Forum cancelled, teachers get info on CCCOE plan

The public won't have an opportunity to ask questions and get a better definition of "education alternatives" as proposed by the Clarkston Community Child Oriented Committee (CCCOE).

Members of the committee, meeting with representatives of the administration, the school board and the curriculum committee which is composed largely of teachers, came to that decision last Wednesday as they reviewed results of a recent survey taken among elementary school students.

While approximately 1,200 did not respond, a total of 689 parents expressed interest in a flexible classroom situation, 947 said no, and 72 indicated they didn't understand. Only 234 of those parents responding said they would help.

There were no teachers surveyed who said they are ready to start such a program, however 38 indicated they would like to learn more while 73 said they wouldn't be interested.

"Our main concern now is to get more information to the 38 who want to learn more," said School Board Trustee Robert Walters.

"I initiated the idea of a public forum and I think all those meeting Wednesday agreed that the motion I made at the board meeting in regard to the forum was not supported by the survey results received," he explained.

"A number of teachers are already planning to observe educational alternative classrooms in other districts, and the school is prepared to let them have professional leave days for that purpose," Walters added.

He said that at least one teacher at Wednesday's meeting had expressed concern that it be made very clear that teachers would still have the initiative in an alternative education classroom and that skills such as reading, writing and arithmetic would still come first.

The curriculum committee will present its findings during a meeting at 4 p.m. April 7 at board offices, those findings to be presented to the Board of Education at its 8 p.m. April 14 meeting.

The board recently empowered the curriculum committee to investigate interest in alternative education programs as proposed by the CCCOE.

Suspect nabbed fleeing Boucard holdup

Alert police officers are credited with the apprehension of DeWayne Daniel Weaver, 28, of Keego Harbor, Saturday night within minutes after he'd held up the Boucard Party Shoppe, 6450 Dixie Highway.

The suspect is also believed responsible for an earlier Waterford Township robbery the same evening.

An undetermined amount of money was taken in the 10:10 p.m. holdup, and the owner of the store, Mrs. Betty M. Boucard, was treated at Pontiac General Hospital for the effects of an unprovoked pistol blow on her head, Sheriff's spokesmen said.

Her husband, Maurice, had been killed at the store 10 years ago under similar circumstances.

The Sheriff's Department reports Deputy James Snover, riding with Edward Obara, a law enforcement student from Alpena Junior College on assignment with the county for a week, was northbound on the Dixie Highway when Obara told Snover he'd noticed "something funny" at the party store.

He said he'd seen a man entering the store who was pulling a hat down over his eyes and had his hand in his jacket pocket. Snover U-turned at the Payless Gas Station, and as they pulled into the party shop parking lot they saw a man running north towards Robert Hall and the Palace Restaurant.

Mrs. Boucard staggered from the front of the store, and Snover left Obara there to take care of her while he followed the suspect. By radio, he asked for backup assistance.

Just at that time, according to Lt. Carl Metheny of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, two policemen from Brandon Township were pulling into the Palace for coffee and heard Snover's broadcast.

Officers William Kay, a former county deputy, and David Nowicki saw the suspect running toward them. Kay jumped out of the car and ordered the man to halt. He reported later the suspect pulled a gun on him and told him he was "a dead man."

Kay told the suspect to "cool it." Nowicki crouched behind the patrol car, drew his weapon and told the suspect to drop the gun.

Again the suspect reportedly threatened to shoot Kay, but looked toward Nowicki -- giving Kay time enough to grab his gun hand. They wrestled to the ground, and the gun discharged during the struggle, but no one was hurt.

Snover and Nowicki came to Kay's assistance, and subdued Weaver. They found another gun in Weaver's belt, Metheny said, and determined later that the gun he had been using was one he had taken from Mrs. Boucard.

Mrs. Boucard told The Clarkston News she kept the gun behind the cash register, and when Weaver entered showing his own gun she did not dispute him. He hit her, she said, when she told him he'd dropped some of the money he'd taken from the register.

"I knew my gun was loaded and figured his was," she said. "I just dropped to the floor."

"The man was awfully cool, very soft talking. I can't remember him ever being in the store before," she added.

The store is normally open until midnight on Friday and Saturday

Weaver, arraigned Monday in Clarkston District Court on charges of armed robbery and assault with intent to murder, was remanded to Oakland County Jail, unable to post bonds of $50,000 set for each charge. He will face preliminary examination in district court at 1:30 p.m. March 3.

Debt collection cases increase

Where once Clarkston District Court initiated 65 debt collection cases a month, the figure in the last couple of months has jumped to 85, according to Jill Palulian, office staff coordinator.

And that's not including the cases arising in Pontiac and White Lake townships that used to be processed through the Clarkston court before the recent addition of two new district judges in Oakland County's 52nd district.

Landlord-tenant cases have remained about the same, Mrs. Palulian said, but that, too, shows an increase because of the drop of the areas previously served.

Mrs. Palulian attributes the increased case load to out-of-work debtors, and says the court usually advises the person cited to contact the claimant's attorney.

"They're usually able to work something out -- a weekly system of payments -- but there are some cases where the attorneys refuse to accept what the debtor feels he can afford, and then the case is processed through the court," she explained.

"When a debtor does come before the court, he must be prepared to present substantiated evidence of all income and debts, and then we attempt to work something out from there," she added.

District Judge Gerald McNally notes, "We're not overwhelmed yet, but the cases are increasing. Our civil division is as busy as it has ever been."

Village businessmen back Nickelodeon

The newly formed Business Association of Clarkston has failed to agree on whether or not the District Court should remain within the village confines, but it has voted in favor of Independence Township rezoning for the Nickelodeon on North M-15.

Some 20 members were present Thursday night at the Old Village Inn Coffee House to air concerns over lack of parking in the downtown area.

"The problem is worse than ever in the last six months to nine months," said Jim Stiles of Clarkston Shoe Service.

Members noted increasing use of village owned land south of Depot Road and West of Main Street, and the congestion in the village parking lot at Main and Washington. They also cited merchants who still use available street parking spots.

Councilman Jim Schultz, a part owner of Main Street Antiques, said he felt location of the district court in the area would only complicate matters. "Only the restaurants stand to benefit," he said. "What we need is retail shops," he added.

"One of the goals of the business organization," said President Joe Gulash, "should be to protect as much of the aesthetic value of the town as we can."

Agreeing with Gulash was Joan Kopietz of Tierra Arts and Design. "We have to get a positive focus for Clarkston. Stores should unite on the hours they are open. We should create the kind of atmosphere that people will want to come to Clarkston to shop."

"First we should pull together as a group, and then start a promotional program," Gulash agreed.

Present for the meeting was Ed Krause, owner of the Nickelodeon who cited his problems in obtaining rezoning for his growing business. Members voted to send a letter to the Independence Township Board in his behalf.

Board gains from "retreat"

Clarkston Board of Education has just returned from its first "retreat" ever with administration members and school principals.

Meetings Friday and Saturday were conducted at Bay Valley Inn, north of Saginaw, and were termed "very good" by Board Chairman David Leak.

Prime purpose of the meetings, which lasted all Friday afternoon and evening and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday was to give board members a chance to express their concerns and to exchange ideas with other board and administrative representatives.

"We had heard of other boards who do this as often as twice a year," Leak reported. "Quite frankly, I hope we'll do it once or twice a year," he said.

While bills for the conference have not yet been received, estimates of the cost vary from $600 to $800.

Several board members and administrative spokesmen said they considered the money well spent if the district is to iron out its problems.

"It was a way of having time to have the administration and the board express ideas in detail and to allow a free exchange of information and thoughts," Leak said.

Village votes to lease land for court

by Jean Saile
of The Clarkston News

Clarkston Village Council has voted to lease to the non-profit Economic Development Corporation (EDC) 12,000 square feet of land off Depot Road for the purpose of building a 4,500 square foot district court and providing parking spaces for 25 cars.

The court building plan calls for 300 feet to be allocated to village offices, with the council and other official village bodies permitted to meet in the court room.

Action followed dual meetings of the Clarkston Planning Commission and the Village Council on Monday night.

The planning group recommendations, later approved by the council, called for development to take place on the east side of the stream which flows south of Depot Road between Main and Holcomb. The planning vote was 6-2, Nancy Prucher and Carlos Hansen opposed.

A layout depicting "what we can do", presented by Department of Public Works director Gar Wilson, showed 62,000 square feet available east of the stream. He said parking for 100 cars, including the 25 for the court plus additional for shoppers behind the stores on Main Street could be included, but any space over 25 would have to be done at village expense.

His layout also depicted the possibility of constructing a 20 foot high DPW garage at the rear of the parking lot. Green belts to break the parking area and to shield it from the street were also included.

He said the land west of the stream could be retained as a lot.

An alternative plan, rejected by the commission and not presented to the council, called for a DPW garage east of the stream with the court to the west.

The village council acted on the planning commission recommendations and the leasing of the property by a 4-2 vote. Acting president Mrs. Ruth Basinger and James Schultz were opposed. President Keith Hallman was absent.

Whether or not the court would be good for village business and whether or not it would complicate already present parking and traffic problems were cited by objectors, both at the council and planning commission level.

Henry Woolfenden of the planning commission determined that the land would not need to be rezoned for district court use. He said the ordinance governing the recreational zoning provides for municipal buildings to be erected thereon. He said EDC, since it has been approved and its members appointed by the council, is an arm of village government, and therefore any such building would be considered municipal in nature.

A public hearing will have to be conducted, however, before the EDC can proceed with court plans.

"We won't know whether or not a public hearing will be required until we see if we get the county bid," said Gray Graham, a developer active with EDC.

Woolfenden explained that when EDC submitted its bid to the county earlier this month to construct a new facility for the Clarkston District Court, the EDC was in fact not yet in existence.

The bid, he said, was accompanied by a letter noting that fact and saying that were the EDC formally approved, which it was March 13, the bid would be as submitted.

"Everything was done on top of the table," Woolfenden said.

Now the EDC awaits a ruling by the county corporation counsel if the bid is legal. The council is due to report to the Oakland County Board of Commissioners Planning and Zoning Committee at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, and it is possible, Woolfenden added, that the bid might be awarded to the lowest bidder or that all four bids which were submitted might be rejected.

Clarkston District Court has until summer to move from its present facility in the Independence Township Annex on North Main Street. Quarters are crowded and the township wants the space. The property has been leased from the township by the county.

None of us is too old to remember that the first days of spring bring out the early rope-skippers, like these girls during a Clarkston Elementary School recess. But how many of us are young enough to recall some of the chants that go with the skips?

Court bid in doubt

County Civil Counsel Robert Allen has been asked to determine whether Clarkston Economic Development Corporation's bid to build a district court was in fact a legal bid.

The decision to obtain legal opinion was made Thursday by the Planning and Building Committee of the Oakland County Board of Commissioners upon request of the three other bidders. The opinion is to be presented at another committee meeting at 1:30 p.m. next Thursday in the Courthouse.

The original bid in which the non-profit EDC proposed to build a 4,336 square foot court house on land the village owns off Depot Road was signed at a time the EDC was not officially in existence, the other three bidders charged. The EDC would have charged the county $6.78 per square foot for a yearly rental of $29,400.

It was only after a special public hearing March 13 that the corporation obtained legal sanction from Clarkston Village Council, other bidders maintain.

On that basis, Dale E. Millward of 6769 Cranberry Lake Road, MTB Company of 11400 Clark Road, Davisburg, and Warren R. Newsted of 5873 Dixie Highway, Waterford, want the EDC bid thrown out of contention.

Millward has promised to build a 4,100 square foot building at M-15 and Cranberry Lake Road. He would charge the county $6.59 per square foot for a yearly cost of $27,000.

MTB would construct at Deer Lake Road and Dixie Highway, providing 3,787 square feet at $7.52 each or a yearly cost of $28,488.

Newsted would build at 4782 Sashabaw Road, providing 5,000 square feet at a cost of $6 each or $30,000 per year.

Meantime District Court Judge Gerald McNally has come out with a recommendation that the court remain in Clarkston for its availability to post office, bank and restaurants.

The Business Association of Independence Township has sent a letter questioning the legality of the bid, and there have been other letters received at the county in regard to the matter.

Spg. to review zoning statute

It was an empty agenda that Springfield Township Planning Commission considered last week, but April 15 is a public hearing on the text changes in the township zoning ordinance. The ordinance includes limitations on non-accessory signs, including For Sale signs, etc., to six square feet.

On April 24 Springfield representatives will meet with officials from Independence Township and the Oakland County Road Commission to discuss name changes of roads that cross township boundaries. Ellis Road name changes for its various portions are to be one of the topics.

Historical project denied funding

A proposed $2,000 contribution to the Springfield Historical Society has been stricken from Oakland County's application for federal funds under the Housing and Community Development Act.

County authorities have determined that the donation would not qualify under provisions of the act, according to Harold Martin, Oakland County housing and real estate coordinator.

Therefore, county administrators reworked the $9,000 grant application from Springfield before sending in the $875,000 application for the whole county.

Martin said the county's application was expected to be filed sometime this week, at least three weeks after the deadline.

The Springfield Township Board had planned to contribute $2,000 of its anticipated grant to the historical society to assist in the improvement and preservation of historical structures, according to Springfield Supervisor Donald Rogers.

County administrators of the program reassigned the $2,000, earmarking $1,100 for Mill Pond park improvements and $900 for a contingency fund.

That will take up to $5,100 the amount designated for park improvement, equipment purchase and building rehabilitation.

If the township receives the grant, $2,000 will be used for construction of road crossing drains and ditch improvement on Big Lake Road and North Bay Drive. Also included in the application are $500 for planning and development and $500 for administration.

Independence Township's $33,500 grant would be used to cover the cost of constructing a road in the new township park, including $2,500 for contingencies.

Man charged in 2 holdups

A 47-year-old Flint man has been charged with robbing the Four Seasons Inn near Clarkston and the Wildwood Inn near Ortonville a week later.

Leo O. Brake, also accused of shooting the owner of the Wildwood Inn, was held in the Oakland County Jail in lieu of $105,000 in bonds pending preliminary examination scheduled for today.

Brake was to appear before Clarkston District Judge Gerald McNally, who last week had set the bond at $35,000 on each of three charges against the suspect.

The owner of the Wildwood Inn, John Hoffman, 46, of 773 Tanview, Oxford, was released from St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac after being treated for neck wounds. He was shot with a shotgun while attempting to foil a robbery at the bar March 18.

Brake is charged with armed robbery, assault with the intent to murder and assault with the intent to rob while armed.

The first charge stems from a March 3 holdup of the Four Seasons Inn at 10197 Dixie Highway, Springfield Township, in which the robber netted $241 from the cash register.

The man who held up the Wildwood Inn at 1000 Bird Road shortly after midnight March 18, fled with no money after shooting Hoffman, according to police.

Brake was arrested that night after a stake-out of a Brandon Township home by Oakland County Sheriff's deputies.

We Americans sure do love our comfort.

And why shouldn't we?

We work hard to put bread on the table. And a little extra in the bank. So we can afford comfortable homes, comfortable clothing, comfortable cars. We don't see anything wrong with that at all.

Fact is, out here in Oakland County, where a car is more of a home away from home, the most popular cars are still full-size—like our Caprices, Impalas, and Chevelles. And we maintain, energy shortage or not, they're still the best and safest value-per-mile you can find on wheels.

Something else. The difference in gas mileage between a smooth, well-tuned Chevy V-8 and a smaller car is surprisingly little when it's driven with care... when the air conditioning (if you've got it) is used only when needed... when the plugs and air filter are kept clean.

So, why don't you come in and chat. We'll show you why you don't have to give up the comforts of home. Even when you're out on the road.

Pay raises granted 3 in village

Clarkston Village president, clerk and treasurer have received raises for the new year, but trustees will be paid at the old $20 per meeting rate.

A recommendation that trustees also be paid for special meetings (they had three last year) was eliminated from the motion when it was determined that Michigan laws provide that payment be made for regular meetings only.

The village's total salary package last year was $2,970 for 22 meetings.

The president, who earned $30 a meeting last year, will receive $35 this year. The clerk, who last year was paid $2,000, will be paid $2,400 this year, and the treasurer was also increased $400 to $1,600 annually. The assessor's position was retained at its $300 per year level.

The increase for the president was nearly defeated. Mrs. Ruth Basinger, acting president in Keith Hallman's absence Monday, said that while she believed work had increased for the clerk and treasurer, that in view of unemployment all other raises should be foregone.

A second vote, based on recommendations of the budget committee composed of Kathy McCall and Neil Granlund, included the president's increase in the pay packet. Proponents noted that his work has also increased considerably in the last year.

The second vote passed 4 to 1 with Mrs. Basinger abstaining. James Schultz was opposed.

Landfill plan to be considered

The latest Oakland County waste disposal plan will be discussed Monday, March 31 at a meeting of the public works committee of the county board of commissioners.

The session is scheduled for 10 a.m. at the Oakland County Department of Public Works headquarters at 1 Public Works Drive, Pontiac.

'Clintonwood' winner

"Clintonwood" has been selected as the name for the new Independence Township park.

Ralph O'Reilly coupled the name with "Clintonwood Trail" for the designation of the road in the park to win a $25 savings bond.

Supervisor J. Edwin Glennie said he would recommend that the names be accepted at the April 1 township board meeting.

Several hundred entries were submitted in the name-the-park contest, open to all residents of Independence Township and the Clarkston School District.

O'Reilly lives at 9910 Davisburg Road, Springfield Township, within the school district.

The 36-acre park is on the north side of Clarkston-Orion Road just north of I-75. Much of the park parcel along the Clinton River is to remain undeveloped, being left for nature trails.

However, the site also will include picnic areas, ball fields, tennis courts and a tot lot.

Judges for the name-the-park contest were Assistant Clarkston Schools Supt. Milford Mason, Oakland County Pioneer and Historical Society administrative coordinator Connie Lektzian and Clarkston News assistant editor Pat Braunagel.

Retreat for understanding

We know there'll be conversation regarding the recent Board of Education "retreat" with members of administration and the school principals. The cost will probably be the item that raises eyebrows, but for what it's worth, we believe it was money well spent if greater understanding and trust is the result. It may be a funny world where neighbors have to get off together if they're going to understand how each other thinks, but it seems to be a fact of life in these times of constant pressure and hurry.

The retreat was initiated by the board, your elected representatives, and they undertook it with what we believe to be the best interests of the community at heart.

We'll await the results with some interest.

Truth then-truth now

About 200 years ago, Professor Alexander Tytler wrote about the fall of the Athenian Republic. The truth of his words ring out today as we find ourselves in the center of the cycle that takes a democracy from freedom to bondage. Here are his words.

"A democracy cannot exist as a permanent form of government. It can only exist until the voters discover that they can vote themselves largesse from the public treasury.

"From that moment on, the majority always votes, for the candidates promising the most benefits from the public treasury, with the results that a democracy always collapses over loose fiscal policy, always followed by a dictatorship.

"The average age of the world's great civilizations has been 200 years. These nations have progressed through this sequence; from bondage to spiritual faith; from spiritual faith to great courage; from courage to liberty; from liberty to abundance; from abundance to selfishness; from selfishness to complacency; from complacency to apathy; from apathy to dependency; from dependency back again into bondage."

Know mini-bike rules!

With the advent of spring, Independence Township Police Services Director Jack McCall is reminding parents of the laws governing their children's use of motorcycles.

Michigan law provides that motorcycle drivers must have a driver's license with special endorsement if they wish to operate on the streets and highways. All motorcycles used on streets must be registered and have valid license plates.

Mini-bikes cannot be driven on Michigan streets unless:

- They are licensed.
- They are equipped and insured for the road.
- The driver must wear a helmet.
- They must be driven by a validly licensed driver at least 15 years old.
- Passengers may never be carried on motor-driven cycles, even if there is extra seat space.

The definition of a motor-driven cycle, McCall points out, is one of less than five gross brake horsepower or with an engine of less than 125 cubic centimeter displacement.

The state also provides that youngsters under 15 may not operate mini-bikes on the streets, highways or other property such as recreation areas and school property, he emphasized.

Under township law, no person shall operate a motorcycle on private property unless permission is requested and obtained from the owner of the property. This does not apply, McCall said, only when the operator is a member of the immediate family of the owner of the property, or when the cyclist is accompanied by the owner of the land.

Permission to do so shall be in writing and in possession of the cyclist.

Singing in the shower

by Jim Fitzgerald

[Jim Fitzgerald is still vacationing. This column is repeated from 12 years ago for readers who say they miss reading about the Red-Haired Monster.]

There's new excitement at my house. The bathroom door has no knob. On either side.

When you're inside, you can never be sure when you'll get out. If ever.

When you're outside, you can never be sure when you'll get in. If ever.

We have only the one bathroom for 5 of us. You'd be excited, too.

It made entertaining over the holidays awkward indeed. It is bad enough when a member of the family can't get in or out. But it's positively humiliating to guide a guest to the bathroom and caution him not to shut the door behind him.

My Dad visited us Christmas and became so disgusted with the situation he grabbed my wife's screw driver and said he was going to fix the blasted door.

The first thing he had to do, of course, was find the door knobs. They were originally removed, naturally, by Eddie the Red-haired Monster. When Pat housecleans she usually finds the knobs and sticks them loosely into the door. But Eddie just as quickly removes them again and rolls them under the couch or behind the furnace or some other lovely spot.

After the first few days I quit yelling about this knob stealing because it's actually better when the knobs are not in the door. They don't work anyway, but their presence can be misleading.

Seeing the knobs, an occupant who should know better can forget and slam the door behind him. Then, when it is time to leave, he grabs the knob, it comes off in his hand, and he falls into the bath tub. My back is still sore.

When this happens all the occupant can do is scream for help.

If no one else is home, he can just sit and wait. Last week I lost 3 pounds waiting. I know because, to help pass the time, I weighed myself every five minutes.

Help is necessary because the door must be pushed open from the outside. Unless the poor, trapped soul has fingernails long enough to get a grip on the bottom of the door and pull. I began biting my nails when I got married and have a tough time gripping a grape.

Anyway, to get back to my unhappy father, he is a graduate engineer, and he attacked the door knob problem with great confidence. But he couldn't fix it. No one can fix it.

These are fancy knobs. One fits into the other and they are supposed to lock together. But they don't. I have gazed at them for hours and I don't know why they don't. There is no evidence of a loose or missing screw. There are no broken ends. Everything seems to be in place. But the lousy knobs won't work.

I feel like a fool calling a carpenter to fix a door knob. I'm still blushing about the last time I hired the TV repairman. All he did was plug in the aerial and shake his head sadly. He certainly hated to charge me for doing so little. But he did.

I usually hide in the bedroom when repairmen come to the house. I've instructed my wife to tell them she is a widow. Nothing makes me feel more useless than to stand by with my thumb in my ear while some bird tightens a screw and, in 2 minutes, proves how smart he is and how dumb I am.

So I'll be damned if I'll call a carpenter for one lousy door knob. I am going to wait until I have a bigger job for him. A splintered bathroom door should justify a carpenter and it is bound to be splintered some time when I tire of weighing myself.

In the meantime, there'll be considerable singing from behind our not-quite-closed bathroom door.

Garden glory

by Jean Saile

The seed catalogs have been showing up on the coffee table since Christmas time, courtesy of Grandma and Grandpa who are on the mailing lists of everyone from here to South Dakota.

They're pushovers for growing things, and about this time of year—when the sun first begins turning warm and the breezes are balmy than they are frigid—even I begin to get interested.

The big project this year is conversion of what was the pool yard to an old fashioned English-type flower and vegetable garden.

And while green things tend to die under my careful ministrations, even I can envision the rambling fence roses, the hollyhocks, the sweet william and snapdragons, the succulent vine ripened tomatoes, the herb patch, the zinnias, strawberries, etc. which I am sure will eventually appear there.

They will appear because Grandma and Grandpa wouldn't have it any other way, and somehow they've convinced our son, Mike, that the joy of growing things is worth the labor involved.

The big decision to convert came last fall, when it appeared that the above ground pool had been greener longer than the grass which surrounded it. Our family is growing up—the pool was no longer so important—and it went.

It left a great bare patch, completely surrounded by rustic fence and adorned by barbecue, lawn swing and picnic table. What to look at while we used our outdoor living room?

Paths connecting raised flower and vegetable beds? The fence swathed in color? A great idea!

We dumped the whole project in the laps of Grandpa who is 89 and Grandma who is 80 and they've been busy throughout the winter planning with Mike the transformation.

There are only two restrictions—to use as many perennials as possible (to avoid having to start from scratch each spring) and to make the paths between the beds of something that needs neither weeding nor mowing.

The two seniors do not take such projects lightly. A roto tiller to prepare the soil was ordered, various kinds of planting arrangements have been designed on paper, the catalogs have been scanned for strawberry planters, and there's even been some talk about a possible waterfall.

There are times when I feel like a very old 44 years. I wish I had their energy!

Letters to the editor

K-Mart, who needs it?

We need a K-Mart, possibly large food chain store and also big drug store at Dixie and White Lake?

It is very misleading to use that description. It is back from Dixie and off White Lake Road. Per plans shown by the developer, it would be back of the welding business, the low spot next to it and the hill. It would have exit and entrance atop the hill just beyond the entrance to the condominiums. Also an exit and entrance off White Lake Road about 300-500 feet from the Dixie, the White Lake Road exit-entrance rezoned from residential to commercial for this project. It would be in the backyards of homes on White Lake Road.

Since the area was to be developed, I for one was not against the cluster of condominiums over the undisturbed wooded area -- sounded better than normal type of developing for such projects. BUT what a change the minute they get the go signal. They mutilated the area, dug out and filled in and put two rows of buildings "in keeping with the area" close to Dixie. All that was necessary for that little spot was to put those buildings near the trout stream?

Now the developer will drain the natural swamp back of homes on White Lake Road for lots of parking and building. The draining is necessary and will help people, who live there.

Do our local board members, be they zoning, planning or regular board, EVER actually put on hiking clothes and look an area over BEFORE and DURING the time these big city people come into an area? Why with all commercial property available do we have to rezone residential areas, take away nature for blacktop and pavement. Our trees between Dixie and Edison high towers will be razed for this project. How many have actually looked at what has been done by the developer? Drive by apartments across from A&P at Dixie and M-15 and look across to see the area. The few trees left will go also -- in between the towers and the Dixie.

Now the traffic situation -- how will people across Dixie get out to go toward Drayton when traffic is heavy for proposed shopping center? How about people turning off Dixie onto White Lake Road during heavy hours for shoppers also going that way and waiting for left turn? Dixie and White Lake Intersection could be scene of some more real bang up accidents which we have plenty of now.

I'm not against K-Mart -- I find the drive to M-59 store not at all strenuous. But if you feel it is congested, the location back in our area out here would be a real nerve bender.

Also do we need the other stores proposed? Within a five mile radius we have the Village Pharmacy in downtown Clarkston, Wonder Drugs at Dixie and M-15, Independence Square Pharmacy, Thrifty in Drayton and Pine Knob at Sashabaw and Maybee. We have A&P, Wrigleys, Farmer Jack, Food Town, Rudy's and many others.

White Lake Road has heavy passenger car traffic, school buses, gravel trucks, asphalt trucks, huge tile trucks, Clawson tank trucks, etc. When the big gravel trucks are really busy, try sitting at White Lake Road waiting to turn at or cross over Dixie and have one of them come around at you to turn onto White Lake Road. Last year one outdid himself and dumped his load.

Sorry, but it just doesn't seem a logical spot for a shopping center, less logical than Waterford Hill Golf Course and that was considered out of the question!

Whipple is king

Dear Editor;

Calusa Lodge from near Moore Haven on Lake Okechobee Florida held their first annual bass fishing contest and it came to a conclusion on the 8th of March.

There were many prizes for the contestants who entered a bass 5# or over during the two months of the contest. The man or woman entering the largest for the contest were crowned King and Queen of bass at the conclusion and we are glad to say that Ed Whipple of Clarkston was crowned King and I have known Ed for a number of years and I will say without reservation that it could not of happened to a finer guy. Ed entered a 9# 2 oz. bass.

Peggy Preston of Cincinnati, Ohio was the Queen and she entered a 9# 11 oz. bass.

There was an award dinner of barbecued wild pig and all the trimming and everyone had a wonderful time.

H.E. DeTar, Reporting

Editor's Note: The Sarasota Herald-Tribune carried the following account:

Comments of local bass fisherman Ed Whipple who won the Calusa Nitka Fishing Contest at Lake Okechobee Wednesday, the last day of competition:

"We were fishing the pepper grass in the open water on the outer side of the reef that runs north and south five miles east of the Monkey Box. I was using a very flexible eight-foot Heddon rod with an Orvis 158 spinning reel, 15-pound test Royal Monel line and a live, golden shiner.

"The fish hit hard, and I struck back just as hard. Then I set the hook twice more. I've found that on big fish you have to put some muscle to them or you lose them.

"My brother, who was fishing with me, asked what I had on, and my first thought was that it was a tarpon. That fish took off for open water, and my reel really smoked. And I had a lot of drag on, too. He made two wide circles around the boat and I finally whipped him down and landed him."

Opposes Nickelodeon

To the editor,

As a nearby property owner to the Nickelodeon on M-15, I have eight good reasons why the place should not be rezoned to commercial.

1. Half the store was built without benefit of a building permit.
2. The area is classified as farming property.
3. It's too close to the church across the street.
4. There is too much debris created by the store—beer cans, bottles, papers, etc.

5. Too many teenagers hang around there.

6. A commercial septic tank could endanger a well located within 250 feet.

7. The parking lot is very bad, creating a traffic hazard.

8. The building code calls for 50 foot side lots, not met in the case of the Nickelodeon.

Against rezoning

For Nickelodeon

We are writing this letter for the benefit of the Nickelodeon, an old-fashioned country delicatessen located on M-15, and the hundreds of people who enjoy it as much as we do.

At present, the Nickelodeon is zoned residentially and the owners, Ed and Jan Krause, would like to have this zoning changed to commercial so they can add onto their restaurant and put in additional parking space. With residential zoning, if the present establishment were to burn down, they would be unable to rebuild their business.

We realize that there are many reasons why rezoning is a complex issue, but the Nickelodeon has served the community well in the past and we would like to encourage all of you who have enjoyed the Nickelodeon to write to the newspapers and speak out.

We really don't want to see this business fail. Many people feel the same way as we do but are unable to voice their opinions. Then too, there are many people who are opposed to the rezoning and are trying to fight it. They want Clarkston to remain somewhat old-fashioned. We agree with this to some extent; but what some of these people don't seem to realize is that the Nickelodeon is exactly that.

Athlete lists some faults

Dear Editor:

The football program at Clarkston High School has improved enormously in the past three years. This is due to the great efforts of head coach Robb White. His record speaks for itself -- first year 4-5, and 7-2, and third year 8-1. Then why does the Administration give this man such a hassle?

Do you know that there is a need for new equipment? The school system should certainly recognize and fulfill this need. How about the large crowds the team draws to home games. Where is the money from ticket sales? That money could pay for these needed improvements.

Another problem is the poor lighting on the football field. How can a player play ball when he can barely see 20 yards in front of him? Another problem is getting players 7th hour study hall. The team could use this time to go over films, tape ballplayers and repair disheveled equipment. This was ok'd last year, but due to red tape not all ball players could get 7th hour study hall.

Also the practice field is in horrible shape due to glass, rocks, ruts and no grass. A player can get hurt more just by falling on the ground than he possibly could by any hitting or contact. The field should be in good condition for the team to practice on. There are also other problems that should be taken care of for the team.

On other teams at the high school, the coach gets a pat on the back whether he wins or loses. This past season when the team went 8-1, did the administration ever congratulate the coaches? Why is there such a double standard?

Mr. White is not only the coach of the football team. He also takes boys and builds them into young men. He teaches us to be winners and to appreciate the fact that to stay on top takes more work than to be working towards the top.

The thing about Mr. White and his unusually small staff is they are all honest with every ball player. Along with this he builds the team into a unit of friends that cannot be separated now or on into life.

I want it understood that this letter was written by myself and that Mr. White will not like me speaking out, but this must be said.

If the athletic program can not be run decently, then how can the Administration handle something important like my education?

A Member of White's Army,
D.J. Campe

Quizzes writer's logic

Dear Sirs:

I'm deeply disturbed by the logic behind Ms. Fritch's letter regarding the K-Mart at Dixie and White Lk. Rd. It is this kind of thinking that causes communities to turn into harsh cities. Unfortunately, this way of thinking has become more prevalent.

Perhaps there was a mistake in the building of Pine Knob, that is irrelevant to the present issue. Because there's been one mistake, does not mean that we must go through a chain of the same type simply for the revenge and satisfaction of the originally wronged?

If we don't learn from our mistakes, and thus stop other mishaps before they are started, will we ever make any progress to a balanced community? Let us take the effects of the Pine Knob issue and apply them to present problems rather than ignore the lessons we've painfully learned.

Ms. Fritch tells us that because of Pine Knob, we will soon have a golf course, etc., invading our 'country' community. Pine Knob is no more the cause of this than a runny nose is the cause of a cold. Furthermore, if she wishes to express her feelings about being jilted by Pine Knob, I would suggest she do so without using K-Mart as an excuse.

Finally, as for practically hitting a car, having the right of way, let's keep in mind that right of way is something to give, not take. ("What Every Driver Should Know", pg. 37.)

Thank you,
Bill Williams

Spring questions

By Greg Patchan

Dear Plant Doctor:

When is the last frost in this area? We are new to this area and we don't know when we can plant our vegetable garden. G.K.

Dear G.K.

There are no fixed dates for the last frost in the spring or the first frost in the fall. Weather experts report frost dates by a percentage which indicates the chance a frost will occur on that date. For example, in Pontiac the chance of a frost occurring on May 20 is 11% and on September 30th the chance is 16%. In general, the "frost free" date for planting tender plants should be considered to be in late May. We can expect frost by late October. Actually the gardening season starts earlier than the "frost free" date and can continue later than the first frost into the fall. Frost tolerant plants such as radishes, onions, carrots, lettuce and cole crops should be planted in mid-April. Plantings of these crops made in late spring will continue to grow after fall frosts. Tender plants such as tomatoes, peppers, beans, cucumbers and melons should be planted after the "frost free" date.

Dear Plant Doctor:

When the snow melted in our yard, I noticed shallow trails in our lawn. Also, several young trees in the area had the bark chewed on. What caused this damage? A.C.

Dear A.C.

The damage you described was caused by meadow mice. The only way to totally eliminate this damage is to reduce the mouse population. Both trapping and poisoning are very effective if done properly. Bait mouse traps with peanut butter or apple slices, and place the trap in a milk carton or can with one end removed. Place the container on its side in the area of the rodent activity. Poisoning is done by placing a Warfarin mouse poison in cans or cartons like the traps.

Mice must eat the bait for 5 to 14 days before they will die. If you rake the damaged lawn in the spring and fertilize, the lawn will recover nicely.

The wounded areas on the trees should be covered with a tree wound dressing. Trees and shrubs can be protected with hardware cloth or old window screen wrapped around the trunk. Be sure to bury the bottom edge about two inches in the soil.

That depressing depression

"Make it do..."

by Marilyn Moore

If there was a Depression Motto, it must have been "make it do, fix it up, or do without."

My father was one of the lucky ones, he had a salaried job - at $120 per month, so I don't remember doing without. In fact, my memories seem to be of always having "company" and it was a rare event if we had just our family at the table. It was many years later that I learned that some of my parents' "guests" didn't eat very regularly, and than an evening of cards with my parents spared them from getting into bed early - to keep warm.

Dad worked for one of the country's largest farm implement manufacturers and we lived in a small town surrounded by farm area. The company must have been gambling that hard times couldn't last forever, and the farmers who hung on would someday need new implements. They were willing to sell repair parts, and let Dad use a company truck to go out to the country and make repairs.

Frequently, the only cash a farmer had went for the parts. They couldn't believe that Dad was also getting paid for "chasing way out here", and always sent along "a little something" - eggs, vegetables or fruit in season. Perhaps that is one way the folks

BAIT reelects Craft

Harvey Craft has been reelected president of the Business Association of Independence Township. The vote was taken as the group, which now contains 65 members, met at Howe's Lanes.

Sheldon Fuller was renamed vice president and Winnie Beach treasurer. Joyce Huntley became secretary replacing Barbara Howe and Warren Newsted was named director replacing Morton Schwartz.

The group filed a letter with Oakland County protesting bid procedures for the construction of a new district court, and solicited member attendance at the April 1 Independence Township board meeting in favor of rezoning for member Ed Krause's Nickelodeon on M-15.

Teen rec center?

There could be a teenage recreational center in the basement of the old Town Shop, but if there is -- approval will have to come from the Clarkston Zoning Board of Appeals.

Posan Lee was present at the Village Council meeting Monday night to make application.

managed so well. Fall and winter weekends found Dad hunting on these same farms, and rabbit was a feature for Sunday dinner, and creamed quail on toast isn't exactly a pauper's meal.

While cash was in short supply, there was a marvelous barter system. I can remember Mother saying that she was going to sew for someone Friday; and the someone would be there - for fittings, and would clean the house for us.

Dad was an excellent mechanic, and would repair a car - while the owner cut grass or did other chores. My parents would help a farmer butcher, in return for some lard, a ham or some bacon. Frequently the ham was the main dish for a church supper, where the price of the meal was a bag of coal for the church furnace.

Hospitalization insurance was unheard of and most of the women my mother knew seemed to have their babies at home. Although she wasn't a nurse, Mother assisted our doctor many times when neighbor women were confined. This was always "fun" for me, for it meant that I would go to someone's house to play, or would have someone in to play with me.

Recycling must have been born in the thirties. Nothing was wasted. Clothes were handed down, cut down, taken apart and "turned" to make coats or skirts from the side with no wear showing. Shirts had collars and cuffs turned, then aprons or smaller garments were made from the good parts.

Quilt blocks were cut from the smallest scraps of new material and Mother's friends would gather to "piece" and quilt them for wedding gifts. Worn sweaters were unraveled, the yarn steamed straight and mittens, caps, and scarves emerged.

Buttons from garments too worn were always cut off, and even the "button box" contents were recycled, not just for the obvious, but to provide hours of sickbed fun - when we were allowed to "sew" buttons together.

Fuel economy didn't start in the seventies either. No one bought ice in the winter in those days; everyone stayed in the room easiest to heat in the winter and anything burnable stoked the furnace or fireplace - then the ashes went on slippery steps and sidewalks.

During the depression there were only two things that I do recall not getting. At Christmas in 1932 I asked Santa to bring me a red Austin coupe and a baby brother. I was too young to drive, and my sister was born in February.

Maybe times were hard, but at our house whatever there was, in terms of food, warmth and friendship - it was shared. Through all their days my parents believed that the best meal was tasteless if you ate alone, while a simple meal could be a banquet if eaten with friends.

Perhaps the lessons in management I observed will come in handy in the future, some of them have in the past.

Information not cheap

It's not going to be so cheap to call Information anymore, if Michigan Bell is successful with current plans. They've gone to get Michigan Public Service Commission approval for a system whereby there would be no charge for the first three calls a month to Information, but a 20 cent charge for each one above that.

Persons with visual, physical or mental limitations who have difficulties using directories would be exempt from the charge. Also exempt would be calls from coin phones, mobile phones, hospitals, hotels and motels, and calls for numbers outside the "home" calling area.

The company contends that under the present system, all customers are collectively picking up a $22 million a year tab for information.

To buy truck for cemetery

The Independence Township Board will meet as the township health board Tuesday night to determine whether the cemetery trust fund should be tapped for another $6,000 to $8,000 for cemetery maintenance equipment.

The health board session is scheduled for 7:15 p.m., with the regular board meeting starting at 7:30 p.m.

Funds which Department of Public Works Director George Anderson proposes taking from the perpetual care account would be used for the purchase of a new dump truck. No general funds are to be used for its purchase.

"The rent would reimburse the trust fund for someone else's use," Glennie said.

The township board last week used $8,500 from the perpetual care fund for purchase of a tractor trailer with back hoe and of miscellaneous tools to be used at the cemetery.

Ordinances ok

Clarkston Village Council has adopted two ordinances similar to those in force in Independence Township governing usage of snowmobiles and fees for subdivision platting.

"The latter, while not necessary now, might be required in the future, according to our attorneys, said Acting President Mrs. Ruth Basinger.

It has also amended its municipal construction ordinance providing for a sliding fee in place of the flat $50 for a permit when work is undertaken by any utility company.

Baseball season warm up

The Independence Township Recreation Department will have its first informal junior baseball managers meeting at the township offices at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 2.

This meeting will kick off the 1975 season. Managers will receive their season calendar and informal discussion on rules and league organization will take place. The player draft is scheduled for Wednesday, April 23.

All program changes and votable items will be handled at the first "official" managers meeting scheduled for May 30, 8 p.m. at Clarkston High School.

Griswold's champs in tourney

by Steve Craft

Griswold's nipped by Spencer Floor Covering 77-71 in the final game of the Clarkston-Waterford basketball tourney last Wednesday to gain the championship title.

The game climaxed three days of play and Griswold's played their best of the year.

Tim Billingsley had 30 points, followed by Gary White with 20 and Bud Krause with 15.

The game was set up when on Tuesday night Griswold's had defeated Hobby Painting by a score of 104-74. Again Billingsley and White had been high scorers for Griswold's while Mike Murphy and Mark Davis were Hobby aces.

Spencer Floor Covering, former state class B champions, won a forfeit the same night against Rick Lyons team.

To start off the tourney, Griswold's defeated Waterford's Howe's Lanes 82-63. Billingsley, White and Krause were high point men again for Griswold's while Mike Chapman, Jim Foltz, Rick and Tom Clancy dumped in double figures for Howe's.

Hobby Painting defeated the Prosecutors of Waterford in initial play, Mike Murphy picking up 15 points while Brian and Don Powell and Bill Bildstein scored in double figures.

Spencer Floor Covering knocked Credit Union out of play in their first meet, Jerry Ostrom getting 19 points while Bill West and Mike Maslowski shared 10 apiece.

Rick Lyons did the same for Mr. B Bar in an early upset, the final score 63-56. B Bar was led by Don Fleming who had 12 points and John Kennedy and Carl Hammel who shared 10 each.

Eight hints for the ultimate buffet:

- Just pretend you're going through the serving line yourself and you'll keep things simple.
- Begin with a two-lane table for serving large numbers of guests.
- Entrée, vegetable, salad, then rolls is a logical order for the food.
- Stack plates near food so guests needn't pick them up to pile on the food.
- Mix casual and formal dinnerware and flatware.
- Pre-butter the rolls.
- Make cardboard box trays so plate-balancing is kept to a minimum.
- Plan a fork-only entrée.

A quintet of zealous kids, inspired by television star Peter Falk, had collected $29 for the Easter Seal campaign in the Village of Clarkston Sunday before their parents discovered they had done their good deed with no authorization or identification.

The Holcomb Street youngsters Patrick and Ronnie Daniels and Dale, Nancy and Mark Westlund, would like those who contributed to the cause to know they were in earnest and the money will wind up in Easter Seal coffers.

The spring break which Clarkston Schools students anticipated Friday due to an in-service session turned out to be a break of another kind when approximately two inches of snow was dumped unexpectedly on the area. In place of baseball and tennis, it was checkers and monopoly for lots of them.

Some 100 persons attended the first meeting of a Walled Lake-based organization which is seeking the abolishment of the State Tax Commission and the present method and level of assessment.

Spearheading the Michigan Citizens for Property Tax Reform are the same people who called themselves the Oakland Citizens for Lower Taxes in 1973. For their March 17 meeting, they received response from various portions of Oakland and Macomb counties.

They still would like to hear from someone willing to represent the organization in this area and from other groups seeking property tax reform. Coordination and exchange of ideas can lead to a unified effort in Lansing, they note.

The address of the organization is 2255 Darnell, Walled Lake, Mi. 48088. Further information can be obtained by calling 624-5029, 624-5661 or 624-4917.

A note to Senator John C. Hertel, D-Harper Woods: We didn't use your first press release about eliminating waste in government, nor did we use your second identical one, nor the third -- all of which arrived on the same day. We tended to doubt your sincerity, Senator. I'm sorry.

We understand Dan Fife is in spring training at Orlando, Fla., with the Minnesota Twins. No further word, but as soon as he writes, his mother says she'll pass the word along. Not too many years ago, Dan was a triple threat man with Clarkston High School teams and went on to Michigan where he co-captained the basketball team and was starting pitcher. He served a stint with the Tigers before joining the Twins two years ago.

North Oakland citizens fight sub-station change

A lot of people in North Oakland County, and particularly in Groveland Township, are upset with Oakland County Sheriff's Department plans to move its switchboard out of the Groveland station at Dixie and Grange Hall roads and back into the county complex in Pontiac.

Petitions to block the move were being circulated last week in Groveland, Springfield and Rose Townships.

"We just get some kind of decent service out here and they begin to pull back," said Marlon Hillman, assistant fire chief at Springfield Township.

Sheriff's Department spokesmen say the change will not affect service, that deputies assigned to township patrol will still report to work in the north end of the county, and that a toll-free telephone line will be installed to the Law Enforcement Complex for those residents who would otherwise be charged long distance rates.

"There's been no straight information handed out about just what they do propose to do," Hillman said Thursday. "We've heard they intend to take out only the communications system, and then we also hear they might abandon the building entirely. Groveland houses its fire trucks there and has its communications system tied in with the county," he reported.

Springfield never did tie into the county network, according to State Rep. Claude Trim, former supervisor of Springfield. The Springfield department chose instead to tie in with the Holly Police system and calls for the fire department are now relayed through the Holly switch board.

Changes have been proposed because a Sheriff's Department survey indicates that an average of six to eight calls per day are being dispatched from the sub-station. In an effort to bring a more economical and efficient service to the area, it was apparent that the dispatchers could be brought to the main communications center at the Complex. A letter explaining these proposals and the economic savings was delivered to County Executive Daniel Murphy early this week, the county reported Monday.

Metheny reports there has been talk of either tearing the building down -- because the county deems it feasibly unrepairable -- or possibly to lease it to the Groveland Fire Department.

"There are large holes in the ceiling and much repair work that needs to be done," Metheny said. The county inherited the building when it purchased Groveland-Oaks Park a number of years ago.

Hillman contends cosmetic improvements could make the building useable.

Springfield, Rose and Independence Townships presently contract with the Sheriff's Department for patrol services. Only the Rose Township contingent uses the Groveland station as a check-in point for work. Other deputies begin their day at the police services building in Independence Township.

"We've looked at several other sites, including an Independence Township fire station at Clarkston and Sashabaw roads," Metheny said, "but the decision was made to bring all the dispatchers back to Pontiac where we were already shorthanded."

The only reason the Sheriff's Department got involved with the Groveland Substation, Metheny reported, was because of the inability of cars working the northern area to hear radio calls dispatched in Pontiac. That situation has now been improved, he added.

"Much of the time we spent $150 and $200 a week in overtime for personnel at the Groveland station. There were just not enough people there, and sometimes we wound up using patrolmen on the switchboard when they should have been out patrolling the area," he continued.

If the decision is made to vacate the building, the department would like to locate a northern sub-station elsewhere on county owned land -- either at Springfield-Oaks or in Independence Township, Metheny reported.

"For the deputies to report to the jail and drive north to work is impractical," he explained.

"Any priority of location would go to those townships which contract with us for services. Independence seems the logical place, being located with easy access to I-75, the courts and being where the largest number of calls arise," the lieutenant continued.

Metheny assured residents living in the Holly phone area that a toll-free line would be made available for their use before any drastic change was made. He also said the alarm systems now connected to the county board could be transferred to the main console at the jail.

He added a free telephone would be installed outside the Groveland building with direct hook-up to a dispatcher. It will provide emergency and information service, he said.

Supervisors take tax ideas to Lansing

A group of supervisors from townships in Oakland County learned last week that their ideas for tax reform have some supporters in the State Legislature.

"I feel there's enough support that we will see something out of this session," said Springfield Township Supervisor Don Rogers.

The delegation of 10 supervisors from Oakland County appeared before the House Taxation Committee.

Spokesmen for the group were given 45 minutes to speak in favor of legislative relief to prevent continued increases in property taxes, according to Independence Township Supervisor J. Edwin Glennie.

He said several members of the Committee indicated their support for some type of relief.

Glennie commented that the "biggest obstacle is committee chairman George Montgomery." The Detroit Democrat, Glennie said, "appears not to be in favor of any reduction of property assessment levels."

Rogers said he was confident reform would come out of the committee despite Montgomery's opposition.

"I'm happy about the fact that a lot of the people on the committee realize that a break, a new form or new method is needed," Rogers said.

Neither would predict whether reform would follow the method suggested by the Michigan Townships Association and introduced by Rep. Claude Trim, D-Davisburg.

The method calls for municipalities to be allowed a range of assessments, dropping to 46-50 percent this year and 40-50 percent by 1977.

Trim said there has been some question about the legality of providing a range under the state constitution, which calls for property across the state to be "uniformly assessed" at no more than 50 percent of true cash.

He said he would seek an attorney general's opinion on the matter.

Another property tax relief bill recently failed in the House by a narrow margin.

"I voted against attaching property tax relief to the income," Trim said. "I feel anything we come up with has to be responsible. We can't give the people a break this year and go back for more money from them next year."

Big plans for 2 parks

Two master plans for Groveland-Oaks and Springfield-Oaks were presented to the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission at their regular meeting March 14.

The Springfield-Oaks master plan calls for a $20 million year-round exposition facility with an annual county fair. Fred Ellis, president of the Flint, Mich., recreational planning firm of Ellis, Arndt and Truesdell, called the exposition idea "something for everyone."

It would include a 7,000-seat indoor arena, an amphitheater, model farmyard and a 19th-century village. Ellis also estimated that the county fair would result in a net profit of from $100,000 and $300,000 for the Commission.

As part of the master plan, Ellis recommended land acquisitions which would expand the present 57-acre park to 200 acres. Springfield-Oaks is located at the corner of Andersonville and Hall Roads.

The first phase would cost $1,021,000. This would include land acquisition, animal pole barns, rest rooms, parking areas, landscaping and utilities.

The Commission referred the Springfield-Oaks master plan to the Oakland County Board of Commissioners' Planning and Building Committee for further study.

The Groveland-Oaks master plan—received by the Commission for further study and development—expands the present 600-campsite facility to 730 campsites. The design, presented by Jack G. Anderson, president of the Royal Oak planning consultant firm of Anderson/Lesniak & Associates, utilizes a cluster concept with self-contained comfort stations and playgrounds. The typical lot would be 45 by 60 feet for both individual and group campsites. The plan also includes a platform tent area.

Anderson said that implementation of the master plan would cost approximately $1.5 million.

Groveland-Oaks is located at the corner of U.S. 10 and Grange Hall Road. It is the Commission's only modern camping facility.

In other action, the Commission approved a resolution calling for the establishment of a county park on the present Southeastern Oakland County Sewage Disposal System property. This property is bordered on the west and east by Campbell Rd. in Royal Oak and Dequindre Rd. in Madison Heights.

U of M Youth Band to play

Clarkston High School's Little Youth Theater will be the site of a performance by the University of Michigan Youth Band at 3 p.m. Sunday, April 13.

Organized in 1973, to provide an opportunity for advanced Michigan music students between the ages of 12 and 21 to study and perform great band music, the Michigan Youth Band seeks to further community support of public school music by presenting Michigan's talented youth to audiences throughout Michigan. The band is under the joint sponsorship of the School of Music and the Extension Service of the University of Michigan.

The band will perform under the direction of Dr. Harold McTerry, assistant conductor, University of Michigan. Ticket prices are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students, and may be obtained from Clarkston band students.

Clarkston Band Boosters is sponsoring the local performance, and will serve as hosts for the presentation. The public is invited.

They love lake living

COUNTRY LIVING

By Pat Braunagel
of The Clarkston News

From all of the rooms along the glass-walled end of their modified A-frame chalet, Jerry and Lois Namowicz can watch the ice melting from the edges of the lake.

Their interest in seasonal changes is directly related to their anticipation of summer, when they will make maximum use of the lake beside which their house was built.

Looking out at the beach and dock, Lois talked about summer at the Namowicz home.

"That's where the living is, and we're waiting for it," she said.

In the summertime, the lounge chairs are brought out for sunbathing on the dock and for rests between swims and boating or water skiing excursions.

The five Namowicz watercraft currently range from a paddleboat to a hydroplane.

Even inside the house, the Namowicz family and their friends are never far from the lake. The second-level rooms open onto an eight-foot-wide redwood deck. Those on the first level also have window walls facing the lake.

Selection of the homesite came quite naturally to Jerry, who is a beach developer.

The site was created by filling in a portion of a swamp, a task that took about two years. With the beachfront developed, the lot was used for outings until a house was constructed for Jerry and his new bride two-and-a-half years ago.

To fill a swamp beside a lake, "you have to know the ground materials," Jerry said. "It has to be done evenly and a little at a time, or everything will wash away."

The house was constructed on 32-foot pilings.

"We didn't disturb any of the wildlife at all when we built it," Jerry said. The house was built closer to the one side of the lot to avoid a small grove of trees. On the other side of the house is the remaining portion of the swamp, which Lois said abounds with flowers in the spring.

The swamp can also be seen from the master bedroom, which shares the second level with a 40-by-25-foot room containing living, dining and kitchen facilities.

The predominant colors on the whole second level of this house beside a lake are -- not surprisingly--shades of blue.

One wall and the deep shag carpeting in the living and dining areas are wedgewood blue, close to the shade of the kitchen cabinets.

Navy leather couches were placed before the fireplace, a large arched opening in a distinctive brick wall. Both here and in the party room directly beneath it, the bricks have a smoked effect and are held by black mortar. On the raised hearth are two large pewter candlesticks from Hong Kong, a gift from Jerry's mother.

Among the family members and friends who enjoy the casual atmosphere of the Namowicz home are their four children from previous marriages. Lois' son Tom Houck lives with the couple parttime.

Tom's room on the first level has black shag carpeting on the floor and bright yellow carpeting on one wall. Another wall is covered in natural cork.

The party room is decorated in warm golds and yellows. Jerry's daughter, Kathy Pulliam, is responsible for the mural behind the bar, entitled "The Dark Side of the Moon."

Jerry incorporated into the plans for his home several ideas he had seen in the houses of friends. Among the work-savers which many men envy him are gas starters in each of the fireplaces.

Another unusual feature of the house is its radiant heating.

"There are no heat ducts at all, just electric wires coiled through the ceiling," he said. Besides being a clean method of heating the house, the system allows the temperature in each room to be individually controlled.

Despite the convenience and comfort of their home, Jerry and Lois still are looking to the day when they can open wide the doors and head for the beach.

Dramatic main entrance is on the side of the modified A-frame chalet, under the wide overhang.

Modifications in an A-frame design created a house with individuality for Jerry and Lois Namowicz.

Seating arrangement, including two navy leather couches, is grouped before the large arched fireplace in the living room.

Living, dining and kitchen areas are provided in the largest room of the Namowicz home, which takes up the major portion of the second level.

Redwood deck stretching the width of the Namowicz house provides a panoramic view of the lake they love living by.

House plans modified

Jerry relaxes in the casual dining area, watching for signs of seasonal change on the other side of the window wall which faces the lake.

Collector of oral history, Peter Evarts heads for Africa

by Jean Saile

of The Clarkston News

Peter Evarts is the kind of man who collects hand decorated Sicilian whiffle trees and cart sides and totes them through Europe on an Austin, preparatory to ensconcing them in the Evarts' Davisburg area home, itself a serene relic of the past.

Evarts, who is professor of English and chairman of the department of learning skills at Oakland University, has another trip in sight -- to Africa this year.

And there he'll be doing essentially the same thing he did in Sicily -- collecting recordings of sung and recited history before literacy, films and television further erode the dying art.

His trips to Sicily enabled him to start the only Mid-West collection of oral poetry -- and his ballads recounting the feats of the French king, Charlemagne, as sung by the Normans during their 200-year occupation of Sicily were obtained just in time.

The last of a line of street reciters who Evarts met and recorded has died within the last year. Now, he's headed into Africa where the tradition yet prevails and word-of-mouth marks or has given epic proportion to the deeds of great leaders.

"Much of even America's history has been word of mouth, you know," he said. "The Bible was carried around in people's heads long before it was ever written."

His own studies in medieval culture should be out within a year, joining his other printed works on teaching of the novel and the racial images of trade books used in elementary schools.

And even while he collects and documents, he wonders if the time of the printed word might not be disappearing.

"Each culture adopts its own means of transmitting information. I wonder sometimes if the book is just a transitional stage. Maybe we're headed more into the age of the memory bank of computers and television. It may be a more efficient means of passing our culture along," he theorizes.

He knows history is cyclic -- moving from organization to disorganization -- and waiting for the charismatic figure-whom the old street singers eulogized-to move us forward now.

"We've gained in some ways from those times, but I'm not sure one can define progress anyway except in terms of going somewhere. The trouble is we're not sure where we're going," he believes. "The problem in the United States is fragmentation of values. We're separated by where we live and what we do for a living. It would be very hard to get the whole country behind a Messiah.

"We've lost a sense of who is in control. All the controlling elements seem to have become corrupt," Evarts says, but he adds he's not cynical.

His study of history has led him to believe that leaders do emerge, even though it sometimes takes chaos to breed them.

The last great charismatic leader this country produced probably didn't live long enough to win his place in folklore/history Evarts believes. He refers to John F. Kennedy's assassination.

"Oral tradition accepts the salutary and rejects the defamatory," Evarts reports. "Sometimes it hurts. Homer's epic Trojan battle was in actuality a trade war, and by the time the poets got around to it 500 years later it had assumed aspects of the divine. The eventual demise of the cultures represented in the Trojan stories may have had something to do with the unreality of the reports."

The old Tindall home in which Evarts, his wife, Rose -- a reading developmentalist for Waterford Schools -- and their two daughters live is a great display place for his Sicilian artifacts. Presumably it will soon be hosting African mementos as well.

Real Estate HAPPENINGS

by Bob & Marvel White

Mortgage interest rates can be confusing, but it may help to remember that money is a commodity like beef. When everybody is buying steak, the price goes up. When everybody is borrowing money for mortgages, the interest rate, the price you pay for borrowing, goes up. Currently, the prime interest rate is going down, but that is not the mortgage interest rate. The prime rate is the interest rate the banks charge their best commercial customers for short term loans. Mortgage interest rates also fluctuate, but never as much or as fast as the prime rate. Mortgage interest rates have also gone down, but heavy borrowing for mortgages could push them up again.

Jim's Jottings

by Jim Sherman

People don't have to travel long distances to see things or do things that bring enjoyment.

Maybe as close as your yard, or a walk through a park will bring more enjoyment than a long trip to the sea shore.

Just going out and looking at a tree budding out, or the tulips punching a hole in the ground can put the troubled world far from your mind.

Did that the other day, myself. It was a very peaceful few minutes. I especially like to watch the leaves come out on young trees. They seem so delicate.

Last year I watched four maples several weeks after I planted them. I looked longingly for the faintest sign of a bud. They never came. Sixty bucks, pfft.

That took my mind off the world's troubles, too.

But, that's not the point. The point is winter's over. Spring is here. Get out and enjoy it to the fullest.

There is a little fable which makes the rounds every once in a while which should be studied by all. It goes like this:

Once upon a time there was a robin that delayed too long in flying south.

A freezing rain storm persuaded him that he should finally get started. Four hours later, nearly frozen, heavily coated with ice and totally exhausted, he plummeted to earth.

A passing horse almost stepped on him, then paused and buried him in a pile of steaming manure.

This was, the little robin thought, the final blow. This was the ultimate ignominy—to be buried in manure during his final moments of life.

As the minutes passed, however, the bird began to feel the warmth of the manure. First his wings and then his feet thawed. He voiced a happy chirp.

Hearing the chirp, a cat dashed over to the manure pile, quickly dug out the robin and ate him.

The moral of the story is obvious.

Those who would cover you with manure are not necessarily your enemies and those who would dig you out are not always your friends.

As our governmental leaders continue showing interest in protecting us from cradle to grave let's try to determine for sure if they are the cat or the manure.

That depressing depression

by Red Van Natta

You asked that someone write about the 30's and the Depression of that period. Yes, there was a depression at that time and I was a part of it, having been born in 1907.

In the late 20's with only a year and a half of college under my belt, I had a real good job as a landscape superintendent at about $90.00 per week. The Stock market crash did away with most customers using our services and I was out of work.

My father had been with the Chicago Surface lines as a conductor since 1900 and his pay in the late 20's was somewhere around $35.00 to $40.00 per week for seven days work. At that time I thought my dad was kinda stupid to stay with a job that paid that little for those long hours.

Come the early 30's, I was not working but was at home living off this stupid father of mine. Our family was just as well off when it came to food, shelter, and clothing during the Great Depression as we were in the "Roaring Twenties." Dad's salary was even a little less but the purchasing power was so much greater that we were able to help a few people and live every bit as well as we ever did.

The moral of this story is that there are times in this life of ours when success is not measured by monetary income but steady application of effort to a job that provides security for you and your responsibilities. You may never be a financial hero but you will never be a destitute bum either.

a. GENERAL RESTRICTION. No person shall kindle or maintain any open bonfire or open rubbish fire or authorize any such fire to be kindled or maintained within the Township of Independence, unless permitted hereunder. During construction or demolition of buildings or structures no waste materials or rubbish shall be disposed of by burning on the premises or in the immediate vicinity.

b. LOCATION RESTRICTED. No person shall kindle or maintain any bonfire or rubbish fire or authorize any such fire to be kindled or maintained on any land in Independence Township unless the fire is contained in an approved waste burner located safely not less than 15 feet from any structure.

c. ATTENDANCE OF FIRES. Bonfires and rubbish fires shall be constantly attended by a competent person until such fire is extinguished. This person shall have a garden hose connected to a water supply, or other fire extinguishing equipment readily available for use.

d. PROHIBITIONS BY CHIEF. The Chief of the Independence Township Fire Department may prohibit any or all bonfires and outdoor rubbish fires when atmospheric conditions or local circumstances make such fires hazardous in his opinion, based upon his experience and expertise.

e. MATERIALS ABSOLUTELY RESTRICTED. Wherever or whenever burning is permitted under this ordinance, such fires shall not be used to dispose of automobile parts, tires, rubber materials, plastic, and like materials which, upon combustion, produce an inordinate amount of smoke or noxious odors.

f. EXCEPTIONS FROM GENERAL APPLICATION. The provisions of subsections (a) and (b) of this Section shall not be construed to prohibit fires of charcoal or a non-ash producing fuel and when used on private property for the exclusive preparation of food for human consumption in a private residence. Further, it shall not prohibit non-ash producing fuels from being less than fifteen feet (15) from combustible materials when used in metal containers for the heating of building materials and for the production of warmth for workers.

g. SPECIAL PERMIT FOR OCCASIONAL FIRES. Notwithstanding the provisions of this ordinance, special or occasional fires on private residential property may be permitted by the Chief of the Independence Township Fire Department, upon application therefor, provided that the Chief shall, as a condition to issuing a permit, determine that the maintenance of the proposed fire will create no hazard to the surrounding property or persons within a proximity which may be affected by the proposed fire. C. The following Article and Sections shall amend the American Code and shall be added thereto immediately following Article 31:

"Section 32.2. EXCEPTION FROM PERMIT REQUIREMENT.

The requirement of Section 32.1. shall not apply to incinerator units up to and including five (5) cubic feet storage capacity used in a private residence."

D. The Bureau of Fire Prevention, with the approval of both the Chief and Fire Marshall, may, after conducting a hearing before the Chief and Fire Marshall, duly noticed by Publication in a newspaper of general circulation in the Township, and after providing the opportunity for the applicant and all interested parties to be heard, grant a modification from the provisions of this ordinance upon the finding that:

- 1) There is a hardship or practical difficulty to the applicant in carrying out the strict letter of this ordinance, and that the cause of said hardship or practical difficulty is unique unto the applicant and not shared in common by all who are like or similarly situated.
- 2) The public safety shall be sufficiently secure, in accordance with the standards in this ordinance and based upon the expertise and experience of the members of the Bureau.
- 3) The spirit of this ordinance shall be observed.

The Chief shall specify reasons for a grant or denial of modification.

ARTICLE V. Bureau of Fire Prevention; Establishment Administration.

Sec. 5.3. The Bureau of Fire Prevention shall be operated under the supervision of the Chief of the Independence Township Fire Department, and a Fire Marshall shall be appointed and delegated the duty of administering the operations of the Bureau of Fire Prevention.

Sec. 5.4. Upon and after recommendation by the Bureau of Fire Prevention, the Township Board shall by resolution approve such rules and regulations as the Township Board may deem necessary for the operation of the Bureau of Fire Prevention and administration of this ordinance.

Sec. 5.5. Sec. 5.6. No less than one report of the Bureau of Fire Prevention shall be made and transmitted to the Supervisor of the Township of Independence on or before the first day of February each year. Said report shall be signed by the Fire Chief and shall include:

A. B. Recommendations of any proposed amendments to this ordinance.

ARTICLE VI. Violations and Penalties.

Sec. 6.1. Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this ordinance, or the rules and regulations adopted hereunder, or who shall build a fire in violation of any detailed statement of specifications or plans submitted and approved under this ordinance, or in violation of any permit issued hereunder, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not less than Fifteen ($15.00) Dollars nor more than Five Hundred ($500.00)

Child abuse

By James and Ellen Windell
Psychological staff members of the Oakland County Juvenile Court and Clinical Resources, Incorporated

Every parent at one time or another - after too much crying or after too many spilt glasses of milk or after too much defiance - has secretly realized that he or she is a potential child beater.

For most of us, the urge to flail out at a child goes away quickly and leaves only a few guilt feelings. But for a surprising number of parents, these are not just passing feelings brought on by a crisis. These are parents who have succumbed to the emotion and physically abused their child or have the potential to do so.

It is estimated that about 300,000 children in the next five years will be permanently damaged by parental maltreatment. It is startling, but as more attention is given to children who are abused, and parents who abuse, more parents, like a woman we saw recently, are asking for help. This mother came to us to ask for help because when she flew into a rage, she often ended up hitting one of her children. She was afraid she might kill one of them.

There is a recognizable pattern to the life and background of a parent who is a potential child beater.

Such a parent, as a child, generally did not receive good, nurturing mothering. Often such a parent was neglected or abused themselves. As an adult, such a parent lacks self-esteem and has a low sense of self-worth. Furthermore, this parent is likely to be a social isolate, having few friends and poor social skills. Often, this parent, who is frequently the mother, will have no reciprocal arrangements for babysitting with other women. She will therefore, be with her children constantly.

Potentially abusive parents frequently married early or for the wrong reasons.

They will have little interaction with each other and be insensitive to each other's needs. The husband, in such a situation, may not readily take the kids off his wife's hands for an afternoon or evening.

The potentially abusive parent tends to single out one of the children as special. A distorted view of the child is maintained because the child reminds the parent of someone else or because he or she is of the wrong sex or because the child came at the wrong time. The child is unliked. However, instead of seeing the infant as helpless, such a parent is likely to view him as having special powers or adult traits, ("He knows I'm not a good parent", or "She was telling me 'no' when I tried to change her diapers!").

When these traits are combined with a genuine family or personal crisis or tragedy, child beating may occur. The crisis is real and the parent, a mother or father, cannot handle the traumatic event and the child suffers.

Child abusers come from all social and economic classes and there is even the category of the abusive mother known as "Supermom" who may not have all the above characteristics.

Most large cities have places where parents who recognize themselves as potential abusers can go for help. Parents Anonymous, for instance, has groups in many areas of most cities. Operating on the same basis of Alcoholics Anonymous, parents can go to meetings to learn how to control their destructive impulses.

Meat prices should be figured on servings

Round steak at $1.49 per pound. Arm chuck steak at 99c per pound. They really cost the same! At least, they do if you're figuring price per serving rather than price per pound -- and that's one good way to make a choice at the meat counter, says Michigan State University consumer marketing agents.

Because of differences in the amount of bone, fat and gristle in various cuts of beef, the number of edible servings you get differs. For example, you'll get 3-4 servings from a pound of round steak, but only about 2 from a chuck roast with bone.

Suppose you're debating between armchuck at 99c per pound and round steak at $1.49 per pound; you'll find they both cost 50c per serving. The reason: arm chuck yields only 2 servings per pound; round steak yields 3.

Or, a sirloin steak at $2.99 per pound costs $1 per serving, since you get about 3 servings per pound. But a porterhouse steak, also at $2.99 per pound, costs $1.50 per serving -- because you only get 2 servings per pound.

If you look up the current prices listed in your newspaper's meat ads and use the chart below, you can easily figure how much you pay for an average serving of each kind of beef. Although you won't likely compute these costs while in the grocery store, a little figuring with newspaper in hand at home will give you a grasp of price differences when you do shop.

To figure cost per serving, divide local price-per-pound by servings-per-pound. For example: $1 per pound ÷ 2 servings per pound = 50c per serving.

Hamburger, ground beef, liver, boneless stew meat, cube steak, flank steak, heart, eye, and heel of round, kidney, beef tenderloin, 4 to 5 servings per pound.

Round steak, 3 to 4 servings per pound.

Sirloin Roast, Boneless Chuck Roast, Rump Roast, Tongue, 3 servings per pound.

Rib and Chuck Steak, Rib Roast with Bone, Chuck Roast with bone, Porterhouse Steak, 2 servings per pound.

Sirloin Steak, Boneless Rib Roast, 2 1/2 servings per pound.

Short ribs, 1 to 2 servings per pound.

For a complete list of servings-per-pound of all meats, including poultry, pork and processed meats, obtain a free copy of E-658-I "How Far Will Your Meat Go?" MSU Bulletin Office, Box 231, East Lansing, MI 48824.

Hoopengartner honored by state

Lt. Raymond J. Hoopengartner of Clarkston, who has retired after 27 years with the Michigan State Police, was feted at a retirement party Friday night at Donelli's Restaurant on M-24.

Presented to him at that time was a tribute from the Michigan Legislature signed by Rep. Claude A. Trim, Speaker Bobby D. Crim and Majority Floor Leader Joseph Forbes.

The tribute read, "In 1947 when Raymond Hoopengartner reported for duty with the State Police, he embarked on a career in law enforcement that would span more than a quarter of the century. The intervening years now represent a history of dedicated service to the citizens of Michigan.

"The integrity displayed by Lt. Hoopengartner in confronting law enforcement problems is reflected in his service record, a chronological history of increasing responsibility....

"Although Lt. Hoopengartner earned two citations for meritorious service and was cited four other times for honorable mention, the lasting rewards which are clearly indicative of a good policeman are not found in service records but are represented in the intangible gestures of gratitude and respect which Lt. Hoopengartner has received from his fellow citizens.

"Best wishes are extended for a happy and fruitful retirement."

Lt. Hoopengartner commanded the Pontiac post of the Michigan

State Police immediately prior to his retirement.

A similar tribute was presented by the Michigan Senate.

Hoopengartner was earlier feted by local police departments and the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Easter Sunday is not only a time for love, sharing and kindness, but also a time for families. Our household will be celebrating Easter with my Great Grandma, Mrs. Frances Ryan of Clifford. Accompanying my Gramda will be Lottie Manski and Tom Mickler.

Jeannie Bickford of North Main hopes to celebrate Easter and her 16th birthday with a trip to Florida. Seems everyone is rushing to Florida to get away from Michigan. Ann Bickerstaff of Langle will be flying down to Florida over Easter Vacation. Adele Hunt of Clarkston will be going to Florida. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Morgan will also be traveling to Florida for a few days of sunshine.

Michigan State University Freshman Sue Latter, a Clarkston High School graduate, has proven to be an excellent middle distance runner for State, making two best team times in the 440 and 600. Gerard Lacey, manager of Springfield-Oaks County Park, has written a full page for Amusement Business, a Billboard Publication relative to the value of fairs and expositions. A bit of a poet, he leads off, "A major fair is a large, medium or small, sized city which is born anew each year."

Gerry knows something about it, having been involved with the Michigan State Fair and the Cal Expo in Sacramento and the National Orange Show in San Bernardino.

Spiritual Message

"Why Do You Seek the Living Among the Dead?"
Scripture: Luke 24:1-12

Jesus was dead. His body had been placed in a tomb. A huge stone had been placed at the entrance to seal it shut.

On the first day of the week at early dawn, some women went to the tomb with spices and ointment. They found the stone rolled away and the tomb empty. Confused and perplexed they were suddenly aware of two men standing by them. One of them speaks these words: "Why do you seek the living among the dead? He is not here He is risen!"

Why were they seeking the living among the dead? Hadn't Jesus said he would rise the third day? Evidently they did not really believe Jesus' words.

It is always our lack of faith that causes us to seek the living among the dead.

We seek for the answers to life in the wrong places.

We look for happiness in pleasure and amusement rather than in service to others.

We look for hope in our world in changing men's minds rather than in changing men's hearts.

We look for security in a good income, and a guaranteed annual wage rather than in the love of others—and the love of God.

We look for a sense of community, of belonging, by joining organizations rather than in entering into personal relationships with other persons.

We look for satisfaction in life by buying a new car, new clothes, a new home rather than in making a new commitment of ourself to someone we love.

We look for national strength in guns and bombs rather than in building the character and integrity of our populace.

We look for peace in our world by way of plans and schemes and proposals rather than by appealing to the potential in all men for good will.

We look for some great cause or purpose to give ourselves to but mistakenly give ourselves away to little things.

We may even seek Christ in creeds, rituals, or the church as an institution, but He is not there. He can only be found in the meeting of spirit with spirit.

At the present time I have lost a book. It is a blue paperback entitled, "Letters and Papers from Prison" by Dietrich Bonhoeffer. My problem is that I have been looking in the wrong places for it. I will find it as soon as I look in the right place.

Just so it is, with all of us, we are looking for answers to life's greatest questions, and our problem is we are looking in the wrong places for the answers.

We will not find the answers among the dead and dying, but among the alive and those becoming more alive.

Bruce Rogers
Village of Clarkston, Clerk

I see a lot of letters falling out of the sky over Clarkston. I don't know what it means, I only seem to be amazed. Maybe it's something unusual that will happen.

I don't see anything being built off Depot Road for quite a period of time. I do not think the District Court will locate there.

A Clarkston business will change hands very suddenly, and the new owner will be successful. I don't see any delay in the switchover, no vacant building for any time involved.

There will be a controversy over the Mill Pond again this year. It may have more to do with ducks than health department water reports.

Jim Damman will not be a governor's running mate again in another election. There will be some type of action surrounding him, and it will lead to obscurity. This will be something that is yet to come.

I believe there will be more tornados this year than in the past. A long time ago I said I saw one north of town, and I still see it, but I don't know just where it will be.

Unusual weather is ahead, but I still believe it will be a long hot summer.

There'll be mid-East skirmishes, but no really long war. It will be fought in spurts. Russia doesn't want a long war there either, and would prefer hit and run type action.

A very prominent person in India will make headlines. Sorrow is connected to the event.

I keep seeing a red and white bike with a little blue on it -- a boy's bike - maybe a racer-which will be won by a light haired person with shoulder length hair. This person appears young, hardly as high as the handle bars.

There's a letter that's been torn in half, and then someone realizes how valuable it is and they piece it together. It's worth money, but it's not an old letter.

Depression meant no income for a year

After three score years and ten and ten and more, I can vividly recall the Great Depression. With a wife, two children under 10 and a home, we entered the era with not too much worry.

I remember a car salesman who called on me one day saying U.S. Steel broke 100. I was working and didn't have any U.S. Steel stock. But as time went on, the jobs were of shorter duration and farther apart and it became necessary to draw on our comfortable bank account.

When your employer has no work, you have no work. But you have to eat, cook, keep warm and pay taxes. When the bank closed its vaults to all accounts of $1,000 or more, that was a blow. My wife and each of the children had small accounts. When they were used up, I used the service bond from WW I.

For one year I had no income. Lots of people lost their property. The banks and mortgage companies foreclosed. There were many people who had much harder times than we did. We hope these conditions will not repeat, but I am afraid the direction of the Congress and Union is taking us back.

When judges have to keep the dignity of their office with a luxury car, and legislators need a raise as soon as they are voted in to legislate, I can only see dark clouds ahead.

Look at your face and determine its shape. If it is round, if your eyes are round, and you have no bone structure, do not try to sculpture your face with makeup. Just keep everything soft and round—mouth, eyes, hair, and even an oval shape in your glasses, you will look pretty. If you do have bone structure, cheek-bones, jaw-line, nose and well-formed eyesockets, work to shape the eye and make the most of your facial structure. After all, one thing does not work for all women.

Make sure that your hair style compliments your facial structure. Have it styled at "SALON OF BEAUTY" BONNIE JEAN'S HAIR STYLISTS, 5488 Dixie Highway, Waterford. Tel. 623-1411. Open 6:30-8:30. Sat. 6:30-3. All phases of beauty culture offered here. Walk-in service available.

BEAUTY TIPS:

Begin to cope with small lines in your face early, before they form, in order to keep them away with plenty of moisture and protection.

ORDINANCE NO. 84

VILLAGE OF CLARKSTON SNOWMOBILE ORDINANCE

PREAMBLE:

An ordinance regulating the operation of snowmobiles in the Village of Clarkston and providing penalties for the violations thereof.

SECTION I—Definitions.

As used in this ordinance:

(a) "Operator" means any person who operates or is in actual physical control of a snowmobile.

(b) "Owner" means any of the following:

1. A person who holds the legal title to a snowmobile.

2. A vendee or lessee of a snowmobile which is the subject of an agreement for the conditional sale or lease thereof with the right of purchase upon performance of the conditions stated in the agreement and with an immediate right of possession vested in the conditional vendee or lessee.

3. A person renting a snowmobile or having the exclusive use of a snowmobile for more than thirty (30) days.

(c) "Operate" means to ride in or on and be in actual physical control of the operation of a snowmobile.

(d) "Person" means an individual, partnership, corporation, the state and any of its agencies or subdivisions, and any body of persons whether incorporated or not.

(e) "Snowmobile" means any motor driven vehicle designed for travel primarily on snow or ice of a type which utilizes sled type runners or skis, or an endless belt tread or any combination of these or other similar means of contact with the surface upon which it is operated. It is not a vehicle which must be registered under Act No. 300 of the Public Acts of 1949, as amended, being sections 257.1 to 257.923 of the Compiled Laws of 1948.

(f) "Highway or street" means the entire width between the boundary lines of every way publicly maintained when any part thereof is open to the use of the public for purposes of vehicular travel.

(g) "Roadway" means that portion of a highway improved, designated or ordinarily used for vehicular travel. If a highway includes two or more separate roadways, the term roadway refers to any such roadway separately, but not to all such roadways collectively.

(h) "Shoulder" means that portion of a highway on either side of the roadway which is normally snowplowed for the safety and convenience of vehicular traffic.

(i) "Right of Way" means that portion of a highway less the roadway and any shoulder.

(j) "Dealer" means any person engaged in the sale, lease or rental of snowmobiles as a regular business.

SECTION II—Registration.

This Ordinance Requires that:

(1) No snowmobile shall be operated in the Village of Clarkston unless registered by the owner as provided in Act No. 178 of the Public Acts of 1971 and a certificate of registration obtained pursuant to said state law.

(2) Registration is not required for a snowmobile operated exclusively on lands owned or under control of the snowmobile owner.

(3) The display of a registration decal or other device on the snowmobile in the manner as required by State Law is also required and made a part of this ordinance.

SECTION III—Registration and Regulation; Place of Operation.

No person shall operate and no owner or dealer shall permit the operation of any snowmobile under the following conditions, circumstances, or at the following locations:

A. Upon a public highway, land used as an airport or street or any public or private parking lot not specifically designated for the use of snowmobiles except for the following circumstances:

1. A person may operate a snowmobile on the right of way of a public highway, except a limited access highway, if it is operated at the extreme right of the open portion of the right of way and with the flow of traffic on the highway.

2. A person may operate a snowmobile on the roadway or shoulder when necessary to cross a bridge or culvert if the snowmobile is brought to a complete stop before entering onto the roadway or shoulder and the driver yields the right of way to any approaching vehicle on the highway.

3. When it is impractical to gain immediate access to an area adjacent to a public highway, a snowmobile may be operated on a right of way adjacent and parallel to the roadway for the sole purpose of gaining access to and from the area of operation by the most direct route. Loading or unloading of a snowmobile shall be accomplished with due regard to safety at the nearest possible point of the area of operation.

4. A snowmobile may be operated across a public highway other than a limited access highway, at right angles to the highway for the purpose of getting from one area to another when the operation can be done in safety and another vehicle is not crossing the highway at the same time in the same general area. An operator shall bring his snowmobile to a complete stop before proceeding across any public highway and shall yield the right of way to all oncoming traffic.

5. Snowmobiles may be operated on a highway in a county road system, which is not normally snowplowed for vehicular traffic and on any snow-plowed highway in the county road system, outside the corporate limits of a city or village, which is designated and marked for snowmobile use by the county road commission.

6. A duly constituted law enforcement officer of the Village of Clarkston may authorize use of a snowmobile on a public highway or street within his jurisdiction when an emergency occurs and conventional motor vehicles cannot be used for transportation due to snow or other extreme highway conditions.

7. A snowmobile may be operated on a street or highway for a special event of limited duration, conducted according to a pre-arranged schedule only under permit from the Village of Clarkston. The event may be conducted on the frozen surface of public waters only under permit from the Department of Natural Resources pursuant to state law.

B. On private property not owned, leased, or under the control of the operator unless the operator has the express consent of the owner, lessee, or other person in control of said property, except in case of an emergency when other means of travel are not feasible or possible.

C. On public school grounds, parks, playgrounds, recreational areas, golf courses and other public lands (other than state-owned lands where such operation is authorized by statute) without the express consent of the public authority in charge of such lands or premises, except where such operation is absolutely necessary in an emergency when other means of travel are not feasible or possible.

SECTION IV—Operation by Minors.

1. A parent or legal guardian shall not permit his child who is under the age of 12 to operate a snowmobile without the direct supervision of an adult except on land owned or under the control of the parent or legal guardian.

2. A person who is at least 12 but less than 16 years of age may operate a snowmobile if:

a. He is under the direct supervision of a person who is 18 years of age or older; or if

b. He has in his immediate possession a snowmobile safety certificate issued pursuant to state law; or

c. He is on land owned or under the control of his parent or legal guardian. A person who is operating a snowmobile pursuant to subdivision (b) shall present the snowmobile safety certificate to any police officer upon demand.

3. Notwithstanding Section III, an operator who is under 12 years of age shall not cross a highway or street. An operator who is at least 12 years of age but less than 16 years of age, may cross a highway or street only if he has a valid snowmobile safety certificate in his immediate possession.

4. The owner of a snowmobile shall not permit his snowmobile to be operated contrary to this section.

5. Snowmobiles shall not be used to hunt, pursue, worry or kill a wild bird or animal.

6. When a judge of a juvenile court determines that a person who is less than 16 years of age has violated this act, the judge shall immediately report the determination to the department of natural resources. The director of natural resources upon receiving a notice of a determination pursuant to this sub-section may suspend this certificate without a hearing.

SECTION V—Equipment Required.

A snowmobile shall not be operated unless it has at least one headlight, one taillight and adequate brakes capable of one of the following while the snowmobile travels on packed snow and carries an operator who weighs 175 pounds or more:

1. Stopping a snowmobile in not more than 40 feet from an initial steady speed of 20 miles per hour; or

2. Locking the snowmobile's traction belt or belts.

SECTION VI—Operating Regulations.

A person shall not operate a snowmobile:

1. At a rate of speed greater than is reasonable and proper having due regard for conditions then existing.

2. While under the influence of an intoxicating liquor or narcotic drugs, barbitol or any derivative of barbitol.

3. During the hours from ½ hour after sunset to ½ hour before sunrise without displaying a lighted headlight and a lighted taillight.

4. In any forest nursery, planting area, or public lands posted or reasonably identifiable as an area of forest reproduction when growing stock may be damaged.

5. On the frozen surface of public waters within 100 feet of a person including but not limited to a skater, not in or upon a snowmobile or within 100 feet of a fishing shanty or shelter except at the minimum speed required to maintain forward movement of the snowmobile or on an area which has been cleared of snow for skating purposes unless the area is necessary for access to the public water.

6. Unless it is equipped with a muffler in good working order and in constant operation from which noise emission at 50 feet at right angles from vehicle path under full throttle does not exceed 86 DBA (decibels on the "A" scale) on a sound meter having characteristics defined by American Standard Association S1, 4-1966 "general purpose sound meter".

7. Within 100 feet of a dwelling between 12 midnight and 6 a.m. at a speed greater than minimum required to maintain forward movement of the snowmobile.

8. In or upon or remain unlawfully on premises which are fenced, otherwise enclosed in a manner to exclude intruders, posted in a conspicuous manner or when notice against trespass is personally communicated to him by the owner or an authorized person. A person shall not operate a snowmobile in or upon farmlands, farm wood lots or platted property in the Village without permission of the landowner.

You can tell it's Easter

The egg and first graders like Lisa Biron were central to secret projects being carried on in Rosemary Lewis' Clarkston Elementary School classroom this week. Parents were not to find out about the Easter surprise until later on.

Returning to academic endeavors, Tina Keener flashes a smile from beneath her bonnet.

Easter can go to the heads of boys, too. Robbie Ronk attaches the rabbit ears to his hat, much to the amusement of Todd Zeller.

A little dab, and another and another, did it for Lisa Heatherington as she discreetly decorated an Easter egg as a first-grade project at Clarkston Elementary School.

Hats are returning to the fashion scene this spring, we're told. They certainly were making a comeback this week in Pat Johnson's second-grade classroom at Clarkston Elementary School, where Betsy Travis helped the youngsters create Easter Chapeaux. Here Mrs. Travis ties the bow on the bonnet of Michelle Hamilton.

Kelly Olsen arranges her crepe paper flowers for her Easter bonnet.
