Drowning averted

Gerald Van Tine is lucky he's alive today. The Ortonville man was swimming alone near the middle of Round Lake Sunday evening.

Suddenly, for an unexplained reason, he went under. But, Donald Smith of Houghton, and a friend watching from shore hopped in a nearby boat and sped to Van Tine's rescue.

Smith dove into the water and pulled Van Tine to safety, administering artificial respiration. Upon their return to shore, Van Tine was breathing and the township rescue squad administered oxygen and stabilized the victim. He then refused to be transported to the hospital.

Mrs. Stageman doing well

A Clarkston woman was hospitalized last Thursday (June 30) after she apparently ran into the path of a northbound vehicle on Main Street in the village's downtown district.

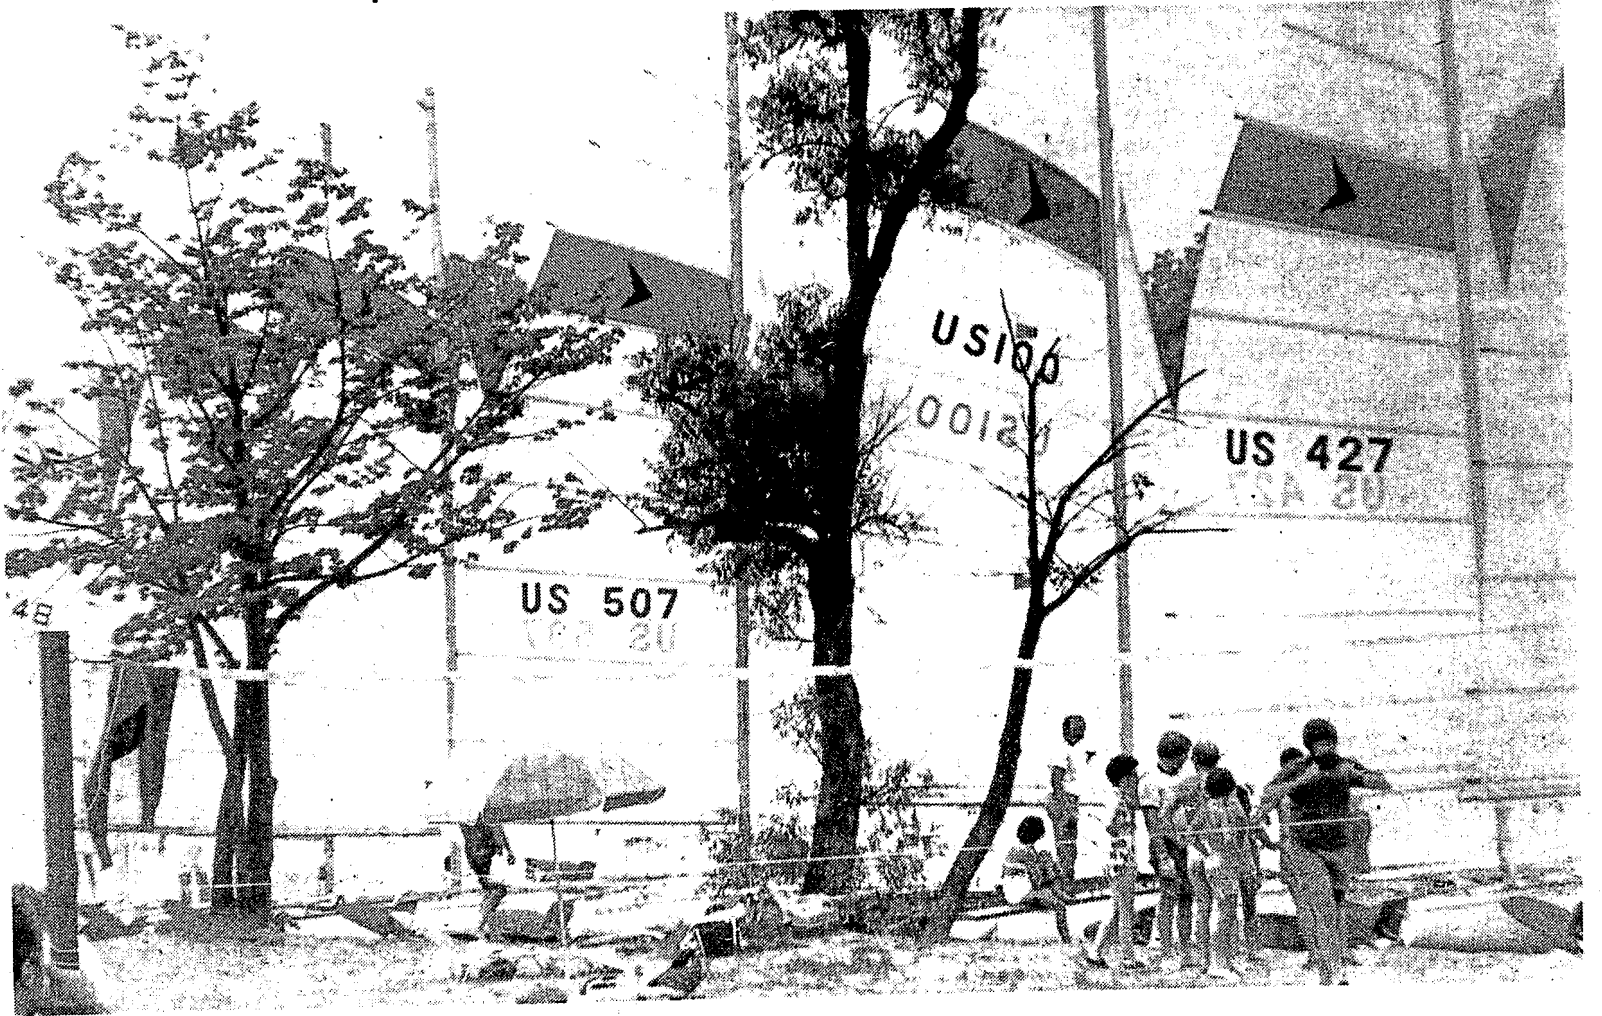

Hospitalized was Mrs. Leola Stageman, 69, 6065 Middle Lake Road, with lacerations on the right side of her forehead.

According to Oakland County Sheriff's Deputies, Mrs. Stageman was at the corner of Church and Main when she darted in front of a car driven by Evonne Larsen of Independence Township.

Witnesses, deputies added, said the driver of the car had no chance to avoid Mrs. Stageman.

Mrs. Stageman was reported in good condition at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac.

Clarkston's tall ships

Tall sails open full to the wind heralded the annual Deer Lake Sailing Club's regatta Sunday and Monday on Deer Lake. Sailing enthusiasts throughout the area turned out for the event which featured a sailing competition and lots of fun for participants and spectators alike. Winners of Sunday's meet in the catamaran class are: Tom Linton, first; Don Slavin, second; and Bill Curtindale, third. Winners in the board boat class are: Bob Schultz, first; Mike Burdick, second; and Dale Lage, third.

Teachers assess TV impact on children

By Hilda Bruce
of The Clarkston News

It's Saturday morning. Do you know where your children are? Are they out playing ball or are they glued to the TV cartoons?

In a recent study, Dr. Charles K. Atkin and Dr. Bradley S. Greenberg, professors and researchers in communication at Michigan State University, found that Saturday morning was "the most violent and deceitful time block of programming. Physical aggression is almost twice as high on Saturday morning as for adult prime time," they said.

The impact of TV violence, they said, "is greatest among boys, older children, and those who perceive TV violence to be realistic."

Many researchers have produced such reports recently but without the researchers' tools and control groups, it is hard for other professionals, let alone parents, to pinpoint TV as the reason for aggressive behavior in children today.

Teachers of the young are concerned about the impact TV has on their charges.

"They imitate TV characters. I don't know if they think it's real or if they know the difference between reality and fantasy," said Cynthia Omans, kindergarten teacher at Bailey Lake Elementary.

"I do find that they are surprised if they hurt someone. They see the karate chops and such as play. I try to explain to the children that although they might not intend to hurt another, they do."

"I also remember my brother imitating TV cowboys. And I wonder if color adds to the sense of reality."

Maryellen Steele has been teaching for 36 years and sees few changes in five-year-old behavior patterns.

"They're still so sweet," she said. "I do see a lot of difference in older children. Some seem very aggressive. But that isn't all bad—if it can be directed in the right way."

"It's hard to say youngsters are more aggressive today," said Doreen Cutshall, fifth grade teacher at Pine Knob Elementary.

"I do see less respect for adults. Children are more inclined to speak up. That's not all bad, but there is a time to speak and a time to listen."

"The youngsters today have a different perspective of what is right and what is wrong. Whether the changes are a result of TV is hard to say. I still feel that home values have the biggest influence. If children are well disciplined at home, they're no problem at school."

Mrs. Cutshall finds that youngsters are more abusive in their language than they used to be, too.

"Their adjectives are most descriptive," she said emphatically. "I learn a lot of new words each year!"

"We do talk about the TV programs they watch. They seem to know it's 'all made up.' They realize the fantasy."

Joette Kunse, first grade teacher at South Sashabaw, and Rosetta LaMagna, who works with children with special problems in the school district, are both concerned about the passive role of the children while viewing TV.

"I see a lack of emotion in children," Mrs. Kunse said.

"They get instant gratification from TV. Because it is a visual medium, they don't have to listen. That spills over into the classroom. They can't 'see' what I'm telling them. Listening is not easy for them. School is hard work. There is no instant gratification."

"Because children cannot talk back to the TV they have a reduced ability to express themselves," Mrs. LaMagna said.

"Children must be able to share and express themselves and TV hinders that growth," she noted.

"TV also produces too much stimuli for them. They learn to tune out much of it."

Both teachers feel that TV habits are not carefully formed by parents.

"Children have a hard time regulating themselves. If they are not watching TV, then the parents have to find ways for children to fill those hours. That is not easy," Mrs. Kunse explained.

It is the callousness toward hurt and death, not potential violence, that most concerns the teachers.

"Death has no meaning to children. How many murders do they see on TV before they say, 'Oh, it's just another murder,'" the teachers asked.

"I see no change in out and out violence," said North Sashabaw Principal Lynn Jervis. "Fist fights are no more vicious than they were 10 years ago."

In spite of TV's negative influence, teachers still see a great deal of good resulting from the medium.

"Kids are more sophisticated, they are more prepared for school," Mrs. Omans noted.

Mrs. Steele added that children are much brighter because they are exposed to more.

"Kids believe TV. If they see it on TV it has to be true," Mrs. Kunse said.

To counteract that parents have to provide a lot of good examples, she said.

Area residents in Selfridge demonstration

by Dick Krause
Orion Review Editor

The spraying of red paint on a vintage B29 bomber could be considered a form of exorcism according to a Lake Orion activist involved in Saturday's confrontation at Selfridge Air National Guard Base near Mt. Clemens.

Jack Cumbee of 571 West Point referred to what he called the idolization of military power and said the red paint and ashes thrown on the plane represented victims of nuclear war of which the bomber was considered a symbol.

"There was no intent to damage the plane," Cumbee said. "It could be thought of as a form of exorcism. Much of this group is very biblical oriented."

Some 17 persons were arrested at Saturday's air show which featured re-enactments of several World War II air battles by a Texas group called the Confederate Air Force. The group, which is dedicated to flying and preserving old warplanes, has re-enacted several WWII battles including Pearl Harbor, the Coral Sea, Midway and Solomons-Guadalcanal. It was the subject of controversy last October when it re-enacted the atomic bombing of Hiroshima at Rebel Field in Harlington, Texas. That mock battle brought a formal complaint from the Japanese government and a subsequent apology from the U.S. government.

Saturday's protest was organized by the Great Lakes Life Community. Persons arrested included three area residents. Charged, but later released, were Judy Cumbee, Dixie McCleary of 24 Bennett, Pontiac, and the Rev. Gordon Judd of 3990 Giddings Road. The three were among eight persons charged with malicious destruction of property over $100.

Three others were arrested and charged with interfering with a police officer in performance of his duty when they tried to prevent police from loading other demonstrators into a police vehicle. The other five were arrested later for refusing to move from in front of a B29 which was about to take off as part of the show.

"Our feeling is that the B29 sort of represents the extreme in the use of violence," Jack Cumbee said. "It was a B29 that dropped the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki. The idea was that the red paint and ashes indicate what the thing was really about—the massive indiscriminate slaughter of human beings."

Red paint was used to write the word "death" on the plane.

"We objected mainly that the air show presents war as a nice sort of thing—a thing to be promoted and so on," he said.

Cumbee said he was surprised by the anger shown by air show spectators toward the demonstrators. Judy Cumbee, who was arrested, said she was demonstrating to urge people to "turn to the forces of extreme," he said. "I heard a lot of love and truth."

"The hostility in the crowd was of people yelling 'kill them.' They were spitting on anybody who to do by Jesus and Ghandi," she said. "We were called to reach out and affirm life the best we can."

"All this violence is indicative of the problem we are dealing with. It also is indicative of the idolization of military power," released Sunday. Published re-

Cumbee added that the Great Lakes Community is not solely an anti-war group. "It is a non-violent organization" he said. "It provides soup kitchens, a hospitality house for people with no place to stay, and a place for battered women."

A Macomb County Sheriff's Department spokesman said Tuesday, however, that the incident remains under investigation.

Trim bill would give driver right to sue

State Representative Claude A. Trim (D-Davisburg) has introduced legislation which would return to auto owners the right to sue persons at fault in property damage accidents.

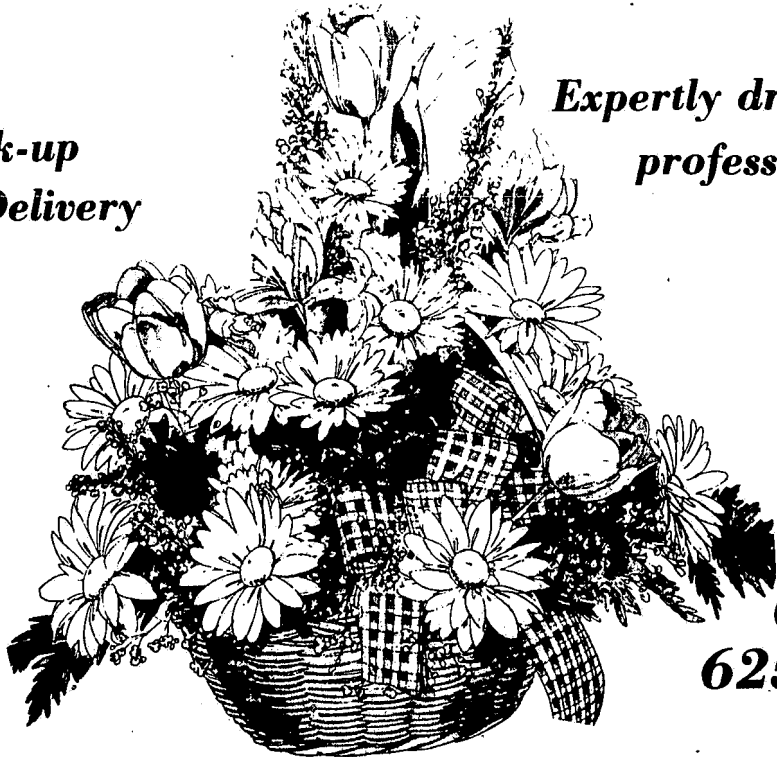

Under Michigan's no-fault auto insurance law, an individual's own insurance company pays for vehicle damage, regardless of who was at fault for the accident.

He noted that a person who is the innocent victim of several property damage accidents over several years is likely to have his insurance premiums increased or, in extreme cases, have his insurance cancelled. "That person may be a very careful driver," Trim said, "yet he is being forced to pay the price for careless drivers."

TV cameras slow the Road Runners

But seniors are still in the ball game

by Dan Trainor
of The Clarkston News
Move over Little Caesar's!
Who needs the likes of Norm
Cash or Jim Northrup!

The Independence Road Runners are on the move despite last week's 16-7 setback to the Waterford Jets.

The Road Runners, now 2 and 1 on the season, were hitting the ball hard and fielding flawlessly through the first four innings and then something happened—television cameras.

When the cameras came to Clintonwood Park, the stage struck Road Runners went to pieces and their fifth inning 6-2 lead evaporated as the Jets came up with six runs, adding nine more in the next two innings.

The Road Runners, sparked by the grand slam homer by Ken Clair in the first inning and his solo homer in the third, were building what appeared to be an insurmountable lead.

"But as soon as the television cameras came on, they seemed to fall apart," said manager Darlene Bringard.

It all sounds like it could be a report on a college or semi-pro baseball game but Ken Clair is 63 years old and is one of the younger members of the team.

The Road Runners, who hold down second place in the Senior Citizens Softball League, are comprised of men and women whose ages range from the baby of the group who is a mere 55 years old to John Thennish, a spry 83-year-old who plays a mean right field.

If someone is expecting to see the players moving slowly around the base paths or having trouble bending over to field a ground ball, they are in for a surprise.

The women (there must be at least three in the lineup at all times) take the game just as seriously as the men and they play just as well at the plate and in the field.

It is an opportunity for the seniors to get out for some fun, exercise, and to meet others, Miss Bringard said.

They take the games seriously but the main benefit is the enjoyment they receive while playing.

The seniors, following their loss to Waterford, were back out on the diamonds the next morning practicing fielding and batting and choosing up sides for a scrub game much as they did generations ago and as their grand and great-grandchildren do now.

As everyone who loses, the Road Runners were disappointed at their loss, but said, "We play them two more times this year and they won't beat us again."

The Road Runners have five more games on their schedule with their next game being at home with the Troy Dreamers, July 13, followed by a July 20 rematch with Waterford in Waterford.

The next two games are on the road against the Birmingham-Bloomfield Mature Minglers, July 27 and Troy August 3.

The season's finale is at home against the Waterford Jets Aug. 10.

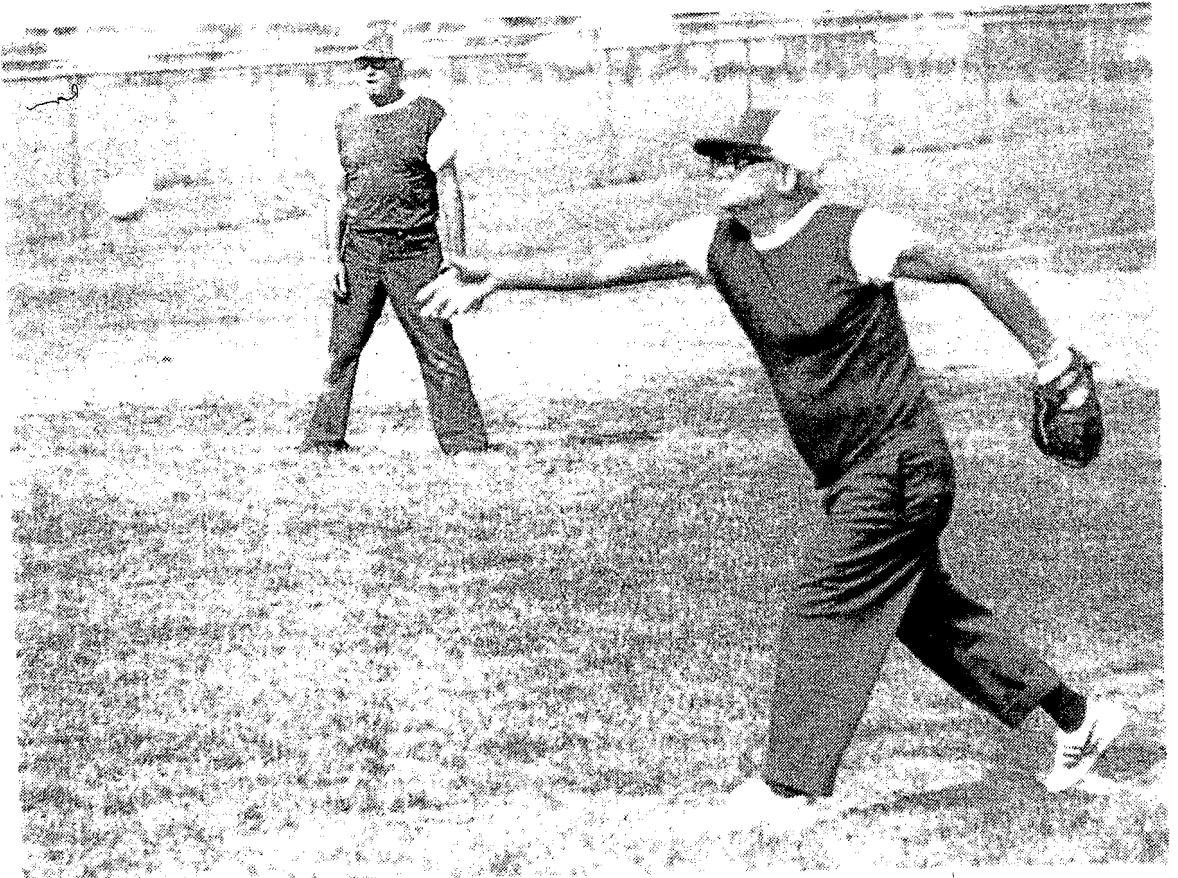

Trophies will go to the first and second place finishers.

HEY! LET'S GO!

Estelle Parkins doesn't let a few years bother her as she chugs down the first base line to beat out a soft ground ball.

Larry Parkins was pitching well through the first four innings and then the roof fell in on him.

A pop up almost fell in between the infielders but Parkins reached out to catch it in the webbing of his glove.

Rec department sponsors day camp

The Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department has a day camp program at Independence-Oaks for boys and girls ages 6-13 year. Each day children experience an exciting program of creative outdoor education with an emphasis on developing a sense of appreciation for nature.

The Recreation Department offers two separate plans for prospective participants:

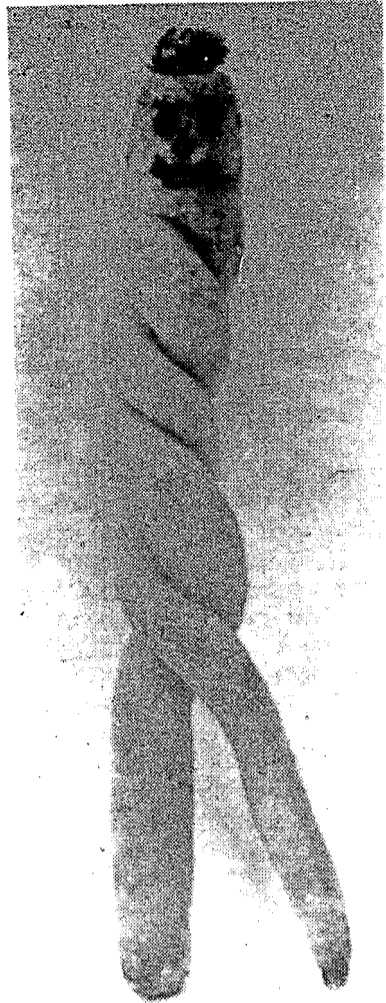

Plan A—two week session, M, W, F or T, Th, F; fee $22 residents, $27 non-residents; family fee, 2nd child $15, 3rd child $10.

Plan B—two week session Mon. thru Fri., fee $37 resident; $40 non-resident; family fee, 2nd child $25 resident; 3rd child $20 non-resident.

Registration is being taken now Recreation for the remaining four office at 625-8223 for more at the Independence Township two-week sessions. Contact the information.

Clarkston kids used the parade to support the upcoming school millage vote.

Lost and found law under review

The story of Rick Billings who found $120 and turned it over to the Waterford Police Department only to discover the money, unclaimed, went into the township general fund, is still having its effects in Independence.

The township board tabled action on the newly enacted Unclaimed Property Ordinance, modeled after Waterford's, to await a recommendation from Police Services and the township attorney on what to do with cash that is found and never claimed.

Currently the township has the same provision, in that, if money is found and turned into the township and goes unclaimed the finder receives no part of the money.

The experience of the Waterford teenager has prompted that board to review its ordinance with the probability that an amendment will be adopted to provide the finder with a part or all of the money found.

Ode to a small town

hill 'n gully

The 'vapors'

by Jean Saile

I like Clarkston, and the Fourth of July week seems an appropriate time to say it. I like it for its beauty, and it is never more beautiful than it is in the hazy, lazy days of summer.

And I like it for its people. Let me tell you some personal things.

We have sick people at our house and would have had to abandon them long ago to institutions of one sort or another were it not for local medical people who have gone far beyond the call of duty.

The additional home help we've needed has been supplied by neighbors and friends who have stepped into the breach and done a very human job of caring.

This morning we were looking for a special gift, and tapped a retired businessman, a specialist in the field in which we were searching. He stepped out of retirement long enough to do the job that no one else could have done better.

Sidewalk sales were on across the street, and though they weren't featuring exactly what we were looking for, we stopped to chat and enjoy some homemade cookies that the businessman's wife had spent most of the week making.

In the course of the morning's activities there have been at least 20 friendly hellos, and not all of them from people who agree with the editorial policies of this paper.

I guess that's what small towns are all about. Like an extension of family, we interact, laugh, enjoy and sometimes fight, and when we take the time to think about it, we appreciate each other.

—Jean Saile

Letters to the Editor

Praise for auxiliaries

Dear Editor,

I would like to bring to the attention of your readers the very fine professional work of Police Chief McCall and the Independence Township Police Reserves as the traffic control officers at Pine Knob.

The entire township should be proud of their high quality work. The township reserves are handling the traffic, even high volume events such as "Chicago," in a very orderly, cool-headed, and professional manner. The Pine Knob officials have given praise for their performance. We have also had favorable comments from some of the neighbors of Pine Knob who have had complaints in the past.

Many of the comments I have received have stated that the township reserves are handling the situation much better than it had been handled previously by the county.

I would, therefore, like to acknowledge the very competent work being done by the township police reserve officers. I would also like to extend special praise to Police Chief McCall who has engineered the smooth workings of the reserves.

Sincerely,
Christopher L. Rose, Clerk
Independence Township

'If it Fitz . . .'

Minutes and money slip away

by Jim Fitzgerald

It is probably fitting that the Wall Street Journal should confirm what I've always suspected—I am never going to be rich.

A Journal article said most high-powered executives get that way by saving minutes. You know . . .

They dictate into recorders while flying. They shave and read stock reports while being chauffeured along freeways. They eat lunch at their desks—or with clients while scribbling $1 million figures on the table cloth.

Time is money; don't waste it. The Journal told about a Detroit physician who used to have a tank of tropical fish in his office. He got rid of the fish because he was wasting too much time talking about them with his patients. Joe Sick would come in and say, "What kind of fish is that red one?" instead of immediately plopping his broken leg on the table. The doctor had to answer, and there went two minutes, or $200.

The Journal also described a new standup desk which is popular with Big Business. It has a perch seat "so the executive will remain more alert and will be able to walk his visitors to the door without being trapped in a desk situation."

Oh me. I would not lie and tell you I wouldn't like to have a million bucks. I realize money doesn't buy happiness, but it certainly buys a lot of marvelous things that make me happy. I can be as ambitious and greedy as the next guy. Unless the next guy is one of those go-go minute counters described in the Journal.

Poor as I am, I feel sorry for a millionaire who hasn't got time to share his goldfish with a customer.

It was in 1973 that the New York Times described the typical day of a top White House aide: "Up before 7 o'clock, at his desk before 8, back home 12 hours later; he is the epitome of the nose-to-the-grindstone man the president likes, admires and appoints."

That White House aide's name was H.R. Haldeman.

What this country needs is more sloth in the White House. If guys like Haldeman ever start working 24 hours a day, the Republic may not survive.

Give me a White House aide who sometimes doesn't get back from lunch because of an exciting game of eight ball. A guy who goes home at 5 p.m.

every evening and yells at his kids to stop watching TV and come to dinner. A guy who does no constructive work on Saturday but instead goes to baseball games or simply sits in the woods and watches the squirrels squirrel around.

I am sick of reading about congressmen who chin themselves 1,456 times before breakfast and then skip lunch so they can go to a gym and make their muscles sore.

It was easy to stifle a sob when I heard about the sweat-suited senator who was mugged while jogging through a Washington slum. What did the turkey expect, rose petals strewn in his path?

If God had intended man to swim or sink, He wouldn't have invented Ivory soap. The big shots should learn to float with the tide, coast in neutral and walk on the grass.

Relax. Sure, the fastest runner will get free TV time to explain his shortcuts. But what does it profit a man if he wins the sweepstakes but loses his place in line at the Laurel and Hardy Film Festival?

This nation rewards and elects men who never waste a second. Men who buy sex from their secretaries to save on mileage, and then go home and take a dictaphone to bed. This nation rejects men who loiter around pretty girls in the park, and waste lunch hours looking for old Fats Waller records in crumby second hand shops.

It should be the other way around. The ambitious men, with rowing machines and cots in their offices, have made a terrible mess of things. They have forgotten that noses weren't created for grindstones. Noses were created to smell a flower or nuzzle a little kid.

A lazy man knows about noses. And he knows that sometimes the greatest thing to do is to do nothing at all. Just sit and watch and remember nice things. Go fishing without a pole. Go walking without a sweatsuit.

Don't tell anyone, but I often let the phone ring on weekends. I realize it might be someone offering me gold. But they should call back on Monday.

No, I'll never be rich by Wall Street standards. I'll never make the White House except on a guided tour. I don't have time.

Life is a goldfish, and I must watch closely how it glitters and splashes before it slips away.

Federal funding changes ahead

by Dan Trainor

The Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) and the Community Development Act (CDA) are slowly turning toward achieving the original intent of the federally funded programs when first enacted in the early 1970's.

Restraints as to how communities can use the money have been imposed in recent months and more and more restrictions will be forthcoming.

CETA was passed to reduce unemployment by providing governmental units money to hire the jobless. However, the interpretation of the program was loose and many communities took advantage of the looseness by having regular employees laid off for a 30 day period and hired back with the federal funds.

Other CETA positions were filled by individuals whose spouses had good paying jobs and went into the work force as something to do and at the same time earn some extra money.

In all, the program was not fully accomplishing the goals but that is changing.

CETA's Title VI has a very strict rule that people being hired have to be unemployed for a 15 week period and/or have their unemployment benefits run out.

That restriction, local officials predict, will soon apply to other CETA programs that have a new funding year August 1.

CDA programs intended to be a preventive approach to unemployment by funding public projects soon evolved into a program whereby it was supplementing items that, in previous years, were in the regular community budgets.

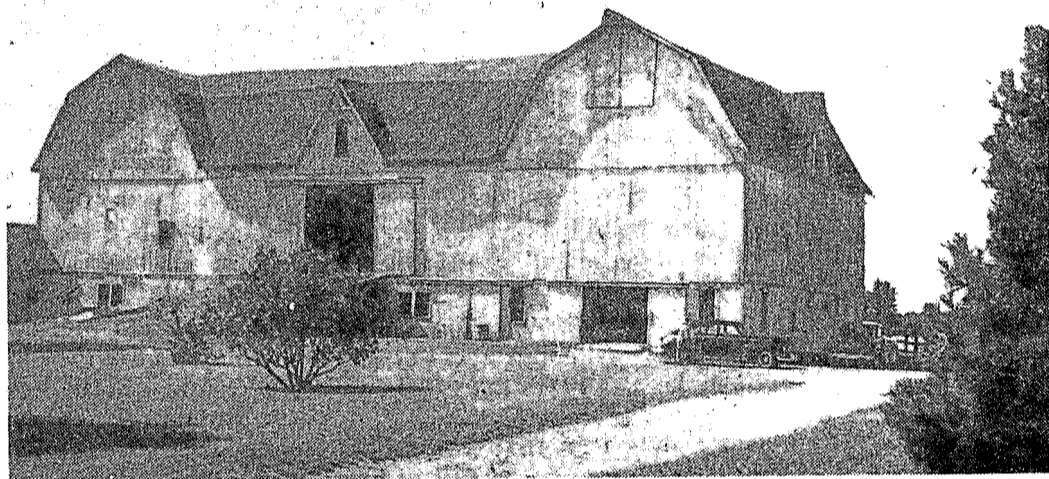

In the past year a program of low interest loans and outright grants for the upgrading of homes was tacked onto the CDA program, and little by little, other programs were declared ineligible with the suggestion that the funds for the program be channeled into the loans and grants program.

Local officials are predicting that in the very near future the $30,000 entire CDA program will be exclusively grants and loans and pet projects will be a thing of the past.

The restrictive measures being imposed can already be seen in Independence Township second phase of a township wide storm sewer study being declared ineligible, unspent funds from the first year study are being channeled into grants and loans. The project to upgrade private roads and park lighting, at first approved, has now been declared ineligible. Those funds totaling $30,000 were transferred by default to the senior citizens center which is one of only two projects still eligible under the tighter CDA restrictions. Surprisingly, the tougher rules for the use of CETA funds are being well received by local officials who, admitting it may put a crimp in their budgets, are glad to see the programs beginning to fulfill their original intents.

Ellis barn on Dixie Highway will be scene of club's anniversary party.

Horse history of Michigan to be relived at club's anniversary

By Jean Saile of The Clarkston News

Some of the proud horse history of Michigan will be relived when Dixie Saddle Club celebrates its 31st anniversary July 9 at the Ellis barn on Dixie Highway.

The public has been invited to attend and view what is still believed to be the largest barn in

Monday is last day to register

Would-be voters of the Clarkston School District have until 5 p.m. Monday, July 11, to register for the new millage election August 8. Some 12,335 were eligible to vote in the June 13 election, but only 30 percent of them availed themselves of the chance.

Registration may be made either at Independence Township Hall or Springfield Township Hall, depending on residency.

The Board of Education is still determining the amount of millage to be requested in the new vote. Voters in June turned down a 4.79 mill increase plus two bond issues for a new elementary school and multi-purpose rooms at existing elementaries.

Michigan.

Built in 1893, it is still in top condition even as a "For Sale" sign on the Ellis property clouds its future.

Huge and commanding as the center of farm activity, its loft easily holds some 4,000 bales of hay each year. Mrs. Ralph Freeman, granddaughter of Norman J. Ellis who built the farm, can recall playing baseball in its spacious third level.

The original owner began to acquire the land which was to become Ingamar Stock Farms in 1872. He started the farm by importing a $2,100 Percheron stallion named Ingamar from France. Mrs. Freeman says Ingamar was the first registered stallion to be brought into the state.

From the farm came the horses that drew Detroit's street railway cars and the coaches which met the metropolitan trains.

Ingamar's imprint is everywhere on the premises. Twelve foot ceilings in the house feature horse shoe decorations. Built as a copy of a home the original Ellis admired back East, it replaced an earlier home which burned in 1883.

It was on the porch of the 16-room home built in 1884 that the Ellises discovered a basket containing the baby who was to become their son Glen.

The house, too, will be open to the public during the saddle club meeting.

Among those present for the 7:30 p.m. gathering will be Louise Weeks and Will Sutton, charter members of the club.

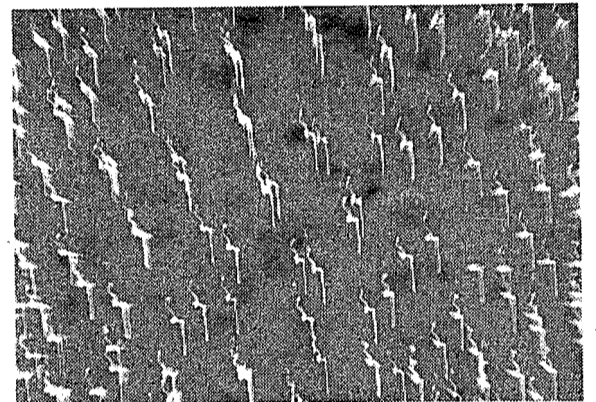

Mrs. Weeks recalls the club as being formed to provide horse shows for children, and even in that far past day their shows could make $700 to further more horse activity.

Operated now strictly as a family fun type endeavor, the club recently completed a weekend campout—staking out the horses, and pitching tents for evening cookfires.

The 50 members look forward to their annual horse show which will be August 9 this year at Hill & Dale Riding Stable in Oxford. A weekend trailride is highlighted in the fall, members and horses putting in hours of practice before the event.

As more horse minded people move to the area, the club is happily accepting new members.

July 4 celebration 1976-77

In the year of Our Lord, 1976 Excitement was mounting, emotions amix, We were all getting ready for the big celebration, That marked 200 years since the birth of our nation.

The plans started early for this big affair, And the word "Bicentennial" was heard everywhere. Parties and dances and parades were being planned In every city and town across this big land.

It was seen in our schools from February through May, When Fridays were declared "Bicentennial Day."

The children wore costumes this day all year through, There were old fashioned ladies, Pilgrims and Paul Revere too.

They had workshops going of all early crafts,

From knitting and sewing and even staining glass, To woodshops, dipping candles and taffy pulling with strife, And the teachers were people from all walks of life.

The Bicentennial Parade was on the first day of May, And the "Governor's Ball" followed later that day. Everyone came dressed in colonial attire, In satin gowns and ruffled shirts for all to admire.

And then it was June and the time drawing near, But people seemed bored with our theme for this year. Perhaps we'd had too much of our red, white and blue, And July's celebration was just something to do.

Events went as planned for the 4th of July, Floats were made ready and flags would fly high. Our family even entered our car in the parade, But the pride of this all had somehow been frayed.

The morning was here and we arrived there on time, Where the parade was assembling and we got into line. As we waited our turn it all seemed like a phantom, But we knew it was real as the band started the anthem.

As they started to march and we turned onto Main, My heart started pounding with a glorious pain, For there stood the whole town in line side by side. It seemed fifty deep and five miles wide.

I thought to myself, our spirit's not gone, For it showed on their faces as we moved slowly along. They were yelling and shouting and flags waving high, As the parade passed them by on this 4th of July.

Later that day as we watched on TV, It was seen in each town from L.A. to D.C. And at exactly at two every church bell would sing, To remind everyone that our freedom still rings.

Oh, we showed them, we showed every nation on earth, How proud we all were of our great country's birth, We all stood together, joined hand in hand, Just bursting with pride of this bounteous land.

November this year a new president we selected, Gerald Ford was defeated and Carter elected. God grant him the courage and show him the way To keep peace in this land for a long time to stay.

And now it's all over and I know 'til I die, I'll never forget that grand 4th of July, And the memories of this year leave a feeling of bliss, In the year of our Lord, 1976.

Local builder gets Edison energy award

In recognition of the commitment to energy efficiency standards in residential home building, Briarwoode Builders, Inc., has received Detroit Edison's Energy Efficiency Excellence (EEE) award.

J. Philip Lenihan, manager of Edison's Oakland Division, presented the firm's president, Edward W. Santala, with an EEE plaque which can be displayed in the builder's sales office or model home as evidence that the home meets maximum energy efficiency standards in insulation, heating equipment, lighting, wiring, and energy efficient appliances.

Lenihan said the company established the award as "a means of exerting a positive influence on the home building industry to promote the conservation of energy, and to demonstrate publicly the company's awareness of its corporate responsibility and desire to take a leadership role in achieving this national goal."

The award also will provide prospective home buyers with a reliable means of judging construction and insulation techniques that will insure a wise use of energy and help keep electrical operating costs at a minimum, Lenihan said.

The award-winning home, located in Groveland Township, has already been purchased by area residents.

To qualify for the EEE Award, a home must meet or surpass the following standards:

- A central heating and cooling system using an energy-efficient electric heat pump which meets design and installation criteria established by the electric utility industry.

- Maximum insulation, including R-17-rated materials in exterior walls, R-44-rated materials in the attic, and fully-insulated basement walls with an R-13 value.

- Wood sash and insulating glass or single glass with a full storm must be used for all prime windows. If aluminum sash is used, a thermal break is required.

- Exterior doors must have a foam core and be magnetically sealed.

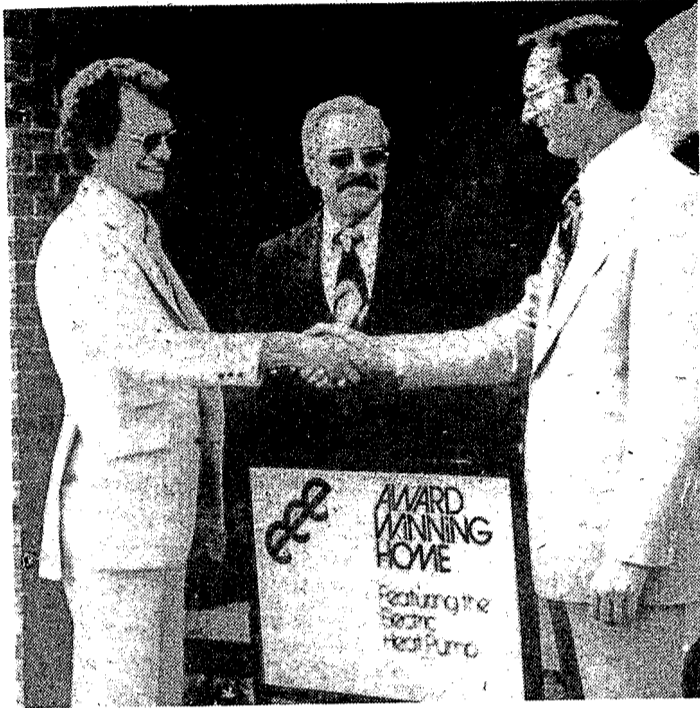

- Refrigerators and freezers, if provided by the builder, must be energy-efficient models.

- Water heaters must be of the energy saving type, and located as close as possible to the principal point of use. Hot water lines wrapped in insulation are recommended.

- Interior lighting must conform to the residential lighting standards of the Illuminating Engineering Society, with regard to a lighting power budget.

- Materials, equipment, design and construction of all electrical devices and wiring must comply with all local and national codes.

Congratulations are offered to Edward W. Santala [left] of Briarwoode Builders, Inc., Clarkston, by Wesley D. Kappler, director of Detroit Edison's Customer and Marketing Services, Oakland Division. Looking on is Douglas Brown, Edison marketing services representative. Briarwoode Builders earned the Energy Efficiency Excellence Award [EEE] for the construction of an EEE home. The built-in energy efficiency features include an electric heat pump, maximum insulation and energy saving appliances. The award-winning home, located in Groveland Township, has been purchased by area residents.

Hunters find satisfaction with bows and arrows

By Joe Gitter
of The Clarkston News

The trusty bow and arrow was at one time the only means of survival in the primitive wilderness of this country.

Much has changed since those days hundreds of years ago. The rifle and handgun, with their increased range, accuracy and killing potential, have become the hunter's standard. The bow hunter is now in the minority. The sport of archery has, however, found its niche and a growing number of sportsmen are discovering the challenge of a bow hunt.

A 100 to 150 yard accurate shot, not uncommon with a rifle, is nearly impossible with the bow. Hunting is a little more like "hunting" when using the more primitive weapon, its fans say.

With the advent of the compound bow and aluminum, stainless steel and graphite arrows, bow hunting has become more popular and more practical.

The Oakland County Sportsmen's Club, located on Waterford Road, has constructed one of the best archery ranges in the state. Nestled among densely wooded forest, the course presents just about every obstacle encountered by the serious bow hunter.

Target distances are set from 20 feet to 80 yards, traveling up and downhill through the trees and across open fields throughout the 38-acre course.

"Archery is getting to be one of the most popular outdoor sports," according to Amos O'Dell, a range captain. "Not only is it a challenge, just to hit the target in some instances, but it is also a healthful sport," O'Dell said.

"It's a family sport as well," he added. "We try to stress that all the way through the program." Women make up almost 50 percent of the archers on the course, according to O'Dell. "They shoot right along with the men."

The relatively new compound bow has helped the woman archer. Older recurved bows, which are still available, require that the archer hold the full poundage of the bow when drawn.

For instance, if using a 50-pound bow the archer must hold that power at full draw. The compound bow however, cuts that pressure by up to one-half at full draw. In other words an archer using a 50-pound bow must hold only 25-30 pounds at full draw.

The compound, in addition to providing the same thrust as a recurved bow at less hold, also allows the hunter to shoot a lighter arrow, such as an aluminum one. Lighter arrows will travel faster and flatter, increasing both a hunter's range and accuracy.

But, archery is not an easy sport to master. The serious bow hunter must spend time with his equipment perfecting his form. Sighting done fairly easily with a rifle is an entirely different story with a bow.

Sight or freestyle shooters use sights placed on the bow at different heights depending on the distance to their target. The instinctive or bare bow shooters line up, guess where they should aim and hope they hit the target, O'Dell said. He is a bare bow shooter.

O'Dell urges that the sportsman should be serious about archery before buying equipment, which is rather expensive.

A compound bow can run anywhere from $80 to $500. Recurved bows start at about $40, O'Dell said. New aluminum converta-point arrows, with removable tips, cost anywhere from $25 to $75 per dozen. However, with proper care they can last a lifetime.

The Sportsmen's Club will be offering a six-week beginning archery program July 6. The 6 p.m. lessons will cover the basics of bow shooting and hunting.

Registration is $10. The club will supply bows and arrows for those without.

Places to go

Everything from the Sechselaution Celebration to Die Groste Kaffe Pause to the Rollbrett Wettbewerb will be held on the Gaylord Alpenstrasse during the community's 13th Annual Alpenfest July 12-17.

The six-day Bavarian-style celebration in the Alpine Village of Gaylord will be held on the Alpenstrasse, a three-block area of the city's Main Street (Highway M-32) in the central business district.

Highlights of the festival, which last year attracted thousands of people from all parts of the Midwest, will include the annual "Burning of the Boogg" in which everyone's troubles will go up in smoke; Alpenfest Costume Parade; Die Groste Kaffe Pause (World's largest coffee break); concerts and contests of all sorts; queen's pageant, and the Grand Parade on Saturday afternoon.

For their summer dinner theatre production Theater of the Arts is presenting "A Thousand Clowns" by Herb Gardner at O.C.C. Highland Lakes Community Center, Friday and Saturday evenings July 15 through July 30 at 8 p.m.

Tickets are $12.50 and may be purchased by mail at least one week in advance. Make checks payable to "Theatre of the Arts" and mail to P.O. Box 53, Walled Lake, Mi 48088. Senior Citizen and group rates available; call Linda Klier, 624-6692.

Every female and male adult interested in entering, re-entering, continuing or completing university education is invited to Oakland University's special summer event on Saturday, July 16.

Starting at 8:30 a.m., the program includes luncheon and ends at 3 p.m. The fee is $3.50. Phone 377-4010 for information and reservations. Whether you're a novice or an expert at tennis there is an event for you in the Oakland County Closed Tennis Championships. Entry deadline for the tournament at the Billie Jean King Tennis Center, 1585 Crescent Lake Road, is July 8.

For information of the 24 events for men, women and children call 674-0368.

Summer hours begin July 1 at Meadow Brook Hall. During July and August, the public may tour the historic 100-room mansion and grounds from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 1 to 5 p.m. Sundays. Knole Cottage, the nearly lifesize six-room playhouse nestled in the woods near the hall, will also be open daily for tours during July and August, except during inclement weather.

Meadow Brook Hall was built in the late 1920's at the cost of $3,500,000 (the cost for Knole Cottage in 1926 was $10,000) by Alfred and Matilda Dodge Wilson. Mrs. Wilson was the widow of auto pioneer John Dodge.

The Wayne State University Alumni Association has planned three theatre excursions to the Stratford Festival for former students at the University and their guests.

One day trips are scheduled for July 30 and September 10. Both include motor coach transportation, after-the-theatre champagne and dinner at the Friar's Cellar in London.

A two-day trip, August 20-21, includes overnight accommodations at Victoria Inn, Saturday night cocktail party, buffet dinner, and theatre party, and Sunday dinner at the Friar's Cellar. Tickets for Saturday or Sunday matinee performances are optional.

Further information is available by the calling the Alumni House at 577-2161.

The spirit of Las Vegas will run high Sunday, July 10 at the San Marino Club in Troy when the Oakland County Association for Retarded Citizens stages its "Millionaires' Fling."

The casino will open at 7:00 p.m. A donation of $15 for an individual and $25 per couple is requested. Snacks, pizza and drinks will be available to the guests.

The San Marino Club is located at 1685 East Big Beaver (16 Mile). For ticket information, call the O.C.A.R.C. office at 335-1190 or stop by 50 Wayne Street in Pontiac.

Lapeer Fine Arts Council is sponsoring the Imlay City Art Fair to be held during the Blueberry-Vegetable Festival, Friday and Saturday, July 8th and 9th.

The location is to be the Old Town Hall site at the corner of Almont Avenue and 4th. Street, downtown Imlay City. Friday the hours are 1 to 9 pm, and Saturday 10 am to 7 pm.

Various types of art are to be displayed for sale, including paintings and drawings, macramé, weaving and spinning, photography, pottery, glass, copper sculpture, dolls and puppets, and much more.

In addition to the art fair, the Blueberry-Vegetable Festival will feature many other events.

Chicago at Pine Knob

By Philip Purser

Chicago showed once again last Friday night why they are always the summer's biggest attraction at Pine Knob. They were the first group to gross a million dollars in admissions at Pine Knob a couple of years ago and they have more shows each year than any other band or musician. This year is no exception as Chicago is packing in the fans once again.

Opening July first for five days and six concerts, Chicago brought its brass and jazz sound in for a typical Chicago concert which generated good music and plenty of excitement and left its young audience screaming for more.

Chicago is a group that doesn't need a warm up act and they came on in the full sun of early evening before 8 p.m. and with a short intermission there was a reluctant halt at about 10:30. Along the way, they skittered through albums I to X, hitting crowd favorites as they went their electrifying way. After 10 albums, it is quite amazing that they should do the first three songs from their first record (when they were known as Chicago Transit Authority) and that these numbers would still be great favorites. With Jim Pankow as emcee, the band introduced some new songs that will be found on their next album. Some of the music was so new that sheet music was required to guide them through it. The sounds were good and these numbers will undoubtedly be added to the vast Chicago repertoire. Included among these were "This Time," Danny Seraphine's "Take Me Back to Chicago," and Bobby Lamm's "Policeman," said to be based on Lamm's reading of the novel "Choir Boy." Pankow led into their favorite from X, "If You Leave Me Now," by saying it is the number one hit all over the world.

I don't know where he gets his information but it is not listed in my copy of Variety as being on the charts anywhere. Nevertheless, it is very popular with Chicago fans and I am willing to forgive him because the group has just returned from a successful European trip.

In the second part of the night they did "Anyway You Want," "Saturday in the Park," and "25 to 6 to 4" before leaving the stage. They refrained from coming back for a very long four or five minutes as the audience screamed and banged their seats for more. The band finally returned for a lengthy encore amid all the votary signals of lighted matches and flicked Bics.

Chicago is a fun group. It is interesting because of the ingredients beyond common rock that make it exciting. The tunes are often melodious in the pop sense and the lyrics are usually discernible. The addition of the woodwinds and the brass give it layers of sound that other bands can't touch. When seen live, their songs are more extended and with the visual effects of lights and the movements of the musicians the songs build to a climax.

Chicago has been one of the most popular rock groups for eight years now and there is every indication that they will be just as popular and respected eight years in the future.

Somehow our account of the big John Laffrey SCAMP benefit in last week's paper failed to include the very important fact that Rotarians manned the cook-stoves during the big feed. A lot of food, hard work and a lot of hours were donated, and they will surely get their reward in heaven, if not in The Clarkston News.

Barbara Wittenberg, owner of a Clarkston boutique called "The Essence of It" was surprised last week when police visited the shop to check on a tip that obscene merchandise was being offered. The "obscurity" turned out to be a stuffed handmade doll called "Uncle Sherman" who with the proper use of snaps and zippers does turn out to reveal some flower bedecked anatomy.

We've seen worse on ties. So had the police.

Our apologies to Earle Hawke of the Nason Company, Frank Walker, developer of Hawke's Cove and Joe Noll of Stylemaster Homes.

In last week's vandalism story we inadvertently moved Stylemaster's stolen materials from the Clarkston Village Garage into (or out of) the Hawk Tool building. Stylemaster is not involved in the Hawke's Cove development.

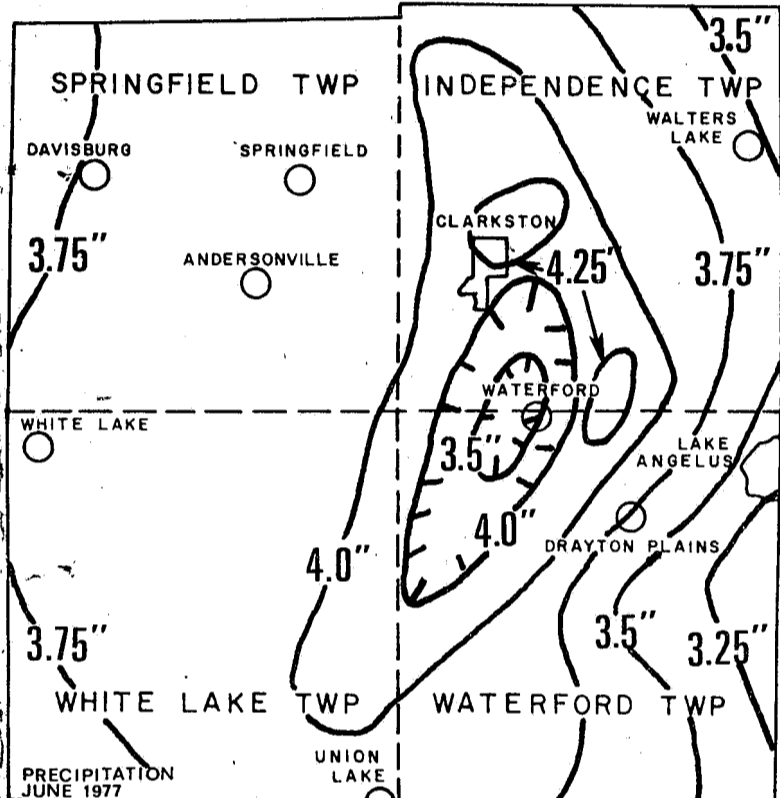

The building company constructed the village garage across Depot Road from the rear of the Hawk Tool building.

A statewide environmental education program financed largely by hunters and fishermen has the backing of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

The proposal calls for a 25-cent hike in the cost of hunting and fishing licenses, earmarking all of the additional revenue for environmental education efforts of the State Department of Education, Department of Natural Resources and State Environmental Education Council. The total raised would be matched by monies from the General Fund.

JUNE RAINFALL

Precipitation for the 4-township and surrounding area during the month of June ranged from 2.7 inches in Pontiac/Auburn Heights to 4.3 inches in northern Clarkston and Waterford/Eagle Lake. Rainfall was sporadic during the month with many stations receiving nearly half of their monthly rainfall during the evening of the 17th and the morning of the 18th. Even with the dry spell of June 19 through June 28, the monthly totals reported were near or above normal for the month of June. An unusual feature of this month's map is the depression in the area of Waterford Hill. While observers in Union Lake, northern Clarkston and Waterford/Eagle Lake all reported monthly totals in excess of 4 inches, the Waterford/Van Norman Lake station received only 3.18 inches. (The map was prepared by Robert C. Davis and Susan E. Rosin of Johnson & Anderson, Inc.)

Dodge full-time four-wheel drive.

For the world that starts at the end of the road.

Dodge has been into four-wheel drive for over 30 years. And today, Dodge offers a full line of rugged Dodge pickups and handsome Ramchargers equipped with full-time four-wheel drive.

Full-time four-wheel drive—it's the latest. Designed to add to performance with tough, deep-biting traction for off-road use. And you get special advantages from this new four-wheel-drive system on the road, too—where conventional systems are usually in two-wheel drive. Advantages like better traction that adds to safety on slippery streets. And improved vehicle stability that increases driver control.

And with Dodge, you don't have to get out to lock or unlock wheel hubs when going from on or off the road. Because Dodge gives you four-wheel drive full time.

Come and see the new line-up of Dodge pickups and Ramchargers with full-time four-wheel drive . . . for the world that starts at the end of the road.

Dodge Trucks have got it where it counts.

Reserves keep Pine Knob cool

By Dan Trainor
of The Clarkston News

A five car pile up, drunks and frayed tempers are all part of the job in moving some 5,000 cars in and out of Pine Knob each night.

For a regular police officer the job is difficult.

Each night, however, a half dozen men, who during the day sit behind a desk in a comfortable office or drive a rig, don police uniforms to take on the maze of traffic.

Sunday night went off without a hitch—almost.

The sellout crowd to watch Chicago and the number of people and cars that showed up afterward to watch the fireworks display at Pine Knob were cleared within an hour after the concert and fireworks.

The pre-concert traffic moved along Sashabaw freely with the exception of two accidents—a five car chain reaction pile-up and a two car accident just minutes later.

Both were cleared off the roadway within a few minutes and once again the traffic moved without interruption.

Director of Police Services for Independence Township, Jack McCall, admits the first couple of concerts created headaches with traffic backing up onto Sashabaw.

The concert season was just a few weeks old, and the people inside the concert grounds and the police reserves learned from experience. Coordination between the various groups improved to a point where traffic will move freely barring any serious accident, McCall reported.

With two reserve officers stationed at each of the three critical traffic points, Sashabaw and I-75, the main entrance and Pine Knob and Clarkston roads, police can respond to as many as three accidents at any given time without creating a problem.

Everyone involved deserves a lot of credit, McCall said.

Planning on how to handle the 100 plus concerts began in early January, some five months before the May 28 opener, he added.

Everyone knows what others are doing, McCall said, and that has a lot to do with the smooth traffic flow.

"The people handling the parking concession, the rangers and operators of the theatre are letting us know exactly what they are planning each concert, so that everything can be coordinated and the results can speak for themselves," McCall added.

The efforts of everyone involved can be seen by the relative quiet in the neighborhoods surrounding Pine Knob.

The Pine Knob rangers set up barricades keeping traffic out of local roads, McCall said, and for the first time in several years complaints from the Maranatha Baptist Church have been non-existent.

People abandoning their cars and walking into the concert grounds or making U-turns in driveways along Sashabaw have been a serious problem in the past.

This year only one car was left at the church on Flemings Lake Road, McCall said, and that was promptly towed away.

McCall is not hesitant to say the people who deserve the most praise are his own police reserves.

They have put in a lot of long hours in preparing for the concert season, sitting in the classroom and doing dry runs for weeks before the season got underway.

They have also put in a lot of hours on the job this summer—especially this past weekend, McCall added. Friday night there was a sellout concert, followed by Saturday's doubleheader Chicago concert. That was followed by the parade Monday morning and the Chicago concert that evening.

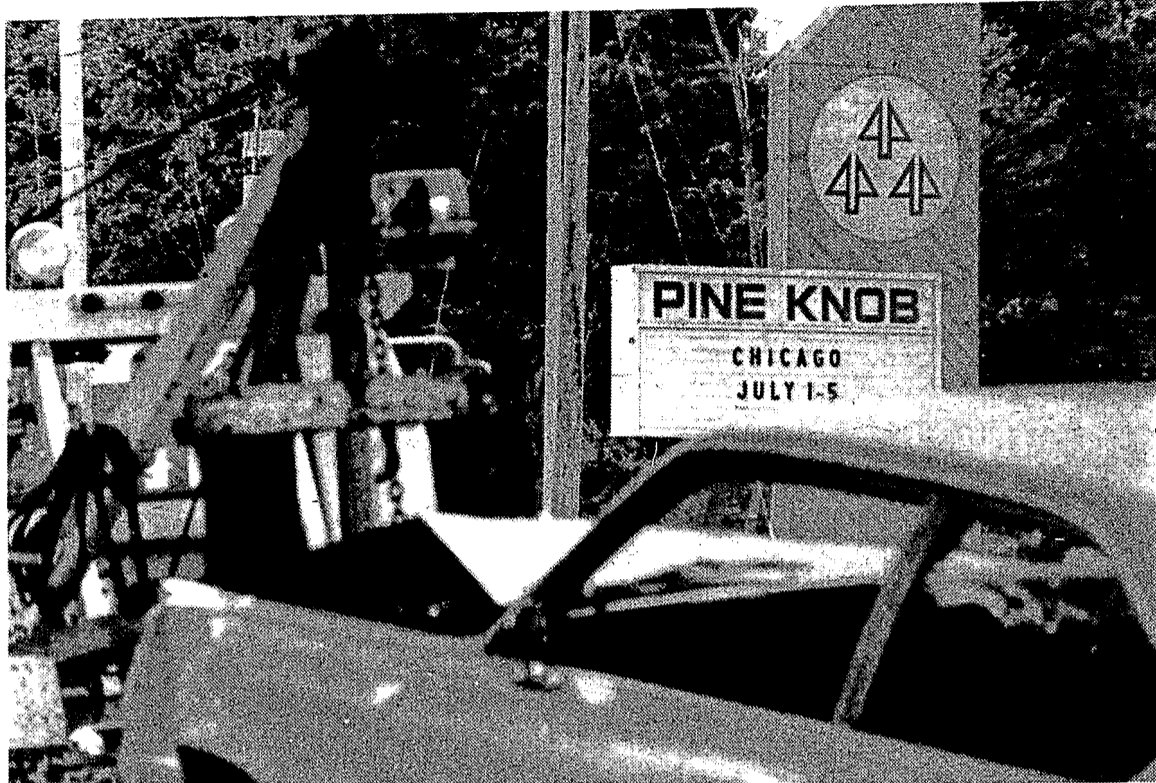

All of the programs went off without any problem whatsoever, McCall added.

Before the concert, the order of the day has been planning and attempting to anticipate any problems.

During the concert, it is patrolling the parking area to keep larcenies down and again planning how best to get the traffic out of the theatre grounds.

After the concert, it is facing 5,000 cars trying to leave all at one time and the fender benders that will bring traffic to a halt if they are not removed from the roadway immediately.

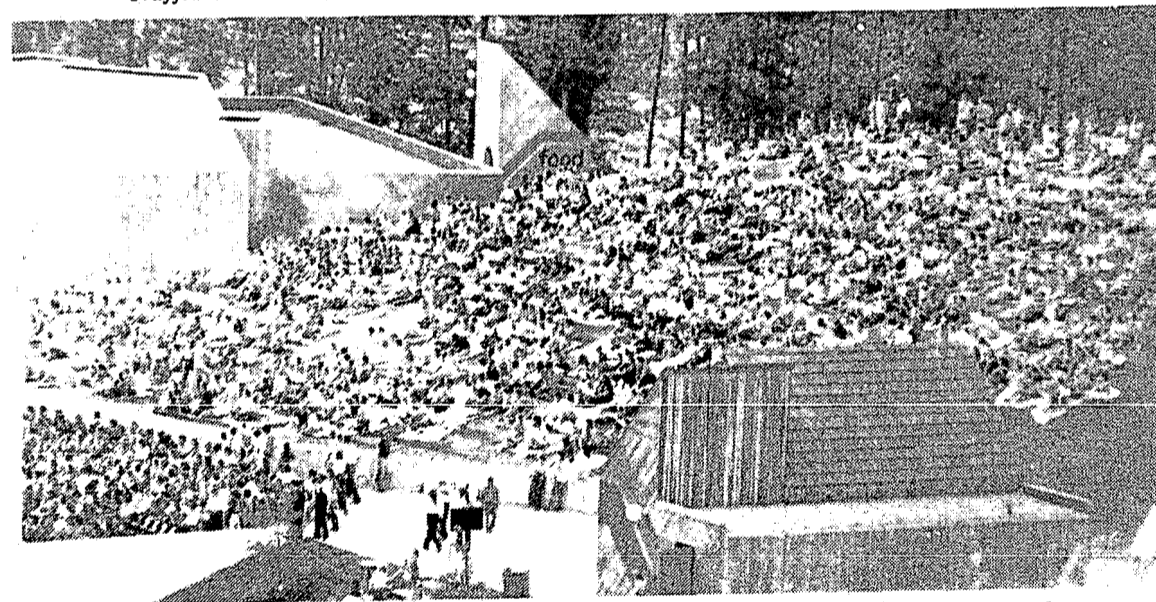

But, McCall said, it is all in a night's work.

Pile-ups like this sometimes result from...

Traffic lines like these...

Which get all these people to a Pine Knob concert.

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Thurs., July 7, 1977 17

Police Services Director Jack McCall keeps an eye out for trouble.

Murder witness shotgunned

The prosecution's main witness in a murder case due to be heard in Oakland County Circuit Court later this month was found shot to death early Sunday morning outside Howe's Lanes in Independence Township, where she was employed as a waitress.

Oakland County Sheriff's deputies identified the victim as Barbara Lunsford, 22, of 137 S. Tilden, Waterford Township.

She had testified in the Clarkston District Court hearing last winter against David Ovegian and Linda Hamilton, charged with murder and conspiracy to commit murder in the July 3, 1976, shooting death of John Hamilton, Linda's husband.

The body of Hamilton had been found in a car in a field off Oakhill and Sashabaw Roads in Brandon Township.

Deputies said Lunsford had been banging on a side door of the bowling alley in a futile attempt to get help when she was shot down. She was dead at the scene, they said.

Deputies found her slumped on the ground in the parking lot. She had been shot in the left shoulder and neck, according to an autopsy Sunday at the Oakland County Medical Examiner's Office.

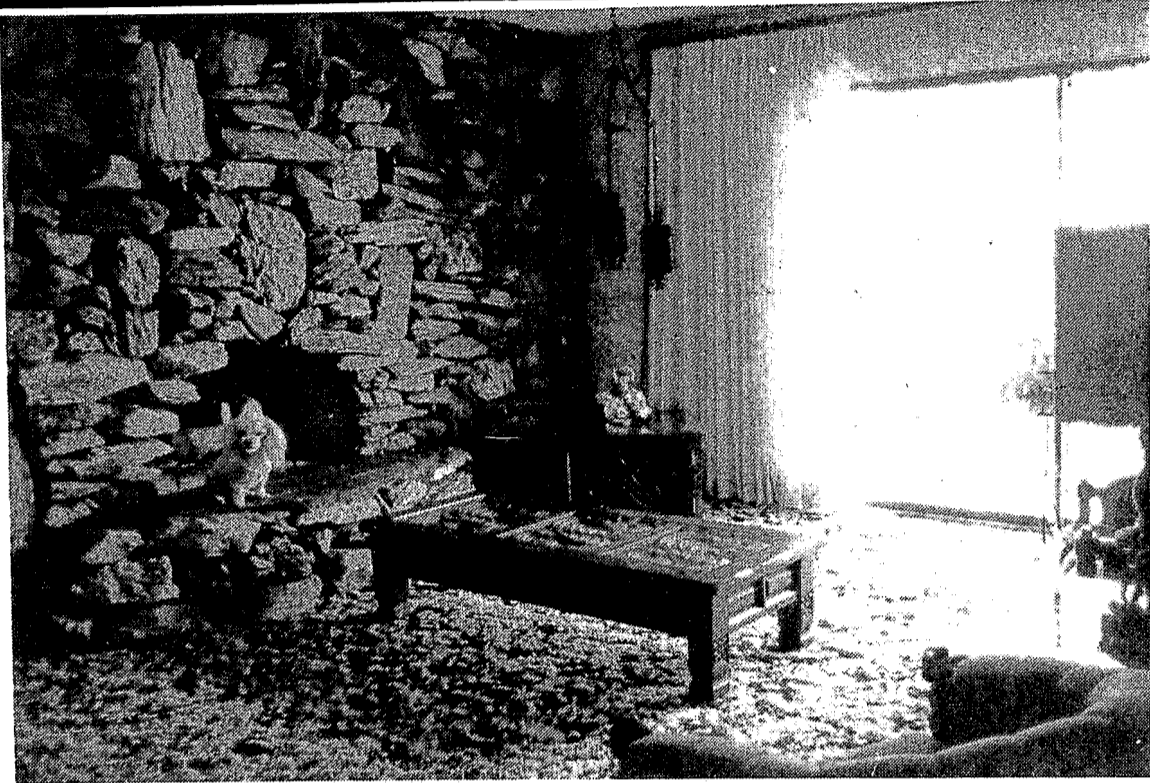

Sheriff's detectives said Tuesday morning there were as yet no suspects in the case.

Mrs. Hamilton had been free on bond while Ovegian was serving time in Oakland County Jail following the district court examination. She was in Clarkston District Court Tuesday morning in regard to the case.

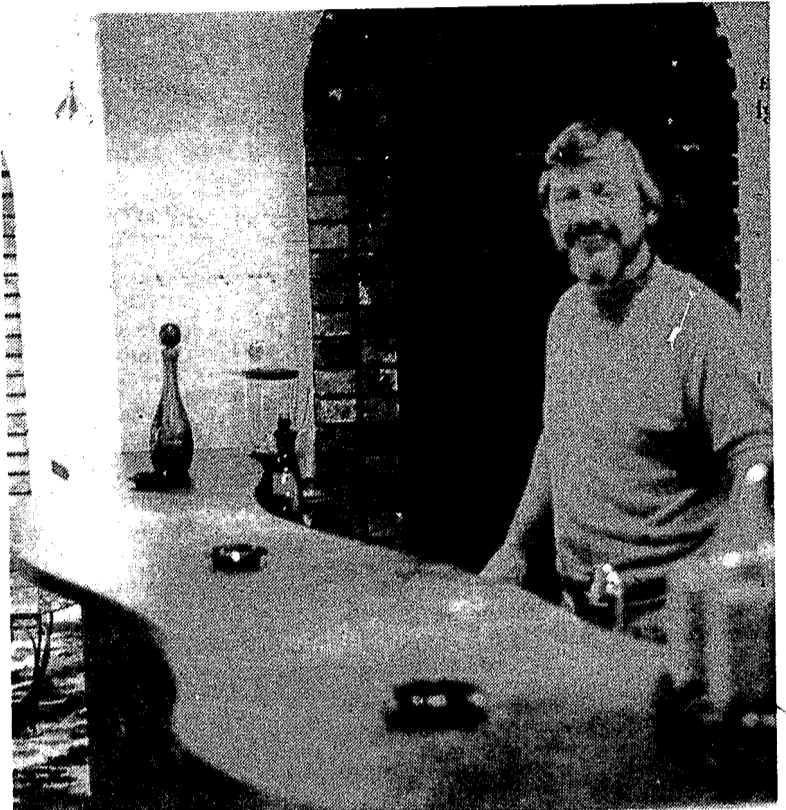

Friends of the victim said she had received threatening phone calls during the preceding week, and that she had left the bowling alley to meet someone at a nearby restaurant. She was returning to the bowling alley at the time of the shooting, they theorized.

Country Living

The stone fireplace adds a touch of uniqueness

Bob becomes a mixologist in the bar area

Bob and Carol Arend say it was the dishwasher that convinced them to build their new all brick home in the side of a tree-studded hill north of Clarkston.

"I love it," says Carol who teaches French at Clarkston High School. Bob, who teaches at Camp Oakland, agrees.

The home is the Arends' second new one in Independence Township, and in moving they had to give up a swimming pool.

"We like our other house but it was just too inconvenient to our jobs," Bob explained.

An entire winter was spent designing the new house, and when the Arends went to cost it out, "We found we couldn't afford to build it," Bob said.

Finally they found PER Construction who were "the first builders to say, 'Let's work with your plan and see if we can come up with what you want at a price you can afford,'" Bob explained.

"They are a neat bunch of guys to work with," Carol said of the Rouse brothers who make up the company.

"They are fun and besides they do such good work. They're so proud of what they do."

"We would come up to the house and Roy would have us looking at everything from every conceivable angle."

The enthusiasm was catching, so much so that now the Arends have their real estate licenses and sell for PER through Real Estate Programs and Services, their broker.

"This floor plan is much the same as our other house," Bob said.

"Basically we got what we wanted," Carol said. "We wanted every room with a view."

"The sunsets (seen from the kitchen window) are spectacular in the winter," Bob added.

The deck off the dining area is one of their favorite spots. From it and from the 50-foot long deck that runs the length of the house, the Arends can see the Pontiac Airport, downtown Pontiac and the Silverdome.

The formal dining room was another must that the Arends got and so was the extra large master suite complete with a large bath and walk-in closet.

"We don't have children so the house was designed to meet our needs. We entertain a lot and the open floor plan allows for the free flow of traffic," the couple explained.

Easy maintenance was another factor in the design.

"The exterior is all brick except the overhang," Carol said.

"And we aren't going to landscape a lot. We'll leave it to nature. We've been waiting six weeks for the man to pave the drive, so we won't have everything done this summer anyway," she added.

Inside stucco, brick and California drift rock walls along with ceramic, vinyl and carpeted floors alleviate many hours of work for Carol.

Those familiar with the Rouse brothers know of their passion for brick and California drift rock and "We love it too," Carol said looking at the stone fireplace in the living room.

Downstairs (the stair wall is mirrored to expand the living room) the Arends have their "own private Camelot." The brick fireplace wall resembles medieval towers with the opening being the castle gates.

The brick bar at the opposite end of the room is dipper shaped. Behind it a plank door with arch shaped brick door casing leads to the wine cellar.

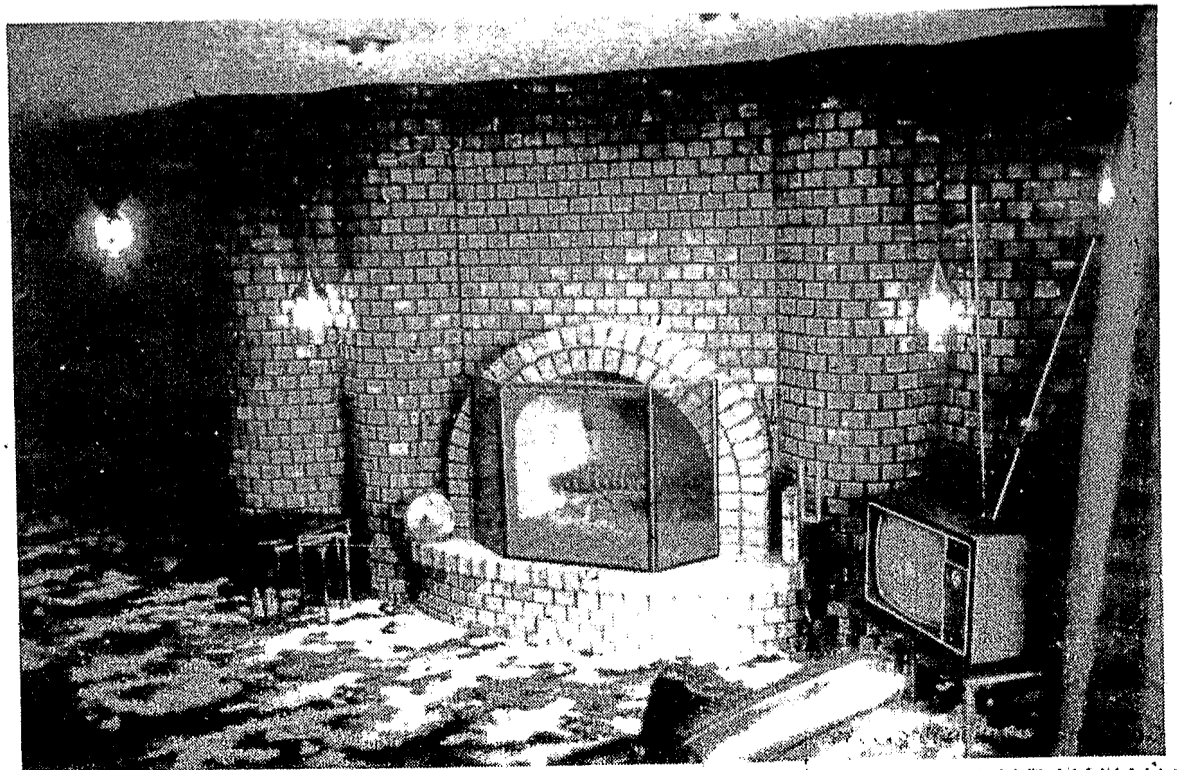

Started in October, the home was ready by February despite the terrible winter.

"They worked in plastic enclosed scaffolding most of the time so they could lay the brick. The living room ceiling had to be stuccoed four times because cold drafts from the front door cracked it," Carol said.

But now in the heat of summer, sunlight filters through the leaves and soft breezes waft through open windows. The Arends are home.

Bob and Carol enjoy the sun filled living room ...

... or the coziness of the darkened recreation room

Concert series offered in Pontiac

There will be music in the city when Pontiac's summer concert series begins July 10 in the downtown area.

Wide Track Festival Coordinator, Sidney Fox, recently announced the concert series which will feature a variety of entertainment every Sunday through August 14, 4 p.m., at the band shell, Wide Track Drive East and Judson Street.

Opening the summer program on July 10 will be Doc Holladay with Afram Jazz Ensemble, a local professional group.

Two soul groups have been secured for the July 17 concert—"Night of the Living Dead" along with "Sportcoat & Pressure Unlimited."

A sure highlight of the series will be Woody Herman and his Thundering Herd on stage July 24.

Continuing in the series, "Orange Lake Drive" and "Bliss will soothe the audience July 31 with their jazz specialty numbers.

The August 7 concert will feature the Duke Ellington Orchestra directed by Mercer Ellington, and concluding August 14, Brookside Jazz Ensemble will entertain.

Sponsoring the concert series with the Wide Track Festival are

The Oakland Press and the Pontiac Waterford Times, in cooperation with the Pontiac Federation of Musicians and the Music Performance Trust Funds.

Concert-goers are encouraged to bring lawn blankets and chairs. In case of rain, the concerts will be held at the Human Resource Center, 60 Parkhurst.

CHS in international show

The North Oakland Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a Drum Corps International Show at Wisner Stadium in Pontiac on Saturday, July 16.

More than 450 participants, ages 12 to 21, representing four of the United States' finest drum and bugle corps will present good family entertainment for the residents of southeast Michigan.

The show will begin at 7:30 p.m. with the Clarkston High School Color Guard presenting the colors.

Among the drum and bugle corps coming to Pontiac for the event are: Madison Scouts of Madison, Wisconsin, the Phantom Regiment of Rockford, Illinois, the Anaheim Kingsmen of Anaheim, California, the Velvet Knights of Orange County, California.

Drum Corps International, a non-profit organization, is composed of the top twelve drum and bugle corps in the United States and Canada. The membership changes each year and is determined by the 12 finalists in each year's championship competition. The 1977 DCI championship will be in Denver, Colorado's Mile High Stadium in August.

Although new to the state of Michigan, drum and bugle corps are a major entertainment attraction in both the Midwest and Northeastern U.S. A first last year at the Pontiac Silverdome, the Drum Corps International was a hit to those who attended. Being a new event to this area it will take a few shows to have this type of event be a major attraction and hopefully, in the near future, attract the Nationals.

Split denied

Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals denied a lot split in Thendara Park Country Club Association last week because of the lack of a usable road.

Barry Young, an Ortonville real estate firm, appeared to ask that a 28,000 square foot lot be split into two 14,000 square lots.

While the size fits the ordinance, appeals board members said the area is served only by a lane-type road which would be inaccessible much of the year. The real estate spokesmen said the firm did not intend to upgrade the road.

Run for your life

The Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission will sponsor a non-competitive jogging event—Run For Your Life—July 16, beginning at 12 p.m. at Independence-Oaks County Park, 9501 Sashabaw Road, Clarkston.

Participants will jog the cross-country ski trails within the park.

Certificates will be awarded to those that complete the trail lengths of 2.0 miles (3.2 km), 2.7 miles (4.3 km), and 3.2 miles (5.1 km).

A fee of $2 per car covers entrance and admission which includes a day's use of park facilities: swimming, picnicking and playgrounds.

Memories

by Mary Butterfield

Mary Butterfield lives on Transparent Drive. At 66 years of age, she is a retired secretary to the advertising manager at GMC Truck and Coach. Now interested in all art forms and in particular in the restoration of old furniture, she lives with her retired husband in a busy, active life. She has agreed to share some of her experiences with Clarkston News readers of all ages.

"But Grandma, what did you do when you were a little girl?"

This question from my granddaughter, Jane, after I had admitted to a television-less and even radio-less childhood.

I invited her on a nostalgic Sunday afternoon walk with my father through our farm. In memory we looked for a meadowlark's nest in a hayfield, rested in the cool shade of an elm tree, visited the solitary grave of some unknown who was buried in our wheat field, walked in the snow across the top of a rail fence, chased fireflies in the soft darkness, and were scared once again by the hoot of a barn owl, then listened to the soft whirr of his wings as he pursued a field mouse which didn't make it home.

What a giant step backward—when I have watched mankind's giant step forward in outer space!

At ten years of age to my 66 years, Jane senses no generation gap, only a giant technological gap. Like all children, she finds it intriguing.

There is ample room in this gap for the stories that grandfathers and grandmothers in the great dignity of their 60's and 70's can tell.

The thrill of the first "Model T," the first telephone party-line of course, and electric lights to replace the kerosene lamps. Ministering to them took up many a Saturday morning of my young years.

I am amazed at the crystal clear recollection of certain episodes. One in particular occurs to me.

My mother was active in church work and one source of fund raising was the making and raffling off of quilts. This called for a quilting bee in which all the neighbors participated. The quilting frames were set up in our dining room which normally contained a table which could seat from 15 to 20 people.

My function in all this was thread snipper, a more or less honorary title. My Aunt Mary Anne entrusted me with an exquisitely small pair of scissors, with which I was called upon to snip the threads once a needle full was used up. What an honor!

There were tragedies, too—the death of our beloved collie dog, the epidemic of typhoid fever one summer which took some of my playmates, the loss of my very best friend from a ruptured appendix for which no medical help was available.

I am grateful for the mental stimulation the telling of such episodes affords me.

Senior golf

Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission will sponsor the Oakland County Senior Citizens' Open Golf Tournament at White Lake-Oaks Golf Course on Friday, July 8. The tournament is free to county residents, and both men and women are encouraged to enter.

The tournament will be nine holes, with the Calloway system used to determine handicaps. Awards will be presented for the first, second and third place winners.

Vacancies, inspections mounting

Township reshuffles building department

The Independence Township board did some reshuffling of personnel and salaries in its building department Tuesday as a temporary patchwork in hopes of keeping pace with the mounting requests for new building inspections.

In related actions, the board combined the building and planning departments on temporary basis naming Tim Palulian as its administrative head and appointing Richard Kearns as chief of inspections.

Palulian, in addition to his assistant planning director duties, will assume the responsibilities of Ken Delbridge, who resigned last month as director of the building department. Palulian will now receive $17,500 that goes with the position.

Kearns, who acted as chief of inspections will have a raise to $14,830 giving him parity with the electrical and plumbing inspector positions.

Both Palulian and Kearns said the building department is quickly becoming a shambles with the electrical and plumbing inspector positions not being filled and with the position of building department director still vacant since Delbridge announced his resignation five weeks ago.

They also warned the board the positions will not be filled by qualified people as long as the township salary for inspectors remain at $14,830.

The board did authorize the hiring of a part time plumbing inspector and a part time electrical inspector until the two positions could be filled on a permanent basis.

The building department is beginning to be in serious trouble, Palulian said, with the number of inspections mounting each day.

The township increased its fees so that they could provide the service, he added, but that service is not being provided.

Supervisor Floyd Tower said he has several applications for Delbridge's vacated position and will begin reviewing them.

Tower said he will also go down the availability list for the position of electrical inspector.

The electrical board narrowed its choices to three applicants to fill the post some three months ago. The first declined the position and the second remained on the job for just six weeks before resigning.

In other action the board finalized its 1977-78 budget by approving the budgets for four departments.

Approved was a $269,000 budget for the fire department, which provides some $25,000 for the acquisition of a new fire station site.

The police department budget of $212,444 was approved and it provided an additional position for the police services. Mark Waterbury, was transferred from the parks and recreation department to police services as an animal control officer.

Other budgets approved were the water department at $62,344 and the sewer department at $64,950.

The police services will, however, be the likely subject of a closed door meeting to discuss the responsibilities of Dirk Fennely, who has completed police academy training and has the full authority of a police officer.

Trustee Fred Ritter said the township should let Director Jack McCall know how far Fennely of liability to the township should go in enforcing the laws. It is not a question of competence, Ritter said, but one

Coping with loss

Emotional support necessary

By Carol Calkins
[2nd in a series]

The spring of '73 was one of confusion, illness, heartbreak and adjustment for all of us. Our first impulse was to keep it from the family to spare them worry, but I couldn't.

In fact it became almost impossible not to tell everyone that I knew. I didn't do it to frighten or impress—but just to say it.

It was, and still is, a relief to talk about it on occasion.

Children are the most adaptable and too the most affected in any crisis. My youngest was only two, now he's six and I honestly can't remember him being 3, 4 or 5.

It must have been hard on them to have their mother gone (and often their dad) but they seemed to feel the intensity of the crisis and never gave us trouble about "substitute mothers."

We lost our little filly when she was five days old and I think the grief of it preconditioned us to death.

The final stage of life, death, had entered into our home and I had to prepare the children.

I told them I was seriously ill. I could not, nor would not lie to any of the kids, so they were told all along that I may not always be here.

Ours is not a morbid house because of the presence of crisis, it's an understanding one though sometimes tense.

I have never felt it a burden on the children to be aware of the sad part of life. I feel it is a necessary stage for their development into the world.

Our daily battle with illness is teaching the children sensitivity and I hope an understanding of death, which will enable them to accept it as it occurs in the course of their life.

In a time when the chips are down there is an inherent human need to have emotional support, and it is no easy task to give it.

It is hard to give of oneself time-wise, to be where your presence is needed—no matter the cost or inconvenience. It would be nice to say that all my immediate family just flocked around, altered their schedules and gave me all the emotional support I needed. But it didn't work that way and doesn't.

Sometimes those relations closest to you stay the furthest away. It is disappointing to see, and to endure the loneliness felt by an ill person when you feel you've been deserted.

Now after much hardship and a lot of counseling, I can realize and appreciate that no one accepts disaster in the same fashion as the next person. What I could and did accept had to be drilled over and over again into the minds of others.

It became a defense on my part to have to repeat again and again, "I'm desperately ill and you're acting as if I'm having a tooth pulled!" What took me months to realize is that my life had changed, not theirs.

I was experiencing the crisis, not them. They could only accept what they saw externally, a healthy looking, vivacious, usually giving person who only said she may be fatally ill.

It seems so ridiculous in this modern age to say people only believe what they see. But on the whole, a lot of people are like that... I know, I've seen them. It is only when some people are seeing the apparatus of the dying person, the quiet hospital room with the machines and bottles that they can absorb the fact a person is dying. By then it may be too late to give of yourself to that person, and both of you are the losers. I can now see where it is hard, sometimes impossible, not only for a person to admit to himself things are bad; but to accept it in another person.

Perhaps their reasons for staying away are justified in all practicality; but an emotionally or physically ill person finds it difficult to rationalize why someone you expected to be there in your time of need just isn't there.

In being completely open I would have to say it is friends, neighbors and virtually strangers who can accept and therefore aid me in my dilemma.

Coping with kids

Tips for vacationing

by Jim and Ellen Windell

Planning a vacation for the family raises questions about what special considerations should be made for the children so that the trip can be made as relaxing and enjoyable for all. The keynote to a successful family vacation is planning and preparation.

Advance planning will include how and where the vacation will be spent and how best to get there. Although we as adults think of a vacation as a time to relax and perhaps do nothing except stare into space, children remain as active as ever and sometimes even more active and energetic. While everyone in the family can be involved in the planning, a trip cannot be successful unless everyone is in agreement as to where it is to take place. This includes the parents who have a right to enjoy their time away from their usual routine also.

In assisting children to adjust to the final decision, it is helpful if they are told realistically what to expect. If, for instance, the family will be camping, they should be warned whether or not there will be plenty of other children available in a large and popular camping area or if they will be isolated for two weeks in a remote part of Canada. Children need activities, companions, and some structure. If you take children along on your vacation, then you as parent will have to be realistic about the children's needs for total family consider the just your time and involvement in their daily fun. You can expect a change of scenery and new experiences with your children, but no adult style relaxation unless you are fortunate enough to bring along grandmother who has cheerfully agreed to babysit the kids on occasion to allow mom and dad to get off by themselves.

Travel in the car can be a harrowing experience unless there is advance planning here also. Letting the children have a map of their own or at least access to one so that they can follow the route and help estimate the miles and time left. This may help cut down the number of times they ask, "Are we there yet?"

Traveling with all sorts of surprises and interesting items for the children, regardless of age, can help during the long hours when boredom and restlessness will set in. Drawing paper, crayons, picture books, story books, game books, puzzles and toys can be useful in whiling away the time. There should be frequent pauses, perhaps as often as every hour, and these can be play breaks if the children start fighting in the backseat.

Finally, it is a beneficial idea to allow plenty of time for a leisurely trip back. Coming home in a relaxed fashion can aid everyone to get back in the routine of the home life, even if for a few hours, and will be valuable in helping the

He's 70 and a marshall too

Millstream

by Hilda Bruce 625-3370

It's not every week that you turn 70 and get to be grand marshal of Clarkston's Fourth of July parade, but that's what happened to Sherm Lowery last weekend.

Neighbors who appreciate his lawn cutting, snow shoveling and shrub trimming got together Friday night at the home of Mrs. Martha Anthony on Buffalo to fete the lifelong Clarkston area resident.

Then on Monday, Sherm occupied the place of honor in the parade.

A school custodian, he retired five years ago from his post at Clarkston High School.

Sherm grew up on a farm in northern Independence Township, recalling horse and buggy trips to Clarkston for weekly get-togethers on the streets on Saturday nights.

Married to Fannie Lowery, he is the step-father of five grown children, including a daughter who makes her home with the Lowerys on Buffalo.

He has become a familiar figure in downtown Clarkston, sometimes helping out at Morgan's Service Station, driving those who need transportation to appointments and generally making himself an integral part of the community.

"I've got so many things to do," he says happily.

Bobbie Diemer, Karen Graves and Eugenie Sanford, all of Clarkston were among 56 graduates to receive associate degrees in nursing from the Highland Lakes Campus of Oakland Community College during pinning ceremonies held recently.

Guest speaker for the ceremony was Mary Owens, director of nursing at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac.

Five Clarkston students were among the graduates receiving degrees from Ferris State University during recent commencement exercises.

They were: Steven O. Darling, 6094 Cramlane, associate degree in auto body; Constance A. Ford, 5905 S. Main, associate degree in dental hygiene; Alan L. Freiberg, 5223 Bronco, associate degree in industrial chemistry technology.

Also Katherine L. Gusie, 5919 Kingfisher, associate degree in medical lab technology; and Gale L. Jorgensen, 6880 Bluegrass, associate degree in radiologic chemistry.

Mrs. Elizabeth S. Adams, of Drayton Plains has been re-appointed to the Michigan Historical Commission, a post she has held since 1941, by Governor William Milliken.

Mrs. Adams is a member of the board of directors of the Oakland County Pioneer Historical Society and was recently elected President Emeritus.

Currently the president of the state historical commission, her new term will expire May 21, 1983.

Cathleen M. Connelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Connelly of Waldon Road, was named to the spring semester dean's list at Lansing Community College. Cathleen is studying TV-Media Technology and has produced and directed children's shows for the college's cable channel. She is currently hosting and producing a children's show along with producing and directing a women's show. Cathleen was recently featured in a half hour special presentation for TV on Lansing's Channel 6 entitled "Open Door Lansing Community College."

James R. Loba, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Loba of Crozet, Va., former Clarkston residents, is a recent graduate of the United States Military Academy, West Point, N.Y. Following graduation leave, the newly commissioned Second Lieutenant will report to Fort Sill, Oklahoma for field artillery officers basic training. After this, Lieutenant Loba will complete motor officers school at Fort Knox, Kentucky. His first assignment will be with the Seventh Corps Artillery in Southern Germany.

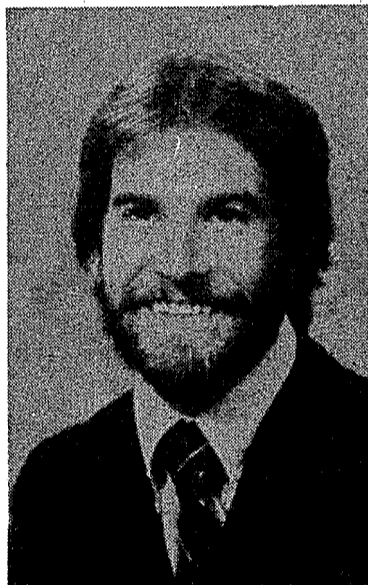

For children who like to read about such things as fire-breathing dragons, wicked witches, and fairy princesses, the Springfield Township Library has a collection of fairy tales—some very well known, and some not so well known.

"The Flying Trunk" and "Andersen's Fairy Tales," "The Winter Flower" and "The Princess Book" are available.

Four students from Clarkston have been named to the Dean's List at Albion College for the spring semester.

To earn this honor, a student must have a 3.4 or better grade point average (based on a 4.0 system) while carrying a full class schedule.

Clarkston students on Albion's Dean's List are Alan D. Solley, '79, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alan F. Solley, 3819 M-15; Linda J. Olney, '79, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Olney, 6912 Hidden Lane; Kurt G. Hesse, '78, son of Mr. Gerald Hesse, 7779 Reese Road; and Arthur T. Trese, '77, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Trese, 5390 Oak Hill.

Dr. Michael Stephen Florentine, recent graduate of the University of Michigan with a Medical Doctorate.

The nostalgia of old-time street fairs will come alive July 14 through 16 at Pontiac Mall of Shopping Center. Families can enjoy free barbershop quartet singing, magic shows, mime, and shop the sidewalk sales from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. each day.

Pontiac Theatre IV will present The Fantasticks July 15, 16, 22 and 23 at 8 p.m. and July 17 at 2 p.m. Tickets for the regular performance are $3 and for the matinee $1.50. They are available at Sears, Hudsons and Tenutas. The play will be staged in Pontiac Central High School auditorium.

The Oakland County Democratic Party will meet Tuesday, July 12 at 8 p.m. in the Board of Commissioners Auditorium, 1200 N. Telegraph Road, Pontiac.

A workshop will be conducted by Ed Dore, from the Senate Democratic Staff, and John Turnquist, Deputy Director of the Campaign Finance Reporting Office of the Michigan Department of State.

All meetings of the Oakland County Democratic Party are open to the public.

Captain Harold M. Mills, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harold K. Mills of 1530 W. Pine St., Wytheville, Va., has been named outstanding junior officer of the Quarter in his unit at Keesler AFB, Miss.

Captain Mills, an air traffic control instructor, was selected for exemplary leadership, devotion to duty and professional performance. The captain is a member of the Air Training Command.

A 1963 graduate of George Wythe High School, Captain Mills received his B.A. degree in 1972 from Inter-American University in Puerto Rico and was commissioned later that year through Officer Training School, Lackland AFB, Tex.

His wife, Diane, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Hinz of 8101 S. Eston, Clarkston, Mich.

Eagles celebrate new club house

The Clarkston Eagles' new clubhouse, located right next to the Knights of Columbus Hall at 5640 Maybee Road, is nearly complete. The Eagles will have a grand opening celebration July 8, 9 and 10. A dinner and dance will be featured Friday and Saturday evening while a picnic followed by another dance is scheduled Sunday. The festivities are open to the public.

Completion of the 4400 square foot structure should be realized this summer. The project, begun in December, 1974, has been a club project. Members did all interior finishing of the building, including the bar. The structure has been occupied since January of this year and is open every day to club members. For further information on the club or the grand opening celebration call 625-9838.

Holly antique show planned

Northwest Oakland County Historical Society will be featuring 33 antique dealers in its annual Antiques Show and Sale July 15 and 16 at Holly Oaks Middle School on North Holly Road. Hours of the show are 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday.

The show features diversified displays ranging from 18th century and country furniture, glassware, country store collectibles, dolls, silver, paper items, jewelry, to primitive prints and tools. Among the scarce items to be featured this year are Windsor chairs, a large collection of mustache cups and lustreware, Bennington, Dedham, sponge and redware pottery, antique Indian jewelry, Victorian furniture from the mid 19th century, sewing tools, water benches, cupboard and cut glass. The show also features a booth offering handcrafted articles and a tearoom.

Dual rights

by Reverend James R. Balfour
Clarkston United Methodist Church

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead whose heart has ne'er within him burned as footsteps he has turned from wandering on a foreign strand."

The celebration of Independence Day always warms our patriotic hearts. I wonder if we are aware of the great importance of freedom for all people. As long as there are persons who are not free within the world, our freedom is endangered. Our President has made human rights an international issue and placed our nation in full support of freedom for all people.

We might well ask ourselves if our nation's record in human rights is equal to the ideals expressed in the Declaration of Independence that every person has the right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. As Christians, we support the viewpoint that real freedom comes to those who worship God and follow His commandments.

"Thus we hold a dual citizenship as we are citizens of this nation and the Kingdom of God. Our Christian task is to reconcile our spiritual ideal with the daily life of our physical world. Catching a vision of the eternal perspective of God helps us to see who we are and what we ought to be. Because we have been rightly blessed as a nation, we should be responsible servants of God working to see that the ideals of human rights become the experience of all people. "To whom much has been given much will be expected."

"God is a spirit and those who worship Him must worship in spirit and in 'truth'" John 4:24

Vince Lombardi once said, "Winning is not everything; it's only the only thing." Many people did not like the sentiment expressed in that. But, perhaps there is something to it that is not really all that sinister. He is not saying that it is OK to do anything, fair or unfair, to win. He is not recommending cheating. Rather, he is talking about an attitude toward athletic competition. Athletes have to want to win, that has to be their prime objective. Winning means playing your best against all of the elements, against the other team, your own limitations, the weather, or whatever. This does not mean that losing is then a terrible thing, because if you have put your best into winning, then losing is not a disgrace, it still has dignity.

We do our best at COACH'S CORNER, 31 S. Main, 625-8457 to be sure you make the right purchases. We carry a large inventory of athletic goods so you have a wide selection for your choice and avoid long wait for delivery. Growing things

Consider lowly milkweed

by Lyle Abel

One of the most frequently neglected insect pests in non-commercially grown fruit is the apple maggot. This creature is the one that causes the deformed fruit with the brown streaks that are left in the flesh of the apple where the maggots have burrowed. The adult of this pest is a fly slightly smaller than a house fly and easy to recognize from the black bands across its wings. The flies are just now emerged from the soil where they wintered and about now they will begin laying their eggs under the skin of the fruit.

Control consists of killing the adult flies before they lay their eggs. Since the flies feed on the surface of leaves and fruit the commonly used spray materials such as Sevin and Methoxychlor found in the all-purpose fruit sprays should give good control if regularly used. July's holiday and summer vacations frequently cause one to neglect the regular sprays that are critical for the control of this pest.

Milkweed is in blossom now. If you will pause but a moment to examine the plant you will find the blossoms to be very attractive and unusually fragrant. You will also notice that honeybees are extremely busy and numerous, gathering the nectar that milkweed blossoms produce in such copious amounts that it almost drips from the blooms.

This common weed has a number of virtues in addition to being a good honey producer. Researchers found that it has a fair content of latex, the ingredient that is the basic material for rubber. Milkweeds too are a favorite subject for artists and photographers who admire the shapely seed pods and the fluffy seeds that emerge from them. Folks that have a hobby of collecting plants for winter bouquets or formal arrangements prize the milkweed plants very highly.

Another name for the milkweed is silkweed and this refers to the silky fibers or floss that is attached to the seeds. The fluffy tufts of this floss enables the seed to be carried for great distances as the breezes waft them away when they emerge from their pods. One feature of this silky fiber is that it is very buoyant and does not absorb water. During World War II the Japanese controlled those areas of the Pacific Ocean that produced kapok. Kapok fiber comes from a tree of the same name and it has the same buoyancy as milkweed fiber. Kapok was the material used to fill life jackets at that time and there was a panic among manufacturers giving rise to a search for a substitute. Milkweed floss was chosen and a program was instituted to harvest the seed pods. At that time I was working in the Eastern Upper Peninsula and was involved in hiring an aide to carry out the program. School children throughout the eastern portion of the Upper Peninsula and in the northern counties of the Lower Peninsula were especially active in collecting, drying and selling the milkweed pods. Tons were collected and shipped to Petoskey. I never did hear what finally became of the milkweed floss and if any finally became part of a life jacket that might have saved the life of a stranded sailor or airman.

There are strains of milkweed that are cultivated for their attractive blooms. You will frequently come across one called the Butterfly Weed. It is this season they bear showy, orange colored flowers. They grow along roadsides, fence rows and in abandoned fields. Other strains have been selected that have blooms that are soft purple or greenish white in color. They make attractive perennial plants if grown where they are not disturbed.

County offers tips on safe home canning

Grandma's home canned green beans with that just picked taste were delicious, but if you're using Grandma's recipes today be careful not to pick up something else—botulism poisoning. Almost all cases of botulism can be traced to improperly home canned foods.

"I know there are a large number of people using outdated methods," says Lois Thieleke, Oakland County Extension Home Economist. Home canned foods can be safe and delicious if some basic precautions are followed.

Get up-to-date reliable canning and freezing directions. The Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service has a Food Preservation Hotline number - 858-0904, available for your convenience 9 to 5 daily.

Taking your calls and answering questions will be a Michigan State University Junior Student in Dietetics, and a Home Economist in Food Preservation. They will assist you in any way possible to make this a safe canning-freezing season.

The Home Economist is also available for lectures and demonstrations on safe food preservation methods to any organization within Oakland County.

Davisburg

Davisburg offers a quiet life off the beaten track

Beautiful downtown Davisburg.

By Hilda Bruce of The Clarkston News

Norris Walls has lived his entire life in Davisburg and as far as he is concerned there is no better reason to continue to do so. "We just returned from Maine and all through the East we saw so many little hamlets. Davisburg is one of so very few left here," en. Walls said.

Although the village has changed drastically since he was a boy, it still offers the relaxed living that he feels is important to quality life.

"It is the atmosphere of yesterday, not the apprehensive-ness and nervousness that prevails in the more progressive areas," he noted.

That's exactly the way Marlene (Hillman) Oakes feels.

"It's the atmosphere, 19th century, and waking to the assume responsibility," Walls noted.

Davisburg is not the service center of the township anymore but service organizations like the Rotary and the Jaycees still provide community spirit.

"People still take on each other's burdens. We still help each other out," Walls said proudly.

The fondness for this valley community has prevailed since Cornelius Davis and his son-in-law Isaac Losee first set eyes on it in 1836.

Throughout its history the fortunes of Davisburg have depended on transportation.

For 20 years after Davis settled the village there was a lull in development. Settlers venturing north from Detroit stayed on the Saginaw Trail instead of veering off into the new settlement.

When the railroad came in 1856 Davisburg emerged from isolation. The rails promised a new way of life for settlers with the faster, easier movement of people and goods.

Those who came by way of the rail were as enthralled as Davis was when he first set eyes on the area. Many of them stayed. Many of those who continued on their way later returned with their families to settle in the valley.

Anticipating the influx of visitors the trains would bring, W.H. Springer opened the first hotel in town about 1855. Later D.B. Horton opened the four-story, 14 room Davisburg House.

The 50s also saw the coming of the grist mill built by John C. Davis. There, settlers and Indians alike gathered, not just to have their grain ground but also to socialize.

The advent of the motor car had more far reaching effects for the village than did the railroad.

By the 1920's and the paving of the Saginaw Trail (Dixie Highway), rail passenger service was declining. Cars and buses moved people while trucks competed for the moving of goods.

With the opening of I-75 in the early 1960's Springfield Township was severed. No access was provided to the village of Davisburg.

Since the days of the farmer to the present day of the commuter Davisburg has served Springfield Township as the government seat.

No longer are there hotels for overnight guests or dining rooms for visitors or businessmen's luncheons.

But there is a grocery store, a hardware, a lumber yard, building company, real estate office, service station, beauty shop, water softener service, law office, two churches, a school, a doctor's office and the candle factory.

At lunch time the 25 to 30 people who work in the village either eat a cold meal at their posts, go home to eat or venture out of the valley to Holly Greens or to Deer Lake Racquet Club's Back Court.

Davisburg may no longer bustle as it did in the heyday of the Grand Trunk, but its heart beat is still sound.

Specialty shop opens

Following moves from Union Lake to Orchard Lake to Birmingham, "The Village Gallery on Main Street," as it's now called, has established itself in downtown Clarkston.

"I keep avoiding my bill collectors, but they still catch me sometimes," joked owner Susan Berry.

The Village Gallery offers a full range of art pieces and services. Limited edition prints, or lithographs, are its specialty. One thousand or less prints are usually made of an artist's work, making them possible collectors' items, Sylvia Ritchie, Susan's partner, said.

Also available through their one-week old shop, which is actually located on Depot Road in the Emporium, are decorator prints, gifts of all kinds, hand carvings, "pet rock" art and custom framing of prints.

Sylvia is an avid photographer and prides herself on her framing abilities. With proper framing and care a lithograph can last 300 years, the women said. However, if improperly done, acids from the stiff backing paper can destroy a

Credit systems would get review

State Senator Kerry Kammer (D-Pontiac) has introduced a bill that, if passed, could save Michigan residents several hundred thousand dollars a year in credit overcharges.

Currently, there is a dispute concerning the legal site of a credit contract between a customer in Michigan and a seller in another state. Thus, some catalog companies charge Michigan customers interest rates applicable to the company's home state, which may be more than Michigan's allowable 1½ percent per month on the unpaid balance.

The bill would change the language of the 1966 Retail Installment Sales Act to declare that when a consumer enters into a Retail Charge Agreement with a company not located in the State of Michigan, the Michigan law would control the amount of interest that could be charged to the customer.

Kammer stated that "although the matter is currently before the Michigan Courts, the intent should be corrected with legislation so that there can be no doubt as to the Legislature's intent to keep Michigan residents from being "ripped off" by out-of-state catalog companies.

work of art in short order, Sylvia added. The pair are also on the lookout for any local people who do good craft work to increase their stock of craft goods.

Susan is presently working with WXYZ-TV's AM Detroit program to present a feature on four of the artists' work represented in the Gallery.

The shop offers a surprising variety of high quality prints and crafts. Although the prices are not cheap, neither is quality.

Goodbye Andersonville
We're going to leave
Andersonville now,
They've got no use for the fifth graders now,
We've done our work and passed
ahead,
And this year is the end,
The last day of school—we won't be back.
Cause we're bound for the Junior

4th of July parade

Residents began to line the streets of Clarkston early Monday morning for the annual Fourth of July Parade, complete with all the trimmings. The floats, girls and boy scout troops and the clowns were all present making Monday morning a Fourth to remember. Winners of the float competition sponsored by the Independence Township Firefighters are: the Clowns for the Cancer Society, 4-H Independence Eagles Club and the Pine Knob Community Church float. The winners each received a $25 check.

Jim's Jottings

Even editors deserve freedom of choice

by Jim Sherman

How many martyrs do you know? Of course, you don't really know until they mart.

But that's what my friend Dave Rood has become. Dave's a former weekly newspaper editor and publisher who saw the light and sold out.

He sold out because he was offered an editor's position at the daily newspaper in Escanaba. I think he's had the job about four years now. And, it appeared to be a happy marriage.

Dave is absolutely enthralled with the community (he's that way about everywhere across the bridge), and the paper prospered.

The Escanaba Daily Press is a Panax newspaper. Panax is an East Lansing based newspaper chain that owns several Michigan papers as well as others from Washington DC to California.

The president is a guy named John McGoff. Recently he spoke to a group of journalists in the state. He told how he liked to give his newspaper editors considerable leeway in news choices.

Dave's choice last week was to not print a story sent to him by McGoff's recently hired investigator in New York. It was a bad, dirty bit of writing concerning President Carter.

It shouldn't have been written, let alone printed.

McGoff got upset and fired Dave. He also fired the editor of the Panax owned Marquette Mining Journal who also refused to print the trash.

Dave could ill afford to lose his job. He had the usual obligations: mortgage, daughter in vet school, car payments, etc.

And, he didn't want to leave his job. So, he refused to resign when Panax asked him to. Dave told me, "Other guys have done that and it's been glossed over."

Panax fired him. With it went some profit sharing money, too.

Dave will survive, maybe even better. He's had a couple job offers, one with a radio station in Escanaba.

And, Panax will survive. But we wonder at the calibre of editors they will be able to attract.

A story is to appear soon in the New York Times of the two Michigan editors being fired for not being allowed to edit the papers owned by a conglomerate.

Dave's firing is a black mark against all newspaper chains as it is a black mark for "journalism".

Those of us who know Dave Rood are proud of him for his decision. Those of us who truly believe in giving our editors a free choice in news selection despite the Panax decision.
