but not pre-deliver" the '75's. ED BRETZLAFF, sales manager for Skalne Ford, Lake Orion, said they could deliver 1975 trucks, but not cars.

He described his inventory as "lower than ever". Specifically Skalne is lowest in big car models. "We are out of 4-door LTD's and have only a couple 2-doors," Bretzlaff told us.

For the 1974 model year the Ford dealer sales manager said business had been pretty steady. There was a lull, but "action picked up after announcement was made of proposed prices for the new models," he said.

"Right now I wish our inventory was a little more even -- more big cars and less small ones," Bretzlaff added.

BOB LINES of Lines Olds-Cadillac in Lapeer, told us he expected to be delivering 1975 Olds very soon. "We should have cars the first of the week (this week), then the paper work will take a couple days. Some of these first cars are already sold. Our inventory is low, low, low," he said.

INVENTORIES at Al Hanoute Chevrolet-Buick dealer in Lake Orion, are right down to the nitty-gritty. Bob Johnson, general manager, gave us the figures as of Monday.

"We have no Monte Carlo's, Corvettes, Electras or Rivieras and just one Camaro," he said. He listed the other models as follows: 22 regular size Chevrolets, 6 Vegas, 5 Chevelles, 11 Novas and a total of 6 trucks in the Chevrolet line.

Hanoute has 8 of the small Buicks in the Apollo-Century lines and just 2 LeSabres.

"We are way down," Johnson said. "We had many, many more 1973's at this time last year."

The general manager said it was the first time the parent company had ever allowed the sale of cars prior to the announcement date.

In other years, he said, they've had to sign papers saying the cars actually belonged to the company prior to announcement. They were and are allowed to sell pickup trucks early.

JOHNSON sees no reason to hold back the sales any more. He told us, "The company doesn't cover the new cars any more. All the glory and suspense has been taken out of the announcement."

He seemed pleased with the decision of GM to allow early sales. They have four '75 Buick's in and hope to deliver them this week.

They also expect some 1975 Chevrolets this week, though, Johnson said, there has been some hold up in production because of strikes.

Any conclusion we might draw from these interviews is likely the same as yours. If you want a 1974... buy it now. And, if you want a '75 GM car you can buy that now, too.

The old Davisburgh House -- once the center of activities for Springfield Township

BAIT forms grievance committee

The recently organized Business Association of Independence Township BAIT has named Sheldon Fuller chairman of a three-man grievance committee to handle problems encountered by businessmen in the township and the community.

Serving with Fuller are Jerry Savoie and Cap Anderson.

The group which met last week proposed a resolution to the Independence Township Board putting members in favor of 100 square foot signs as opposed to the 50 square foot maximum now allowed.

Harvey Craft, president, said advertising studies have been ordered which are expected to support their request for larger display areas.

The group which formed earlier this summer now has 100 members, Craft said.

Down on the farm - -

A machine that makes haystacks

Haystacks are compressed and stacked automatically.

Bill Middleton uses a 2-way radio to communicate with another farm.

By DICK KRAUSE

Progress has brought the return of bread-loaf shaped stacks dotting the countryside today along Predmore, Stoney Creek and Hurd roads and the haystacks of the past. Today's version are designed so they are mobile. They will be moved to the cattle. What's more, those haystacks on the Middleton and Christopher farms are the product of a new, and expensive, piece of farm machinery.

It's called the Hesston Haystacker, and it is pulled along behind a tractor. The Hesston Haystacker, in addition to producing a haystack that is movable, also allows farmers to stack and feed cornstalks to cattle.

WHAT THE STACKER does is pick up hay that has been cut, field dried and windrowed. It compresses the hay in its chambers until it has compacted a ton and a half in a space six by eight by six feet high. The operator can drop the load in the field, or carry it to another spot for storage.

For John Christopher of 1645 Predmore Road, the stacker means haying will be a one-man operation. Christopher, who has 50 acres in hay sees the $6,000 machine as paying for itself in terms of labor saved.

"It also means there's no inside storage, that's a big thing," said Christopher who owns the machine in partnership with the Middletons.

THE HAYSTACKS can be stored in the open fields because they are close to weather-proof after being compressed. When the time comes to move a stack, an attachment similar to a fork lift is connected to the tractor. After the haystack has been moved to the cattle, a self-feeding device is placed around it, and the animals eat the compacted hay or corn stalks.

While there will be some spoilage in weather, it will be minimal. "We figure we might lose the outer two inches because of weather," said Christopher, "but that's all."

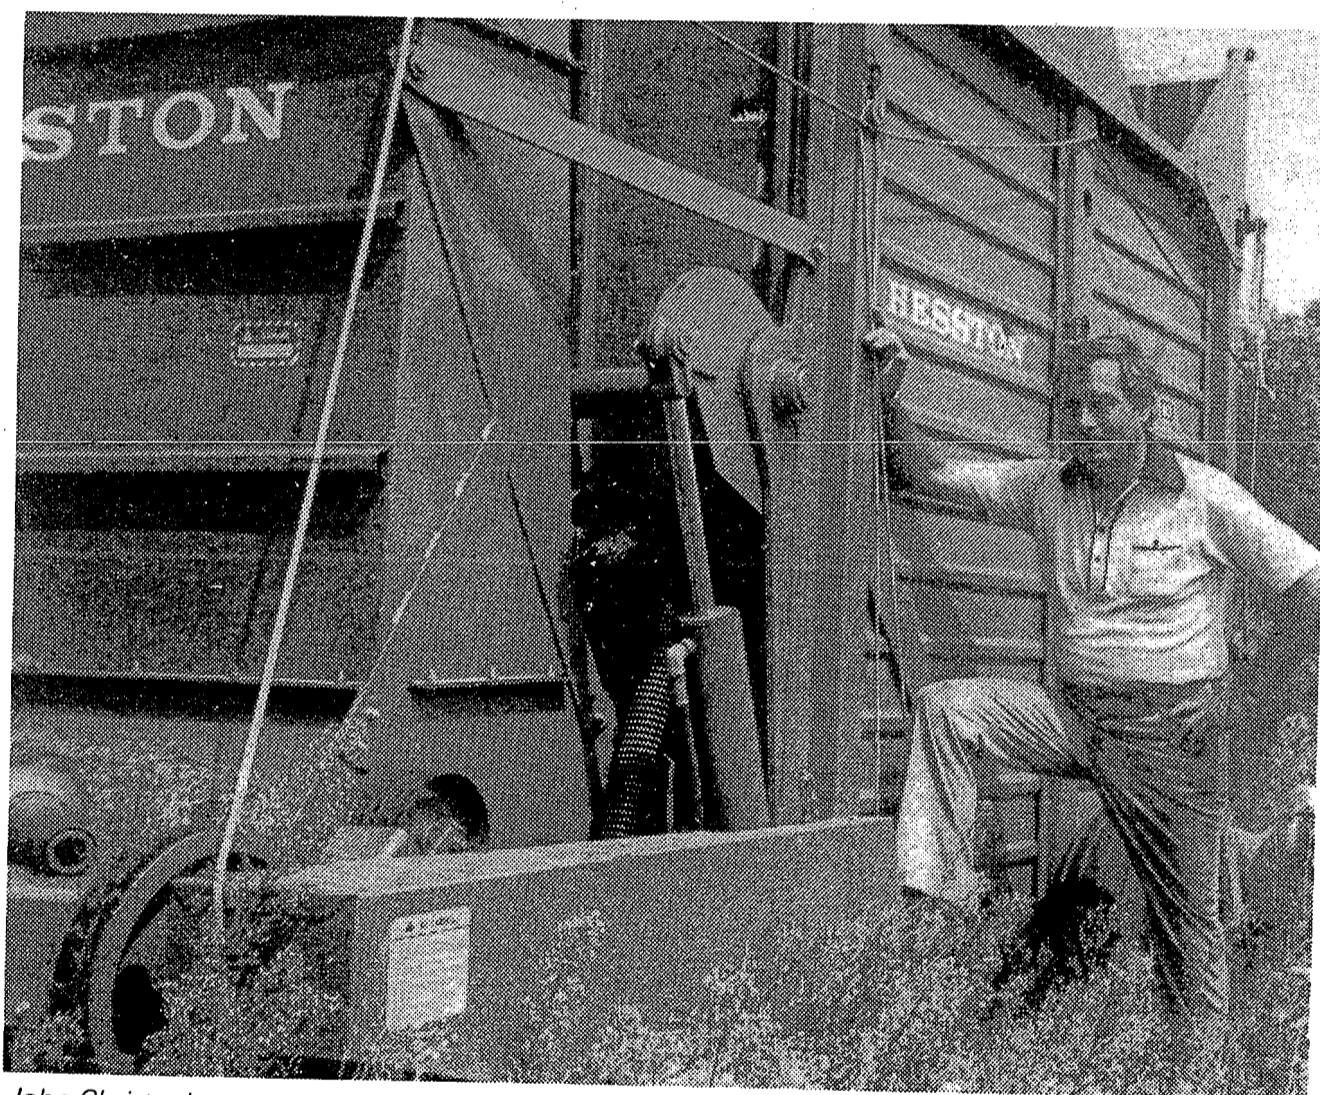

Christopher said he expects to get 50 haystacks from his 50 acres of hay. These will be used to feed 30 head of cattle he intends to purchase soon.

THE HAYSTACKER is getting even more use on the Middleton's farm. Between the Keith Middleton farm on Stoney creek road in Orion and the Tom and Bill Middleton farm on Hurd Road in Oxford, the family has approximately one thousand acres in corn and 400 acres in hay.

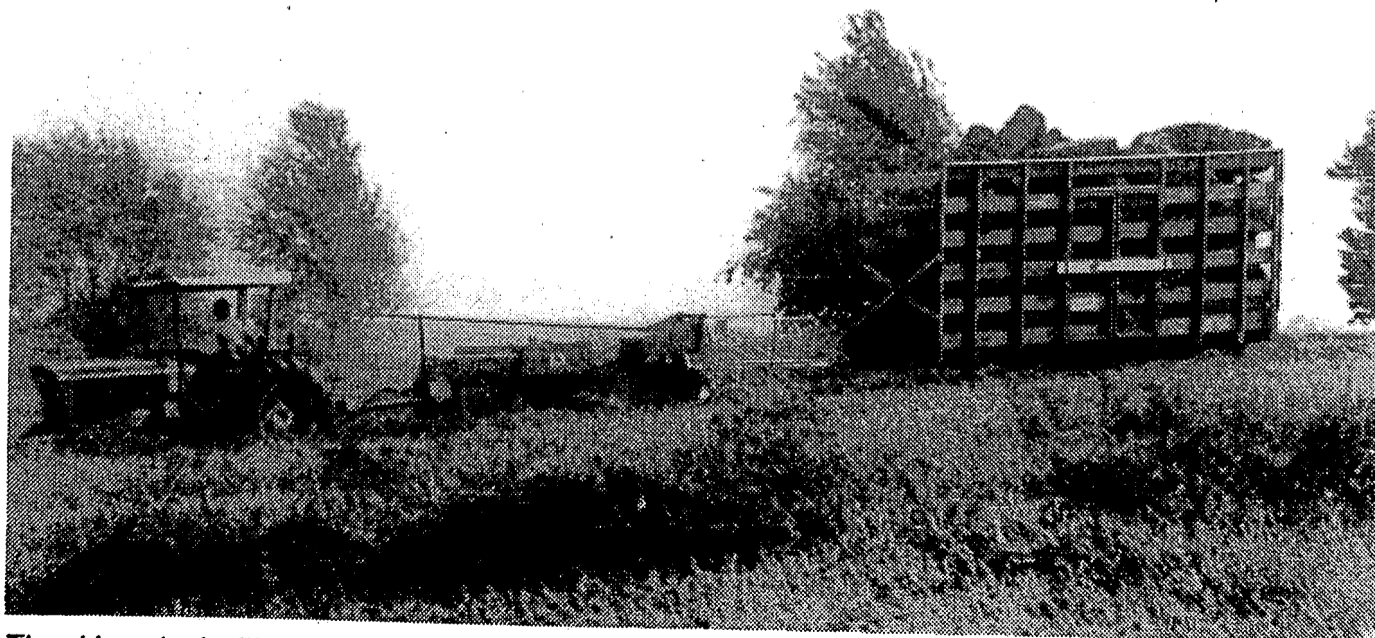

On the Hurd Road farm the Middleton brothers milk 200 cows and keep another 200 cows for replacements. Bill Middleton is anticipating using the haystacker to compress cornstalks.

"We really are looking forward to using it for cornstalks," said Middleton. "Harvesting cornstalks has not been practical before."

Farming just isn't what it used to be.

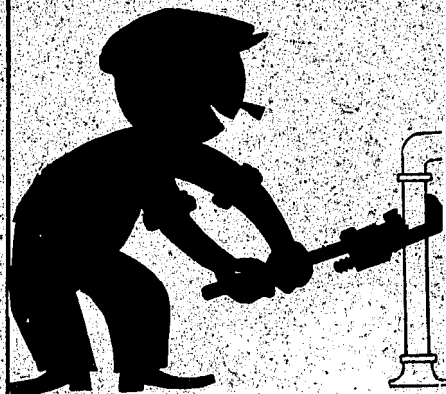

John Christopher, co-owner of the marvelous haystack machine.

The old method still suffices on parts of the Middleton farm.

Road body presses for 70 mph limit

Return of the 70 mph speed limit on interstate highways has been urged upon Congress by the Board of County Road Commissioners in Oakland County.

Noting that the energy crisis that promoted Congressional reduction of the speed limit to 55 mph has now abated, the road policy body adopted a resolution calling upon the Michigan legislature to memorialize Congress to restore the normal 70-mph speed limit on interstate highways, according to William M. Richards said. "Presently, some motorists are observing the 55-mile limit while most are ranging between 60 and 70. When the faster drivers suddenly come up behind slower drivers in all lanes ahead, everything behind jams up, setting the stage for frequent rear-end collisions."

"Speed differential is established as a greater hazard than speed itself," Richards said. "And it is obvious that the volume of traffic exceeding the 55-mile limit exceeds the capacity of law enforcement agencies to exercise more than spotty and ineffectual controls of speeds."

"In light of all these considerations," Richards said, "the practical course is for Congress to restore the 70-mile limit on the interstate system so these specially-designed, limited-access highways may more efficiently serve their original purpose as a safe medium for rapid movement of motor vehicles."

Trim asks Smeekens' removal

Claude Trim, Democratic candidate for State Representative in the 60th District, has issued a strong appeal to his Republican opponent Loren D. Anderson to press for the removal of Rep. John Smeekens from the public payroll.

"My concern is for the hard working taxpayers of Michigan. While the House committee probing Mr. Smeekens recommended he repay monies collected from false travel vouchers, they have not pressed further into the area of a yearly pension to be allotted the representative at age 55. At that time, Mr. Smeekens will be provided with a lifetime yearly pension of about $7,600," Trim said.

"As a member of the five-man House committee probing Mr. Smeekens' activities, I feel that Mr. Anderson has the opportunity and the obligation to explore removing Smeekens from the public payroll. I feel it is imperative that this be done now for the taxpayers of Michigan."

"Why should Smeekens, already proved to be undeserving of public support, receive $7,600 when many citizens of Michigan don't earn that much a year through hard work?"

Deborah Ellen Pifer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel R. Pifer, 4881 Waldon Road, Clarkston, is engaged to Edward Arnold Hutton, Jr., 274 State St., Pontiac.

Engaged

Edward is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Hutton, of Waterloo, Ala. The couple plans a January, 1975 wedding, to be held at the bride's parents' home.

A November wedding in Norfolk, Va., is planned by Carol Louise Buck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Buck of Livonia, and Guy Roger Riddle, a radio-man with the Navy. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Merle B. Riddle, 6969 Tappan Drive, Clarkston.

Getting re-acquainted

The mill stream

by Mary Warner, phone 625-3370

The Clarkston Area School staff is getting geared up for the start of school, and have held "getting-reacquainted" parties with faculty the past two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. William Dennis held a party last Saturday for the Clarkston High School department chairmen at their home on Eastlawn in Clarkston.

They organized the gathering along with the help of assistant principals Conrad Bruce and Jan Gabier. (Bill is the high school principal)

School superintendent Dr. L.F. Greene attended also, along with assistant superintendents G.W. Barrie and Milford Mason.

Bill said everyone had a good time, enjoying snacks of cold cuts and salads. "There was a lot of good conversation, and the gathering was very fruitful," Bill said.

Sashabaw Junior High principal Gus Birtsas and assistant principal John Kirchgessner, along with their wives Carolyn and Jan also organized a faculty party last Wednesday, Aug. 21. The party was held at the Kirchgessner's home on Dilley Road in Davisburg.

John said his wife Jan and Carolyn Birtsas got together and made 14 pies of all varieties for the occasion.

Everyone talked about vacations and the coming school year, John said, and avoided a lot of "shop talk."

The gathering lasted two hours, and was held in the Kirchgessner's backyard.

Duane and Rosemary Lewis and Kay and Bill Potvin will be holding a faculty party for Clarkston Junior High staff and administration members this Thursday from 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Bill is the CJH principal, and Bill is assistant principal. The Lewises plan to have cake and coffee at their home on Eastlawn for everyone. The gathering will also be welcoming the new faculty members to the staff, math teacher Wayne Samuel and learning disabilities teacher Link Smith.

The afore mentioned parties are not an annual event, but are something those involved decided to do this year.

Former Clarkston Elementary teacher Gary Neighbors joined eight of his former sixth grade pupils Saturday, Aug. 18, for a five-year class reunion.

The party was held at Clarkston High School junior Mike Fahrner's home on Robertson Court in Clarkston.

Mike, Steve Dennis, Ann Topolinski, Ann Van-Loon, Tom Jones, Lori Olney, Janet Le Clair, and Joy Went joined Gary Neighbors in hotdogs and coke while the reminisced about old times in the sixth grade.

Joy said the kids decided to have a reunion the last day of class in the sixth grade, and plan to have one every five years. She said they really enjoyed having Gary for a teacher.

Gary quit his teaching position after the 1969-70 school year to pursue his activities in law. He now works for the chief attorney at the Veterans Administration in Detroit.

Art and Pat Ripley journeyed up to Onaway, Mich., last weekend to see Pat's parents. Onaway is Pat's home town, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. John Tate, own a home there.

While there, they did a little blackberry picking, and visited Art's brother Willford in neighboring Afton.

The Joseph E. Bird chapter #294, Order of the Eastern Star, is having a family-style roast beef dinner Sunday, Sept. 1. The dinner will be at the Clarkston Masonic Temple, 2 N. Main, from 12-3 p.m. The public is invited, and can get tickets at the door.

Phyllis Roberts of Delaware, Ohio, stopped in Clarkston last week for a week of visiting with her sister, Betty Spratt, and her mother, Lucille Shelton. Lucille lives with Betty and Jack at 6645 Northview, so Phyllis had a chance to visit them both during her stay.

Recently awarded degrees at Central Michigan University, Mount Pleasant, were Raymond L. Kidd, 6677 Shelly Drive, a BA in engineering; Mollie S. Lynch, 6260 Eastlawn, a BAA in library science; Gerald Gene Ostrom, 9263 Dixie Highway, a BS in education with a major in history; and Nancy Lynn Wheeler, 5609 Hummingbird, a BS with a major in speech defects.

The State Tire Midget Little League baseball team held a team picnic last Saturday at the home of the Donald Hamakers on Kingfisher.

They swam in the Hamakers' pool and played football at the picnic, and also gave gifts to their manager and coaches.

The Clarkston Area Jaycettes are providing drop-off centers for 7-Up caps in an effort to promote the 7-Up Muscular Dystrophy Association Program.

In the program, the 7-Up company will donate 25 cents to the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America for every four 7-Up cap liners sent to them.

The program lasts until October 1st. The Jaycettes' drop-off centers are located at Foodtown on Sashabaw Road and A&P Store on M-15 and the Dixie Highway, Patricia's Beauty Salon on Main Street and Rudy's Market on Main.

You can save both the screw-off and pry-off lids, and call 613-7779 if you have any additional questions.

The Koslowicz family of Main St. in Clarkston recently visited the Alabama Space and Rocket Center in Huntsville, Ala. The center is the world's largest space exhibit, and features spaceships used by astronauts and a simulated moon crater that the Koslowiczes walked on.

They also took a bus tour to NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center where they saw the Skylab Space Station.

Former Clarkston High School graduates Marcia Fahrner and Mary Ellen Davis recently returned from a nine-day trip to Acapulco.

While on vacation in Mexico, the girls went to the bull fight, saw the Acapulco cliff divers, and parachute skied.

Marcia said she and Mary had a good time, met a lot of people, and "partied a lot."

The girls are now working as nurses at Pontiac General Hospital and live at 3285 Watkins Lake Road in Pontiac.

Taras J. Hubicki, retired Detroit Symphony Orchestra violinist and a violin instructor for ten years at the Clarkston Conservatory of Music, died last week in Detroit's Harper Hospital. He was a native of Poland, and a graduate of Royal Academy of Music in London, having lived in Detroit since 1937. His wife, Suzanne, and a daughter, Mrs. Margo Apple, survive.

Clarkston Jaycees president Jim Brueck had an event-filled day last Wednesday, Aug. 21. He welcomed home his wife and a new baby boy, dislocated his shoulder water skiing, and made his way that night (albeit painfully) to the Jaycees club meeting.

Water skiing with a new baby coming home? "Yah, my neighbor kids were always trying to get me to teach them how to water ski-so I showed 'em, all right!"

Jim jokes that the REAL reason he got himself injured "was so I didn't have to get up in the middle of the night to change the baby."

The baby, by the way, is called William Weadock Brueck, and was born Aug. 16 at St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital in Pontiac.

William is the Brueck's fourth son, and weighed in at seven pounds, one ounce. He has brown hair and brown eyes, and was 19 and one half inches at birth.

Mrs. Elizabeth Monahan, mother of Jim's wife Ruth, was on hand last week to help out. She came from Lansing to oversee things while Ruth was in the hospital.

And Jim's mother Ann Brueck came from Northville on Jim's fateful Wednesday "to greet the new arrival."

William Belaney of Pontiac State Band was guest speaker when Multi-Lakes Chapter of the American Business Women's Association picnicked August 21 at Oakhill Estates. His topic was communication. Phyllis Addison, in charge of medical records at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, was vocational speaker. The group will meet again at 7 p.m. September 16 at Maurice's, 179 Edison, Pontiac.

The former Vicki Burley of Clarkston, now Mrs. Kenneth John Langenmayr who lived with her husband at 96 Smith Hill Road, Monsey, New York, is the proud mother of Todd Jason, born August 14. He joins Matthew Gerald at home.

Nuptial mass weds Horn and Mullane

St. Daniel's Church was the setting for an August 3 nuptial mass uniting Maureen Ann Mullane and Leonard G. Horn.

Rev. Francis Weingartz performed the double ring ceremony before an altar banked with white and yellow chrysanthemums and gladioli.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Mullane of 5585 Chickadee, chose a sleeveless A-line gown of chiffon over taffeta trimmed in lace and sequins. The dress featured a train and her floor-length veil was trimmed in lace.

Mrs. Robert Brock of Pontiac, was maid of honor in a yellow rose print two-piece gown. Pat Gallivan of Clarkston and the bride's sisters, Teri and Patricia, served as bridesmaids.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin G. Horn of Sterling Heights, was attended by Charles Cassisi as best man. Maurie Bogoth III, Daniel Bayer and James Massey were groomsmen.

Following a reception at Spring Lake Country Club for 180 guests, the newlyweds left for a honeymoon in the Upper Peninsula and Wisconsin. They will reside at 8632 Studebaker, Warren.

Women's Association enrollment

Tipacon Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association will host its silver celebration enrollment at 6:30 p.m. September 4 at White Lake Oaks, 991 North Williams Lake Road. Ruth Jacobs of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department will be guest speaker. Those interested in joining the organization are invited to call Ruth Woodworth at 673-9845.

Spiritual Message

Fr. Francis A. Weingartz

"We worked day and night, as an example for you to imitate, laboring to the point of exhaustion. Indeed, when we were with you we so as not to impose on any of you, used to lay down the rule that Not that we have no claim on you, anyone who would not work should but that we might present ourselves not eat." 2 Thessalonians 3:8-10

A CHRISTIAN SHOULD BE A BETTER WORKMAN

Paul in writing to the Thessalonians, points to himself as an example of a good workman. All his life Paul was a workman. He was a tent-maker and he worked hard at his trade.

Paul was a Rabbi but he could not make his living by being a Rabbi. It was a law that a Rabbi could not accept pay for teaching people about God. Remember Jesus words to his twelve apostles: "You received without cost; give without charge." (Matthew 10:8.) Each Rabbi had to have a trade in order to feed himself and his family. In fact Paul says that if a man refuses to work neither let him eat. Paul believed in and taught the dignity of hard honest labor. And so on this Labor Day Week-end, let us look to Paul's example to inspire us to give our best efforts as a workman. But besides Paul's example, we have the supreme example of Jesus Himself who was the carpenter of Nazareth. There is a legend that Jesus was such a good carpenter that he made the best ox-yokes in all of Palestine. And so he gives us the best example on how we should work at our trade whatever it may be. Yes, if we follow Jesus, we should be a better workman.

Tomatoes not producing?

Got problems with your tomatoes? Here are some probable reasons and the solutions as offered by Gregory Patchan, extension horticultural agent in Pontiac.

Travel tip: in an underdeveloped country, don't drink the water. In a developed country, don't breathe the air.

It may be true that we've never had it so good, but neither have we had it taken away so fast!

Psychologists say children should be properly spaced. A mother of six suggests about 50 yards apart.

The country has grown so tense and nervous, it's been years since you've seen anyone fall asleep in church.

A weird looking eared tomato is displayed by its owner, Kim Lockard, who grew it at her home at 9497 Ellis Road and presented it to Mark Witherup, 6530 Waldon. Could be a kitty cat, depending on your imagination.

BLOSSOM END ROT - this problem causes the tomatoes to develop sunken, rotten spots on the bottom of the fruit. Many gardeners mistakenly blame a fungus for the problem, while actually this is a physiological disorder caused by dry or fluctuating soil moisture levels and excessive vine growth. The problem can be minimized by avoiding the use of high nitrogen (lawn) fertilizers, irrigating to maintain a uniform moisture level, and by avoiding deep cultivation near the plants. Mulching the plants with grass clippings, straw, newspaper or black plastic sheeting will control weeds and reduce blossom end rot.

BLIGHTS - Both the fruit and foliage of tomatoes are susceptible to attack by fungi. Spotting will occur, and the plants may defoliate without treatment. Blights should be controlled when first seen otherwise control is more difficult and the crop could be destroyed. Sprays of either Maneb or Zineb will give excellent blight control.

WILTS - Verticillium and Fusarium wilt are two soil borne diseases that can cause tomato plants to wilt and die. This problem is especially serious where tomatoes, peppers, eggplant or vine crops are grown in the same area every year. Sprays are not effective against these diseases; however, excellent control can be achieved by growing wilt resistant varieties designated as VF resistant. Heinz 1350, Supersonic, Burpee VF and Springset are a few varieties available that perform well in Michigan. Seed catalogs usually indicate resistant varieties.

INSECTS - A wide variety of insects can feed on the fruit and foliage of tomatoes. Aphids are small, soft bodied sucking insects which cluster on new growth and the undersides of leaves.

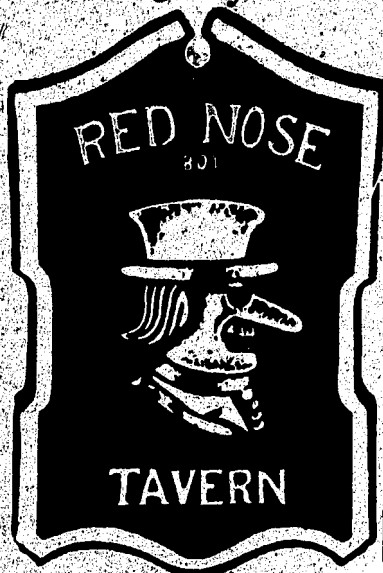

Tomato hornworm and fruit worm are two caterpillars that eat the foliage and fruit respectively. The above mentioned insects are the most common in the home garden although others such as white flies can be troublesome. Malathion plus Sevin or Diazinon will give control and an excellent spray can be made by adding Maneb or Zineb for blight control.

BLOSSOM DROP - This is another physiological problem caused by the following:

1. Variety - low acid varieties are more susceptible.
2. Cool nights - temperatures below 60° F. cause blossom drop.
3. Hot winds - hot dry winds with temperatures around 90° will cause blossom drop.
4. Excess nitrogen fertilizer - the use of high nitrogen lawn type fertilizers or chicken manure can cause blossom drop.
5. Over watering - too much water, especially in the spring, is often the cause of blossom drop.

LEAFROLL - This symptom occurs following prolonged rainy periods, however, heat stress can also be a factor. Some varieties are more susceptible, but usually the damage is minor.

A big insurance company doesn't have to act like a big insurance company.

BY THE THIRD EYE

I see Clarkston High School Principal William Dennis standing in the door of the school and shaking his head. "No". The school is empty. I don't know whether this means that classes will be delayed, but I see students there within a week.

By the same token I see Larry Rosso, of the Clarkston Education Association with a contract in his hand and smiling, so I am sure teachers will be getting a contract.

A movie star will pass away within the next few months and very suddenly. I feel this person has been quite ill, but no one has realized how ill this person is. A millionaire will also pass away about the same time. I see these things happening within the next three months.

I think ex-president Richard Nixon will benefit from national sympathy. His fate is now strictly a judicial matter. Money-wise he won't hurt too badly. I think he has money in Swiss banks. I think you'll find that quite a few politicians have money in Swiss banks so that they don't have to account for it.

Gov. William Milliken is still going to win the coming election. It will be a squeeze, but he'll make it.

I see buildings on the north end of Deer Lake. There are homes joined together like condominiums. By 1976 they will be renting.

A lot of realty will change hands around Deer Lake as a result, despite the fact the construction will have been tastefully done.

There'll be some UFO sightings north of town. It won't be in the usual place (Lake Orion), it will be more north toward Flint. Several township people will see them, but I don't know if they will come forward to report it or not.

There'll be a real bad accident. It looks like it will happen at the caution light at White Lake Road and the Dixie Highway. There will be a family in the darker car, including several children. The other car has older people. Three will die as a result, and two will have extremely serious injuries.

NOTICE

To all property owners in the Village of Clarkston:

The Village of Clarkston Sanitary Sewer System is now in operation. You must hook into it within eighteen (18) months of the date of this official notice, if you have not done so already, according to the terms of the Village Sewer Ordinance No. 70 as amended and the State of Michigan Public Acts No. 288.

The Procedure used to obtain a permit to tap into the sewer is as follows:

You, as a homeowner, have the right, under state law to do this work yourself. If you choose to do the work yourself, you must first go to the Independence Township Water and Sewer Department and pay a $10.00 permit fee for the county inspection. Then you will be directed to the Township Building Department where you will apply for a homeowner's permit. You will be required to sign an affidavit stating that you are personally doing the work and will be responsible for any damage caused by construction. This permit will cost $20.00.

Upon payment of the permit fees at the Township, the Water and Sewer Department will issue a county permit. You will be required to show this permit at the Oakland County D.P.W., located at No. 1 Public Works Drive, Pontiac, and post a $5,000.00 Surety Bond to guarantee that the work will be performed properly.

Prior to any construction, you must call the Oakland County D.P.W. and the Township Plumbing Department to request inspection of the work to be done.

If you choose to have a contractor do this work for you, you must still contact the Water and Sewer Department and pay the county permit fee. After this is done, the contractor will apply for all other necessary permits.

If you have any questions, please contact the Independence Township Water and Sewer Department at 625-8222.

Tell me doctor, why do I go fishing?

What I mean is, I know I'm not going to catch anything. I never do. Yet when someone tells me of their great catch, I start thinking my luck will change... that with this new lure I'll knock 'em dead.

Or, this time I'll use just crawlers and jig. No more casting into those mousey spots, or letting the current carry a killer spinner into a deep hole, or using any of the bait that looks good to me, but fish hate.

A couple weeks ago my golf-fishing partner, Pansy Baldwin, was telling me how this friend had caught his limit of fine trout in a private lake a half mile from town.

Five minutes later, we had ourselves believing we couldn't get a boat in the water if the owners let us. That we'd have to kick the fish aside to launch a canoe.

It was another of those lakes that never freeze over because the fish keep the water stirred up so much. We wouldn't be able to catch a fish in the mouth because the plug wouldn't be able to get below the surface.

We couldn't wait to get on that lake. We got up at daylight, guiltily, knowing we were taking unfair advantage.

We took my daughter Susan, 11, along so she could share our joy. So she could see how experienced fishermen-sportsmen only keep enough for the table.

She skunked us. That guy who told Pansy about the great fishing took out the last trout.

Susan got several Bluegills and a Rock-Bass. I got to clean 'em.

A few years ago I wrote that I was never going fishing again. I would call it something else, like communing with nature. That's not what I was calling it when I came off that lake at noon.

Too bad for that skinny daughter of mine. She could have said she was lucky, instead of asking, in front of her mother, "How many did you get, dad?"

At least she enjoyed her last fishing trip.

You've likely seen this one on "How can you win", but it seems fitting after a fish story. Bob Costello, spokesman for Winter Haven, Fla. sent it.

If a man runs after money, he's money mad.

If he keeps it, he's a capitalist.

If he spends it, he's a playboy.

If he doesn't get it, he's a ne'er-do-well.

If he doesn't try to get it, he lacks ambition.

If he gets it without working for it, he's a parasite.

If he accumulates it after a life-time of hard work, people call him a fool who never got anything out of life.

Parade highlights Labor Day events

The whole Clarkston-Independence-Springfield community is expected to take part in a series of programs beginning Friday to mark Labor Day weekend.

Events will kick off with downtown sidewalk sales Friday and Saturday and carnival rides and game booths which will continue Friday through Monday at the Clarkston Eagles property on Maybee Road just east of Sashabaw.

Several events have been planned for Monday, the last day before school starts.

Independence Township Firefighters Association will start things off with a pancake breakfast -- all you can eat -- beginning at 7 a.m. at the Clarkston Firehall on Church Street. Prices are $1.50 for adults and $1 for children.

The annual Rotary sponsored parade is at 10 a.m. -- to be televised this year by three television channels. Based on the theme, "Rally Round the Flag", it had by Monday produced 38 entries, according to Stan Darling, and more were anticipated.

Plaques will be presented to the three best floats, the most original one and the one best typifying the theme. A president's award will also be made, and two prizes will be presented for costuming.

Independence Township Police Director Jack McCall reminds residents that parking on Main Street between Church and Washington during the parade will not be permitted.

Following the parade, Independence Township Fire Department and Auxiliary members will gather on Washington Street to take on members of surrounding area fire departments in the annual water battle.

Regattas are planned at Deer Lake and Parke Lake -- the Deer Lake Sail Club once again awarding a trophy to the best sailor in mixed competition. A skipper's meeting at 11:30 a.m. at the beach on White Lake Road will start things off.

The Parke Lake race, new this year, will be four boats of the Sunfish class.

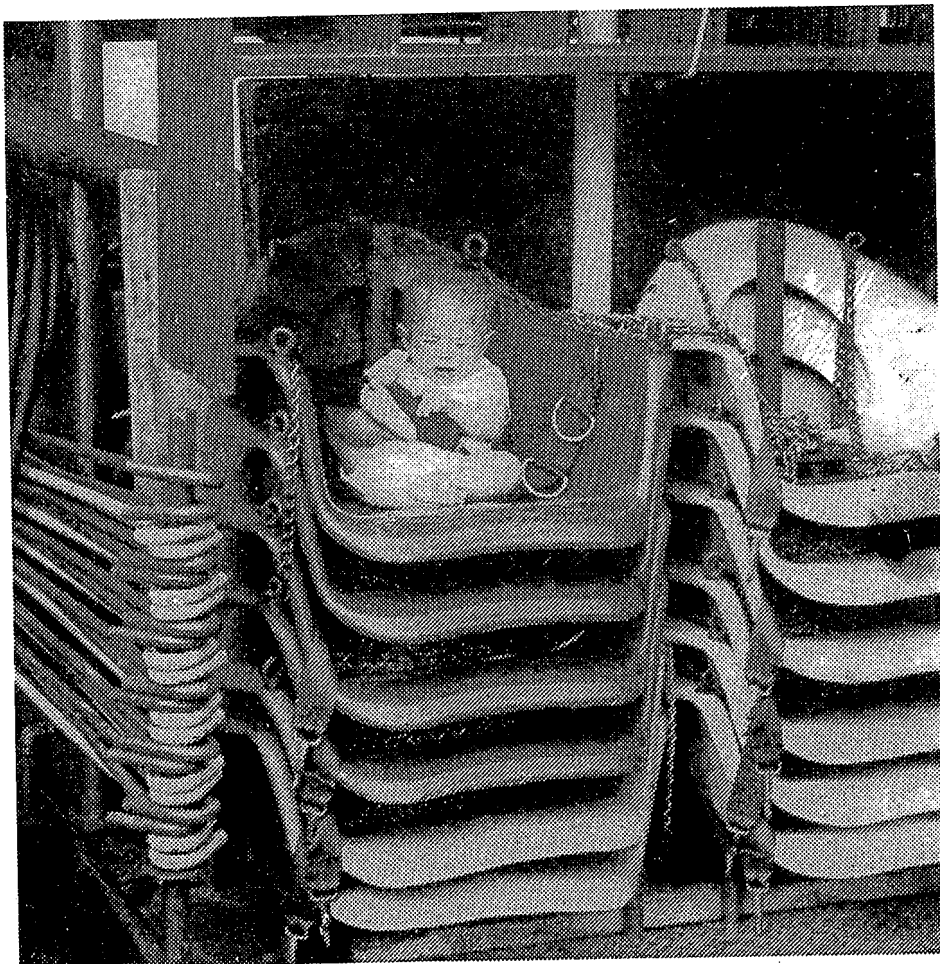

Also slated during the afternoon is the American Legion's annual corn roast at Campbell-Richmond Post No. 63 on M-15 just north of I-75.

A menu of corn, hot dogs, beer, pop and potato chips will be offered. Tents will be set up outside to accomodate picnickers and tables will be located as usual in the hall.

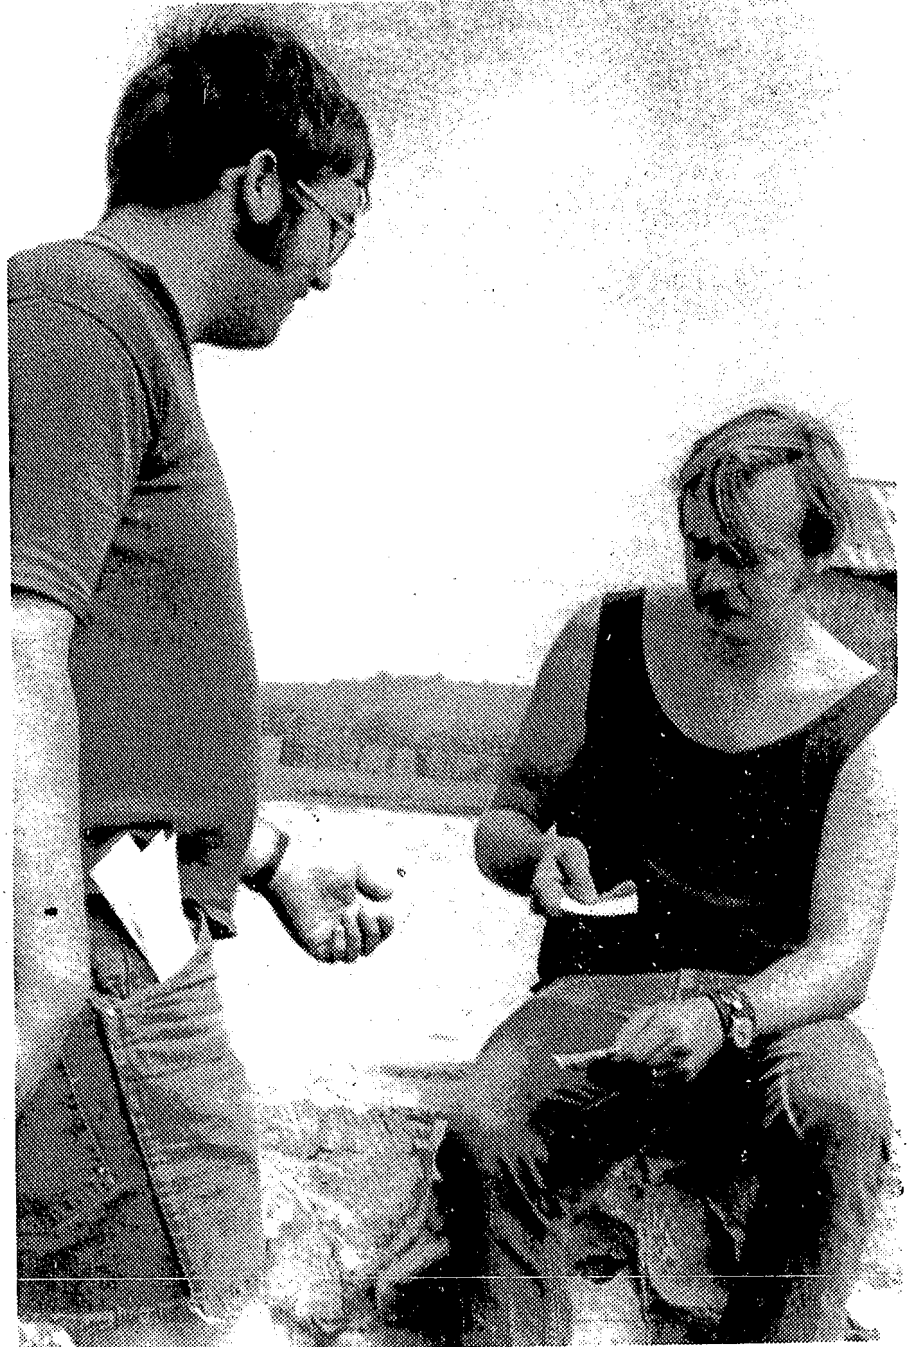

Prices at the American Legion corn roast are 30 cents for corn, 40 cents for hot dogs and 50 cents for beer.

Jaycee clowns like these will be entertaining area youngsters along the Clarkston Labor Day parade route, even as they amused them July 4th.

Trying out a new thrilling ride before it gets too thrilling—that is, before it's even up—is four-month-old Troy Thompson, whose grandfather Al Clothier owns the carnival that will be a part of the Clarkston Jaycees' Village Days. The new ride, "The Swinger," will be among those in action on the Eagles property starting Friday.

Wanta buy a ticket? Jaycees carnival chairman Don Foote demonstrates his selling abilities for carnival 50-50 raffle tickets by selling one to fellow Jaycees member Ron Crites.

Troy and his mother are dwarfed by the gigantic trucks which transport the rides.
