Library vote won't be on fall ballot

By Kathy Greenfield
Staff writer

Another tax request—this one for up to 1 mill for the Independence Township Library—almost made it on the November ballot.

Supporters of the millage request asked for township board approval at a special meeting last week, but were turned down.

After gathering the required 50 signatures on an initiatory petition, the "Committee for an Elected Library Board" decided against going ahead with the millage request.

"I think we're going to wait—that's a better way to go," said Chris Shull, chairperson of the committee. "There are too many questions the committee has that are still unanswered."

Shull's committee had until Tuesday at 4 p.m. to turn in the signatures to the township offices for validation so the question could be placed on the ballot.

"The time's just too short right now," she said, adding that the group will start an educational program to inform the public about the advantages of having a volunteer, elected library board whose sole interests would be the library.

The elected six-member board would plan the budget and have the power to appoint or remove the librarian and assistants.

Shull said she feels the township is getting too large for the township board to handle everything.

"The library has not progressed as much as the township has," she said. "We haven't given up, it will just come up at another time."

One issue to be faced is that a township millage would mean village residents would have to choose between several options.

"They'd have the choice of contracting with the library or contracting with another municipality or not having library services available or starting their own library," said Clerk Christopher Rose.

Because the township's general funds are now used to cover library expenses, village and township residents can use the library.

The issue is complicated because the township has only one incorporated village within its boundaries. Other townships have larger populations and more cities with separate libraries rather than one library to serve the entire township, Rose said.

At the special meeting, the majority of the board members present voted not to support the millage request.

Concern over too many millage requests and the tax limitation proposals on the November ballot was voiced by the board members.

"How many issues do we put on the ballot when we know we have tax limits on that ballot that they are going to cloud the issues enough as it is?" asked Supervisor Floyd (Whitey) Tower.

"I am very reluctant to put this on the ballot because of the fire and police millage that we desperately need," said Treasurer Elizabeth Tower.

"If you put too many millages on there, the people are just going to say, 'I'm going to vote no on all of them,'" said Trustee Jerry Powell.

Rose voted in favor of putting the question on the ballot, and Trustee Frederick Ritter was absent.

Landfill still raises ire

By Kathy Greenfield
Staff Writer

The garbage isn't being covered, and the fence hasn't been installed between Powell's landfill and their subdivision.

The fence is required by Independence law, which also stipulates that landfill operators cover garbage at the end of each working day with at least six inches of dirt and clay.

At the June 6 board meeting, Township Trustee Jerry Powell, whose family owns the landfill on Clarkston-Orion Road, said the rules would be followed.

Problems would be alleviated, because dumping would no longer take place at the eastern edge of the landfill that adjoins the subdivision, Powell said.

The Chapelview residents voiced their concerns at the township board meeting Tuesday night.

"Since approximately Aug. 9, he has again resumed his dumping along the east border," said Ken Harrison of Snowapple Drive.

"Is the promised fence going to be installed (and) why was this ordinance not enforced before?" Harrison asked.

The three township officials at the meeting agreed the ordinance should be enforced. Supervisor Floyd (Whitey) Tower and Powell were absent.

"The reason why we're here is we've gone to the DNR (Department of Natural Resources), we've gone to the county," said Rick Rosenthal of Snowapple Drive. "We're now coming to you people and saying 'Will you enforce the ordinance you have in effect?'"

Ritter said the board would direct Timothy Palulian, the township building department administrator, to have his employees look at the situation again.

Dennis Kacy, an attorney who was one of the about 15 citizens at the meeting during the hour-long discussion, suggested that the builder of the subdivision could be responsible for some of the problems.

"Did you know the existence of the dump when you bought the property?" Kacy asked.

"We went into it with our eyes closed," Harrison said, adding that the builder told them the landfill was too close last year.

But the laws should be enforced, Harrison said.

Michaelene Hearn of Snowapple said the situation has created a health hazard.

"I don't think anybody is opposed to the dump," she said. "We just want the ordinance enforced."

During hot weather, "people can't open their doors, people can't breathe it smells so bad," she said. "We're all pretty fed up with it.

"We pay taxes in this township and we're just asking for help," she added.

Gene Maxon of Snowapple Drive asked, "If Mr. Powell's license has not been renewed, why is he dumping?"

Clerk Christopher Rose said he would call the DNR and send a letter asking about the state license situation.

"I do a great deal of bicycling in that area and I'm aware of the problem," Rose said.

Although formal action was not necessary to enforce the township landfill ordinance, action would be taken by the board, Ritter said.

"Here's what we're going to do: give Tim Palulian direction to enforce the ordinance and write a letter to the DNR," Ritter said.

Riding the big ramp

Dismounting a skate-board ramp in a fast and fancy manner got to be the specialty of 15-year-old Mark Platt after a few days' practice on a seven-and-a-half-foot ramp in the front yard of his Paramus Drive home. Mark, son of John and Carole Platt, placed the ramp so he could get a 60-yard run starting at the door of the garage across the street.

Chris Rollman, 12, son of Richard and Charlene Rollman of Independence Township, maneuvers a mean turn on Mark's skate-board ramp.

Village police vote hits snag

By Mimi Mayer
Staff writer

A police millage proposition may be on the Nov. 8 ballot in the Village of Clarkston, but it won't be the same one that will appear on the Independence Township ballot.

Due to a legal technicality, the question must be put separately to voters in the village and in the unincorporated portion of the township.

Independence Township Attorney Richard Campbell confirmed Friday that it would be illegal to levy a joint millage for police services for both township and village property owners.

The village contracts with Independence Township for law enforcement, having agreed to pay the equivalent of 1 mill for police services.

Independence Clerk Christopher Rose proposed at the Aug. 28 village council meeting that the village put a police millage question on the fall ballot like the one to be considered by township voters, thus creating a joint millage.

The council unanimously supported Rose's suggestion.

The contract to pay for police services would still stand, officials had said.

Campbell said Friday that the agreement and the joint millage cannot be in effect concurrently. Having the village finance police services through both means would cause a "hybrid" situation, Campbell said.

"I don't think you can have a mixture of a joint millage and a contracted-for agreement," he continued.

Running a joint millage would cause a disparity in the payments township and village taxpayers make for police services, Campbell said.

Township voters presently pay 1 mill for police services. Should the proposed millage pass, another mill would be levied on township property, making the annual payment for police services 2 mills.

In contrast, village property owners have not had taxes levied specifically for police protection. Had the joint millage passed, village tax payers would have begun paying 1 mill specifically for police protection.

Campbell said that it would be unfair if township taxpayers

The State Highway Department gave the red light to a Clarkston Village Council request.

Councilman James Schultz had asked that "Clarkston" signs be placed at the Sashabaw Road and Dixie Highway exits on I-75.

The highway department rejected the idea because the extra exits "would cause additional confusion for motorists."

Jackson Byers understood their department's point.

The councilman said that if a motorist unfamiliar with the area approached Clarkston via Dixie Highway, "How would he know that he should cut through the A & P parking lot?"

Among the latest CETA-paid positions lost by Independence Township are two that could cause stray dogs to wag their tails.

People, however, may not be quite as delighted.

The county-directed freeze on replacing CETA employees is continuing and the police budget lacks money to spare.

So the two animal control officers won't be replaced. Mike Aceti quit and Al Cole was terminated during his 90-day probationary period.

Animal problems will now be handled Monday through Friday only rather than seven days a week, according to Charles Kimbel, acting director of police services.

Another township department hard-hit by losses of CETA employees is the Parks and Recreation Department.

Because the fulltime CETA-paid secretary quit to return to college, the office staff now consists of a parttime secretary on the CHS work-study program.

CETA funds were also not available for parttime summer employees this year.

"We still operated our baseball program, day camp and playgrounds," said Timothy Doyle, director. But $39,000 in CETA money was used last summer to offset costs.

Although he's not sure how the township board will react to the recreation department's dilemma, future class offerings could suffer severe cut-backs, he said.

Balloting snag

paid 2 mills and village taxpayers 1 mill for essentially the same police services.

"I'm not even sure if there are statutes which allow joint millages for police services," Campbell said.

Resolving the situation is easy, Campbell said. He suggested that the village have its own millage proposition and, if it passes, use the funds to pay for the contract.

"All we're talking about is the wording on the ballot," Campbell said.

To eliminate the contract entirely, village taxpayers would need to approve a 2-mill levy, making the village and township contributions for police services equal, Campbell said.

Should village property owners pass the police millage and township voters reject it, the village would have money available to turn over to the township for police services, Campbell said.

"If the township (millage) passes and the village doesn't, then village officials are going to have to determine how to fund the police and match the

Campbell said that the village legal advisor, John Steckling, concurred with his opinion. Steckling was unavailable for comment.

Rose, who proposed the joint millage, said, "It's really in village hands now."

"There never was a massive move to get the village in on this. It just seemed logical that if we were voting on a millage that (the village) would want to vote on a millage," Rose continued.

Vandals bust library window

Vandals struck the Independence Township Library Friday evening sometime after 6 p.m., according to librarian Sushil Lahiri.

For the second time in a month, a large window was broken in the library. Damages were estimated at around $400, Lahiri said.

Letters to the editor

Library issue overheated

To the editor:

I have been reading with interest the letters in the Clarkston News recently concerning the Township Library.

It seems that each week the administration of the library is becoming more of an emotional instead of a rational issue.

Last week's letter from Mrs. Williams inferred name calling and slander from people who volunteer their time to maintain an effective library. I feel this was an unnecessary attack on these people whose main interest is an efficient library that benefits Independence Township.

It was my belief that the Friends of the Library was formed to attain these goals, not to have Mr. Lahiri removed from his position. In fact, it isn't up to the Friends if Mr. Lahiri maintains his job. It is up to the Independence Township Supervisors.

I feel that Mrs. Williams' attack should not have been directed towards the Friends. The problems in the library existed long before the Friends were formed.

Mary L. Zimmerman

'Thanks' Mr. Fletcher

To the Editor:

The residents of Woodhull Subdivision are privileged to have some of the best services available in Independence Township. We have fulltime "Citizens Watch," to prevent crime, fulltime "Building Inspection" and fulltime "Ordinance Violation Enforcement." All of these functions are filled by the tireless (or as some say, "tiresome") Luther C. Fletcher.

Mr. Fletcher regularly patrols our neighborhood, constantly on the lookout for suspicious activity. He has a unique system of hand signals that he uses, apparently as a secret code (someone told me it was an obscene gesture ... Can this be true?) With his trusty camera and armed with the force of his mouth, he keeps a constant check on all persons attempting to improve their property.

We certainly appreciate this service, it would be a shame for any home improvements to be made in the area that didn't meet Mr. Fletcher's stringent standards.

His example to us, provided by his dwelling place, which must be one of the seven architectural wonders, and his landscaping, which is enhanced by the wonderful random arrangement of garbage cans, the artistically piled trash and the month-long display of lofty horticultural growth (spoiled by recent mowing) really is an inspiration to us all.

In addition to all of the above, Mr. Fletcher also teaches English grammar to all interested listeners. He is especially accomplished in quaint Anglo Saxon phrases, generally consisting of terse, four letter, easily understandable expressions (I was told these are obscenities... Can this be true?). I know the young people of the area are thankful for the opportunity to learn language skills from a real master.

The other residents of our area are going to have to make a real effort to do their part and take some of the burden off Mr. Fletcher. He's been so busy with his dog training, surveillance and enforcement duties that he just hasn't had time to improve his own property. We're going to have to rectify this.

Keep up the good work, Mr. Fletcher, you're more entertaining than a flea circus.

Memory mystery

By Pat Braunagel

Clara Day has put me to shame.

She has shaken my self-esteem and ruined at least one evening in my usually-happy household.

Clara Day, I'm sure, will be astonished to hear this.

She probably thinks she did nothing more harmful than graciously offer me her hospitality and a glimpse into Springfield Township's past.

During the interview, however, she brought out a photograph of the 1923 student body at the one-room Andersonville School. Twenty-seven pupils and teacher Jenny Scott.

Then she identified them—well, all of them except for one lad in the second row.

Nobody's perfect. But Clara Day was close enough to send me scrambling into my keepsake trunk when I got home.

I had to know how many kids in any of my grade-school classes I could identify. I shouldn't have any trouble, I reasoned. It's only been ... it's only been ... well, let's just say my class pictures are yellowed less than Mrs. Day's.

Still, some of the faces were indistinguishable. Who were these urchins that had infiltrated my beloved class? Many of them, I have to assume now, were only briefly enrolled at Lansing's Willow Street School. They probably had transferred in the day the picture was taken and their parents yanked them out the next day.

In each of the four pictures I looked at before becoming hopelessly depressed and turning to my high school yearbook for comfort (hah!), I was dealing with roughly the same number of classmates Mrs. Day had.

Why were mine so forgettable? I felt rootless, having moved as far as 80 miles away from my homeland.

I had asked Mrs. Day whether her good memory had anything to do with her having stayed pretty much in the Springfield area after graduating from Andersonville School. Had her classmates also stuck around?

"Well, let's see," she said, proceeding to tell me what had become of most of the class.

I couldn't stand it.

My only solace is that boy in the second row. Who was that standing between Loren a Rhome and Marshall Ferguson in the 55-year-old photo?

More residents should support library

To the editor:

I feel that I have to respond to the letter in last week's paper re: the Library. I realize that to some this has become a very emotional issue; it should be known, however, that others are attempting to delve into the needs of the Township library by pursuing an honest effort to uncover the facts of our status as a legal library system.

The innuendo in last week's letter to the editor was unacceptable to me. There were charges of name-calling which were countered with Mrs. Williams' own name-calling. She has attempted to ruin a person, Christie Shull, who has a proven record of community service. Chris and others have been maligned by Mrs. Williams' false accusation of "defamation," racism and "sleazy and shabby behavior."

Chris Shull and others are friends to the library because they are attempting to get the township on a firm legal basis for existence.

The often referred to proposals presented to the Friends were three statements of support for the best library organization for the township. The intent was to decide among those who proposed an interest in the library (by their membership) what would provide the best library service to the community.

It is my wish that more residents involve themselves in the support of the library.

Style of worrying changes

By Jim Sherman

Has television and screaming headlines caused this change?

When I was 5 my mother allowed me to walk to a swimming hole a half mile from home and across a busy railroad trestle over the river.

I still warn my 16-year-old about crossing the country road in front of our house.

Mother would let me walk a mile to the Shiawassee River to fish and swim all day, with no watch, no time table and no people in sight.

My daughter leaves our back yard in an unsinkable paddleboat with a life jacket, oar, 3 years of swimming lessons and a lake full of people and

I warn her, "Don't be gone long and be careful."

Mother let me go ice skating on the river with open water enroute the 2 miles to Newburg.

I put my 210 pounds on the backyard ice before letting my kids near it.

Mother let me go trapesing in the woods all day, any summer day, any direction, and never warn me about getting lost.

I constantly remind my 23-year-old not to go in the woods without a compass, paper, matches, map and an apple or candy bar.

Mother let me play all day in the barn, swinging from loft to loft on a rope.

I wonder where the kids are when they are still in the house.

Mother let me walk a mile to town on Saturday night to see the free movie at age 11 with no way home but walking.

Anything free nowadays is taboo and no movies for our kids' tender eyes, even a Jungle Jim serial. As for walking home from anywhere at night ... never.

Mother would let me walk a couple miles of state highway M-78 looking for returnable beer bottles

(2 cents each) at ages 10 and 11.

I forbid my kids to walk 10 feet on a state highway without company.

Mother would let me sit alone on M-78 selling summer squash to passing motorists.

We don't even raise summer squash let alone expose our kids to strangers who might stop to buy.

Mother probably worried just as much as I. However, I have a feeling her worries were more along the lines of poison ivy, slipping off a rock, or forgetting my shoes ... as opposed to my thoughts of murder, attack, and kidnapping.

Says shots not always necessary

He spares needle, pleases child

By Kathy Greenfield
Staff writer

Pediatrician Dr. Irving Kernis, D.O., praises his competition, never wears a white jacket and avoids giving shots.

And he uses words like "fun," "enjoy" and "satisfaction" as he talks about the practice he started in Independence Township about two years ago.

After graduating from the College of Osteopathy in Philadelphia, Pa., he came to Highland Park for his internship at Detroit Osteopathic Hospital.

He then worked at Children's Hospital, Detroit, four years and joined a group practice.

When he decided a solo practice would suit him better, he started looking for a location by going to Pontiac General Hospital and gathering a list of pediatricians.

"The person that invited me to this area was Jim O'Neill," Kernis said. "Of all the people I saw, he was the most open and the most happy to see me."

"He was so busy that he felt the overflow would help establish a practice for me," he said.

Dr. James O'Neill, whose pediatrics practice is located nearby, gave him office space in his building for eight months while Kernis' present location in the Lufkin Pharmacy building, 5980 M-15, was under construction, he said.

While his practice was being established, Kernis, who has board certification in pediatrics from the American Medical Association, worked in the emergency rooms at Pontiac General and at Wheelock Memorial Hospital, Goodrich.

The extra hours and effort spent establishing his practice have been worthwhile.

"In the beginning, it was a little scary," he said. "I've enjoyed it—building a practice. Establishing a niche in the community gives you a sense of accomplishment."

Although he still works at Wheelock's emergency room, he no longer needs to supplement his income as much and is enjoying more time at home in West Bloomfield with his wife Ruth and their children, Steven,

'You develop a lot of understanding for the problems mothers go through—especially the night problems.'

7½, and Lauren, 3.

Having children has proved an asset in his profession.

"You develop a lot of understanding for the problems that mothers go through—especially the night problems," he said. "I really think it makes you a better doctor."

When his son was younger and frequently sick, he found himself asking the doctor if shots were always necessary.

"The way I feel about it is this: If you've dealt with kids, a lot of them are afraid of doctors because of shots," he said. "With viral illnesses, they don't need shots."

Because many people have been brought up to expect shots for illnesses, it takes time to explain the rare-shot philosophy and encourage parents to call if the child gets sicker.

"Actually it's a lot of fun getting a kid through without antibiotics, because it's more of a challenge," he said. "Also you get a sense of satisfaction, because you've prevented a child from getting hurt."

But when a child needs a shot to fight off an infection, Kernis gives it himself.

"I do that because I feel I have a moral responsibility to try to relieve their fears," he said.

He talks with the child, gives the shot "and then, of course, I give them a sucker," he said.

The importance of being available to talk with parents is another of his concerns.

"The art of talking with parents—that's probably 75 percent of pediatrics," he said. "You have to be available to answer questions all the time."

Although his solo practice means he has to always be on call, Kernis said he doesn't mind.

"In fact, I enjoy it," he said.

This fall, he will take part in the "Little Ones to Value and Educate" program sponsored by the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance.

The "LOVE" programs will be held on six consecutive Tuesdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Clarkston High School starting Sept. 19.

For more information and registration for the programs, call Youth Assistance worker Garry Pullins at 673-1219.

Kernis will appear on a panel the sixth night with other participants in the programs to answer questions from the audience.

Dr. Irving Kernis checks Troy Granger who was brought to the office by his mother, Mrs. Wendy Granger of Pontiac, because he was running a high fever.

'If it Fitz . . .'

Ma Bell gives a line

by Jim Fitzgerald

Detroit lawyer Charles Peters moved into a new office only one mile from his old one. He wanted to take his phone number with him, but Ma Bell said it couldn't be done.

In her TV commercials, Ma Bell begs you to phone your 15th cousin in Egypt, the one you've never met, to ask if it's raining on the pyramids, thus curing you of the suicidal depression which always strikes when you have no one to talk to on Saturday night except your spouse and 12 children. If you dial direct, Ma Bell can connect you with Egypt within seconds, and the cost is less than if you visited your cousin on foot.

Ma Bell can do all this, but she couldn't move Charles Peters' phone number one mile to save him the business disruption always caused by a change in numbers. So be it. Peters was understanding and didn't complain. He was satisfied by Ma Bell's promise to have an operator give his new number to everyone who dialed his old number.

Peters opened his new office last Monday morning. By 10 a.m., he had had no phone calls. He dialed his old number and the operator said it had been disconnected. She didn't say one word about his new number.

So Peters dialed information and asked for his number. He was given his old number. People who wanted to talk to Peters were being told to dial a disconnected number.

Peters complained to the Bell business office. He received an apology and a promise that the unfortunate situation would be corrected immediately. Six hours later, the situation was still unfortunate.

Peters phoned the Michigan Public Service Commission, which could offer him little hope beyond the speculation that Ma Bell would surely get the job done eventually.

So Peters phoned me for advice and I told him to switch phone companies.

In the cosmic scheme of the universe, it certainly isn't important that a lawyer's phone service has been temporarily bungled. Ma Bell probably thinks it's nit-picky of me to write about such a non-cataclysmic event when I might better be suggesting methods of attaining rapprochement in the Middle East.

But some days I grow weary of saving the world. Some days, nothing seems more important than jumping up and down and screaming because some mammoth monopoly won't give me my dollar's worth, and I can't take my business elsewhere.

Everyone should have days like that. And everyone should refuse to phone Egypt for no good reason. Unless a sphinx answers, hang up.

Where's his name?

When lists were placed outside Clarkston Elementary School Aug. 28, kids from all over the village appeared to see who their teachers and classmates for the upcoming school year would be. Eight-year-old Mark Colwell figures that a spot on the side is one way to see through all the hands pointing out teachers and friends.

It's so unique we insist you see it in person before you see it in an ad.

We're sorry, but the Oleg Cassini Carpet Collection is so uniquely beautiful, a mere photograph simply can't do it justice. You really must see it in person. So we'd like to invite you to see these exquisite new carpets for yourself.

And what a sight to behold. Small European patterns with muted Renaissance tones, creating a more classical, classier look. As only Oleg Cassini could do. And they come in a host of colors and styles. All at a very affordable price.

As a matter of fact, the Oleg Cassini Collection for Galaxy is so uniquely different, even if you aren't in the market for a carpet, you really must see it anyway.

Township sewer tax still campaign issue

By Kathy Greenfield
Staff writer

The controversy over sewer taxes is not over, despite a half-mill reduction for Independence Township property owners.

The lowering of the ad valorem sewer tax from 2 mills to 1.46 mills was approved by the township board at its Aug. 15 meeting. One mill is $1 for each $1,000 of assessed valuation.

William Vandermark, a Republican candidate for township trustee, said that he will continue to pursue the issue.

"If they had that millage eliminated, it would restore a great deal of credibility toward those that run our government on a local level," he said.

The township board based its decision to reduce the millage on a forecast by Robert Bendzinski, a municipal advisor with offices in Detroit.

In the forecast that covers

1976 to 2000, the tax money to be collected yearly for the sewer fund was set at $210,000 or 2 mills, whichever is less.

Income from 2 mills this year has been projected at $290,000, so the ad valorem tax was reduced.

None of the approximately $322,000 general fund surplus was used to reduce the millage as requested by citizens at board meetings and as requested by petitions with 578 residents' signatures submitted to the board by Iva Sommers Caverly.

"Before all this hullabaloo started this year, the township board knew they were going to reduce the millage," said George Anderson, director of the water and sewer department. "All this big splash had nothing to do with it. It just brought it to a head quicker."

Reserve or surplus funds are needed to cover payments to Oakland County that will increase in the 1980s, Anderson said. Money for major repairs and replacement in the future must also be accumulated, he added.

"The fund is working out just the way it was programmed to work-out when it was set up in 1976," he said.

All the money in the sewer and water funds is accounted for in the audit statements, he said.

Vandermark does not agree.

He has requested information on three sewer funds required by the township sewer ordinance and asked for an accounting of the money Oakland County has left from the $10 million bond issue.

"All I'm asking is that they provide a full accounting of all these funds," he said. "Where in the budget are they? They just aren't there. At least I can't see them."

"I'm not questioning the reserves at all," he said. "I'm questioning that we don't have a statement as to how much we have in reserve."

Another item on the audit Vandermark has asked about is the $229,470 taken for depreciation.

At the end of 20 years, the total taken will amount to $10 million, he said.

"It's just a matter of arithmetic," he explained. "I frankly don't think they need that much depreciation."

Anderson said the depreciation is an accepted accounting practice and the money is not being accumulated.

"We're showing depreciation, but we're not funding it," he said.

Township officials say Vandermark should spend more time talking with the auditor or with them to get his questions answered rather than take them to public meetings.

At the last board meeting, Supervisor Floyd (Whitey) Tower referred to the sewer millage issue as "somewhat of a political aspiration problem."

"So far the only time he's made any comments are at board meetings when there are two reporters present," Anderson said.

When asked about discussing the sewer audit at board meetings, Vandermark said, "I don't see how anybody can quibble with public matters being brought up at public meetings."

"Part of the problem is reports not available in advance and reports not available at meetings," he said.

"I work for a living and the only time I can conveniently get together with these people is at the meeting," he said. "That's why township board meetings are held in the evening by law."

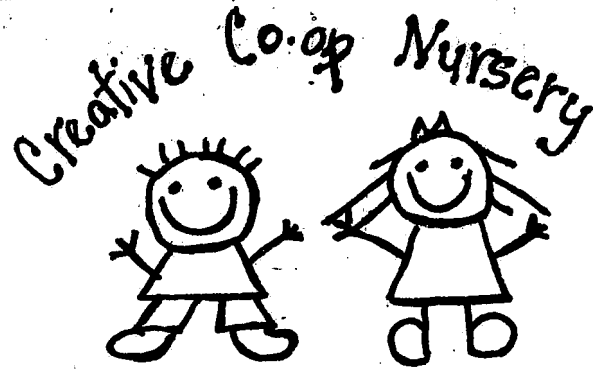

The Olympic Committee has not yet sanctioned any long distance races for women. In fact, they recently rejected a proposal for a 3000 meter race. But women have been running long distance in other competitions for many years and are certainly able to physically do so. Women are running in marathons and mini-marathons all over the country. So far they have not beat the men in these events, but they do make respectable showings. Some trainers speculate that as the years go by and women receive more and better professional training, the gap between men and women will narrow.

Youth Assistance worker

Pullins aids troubled teens, parents

By Mimi Mayer
Staff writer

A mother receives a call from school officials. Her daughter has been skipping classes and will be suspended from school if it happens once more.

A father hurries downtown. He's just learned that his son was caught shoplifting in a local store.

What can a parent do in these situations? What resources are available?

One person to talk with is Garry Pullins, a social worker for Clarkston Youth Assistance.

Sponsored by the Oakland County Probate Court, Youth Assistance programs emphasize prevention of delinquency rather than rehabilitation.

But many of Pullins' clients are troubled young people who already have set patterns of school truancy or petty larceny.

Pullins attributes part of the problem to the age of his clients.

"Adolescence is incredible. I definitely think it's the roughest time in life," Pullins said.

But most young people weather this difficult period without a school or police record. What is it that sets the juvenile offender apart from the normal teen?

Everyone goes through certain patterns of behavior, Pullins explained. During the transition from childhood to full maturity, rebellion is a means of experimenting with authority and a sense of self.

Young people who are in trouble are "just acting out their aggression in a more overt way," Pullins said. He suggested that parents recall their own adolescent years to better understand their children.

Pullins called petty criminal acts "symptoms of something else," like worry over negative family relationships or a poor self-image.

To meet these problems, Pullins advocates family counseling.

"I feel family counseling is paramount. I try to get both parents in, if possible," he said.

Both parent and child should feel free to comment during the meetings. Hopefully, the end result will be renewed communication.

One benefit reaped is that the family shares a common interest after the sessions.

Pullins cautioned against being too strict with children. He gave an example of a 15-year-old whose father demanded that he be in by 9 p.m. on summer evenings.

A child may rebel against such strictures by running away, Pullins said.

"You're alienating your child by doing these things," he pointed out.

If a young person does get into trouble, Pullins advised that the child carry the responsibility for his or her action themselves.

He cited an example of a father who rushed in and saved his son from the consequences that reckless driving and petty larceny charges brought.

"The kids get this idea in their minds, 'Daddy will get me out of this. I'm not responsible for my actions'," Pullins said.

"I feel that the blame should be placed on the child," he continued. "Don't blame the parents. Don't blame the police. Don't blame the schools."

At the same time, be supportive of the child, Pullins suggested.

He also tries to get alienated young people he works with to realize that not all adults are out to get them. "You might run across a bad cop. You might run across a lousy teacher. But you can't look upon the whole adult world as this vindictive, this afraid of you," he tells his counselees.

When a youth meets an openly hostile adult, Pullins tells the young people that courtesy works wonders. If the adults are still rude, "that shows that you are at least above them," Pullins said.

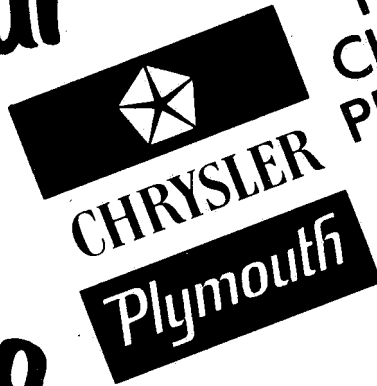

"The kids eat this up. It gives them a positive self-attitude," Pullins said.

Pullins is genuinely concerned about the young people he counsels. Even though he sometimes is approached by parents who "want a stamp of approval to get these kids locked up," Pullins said he rarely recommends that the child be institutionalized.

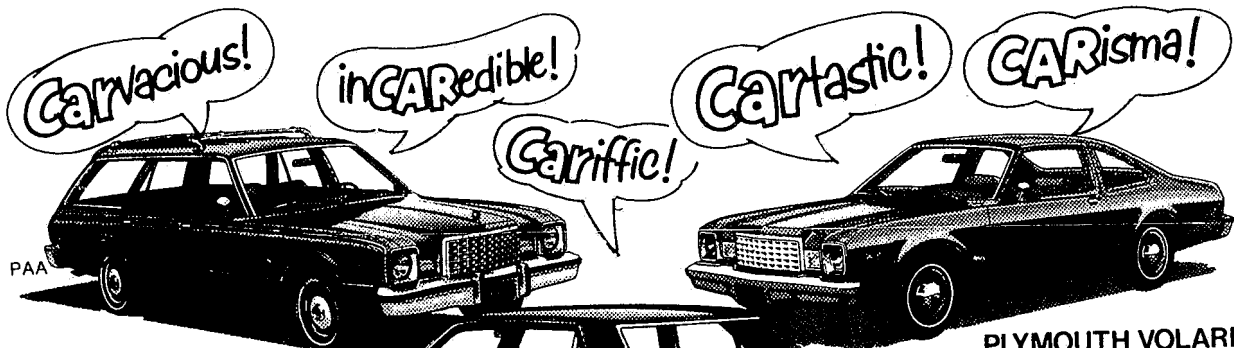

"I would like to at least salvage the kids," he said. "I don't claim to be a miracle worker."

"I don't change them. They have to help themselves," Pullin said.

Six accidents mar weekend

Traffic accidents in the area during the Labor Day weekend were about the same as last year according to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department and Independence Township police services.

"Fortunately we didn't have a lot of major accidents," said Deputy Robert Wark, traffic control officer for the sheriff's department.

There were six automobile accidents handled by the sheriff's department in the Independence and Springfield Township area, Wark said.

Two resulted in minor injuries—one at Farley and Andersonville roads in Springfield Township and one at Sashabaw Road north of Clarkston, he said.

The other four accidents resulted in damage to the vehicles, Wark said.

Pine Knob traffic accidents were about the same as regular weekends, according to Charles Kimbel, acting director of police services.

"Just two or three, nothing out of the ordinary," he said.

Federal funds no blessing

CETA turns sour in Independence

By Kathy Greenfield
Staff writer

It looks like Independence Township has learned a lesson in government the hard way.

The Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) started in 1973.

Federal funds were made available to hire and train the unemployable so they could eventually get regular jobs with the new training and experience.

"The township has generally not done that. We have been hiring the employable that fulfill the CETA guidelines," said Clerk Christopher Rose. "We were under the letter of the law, but not the intent."

As programs offering the use of CETA funds increased, so did the number of CETA-paid employees in the township.

"For some reason, the township has always fallen into a lot of CETA grants, because we have a high rate of unemployment," Rose said. "We were fourth of all townships (in Oakland County) taking part in the CETA program."

There are 20 townships participating. Holly is the only township he knows not taking part in the CETA program, because the governmental unit has no fulltime employees, Rose said.

Independence Township filled 32 positions with the federal funds.

Then the county froze all CETA hiring. Leading up to the freeze was an expansion program that allowed the township to fill more than the originally allotted 25 CETA positions.

"The basic situation was that the (federal) Department of Labor wanted the nation to have 750,000 CETA jobs," explained Michael Niemann, Oakland County public information officer.

So federal dictates prompted county officials to suggest that townships hire 110 percent of the CETA hiring limit, and special programs were introduced to increase the hiring even more.

Independence Township followed the county's suggestion.

Then "the Department of Labor said, 'Guess what, we don't have enough money for all those jobs,'" Niemann said.

The result was the freeze that started May 1.

The federal funds allowed the township to expand programs without using taxes directly from township property owners.

The latest tally on township CETA employees is 20. They are paid up to $10,000 in salaries and up to $12,800, including benefits, using federal money. Higher salaries are supplemented with township funds, Rose said.

Two of the lost positions in the building department have been replaced using money from the township's general fund.

Otherwise, services have been decreasing.

"This whole thing with CETA is probably going to be felt more by citizens in the recreation department," Rose said. "We can't afford to hold a crocheting class (when) we've got to have lifeguards at the beach."

The township police department has lost two animal control officers. It could face further reduction in services if more of the remaining six of the eight department employees on CETA salaries leave.

Township Supervisor Floyd (Whitey) Tower and Acting Director of Police Services Charles Kimbel recently had a meeting with county CETA officials to ask that the freeze on the department be lifted.

"There's a letter coming out that would allow us to transfer a CETA person to a regular position," Tower said.

The salaries would then have to be paid out of the department's budget or general funds and a CETA position could be retained.

The original CETA bill expires on Sept. 30.

As the new CETA proposals move through Congress, notable slashes and controls on expenditures are being considered.

The latest four-year extension awaiting final approval in the House and President Carter's signature would have more impact on township CETA employees.

The bill would restrict the maximum federal payment to $12,000, limit participation for any worker to 78 weeks in any five-year period and set a maximum household income.

For those presently receiving CETA salaries, employment using the federal money would be limited to one more year as of Oct. 1.

"That's why they're making the requirements more strict, because of townships like us," Rose said.

And Niemann explained it this way: "It's just not going to be as good without (CETA employees) as it was with them—that's part of the program. If (taxpayers) want them badly enough, let them pay."

"It shouldn't be a total loss if the economy is strong enough to absorb them," he added.

Show honors nature artist

Gwen Frostic, who approaches nature as a poet, artist and philosopher, will share her love of Northern Michigan flora and fauna with the public during the 13th annual Pontiac Mall Flower Show.

She will be the honored guest at the flower show Sept. 22 and will deliver a free lecture at 2 p.m.

The theme of the six-day flower show, presented by 20 area branches of the Women's National Farm and Garden Association, is "The Nature of Things."

All the classifications for entering flower arrangements are from the writings of Ms. Frostic, who focuses on nature as publisher of Presscraft Papers.

Her headquarters near Benzonia is on a 240-acre tract of woods and wilderness. In a showroom built of fieldstone, glass and wood, frogs and rainbow trout play in a pond beneath a natural waterfall.

Outside, the artist has created a wildlife sanctuary where she observes, listens, sketches and dreams. Her nature library, she says, is "the most complete in Michigan and is open to the public all year."

Ms. Frostic uses both the sanctuary and the library to check details of her sketches. The designs are then carved in a linoleum block from which engravings are made.

She has written and illustrated 10 books which aim "to bring you the wind in the trees or the very first violet of spring, a bit of serenity that exists in this world."

Ms. Frostic is designing and printing the cover pages for the mall flower show's mini-schedule, which will explain the show classes to those touring the exhibits of fresh and dried floral arrangements, table settings, plate designs, artistic crafts, horticulture displays and guest exhibits.

Her prints, papers and books will be sold by the Drayton Plains Nature Center at the Pontiac Mall Sept. 22 and 23, near the demonstration area.

Call us before you move ... you might save unnecessary expense.

If you're planning to move to another home, now's the time to think about how many phones you might need in your new home and what kind of changes you might need in your phone service. A little planning can help you avoid unnecessary installation charges.

Call your Michigan Bell Service Representative. Allow enough time before moving for a full explanation of service and equipment options and time to order the phone service you need when you need it. Remember, once your new service is installed, extra visits by your installer mean extra expenses for you, expenses we'd rather you didn't have to pay.

Just about ready to go into service as Springfield Township's library, this renovated building was once the one-room Andersonville School.

New library her old alma mater

By Pat Braunagel
Associate Editor

Luella Sommers remembers the new Springfield Township Library back when children going there had to take their own books—and slate boards.

Mrs. Sommers, 87, received eight years of education in the one-room Andersonville School around the turn of the century.

The building, moved a mile up Andersonville Road and renovated, is almost ready to be opened as Springfield Township Library.

Mrs. Sommers visited it the other evening, marveled at its "newness" and reminisced about her school days.

Among the architectural features which have remained intact are the separate entrances for boys and girls. The girls' entrance is on the right as you face the school from the road. The boys' entrance is clear around on the other side.

There were separate cloak rooms inside the building and, later on, rooms were created off each for chemical toilets. Now much of that area is taken up by a staircase going into the newly-provided basement.

Restrooms and a storage room have been built at the other end of the building, up where the teacher used to sit.

When Mrs. Sommers went to school there, the toilet facilities were outside.

And the children went across the road to fill a pail with drinking water. The pail was kept at the back of the room by the wood-burning stove.

"It was a great honor to pass out the water," Mrs. Sommers recalls. "Everyone drank out of the same dipper, passing it along the rows. When it was empty, the child who had been selected went back to the pail for more."

There were usually about a dozen pupils at the school.

"I think once there were 15," Mrs. Sommers said. "That was a big school, a huge school."

Mrs. Sommers doesn't remember the Andersonville teachers ever having any extra-reading books. They stuck pretty much to the basics—reading, writing, arithmetic, physiology and orthography (language study through spelling and the sounds of letter combinations).

"I had my first-grade reader before I went to school," Mrs. Sommers recalled. "My father read it to me. I could read the whole thing all the way through by the time I went to school—but when my teacher covered the pictures with her hand, I couldn't read a thing."

Mrs. Sommers' father, Frank Harpley, had attended the original Andersonville School, which burned down in 1890 or 1891 when Mrs. Sommers was a baby.

Children started at the school when they were 7 and attended through the eighth grade.

"I don't think too many went on to high school," Mrs. Sommers recalled.

Her four children—Clara, Eleanor, Francis and Mary Lou—also attended Andersonville School, and a granddaughter, Patricia Ferree, was a member of the last class in the old building before the modern school was opened in the early 50s.

Mrs. Sommers, who has lived in Onaway for six years, went home last weekend after visiting here for the summer. She had stayed with a daughter's family, the Alvin Days, in their home just west of the new location of the schoolhouse-turned-library.

Clara Day, who entered Andersonville School in 1920, has watched with interest the renovation of the old building.

It now stands ready to receive furniture and books, its interior well-lighted and carpeted and its exterior freshly-painted gray with white trim.

"It never was a red schoolhouse," Mrs. Day said. "It had a bell, but we don't know where the bell went."

Santalias discover new lifestyle

Country Living

By Kathy Greenfield
Staff writer

Recent changes in Ed and Sharron Santala's lives have brought them to a new philosophy of living and to their third home in Clarkston.

"A couple of years ago, probably the entire goal for our life was to become rich," Ed said. "But it's become a very secondary thing.

"We don't want to become uncomfortable economically, but we're more into spreading the Christian gospel than making money."

Ed and Sharron and their daughters Shari, 12, and Kristin, 10, moved into their third home in Deer Lake Farms three months ago.

They first moved to Clarkston in 1963, left in 1968 and came back in 1974.

"We love the area," Ed said. "We wanted my business to be based here."

When Ed's family took trips to northern Michigan, they drove through the village and he dreamed about living in Clarkston.

"All the while I was growing up, we looked at the great big mansions on M-15," he said. "And I thought, 'Wow—I'd like to have enough money to live out here.'"

And although their first home in the area did not fit the mansion category—they bought a repossessed home for an investment—it was a start.

"We fixed it up and that was the beginning of this," Ed said.

Their newest home was planned with an eye to all the houses Ed built in the last five years as the owner of Briarwoode Builders and Briarwoode Realty.

The Santalias chose two designs they especially liked and combined the features that best suited their family.

"We really haven't found a thing in it we don't like," Ed said of their new home.

And they are contented living in the new subdivision.

"It's so quiet and peaceful and yet we have the conveniences of living in the city," Sharron said.

School and church activities take up most of Sharron's time, as well as arts and craft projects. Needlework and a large pine cone wreath she fashioned adorn the walls in their home.

Before they moved, Sharron did volunteer work at Pine Knob Elementary School.

Ed and Sharron enjoy their long living room that offers a conversation grouping on one end and a place for family concerts on the piano and organ on the other. The room is decorated in brown and beige with gold accents.

"I've been really involved at school in art appreciation (and the superintendent's dialogue committee," she said. "I worked in the gym program, too, where we had gym during lunch, and I was secretary of the PTO."

Although their move meant a change in schools for their children, "I'll always be involved in what they're doing," she said. "I think it's important."

The Santalias said their children are still young enough to need direction, but emphasize the importance of having them make decisions.

The girls chose the color schemes and light fixtures for their rooms—Shari's is done in pastel greens and Kristin's in pale gold.

The girls have also chosen to pursue different interests. Shari plays piano and flute and Kristin likes athletics — especially tumbling.

"Their goals are going to have to be something they're going to have to set," Sharron said. "To try to set them for them would be a bit presumptuous."

Ed's time over the last six years has been spent almost entirely establishing their business interests.

"It's just getting to the point where there's more time to do things that are non-business related," he said.

"Probably the most exciting thing we're doing right now is this house is going to be the Clarkston center of the Youth for Christ program," he said.

The program is for high school students in the ninth through twelfth grades.

"Called Campus Life, it's designed to teach kids what Jesus Christ is all about, what His teachings were and are," Ed said.

The group will meet one evening each week in the Santalias' home. The first meeting is scheduled for next week.

The programs are non-denominational. Leading the meetings will be three couples from the Clarkston area and the local director for the nationwide Youth for Christ program.

The local director also lives in the area. When the Santalias met him, they agreed on the need for such a program and offered their home for the meetings.

They became involved "because we've committed our lives to Jesus Christ," Ed said. "At least for now, He's given us the facility and the desire to help with this kind of program."

They are expecting 50 to 100 young people to be involved in the semi-directed meetings.

The goals are "to help committed Christian kids to grow, and teach them how to share Jesus Christ with other people," Ed said.

And, as leaders, they will be "available as somebody they trust to work out problems on a day-to-day basis," he said.

"We hope, too, that the kids will have fun—a place to go to have good, clean fun," Sharron said.

The Santalias are planning on success in their new venture.

"It's kind of exciting, because we don't know where it's going to go," Ed said. "Looking forward, as Ethel Waters says, 'God don't make no flops.'"

Shari, Sharron and Kristin are enjoying their new home. Although their favorite spot is the winding staircase, they also enjoy the stone floor-to-ceiling fireplace in the living room.

Young appetites keep him busy

Filling orders for hot dogs and hamburgers, Richard Kozlowicz keeps busy over the backyard grill during the party he and his wife hosted for a couple dozen neighborhood kids Saturday. This was the second Labor Day weekend that the couple held a party for young people at their Glenburnie home.

Finance your home insulation through Detroit Edison. (Let it snow, let it snow, let it snow.)

A charming snow scene in a glass paperweight. In the old days it was the favorite possession of many a little girl or boy.

But the reality of winter in southeastern Michigan can be harsh—bringing high heating bills.

Before another cold, snowy winter, make sure your home is properly insulated. It's the most important single thing you can do to keep heating bills down. And help save energy.

Detroit Edison's Home Insulation Finance Plan is designed to help. First, by providing a list of participating contractors. Second, with convenient financing.

Under the plan, you can arrange to have insulation installed anywhere it's needed—wherever valuable heat might escape into the cold winter air.

If you're a residential customer with legal title to your home and an acceptable credit rating, you can take advantage of Detroit Edison's Home Insulation Finance Plan. Call or stop in at any Detroit Edison Customer Office for details.

Then when winter comes, sit back and say—"let it snow, let it snow, let it snow."

Save where it really counts.
The power is in your hands.

SHENANDOAH'S R-78 WOOD HEATER IS NEW, BUT IT WON'T TAKE YOU LONG TO WARM UP TO IT.

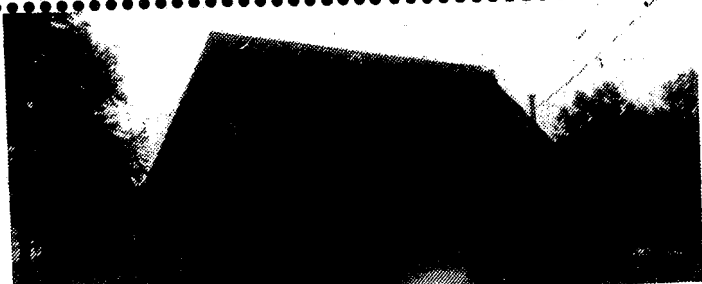

Because it's simply a smaller version of our popular R-76 wood heater. Both have the automatic bi-metal thermostat for temperature regulation, the airtight construction for heat control, primary and secondary air intake for maximum efficiency, and our nine-inch firebrick lining for heat retention. Plus a cast-iron shaker grate with ash pan for easy removal.

Everything the R-76 does, the R-78 does. Only it will do it in a smaller space.

The first service in Calvary Lutheran Church's new sanctuary will be held Sunday, Sept. 10, at 10 a.m.

The addition to the church has been under construction for almost a year at its location on 6805 Bluegrass Dr.

Worshippers should dress casually so they can enjoy the annual picnic and softball game after the service.

Home-made ice cream will be served and, for the first time, a steam calliope and a popcorn wagon will be on the grounds for more picnic fun.

The surprise silver anniversary party thrown for Ken and Donna Ross by their children really caught them by surprise.

When 66 relatives and friends gathered at the home of Kay and Fred Dyke, the Rosses were out for a cook-out dinner on the Dykes' pontoon boat.

But, alas, they had to return for the forgotten charcoal lighter.

"When all those people started walking out, it was such a wonderful surprise," Donna said.

And when Nancy and Gordon Mason, Tom, and Shari and Bill Ross plan a party for their parents, they don't leave anything out. A wedding cake and all the attendants from their wedding were also part of the celebration.

The Rosses have lived on Frankwill Road, Independence Township, for 20 years. They have one grandchild, Michelle.

Married in Ortonville in 1953, their anniversary was Aug. 22.

Mr. and Mrs. William Medlin of Hummingbird Lane, Independence Township, are the proud parents of their first child.

Keith Andrew was born Aug. 20, weighing in at 8 pounds, 3 ounces.

His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart of Springfield Township and Mr. and Mrs. James Medlin of Arkansas.

Great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Eckley Farrow of Pennsylvania and Mrs. G.E. Medlin of Missouri.

Among students who received masters' degrees recently at the University of Wisconsin-Madison was Donald W. Brown II of Snowapple Drive, Independence Township.

Brown's major was health services administration.

Evening wedding

Diane Elizabeth Hughlett and Dennis Ray Patrick were married at Kirk-in-the-Hills Presbyterian Church in Bloomfield Hills in an evening ceremony. The traditional service was performed by the Rev. James F. Anderson.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hughlett of Waldon Road, Independence Township, is a 1977 graduate of Clarkston High School. She is employed by the Commonwealth of Kentucky in the Whitley County Circuit Court clerk's office as an accountant.

Her husband, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Patrick of Williamsburg, Ky., is also employed by the Whitley County Circuit Court as a circuit clerk.

For her May 13 wedding, the bride made her gown and veil. The gown of antique eyelet fabric, lined with old-fashioned muslin, had a Peter Pan collar edged with antique eyelet lace, tucked bodice, natural waistline, ruffle at the hemline and an apron of eyelet over the skirt.

Her cap was edged with lace with an illusion waist-length veil. She carried a round bouquet of daisies, bachelor buttons, baby's breath and greens.

Serving as matron of honor was the mother of the bride, Mrs. Mary Hughlett who wore a floor-length light blue Qiana gown with a scoop neckline and small elastic waist.

Bridesmaids were Billie Moore of Clarkston and Sandie Lowe of Williamsburg, Ky.

The bridesmaids wore three-tiered dresses of a delicate floral pastel print on an antique white background with Peter Pan collars edged in lace.

Suzanne Patrick of Williamsburg, Ky., niece of the groom, served as flower girl. The bride also made her dress out of the same fabric and lace as the bridesmaids' gowns.

The bride's attendants carried bouquets of carnations, daisies, baby's breath and greens.

Nephew of the groom, Tony Bryant of Williamsburg, Ky., served as best man.

Groomsmen were Tom Rains, Terry Smith and Rick Mosely, all of Williamsburg, Ky.

Ushers were Jim Hughlett, brother of the bride, of Clarkston and Tony Powers and David Baird of Williamsburg, Ky.

The groom's attendants wore antique white tuxedos.

The groom wore a black tuxedo with an antique white shirt.

The reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the church refectory for the 100 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick are residing in Williamsburg, Ky.

Double-ring ceremony

Dana Goodell and Kevin Bickerstaff were recently married in a double ring ceremony at St. Daniel Catholic Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goodell of Big Lake Road, Springfield Township.

Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Bickerstaff of Langle Drive, Independence Township.

For her June 16 wedding, the bride wore a cathedral-style gown and matching veil trimmed with seed pearls and lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow sweetheart roses and daisies.

Sister of the bride Lori

Goodell served as maid of honor.

Trudy Mattoon and Joyce McAmis of Pontiac and Liz Bujel of West Bloomfield served as bridesmaids.

The bride's attendants wore yellow organdy gowns and carried matching parasols.

Dave Bickerstaff, brother of the groom, served as best man with Kurt Maier and John Morgan of Clarkston and Harvey Bell of Mt. Pleasant serving as ushers.

A reception was held at the Waterford Eagles for the 250 guests.

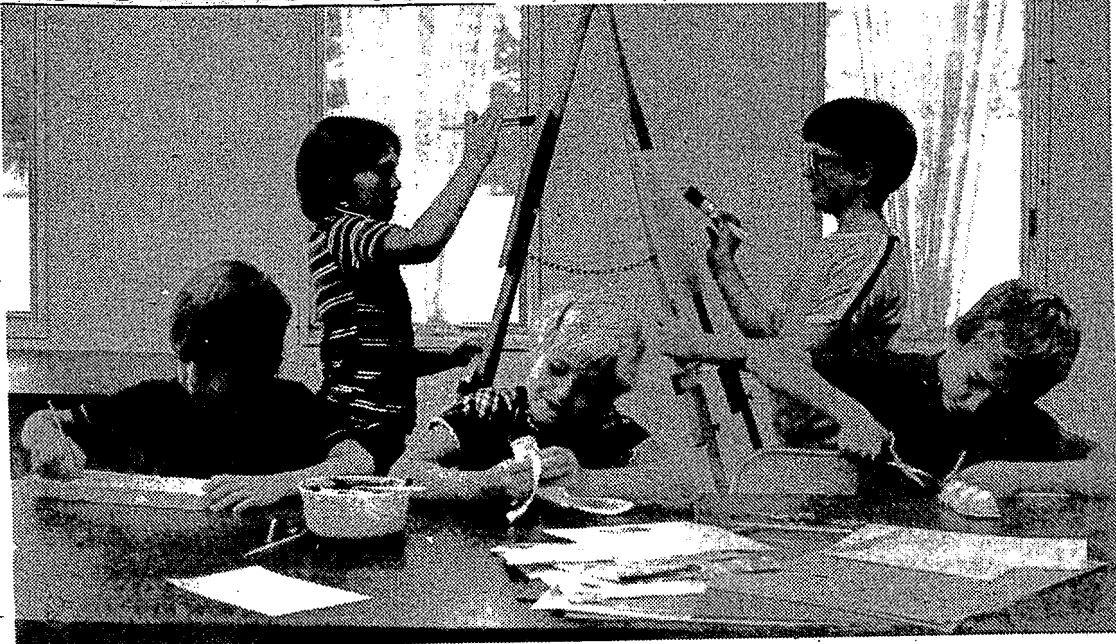

Mr. and Mrs. Bickerstaff honeymooned in northern Michigan. They are residing in Clarkston.

Engaged

A Nov. 25 wedding is planned by Jean Ellen Giroux and Timothy Gerard Sova. The bride-elect, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Giroux of Hillsboro Road, Springfield Township, is a 1977 graduate of Clarkston High School. She is employed by Robert Wilusz, C.P.A., as a secretary and bookkeeper. Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Sova of Griggs Drive, Independence Township, graduated from CHS in 1976. He is employed by General Motors Corp., Truck and Coach Division.

More Millstream

Sunday School is no longer just on Sundays at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church. Beginning next Wednesday evening, the church at 1950 Baldwin Road, Orion Township, will offer bible study, arts and crafts and music electives from 6:15 until 8:15. A dozen or more adults will share their skills with the first through twelfth graders under the direction of Becky Maddox. Registration will take place through early September. Taking part in a preview of some of the painting, puppet-making and needlework projects are: standing, Keith Mercier [left] and Curt Moczarski. The Merciers live on Clearview Road, Independence Township, and the Moczarskis live on Longview Road, Independence Township.

Coping with kids

How to say 'No'

By Jim and Ellen Windell

One of the irritating things about some of the books and columns about child rearing, probably including this one at times, is that the child psychologist seems to always suggest that parents be consistently reasonable. Explanations and intelligent reasons for a parent's action seem to be called for at all times.

"Because I said so, that's why" is never recommended as something a parent should use with children.

We tend to think that there are times when not only is it permissible, but that there are psychologically sound reasons for giving something less than detailed explanations for an action, request or decision.

When 8-year-old Jenny wants to have a friend stay overnight with her and her mother spoils their exciting plans by saying no, the girl is naturally going to be upset. If Jenny is a normal 8-year-old girl, sometimes she will be able to accept her mother's decision without throwing a tantrum or creating a scene.

At other times it will be so temporarily devastating that Jenny will ask, "But, why can't Melissa stay overnight with me?" and no matter what rational explanations are given, Jenny will not accept them.

When a child is so momentarily upset or is being manipulative, for instance, by asking dozens of times about her friend staying overnight, crying and pouting, intelligent, bookish responses do not get through to the child.

If a child has been counting on getting ice cream all day and then Dad says that there won't be enough time for that today, the rational approach with Dad patiently talking about the amount of time required to run errands that are essential will carry little weight with a youngster.

It is at times when as a parent you sense that your intellectual and reasoning approach will not work that you may use an alternative. Giving insufficient justification to your request or decision will force the child to find his or her own explanation. You can find out what that is by asking, "Why do you think we won't be able to go swimming today?"

Since your explanation would be tuned out, asking a question ("What do you think is the reason why ..." or "Do you know why we ...") may help the Teaching gotcha down?

A one-day workshop for teachers considering changing their careers will be held Sept. 16 at the Continuum Center for Adult Counseling and Leadership Training on the Oakland University campus, Rochester. Held from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., the session will concentrate on the current job market, problems related to job changes, tips on resume writing, the use of assertive behavior techniques in a job interview, and how a teacher's educational and professional background can apply to other careers.

The registration fee, including lunch, is $25 with a Sept. 11 deadline.

For more information, contact the Continuum Center at 377-3033.

September 12, 1968

Plans for a new subdivision, called Deerwood, came before the Township Board. The required rezoning and preliminary plans for the 119 homes will begin development of a 75 acre parcel of land located off Cranberry Lake and Perry Lake Roads.

School board members gave their approval for the preliminary drawings of a new administration building. If built, it would be on school property located on Orion Road. The building will be approximately 28,000 square feet.

Ten cadets from the Clarkston Composite Squadron CAP took part in orientation flights at the Pontiac Airport. Pilot of the Beechcraft 200 was Colonel Charles Klann. Clarkston Cadets were: Kevin Campbell, Tom Cornell, James Chad, Gary Klann, James Klark, Mark Peters, John Reichert, Mike Saile, David Topolinski and Greg Weber.

Taking over the sports writing duties for the Clarkston News will be Mike Mason and Kirk Phillips. The two seniors will be replacing assistant junior high school principal, Mel Vaara, who has covered the sporting events for five years.

Scoutmaster Richard Snover and 17 local Boy Scouts were guests of Hutchinson Trailer Sales at the State Fair. The group rode up Woodward Avenue on top of the new "Pontiac Chief" coach in the State Fair parade.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Murton were guests of honor at a dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Campbell, before leaving Clarkston for their new home in Detroit. A luncheon was also served at Devon Gables with hosts Mrs. Fred Turek and Mrs. Ralph Kreger.

Youths fly for traffic safety

Airborne young people from Clarkston helped the Oakland County Sheriff's Department keep track of traffic over the Labor Day weekend.

CAP provided the aircraft, pilots and observers for the program, while the sheriff's department picked up the tab for the fuel, oil and maintenance.

Information was then made available to officers on patrol and to the media, county-wide.

CAP members from Clarkston participating in the program were 1st Lt. Mike Saile and cadets Kurt Kreiner, Joe Brown, Lance Jewett, Jim Cantley, Ed Spicuzza and Bob Spicuzza.

CAP communications personnel relayed the information from the aircraft via radio, to a communications center at the

More antiques on sale at Dip 'n Strip

Doing business

By Maralee Cook

A fascination for and life-long relationship with old furniture prompted brothers Gary and Steve Blaine to open their furniture stripping business in 1970.

And about a month ago the brothers Blaine and their four employees moved their stripping and refinishing equipment and a truckload of antiques into their new 4,800-square-foot building next door.

Located on Highland Road at Williams Lake Road in Waterford Township, Dip 'n Strip is the oldest furniture stripping company in Oakland County, they say.

The furniture stripping and refinishing business will continue as usual, but the extra space will allow the Blaines to sell more antiques. The brothers have been bringing in a truckload of antiques each weekend all summer and they are now on display.

The Blaines use a cold dip-strip process which is kind to wood, and they closely monitor the time the article spends in the chemical. If wood is left in the solution too long it may warp, or the grain may rise.

After the furniture is stripped it is placed into a neutralizing bath so the next finish will adhere to the wood. The Blaines do their refinishing by hand.

The Blaines have incorporated many antiques into their new building. The bay windows and front door are over 100 years old. Their stained glass is from the old Fort Street Calvary Baptist Church of Detroit. They also have some pre-Civil War stained glass from the Saginaw Congregational Church. And the "new" old oak floor was put down by hand, piece by piece.

The Blaines are planning to host future antique auctions in their new building. For the moment, they're content to dip and strip, refinish and sell their antique furniture, clocks, glass and knickknacks.

Real Estate HAPPENINGS

by Bob & Marvel White

Have you noticed the prices of houses these days? Sometimes they are a little high aren't they? Well, if you can't quite afford that dream house, there are other roads to home ownership that might be more affordable now. For instance, did you ever consider buying a multi-family dwelling? Certainly, the initial cost will be more than a single family dwelling, but often the rent from the apartments in the house will cover the mortgage. Living in an apartment in a house you own is not the same thing as renting an apartment. A multi-family dwelling can put you more than half way to your dream house.

Whether you're looking in the suburbs or the city, put yourself into our capable hands at BOB WHITE REAL ESTATE, 5856 S. Main St., right next to the new Clarkston Post Office, 625-5821. We have the knowledge and experience to guide you in avoiding the many costly errors inherent in home buying, and we have a fine selection of property to show you. Hours: 9-9 Mon-Thur; 9-6 Fri & Sat; 11-5 Sun.

Meetings will be held at Oakland County Division of

Shop talk

A Clarkston resident has reopened the Total service station located at the Main Street/Clarkston Road intersection.

Dan Clinansmith is leasing the gas station from the Flintex Oil Company.

Clinansmith said his experience in car repair is lengthy. Certified by the state to do engine repair and tune-ups, Clinansmith also can work on transmissions and brakes.

Both foreign and American-made cars can be serviced at his station, Clinansmith said.

VILLAGE OF CLARKSTON
MINUTES OF REGULAR MEETING
Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston
August 28, 1978

Meeting called to order by President Hallman at 7:30 p.m. followed by the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

Roll: Present, Basinger, Byers, Schultz, Thayer, Weber. Absent, ApMadoc.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The council discussed whether to publish the entire minutes or a synopsis of them in the Clarkston News, especially the legality and cost difference. Treasurer Art Pappas will supply us with the last few Clarkston News bills for minutes publication.

Trustee Schultz reported that the state highway dept. had notified him that placing signs on I-75 designating three exits for Clarkston would create confusion for motorists, so they will not be doing it.

The council discussed Gar Wilson's request to purchase a used loader for snow removal at a cost of $11,500. They felt that this is too large an expense for something that would only have a limited use. Leasing the vehicle was discussed, and Gar was authorized to look into the purchase of a front loading truck.

Trustee Schultz will check on the sand in the storm drains near Clarkston Mills.

Correspondence from Acting Police Chief Kimball was read, concerning his recommendation to make an ordinance for rules in the park. The council discussed this situation.

Moved by Schultz, seconded by Thayer to have the attorney draft an ordinance prohibiting people in the park between 10 p.m. and 8 a.m. except by special permission by the council. Motion carried unanimously.

Trustee Schultz reported that there would be a folk concert in the park this Wednesday and wanted to know if they could be paid with funds in the village band account. The council felt that since that was the band committee's money, that they should be the ones to give this approval.

Correspondence from Township Clerk Chris Rose was read, requesting the council to approve placing the ballot proposal of levying one additional mill for police protection on the November election ballot, which the township has already authorized. President Hallman reviewed the village's financing of police protection, and the council and Mr. Rose discussed the ballot proposal.

Moved by Thayer, seconded by Basinger to authorize the township clerk to place the request for one additional mill for police protection from 1979 to 1988 on the November election ballot for village residents. Roll: Ayes, Basinger, Byers, Schultz, Thayer, Weber. Nays, none. Motion carried.

Treasurer Art Pappas distributed financial reports to the council.

Correspondence from the Township Zoning Officer was read, desiring direction from the village concerning the recent addition to the parking lot of the Methodist Church. They will be notified that the attorney has indicated that this is permissible under the terms of our zoning ordinance, but the matter of changing the ordinance has been referred to the planning commission in case of future similar requests.

Correspondence from the Dept. of Natural Resources was read, stating that they had no record of dredging permits for the Olde Sturbridge subdivision north of the village. Trustee Basinger will check into this.

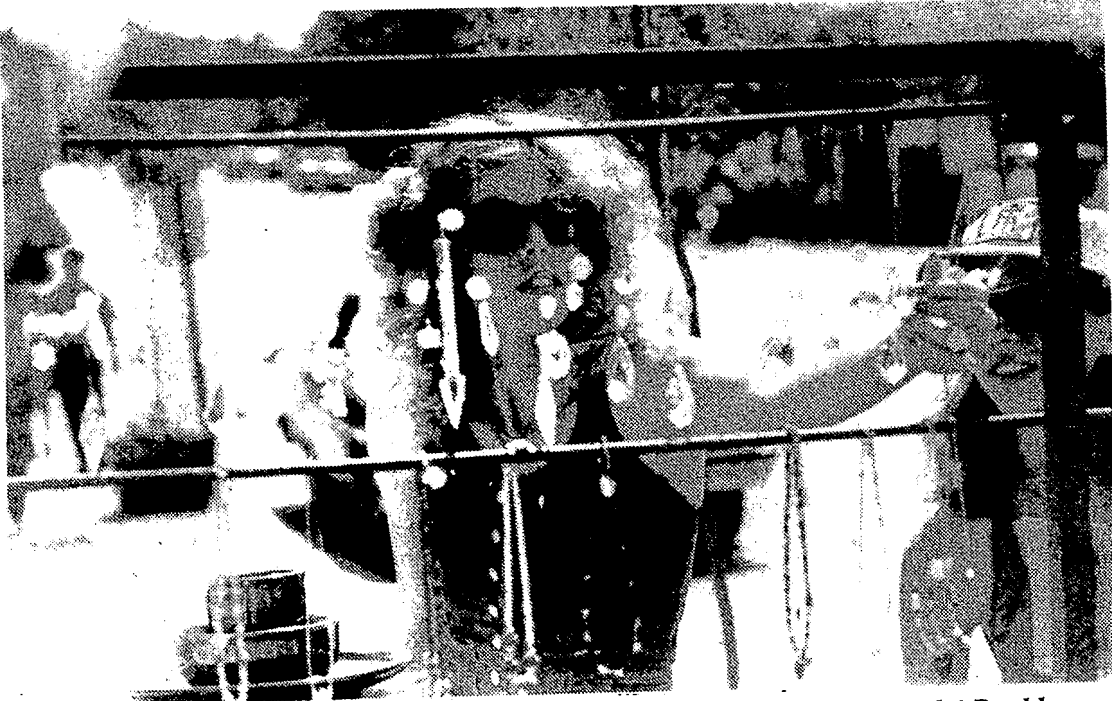

Correspondence from Blue Cross-Blue Shield was read, stating that we would be changed from a group rate to an individual rate now, since we employ fewer than five full-time persons.

Moved by Weber, seconded by Byers to adjourn at 9:15 p.m. Motion carried unanimously.

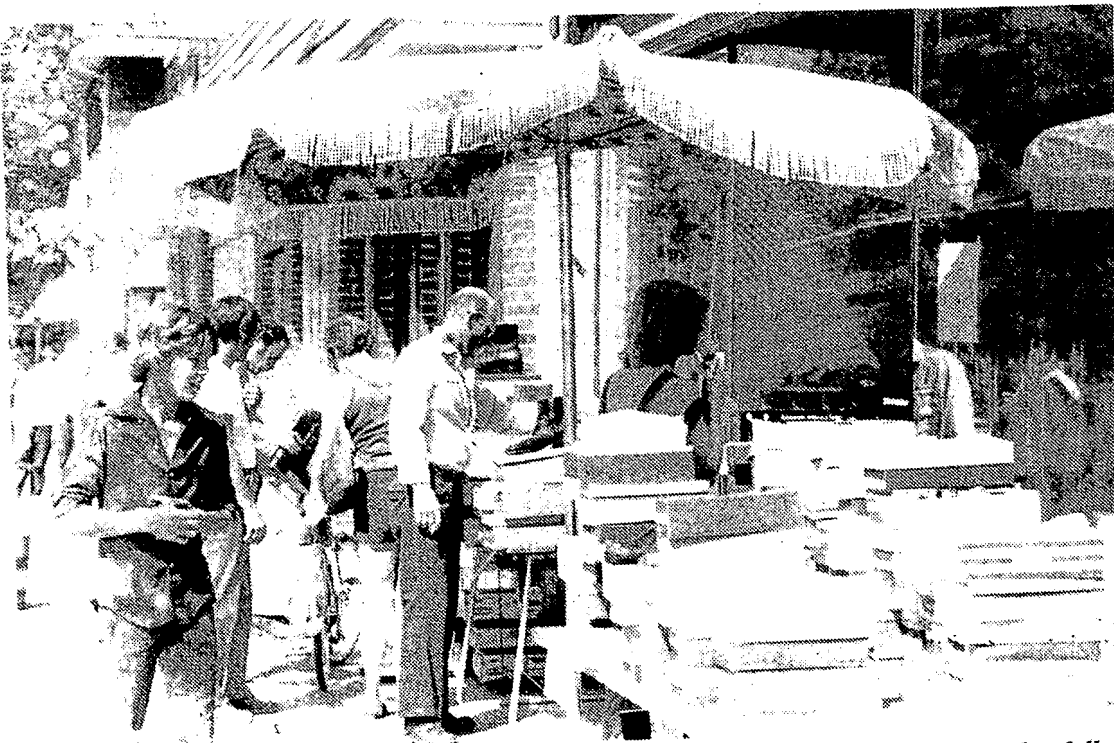

Bruce Rogers
Village Clerk

Village Days

Strollers snap up bargains

Crystals which caught and refracted the sun's rays caught the eye of Lorelei Bookless of Garden Court, Clarkston, and many another Village Days sidewalk shopper. The crystals were displayed in front of Tierra Arts and Design.

A bright umbrella protects shoppers from summer's sun as they check over the fall and winter footwear offered at reduced prices by the Clarkston Shoe Service during the Village Days sidewalk sale.

A variety of bargains was on display in front of Clarkston's Emporium.

Among artisans selling their wares in downtown Clarkston this weekend was Lorraine Carlson of Milford, who crafted new jewelry while her mother helped customers.

THANKS AND PRAISE to the Independence Fire Department! As I made the call to the fire department on Aug. 22, I visioned not only smoke and fire but ax and water damage. My worst fears were unfounded. I hope to be in attendance at our next council meeting. A very special thanks to all of the wonderful people who helped my daughter and my beautiful grandson with their needs—she said all of the babysitters were great. Thank you—thank you again. Climbing and other pastimes

By Mary Butterfield

Memories are priceless things. Some provide amusing stories, and others cushion the shock that change inevitably brings.

Not a profound observation, but comforting to me after a visit to my childhood home now standing naked and vulnerable, completely denuded of the evergreens and walnut and maple trees that once surrounded it.

Trees were important then, and doubly so now, not only for their individual beauty and enhancement of the landscape, but also for the shelter they provided against sun and wind.

For a seasoned tree-climber, or anything-climber, there were two kinds of trees. The lordly and inaccessible elms and walnuts were only to be admired for their beauty and grace. The maples, evergreens and especially the apple trees were friendly and hospitable, opening their arms and inviting one to climb them and find a comfortable spot to sit for an afternoon reading a book.

There were also the borderline trees, like the hickorynut and beechnut that challenged one to get a toe-hold and reach the lowest branch.

Tree-climbing was such a delightful pastime for me that I tried to pass the magic on to my little sister. She was not as devoted as I was, but one day she did agree to try the beechnut tree on the other farm.

Going up was fine. She climbed from limb to limb like a veteran, and I was proud of her. Coming down was different. She panicked and fell to the ground before I could reach her. No broken bones. We decided that she was not a tree-climber, and what our mother didn't know need not worry her.

Roof-climbing was another story. My father called a halt to that in a hurry.

At harvest time we watched the hay being lifted into the barn on an iron fork that descended open-jawed into the wagon, took a gargantuan bite and was drawn up by pulley into the haymow and along a trolley to a place where the hay was dropped with a soft, springy plop. That was fascinating and set in motion a plot that could have spelled disaster for my little sister, my brother and me.

On a quiet afternoon when the haymow was almost full and the hayfork lying innocently on the ground, we put our plan in motion. My sister and I each grabbed a tine of the fork and with many warnings from my brother to hang on, we were lifted into the barn and deposited in the springy, sweet-smelling hay. What a thrill!

We never repeated that antic, and after solemn, cross-your-heart-and-hope-to-die promises that no one would snitch, we decided our parents didn't need to know that, either.

When tree-climbing and similar acrobatics palled, there were always burr baskets, made from the sticky, prickly burdocks and filled with little flowers. My little sister was gathering the flowers and I was busily shaping the basket, but not having much luck. It refused to stick together, and in disgust I pitched it away. Just at that instant my little sister leaned forward and the basket stuck in her thick, curly hair.

My mother and father were away, and it took the combined efforts of the rest of the family and the balance of the day to get the burrs unstuck.

Three close shaves!

In those instances where the applicant seeks occupancy of the premises prior to the completion of all construction of every nature in accordance with an approved site plan, or in those instances where the applicant occupies the premises at the time of application and continued occupancy is contemplated during the time of construction, the applicant shall deposit cash, an irrevocable letter of credit running to Independence Township, or a bond forfeitable to Independence Township in an amount equal to 125% of the estimated cost of the remaining improvements pursuant to such site plan. Clarkston wraps up good ol' summertime

Labor Day festivities started early Monday morning with a pancake breakfast at the Independence Township fire station on Church street.

The fire department earned $5,570 for Muscular Dystrophy during the event that ran from 7 a.m. until 10 a.m.

The Labor Day parade followed with floats, clowns and thousands of parade-watchers lining the Clarkston village streets.

Judges for the parade were Joe and Mary Jane Falls and Delton Lohff.

Prize winners will be awarded plaques. Winning the Rotary president's award and first place float honors was the Timberline Estates' Sesame Street float. Mr. G's castle and carnation float won for best theme and second place float. The Clarkston Historical Society was awarded third place float honors.

Best costume award winners were: first, Ron "Uncle Sam" Voorheis; second, Davis Tinsley as Wonder Woman; and third, the Waterford Jaycee clowns.

Honorable mentions were won by the six Village Players clowns, Davisburg Jaycees, Claude Trim for "It's a Small World" float, the Clarkston Conservatory and the Waterford fire truck water fight with the Goodrich fire department.

After the parade, a mini-procession led Matilda the goat to the home of Bill Dennis who won the goat vote in a contest sponsored by the Clarkston Village Players.

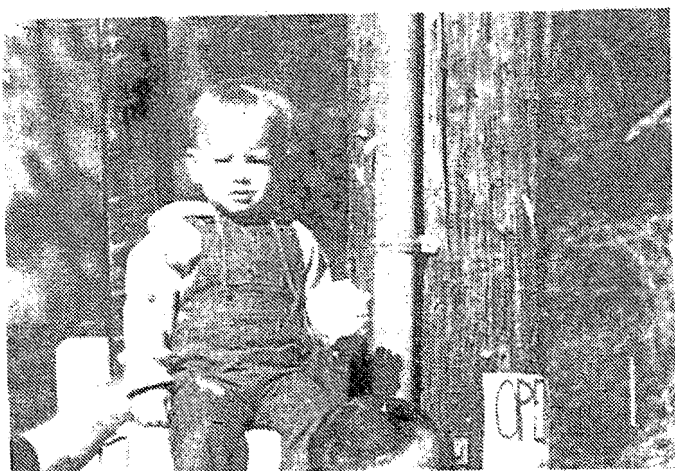

"I knew somebody was going to be lucky. I had no idea it was going to be me," Dennis said during the goat presentation on his front lawn.

"I'm very touched," he said, adding that he had a lawn mower for sale.

Afternoon Labor Day festivities ended with the American Legion corn roast where 1,600 ears of corn were consumed, along with 800 hot dogs and 115 pounds of ground beef in the form of sloppy joes.

A giant green "Hulk" riding in the truck that pulled the winning Sesame Street float was the hit of the Labor Day parade.

Jeremy Fife had the best seat on the street atop the traffic light control box on the corner of Main and Washington streets. He was in town from Ann Arbor with his parents visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Duyane Fife of Dvorak Street.

Enjoying the featured attraction at the American Legion corn roast Monday are Dr. Forrest D. and Luana Hunt of North Holcomb Street.

The Clarkston Historical Society float included the group's vice president Pat McLaughlin with an antique quilt.

Rides around the countryside and into downtown Clarkston aboard the 40/8 engine are an annual feature of the corn roast at the Campbell-Richmond American Legion Post.
