Private Roads Open Thendara Park

By Hilda Bruce
of The Clarkston News

Mrs. James [Emmalyn] Balfour [left] and Mrs. Christopher [Jane] Kennedy put in a few more stitches on the Bicentennial quilt that is almost ready for the Saturday raffle during Cider Crafts Day in Clarkston. Quilters have worked on the project for more than two years, stitching in bits and pieces of history along with their names. A professional quilter, Paula Acton's sister-in-law, started the quilters off and they have been stitching away in spare moments ever since. Some lucky person will have a valuable heirloom when the drawing is held Saturday. Others who worked on the quilt are Eva Masters, Karen Sanderson, Sally Lamm, Janette Hitchcock, Jo Oakley, Ruth Bassinger, Mary Beth Huttenlocher, Ruth Mast, Mary Ann Vascassino, Joan Kester, Mary Butterfield, Joyce Parker, Daisy Dowling, Helen Woolfenden, Maryetta Bullard, Beth Degener, Jay Bisha, Carol Balzarini, Glen Gordon, Tammy Degener, Gini Schultz, Billie Glennie and Dorothy Mosher.

Private roads will provide the only access to 20 parcels of land west of Thendara Park Subdivision unless the Oakland County Road Commission agrees to take over the roads in the future.

Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals last week agreed to the private road request after developer Jack Raisin asked for access to his 180 acres recently split into three and 10 acre parcels.

Zoning board members, however, have stipulated that all roads built in the area bounded by Stickney Rd. on the south and Michigamme on the east be built to county standards. A portion of Stickney is currently maintained by the county.

Raisin, who initiated the private road request six weeks ago, also plans a 1,970 foot-long cul-de-sac into the property from the present intersection of Michigamme and Iroquois.

In granting the private roads the board also required Raisin post a $20,000 bond in escrow for construction of the roads. If the work is not completed within 60 days of the sale of the land parcels or if the completion is not apparent Raisin will have to forfeit the bond.

Another $2,000 must be set aside in escrow for township engineering inspections. It must be reinstated each time the balance falls below $500.

The board also required deed restrictions be placed upon the properties guaranteeing road maintenance in the event the county road commission will not maintain the roads.

Further restrictions insure culverts and road ditching at the intersection of driveways and roadways.

In the three to two vote, board members Mel Vaara and Fred Ritter refused to okay the plan because of the length of the cul-de-sac (the road commission recommends cul-de-sacs be no longer than 600 feet) and the lack of sufficient roads for the future.

After 10 years the 10 acre parcels may be divided into three acre parcels which could lead to nearly three times as many residences in the area than is presently planned for, the two agreed.

Raisin plans to divide the 180 acres into four three acre parcels and 16 10-acre parcels.

Hud probe finds CDA administration lax

Findings of the HUD investigators into CDA operations in the county were turned over to the Public Services Committee of the Oakland County Board of Commissioners Tuesday.

The 50 page report outlines 62 findings in 10 areas. Most of them are related to possible violations of federal guidelines, some to possible violations of law.

The FBI probe is continuing "with our full cooperation," according to Mike Neimann, spokesman for County Executive Dan Murphy.

If the FBI investigation turns up any evidence of criminal activities, the prosecuting attorney's office will enter the

"there had been an administrative deficiency,"

The CDA (Community Development Act) is a capital improvement program to funnel funds into local development programs. Neimann said "We believe the CDA program is a good one, but it has to be administered properly."

He pointed out that Murphy had already taken action by appointing John Madole as executive director. He admitted that "there had been an administrative deficiency" and that a "stronger, tighter hand on the reins" was needed. Further personnel changes may follow.

He said the department had tightened up procedures and worked to improve conditions since Madole took over.

"Much has been done. Much needs to be done," said Neimann.

Stories of alleged mismanagement and wrongdoing circulated even before Oakland County Commissioner John D. McDonald (R-Farmington Hills) wrote a letter last December bringing up questions about CDA dealings.

Murphy asked county auditors to "make an unofficial appraisal of the situation six months before the McDonald letter. Particular charges at that time were declared groundless.

The auditors came in again in January, 1977, HUD (U.S. Housing and Urban Development) then entered the probe, and the FBI was called into the investigation in June by direction of the U.S. Attorney's office in Detroit.

The only communities still involved in the current findings are Berkley and Oak Park, according to Neimann.

Clarkston is involved only in regard to a walkway and a lot paving project that went to American Asphalt Company, although it was not the low bidder. According to Neimann, it was explained at a Clarkston Village Council meeting that the bidder must be "pre-qualified" and the low bidder was not.

He also said that carefully worked out controls are necessary in any agency handling funds and that changes in the program will bring in tighter administrative procedures. "The methods we apply in the county are sound and tested."

Neimann said that new names in addition to that of Donald MacKenzie, had turned up in the report.

Foster care facility wins approval

An adult foster care facility, that was denied a township zoning exemption in 1976, was approved under protest Tuesday night.

"We were pretty well mandated to approve the facility," Independence Township Supervisor Floyd Tower said.

While board members were evenly split on the issue, the foster care facility will achieve official recognition. State law on such facilities now supercedes local zoning codes.

The 10 occupant house, located on M-15, near Hickory Trail, was denied zoning exemption last year on code violations. Poor road access and the facility's occupancy capacity in a single family zoned area, brought rejection by township zoners.

Board members followed their split vote—with Trustee Frederick Ritter absent—with a four to nothing vote stressing objections to the State.

The facility is currently in operation and will be regulated by the Oakland County Department of Social Services. It will house mentally impaired and elderly persons.

In other board business, Clarkston Police Services received $3,300 in anti-recession fiscal assistance funds to help offset their contract shortfall with the Oakland County Sheriff Dept.

Board members were under an Oct. 12 deadline to spend the money or face losing the funds under federal guidelines.

Independence Township receives between $3,000 and $5,000 per quarter to help local governments put money into communities, according to Clerk Chris Rose.

Township residents will get a second chance to voice concerns on federal Revenue Sharing Funds provided to Independence Township.

The Tuesday hearing, which saw no public discussion of how the township should spend over $150,000 in federal funds, will be offered for a second hearing in two weeks during the regular township session.

Some federal monies have been allocated such as $8,000 for local parks.

Public health volunteers honored

Volunteers assisting Oakland County public health nurses were honored at an Open House Reception from 1:00-4:00 p.m., September 14, at the Health Department, 27725 Greenfield Road, Southfield.

More than 300 community volunteers work toward making Oakland County citizens healthy by assisting public health nurses who carry out a wide variety of health department programs.

Award certificates were presented to the many who serve at child health conferences; immunization clinics; vision and hearing screening programs, and in the breast cancer detection center.

The reception also commemorated the 50th anniversary of the health department. On December 1, 1926, the Oakland County Department of Health was officially organized with Dr. John D. Monroe as commissioner and Dr. V.K. Volk as deputy commissioner.

They were assisted by a clerk and one nurse. In May, 1927, the legislature approved, and the governor signed Act 306 to provide for county health departments by vote of the board of supervisors.

The pioneer efforts of Oakland County thus became the pattern and standard for the entire state.

The Oakland County Board of Commissioners, as well as retired Oakland County Division of Health employees, were invited to help celebrate the Oakland County Health Department's 50 years of service to the community and the community's service to the health department.

P.T.A. versus Playboy

Rosy Melton, Andersonville P.T.A. president, feels these publications are incompatible and that children should be protected against the magazines on the bottom of the pile. Ludington News distributes both types of materials so the Clarkston P.T.A. presidents have agreed to boycott the distributor when planning their annual book fairs. The group has also enlisted the aid of Jackie Palmer, P.T.A. director for all of Oakland County, who will inform other groups of the situation.

Andersonville P.T.A. is spearheading a boycott of the Ludington News, which they say distributes pornographic materials.

Rosie Melton, president of the Andersonville P.T.A. said the firm, which is also distributor for annual P.T.A. book fairs, also distributes soft-core pornographic magazines.

As parents concerned with the welfare of children, Mrs. Melton said she and her group are adverse to dealing with the firm.

The investigation into the availability of pornography began last spring when the Andersonville group presented a program on the issue by Ralph Guerrini of the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office.

"Many of the parents there refused to view the magazines. It was an embarrassing situation. We feel that the reason these things exist is because most people are unaware of what is in them," Rosie said.

Linda Burton of Clarkston discovered the local availability of such magazines as Hustler, Playboy, Penthouse and Oui (the so-called soft core porno) to children when she turned to find her daughter leafing through one in a downtown drug store.

Her wrath led to another phase of action. Linda and Rosie toured the area in search of such displays urging storeowners to remove them from the reach and sight of children.

Responses to their requests ranged from compliance to verbal abuse and eviction from the premises, Rosie said.

"Some storeowners simply felt there was nothing wrong with the magazines and there was no reason to move them," she added.

According to Rosie, Linda phoned one owner and asked him why Playgirl (the women's counterpart to Playboy) wasn't displayed and was told it was too vulgar.

The women contend that those magazines that display the female body in vulgar poses are as offensive as those that depict the male body in similar fashion.

"Hustler also runs child-porno comics. One is called 'Chester-Molester,'" Rosie exclaimed.

"We don't object to healthy adults buying the magazines," said Mary Jane Chaustowich, second vice president of the Andersonville P.T.A. "We just feel they should not be available to our children. Neither are we concerned about the displays in liquor stores. It's the neighborhood party and drug stores that attract children."

Besides asking and receiving the support of other P.T.A. presidents, Rosie and Linda met with Guerrini. They learned that although there are laws governing such materials there are technicalities that allow the problem to exist.

"Basically it is up to the community to decide upon the display and sale of the materials. The storeowner does have an obligation to the community," Rosie said.

"We are proud of Clarkston. We have no adult bookstores, sex shops, pawn shops or X-rated theaters. We do have these magazines. Let's keep them out before they lead to other things," Rosie declared.

The group has determined which stores in the area are "bad" and which are "good." The bad ones display the materials openly or covered by paper still within the reach of a child. The good ones have them out of sight. Some have a sign telling the customer he must ask for the magazines. Others have them but there is no indication that they do.

The women, who call themselves complainers at this point, welcome the active support of others in their campaign. They can be contacted by writing P.O. Box 373, Clarkston, Michigan, 48016.

Clarkston woman dead; two held

Irene Timbrooks of Dartmouth Road, Clarkston was shot and killed Saturday night in a jewelry store holdup in Waterford Township.

Mrs. Timbrooks, 30, manager of the Arts and Gems Gallery at 83 N. Telegraph, was found by Officer Robert Kenny after a passerby notified Waterford police that the store's front door was open.

Owner Ted Terentiac, 61, is in fair condition in a Pontiac hospital with a head wound.

Two suspects were arrested Sunday in Redford Township.

Murder warrants were issued Monday against Gary Wolfe, 23, and Augustino Conte, 44.

Wolfe is in Wayne County General Hospital with head and shoulder wounds suffered when he tried to escape police. Conte was being held in the Oakland County Jail.

Cash and jewelry, believed taken in the robbery, were found on both men when they were arrested. No weapons have been found.

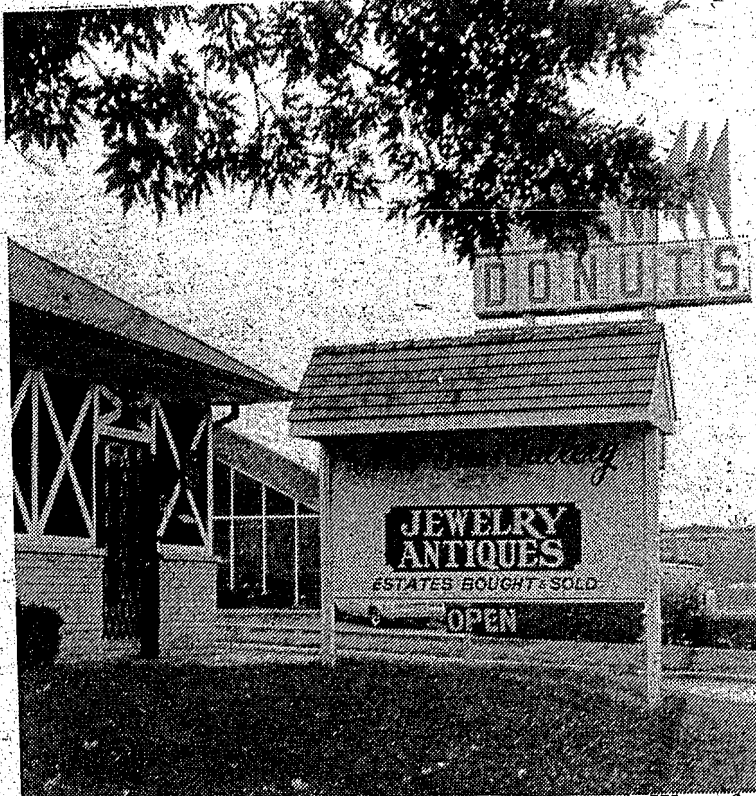

The two men were apprehended when they left the Hilltop Motel on Telegraph Road in Redford.

They were under surveillance by Waterford Township Police, Michigan State Police and the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Wolfe had reportedly failed to show up at a Walled Lake District Court hearing and was free on bond, pending the hearing, on an armed robbery charge in Highland Township. Both men are Pontiac area residents.

This is the jewelry store at 83 N. Telegraph Road, Waterford Township where Irene Timbrooks of Clarkston was killed during a holdup Saturday night. Mrs. Timbrooks was manager of the store. The owner, Ted Terentiac of Waterford Township, is in fair condition with a head wound.

"We don't ship tastes"

Jerry Ludington, president of Ludington News in Flint distributor of reading matter in the Clarkston area, feels it is unfortunate that children should suffer from a local economic sanction against the distributor.

"The kiddies really enjoy the book fairs," he said.

Ludington pointed out that the firm supplies modesty shields to dealers that desire to cover the objectionable materials such as Playboy, Oui and Hustler magazines.

"I will discuss the matter with our driver in the area and have him talk to the dealers Thursday (Sept. 22)," Ludington said. "We'll go along with the community but the burden is on the dealer."

"We merely distribute. We don't shape tastes," he added.

He noted that the new issue of Playboy carries a rather modest picture of Barbra Streisand.

"Perhaps it is a new trend," Ludington said.

"If enough dealers cover the offensive pictures perhaps the publishers will get the idea."

Highway Dept. adds car lots

Two parking lots to aid commuters will be developed at I-75 and Big Beaver in Troy. They will be paved and lighted and will have shelters for motorists who car pool or board buses.

The Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation has been providing the inexpensive car pool parking lots at selected highway intersections throughout the state. Director John P. Woodford says the sites are saving motorists from $100 to $600 a year on gasoline alone.

The largest site is a paved lot that can accommodate 100 vehicles at Interstate 96 freeway and Milford Road west of Wixom in Oakland County. There are now 57 sites in 21 counties with parking ranging from 10 to 60 spaces.

The department has scheduled 31 other sites for development and is studying 43 additional locations. All are located at intersections or interchanges involving state highways, where motorists already are using right-of-way to park and double up with other drivers.

With the exception of the Oakland County lot, the sites are all rough finished, but are maintained year round, including winter snow plowing.

Surveys have shown steady increase in usage since the first sites were developed four years ago.

The projected Troy parking lot is part of an experimental park-and-ride program in southeastern Michigan.

Letters to the Editor

Open letter to people of Clarkston School District:

The Clarkston School Bus Drivers would like to thank the people of the school district for their support during our recent strike. The attendance at the Monday night school board meeting certainly proved to us that you stand behind the people who drive your children to and from school.

A very special thank you to Al Bartlett and Tom Brown of the CEA and Ed Misner of the MEA. These men not only gave their guidance and support but they stayed with the drivers until 1 a.m. Tuesday when a tentative agreement was reached. The support of these men and the members of their associations was greatly appreciated.

We are sorry for the inconvenience to the parents, students and Clarkston Board of Education. Rather than engaging in an "illegal" strike, the drivers would like to do their part to keep the Clarkston school district running smoothly.

However, there comes a time when we must stand up for what we believe is right. In doing so, we feel the negotiating team for the drivers and the Clarkston Board of Education arrived at a compromise fair to all.

Thank you again for supporting us.

The Independence Township Firefighters would like to thank all the people who helped make this year's Muscular Dystrophy program such a success.

Only through the cooperation of those business places and Pine Knob Music Theatre that allowed the firemen to collect donations for M.D. could we have turned over $5200 as the support to the M.D. program nationally from the Independence Township area.

Those who attended the Labor Day Pancake Breakfast with the Independence Firefighters at the Fire station in Clarkston were also generous contributors to the M.D. program.

All the firemen that worked on the M.D. program in Independence would like to express their thanks to those who contributed to this worthy cause.

Why, oh why?

Why is it that . . . no matter how good you look when you leave the house in the morning, when you look in the mirror at the office you are suddenly pale, 10 years older and scraggly . . . the one time you park your car on the street, a phone call delays you just long enough to get a parking ticket . . . whenever you have to take pictures in three different places it is always raining—hard . . . when someone talks fast on the phone, you can't locate your pen to take down the information . . . people are always at home except when you call them to check on some important information.

Can't go - downtown

by Jim Fitzgerald

Remember that Judge who said the United States is being destroyed by selfish citizens who would rather go to the bathroom than build a courthouse? He really started something.

It was two months ago that I wrote about District Judge John Spires of Lapeer County. He was outraged by the results of a local newspaper poll which showed that, by a 3-to-1 margin, taxpayers wanted a public rest room downtown more than they wanted a new courthouse.

The judge made his outrage public in a letter to the editor which said many incredible things, including this:

" . . . Human beings are, for the most part, incapable of seeing beyond their own little egocentric world. They cannot take the broad view, looking to the best interests of their community and the nation. They sit on the throne of their water closets and see only the contents of the bathroom, with no conception of things beyond those four walls. And it is this shortcoming of human nature which will ultimately lead to the destruction of our democracy."

There is no intention here to mount a prolonged crusade against Judge

Spires. I have known him for many years and he is a nice man. He used to sing in the church choir with my wife. He is devoutly sincere when he warns that this nation will crumble under the weight of too many johns and too few courtrooms. And he is correct when he says Lapeer County's ancient courthouse is woefully inadequate, and a new one is needed.

I wouldn't be taking a second run at the controversy except for the strong reader reaction to my first column on the subject. It isn't only Lapeer County shoppers who are unhappy because they have no place to go. The Detroit area is full of people who are angry at merchants who offer their customers no relief.

According to my mail, supermarkets and banks are the worst sinners. There isn't the space here to relate all the horror stories, and I'm not sure you would want to read them anyway. Suffice to say that apparently the only way to get a store manager to show a little compassion is to threaten to instruct your child to make a mess on his floor.

On the positive side, it can be noted that many elderly people and mothers with children speak warmly of downtown Hudson's for providing large, clean rest rooms. A Grosse Pointe Park woman wrote it this way:

"I am an elderly senior citizen and no longer drive, but the SEMTA bus stops just three doors from my home, and I'd go downtown often if I didn't have to worry about you know what. After I shop Hudson's I'd like to explore downtown—I'm not afraid; I like downtown Detroit—but I can't go any distance from Hudson's for fear I can't make it back in time."

It was my suggestion to Judge Spires that, in a democracy, the people are supposed to decide what is most important to the people. He shouldn't be surprised—let alone outraged—at the result of that newspaper poll. Taxpayers without a public john will always vote to build the john instead of an office for a judge who already has an office.

The trouble is that taxpayers usually don't decide these things. No election is held, and government officials scoff at public opinion polls. The officials know what's good for the public, even if the public is too dumb to know for itself.

The government big shots say public rest rooms are impractical because people are pigs, and vandals are

By Bob Sherefkin
Environmentalists were bel-lowing. State Highway Dept. officials were ready to unleash their bulldozers.

Politicians scrambled for position and area residents were polarized on the planned highway.

The issues were clear: Ecologists said the road would disrupt the delicate environment while road builders said the route was desperately needed to alleviate growing traffic congestion.

But an area newspaper said the road would just speed dollars into the hands of greedy developers and real estate people at the expense of local government.

Sounds all too familiar. M-275?

Close. The issue is I-69, a planned 22-mile segment of four-lane interstate connecting Lansing with Charlotte, the county seat of Eaton County.

Oakland County is not the only area where the issues of growth and development are as hot as abortion and busing. Obscure and rural, Eaton County, with a population of 80,000 is a largely farming and light industry area just west of Lansing currently in the throes of a highway fight. In fact, the issue is now before Gov. Milliken. And his decision on whether to review the project may impact future highway decisions in the state.

I-69 from the Indiana border to Flint is nearly complete. One remaining section, outside Charlotte, is slated for construction in 1980.

In the late 1960s, road builders found little resistance to their plan. But new emphasis on world supplies of food, many Michigan farmers feel they would rather grow soybeans than cement.

The farmers of Eaton County tend to be an odd, difficult type. Living so close to Lansing they are very sensitive to state influence—they don't like it—and they want to continue farming like their forefathers.

What the farmers are fighting is a highway that will claw up prime farmland, several centennial farms and disrupt deer herds on top of that. Deer migration seems pretty trivial, but the Alaska oil pipeline was held up on a similar point.

The farmers are also nervous about homes sprouting in their cornfields, stores in their bean patches and cabins in their woodlots. Highway officials say zoning will keep development out, farmers say bull, a good lawyer will break their codes.

We don't want Lansing spreading into our farmlands, they say.

Sound all too familiar? It should.

September Birthstone

If your birthday is this month, you may be interested in noting that sapphire birthstone for September is surrounded by imaginative legends from many cultures and ages. The Persians believed the earth rested on a giant sapphire, whose color was reflected into the sky to give it a clear blue color. It's a gem highly esteemed by many religions. A sapphire was once said to have been engraved with the Ten Commandments and Solomon's Seal was said to be a star sapphire.

rampant. Bureaucrats always have a problem for every solution. They don't want to hear how those problems have been solved in other towns.

It is always a matter of priorities, and the boys at City hall want to establish their own. A top priority is getting the names of the city councilmen engraved on the cornerstone of a $6 million courthouse. A low priority is getting those same names painted on the side of a $30,000 public toilet.

So it is no surprise that Lapeer County commissioners recently agreed to construct a court building. It will cost $2.5 million. As of this writing, no one is planning to build a public toilet. Do not cross your legs until it happens.

County commissioners recently allotted space in the planned building. They balked at plans for Judge Spires and the other district judge.

The commissioners think the two judges could share one john. But the blueprints give each judge his own private bathroom. Spires said two was the architect's idea, no his, Darn architect.

When it comes to judging selfishness in the water closet, a lot depends on who has to go.

Curtain Time

Preview of community and professional theatre

by Phillip Purser

If you think the play is the thing, then you are in luck during the coming theater season.

Even if you just dabble in theater, occasionally taking in a play here or there, whether in the local high school, a nearby dinner theater, or a top quality professional theater, there will be literally dozens of evenings of drama to suit every possible mood or whim.

Plays within easy driving distance will range from light musical melodrama to high spirited comedy to historical drama.

Neil Simon humor will alternate with William Shakespeare tragedy in a grand repertory in the metropolitan area that will be diverse as "Little Mary Sunshine" and the intensity of the psychological drama "Equus."

Locally, the Clarkston Village Players will present four plays beginning with the mystery "Night Watch" and ending in May 1978 with the musical melodrama "Ten Nights in a Barroom."

The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis will be the first offering of the newly-formed Brandon Community Theatre.

Other comedy possibilities over the winter months will be "Bullshot Crummond", the English revue that became a perfectly ridiculous and hilarious farse that has been running successfully in San Francisco for three years (Lakeland Players of Waterford), Moliere's "The School for Wives" (Wayne State University), several evenings of George Bernard Shaw's sophisticated and idea-laden comedy, and a couple of Alan Aychbourn plays:

Meadow Brook Theatre is putting on one of the Ayckbourn plays, "Table Manners," in November. This play is one of a trilogy called "The Norman Conquests" and has appeared to the delight of audiences in London and New York.

More serious dramatic events are scattered among the comedies and musicals. The serious plays include Ketti Frings' dramatization of Thomas Wolfe's novel "Look Homeward, Angel" (Hilberry Classic Theatre), "The Runner Stumbles" (Meadow Brook Theatre and the University of Detroit), Shakespeare's "The Tempest" (Meadow Brook Theatre), and "Equus" and "The Great White Hope", both of which will be at the University of Michigan's Professional Theatre program.

If you want to see "Annie" or the King and I" with Yul Brynner, you will have to go to New York this season, assuming you can arrange for tickets. However, the musicals "The Robber Bridegroom", "Pippin" and "Shenandoah" which will be at the Music Hall and The Fisher could only have been seen in New York last season.

The assortment and diversity of what is available should more than make up for the newer plays that are not available to us here.

"Hello Dolly" with Carol Channing opened last week at the Fisher. It was here that the world renowned musical first opened - and with Carol Channing in the title role.

The last word on zucchini

There are basically three common varieties of summer squash:

the flat, white, disc-shaped squash known as patty-pan; the yellow squash which are generally long and crook-necked, and the green or green striped varieties known as vegetable marrow, Italian squash or zucchini.

Summer squash should be picked before it is fully mature. At this time, the seeds and skin are tender and the whole squash may be cooked without peeling or wastage.

If you enjoy fussing in the kitchen you might try this recipe for Mashi.

Mashi

1 1/2 lbs. ground meat
4 tomatoes
3 large zucchini
1 tsp cardamon
1/2 tsp oregano
Salt and pepper to taste

Cut across middles of squash and tomatoes. Remove and save centers of each for sauce. Season meat and stuff shells of vegetables with it. Use left over meat for meatballs. Put meatballs, squash and tomatoes in deep casserole.

Combine reserved vegetable centers with spices and tomato sauce. Salt to taste. Pour around tomatoes, zucchini and meat-balls. Bake until meat is done at 350°.

Zucchini Casserole

Saute onion and green pepper in oil, then alternate with three sliced zucchini and four or five fresh tomatoes (or one can tomatoes or one can tomato sauce). Top with crumbs and parmesan cheese. Cover and bake at 350° until almost tender. Remove cover during the last few minutes to brown the casserole.

Pickled Zucchini

4 qts. unpeeled, cubed zucchini
2 red sweet peppers, diced
2 green sweet peppers, diced
3 large onions, cubed
Combine all ingredients in large container. Cover with ice cubes and let stand for three hours. Drain liquid and save.

Add to liquid:

4 cups sugar
4 cups cider vinegar
1 Tbl pickling spices
1 tsp celery seed
1 tsp mustard seed
1 tsp turmeric
Bring to a boil and add vegetables. Boil three minutes. Put into hot, sterilized jars and seal. Makes 6 quarts.

For more information on ways to preserve squash, contact Oakland County Cooperative Extension Food Preservation Hotline 858-0904.

White's Wolves

by Rob White
Varsity coach

The Lake Orion win showed that our team can play above its mistakes and come out with a good performance.

Our fumbles early in the game almost gave Orion enough confidence to come back, but a late second quarter score put an end to their hopes.

Credit must be given to our defensive unit. They held Lake Orion to zero yardage for the entire game. We cannot expect this to happen again. It is an indication of a proud defense.

Players like Syd Standing, Randy Cummings, Mike Morse, Brian Snyder, Sean Robinson, Tim Butler, Kevin Drake, Rich Walenski, Chris Campe, Craig Grable, Tim Fogg and Greg Hills deserve the credit.

I realize this is 12 players but at Clarkston we need all the advantages we can get.

Credit should also go to the second team offense and junior varsity squad that run approximately 200 plays per practice against this defensive squad which sharpens their skills.

The offensive line played a fine game opening holes for John Baker, 129 yards and Bill Singleton, 128 yards. The line is where the game is won or lost because there is no back that can run without good blocking.

Our men in the trenches are Dean McCarrick, Brian Snyder, Syd Standing, Eric Richard, Randy Cummings, and tight ends Dave Tegart and Tim Butler.

Overall we played fairly well—except for our four fumbles.

This week each back will carry a football everywhere he goes—to class, home at night, to bed and especially during practice. This will help them remember my golden rule—"Thou shalt not fumble, especially inside of our own 20 yard line."

This week we have our league opener with Rochester, a passing football team with many talented athletes. It will be good to play at home in front of our fans.

We have plenty of work to do in practice this week. See you at the field at 8 p.m. Friday.

Girls win one

The girls' JV basketball team opened their season last week with a 48-15 victory over Lake Orion and a 34-22 loss to Avondale.

Clarkston, experiencing first game jitters, got off to a slow start against Lake Orion, scoring only 8 points in the first quarter. The second half was a different story as the Wolves collected 26 points. Leading scorer in the victory was Dawn Reis with 11 points.

Avondale's zone press coupled with early season lack of poise contributed to Clarkston's loss to the Yellow Jackets. Leading scorer for Clarkston was Debbie Griggs with 6 points.

Wolves rushed past Dragons

It looked like Clarkston football fans were in for a moaner when play began against Lake Orion Friday night but before the half things began looking up and they roared as Tom Fogg, quarterback, carried the ball over for the first TD, after Bill Singleton ran the ball to the 9 yard mark.

Clarkston led 6-0 for the halftime break as the teams left the field.

The Wolves came back in the third quarter to rack up another eight points as Fogg again made it into the end zone for the score.

In the fourth quarter John Baker got the glory as he carried the ball in from 16 yards out after the Wolves had driven it down 61 yards. One short punt and the Wolves got their own ball back at the 45. In the most exciting run of the night (55 yards), Baker received from Fogg, squeezed his way through the Dragons and sprinted over for 6 more points.

Of Clarkston's 322 rushing yards Baker and Singleton were responsible for 257. Lake Orion managed to accumulate only 37 yards.

This Friday night the Wolves will entertain Rochester on home ground at 8 p.m.

Thinclads run, run, run

Clarkston High's cross-country team had a busy week last week. On Tuesday they traveled to Rochester where they were defeated 20-38. Gordon Sanders placed first, but Rochester captured the next five places.

On Thursday Rochester Adams came to Clarkston and was defeated 21-36. Gordon Sanders took first with a record setting time of 15 min., 39 sec.

Clarkston captured four of the first five places. Placing 3rd was Matt Harris; 4th, Charles Byers and 5th, Darrell Jackson.

On Saturday Clarkston traveled to Groveland Oaks for the Holly Invitational.

Team results were not available after the meet due to a mixup in scoring in the class AA race. However, Gordon Sanders' finish was not in question. Gordon placed 3rd in class AA with a time of 14:50. This race contained 170 runners from the top teams in the state.

This week West Bloomfield comes to Clarkston on Tuesday, Sept. 20.

Fans roared as the Wolves quarterback Tim Fogg carried the ball the final nine yards for the first touchdown in the game against the Lake Orion Dragons last Friday.

Cagers lose home opener

Clarkston High School girls' Varsity basketball opened their season last week by hosting the Lake Orion Dragons.

Unfortunately, the Wolves came out on the short end of the 49-38 final score. Clarkston held an early lead during the first quarter, 11-7, but lost their momentum and trailed 15-24 at the half.

The Wolves worked harder and hustled during the second half and played Lake Orion about even, but could not gain on the ground lost before intermission.

Many facets of the game contributed to Clarkston's loss: few number of shots taken, despite a 33 percent floor average; a low number of total rebounds; excessive floor errors, resulting in turn-overs to Lake Orion.

A good enthusiastic home crowd greeted the Wolves in their 1977 home debut, but it seemed that "first game jitters" was the prevailing effect on the team.

Leading scorer and rebounder for Clarkston was senior Jane Tatu, who tallied 13 points, 10 rebounds, and blocked 2 shots. Senior guard Anne Vaara scored 8 points, while junior forward Kay Pearson pitched in 7 points and hauled in 8 rebounds.

The remainder of the scoring for Clarkston came from Pat Killian (4 points); Marcia Mason, Shelly Vaillencourt, and Pam Blower (2 points each).

On Thursday, Sept. 15 the Wolves traveled to Avondale and showed their opponents that they could play hustling basketball.

Thanks to an effective zone press, Clarkston forced Avondale to turn the ball over in their back court several times.

The Varsity Wolves enjoyed an 18-8 first quarter lead which they maintained at the half by the score of 26-16.

Clarkston continued to hustle during the second half but had a hard time finding the range of the hoop, as they turned in only 15 points for the last 16 minutes of play.

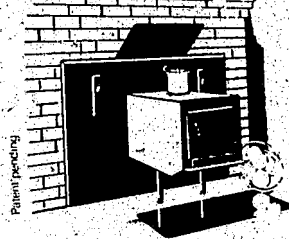

They held off a last quarter surge by Avondale by playing a possession and ball control game. The final score gave Clarkston their first win of the new season by the score of 41-34.

The game's leading scorer was Anne Vaara, who notched 15 points and scooped up 7 steals. Kay Pearson hit for 8 points, and Shelly Vaillencourt collected 6 points.

The rebounding duties were spread throughout the team, led by Jane Tatu's 8 rebounds.

Fishing is one of those sports that people can participate in many different ways and have vastly different experiences. Deep sea fishing is an entirely different kind of challenge from sitting in a rowboat in the middle of a quiet lake. Also fishing in the rushing waters of an icy stream is different from standing knee deep in the strong wash of the ocean waves while watching for blue fish. Fishing can be a group activity, or you can go alone. One thing that most kinds of fishing do have in common is that they take the fisherman or woman closer to the natural world, whether it be the world of the sea or the world of the lake or stream surrounded by woods. And, of course, there is the thrill of that big catch.

The one thing that people in resorts have in common is the desire to be properly equipped, and we at COACH'S CORNER, 31 S. Main, 625-8457 are experts in helping you select the right equipment. Adidas shoes are available for men and women—for every sport and every season. We carry a large inventory of athletic goods to provide you with a wide selection and avoid long waits for delivery. Open: Daily 9:30am - 6pm, Sat. until 5pm.

HANDY HINT:

Proper bait is essential for a fishing trip.

The Pontiac Mall is located at the corner of Telegraph and Elizabeth Lake Roads in Waterford Township.

The program will use the principles of behavior modification, which focus on changing attitudes and eating patterns. Participants will set goals, explore ways in which eating habits can be controlled, and study nutrition, exercise and diet.

Sorry!

Clarkston teachers will receive a pay increase of 2.07 percent and a retirement program increase of five percent of individual gross wages for the 1977-78 school year, not 2.07 percent retirement increase as reported last week.

Many people spend 50 years learning how to live and never learn how to comfortably assert themselves with either their family, friends or colleagues.

The Continuum Center at Oakland University is offering an assertiveness training program for older adults on Wednesday afternoons from October 5 through October 26. The workshop will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. on Wednesdays at the Birmingham Center for Continuing Education at the corner of Frank and Purdy streets in Birmingham. The program, called "Growing Older-Bolder," will explore ways in which older adults can learn to evaluate their own behavior and compare it with assertive, non-assertive and aggressive behavior models. Participants will use group experiences to learn honest and appropriate expressions of their thoughts and feelings to family members and friends, or in public situations.

If you have ever wished you had the courage to say "No," you will be interested in this program, which is offered free to adults over 55 under a grant from the Administration on Aging, which is part of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

For more information and advanced registration, please contact the Continuum Center at Oakland University in Rochester, or call 377-3033.

Coventry bound over to circuit court

A young Clarkston man will face manslaughter charges later this month stemming from his involvement in an accident that left a 15-year-old Waterford Township girl dead.

Donald Coventry, 18, of 7041 Tappan was bound over to Oakland County Circuit Court Sept. 13. He will go before Judge John O'Brien on Sept. 29.

Coventry was charged in the Aug. 21 death of Valerie L. Lattimer of Lock Laven.

According to police, Miss Lattimer was a passenger in the Coventry vehicle when it collided with another driven by William S. Coleman of West Bloomfield at the corner of Square Lake Road and Klingensmith at 12:25 a.m. Coventry and two other passengers were injured in the crash. Coventry is currently free on $5,000 personal bond.

The Charles Meadows family, 4859 Summerhill, awoke to the smell of smoke at 5:15 a.m. Sept. 20. Independence Fire Department fought the blaze for three hours. The family and living room suffered fire damage. The rest of the house was extensively damaged by heat and smoke.

Azure autumn skies - cider, apples beckon

Sharon and Dennis Ashton and daughters [in descending order] Shari, Lisa and Jill spend a lot of time in the fruit market during the late summer and fall months. Eight-year-old Amy was ill when the picture was taken. Not only was she out of the picture, she got out of grading apples.

By Hilda Bruce
of The Clarkston News

If once you planted an apple tree in the backyard and it has failed to produce fruit it's because it needs a friend.

"You need two different varieties, at least one of each, to get pollination," explained Dennis Ashton who has a small orchard on Sashabaw Road.

"The same is true of plums, pears and sweet cherries. Peaches and sour cherries don't need mixed pollen. Of course the bees must be around to carry the pollen from tree to tree," he continued.

If the tree you planted died it's probably because you didn't water it enough, Dennis said.

"Trees take a lot more water than people think. A new tree needs at least five gallons a day—every day. The older it gets the more it takes," he said.

There are other reasons that trees don't live. Among them are girdling by mice (mice eat the bark away at ground line), improper care, and improper drainage.

Eleven years ago the Ashtons didn't know much about raising fruit trees. But they bought a home and the orchard was already there. They decided to try their hand at it.

"We both grew up on farms near Reading (Michigan) and love the outdoors," Sharon, Dennis' wife, explained.

"Down home you grow crops (grain), here you do things like this. And we're still learning. Dennis attends meetings and workshops to learn as much as he can."

What Dennis learns he passes along to his family. They are all involved, including the children, Jill, 16; Lisa, 11; Shari, 10 and Amy, 8.

"I don't know what I'd do without the girls during the busy times," Sharon said. "When I'm busy at market they have the house to take care of and they help with the sorting, grading and packaging."

The orchard is a seasonal job that lasts all year. During the winter Dennis prunes which takes about five hours on Saturdays. Then the trees are sprayed 12 to 14 times a year. The orchard is mowed three times. Weed killer is applied once. Mouse bait is put out once and the picking is done once although some varieties are picked twice as they reach the proper color stage.

The summer and fall chores average 25 to 30 hours a week, Dennis said.

That's his spare time. He is also a mechanical engineer for plant engineering at Pontiac Motors.

From picking time on, the apples are handled with care.

"Our apples are all hand picked, snapped up, not pulled off. If you pull an apple it will bruise where your fingers were," Sharon explained.

If an apple drops at any time during the handling the Ashtons set it aside for cider.

"We don't use plastic bags either," Dennis added. "Plastic seems to encourage rougher handling. We use open top paper bags and urge that the apples be handled gently. Even setting a bag down hard will bruise the apples on the bottom."

Sharon presses cider once a week, sometimes twice a week.

"I'd rather press twice a week than add preservatives to it," she maintained.

Assisting legislators all in a days work

By Hilda Bruce
of The Clarkston News

John Zubalik is a page in the Michigan House of Representatives. The job is among the last on a long list of the 20-year-old son of Ernest and Beverly Zubalik of 5218 Marconi.

Like most youths he has held a variety of jobs. During his school years he spent a lot of time at Pine Knob. There he was a baker, a ranger and the head of a maintenance crew.

He spent one summer as cook at the Pickle Barrel, a restaurant on Mackinac Island.

He has been a bus boy and has worked in landscaping.

Last winter he decided to enjoy the warmth of Florida. To support his stay in the sun he worked as a stock boy.

Before spring he arrived back in Clarkston and studied karate for three months under Jack Sabat and Inasio Anzures at the Koei-Kan-Karate School on Walton Blvd.

On occasion John visited a friend, Jay Wilford. Jay's mother, Lucia Wilford, was sponsoring two foreign artists and John learned about sketching and pastels.

It was Jay's sister Julie who put John onto the track for a job in politics. Julie works for the Senate majority leader, William Faust, Democrat from Westland.

At Julie's suggestion John, Jay and Lucia set out for Lansing and jobs for the boys.

Not knowing how to apply for the position John walked up to a sergeant-of-arms and asked how he could become a page.

The fellow told him to see his representative and fill out an application.

John found Rep. Claude Trim (D-Davisburg), who agreed to sponsor him, and made application. In May he was notified he had the job.

John first became interested in politics when he took the mandatory U.S. Government course from Larry Rosso at Clarkston High School.

Looking down the road toward a career in business or politics, he signed up for a co-op class in retailing and merchandising, joined the distributive education club and attended the convention of the Distributive Education Clubs of America.

"The job (as a page) is an excellent opportunity to see what makes things happen," John said.

"I'm interested enough in politics that I would like to become more aware of what is going on," he added.

John spent the first month and a half as legislature mailman in Lansing's Mutual Building. Then he advanced to the Capitol where he works sessions running errands for legislators.

"And driving around in state cars," he said with a chuckle. But John still has his eye on business. He is a part time student studying business law at Lansing Community College.

"Basically I'm preparing myself to enter a major university," he said.

When John isn't studying or on call at the Michigan House he manages the apartments where he lives in East Lansing. He is also a substitute part time dishwasher in a restaurant.

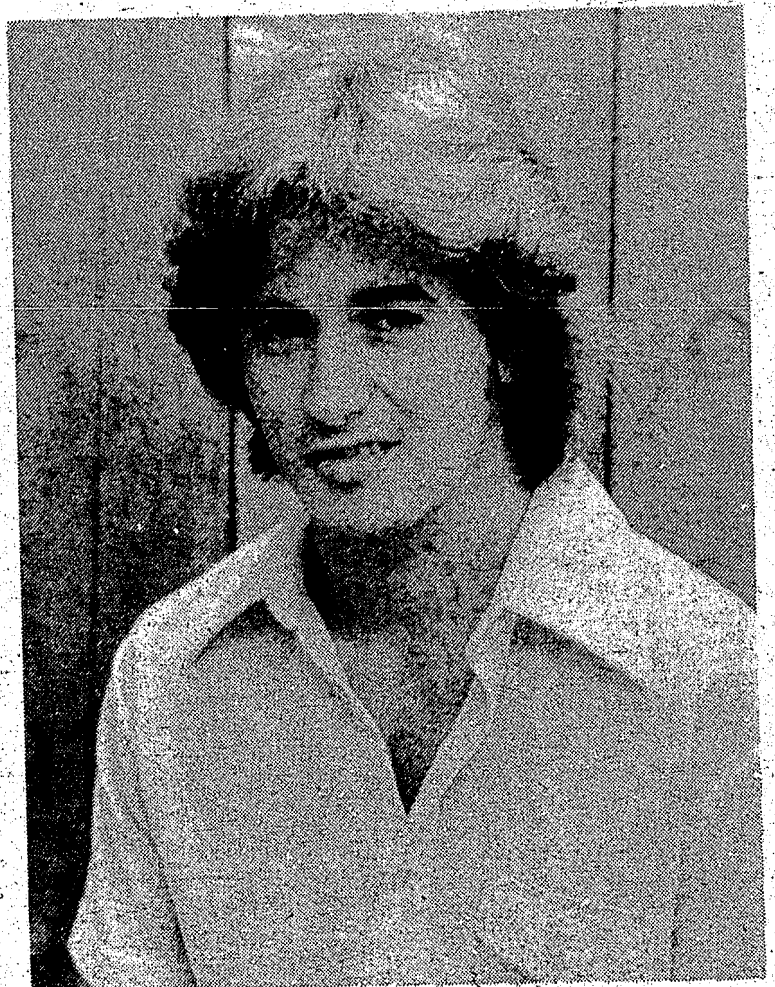

"It means I can work when I am free to work," John explained.

Besides those jobs he recently took on the advertising for a small newspaper, the Shiawassee County Journal in Perry, a small town north of Lansing.

After a week of being page, manager, dishwasher, newspaperman John stuck out his thumb for a weekend of travel.

This summer he hitchhiked his way to several northern Michigan attractions and revisited Mackinac Island several times.

Occasionally his rides bring him back to Clarkston for a visit with his mom and dad, sisters Judy, Rosemary, Theresa, Anne, Mary and Amy and his brother Ernie.

During the week John Zubalik dons his page uniform and runs errands for Michigan representatives.

She takes the foster out of children

Country Living

By Sharon Hahn

Sitting in the living room of her large white farm house on Perry Lake Road, Julie Hudson spoke lovingly of her kids — about 25 in all.

She and her husband, Jim, have five children of their own, but over the past thirteen years have cared for 18 to 20 foster children.

Julie has recently received a certificate from Eastern Michigan University for the completion of four courses in the Foster Parent Training Project, which was started to help parents deal with the physical, mental and emotional difficulties that a foster child may have.

The project currently offers 19 different eight-week programs that deal with a number of topics including legal issues, parental rights, insurance and communicating with professionals. Other course offerings are concerned with the normal growth and development of children and explore problems encountered during normal sexual development.

The project is funded by a grant from the Metropolitan Center of the National Institute of Mental Health. Julie receives $6 per class, providing she has no more than two absences during the eight-week period.

Julie attended her classes at Waterford Mott and Milford High School. "You get to meet other foster parents in and around Oakland County," she said enthusiastically about the classes.

"If someone has a problem with one child, another person's experience dealing with those same things will help," she said.

Jim Hudson, who works at GM Truck and Coach, has completed three of the courses offered. Both he and Julie expect to return for additional classes which will begin the first week of October.

The Hudsons moved to Clarkston from Bloomfield Hills three years ago. "We moved out because Bloomfield was not accepting of other children in the family besides your own," she said. Her experience in Clarkston has been different.

"We love it here," she grinned. "This town has so much spirit and fun. They are so accepting of kids."

There are no foster children in the Hudson home now because they have taken a foreign exchange student for a year. Jurgen Kemper, 16, from Ennepetal, Germany, is an honorary senior at Clarkston High this year. Julie described an exchange student as being at the opposite end of the spectrum from foster children. "Most of these students are very emotionally and financially secure children," she said.

Remembering the children that had come and gone, Julie said, "They are mostly good little kids. I've never had a bad one."

Jim and Julie began their fostering with younger children; four, five and six years old, and then were asked if they would foster teenagers.

"I was skeptical," she admitted. "But teens have the same needs as the little ones. They are starved for attention."

The Hudsons resolve difficulties through family meetings.

"If someone is missing some money or other item of importance, we call a family meeting. I tell the family what is missing and that I expect it to be returned. If you really put a kid against the wall, he will lie and lie," Julie said, "but if you give them a way to get it back to you without threatening them, it's usually returned to a specified place. We give them a 24-hour period to do it."

Can you believe that Julie and Jim Hudson of Perry Lake Road are the loving parents of 25 children? In addition to their own five, the Hudsons have cared for 20 foster children over the past 13 years. For further information about the foster parent program, call Julie at 625-9148.

"These kids are pack rats," Julie explained. "They have never had anything that is theirs, and if they have, it's been taken away from them.

"Each time we received a child, we would stop on the way home and buy something for him; a teddy bear, perhaps, for the younger ones. Instead of loving and playing with it, the child would hide it."

She spoke of one little three-year-old girl they brought home. Within days Julie was missing all sorts of things. Eventually she couldn't find her wallet and a thorough search began. "I found all the things in paper bags under her bed," Julie said. "She was too young to know the value of money. The wallet to her was only an extension of me."

To encourage more people to become foster parents, Julie says, "You don't have to be a special kind of parent. Just have an open, loving, caring home situation."

She recalled one boy who wouldn't let anyone touch him. He had reluctantly agreed to stay with them, but adamantly refused to kiss or even say good night. "He wasn't going to trust and love people," Julie said. "It was touch-and-go with him. About the fourth week I decided I would ignore him one night." Saying "good night" to her other children, she walked by his bed without a word and was about to leave the room when she heard, "Hey, Mom, you forgot me." And then it was all right.

But Julie admits, it doesn't always work that way. "Not all foster children do well with every family. Children have so many different needs that every home is not suited for every child's needs."

The county system is very supportive of the foster parent program, assures Julie. "They are as close as the telephone." She said that most of the child's material needs, such as hair cuts, clothing, medical and dental care are met by the county. "We take care of the loving end."

Charlie's still going -- going -- going

By Hilda Bruce

of The Clarkston News

Charlie Going is not the retiring sort—even if he did retire three years ago.

Sunday, Sept. 18 his Springfield Township friends and neighbors turned out for an open house at Charlie and Pacia's train depot turned house. The occasion was the send off for Charlie's latest venture. He is a traveling salesman now.

His wares are advertising specialties—those little gimmicks (and some are not so little) that companies have their name imprinted on.

Salesmanship is not a newly acquired talent for the Goings. Neither is dealing with businesses—large or small.

Charlie had been selling for a hearing aid company in Akron, Ohio for 16 years when he ran across a fine craftsman in Dover, Ohio. (The twin city of New Philadelphia, Ohio.)

"He and his sons made fine cutlery," Charlie said. "I took him on as a hobby."

That was the birth of the Goings' industrial gifts business. Now for 30 years they have been promoting craftsmen through the sale of their products to business and industry for gifts to employees.

Three of the craftsmen got so much work from the Goings that they refused further orders. Their productions became exclusive with the Goings.

"The gifts must have universal appeal," Charlie explained.

Now the Goings have decorator bottles, candle sticks and vases of turned black walnut, copper trays, art objects of Petoskey stone, hammered pewter and pewter trays and bowls, weavings and enameled birds and flowers, on driftwood.

Once a businessman decides on the gift that's the end of the work for him—and the beginning for Charlie and Pacia who do all the gift wrapping and mailing.

Even with the gift business Charlie got bored with retirement.

"Then we had the chance to get into the advertising specialties," Charlie said.

"And am I glad," Pacia said. "He needed something to do."

He sells for Lesco Corporation, Michigan's largest specialty advertising company and can cover all of northwest Oakland County.

Charlie has started by practicing his sales pitch in Holly.

"I don't know when I'll finish there. Gotta see everybody," he said.

Seeing everybody isn't as big a problem as everybody seeing all that Charlie has to offer. Besides a voluminous amount of samples Charlie has 125 catalogs his clients can order from.

Most folks who have heard of Charlie and Pacia connect them with the candle factory—the business they retired from three years ago after 20 years in Davisburg.

During those years the candle factory was known as Going Enterprises.

Now "Uncle Pete" Baker has the business and since everyone called it the candle factory anyway it has become "The Candle Factory" officially.

When Charlie and Pacia aren't coping with business they are busy pursuing the things they enjoy.

Pacia macramés and weaves—even belongs to a weaver's guild. And Charlie can often be found around the township offices in Davisburg. He keeps his hand in the local government by serving on the parks and recreation board.

"Now that the swimming season is about over—I opened the beach Saturday. No one went swimming but it gave the little lifeguard something to do—it's time to decide what we'll do about winter recreation," Charlie said.

Charlie displays his new lines.

300 gallons of Cider

"Last year we sold 300 gallons during Halloween week," Sharon remembered.

As Halloween draws near a huge pile of pumpkins appears at the Ashtons. Last year they sold over 2 tons of them and ran out three days before the hallowed eve.

This year they expect to have four or five tons of pumpkins on hand.

"We grew our own this year at our new Brandon Township farm. Like the apples they are ripening sooner than usual," Sharon said, continuing that the early ripening may render them overripe by Halloween.

The Ashtons have planted a new orchard at the Brandon site including apples, pears, peaches and plums.

"We're experimenting with a new red Bartlett pear out there," she said in anticipation.

Sharon noted that the trees will bear some fruit in three or four years time but won't be fully mature for five to seven years.

"The old standard trees (growing to 40 or 50 feet in height) have an economic life of 40 to 50 years. The semi-dwarf trees we use now have a life of 20 years," Dennis said. "Of course they have only been in existence for about 20 years so we don't really know for sure how long they last."

"Peach trees only live 8 to 10 years," he added.

The Ashtons warned that consumers can expect higher prices this year because the Michigan crop is only 60 percent of the usual production. Delicious apples will be scarce.

The dry weather has not only cut production but fruit size as well.

"Only the irrigated fruit will be of normal size," Sharon said.

Coming into the Ashton market now are MacIntosh, Jonathans, Delicious, Spies, Kings and Ida Reds.

The salesroom at Ashton Orchard is open weekdays 10 a.m.-6 p.m. and Sundays, noon-6 p.m.

In spite of handling all those apples, the Ashtons still enjoy eating them. Daughter Jill has become the cook and here shares two favorite recipes.

Apple Bars

2 cups flour
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. baking soda
1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed

1 cup quick cooking oats
1 cup shortening
6 tbs. butter
4 cups sliced, peeled apples
1/2 cup sugar

Sift flour, salt, and soda together. Add brown sugar and oats. Mix well. Cut in shortening until crumbly. Press half of the crumbs into a greased 13 by 9 inch pan. Dot with butter. Add apples and sprinkle with 1/2 cup sugar. Cover with the rest of the crumbs and dot with remaining butter. Bake at 350 degrees, 40-45 minutes. Makes 2 1/2 dozen bars.

Apple-Cinnamon Puffs

Boil to a syrup (about five minutes), one cup sugar and one cup water. Place four or five large apples, peeled and thinly sliced in a greased, shallow baking dish. Pour syrup over apples. Sift together one cup flour, two teaspoons baking powder and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Cut in 1/4 cup shortening, stir, making a soft dough with 3/4 cup milk. Drop 12 spoonful of dough on top of apples and make a dent in top of each. Place in the dent a mixture of two tablespoons melted butter, two tablespoons sugar and 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon. Bake 25-30 minutes at 450 degrees. Serve warm with cream or rich milk.

Warns against using treated wood

Don't broil your hamburgers over wood that's been treated with a preservative. That's the advice of State Agriculture Director B. Dale Ball. Chemicals in the treated wood may be dangerous to your health.

Ball's warning comes in the wake of his department's findings of pentachlorophenol residues in animal tissues. Pentachlorophenol is one of the most commonly used wood preservatives.

"But we frequently hear of cases where people have used their scraps of treated wood to start charcoal broiling fires, make bonfires for cooking, or even let youngsters use the blocks for playthings," the agriculture department director said. "This kind of use of chemically treated wood should be avoided."

Animal league looking for angels

The Michigan Animal Rescue League is looking for angels.

The shelter on Featherstone Road in Pontiac provides loving care for pets that are waiting for new homes.

It is kept alive by donations from animal lovers and many hours of work by volunteers.

It's open house every day for the public, says Clarence S. Cole, vice president of the league.

Unlike most animal shelters, not one of the pets is destroyed unless it is a medical necessity. Cost of the feed alone is $120 a month for a population of 50 dogs and cats.

When the shelter is full to capacity, the feed bill is $500. In addition, females are spayed before they are adopted out, which means $45 an animal.

And then there's the wages for the caretakers who live in a home provided by MARL.

Cole says the shelter will soon have to close its doors, unless it can add new members and receive donations which are tax exempt.

MARL was founded 20 years ago by Mrs. Martin Davis, formerly of Rochester. Because there were no shelters in Oakland County at the time, she started a refuge in Pontiac so that abused or stray animals would have a home and the right to live.

When an animal is brought in, all the necessary information is taken and distemper shots are given if the pet has not had one.

Potential pet owners are screened to make sure that the animal is going into a good home. MARL no longer takes strays but refers them to another agency for shelter.

The league held an antique show in Birmingham early in September and all the proceeds were turned over to MARL, but much more is needed.

According to Freddie and Nancy London, caretakers, the following items are badly needed at present: refrigerator, outdoor plywood and tar paper roofing, insulation for the caretakers' house, chain link fencing, a metal filing cabinet, 36"x36" cages.

Also needed are dog houses, self sticking linoleum tile, office chairs, an electric fan, an air conditioner and a two-burner electric stove.

The number to call is 335-9290.

Consumer classes

The Waterford School District of Community Educations is offering consumer knowledge classes to all who are interested in learning how to manage their financial affairs more successfully.

First topic is Consumer Fraud on Sept. 29, outlining ways to protect yourself from deceptive advertising practices.

Classes are held on Thursdays from 7 to 9 p.m. at Kettering High School.

Other topics in order include budgeting and credit, food budgeting, insurance and housing.

Please register by Sept. 27. For more information, call Julie Kreher at 666-4000, ext. 71.

Study Kits offered

The Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service is offering a series of 12 home study discussion and activity kits pertaining to child development, nutrition, home and money management. Persons are encouraged to form neighborhood groups where they can share and learn together.

There is no charge. For additional information call 858-0895.

"How can you tell if the person at your door is really a Michigan Bell Employee?"

As you may have noticed, our employees do not wear uniforms. They dress in the way they think is most appropriate to get their jobs done. While this permits them to look like the individuals they are, it really doesn't help you identify them as Bell employees. But, there is a way. Every Michigan Bell employee is required to carry a Michigan Bell identification card giving his or her name, photograph, and signature. For your protection, be sure to see this card before you admit them into your home. They'll be happy to show it to you.

VILLAGE OF CLARKSTON
By Keith Hallman, President
By Bruce Rogers, Clerk

Nancy Dickerson, prominent national correspondent, reports for Detroit Edison:

"Before another cold winter, learn about the heat pump. It's one of the most energy-efficient ways to heat your home."

Today's heat pump is one of the most energy-efficient ways to heat your home, apartment, office or commercial building. It returns over 1½ units of heat for every unit of energy it uses.

Think what this can mean in conserving energy and helping to keep your heating and cooling costs down.

There's a unique reason why the heat pump is an outstandingly efficient heating system.

It makes good use of outdoor heat.

Yes. Even in winter there's heat in the outdoor air that can help keep you warm. The trick is to move that heat inside where you can use it. That's what the heat pump does. Only during very low temperatures is supplementary heat needed.

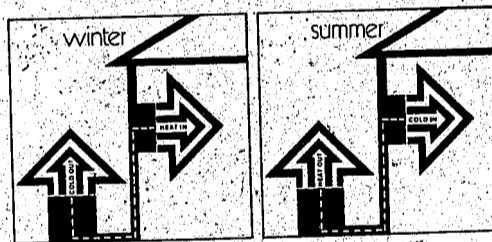

In summer, the heat pump moves heat out of your home for energy-efficient cooling. It's an all-year comfort system that also filters and dehumidifies. And it's clean because no fossil fuel is burned in your home.

The heat pump works something like your refrigerator.

A heat pump is more sophisticated, but it works in much the same way. Imagine the cold air in your refrigerator as the cold winter air outside your home. The hot air that you sometimes feel being blown into your kitchen is actually being extracted from the cold air inside the unit. This is how the heat pump warms your home. In summer, the process is reversed to cool your home: the heat in the inside air is extracted by the heat pump and moved outdoors.

Here's how the heat pump works.

See for yourself.

You can see heat pumps in the new homes displaying the Detroit Edison EEE Award. This Award is presented to builders who incorporate energy-efficient excellence standards into their homes—including proper insulation, energy-efficient appliances and lighting, as well as electric heat pump heating and cooling. Ask Detroit Edison for names and locations of builders who have EEE Award homes on display.

Conserving with comfort.

Detroit Edison wants you to know about the heat pump because it generally is the most energy-efficient way to provide homes and buildings with year-round comfort.

The heat pump can also be an important answer to conservation because the natural heat it uses helps save our non-renewable fossil fuels.

As a concerned participant in America's crusade for conservation, Detroit Edison is working hard to do its part. But it requires a working partnership between those who supply energy and those who use it. So if you're planning on buying, building or replacing your present heating system, consider a heat pump as part of your plans.

Detroit Edison has a folder, "Your all-season space conditioner, The Heat Pump." Pick one up at any Detroit Edison Customer Office and learn more about this energy-efficient way to heat and cool homes and buildings. Or write to: Customer Relations, Detroit Edison, 2000 Second, Detroit, Michigan 48226.

Conserve for all it's worth. The power is in your hands.

Neighbors protest home construction

Several Norman Road residents turned out for the Springfield Township Zoning Board of Appeals meeting, Thursday, Sept. 15 to protest the construction of a new home in their neighborhood.

William Gwinn had requested side lot variances of five and seven feet in order to construct a 1200 square foot home on a 75 foot non-conforming lot.

The township ordinance requires 15 feet on each side of a home but allows lesser footage on small lots platted before the ordinance went into effect in 1973.

Gwinn's side yards would be eight and 10 feet from house to property line.

Discussion of the matter revealed that the neighbors read the variance to mean that the footage remaining after construction would be five and seven feet. Some of them also believed that if their property was smaller than the minimum now allowed they could not build on it. Some of them were unaware that they could even build on lots that do not meet the present allowed minimum. To do so property owners must appeal their case before the zoning board of appeals.

After neighbors came to an understanding of the situation the board granted Gwinn permission to build his home within the boundaries he desired.

Springfield Township is considering amending its regulations so that such cases will not have to come before the zoning board of appeals in the future. A public hearing was to be held Tuesday, Sept. 20 by the Planning Commission. The body will then make its recommendation to the Springfield Township Board which will make the final decision.

Bathers Beware

Oakland county residents may find more than cold water keeping them from four of the area's beaches this year.

Bacterial contamination was found at four beaches that Environmental Health Services said are not suitable for total body contact after an area wide sampling program studied 86 lakes.

While the number of lakes with contamination from sewage was reduced 50 percent over the 1976 program, those beach areas getting a rejection included:

- Milford Township - Huron River, Powers Picnic Site.
- City of Novi-Meadowbrook Lake, Meadowbrook
- City of Sylvan Lake-Sylvan Lake, Pioneer Highlands
- West Bloomfield Township-Cass Lake, Cass-Lake Committee.

Health Dept. officials say the Bathing Beach Surveillance Program will continue and tainted beaches will be re-sampled at regular intervals to be certain they have remained at their established low bacterial counts.

Coping with kids

Children who set fires

by Jim and Ellen Windell

Fires can be very exciting as well as destructive and dangerous. Fires have many meanings and references in literature include emotions such as passion and hate.

There are also universal symbols associated with fires and both life and death are well-known in religion and classical writings.

One of the common symptoms of emotional problems in young children is fire-setting.

There are many different kinds of youngsters who start fires and these include not only normal children who may go through a period of playing with matches but also more deeply disturbed, neurotic, delinquent and even psychotic children.

Children who set fires on a repeated basis are frequently seen to be bed-wetters, have difficulties in school and in their social adjustment, show rage reactions, and many times are chronically hyperactive.

They have deep-seated feelings of anxiety and often this is associated with their mother. Rage and hyperactive behavior may be early behaviors expressing their nearly uncontrolled anger and tension which later is more directly expressed by setting fires.

Many children who go beyond the playing with matches phase have been abandoned by their parent(s) or feel as if they were.

They have usually reacted to this feeling of loss or desertion by having hurt feelings and the anxiety and tension may amount at times to a burning sensation. The setting of fires has an element of calling attention to themselves and their needs.

These children often have been denied the safety and security of a close relationship with both parents and they tend to feel that there is an element of abandonment and destruction in every important relationship.

Symbolically, the fire which can destroy may be a way of destroying that which consumes them in an emotional way.

It is also an aggressive action which puts them in the position of an aggressor who now has some control over the world and those people who have made him feel so helpless before.

Children who have been known to set fires should be closely supervised and well educated regarding the nature and destructiveness of fire.

They should, without hesitation, be referred to a clinic specializing in the evaluation and treatment of children with emotional problems.

Maryetta Bullard was at the Pontiac Mall bright and early Monday morning setting up her entry in the WNFGA flower show.

Bordine's may expand

If all goes well Bruce Bordine will open a new Bordine's Nursery in Springfield Township next spring.

The family operated business will be similar to the present nursery in Rochester.

"Only on a smaller scale," Bordine said.

He chose the Dixie Highway site (formerly Boucard's Greenhouse) because the Independence-Springfield area is a growing community, he said.

"We feel that we can give the people in the area a chance for comparison shopping," Bordine commented.

When in complete operation Bordine will hire 30 to 50 people during peak periods.

"We use a lot of high school and college students. Presently our Rochester nursery sales are managed by a Clarkston man," he said, implying the hiring of local people for the new operation.

Besides retailing of annuals, indoor plants, shade trees, flowering shrubs and gardening supplies Bordone will also offer landscaping services.

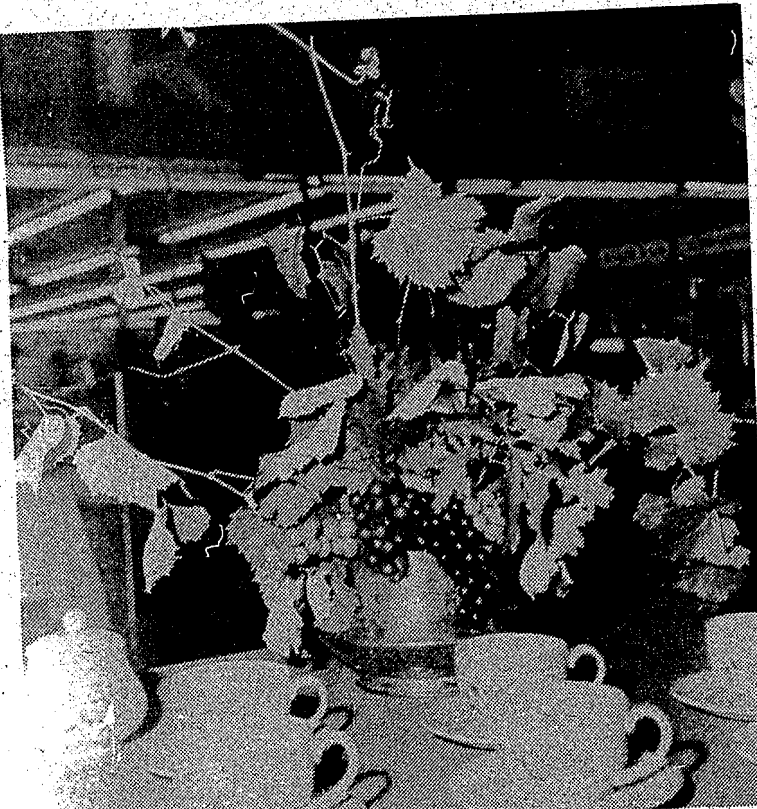

"Because we are a family business we offer service with sales. We treat people the way we like to be treated and we have repeat customers," Bordine concluded.

A public hearing of the Springfield Township Planning Commission to rezone the Boucard property to accommodate the nursery was to be Sept. 20, 8 p.m. at the township offices, 650 Broadway in Davisburg.

Reserve tables for bazaar

It's time to reserve tables for the Christmas Bazaar at Gingellville Community Center, 3575 Baldwin Road, Pontiac. The bazaar will be held December 3 from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

For further information call 391-2189 or 628-5397.

Maryetta Bullard won a blue ribbon for this entry in the 12th annual flower show at the Pontiac Mall, Waterford Township. She is a member of the Clarkston Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association. The show is one of the nation's largest. Theme this year was "Fairy Tales and Fables in Flowers." Mrs. Bullard's table arrangement was based on the Aesop fable of "The Fox and the Grapes." The show continues through Saturday.

Five take part in show

Five members of the Clarkston Garden Club are participating in the annual Pontiac Mall flower show, "Fairy Tales and Fables in Flowers," being held this week.

Gini Schultz, club president; Daisy Dowling, Marietta Bullard, Janet McCord, and Doris Shattuck have entered floral arrangements.

Marietta has also entered a table setting and a wall hanging. Janette Hitchcock is chairman of the show's hostess committee this year.

Recently Helen Woolfenden hosted for the local club at the International Tea in Metamora. Five hundred women attended the annual event of the Women's National Farm and Garden Association which benefits the International Youth Farm Exchange program designed to promote good will and understanding among young people with common interests.

The value of role playing in career education was demonstrated by Gerald Geik when 21 elementary school teachers gathered for a workshop on career education Thursday, Sept. 15. Geik's career education program has been in effect in the Coloma, Michigan schools for four years and is validated by the state. Clarkston schools hopes to modify his plan to fit the district. The Clarkston district has been developing career education for the past three years, in attempt to meet the state mandate for the program.

Growing things

Marigolds versatile, rewarding

by Lyle Abel

Leaf through any good seed catalog and you will find pages of gorgeous colored marigolds.

No wonder the late Senator Everett Dickson felt inclined to promote this versatile and rewarding new world plant as our national flower.

During these fall days marigolds make their most flamboyant display of appropriate fall colors of yellows, browns and reds.

There are many families of plants that are called by the name marigold. These include our native and local marsh marigold, the cape marigolds, fig marigolds and pot marigolds.

However, most of the ones we see locally in our gardens are either the French or African marigolds or crosses between the two of them.

Don't be misled by the titles given these plants as both the French and African varieties came originally from Mexico and South America and belong to the daisy family of plants.

Marigolds are varied and versatile. Some dwarf varieties are excellent for edging flower beds.

Others grow up to over two feet in height and can be attractive as potted plants or included among cut flowers where they rival chrysanthemums and carnations.

Marigolds are easy to grow. It is important to choose a sunny location. The soil need not be more than moderately fertile. They grow readily from seed and can be readily transplanted.

Nursery plants are not expensive and allow one to choose a desired color. They have few insect pests, although we have had damage from mites, and slugs find them to be tasty.

They will spread profusely from seeds dropped onto the soil from the previous season's blooms.

Marigolds have a reputation of being capable of repelling insects and the ability to kill the nematodes in the soil.

However, keep the insecticides handy just in case some bug comes along that didn't get the message and doesn't mind dining in a garden where marigolds and vegetables live as an integrated neighborhood.

Now is a good time to apply weed control chemicals to your lawn. There are several advantages to making the fall application: During the cooler weather of fall there is less likelihood of "drift" of fumes from some of the more volatile chemicals.

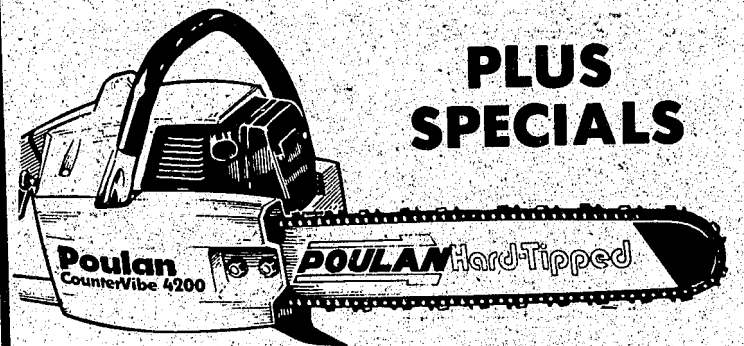

At this season too, many weeds are making rapid growth and are easier to kill. Shrubs such as roses have "hardened" to the point where they are less susceptible to the chemicals than during early spring.

Fall treatment with the appropriate chemicals is especially effective on dandelions, chickweeds, hoary alyssium, the plantains, wild carrot and most of the broad weaved plants.

Whether one uses the chemicals as sprays, granules or in mixtures with fertilizers one should be certain to follow the manufacturer's recommendations as to the amounts to use... Read the label.

High risk flu clinics scheduled

The Oakland County Division of Health has announced plans for a series of flu clinics for the elderly and people with diabetes, heart, lung or kidney diseases.

Influenza occurs in the United States each year and efforts to prevent or control influenza are usually aimed at protecting those at the greatest risk of becoming seriously ill or dying.

Repeated observations during influenza epidemics have indicated that deaths occur primarily among chronically ill adults and in older persons, especially those over age 65.

These "high risk" persons should be vaccinated annually regardless of the amount of flu in their geographic areas.

The vaccine for 1977-78 contains inactivated A/Victoria and B/Hong Kong influenza virus. The vaccine will not give you flu because it is made from killed viruses. One shot will protect most people from Hong Kong and Victoria flu during the next flu season.

As with any drug, the possibility of reactions exists - in some instances people receiving flu vaccine have had allergic reactions.

People with known allergy to eggs should receive the vaccine only under special medical supervision - people with fever should delay getting vaccinated until the fever is gone.

A voluntary consent form has been prepared - you will have the opportunity to ask questions before signing it.

The program is being sponsored by the Oakland County Division of Health and is not part of a state or national effort.

A limited supply of vaccine has been purchased. The immunizations will be administered by public health nurses with syringe and needle technique.

Single clinics will be held at various senior citizen centers in the county. In addition, flu immunizations will be available for the elderly and the chronically ill at the two Health Division Centers -

1200 North Telegraph - Pontiac
27725 Greenfield Road
Southfield
during regular clinic hours starting September 19th.

Additional information may be obtained by calling your local senior citizen center or the Oakland County Division of Health at 557-1400 (Southfield office) or 858-1280 (Pontiac office).

Joan needs help

Joan Kopietz is in a dilemma and she would like some help. She has been contacted by Art Train for another stay in Clarkston at the end of October or the first of November.

Three years ago Joan took on the arrangements for Art Train. If it is to visit again she needs some help.

If you would like to have Art Train return and are willing to volunteer a month of your time to organize, to collect funds, to search out local artists or to find and schedule guides contact Joan at 625-2511.

Library services available

Although the Springfield Township Library has a limited collection of materials, information may be obtained through the library from other sources. As a member of the Wayne Oakland Federated Library System, the library is able to borrow books from libraries in Wayne and Oakland counties, as well as some materials from Wayne State University and the Michigan State Library. Requests take anywhere from three to eight weeks depending on the availability of the material.

Oakland University offers the Oakland University Hotline—a reference service available to libraries in Oakland County. The library will phone reference questions to the hotline and the question will be answered within a matter of hours, or the material will be sent to the library.

Both these services are available to Springfield Township residents through the township library.

Next meeting of the library board will be next Monday, Sept. 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the Springfield Township Hall. The public is cordially invited and ideas and suggestions are most welcome.

Daisy leaves a trail of friends

by Mary Butterfield

Wherever she goes, she leaves a trail of friends behind her.

I'm speaking of Daisy Dowling, owner with her daughter and son-in-law, Gini and Jim Schultz of Main Street Antiques, Clarkston.

And there is much more.

She was born in Vermont, the oldest of six brothers and sisters, but her roots are in the beautiful Dalmatian coast of southeastern Europe, where she spent three years of her childhood.

Her family came to Detroit by way of Utah, Montana and Ohio. Daisy attended Pershing High School. After graduation she worked at the Detroit Free Press and the Dime Savings Bank, where she was a witness to the 1929 bank crash.

After their marriage, the Dowlings went to the Scripps Estate near Lake Orion, where Mr. Dowling designed and supervised landscaping and gardens, aided by a crew of fifteen men.

Later he was Farm Superintendent in charge of farm animals, including an Aberdeen Angus dairy herd.

In this period of depressed economy the Dowlings lent a helping hand to many people not as fortunate as they were.

From Lake Orion they moved to Bloomfield Hills where they lived for twenty years. Mr. Dowling was Chief of the Police and Fire Departments for Bloomfield Hills Township.

The next ten years were spent in Birmingham. Mr. Dowling was then with the Tractor Division of Ford Motor Company. He died in 1962.

During this period Daisy was active. She was the first secretary of Kirk-in-the-Hills Presbyterian Church, and public relations director for the Bloomfield Hills School System.

At the same time she conducted classes in adult education in Bloomfield High School and lectured to antique clubs and other groups on Living with Antiques, as well as establishing a fine reputation as an interior decorator.

1963 was the year she left the Bloomfield School System and returned to her first love—antiques.

To say she retired would be a gross misstatement. Her sister Emily claims that she has been a collector since she was four years old.

Daisy, however, modifies this statement somewhat, admitting to only 28 years of collecting.

Her first venture into the antique business was in one of four separate shops in a barn that had been in Bloomfield Hills for 172 years.

It was on Telegraph Road across from Devon Gables. Unfortunately on the eve of opening day the barn was destroyed by fire, along with her collections.

Such a setback might have daunted a lesser mortal, but a few months later when she heard a dealer was selling out she decided she still wanted to be in the antique business.

Her next shop was in Bloomfield Hills, across from the Police Station. Here she ran afoul of an ordinance prohibiting the establishment of a retail sales operation in other than a building of masonry construction, and she was forced to move.

From a friend she learned that the Methodist Church building at Troy Corners, a 100-year-old structure, was available. She stayed there for four years.

When she needed more room for her expanding business she moved across the street to the former library.

About this time Jim completed his tour of duty in the Armed Services. Gini and he joined in the business. This was Jim's introduction to the world of antiques. He found an excellent teacher in Daisy.

Four years later they came to Clarkston to the shop formerly owned by Jean McGee. This was a happy time for Daisy, because the move coincided with the birth of her beloved granddaughter, Sarah.

Many young people are interested in preserving the accessories of previous lifestyles, and Daisy has been responsible for guiding many of them in the collection of such items as nineteenth century glass, figural pressed glass, art glass, napkin rings, decoys, even marbles, to mention a few.

Her shop is a haven for such collectors.

To keep abreast of the varied tastes of her customers, she has made buying trips as far away as England.

An annual trip to New York and the New England states is scheduled for the time when the fall colors are at their peak in Vermont. Sarah, now a seasoned antiquer at the age of six, has been going on buying trips since she was one year old. She is Nana's pride and joy, and they have fun collecting together.

The knowledge acquired through a life time of collecting antiques has made her an invaluable appraiser. She also conducts household and estate sales for people who wish to dispose of their collections.

Jim's Jottings

How neat can one be?

by Jim Sherman

Several years ago I wrote of an Oxford woman who was so neat and tidy about her house that when her husband left the bed at night for relief he would return to find it already made up.

This isn't a "Can you top this" contest, but I heard this week of another wife who should get an equal award.

This couple has their house for sale. It is the practice of the real estate firm which has the listing to give their salespeople tours of new listings.

This "caravan" was due to our heroine's home on a day her husband chose to get ill. He was so ill he couldn't move his bed.

Oh, he just thought he couldn't move.

He wasn't aware of the caravan. Before they arrived the Mrs. got this poor, sick man into a car and headed him out of town to a lonely road. There he laid across the seat until he was sure the caravan had passed.

In the meantime his vacant bedroom was cleaned, cleared and made impressive.

The exposure to the fresh, country air didn't help the Mister. He limped into the house, clutching his middle to ease the pain and to squeeze out the question, "How did the caravan like the bedroom?"

"I looked at the calendar wrong," the wife said. "They're coming tomorrow."

Though not much better, the following day he went to work.

All drivers who receive licenses from secretary of state Richard H. Austin are apparently encouraged to donate their organs.

I make this assumption after reading the "Organ Donor Label" sent with my license.

Drivers are to take this label and put it on the back of their license, specifying which organ they want donated to "give the gift of life".

I wonder just when this label will be read, and whose duty it is to read it under "Public Act 358 of 1976".

Is it up to the police who cover my fatal accident? The Coroner who pronounced me dead? The ambulance driver?

I understand our government's concern for us from cradle to grave, but now it goes beyond.

Besides with the safety belt ads (that sound like life insurance salesmen) that shame me into using them because I'm supposed to think of my kids, who's ever going to die in an auto accident?
