Suspended for threat

Asst. Fire Chief Jack Beach on carpet in Independence

By Pat Braunagel
Associate editor

Independence Township Assistant Fire Chief Jack Beach is serving a two-week suspension without pay for threatening Township Trustee Frederick P. Ritter.

The disciplinary action was meted out by three of the five Independence Township Board members at a special meeting last week, 52 days after the incident deemed to be "official misconduct" occurred.

Ritter and Township Clerk Christopher L. Rose had argued that Beach should be fired, but their three fellow board members settled on the suspension proposed by Township Supervisor Floyd J. (Whitey) Tower.

The suspension began May 10, the day after the board held a one-hour-and-45-minute hearing on the matter.

The threat allegedly was made during a telephone conversation March 16 when Beach called Ritter at work to complain about comments Ritter had made to newspaper reporters after a township board meeting.

Beach said his conversation with Ritter had been "heated," but he denied threatening the trustee.

"I never made any bodily threats to Mr. Ritter," Beach is reported to have said at the open hearing.

He had followed a March 17 letter from Ritter to the board with one he wrote March 20 accusing the township trustee of "irresponsible actions."

"The nature of the conversation on Mr. Beach's part was belligerent and profane and derogatory towards me," Ritter said in detailing his charge against beach.

Ritter quoted Beach as saying, "If I ever read my name in the paper one more time you better hide good because I'm coming to get you...I'll get with you sooner or later...You'll probably wind up with a couple of broken legs, that's how it will probably happen."

Rose, who noted that Ritter's voice was shaking when the trustee called the clerk shortly after the telephone conversation with Beach, reported that he had also been confronted by Beach earlier in the day March 16.

"I don't want to read my name in the paper," Beach was quoted as saying to Rose.

In a motion made by Trustee Jerry Powell, the board concurred "that the allegations from Trustee Ritter did occur in a phone call...and the phone call does constitute official misconduct."

That motion passed 4-0, with Ritter abstaining.

"I have no reason to doubt Fred at all," Powell said. "I have no reason to doubt that Jack was upset."

The board stopped short of terminating Beach's employment, defeating Rose's motion to that effect 3-2.

Another motion by Rose to remove Beach from the township's reserve police corps met the same fate.

"You might as well eliminate his job," Tower said, commenting that it is necessary for Beach to carry a gun when he investigates arson complaints and that he must be a police officer to carry a gun.

Township Treasurer Betty Hallman, who had said she felt dismissal was too severe a punishment for Beach, joined Tower and Powell in voting down the motions to terminate Beach's employment and to remove him from the reserve police unit.

Fire Chief Frank Ronk, who was also present at the hearing, testified that he had given Beach and Captain Dale Bailey the rest of the day off when they asked for it at 8:45 a.m. March 16.

'Tough' coach White quits

by Carol Teegardin
Staff Writer

Football Coach Rob White is bidding Clarkston High School farewell after a run-in with the school administration over his aggressive coaching tactics.

White, who led the Varsity Wolves to a straight win record last football season, resigned from his position as CHS coach early this month. He has accepted a new head coaching assignment and teaching job at Wayland High, a Class B school near Grand Rapids.

"I wasn't forced to resign from CHS - I could have coached football next year if I wanted to," said White, 30. "I'm leaving for a better job opportunity on the other side of the state. I no longer fit in the athletic program as I see it now in Clarkston."

According to White, his method of coaching was considered "too aggressive" by some members of the administration. He said the way he feels a high school football team should be coached and the way the administration feels a high school football team should be coached are two different things.

"I feel school sports should teach a student self-discipline," said White. "I'm a tough coach on the ball field and some people resented it."

"I believe in keeping school athletics in the proper perspective," said Conrad Bruce, director of athletics at CHS. "A coach should develop good sportsmanship. I expect players to do their best in a game and forget it when it's over."

Bruce said he wasn't surprised when White announced his resignation. The administration was aware White was seeking job opportunities elsewhere.

Besides coaching varsity and junior varsity football, White teaches physical education at CHS.

Bruce said Clarkston School District is presently accepting applications to fill White's position.

Board rejects two fire promotions

By Kathy Greenfield
Staff Writer

Promotions proposed for two fire department employees were not approved at the Independence Township board meeting Tuesday night.

Independence Township Fire Chief Frank (Tink) Ronk requested that Capt. Dale Bailey be promoted to assistant fire chief.

"More departmental duties will be placed on (Bailey's) shoulders," Ronk said.

Bailey's present position puts him one step below the assistant fire chief rank.

"Their duties are very similar," Ronk said.

But the promotion would allow Bailey to take charge of the fire department if Ronk and Assistant Fire Chief Jack Beach were absent, he added.

"Most fire departments have more than one assistant," Ronk said.

"I don't think it's appropriate to have a fire chief, two assistants and six fire fighters," Trustee Frederick Ritter said, adding that he felt the board would then be locked into hiring more fire fighters.

"We have a 50-man department counting the 40 volunteers," Ronk said.

Supervisor Floyd (Whitey)

Tower requested a motion after the issue was discussed and the other four board members remained silent.

After the meeting, Clerk Christopher Rose identified the procedure as a "non-action."

"No action is no approval," Rose said.

Ronk's proposed promotion of Laurie Miller from clerk to secretary was denied by the board in a 3-2 vote.

Treasurer Elizabeth Hallman, Clerk Rose and Trustee Ritter voted no. Supervisor Tower and Trustee Jerry Powell voted yes.

"If we have a promotion without posting it and taking applications from other members of the union, we're going to have a problem," Rose said.

"This board is eligible to give promotions and let the union fight it," Tower said.

Hallman said she felt it would not be fair to promote an employee from one department when other employees deserve similar promotions and have not been allowed to apply.

"My girl handles thousands of dollars," Hallman said.

"My girl saves lives," Ronk said.

"I'm going to have to vote no until we have something fair for all the girls," Hallman said.

Ronk said a request would probably be made for Miller to become a fire person in charge of secretarial duties.

Miller's duties were more related to secretarial responsibilities than those of a clerk, Ronk said.

Miller has worked for the fire department four years. She started as a high school student on the co-op program.

Recreation staff slashed

Independence Township's summer recreation program may be in trouble.

"I've got five people I can hire to fill 32 positions," said Tim Doyle, township park and recreation director.

The problem was discussed at the Independence Township Board meeting Tuesday night.

CETA funds paid for the 32 summer positions last year.

Because the CETA program was realigned this year, the township will receive funds for only five employees, Doyle said.

"Last summer, CETA funded our positions to the tune of about $40,000," he said.

More funds will probably be available through the WORC program through the state that is designed to provide jobs for 15-to 21-year-olds.

The WORC funds should be available June 19 when the playgrounds and day camp are scheduled to start, Doyle said.

The main criteria is that money be used for new programs and not to supplement existing programs.

"The only way we can get around it is that we have not funded them in the past, CETA funded them," Doyle said.

A special meeting was set up for Thursday morning to discuss the park and recreation budget.

"Look at cutting your program," Trustee Fred Ritter said, suggesting that Doyle go over his budget before the proposed meeting.

"If you want your summer program to continue at pretty much the same level, something else is going to have to go," Ritter added.

Some want him to stay

McCall's decision 'pretty firm'

by Kathy Greenfield
Staff Writer

Jack McCall's decision to resign as Independence Township's director of police services has stirred a variety of reactions. The question whether he'll really resign is still on people's minds.

"We've made our decision at this point," McCall said. "It's pretty firm. I don't see too many ways in which we could stay here although there's a lot of people doing their darndest to change that."

He has tentatively accepted a position in city administration in Florida and a parttime job as a law enforcement instructor at a junior college.

Two local women have started a petition drive to try to convince McCall to stay.

"Ninety percent of the people we ask are signing it," said Rita Chisholm, who is running the drive with Ethel Sinclair.

"We want to get as many signatures as we can to make him feel good and want to stay with us," she said. "I hope he'll be happy with it."

McCall said he's pleased with the community's support.

"There's a lot of sweet people that appreciate some of the efforts we made over the past five years," he said. "But you have to do things whether you're right or wrong. You have to make a decision."

McCall became Clarkston village police chief in 1964 while also working fulltime as a Bloomfield Township detective.

In 1973, he became director of Independence Township's police services. Nine fulltime employees and 19 reserve officers make up the present staff.

The township board accepted McCall's resignation at a special police budget meeting last week.

The resignation is effective May 31, but McCall plans to leave the job May 21 taking vacation and compensatory time to make up the difference.

Charles Kimbel was appointed as acting police chief at the meeting.

Kimbel has been on the job since last week so the transition period will be smooth, said Floyd "Whitey" Tower, township supervisor.

"That was my problem when Jack was on his 30-day sick leave," Tower said. "We just have to have direction there."

Although applications are being taken for the position, "there isn't a real big push to get on with it," Tower said.

"Usually what we do is have a two- to three-week period hoping the individual who resigned might change his mind," Tower said.

Township Clerk Christopher Rose said two or three qualified people have expressed interest in the job.

"The dust hasn't settled on McCall's empty chair yet," he said.

Independent view

Right now, in the midst of its fund-raising season, there are a lot of people pulling for Independence Center.

Come June 1, the center will need someone new to pull its various volunteer programs together.

Jeanette Vandermark, who has been center coordinator for seven months, has announced she'll retire at the end of this month.

She wants to spend more time with her family, Jeanette said.

Anyone interested in the parttime, paid coordinator's job can call the center, 673-2244, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

The Clarkston Village council has invited Clarkston Jaycees to their council meeting on May 22 to discuss the calendar-of-events sign located on the northwest corner of Main and Washington streets.

"We don't want to cause any trouble, we just want to discuss plans the Jaycees may have for fixing up the sign," said Village Councilwoman Fontie ApMadoc. "In the past, the Jaycees have discussed plans to enclose the base of the sign and make the top more attractive. We just want to know what they are going to do with it."

The Jaycees erected the sign several years ago in an effort to announce upcoming local events to the community. In recent months, information on the sign has not been kept up to date and the appearance of the sign has deteriorated, according to some council members.

***

And now for the news—the civilized world has been waiting to hear... Pine Knob Music Theatre announced this week that 20 new men's toilets have been installed on the premises.

Meanwhile, some of the former men's toilets have been converted for feminine use. So look sharp and mind the signs when visiting the facilities—'cause you can't always tell from the lines the gender of the johns.

***

The Independence Township rumor mill turns out none more titillating than those concerning who will run for what office in the Aug. 8 Primary.

When Jack McCall heard the tale that he was going to stick around town for a couple of months after he leaves his job as director of police services and run for township supervisor, he laughed.

Then he ran over to the township hall and got nominating petitions.

"They told me I only had to be a township resident on the day of the election," he said.

He said he could always move back for a day

Veteran policeman temporary director

Charles Kimbel was appointed acting director of Independence Township police services at a special police budget meeting last week.

Jack McCall, whose resignation as township director of police services is effective May 31, recommended Kimbel for the position.

"Charley helped me on several occasions run the Pine Knob operation," McCall said, adding that Kimbel was needed on a fulltime basis to direct the nine regular employees and 19 reserve officers that make up police services.

Kimbel, 50, was a Wayne County Sheriff's Department deputy for 10 years. He left that job in 1963 to start a vacuum cleaner sales and repair business, Hanson Sales and Services, in Royal Oak. He and his family still own and operate the store.

Independence Township residents eight years, Kimbel and his wife Rose have four sons who are grown and no longer live at home, he said.

In 1972, he worked as a reserve officer for the Clarkston Village Police Department.

When Independence Township's police services department was formed in 1973, he started working there also on a reserve basis.

Last fall, he attended the police academy for recertification as a patrolman.

"If you're out of the police department for a period of time," he explained, "you're not considered certified."

Kimbel accepted the temporary position as director of police services, because "I felt I owed it to Jack and the department," he said.

At the present time, he plans to serve only until a permanent replacement is found.

But "at a later date, I might decide I'd like to keep the job," Kimbel said. "I haven't decided at this point."

Kimbel will be paid just under $9 an hour for a 40-hour week and will also assume the command officer's post at Pine Knob.

The Pine Knob position pays $10.25 an hour as specified in the contract between township police services and the music theater.

Resignation raises questions

by Kathy Greenfield
Staff writer

Jack McCall's decision to resign as Independence Township's director of police services raises several questions about why he's leaving and about the future of police services.

Earlier this year, an attempt by McCall's department to expand police services and no longer contract the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCS) for deputies resulted in an uproar.

Township meetings normally attended by a dozen citizens or less were packed.

The two meetings involving the police issue had between 125 and 150 people in attendance.

The result was the board's decision, in a 3-2 vote, to retain the OCS contract for five deputies and continue local police services.

A citizen's police advisory board was formed to gather information on police services and present their findings to the township board.

Each township official appointed one person to the advisory board, so there are five members.

"We'll explore local areas and what they've done," said Bruce Walker, chairman of the advisory group, "and try to project as much as possible where we'll be five and 10 years from now."

The actual cost, whether it's economically feasible and the pros and cons of a local police department are questions the police advisory board plans to answer, Walker said.

"We're very neutral one way or the other," he added.

McCall's decision to resign came last week less than three months after the board's decision to continue the OCS contract. His resignation is effective May 31.

Included in the three-month interim was a 30-day sick leave taken by McCall.

His reason for leaving, McCall said, is that "it's time to move down the road," and he has tentatively accepted a position in another state in city administration.

He does not wish to name the location of his new job, because of the nature of his work in Independence Township.

McCall has said that in his heart he does not want to leave and that the move is going to be difficult, because he's lived in Clarkston most of his life.

Township Supervisor Floyd (Whitey) Tower has said township board action has nothing to do with McCall's decision to resign.

"The guy has been under pressure," Tower said. "It has to weigh on Jack's mind that he has worked hard for a period of five years. I think he felt he'd reached to the top level he could in this township."

McCall said he worked 60 to 70 hours a week on his job as director of police services. he said he has over 300 days of unused compensatory time (extra hours worked without pay that are supposed to be taken off) and he stopped counting.

"If I was in his position and had tried as long as he has to institute his own department and this time around I didn't get it," said Sgt. Tom Strong who is in charge of the OCS substation for Independence and Springfield townships, "I would be very discouraged."

Although McCall is leaving, he said he believes township police services will survive.

"We're involved in supplementary services nobody else wants to do," he explained.

Township Clerk Christopher Rose said he thinks the problems between the OCS deputies and local department will continue.

"I don't think any new police chief would have much better relations with them," Rose said, "because most all of the problems are caused by the deputies."

Supervisor Tower made a similar statement.

"Wherever they have two departments," he said, "it always ends up in competition."

Sheriff's department officials, however, feel relations between the two departments are improving.

"It was never a personal attack on (McCall)," said Deputy Robert Wark, OCS public information officer. "We just wanted the best services for the community for the tax dollars they were paying."

"The problems have eased," Wark added. "We have been working together. We're trying to go ahead with cooperation and serve the community the best we can."

Sgt. Strong agreed. "As far as I'm concerned, things are better," he said. "We're talking."

"We'll try to continue to do a good job," he added, "and have the people behind us."

At a recent police budget meeting, McCall recommended that the township board consider adding two OCS deputies to a future contract because of the area's continued growth.

Commenting on McCall's recommendation, Sgt. Strong said:

"I think certainly a lesser man would say, 'To heck with the sheriff's department.' That certainly adds to (McCall's) credit as a professional officer."

What's a trustee?

by Pat Braunagel

Thinking of running for trustee? Seems like those who aren't thinking about running for the now-increased-to-three available trustee offices in Independence Township are thinking about who will be running--or who they think should run--in the Aug. 8 primary.

At this point, the one announced candidate is incumbent Fred Ritter. But the addition of two more trustee offices to the ballot has made the race that much more attractive to persons who would like to take a chance on some grassroots governing.

As one elder statesman of the township remarked this week, the addition of two more trustees gives the township board a better chance of getting more professional backgrounds represented.

Through these parttime elected officials, voters can enrich the board with a wider variety of expertise.

Besides holding the potential for representing a broader segment of the community, creation of the new offices brings the promise of greater resources being brought to bear on township board deliberations.

It also seems to assure that some new persons will be "learning the ropes" at township hall this fall.

One recent initiate to township government, a college professor, has written learnedly of his experiences during his first four-year term as a trustee in Bloomfield Township.

Dr. Jerry Tobias, familiar to some in Independence Township as a former consultant on youth to its police department, admitted in this month's "Michigan Township News" that he felt he could write a very thick book on "What I don't know about being a Township Trustee."

In an article entitled "The Making of a Township Trustee," Tobias outlines in academic fashion the upthen functions the trustee is called upon to perform, both from a legal and common-sense perspective.

The "homework" he outlines for a trustee includes intensive research on all phases of government, on programs to benefit his constituents and on the constituents themselves.

Continuing in a more informal tone, Tobias reminds us of some of the qualities a township trustee should possess.

Check yourself, or your candidate, against this list.

"To begin with, today's trustee should be the kind of person who likes being of service to his community and who, at the same time, is totally dedicated to this task.

"He should be genuinely interested in, and personally concerned for the people and their welfare. He should be sensitive to their concerns, understanding of their feelings, and capable of feeling with them and their difficulties.

"In his relationship with the public, he should be: (a) accepting of them; (b) a good listener; (c) open to their expressed feelings; (d) respectful of their opinions; (e) meaningful in his responses; and (f) sincere in his dealings with them. He should be willing to devote both time and energy to his work and their concerns.

"He should be mentally healthy, emotionally mature, and a level headed-common sense type of person. He should strive to be tolerant, patient, non-judgemental and unbiased.

"He should be intellectually able and willing to spend time learning his role and function.

"And, most of all, he should realize that becoming a trustee, like most professional careers, requires time, perserverance, and commitment."

Jim's jottings

Way to go

By Jim Sherman

I love this quote: "You can have money piled to the ceiling, but the size of your funeral is still going to depend on the weather." It's attributed most recently to Chuck Tanner, Pittsburgh Pirates manager.

The quote reminds me of another. This one from Mrs. Dick Milliman. Mr. Milliman owns several weekly newspapers (Howell, Charlotte, St. Johns, etc.) is chairman of the Eaton County Board of Commissioners, active in at least four newspaper associations, and...you get the idea. He's busy and away a lot.

Donna Milliman heard me ask Dick why he served on one particular committee. She interrupted with... "So he'll have one more line in his obituary."

She throws sharp needles. And, my wife, Hazel, loved it.

Went smelt dipping for the second time in my life recently. We did it at 3 p.m. on a brilliant, sunny afternoon. No nippin' 'n dippin' in the nighttime again.

On the same time we witnessed the sucker spawning season. Never seen anything like it. We were on the Rock River east of Naubinway. Suckers were shore to shore.

You could reach down from the bank and pick them up. Natives told us it was the first time in memory the suckers spawned before the smelt up there.

Durand, Mich. may have the answer to keeping police department expenses to the minimum. Recently, Hazel visited her sister there. When she left she saw a police man, in uniform, naturally, hitch-hiking.

She imagined him saying, "Please give me a ride so I can follow that car."

I was chided this week by columnist Jim Fitzgerald for not putting prices in articles I write when I take a trip. He insists people want to know how much it costs to go to Universal Studios, air fare, crossing Golden Gate bridge, etc.

So, here are some prices: $48.95, $1.00, $36.50, and $224.48. It doesn't matter. Just budget $500 a week and plan on spending more.

When I think of all the things I don't want to do, running in the Boston (or any) Marathon is near the top.

IRS pays its way. In 1976 the Internal Revenue Service selected some 2 million individual tax returns, out of the nearly 83 million filed for audit.

The majority of returns selected (about 2 out of every 3) resulted in an increased tax liability.

Put in terms of dollars, IRS audits of individual tax returns resulted in assessed additional tax and penalties of $1.4 billion.

Although the sun didn't shine and the sidewalk sales went indoors, the "Jail and Bail" project was a success, thanks to many people.

The committee would like to thank the Clarkston News for its coverage to promote this project and Donna Fahrner for manning the phones and the R and R station.

We would also like to thank George Anderson for having our jail set up, Mike Applegate for providing our "paddy wagon" and Sue Vascassenno, our "sheriff."

Special thanks go to all the village, township and school board officials who gave their time to participate in this project, volunteering to be jailed and accounting for a majority of the over $500 raised for Artrain. To all our other prisoners and those who paid to jail someone, we appreciate your support; for without everyone we wouldn't have been so successful.

Thanks to all, "Jail and Bail" committee

Victims of selective prosecution

by Jim Fitzgerald

The case of Congressman Charles C. Diggs Jr. reminds me that it will happen soon. A bank robber, caught in the act, will claim he is being discriminated against.

The robber will hire a lawyer who will plead that it is unfair to put one crook in jail as long as there are other crooks running around loose.

This type of defense first became popular during the Watergate years. Republicans said it would be unfair to prosecute Richard Nixon for obstructing justice because Teddy Kennedy hadn't been prosecuted for leaving a friend in a river. There was even a bumper sticker that said: "Nobody Drowned at Watergate."

The idea is that if yesterday's lawbreaker wasn't punished, today's lawbreaker should get the same treatment. This theory is hard to sell to old fashioned people who were brought up to believe that one misdeed does not justify a second misdeed.

I remember when my father discovered that I had stolen comic books from the drugstore. He took away my breathing privileges for three months. I protested that my best friend had been stealing comic books for years and nothing bad had ever happened to him.

"If he jumped off a cliff, would you jump too?" my father demanded to know.

This was my father's favorite question. What it lacked in logic it made up for in menace. I knew exactly what he meant. He meant that just because one person got away with doing something bad or dumb, that didn't make it right for another person to try the same thing. And if I were stupid enough to think otherwise, I should jump off a cliff.

I used my father's moralistic approach once during Watergate. A Republican had blasted me for "persecuting Nixon for doing nothing any worse than was done by many other presidents."

Two wrongs do not make a right,"

I said.

"Don't give me that religious stuff," the Republican answered. "If you were a real Christian, you'd write something about Franklin Delano Roosevelt's mistress."

Now comes Congressman Diggs. He was recently indicted for allegedly stealing more than $101,000 from taxpayers. He has accused the Justice Department of "selective prosecution."

In papers filed in federal court, Diggs didn't claim he was pure. But he said 22 of the 35 counts against him for alleged payroll abuses should be dismissed because other congressmen had done the same thing and they hadn't been indicted.

In fact, said the Detroit Democrat, the alleged conduct of three other congressmen was "far more venal and corrupt" than anything he has been accused of doing. So how come the government didn't prosecute those other guys? It's not fair.

Diggs charged that he was being discriminated against because he often disagrees with the Carter administration. His lawyers said:

"The executive branch's prosecution of a single congressman for conduct common in the Congress, without any explanation of its selectivity, could have a chilling effect on the free speech of the administration's congressional critics."

Certainly. And the same defense should be available to persons accused of robbing banks.

If one robber is prosecuted for stealing from a bank that is commonly robbed by many crooks, and those other crooks aren't prosecuted, it could have a chilling effect on that robber's freedom to make a living.

That robber is probably the victim of selective prosecution because he often disagrees with the local sheriff. Charges should be dismissed. Blind justice should see no difference between stealing by bank robbers and stealing by congressmen.

What this nation needs is for one congressman to jump off a cliff.

Injuries plague CHS pitchers

By Roger Hess

It is a well-known fact, Wolves have voracious appetites for district titles.

In the seven-year history of the state tournament, the CHS varsity baseball squad has won four district titles and one state championship (1976), but it'll take more than an illustrious reputation to repeat the feat in playoffs this June.

Despite what statistically appears to be a baseball team with modest ability engaged in a struggle to finish the season at a .500 clip, an injury-riddled pitching staff has hampered the Wolves through the first half of the 1978 schedule.

Clarkston hurler Craig Czinder sat out 10 days with leg problems, righthander Randy Phelps has been bothered by an arm injury sustained playing hockey, senior Tim Birtsas, who owned a 9-and-3 record last season, has had to contend with muscle spasms in his back, while another member of the Clarkston pitching staff, Bill Kratt, spent some time on the sidelines battling the flu.

Now with the resurgence of a healthy pitching corps, the promise of better days seems imminent.

Czinder tossed a shut-out in his first outing since coming off the disabled list, giving him two wins against one setback and dropping his E.R.A. to a remarkable 1.58.

More good news was provided by Birtsas, who pitched a strong game last Wednesday, showing no signs of the nagging back injury as he limited the Rochester Falcons to just five hits. But he lost a heartbreaker 3-2, on a two-out bases-loaded single in the seventh.

Clarkston varsity baseball coach, Paul Tungate, one of Oakland County's most successful field generals, is encouraged by the prospect of having those two hurlers ready for action.

"We've got a great deal of potential on this team," says Tungate. "We just need to get the momentum going."

Some of that momentum is sure to be supplied by Clarkston's leading hitter, Matt Wenzel with a hefty .429 batting average and junior Jeff Warden, who is heading the list for runs batted in.

Thus district itch is intensified.

"In our bracket we have Pontiac Central and about four other teams that, at the moment, aren't that strong," said Tungate. "The stronger teams are in the other brackets and they'll eliminate each other before we get to the finals."

Clarkston begins pre-district competition at home on Friday, May 26.

Clarkston High School Senior Tim Birtsas, pitched a strong game against the Rochester Falcons last Wednesday in the Greater Oakland Activities League game.

People in the bicycle riding competition business are waiting for a sudden spurt in bike racing popularity similar to the one that hit tennis in the sixties. At that time, people suddenly became interested in tennis in tremendous numbers and courts were built all over the country to accommodate the enthusiasts. Presently, there is only one quality velodrome, or bicycle racing track, in this country. Perhaps when people get tired of jogging, they will want to hop onto bikes and indulge in nonpolluting, high speed competition.

Only quality merchandise is handled by us at COACH'S CORNER, 31 S. Main, 625-8457. If you have won a school letter—wear it proudly on a jacket or sweater with your school colors. # Temperance drama

By Phillip Purser

Ten Nights In A Barroom
By William W. Pratt
Adapted by Fred Carmichael
Clarkston Village Players

"Ten Nights in a Barroom" was originally performed as a temperance drama as early as the 1850's, but I suspect that it has done little to dissuade the followers of Demon Rum from pursuing the error of their way. Perhaps, quite the opposite.

As a drama, temperance or otherwise, it is decidedly hopeless, though as a melodrama it is pure merriment with the sermonizing a part of it that should be listened to only after one has had a full dinner and a glass or two of some strong intoxicant.

To its author and the Women's Christian Temperance Union, it may have been a dead serious tract against the vile curse of liquor; however, in several transformations over the last century it has become a playful musical that remains thoroughly hissable. Audience participation was encouraged by Russ Inman in a pre-curtain speech, but little encouragement was needed as the Saturday night crowd came well-equipped with hisses, boos, and barbed quips.

The plot of this three-act and eleven-scene musical version of an old story concerns a tavern, the Sickle and Sheaf Inn, in a small town where the whiskey is poured that leads to the downfall of half the town not to mention the tavern owner, Simon Slade (Al Bartlett), and his family.

Joe Morgan is the town drunkard who has a squeaky-voiced and curly-headed daughter who is so pure and wonderful you would like to strangle her.

It is she who comes to the tavern to fetch her father and utter those immortal words, "Father, dear father, come home with me now."

Joe also has a long-suffering wife back home who would probably drive any decent man to drink. In a barroom brawl, an errant whiskey bottle hurled by Simon Slade strikes the daughter in the noggin and she eventually dies.

There is welcome relief when she expires, though the tragedy cures her father's taste for liquor--which is too bad because Russ Inman, who plays the part, may have found his true niche as an actor as he convincingly burped his way in and out of the Sickle and Sheaf.

Other sub plots include the growing dissolution of young Frank Slade (Gary Stelmach) who tends bar for his father. In a most ungentlemanly gesture, he attacks his father, causing the tavern owners' death and leading to the well known line, "Frank Slade, you have killed your own father."

There is also the love affair between shy Sample Swichel (Larry Bate) and shiny-faced and bubbly Mehitabel Cartwright. Then, there is dastardly Harvey Green, a low-down cheat and con man, played by Homer Biondi (What are the various Clarkston Village Players directors telling us about the real Homer Biondi by always casting him as a villain?), who brings his dancehall friend, Goldie Hills (Linda Porter) to town to entertain at the Sickle and Sheaf while also aiding Harvey in cheating at cards.

Goldie, of course, really has a heart of gold and changes her ways, deciding to turn the wanted and infamous Harvey Green in for the reward. Harvey tries to do her in. In the end, justice, fair play, love, widows, children and temperance prevail, much to the dismay of the intelligent people in the audience.

This production was a romp for the cast and even the new faces on stage (Larry Bate, Mike Burdick, Mary Lou Skowronski) seemed to be having a good time. Nothing in this play should be taken seriously, including some of the voices, though some of the singers were quite adequate for this kind of show. It was good fun, if you like a novelty and a burlesque of the theater.

But, do remember to have something to eat and certainly some alcoholic libation before you see the performance this coming Friday, Saturday, or Sunday at the Depot Theater.

A go-go bar is the setting for "In the Boom Boom Room," a contemporary drama presented by Oakland University's Student Enterprise Theatre for a nine-night run starting June 2.

"In the Boom Boom Room" will be presented Friday through Saturday the weekends of June 2, 9 and 16 in the Barn Theatre on OU's campus.

For ticket information, call 377-2245. Group rates are available.

Got an itchy green thumb? The place to go this weekend is the Pontiac Mall for the Pontiac-Oakland Symphony Orchestra's annual geranium sale and the Southern Michigan Unit of the Herb Society of America's fresh herb market.

Red and coral geraniums and flowering bedding plants will be sold May 18 and 19 from 9:30 a.m. until 9 p.m. near the mall's northwest concourse adjacent to Montgomery Ward.

Proceeds from the sale will help cover symphony concert expenses and instrumental rentals.

'White wasn't asked to leave'

"White is a good, fair coach. We didn't ask him to resign. We were planning on having him come back to coach again next year," said Bruce.

In a conference with CHS Principal Dominic Mauti, Assistant Schools Superintendent Mel Vaara, and Bruce, White was asked to change some coaching methods in the upcoming fall football season.

Bruce was reluctant this week to discuss specific techniques the administrators wanted White to change. He noted that they felt White could "control his team better on and off the ball field."

Bruce said some individuals on the high school football team caused problems at different athletic events. He stated that administrators and coaches in other schools in the Greater Oakland Activities League (GOAL) complained about White's coaching tactics.

Critics, according to White, felt his team was too aggressive and too fired-up before a game.

"We're not upset with White in his efforts to win - his team played a good, fair game," said Bruce. "We just didn't want him to win at all costs."

Bruce added that the administration's concern over White's coaching methods was "no big problem."

"There were a few things we wanted White to change and he said he felt he didn't want to change because it would hurt his coaching ability," said Bruce. "We didn't think we were asking that much, but White felt we were apparently," said Bruce.

Two varsity football players in White's afternoon study hall Monday discussed their coach's decision to leave CHS.

"I think White should leave because he's getting hassled by the administration," said Sean Robinson, varsity football player. "Some people are mad about the way he works us. Maybe the junior varsity football players didn't like it, but the varsity players didn't feel that way. We felt like we needed the discipline to win games.

Losing White will be a loss to the school," said Craig Grable, another varsity football player. "I'm sure most other varsity football players feel the same."

According to the two varsity football players, some parents of students who played on the junior varsity football team complained about White's training techniques.

"White pushed a player past his ability - I learned a whole lot from him," said Grable.

During White's six-year career as head coach at CHS, the Wolves have won 42 games and lost 13. His teams have won two GOAL championships. Last season the Wolves made it to the state Class A playoffs before losing to eventual state champions Birmingham Brother Rice, 10-0.

"I've experienced some good years in the Clarkston School District, and I thank the community for its support at our football games," said White. "When I came here, I didn't make any promises - I said I would run a varsity football team and if anyone interfered I'd move on."

School candidates to state views

An opportunity to hear the five candidates running for the spot David K. Leak is vacating on the Clarkston Board of Education will be offered Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Bailey Lake School, 8051 Pine Knob Rd.

The candidates are Michael Barron, Rockwood W. Bullard III, Mary Jane Chaustowich, Marc Cooper and Floyd Dale Smith.

The panel will include the five and a moderator. Each candidate will present a five minute speech.

They will then be asked a number of questions and all candidates will have a chance to respond.

Audience participation will be invited for four to five minutes after each question.

Sponsored by the P.T.A. at Bailey Lake, the candidate's night is an effort to get people involved in the parent-teachers group activities.

Baby sitters will be on hand for children two years old and up whose parents are Baily Lake P.T.A. members.

Day of fun at Camp Oweki

Indian wrestling for women, canoe races, stone skips and a teen dance marathon are some of the events planned for Northern Oakland Camp Fire's annual Oweki Olympics Saturday.

The event is open to the public. Registration for the games will be held at 8:30 Saturday morning at the camp ground in Independence Township.

The events start at 10 after a grand march of registered competitors.

One of the biggest stars of the day will be Jimmy Rutherford, Detroit Red Wings hockey player.

Rutherford and other special guests will join in on the games.

The $1 admission fee allows each person to compete in all events.

Hot dogs, sloppy joes and other treats will be sold.

Camp Oweki, 6125 Gulick Rd., is located north of Sashabaw Road off Waldon Road.

In case of rain, the Oweki Olympics will be held Sunday, May 21.

For more information, call the Camp Fire offices in Pontiac at 338-4036.

Village seeks permit to fill

By Carol Teegardin
Staff writer

Clarkston will have a landscaped village park, but it may take some time.

Renovation of public land surrounding the Clarkston Village Hall off Depot Street has been halted until a permit to fill the area is approved by the Oakland County Drain Commission (OCDC).

"In order to seed and landscape, we have to fill in the marsh areas to make the ground stable," said Garfield Wilson, Clarkston's director of public works. "There have been complaints recently because we have been using fill materials from the Clarkston Mills shopping complex currently under construction on Washington Street."

The materials Wilson referred to included dirt, wood and pieces of concrete.

"The material dumped in the park happened to have some lumber and large concrete blocks in it," said Wilson. "Because of that, people have been calling the area a landfill, but it isn't a landfill. A landfill is a dump - this area is slated to be a landscaped public park for residents of Clarkston."

According to Wilson, work on the area was stopped because an erosion control permit required by a 1975 state law was not obtained by the village to use the fill materials. The OCDC informed the village it was in violation of the law on April 26.

Wilson said he was not aware of the regulation requiring a permit.

"In 1973, I was informed by a Clinton River Watershed Council representative that blocks of concrete could be used as landfill as long as the debris remained a reasonable distance from the river," said Wilson. "I didn't know I needed a permit."

On May 8, OCDC sent an application for the permit to the Clarkston Village Council. Wilson forwarded the application to Kieft Engineering, the village's engineering consultant.

"The application will be filled out and returned to OCDC as soon as possible," said Wilson. "When we have the permit the filled-in area will be covered with top soil and seeded as quickly as possible."

"The village was in technical violation of the law in regards to Public Act 347, but we have not issued a flat denial for them not to dump fill materials," said Karl Randall, chief inspector for the drain commission. He inspected the site and said when the village submits its soil erosion plan the issue should be settled.

"As far as I know, the village was unaware they needed the soil erosion permit," said Randall.

Randall said OCDC may require the village to use straw bales near the Clinton River which runs through the park.

Suspension

The two asked for compensatory time off to talk to board members after reading newspaper accounts of Ritter's comments regarding the swearing-in of Beach and another reserve police officer.

The May 9 hearing on Ritter's charges had been delayed once because a previously-called session had not been posted.

Tower said he also wanted to make certain the hearing conformed to Veteran's Preference Act guidelines.

"I can't condone, as a township supervisor and board member, direct threats to a township board member," Tower said. However, he said he had difficulty making a decision on the basis of threats allegedly made over the telephone.

"I don't have any reason to think either one of them were lying," Tower said.

Both Ritter and Rose said they voted against the suspension because they believed the disciplinary action to be too light.

Ritter called the action "precedent-setting."

"If it happens again, we can't deal with any other employee more severely," he said.

We've carefully analyzed the three considerations most important to the average person when selecting a bank. They are, rate of interest on savings, cost of checking and convenience. At Community Bank we call this combination Community's BASIC III, and we submit that when you compare our BASIC III to the same combination at any other bank serving Oakland County, you'll agree that Community delivers the most value. Here are the facts.

I. 5% Savings

Community Bank's regular savings earn 5% which is the highest allowable rate of interest on regular savings in Michigan.

II. Check '76

With only a minimum monthly checking balance of $76.00, you can have free checking at Community National Bank. There are no statement charges, no strings, no fuss and your first 76 checks are free. It's the most economical free checking plan in this area.

III. Convenience

Convenience is always foremost when considering where to bank and here, again, Community National Bank leads the list. With 26 branches in Oakland County, no other bank can match Community National for all around convenience.

Consider those facts and then ask yourself, "Shouldn't I be getting the best value in banking, too?" The way to do it is to drop in to any of the Community National Bank branches listed.

Hang gliding for natural high

Clarkston man flies Pacific tradewinds

By Carol Teegardin
Staff writer

When Rick Leaf flies his hang glider, he feels like a bird soaring through the air.

"After a day of good flying, I'm worn out, but I can't sleep at night...it's an addicting sport and I want to get back to it as soon as I can," he said.

A long-time Clarkston resident, Leaf is now a sergeant in the United States Air Force. He's presently home on leave from Guam.

Though he works as a technician on airplanes, Leaf said he has never flown a plane and doesn't really care to. He flies his hang glider on the tradewinds in Guam whenever he gets a chance.

The sport of hang gliding has been around since 1853 when Sir George Cayley designed the first sky sail wing and had it flown by his coachman. The servant took off from a cliff in Yorkshire, England and flew a distance of about 1,500 feet.

If the weather conditions are good, hang gliders can now stay up in the air as long as the pilot wants and travel at a rate of 15 to 30 miles per hour.

"For a long time no one heard about sky sailing," said David Nelson, who sells hang gliders and teaches the sport in Frankfort, Mich. "In the early 1970s it experienced a rebirth and has been going strong ever since."

Persons in the 70s who wanted to fly hang gliders usually had to make their own gliders out of kits," said Leaf. "My first glider was made of bamboo rods and plastic. It stayed in the air for a few seconds and then broke up."

At that time, Leaf said his motto was "never fly higher than you're willing to fall."

Leaf's second glider, called the "Cloudman," was made of aluminum and sailcloth. For every eight feet forward it dropped one foot.

"The Cloudman flew like a tank, but it was safer than the bamboo butterfly and I could go much higher," said Leaf. He added that the "Cloudman" was the glider most people who took up the sport in the 70s learned how to fly on.

Though Leaf and Nelson are both self-taught sky pilots, they say it is a dangerous sport to try without lessons.

"Hang gliding isn't inherently dangerous, but if you're neglectful you can get hurt," said Nelson. "If you take off in 50 mph winds on a glider that isn't strong enough, you'll fly backwards until you hit something."

In the early 1970s there was little material on the sport of hang gliding. It was a self-regulated sport. Now, every hang glider sold is inspected for safety standards by the Hang Gliders Manufacturing Association, based in California. Safety rules for the sport have been established by the United States Hang Gliding Association.

"We have to wear helmets," said Leaf. "That's one of the basic rules. And, we never fly alone."

Nelson, who has been teaching the sport for five years, said not many classes are needed to get off the ground and feel competent as a pilot.

"After going over the properties of flight, I have the student run with a wing on the ground until he learns how to use the controls," said Nelson. "When he feels comfortable I have him take off at a low altitude and glide to a landing."

Nelson said all types of people are interested in the sport, from 10-year-old kids to senior citizens.

"After the initial purchase of the glider, it's a relatively inexpensive sport," said Nelson. "You don't need any special equipment or clothing."

"It's a great high," said Leaf. "You put on your harness, do your pre-flight check and take off in the air. There's no noise up there and you're free - completely free for as long as you want to fly."

Leaf said he likes to go "wave sailing" in Guam where he is presently stationed as a sergeant in the United States Air Force. "You need high cliffs or mountains to go wave sailing," said Leaf. "It's not possible to do in Michigan."

Country Living

Raising kids suburban-style

by Kathy Greenfield
Staff writer

The differences between city and country living are a combination of access to activities like cross-country skiing, water skiing and lake swimming and more subtle things, say John and Sue McAuliffe.

Native Detroiters, the McAuliffes and their four children moved to Independence Township five months ago.

When they decided to leave Detroit, they looked at a number of suburbs.

"But we definitely fell in love with this area," he says.

"I feel safe here," Sue says. "Crime isn't as rampant here as it is in the city."

Not worrying about being constantly on guard is a relief.

"You never consider not locking your car in the big city," John says.

The people in Clarkston are more conservative, Sue says.

"You don't hear them discussing social city problems," she explains.

"This is a more affluent area," John says. "People in this area have more money to buy the luxuries the world has to offer. They're not concerned with the daily problems of surviving."

The McAuliffe home sits on a hill overlooking Deer Lake.

Nature's beauty is visible from each window--trees, natural ground cover and the lake complement the open, simple design of their home.

The windows on the main floor are without drapes.

"We bought this property for the trees," Sue explains. "And for the outdoors to be brought into our house."

The design was basically their own with an architect making their ideas work.

The contemporary style includes an abundance of glass and wood. A two-story stone fireplace opens into two rooms and accents the second-floor balcony at the end of the large living room.

"The openness lends itself to togetherness," John says. "There aren't a lot of small rooms where there is a tendency to become isolated from each other."

As they talked, the importance of their family became obvious.

Their children--Molly, 10; Christy, 8; Erin, 6; and Michael, 1--walked in and out of the room asking for help in settling minor squabbles or for a touch and smile from their parents.

The baby toddled in, sat on his father's lap for awhile, then moved over to his mother to settle in her arms and fall asleep.

Cleo, their large black dog, came by for a pat, and settled at their feet.

John is a manufacturer's representative. Sue does accounting for the company, working about 30 hours a week.

But, she considers herself mainly a housewife.

"I feel I could have any career I went after," she says, "but this is my choice."

John comes from a family of seven children; Sue from a family of four children.

They have goals for their family.

"I want them not to just live in their own little selfish worlds," she says, "but to tune into the problems and needs of others."

Family discussions have always been a way of life for him, John says, and he is carrying on the tradition.

John McAuliffe relaxes with a cup of coffee.

"We do have many open discussion sessions," he says. "What I'm trying to find out is how they feel as children in an adult world."

What people do with their gifts and talents affects the people around them, he says.

"I'm constantly telling the children they must have an awareness that everyone in life doesn't have the things they have," he says. "Without helping others, in the long run you won't help yourself either."

The McAuliffes' parents and relatives continue to be an important part of their lives.

"We're having 25 people (family members) for dinner tomorrow," Sue says. "This is not unusual."

"I love to party, but I don't think life is one big party or should it be," she says. "I think you should have other concerns to dwell on."

People should do more than just complain about what is wrong with our country, she says.

She finds time to write letters and call government officials in her effort to repeal the amendment making abortion legal.

Before she moved, she was a charter member and worked at Pro-Life in Detroit two years as a counselor offering women free pregnancy tests and sources for financial aid if they chose to continue their pregnancies.

"Mostly, it was just getting them to talk about it," she says. "A lot of women didn't know where to turn."

Sue McAuliffe finds time for her family and the business world.

P.S. MATTHEWS

Special 10% Off on Vitamin C

In the past few years vitamin C has been in the middle of medical controversy, specifically as a proposed cure for the common cold.

Vitamin C is probably the least stable of the vitamins and is very sensitive to oxygen. Its potency can be lost through exposure to light, heat and air. So when buying vitamin C, be sure the glass or plastic container is dark in color, stored in a cool place, and factory sealed.

The functions of vitamin C are as follows:

1. It helps the formation and maintenance of collagen protein. (collagen protein is tissue "cement" for the skin, cartilage, tendons and bone.)
2. To maintain strength in blood vessels.
3. Promotes sound healing of wounds.
4. Influences formation of hemoglobin, absorption of iron from intestinal tract, and deposition of iron in the liver tissue.
5. Assists in the secretion of hormones from adrenals.
6. Protects the body against infections and bacterial toxins, also against viruses.
7. Aids in metabolism of phenylamine, tyrosine, and tryptophan. (amino acids).
8. Antihistamine action
9. Diuretic action

DEFICIENCY SYMPTOMS:

- pink or hemorrhagic skin follicles
- inflamed gums
- hemorrhages in the eyes
- joint pains
- excessive loss of hair

bulk herbs, spices, and grains • flours

- in children—restlessness, irritability
- listlessness, lack of indulgence
- fleeting pains in legs and joints
- small hemorrhages under skin
- gums which bleed easily

Many feel that a group of substances which are sometimes called vitamin D (Bioflavonoids, rutin, and hesperidan) are synergistic in action to vitamin C. They are often found in combination with vitamin C in nature and often the functions and deficiency symptoms are identical. So make sure that you get a vitamin C tablet that is a complex of all these things.

Many animals synthesize vitamin C in their livers, but some cannot do this. Among the species that have lost the ability to make vitamin C are man, other primates and the guinea pig. The evolutionary process has rendered them incapable of manufacturing this vitamin due to lack of liver enzyme necessary for its formation. Without this enzyme, the biochemicals cannot combine to produce vitamin C. That is why it is important to supplement your vitamin C-intake.

A 4.0 or "straight A" average was earned at Michigan State University winter term by Daniel A. Maas of South Main Street, Clarkston.

Maas, a sophomore, was among 571 MSU students who attained the perfect academic record.

Potter-Kremser vows

Mary Beth Potter and Dr. Charles A. Kremser were married in a double ring ceremony at St. Andrew's Catholic Church, Rochester, on April 15.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold E. Potter of Fawn Valley Drive, Independence Township. She was graduated from Western Illinois University in 1974 and is presently employed by Fortune Life Insurance Inc., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kremser, Jr. of Rochester. He was graduated from University of Michigan's Medical School in 1977 and is presently on the staff of Magee Hospital in Pittsburgh, Pa.

For her wedding, the bride wore a silk chiffon dress with bishop sleeves and a wide cuff of Alencon lace. Her double tiered illusion veil had a benedeau headpiece trimmed with Alencon lace and seed pearls. She carried a cascade of white roses with ivy accents.

Maid of honor was Mary Jane Flynn of Chicago, Ill. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Charles Foster of Chicago, and Mrs. Thomas Barkulis of Lake Zurich, Ill.

They wore floor length dresses of powder blue qiana and carried colonial bouquets of white carnations, blue silk flowers and coral roses.

Serving as best man was Dr. Thomas Hauch of Chicago, Ill. Ushers were Charles Foster of Chicago, Ill. and James Potter, brother of the bride, from Clarkston.

A reception at Oakland Hills Country Club, Birmingham, followed the ceremony with 180 guests attending.

Out-of-town guests included the bride's brother from LaJolla, Calif., and her grandmother from Florida. The groom's grandparents were present from Cleveland, Ohio.

Dr. and Mrs. Kremser honeymooned in the Bahamas. They are residing in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Bowling for dollars competition

Senior bowler Bernie Korte, who won second place in the Independent Seniors' open bowling league, rolls another strike down the alley at Howe's Lanes. Korte and 26 seniors were celebrating the end of the bowling season this week with a banquet and "Bowling for Dollars" competition. Bowling will continue through the summer months every Monday at 1 p.m. For more information about bowling and other summer activities, call Darlene Bringard, senior citizen coordinator, at 625-8223.

Strollers have a cone

About 1,100 ice cream cones were delivered to and devoured by Clarkston sidewalk strollers who visited the Pontiac State Bank office in the village on May 6. Cindy Peters, who works in another PSB department, came out to give the Clarkston office staffers help in welcoming people to the newly remodeled business.

Bands schedule concert

"Fresh Winds" will be presented as the Clarkston High School instrumental music department's annual spring program Friday.

The concert, offering a variety of musical styles, is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the little theater of the high school.

Featured guest soloist will be Carter Eggers, associate professor of trumpet at Eastern Michigan University, who will play with both high school bands.

The CHS symphonic band will open with "Henderson Festival," a traditional concert march featuring the trumpet and flute sections.

Selections from "Oliver," "The Shadow of Your Smile" and "Chelsea Suite" also will be presented. Eggers will join the band in performing "The Carnival of Venice."

After intermission, the CHS wind ensemble will perform "The Sinfonians," a contemporary concert march by Clifton Williams.

"Elsa's Procession to the Cathedral" by Richard Wagner will feature the band's woodwind section.

Eggers will play the first movement of Johann Nepomuk Hummel's "Trumpet Concerto," followed by "Chant and Jubilo" by W. Francis McBeth.

The concert will be closed with "The Land of Make Believe" by Chuck Mangione, arranged for concert by Fred Lewis.

Where are coaches?

About 1,000 children signed up to play Little League or girls' softball this year, and there are still 18 teams without coaches.

"We need some parents to volunteer," said Tim Doyle, park and recreation director.

Interested parents should call the department at 625-8223.

"Even if they're interested in coaching half-time, we're interested," Doyle said. "We'd try to find someone else to take over the rest."

The season starts June 12 and ends in late July, with playoffs for the winning teams the first week of August.

Some teams have already held twice a week and practices once a week, Doyle said.

The park and recreation started practices, but once the season starts, games are usually needs is time to work with children.

department provides equipment for the teams, so all a coach "We've made a commitment," Doyle said. "Every child who signs up is going to play."

Library scene

The film "Michigan on the Move" will be shown at the Independence Township Library Wednesday, April 24 in observance of Michigan Week.

The program is scheduled for 4 p.m. at the library, 6495 Clarkston Road.

This week the following contemporary fictions--some of them best sellers--were added to the library's collection: "A Place for Noah" by Joseph Greenfield, "The Big Paddle" by Robin Moore, "The Harvest" by Meyer Levin, "If Life Is a Bowl of Cherries, What am I Doing in the Pits?" by Erma Bombeck, "A Stranger Is Walking" by Mary Higgins Clark, "Evergreen" by Belva Plains, "Perdido" by Jill Robinson, "Song of Solomon" by Toni Morrison, "Five-Minute Marriage" by Joan Aiken and "Tell Me Now and Again" by Richard Llewellyn.

While the library has a very active interloan service with the Wayne-Oakland Federated Library System, it should not be used as a substitute for the reference service available at the local library.

A very efficient reference hot line to the Oakland University library should assure that no question is too difficult. Also among the reference resources are the telephone directories of the major cities of the U.S.

Special lending privileges are offered to teachers, who may inquire at the desk.

Story hours for preschoolers continue to be held the second and fourth Thursdays of each month.

Coping with Kids

Human imprinting in early years

By Jim and Ellen Windell

Each species of animals seems to form an attachment to the mother almost immediately after birth. This attachment, whether called bonding or imprinting, is strong and necessary for survival.

This is true also for human infants. The strong bond formed between mother and child early in life is one that, if only a few months of time are devoted to fostering it, it will never be broken.

The term "psychological mother" relates to the person with whom the child forms a close attachment in the first 36 months of life. The psychological mother need not be the mother who gave birth to the child; however, consistent nurturing and the mother's presence during the first formative months of life is essential.

If there is human imprinting, then that process which was originally seen in birds and ducks (a newly hatched duck will start following any moving object and even as it grows older will continue to follow that object whether it is the mother duck, a human, or a mechanical device) begins in the first few days of life.

The first critical period in a child's life, from a psychological point of view, occurs from six weeks to six months, during which time--because of contact with the mother or a mothering figure--the baby learns to smile.

Perhaps the second most critical time in an infant's life is from six to 10 months when the child learns the mother's face and becomes able to recognize her face and know a stranger is approaching him.

Because the mother has provided gratifications and relieved stresses early in life, the child is dependent on his mother and eager for play and other means of communication and a relationship. Therefore, for a brief period of time there is crying that takes place when the child is held by someone who is not the mother.

From six or 10 months on until the thirty-sixth month, a strong bond is formed with the mother and some psychologists and psychiatrists say that this may be irreversible.

This may help to explain why adopted children almost always have a need to find out about their heritage and original parents and also why even abused and neglected children have a lasting attachment to their parents.

The strength and importance of the early attachment with the mother or mother figure can be seen when there is separation from that parent either briefly or for long periods of time.

A child will react most intensely to separation between the ages of six or seven and 36 months when attachment to the mother is forming.

The reaction of older toddlers when confronted by separation is crying, grief, and perhaps vigorous protest.

The results of separation over the long run are variable, but deprivation of mother in the early years of childhood almost always leaves some lasting mark on the child, the later adolescent, and even on the adult.

DOING BUSINESS

By Maralee Cook

The new Clarkston True Value Hardware store in Clarkston is the first venture into the hardware field for owners Conard Fulkerson and Louis Warington. But the long-time friends are licensed builders with a thorough knowledge of most of the products they sell - a factor they feel to be very important in helping customers.

Fulkerson got the bug to open his own business, and because of his association with the building business, hardware seemed a natural. He checked into various companies and liked best what the True Value Company had to offer.

The True Value Hardware Company is second only to Sears in hardware sales volume. It is also dealer owned with some 7,000 dealers in the United States and an overseas expansion program which began last year.

According to Fulkerson, True Value offers a bargain of the month and a tool of the month. The program is set up three months in advance. The dealers order merchandise ahead of time, and the company buyers can then purchase that merchandise cheaper because of the volume, with the savings passed on to the customer.

True Value markets its own line of paints and tools. The tool line is called Master Mechanic and offers a warranty. Fulkerson says True Value paints are as good as any on the market and says that if customers are not happy with their quality, their money will be refunded.

Fulkerson says two things set his store apart from other hardware stores: more extensive lines of hardware products, and the extra service he and Warington can offer because of their building background.

For the do-it-yourself plumber, True Value offers a wide variety of galvanized and plastic fittings, as well as galvanized, or plastic or copper piping. According to Fulkerson, the new plastic pipe and fittings are very easy to work with. There are also some new easy electrical rewiring packages for new plugs that most people can use themselves if shown how properly.

Other merchandise offered by the new Clarkston True Value Hardware store includes house-wares, sporting goods, camping supplies, lawn and garden supplies, hand tools, saws, levels, shovels, drills, grills, picnic supplies, games, automotive supplies and furniture refinishing materials. The new store is located at 5800 M-15 in Clarkston, phone 625-2022. The hours of business are Monday through Thursday, and Saturday, 8:30 a.m. to 7 p.m., Friday 8:30 to 8 p.m., and Sundays noon to 6 p.m.

He brings live entertainment closer

By Phillip Purser

Something exciting is happening in Birmingham and the prime mover behind the beehive of activity at the Birmingham Theatre is an energetic man by the name of Pierre LaMarre.

Pierre LaMarre has his hands full these days as he is coordinating the refurbishing of the old Birmingham movie theater into an entertainment center that will feature a plethora of live theatrical events.

Besides the remodeling work on the 1,236-seat auditorium, he is selling advertising, printing brochures, booking talent and spreading the word that real-live theater and a multitude of cultural events will be available nearly in the suburbs.

LaMarre is no stranger to Detroit theater. He was involved in the early 1960's in the admirable Vanguard Theater in downtown Detroit and later he operated the shoestring theater called The Stables, which produced good plays by the playwrights of note of the time—Harold Pinter and Samuel Beckett, for instance—in a slightly decrepit hotel not far from the edge of the Wayne State University campus.

After leaving Detroit in the mid 1960's, LaMarre spent his last 10 or so years on the East Coast involving himself again in the theater, but chiefly in musical shows.

Now he returns to the area with a mission. He has an ambitious idea that there can be successful theater outside of Detroit. Basically, his concept is to provide something for everyone and to mix drama, music, comedy and dance.

The plays and acts already lined up are impressive. The opening will be on May 18 when comedian David Brenner makes a three-day appearance. Following Brenner in May and June will be Robert Goulet, Joey Heatherton with Louie Nye, Sarah Vaughn with Herbie Mann, Roberta Flack and a Helen O'Connell and Ray Eberly "Sound of the Forties" show.

In the fall, dance and drama will alternate with musical shows. The Joffrey Ballet and the Alvin Ailey Dancers appear along with several plays and musicals from New York.

Already booked is the musical "By Strouse" and Estelle Parsons in her impressive role as the teacher in "Miss Magarida's Way." In November the Off-Broadway hit, one of two vampire shows currently in New York, "The Passion of Dracula" will be staged. LaMarre also plans to bring in the popular Broadway hit "The Magic Show" and in repertory the national drama company of John Houseman.

As if the vast variety of talent he is planning is not enough, LaMarre is battling the Birmingham City Commission to allow him to sell alcoholic beverages at the new foyer bar that is nearly completed in the impressive new entrance to the theater. This, he believes, will add some sophistication to his concept of providing adult entertainment that will compete with that available at the Fisher Theatre and Music Hall.

The advantages of his theater he points out are that he is closer for suburbanites, there is plenty of safe parking in a charming, rather small city, and the theater-goer has several excellent restaurants to chose from for before or after show dining. Pierre LaMarre's credentials for this adventure are impeccable and his knowledge of the theater business will stand him well as he attempts to launch a relatively new concept in our area. A pleasant alternative to Detroit theater should be a boon for outlying residential communities.

Clarkston: A perfect little village that doesn't want to grow up

Clarkston is the perfect village. The idyllic, in the old New England tradition, is a restaurant for morning "coffee sessions," main street is called Main Street; the village president won the election last month with a total of 63 votes. It's peaceful, friendly and quiet, a pleasant hamlet that is currently the "in" location in the tri-county area.

complex of some 15 shops and two restaurants, will be opened sometime in August in a water-powered electrical generator facility, built by Henry Ford 1941. The facility has been enclosed in brick and will take on a turn-of-the-century flavor, according to its developer, Marc Alan. It will include shops for leather goods, men's and women's clothing, home furnishings, arts and crafts, a bakery. Behind the complex is a natural land bowl, serving as an amphitheater for local theatrical productions. The original generator will be restored to power the exterior lights.

Residents of the town are concerned about progress. They look at Rochester, once considered an "in" place to live and shop, and see a town that has become highly commercial and lost much of its quaintness. Clarkston is an experiment — testing the effect of growth on a small, beautiful, traditional community. And in the midst of change, the townspeople are becoming more introspective and more aware of their historical past. Shopkeepers, for example, are now tracing the "roots" of their buildings.

A few miles north of Clarkston is a rare treat — a Japanese garden, called the Ozawa Bonsai Garden. Ralph Stallings and Ralph O'Reilly worked on this project for nine years and opened it to the public several years ago. This year it will open May 15. There is no charge for admission. They teach classes in Bonsai, an art discovered by the Chinese and refined by the Japanese. It is the art of growing, pruning and caring for trees in miniature. They also have a small greenhouse of plants and Bonsai trees for sale. Oriental music plays in the background. Open Tuesday through Sunday, 10 a.m. — 6 p.m.

Clarkston is located north of Pontiac. Take I-75 to the Clarkston/Ortonville exit and left to town. From Clarkston to the Japanese garden, take White Lake Road to Dixie Highway, turn right (north) and then left on Davisburg. The Garden is several hundred yards farther on the right side of the road.

One new and major development, a

Surplus cash in Independence

By Pat Braunagel
A quarter-million-dollar fund surplus apparently will be available for local governmental spending in Independence Township this spring. Public debate on how the money should be spent got under way at the township's annual meeting Saturday and will continue through a public hearing.

A group of electors which never numbered more than 40 during the 2½-hour meeting demanding the public hearing and also decided the township board should have two more trustees. Those attending the session also voted 6.5 percent cost-of-living adjustments for the three elected full-time officials and boosted the trustees' pay from $2,200 to $2,500 a year for each. The surplus was introduced into discussion on a $811,000 proposed general fund budget for 1978-9, the fiscal year that began the day of the meeting.

The balanced revenues and expenditures called for in the tentative budget are some $165,612 above the expenditures for the year that ended March 31, a figure estimated to be $645,388.

However, the proposed 1978-9 budget predicts that revenues will drop $34,000 from the $845,000 estimated for the previous year. While the figures will be altered by business done by the township during March, they indicate a surplus for the year of $199,612.

Robert Vandermark of Snowapple Drive, former township supervisor, called attention to the surplus and predicted there would be a similar one next year because the proposed budget is based on the assumption that revenues will decrease.

Supervisor Floyd L. (Whitey) Tower said the surplus would be more like $125,000 when the # Fire was 'blessing in disguise' Senior citizens' center shaping up

by Kathy Greenfield
Staff Writer

From the outside, the new Independence Township senior citizens' center still looks like a house.

The discarded construction materials awaiting pickup hint that some remodeling is being done.

But the amount of work completed on the inside is considerable, and although the center still retains a home-like atmosphere, it is taking shape as an ideal spot for older adults to meet and enjoy activities.

"The fire damage work is just about completed," said Tim Doyle, Independence Township park and recreation director whose department includes the senior citizens' group.

After the fire last November at the site on Clarkston-Orion Road next to Clintonwood Park, the damage resulted in a $30,000 payment by the insurance company.

"The fire was a blessing in disguise," Doyle said, enabling the builder--Noel Charboneau of State-Wide Construction Co. of Clarkston--to make many areas barrier-free.

The grand opening of the center will be some time in August, he said.

Work on the main floor is nearly completed.

A reception desk is built into the entrance. The large sitting room, complete with brick fireplace, complete with brick fireplace and refinished hard wood floors, is a few steps above the entry. A ramp has been built to make the room easily accessible.

The hallway leads to a remodeled kitchen with new cabinets and formica counters.

A large dining room created in the former garage area will also be used for meetings and bingo.

Work must be completed on the second floor office and storage area.

A portion of the basement will be remodeled into a game room.

Plans are being prepared for an elevated patio around the front of the center.

Ramps must be built leading to the doors, the road widened and a lighted, graveled parking lot has to be finished.

One problem area is the well and septic tank systems that are side-by-side.

The situation is unsafe, Doyle said, because of the large number of people who will use the center.

"We're going to have to move one of the two," he said.

Most of the work done on the center (about 75 percent, Doyle said) has been paid with the fire damage money. The rest of the funds came from Community Development Act grants and revenue sharing funds from the township.

The seniors, meanwhile, are planning to plant flowers and nurture the apple trees back to health, Bringard said.

And, as Gladys Clair, member of the Independence Seniors said when asked how she felt about the center:

"I think it's great, but better still when we get in there."

Noel Charboneau [left], owner of State-Wide Construction Co., and Tom Charboneau, carpenter, take a break sitting in front of the sitting room's fireplace.

New cabinets and formica counters adorn the center's kitchen area.

| TOTAL              | $13,635.04 |

Roll: Ayes, ApMadoc, Byers, Schultz, Thayer, Weber. Nays, none. Motion carried.

Moved by ApMadoc, seconded by Thayer to write our state representative and state senator, urging them to vote against Senate Bills 816 and 817, which would take away the per capita basis of allocating state revenue sharing funds. Motion carried unanimously.

Moved by ApMadoc, seconded by Byers to adopt a resolution supporting the concept of sharing all funds that are currently being allocated for unrestricted state revenue sharing by computing by the actual per capita method currently being used. Motion carried unanimously.

Trustee ApMadoc will ask a Jaycee representative to be present at the next council meeting to give their plan for the restoration of the signboard in the Main St. parking lot.

Truck traffic on Holcomb and placing stop signs along N. Holcomb were discussed. Police Chief Jack McCall reported to the council and Holcomb residents that the Traffic Control Order banning thru trucks on N. Holcomb was being challenged in court, and that it may be ruled unconstitutional due to no alternate route being provided. They are still awaiting a final decision on this.

Moved by Schultz, seconded by ApMadoc to allow Independence Township to borrow our voting booths for their elections, and to have a township voting precinct in the village hall in the future, as per their request. Motion carried

NOTICE

OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Planning Commission of Independence Township, Oakland County, Mich. will hold a Public Hearing on May 25, 1978 at 7:30 P.M. at the Township Hall, 90 North Main St., Clarkston, Michigan, to consider the following request:

To rezone 6.06 acres on Waterford Road from R-1-R Rural Residential (3 acre minimum) to R-1-B Suburban Residential (33,000 square foot minimum lot size)

Legal Description: Sidwell #08-33-251-004

Common Description: On Waterford Road directly west of Pelton.

Any further information regarding the above hearing may be obtained at the Township Planning Office during regular office hours, 9:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M., Monday thru Friday, or by phone at 625-8114.

James Smith, Chairman
Independence Township
Planning Commission

unanimously.

President Pro-Tem ApMadoc directed the discussion on the next item of business, the request from Clarkston Mills developer Marc Alan to indicate a tentative approval of the transfer of a Class C resort liquor license to Clarkston Mills. Mr. Alan explained that giving this tentative approval merely starts the investigative process by the Liquor Control Commission. Final council approval would still be required at a later date. Trustee Schultz questioned possible future owners and usage of a liquor license there. Mr. Alan stated that he intended to use it for serving to tables in one of the restaurants.

Moved by Weber, seconded by ApMadoc to grant tentative approval to Marc Alan of Clarkston Mills to transfer a Class C liquor license to Clarkston Mills, based on information given to the council by Mr. Alan, and that the council reserves the right to review the proposal when formally requested to do so by the Liquor Control Commission. Roll: Ayes, ApMadoc, Byers, Thayer, Weber, Nays, Schultz. Motion carried.

The planning commission will hold a Public Hearing on the proposed Land Use Development Plan on Monday, June 5th, at 7:30 p.m. at the Village Hall.

Moved by Weber, seconded by Byers to write off as uncollectible the amount of $45.25 in delinquent personal property taxes from five former village businesses. Motion carried unanimously.

Correspondence from the county drain commission was read, noting that the village needs a permit to distribute and fill areas in the park near the stream. Trustee ApMadoc will fill out the permit application.

Correspondence from Jack McCall was read, stating his resignation as Police Chief effective this May 31st, and thanking the people in the community for their support. President Hallman praised Mr. McCall for the tremendous service that he has provided for the village, and wished him luck in his future ventures.

Moved by Byers, seconded by Schultz to write a letter of appreciation to Jack McCall, expressing our support and appreciation of his dedicated police work in the Village of Clarkston and Independence Township. Motion carried unanimously.

Trustee Byers reported that a phone answering device for the village hall would cost around $120. The council discussed whether to get something like this or not.

Moved by Weber, seconded by Byers to adjourn at 9:10 p.m. Motion carried unanimously.

Friendly's: Bailey Lake's super first-grade market

The cereal boxes are empty. Bread bags are stuffed with paper towels. And the meat trays are adorned with paper cutouts.

But the coins clinking in the cash register are real at Friendly's Food Store.

Friendly's is nestled in a corner of Miss Nancy Malkim's first grade classroom at Bailey Lake School.

The store is complete with a mini shopping cart and shelves of neatly displayed groceries.

A cashier stands ready to add up the sales, and a bagger holds a grocery sack open to pop in the goods.

Cute. The kids are playing store.

But the 31 children are also learning about more sophisticated things like career education, handling money and nutrition.

They know what the boss is responsible for in a store.

"The managers make sure nobody's goofing off," says Chris Ketzler.

What if someone is goofing off? "Fire 'em," he says.

The manager also "counts the money," explains Sonny Williams.

And "helps people get stuff and tells 'em prices," says Chris Garcia.

Shoppers at Friendly's are organized and wise. "They bring a list with them, so you can remember everything," says Colleen Shaening, "and you don't have to run back to the store if you forgot."

Shoppers "buy a little from the four different foods," explains Amy Kiger, and names the four basic food groups—"bread and cereal, fresh vegetables and fruit, meat and milk products."

One of the biggest problems the children had setting up the store was finding enough space.

Even before they studied nutrition, the children chose to remove junk food, Miss Malkim says.

"Pop, processed, sweetened cereal and potato chips" were removed to make room for good food, she says.

"Some people don't care about their little kids," says Robbie Jellison, "and they want 'em to get cavities."

The most expensive item in the store—meat—is 25 cents. Children have a budget of 75 cents and they're learning how to add up purchases.

Mark Hamelin says he's learned "not to buy very much things when you don't got much money, 'cause you'll have to put 'em back."

Naming the store took a week of voting on a variety of choices, Miss Malkim says.

The children talked about why they want to go back to a store and decided that "being friendly and helpful" were the most important attitudes of personnel.

That's how Friendly's got its name. It even won out over "Super First Grade Food Store."

Friendly's manager Chris Garcia checks on grocery prices for a customer.

Careful shopper Shelly Mead reads labels before she decides to buy.
