Rogers prepares to fight assessment hike

Springfield needs reappraisal, not a 20 percent assessment factor, supervisor says

DONALD W. ROGERS

by Jean Saile
of The Clarkston News
Springfield Township Supervisor Don Rogers is ready to take on the establishment—if he has the support of the people of his township.

That seems an aforegone conclusion. Rogers' war is with tax assessments, which ultimately means tax bills.

His arena will be the Finance Committee of the Oakland County Board of Commissioners this fall as he tries to prevent what he terms an unfair and inequitable 20 percent increase being slapped onto all 1976 property valuations in his township.

Since most Springfield Township residents have already had to take a 12½ percent increase which shows up in this year's tax bills, and since the township has not yet been able to accomplish a complete and fair reappraisal of all property within its boundaries, Rogers thinks he's right to take a stand.

"We're getting an outside reappraisal," Rogers stated. "If I can present that contract as evidence to the finance committee, and at the same time show the members the inequities between homes in present assessing practices, I don't see how they can refuse a moratorium on further increases until we get straightened around."

Rogers has file cards he can produce to support his claim for inequities. One shows a modern one story home on a normal sized residential lot, the assessed valuation $22,000.

Another card shows a similar house, but with a swimming pool, on more than 10 acres. That house is assessed at $20,000.

While Rogers admits both assessments are probably low, he feels the more extensive property is getting a tax break. Should a 20 percent hike be added across the board, the assessed valuations would be even more unfair, he says. The smaller landholder's assessed valuation would jump to $26,400 and the larger's to just $24,000.

There's another area where similar homes in the same area differ in valuation from $7,250 to $12,500, he reports.

When you consider that every $1,000 of assessed valuation is taxed at the rate of $39.03 in the Clarkston School District and $41.05 in the Holly District, the differences can cause considerable disparity in tax bills, Rogers points out.

The total assessed valuation of the township, including personal property tax, is now $38,618,880. With a 20 percent increase as asked by the county, that figure would jump to $46,342,656. That means the 3,000 or so property owners in Springfield will have that much more to pay taxes on, Rogers reports.

Rogers agrees an increase is needed, but he believes Springfield is being hit now because of the statewide move to gain fairness in assessing. Yet, and he has some support at the county level, he contends that Oakland County as a whole is assessed higher than most other counties in Michigan.

What Rogers as supervisor really wants is a clean slate in the assessing division. For several years now, part time people have attempted to organize and update the property cards kept on file, but it's a job that Rogers believes won't be accomplished well unless an outside firm comes in and does the whole job at once.

Independence Township had the reappraising job done four years ago at a cost of $62,500. Rogers said the county will do the job for $13 a description, a total cost of $39,000 in Springfield.

"I don't want the county to do it. The county does it too well," Rogers stated. "Increases where the county has done the job have been very dramatic, and that's evident in some of the townships. Orchard Lake has now hired an outside firm to redo what the county did," he reports.

Rogers said he was made aware of the pending hike in assessments by the County Equalization Department earlier this month. Director Herman Stephens is now on vacation and unavailable for comment.

"I really don't feel we can take a 20 percent increase across the board," Rogers contends.

"Maybe I'm cutting my own throat by getting ready to fight it, but the unfairness of the whole project is quite evident from the figures we have."

He continues, "I'm going on the assumption the people of the finance committee are sympathetic enough they will see that waiting for the reappraisal is the only fair thing to do."

Even if he wins, he notes he might lose. Reappraisals have always managed to hike costs significantly and the review of the reappraisal will come right before next November's election.

Presumably he'd like to be supervisor another term. "I'm wondering if I'm doing the right thing," he says.

Yet Rogers knows that once the reappraisal is accomplished, hikes and decreases would be on an equal basis. An across-the-board hike at that time would not foster inequities.

In carrying his plans to the people, he's utilized the township newsletter which is due out this week. He's laid the problem out for the people, and he says he'll act according to their wishes.

Or is it?

It's no horse laugh!

Clarkston people just keep on winning honors.

Latest in the string is Don Fox of Middle Lake Road, a salesman with South-Western Publishing Co., who is recipient of the Horace Sczaz award.

The award which prominently features the rear end of a horse on a piece of barn board is a brainchild of two of Fox's fellow salesmen who traverse the area selling textbooks.

Given without rhyme or reason, according to Fox, it became his according to the rules printed on the back -- "the person, who in the opinion of his fellow stablemates is most deserving of such recognition."

Attributes for selecting a Horace Sczaz include that "he be a scrubby looking beast and definitely show signs of crossbreeding... that he enjoy the whole business of pulling the manure spreader, the plow or carrying a bag... that he be fiery and spirited in the presence of a mare... that he have certain good points such as speed and stamina, broad forehead with room for the brain, be a big drafter and a nimble stepper... that he be a good 'horace' trader... and mostly that he be beloved and stand many hands tall in the eyes of his fellow riders."

Clarkston woman wins $10,000

The Michigan Lottery Commission announced Tuesday that Mrs. John Willingham, 37, of Eston Road had been presented a check for $10,000 as her winnings in the $1 triple play drawing September 11.

As of Tuesday she discovered she had the lucky ticket and hied herself to Lansing to collect the money, lottery spokesman said.

Mrs. Willingham and her husband, John, are both employed at Fisher Body plant in Pontiac. They have five children.

Lottery officials said the $10,000 ticket sold at Richardson's Dairy prior to the August 7 drawing is still uncollected.

Bicentennial commission to form church study group

A separate committee to investigate the cost and methods of financing rehabilitation of the old Clarkston Methodist Church will be formed by the Independence-Clarkston Bicentennial Commission.

The commission agreed last week that if it goes through with the purchase of the 100-year-old building, it will need definite information regarding upkeep and the community uses to which the church could be put.

Mrs. Ruth Basinger, acting chairman, said William Kessler Assoc., who did an initial study of the church, would be contacted for their findings and that the proposed study would proceed from there.

She said National Trust for Historic Preservation may have funds available for a planning study of the building's rehabilitation.

Part of the financing for purchase of the building is expected to come from sale of "Heritage", the Clarkston area historical book edited by Jennifer Radcliff. Mrs. Radcliff said nearly 500 books have been sold, and that they are available at The Clarkston News, Tierra Arts and Design, Kathy's Book Shoppe and Boothby's.

Don Balzarini was named commission fund raising chairman to replace John Bisha who resigned.

Future money-making projects under consideration include help from several other area organizations.

Present to address the group was County Bicentennial Chairman,

Benjamin Franklin Thompson IV.

Dems to meet

Independence Township Democratic Club will meet at 8 p.m. Thursday (tonight) at independence center, Maybee Road. A General meeting is planned and non-members are welcome.

BAIT to hear Murphy

County Executive Daniel T. Murphy will address the Business Association of Independence Township (BAIT) when it meets at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, September 24 at Howe's Lanes.

Village business group to meet

Village Business Association of Clarkston will meet at 7:30 tonight (Thursday) at the village offices, 25 South Main.

Contract ratification votes ahead

Clarkston teachers, members of the Clarkston Education Association, which has completed bargaining negotiations for this year's contract, were to meet for a vote on the contract at 4:15 p.m. today (Thursday).

A similar vote on ratification is anticipated by the Board of Education following a special meeting Monday at Andersonville Elementary School.

Kirk Norman of Snowapple was pretty disgusted Thursday when he came up to the Clarkston United Methodist Church with his bride to be and saw the church sign smashed by vandals. This is the second time in two weeks the sign has had rocks thrown though it, and the church's Rev. Paul Cargo says the replacement will cost $800. The church property is a prime target for young people crossing to and from school, he said. Twenty-five windows have had to be replaced already.

Golf stags gather

A long putt is concentrated on by Andy Lindsey, while partners Ed Hadden, Joe Noel and Dan Kelley look on, during the Clarkston Cafe Fifth Annual Stag Golf Outing, held at Spring Lake Golf Course Friday. The outing brought out 175 men; low scorer for the event was Ron Rothbart of Clarkston with a 72. Everyone won something at the outing, from a $122 cash prize down to small raffled items.

Dispatchers get a 'no'

The three fire dispatchers who work as much as 60 hours a week for Independence Township are going to have to wait awhile if they want to be included in the township's Blue Cross-Blue Shield program.

Fire Chief Frank Ronk made the request on behalf of Harold Goyette, Jack Hess and Mike Thayer, but the township board said Tuesday it would prefer to consider the matter later at a budget meeting.

The dispatchers now earn $200 a month and are part of the township's pension program. Their salary has been increased $100 a month since their employment three years ago.

Supervisor J. Edwin Glennie, calling it a "sensitive" topic because of the good work done by the three, admitted they had not had raises this year.

"We went into the budget year determined no one would get raises, and as it turns out they are probably the only ones who haven't," he said.

The fear that other part timers on the township employment roles might also request such fringes was expressed by Trustee Fred Ritter.

Clerk Bob Lay said he believed the fringe benefits should be confined to those people who make their livelihood from township employment. All three of the dispatchers hold other jobs, two of them getting current Blue Cross coverage from their place of employment.

Disco party fireworks

John Thawley's "ultimate non-stop disco party" which he intends to throw September 27 at Pine Knob to advertise his Birmingham men's clothing business is probably going to feature fireworks.

There's still a question, however, Thawley and his attorney, Jim Williams, failed to present their application for a permit to shoot off the pyrotechnics 30 days before the event.

Since Independence Township has an ordinance calling for the time lapse, which officials say is necessary to make the proper investigations, the Independence Township Board spent considerable time Tuesday night debating whether a bad precedent was being established or not.

Members finally decided that if Thawley complied with all the rules involving safety, bonding and insurance to the satisfaction of Fire Chief Frank Ronk and Police Chief Jack McCall, he should be allowed to proceed.

The vote was 3-1, Supervisor J. Edwin Glennie opposed and Trustee Jerry Powell absent.

Williams told the board he was unaware of the township ordinance when he made application for Thawley.

And the party? It's going to feature complimentary champagne, three dance floors, continuous non-stop music, electronic games, backgammon, sandwiches and hors d'oeuvres from 9:30 p.m. to 2 a.m.

Independence

proceeds with fire pact

Should a plane crash, a disaster or large fire occur here, Independence Township Fire Department wants to know who to call to get the additional emergency equipment it might need.

To that end, the township board Tuesday night gave approval to Fire Chief Frank Ronk to proceed with plans for a Mutual Aid Pact between all county fire departments. The final agreement will be brought back to the board for approval.

Ronk said fire departments from Independence, Avon, Bloomfield Hills, Bloomfield Township, Clawson, Commerce, Pontiac, Pontiac Township, Troy, Waterford, West Bloomfield and White Lake Township plus the Tri-City Fire Department and the Oakland County Sheriff's Department are currently engaged in formalizing an agreement that has been loosely in operation for some years.

"Every year it's getting a little more complicated," Ronk said. "Mutual aid is proving to be a negotiable item as departments sign labor contracts."

He said probably four meetings a year would occur between the various departments as a means of keeping current an equipment list they are now assembling.

He added that he doubted that the pact would ever lead to pooling of funds for purchase of "super" firefighting equipment, which most areas need only rarely if at all.

"It's more a method to circumvent what happens when a rural community calls a city fire department for an aerial truck. The truck gets out, and the crew finds there's no water available. It would have been better to call five tankers from surrounding communities," Ronk explained.

He said that in no way does such a pact mean that Independence would strip its equipment and manpower to rush to a neighboring community's help. "Only one piece of equipment would be sent," he said.

In other action the board empowered Ronk to seek state and federal funding that might be available for radio, firefighting and medical equipment.

Ronk said federal funds are available for communities which service a federal highway within their boundaries. Rescue and first aid funds should be available here because of the presence of I-75, he indicated.

He said he did not expect that local communities would get any of the $600,000 grant recently allotted Oakland County for such purposes. "It looks to me like it's all going to go to the private ambulance companies. They have the trained men and the equipment," he said.

Springfield

noise law

Plat changes

required

The Springfield Township noise ordinance should include all zoning areas in the township instead of just manufacturing and commercial, the Springfield Township Planning Commission decided Tuesday.

The commission was acting on an amendment to the noise ordinance that had been sent back from the township board to the planning commission for revision.

The original amendment only added residentially-zoned areas to the already restricted commercial and manufacturing districts that would be under jurisdiction of the noise ordinance.

But the township board members decided the ordinance amendment was not inclusive enough and asked the commission to make a recommendation.

The ordinance now goes to the township attorney for proper wording and from there must be approved by the township board.

Permitted noise levels in the amendment are not to exceed 75 decibels between 6 a.m. and 10 p.m. or 70 decibels between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m.

Township officials are hoping to curb problems with noisy snowmobiles, motorcycles and other loud activities such as grassers that have occurred in the township in the past.

Doris Underwood of Davisburg has until October 21 to come up with changes in submitted preliminary plats for two subdivisions, so that the plats will conform with township zoning regulations.

Mrs. Underwood, developer of Delaney Lane subdivision and Underwood Estates, both located in the Big Lake/Hillsboro area, has had her plats before the Springfield Township Planning Commission for over a year.

The commission decided Monday that it had waited long enough for changes in the plats recommended by the township planner, Todd Kilroy.

Members said they would either recommend denial or approval of the plats at their next board meeting—with the recommendation hinging on whether the developer comes up with the plat changes.

The Delaney development includes six single family residential lots, and the Underwood development 15 single family residential lots.

Home fire under investigation

A blaze believed to have started in the family room destroyed the Allen Russell Lewis home on Cherrywood at 10:30 Friday night while a pajama party for the younger Lewises and friends was in progress.

Springfield Fire Chief Marlan Hillman said the explosion type blaze is still under investigation. No injuries were reported.

Springfield received the call at 10:20 p.m. and was on the scene three hours, accepting assistance from Independence and Groveland Fire Departments.

Hillman reported that though the front half of the house remained standing, it had been badly damaged by smoke and charring. The family, now residing next door, also lost much of their clothing and furniture, he said.

Damage to the house was estimated at $19,000, but was covered by insurance, Hillman said.

A barn fire Friday on Oak Hill between Dixie and Holly was visible from Flint, Hillman reported. The fire, of unknown origin, destroyed an old two-story structure. Groveland Fire Department assisted Springfield at the scene.

Rezoning recommended

Some 35 acres of land between Whipple Lake and Sashabaw Road have been recommended for rezoning back to single family residential status.

The Independence Township Planning Commission voted on the matter Thursday night after learning the conversion to suburban farms designation in the new master zoning map had been a mistake.

Most of the lots in the area conform to single family zoning sizes of 15,000 square feet. Suburban farms requires three acres.

Fence viewers say Parr pays

Jack Parr of Clement Road is going to have to pay for his own fencing, if he intends to finish fencing in horses and livestock on the 7.8 acres of rural suburban property he owns there.

A fence viewing committee, resurrected from the annals of ancient state law, has determined that three neighbors of Parr, Douglas Birkett, Art and Bill Kelley, will not have to share costs.

Parr had invoked the old law which carried the proviso that in agriculturally used property, all parties were equally liable for a fence. A fence viewing committee composed of township trustees, was empowered to sit in review.

Township Attorney Richard Campbell who met with the committee last week said further research of the law showed that unless all parties have their property enclosed, the sharing of costs does not apply.

Parr is reportedly the only property owner of the four who uses his land agriculturally. The unfenced residential areas of the other three about his line.

Neighbors have complained of damage caused by straying stock, and Parr started to build a fence. When a dispute over property lines arose, he invoked the old statute.

Parr says he is not about to accept the decision of the committee and that it will, in fact, wind up in court. If he wins there, he says, he plans to install a fence made of large cement tiles.

He contends misinformation was presented at the hearing -- that the neighbors' property was once fenced and that one of his horses was killed not last year, but in 1973 in a traffic accident on the road.

K-3 busing extended

Some 17 children in grades kindergarten through three, living in the Clarkston Meadows Subdivision west of M-15 at the north end of the village have become eligible to ride school buses.

The action was taken last week by Board of Education administrators upon request of parents who live in the area. It followed a similar concession for younger children who live on Northview and in Green Acres Subdivision.

Safety -- because of busy M-15 and lack of sidewalks in some areas -- was the stated reason.

The administration, however, held firm to its policy of requiring those children in grades four to six, living within a mile and a half of the school, to walk.

Complaints by the Don Moody family on Northview in regard to a walking fifth grader were investigated, and administration spokesmen said other children were found in the area who are also walking to classes at Clarkston Elementary School. The Moody's had believed their child the only one in the area forced to walk by reason of the new busing policy.

The district is reimbursed by the state for busing only those children who live more than a mile and a half from school.

Any fight for justice is worthwhile

While we don't think Springfield Supervisor Don Rogers has much chance of winning his assessing battles with the County Board of Commissioners finance committee, we can't help but wish him well. Rogers is protesting a proposed 20 percent across the board assessment increase, designed to bring Springfield into line with the valuations for taxing purposes of other townships in the county. He contends the flat hike will accent the many inequities now existing in the Springfield Township tax rolls; and he insists the first step before making any upward move is to insure that all property is assessed fairly—as close to the 46 to 50 percent of market value figure used by the state as possible.

We think he's right to take a stand. Too many of us forget this country was founded on a principle of "justice for all", and it's only those who keep fighting for it who keep equality anywhere in sight.

Sometimes tilting at the windmills of bureaucracy is the only way to go. If Rogers does succeed, his will be a fine victory. If he doesn't, he still will have focused the attention of the public on the unpalatable conditions which exist in too many areas of our state.

'If It Fitz . . .'

A brush with crime, reputedly

by Jim Fitzgerald

Reputedly, my closest brush with organized crime occurred on a ferry boat to Mackinac Island in June of 1974. My wife and I sat across from Anthony (Tony Jack) Giacalone and his wife. He's the guy Jimmie Hoffa was reportedly going to lunch with the day Hoffa disappeared.

"How do you know she's his wife?" my wife whispered. "Maybe she's his moll."

"Don't believe everything you read in the yellow press," I cautioned her. "Remember, the newspapers always say Giacalone is a REPUTED leader in the Mafia. This means they can't prove it and don't want to risk a lawsuit."

"I'll bet he hates newspapermen," she said.

"Why don't you jump overboard on the port side," I said. "That would attract Tony Jack's attention while I stroll innocently to the starboard and throw away this stupid badge that says I'm here to attend a convention of the Michigan Press Association."

She looked at the huge hole I'd ripped in my shirt, removing the badge. "It's too late," she said. "I know he saw it. I can tell by the way he is smiling at us. Richard Widmark smiled like that in 'Kiss of Death'."

"I'm not a bit worried," I said. "Widmark didn't smile, he giggled."

On the island dock, there was one horse-drawn carriage headed for the Grand Hotel. We shared it with the Giacalone's. I stood near Tony Jack while a room clerk said he couldn't find the Giacalone reservation. Tony Jack insisted the reservation had been made. The clerk said no. I saw Tony Jack's hand move swiftly toward the left inside of his jacket.

Tony Jack pulled out confirmation of his reservation. The mix-up was quickly resolved. The reservation had been mis-filed because some dummy had spelled Giacalone with a J. I climbed back out of my garment bag and whispered to another clerk that I was with the Press convention. He said I had a big hole in my shirt.

In the dining room that night, I amused some friends with my theory of why Giacalone was on Mackinac Island. Ferry service stops at midnight and there is no way off the island until 7 a.m. "This place is a perfect alibi for any crime committed on the mainland after midnight. That's why Tony Jack caused a stir at the check-in desk. He probably misspelled his name on purpose when he made the original reservation. He wants people to remember him so he can prove he was marooned here while a big caper was going down in Detroit at 2 a.m. Someday I will probably be called as a witness to testify before a grand jury. If they ask why I was wearing a garment bag on the night in question, I'll take the fifth."

At this point my wife kicked my foot and furtively pointed behind me. I didn't need to turn around. Suddenly I knew she was telling me Giacalone was sitting at the next table.

"Is he giggling?" I whispered.

"Reputedly," she said. "I took my dessert to my room and ate it in the garment bag, reportedly."

Sainthood by diet

by Jean Saile

There's one good thing to that I'm inclined to tackle a say about having lost 30 few more tasks after dinner than I did pre-diet.

It's a lot easier to cut your But as for any resurgence of toenails. energy, no.

For some reason that seems If it is fun to catch a glimpse of to turn people off, who I the skinny you in a mirror, and suspect are looking towards it's even more fun to know successful dieters for the you're able to wear some of motivation they need to shed a your daughter's clothes. "Don't you feel better?" ever had.

Other than that—I frankly admit I am too old to look sexy, and I'm still too young to be considered wise. Therefore it's business as usual.

Yes, there's a doctor to blame for this dimishment. He told me my blood pressure was beginning to creep up, and that I'd better do something about it now if I ever planned to keep it in control.

That was my motivation—and I've discovered motivation is probably the most single important thing in going on and sticking to a diet.

The forsaking of cakes, cookies, alcoholic beverages, bread, macaroni, even fresh fruit as my high protein, low carbohydrate diet called for was as nothing once the determination not to slip had been formulated.

There's even a certain sense of sainthood that descends to buoy you up, and the supposition that if you starve yourself to death, you will have died being good.

I'm not done being good yet, but I have eased up. That finicky doctor says I've still got 15 pounds to lose.

Take this, Jim!

To the editor

How amusing to find in "Jim's Jottings" last week a description of a trait attributed to ("perhaps") all females: claiming verbally what is not officially theirs alone, i.e. my house, my bedroom, my pumpkin.

I am not a feminist in the most liberal sense, but it grinds me to see a man share stories on amusing feminine traits, when he fails to see the traits in himself.

This instance is not so much a claim of ownership as a claim of interest: I share an apartment with two other girls, but part is mine; there is a spot in Clarkston that I particularly identify with and enjoy, and it is therefore my (special) spot.

Don't tell me you have never heard a man refer to "my" car, or "my" lawnmower, or "my" money, the house "I" work so hard to keep, or my chair.

There is great positive psychological value in claiming identification with people, places, things. I would hate to see it limited only to women, Mr. Sherman.

Four-eyes aren't so bad after all

by Mary Warner
of The Clarkston News

While Clarkston residents don't have an Elton John to collect $250,000 in eye apparel, and while there's no Sammy Davis Jr. around with his name inscribed in lights on the side of his glasses, there's still a lot of diversity and imagination in eyeglasses in the area.

As more and more people are required to wear corrective lenses these days, so do the individual tastes pop out in the form of square, triangular, oblong, hugely round or pettily octagonal eyeglasses.

"People are style-conscious now," Lawrence McCulloch, Clarkston optician said. "Where years ago they used the same frame over and over, now they like to change styles every once in a while. Some people will even have two or three pairs."

Surprisingly, the recent trend toward wire rims was not "manufactured" as so many fashions are by manufacturers.

Rather, young people began wearing the new frames 10 years ago and manufacturers had to rise to the demand, McCulloch said.

"The poor manufacturers had to use metals they used in the 1930s for frames," he said, until the wire boom grew and manufacturers caught up.

Another surprising change in eyeglass wear is that wearing spectacles does not bear the stigma it used to, McCulloch said. "A lot of children come home complaining that they can't see. But then when the child is brought in (for an exam), the doctors find out there's nothing wrong with the child's eyes--he just wanted a pair of glasses like his friend has."

Even pre-schoolers are getting into the glasses scene, he said, as early examination has discovered eye problems at a younger age.

He's had several three, four and five-year-old customers in the past few months, he said--"Who wear these things"--and he pointed to a tiny little plastic frame just a bit bigger than an index finger.

Better health care among the populace in general is one of the reasons more people are wearing glasses.

And more people need glasses these days, he said, because eyes are getting a worse workout than they ever have before.

"Used to be, people would get up with the sun and go to sleep when it gets dark."

Now, with so much electrical light, and television, and people living at a faster pace--the eyes need help."

The eyes may need help, but so does the average customer's pocketbook as prices zoom higher and higher for frames and lenses.

Labor costs in the industry have tripled over the past 10-15 years, McCulloch said. And the price of gold has risen to somewhere around $175-$200 an ounce. Gold is used in both the silver and gold frames.

The trend is also toward larger frames, increasing the cost of materials. And after the age of 40, McCulloch said, bifocals usually become necessary, which again adds more costs.

McCulloch did not mention one other added cost for the parent--frequent breakage by their active youth.

One enterprising father known to this writer solved the problem by insisting, after the third pair of glasses, that non-breakable aluminum frames be used until his child was old enough to buy his own.

Toni Olsen prefers dark frames with the new lenses that adjust to lighting while her mother-in-law Emily Olsen wears a lighter plastic model.

Lawrence McCulloch, optician, wears quadrifocals to aid him in his work.

Clarkston trounces Oxford

Wolves' defense was right on target.

by Dave Johnson
Sports reporter

The Clarkston Wolves varsity football team started off the 1975 season in the usual Clarkston fashion by defeating Oxford, 29-6 Friday night.

The Wolves manhandled the Wildcats with a balanced offensive attack and a solid defense.

Seniors Larry Bennett and Tom Ross combined for 246 of Clarkston's 310 rushing yards. Bennett ran for 148 yards in 21 carries including three touchdowns, while Ross gathered 98 yards in 18 carries. Quarterback Wayne Thompson connected on five of his fifteen passes for an additional 25 yards and also scored a touchdown.

Clarkston's defense was its usual strong self, yielding but a single touchdown in the game.

They held Oxford to only 2 first downs, 90 yards rushing, and 76 yards passing. Three Wildcat passes were picked off, two by middle linebacker Tom Ross.

The Wolves took early control of the game by scoring touchdowns on their first two possessions. Following Oxford's opening kickoff, Clarkston drove upfield to the one yard line. It was at this point that Larry Bennett slipped into the end zone for the Wolves' initial score. Placekicker Bob Heath made the extra point to put Clarkston ahead 7-0.

On Clarkston's next possession, they drove the ball to the two, where Bennett scored his second touchdown. Tom Ross made the two-point conversion as the Wildcats found themselves trailing 15-0 after five minutes of play. The rest of the first half was scoreless as both defenses tightened up.

Following the Wolves' second half kickoff, Tom Ross intercepted a Wildcat pass on Oxford's 30-yard line, which resulted in Clarkston's third touchdown. Wayne Thompson scored on a quarter-back keeper from the one-yard line and Heath kicked the extra point to raise the score to 22-0 in Clarkston's favor.

The Wolves scored their final touchdown on a 35-yard run by Larry Bennett. Bob Heath kicked the extra point to cap off Clarkston's scoring.

Oxford finally scored their first touchdown against Clarkston in two years when they connected on a 60-yard bomb. The extra point attempt failed as the game ended, 29-6.

The Wolves take their 1-0 record to Milford Lakeland this Saturday in an attempt to make it two straight. The game starts at 2 p.m.

by David McNeven, Coach

Greek legend associated the introduction of boxing as a national sport with Thesus its Athenian hero. He passionately loved mortal fights and to see blood flow quickened his pulse—or so the historians have it. When he conscripted young men for the defense of Athens, they had to train by fights with their fists. Thesus made them stay closely facing each other. On a signal they had to start battering each other without mercy. The death of an antagonist was considered victory.

White's Wolves

Defense key to victory

by Rob White

The Clarkston Wolves proved last Friday that football is here to stay at Clarkston. Our team performance showed great desire to play this emotional sport. The hard work and bruises are well worth the effort when the team is successful and happy after the game. I have never known a young man worth his salt who didn't deep down enjoy the day to day grind of varsity football.

Our scoring drive after the opening kick-off set the tempo for the remainder of the game. This immediately showed our opponent that there would be no upset on opening night.

Our defense keyed the victory by allowing Oxford only two first downs for the entire game. The starting defensive unit allowed only 40 yards gained on the ground by Oxford.

Oxford's only score of the night came with less than two minutes left in the game, while we were building some experience in our defense by playing some younger players.

Our offensive machine marched for over 300 yards rushing and played aggressive football. We ran 90 offensive plays--a record number of plays for our team. It is a good sign to control the ball so much in the opening game.

We were not as sharp on the while as we will become during the course of the season.

Much work must be done to conquer our extremely tough schedule. A team either gets better or worse, but will never stay the same. Therefore, improvement is our next goal.

Our fan support was excellent and we did bring more spectators than the home crowd. This means a great deal to our young squad when we are supported in such fine fashion. We hope we can continue to perform at a level that is exciting.

Our game this week will be on Saturday at 2 p.m. at Milford Lakeland High School. Lakeland won last Friday 26-3. This is a team that has every ball player returning from last year.

They are approximately the same size as our team, but are much more experienced. I look for another close contest, mostly because Clarkston is not used to playing on a Saturday afternoon.

We are mentally conditioned to play on Friday nights and a change could upset our rhythm. We'll need your support.

Coach White passes on a few pointers to end Jeff Bullard.

CHS athletes of the week

Paul Glowzinski

In continuance of a policy initiated last year, Clarkston High School has named its top athletes of the week.

They are Paul Glowzinski of the cross country team and Cindy Johnson and Tricia Robertson who share tennis honors.

Glowzinski is the only returning senior on this year's cross-country team. His coach says he is doing a fine job of leading his teammates both in practice and meets.

He set the pace in a triangular meet with Brandon and Oxford last week, leading his team to victory and crossing the finish line first with a time of 16 minutes, 27 seconds for three miles.

On Saturday Glowzinski finished in the top 20 at the Holly Invitational with 160 runners participating. A trophy was awarded for his time of 16 minutes, 22 seconds.

Robertson and Johnson are the doubles team recognized for their efforts in a match against Waterford Kettering last week. While losing the first set 7-5, they battled back to beat their opponents 6-4 and 6-3.

Girl cagers suffer close defeats

by Jan Modesitt

On Tuesday of last week, the CHS girls' basketball teams took the court for the first of their 19 regular season games of the year. Despite a large and enthusiastic group of spectators in the bleachers, both of Clarkston's teams went down to defeat in their non-league home openers.

Clarkston's varsity had the situation well under control during the first half, at which time they held a 28-20 lead going into intermission. The second half was a different story, though, as the varsity squad took only 14 shots and scored only 9 points in the final 16 minutes of the game. The final varsity score was Fenton 45-Clarkston 37.

Leading scorer for Clarkston was Nancy Chartier with 12 points (10 of which were free throws). Kathy Rush checked in with eight points, while Diane Curry tallied six points.

Auturm Matlock held command of the varsity boards by hauling down a game high of 12 rebounds.

Clarkston's JV team had no better luck in their opening game, as they lost to Fenton by the score of 32-30. Missed free throws were a big factor in the loss, according to Coach Kathy DeArmond, who noted that her team scored on only six of 39 chances from the charity line.

Leading scorers for the JV were Anne Vaara eight points, Pat Killian seven points, and Gale Graham six points. Jane Tatu hauled down 12 rebounds to lead the JVs in that department.

Watching from the sidelines is a different sort of game.

Football parents initiated

by Hilda Bruce
of The Clarkston News

Sometimes watching the parents of young, first-time football players can be almost as much fun as watching the game.

In the opening tilt between Sashabaw and Clarkston Junior High Schools Thursday night, the parents were there -- many of them experiencing a first at watching a son in play.

Pride was evident, but so was some side concerns.

Lew and Diane Wint, parents of Bill Wint of the Clarkston Junior High squad, were pretty proud and pretty excited.

"We've lived in Clarkston 16 years and attended a lot of games. This is the first time we've had a vested interest!" Lew said.

Although Bill has always played baseball, "This is a new experience," Diane added.

"But getting those uniforms cleaned," groaned Diane. "There should be some other way. I don't have any fingers left." The washing directions say to hand wash, she explained.

Carole Bradley had similar feelings about washing the uniform for her son Michael of the CJS team. Besides dirt Michael's comes home all bloody.

"Michael comes home looking like he's been in a real fight!" Carole commented.

Sashabaw Junior High player Mark Thompson had lots of support on the sidelines Thursday night. His folks, Doris and Clancy, didn't miss a move he made.

"He's made the only touch-down so far!" Doris said proudly.

The pride was tempered by typical motherly concern. "I have mixed feelings about him playing," Doris said. "I'm glad he's playing because he likes it so much, but he's a musician, too, and I worry about his hands."

Mark plays the piano and the trumpet.

Mark's father, Clancy didn't seem too worried. "It's good for them," he said of the hard work entailed. "They need it."

"I even committed the unpardonable sin," laughed Doris, "I came straight from work and have on green slacks!" She also had on a white coat. Both are the colors of the opposition.

One of the most excited set of parents at Thursday night's game was Jack and Margaret Byers. Their son, Charlie, who has five sisters, is the first in two generations to play football.

"If this is what he wants, great!" Margaret said. "After five cheerleaders it's different though."

"I'm going to have to learn football now," Margaret laughed.

Charlie's sister, Rhonda, was just as excited and proud as her parents. "There! He was that one!" she shouted, as she found him untangling himself in the aftermath of a play.

Margaret Byers has solved the uniform washing problem. "Charlie does his own. I bought him a big can of 'Shout'. It works pretty well, she said.

That's a hint for Sally Leak who said "I'm afraid to use bleach, it could yellow the fabric."

Even if the uniforms were yellow there was nothing yellow about the fellows who wore them Thursday night. They kept the spectators on the edge of their seats throughout the game which ended in a 6-6 tie.

Junior High clash ends in tie

Sashabaw end Mark Thompson connected for the Cougars' only touchdown of the game.

Boosters Club needs members

The Clarkston Boosters Club, a non-profit organization, which returns all proceeds to Clarkston High School sports departments, is in need of more members.

The group will be meeting at 8 p.m. September 22 in Clarkston High School library, in the first of series of monthly meetings this year.

Members say that whether your sons or daughters participate in the athletic program, the organization is a friendly group and able to provide young people with equipment that in some cases the school cannot provide.

Money is earned through the operation of the concession stands for the various events, and spent according to vote of the members.

College scholarships are awarded deserving student athletes who want to further their education. Warm-up jackets for the girls' softball and boys' baseball teams, track cushions for the high jump and pole vault pit, a seven-man blocking sled for the football team and new white uniforms for the football players are among items the group has purchased.

It was a defensive game all the way last Thursday when the Clarkston Wolverines met the Sashabaw Cougars for both teams' traditional season opener clash.

Offensive mistakes on both sides kept the score down to a 6-6 tie, and both teams suffered what coaches Larry Sherill and Chris Krueger termed opening game jitters.

Sashabaw scored first early in the first quarter on a pass from halfback Bob Foster to end Mark Thompson. The Cougars made the touchdown on their opening drive against the Wolverines.

The Wolverine defense then took over for the remainder of the first quarter, and neither team sustained drives to score.

Hampered by rain during the second quarter, the Cougars and Wolverines both jockeyed around but failed to score, a fumble by Clarkston and Sashabaw's two-yard line hurting the Wolverines' best chance.

Clarkston came back quickly at the beginning of the second half, and drove down field to score on a pass from quarterback Bill Kratt to tight end Rueben Hutchons.

A total of eight penalties for the Wolverines, many of them coming in the second half, hampered the Clarkston team, despite two turnovers by Sashabaw on fumbles in the fourth quarter.

A Sashabaw pass was also intercepted in the fourth quarter by Hutchons, but Sashabaw retained the ball when a pass interference penalty was called against the Wolverines.

The Cougar defense played an excellent game, Coach Krueger said, holding the Wolverines at bay after the turnovers--and especially in three separate attacks by the Wolverines that got the Clarkston team as close as the three and four-yard-line of Sashabaw.

Although the Wolverines failed to score more than once, they racked up an impressive number of yards rushing--200 for the game, and Coach Sherill thinks that once the team forgets its jitters, it will start to play some good ball.

Leading the rushing attack for the Wolverines were halfback Jim Brittain and fullback Scott Curry, both of whom piled up 74 yards rushing.

Clarkston's entire defense effort was praised by Coach Sherill.

The Sashabaw offense lost momentum in the second half, according to Coach Krueger.

Defensively, the Cougars received excellent play from tackles Jim Miller and Scott Betzing--Betzing recovered both of Clarkston's fumbles.

Also putting in a good defensive job for the Cougars were cornerbacks Scott Eriksson and Leo DeLisle.

Unlikely hero was the Cougar's chaser on punt coverage, halfback Bob Foster.

Both Clarkston and Sashabaw were to play tough teams on Wednesday. The Cougars played at home against Waterford Crary, and the Wolverines away against West Bloomfield.

ME AND MINE

By Pat Sherwood

"99"

A new card game has hit the circuit for at-home entertainment whether it be with friends or the kids... it's called "99".

The rules are simple:

1. 10's count as reducing the amount by 10.
2. Face cards count as ten.
3. Red two's count 99.
4. Aces count only as one.
5. 9's freeze the number previously played.
6. All other cards are face value.

The idea of the game is to reach the count of 99 without going over. If you are forced to go over 99, having no alternatives, you're out, the hand is over. Loser gives up one chip to the "kitty". Next hand is dealt.

Three cards are dealt to each player and the remainder of the deck is placed center. The player to the left of the dealer begins by putting one card down. He calls out the number, say it's 10. (A face card.) He then picks up a card from the deck to replace it. The next player plays a card, say it's 8 and calls out 18. The next player continues. He may have a red two, plays it, calling out 99. The next player then has several choices depending of course upon what he has in his hand. For instance, a 9 would freeze the count at 99, a 10 played would bring the count back to 89, another red two would again be 99.

It isn't confusing when you remember the basics and it goes very quickly in addition to challenging your brain a-bit when you must add quickly. The game should move fast. Never forget to replace your card after you have played one or you are out of that particular hand. The other players continue the hand.

Score winners accordingly by chips, each being given 3 to begin with. When you have lost the three chips, you are out! Game can be played with two or ten people, any number in between. Fun. Try it!

VANILLEKIPFERL (Vanilla Crescents)

Have all the ingredients for this recipe as cold as possible, and work in a cool place.

Cut 1 cup less 2 tablespoons butter into  $2\frac{1}{2}$  cups all-purpose flour sifted with  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup sugar. Add  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup blanched ground almonds, 2 egg yolks, and  $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon vanilla, and work the ingredients into a smooth dough. Chill the dough for at least an hour. Roll the dough into strips the thickness of a finger and cut the strips into 2 inch pieces. Roll out each piece until it is 3 inches long and curve it into a crescent. Bake the crescents on a buttered baking sheet in a slow oven (300°F) for about 20 minutes, until they are dry and very faintly colored. Sprinkle a plate heavily with vanilla sugar. With a spatula carefully transfer the warm crescents to the plate and sprinkle them with more vanilla sugar.
Makes about 60.

Varsity luckier

Control of the ball was the name of the game for the Clarkston varsity Friday night, as Oxford fell victim to the Wolves' steaming offense.

JV Wolves downed 25-14

A bigger opponent and inefficient offensive blocking contributed to the 25-14 defeat Saturday of the Clarkston Junior Varsity football team at the hands of the Oxford Wildcats, according to coach Paul Tungate.

Clarkston is small this year. Tungate said, and could not control Oxford's sweeps. The JV's will be changing some of their offensive blocking assignments and working on their defense in preparation for Thursday's game at Hazel Park.

Scoring got off to a fast start in Saturday's game when Oxford fielded the first kickoff of the game and drove down the field to score. A short pass netted the Wildcats the touchdown, and a successful kick made the score 7-0.

Clarkston retaliated quickly. The first play after Oxford's kickoff to them, the Wolves scored six when halfback John Baker ran for a 44-yard touchdown.

Back Richard Walenski then attempted to run a sweep for a two-point conversion, but was stopped by Oxford, making the score 7-6.

That ended the scoring drive for both teams the first half, as fumbles hampered offensive efforts on both sides. A drive by Oxford down to the two-yard line in the second quarter was stopped by the Wolves.

During the second half, Oxford scored three more times and Clarkston once. A pass and a run netted the Wildcats 12 more points in the third quarter--both kicking attempts by the Wildcats were stopped.

Another touchdown in the fourth quarter by the Wildcats made the score 25-6, and the Wolves could only push for one more touchdown--a sweep by John Baker--before the game ended.

Richard Walenski ran for a two point conversion for the Wolves, making the final score 25-14.

Baker played an outstanding game, coach Tungate said, as did defensive linebaker Jeff Boyer, who was in on many of the Clarkston tackles.

Tungate said the Wolves will be trying different plays for coming games than the JVs have run in past years, as the team is smaller and successful past plays are not working with the new team.

Truckers take title

by Mike Jewell

By winning two games in a row from the Pine Knob Rangers, the Ben Powell Truckers have captured Independence Township Recreation Department's Men's Softball play-off title.

The Rangers, undefeated in play-off competition, went into the double elimination finals confident of winning it all. The Truckers had different ideas as Tom Allen signaled in Dave Bullard in the bottom of the sixth inning to tie up the first game at 1-1. The Truckers finally won the game in the bottom of the seventh inning 2-1 when Mike Robinson drove in King on an error.

In the second game, with the score at 7 all in the bottom of the seventh, Mike Madison singled in Tom Allen for the game's winning run and also to win the play-off championship for the Truckers.

The big guns for the Truckers in those final two games were Allen who went 3-5 with two RBI's, Lanny Jackson who went 5-5 with one RBI, and Dave Bullard who went 4-8.

The big bats for the Rangers were Brown who went 3-4 with two RBI's, Mark Warren who went 4-4 with one RBI and Rick Reis who went 2-3.

Girls drop three

Clarkston's girls' tennis team lost to Kettering 6-1 in the opening play of the season Wednesday at Clarkston High School.

The only win for the local girls was netted by Cindy Johnson and Tricia Robertson, who defeated a Kettering doubles team in two of three sets. The scores were 5-7, 6-4 and 6-3.

The team is co-captained by Nancy McAlevy and Jody Combs and coached by Karen Engle.

Friday night against West Bloomfield at West Bloomfield, the Clarkston team was defeated 7-0. West Bloomfield was a very tough team, according to coach Engle.

But while the girls lost a succeeding match 4-3 Monday against Milford at home, the game was a lot closer, with four Clarkston girls winning matches in singles and doubles play.

PTA dessert night

The Sashabaw PTA will be holding a dessert night for teachers and interested parents Monday, September 22, from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at North Sashabaw Elementary.

New district librarian Katharine Wlodarczyk will speak at the dessert; coffee and donuts will be served for everyone.

Once again Cindy Johnson and Tricia Robertson won their doubles match in sets of 7-6, 5-7, and 6-0.

Also posting wins were Zoann Matthews with sets of 6-1 and 6-2 and Nancy McAlevy, with a score of 4-6, 6-3 and 6-4.

Cindy and Tricia were awarded girls' athletes of the week this week for their play against Kettering.

The team traveled to Andover Wednesday, and are here Friday to play Lake Orion beginning at 3:30 p.m. on both the high school and Clarkston Junior High courts.

Clarkston Senior High School will offer four adult education evening credit courses beginning Monday, September 22 at the school.

The 15 weekly classes, lasting from 7 to 10 p.m. are free for residents and non-residents who are veterans, those who are out of school students but seeking a high school diploma, and high school graduates under 20 years of age as of last August 31.

The courses are offered in welding, machine shop, basic automotive repair and woodworking and refinishing. Registrations will be accepted the first night of class.

Several hobby and recreational type classes will also be available at the school beginning September 23 through 25. Registration will be the first night of class.

Beginning the 23rd, eight-week classes in intermediate Bishop sewing techniques (cost $14), oil painting (cost $14) and typing, both beginning and advanced (cost $15) will be offered. Also scheduled that night is the start of a six-week course in macrame

Basic Bishop sewing techniques will be offered beginning September 24 for eight weeks at a cost of $14.

Chair caning begins Thursday, September 23 for six weeks at a cost of $10.

All classes begin at 7 p.m. and last for two hours, except for the sewing classes which last for two and a half hours.

The classes are offered on a self-supporting basis and a minimum of ten persons is required for each. In case of cancellations, full refunds will be made, school officials said.

New voc ed director named

Clarkston and Brandon School Districts are sharing the costs and benefits of a new vocational education director on a 60-40 percent basis.

The recently named director is Marvin Hess, 38, of Pontiac who was placement coordinator of project growth at the Northeast Oakland Vocational Education Center and Community Education Coordinator in Pontiac.

His position is paid for with the help of a 40 percent reimbursement from the state, district officials said.

Hess replaces Mrs. Dee Shaw, who resigned this summer.

Bleachers, benches slated for Dilley Road park

The Springfield Township Parks and Recreation Department has tentatively decided to spend $5,000 in federal land grant monies to improve Dilley Road Park.

The commission hopes to do grading and top dressing at the park and install bleachers and benches.

A special meeting will be September 29 to discuss the improvements and also discuss other possible township land improvements, including the leveling of the archery range on Eaton Road.

The commission will also formulate winter recreation programs at the meeting. Programs presented by new park department director, Dean Eisler at Monday's commission meeting were held in abeyance until that time.

Concerned about duplicating winter recreation programs put on by Independence and Holly Townships, the commission will try to coordinate its projects so there will be no duplication.

Some programs being considered by Eisler are art, nature, chess and senior citizens courses and cross-country skiing.

Fall rec programs varied

An alphabetical mix of Independence Township Recreation Department activities covering everything from archery to wrestling is getting underway here this week.

Programs in archery, belly dancing, bike club, dried flower arranging and nature crafts, flag football, photography, scuba diving and square dance got started this week.

Part of the 33 different activities offered by the department in its fall program, these courses will be augmented later with the addition of such items as art start, ballet, men's basketball, blooper ball, cheerleading, chess, gymnastics, guitar, hunter safety, karate, men's open gym, modern dance, Scotch Highland dance, self defense for women, skiing, slimmastics, soccer, women's volleyball and wrestling.

Deer Lake Raquet Club will be the setting for the department's series of tennis lessons which get underway September 22. Classes will be offered beginners, advanced beginners and intermediates at the rate of $28 for eight lessons.

Senior citizen trips will also be arranged at reduced rates through the department. Further information is available by calling 625-8223.

Clarkston Area Jaycees were a little discombobulated Monday. The fellas played 10 games of softball over the weekend in Allen Park, winning 8 and placing third in the Jaycee State Tournament.

Seven of the games were played on Saturday.

Tommy Allen of the Clarkston squad was named Most Valuable Player for the tournament.

The team's overall record this year was 64-11.

Tournament placing was especially sweet to the hometown boys after they lost their first game.

Romeo Jaycees were declared the winners.

Independence Township Building Director Kenneth Delbridge has been receiving so many phone calls about his new departmental car, that probably we'd best explain it was the cheapest available in the full size category.

Eight bids were taken and the only one lower than the $125 monthly lease cost for the Delta 88 was $115 for another Nova.

Delbridge says the bigger cars hold up better on the roads on which he finds it necessary to drive them. The new car replaced a 1971 Nova valued at $400.

A four-ton rock was maneuvered into place on Deer Lake Beach Saturday morning. Off the Helveston property, it was delivered to its new location with heavy equipment donated by Steve Stolaruk.

Intended as the resting place for a name plaque designating the beach, it will be finished off later this year by Clarkston Area Jaycees.

Joseph Locricchio of Pine Knob is reportedly building a draining ditch which will divert Pine Knob run-off water into Sashabaw Creek.

An old earthen dam located south of Waldon Road and north of I-75 across from the ski resort burst in one of the August rains, and several homes on Pine Knob Road were reportedly flooded.

The drainage ditch should take the excess water away with no problem, township officials feel.

Sometimes it's hard to tell left from right -- especially when you're dealing with a photograph that is always reversed in your eye. That's how Denis Serres, 15-year-old French exchange student, was mistakenly identified as Craig Thornberry in a cutline about the exchange student and family in last week's issue.

Denis is the dark-haired boy on the right, not the tow-headed one on the left, as stated.

RAMSEY LEWIS CONCERT

Phillip Purser

What was billed as a summer jazz concert at Oakland University's Baldwin Pavilion Saturday afternoon September 13, 1975, turned into a fall jazz festival. Four excellent jazz groups, headed by Ramsey Lewis, played for a chilly crowd and the whole extravaganza lasted for seven hours.

Blankets, sleeping bags, and wine were the order of the day as the handful of people on hand at the start of the outdoor concert grew to sellout crowd by the time Ramsey Lewis appeared after 9 p.m. Young people huddled together as they tried to ward off the nippy weather as they listened to three of the hottest names in jazz today.

Co-sponsored by the Detroit jazz fm station WJZZ, the O.U. Concert Band, and Brass Ring Productions, the festival-length concert featured in addition to Lewis Lonnie Liston Smith and George Benson. A Los Angeles group called L.T.D. or Love, Togetherness, and Devotion, opened the late starting concert with some loud, brassy jazz. designed to help the world forget Chicago and Blood, Sweet and Tears. However, they were barely able to assist the sluggish and sparse audience forget the temperature.

Lonnie Liston Smith and the Cosmic Echos followed and the hardy crowd began to warm up. Pianist Smith and his popular group played a few extended selections from their outstanding "Expansions" album. Smith is capable of a skillful and energetic attack on accoustic piano when his talented ensemble do something like "Summer Days", but when younger brother, Donald Smith, vocalizes the mood becomes erie and serene. The younger Smith's singing on numbers such as "Peace" and "My Love" show his seemingly effortless approach but perfect tone.

After an annoying delay while electricians fiddled interminably with wires and speakers and such, George Benson came on with his quintet. With the lawn and seats completely filled and the sun fast disappearing, Benson brought the youthful crowd to its feet with his exciting, heavy bass sound. His reworking of "Take Five" with his brilliant improvisation had people on their feet dancing and surging forward toward the stage. Throughout his set, there were self-styled cheerleaders calling out "Bad Benson" and "Go Benson".

After the final, chilly delay, Ramsey Lewis with his crowd-pleasing sound came on to take over where Smith and Benson left off. Lewis has his followers and they were not disappointed as he quickly launched into his electronic version of "Sungoddess" and "Hotdoggit". His sound is nearly the same as on his "Sungoddess" album despite the absence of "Earth, Wind and Fire" musicians and singers. Jazz purists might wince at Ramsey Lewis' music, but the people who buy records and buy concert tickets love him.

One of our residents will be involved in a minor hunting accident this fall. The cause may be totally unrelated to guns, and caused instead by accident or illness.

There'll be another body found in the vicinity of Pine Knob in the future, maybe a year. There'll be snow on the ground.

I don't believe Susan Ford will marry while her father is in the white house.

I believe Dick Austin will run for U.S. Senator. I know he will run for a higher office than the Secretary of State's position and I believe he will be successful.

I've got to admit I'm notoriously wrong on sports related questions, but I'll make a stab in the dark and say I'll be surprised if either U of M or MSU sends a team to the Rose Bowl this year. If one does go, it will be MSU, but U of M will beat State in their annual tilt.

The Lions will even win a few this year, but I think once they start revamping the club they'll become a good, hard winning team within two or three years. They'll stay that way for a while.

There's some doubt ahead about whether Mickey Lolich will come back to the Tigers next year. He's going to have a hard decision to make.

The subject was children

Parents seek understanding of their special needs

It might have been a coffee klatsch, but the subject was more serious and a couple of men were present as a new parents' group designed to promote understanding of children who need special education was launched Monday night at Clarkston High School.

Called by Mrs. Jan Seifert, a mother of a child in the program, the meeting was under the auspices of Clarkston Community Schools Special Services Division.

Mrs. Rosetta LaMagna, a school social worker, and Mrs. Marjorie Sullivan, a learning disabilities teacher, were present to help Mrs. Seifert field questions.

And there were questions -- most of them relating to hyperactivity, but some to emotional problems.

"What do I do?" was the question most often asked, and the topics ranged from aggressive behavior to use of obscene language to fidgeting, to eating problems and an excess of bad behavior.

The parents there, along with the help of the pros, fielded questions as they arose, the goal of the group being a series of classes to help parents understand their special needs children in a way so they can give them help.

Once-a-month meetings were planned tentatively by the group which seeks a parent advisory council to set up specific programs.

A side-effect of the meeting, members hope, will be greater understanding and acceptance by the community and other children of the problems their youngsters face.

Said one mother, "I walk my child to the bus stop every morning, because the kids there make fun of him because he rides the special education bus."

"I have a neighbor who always bring a cup of coffee and waits there with me. She does that so no special stigma attaches to my child." She was grateful.

Another woman whose child was enrolled in the special education programs of the school for the first time this year confessed to following the bus a couple of days to make sure everything went alright. "But she loves it," the happy mother said.

Conversation was of children unable to make decisions, and becoming emotionally upset when faced with choices . . . of children who hated themselves . . . and of children who tended to make everybody else hate them.

The parents, as they talked, began to laugh at some of the problems which one said were the kind to make a mother climb a chandelier.

Citizens' band club rides airwaves

Pete Wilbanks [left] and Robert Wedge talk about the Roaring 20s CB Club in front of Pete's citizens' band radio.

by Mary Warner
of The Clarkston News

Bob Wedge was traveling out west in 1965 when he encountered an accident. Bob tried in vain to get help on a walkie-talkie belonging to his brother-in-law but the walkie-talkie was just not strong enough.

Bob then capitulated to the urge his brother-in-law had already had to buy a citizens' band radio, and from then on Bob was a bonified CB'er.

Pete Wilbanks met a guy who had a citizens band radio, he said, and rode in his radio equipped car.

The next day, Pete went out and bought his own set, and from then on has never been without one.

Bob, president of the Roaring 20s CB Club and Pete, a founding member of the club, use their sets constantly now--not just for emergencies, but for club business.

The Roaring 20s club owns its own building in Davisburg, and has 39 families as members.

Out of Pete's home on Crosby Lake Road, he talks to members in Lansing, Detroit, Hazel Park, and many other Michigan communities. If he wants to set up a pancake supper, he just turns on the CB and gathers up enough members.

Using his code name, Coonhunter, and his FCC call numbers, Pete talks to Rugcutter (Bob) or six foot, six-inch Big Bear, Woodchuck, Northern Hillbilly, or Lickety-Split (named so because he does everything fast.) Lickety's wife's code name is Slowdown--because she moves slowly, Bob adds.

Once a month, the roaring 20s CB'ers gather in their hall in Davisburg for a meeting and some form of entertainment.

Last Sunday, they joined in eating a birthday cake commemorating the club's ninth anniversary.

sary.

Pete was one of the first members of the club, and remembers how it was formed. He and some friends were roasting a hog on Saturday night, and all night long he had his set on, calling to other CB'ers to come to the barbecue.

The barbecue was so successful, seven families got together in September and formed the Roaring 20s club--"Roaring," because the group was always noisily boisterous at get-togethers and over the air, and "20s" because the group conversed on channel 20.

Today, requirements for joining include having a class C citizen's band license to operate, and an agreement that there will be no drinking during club functions.

The CB'ers get around, their most visible project the yearly jamboree at Imlay City.

The jamboree this year attracted some 3,000 CB'ers from all over the country, and prompted one concessionaire to say he'd rather be with CB'ers than anyone else in the world--"because everyone's so friendly."

Friendship is the primary reason for the club . . . not only the friendships arising from club activities, but the friendship CB'ers find over the air.

The radio is one means of communication for some otherwise lonely shut-ins, Pete says, like the blind woman living in Detroit who uses her set for company.

Pete and Bob told of numerous shut-ins and retirees like her who have no other means of keeping touch with the world other than their citizens' band radio.

The group also uses radios extensively for emergencies--like the one occurring while Pete was talking--a woman with a flat tire. She called for help over her citizens' band, and luckily was aided by a fellow motorist.

Pete can remember several years ago, when a call came over from the police that an airplane had crashed near Hillsboro Road. A group of CB'ers went out and hunted for crash victims, he said.

Five years ago, he also remembered, White Lake police sent the message that a fatherless family needed help. The family's identical twins had a birthday on New Year's Day, and there wasn't even any food in the house.

"We got on the radio," Pete said, "and within two hours had two carloads of food and things to bring to the family."

Three years ago, Pete said, he brought a whole truckload of collected goods to a family who lost their home to fire--a truckload donated by CB'ers.

One thing the group is not supposed to do, Pete said, is use their radios for what the Federal Communications Commission calls "chit chat."

Citizen's band was originally licensed for business uses, Pete and Bob said, and is not supposed to be used as a hobby.

Citizens' band operators are allowed only five watts of power, and can only converse with others station-to-station within a 150-mile radius.

Hardly any of the CB'ers adhere to FCC regulations, Pete said. Most of them feel "the FCC has made outlaws of the CB'ers."

The FCC cut down the number of channels CB'ers could use on their allotted 11-meter frequency 10 years ago, from 23 call channels to seven.

The reduced amount of call stations has glutted the number of CB'ers on any one channel, leading many to use other channels in the 23-channel frequency.

That has led, according to one CB'er to a federal task force in Oakland County looking for CB'ers using their radios illegally. There's other abuses of the CB. Truck drivers, Bob said, use the radios to signal exact locations of police cars.

Calls come over like "Bear in the woods with camera"--meaning a police car hiding in the wooded median of a highway, using radar.

Policemen are called "smokies" by the truck drivers, and can be pinpointed by truckers and listening CB'ers down to a quarter mile marker on an expressway.

The police sometimes kid about the situation, Bob said, but they "still must do their job."

Most of the CB'ers, though, observe one cardinal rule for all air speech--"no foul language." The truckers sometimes even abuse that rule, Pete said, but not very often.

Despite the problems, the CB'ers still represent an extremely large group with a common bond of communication--a group that numbers over a million in the United States.

There are eight CB radios within a one-mile radius of Pete's home, he reports.

The group contributes yearly to the club's designated charity--the Oakland County Children's Village.

Deerwood grand opening

by Jean Saile
of The Clarkston News

John Helveston's Deerwood, a luxury homesite subdivision located north of the village of Clarkston off Perry Lake Road east of M-15, was officially opened to the public today.

The ribbon cutting ceremony, in which local officials participated, was complete with a $100 donation by the developer to Independence Land Conservancy to help that group pay for its costs in the erection of a village band shell last summer.

Guests invited for the occasion -- the first grand opening of a major residential development in this area for some years -- found four individually styled homes already erected amidst the forested hills.

The development, which has room for 118 homes on 72 rolling acres, features a large private natural area including a pond, accessible by woodchip trails through the trees.

All utilities are placed underground. The development is served by water and sewer.

Fine attention to detail is shown in the landscaping of cul-de-sacs, the attractive entrance way, and the wooden street signs, each replete with a bird house mounted east on top.

Helveston and his sales representative, the real estate firm of Hargreaves and Pilarcik, have started an architectural review committee (which includes an artist as member) to keep the homes as compatible with their surroundings as possible.

The New England flavor of the development is evident at the Olde England model of Fawn Valley Drive, which currently serves as sales offices.

Homes in the area will range from $75,000 up, the sales team contends. Four more were to get under construction within the next few weeks, they said.

A second Helveston development to the east of the property will be known as Foxwood, and is currently in process. It will afford through a scenic ridge road, access to M-15 when completed.

Workmen lay sod at one of the models in time for today's big event.

Woods, woods everywhere. This model nestles among the trees.

Attention to detail is evident in the interiors per this fine paneling around a stone fireplace.

Kitchen offers scenic natural wonderment through attractively framed panes.

Rented horse drowns in lake ride

A rented horse drowned Monday afternoon when it was ridden into Upper Trout Lake by an 18-year-old Farmington girl, according to Oakland County Sheriff's deputies.

The horse, named Buttercup, was rented about 3:30 p.m. from Norm's Bald Mountain Riding Stable, 3085 S. Lapeer. It and another horse, rented by a second Farmington girl were taken into the Bald Mountain State Recreation Area Against the Stable's policy, owner Norman Pickvet said.

Deputies reported that the girls rode the horses into the water at the recreation area's beach.

Buttercup was in water up to its knees when it panicked, attempted to swim and apparently became tangled in weeds, deputies.

The girls' attempts to save the horse were ill-fated, and they returned to the stable at about 5 p.m. to report the incident.

The horse, which weighed over 1,000 pounds, drowned in about five feet of water.

Its body was retrieved by Oakland County Sheriff's divers with assistance from other officers in the department.

Pickvet, who said this was the first time such an incident had happened in the 12 years he's operated the stable, agreed to settle for restitution for the horse. He estimated its value at between $200 and $300.

Children and suicidal gestures

by Jim and Ellen Wendell

Psychological staff members of the Oakland County Juvenile Court and Clinical Resources, Incorporated

When children have experienced overwhelming stress or tension they sometimes become depressed. A serious depression in a child or adolescent will be evident because of excessive crying, withdrawal, mood changes, diminished initiative, sleep disturbance, poorer school performance, and a lowered self esteem.

When seriously depressed, a significant number of children make a suicidal threat or gesture, with more and more young people making actual suicidal attempts. The events that lead up to a suicidal threat or attempt sometimes seem trivial to adults, while sometimes the precipitating factor is more understandable.

Some children become depressed and suicidal after the death or desertion of a parent or friend. The child in this situation feels rejected, alone, and angry, although the angry feelings are denied or bottled up inside. Another group of depressed children have what may be referred to as a "bad me" feeling.

These children, too, turn anger and hostility inward and they feel that they are no-good or may say, "I can't ever do anything right".

There are other young people who have not been able to cope with overwhelming stress due to family chaos and disorganization, material deprivation or physical illness. The suicidal threat or attempt becomes a "cry for help" which usually draws attention to the problem and adults outside of the family respond. There are also some angry, revengeful children and teenagers who use the suicidal gesture in a manipulative way ("This will teach my father a lesson.").

They might not have any serious suicidal intentions but they are angry and resentful.

Some adolescents who, with the increase of emotional disturbance, perhaps a disturbance that has gone unnoticed by the rest of the family, use suicide as a desperate release of tension and mental suffering. These youngsters may be very confused and at times, are even delusional. Then, too, there are a group of teenagers who find that flirting with death is thrilling and they enjoy the stunned reaction of their peers. These teenagers deny any fear of death or injury and usually say that "death isn't so bad."

Most children and adolescents show signs of their inner distress long before they give into self-destructive actions. If their parents overlook the early signs of psychic stress, they begin to feel that they are not understood and that they have no one to talk to. Some parents see all turmoil as a developmental phase which will pass away, but parents who recognize the importance of signs of depression in children and adolescents can avoid the more traumatic consequences of prolonged depression.

Independence firefighters entertained their families at the group's annual picnic last weekend.

Building activity picks up

Building activity in Independence Township more than doubled during August over what it had been for the same period a year ago.

Eleven building permits for homes estimated to cost $363,500 were issued; another five for additions and remodelings and three for garages were issued. Commercial improvements involve a gas station car wash and the construction of storage silos at Sashabaw Products and Malmec pasties.

The biggest single permit involves a new St. Trinity Lutheran Church, estimated to cost $360,000. The church is to be built on Sashabaw Road north of Clarkston Road.

Total permits issued were estimated at bringing $761,840 worth of new construction to the area.

In Clarkston permits for the construction of one garage and one swimming pool were issued; for estimated new construction worth $7,234.

Free school lunches offered

Children from a family of four with an income of $6,260 or less will be entitled to free meals at school and free milk under the 1975-76 policy announced by Oakland Schools for the schools in Oakland County. Reduced priced meals are available to children in families of four if the family income is between $6,261 and $8,770.

Michigan has adopted the following family size and income criteria for determining eligibility for free and reduced price food in school programs:

Family size	Free meals & milk	Reduced price
1	$3,230	$ 3,231 - 4,520
2	4,240	4,241 - 5,930
3	5,250	5,251 - 7,350
4	6,260	6,261 - 8,770
5	7,190	7,191 - 10,060
6	8,110	8,111 - 11,360
7	8,950	8,951 - 12,530
8	9,790	9,791 - 13,700
9	10,550	10,551 - 14,770
10	11,310	11,311 - 15,840
11	12,060	12,061 - 16,890
12	12,810	12,811 - 17,940

Each additional Family Member: (add $750) (add $1,050)

Children from some families who have incomes larger than the amounts shown may be eligible for the food program. Special consideration is to be given to families with unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 percent of income, special education expenses, and disaster or casualty losses.

All schools are required to send application forms to families with children enrolled in school. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in every building in Oakland County. Information provided in the application is confidential and will be used only to determine whether a child is to be given free or reduced price meals.

In certain cases, foster children are also eligible for benefits. Families with foster children should contact the school principal to determine the eligibility of individual children for the program.

If parents are dissatisfied with the ruling of the school official, they may make a request either orally or in writing to the school or school district hearing official for a hearing to appeal the decision. Each school and school district has a copy of the complete policy which may be reviewed by an interested party.

Bicentennial scholarship program

"Bicentennial Seniors," a nation-wide $250,000 scholarship program for high school seniors who will graduate with the Class of 1976, is being launched this month by the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

One national winner will receive a $10,000 scholarship and 102 state winners will receive $1,000 grants under the program.

Winners will be selected first locally, then on a state-wide level. Two graduating seniors will be chosen in each state and the District of Columbia.

Each of the 102 winners will also receive an all-expense-paid trip to Williamsburg, Virginia, from January 16 through 19 to attend seminars and hear noted speakers discuss educational and social issues facing this country today. The national winner will be selected during the Williamsburg conference.

Students taking apart in the "Bicentennial Seniors" competition must demonstrate an understanding of America's past and possible directions for the future and an involvement in the social and community issues faced by America today.

Competition will include the preparation of a minute-long television script to be patterned after the CBS television network's 200 years ago today "Bicentennial Minutes," a commentary discussing the significance of the "minute" for today and the lessons it contains for the future; and a current events examination emphasizing issues and events from the past year.

High school seniors should see their principal for details on how to participate in this scholarship program. Applications must be filed no later than October 6, 1975.

The program is administered by NASSP and is funded by the Shell Oil Company.

Woodcarver works his magic

George Craven uses chisels and wood and produces a collection of playful animals.

by Jean Saile

of The Clarkston News

Like the elfin woodcarvers of storyland, George Craven of Clement Road is able to work a special magic with unshaped wood.

His tall, lanky frame belies the elfin description, but his blue eyes sparkle behind horn rim glasses as he pulls personable pups and donkeys with character from their tissue wrapping for display.

The pups are part of a six-piece set — some baying at the moon, some following a scent, some in full chase — that Craven has found to be the hottest commercial item he creates. The sets sell for $18.

Each pup requires about three to four hours of detailed work -- from the initial jigsaw cut, to the chiseling, and sanding, burning, and shellacking which goes into them.

You might find them among the wall sconces, the towel holders or the ornamental plaques which Craven sells on consignment at the Nostalgia shop at Americana Village.

Employed as caretaker at the Thomas Wilson estate on Clement Road for the past 21 years, Craven has become noted for his beautiful garden and the floral miracles he helps to maturity in the greenhouse on the property.

Having brought a wife and three children from Yorkshire, England, in 1953, his speech still shows traces of the British clip as he explains how it all happened.

Craven had his own greenhouse in England and worked for a manufacturer who among other things turned out a world-wide supply of Monopoly game pieces, fashioned from white birch imported from Finland.

When he and his family, soon to be increased by another son, arrived in Michigan, he went to work in the Ford Rouge plant.

"When you emigrate, you take the first job you can get," he grins. He'd worked there only six months, however when the present job opened up and Craven moved.

A photography fan, and an avid reader as well as gardener superb, he feels sorry for people who don't have hobbies.

"Those that retire and pull their chair in front of the TV set," he sighs and shakes his head.

It was about three years ago on a trip West that he became interested in carving. Prior to that he'd made much of the furniture in the Craven home, and now he's a member of the National Woodcarvers Association and in it up to his eyebrows.

Spending about three hours an evening and sometimes the whole of his day off at the job, he thinks that by the time he's ready to retire as gardener -- he's only 54 -- he might have another enterprising job going.

The wood for his creations comes often from old boxes, sometimes from pattern shop leavings, and sometimes he buys it.

Sets of carving chisels are razor sharp. His lathe and drill press remain in good working order.

"You still make mistakes," he confides. A plaque featuring three ducks remains uncompleted. A third duck is being fashioned to replace the one that broke in the final stages of workmanship.

A spotted dog was his first carving effort. "You buy a set of carving chisels and a box of Band-aids, and you use more Band-aids than chisels when you first get started," he chuckles.

Much of his expertise has come from books. He says he's even got one on how not to cut your fingers.

Now he's got one on how to carve features. Up until now he's stayed mainly with animals, afraid of the human form because of the facial expression. He intends to tackle that this winter.

Mrs. Craven who makes all the soups and salad dressings for the three Harvey's restaurants in the area proudly displays his work in their home.

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Robinson of Clarkston have announced the approaching marriage of their daughter, Isabel, to John M. Harwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence L. Harwood. The wedding will take place December 20 at the First United Methodist Church in Clarkston.

John is a 1974 graduate of Michigan State University in criminal justice and is presently employed with the Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety Department. Isabel will receive a bachelor of communications arts from MSU in December, 1975.

Keglers live in Lansing

Making their home in Lansing following their September 5 wedding are Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey D. Kegler.

The bride is the former Rebecca Jean Byers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson G. Byers, 6051 Middle Lake Road. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Kegler of Clawson.

Vows which they had written were exchanged in a candlelight ceremony at Clarkston United Methodist Church before Rev. Paul Cargo, pastor, and Rev. Gary Schulte of Our Lady Queen of Martyrs Church in Birmingham. Some 200 guests were present. The double ring ceremony featured a ring designed by the bridegroom.

The bride wore a gown of sparkling organza over slipper satin which she had designed. Rows of deep pleated organza edged with peau de soie encircled the hem and neck.

Her chapel train was accented with Alencon lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of orchids, roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Rosalind Byers of Kalamazoo was maid of honor while Rachel, Ranette and Rhonda Byers, Pamela Kegler, Ann Moore and Ruth Lohela serves as bridesmaids.

They wore soft blue empirewaist dresses with self standing collars, and carried nosegay bouquets of pink sweetheart roses, bachelor buttons, white miniature carnations and light green starburst mums.

Veronica Kegler served as flower girl and her brother, Gregg, was junior usher.

Paul T. Murakami of Hawaii was best man. Other attendants includes Charles Byers, Mike Kay, Mark Janness, Jim Karr, Marc Lohel and John Moore.

The newlyweds were toasted at a reception in Fellowship Hall following the ceremony with crystal cups handed down to the bride by her great-great-grandmother.

Following a trip to the mountains of Colorado, they are now residing at 707 East Mount Hope, Lansing.

Fair hours will be Friday 6-9 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday noon to 9 p.m.

Also featured will be continuous entertainment by the Waterford 1894 Washboard Band, the Driftwood Band, the Pontiac Motormen Barbershop Chorus and more. There will be craft demonstrations, a petting zoo furnished by Upland Farms, antique cars, square dancing, and amusement rides. Bingo will be conducted nightly by the Knights of Columbus. An antique auction is slated for Saturday.

Food will be plentiful with a corn roast Saturday and Sunday, and a chicken dinner on Sunday. Pizza will be served in the beer tent. The main appetizer will be donuts and cider.

CHRIST NEEDS MEN

"Jesus said to his disciples:
"The harvest is good but laborers are scarce." Beg the harvest master to send out laborers to gather his harvest."
—Matthew 9:37,38

Spiritual Message

This is harvest time in our land and there is an abundance of laborers to reap the harvest. In fact the laborers right now are even greater than the harvest. Unfortunately, this is not true about the harvest of spiritual things. In the spiritual field, the harvest is indeed great but the laborers are very few. There has been a very significant deadline in the number of men entering the Ministry in the past few years. There were approximately 500 in our Clarkston Graduation Class this past June and as far as I know, not one has gone on to study for the Sacred Ministry. Many are gone on to be Doctors, Lawyers, Engineers, Teachers, but none to be Ministers or Priests. Why? I don't have one answer. There are perhaps many reasons. But I do know this that the harvest will never be reaped unless there are reapers to reap it. It is one of the great basic truths of the Christian life that Jesus Christ needs men. When Jesus was here upon earth, His voice could reach only a few. He was never outside Palestine, and there was a world which was waiting. He still wants men to hear of the good news of the gospel, but they will never hear the gospel unless other men tell them. Jesus Christ needs men to reap his harvest. Men are his hands and feet and tongue today. So pray, work that more will answer his Help Wanted Column. Remember his earnest plea in the Gospel. "The harvest is good but the laborers are scarce. Beg the harvest master to send out laborers to gather his harvest."

Foster homes needed for court wards

Oakland County Juvenile Court seeks additional family foster homes for older youngsters for whom the court must assume physical custody.

Donald W. Rolph, supervisor of the program, reports most of the boys and girls involved are from 13 to 17 years of age.

"They are not typical 'delinquents', but often represent neglectful parents, marital and family problems, or some type of tragedy which has contributed to their court custody," Rolph explained.

He added they have the ability and desire to live in a family home, but without the availability of foster homes, they must live in an institution.

The state requires that foster families and their homes must satisfy the basic rules and regulations for licensing.

The average family and home will usually qualify for a license without any difficulty," Rolph said. "Approximately four weeks is required to complete the licensing process at little, if any, expect to the applicants."

The children are placed in acceptable homes by court order, and a monthly board and care payment is authorized for the foster parents. The county provides clothing, medical and dental care, school supplies, haircuts, etc., and casework services are provided by court staff, Rolph explained.

If you would be willing to accept a foster child, Rolph asks that you call him between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday at 858-0210. He will arrange an interview.

The engagement of Janet Stitt to Joseph A. Crosby has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Stitt, 9428 Sashabaw Road. Her fiance, serving with the U.S. Air Force, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Crosby, 8660 Ortonville Road. A May wedding is planned.

PTA hosts district director

Jackie Palmer, District 7 director of the Michigan Congress of PTAs, will speak to the Clarkston PTA Council September 23 on "PTA Council's role in the Community."

The meeting, called the "Jackie Palmer Invitational", begins at 8 p.m. at Andersonville Elementary School.

Welcoming Mrs. Palmer will be new 1975-76 council officers, including Karen Ohrnberger, president; Sharon Kent, mother vice president; Don Place, father vice-president; Sherryl Bailey, teacher vice-president, Cecelia Wiar, secretary; and Paula Acton, treasurer.

Ministers' group

The formation of a Spiritualist Ministers' Association is the goal of a meeting at 6 p.m. September 20 at the Temple of Light, 11000 Milford Road, Holly.

First aid offered

A Red Cross first aid class is being sponsored by the Sashabaw PTA council for seven weeks, September 30 through November 8, excluding the week of October 14.

Classes will be from 7 to 10 p.m. at North Sashabaw Elementary, 5290 Maybee Road, on Tuesday nights.

Cost of the class is $1.95 for the course booklet and 45 cents for bandages. The classes are open to anyone—those completing the course will be certified to give first aid.

For more information on the classes, call North Sashabaw at 674-3139 or Brenda Greene, 623-0595.

Hunter safety offered

A hunter safety program will be at Davisburg Elementary School October 13 through 17 for all Springfield Township residents 12 years and older.

There is a $2 fee for the program; classes will be limited to 40 people. Classes begin at 3:30 p.m. and last until 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Anyone wishing to sign up should call the Springfield Township hall, 625-4802 or 634-3111.

Also in the works for this fall by the Springfield Township Parks and Recreation Department is a men's basketball league. A special meeting will be held to set up the basketball schedule October 22, but recreation director Dean Eisler asks that those interested phone the Springfield Township hall and leave their name and number before the meeting.

The league is open to men 18 years and older; cost for joining is $3 for Springfield residents and $6 for non-residents.

The recreation commission has tagged a $3 non-resident fee onto both the mens basketball and girls' volleyball programs.

Funeral Home

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PEOPLE OF THE CLARKSTON AREA
REGARDING FUNERAL PRICING

Dear Friends:

Recent newspaper and television coverage of the Federal Trade Commission's investigation of funeral service has pointed out that the most common complaint against funeral directors is their reluctance to publicly discuss and advertise their fees for service.

Being aware of this fact, in 1971 our firm initiated Functional Pricing, a system which is designed to help the public understand funeral charges. Functional Pricing is based upon the premise that each family has different needs and desires relative to its faith and traditions. By charging only for the functions which are necessary for a particular funeral, we have eliminated the standard or package funeral price. Our statement of charges is simply a summation of the cost of each function requested. Caskets are sold separately with their cost uninfluenced by the amount of service required.

While we have never been reluctant to discuss our fees publicly, we are aware that advertising package prices is misleading, at best. We do not agree with the Federal Trade Commission's suggestion that funeral directors be encouraged to advertise price. This will only cause confusion and add to the cost of a funeral. Our policy will continue to be frank, honest answers to your inquiries regarding funeral prices, laws and customs anytime you call or visit our funeral home.

Sincerely,

 Lewis E. Wint

 DEDICATED TO SERVICE

Jim's Jottings

by Jim Sherman

A few years ago a man, I believe from Coldwater, Mich., packed his family off to Australia because he was upset with high taxes in this country.

Taxes continue to climb. However, I would think if avoiding them is the sole reason for leaving here, one should consider Israel.

While I don't know the tax rate, I can assume it will be lower with the discontinuance of defense spending.

When, oh when, will our leaders quit trying to buy our way out of troubles. Seldom if ever has it worked.

Henry Kissinger's twist, to pay both sides for not fighting, is a take off from paying farmers not to grow crops. This, of course, creates a shortage at which time the government steps in and subsidizes growers to guarantee a previously set price.

When we pay Israel and Egypt to not fight we well be setting a precedent that will force us to pay Israel and Syria to not fight, Lebanon and Israel to not fight and any other two sides... Portugal, Argentina, Laos, Canada, etc.

Kissinger is going to be terribly busy, and Americans are going to be terribly broke. I can see it now. Sweden's King will call our state dept. soon and suggest that our Secretary of State ask Congress for $1.6 billion in black paint for Volvos if they agree not to attack Switzerland.

The Swiss in turn will ask that the U.S. buy up all Elgin watches and burn the factory.

The cost of getting Israel to not fight Egypt is estimated between $2.6 billion and $8 billion. Included is the paying of $600,000 for oil under the sands of the Sinai, which Israel is giving up.

We should consider ourselves fortunate that the sum is so low. Had I been doing the estimating of that oil deposit I'd have set the figure much higher.

The really good thing about this decision is that we get to pay for the oil twice, maybe three times with depletion allowances.

Like our deal several years ago with wheat growers, we get to pay Israel for not producing the oil, then we get to pay Egypt when we buy it.

Besides attempting to buy a cease fire, Kissinger agreed to ask Congress to put 200 Americans on the dividing line.

I would like to suggest that these 200 be chosen from those in Congress who vote in favor of the Kissinger-Israel-Egypt agreement.

These are technicians we can spare. Should fighting break out, and it surely will with all the armament we're giving away, the great American public could not be hoodwinked into doing battle to save them.

And, worst of all... surveys show the people of Israel don't like the deal that has been worked out and the same is true in America.

Kissinger go home.

Deputy's report

by Doug Hummel

Recently there have been many articles pro and con on the legalization of marijuana. There have been specials on television about the effects and non-effects of the person using it.

Some doctors and researchers expound on the fact that they can find no lasting or ill effects from the use of marijuana. Others have found effects on a user's brain and reproductive system. It seems no two experts on the subject can completely agree as to the findings, and can point out mistakes made by one another in the method used for conducting the tests.

Whether marijuana is more, or less, harmful to a person than cigarette smoking, or more important than drinking alcohol is covered completely, but only as to the affects on health and emotional problems.

Not many of the experts have considered the fact in their arguments for legalization that a person who has been drinking is quite noticeable on an enforcement issue.

A breathalyzer test is available to ascertain the extent of the influence, but no test is available for the driver of a vehicle who is "stoned". At this time, any person who is under the influence of a drug or narcotic and apprehended driving a vehicle in a very hazardous manner, cannot be tested without his permission, as it requires a blood or urine sample, and cannot be taken without the person's consent.

By legalizing marijuana without proper ground work as to laws for enforcing, and abuse of it, in regards to driving while under the influence, we face many cases of abuse while driving a vehicle.

So from a police officer's standpoint, the argument that grass is no more and probably less harmful than alcohol is a poor argument. It has been shown that a person driving a vehicle under the influence of marijuana will demonstrate a lack of common sense and control over the vehicle and the rules governing proper operation, the same as a person under the influence of alcohol.

With this in mind, it is our hope that any further decriminalization or legalizing of marijuana use, will be done so with an eye to the passage of enforceable laws covering those situations which undoubtedly will arise with the driver of vehicle, who drives while "stoned."

Break-ins in the Independence and Springfield townships have not reduced in number over the last week, and again officers request that any citizen who observes any suspicious vehicle or person to please call into the department and report this activity.

Roy Bros. Standard at Sashabaw and Waldon was reported broken into again on the 9th with the loss of unknown amount of change from the cigarette machine.

Oakland Office Supplies on Dixie reported a break-in and loss of 6 electric typewriters and a calculator, total value over $1200. $2600.00 worth of Sarah Coventry jewelry was reported stolen from a residence on Sashabaw along with several other items. Residence on Waterford Road entered and a television and clock radio taken. Break-in on Clarkston Road was reported by party watching house for parents, unknown what, if anything was taken.

Resident on Rilton reported the loss of a 12-horsepower outboard motor valued at $150. A Sears portable television reported taken in the break-in of residence on Cortez. Two tires valued at $100 reported taken from vehicle parked behind residence on Gulick, and $30 in tools and tool box from a garage on Ascension.

Two residences on King Road in Springfield were reported broken into, loss from one garage was tool box and tools over $200. a summer home was entered and ransacked, unknown if anything taken.

A '73 Yamaha 750 and a '75 MotoGuzzi motorcycle, and a Chaparel Snowmobile total value of three $4800, taken from barn on Rattalee Lake Road. A 1975 Yamaha was recovered on Bigelow Road by Deputy Evans. Value $975.

Bond reduced

Anthony Bercheny, 28, of Union Lake, accused of shooting his wife Debbie, 21, in the woods in back of a home at 11710 Davisburg Road last July, was bound over to Circuit Court following examination in Clarkston District Court.

Bercheny's bond was reduced from $250,000 to $15,000 and he was free to return to work, providing he left his home only for that purpose, court officers said.

Variance granted

Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals, in special meeting Thursday, granted a 25 foot variance for a rear yard setback to Arnold J. Bauer of Deer Lake Hills.

The topography of the land made the variance necessary. Secretary Jerry Powell reported Bauer plans to erect a 3900 square foot home.

State Police offer 'Identification' assistance

The Michigan State Police are offering special property protection assistance to all state residents through "Operation Identification" procedures available at all department posts and districts, Col. George L. Halverson, director, has reported.

Officers at the posts will provide residents with an electric engraver, property registration lists for recording the marked items, and "Operation Identification" stickers for prominent display on home windows or doors.

Assistance normally will be provided by community service officers at each of the department's 64 posts and district headquarters.

Halverson urges all residents who may not have already availed themselves of this protective assistance through the State Police or other police agency to join in this campaign to deter break-ins and burglaries in residences.

The director noted that "Operation Identification" has already had reported successes through recovery of marked stolen items.

The property registration lists are to be made in duplicate, one for the homeowner and another for his insurance agency on which he should write his policy number for reference.

Object of "Operation Identification" is to assist police agencies in recovering any registered stolen property and at the same time to dissuade would-be thieves from entering residences where the warning "OI" stickers attest to a listing of valued items.

Independence home site of arson class

by Mary Warner
of The Clarkston News

One hundred and sixty police and firemen from southeastern Michigan lined the grass by a vacant house at Independence Oaks Thursday.

The men had just finished walking through the home to observe "sets" made by the Oakland County Sheriff's Department arson investigation department, and were now waiting for the home to be set aflame.

A torch was tossed inside, and firemen, police, many photographers, two television crews and a sheriff's department helicopter watched as the home succumbed briefly to flames and billowing smoke.

Though quickly extinguished by Independence and Brandon firemen, the fire's intense heat caused windows in the home to pop out.

After the ashes cooled, the group again lined up for a trek through the house.

Inside, the firemen were shown some of the tricks an arsonist uses to set blazes, such as gasoline in a lightbulb that ignites when the switch is thrown.

The group saw "burn patterns" engraved from the living room to kitchen, where a liquid "accelerant" had made deeper, more noticeable gashes in the floor.

Clues to look for were explained to the men--such as the discovery of an alarm clock in the living room, perhaps indicating the clock had been used to set a fuse for a fire.

Firemen also learned how to preserve the scene where the fire started, for further investigation.

Arson is growing in this country, according to Independence Township Fire Chief Frank Ronk. What was once an amateur's game is giving way to wily professionalism--making the arson investigator's job even more difficult.

In Independence Township alone last year, intentional fires did an estimated $14,135 damage --and that was only to those fires reported by the fire department as arson.

Many other fires, Chief Ronk said, are written off as accidental when they are actually intentional but can't be proved.

Arsonists set fires for two major reasons, Chief Ronk said--financial gain and revenge. Lover's spats often wind up with the injured party setting fire to his or her lover's dwelling.

To circumvent the rising number of intentionally-set fires, the arson seminar was set up in Independence.

Further efforts are being made in the form of classes at the Criminal Justice Institute this fall on arson investigation.

Independence plans on sending some of its men to the classes. It sent two to the seminar Thursday.

The goal is both to find out whether a fire has been set--and also to prevent the arsonists from doing their destructive work in the first place.
