Citizens committee says

'New junior high top need'

By Pat Braunagel
Associate editor

Clarkston School District's Citizens Advisory Committee has zeroed in on a new junior high school as the district's most crucial need.

Construction of a $6.2-million building to replace Clarkston Junior High School is given top priority in the committee's report that will be presented to the school board tonight.

Final draft of the report, the result of five months of study, was hammered out in a Monday night meeting of the advisory committee.

The committee is meeting with the school board at 7:30 tonight at the district's administration building.

The facilities proposal favored by the committee calls for a new school to be built comparable to Sashabaw Junior High School, with the present Clarkston

Junior High to be converted for use as an elementary school.

Enlargement of the high school's media center-library by 7,000 square feet also is included in the proposed construction package.

Total cost of the construction, including fees, equipment and site development, has been roughly estimated at $8.8 million, requiring a debt millage increase of about 4 mills.

However, the estimates were "ball park" figures not based on any specific plans.

The junior high proposed by the committee is a "no frills" facility, the committee has emphasized.

Specific plans for a building would have to be prepared for the school board if it decides to take a building proposal to the electorate.

The 30-member, broadly-based citizens advisory committee was appointed by the board of education last December, following the defeat of two bonding proposals at the polls a year ago.

Those propositions were for the construction of multipurpose rooms at all of the elementary schools and for the construction of a new elementary school.

A prime reason for the defeat of those proposals, some committee members have noted, was the assumption that construction of a new junior high school is inevitable.

The proposal to construct a new junior high and use CJH as an elementary school is seen as an answer to the district's school needs at present and for some time into the future.

Enrollment projections predict a "stable" school population, growing only 1.6 percent over the next five years.

The proposal favored by the committee is one of seven options it has considered. All are included in the report to be submitted to the board.

Board backs Parview dead end

By Kathy Greenfield
Staff writer

Problems with speeding traffic creating dangerous conditions were presented by two groups of Independence Township residents to the township board Tuesday night.

The board agreed to write letters to the Oakland County Road Commission supporting both proposals—one for a dead end on Parview by a 3-1 vote, and the other for speed limit signs on Pine Knob Road by a verbal vote.

Parview resident Scott Robeson requested the township's endorsement for the road's dead end.

"What we're after here tonight is a letter from the board either stating your recommendation or non-recommendation on dead ending Parview," he said.

Parview, part of the Waterford Hill subdivision, carries traffic between Dixie Highway and Andersonville Road.

A survey made last year by the Oakland County Road Commission determined that 1,400 vehicles use the road in a 24-hour period, Robeson said.

Over 50 percent of the vehicles were through traffic and the average speed was 48 m.p.h., he said.

He talked with the road commission several weeks ago about considering the dead end, Robeson said, and they told him the chances were good if police and fire officials and the board recommended the action.

Supervisor Floyd (Whitey) Tower said he felt the board shouldn't get involved until after the road commission made its recommendation.

A letter from Oakland County Sheriff Johannes Spreen and comments from Charles Kimbel, acting director of police services, and Frank (Tink) Ronk, fire chief, agreed there were problems with traffic, but expressed concern over blocking the fire and police emergency route.

Robeson repeatedly requested a letter from the board.

"It should be what the people on Parview and Waterford Hill want, and I know the majority want that road closed," he said. "Either you go along with it or you don't."

"We're here to help the citizens of the community, don't get me wrong," Tower said.

The president of Waterford Hill's subdivision, Roger Carlson, expressed concern about children, as did several other citizens.

"We're talking about the right of children to enjoy living in a subdivision without endangering their lives," Carlson said.

Trustee Frederick Ritter made the motion to support the blocking of Parview.

Clerk Christopher Rose, Hallman and Ritter voted yes and Tower voted no. Trustee Jerry Powell was absent.

The petition requesting a 25 m.p.h. speed limit on Pine Knob Road was presented by Linda Sommers, who lives on the road across from Bailey Lake School.

"It's a gravel road," she said, explaining the present 55 m.p.h. speed limit, "but there's also a school there."

The pot holes, dust and high speeds make the conditions dangerous, she said.

Rose made the motion that the board recommend to the Oakland County Road Commission that Pine Knob Road be posted permanently at 25 m.p.h. from Clarkston-Orion Road to one mile north of Bailey Lake School.

Correction

Our apologies to Glenn R. Underwood, who assures us he will continue to serve as a Springfield Township trustee.

In the Clarkston News story on Springfield Township candidates last week, the reporter stated that Underwood is not seeking re-election this year. There's a very good reason for that—his four-year term does not expire until 1980.

We regret our unfortunate error.

Candidates open campaigns

'This is where we live, and we want to preserve all the things about it that are good.' -- Carolyn Place

'We have to work collectively as a board, set priorities and still maintain the level of requested service from the population.'

-- Floyd Tower

By Kathy Greenfield
Staff writer

Concerned about the growth and development of Independence Township, Carolyn Place has decided to run for township supervisor.

Because there is only one candidate from each party, the primary race on August 8 will be no contest.

Place, a Republican, will run against Floyd (Whitey) Tower, a Democrat, in the Nov. 7 election.

"I was encouraged by several community leaders, both in county and local government, to run for this position," Place said.

"One thing I find needs looking into is that we need to hire a fulltime planner," she said. "In terms of growth at the present time, that is a critical position."

"When we had a fulltime planner, he was capable of acting as a buffer between the township board and developers," she explained. "I felt at that time there definitely was a feeling with the leadership about the way the township should be developed."

Place, 5615 Chickadee, said she also would like to see the "wealth of expertise" by township residents used, naming architects, budget and planning experts, and building and zoning experts.

"When you tap these people in terms of their intellectual resources, we all gain," she said. "This is where we live and we want to preserve all the things about it that are good."

Place, 43, has a master's degree in special education from Wayne State University. She is presently employed by Oxford Community Schools.

She is trustee on the Clarkston School Board and serves as chairperson for Independence Bottles for Building, the Oakland County Recycling Center and Concerned Citizens for Mental Health.

Carolyn Place

Floyd (Whitey) Tower

She is also a member of the Independence Township Planning Commission.

Her husband, Donald, is assistant director of special education for Oakland Schools. They have three children.

Tower, 47, is presently serving his first two-year term as township supervisor.

"The two-year term is certainly not enough for continuation of government administrative positions," Tower said. "The many different agencies we deal with in the political structure take a period of time for effective contact and benefit to our community. The four-year term certainly will improve this and still offer process if voters wish to remove someone."

Many of the projects are in the process of being finalized, he said.

"The land acquisition proposals, joint disaster programs, Oakland County road agreements, senior citizen's project, Community Block Grants for house repairs, state highway car pool locations, negotiations for state highway traffic ramps and Oakland County Solid Waste proposal are just a few of the projects that take time," he said.

"We have to work collectively as a board, set priorities and still maintain the level of requested service from the population," he said. "I'll pursue reduction of taxes in areas needed with our reserve surpluses."

"I don't have any objection to meeting for public on cash reserves, but only after our audit is completed," he added. "Previous voted board projects, not completed, are a part of those surpluses."

He graduated from the Detroit Trade School in 1958 and recently completed a township budget course sponsored by Michigan State University.

Tower, 177 N. Main, served one term on the Clarkston Village Council, and five years on the township planning commission.

He was elected by the Oakland County Association on Township Supervisors as secretary-treasurer for the 1977-78 term and is presently a member of the Oakland County Community Development Act (CDA) Advisory Board.

Tower and his wife, Dawn, have six children and one grandchild.

Vandermark gets state appointment

Gov. William G. Milliken Tuesday announced the appointment of Robert O. Vandermark of 6657 Snowapple Drive, Independence Township, to the State Tax commission and designated him as chairman.

He will serve for the remainder of a term expiring Sept. 13, 1981, subject to Senate confirmation.

Vandermark, Madison Heights city assessor, will also serve as the tax commission's representative on the State Assessor's Board for a term expiring at the pleasure of the governor. He succeeds Robert L. Purnell of Okemos who formerly held both positions.

Vandermark holds a level four certification from the State of Michigan, and is certified by the state as a personal property auditor.

He served as Independence Township assessor and township supervisor prior to his present position. He served for two years as Berkley City Assessor and from 1966-68 he was an appraiser for the City of Troy.

He attended Wayne State University, where he majored in business administration, and has taken additional courses at Oakland University, University of Michigan and Oakland Community College.

Vandermark and his wife have two children.

His appointment is effective July 5.

Robert Vandermark is sworn into state office by Independence Township Clerk Christopher Rose in brief ceremony here Monday.

Firemen prepare July 4 parade

Floats, bands and other vehicles of celebration are being organized by the Independence Township Fire Department for Clarkston's Fourth of July parade.

The parade this year, scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. at Clarkston Junior High School, will have a miscellaneous theme.

Cash prizes will be awarded for the three top floats. There also will be three separate prizes for the children's division this year.

All three of Clarkston School District's marching bands will participate.

CETA freeze chills township

By Kathy Greenfield
Staff writer

As the freeze continues on employees hired under the federal government's comprehensive Employee Training Act (CETA), Independence Township officials are faced with problems maintaining staffs.

"If the CETA programs stops, the township will not stop, but the people will notice a dramatic change," said Clerk Christopher Rose. "We have 20 people on CETA out of 55 employees, so that would be a big chunk."

CETA funds became available in the summer of 1974. The funds provide about $12,000 per employee, including $10,000 in salary and $2,000 in benefits.

"The average CETA employee gets more than $10,000, some get less," Rose said. If the salary is higher than the CETA limit, money comes from the township's general fund.

Theoretically CETA funds are designed to allow local governments to employ the unemployed and train them for regular positions.

"However, in fact, the people with skills are the people hired," Rose said, adding some present CETA employees quit previous jobs and stayed out of work so they could be hired under the program.

That's perfectly legal under the letter of the law, Rose said, but it's not why the program was designed.

In April, the township was notified that CETA positions would be frozen.

"CETA has told us that we cannot hire any more people on the CETA program and if a CETA person leaves, we cannot replace him," Rose explained.

Although the township "went through a flurry of hiring a whole bunch of people" on the CETA program before the freeze took effect, five CETA employees have quit and most departments have not rehired, he said.

Department budgets do not include enough money to replace CETA positions with employees on regular salaries.

The park and recreation department has been the hardest hit.

"It really hurt the recreation department—right now we're working with very few people," said Treasurer Elizabeth Hallman.

When the assistant director of the recreation department quit, he was not replaced because of the CETA connection.

"Everybody in my department is showing up and doing their best to share the load," said Timothy Doyle, park and recreation director at a recent township board meeting.

"We're bumping into each other down there trying to keep up, but we're managing."

Last summer, 33 people were hired for the recreation department under the CETA program.

"They said we could not do it again," Rose said. "We have to find other funds to pay for these positions."

Through a summer employment program set up for hiring youths, the department does have funds for five positions.

They were hoping to get some help from the Work Opportunity Resource Corps (WORC) that provides state funds for hiring youths ages 16 to 21.

Last week, he learned that the township's application for WORC funds was denied, said Doyle.

The police services department is also faced with potential problems. Out of the nine employees, seven are paid with CETA funds.

Acting director of police services Charles Kimbel said he's just taking it day by day to see what happens.

"We're not overstaffed with people, so when you lose a person, it creates a real problem in such a small department," he said, but "it hasn't affected us yet with the exception of one job we've lost (the village meter maid)."

The original CETA program was supposed to run out in September, said Township Supervisor Floyd (Whitey) Tower, and he thinks the freeze was just a warning.

"I don't like to get encouraged over it," he said, "but we've had an indication from the county that (the freeze) might possibly be lifted."

In the meantime, surplus funds that total approximately $19,000 are sitting in the general fund.

"Because of the CETA situation, we've got to hold some reserve there," Tower said.

Heads Jaycees

James S. Randall, 6601 Maple Dr., Independence Township, is newly elected president of the Clarkston Jaycees for 1978-79. He was installed May 27 at Holy Green Golf Course in Springfield Township. Randall said one of his goals as president of the Jaycees is to expand membership of the local chapter.

Fire budget set

The Independence Township fire department budget for the fiscal year that started April 1 has been approved.

The budget was based on 2 mills, or $303,000 which is the combined total of taxes from Independence Township and Clarkston Village earmarked for the fire department. One mill is $1 per $1,000 of property valuation.

The budget was adjusted from the original proposal to include raises that were above the expected 6 percent.

The fire captain's salary was increased by $365 over 6 percent to $16,000. Salaries for the three engineers were increased by $300 over 6 percent to $14,000.

The fire equipment money budgeted was reduced from $11,894 to $6,750.

Funds for land acquisition were increased to $40,000 including $30,000 from millage funds and $10,000 from revenue sharing.

The budget was unanimously approved by the township board at their regular meeting last week.

Ring, ring. Who's there?

by Pat Braunagel

"You're never home!"
It's a familiar lament between friends and acquaintances who have tried to catch each other for conversation or invitations by telephone.

There have been times when I've moaned in reply, "We're always home," and others when I've had to agree with my accuser.

Of course, I have also been the party of the first part in some instances, complaining because I couldn't reach people at home or at their places of employment.

No more—thanks to intelligence we have gained from Michigan Bell Telephone Co.

Clarkston News office manager Donna Fahrner recently attended a Michigan Bell seminar for persons who make pleas via telephone for payment of debts.

Among the information she brought back was a list of when to call who, based on what their profession is.

If you're an attorney, for instance, Ma Bell knows you're apt to be free up until 10 a.m. and after 4 p.m. Construction workers are among a handful of persons who can be reached during their lunch break—and again in the late afternoon. Bankers can only be caught before 10 a.m.

Urban retail store managers should be phoned a half hour before their stores open, and suburban store managers at noon.

Doctors can best be reached from "11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. (or rainy days)," Bell knows.

The prime time to catch members of the clergy is midweek, about the same time you'd be able to contact a beauty parlor operator ("Tuesday or Wednesday").

Collectors are advised to call personnel directors early to mid-morning and assistant personnel directors in the early afternoon.

The directions for contacting movers are "from 4th to 8th of month or 17th to 22nd of month—avoid Mondays."

Some are obvious: teachers, after 3 p.m.; theater owners and managers, before 2 p.m.; auditors, between 12th and 20th of the month; and surgeons, midafternoon.

Persons who want to contact a radio or television announcer are advised to listen to the station.

Yes, we're going to tell you about newspaper people.

Call those who work on morning papers during the early afternoon in their offices and those who work on evening papers in the midafternoon at home, Bell says. Printers and publishers are most apt to be around after 3 p.m.

The collectors weren't told when to call weekly newspaper personnel, an omission for which we're grateful.

Telephone company employees weren't on the list either.

Letters to the editor

Let's hear board

To the Editor,

As I understand it, the purpose of the Library Advisory Board is to study the library and the librarian and to then extend such recommendations as the situation demands.

During all this controversy about Mr. Lahiri, I have not heard one word from the Library Advisory Board. Why have they been silent while Mr. Lahiri has been allowed to petition the public in a most unethical way? Also, why has the Township Board not allowed the Library Advisory Board to attend the hearings regarding Mr. Lahiri?

I feel that the Township Board cannot possibly make a fair judgement in the Lahiri case without all of the available information before them.

How about some legitimate facts on this issue from the people on the Advisory Board who have been directly involved with the library for years?

Sincerely,
Christie Shull

Letter policy

The Clarkston News encourages letters from our readers.

No restrictions are placed on length, however the newspaper reserves the right to condense and edit the letters.

As a matter of policy all letters must be signed and the writer's address and telephone number must be included. Names will be withheld at discretion of the editor.

Sheriff wants roles defined

To the editor:

The controversy over the Role Definition Bill 1517 has escalated now to the point where the Michigan State Police, local police, many local politicians and some of the media have joined in an unfortunate attack on all of the Sheriffs in Michigan through the use of misstatements and untruths.

This Bill was based on the recommendations of two special committees appointed by the governor in order to end some of the confusion concerning the role of Sheriffs' Departments in patrolling secondary roads.

This Bill will not decrease the size of the State Police or force them to cut any of their services. In fact, their new budget has been increased by $29 million this year to a total of $130 million.

If the State Police are so concerned about patrolling the freeway system in the state, then why did they pull out of the metropolitan area in 1974 and tell all of the local departments that if an expressway system ran through the local jurisdiction, then that local police department would be responsible for handling that portion of the expressway?

The Sheriffs of this state are not out to empire build, but are attempting to serve the citizens of their counties to the fullest extent. In 1976, the majority of fatal accidents occurred on the secondary roads in those areas patrolled by the Sheriffs' Departments and local police.

The 83 Sheriffs in Michigan are the only police officials in the entire state that are directly answerable to the citizens they serve.

Opponents of the Sheriffs' Departments claim that this bill will further fragment law enforcement.

To the contrary—this Bill, for the first time, defines the roles of the State Police and the Sheriffs' Departments and gives the primary responsibility for patrol of the freeway system to the State Police and the primary duty for patrol of the secondary county roads to the Sheriffs' Departments.

It will eliminate duplication of effort and the waste of taxpayers' money for that duplication.

Sincerely,
Johannes F. Spreer

Jim's jottings

About deer, dollars, downers

By Jim Sherman

Right now is a good time to talk about deer hunting, 'cause no one really cares in June. That's probably what the Michigan Deer Hunters Association thought when they published the 1977 kill figures this month.

Anyway, just so you public land hunters of deer don't envy we hunters on private lands, here's the comparison...in the Upper only.

On public lands the kill was 1 per 3.36 hunters. On our private club the kill was 1 per 5.7 hunters.

A couple other interesting things about this MDHA poll: Hunters oppose the fluorescent orange law 77 percent to 23 percent, in both peninsulas.

Feelings are the opposite in the peninsulas on antlerless deer hunting. In the lower hunters go for it 85 to 15, in the Upper it's opposed 81 to 19.

Incidentally, the MDHA figures for private land deer kill in the Lower is 1 to 2.9 hunters, and on public lands 1 per 12.9.

My how time (dollars) fly. Just eight years ago, 1969, the maximum social security tax a worker paid was $374. Now it's $1,070.

The total federal budget was $185 billion and the total federal debt stood at $279 billion, compared to $700 billion at the end of 1977.

Maybe the guy's right who said the current taxpayer revolt should be aimed more at federal than state spending. But, why not both, then add local governments, too.

Give Mark Twain credit for this one: "We should be careful to get out of an experience only the wisdom that is in it—and stop there; lest we be like the cat that sits down on the hot stove-lid. She will never sit down on a hot stove-lid again—and that is well; but also she will never sit down on a cold one anymore."

Wonder if the same team of scientists is working on a quack grass killer that is working on a cure for the common cold?

I've taken to reading a bit lately to lessen my "down" time. This few lines struck a note: Two men looked out from prison bars. One saw mud, the other saw the stars.

That's what I need, a little more time looking for stars, and smelling the roses along the way.
Smile, JAS, Smile!

Bouquets For Artrain

To the editor:

Bouquets to everyone involved in making the Michigan Artrain opening such an enjoyable evening.

The Madrigal Choir of Clarkston High School was a most pleasurable part of the program. Under the able direction of Grayce Warren, the group truly seemed to enjoy performing at the open-air concert.

A very special thanks goes to Marc Alan of The Clarkston

Mills for sponsoring a reception following the opening ceremonies. The most generous hospitality of our congenial host and new neighbor was enjoyed by everyone.

All in all, Joan Kopietz and the Clarkston Community Arts Council deserve much praise for the tremendous job of coordinating the entire project.

Thank you all for the enriching and delightful experience.

Familiar encounters

They're looking for a few good homes. The Youth for Understanding program, that is.

The world's largest international exchange program, Youth for Understanding (YFU), will bring some 4,500 youngsters from overseas to the United States this summer, anxious to share a unique cultural experience with a volunteer host family.

According to Sandy Thornberry of Davisburg, area representative for YFU, two of those 4,500 students will be heading to the Clarkston area before the start of the next school year, although they have yet to be matched with families.

"The people who know how to love," says Sandy, "will be the people who take the kids."

The aim of the program is to expose the international students to family life as opposed to the tourist atmosphere that most visitors to this country experience. As a result, families and students develop permanent relationships.

"It's fantastic! I've had three students and hope to have more," says Sandy. "My home is always open."

Looking for that special kind of warmth from the Clarkston community will be Maria Parisiadou from Greece and Jussi Rantanen from Finland, both 17.

Hosting families offer room and board and in return are afforded a rare and rich opportunity for cultural exchange.

You can obtain more information about the YFU program by contacting Sandy Thornberry at 625-4957.

To Chief Kimbel

To the editor:

I want to thank Police Chief Kimbel for his very early morning stake-out to catch the vandal of our trees. I am very glad to say the young man was not from our area.

Thank you—to those that are helping to care for the trees and flower boxes and trying to keep the sidewalks clean. However, we need more help to water and clean up. A few of the businesses are really cooperating, but not enough.

I am still suggesting that each business—upstairs and down—donate $10 for summer so that we can hire someone to care for the trees and boxes. The small committee is doing its best, but we still need help.

A big thank-you to the Clarkston Farm and Garden Club for cleaning up the village park and river bank and planting pachysandra.

A grateful thank-you to the following for their donations:

the Jackson Beyer family, an anonymous donor and Ms. Lisa Bechenhauer of Mt. Clemens, who donated because her family lives here and she likes and believes in our village.

Now, the big news. We have two families in our village that will match funds up to a total of $1,000. Come on, folks—lets get them to pay every penny of it. No donation is too small—because it all adds up.

Donations are tax deductible and should be made out to the Village of Clarkston—Beautification. Send to Art Pappas, Village of Clarkston, 375 Depot Road, Clarkston, MI 48016.

We would like—along with many other things—to put up signs at village limits to try to slow down traffic.

Last, but far from least, I want to thank everyone for putting money in the Clarkston Beautification canisters.

Fontie ApMadoc
Chairman of Beautification Committee

Woe unto ticket buyers

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Kar of Independence Township will be missing the summer concert series at Pine Knob. But it is not that they didn't try to get tickets.

The reason the Kars, who live on Cayuga Drive, are so upset is that they went to great lengths to be sure they had tickets for this season, making a special trip to the Fisher Theatre box office the day after the schedule was announced.

The concert schedule was released and printed for the first time in the Clarkston News on April 13. Mrs. Kar placed the couple's order April 14.

"I got down there at 10 a.m.," said Mrs. Kar. "The girl told me that ours was the first application they had gotten. They didn't know it was advertised in the paper yet."

Mrs. Kar wrote a check for $332 to cover the purchase of six tickets to Pop Series One. They indicated a preference for Saturday night and there was no mention that there were any problems with that request, she said.

The check was later returned with a letter which said the seats for the series they wanted were sold out.

Newspaper reports said over 1,000 orders were filled April 17, three days after Mrs. Kar had gone to the Fisher Theatre.

"Saturday night was gone, those were already sold to the season ticket holders," said Richard Reetz of the Netherlander Theatrical Corp., owners of Pine Knob Music Theatre and the Fisher Theatre. "The schedule was released early and we were not prepared for it."

There were, however, tickets available in the pavilion for the series the Kars had wanted on other nights. But the Kars were overlooked.

"If they order Saturday night, that's the only thing we go by," said Reetz. "We can't take the option of sending out tickets for another night—it would be ridiculous."

"I know they're a disorganized group," said Mrs. Kar. "I have been there for tickets before."

'If it Fitz . . .'

Slim Jim skips lunch

by Jim Fitzgerald

Because I don't run around the block 10 times every morning, a reader has bet that "Fitzgerald looks like a 200-pound turnip." This is nonsense, of course.

Sometimes I think you people aren't paying close enough attention to my wisdom. Only a few weeks ago I pointed out that people don't get fat from not running. They get fat from eating too much.

Running to lose weight makes as much sense as eating spaghetti to win a foot race. Think about it.

Don't start reading this paragraph yet. Think some more about what I just told you.

OK. Now we can get on with today's wisdom. It concerns the wise way to shed fat and keep it shed. No weird diets are required. You don't have to eat boiled dandelions while sitting on your feet in downtown Bombay. And you don't have to jog.

All you have to do is quit eating lunch.

Nutritionally, lunches are overrated. People eat them out of habit, not hunger. Lunches have become rituals which must be performed before two people can talk business, or make love, or plan dinner.

A boss will take an employee to lunch to promote him, or fire him. World War III will be declared over lunch. Years later, the survivors will delay signing the peace treaty until the luncheon dishes have been cleared.

A person invited to lunch may weigh 400 pounds. He doesn't need lunch, he needs therapy. But he goes to lunch because to refuse would be rude, or poor business, or fatal to a romantic liaison he's been enjoying with a 250-pound beach ball.

Lunch is traditional, something like Bob Hope. It doesn't have to be good, it has to be consumed. Just as it is unpatriotic to admit Hope hasn't been funny in 20 years, it is uncivilized to skip lunch.

Working people who can't get out to a restaurant still don't flout the tradition. They brown bag it and drip mustard all over that day's gross national product. Automobiles that went through the assembly line during lunch are often recalled because of bread crumbs.

When I tell people they should skip lunch, they get angry. They deny that they eat lunch for social or economic reasons, or simply out of habit. They say they eat lunch for their health.

One fatty said he gets a dull ache in his stomach when he misses lunch. He said he can't stand the pain. So, to lose weight, he runs every night until his legs throb and his lungs burn and he throws up.

Another fatty said her head aches if she doesn't eat at noon. Medical men say her headache is caused by worry, not hunger. She worries that, if she doesn't eat lunch with her friends, they will be free to gossip about how fat she is getting.

In 1973, I did look like a 200-pound turnip. That's when I quit eating lunch. It took me four months to lose 25 pounds. Every time the scale said I'd shed five pounds, I invited friends and strangers to a candlelight ceremony in which I punched another hole in my belt. This is the secret to keeping the fat shed.

Brag about your new slimness and the steel willpower which made it possible. Demonstrate by putting your skinny body and a living room couch into your old pants. Be an obnoxious bore. Tell the world lunch isn't necessary, just as I've told you. Everyone will hate you, but that's good.

No one will ask you to lunch. Now you know the wise way to lose fat. Running doesn't do it. Running is for catching buses. Not eating lunch is for getting slim. Think about that. never mind what's in this paragraph. You should be thinking.

Warming up for fun and learning at the Davisburg Jaycettes' Safety Town are [from left] Kevin Still, David Still, Doria Bowker and Jeremy Bowker.

Kids steer toward safety

Safety Town is a city in miniature complete with signs, houses and advertisements painted on buildings.

Mini-people, ages 4½ to 6, ride their Big Wheel "cars" that have license plates and they learn about safety.

Sponsored by the Davisburg Jaycettes, the school will meet

July 10 through July 21 from 10 a.m. until noon. The cost is $5 for each child.

A licensed teacher instructs the children in safety around roads, getting off and on school buses and water safety.

Two classes for parents held during the sessions will cover poison safety and basic first aid. Safety Town will be at the Davisburg Mill Pond and although class size is limited to 30 children, there are some openings.

Pre-registration is required. For more information, call Eilene Still at 634-5013. To register by mail, send a check for $5 a child to Mrs. Ina Golden, 10088 King Rd., Davisburg 48019.

Pine Knob holds party for township

By Kathy Greenfield
Staff writer

Pine Knob Country Club and Resort was the scene for a party thrown for Independence Township employees last week.

The invitation, in letter form, was addressed to township Supervisor Floyd (Whitey) Tower.

"Although our club is private, we feel it is appropriate to extend a warm welcome to all of the Independence Township employees and to invite them to participate in an informal open house on June 14, 1978.

"Plan on a day of golf, tennis and swimming. Locker room facilities will be provided as well as golf carts. An open pit barbecue will be served," read the letter dated June 5.

It was signed by Pine Knob

Investment owners Joseph Locricchio and Gary Francell.

The party was to expose township employees to Pine Knob, Locricchio said.

"Once someone sees Pine Knob, they'll realize what an asset to the community it is," he said. "We opened to all the employees to give them all the idea and carry out the word of mouth for us."

"Only about 50 to 60 total people were here, which was much less than we had planned for, but enough to carry the word back," he said.

Tower said he went to Pine Knob for lunch and enjoyed taking a tour of the condominiums on the site.

Most of the employees who attended either went for lunch or after work with their families, he said.

"I put a memo out that they could either go to lunch or after hours," he said.

"It ruffled a few feathers, but that's part of the governmental procedure," he added. "You'd like to think that everybody knew that. It was no intent of this office that anybody had the afternoon off to spend at the open house."

The golf cart rides were nice for the kids, and some township employees who had been writing permits for Pine Knob five years had a chance to tour the site for the first time, he said.

"There was absolutely no drinking, because they don't have a license," he added.

Do you sing, dance, play an instrument?

Summer entertainment will not end at Clarkston Village Park, if the village council has its way.

James Schultz, trustee, is on a talent search for local people with community spirit.

He was appointed by the council to organize summer entertainment one night a week at the park's band shell.

"I'd like as broad a base as possible," Schultz said. Forms of entertainment like dramatic or poetic readings would be a welcome addition.

"I'm interested in any musical group--anything from popular to folk to polka bands," he said.

"Classical music is fine," he added. "I'd like to hit as wide an interest as possible."

Schultz has one jazz group lined up, he said, and the entertainment will start as soon as he finds other people willing to share their talents.

"I know there's a lot of musical talent in Clarkston," he said. "It's just getting them together."

If individuals are interested in taking part, he would help get a group together, he said.

Volunteers can call Schultz at 625-3062.

Village Players plan for 1978-79 season

Two comedies, "The Man Who Came to Dinner" and "See How They Run," are among the four plays selected for 1978-79 production by the Clarkston Village Players.

The mystery "Laura" and the romantic drama "Picnic" are also to be performed by the group next season.

Besides selecting plays for the next season, the Players also elected officers at a recent meeting.

Russ Inman was re-elected to head the group. Other officers are Karen Sage, vice president; Sandy Sanford, corresponding secretary; and Pat MacArthur, recording secretary.

Grand Prix

This year, a dramatically new car has earned the right to bear the Grand Prix name. To symbolize Pontiac's dedication to styling flair and performance. To engineering innovation and luxury that never gets in the way of driving.

One look reveals this new car's heritage. The clean lines. The crisp flanks.

The chiseled look of the new radiator-style grille. The tailored cut of the new roofline. The styling has a strength that's unmistakably Grand Prix.

Inside, this trim new Grand Prix will surprise you with its roominess. With more head room and leg room than last year's Grand Prix.

And room is just the beginning of GP's luxury. Extensive use of the latest computer technology gives Grand Prix a new full-frame design that helps isolate road noise. And helps give you a smooth, quiet ride.

New rubber body mounts help damp out vibration. New door and body seals help seal out noise.

Thick new one-piece foam-backed carpeting and a new one-piece foam-backed headliner help absorb sound.

Together they help produce the kind of ride you expect of Grand Prix.

It's obvious the new Grand Prix was designed by people who love to drive. The new instrument panel is clean and functional. The dials have the muted luster of brushed aluminum faces. The controls are just a touch away. The turn signal stalk also controls the high beams. The steering wheel is even cushioned.

A responsive 3.8 litre (231 CID) V-6 is standard this year. As is Pontiac's famed Radial Tuned Suspension with radial tires.

Now you know how this new automobile has earned the Grand Prix name.

Warner CHS mat mentor

Gary Warner

By Roger Hess
Special writer

Gary Warner, an assistant coach for Clarkston High School's varsity football team for the past three seasons, has been named to coach the Wolves' wrestling squad.

A drafting and metal shop teacher at Clarkston Junior High, Warner has also coached wrestling at the school for five years. During three of those seasons, his teams posted winning records.

"He was very successful at running a good junior high program and was able to get students out for the team," said Conrad Bruce, athletic director of Clarkston Schools. "I think he has the potential to be an excellent high school coach."

Warner will take over coaching chores from Toby Carter who agreed to resign from his position with the wrestling team earlier this year. Carter was asked to resign by school officials who are hoping to build a wrestling program with more student involvement.

"I think we'll do real well in the league," said Warner. "It's going to be a lot of hard work. Between Rick Detkowski, my assistant coach, and myself I think we can do a good job."

A native of Middleville, which is south of Grand Rapids, Warner makes his home on White Lake Road in Independence Township.

"I had been considering another job in the western part of the state, but they didn't offer exactly what I wanted," said Warner. "Connie (Bruce) gave me the control I need to run a good program."

Warner is a graduate from Ferris State University.

Independent Seniors hustle

The Independent Seniors showed little mercy as they passed their first test of the season with flying colors, beating the Mature Minglers 50-19, in a softball game played last week.

The Independent Seniors, who team name is Coach's Corners Road Runners, did show some compassion for the players from Keego Harbor and Bloomfield Hills, ending their anguish when the mercy rule called the game after six innings.

Darlene Bringard, senior citizen director and team manager for the Independent Seniors, was especially proud of the Road Runners performance.

"Everyone did real well," said Bringard. "We have four women on the team and the ladies came through really well also."

According to Bringard, it was a total team effort, with every phase of the game—throwing, running, catching and hitting—executed to perfection.

There are 18 players on the Independent Seniors, and the average age is 65.

The Road Runners will be playing their next senior citizen league game at home June 28, against the Troy Dreamers, who also won their first game 32-12 over the Waterford Jets. The battle for first place begins at 9:30 a.m. at Clintonwood Park.

by David McNeven, Coach

Years ago at the high school level, there was a lot of difference between girls' basketball and boys' basketball. The girls had six people on the team, three guards and three forwards. The guards had to stay on one-half of the floor and the forwards on the other half. None could dribble the ball more than three times. I guess this was all because the people who made the rules thought the girls couldn't handle full court running or dribbling. Gradually rules changed and some players were allowed full run of the court and more dribbling was allowed. Now, thanks to women's liberation, boys' and girls' basketball rules are the same, and girls can get the same benefits from the game as boys.

Ball field off limits —for cars

Everyone knows that cars don't belong on ball fields. Don't they?

It seems not. Timothy Doyle, director of Independence Township's Park and Recreation Department, was forced to issue an edict banning parked cars on school ball fields.

"I don't know when it started," says Doyle. "But people come to the games, drive over the curbs and park right behind first base. A couple of years ago a car came out of gear and ran into a dugout."

To remedy the situation, the mandate prohibits the play of any baseball or softball game until all cars are parked in designated parking lots. Once an umpire has issued the first warning there will be granted 15 minutes of grace for said car or (cars) to be moved. Failure to comply will force the game to be cancelled, and violators may be ticketed.

It might throw his game off

Don't tell him he's handicapped

By Roger Hess

Although Lee Vogl is a paraplegic, keeping active is not a problem for him.

In fact, it's just the opposite. The Independence Township resident bowls, swims, likes to play tennis, volunteers time to help other physically handicapped people and is a member of two basketball teams.

Vogl started playing basketball two years ago after an accident which confined him to a wheel chair.

"For recreational therapy, they had a gym at the hospital and about four of us guys used to go and shoot baskets," said Vogl. "It got pretty interesting, so I got ahold of the Detroit Sparks and went down and tried out with them."

During the past two seasons, Vogl has been on a Detroit Sparks team that won the National Wheelchair Basketball Tournament in 1977 and finished third in national competition for the 1978 campaign.

"It's a privilege to play with the Detroit Sparks," said Vogl. "There is a lot of glamour and glory associated with that team."

Another reason Vogl enjoys playing with the Sparks is the opportunity it gives him to travel. Throughout a season that stretches from September to May, Vogl visits a host of different cities which include Toronto, Chicago, Nashville, Indianapolis and Kansas City.

When he isn't playing with the Sparks, Vogl spends some of his free time with another wheelchair basketball team, the Flint Flyers. The Flyers play in the immediate area against high schools, Kiwanis clubs and various other organizations.

While playing the last regular season game for Flint, Vogl broke both of his legs in the action and wasn't aware of it.

"I got knocked out of my chair three times during that game," said Vogl.

"I fell forward and was watching out for my head and arms. I didn't want to get hurt where I could feel it. Heck, it was a good five or six hours before I realized I had broken my legs," he said.

Vogl lives in the Chalet Villa Apartments off Andersonville Road. He is single, in his late 30s, drives his own car equipped with hand controls, cooks, cleans, hates to do the laundry and has a terrific sense of humor.

Aside from his athletic pursuits, Vogl takes an active interest in other handicapped people.

"On Wednesdays we go to the movies. We take four or five guys that are confined to the hospital," said Vogl. "I get to see a lot of free movies and eat a lot of popcorn that way."

But it is obvious that it is for more than just the popcorn that he devotes his time.

"It's hard to relate to someone in a wheelchair. It's hard to say what you do when you go into a restaurant and everybody stares at you," said Vogl. "You're still a human being. You just have to live normally, don't let anything stop you. Be strong, that's all there is to it."

Still restricted somewhat to begin his full range of activities, Vogl points down at the new plastic casts that were put on his legs a couple days earlier, saying it will be another six weeks until the casts come off for good.

Why were the old casts replaced?

"Well they got wet and smashed."

"They threw me in the swimming pool one day, and that didn't help the things at all," said Vogl with a smile.

Who are "they"?

"Oh, I got a bunch of wild women running around here that have no respect for the handicapped."

Lee Vogl has reason to be proud of his basketball trophy.

Kids vote for snake in grassroots poll

A llama, a swan or a snake.

That was the choice given Davisburg and Andersonville Elementary pupils to vote with their pennies when the Davisburg Jaycettes sponsored a contest to choose a Detroit Zoo animal to feed.

A total of $101.62 was collected. One teacher was so taken with the idea of sponsoring a llama that she stuffed the jar with four $1 bills.

It didn't work.

For the second year, a snake won. They chose a non-poisonous variety, because it costs less to feed.

And a sign that says the children of Davisburg and Andersonville are feeding the snake for the year adorns the reptile's glass cage.

About new liquor license

Hallman, Rose still have questions

By Kathy Greenfield
Staff writer

Two Independence Township officials still have questions about the board's decision to recommend Pine Knob's Mansion, Inc. for the township's last Class C liquor license.

"Whoever we give that liquor license to, we're giving them a lot of money," said Clerk Christopher Rose. "So, it's a bit presumptuous to award the license at a meeting without sufficient contact with past applicants and allowing for contacts with other interested parties."

The license recommendation was passed on a 3-2 vote at the June 6 board meeting. Rose and Treasurer Elizabeth Hallman voted no.

"There are just some things that I question about that liquor license and I'm still investigating," Hallman said.

Her main concerns are whether the license should have been awarded to a private club and the introduction of a new corporation.

"Mansion Inc. came to light the night of the meeting and I'd never heard of it before," she said.

Rose expressed similar concern.

"They requested a liquor license for Pine Knob Country Club. We never got a written request for Mansion Inc., and that bothers me," he said.

The original application went to the state liquor control commission from Pine Knob Country Club on March 30, said Walter Keck, supervisor of hearings and appeal section for the commission.

The name change came through June 7, which would indicate that the food and bar service was leased to Mansion Inc., he said.

"We really have no way of knowing what Mansion Inc. is, that's what the investigation is for," Keck said, referring to the commission's procedure for approving the license.

Joseph Locricchio and Gary Francell own Pine Knob Investment, which in turn owns Pine Knob Country Club.

Alex Bardy owns Mansion Inc., the food service company they have leased the food service area to, Locricchio said.

"It's not a rapid change," he said referring to the new corporation. "It's not our wish to be food and beverage participants—we've shown that in the past."

The Pine Knob Music Theatre leases its food service to Ogden Foods, and they leased the country club food service to Bardy because he was qualified, Locricchio said.

The two restaurants served by the Class C license would be open to the public, he said.

"One private road that leads to the condominiums will not be open to the public," he added.

The request to be put on the township agenda for license consideration was made about two or three weeks before the meeting, he said.

"We made the request directly to Mr. Tower," Locricchio said. "They listed on the agenda the request for a Class C license."

The last time the township awarded a Class C liquor license was in 1971, Supervisor Floyd (Whitey) Tower said.

"We held our last license in reserve," Tower said. "It was the feeling of the board that it was held for Pine Knob, but that wouldn't prevent anybody else from taking a crack at it."

The board was aware that the liquor license request would be put on the agenda and that he was going to contact three interested parties, Tower said.

The other parties notified were Hugh Garner and Paul Rice, who owned property but did not have existing buildings.

"I notified them that the liquor license was going to be considered on the agenda, but none of them particularly requested that it be on the agenda," Tower said.

The question of payment of taxes also came up at the board meeting when the request was granted.

Trustee Fred Ritter said he felt the license should go to Pine Knob "whether they pay their taxes on time or not (because) they have contributed a lot to the township."

Ritter then made the motion to recommend Mansion Inc. for the license.

Keck said the liquor control commission will not hold up a license for taxes owed.

"In most instances, if they owed money to Independence Township, then the township should be the one holding it up," he explained.

Party draws SCAMP support

By Kathy Greenfield
Staff writer

John Laffrey's enthusiasm for SCAMP is contagious.

He has gathered support from celebrities and friends who have joined in to throw the second John Laffrey SCAMP Benefit Sunday, designed to delight children and help pay for the SCAMP program.

SCAMP is a five-week day camp experience with one overnight camp-out for over 200 educationally handicapped children.

Programs for physically, mentally and emotionally impaired students are included in the camp that emphasizes positive self-concepts and intense involvement with children by the 95 staff members.

The benefit will include everything from games, clowns, magicians, T-shirts and entertainment to food and drink.

A silent auction with bidding by writing on paper attached to items will feature stained glass and sports' equipment.

The SCAMP staff, SCAMPers and an assortment of celebrities will be on hand.

"It's probably the most effective charity dollar in the Western Hemisphere," said Bill Bonds, celebrity chairman for the benefit and member of TV Channel 7's news team.

There are no administrative costs, because the SCAMP benefit committee volunteers its time. The major expenses are mailing costs and ads placed in weekly papers this year.

Even members of the Clarkston Rotary club and the Deer Lake Racquet Club staff who donate time to prepare food and run the club buy tickets for the event. The only paid staff members are the life guards.

For the event, Forrest and Jacqui Milzow, owners of Deer Lake Racquet Club, have donated the club facilities that include the exercise room, sauna, tennis and racquetball courts, and indoor and outdoor swimming pools.

Larry and Garry Crake, owners of 300 Bowl, Oakland County's largest bowling alley, are donating 25 cents out of every dollar spent on open bowling between June 23 and July 31.

Chuck Jones and Michael Illitch, owners of Little Caesars Pizza's parent company, are donating over 500 pieces of pizza, balloon artists, caricature drawers, helium balloons and magicians for the benefit.

Media celebrities at the event will include Bonds; John Kelly, also from Channel 7; J. P. McCarthy, WJR radio personality; Joe Falls, Detroit Free Press sports columnist; and Bruno Kearns, Oakland Press sports columnist.

Seven members of the Detroit Red Wings hockey team, Detroit Pistons basketball players, three Detroit Tigers baseball players and the Detroit Lions football team will also be represented at the benefit.

Entertainment will feature singer-comedian Bob Posch, the Irish folk duet of Pat and Dusty Rhodes and a banjo band.

Ronald McDonald and four other clowns will also be there.

The Laffrey benefit is the kick-off fund-raiser for next year's SCAMP program. Funds have to be on hand before the camp can open. This year's camp budget is $55,000.

Laffrey said he has gathered pledges totalling $5,000 so far toward his goal of $20,000 for SCAMP.

The benefit will be held at the Deer Lake Racquet Club, 6167 White Lake Rd., Independence Township.

The party will be held from 4 p.m. until 8 p.m., rain or shine.

Tickets must be purchased in advance. They are available at the racquet club and at the Lewis E. Wint Funeral Home, 5929 M-15. Donations are $20 for adults and $5 for children.

For more information, call the racquet club at 625-8686 or Wint's at 625-5231.

Bill Bonds, celebrity chairman of the second annual John Laffrey SCAMP Benefit, takes part in an impromptu game of catch with SCAMPer John Featherstone, who is sitting in his mother's lap.

SCAMP experience 'fantastic'

By Kathy Greenfield
Staff writer

In sharing their feelings about SCAMP, two mothers whose children are enrolled in the camp use words like "fantastic," "super" and "love."

This summer will be her son John's second year in the program, said Lynn Featherstone who lives in Independence Township.

"I think it's super," she said. "It's really helped him in a lot of ways."

"He was in an automobile accident when he was four months old and he was all closed in inside himself—he just withdrew," she said. "No one could get through to him—even I couldn't."

Two years ago, John was enrolled in the school program and SCAMP.

"They managed to get through to him and he opened up to me," she said. "He's talking now, and he never used to."

Village resident Le-Lane McCarty's daughter Susan, who is educably mentally impaired, has also been in the program two years.

"For kids like Susan, they're in a special learning area during the school year," she said. "There's a lot of special learning and individual attention; it's really concentrated."

"They lose a lot of that over the summer," she said.

"(SCAMP) keeps the learning process going, which is really important."

The camp also introduces new activities.

"They're teaching her how to swim; they take a lot of field trips; and they have academics and gym and crafts," she said.

"That kind of thing I just can't give her in the summer."

Both women said they have spent time at the camp and they are impressed.

"The staff is terrific," Mrs. McCarty said. "They're all professionals. They're all very dedicated, special people."

"They express a lot of love for the children openly," she said. "They walk up to the kids and kiss and hug them all the time."

"They reinforce the loving thing there," explained Mrs. Featherstone. "The reaction from the kids is really fantastic—they don't even care if Mom and Dad are there."

And how do the children feel about camp?

"Susan can't wait," Mrs. McCarty said. "She loves it, every minute."

John was a bit hesitant about camp this year, but he's beginning to look forward to this summer's adventure.

"He's still really excited about it," Mrs. Featherstone said. "He wants to see the kids he met last year."

Camp depends on donations

Without donations, SCAMP couldn't exist, said Jim Butzine, director of the program.

SCAMP is really each person who donates time—things like hot dog buns for the benefit or money by taking part in a fund-raising event, he said.

And he feels that any mention of the SCAMP program should include "A kind of thank-you."

The summer camp's program stresses what educably handicapped children can do, not their limitations.

Activity-oriented, the program's goal is that SCAMPers feel good about themselves. Experiences offered include music and dance, swim lessons and an overnight camp-out.

This summer will be SCAMP's third year. The five-week camp that starts

Monday will serve about 210 students from north Oakland County with a budget of $55,000.

The funds used are almost entirely from private citizens. This summer, about $5,000 will

The future looks good to Rick and Carol

Country Living

By Kathy Greenfield
Staff writer

Right now Rick and Carol Kabanuk don't spend too much time together except when they're both at work.

But they have plans.

"Our main goal is to get ourselves set up for the future—in our 30s to be able to enjoy ourselves and do what we want then," Carol said.

They are both 22 and have been married one-and-one-half years.

A house they rent on M-15 in Independence Township has been their home for nine months.

"We definitely like living in Clarkston," Rick said. They're looking for a home to buy.

Rick is the chef at John Laffrey's Old Mill in Waterford and is also overseeing the kitchen at Holly Greens, where Laffrey recently took over the food operation.

When he was 17, Rick started his career at a pizza parlor in Walled Lake.

He then worked at the Village Club in Birmingham.

"I worked under a lady named Carol Haskins, a true professional, that's what inspired me," he said.

He also has worked for the Chuck Muer restaurant chain.

"The only reason I left any (job) was for advancement," he said.

Carol works at the Old Mill as a waitress. She and Rick met when they were 17 and he worked at the pizza parlor.

"I see him often—a few brief hellos," she laughs.

Working at the same place has been good for them, she said.

"I really like working together," she explained. "That way it's one more thing we can share together."

"This way we have the same social circle," she added, and they enjoy sharing shop talk.

Cooking comes naturally to him, Rick said, because he enjoys eating good food.

There were seven children in his family and his mother worked.

"She wasn't the type who every time you wanted a sandwich, she ran out and made it," he said, so he learned to cook for himself.

Seafood is his favorite, he said, and he doesn't like fast food.

"I haven't been to a McDonald's in two years. I'm not into that at all," he said.

Rick is young to have the head chef's position in a large restaurant, but he describes his achievement matter-of-factly.

"Just being ambitious and looking for the right opportunity—when it knocks, you should open the door," he said.

His average work week is about 80 hours, he said.

"The thing is if I wasn't the way I am, I wouldn't be where I am," he said. "When you're young you can do it. You can work that hard and still maintain your sanity."

Carol works three days a week and has the other days basically to herself, she said.

"I socialize," she said. "I was lunching a bit, but now I'm on Weight Watchers."

Her hobby is collecting onyx, half of which she bought in Mexico.

She's also planning to take an Aerobic dance class this fall and she enjoys reading best sellers.

They recently bought a registered German Shepherd puppy they named Spencer. Mitzi, a three-year-old part terrier, also shares their home.

"I think a German Shepherd is a beautiful dog," Carol said.

Rick shares her enthusiasm.

"We want to get into raising shepherds," he said. "Right now it's in the planning stage."

"I really like shepherds," he explained. "They're so well-mannered, but they're highly protective."

Rick and Carol Kabanuk share their home with their pets, Spencer and Mitzi.

Rick shows off Spencer, the couple's registered German Shepherd puppy.

Part of Carol's onyx collection includes candlesticks they bought on their honeymoon.

The fear of cancer is often fatal.

If you're afraid of cancer... you're not alone. But some people are so afraid that they won't go to the doctor when they suspect something's wrong.

They're afraid the doctor might "find something." This kind of fear can prevent them from discovering cancer in the early stages when it is most often curable.

These people run the risk of letting cancer scare them to death.

Township couple plans beefalo ranch retirement

By Pat Braunagel
Associate editor

Pioneering is an opportunity not available to many Americans today, nor sought by many—certainly not those approaching retirement age.

But one Independence Township couple, Grady and Mary Ellen Steele, is planning a future much akin to the pioneering lifestyle when she retires from teaching "in a year or two."

In pursuit of that goal, they have been stocking a beef ranch near Escanaba and have recently introduced a new word to the meat-industry vocabulary of the Upper Peninsula.

The word is "beefalo."

Connotations assigned to the word, and to the animal it names, include a cost-cutting answer to the world's famine.

Another image suggested is of the massive herds of buffalo which once roamed this nation's plains.

Six crossbred descendants of those majestic beasts—five heifers and a bull—have taken up residence at the Steeles' Delta County ranch on Big Bay De Noc.

The 50-acre ranch is a centennial farm homesteaded by Mrs. Steele's great-grandfather Luke Rivers in 1855. Her mother, 83-year-old Amanda Farley, lives on the farm, which the Steeles visit regularly.

They have hired a man to care for the cattle.

"We're just raising them for a hobby," Steele said.

Grady Steele, who is retired from the U.S. Army, has worked at Fisher Body Division and for the Clarkston School system.

His wife Mary Ellen, a teacher for 37 years, teaches kindergarten at Baily Lake Elementary School.

The six beefalo which are the start of a herd are one-quarter

Hereford, one-quarter Angus and one-half buffalo.

They were shipped from Texas, but the breed had been developed a dozen years earlier in California. Success came after hundreds of ill-fated attempts by ranchers and researchers in the U.S., Canada and the U.S.S.R.

The effort was deemed worthwhile because a successful crossbreeding held the possibility of creating a cattle that could withstand climate extremes and eat less grain.

"They survive the cold better than domestic cows, and they get less fat," Steele said. "They're also supposed to be more resistant to disease."

He explained that the beefalo can live through below-zero to above-100-degree temperatures because they have more hairs per square inch on their hides.

Steele studied beefalo for about three years before buying the stock, he said.

He noted that the meat from the cattle has been approved by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"I don't think you could taste any difference," he said, but he commented that a beefalo burger might taste a little sweeter than those we're used to.

The plant doctor

by Greg Patchan

Dear Plant Doctor:

Hordes of brown, long legged beetles are devouring many of the plants in our yard. What can we do about this pest? D.V. Clarkston

Dear D.V.:

The nasty insect you have discovered is called the rose chafer. The name is not exactly correct because this insect will feed on a wide range of plants in addition to roses.

Fortunately, the adult or beetle stage of this insect is only present for about two to three weeks. For the rest of the year, the rose chafer lives as a grub in the soil where it feeds on the roots of grasses and other plants.

This damage can be more serious than the feeding of the adult beetle. A spray of Sevin or diazinon applied to the beetles and plant foliage will control the problem. However, the effectiveness of the insecticide will last only a few days so be prepared to repeat the spray if the beetles persist.

The grub form can be controlled by applying diazinon or Spectracide to the soil or lawn in the spring or late summer. This treatment will not eliminate the beetles because they can fly in from untreated areas.

Dear Plant Doctor:

Why is it that my radishes form big tops but no nice sized roots?

O.L.—Bloomfield Hills

Dear O.L.:

First, radishes are a cool season crop, and they should be planted in April and early May or late August.

Second, radishes need a loose, light soil with adequate moisture.

Third, be sure to thin the plants to stand at least two inches apart soon after they emerge. Fourth, too much shade or too much nitrogen fertilizer will stimulate foliage growth at the expense of root growth. I also suggest that you try raising the icicle type of radishes.

Dear Plant Doctor:

In the last few days I have noticed great numbers of small insects clustered on the new growth of our trees, shrubs and garden plants. I think their activity seems to distort the growth. What is this insect and what can we do to control it?

I.H.—Southfield

Dear I.H.:

The insects you have described are aphids or plant lice as they are sometimes called. Aphids suck the sap from tender stems and the undersides of leaves, and this feeding causes a curling and distortion of the infested growth.

When aphids feed, they secrete a sticky substance called honeydew which can drip on other leaves, yard furniture and cars. Frequently a black fungus called sooty mold will grow on the honeydew causing the foliage or other coated objects to develop a black sooty appearance.

Aphids are easy to control even though they can develop into a large population very quickly. Malathion applied as a spray will give quick control with low toxicity and short residual.

This insecticide is safe on all vegetables and landscape plants, but avoid spraying during the heat of the day when injury might occur. Diazinon and various combination sprays or dusts can also be used, but be sure to follow the label precautions for crops to be treated.

Dear Plant Doctor:

Every spring when I set out my transplants something cuts them off near the ground, but I never see the culprit. What can I do?

C.A.—Rochester

Dear C.A.:

If the plants have been cut off and are completely gone, you have a hungry rabbit or woodchuck nearby. Various repellents such as moth flakes or dried blood can be tried, but I have found that a two foot chicken wire fence is the most effective.

If the plants have been cut off and are lying on the ground, you have cutworms. These dark colored, grub-like insects hide under the soil during the day and at night they emerge and do their damage.

also come from state funds designed to employ youths aged 16 to 21 and some matching funds will pay for part of certified special education teachers' salaries.

The staff of 95 includes about 26 volunteers.

"We've never had to advertise, they just find us, which I think is a neat thing," Butzine said.

Involving junior high and high school students as volunteers is an important part of the program, he said.

Adults and young people alike benefit from working there.

"I think it's a good experience," he explained. "They get to know a little more about themselves and kids."

Some of the people involved with the camp now work all year on programs for the handicapped.

And the camp has such a positive impact that parents are frequently sorry when their children leave the program.

SCAMP is also taking other directions.

"General education does have needs, too," Butzine said, so this year a program for junior high students has been started.

Again, an activity-oriented experience will be stressed.

"Trying to help the students understand their own feelings—taking a look at who you are and where you're going" is the purpose, he said.

"The possibility of helping Independence Oaks park develop better facilities for handicapped kids" is another goal, he said.

Coping with kids Teen pregnancies

by Ellen and Jim Windell

There is a curious form of denial that takes place with many adolescent girls when they are engaging in sexual behavior.

Although they may have some birth control information, they play a form of Russian roulette with pregnancy. One teenage girl recently put it this way, "I don't think I will get pregnant because I haven't gotten pregnant yet."

This form of logic may be mystifying to most adults, yet it appears that in general a great number of young adolescent girls are quite incapable of assimilating and accepting without distortion information about birth control.

While there may be difficulties in obtaining birth control devices because of their youthfulness and while there is a dearth of sex education programs in public schools, social workers who work with teenage girls notice a persistent refusal to use readily available contraceptive methods.

Despite all the recent advances we have made in terms of openness of information and advice, adolescent girls continue to become pregnant at an alarming rate. The one difference is that many now opt to keep the child.

There are many psychological reasons for girls to emotionally welcome a pregnancy. Chief among these reasons are a need to feel loved, to be needed, to be able to give love. Also, in many cases it provides a way of escaping an intolerable home situation.

For the parents of a sexually active or acting out teenage girl, a moral dilemma presents itself. They may want to monitor and supervise the girls' behavior so closely that they entrap themselves and leave little room for a normal life.

However, if they fail to provide supervision and restriction, they feel as if they are permitting or condoning sexual behavior. Likewise, if they offer or insist on the use of a birth control method, they may believe they are encouraging wrong-doing.

Mothers often tend to become emotionally ensnared in the issue with their daughters.

A mother told us, "I don't believe in birth control or abortion, but I know she is going to come home pregnant one day. She is too young to raise a child and the only thing I see happening is that I will have another child to raise."

This mother, like many others, was unable to separate her own personal problems from those of her daughter. The issue is one of problem-ownership. Some mothers, and fathers too, deprive the girl of owning the problem and feel responsible for consequences.

By assuming responsibility for what is rightfully the girl's problem, the parent denies the child opportunities to deal with moral and philosophical issues and to learn effective problem-solving.

Even if a teenager makes a very "bad" mistake, allowing her to make that mistake and then deal with the consequences is a step toward learning adult responsibility and beginning to "stand on her own two feet."

Pine Knobbing

Andy was dandy

"Words...are all I have to take your heart away-ay."

Words and music and...With his charismatic chords (and unfailing good looks), Andy Gibb entices the romantic imbalance in the teenage heart. The effect was staggering, as the roaring timbre of teenage screams of love and adulation for the young singer/composer pierced the humid air at Pine Knob Friday night.

Andy Gibb, the 20-year-old rising cynosure of the Top Ten charts, is exceeded in fame only by his three brothers, the hottest name in disco, the Bee Gees, who helped to bring Andy into the public eye.

By his musical talent and charming vitality, Andy no longer is "shadow dancing"—but sings out casting an indelible impression in the hearts of his fans.

In a smashing performance, heightened by kaleidoscopic colors and dramatic effects, Andy sang his latest hits off his gold album, "Shadow Dancing".

With every word, every song, Andy exuded a warmth of emotion and energy that left the audience screaming for more.

He inspires unswerving allegiance and devotion from his fans, evident by the throngs clad in Andy Gibb T-shirts, flying Andy Gibb balloons, Andy Gibb posters, and showering him with roses and carnations on stage, yelling out choruses of "WE LOVE YOU ANDY".

Halfway through the evening's performance, the five-piece band on tour with him took a brief intermission, leaving Andy to solo with his acoustic guitar.

He first sang a tribute to his brothers the Bee Gees, a song written by brother Barry, "Smile an Everlasting Smile," an oldie but goldie.

In this time alone with his audience, he sang his more intimate favorites. His subtle personal magnetism seemed to cast a spell over the crowd, before he asked the adoring multitude to join him in repeated choruses from "Love is Thicker than Water".

To wind up a remarkable performance, Andy dedicated to his audience his latest hit single, "I Just Want To Be Your Everything".

Again, above the deafening roar he could hardly be heard, "It's been wonderful being back at Pine Knob...and we hope to come back again next year." Judging by the frenetic display of flashing bulbs, sparklers and rounds of ovations, words aren't all Andy has to take your heart away...

don't compare KINETICO with other water conditioners.

This one is different.

No Electricity!

KINETICO'S fully automatic control valve works like the water meter in your home. Unlike wasteful timer operated softeners, KINETICO continuously meters your changing demands for soft water, recharging only when necessary, reducing salt cost by as much as 50%.

Twin Softening Tanks

The only way to give you soft water 24 hours per day! Thus, at no time can hard water enter your water lines. Unlike single tank softeners, only soft, filtered water flows through the control valve. KINETICO even recharges the exhausted tank with soft water from its fully recharged twin.

No more wasted salt. No more wasted water and no electricity. IT'S THAT SIMPLE.

VILLAGE OF CLARKSTON MINUTES OF REGULAR MEETING

June 12, 1978

Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston

Meeting called to order by President Hallman at 7:30 p.m. followed by the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

Roll: Present—ApMadoc, Basinger, Byers, Schultz, Thayer, Weber. Absent—none.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Moved by Byers, seconded by Weber to pay the following bills:

Wages	$1872.95
Municipal Services	1978.87
Administration	358.18
Legal Fees	1200.00
Insurance	107.82

TOTAL—$5517.82

Roll: Ayes—ApMadoc, Basinger, Byers, Schultz, Thayer, Weber. Nays—none. Motion carried.

Trustees Schultz and Byers reported on tractor bids that they had studied. The council agreed to inform Gar to get firm bids on the sale of our gasoline tractor and garden tractor first, then we can proceed to accept a bid and purchase a new tractor.

Trustee ApMadoc recommended to have the attorney research a possible ordinance to require homes to be hooked into the sewer system before being sold. The council agreed to have this researched.

Trustee ApMadoc will send letters to our state legislators asking about the formula for revenue sharing funds as supplied by figures from the Michigan Alliance of Small Communities.

Trustee ApMadoc reported that we can use 1977 Community Development Funds for engineering and construction supervision on the proposed Depot-White Lake-Holcomb intersection improvement. These funds amount to $10,000. Trustee Basinger wants to use the funds for a traffic study or sidewalks, but Trustee ApMadoc said that she was told that the funds had to be used for a project such as the one proposed. The council discussed the forms for a contract authorizing Kieft Engineering to prepare the plans and supervise the construction of the intersection improvement, and agreed to have Trustee ApMadoc show the forms to the county for their approval.

A letter will be written to the Detroit News asking them to remove the newsstand on Main St. since they never asked permission to have it placed there.

Trustee Schultz will meet with township officials to discuss alternate traffic routes in the village and township, as mentioned in our Land Use Development Plan.

A letter will be written to Frank Walker of Clarkston Mills, asking them to use M-15 rather than residential streets to transport any materials.

Trustee Thayer reported that he had studied the proposed sign upgrading project contract. This project would cost the village about $1100. He will have Gar Wilson study the proposed contract.

Trustee Schultz will contact the county to see if it's permissible to place signs on county roads outside of the village limits, regarding weight restrictions and alternate routes for trucks, in an effort to keep them off of Holcomb and Miller.

He also mentioned the possibility of having different groups perform for a summer band program in the park.

Another letter will be written to the state highway department, asking them why the "No Right Turn on Red" signs haven't been installed at the M-15-Washington intersection.

Correspondence from Gerald Fisher, Mr. Radcliff's attorney, was read, suggesting two alternative solutions to the problem when Mr. Radcliff was issued a building permit in error and started construction of a screen house. Our attorney will study this letter and report back to us.

The quarterly sewer usage billing from the county to us has been reduced from $24.68 to $24.00 per unit.

Correspondence from Blue Cross was read, informing us that we are no longer eligible for the group plan, since we employ less than five full-time employees. In fact, since there has recently been a freeze in CETA hiring, we now have only one full-time employee. It was decided to reimburse the employee for individual payments that he makes to Blue Cross to maintain his coverage.

Moved by Weber, seconded by Schultz to adjourn at 10:50 p.m. Motion carried unanimously.

On the march

The 86-member Clarkston High School competition Marching Band put on a show for parents and friends last week.

They left later that evening to attend a four-day session at the Marching Bands of America championships at University of Whitewater, Wisc.

It was the first time the band took part in the competition against the 30 bands from 10 states.

Twelve bands were in the final competition.

Although they were eliminated when they earned 48.20 out of a possible 100 points, it was a "marvelous experience," said Sandie Freel, band booster president who went along as a chaperone.

They hadn't planned to win, but are thinking about the future, she said.

"We were going to see, learn and regroup for next year," she explained.

The dedicated students participate in the competition band voluntarily, with the hours spent not reflected in course credits.

They will leave Saturday to start the Michigan Short Circuit competition.

The circuit includes competition in five locations—Bad Axe on June 24, Vassar on June 25, Reed City on July 7, the Bridgeport invitational on July 8 and the final competition in Chesaning July 9 where they'll vie for the circuit championship.

The band will also compete in Kingsville, Ont., on June 30.

Parades on July 1 at the Windsor Freedom Festival and July 4 in Clarkston will also include the spirited group.

Xylophonist Kathy Hubchen plays the vibrating bars during practice.

Sue Gregor enjoys her part in the band. She's in charge of the trap box that adds to the musical variety.

Jaci White, member of the rifle squad, concentrates on instructions during rehearsal.

Jaci's back, in uniform. Her expression reflects the dedication of band members.
