Village building authority seen as means of keeping post office in town

By Jo Ann Carlson
of The Clarkston News

The establishment of a building authority with the power to erect a post office within village limits may be in Clarkston's future.

A resolution to send a letter to the office of the Post Master General stating these intentions was made by the Clarkston Village Council at a special meeting Monday night. The resolution came about through the suggestion of Nelson Kimball, chairman of the Horizon '76 Committee of the Clarkston-Independence Bicentennial Commission.

This action serves as a major last ditch effort to keep the post office from moving outside the village and to save the Clarkston Business district from a consequent loss of traffic.

The question of the removal of the post office from its location on Main Street has been under discussion for about ten years. The present facility is no longer adequate, the U.S. Postal Service has maintained.

The service had rejected all of the site locations within the village suggested by the council and last October purchased a site on M-15 south of the village limits next to the Dairy Queen where it intends to construct a new building.

In its fight to keep the post office, the village council had offered to postpone or even forego payment for the land owned by the village on Depot Road behind the old Town Shop. That offer was refused by the postal authorities. The council has also, by Monday night's action, signified its intent, if necessary, to erect the required building and lease it to postal authorities.

Village President Keith Hallman and a majority of the council members said they felt they were making an offer to the U.S. Postal Service that it could not turn down, because it would save the taxpayer's money.

"The only thing that can turn them (the postal authorities) around is the fact that they won't have this huge capital outlay," Kimball stated.

Trustee Ruth Basinger abstained from voting saying she felt that the village should seek professional guidance to determine whether it would be economically feasible and beneficial for the village to construct a post office and lease it to the U.S. Postal Service.

Hallman was appointed to draft the letter Wednesday morning with the help of Billie Farnum, an independent financial consultant to municipalities and private businesses. The council will ask Farnum's advice as to whether the resolution will have a greater impact if it is hand delivered to postal authorities in Washington, D.C., by a special delegation.

Another likelihood for the building authority will be to look into the purchase of the Hawk Tool property on Washington Street for rental to Oakland County to house the Clarkston 52nd District Court.

Alcohol seminar planned

An alcohol awareness program sponsored by Clarkston Area Youth Assistance will be offered Feb. 5 for teenagers and parents.

Dr. James O'Neill local pediatrician, will relate to the "physical aspect of the drug alcohol" while Dr. Art Jalkanen, psychologist from Oakland Community College, will be concerned with "the family and how it affects social situations."

This one night program will be held on Wednesday, February 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the library at Clarkston High School.

A donation of $50 will be accepted.

Waters to head village CETA

Bob Waters, former Village president, was appointed as the director of man power services for the village of Clarkston in special action by the village council Monday night. Waters lives on Robertson Court.

As the director, Waters' duties will include interviewing and hiring applicants for village jobs created through the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act Title 6 program.

The village was allocated $69,728 in funds through this federal grant program for hiring of the unemployed. Clarkston's unemployment rate of 11.6 percent qualified the village for the grant.

Waters' salary is to come partly out of the five percent of the grant allowed for administration purposes and partly from the village's general fund. He will be paid a salary of $210 per month plus $40 for expenses, his appointment to last one year. Five hundred dollars of the $3,000 total cost of the appointment is to be taken from the general fund.

The council also designated Village President Keith Hallman as the official agent to administer the CETA funds.

The tentative job positions for which Hallman filed in accepting the grant last Friday were: a time-keeper clerk to do general secretary work and man the village office phones, and six department of public works, park and recreation employees.

Hallman noted that the positions were tentative and "can be changed anyway you want to."

In suggesting Waters for the director position, Hallman noted that none of the part time members on the village council had the kind of time required for interviewing and hiring applicants for the jobs.

If one of the council members were to undertake the job, Hallman said, "It would put us in the position on the surface to give people favors. It should be someone not in an elected office."

Hallman cited Waters' past presidency of the village, his familiarity with the village and the respect that he commands throughout the community as his qualifications for the job. Waters was also a former principal at Clarkston Senior High School.

"I think he has some excellent ideas for doing good for the village," Hallman said. "He's pretty sharp."

One of the ideas that Hallman said Waters had come up with was a central clearing agency to place young people in summer part time jobs.

Some of the council members noted that an additional $69,000 was a big jump from the village's present payroll which amounts to $11,500 a year.

"How are we going to keep these people busy?" Trustee Michael Thayer asked.

Hallman replied that it may be easier when the weather breaks.

"We've been getting along with one full time worker and have had trouble keeping him busy," Hallman agreed.

"The overall purpose is not to make a big deal for Clarkston village but to put unemployed people to work," Hallman indicated.

It's no rose garden

We never promised you a rose garden, Mr. Metzdorf.

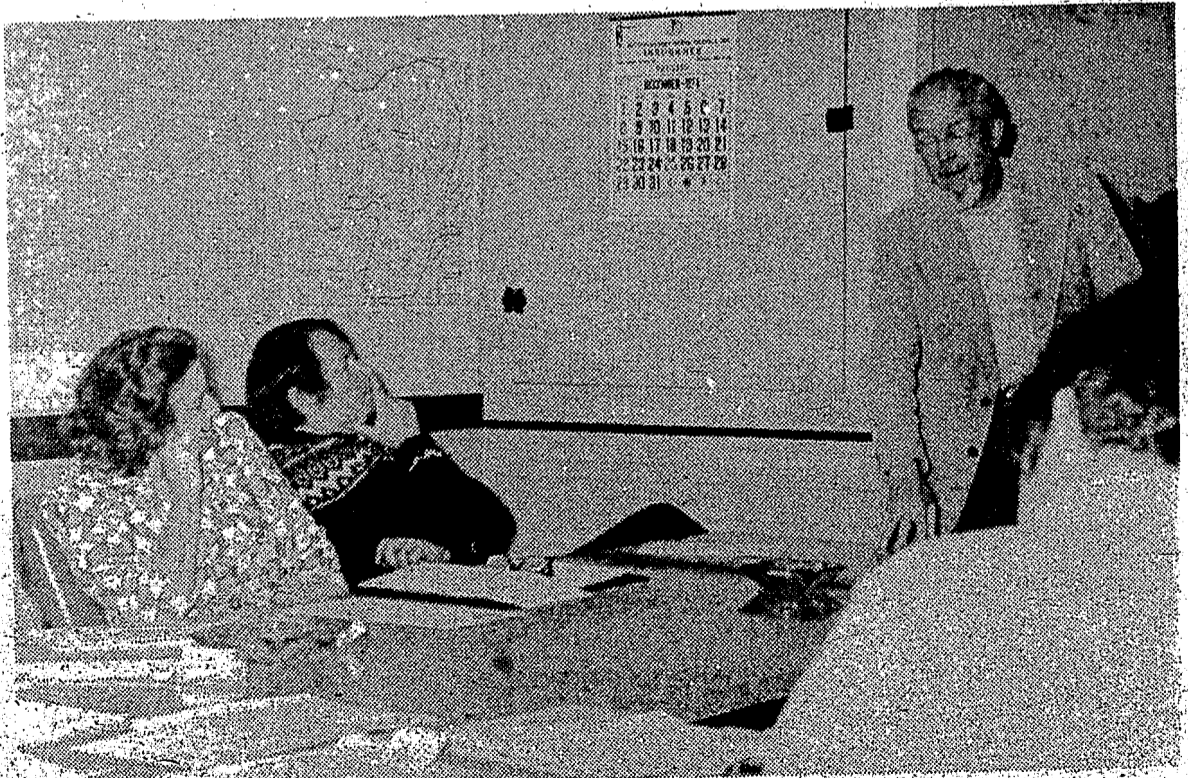

Village officials are getting some rueful chuckles from recent correspondence from the Office of the Postmaster General.

In an attempt to keep the new Post Office located within village limits, officials have offered a recently available site behind the old Town Shop.

Unfortunately, the Postal Service—without informing the village council—has already purchased land on M-15 south of town adjacent to the Dairy Queen and is proceeding with plans to build there—no matter what local people think.

Glenn A. Metzdorf, general manager of the government relations department with the Postal Service, wrote Village President Keith Hallman, "We regret that we failed to advise Congressman Broomfield of the fact that our Real Estate Officer had reviewed the site which the Village owns and which is now being used as a rose garden. It, among other sites, was considered prior to selection of the one ultimately purchased.

Mr. Metzdorf, the last time we looked the property was the lately abandoned site of the village septic system—and no rose garden.

Clarkston Village Council Trustees Ruth Basinger and Mike Thayer listen as Nelson Kimball of the Clarkston-Independence Bicentennial Committee promotes the idea of keeping the Clarkston Post Office located within the village limits.

Kraud heads appeal board

Robert Kraud, 7840 N. Holcomb, has been named chairman of the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals.

Mel Vaara, chairman for two of the three years he has served on the board, was elected vice chairman. Vaara serves on the board of appeals by virtue of his being chairman of the Independence Township Planning Commission. Kraud is the at-large member of the board.

Jerry Powell, a township trustee who serves as the third member of the appeals board, was named secretary of the board last week.

In other action at its Jan. 16 meeting, the appeals board granted a front yard variance to allow a 12-by-14 foot shed to remain standing at the Harold Arnold residence, 7330 Deer Lake Road.

to begin a petition drive asking that hunting be banned in an open field on the east side of Chickadee Lane.

The owner of the golden retriever is Careen Gilbert who lives on Chickadee. The dog was taken to a local veterinary clinic last Wednesday and died over the weekend. The veterinarian said death was caused by a 22-caliber pellet which ruptured an artery.

Mrs. Gilbert said she had been concerned about hunting in the field before the shooting occurred but that the incident convinced her something had to be done.

She said the present law allows hunting within 150 feet of a dwelling as long as the gun is pointed away from a residence.

"That law makes it legal to hunt right across the street from our home," she said.

Hunting in the field not only makes it dangerous for residents on Chickadee, she indicated, but all of the Birdland Subdivision.

Mrs. Gilbert, who has three children aged 3, 5 and 10, said that all the children in the subdivision play in the field.

"The children toboggan in the field and build tree forts there," she said.

The death of Sandy, the Gilbert's dog, was bad enough, but Mrs. Gilbert said she worries that a child might be hit next.

Mrs. Gilbert indicated that she can't be sure the dog was killed by a hunter, but that the danger for children still exists.

"I just don't believe a neighbor would shoot my dog, she stated. She pointed out that hunting is

Mrs. Gilbert began ringing doorbells Sunday and said she has about 30 signatures so far. She said she would like to have hunting banned in Birdland Subdivision and also in a square of land bounded on the west by M-15, and the south by Maybee Road and on the north by Waldon Road.

Some of the residents in the subdivision expressed surprise that hunting was allowed in the field, she said. And all but one family was in favor of a ban, she added.

Mrs. Gilbert will present the petition to the Independence Township board when it is completed. Then it is up to the Department of Natural Resources to conduct public hearings on the matter and come up with a solution to the problem.

banned south of Maybee, around Gulick Lake, north of Waldon, west of Almond Lane, west of Perry Lake Road and in the village

Regular appeals meetings

Starting April, the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals will schedule meetings on a regular basis twice a month.

Property owners seeking variances or special exemptions to the zoning code can appear before the board on the second or fourth Wednesday of every month. The hearings will begin at 7:30 p.m.

The three-man board had been asked by the township board to consider some changes in its format. Under state law, the board of appeals sets its own meeting dates. Establishing a regular schedule was one suggestion recently under discussion by township officials.

Appeals board members also decided at their meeting last week to recommend that each be paid $25 a meeting, rather than $10 a case.

An adjusted fee schedule also is being considered, with the rate varying according to classification of the variance or special exemption sought.

The present flat rate is $45 a case. Under the proposed schedule, nothing will be less than $45, according to board member Jerry Powell. Recommendations on the fee schedule and rate of pay for appeals board members will be presented to the township board in February, Powell said.

Rebates termed "good idea" but sales doubtful

by Jo-Ann Carlson
Clarkston News Staff

The auto companies' rebate plans for new car purchases rated comments of "fantastic" and "good" from several people interviewed by The News this week, but whether it will make an impact on sales remains to be seen.

The rebates ranging from $200 to $500 do not seem to have as much influence over car purchasing as do personal economics or the condition of the old car.

"I think the rebate is an excellent idea, but the only thing that will encourage us to buy a new car is if we can't keep our present cars running," Audrey Toutant, Snowapple, said.

"We need to replace our 1967 Tempest. When we do, it'll probably be a Volkswagen or a used American car," she indicated.

"Right now anything we buy we'll be paying the inflated price. The manufacturers could go another $250 in addition to the $200 rebate."

They're going to have to make the first move to bring down prices. We'll drive our cars until the wheels fall off," Mrs. Toutant said.

Toutant

Joe Julash of The Village Inn Coffee House remarked that the rebate plan is a good incentive and should stimulate some sales.

"If I needed a car, I would buy one. But, I don't think the $250 rebate puts the cars in a reasonable price range. Why a rebate? Why not just lower the price of the car?"

"A rebate is nothing more than a refund of an overcharge in the first place," he said. "If you're making $1,000 on a car and not selling it, you're better off to sell more and make $200 on each one."

"If my economy was better, I'd buy a car," Julash said.

Penny Pinchers

PSB launches drive to stimulate economy

Pontiac State Bank with the cooperation of 104 merchants, including nine from the Clarkston area, is undergoing a campaign to give consumers an extra incentive to buy in local stores.

The program called "Penny Pinchers" began January 15 and continues to March 31.

Customers of Pontiac State Bank during this period will receive a book of 24 free shopping coupons to be used for price discounts at any of the 104 participating stores. The minimum bank deposit needed to qualify for the program is $100.

Clarkston area merchants indicate that response so far has been low.

Only Ritters Farm Market on Dixie reports initial response as "quite encouraging". As on Monday, about ten people had made large purchases with the discount coupons, Mark Adams, an employee said. Ritters is reporting results after February 1, when the Sally Legip, a Waterford resident and owner of Palace Fine Foods on Dixie, also said the manufacturers should slash the prices of cars.

"The rebate alone is not going to convince me to buy a car, although I need one. I was thinking of buying one before. Because of the rebate, I probably will buy a new car," she said.

The owner of a new Chevy Blazer, Gilbert Horton of Waterford said, "The rebate doesn't do me any good because I already bought one. Of course, I'd like them to send me a check."

"As far as I'm concerned, I wouldn't be interested in buying a car because of the rebate," Robert Burnes of Waterford said.

"If I was going to buy a car, it would be a model of my own choice."

"But I think the rebate is a fine idea and will stimulate car sales. I'd be interested in knowing if it is a real rebate. That sticker price hasn't meant much. There's always been a discount of some kind," Burnes said.

Horton

Lung

Richard Lung, Clintonville Road, has been laid off for a year from Fisher Body.

"I've got a 1970 Pontiac that I bought when I was working and also a truck. So, I don't need a new car. If I did, I wouldn't buy one because I'm out of a job," Lung said.

It's bad news to buy a car today, according to Fred Olsen of Clarkston. He said he sees the rebate as just another sales promotion.

Olsen said the rebate has no effect on him because he always buys a car that's a couple of years old.

A weigh master on I-75, Gary Coss said, "It's a good idea. I'm not saying I'd go out and buy one of their cars though. Chrysler was losing money before, I wonder how they can afford a rebate. I own a 1974 car."

Coss Estep

Joseph Estep, a truck driver from Fenton, said if he didn't already own a 1975 automobile, he would probably go out and buy one.

"I think it should convince people to go out and buy one," he said.

Burnes

A General Motors employee, Ken Laws of Grand Blanc said he thinks the rebate is a step in the right direction. He also said he liked the idea of private firms giving their employees $100 for buying a new car.

"If General Motors decides to give rebates I'd buy one," he said. GM has since announced its intention of doing just that.

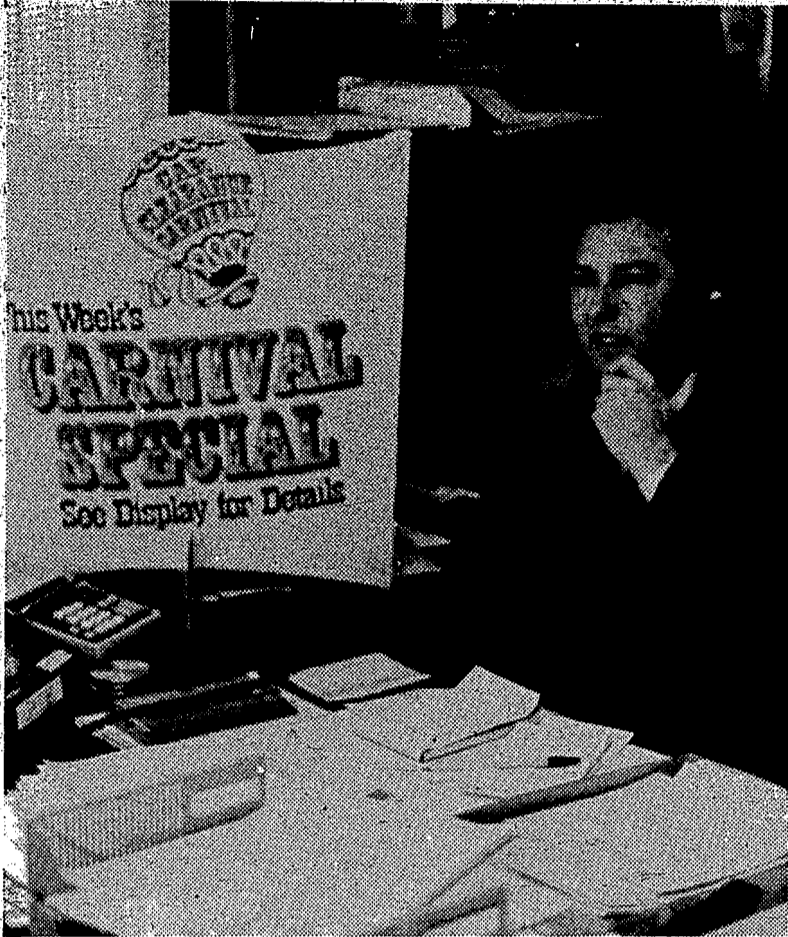

Bill Daniel of Davison, also an employee of General Motors agreed. "If GM does it, I may suddenly be in the new car market."

Auto rebates a boost

A rebate of $200 to $400 on a new car can sweeten up a deal enough to keep things buzzing at Hahn Motors Inc.

Three days into the Chrysler Corp. rebate program, Hahn sales manager Jerry Townsend was enthusiastic about initial response and prospects for the rest of the five-week promotion.

"It's increased our sales quite a bit," he said. "There's been a lot of phone calls and a lot of traffic."

Townsend said the number of persons coming into the showroom at 6673 Dixie Highway has more than doubled.

And a respectable percentage of them are buying new cars under the incentive of the national program.

The promotion, called the "Carnival of Value," began Monday, Jan. 13. By Thursday morning, Townsend reported the dealership had delivered eight new automobiles.

"Business has been real good," he said.

Under provisions of the promotion, Chrysler Corp. will give a rebate to everyone who purchases one of the models featured during a week. The amount of the rebate, running from $200 to $300, varies from week to week along with the featured models. Last week, rebates were offered on the 1974 Duster, Scamp and Valiant.

"Buyers get an extra $100 if they trade in a certain car," Townsend said. Monday through Wednesday, the special trade-ins were Pintos and Vegas. Two of the new car purchasers at Hahn picked up another $100 on this end of the deal, Townsend said.

Jaycees choose award winners

It's National Jaycee Week, and Clarkston Area Jaycees are celebrating this Thursday at their annual Bosses' Night dinner at Spring Lake Country Club.

The Boss of the Year, the Distinguished Service Award and the Educator of the Year will be recognized in ceremonies following dinner and a talk by Charlie Sanders, and pro tight end of the Detroit Lions, Bob Jaycees kicked off the week's events with a dance Saturday at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Maybee Road, and will climax the observance by attending State Junior Miss Pageant finals at 8 p.m. Saturday at Pontiac-Northern High School.

Clarkston Junior Miss Katie King is a semi-finalist for one of the state scholarships. Jaycettes report people who are working get paid." Lowery reported three coupons had been used.

Savoie Insulation said they had no response. Other Clarkston Merchants participating in "Penny Pinchers" are the Clothes Tree and Photography by Winship.

Pontiac State Bank personnel estimate the coupons will be worth as much as $100 in price discounts for customers who plan their purchases for maximum savings. All participating merchants are allowing discounts on sale prices as well as regular prices.

"Penny Pinchers" is only part of an overall program by the bank to support the economy in northern Oakland County. The other stages in the program will follow in the weeks ahead.

According to Edward E. Barker, Jr., president of the bank, the total program includes a major exploration of loan rates to help consumers and businessmen reduce the cost of borrowing, consultation with leading citizens to develop additional action within the community, and cooperation with the Northern Oakland Chamber of Commerce and government officials in their programs to stimulate increased economic activity.

Council takes watershed action

The Clinton Valley Watershed Council has received support from the Clarkston Village Council in its quest for designation as the agent to conduct water quality management planning for the Clinton River watershed.

At the special meeting Monday night, the council passed a resolution, stating opposition to inclusion of the Clinton River watershed in any designation of the Southeast Region of Michigan.

The Watershed Council is a voluntary association of local governments including 10 cities and villages, and four townships formed in 1972 under the provisions of the Michigan Local River Management Act.

In asking support from its local government members, the Watershed Council indicated that "Southeast Michigan with a population of 4.8 million people and 250 units of government is too large an entity for viable local influences."

In a letter to the Department of Natural Resources, Division of Water Development Services, Peggy Johnson, executive secretary for the Watershed Council, stated, "It is our belief that continued progress toward cleaner water in the Clinton River will not be enhanced by a planning effort for so large an area as Southeast Michigan, Region I."

"We submit that the best means to plan further for water quality management in southeast Michigan is via agencies in each of the river basins," Ms. Johnson stated in the letter.

We don't like CETA

At the risk of killing the goose that is laying the golden egg, we must in all conscience state our disapproval of the Comprehensive Education and Training Act (CETA) which is funneling federal unemployment funds for jobs into the area.

Never has there been such a scurrying to find "make work" jobs for people in the North Oakland County area. CETA has been set up so that if one community such as Clarkston were to turn down the money available to it, another community would be awarded the windfall.

Were refused funds to be returned to Washington and applied against the national debt, we'd advise that. Since they can't, we agree we're better off to keep the money and find some kind of work to do.

How much better, however, it would be if there were a project of some size (rapid transit maybe?) into which all the millions of dollars that are being spent in the state could be channeled. The jobs arising from such a project would be of some worth, and the benefits of the projects would be around for years to come.

A new type of justice

by Jim Fitzgerald

It is to be hoped that Lady Justice's blindfold does not slip. She might see the yellow ribbon tied around Jeb Magruder's old oak tree—and throw up all over her out-of-balance trays.

Most people think Judge Sirica did a nice thing when he unexpectedly let Magruder, John Dean and Herbert Kalmbach out of the pokey before their sentences were served. The freeing came so suddenly, Magruder's warden didn't even have time to find a substitute to fill out their golf foursome that Sunday morning.

Judge Sirica didn't tell why he opened the prison doors. But everyone assumes he was rewarding the 3 men for ratting on their Watergate henchmen. Also, there is the general feeling that the three have suffered enough. After all, they lost important jobs and are now subject to public ridicule every time they give Town Hall lectures at $2,000 per speech.

Besides, Richard Nixon was given a blanket pardon for all sins of word, deed or omission he might have committed while President. It is not generally known, but there was also a retroactive clause in Nixon's pardon. This allows him to commit one legal murder should he ever find himself on the edge of a cliff, standing behind that guy Butterfield who told the world the White House was bugged.

That is, Nixon can serve no prison term for such a murder. However, there would be a stiff fine with the stipulation that Bebe Rebozo and Robert Abplanalp must hand wrestle in Madison Square Garden for the privilege of picking up the tab. And there's a built-in bonus for the workman who spelled Abplanalp's name correctly on the Garden marquee.

So, that's the ultimate justification. If Nixon is pelted with powderpuffs, it's not fair to throw rocks at his hirelings. It is a unique system of justice which, if applied to all crime, would empty 90% of this nation's cells.

Everyone knows the Godfather doesn't go to prison. He dies in his garden of too many grandchildren and later comes back to sequel life, a bigger crook than ever. The crime chiefs are above the law, in Las Vegas penthouses. Their hired men sell the dope and lay the bets and pimp the prostitutes. And when the law declares an occasional crack-down, it is the hired men who get long prison terms. The Godfathers get indigestion and check into the Mayo Clinic.

Under the Nixon-Ford-Sirica system, this is obviously unjust. If the big crook goes free, the little crooks' punishment should be nothing more harsh than 6 months in a Newark Holiday Inn. And if the little crooks agree to squeal, they should be allowed unlimited visiting privileges into New York City to appear on Meet the Press and to sign contracts to write books revealing how a Mafia hit man found Christ in a subway john.

This new justice would do more than give burglars the same privileges as lawyers (excuse any redundancy). It would also make prison space available for the extended jailing of the miscreants who are the real threat to the very foundations of this government.

I mean the welfare cheats, the overtime parkers and the people who walk on grass.

Also the independent muggers who rob only to feed their own selfish habits—such as eating—and give no share of the proceeds to Organized Crime. This is almost as bad as not contributing to a political party.

Onward and Upward

BY THE THIRD EYE

One of the top administrative officers at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department is due for a change, totally unexpected to him. There's a promotion of some kind, but I can't see quite how it's going to happen. It might mean more money or a title change.

He should beware of an auto wiring problem that may cause a flash fire while his car is parked in his driveway. "Hot wiring" is the keyword, maybe it means auto theft.

This man will have a difference of opinion with someone he works closely with. He will be right, but his advice will be ignored.

There will be accusations made against another light haired officer in the department, and our man should investigate very carefully. A good investigation will mean exoneration.

This man dreams in color and has a psychic feel for coming events.

We've got cold weather ahead yet this winter, but I don't believe there will be anymore really big snowstorms.

Steamer Traveler: Your answer will be forthcoming by mail.

To P.G.: Your future will be busy in the next six to seven months. There'll be a change of address in a topsy-turvy atmosphere. A small monetary gift will be coming your way -- not more than $500. A renewing of an old friendship will be profitable and a vacation will lead you into a new area of work.

Your health will be better than it's ever been. You've had either a broken leg or been on crutches. If this hasn't happened recently, I would advise you to be cautious.

Daymares?

by Jean Saile

I want to tell you about last week—well five minutes of one day of last week.

I was home catching up from the Christmas rush and Janet came in from school, switched on "General Hospital" and plopped down with a handful of homemade cookies—evidence of my domesticity while not keeping office hours.

Some girl—a nurse, I think—was being arrested for murder, another was recovering from a secret abortion, some other people were playing around, and it looked to me like there were a lot of bruised psyches.

"What's going on?" I asked Janet. It was a mistake. Five minutes later she'd given me a character analysis of every cast member which included a string of troubles I haven't seen all lumped together in 44 years of life.

"That's entertainment?" I asked.

It turned out it was just daytime TV, and only one show, to boot.

The first couple of days home, I had succumbed to the morning game shows. Somebody won thousands for knowing how many people in a quintet. Somebody else went away disappointed with $50, having come with nothing and failing to latch onto a $10,000 showcase.

Somebody else was presumably contacting Northwestern Van Lines to transport a baby crib 10 feet tall—a zonk prize.

See how I know all those words like "zonk" now?

That's just one of the benefits of daytime TV.

The other benefit of daytime TV is that ordinarily I do not have the opportunity to watch it.

I do not have to watch people turn green with greed over something that never was, nor do I have to add to the troubles of an already troubled world by immersing myself in fantasy.

The gremlins may take over the typewriter, I might be running four hours behind deadline, the phone ringing off the hook and people lined up waiting to talk, but at least I'm living. And it's real.

There's no temptation to succumb to the lure of the daytime tube. There can't be anything quite as bad as that.

Large-lot subdivision open

by Jean Saile

One of the first subdivisions in Oakland County built according to new Oakland County Road Commission standards on acreage parcels is nearing completion off Holcomb Road near Ellis.

Some 5,700 feet of 20 foot wide 7½ inch deep strength asphalt winds among seeded ditches to serve the 44 lots under development there by Al Valentine, owner of Oxford Mining Co.

The 86 acres involved include the old Galligan farm and part of the Conklin farm.

A meandering Ellis Creek which flows through the property has been widened to create three ponds, some of which already contain fish.

Valentine reports a crane operator baled up a big black bass there last fall while dredging. He put it back in the creek.

The lots vary from 1½ to 3 acres and will sell for $10,800 to $17,800, Valentine reports.

Homes in the $50,000 to $70,000 category containing 1600 square feet of floor space can be contracted for by property owners, or Valentine and his partner, Fred Schwanz of Bloomfield Hills, will build to suit. They will also serve as an architectural review committee until a subdivision control committee can be formed.

Both the land and the houses are available on land contract, the lots at 7 percent interest and the homes at 9 percent, Al reports.

"Some mortgage money is available for new home construction and it's supposed to be loosening up all the time," says the developer who has faith that the economy is going to improve by the end of the year.

Though the property is located in Springfield Township, it is serviced by Clarkston schools, phones and mail service. The subdivision is adjacent to Holcomb Road property owned by Clarkston schools, Valentine noted.

Top soil as yet remains pushed aside, waiting to be respread once grading is completed. Valentine even created an island in one of the ponds to preserve two oak trees which once grew along the banks of Ellis Creek. Several other large trees have been retained, and the developer has plans for future planting and ornamentation of the boulevard entrance off Holcomb Road.

Valentine who has been in business in the area for 23 years, contends homes, though of late constantly increasing in price due to land, materials and labor costs, can still be within the grasp of many who are willing to invest some of their own effort in getting started.

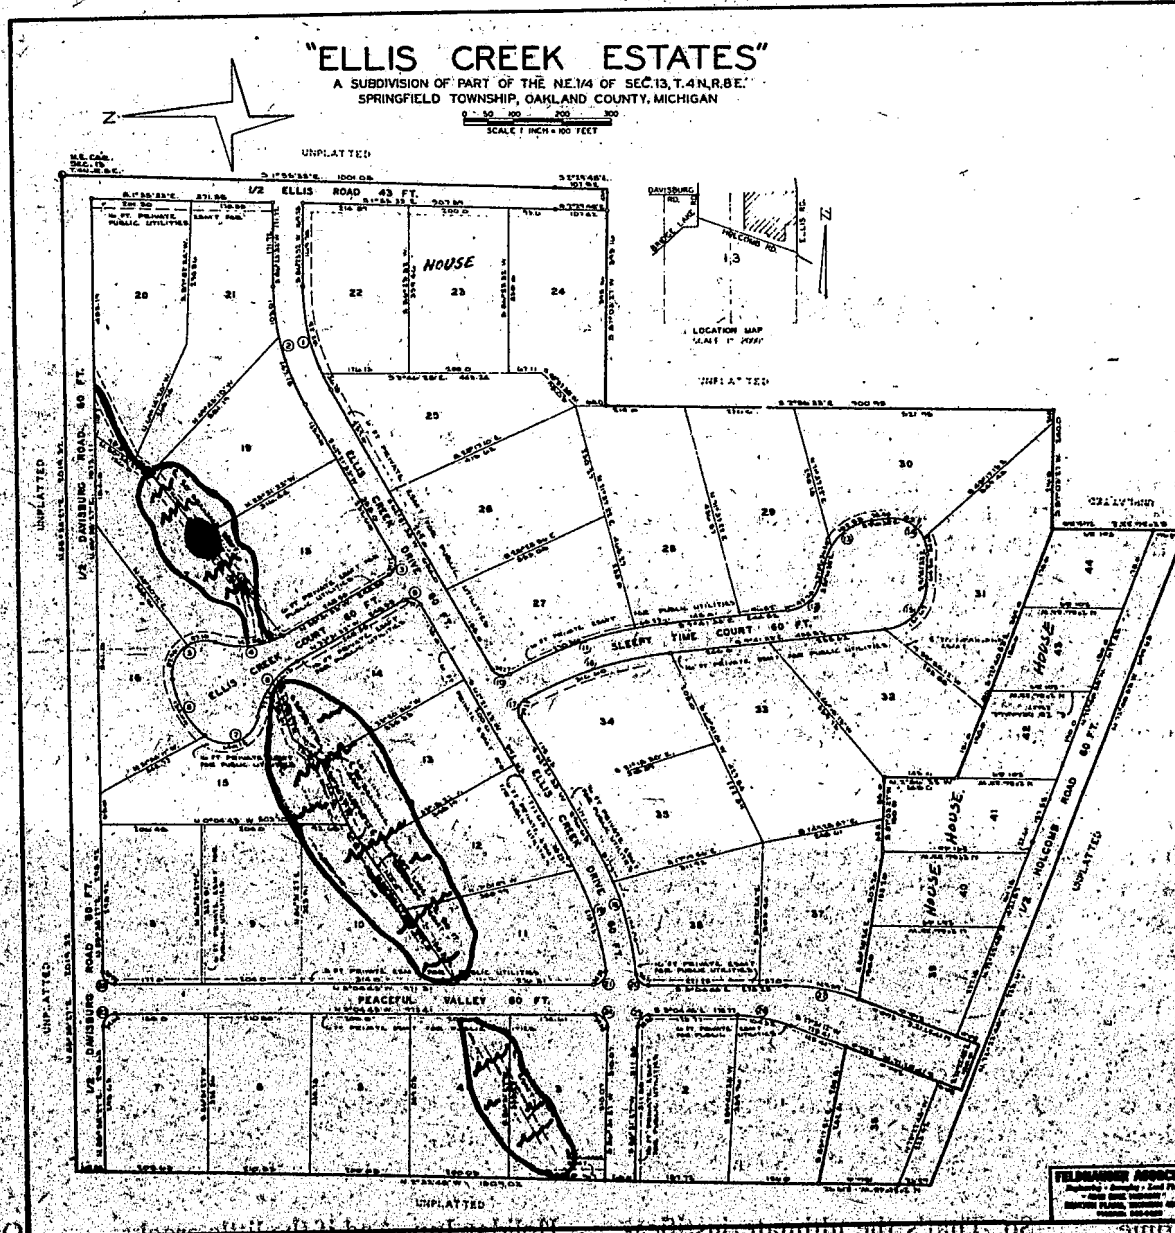

He notes the size of the parcels available and the costs advertised are below today's market level, and confides that he's absorbed some of the cost of lot preparation himself.

He's done that, he says, because he believes that land and building prices have got to come down some in the near future.

Three homes have been erected on the property and are now ready for sale. Of quality workmanship, they await only some landscaping

The widening of Ellis Creek has produced three scenic ponds in the subdivision under development by Al Valentine and his partner Fred Schwanz. Well built homes on large rural lots are expected in the area.

High school classes offer skill courses

Need a new skill? Old skills need sharpening? Maybe you'd like to get out of the house once a week and have some fun while learning something useful.

Several hobby and recreational classes are available starting this week at Clarkston Senior High during the evening. Registration is held during the first night of class, and all Clarkston area residents are invited to participate. Fees range from $4.00 to $15.00 per class.

The business machines class meets Monday from 7 to 9 p.m. for 10 weeks.

Tuesdays, basic automotive repair and intermediate sewing classes are held starting at 7 p.m. Also on Tuesdays, a three-week course in dried flower arranging is a bargain at $4.00.

Beginning and advanced typing, and basic sewing are offered Wednesday. Those courses run for eight weeks.

Thursday evenings at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. classes in cake decorating, caning, woodworking and refinishing are available.

Sugar prices force GS cookies up

Patti Higginbotham of Brownie Troop 190 and Rosann Morrow of Girl Scout Troop 201 are making preparations for the annual Girl Scout cookie sale. Orders will be taken during the period of January 24 to February 2 with delivery due the week of March 7 to 16. Cookies are $1.25 a box and each girl who sells 75 boxes will earn a patch.

Starting January 24 and continuing through February 2 the Girl Scouts from the Northern Oakland County Council will be taking orders for the 1975 cookie sale.

There will be a selection of five types of cookies this year, each at $1.25 per box. They are: Thin Mints, Shortbread, Peanut Butter Patties, All Vanilla sandwich Cremes, and Chocolate Chip.

Cookie sale and delivery will be March 7-16.

Heading up this year's sale for the Council will be Mrs. Dorothy Szalkowski of Orchard Lake. She will be assisted locally by Mrs. Barb Higginbottom, Mrs. Ann Holmyard, Mrs. Sue Toretta, and Mrs. Barb Aiken.

Although this year's price of cookies might seem high, the community's support of Girl Scouting through this annual sale is still vital.

Troop cookie sale profits are used to sponsor various troop activities and camping experiences. The majority of the Council proceeds are also returned to the individual girls through troop type and camping services which cannot be sponsored on an individual troop basis. The Council also provides training programs for adult volunteers, equipment, and camperships for its 9000 Scout membership.

Over 30% of each Girl Scout cookie is sugar. With the price of sugar nearly twice as much this year, the American Biscuit Company, the Northern Oakland County Council's cookie manufacturer, has had to charge a sugar surcharge to cover this increase. The Council must, therefore, charge more to cover their increase in cost.

Tourist Council starts pilot project

The Michigan Tourist Council has launched a 10-week pilot project designed to provide additional service to the traveling public, both resident and non-resident, it was announced today by Jack S. Wilson, Council director.

The council will man its toll-free telephone lines from 5 to 7 p.m., Monday through Friday. This will enable non-residents in different time zones, such as Chicago and Milwaukee, to obtain Michigan information during their normal work hours. It also will enable Michigan residents to reach the council after regular office hours.

The hot line program provides callers with up-to-date information on fuel availability, weather conditions, ski and snowmobile conditions, fishing information and other pertinent travel subjects.

The Lansing toll-free number, accessible from any point in Michigan is 1-800-292-2520.

CHS ties for lead

Clarkston wrestlers defeated the Barons of Bloomfield Hills Andover for their second win against no losses in League competition January 9.

Clarkston is now tied for the league lead with West Bloomfield. The two teams will meet each other on January 23. The winner should be the league champion.

Rowland Hayword, 119 pounds took first place at the Fenton Tournament Saturday for Clarkston. He won last year at 105 and is the first Clarkston wrestler to win twice in Fenton.

Wrestling for Clarkston was to resume this week with a dual meet Tuesday against Waterford Township.

Besides this Thursday's meet with West Bloomfield, Clarkston will host its Invitational Tournament Saturday starting at noon. Anchor Bay, Avondale, Bishop Foley, Davison, Lake Orion, Rochester Adams, and Waterford Mott will participate in the invitational.

Individual records for Clarkston wrestlers so far are: Ray Funck, 10-5; Jeff Berry, 9-4; Grady Parker, 7-3; Rowland Hayword, 10-4; John Barr, 7-5; Dan Robb, 12-6; and Kirk Poepppe, 7-6.

Where the fish are

The Michigan Tourist Council has prepared a list of good fishing waters in Oakland County. Source of the council's information is relatively recent field reports from the Department of Natural Resources.

Ciscoe are reported in Cass, Oxbow and Cedar Island lakes. Northern Pike is listed in Cass, Walled, White, Sylvan, Kent, Oakland, Tiptico (Tiger muskies), Lakeville and Pontiac lakes.

Bluegills are good in Lakeville, Lake Orion, Cass, Pontiac, Kent, Holly Mill Pond, Union, Teeple, Wildwood, Otter, Valley, Woodhull, Crotched, Elizabeth, White, Lower Pettibone, Pickeral and Alderman lakes.

Crappies can be found in Lakeville, Pontiac, Kent, Crotched, Holly Mill Pond, Cass, Elizabeth, White, Lower Pettibone, Pickeral and Alderman Lakes.

Rainbow trout are reported in Proud and Unlon lakes with lake trout in Cass Lake.

New sports programs

Two new sports programs will begin this week, under sponsorship of the Township Parks and Recreation Department.

Women's Volleyball (non-League) gets under way from 7:30 to 9 p.m. beginning January 27 at Sashabaw Junior High. Charge is $5 for the eight week course.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.
Moved by Weber to pay the following bills:

Street Wages	$1595.65
Municipal Services	226.75
Administration	523.48
Clarkston News	106.25

TOTAL	$5036.99

Seconded by Granlund. Roll: Ayes—Basinger, Granlund, McCall, Schultz, Thayer, Weber. Nays—none. Motion carried.

Gar Wilson and the council discussed sidewalk plowing, a new type of street pole, parked cars on the street during snow storms, plumbing improvements in the basement of the village hall, the dissatisfaction with the county road commission's maintenance of Clarkston-Orion Rd. around the manhole areas, and requiring permits and bonds for cutting into village streets and sidewalks.

It was decided to have Gar continue to plow the streets first and do the sidewalks later when he has time, following a snow storm. A letter will be written to residents that park their cars on the street, requesting their cooperation on moving them when the roads have to be plowed. A letter will also be written to the road commission, seeing if they can take care of the Clarkston-Orion Rd. problem soon.

Moved by Thayer to authorize Gar to instruct the attorney to draw up the necessary forms on requiring permits and bonds for cutting into village streets and sidewalks. Seconded by Basinger. Motion carried unanimously.

Gar and the council also discussed the possible purchase of a newer tractor to replace the 1962 tractor, which should be done soon. He reported that he has located a 1972 tractor which is in very good condition and sells for $8500.00.

Moved by Weber to purchase the 1972 Ford Tractor that Gar has located, at a cost of $8500.00. Seconded by Thayer. Roll: Ayes—Granlund, McCall, Schultz, Thayer, Weber. Nays—none. Abstain—Basinger. Motion carried.

Jim MacArthur from the planning Commission reported that they are discussing a study of traffic on village streets with the Oakland County Planning Commission.

President Hallman reported on the correspondence that has been written concerning the post office site, and he and the council discussed the area around village property behind the old Town Shop as a possible site. Traffic patterns and parking in that area were also discussed.

The clerk reported that since five candidates have filed for the three trustee positions that are up this year, a primary will be required, which will be held on February 17th.

Moved by Schultz to grant permission to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital to solicit funds in the village during August and September of 1975. Seconded by Weber. Motion carried unanimously.

Correspondence from the attorney regarding unfinished business on some possible ordinances was read and discussed.

Meeting called adjourned by President Hallman.

CJH basketball improving

Two wins last week against Lake Orion West and Walled Lake Western in Clarkston Junior High basketball action brought the team's overall record to 3-6.

Coach Larry Sherrill indicated that the wins were a big improvement over the 46-45 loss against Milford January 7.

Ken Schulte won the January 13 game against Lake Orion for Clarkston with a basket in the last eight seconds of play. The final score was 52-50.

"We were behind the whole game and down by 14 points in the final quarter," Coach Sherrill said. "Then we came back to tie it up and win in the last eight seconds."

Eric Richard, Ken Schulte, and Skip Kulaszewski were high scorers in the game with 12 points each. Tim Fogg played an outstanding defensive game, the coach said.

In the January 16 game with Walled Lake, the second quarter decided the game, with the score ending up 61-51.

Clarkston came into the second quarter behind by two points and went on to outscore Walled Lake 23-7. The score at the half was 36-22.

Clarkston Junior High held the lead throughout the second half. Tim Fogg lead the scoring with 13 points. Rick Jenks had 11, and Kit Pappas scored 10. Rick Jenks also had 11 rebounds, nine of them off the offensive boards.

"We're starting to play a lot better now," Coach Sherrill said. "We're playing as a team rather than as individuals."

The CJH basketball team was to travel to Rochester VanHoosen January 21, and will play Pierce Friday.

Wolves lose to W. Bloomfield

by Dana Goodell
Clarkston High cagers suffered a 75-55 loss to West Bloomfield Friday night, bringing their season's record to 5-6.
The Wolves never had a chance. Right from the beginning, the Lakers took possession of the ball, and Clarkston just couldn't take the lead. At the end of the first quarter, the Wolves trailed by six points.

Wayne Thompson seemed to be the only one who could do anything for the Wolves in the second quarter. His four points were the only ones scored for Clarkston's side. This put the Wolves behind 33-14.

The third quarter, the Wolves didn't do much better with only six baskets and a free throw to add to their score. At the end of the third quarter, the Wolves were behind 22 points.

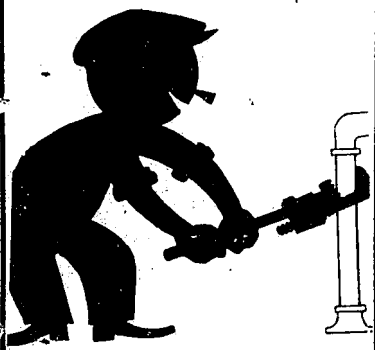

Going into the fourth quarter, Clarkston began to shape up, moving ahead from 27 points to 55. But it wasn't enough to offset West Bloomfield's big lead.

Randy Miller, high scorer with 14, fouled out in the fourth quarter. Barry Miller with 7 also fouled out in the fourth. Others scoring for the game were Ben Bullen with 12, Wayne Thompson with 9, Mike Coulter with 4, and Jeff Ferguson with 3. Mark Blumenau, Barth Hoopengartner and Bob Fuller also scored two points.

We got a bankruptcy notice this week on a guy owing us $99. He should be getting excellent advice from his attorney. We got a notice of his (the attorney's) bankruptcy a few weeks ago. He owed us a thousand. This is one of the "business expense" items not foreseeable by the eager new businessman. The attorney was one of these new businessmen.

He'll survive, and so will we, but with another hurt of a broken agreement.

This paying of one's debts... fulfilling an agreement... is one of our biggest concerns today.

It is foremost in our minds. We must meet our obligations. People depend on us to do so.

Several years ago my insurance man at that time said, "See where our friend, blank - blank, just flew his private plane to Florida for the week. He just got back from some other place. You know he's six months behind on his fire insurance?"

That, along with the experience of being called by a creditor for being 2 months late with a paper payment, prompted us to adopt an on-time payment plan.

Since then, and it's been 15 years or so, we have never gone away, even for a long weekend without being current. Only a few times have we gone past the due date of a notice, and then it was a couple days oversight.

Besides this $1099.00 uncollectable we received recently, we went through another $5600 in June. That, folks, is profit... or would have been. Just surviving such losses is a strain.

Especially, is it a strain when you couple it with the few businesses who persist in taking months to pay and never get completely even with the board.

But, don't get the idea we think we're unique in this position. Every business that deals in credit (and you almost have to, in business) faces the same collection problem. These days it is especially tough. Tough to collect, and tough to give credit.

Businessmen have to get hard, and when they do the people get hard in return.

A merchant told me last week he'd, "give credit to anyone as long as they don't need it. That's the bank's business, not mine. If a person needs credit he should get it from the bank. Then he only has one place to pay and we get our money and everyone's happy."

I doubt if everyone is happy, but it sure would be nice to have only current accounts on the books.

There's a trend among newspapers to emphasize good news each week. Maybe our good news this week is that so far we've been able to keep current... at least it's good news to our creditors.

For a $1.25 a week, you can reach 10,000 people in over 3,400 homes every week with an advertising message on this page. Call 625-3370 and place your message today!

Clarkston News

The Clarkston (Mich.) News

Thurs., Jan. 23, 1975 17

Independence plans to use CETA funds

The Independence Township Board plans to make use of the $80,423 designated for the municipality under the Title 6 of the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), with initial plans calling for the hiring of eight custodian-laborers.

A letter of intent to participate in the one-year program was approved unanimously by the board Tuesday night. The tentative use plan filed by Supervisor Robert Vandermark by the Jan. 17 deadline can be altered at a future date.

"I would like us to sit down soon and talk about the budget, particularly about the capital expenditures which will affect these positions," Township Clerk J. Edwin Glennie said Tuesday night.

As envisioned by Vandermark, the eight new employees would be assigned to the township's department of public works. Their projects would include development of the new township park, repair work at the township hall and fire stations and work at the township beach.

"Feb. 12 is the first date we can hire anyone," Vandermark said, noting that further details of the grant are being discussed at a series of countywide meetings. He said he's been informed that the federal government will pay unemployment compensation for the CETA employees when they are laid off after a year, which he anticipates the township will have to do.

To qualify for a job under CETA, a person will have to have been unemployed for 15 days, with priority given to veterans, those ineligible for unemployment compensation and those who have exhausted unemployment benefits.

The vote was 3-2 on applying for another federal grant—one which would pay 50 percent of the cost of land acquisition for a second township park.

Township Park and Recreation Director Tim Doyle asked for authority to apply for the matching grant. The federal government recently has allotted $6 million for land-water conservation, $3 million of which can be used to match local funds.

Glennie said he was not in favor of using general fund money for park purchase at this time, because the township also would have to pay for development, maintenance and policing of the park. He and Treasurer Betty Hallman cast the dissenting votes on the motion.

In action regarding another federal program, the board voted to designate the Clinton River Water Shed Council as its water quality management planning agency under the federal Water Pollution Control Act.

The planning authority, also being sought by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, must be done on a regional basis.

"It seems more logical to follow water sheds rather than governmental boundaries," Vandermark said.

Glennie also noted that the water shed council is less city-oriented than SEMCOG.

Slippin' and a 'slidin', 10-year-old Jim Reppuhn [left] and Corky Durham, 8, make their way home from Clarkston Elementary School through Clarkston Gardens.

Private road residents stuck In governmental mire

BY PAT BRAUNAGEL
of The Clarkston News

Private roads may simply mean seclusion to some people, while to others they're a nightmare of responsibilities the residents never asked for.

"Private road residents are almost like second-class citizens," said Independence Township Supervisor Robert Vandermark.

"There isn't any question in my mind that people who live on them and must use them aren't getting their fair share," and Paul Van Roekel, highway engineer for the Oakland County Road Commission.

Both were talking about a specific kind of private road: those that thread through subdivisions which were platted before the county had control of road building standards.

About a third of the subdivision roads in Independence Township are private.

"Some people want isolation, but when you get into a subdivision with 400 homes, the roads are as public as any road that's designated public," Vandermark said.

In the mid-1930's, when township budgets still were struggling from the effects of the Depression, the State Legislature turned responsibility for local roads over to counties.

"There haven't been any private roads as a practical matter since then," Vandermark said. "Although the county road commission now allows private roads to be constructed, they have to be built to county specifications.

But what about the people who live and use the roads which were laid out before the county imposed certain standards.

It is among these people that life on a private road periodically becomes irritating if not controversial.

Signs. Arguments. Roadblocks. Petitions.

These are typical outlets for frustration over private roads.

Vandermark said he has no way of gauging the frequency of complaints about private roads received at the township hall, because they go to different departments.

"Legally, we're helpless," he said, "but we can sure go to work through the legislature and county commission."

Vandermark is going to attempt to get the Oakland County Association of Supervisors to push for a "more reasonable policy" on the part of the road commission in accepting dedicated roads.

The road commission now will accept roads which have been at least improved if not brought up to county standards.

"This usually involves a charge of $3 a lineal foot for improvement," Van Roekel said.

The other stipulation is that 100 percent of the property owners must turn over deeds for road easements to the county. This is legally necessary, Van Roekel said, to avoid liability for a road which runs across private property.

The later requirement is what Vandermark refers to as the road commission's "Catch 22."

"Some of the owners may live in a foreign country," he said. "There's always someone who is opposed or just isn't interested. They've (the road commission) set up a policy whereby roads can become public, but almost nobody can meet the requirements.

"So now we have to tell people that government agencies, even if given money through special assessments, cannot or will not act. I think it's about time the road commission laid down a set of policies in this area that would give taxpayers some reasonable hope of solving their problems, especially when they're willing to pay for the solution."

Vandermark accused the road commission of drawing a "fine line" when it comes to acquisition of 100 percent of deeds for rights-of-way.

"They have the right to condemn property and take it—they do it all the time," he said. "If the county wants to build a sewer or install water lines, they manage to acquire the rights-of-way. They can do it to acquire private roads."

Both Vandermark and Van Roekel see hope for residents on private roads in a state law which was passed last year permitting circuit court judges to declare roads public.

A complaint can be filed in circuit court by the township, with the written consent of the road commission, if 65 percent of the property owners along the road petition for the action.

The court can declare a road public if it has had public use for 10 years and if public authorities have expended public money on it.

Vandermark said he fears the county road commission will find some way of making this law useless to property owners.

"So far, they've been experts on what can't be done," he said.

In the meantime, Vandermark noted, residents who complain about private roads generally are too late.

"A big part of the problem is that people don't know what it means to buy on a private road. It means they're responsible for snow removal, road grading, storm drainage, repair work, gravelling and oiling or chloriding.

"It's a case of 'Caveat emptor'—Let the buyer beware," he said.

Planning a family affair

COUNTRY LIVING

by Jean Saile

Once you were able to recognize the Al Valentine home in Springfield Township by the Silver Ghost Rolls Royce that sometimes sat in the circular driveway.

Used in at least one Warner Bros. film by Elizabeth Taylor, it was one of a quartet of collector's cars which have now been sold by the owner of Oxford Mining Co.

Al says he plans to buy some more of the old cars one of these days. He's "always been nuts about them," he confides. They'll be housed in the big barn/museum behind his home when that day comes.

The Valentines, Al, his wife Joyce, their children, Sue and George, live on about 14 acres of ground in Springfield Township. Their 16-room colonial style ranch, built in 1969, features front pillars imported from Connecticut.

The stones on the front of the house and used in the family room fireplace wall came from Al's gravel pits.

Because of his mining and excavation business, Al has frequently been involved with building and is, even now, preparing a large-lot subdivision -- lots and homes which are available now -- behind his home.

Quality construction is a source of pride, and the Valentine home reflects that interest.

A pleasant blend of antiques, fine furniture and collector items greets the guest who enters through what is now considered an "immense" front hall.

Warm colors predominate and you know that comfort is a priority once you see the large bay window seats and the huge country kitchen. Each window looks out onto a pleasant view, the house positioned so that the morning sun filters into the kitchen, warming its red mahogany tones while the afternoon rays pick up the golds and yellows used extensively elsewhere.

The country kitchen gives another clue to family endeavors. The Valentines keep an acre-sized garden, and out of it fill three freezers with food.

Al reports he's probably got enough farm equipment for a 1,200-acre farm, but the garden and his tree planting is about all that keeps it busy now.

Three cats and several dogs complete the Valentine menage. Al has hopes of luring some of Clarkston's unwanted ducks out to ponds he's created from meandering Ellis Creek behind his home. Not a hunter or a fisherman, he regularly caters to the wild fowl he finds.

He daily climbs a ladder to place bird seed on an exposed shed roof, situated inside the dog pen. The dogs keep the cats away, and the birds find the living good.

In the home, Joyce and Sue, a nurse, and both of them interested in oil painting, give time to homecrafts and collections. Joyce was making a soft yellow afghan the day we visited.

Sue's collection of "small" bells graces one of the two large china cabinets in the dining room. More shelf space is given to dishes collected by Joyce's mother from the old show giveaways of the 40's and 50's.

A beautiful collection of English china teacups and saucers adds interest to one corner.

In the living room an Italian handcarved coffee table, finished in gold tones, provides the resting place in front of the fireplace for some purple slag ornaments which Sue bought last Christmas for her parents.

The mantle, itself, is of one solid piece of walnut, having been imported from Georgia.

Five bedrooms line the hallway, all sunny, airy, and styled for comfort. Joyce's sewing machine occupies a prominent spot in the master bedroom.

At the rear of the home is Al's oak paneled office, which features pictures of him painted by a buddy when he served during World War II in the South Pacific. The canvas used, according to Al, is a pup tent.

Just outside the office proper is a family room, one wall of which is field stone and centered by a fieldstone fireplace.

"The house just kept getting bigger and bigger," says Sue who drew the floor plans from everyone's idea of what it should include.

Built by Fred Schwanz of Bloomfield Hills, it turned out well enough that Schwanz and Valentine are now partners in the development taking place behind it.

A yellow afghan occupies Mrs. Valentine in the large elegant living room.

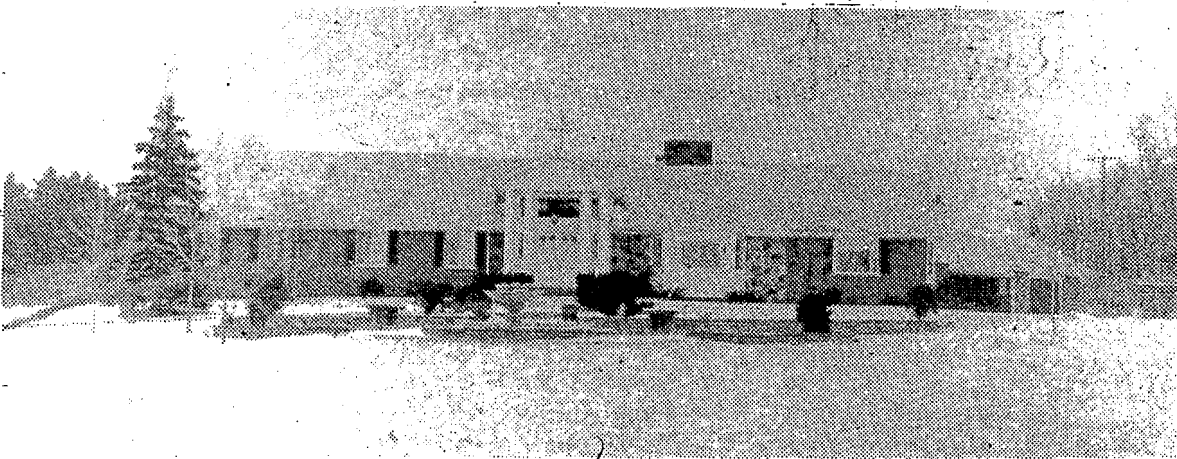

Stones from Oxford Mining Co. gravel pits were used in den fireplace wall.

Sue says the house "just grew" from plans submitted by all family members. Even the kitchen is larger than most.

Want to be a star?

Independence Parks and Recreation Department will sponsor a dramatics workshop taught by Ann Meloche beginning January 29. The class will meet from 8 to 10 p.m. each Wednesday for 10 weeks at Clarkston High School. Subject matter consists of pantomime, dialogue, comedy and play direction. Several one-act plays will be produced.

Do you know how to make a page boy using only a round brush and a blow dryer? It is really quite simple, although you may have to practice to keep your technique at its best. You must begin with hair that is straight. If your hair should have a natural curl or wave to it, you must brush it out straight as it dries. Use the brush to keep your hair taut. When all but the ends are dry, wrap the ends around the brush very tightly, and then blow dry. That is all it takes to have one of the smoothest hairdos in town.

You will have one of the loveliest hair styles in town after a visit to "SALON OF BEAUTY" BONNIE JEAN'S HAIR STYLISTS, 5488 Dixie Highway. We have 7 highly skilled and well trained stylists ready to serve you. ## ME AND MINE

By Pat Sherwood
CREATIVE
THANK YOU

Telling friends you appreciate the gift is compulsory, but those gawdawful thank-you notes aren't. Instead, try one of these: *Enlist the nearest shutterbug to take snapshots of you wearing, hanging, tasting, or somehow enjoying the gift. Send the photo with a brief "it's great!" on the back. *Even if you flunked the Famous Artist's School test, you can draw a stick figure hugging the gift. Add a balloon for the "thank you." *Make a phone call to say thanks—especially long distance. Keep it short and the toll will seem cheap compared to the valuable time spent composing something that says thanks as well as you can, person to person. Remember this never-never: send a thank you of any kind for a gift that was given to you in thanks.

Mrs. Frank Byrne II

Former resident wed

Robyn Lynn Cooper, a former Clarkston resident and student of Clarkston High, and Frank Byrne II exchanged wedding vows at the Providence Full Gospel Tabernacle in Scranton, Pennsylvania, Dec. 28.

Robyn is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Roy O. Cooper of 1822 Church Ave., Scranton. She chose a white organza empire gown fashioned with a waistlength tucked bib appliqued with venise lace. The bodice was enerusted with mini seed pearls. Robyn wore a matching head piece and carried a white orchid surrounded by baby rose buds and lilies of the valley.

Rae Ann Ridgeway of Clarkston, the maid of honor, was attired in a light blue organza gown embroidered with a lace bodice and matching head piece. Lee Ann Mudge, also of Clarkston, served as bridesmaid and was dressed identically to Miss Ridgeway. Carol Jenkins and Nancy Mitchell, both of Pennsylvania, also served as bridesmaids.

The two flower girls were Tracie and Ann Marie Mudge of Clarkston. Elden B. Mudge Jr. of Clarkston was the organist.

The couple will honeymoon in the Pocono Mountains in Eastern Pennsylvania and reside in South Scranton, Pa.

Battle of Bands featured at county park

Springfield-Oaks Park in Davisburg will be the scene of a "Battle of the Bands Concert" February 22. Sponsored by Space Time Productions, the purpose of the program is to promote musical talent in the area.

A top prize of $200 and a second prize of $100 will be awarded, the best of eight bands competing. To be eligible, a band must pay a $10 registration fee.

Should there be more than eight bands apply, Len Howarth of Space Time says a second concert will be held March 29.

Winners will be chosen by popular ballot. Howarth advises only those bands with some professional experience to register.

A series of three indoor rock concerts approved by the county at the park this year were cancelled due to the poor turnout at a late December event.

Need food stamps?

An attempt to eliminate the trek to the Pontiac office of the Oakland County Department of Social Services in order to apply for food stamps is underway.

Members of the Oxford-Orion FISH organization are attempting to learn of the numbers who would participate should a Lake Orion office be opened.

Those who are interested are asked to call 693-4222.

Inman to star, direct "Prisoner"

Russ Inman will direct and star in Clarkston Village Players' March presentation of Neil Simon's "Prisoner of Second Avenue."

Sharing the billing with Inman will be Al Bartlett, Nancy Frady, Marlene Sewick, Jeanelle Jacobson and Sally Inman.

Youth Assistance meet

Clarkston Area Youth Assistance will conduct its annual meeting at 7:30 p.m. January 29 at Episcopal Church of the Resurrection. Bob Brumback, director of Special Services for Clarkston schools, will speak.

CAP needs people

by JoAnn Carlson, phone 625-3370

Help wanted--male or female, age 13-130, part or full time. Former military service helpful.

Must be energetic and possibly interested in airplanes, people, radio communications, jeeps, cross-country hiking, survival camping, college scholarships, aerospace industry, drill competition, medical and evacuation rescue and airborne search missions, parties, picnics, dances, trips abroad with free air fare or other.

If you are a doctor, factory worker, lawyer, truck driver, nurse, pilot, educator, businessman, journalist, clergyman, construction worker, student, librarian, babysitter, newsboy, corporate executive, housewife, secretary or just another human being, then Civil Air Patrol wants you. No pay, fantastic benefits.

These are just a few of the jobs and the occupations of the people who have filled them in the Civil Air Patrol-United States Air Force Auxiliary. CAP flies over 70 percent of all search and rescue missions conducted by the Air Force in the United States.

In addition, CAP maintains a nationwide communications network, performs emergency service duties in the event of natural or man-made disasters, and conducts an aerospace education program for its cadets and senior members and interested groups.

For more information, call in Oakland County, 625-4200 after business hours. For statewide referral, call (313) 465-1241, Ext. 6127 during regular business hours. CAP in Clarkston meets every Wednesday night from 7 to 9 in the Clarkston Senior High School cafeteria.

The Multi-Lakes Chapter of the American Business Women's Association held their monthly meeting January 15 at the Pied Piper Restaurant.

James H. Hoke, Director of the Clinical Hypnosis Center, Inc. of Southfield spoke on clinical hypnosis.

Gerard T. Donnelly, 5426 Guyette, is one of nine Oakland University students to receive grants of up to $150 each for undergraduate research projects.

Donnelly won $150 for his research on "The Effects of Ultra-Violet Irradiation on Brassica napus at Zero Degrees Centigrade."

The awards were made competitively by the University Research Committee from funds contributed by the OU Alumni Association.

Each student researcher is sponsored by a faculty advisor from his or her major discipline.

Ralph Easley of Warren, father of Clark Easley of Independence Township, was feted by 35 relatives and friends Sunday in honor of his 90th birthday. A buffet dinner was served at Spring Lake Country Club. Present besides Clark and his wife was another daughter, Lola Evans of Warren. Another daughter, Mrs. Ed Collick of Florida, was unable to attend.

Represented among the guests were some of the eight grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. W.C. Robertson, 6042 Sunnydale, returned last week from a week's vacation in Honolulu.

Temperatures were in the 80's, but Mrs. Robertson said they were too busy doing other things, so they didn't come back with suntans.

The couple visited Waikiki Beach and made a side trip to Pearl Harbor. Mrs. Robertson said they enjoyed the tour of the island the best.

The Robertsons stayed at the Sheraton Hotel.

Members of the Clarkston Community Women's Club will hear a talk on diamonds and gems January 23 at 8 p.m. at independence center.

A representative from Charterhouse and Company of Troy will give the talk.

Guests are welcome and refreshments will be served.

The Nature Center Organic Club will have its monthly meeting on January 29 at the Drayton Plains Nature Center at 7:30 p.m.

Dean Granzow will speak about organic fertilizers and how to use them. New members are welcome.

A trip to Florida last week started out on a sour note for Harry and Donna Fahrner, Robertson Court, but ended on a pleasant one.

Inclement weather forced the Fahrners and Mrs. Helen Fahrner Harry's mother, to spend all day and all night Sunday in a motel in Antioch, Tennessee.

"Two inches of snow and they closed down everything and put up traveler's warnings," Mrs. Fahrner said.

When the trio finally arrived in Fort Meyers, Florida, it was 42 degrees with frost warnings.

Fortunately the weather got steadily warmer with temperatures climbing to a high of 80 degrees the day the Fahrners left for home.

Mrs. Fahrner said they enjoyed eating every type of sea food, and even ran into their neighbors, Bob and Uldene Jones, at a restaurant.

The couple also went to the dog races where Mrs. Fahrner lost a dollar.

The whole trip was made possible by the generosity of Jack and Char Frost, Cramlane, who kept the Fahrners three children for the whole week.

Brownies and Girl Scouts and their fathers will square dance to the calling of Bob Long January 30 at Independence Township Hall. Brownies and their dads will dance from 7 to 8 p.m. and Juniors and Cadets from 8 to 9 p.m.

A Campbell soup label collection at Andersonville Elementary School netted a carousel projector for the school. The teacher in charge of the drive was Sherril Bailey.

Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission will host the first in a series of monthly square dances from 8 to 11 p.m. Saturday, January 25 at Waterford-Oaks Activities Center, 2800 Watkins Lake Road. Wayne Ball and Chuck Becker will call. Admission is $3 per couple.

Members of the Oakland County Sportsman's Club will honor their ladies at a Valentine dinner dance February 15. Cocktails are at 6:30 p.m. to be followed by dinner and a magic act by Bob Downey. Tickets are $12 per couple.

Katie King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al King of Chickadee, Clarkston's Junior Miss, has been informed she is a semi-finalist in the Breck Hair Styling competition for the State Junior Miss Pageant which will be this weekend in Pontiac.

Katie qualified as a semi-finalist by devising and wearing her own original hair style, which she called the "Katydid." Should she win the competition, she'd pick up another scholarship in addition to the one she already has to Oakland University.

The final pageant is 8 p.m. Saturday at Pontiac Northern.

Early settler a colorful woman

Clarkston kaleidoscope

By Jennifer Radcliff
625-8181

A few years ago, four to be exact, Eva Esther Walter Newlands, died, and left her neighbors with memories of an independent and colorful woman.

Esther Walter (who thoroughly disliked the "Eva" in her name, but that is another story) was a daughter of Harrison Walter. When he died, Esther, who had a very good head for business, took over the management of her father's orchard. The orchard was located near Little Walters Lake, and the family home stood where the Gulf Oil Station is now.

Esther knew what it took to manage an orchard, and one thing it took in great amounts was hard work. In her view, overalls were perfect garb for anyone—man or woman—doing work of picking and processing fruit.

It did not bother her that not another woman she knew wore trousers, or that overalls were not considered "proper" for a lady to wear. To Esther, they were comfortable and sturdy, and she liked them.

Well, that orchard produced lovely apples, but one year there was no market for apples; growers were able to get no more than one dollar a bushel for their crop.

Esther decided she would give hers away, but customers would have to pick their own. One day a beautifully coiffured, elegant-looking dowager arrived in a chauffeur-driven car.

"Put a bushel in the trunk, please," she instructed Esther.

"Sorry, you will have to pick your own," she heard.

"And just what do you have to do with it?"

"Well, I just happen to own it, that's all" was Esther's answer. History does not record any further conversation.

On the Walter Farm was a small cottage, built as a place for Esther to give parties. She enjoyed cooking and entertaining, and this was the place she could do both.

One summer a handsome young man named David Newlands arrived from Buffalo, New York, with a friend. They were in Clarkston to do some fishing in and around the area.

David and Esther met, and she fried a lot of fish that summer. She won him through his stomach!

Esther was older than David, and sensitive about it. One thing she absolutely refused to talk about was her age, and David's. No matter how clever or oblique the inquiry, even when reminiscing about some family events, she would never allow herself to be caught.

Right until the end, she maintained her privacy. According to her tombstone she was never born—she only died. Nor was David ever born; he too only died. No birthdates, thank you!

And even her friend Mrs. Elizabeth Lambert of Main, who recounted most of these anecdotes about an early Clarkston resident, does not know the missing date.

Do you have anything to add to this story, or would you care to contribute a character sketch of another pioneer? If so, let me hear from you.

Spiritual Message

"Then Nathan said to David, You are the man."—2 Samuel 12:7

AN ADVISOR WHO DARED TO EXPOSE CORRUPTION IN HIGH PLACES

Nobody wants to point out his boss' mistakes to his face. He may very easily lose his job. When his boss is a king, he may lose his head.

But there was a king's adviser who had the courage to tell his king that he had violated the law he had taken an oath to uphold.

David had an affair with Bathsheba, the wife of Uriah. Uriah was one of David's soldiers. Bathsheba became pregnant. Then King David arranged to have Uriah killed in battle so that he could marry Bathsheba.

Nathan, one of David's trusted advisers heard what had happened. He knew that it was up to him to tell the king that he was not above the law.

So he made up a case and pretended to seek David's judgment in the matter. The case involved two men, one a wealthy owner of many sheep and the other, a poor man who had only one lamb which he held on to like an only child. The rich man had a guest and wanted to throw a party. Instead of killing one of his many sheep, he butchered the one lamb of his poor defenseless neighbor. When David heard this, he flared up in anger: "As the Lord lives, the man who did this deserves to die! He shall pay for the lamb four times over, because he has done this and shown no pity." Then Nathan said to David, "You are the man." 2 Samuel 12: 6-7. He pointed out how King David had broken God's law by committing adultery and murder. David admitted his crime and repented.

Nathan was an adviser who refused to be a "yes man." When he saw corruption in high places, he was not afraid of a face-to-face confrontation, even at the risk of his life. To give a correction when deserving is a better sign of loyalty than to support by silence, a course of action known to be wrong.

DARE TO BE LIKE NATHAN.

Parental objections to discipline approach

by James and Ellen Windell

Psychological staff members of the Oakland County Juvenile Court and Clinical Resources, Incorporated

Most if not all parents are desirous of encouraging the development of healthy and effective ways of behaving in children.

However, not all parents are aware of the impact their child-rearing methods have on their children. Many parents, sincere in their desire to be an effective parent, quite unintentionally promote child behavior patterns that are neither effective nor healthy.

An approach to modifying much unhealthy or undesirable behavior that is becoming more and more fashionable is one which focuses on behavior rather than the underlying psychological causes of that behavior. This approach, called behavior modification, involves rewarding a child for desired behavior while ignoring or punishing undesirable actions.

Many parents, however, raise strong arguments about adopting this approach. A frequently heard objection is, "Why should we give him a reward for doing something that he is supposed to do?"

It seems that parents who voice this criticism of the behavior modification approach tend to set high standards for themselves and their children, are unnecessarily rigid, and may have difficulty showing warm, uncritical feelings. Giving rewards, like the giving of feelings, to such a parent, may be difficult.

Another common objection is, "If we give her something for doing what we want, she won't ever do anything unless she is paid off".

In effect, parents who use this argument fear blackmail and the loss of some power and control.

Children are not born with a feeling of internal satisfaction for doing what their parents want them to do. They learn to perform desirable behavior.

As a young child, you learn to act in certain ways because you received some kind of emotional reward from your parents. Children, as well as adults, continue only rewarded behaviors and this is true for both good and bad behavior. It is important for a parent to stop "rewarding" undesirable behaviors and to pay more attention, perhaps by giving tangible pay offs, to the behaviors they want to see more often.

A parent who was subjected to harshness at the hands of his father said, "I didn't have to be given something when I was a kid. If I didn't do what I was told, I got the back of my dad's hand". The conclusion seems to be, therefore, that the harshness that was good enough for him will be good enough for his child.

The upshot of all objections to changing former child-rearing methods to use a behavioral or even some other technique is that the parent is resisting seeing the child make improvement. Either this is because the parent doesn't feel right doing something different or the parents need a child to act up. Sometimes a family needs a convenient scapegoat or a handy person on whom anger can be vented.

Television is teaching tool

By Pat Braunagel

Not only can kids watch television, they can make television shows and—here's the best part—learn from doing both.

Teachers at Pine Knob Elementary School have been finding out that video tapes can work wonders in lengthening the attention spans of their pupils and in making audio-visual materials available to more classrooms over a longer period of time.

However, another important aspect of the taping equipment is that it can be used by the youngsters to make their own programs to be shown on television sets at the school.

Some tapes made this year were shown at a recent PTA meeting to an appreciative audience.

"The parents seemed especially interested in seeing what the teachers were doing," said teacher

Michael Donovan, referring to some candid classroom shots he had taken.

Donovan, who coordinates use of the video tape equipment at the school, also is one of its most enthusiastic proponents.

"It's the greatest thing," he said. "The kids can play something back instantly and, if they don't like it, can do it again."

The machinery, according to Donovan, is not complicated.

"It's actually foolproof," he said.

An example of a program prepared by his sixth grade students is "Franklin and the King," a presentation about Benjamin Franklin.

"Everyone in the classroom has a job," Donovan said. "There's sound, video, art work and graphics to be done. A script has to be written. Then we need players for the roles and a narrator."

"We have to do a lot of research to produce a program. Everyone gets involved and excited. In the process, they're learning. It's something they're interested in because they did it themselves."

A program can be live in one room and monitored into another. Lessons, then, are on the pupils' level "because they're produced by other sixth and fifth graders."

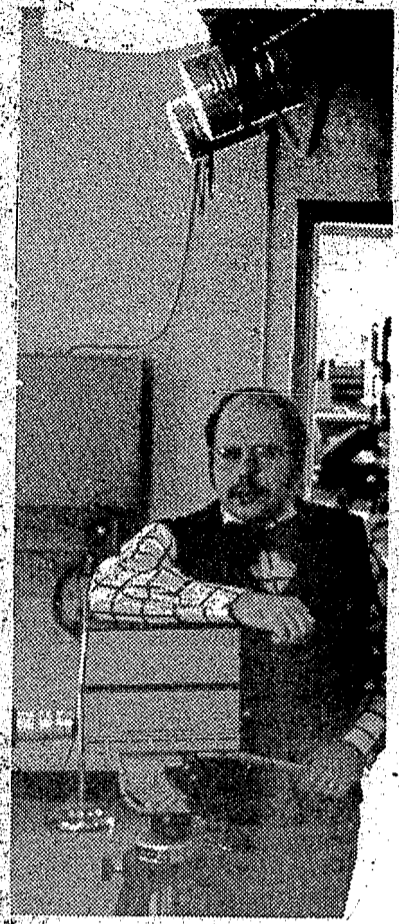

Principal David Westlund noted that the video taping camera generally is used once or twice every day.

As an example of one more use of the equipment, Westlund said pupils can see themselves giving reports, see where their mistakes are made and gain self-confidence.

The Pine Knob staff is attempting to build a video tape library of at least one or two Todd Hensley [left] and Craig Schnabel demonstrate an air of expertise regarding the parts they play in producing a video tape for use at Pine Knob Elementary School. Both sixth graders, they're a couple of "old pros" when it comes to getting a show ready for airing.

Michael Donovan is one teacher enthusiastically expanding the use of video tapes in his classroom. He's also improvising a "studio" at the school, for which he made spotlights out of tin cans.

The first three television sets were purchased for the school by the PTA about four year ago, he said. The school bought the video tape decks and conversion units to allow shows to be taped for later viewing. Then a black-and-white camera was acquired.

A color monitor was purchased by the PTA this year, but there will be no color camera, said Westlund, noting they cost about $11,000.

The other equipment is relatively inexpensive, as is the cost of its operation.

A half-hour tape costs about $17 and can be used some 100 times, Donovan said.

With the price of education films rising, the figure looks more and more attractive.

This old church . . .

Five generations of Clarkstonites paid their respects to God within these walls during the last century. Touched by the hands of time, the simple structure is a collector's item from an earlier era. Now for sale, the church is an object of concern to the Clarkston Area Historical Society which would like to see it preserved for community use.
