School financial outlook bleak

Despite the fact school enrollments are on a gradual decline, the cost of education in the Clarkston School District is on the increase.

To keep the same programs and the same number of employees this year as we had last is going to cost us another mill or $1 per $1,000 of state equalized tax evaluation.

The deficit without additional funding is going to be $195,853 by next June, according to figures presented to the Board of Education Monday night.

Superintendent Milford Mason added the further bad word that projected increases in costs of operating the district—salaries, fringe benefits, and the fact that schools must absorb employees' retirement costs beginning next year, plus increases in utilities and insurance—means that we'll be needing five mills more in order to break even in the year 1981.

"And that's without any kind of program improvement," Mason stressed.

He was presenting the first of three rather dismal financial pictures to the board, which in turn is expected to decide next January what it is going to do about it.

The likelihood of a millage vote seems assured, however there have been no firm plans adopted.

Board President David Leak said the picture presented by Mason was in reality optimistic. Taking past performance as a cue, he said the district would need 11 more mills in five years to continue with its current offerings.

Mason's presentation took note of the fact that 65 percent of our local property tax receipts benefit local schools.

He also noted that increases in valuation amounting to an average of 14.4 percent each year for the last ten years has not benefitted the schools.

"State aid is reduced in proportion to the amount of income raised locally. There are three districts in Oakland County which now have no state aid at all as a result of locally high valuations and state financing limitations," Mason explained.

The one bright spot in the school funding picture is that Clarkston's bonded indebtedness has been reduced to $5.5 million—less than one year's budget as one trustee pointed out—and that reductions in the bonded indebtedness levy have served to reduce the overall school tax bill this year.

Mason said it would be necessary to levy 30 mills in operating taxes by next year in order to take full advantage of state funding programs. The current operating levy in the Clarkston district is 25.21 mills.

The current levy is 27th of 28 districts in Oakland County, Mason noted.

Kids must still walk

Twenty-seven third through sixth graders in the Bluegrass and Northview area will continue to walk to Clarkston Elementary School, despite the fact that a half-loaded school bus passes them each morning.

Clarkston Board of Education members voted 5-2 Monday night to stay with the current policy which provides bus transportation to children only in grades kindergarten through three if they live within one and a half miles of the school.

Transportation director William Dennis recommended the action, noting that three additional buses are now required to carry those children who live closer to school than state funds will reimburse on transportation costs.

While Trustee Vince Luzi and members of the audience believed exceptions might be made as long as the bus is not filled to capacity, Dennis pointed out that policies which start out as temporary measures tend to become permanent.

Superintendent Milford Mason said he believed the means to provide safety to young long distance walkers is to construct sidewalks.

Gary Tressel said he feared for the safety of his nine-year-old son who must walk across Clarkston Road on his way to school from his home on Northview. He cited accident and traffic counts to point out the busyness of Clarkston Road, however school officials noted it was not considered a high danger area.

Agreeing with Luzi that each request for transportation should be decided on its own merits was Trustee Carolyn Place.

Council refuses to increase parking requirements

By Hilda Bruce
of The Clarkston News
Clarkston Village Council didn't act Monday on its Planning Commission recommendation that there be one parking space for every 120 square feet of newly developed retail space.

The zoning ordinance presently requires one space for every 400 square feet of retail space. That provision would remain in effect for all established businesses, whether subsequent changes are made or not.

In considering that the parking regulations do not allow parking across main thoroughfares from the business concerned, that parking structures can be only 2½ stories high and the possible zoning changes that could occur if a business changes, the council decided to wait for the findings of the village planners, Vilican and Leman, before instituting such an amendment.

In other business the council asked Ken Delbridge, director of the Independence Township building department, to begin condemnation proceedings on property at 25 Buffalo.

The request followed inspection which reportedly revealed the structure is not safe for occupancy.

The condemnation proceedings allow the property owner the opportunity to bring the building up to code.

The council also asked Delbridge to investigate the occupancy status of the old Methodist Church at the corner of Church and Buffalo Streets.

Because the council has received requests for traffic signals at the intersections of Waldon Road and M-15 and at Depot Road and M-15, Jack McCall, director of police services, will request a study by the Oakland County Road Commission.

McCall reported to the Clarkston Village Council Monday night that the Animal Welfare Officer, Dirk Feneley, is fielding an average of 14 calls a day and six to eight occurrences that are not called into the police department.

In the six weeks the public service program has been in effect, 147 complaints have been lodged, he said.

Anyone needing the service for either domestic or wild animals can call 625-8600.

Winter rec program planned

Springfield Parks and Recreation Commission has begun plans for its winter recreation program. Margaret Cavanaugh has been hired to coordinate sports and recreation programs in the Andersonville and Davisburg schools.

The commission, with the help of Miss Cavanaugh, hopes to provide ice skating this winter on the Mill Pond in Davisburg. A building along the pond is scheduled to be revamped into a recreational facility.

Free classes in square dancing now being offered are to be expanded.

Crime report

The home of David Mallett, 4852 Mary Sue, was burglarized Friday. A pocket watch, 50 shotgun shells, a CB radio, seven bottles of pop, and two sets of keys were stolen.

Tools valued at $122 were stolen from the garage of Patricia Cooper at 5984 Warbler early Monday.

The rear door section from a camper owned by Robert Burgart, 17085 Kropf, was stolen between 11:30 p.m. Saturday and 9:30 a.m. Sunday. The door was valued at $100.

Recounts could cause township installation wait

There could be a delay in the installation of new township officers for both Springfield and Independence Townships.

Recounts requested in a race in each area could cause the November 20 installation date to

We goofed!

In the furor of election night activity we goofed in reporting that John Barnfather rather than Sandra Townson and Betty Peterson won the four year seats on the Springfield Township Library Board. Townson accumulated 938 votes, Peterson, 1029 and Barnfather 905. The two top vote getters are elected.

be bypassed, insofar as those offices are concerned.

Independence Township Clerk Robert Lay has requested the county elections commission to conduct a recount of all the ballots in his race, the initial outcome of which showed a 12 vote lead for his opponent, Christopher Rose.

Lay, who first believed he would ask only that the absentee ballots be counted, has now officially requested the county to recount all ballots, including those cast on the voting machines.

In Springfield Township, Collin Walls, Republican challenger to Don Rogers, incumbent supervisor, has asked for a recount as well. He was defeated by just two ballots, according to initial returns.

Tim Patterson, Springfield Township attorney, suggests that if the recounts are not accomplished by November 20, the incumbents will remain in office until the final determination is made.

He quotes state law which says that those succeeding to office shall qualify before assuming the duties of office and that the position shall be held by the incumbent prior to that time until the first of the year. There are other provisions should the delay be longer.

A delay longer than January 1 is unforeseen.

Walls to ask for recount

Donald Rogers, the newly reelected Springfield Township supervisor, will not reclaim office November 20 without a fight. The loser in that 1090 to 1088 vote decision, Collin Walls, plans to request a recount.

"I've made up my mind that I will request a recount," he said, "but I don't anticipate it will make any difference in the outcome."

Walls plans to have all four Springfield precincts and absentee ballots recounted. Before a recount can be made all ballots must be certified by the county, a process which will take at least two or three weeks. "It's possible it could be the end of the month," Walls said.

Once the ballots have been certified Walls will have six days to file a recount petition with the county.

This is not Walls' first election. In fact, this is his third try for public office. He was beaten the first time by six votes.

No one likes to lose an election. "I can't say I'm happy, but on the other hand I'm not totally upset about the results," he said. "But I wish it had been different." "The only thing that bothers me is that the election was so close."

When asked if he would ever run for public office again he answered, "Probably ... I'm not going to close any doors."

How the precincts voted

The precinct vote on local races in Springfield Township is spelled out here. First is the candidate's name, then the vote by precinct 1 through 4 and finally the absentee voter ballots and the total.

Office work to be done?

By Hilda Bruce
 of The Clarkston News

At Clarkston High School the office practice room has taken on the appearance of a busy multifaceted office during the last five years.

The old text book teaching-learning situation vanished from the scene when teacher Joan Becker developed a vocational program that simulates real office jobs with the students getting actual office practice.

While the girls still do work for teachers in the school, they also work for business people in the community.

"They feel they are doing something worthwhile—not just taking in work, handing out something that will go in the wastebasket after it's finished," Mrs. Becker said.

Because it is a learning-by-doing situation the girls figure out much for themselves, she explained.

There are resource materials at hand and Mrs. Becker is always willing to help out.

The class also has its own telephone service; 625-9215, so calls do not have to be handled by the school lines.

Monday and Wednesday mornings will find Renee Weaver and Becky Holey, office managers, assignments and keeping records of who does what.

The rest of the girls are hard at work taking dictation (by phone if necessary), typing letters and other materials for businesses and teachers, duplicating materials by spirit, thermofax or mimeograph procedures, and storing and recalling materials on the memory typewriter.

Because the vocational program is funded by the state, the girls must meet the performance objectives set by the state for office procedure learnings.

Connie Butler uses the thermofax copier.

Pair of fleet gerbils have adventures worthy of book

Students at Pine Knob Elementary busy themselves illustrating their expected best-seller, "Escape of the Gerbils."

There are a couple of gerbils named Butterball and Snowball living happily ever after right now at Pine Knob Elementary School.

Famous to the point of having had a book written about them, the gerbils are the pets of Mrs. Shirley Jones' second grade class. They came originally to the class science center from Mrs. Bonnie Davis, student teacher. Her kindness in giving them has been immortalized in the book's dedication page.

The book is launched with a good mystery—what happened to the gerbils when they tipped over their cage and ran away. The authors admit that the documentation which follows (complete with original illustrations) is partly fancy and partly fact.

At any rate, it might have happened that wandering pets got into somebody's coat, the green paint, a lunch box, some pumpkins on a shelf, the treasure chest, some sunflower seeds and even the desks.

Then they might have run down the hall and into the kitchen where they might have eaten up all the hot lunches one day. It might even have been they who made Mrs. Cecelia Wiar, the principal, scream after their dalliance with Mrs. Karpovck's typewriter.

After exploring the whole school, the authors believe the gerbils determined their room to be the best and had returned to Mrs. Jones' closet.

After some tricky maneuvering by the teachers, the gerbils were captured and returned to the cage. And that's why they're living happily ever after. And that's the truth. Almost!

The price we paid

Have you ever wondered what happened to those men who signed the Declaration of Independence?

Five signers were captured by the British as traitors, and tortured before they died. Twelve had their homes ransacked and burned. Two lost their sons in the Revolutionary Army, another had two sons captured. Nine of the 56 fought and died from wounds or the hardships of the Revolutionary War.

What kind of men were they? Twenty-four were lawyers and jurists. Eleven were merchants, nine were farmers and large plantation owners, men of means, well educated. But they signed the Declaration of Independence knowing full well that the penalty would be death if they were captured.

They signed and they pledged their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor.

Carter Braxton of Virginia, a wealthy planter and trader, saw his ships swept from the seas by the British navy. He sold his home and properties to pay his debts, and died in rags.

Thomas McKean was so hounded by the British that he was forced to move his family almost constantly. He served in the Congress without pay, and his family was kept in hiding. His possessions were taken from him, and poverty was his reward.

Vandals or soldiers or both, looted the properties of Ellery, Clymer, Hall, Walton, Gwinnett, Heyward, Rutledge and Middleton.

At the Battle of Yorktown, Thomas Nelson Jr. noted that the British General Cornwallis had taken over the Nelson home for his headquarters. The owner quietly urged General George Washington to open fire, which was done. The home was destroyed, and Nelson died bankrupt.

Francis Lewis had his home and properties destroyed. The enemy jailed his wife, and she died within a few months.

John Hart was driven from his wife's bedside as she was dying. Their 13 children fled for their lives. His fields and his grist mill were laid waste.

For more than a year he lived in forests and caves, returning home after the war to find his wife dead, his children vanished. A few weeks later he died from exhaustion and a broken heart.

Norris and Livingston suffered similar fates.

Such were the stories and sacrifices of the American Revolution. These were not wild-eyed, rabble-rousing ruffians. They were soft-spoken men of means and education.

They had security, but they valued liberty more. Standing tall, straight and unwavering, they pledged: "For the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of the Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other, our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor."

They gave us an independent America. Can we keep it?

We have a dog old enough to know better who has taken to going to sleep on his back on the davenport with all four feet straight up in the air.

Trapper, the intrepid Beagle, has developed this new wrinkle in addition to tree climbing which you will recall from an earlier column.

Trapper is not pretty when he sleeps as he does. There are times I think we ought to keep an afghan or a doily, at least, on hand to cover him up and give him some semblance of respectability.

This is the same dog who does not bark at strangers, (only at friends), who has a love life and a will to pursue that defies doors, fences and ropes.

This is also the same dog, which supposedly belongs to Doug, but which winds up whining at the foot of our bed to be let out at 4 a.m. and interrupting our television viewing for water or dogfood refills.

I guess I really like dogs. I almost hate to admit it, because as soon as I do I get stuck with even more of the responsibility of caring for him.

In fact, I suspect I might be getting soft on animals. Sam, the black cat, she with the six toes on each front foot, continues to be a delight as well as a good mouser.

She is the second cat we have owned which I have claimed ownership to. In between Patches, our first prolific cat, and Sam there has been a number of totally paranoid animals whose behavior varied from a constant demand for attention to an apathy so great that we weren't even sure whether the owner was alive or not.

We have also had cats which left great gobs of falling hair about, cats that were very poor mothers, and cats that couldn't have caught a mouse if you'd hobbled it.

These were in addition to a string of dogs who turned the furniture white with shed hair, who remarked on their delight at getting in the house by wetting on the furniture, and one old dear whom we still mourn.

She raised us all, taught us to mind our manners and to appreciate Beagles.

Trapper is carrying on the tradition.

'If It Fitz . . .'

About Will Slocum

by Jim Fitzgerald

"I hate people who write about art," said artist Will Slocum when I stopped by his home to write about art.

That was last year, and he didn't scare me. I wrote about him anyway. The article wasn't much, but I loved the headline: "Artist Slocum Says Spare the Hokum."

Now I am going to write about him one more time. There will be an honest attempt to skip the hokum, but if I should falter and sprinkle too much sugar, there is something you should understand.

Will Slocum died in Pontiac Saturday, just a few days after his 54th birthday, much too soon. Art experts say the world has been gypped out of a lot of beautiful watercolors.

Lord knows, I don't know anything about art. I met Slocum on the golf course. He got so deep into my pocket so quickly, I figured he was an ex-pro who had been defrocked for hustling Club members out of their life savings. It was a surprise to learn he drew pictures for a living and had, in fact, gained international fame among people who hang out in galleries and museums.

But I was glad to hear it. I figured if I could interview him about his painting, maybe I could squeeze my golf losses into my expense account. Thus it was that I learned about his friendly disdain for art writers.

He accused them of using "slushy redundancy" and "total pomposity" in trying to interpret what artists are saying with their creations.

"They're phonies," Slocum said, but with a smile.

Initially, I had no intention of writing about Slocum's pictures. I was just going to write about him. He was once one of the nation's most successful commercial artists, working in Detroit for the auto industry. Then he walked away from all that money, switching to fine art.

I figured that would be story enough. I could tell how Slocum would never starve in an attic as long as he could ambush suckers like me on the golf course. It was not necessary that I try to interpret his paintings, thus risking an embarrassing tumble in the slush. I was prepared to simply say he paints pretty pictures, go see for yourself.

But then I went to Slocum's one-man show at Gallery 22 in Bloomfield Hills. I stood for a long time and looked at his watercolors. At the hunting scenes and the lake freighters and a tree guarding a shoreline.

Slocum didn't like to talk about his paintings in terms of why they might strike awe even in poolroom bums such as the one my wife married. He preferred to tell me about the woman who forced him to elevate his art.

She commissioned him to do a watercolor of her home which sat in a valley. "But put in on top of a hill," she said, "I always wanted to live up high."

Which proved, he said, that art not only moves people, it moves things. You can't do that with your Polaroid.

I guess what I'm trying to say is that I liked Will Slocum so much because he refused to be stuffy about his tremendous talent. His wife, Ruth, is that way, too.

It was funny, 17 months ago, when I asked if it were true that a painter's work is often worth more money after he has passed on to that great garret in the sky.

Yes, Ruth joked, and she was already planning the Slocum in Retrospective show that would make her rich.

No one knew it then, but Will was already sick. Cancer. He was to fight it off for many months, and often seemed to be winning. But last week, cancer won, and so many of us lost.

Will kept painting to the end. Just last month one of his paintings was judged best of show at the Scarab Club Michigan watercolor exhibition.

He left behind a legacy of beauty which will be appreciated by thousands of people for countless years. And that sentence is typical of the artistic slush which would have made Slocum snort.

It would seem that Will had a lot more years coming to him. But his wife refuses to be bitter.

"Will always said it was the quality of life that's important, not the quantity," she said.

There was much quality to Slocum's life, and that's no hokum.

Walk help appreciated

Dear friends of SCAMP,
On behalf of Clarkston SCAMP I would like to thank the many people who helped make the October 24 Walk-A-Thon successful. Over 100 people trudged through the wet and dreary day for fourteen miles to help raise money for the summer day camp program for youth with special needs. A sincere thank you to those of you who walked, helped with the walk, or pledged money to the walkers. A thank you also to Ritters Farm Market, Pierre's Orchard, Farmerest Bakeries, and Rudy's Market for their donations of refreshments.

Sincerely,
James E. Butzine

Independence "Ad Valorem" sewer taxpayers:

Since the taxpayers of our township approved the sale of valuable real estate (the old dump on M-15), it stands to reason that all that money coming in from the buyer should be used to pay on that sewer mess we all will be paying on—for years to come. In this way every property owner will get some benefit from the old dump and the ad valorem sewer mills be lowered sooner by reducing the debt principle sooner—with a lower total to be paid in interest throughout the years to come.

Independence Township paid a "market price" for our own park real estate and so should any buyer of valuable real estate from this township.

Then, maybe, federal grant money for parks will serve double service — from all taxpayers' pockets, back through the northern neighboring township (Brandon), and back further to relieve us Independence taxpayers' burden—dumped on us all for that sewer financial-mess with the "ad valorem" tax we all will be hit with as soon as the tax notices are mailed.

Pre-schoolers learn in Davisburg

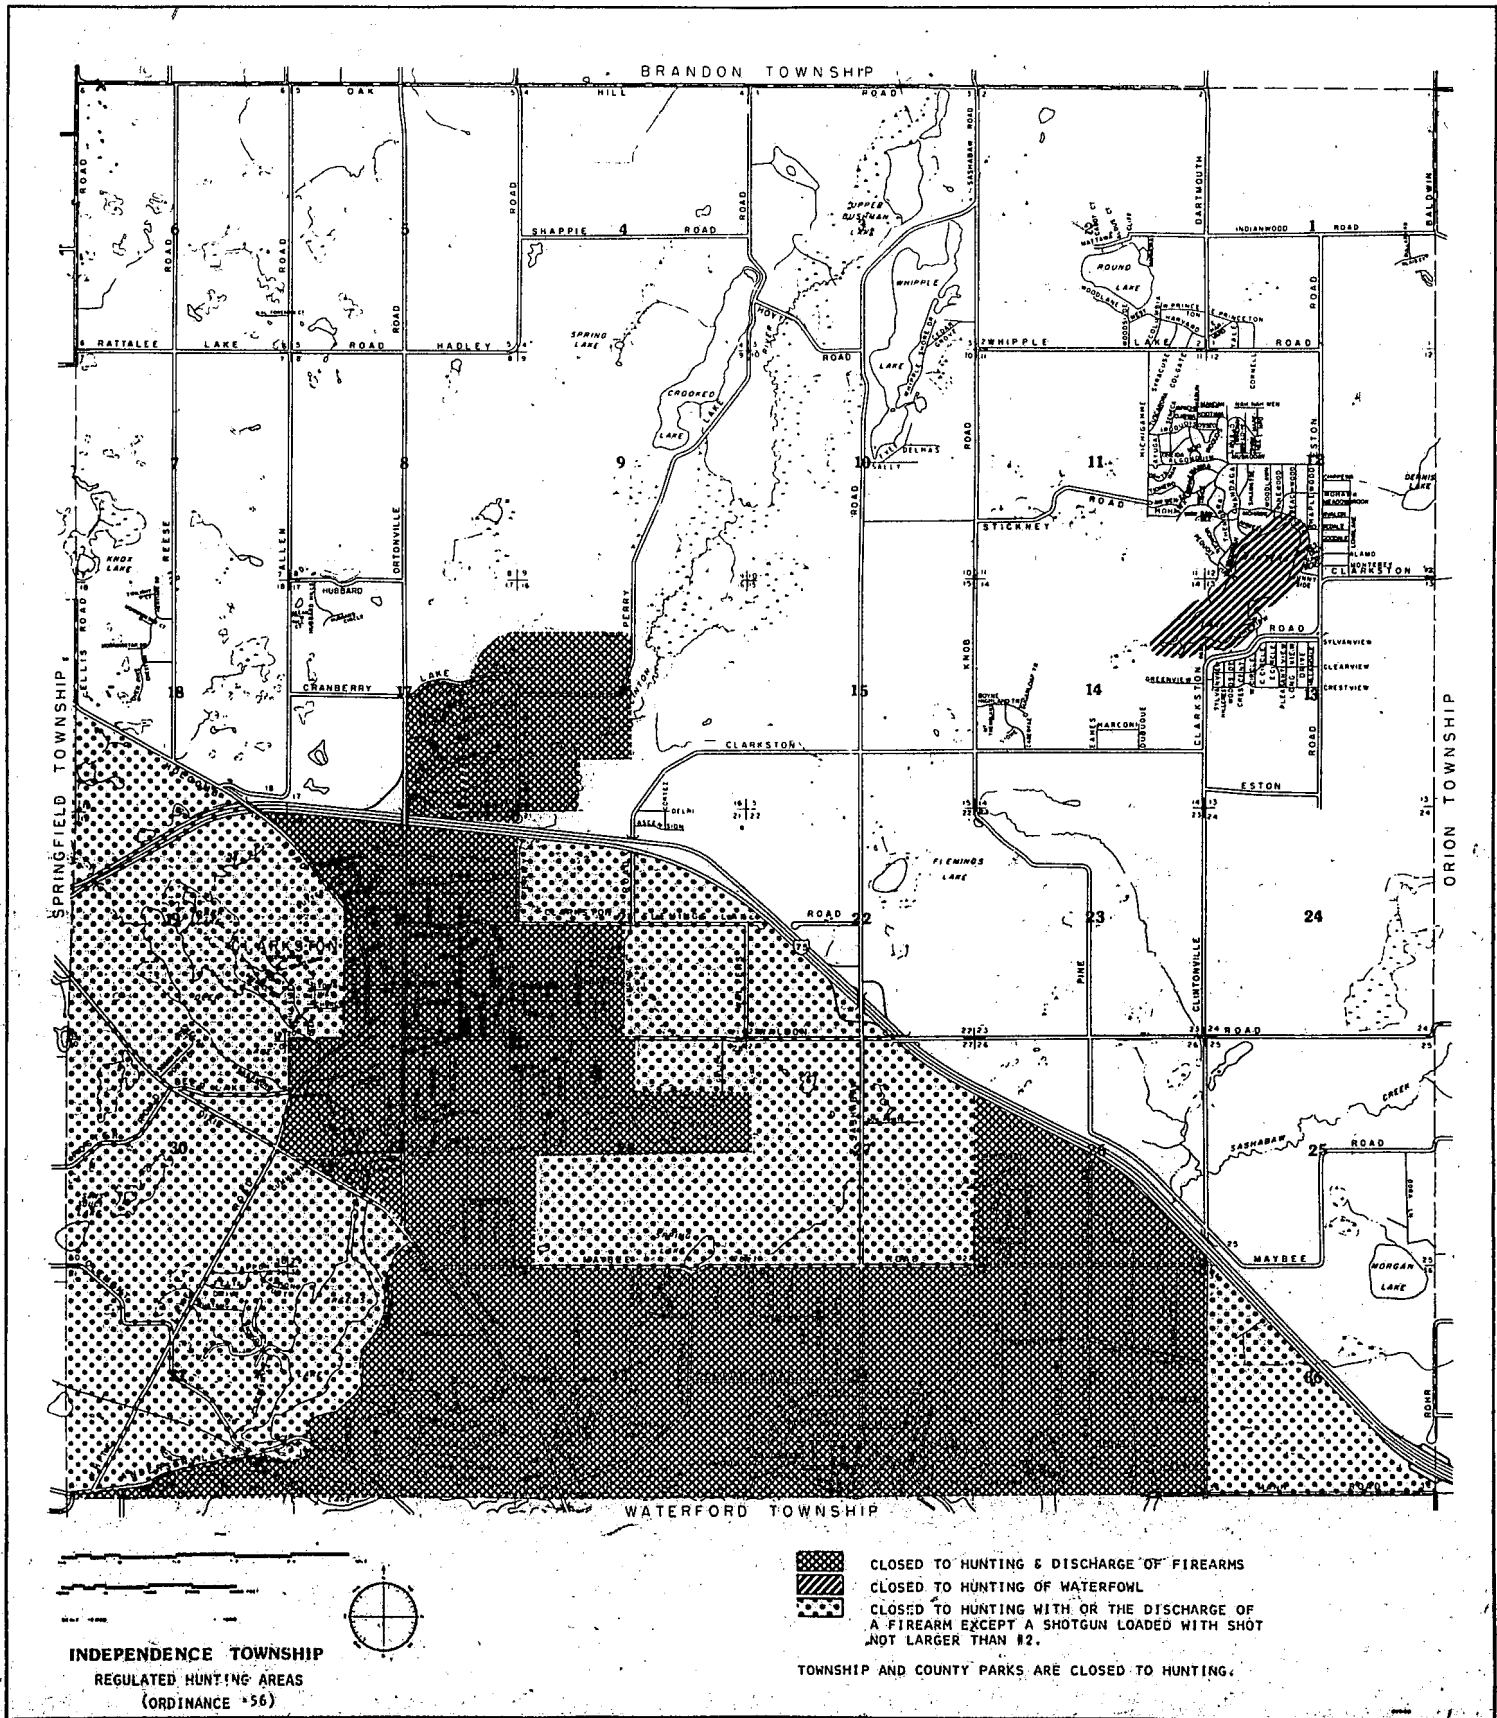

Crosshill Community Pre-School, a private nursery school in Davisburg, is underway. After several months of investigation and instigation by Vivian Olive and others, state approval was granted on Friday, October 22. The school opened in the Davisburg Methodist Church on October 25.

Sharon Marsden, who formerly taught in the special education program at Bailey Lake Elementary, explained the program as one to develop the child's self image and confidence and socialization skills.

Through exploration of interest centers the children are guided into science, art and literature. Play area provides for fine and gross motor skill training.

Martha Burton assists Mrs. Marsden in the teaching. Mothers are also welcome even though the school is not a cooperative endeavor in which mothers are used in a daily assistance role.

Sanders fast in long distance meets

by Joe Gitter
of The Clarkston News
Cross country coach, Erroll Solley, calls him "One of the most coachable kids I've ever run into." Within six months, Gordy Sanders, sophomore, has developed into the finest long distance runner in Clarkston high school. Sanders, only 15, first ran in competition last spring for track.

He now holds the school's cross country record at 15:44. "Since I've been coaching here, as far as potential goes, he's the best," Solley commented, "He keeps improving every meet."

Sander's best time of the year is 15:38 which he ran last weekend in the regionals. He is Clarkston's only entry in the state tournament held Saturday, November 6.

Sander's youth and inexperience make his outstanding performance this year even more exceptional. He has won six dual meets—four in a row. He's placed in the Oxford Invitational, the Oakland A, regionals, 15th in the county, and 13th out of 70 competitors in last Saturday's state meet.

"He ran a tough race," Solley said, referring to the state tournament. "I don't believe there were any other sophomores in the top 15 medalists. Next year he and five or ten mile run and shorter jaunts, Sanders has prepared will be the guys 'to beat in himself and improved his ability. He's a tough He should be an excellent one and two mile runner come track season, according to Solley.

"to give it everything he's got" account for Sanders phenomenal performance this year.

Moral support from his parents who attend all his meets has contributed to his success.

On all sailing ships sails are set and controlled on the various points of sailing by means of a number of ropes called sheets and halyards. The most important of these ropes is called the main sheet and that must be handled with care to keep the boat on an even keel. When jibing intentionally, careful sailors always tighten (trim) their sails while turning so that they can travel only a short distance when the wind reaches the other side of the sails.

What do our winter sports have in common with those of Norway, Sweden, parts of Russia, and parts of South America? We all try to propel ourselves over the snow—with more or less success! Probably one of the most spectacular of the snow sports is, of course, skiing. And the experts say that there is no end to the excitement, or new skills that can be learned from this fine sport. How to choose your skis? One of the experts says, "When you are standing with your arm stretched at full length above your head, the ski, placed upright, should be at least long enough to reach the roots of your fingers."

Let us at COACH'S CORNER, 31 S. Main, 625-8457 help you choose equipment and clothing for your favorite sport. We have a complete line of basketball uniforms and can fit you with Adidas basketball shoes. We also have many other items that would make great gifts for the holidays. Wolves vanquish Adams 21-15

By Mike Burdick

The Clarkston Wolves upped their win-loss record to 6-2 last Saturday by defeating Rochester Adams 21-15.

Clarkston, playing in a rare afternoon game at Rochester, had a discouraging day with quite a few fumbles, but still managed to scrape by.

The passing game is really what pulled Clarkston through. All touchdowns were scored by Don Blower in three brilliant catches from Tim Fogg.

Clarkston started early in the first quarter with 29 yards to Blower. Dan Guter put in his part by putting a boot through the upright.

Adams bounced back quickly in the second period by scoring two TD's in a row and opting for a two-point on the second TD instead of the usual one pointer.

Coming back from the half-time break, the Wolves seemed fired up. After not gaining much on the ground, Fogg completed a 75-yard bomb to number 88, Dan Blower. John Baker ran in for two points to tie up the score.

A few minutes later, still in the third period, Fogg connected again with Blower on a 34-yard pass. The extra point attempt missed due to a bad snap.

Clarkston had a pretty good game in defense, especially interception wise. Brian Snider, middle line backer, had two interceptions and Craig Grable, corner back, had one.

A pretty strong defense against the run and pass, except for a lapse in the second quarter, was a major factor in the outcome of the game.

The Wolves play their last game this Friday at 8 p.m. against Port Huron Northern at home.

JV team at 15-1

The girls' JV basketball team brought their record to 15-1 last week with a 44-24 victory over Kettering and a 49-32 decision over Andover.

Clarkston experienced a slow start against Kettering, as they trailed 10-6 at the end of the first quarter. Reserve guards Diane Ferguson and Liisa Vaara sparked the team in the second quarter with their aggressive play, and Clarkston collected 20 points in the quarter.

Kay Pearson led the scoring with 19 points and Donna O'Dell collected 13 rebounds.

The JVs were ready for Andover whose only league loss was to Clarkston earlier in the season. The Wolves jumped out to a 16-10 first quarter lead that Andover was never able to overcome.

Jeanne O'Dell had an excellent night as she scored 16 points and captured 13 rebounds. Kay Pearson added 12 points in sealing the victory.

Varsity cagers split a pair

The CHS girls' Varsity basketball team split a pair of decisions last week as they breezed to an easy victory over Waterford-Kettering on Tuesday and lost out in a competitive game against Andover on Thursday.

In the contest with Kettering, the Wolves were in command of the game from the opening jump ball. Clarkston ran well and played an aggressive game at both ends of the court. The lead for the Wolves was 15-6 at the end of the first period, and by the intermission the lead had been stretched to 34-11.

Second half action saw Clarkston's team still playing with consistency, while Kettering struggled to play catch-up ball. The Wolves scored 15 points in the third quarter and 12 more points in the last period to bring the final score to Clarkston 61-Kettering 32.

Two Clarkston players scored in double figures, as Sue Frazier topped all scorers with 20 points, followed by Mary Anderson's 10 points. The Wolves shot well from the floor as they hit on 22 of 62 shots for 35.5 percent field-goal shooting for the evening.

Thursday's game with Andover was a competitive battle throughout. Clarkston was down by the score of 9-14 after the first period but came back to tie it at 16-16 and to take a one point lead with the score 17-16. The game was tied again at 18 all before Andover inched ahead to a 23-26 halftime lead. The Andover Barons were blessed with good outside shooting throughout the contest, and despite the fact that two of Andover's starters fouled out in the third quarter, Clarkston found themselves down by five points at 35-40 going into the final period. The two teams played evenly in the final phase of the game as they each scored 10 points to bring the score at the buzzer to Clarkston 45-Andover 50.

The Wolves shot 30.6 percent from the floor which was edged out by Andover's 32.3 percent field goal shooting. Andover was four for five at the charity stripe, while Clarkston collected 15 points on 28 attempts from line.

Ice skaters to compete

Lakeland Arena will host the second Ice Skating Institute of America Open Freestyle Competition Saturday, November 13. Skaters from 50 Michigan arenas have been invited to participate in ten events, and 60 local skaters will represent Lakeland. An awards ceremony will follow.

Leading scorer for the Wolves was Jane Tatu with 13 points, followed closely by Sue Frazier, 12 points.

Last week's games bring Clarkston's over-all record to 7-9 for the season with a mark of 4-5 in league competition. This week the Wolves traveled to Ferndale on Tuesday for a non-leaguer, and on Thursday (tonight) they will close out their league competition with a home contest against Rochester. Thursday's game has been designated as the "Parents' Night" game.

Tuesday, November 16 winds up the regular season of play for the Wolves as they face Walled Lake Central in a non-league contest. Thursday, November 18, will see the Clarkston girls in District Tournament play, which is once again being hosted by Clarkston.

Competing in the Clarkston District this year along with the Wolves will be Detroit-MacKenzie, Lake Orion, Pontiac Central, Rochester and Rochester Adams. This year marks the fourth year of State Tournament action for the girls. In the past three years, Clarkston's teams have collected three District titles and one Regional Championship.

If you'd like to take part, call Ann at 623-7800. She stresses she does not seek to act as agent and will not charge anything for the information.

Davisburg hardware has new owner

The Davisburg Hardware store has a new owner. Jack Watson, owner of The Candle Factory also located in Davisburg has purchased and renamed the store "Lumber Jack Products."

Watson said he plans to keep the atmosphere of the old country store long associated with Davisburg Hardware.

"I'm going to do what I can to preserve the character of Davisburg as a turn of the century town and provide businesses that are an asset to Davisburg," Watson said.

Once the store is operating Watson plans to add a number of new equipment lines and services, including chain saws, repair work and all types of sharpening.

The store grand opening was planned for Nov. 6-7. Special buys and free refreshments were featured.

You pedal this mongoose

By Joe Gitter
of The Clarkston News

What's a mongoose? If you guessed it's an animal found in India which feeds on snakes and rodents you're right ... and you're wrong.

A Mongoose is also a bicycle specially built for motocross racing.

In a new program started this summer, sponsored by the Greater Pontiac Bicycle Association, youngsters seven to 16 could run their "machines" over hills, jumps, and through water hazards, just like the pros.

Steven Upcott, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Upcott of Frankwill, in his first year of racing has won six trophies including the overall championship in the nine to ten year old age group. Bicycle motocross is scored on a point-basis, much like professional motocross. Steve has won two races, placed second in two and third in three others.

Racers are required to wear helmets, long sleeved shirts and pants as safety equipment. Their bikes are specially built for racing. Many are constructed of special high-strength, light-weight materials. The Upcotts have $175 invested in Steve's winning machine.

The motocross course located on Scott Lake Road, behind the new wave pool, is about 200 yards long, according to Gary Upcott, Steve's father. The racers start at the top of a hill and travel as fast as they can over jumps, hills and through water hazards to the finish line.

An ambulance is in attendance at all times during races. No one has been seriously injured this year. Participants will wipe out occasionally, often in the water hazard which sometimes reaches two feet in depth.

Parents sometimes have difficulty recognizing their children after a race because they can get so covered with mud. But, the kids love it.

The program was such a success this summer that the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Department plans to take over and expand the program for next year.

Bicycle motocross is a fun and safe way for youngsters to enjoy the thrill of competition and maybe win some trophies. Most any bike, with a little work, can be converted into a motocross machine, the fans say.

Steven Upcott shows the form which won him an overall first place in bicycle motocross in his division.

Prepare for swine flu shots which will be dispensed free of charge from noon to 4 p.m. November 14 at independence center on Maybee Road. Another clinic will be conducted November 18 at Andersonville School in Springfield Township.

People who missed getting their swine flu shots at independence center will have another opportunity on November 19. Brandon High School will be used for the administration of the inoculations from 3 to 7 p.m. Those 18 years and older are eligible for the shots.

The American Legion, Chief Pontiac Post, located at 4819 Edgewood Rd., will observe Veterans Day November 11 with a gun salute, flag raising, and a wreath laying. The program starts at 11 a.m.

Mary Morgan Hine of Dixie Highway, who we featured in the paper last week as the descendant of a Civil War soldier whose diary had been found is in the news again. She won the $300 savings account in First Federal Savings and Loan Association's 300 Million Milestone Celebration last week. Joan M. Stewart of Clarkston Road won the $30 savings account.

Members of Concerned Citizen Cber's are now marking the tires of vehicles parked more than two hours on village streets.

The Clarkston Village Council will meet at 7:30 p.m. Friday, November 12 to select a bidder for the construction of the village garage. Only one bid had been received by the regular Monday night meeting, November 8.

We don't know the truth of it, but Allen Bartlett, president of the Clarkston Education Association, told the School Board President Dave Leak Monday night that first year BA degree teachers are paid on a level making them eligible for welfare. He was answering Leak's contention that ever escalating salaries are going to have to be arrested.

Clarkston High School Principal Dom Mauti has guaranteed the board there will be 100 people at its special November 22 meeting at his school. SEventy-five of them will be teachers, he said.

Turn out for the special meetings which are held in various schools has been poor. Teachers show up, but the parents who squawked the loudest about poor community relations on the part the board aren't even bothering to meet their board representatives when they come into the home area.

Rest assured it's okay even if the Board of Education hasn't specifically sanctioned a contemplated fruit cake sale by members of the high school band.

Student Dawn Reese appeared before the board Monday night to tell their plans of raising funds to buy new instruments. She was advised thatboard policy prohibits such sanctions, but she was advised to get in touch with the Band Boosters Club which is selling fresh fruit.

Dawn, meanwhile, was complimented for her courage in approaching the board—particularly since she'd brought samples of the cake with her which she distributed to members.

A grievance procedure underway in regard to the payment scale for half-time teachers will probably cost about $600 plus expenses of the arbiter. The cost will be divided by the Board of Education and the Clarkston Education Association. The amount at issue is about $7,000.

Independence Township Auxiliary police worked 141.5 regular hours during the month of October in addition to 129.5 hours spent patrolling Clarkston Community Schools, according to a report released by the township.

Chief JackMcCall worked 56 hours of unpaid overtime during the month. According to McCall, the 129.5 hours spent on Clarkston schools during October was unusually high. The time was spent patrolling during Halloween and enforcing parking regulations at the schools.

Thank you for your support in the past election.

Michigan motorists will be able to purchase 1977 passenger car license plate tabs beginning Monday (Nov. 15), according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Prepared applications have been mailed to Michigan's approximately 5.5 million passenger car and motorcycle owners," said Joseph Ratke, Auto Club licensing manager. "These forms can be mailed back to the Department of State immediately with orders to be filled after Nov. 15."

"Tabs also will be available at Department of State and 51 Auto Club offices across the state," Ratke stated. "One tab will be issued and it should be fastened to the upper right corner of the rear plate."

The issuance of tabs instead of new plates is expected to save the state approximately $3.3 million.

Deadline for tabs being ordered by mail is March 1 for passenger cars and motorcycles and Feb. 1 for commercial vehicles and trailers. The deadline for having 1977 tabs on passenger cars is April 1 while it is March 1 for commercial vehicles.

"Out of Small Beginnings" was edited and rewritten by the History Committee of the Oakland County Bicentennial Commission. Mrs. Elizabeth S. Adams of Drayton Plains chaired the committee. Other committee members were Maurice F. Cole, Delorice M. Kumler, James Renfrew and George N. Skrubb.

The History Committee used the works of Richard Lee Waddell and J. Carlton Starbuck in writing this history. The sketch of Oakland County is meant to give the local residents a general picture of how Oakland County progressed and how it fits into our national picture.

Good news for people who use the Clarkston branch of Pontiac State Bank. Full service on Saturday mornings from 9 a.m. to noon will be offered beginning November 13.

Booklets showing the placement of the individually signed Bicentennial Emblem bricks in Holly's Battle Alley are now available from merchants there. The masterplan which contains 3,000 names proved to be too unwieldy for a simple handout, according to Dr. Henry Raskin. The booklets also document the area's observance of the bicentennial and tell the story of the emblem which is now embedded in Battle Alley. The souvenirs are on sale for $1 and 50 cents.

Ellsworth "Chum" Rundell, Springfield Township trustee, ended 25 years of service to that community Wednesday evening. A resolution was read by Township Supervisor Donald Rogers expressing the board's and community's thanks for Rundell's years of service and their regrets at his retirement.

Rundell will be succeeded by newly elected Glenn Underwood.

The Crosshill Community Pre-school Program, already operating out of the Davisburg United Methodist Church, has not yet received official permission to open.

Their request to the board asking for a waiver of the $150 fee which should have been paid to the township before opening was refused. Their case will come before the Planning Commission for approval Nov. 16.

The board agreed to rehire a part-time treasurer to aid Patricia Kramer. The help was requested in order that someone could be in the office at all times during tax collection time.

The board also voted to change two of its three $25,000 time savings certificates from short to long term certificates. The move will increase interest received from 5 1/2 percent to 6 percent.

Now that the election is over and the emotions of campaigning have turned to reflections on the outcome of the various races, it is time for the candidates to do some reflecting too.

Behind every candidate there are many people who give moral, physical and financial help. Those people deserve a hearty round of applause, for without them the candidates would remain almost anonymous.

Hiller gets permission to store drag racers

The Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals has given Alex Hiller, 4736 Rohr Road, permission to attach an oversized garage to his present garage for storing his competition drag racing boats. He must adhere to stipulations of the township fire marshal, Jack Beach.

At a previous hearing on October 20, the board reserved judgment until the fire marshal could study the situation.

Neighbors in attendance then were concerned about the excess amount of noise when Hiller works on the boats and about the amount and storage of the fuel, some of which is highly flammable nitro methane.

Beach noted that up to 300 gallons of flammable liquid may be stored on private property but must be 40 feet away from any buildings and 20 feet from the property line.

The fuel storage drums must be painted red and lettered as to contents and the shed where the flammables are stored must be lettered Flammables, keep fire away. The area around the shed must be accessible for fire fighting.

The wall between the existing building and the new addition must be completely sealed to the roof.

Two other garages will also be built. Both are on Pinehurst in the Dollar Lake subdivision.

The appeals board gave front yard set back variances to Elmo Duggar, 5790 Pinehurst and to Glenn Appel, 6000 Pinehurst, allowing them to construct the garages closer to the road than the 40 feet provided by the township ordinance.

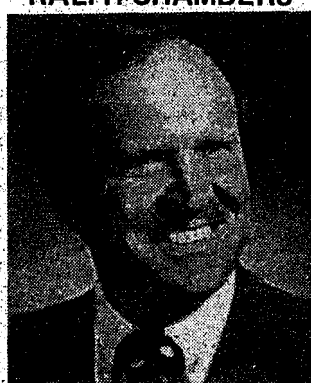

Park closed

Clintonwood Park on Clarkston Road will be closed Friday, November 12 until next April. Parks and Recreation Department officials say it may be opened periodically during the winter for special activities.

Kids 'storm the doors' at media centers

All six Clarkston elementary school media centers are now open and children have been "storming the doors" to get in, according to Clarkston School District media specialists.

Katherine Wlodarczyk and her two assistants, Linda Spannus and Susan Kott, reported on the progress of the $100,000 program initiated this fall before the Board of Education Monday night.

The libraries feature support material for both students and teachers as well as providing recreational reading and viewing for the students.

"We can see already that both teachers and children are benefiting from the program, though we have a long way to go yet," Mrs. Wlodarczyk said.

Schools Superintendent Milford Mason noted that the district has tentative approval on a $30,000 federal grant which can be used for the media centers.

He said distribution hinges on local matching funds, but it is now anticipated that $15,000 of the money would be used to improve the media centers. Another $7,500 is seen as helping out the high school's career education and library programs and $3,750 is earmarked for each of the two junior high schools.

Man hurt in accident

Lowell Grimshaw, 42, of 5152 Frankwill is in serious condition at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital with multiple rib and skull fractures. Grimshaw was struck from behind last Wednesday at the intersection of Sashabaw and Oak Vista Roads causing him to lose control of his vehicle which struck a light pole, according to police.

The car which struck Grimshaw was driven by Jesse Sparkman, 50, of 4609 Kempf.

The accident is under investigation by police.

BY THE THIRD EYE

Miss Lillian will be a frequent guest in the Carter Whitehouse, but she won't move there.

Rosalynn will become extremely active in public affairs, emulating Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt as much as any first lady. There may be a problem with Amy which will change some of their plans for a while. I see it primarily as an emotional situation. Private school may be considered.

If President Carter goes to the second term, there may be danger. I see nothing untoward during the first term.

I also still believe we will have a police action of some sort, a conflict, a war or whatever you want to call it. There may be more than one that we will be forced into.

An awful lot of deaths resulting from the deer hunting season are anticipated. There is almost a recklessness which will contribute to a total much higher than last year.

There'll be changes in Springfield, whether through the recount or not, I am not prepared to say.

One of our top TV stars will attempt a suicide. I am not sure that they will succeed.

Politics will wage hot and heavy during the next county executive term, but Dan Murphy will get quite a bit accomplished. There will be a lot of changes at all levels of government in the next two years. There'll be a lot of money spent.

Inflation is likely to continue, jobs will be created to alleviate unemployment. Quite a few may file for bankruptcy or leave the country.

Oldtimer has tales of the hunt

By Joe Gitter

of The Clarkston News

Pat Metzdorf, 70, raised in Northern Wisconsin along the shores of Lake Superior, can remember the days when "Men were men and women were glad of it."

Metzdorf, a member of the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club in Independence Township, has been an avid hunter all his life. Deer, ducks, geese, rabbits and bear have all been objects of his attention. He has hunted throughout lower and upper Michigan and he remembers many of the good times he's had.

Up until 15 years ago with the construction of the Mackinaw Bridge, hunters had to cross the straits by ferry.

"I can remember waiting from 12 to 28 hours," Metzdorf said. "The line waiting to cross would be backed up into downtown Cheboygan (17 miles away)." Hunters tended to leave one man with the car and go into town to pick up food, supplies and beer. "It was like a great big party," Metzdorf remembers.

They used the snow banks along the road side as garbage cans, according to Metzdorf. In spring when the snow melted, the Conservation Department would fill three or four trucks with the cans and bottles left behind by those waiting to get into the UP at deer season.

Metzdorf did his hunting on the western edge of the Upper Peninsula near Wakefield. If lucky, he spent the cold nights in tar paper shacks provided by the Conservation Department. Otherwise he and his buddies braved the sub-freezing temperatures and deep snow in ingeniously devised tents.

Metzdorf would spread three or four inches of straw on the floor of the tent and cover that with a tarp. A stove for warmth and cooking would be placed in a sandbox inside the tent. If any sparks happened to fly from the stove, they would land in the sand instead of on the straw which could make for a nasty situation.

Getting a deer is a big moment in any hunter's life, but there is much more to hunting than the hunt itself. Getting away from home and its problems, meeting new people, and listening to some of the wild and unusual stories told by other hunters are all a part of the experience.

Some of those stories are worth repeating. Metzdorf remembers one year one of the fellows got a 450 pound bear. He had brought a new Chevy that year. Three other guys rode with him and they all got a deer.

Trying to load the bear and a deer on the roof of the car caused it to cave in. They rode all the way home like that, but the envious stares of others not so fortunate made it all worth while.

"One guy stayed out all night in zero degree temperatures," Metzdorf recalls. "The next morning he was putting snow in a pot to make tea. He turned around and an eight point buck was watching him go through the motions. He never did get that deer."

Not all hunting stories are that frustrating. "It was my turn to do dishes that day," Metzdorf said. "I went down to the spring to get some water. I heard a noise and ran back to the cabin and got my gun.

"I went back and saw two bucks standing by the spring. I slipped on a rock, made a noise and one of the bucks took off. The other just stood there and I nailed him. That evening when the rest of the guys came back weary and empty handed, there I stood with my buck, never leaving camp. They couldn't believe it."

Metzdorf, along with most other hunters, has always followed the rules when hunting. But rules, regulations and possible fines don't stop some people from poaching and hunting illegally. He recalls one incident in which three men hunted illegally at night.

They shot a buck, according to Metzdorf, and it dropped on the spot. They dragged it to their car and stuffed it in the back seat with one of the poachers.

"The deer came back to life and began pawing and thrashing around in the back seat. After nearly destroying the interior of the car and bloodying one man's legs the animal's throat was finally cut. The car interior was ripped to shreds and one man was seriously hurt.

"A poacher carrying two deer hindquarters down railroad tracks and across a trestle noticed a train coming his way. He didn't have time to get off the bridge before the train reached it so he climbed over the side and hung on for dear life with the deer parts over his back.

"The weight on his back prevented him from climbing back up onto the bridge after the train had passed. He didn't know how deep the ravine under him was, so he hung there all night."

"When the sun came up next morning he could see that he was only two feet off the ground. He got so mad at himself that he just hung there the rest of the day."

Herb Olson, vocational pioneer, to retire

By Jean Saile

of The Clarkston News

Herb Olson, principal of the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center (NOVEC) since it was still a horse pasture back in 1968, will retire January 20.

His resignation was accepted by Clarkston Board of Education Monday night.

By the time he retires, he is in hopes that the 11 areas of vocational training offered there will be augmented by another seven with the completion of a half million dollar addition to the Big Lake Road facility.

Herb was born and raised in Michigan's Upper Peninsula. A former director of vocational education in Royal Oak and Traverse City, he has been both a secondary school teacher and a coordinator of vocational cooperative work training programs.

His wife, Reva, is a registered nurse and their four children are all productively employed, which may be a proof of Herb's contention that work is a philosophy encompassing concern and respect for others.

Robert works with the U.S. Postal Service in Royal Oak. Cathy is a social worker with the Bureau of Children's Aid in Flint. Gail is a teacher in Royal Oak and Charles is a junior at Ferris State College.

The Olsons live now at 5901 Dixie Highway, but Herb envisions year-round residence at a summer cottage near Traverse City and his use of what he calls non-existent vocational talents to fit it for year-round living.

Herb's forte has always been public relations. He has a background in journalism, and he considered that more important to the burgeoning field of career education than specialized knowledge in any of the trades.

He's on the side of the kids, noting that many of them fail to perform until they leave home. He does feel that they've got to be "turned on" in high school, because after they get out they've formed their own self image and it's a hard thing to combat.

Manthei named

Dan Manthei, assistant principal at the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center, will succeed retiring principal Herbert Olson on January 20. His appointment was confirmed by the Clarkston Board of Education Monday night.

Through the years hundreds of his former students have come back to say hello. He finds "the tough ones the most fun." The saving of potential drop-outs has become almost a way of life.

While he may not remember all their names, he says he can remember where they sat in class.

When the NOVEC addition is complete, the school will be able to service 850 students on a daily basis, another 200 to 300 at night and a like number in the summer. You get the feeling that's almost too many for Herb. If he had his

"druthers," no school would contain more than 700 kids.

Because NOVEC has been small, he feels it has been able to accomplish things that schools in cities like Detroit would find impossible.

Almost a quarter of the student population is classified as having "special needs." These students are assimilated into the main-stream of the curriculum and he says he is constantly amazed at their accomplishments.

"You never know the capabilities of a student. You can never say they're a failure. The human animal is too complex to make that kind of a judgment at that age," he contends.

He admits that some kids have to find out for themselves the value of an education, and he gets a special delight when they come back to say so.

He likes it, too, when he's shopping and a young person yells, "Hi, Mr. Olson!"

Kids have a better educational system now than they had 30 years ago, he feels. He also thinks it's necessary. The break-down in the home, the lack of cultural education, and the problems of emotional disturbances have created a situation where he believes half the students of the district might be classified as "disadvantaged."

When he came to Clarkston, there were seven vocational education centers in four districts. Now, as he retires there are 36 and about eight to ten more on the boards. The goal, he notes, is 81 by 1980.

The schools have taught the kids saleable talents. Whether the students go directly into the vocation for which they've been trained or whether they wait five years to do so makes relatively little difference to Herb.

Many of his students, sometimes he believes more than from regular high schools, go on to college. He's proud of that figure. It means he got them interested in something, and turned them on. That's important, he feels.

Innovation shows in new home

Country Living

By Hilda Bruce
of The Clarkston News

Having been in their new Georgian colonial only seven weeks the Patrick Stapletons of Independence Township still have a lot of decorating to do. But already it has taken on the feeling of home.

Kathy's green thumb has prevailed and plants flourish throughout, accenting the wheat and ochre color scheme.

Her equally talented fingers have produced crewl pictures, a straw wreath and a dried flower arrangement that add a warm note to the dining area of the large country kitchen.

She turned jungle printed sheets into a crib blanket, curtains and pictures for the nursery. Bamboo baskets in three different sizes hold Michael's toys and complete the theme.

John and Steve took charge in their rooms, and came up with football for eight-year-old John's domain and baseball for Steve. Their rooms are the only ones that veer from the monochromatic color scheme of the home.

Shades of wheat carpet run throughout as does the antique white wall color.

Kathy's creative streak turned an antique Jenny Lind bed into a sofa for the family room.

Sheer determination stripped the deteriorating finish from an antique rocker destined for the family room and from the table and chairs that furnish the dining room.

But Kathy is not going to refinish the upright piano* that shares the dining room space, although she and John both practice on it.

"Someday I want a console piano for the living room," she said.

Antique pewter candlesticks that glow warmly on the fireplace mantle and a marble topped fern stand in the foyer are family heirlooms that help make the house a home.

The Stapletons designed their own home and had it built by Briarwoode Builders just three doors down the street from where they lived... a ranch home that was becoming too small for them.

"We like the area," Kathy said of the short move.

The Stapletons came to Clarkston 10 years ago. They met in Kathy's home town, Cincinnati, Ohio, while Pat was in college there.

Now Pat works for General Motors Truck and Coach Division, and Kathy chauffeurs the boys, teaches catechism at Our Lady of the Lakes Church and plays bridge.

Pat enjoys card games, too and they play in a duplicate bridge club once a month. They also play pinocchle once a month.

While Pat plays both golf and paddle ball, Kathy says she has to improve her golf game before she tackles anything else.

Community activities are also important.

Because Pat is president of the Pine Knob Elementary PTA, Kathy is also active.

John is a Cub Scout this year which means that Mom and Dad get involved as well.

The morning scheduling of Little League baseball meant that John couldn't play last summer and Pat organized a group for those who were in the same situation.

But now that summer is gone the Stapletons expect the boys' interest will soon turn from ball and fishing to ice skating on the pond near their home.

Dining room is furnished with antique table and chairs that the Stapletons refinished.

Master bedroom decorated in monochromatic shades of wheat color scheme that prevails throughout the home.

Green and gold upholstered couch is accented by picture arrangement in formal living room.

Refinished antique rocker in fireplace corner of family room.

Make a mental note

by Jim and Ellen Windell

In our society adolescence is a time of growing separation and increasing independence. Most normal teenagers feel a strong pull to be with their friends and away from their family. Staying at home is "boring" and a "drag" and there is "nothing" to do at home and "no one" to talk to. This is often true even for young people who were formerly close to their parents.

During the same years, the parents of teenagers are on edge and uneasy with a feeling that their children are moving away from home too quickly. Parents become concerned about the amount of time the teenager is absent from the home and often upset because the new friends seem to be an all-consuming interest. The parents seem intent often to try to keep the adolescent at home more frequently, usually against his or her will.

Parents during this stage which is sometimes referred to as a drama of separation try at times almost desperately to hold to a person whom they are destined to lose. Hopefully, this drama has a happy ending as the teenager enters adulthood meeting new responsibilities in a more or less mature way. The situation can have traumatic effects for some parents and adolescents.

When parents believe and operate under the assumption that essential satisfactions and securities can be obtained only within the confines of the family structure, the stage is set for a dramatic and potentially tragic clash. In such families, the parents have rather hostile and suspicious attitudes toward the outside world and the teenagers having normal desires to separate and move toward independence are caught in a bind. These parents seeing their children's attempt to find satisfactions outside of the family attempt to tie them ever more closely to themselves and try to prevent the children's separation at all costs. The attempt at greater closeness becomes psychologically dangerous and the youngster will in all likelihood rebel. Often truancy from home results.

However, when leaving home or having interests outside of the family are interpreted as family disloyalty, the actual leaving is guilt-producing for the young person. Guilt may be present over a long period of time and an independent life adjustment may be extremely difficult.

Thank you for your support on November 2. I will work hard to merit your trust.

There's getting to be a place

By Hilda Bruce
of The Clarkston News

At least three Clarkston area restaurateurs are pleased there will soon be no-smoking sections in their and others' eateries.

Chris Cucksey, manager of the Back Court at the Deer Lake Racquet Club, Harvey Render, owner of Harvey's Restaurants on the Dixie Highway, and Roland Clouse, owner of Nanjo's in Springfield Township, are non-smokers themselves.

The new non-smokers' rights law, an amendment to the Michigan Public Health Act, will take effect in mid-March. It requires that dining establishments seating more than 50 persons provide a reserved section for non-smokers.

The law also provides that the operator of a restaurant "post a sign at the entrance of the dining area indicating the availability of a non-smoking area."

Clouse has already determined an area in his restaurant and Render is making plans that should be complete by the first of the year.

Cucksey has yet to make any definite plans but will comply if only with "a couple of tables set aside."

section we will seat him—but he cannot smoke," Render said.

He explained that the law also provides that any customer can call authorities if a smoker is seated in a non-smoking section. The smoking violator can be prosecuted.

As long as the required signs are posted the restaurateur is not liable, he said.

Phillip Negip, manager at the Palace on Dixie Highway, is also concerned about having people in line when there are empty seats.

"Long lines and empty seats are incompatible," said he.

If that situation were to occur, Negip said he would be inclined to seat the smoking customer in the non-smoking section.

"There are other things to consider when you're in business —profits are important," he said.

e for non-smokers

At present Lee McNew, who will be managing the Clarkston Cafe, has not considered the new ruling. She is only concerned with the liquor license transfer and other concerns more pressing in beginning business.

Ed Krause who recently expanded his Nickelodeon to a seating capacity of 100 isn't concerned about the ruling and simply says, "I guess we'll have to (comply)."

He is more concerned with the recent returnable bottle ban mandated by the voters.

"I don't have the room to store returnables and they are dirty," he said.

"Having been in business all my life I remember how bottles come back and things that come back in them," Krause said with a grimace.

Dick Greenfield, manager of John Laffrey's Old Mill, has set aside the Garden Room for non-smokers.

"It's an ideal arrangement because there are smoke eaters on either side of the room and the main dining room (next to the Garden Room) can be closed off," Greenfield said.

"We have had no opposition from those who can't eat there and no comments from those who can," he said.

Seniors organize for fun

November 3, 30 senior citizens gathered at independence center for their first card party sponsored by the Independence Township recreation department.

Tim Doyle, director of the recreation department said he is in the process of developing a social calendar that would provide activities such as bowling and arts and crafts for Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

He would also like to schedule some weekend special events for the 200 senior citizens registered with the department.

Business meetings have been scheduled for the first Tuesday of each month at 1 p.m. Table games, including cards, puzzles, etc., will follow from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. at independence center.

Richard Peter explains who can order up and call trump in a game of Euchre.

Fern Schultz wasn't taking the game too seriously as she played cards with other senior citizens.

Cards are serious business....

It's just a "friendly" game of Spite and Malice for Helen Campbell (left), Adesta Glick, Bessie Wagner and Belle McIntyre.

But not so serious there isn't time to eat.

Mass transit rip-off

by Jim Sherman

What election?
Ah, how soon we forget. Thank goodness.

If our memory were longer we might recall the great rip off of the last legislative session in Lansing.

It isn't good that we remember just $12 million was needed to get $600 to $800 million in federal funds to build a rapid transit system for southeast Michigan.

Public sentiment swayed toward approval at the Capitol. I remember the pendulum starting its swing. Should we get everyone in the state to pay for it, or just the automobile drivers in Wayne, Oakland, Macomb?

So the legislation passed. Not by much, but enough. A few weeks later came the exciting announcement out of Washington that "as much as $600 million" may be forthcoming in Federal grants.

Gone was the mention of $800 million.

Then came another hitch. Rapid transit corridor merchants had to match the $600 million.

See how good a poor memory is. I don't remember hearing that "matching fund" mentioned during the legislative fight.

Too, The "Southeast Michigan" system is now a "Detroit" system.

I only bring this little item up now because it might do well for us to remember the hoodwinking of the pre-election days. There are some new faces blending with the old rascals.

Two more election comments.

A few people have mentioned the unusual number of young people in line at the polls this year. When the 18-year-olds were given this franchise a few years ago not many took advantage of it.

My other comment has to do with the tremendous number of "capable, qualified, sensitive, responsible, interested-in-you" candidates who were running for public office Nov. 2.

Everyone had all those qualities. Now half are gone.

One might assume that the other half are in office, but I really believe the number fitting the above description has dwindled to less than half.

You didn't hear it here first...
"Early to bed, early to rise and your gal goes out with six other guys."
