Court halts home for handicapped

By Mimi Mayer
Staff writer

Hours before the tenants of a state-monitored foster care facility were to move into a house in Springfield Township, Oakland County Circuit Judge Robert L. Templin issued a temporary restraining order preventing the house from opening.

The restraining order was issued Monday in connection with a $200,000 legal suit initiated by the owners of Shiawassee Creek Farms, a 17-lot subdivision being developed adjacent to the foster care home on Davisburg Road, one-half mile east of Andersonville Road.

Defendants in the case are Charles and Carol Underwood and Living Alternatives for the Developmentally Disabled, Inc., a nonprofit corporation which had leased the house from the Underwoods.

The Underwoods bought the lot for house in December 1977 from the plaintiffs, Roger Roeser and Karl and Carmen Lundquist.

A builder, Underwood designed and constructed the house as a foster care unit for the handicapped.

The Living Alternatives corporation and the Macomb-Oakland Regional Center (MORC), an agency of the Michigan Department of Mental Health, planned to move six unrelated mentally and physically handicapped adults into the residence Tuesday.

The plaintiffs are seeking $200,000 in damages as well as a permanent restraining order against the Underwoods and corporation.

They allege that the Underwoods have caused a decline in the value of their property, which is east and west and on the other side of Davisburg Road from the intended foster-care house.

They ask that the house not be used for any purpose other than a single-family dwelling.

The restraining order prevents the Underwoods and Living Alternatives Inc. from operating a foster care facility for housing nonrelated adults in the house.

Templin's order also stipulates that any alterations made in the building must be approved by the Lundquists and Roeser.

The defendants will have an opportunity to argue against the restraining order at a show-cause hearing scheduled for Oct. 10.

Should Templin rule in the plaintiffs' favor, he would issue a permanent injunction against the foster care facility.

Gerald Leismer, MORC's director of community services, said the temporary restraining order was "a total surprise."

Leismer said the plaintiffs met with representatives of MORC Sept. 18 when the plaintiffs asked for a two-week delay in the house opening.

The plaintiffs said they were having a difficult time selling properties in the subdivision when word got out that a foster care facility for mentally and physically handicapped adults was to open on a Shiawassee Creek Farms lot, Leismer said.

Leismer continued, "They voiced a concern. They said that every day would help them."

Clarkston Mills spokesman says:

'Parking lots will be done soon'

By Mimi Mayer
Staff writer

One day of fair weather is all that's needed to complete the Clarkston Mills shopping mall's two parking lots, Manager Frank Walker said Monday in response to concerns voiced by officers of the Village Business Association.

In a letter to the Clarkston Village Council, Association Chairperson Laurie Stern, Co-chairperson Joan Kopietz and Secretary/Treasurer Claudia Jakus criticized Clarkston Mills for opening without providing adequate parking facilities to its patrons.

The unfinished parking lot caused mall customers to put "more stress" on existing parking in the village, the letter said.

The letter continued to say that there are no usable entrances to the mall accessible from the parking lots located at the rear of the mall facing Depot Road.

Finally, the letter asked why "The Mills did not make application for occupancy certificate as required by law?"

Walker said the four open shops within Clarkston Mills had been issued a temporary certificate of occupancy by Clarkston Building Inspector Timothy Palulian on Sept. 15, a day after the mall opened its doors for business.

The certificate was issued, "Based on the fact that we would not open any more shops," Walker said. A permanent certificate will be given once the parking lots are completed, he continued.

Rainy weather prevented the completion of the parking lots before the mall was slated to open, Walker said, adding assurances that the parking lot will be completed as soon as weather permits.

Walker also said adequate entrances to the mall have been provided. Mall employees and proprietors of the shops within the mall are using entrances facing West Washington and Mill Street, Walker said.

A glass-enclosed elevator and a stairwell leading to the mall's second level are planned as rear entrances but are incomplete due to delays in material delivery, Walker said.

"We're just at the point where we can't do anything. I don't think we've hesitated anywhere," Walker added.

Stern said the letter was written to "expedite" the completion of the parking lot.

"We weren't out for vengeance," she said. "A number of people in the (business) organization were calling and were upset about it."

"We felt that if (Clarkston Mills) had to open at that time, we would understand that. We couldn't understand their putting any more stress on existing parking," she continued.

Kopietz said the zoning ordinances covering village parking had been amended to prevent new businesses from opening without providing adequate parking facilities.

"It's happened over and over again that the village codes haven't been enforced," Kopietz said.

She added that the parking problem will arise in the near future once the Haupt Pontiac Collision Shop, 32 S. Main, is converted into a mini-mall.

Kopietz said the letter was not written to cause ill will between established village business owners and the proprietors of Clarkston Mills' stores.

"We've supported (Clarkston Mills) all the way. The only thing we do not support is their not supporting the zoning ordinance," Kopietz said.

"It was not an attack on the stores. It was an attack on Clarkston Mills not following the ordinance," she continued.

It was "imperative" that the business association officers act, "Especially since the ordinance was just rewritten in view that the town was going into development," Kopietz added.

Before the letter was sent, eight members of the business association were asked if they approved the complaint, Stern said.

Council to weigh resignation

Hallman village president pending trustees' action

By Mimi Mayer
Staff writer

Keith Hallman remains the village president until the Clarkston Village Council can act on his letter of resignation.

Thomas Gruich, village attorney, said Monday that state law specifies that a public official cannot resign without formal recognition of that resignation.

"The statute says that the resignation must be accepted by the council. When the village finally gets the letter of resignation, they'll be able to act," Gruich said.

Hallman's letter of resignation, dated Sept. 20, was not among the correspondences received by the council at a Sept. 25 meeting. It had been delivered to Village Clerk Bruce Rogers, who was on a camping trip with his sixth grade class from Clarkston Elementary School.

Hallman and trustees James Weber and Michael Thayer were also absent from the council meeting.

Queries by The News to village council members on Hallman's letter of resignation brought mixed comments, ranging from strong opposition to Hallman's resignation letter, to noncommittal remarks.

Fontie ApMadoc voiced strong opposition to Hallman's resignation.

"Really, I think it's a shame," she said. "I don't want him to resign. I think he's too valuable."

Hallman's experience in village affairs and his contacts within county and state government are his great strengths, she added.

"You would never get me to believe Keith would do anything to hurt the village," ApMadoc said. "He has the village at heart. He's lived here so long, his business is here."

"He has more time to give to the village than anyone else," ApMadoc continued. "He has more knowledge of the working of the county. He knows people at the county. He knows people in Lansing."

ApMadoc added that Hallman's experience will be needed in the future.

"I believe we're going to have a lot of change," she said. "I just think through the next few years we're going to need someone like Keith with his knowledge of who to contact, where to go for knowledge and help.

"It takes a long time for anyone to know what he knows," ApMadoc added.

ApMadoc said she "would certainly vote not to accept" Hallman's resignation.

She said she does not believe Hallman had a conflict of interest with his dual roles as village president and a marketing consultant for the Clarkston Mills shopping mall.

"I think he can look on both sides on it. I think (Hallman's resignation) was a chain reaction all the way down," ApMadoc said, referring to a letter sent by officers of the Village Business Association to the council criticizing Clarkston Mills for opening without providing adequate parking as specified in a village ordinance.

Councilwoman Ruth Basinger was succinct in her comment to the News on Hallman's letter of resignation.

"It would be more reassuring to the public if he had chosen to stay with the village instead of the conflicting job," she said.

Councilman Jackson Byers said he was "very sorry to hear" that Hallman had composed a letter of resignation.

"I hope he will stop and reconsider. I think he's made a real contribution to the village through the years," Byers said.

"I think if he does decide to stay on, he will make a definite contribution in the future based on his experience. I think he really has his finger on the pulse of things," Byers continued.

Like ApMadoc, Byers cited Hallman's knowledge of the community as one of his strong points, adding, "He has the ability to handle people and arbitrate problems that come before the council."

Byers said he wasn't certain how he will vote when the council moves on Hallman's letter of resignation.

"I don't know all the facts on it. I can't make a statement like that until the reasons for his resignation are made public," Byers said.

"I don't know if there's been a conflict of interest or not," Byers continued. "Up until this time, I don't think there's been."

Byers went on to explain that Hallman excused himself whenever the council debated a matter concerning Clarkston Mills.

Hallman had told the News earlier that Byers would be his personal preference to be named as his replacement.

"I felt very honored that (Hallman) would consider me for such a position," Byers said.

Councilman James Schultz said the decision to resign was Hallman's.

"We each have our own goals, and if he felt he had a conflict of interest, that's something he has to decide," Schultz said. "I guess if it were me, I would have resigned also."

"I was surprised that it was so controversial when he did stay on both jobs," Schultz continued. "He asked us all this before when it first came up. He asked every member" of the council, Schultz said.

Schultz said he wasn't certain whether a conflict of interest did exist for Hallman. "I can't really say, because I have no idea what his capacity is" at Clarkston Mills, Schultz said.

Out of town on a hunting trip, trustee Michael Thayer was not available for comment on Hallman's letter of resignation.

Councilman James Weber said he did not want to comment on Hallman's letter of resignation until he can read the letter himself.

"I don't know anything about it. I know only what I read in the paper," Weber said. "I haven't seen the letter."

Asked by the News if he felt Hallman had a conflict of interest, Weber said, "No. How can there be? Hallman has no vote."

The village president votes on council questions only if there is a tie among council members.

"I have not seen where he's tried to buy my vote or sway my opinion," Weber continued. Like Byers, Weber said Hallman did not take part in council debates concerning Clarkston Mills.

Weber said he did not attend a Sept. 25 council meeting. "I do have other commitments," he said.

Until he sees Hallman's letter of resignation, Weber said he has no further comment on the situation.

Hallman's letter of resignation will be discussed at village council meeting this Monday.

At least for the time being, the termination of police services dispatcher Carol Sutton's job has been terminated.

The Independence Township Board was notified last week that the CETA position could be transferred from its special projects rating to the regular CETA payroll.

The board held a special meeting Monday to get Carol back on the job.

Foster home can't open

 The agency granted the request for a delay.
 Leismer said he wasn't certain what arguments MORC and Living Alternatives for the Developmentally Disabled will use at the Oct. 10 hearing.
 David Mansell, director of Living Alternatives for the Developmentally Disabled, said he's "befuddled."

 "It's really upsetting. We've done nothing below the table. These guys knew we planned to do this from July 5."
 Mansell was referring to a July 5 Springfield Township Board meeting he attended with MORC representatives and the plaintiffs.

"Now we have six people who are living in an institutional setting waiting to get into the home," Mansell said.
 He said the Underwoods are "very distressed. The Underwoods are very committed to this project, and they're hanging in there—as I am," Mansell said.
 Asked by The News to comment on the situation, Carmen Lundquist said, "I'd rather not talk about it."

Letters to the editor

They're urbanizing township

To the editor:

As a long-time resident of Independence Township (since 1954) I have been appalled at the way the township is developing into an urban jungle.

Subdivisions are being built and people moving into them, that, rather than moving from an urban area into a rural area, suddenly want to change the entire township into an urban area.

I particularly note the subdivision adjacent to the Powell landfill that wants fences installed. If they want fences installed I'd say "do it yourself"—why should you force a long-time resident and business to conform to your wishes; this includes enacting laws to change any existing business in the township.

I also note the subdivisions that want sidewalks installed—well, why don't you stay in the city? They have all the sidewalks you want.

Maybe the township should enact a developer, real estate tax to pay for all this garbage that these new township residents want—make the fees large enough so that sufficient monies will be available for fences, sidewalks, street lights, crossing guards and whatever else our urban-type residents want.

If only this ruination of the rural township would stop. In days of yore when developers ruined an area they were summarily hung.

Walter F. Grogan

See how they run

Dear Editor:

This year the Independence Township residents will be deciding on six posts on the Township Board.

There are two areas voters should be aware of in deciding who they will vote for.

First, the Township Zoning Ordinance (section 5.04) states that political campaign signs must be placed on private property. Therefore, voters should note which candidates place signs on school or utility company property.

The second area is that state law requires that political newspaper ads (except classified size) have the name and address of the candidates' committee in the ad.

All Township Board candidates have been notified about both of these laws.

I feel the voters should question whether someone who violates these laws should be on the Township Board which would make laws.

ApMadoc regrets Hallman move

To the Editor:

I am very, very sorry that Keith Hallman has resigned as president of our village council.

Being a council member, I know how much he is going to be missed. Only the council members know how much time he here too many years to do one put in—with different branches of the county and state government.

Very few of our people realize how much work it takes other than just sitting at a table twice a month.

Keith has lived and worked thing to hurt this village. All of us know that occasionally something happens that is beyond our control, but this does not make us care less or try less.

You are going to be greatly missed, Keith.

Fontie ApMadoc
Trustee

Jim's jottings

He sez . . . she sez

This is a true story. I probably shouldn't say that. You may get the idea the other stuff I write isn't.

Anyhow, my nephew, Ed Sherman, told me about a hunting trip he took in his early-married days. He's now been wed 10 years and feels safe to tell these things in front of his wife, Cathy.

Like many newly married men, Ed didn't tell Cathy of the planned trip until the very last minute.

When he did there were threats of leaving him . . . "You won't find me here when you come back if you walk out that door," etc.

Since Ed has committed himself to some friends, the trip stayed on.

At 4 a.m. he started putting two pieces of bread together, with anything in between that he could find.

With bundle and basket Ed went to pick up the first guy. He, too, had not been long from the church. And, like Ed, he waited to say "I'm going hunting," as he left the bed before dawn.

The two of them prepared another basket in the friend's kitchen during the wailing of the very upset spouse.

The same threats were repeated, "You leave, and I leave." Etc., etc.

On to the third friend. This guy wasn't married. He was in a live-in arrangement. As the duo pulled up they noticed the lights on in the house, and they were greeted by two smiling people.

The girlfriend had risen early to get her mate's breakfast and help pack a few sandwiches, fruit and other goodies.

"Can I pack you guys some cookies," the gal asked. That's the part that really got to my nephew. He can ask that question with such sweetness it leaves no doubt of how he felt.

Well, that trip came and went. No one left anyone.

Came next year and the trio decided to test the waters again. During that year the third guy had gone to the altar to make the live-in permanent.

Ed and the first friend were now initiated and all went well as they left their homes.

At the recently-wedded home there was a scene of disruption. The guy had failed to tell his bride of his hunting plans until very late. The records of the two wives of the previous year were heard again by the new one. "I never want to see you again" . . . whatever.

The experienced guy laughed as they helped their friend leave the house . . . and they closed the door just as a shoe hit the inside.

Improving traffic flow

by Pat Braunagel

About the first change I noticed in Clarkston when I returned to the News in March was the increase in the amount of traffic within the village.

I had been absent from the daily routine of Clarkston for three years, working in Lake Orion.

It was a period during which the much-publicized "discovery" of Clarkston occurred, bringing new families—and their autos—into the area.

There was, I noticed immediately, no time during the daylight hours when Clarkston appeared to be a sleepy little village once again.

The traffic noises begin early in the morning, build up to a din by midday and frequently do not slacken until well after dark.

I did not notice downtown traffic diminish during the summer, but I certainly am aware that it's increased this fall.

Parking spaces, as the Village Business Association was quick to point out following the opening of the Clarkston Mills, are at a premium.

The village council is well aware of the parking and traffic problems and is making an attempt to solve those for which solutions may be available.

The proposed improvement of the Holcomb-Depot-White Lake Road intersection, for which bids are now being reviewed, is crucial to improving the traffic flow.

However, as it affects traffic coming from outside the village, the project could be much more effective if it were linked to a much-needed improvement at the other end of the west "entrance" to the village—a stop light at the White Lake Road-Dixie Highway intersection.

This historic hazard begs more intensely for correction as more and more motorists want to turn off Dixie Highway into the village and into the expanding businesses near the intersection.

Rep. Claude A. Trim (D-Davisburg), calling the situation "an emergency matter," is mounting a campaign to get the State Highway Department to install the light.

He said he believes the problem has been intensified by the painting of white lines on White Lake Road.

Because motorists must inch out over the lines to get a view of Dixie Highway traffic, they not only endanger themselves but make it impossible for trucks to swing off Dixie, he said.

"At every community meeting I have attended since the painting of the white lines, people have been very vocal about the massive confusion created by our highway department," Trim recently said in a letter to the department.

It would help if those vocal citizens now put their complaints in writing.

She's 'Mom' to Pine Knob crew

Lorraine O'Rourke and her four daughters work at music theater

By Mimi Mayer
Staff writer

"If you like people, you couldn't find better spot to see all kinds."

This may be the main reason Lorraine O'Rourke and four of her six daughters like their summer jobs at the Pine Knob Music Theatre so much.

For the past four years, Lorraine has worked as a ticket checker, an usher and an aisle captain, supervising other ushers.

Her daughters—Kathy, 21; Nancy, 20; Jeannie, 19; and Linda, 18—all began working in the concession stand and moved on to positions as ushers or box office attendants.

Lorraine, a single parent, was looking for a summer job to supplement her school-year position as an instruction aide at the Waterford Training Institute, a special education center funded by Waterford Schools. She spotted a newspaper article which said Pine Knob was hiring.

After Kathy got a job in the concession stand, Lorraine applied and was hired. "That sort of broke the ground for everyone else," Lorraine said.

Working with four of her six daughters has "been no problem," Lorraine said. The O'Rourkes all ride out to the theater together and discuss their experiences at Pine Knob, she said.

All the Pine Knob employees "get along like a family," Lorraine said. "I am known as 'Mom,'" she continued.

The tradition was started soon after Kathy was hired, Lorraine said. Before long, all the Pine Knob Rangers and ushers, most under 25, were asking "Mom" for on-the-job advice.

One problem the younger ushers frequently encounter is discourtesy from older Pine Knob theater-goers. "The people who have been rudest are people who are my age," Lorraine said.

"Most of the younger ushers handle it pretty well. They all try to handle it with a positive attitude," Lorraine said.

"It's harder for me to handle an older person when they are rude," she continued. A joking approach helps in this situation she said.

After four years of greeting and seating the Pine Knob crowds, Lorraine said she can easily sense how the crowd will behave during a concert by watching them enter the theater.

"After a while, you get an idea of what kind of concert it will be—whether it will be rough or smooth," she added. Country and western or rock audiences are by far the most "enthusiastic, rowdy group," she said.

Overall, the audience is cooperative, though, she said. "Each year I've worked there it's improved. People themselves are beginning to realize what the rules are," she added.

One rule members of the audience try to challenge is rushing the stage.

"People wonder why we check tickets all the time," Lorraine said. She explained it was essential to crowd control. Still, theater-goers will make up fantastic stories to move closer to the stage.

"They'll try anything. They'll tell you anything to get down to the stage," Lorraine said.

The most common excuse is "My girlfriend has a ticket, she's waiting to meet me," Lorraine mimicked. The spiel is stopped when the ushers offer to escort these people to their "girlfriend's" seats, Lorraine said.

One audience Lorraine especially enjoyed was the fans of Andy Gibb, the teenaged heart-throb. "It was 90 percent female. They were from 10 up. It was so different," Lorraine said.

"It was fun to stand by the stage and see them. Some were crying and some were sitting like they were in a trance," she continued.

Handling the groupies or fans of the performers isn't difficult, Lorraine said. She was amused by the president of the Liza Minnelli fan club who appeared every night with his pocket-sized camera and a photo pass.

"Most of (the photographers) have this elaborate equipment and there he was with his Instamatic," she said.

Sometimes, audience members dress to complement the performers, Lorraine said. When Sha Na Na, a rock band specializing in rock 'n' roll music from the 50s performed, theater-goers appeared clad like extras from the movie "Grease."

The same spirit of fun occurred when the comic Steve Martin performed. "People did come with crazy hats, wearing balloons," Lorraine said.

"The first night Steve Martin was there, (the ushers) all wore those hats with the arrows stuck through them," she added. The hats were doffed when members of the audience were jabbed by the arrow points as the ushers seated the audience, she added.

Do Pine Knob employees get to watch the concerts? "I always get that question," Lorraine said. "But there are maybe three or four concerts you watch."

"For most shows, you get up and down checking tickets," she continued. The management request to watch the crowd, not the stage, also interferes with the ushers' enjoyment of the entertainment, she added.

Nor do the Rangers and ushers hobnob with the performers. "You really don't see too much of the people backstage," Lorraine said. "Each performer is different."

Barry Manilow and Neil Diamond forbade the Pine Knob workers from setting foot in the pavilion while their roadies were setting up and testing their sound equipment.

Then there's Jackson Browne, a rock musician. While softball games between a performer's roadmen and Pine Knob person-

My wife asked me what could be done to get her drapes hung before the year 2001.

I told her I didn't have any good answers.

Mrs. Liberman and my wife have a similar frustration. They are both little people trying to get action out of the system, and getting nowhere. Mrs. Liberman's problem is much more acute, but the ironic truth is the same in both cases.

The ironic truth is that there are so many little people it has been necessary to install a system to serve their needs, but what the little people need most is some way to beat the system, and there's no way.

Mrs. Liberman and her husband, Murray, operate Liberman Meat Products Corp. in Detroit. They make corned beef, employing nine to 11 people, depending on how things are going. It's a struggle.

Recently Mrs. Liberman sent the same letter to 17 of the government officials and consumer agencies that are supposed to have some control over the system. What follows are a few excerpts from that letter, only slightly edited:

"The American dream for many years was to be able to accumulate enough money to start a business, work it yourself, hire a few employees if necessary and sacrifice your way of life to make the business a success. That's the way it used to be. Today, government caters only to big business, those fortunate enough to begin when the American dream was still possible.

"Today, within your first year of business, you are paying taxes and insurance on losses. You may never draw a wage, yet you are swamped by a dozen different taxes and the predetermined 'must' insurances—liability, property, building, workmen's compensation, etc.

"Utility bills are out of sight . . . You are intimidated into joining the union. You have to hire a labor attorney . . . You must pay your employees the same fringe benefits that your big-time competitor pays.

"What can a small businessman do? Close the doors and forget the whole damned thing? No, you can't. You have invested your life savings, remortgaged your home and borrowed from the bank.

"So you try to figure ways to meet competition, beat the system, and hopefully stay in business . . . And you find nobody cares about you."

End of excerpts. Mrs. Liberman's 17 letters brought two responses, both weak. Gov. Milliken's office took two pages to say very little. The state Chamber of Commerce, protector of the small businessman, said nothing at all.

My wife's tussle with the system began the first week in July when she ordered $2,000 worth of drapes from Hudson's. She didn't order the material she really wanted because the salesman said it would take 10 weeks to get it. She settled for second choice, to be installed "in four to six weeks," because she wanted the quickest protection possible against the sun fading her furniture and carpet. We live 26 floors high, and the outside walls are almost all glass.

The drapes were installed 10 weeks later, on Sept. 21 (four of them don't fit their windows). It wasn't the delay that made Pat scream, it was the cause of the delay. A nice woman at Hudson's admitted the completed drapes began arriving in Detroit Aug. 11, but some of them went to the downtown store, where they belonged, and some went to the Eastland store by mistake.

Eastland is a 20-minute drive from the downtown store. It took weeks for the misplaced drapes to make that trip, the nice woman said, because store-to-store deliveries aren't made until there is a "full tank load." Whatever that is.

Why? It's the system. And you can't beat it. Drapes or corned beef, there are no good answers.

M-275 alternatives include M-15 extension

Four alternatives for construction of a north-south state highway in western Oakland County will undergo the scrutiny of two federal agencies whose approval is necessary for the project.

The State Highway Commission has directed the Department of State Highways and Transportation to submit the proposals to the Federal Highway Administration and the U.S. Department of Interior.

At the request of State Highway Commissioner Weston E. Vivian of Ann Arbor, the Highways and Transportation Department also is looking into the possibility of widening existing roads to four lanes through the Haggerty-Union Lake-Williams Lake road corridor, or slightly east. The project might be built as an extension of M-15, which now ends at US-10 near Clarkston.

The Department of Interior has legal controls on federal-aid highway projects involving public recreation lands and land purchased with Land and Water Conservation Fund monies.

"With this procedure, we can learn what is acceptable and what is not before the commission makes a decision on an alternative," said Commission Chairman Peter B. Fletcher.

The alternatives now under consideration include:

—The McConnell Plan, conceived by Oakland County Commissioner Robert McConnell, which proposes construction of a parkway beginning at the junction of I-96 and I-275. It would parallel Haggerty Road to the west, then veer northwesterly to the original M-275 corridor as far as M-59. McConnell also proposed a three-mile extension north to White Lake Road.

—A parkway proposed by Citizens in Opposition to M-275, which would begin at 12 Mile Road with no connection to the existing freeway. It would connect with M-59 through the Haggerty-Union Lake-Williams Lake roads corridor, using existing roadways. The group also proposed a link with Northwestern Highway by widening 14 Mile Road to a boulevard from Orchard Lake to Haggerty roads.

—The original M-275 freeway cancelled by the commission in January, 1977. It would have connected I-96 at Novi with I-75 near Clarkston.

JV gridgers on winning streak

The Clarkston High School junior varsity team is on a winning streak. The JV Wolves have won every game they've played.

A season opener against Grand Blanc ended with a 30-16 score in the Wolves' favor. Making touchdowns were Mark Hughes, a running back who has averaged 100 yards every game; Brad Sheldon, Joel Partlow, and Kevin Krause.

On Sept. 14, the Wolves took on Lake Orion, beating the Dragons 19-0. Greg Wilson and again Hughes, scored the touchdowns in the game.

Despite a week-long layoff and the loss of their quarterback, the JV team went on to defeat Birmingham Groves' strong team 6-0. Sept. 28, Hughes scored the single touchdown in that match.

Three penalties were noted throughout the Clarkston-Birmingham Groves game.

The next junior varsity game will be held against West Bloomfield on their field Oct. 5 at 6:30 p.m. On Oct. 12, the JV Wolves will host Milford at the high school for a parents' night. Play begins at 7 p.m.

Varsity team loses

The Clarkston High School varsity football team lost a Sept. 29 home game to West Bloomfield 31-7.

Head coach Bill Valasco reported that the Wolves were playing well in the game's first half. A touchdown made by tight end Scott Brumbach made the score 7-0 in the first half.

West Bloomfield then made two goals, Valasco said. Fumbles and a bad snap on a punt led to the Bloomfield points.

Valasco praised the play of fullback Reuben Hutchons and quarterback Brad Sheldon, a junior varsity athlete transferred to the varsity team after injuries put a dent in the varsity quarterback lineup.

Termining a Sept. 22 game against Rochester Senior High School, "our best game to date," Valasco said Clarkston lost the game 27-6 because of Rochester's strong play.

Wolves' fans can watch for improved play on the line of scrimmage, Valasco said. "We're starting to block some people and are blocking well," he said.

"There are certain aspects of the game that we're improving. We'll probably surprise some of our previous opponents," Valasco added.

As many people seem to be concerned with the fate of the new Heavy Weight Champion's financial and personal well being as they are with his next title defense. Leon Spinks is a young man, not used to fame and fortune, and, as we all know, there are many temptations. This has happened in boxing before. Everyone knows stories of champs who have died paupers because they were cheated or had their funds mismanaged. Let's hope Leon matures quickly and lives up to his potential.

Security lighting has always meant "Glad to be home."

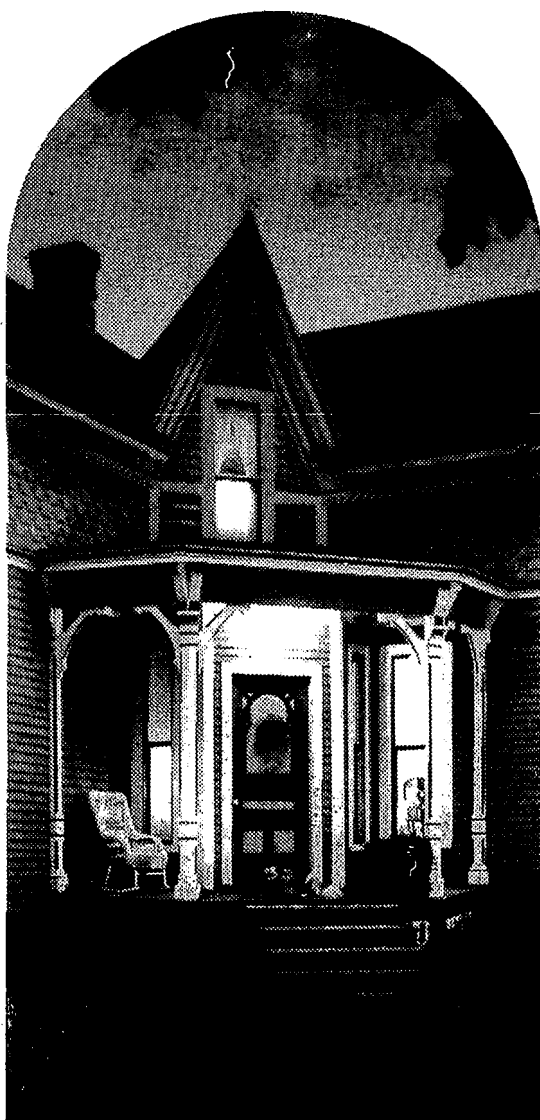

Seeing the lights on, waiting for you to arrive home after dark, has always been a welcome sight.

And when you're at home, lights can give you a feeling of security.

In the old days they didn't call it security lighting. But that's what it was. Because lights at night have always offered safety and protection.

Today you have a wide choice of security lighting. Including electric post lanterns for your front and back lawns that operate only from dusk til dawn. Floodlights to light your driveway and garage. And garden lights that not only protect, but add new dimensions to outdoor living.

Even the lights inside your home can be part of your security lighting system and, with automatic controls, can give your house a lived-in look when you're away.

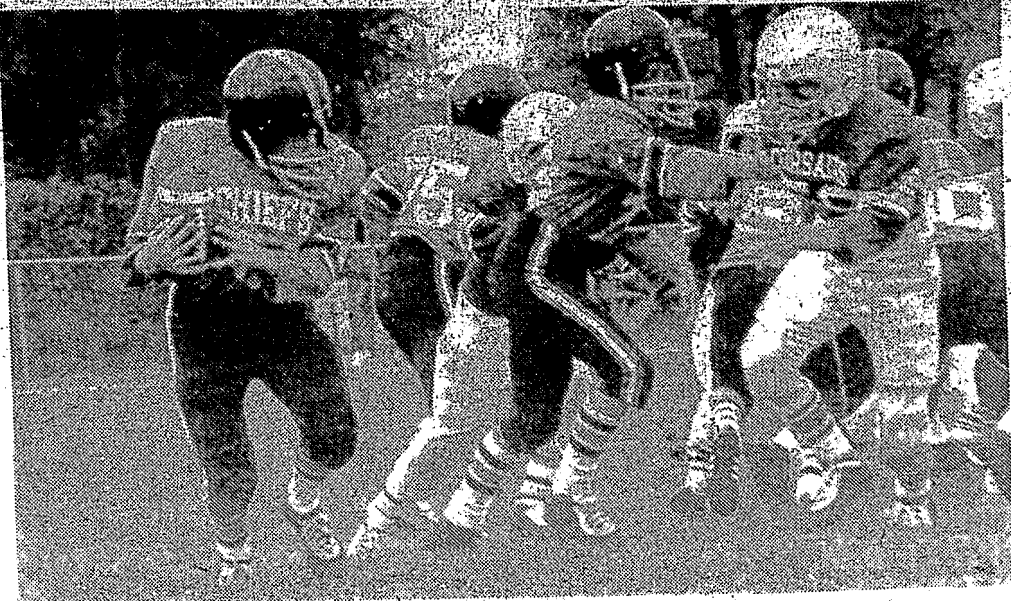

Security lighting costs less than you might think. Neither energy nor dollars are wasted when your system is automatically controlled with timers or photoelectric cells to go on only when needed.

Detroit Edison can help you plan energy-efficient security lighting for your home or business. Call or stop in at any Detroit Edison Customer Office.

Security lighting. It's a bright idea that's come home.

Save where it really counts. The power is in your hands.

Flanked by blockers, a Chief's ball carrier races downfield during a Suburban Midget Conference game between the Waterford Cosairs and the Clarkston Chiefs. Football's answer to the summer baseball little league teams, the Clarkston Chiefs have freshman, junior varsity and varsity teams, each with their own squads of pompon girls.

So determined was this Chiefs player to get downfield that it took two members of the Waterford Corsairs of the Lakeland Football Association to bring him down.

Little guys to play at big stadium

Clarkston boys between the ages of 8 and 13 will be playing football in the Pontiac Silverdome.

The Clarkston Football Association will meet teams from Madison Heights and Hazel Park in a nine-hour series of games at the Silverdome Oct. 7. The Madison Heights Wildcats invited the Clarkston Chiefs to participate in the football games two weeks ago said Al Popour, Chairman of the Clarkston Little League Football Association.

Freshman, junior varsity and varsity teams from all three communities will play from 12:15 to 9 p.m. The Clarkston players will hit the field at 4 p.m. A $1.50 admission fee will be charged.

Play will start soon after the Detroit Lions Sunday morning practice. Though the boys won't be using the locker rooms to dress, they'll probably receive a tour of the facilities during the half-time, Popour said.

Half-time entertainment will be provided by the freshmen, JV and varsity cheerleading squads from all teams.

For more information on the games, call Charles L. Fenton at 391-2370.

Put-take hearing

Put-and-take hunting participants and detractors will have a chance to air their views at a public hearing next week.

The hearing, called by Rep. Claude A. Trim (D-Davisburg), is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Oct. 10 in the Groveland Township Offices, 4695 Grange Hall Road.

Trim said that the hearing is in response to "the many reports of problems concerning the put-and-take season which takes place in the 60th District."

Department of Natural Resources representatives attending the meeting will be William R. Fouch of the Farm Wildlife Section in Lansing and Richard Eldon of the DNR District Headquarters, Pontiac.

Clarkston Jaycees have sign-dollars woes

The $1,500 question is: What should the Jaycees do with the community-project money Pine Knob Music Theatre representatives donated to the organization?

Originally, the Jaycees intended to use the contribution to renovate or replace the events sign located near the West Washington-Main Street intersection in Clarkston.

After the village council ordered that the current sign be removed without a replacement, the Jaycees were left in a quandary on how to spend the $1,500 sum.

"We haven't really gotten into a real deep discussion on what we're going to do with the money," James Randall, Clarkston Jaycee president, said.

Organizing other community projects has prevented any immediate decision on the money's use, Randall said.

Meanwhile, Randall said the Jaycees welcome ideas which will help the community at large.

"Input is always welcome," Randall said. "The Jaycees have the $1,500 and are open to suggestions."

Fun part of Pine Knob job

nel are common, usually the entertainer doesn't play. Browne, however, jumped right into the fun.

Other roadie teams the Pine Knob ushers and Rangers challenged on the softball diamond were from the Bob Seger, Crosby, Stills and Nash, the Doobie Brothers and Kansas entourage.

"If we lost, we'd buy them a barrel of beer. If they lost, they'd buy us a barrel," Lorraine said.

Working at Pine Knob has been a boon to Lorraine and her daughters. She says she plans to return next year though she'd like a different job.

Meanwhile, her 16-year-old daughter Patty plans to work as an usher once she is 18. Chrissy, 14, hasn't mentioned whether or not a Pine Knob summer job is in her future, Lorraine said.

This summer was Kathy's last year at Pine Knob. She will graduate from Central Michigan University and hopes to begin a career as an elementary school teacher.

Nancy, who has been a student at Michigan State, will take a year off to travel to California with a girlfriend. Linda will remain at State to pursue a business degree.

Jeannie, the fourth Pine Knob employee, lives in Kalamazoo, where she is studying occupational therapy.

Of her daughters, Lorraine said, "I would have to say they're really very independent. Each one is so different as far as their views."

"I think they're very warm young girls," she continued. "I really feel I've been very fortunate."

Round Lake hearing set

A proposed rule allowing only electric motors on boats on Round Lake will be discussed at a public hearing at Independence Township Hall on Oct. 12 at 7 p.m.

The 37-acre lake is located in the northeast corner of the township.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) will present the following proposed rule: "On the waters of Round Lake ... Independence Township, Oakland County, it is unlawful to operate a vessel powered by a motor except an electric motor."

All interested persons may attend the meeting and offer comments orally or in writing.

Persons unable to attend the meeting may submit written comments and requests for copies of the proposed rule to Law Enforcement Division, DNR, Box 30028, Lansing, Mi. 48909.

Written comments can also be submitted to the Independence Township clerk's office.

If public input is positive, the rule should be in effect before next summer, according to Township Clerk Christopher Rose.

DNR tickets Heather Lake owner

By Richard Krause
Orion Review Editor

A major development straddling Orion and Independence townships has run into legal problems following the unauthorized dredging of a marshland.

DNR spokesman Jeff King said a stop order was issued against the developers and that a warrant was issued by the prosecutor's office for the arrest of the property owner, Herman Ross.

According to King, the dredging was a violation of the Inland Lakes and Stream Act of 1972 which prohibits dredging below the high water mark of a lake without a permit.

"It is illegal to do that, and in fact, that is what he was doing," King said. "That is why we sought the warrant."

Violation of the act is a misdemeanor, King said, and carries a penalty of not more than a $100 fine and/or 90 days in jail.

King said the dredging involved a wetland at the southern end of Dennis Lake in the Orion Township portion of the development. Dennis Lake is north of Clarkston Road and west of Baldwin Road.

Following standard procedures, persons wanting to dredge must apply for a permit through the DNR. After a review of the proposed project, and after receiving comments from affected persons or governmental agencies, the DNR will either approve, deny or modify the request, King noted. He added that Ross had initiated a dredging permit request for the opposite shore of the lake involved.

The Heather Lake development has been heralded by its developers as a unique luxurious subdivision. The latest news release issued by the firm's public relations office indicates advance homesite sales of $1.5 million in the first three weeks of sales.

Whatever the outcome of pending legal action, King said it would be unlikely that the marsh could be replaced.

"Generally a wetland like this is practically impossible to restore once it is destroyed," he said. "You just can't put it back. This was a marsh, and you just can't get it to grow back."

The marsh, he added, was considered a valuable resource by the DNR.

"Ducks use it. Fish use it for spawning. It was a very productive wetland," he said.

King said the DNR was ready to pursue the matter through the courts, but he was not enthusiastic about the possible penalties.

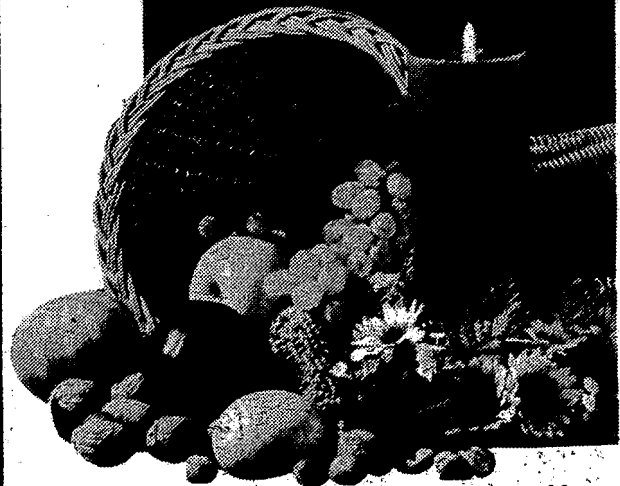

"If he (Ross) pleads guilty, there is the fine. It's kind of wristslapping.

Efforts to reach Ross Tuesday morning were unsuccessful. A spokesman for the development company's public relations firm said he had no knowledge of the dredging.

"If anyone in your family is handicapped, you should look into these services..."

We have a wide range of services that can help the physically impaired to communicate by telephone. For people with difficulties in hearing or speech, there are amplifying devices. For example: A telephone handset that allows adjustment of volume for hearing and another that permits amplification of speech.

As an aid for those with speech loss, Michigan Bell has an artificial larynx. And people with motion impairments should know about services such as easy-to-use card dialers, speakerphones, telephone headsets, and School-to-Home telephone service for students unable to attend class.

If you think any of these services might help you or someone in your family to communicate more easily, just call your local Michigan Bell Business Office.

The Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Circus opened this week at Cobo Arena, in its only Michigan appearance. The performances will play through Oct. 15.

Tickets for the circus, priced at $7, $6.50, $5.50 and $4.50 are on sale at the Cobo Arena Box Office, Olympia Travel in Birmingham, the Windsor Arena and Hudson's.

Discount rates are available for children under 12, groups of 25 or more, senior citizens and school groups.

Telephone 962-1800 for further information.

The 106-year-old First Presbyterian Church of Pontiac will open its doors on Oct. 14 for the Women's Association Fall Festival.

Macrame, china painting, dried flowers, quilting and hand-crafted Christmas tree ornaments will be sold, along with antiques, collectibles and clothing.

A spaghetti luncheon will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and a roast beef dinner from 5 to 7 p.m.

Musical interludes will be provided hourly in the sanctuary, a television lounge will accommodate football fans and a supervised nursery for little ones will be available.

The festival will be held from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m. at the church located on W. Huron at Wayne, across from the Riker Building.

The Lakeland Players will present "Arsenic and Old Lace" Friday and Saturday evenings this weekend and next weekend at the Mason School Auditorium, 3835 W. Walton, Drayton Plains. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Tickets are available at the door. For information and opening night dinner reservations, call 623-7928 or 666-3094 after 4 p.m.

Northville's second "International Festival" will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Northville Downs, 7 Mile and Sheldon roads.

Indoor facilities make it a rain or shine event with arts, crafts and the taste and music of nearly three dozen nations.

The festival opens at noon and closes at midnight on Friday and Saturday and at 6 p.m. on Sunday.

For more information, call the Northville Chamber of Commerce at 349-7640.

Greenfield Village's "Village Fall Evening" dinner-tour offers a look at the cloth manufacture of our yesterdays when the cloth-making techniques of weaving and spinning were crafts and not chemistry.

On selected evenings until Nov. 30, groups and individuals can have a dinner in the Clinton Inn, an early 19th century stage-coach stop, and then tour craft buildings for a close look at various types and stages of textile production.

"Village Fall Evening" also includes a late afternoon visit to the Village before dinner—an autumn color treat.

Individuals and groups can sign up for Saturdays and Sundays, now through Oct. 15; groups of 60 or more can be accommodated on other evenings. For more information, call Travel and Convention Department, Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum, at (313) 271-1620, ext. 416.

Evangelist Randy Marcum of Kansas City, Mo. will conduct a crusade Oct. 8 through Oct. 15, in the First Missionary Church, 4832 Clintonville Road, Pontiac.

Services will begin at 7 p.m. on week nights with no Saturday night meeting. Marcum will speak Sunday morning, Oct. 15, at 11 a.m.

Even the smoke is different

Modern fires, firefighters not like they used to be

By Kathy Greenfield
Staff writer

Easy-to-clean plastic-top furniture, paneling that looks like wood and brand new synthetic insulation have added to the comfort and attractiveness of homes and businesses.

They've also changed the business of firefighting, making the job more expensive and more dangerous.

In the past, "Firemen were called smoke eaters, because firemen who fought fires could actually go into buildings and breathe the smoke," said Independence Township Fire Chief Frank (Tink) Ronk.

"Although it was not good for you, it was not lethal," he said. "Now you can't go into a burning structure without a breathing apparatus on."

When many synthetic materials burn, poisonous gases fill the air, Ronk said. The need for breathing units has come about in the past 10 to 15 years.

Firefighters wear an air tank strapped on their backs, a face mask with a tube attached to the tank. The 35-pound apparatus costs about $600.

A built-in alarm warns the firefighter when three minutes of air are left. Spare tanks are carried on the trucks, and a compressor at the fire station refills the tanks.

For large fires, a compressor on a trailer owned by the North East Oakland Firefighters Association is called to the scene from its base in Groveland Township.

Fire trucks in Independence Township carry at least four breathing units so firefighters can enter burning buildings quickly.

"Usually the first four or five minutes are the most crucial once the flames break out," Ronk said.

In the 34 years Ronk has served on the fire department, other changes have also taken place.

Trucks carrying flammable liquids and materials regularly cross the township on Dixie Highway, M-15 and I-75.

Consequently, most of the fire rigs are outfitted with special nozzles and foam to put out burning liquids.

The need for training has also increased.

"Training over the last 10 years has become one of the most important phases of firefighting," he said. "It's a constant schooling to keep up with the ever-changing environment."

His mask in place, he starts breathing the air that keeps firefighters from being poisoned by toxic fumes caused by burning synthetics.

Newsted resigns from police board

By Kathy Greenfield
Staff writer

Charging that, among other things, the five-member Independence Township police advisory board "has been meeting since April with no tangible results," Martha Newsted has resigned.

Newsted agreed to serve on the committee in order to explore the issue of the best, most economical police protection for the township, she said.

"I have no desire to be involved in making a political issue of a decision which should not be based on how many votes it will garner," she wrote in her resignation letter dated Sept. 22.

"I really thought hard and long about that letter," Newsted said.

Because the committee's report on township police protection is slated for Oct. 17, "it's strictly an issue for the campaign," she said.

In the general election Nov. 7, candidates are vying for township board positions of supervisor, clerk, treasurer and three trustee seats.

"If the committee had been able to work harder and earlier, the report wouldn't have come out right before the election," she said.

The advisory board was formed in April. One alternative discussed was placing on the November ballot the choice of a locally run department or continuing with contracted services from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, Newsted said.

The committee held no meetings between July 24 and Sept. 11, she said, and "the alternative of placing the issue on the ballot was eliminated."

A meeting with Charles Kimbel, acting director of police services, on Sept. 19 was cancelled only a few hours before it was scheduled when she discovered three of the five committee members could not attend.

"That was the straw that broke the camel's back," she said.

Because she is now taking classes, her busy schedule is further complicated, she said. And the lack of results have caused her a great deal of frustration.

"I think one of the reasons for the committee was to get it out of a brouhaha and put it in the perspective of a decision based on logical reasoning and facts," she said.

"With the present scheduled timing of the report, I feel it will put the whole decision back into a brouhaha," she added.

"We're all very sorry that Mrs. Newsted left. We enjoyed working with her," said Bruce Walker, chairman of the police advisory board. "I'm sorry that her heavy outside commitments and demanding home life have forced her to leave the board."

Work on the report will continue, he said.

"We have sent out 45 letters and questionnaires to various townships across the state and bordering states," he said.

"The township board will determine whether to expand our local department or to continue with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department on a dollars and cents proposition," he said.

"The information that we are collecting should give them these dollars and cents costs," he added.

Placing the police protection question on the ballot was a matter Walker said he thought had been settled.

"After checking with most of the board members, I thought it had been made fairly clear putting this on the November ballot would be unfair to the voters in as much as there are going to be 13 propositions, fire and police millages," he said.

Remaining members of the police advisory board are James Brueck, an engineer for General Motors Truck and Coach; Ray Hoopengartner, a retired Michigan State police officer who is moving out of the township in mid-October; William Vandermark, a Republican candidate for township trustee; and Walker, who was defeated in his bid for Republican trustee in the August primary election.

Lakes names principals

Our Lady of the Lakes high school and elementary school in Waterford have new principals. Thomas Bailey assumed his duties as high school principal in September.

Bailey was formerly acting principal and assistant principal of Austin Catholic Prep School, Detroit. He has also taught at the Detroit Institute of Technology, American Association of Bankers and Grosse Pointe Schools.

In 1973, he received the Fries Award for outstanding teaching from the Michigan Council of English Teachers. Recognition for educational leadership and administration, from the National Association of Secondary Principals was awarded to Bailey in 1977.

He received his doctorate and master's degrees from University of Detroit and a master's degree in school administration from Wayne State University.

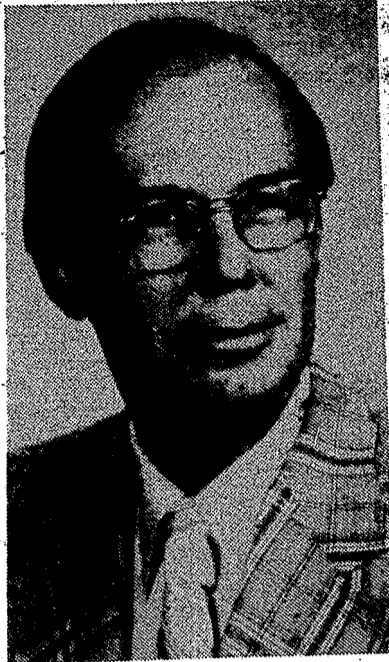

Bailey resides in Rochester with his wife Bea and children Tom, 10, and Anne, 5.

Carol Hanrahan has served as acting principal of the elementary school since February. She was named principal in September.

A faculty member at the school for seven years, Miss Hanrahan previously worked in administration with Bell Telephone and Detroit Bank and Trust.

She has a bachelor's degree in elementary education and a master's in reading from Oakland University. She is currently enrolled in a post-master's program in administration in education at Michigan State University.

Miss Hanrahan resides in Waterford.

'Clarkston looked like home'

Country Living

Stephen, who is enrolled in a Suzuki violin class, plays a tune. The six-year-old is proud and serious about his music.

Ann Marie shows her skill on piano. She has been taking lessons for about two months.

By Kathy Greenfield
Staff writer

John and Joyce Christensen have experienced a taste of big city life and small town living in Michigan.

And so far, the lifestyle offered by Independence Township has given them a feeling of being closer to home.

They moved to the township two years ago from Detroit with their children Ann Marie, 11, and Stephen, 6.

John is a native South Dakotan and Joyce hails from Pennsylvania.

"I was genuinely surprised the first time I saw the downtown village of Clarkston," John said. "Coming from South Dakota, it seemed more like home.

"It was a small village that at least had the appearance you would get to meet the merchants and the people and know them on a first name basis," he said.

John's impression of Clarkston has proven true for Joyce who said she does most of her shopping there and in neighboring Lake Orion.

"I just don't enjoy going to the malls. I like going to the small stores, because you get individual attention," she said. "I think I'm helping the community businesses to survive and prosper by giving them my business.

"I'm happy to be back living in the country again," she said. "We lived in the city 12 years altogether. I guess I had enough of the city."

But having lived in Detroit, they take advantage of the cultural offerings of the city and visit the museums, attend the opera and visit old friends and neighbors.

"I think it's good for the kids to be exposed to both ways of living," Joyce said.

"When Ann Marie was in the city, she went to a school with a lot of black children and I think that was good," she explained. "It's healthy for children to understand and relate to people of all types.

"I think it's a very homogeneous group at Bailey Lake (Elementary School). I just don't see a lot of differences in the backgrounds," she said, "which makes it a very comfortable situation, but not something where they're learning about the realities of life."

One thing John has noticed is the neighborhood is closer. Thendara Park subdivision members work together solving problems they've faced with private road maintenance, he said. John serves on the road committee and was vice president of the Thendara Park home owners' association.

"It's funny, now I know a good number of people in the subdivision," he said, adding that although they lived in their Detroit home seven years, he only knew the people next door.

"I think that adds another dimension to neighborhood life and I find it very nice to feel a part of a community," he said.

Living in the country has brought about another change in their lives.

"We've become much more physical fitness enthusiasts since we moved out here, which we definitely weren't in the city," Joyce's homemade pie from apples gathered on a Camp Fire Girls outing awaits John when he returns home from working late.

Joyce said.

She frequently meets three women at their children's bus stop and they jog together.

"We've taken up skiing since we've been here and taken advantage of the county parks," John said. "The four of us enjoy walking in the neighborhood and the woods out here."

Although John's office is in Detroit, his work as an attorney with Dice, Sweeney, Sullivan and Feikens, who specialize in personal injury cases, takes him to circuit courts in several surrounding counties.

"I think we'll probably stay in this area. I think it's as nice an area as you can find in Michigan," he said. "I enjoy my law practice and I think it's a nice place to raise my family."

Joyce is thinking about returning to teaching high school mathematics after a 10-year break.

She took classes at Oakland University last year to update her teaching credentials and would like to eventually find a job in Clarkston or Lake Orion.

"I may do some substitute teaching this year just to get my feet wet," she said.

During the years she hasn't worked outside their home, Joyce has managed to keep busy with family activities and a wide range of hobbies.

"I think I'm a true Gemini," she said. "Geminis have at least five things going."

Her activities include PTA, Camp Fire Girls and plans to teach creative needlecraft for 4-H. She also sews at least half of her and Ann Marie's clothes, upholsters furniture and makes draperies for their home.

"I get a lot of satisfaction from doing a job for less money," she said. "I try any new craft that comes along. I guess you could say I'm very craft

Retirees' seminar

Guidelines for planning a rewarding and meaningful retirement are offered by the Continuum Center for Adult Counseling and Leadership Training, Oakland University.

A one-day workshop, Adjusting to Retirement, will meet from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. on Saturday at the center located at Adams and Butler roads in Rochester.

Participants will explore the physical and emotional changes that occur in aging as well as the information they need to help plan a new time of life.

The workshop is offered to retirees and people anticipating retirement. The fee is $5.

For advance registration and additional information, contact the center at 377-3033.

Training sessions are held three times a month.

Drills on getting in and out of breathing units, working with ladders, setting up hose relays and learning to use all possible water sources are included in the workouts.

"Basically our largest fire-fighting agent is water, although with the synthetic materials, there are several different types of extinguishers that have to be used on specific fire scenes," Ronk said.

If a building or home is burning, three trucks carrying a total of 2,750 gallons of water respond to the call.

Pumping at full capacity, the trucks would run out of water after four or five minutes, but that gives the department time to get the fire under control and hook up to other sources of water.

The township's lakes, ponds, streams, swimming pools and hydrant systems in subdivisions offer an assortment of water supplies.

During training sessions, fire-fighters also learn to act as a team and to follow orders.

"Anyone in fire services is never completely trained," Ronk said. "Every fire is different. There are constant changes in the education of firefighters. There are always brand new products introduced into society that you have to cope with."

Although national statistics put firefighting at the top of the list of dangerous occupations, serious injuries are uncommon in the township.

"Our injury rate, thank God, is minor," he said.

There are three fire stations in the township with a total of nine fulltime and 44 on-call fire-fighters.

Coping with kids

Truth helps

By Jim and Ellen Windell

At various times in the past, we have emphasized in our columns that children cope better with facts, no matter how distasteful or unpleasant, than with half-truths or partial information. We have encouraged parents to be truthful about death, divorce, illness and anger.

Recently, Mrs. Hawkins began dating a man she liked very much after being divorced for more than two years. Within a month, she and Ed decided to be married. Mrs. Hawkins' concern was in telling her two children, Cindy, age 11, and David, 7.

Before the decision about marriage was made, Cindy, a moody and sensitive girl, had an angry outburst during which she accused her mother of seeing Ed too much. In angry tears she told her mother that she didn't like Ed and couldn't understand why he was always at their house.

This tirade was a primary reason for Mrs. Hawkins' hesitancy in telling either child, but especially Cindy, about her plans to remarry.

After discussion with us, Mrs. Hawkins tended to agree that an honest approach was perhaps best. Tentatively she asked Cindy, "What would you think if I got married again?"

Cindy, as she expected, reacted quickly. "No, you can't get married again. I won't let you." Then, however, she turned to her mother and asked, "Are you and Ed going to be married?"

When her mother confirmed that this indeed was going to happen, Cindy shot back, "Who's going to be the bridesmaid?"

This was so unexpected and such a relief to Mrs. Hawkins that she began laughing. Cindy joined in and a lively discussion of the aspects of the wedding and changes in their new life occurred.

While Cindy could think of positive reasons for Ed to come into her life she was adamant about some things—"I'll never call Ed 'Dad.'"

Mrs. Hawkins said that she could decide what she wanted to call her new stepfather, and he would agree. Cindy did not want two fathers nor did she want to be disloyal to her natural father.

Cindy was also reacting with resentment to the circumstances of her father's remarriage some months before. He had failed to tell Cindy about his marriage plans until one week before his wedding took place. Cindy has developed a deep resentment towards her stepmother.

By letting Cindy know about the new marriage and giving her not only a chance to talk and think about it early but also a role in the plans (Cindy was allowed to call and tell all of the relatives), her chances of accepting the new stepfather were increased.

Mrs. Hawkins' casual and honest approach—"How would you feel if I got remarried?"—was far more productive than a simple declarative statement ("You are going to have a new father.") would have been.

Angry and defensive reactions by Cindy were spared, but even if they had occurred, telling her more than six months in advance of the actual event would allow for Cindy's gradual adjustment.

In heroic pilot image

Some youths aim high, mightily

By Kathy Greenfield
Staff writer

Military discipline and a taste of old-time heroism are alive and well in the Clarkston area through the Civil Air Patrol (CAP).

"There are a lot of kids who like to go back to the John Wayne image—they like to wear a uniform," said Mike Saile, squadron commander for the Clarkston CAP and deputy commander for the 12 CAP groups in northern Oakland County.

"It's been such a long time since they've had something to take pride in because of Nixon, Watergate and Vietnam," he said. "Now CAP affords them an acceptable opportunity to be proud of their country and be proud of something associated with that."

Four young women and 18 young men are from Clarkston, Independence, Springfield and Brandon townships are presently enrolled in the CAP cadet program that meets every Monday night.

The organization was founded shortly before World War II. During the war, CAP pilots patrolled coastal areas, flew first aid and took over domestic air patrol responsibilities to free soldiers.

After the war, the group changed its function and, although it still works closely with the Air Force, the goals are basically the same today: to provide emergency services, a cadet program and aerospace education for the public.

Young people can join CAP as cadets when they are seventh graders and can continue to serve as cadets until age 21. Membership in the adult squadron is possible for adults 18 and over.

Clarkston Civil Air Patrol was founded in 1963.

At age 23, 1st Lt. Saile is the youngest commander in Oakland County. He joined CAP in 1968 when he was a seventh grader.

"I joined to learn how to fly, and a lot of kids still do," he said. "I soloed before I got my driver's license."

Cadets receive aerospace training and can take flying lessons at reduced rates, using the CAP planes based at Pontiac-Oakland Airport and CAP flight instructors.

Some cadets join for other experiences offered by CAP—camping, learning about aerospace, emergency services and radio transmission.

Air Force opportunities are another bonus of the program.

"We give them quite a boost," Saile explained. "The military training they receive gets them out of basic training rather quickly. They go in with at least one stripe, sometimes more."

The cadets camp out at least four times a year during all kinds of weather. The experience offers practice for serving on ground search teams, emergency services and basic survival training.

"When I was a cadet, my squadron commander called me up in the middle of one of the worst snowstorms of the year and said, 'Do you want to go sleep in a snowbank?' It took me about an hour to make up my mind," Saile said.

To make himself as warm as possible, he found two heavy sleeping bags and put a one-inch foam mattress between them.

"There were about four of us nuts that night," he said. "I woke up with the sun shining in my eyes and they were all in the car with the engine running."

Those kinds of experiences build self-confidence, he said.

The cadet program is designed under military guidelines.

About 40 percent of the cadets who sign up drop out, a rate that is about the same as military enlistees.

"The basic rule is: first they must learn how to take orders before they can give them," Saile said.

One of the first orders is that cadets have acceptable haircuts and wear uniforms to the meetings.

Sports and other school activities cause conflicts for other cadets who quit.

Money needed to take part in activities, purchase the uniforms and paying the $7 yearly dues causes others to drop out.

The group has fund-raising activities to help offset expenses for trips.

And the opportunities for travel can be worth the effort to earn the money, Saile said.

"When I was 15, we went to Florida and I had to have $40," he explained. "So I went out and mowed lawns and stuff."

"We watched Apollo 13 go off," he said.

Free plane rides are offered to cadets on group trips in Air Force transport planes.

Cadets pay for lodging and food. If Air Force bases are nearby, lodging is $4 a night.

"If we are at a base, we eat in the mess hall at military prices," Saile said. "Otherwise, we look for McDonald's a lot."

Trips are to places like the Ontario Science Center in Toronto, Canada; the Johnson Space Center in Texas; and the Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

oriented." She has found the Independence Township Library a treasure chest of ideas.

"Anything I want to do, I go to the library and get a book on it," she said. "I feel if I can read a book or two on something, I at least have working knowledge."

"Everything has a formula, you just have to figure it out," she said.

Music also plays an important role in their family.

Ann Marie is taking piano lessons, Stephen is learning to play the violin and Joyce, who is already an accomplished pianist, is learning to play guitar.

"My only contribution to the arts is that I pay for all of it," John laughed.

But the family has plans for him. He has agreed to learn to play the recorder under Joyce's tutelage.

The Christensens host a family Christmas caroling party with John's parents and eight brothers and sisters and their families. The eight-year tradition brings the entire clan together from all over Michigan.

The plan is to treat the family to their musical version of a Christmas tune.

PSB Money Market Certificates

New 26-week certificates at PSB now pay much higher interest than you can earn on regular savings.

They pay the same rate as 6-month U.S. Treasury Bills.

The interest is set when you purchase a certificate. It will equal the most recent discount rate of 6-month Treasury Bills. Note that it is the discount rate and not the higher, effective yield. If you renew the Certificate, the interest will be reset at the then-applicable rate.

To earn our high interest, you must deposit $10,000 or more for 26 weeks. Withdrawals before maturity earn the regular passbook rate, less 90 days' interest.

Depositors are insured to $40,000.

The interest rate for PSB Money Certificates is especially attractive at this time. Call any PSB service center for the specific figure and take advantage of the current rate right now.

scheduled for next spring is another trip planned.

Cadets also study and are tested on their knowledge of aerospace history and current events, attend an annual drill camp and must pass physical fitness tests.

Adults in the CAP program work with cadets and take part in other activities.

Emergency assistance makes up a large part of the group's service.

Search and rescue work involves ground and aerial crews.

The two CAP planes based in Pontiac were called in by the Air Force to join in a mission last year.

"We were looking for a fireman and his wife from Warren," Saile said.

The man was flying a small private plane. His flight experience was limited and the weather was cloudy and hazy.

When the plane was reported missing, squadrons from four states were called into the search.

"That one lasted nine days—we still haven't found them," he said.

Another plane was located after it crashed last year by the emergency transmitter that went off on impact.

"Our ground crew from this area went in with police and found the wreckage and four bodies," Saile said.

Disaster relief is another function of CAP.

The crew saw action during last January's blizzard when they used a 4-wheel drive vehicle to transport nurses and other personnel to hospitals.

"We met one of our units from Flint at Dixie and I-75 and transported a technician for a cardiac care machine to Pontiac General," Saile said.

Civil defense work is conducted by the Air Force.

One yearly exercise involves checking for fallout and radioactive particles in the atmosphere by flying with geiger counters in the planes.

Community services are also offered by the group. They will be directing traffic at the Clarkston High School band competition this weekend.

Public education is offered by CAP by presentation of slide programs and speeches on the aerospace program.

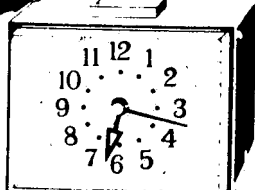

For information on the program, call Saile after 5 p.m. at 625-4355.

Young people interested in the cadet program can also call Saile, or attend a meeting any Monday night from 7 to 9 in the Clarkston High School cafeteria.

Lions to collect glasses, hearing aids

Millstream

The Clarkston Lions Club is going to recycle used eye glasses and hearing aids to open up new worlds of sight and sound for people around the globe.

Members of the local organization will be downtown Saturday collecting eyeglasses and hearing aids in front of 21 S. Main between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.

The glasses will be cleaned, polished, reground if necessary and distributed by World Medical Relief Inc. That agency's volunteer optometrists will use the glasses to fill the needs of persons they test.

The hearing aids will be repaired before distribution.

Clarkston Lions are participating in the program in observance of Lions' World Day Sunday.

Follow the signs at Colom-biere Center Saturday and see the Manito District Fall Camp-oree featuring scouting skills competition and displays by the Army engineering corps, Fleet Ambulance and the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

The boy scouts will display games, skills, scout crafts and compete for ribbons and trophies.

Visitors are welcome from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. at the center on 9075 Big Lake Rd., Springfield Township. The event is free.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Hallman of Davisburg are proud to announce the birth of their daughter.

Elanor Marie, born on Sept. 23, weighed 6 pounds, 11 ounces.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. George Cox of Clawson. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Keith Hallman of Clarkston.

Elanor's great grandparents are Mrs. Ruth Spark of Clawson and Mr. and Mrs. Rawley Hallman of Clarkston.

Sweet Adelines of Waterford report that their open house last month was a great success.

Tickets are now on sale for the Nov. 3 Cabaret to be held at the K. of C. Hall on Maybee Road, Independence Township.

The $6 fee includes food and songs by the four-part female barbershop singers.

For information, call Barb Hogarth at 674-0540.

A "pre-tapping" assembly held last Friday at Clarkston High School marked the beginning of homecoming activities.

High school students nominated by their classmates in homeroom votes for maid and homecoming queen candidacy were recognized at the assembly by a tap on the shoulder.

The candidates were presented with carnations.

A "tapping" assembly held tomorrow will narrow the field to one maid from each class, and the homecoming queen will be named. Of the three candidates for queen, the two remaining girls will serve as her court.

Senior maid candidates are Gina Roselli, Liz Rekawek, Teresa Jones and Patti Clark.

Junior maid contenders are Amber VanHouten, Dawn Reis, Ann Cook and Kass Conway.

From the sophomore class, maid candidates are Linda Weisel, Darcy Armstrong, Julie LePere and Denise Truman.

Nominated for homecoming queen are Vicki Alexander, Jenny Williams and Sheri Beardslee.

50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. William W. Pearsall of Louella Drive, Drayton Plains, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary tomorrow. An open house on Saturday afternoon will be held by their sons, William and Robert and their families from 2 to 4 at 6561 Bridge Lake Rd. The Pearsalls, who were married in Bowling Green, Ohio, have lived at their present address 48 years. They have five grandchildren.

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Herbert of Oak Park Drive, Independence Township, announce the engagement of their daughter Pamela Joy Agar to Rex George Egres, Jr., son of Mr. Rex Egres of Lingor Road, Independence Township. The bride-elect is a 1976 Clarkston High School graduate and is employed by Oakland Community College as a computer operator. Her fiancé also graduated from CHS in 1976 and is self-employed at Rex's 76. The couple plans an April 27, 1979 wedding.

Garden wedding

The garden at Addison Oaks was the setting for the wedding of Sherry Gravilla and Phillip Lieberman.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Gravilla of Clarkston-Orion Road and granddaughter of Mrs. Charles Griesbach of Waterford.

Her husband is the son of Mrs. Betty Lieberman of Southfield.

For her July 22 wedding the bride wore a two-piece ivory gown with lace at the shoulders and waist.

Maid of honor was Nancy Bryan of Clarkston. Sister of the bride, Nancy Gravilla, served as bridesmaid.

The bride's attendants wore peach, off-the-shoulder gowns. All the dresses were made by the maid of honor.

Best man was Robert McQueen. Other attendants were the groom's brothers David and Allen Lieberman and the bride's brother Steve Gravilla.

Niece of the groom Mikki Lieberman served as flower girl and Scott Lieberman, his nephew, was ring bearer.

A reception luncheon for the 150 guests was held at the Addison Oaks dining hall.

The bride is a 1974 graduate of Clarkston High School and is presently employed as account manager of the Cadillac department at D'Arcy-McManus and Masius Advertising Agency.

Her husband is an art director at the same agency.

Mr. and Mrs. Lieberman honeymooned in the East and are residing in Oak Park.

Recipe File

By Lorna Bickerstaff

Attention: Football fans! Mrs. Charles (Kay) Robertson said the recipe for stuffed mushrooms is a good munchie during the football games.

Stuffed Mushrooms

- 12 large mushrooms
- 1 T. minced onion
- ¼ cup butter
- ¼ t. salt
- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- ¼ cup grated parmesan cheese
- 3 T. chopped walnuts
- 1 T. A-1 sauce

1 T. water

Clean mushrooms, remove stems and chop. Saute onions and chopped stems in butter until onions are golden.

Mix sauteed onions and mushrooms with salt, crumbs, cheese, walnuts and A-1 sauce.

Stuff mushrooms with this mixture. Place in shallow baking dish with water. Bake at 400 degrees for 20-25 minutes until nicely browned.

Boothby Day

More Millstream

Paula Acton [left] and Chairperson Estelle Emery, members of the Clarkston United Methodist Mary Circle, talk over plans to shop at Boothby's Gifts during the annual Boothby Day. A percentage of all sales on Tuesday at the shop on 7081 Dixie Highway at White Lake Road will be donated to the church. Boothby Day is a 20-year tradition.

Among the recent summer graduates at the University of Michigan was Larry C. Brantley, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Brantley, 5679 Mary Sue. Larry received his master's degree in industrial health. He and his wife Kris will soon leave for Colorado where he has accepted a civilian position for the U.S. Army as industrial hygienist at Fort Carson. Larry graduated from Clarkston High school in 1972 and from Oakland University in 1976.

Religious singer

Dan Williams of Waterford Township has recorded his first album, now on sale in most area record shops. An American Artist recording, "Clean Before My Lord" was titled after the first song of the album. Dan, the son of Mrs. Gladys Copeman of Sashabaw Road, Independence Township, is a 1966 graduate of Clarkston High School and has earned his associate degree in surveying from Ferris State College. He and his wife, Ilah, have two daughters, Tanya and Rachel. Now employed as a registered land surveyor with Kieft Engineering of Clarkston, he also holds a bachelor's degree in music from Detroit Bible College. He has served as music director of Clarkston Baptist Church and was music director of Oakland Avenue United Presbyterian Church, Pontiac.

The Davisburg Joggers, a senior citizens group, plans their potluck lunch and entertainment this month on Saturday at noon. All seniors are welcome to attend the lunch at Springfield Township Hall, Davisburg.

Nostalgic fun is planned Saturday night at the Springfield Oaks Activities Center, 12415 Andersonville Rd., Davisburg. The Davisburg Jaycees and Jaycettes will host the fifth annual '50s-'60s dance at 8 p.m. A highlight of the evening will be a '53 Chevy awarded to the lucky winner. Tickets may be purchased in advance from Jaycee members for $10 a couple and $5 for singles. Tickets at the door will be increased by $1 a person. For more information call 625-1187.

Drongo benefit Saturday

Raising funds for the care and future of Drongo Dragon is the goal of a benefit scheduled Saturday at the Clarkston Village Park on Depot Road.

Drongo is the name of a showmobile Rowena and the Minstrel Mongers plan to outfit for presenting street shows for children featuring "all the performing arts during summers to come," according to Rowena Berk, leader of the group.

The festivities are sponsored by Project REACT, an Independence Township/Lake Orion based CB group.

Activities will begin at noon and will run until 10 p.m. and will include an auction and musical talent of various kinds.

Professional auctioneer Gale Winter will be on hand at the park from 2 to 4 p.m. to hawk such items as antiques, plants, macrame and weaving and even 50 pounds of bird seed.

The proceeds will go to refurbish Drongo, the flatbed truck used by the Minstrel Mongers in the free shows they put on for communities across the state.

As a non-profit organization, Project REACT gives the day-long affair official tax-exempt status.

Theologist to lecture

Dr. William Stringfellow, described by Time magazine as "one of Christianity's most persuasive critics from within," will present a lecture at Colombiere Center Nov. 16.

The program, the theme of which is "Evangelism and the Maturing of Humanity," will be held from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. at the center on 9075 Big Lake, Springfield Township.

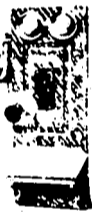

As an attorney, Dr. Stringfellow is widely recognized for his independent representation of controversial causes. He was arrested for allegedly harboring the fugitive, Father Daniel Berrigan. When the indictment was dismissed, he joined as defense counsel in the Harrisburg Trial.

He defended Bishop James A. Pike against heresy charges, and is currently representing the bishops charged with the ordination of women to the Episcopal priesthood in Philadelphia.

The $10 fee for the program includes coffee and lunch. For registration information, call Colombiere Center at 625-5611.

Laura, the female focus of several men's lives, is the role Pat McArthur is preparing for as the Clarkston Village Players rehearse their season opener. Other principal actors in "Laura" are Denny LaLone [left] and Alan Rose.

'Laura' opens Friday

The mystery-thriller "Laura" opens the 1978-79 season of the Clarkston Village Players Friday.

Performances are scheduled this weekend and next on Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Depot Theater.

The play examines the motives behind a murderer's act with a psychological understanding beyond the successful movie version of "Laura."

Pat MacArthur plays the title role. Her frustrated admirer, an eccentric, past-middle-age mentor, is played by Alan Rose.

Denny LaLone plays another of Laura's admirers in his role as the detective assigned to solve her murder. Laura's fiance is played by Jerry Barnfather.

Others in the cast are Len Loveless, Cheri Broome, Sally Inman and Jim MacArthur.

Sandy Sanford is the director of the play, and Jim MacArthur is also in charge of production. Tickets are on sale at Tierra

Arts and Designs or by calling 625-5716.

The Oct. 12 performance is a benefit for Independence Center. Tickets for the benefit are on sale at the center or call 625-3074.

VILLAGE OF CLARKSTON
MINUTES OF REGULAR MEETING
September 25, 1978
Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston

Meeting called to order by President Pro-tem ApMadoc at 7:30 p.m. followed by pledge of allegiance to the flag.
Roll: Present, ApMadoc, Basinger, Beyers, Schultz. Absent, Thayer, Weber.

Reading of the minutes was deferred to the next meeting.
Jim Schultz read letters from Police Chief Kimball and the village attorneys responding to a proposed loading zone on E. Washington and a proposal to ban thru traffic on Robertson Court.

Moved by ApMadoc; seconded by Basinger to adopt the loading zone control order as presented and to instruct the clerk to enter it in the village Traffic Control Order Record.

Moved by Schultz, seconded by Basinger to adopt the traffic control order on Robertson Court as presented and order the clerk to enter it in the village Traffic Control Record. Ayes, ApMadoc, Basinger, Schultz. Nays, Byers. Motion carried.

It was agreed to send a letter to the supplier of gasoline to the gas station at Main Street and Clarkston-Orion Road requesting that their truck driver discontinue traversing Robertson Court.

A letter was read from Jennifer Radcliff, President of the Clarkston Community Historical Society, thanking the village for the use of the park for its highly successful Crafts and Cider festival.

As one of the council's appointees to the Council-Clarkston Business Association Committee on Sign Policy and Requirements, Basinger reported that the Clarkston Community Historical Society was willing to pay $25 of an architects fee covering a presentation of proposed work in planning village signs. Joan Kopietz, another appointee will request an equal amount from the Business Association for the balance of the fee.

It was agreed at the suggestion of ApMadoc to refer to the village attorneys a proposal to restrict parking time in the southernmost two rows of the Main Street parking lot.

Bids were read for work on the White Lake-Depot-Holcomb intersection: $43,688.00 from Wolverine Asphalt, and $50,521.20 from W. Almas and Son. It was decided to return them for revised figures involving fewer requirements.

A letter to the council from the Clarkston Business Association was read which questioned the Clarkston Mills compliance with the village parking requirements and the issuance of an occupancy permit. The council agreed to refer these questions to the Clarkston Mills to be answered by letter to the council.

Moved by Basinger, seconded by Schultz to request the village Building Inspector be present at the October 9 council meeting for information regarding the issuance of occupancy permits and a discussion of village policy thereon. Ayes, ApMadoc, Basinger, Schultz. Abstain, Beyers.

Moved by Basinger, seconded by ApMadoc to adjourn. Motion carried unanimously.

It's breakfast time, and the cabins are emptied as the kids rush to fuel up for a full day of activity. Besides their regular sixth grade teachers, William Mackson came from the high school one day for pond study and a lesson on the biology of a bog and Roger Bowers came from Sashabaw to teach them about wilderness survival and the micro community that lives in a log. In the evenings, there were activities like an astronomy lesson, and owl hunt and some instruction in disco dancing.

Kids explore great outdoors (and spend week away from home)

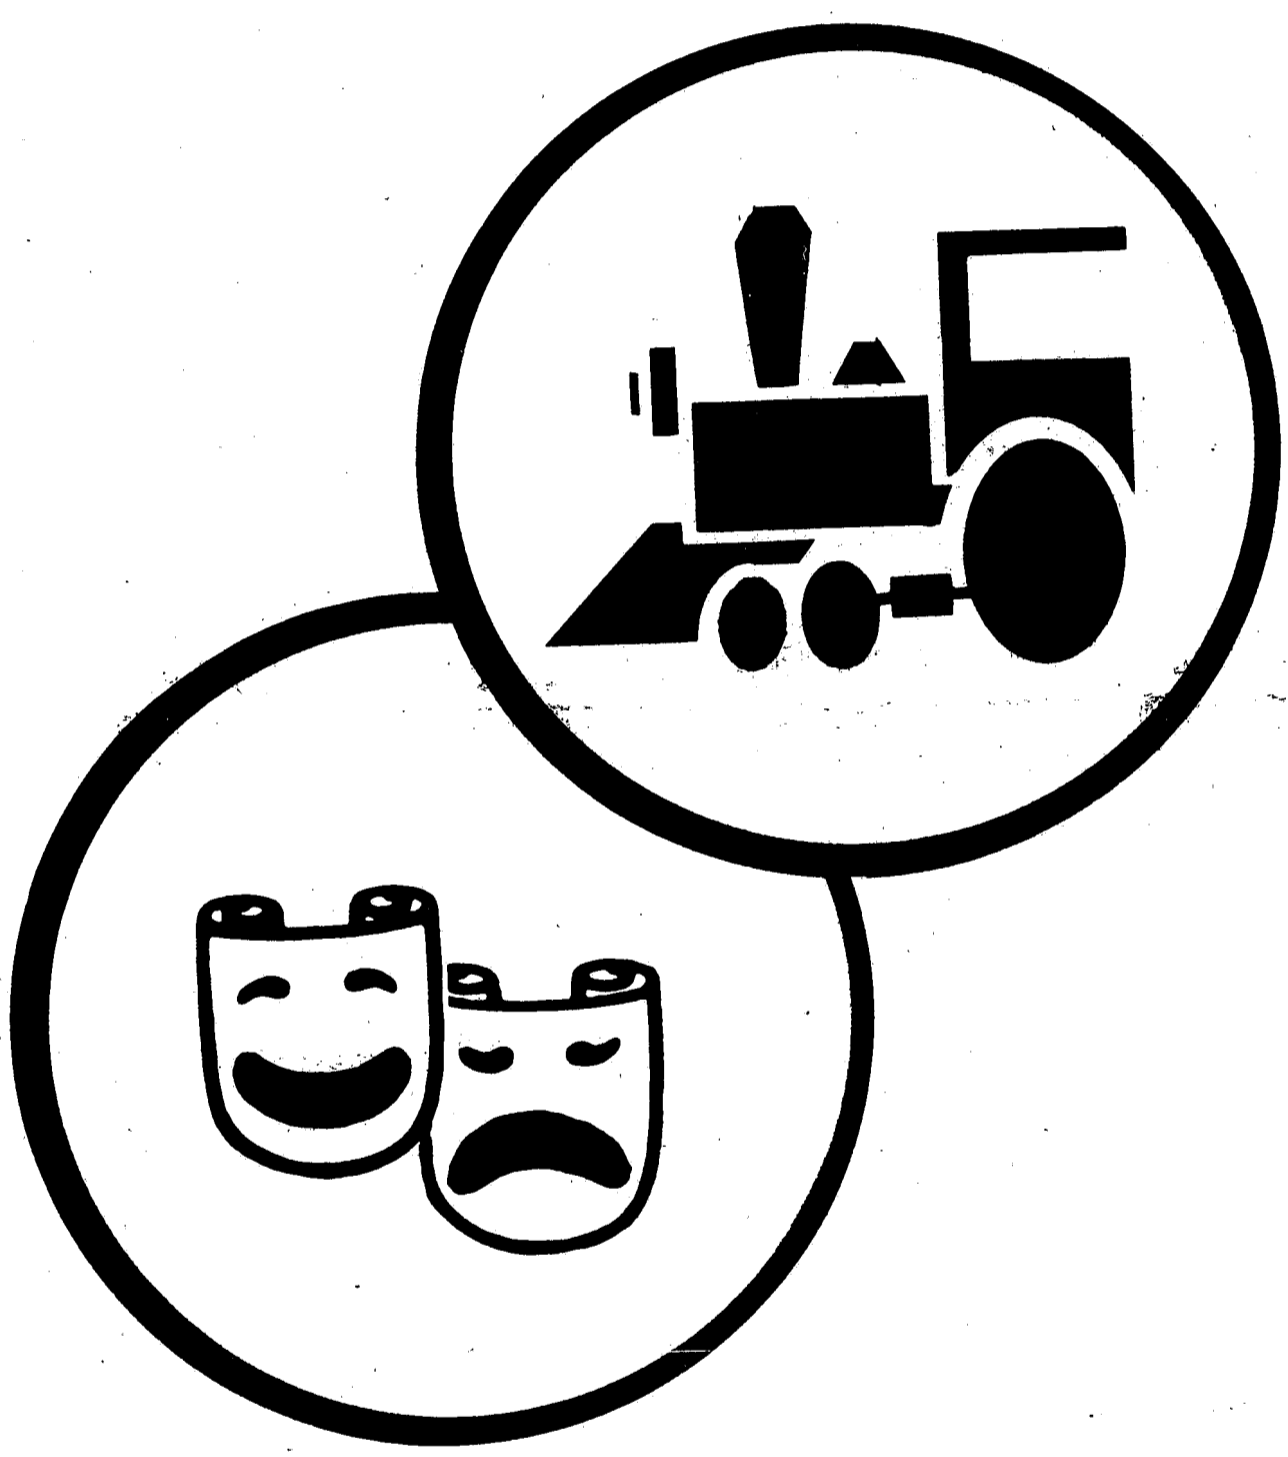

Chris Sorgatz heads through the woods for the final Camp Tamarack science-study activity: a nature scavenger hunt in which the pupils had to find, identify and return to their teachers with several of the plant forms they had learned about during the week.

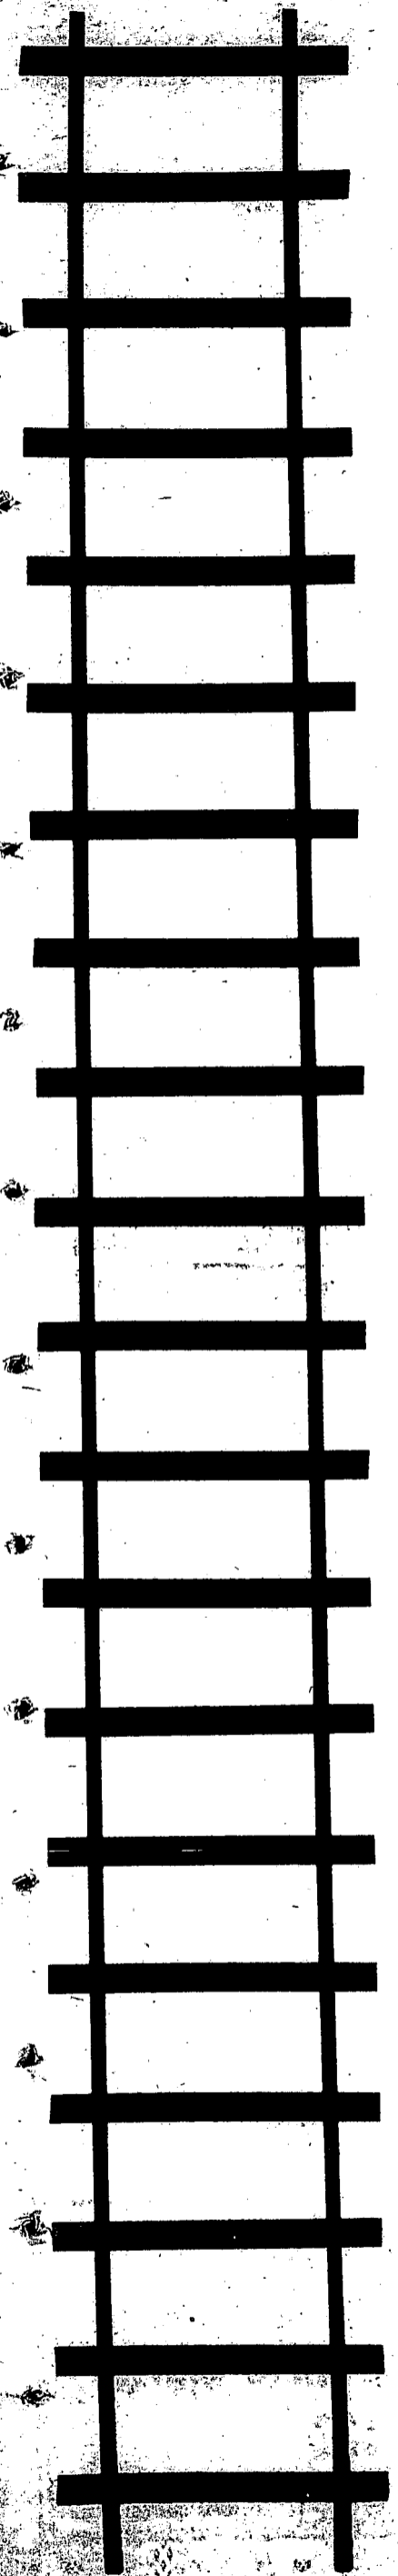

Bill Fortin and Matthew Arnold are among the 94 Clarkston Elementary School sixth graders who took their studies into the outdoors last week during a five-day stay at Camp Tamarack in Brandon Township. There their academic studies were aided by real-life woods, fields, lakes and a bog. The camp also gave them some experience with group living and being away from home for longer than many had been before.

A message from President Russell L. Inman

Dear Friends

It is my pleasure, through the pages of this publication, to introduce the Clarkston Village Players. Within these pages you will meet the members themselves and the local citizens whose financial support and personal encouragement make the programs and purposes of this organization possible. You will become acquainted with our past, informed of our present and hopefully involved in our future. Above all, it is my fond hope that you will be excited by our past contribution to the life of this community and eager for our participation in the years to come.

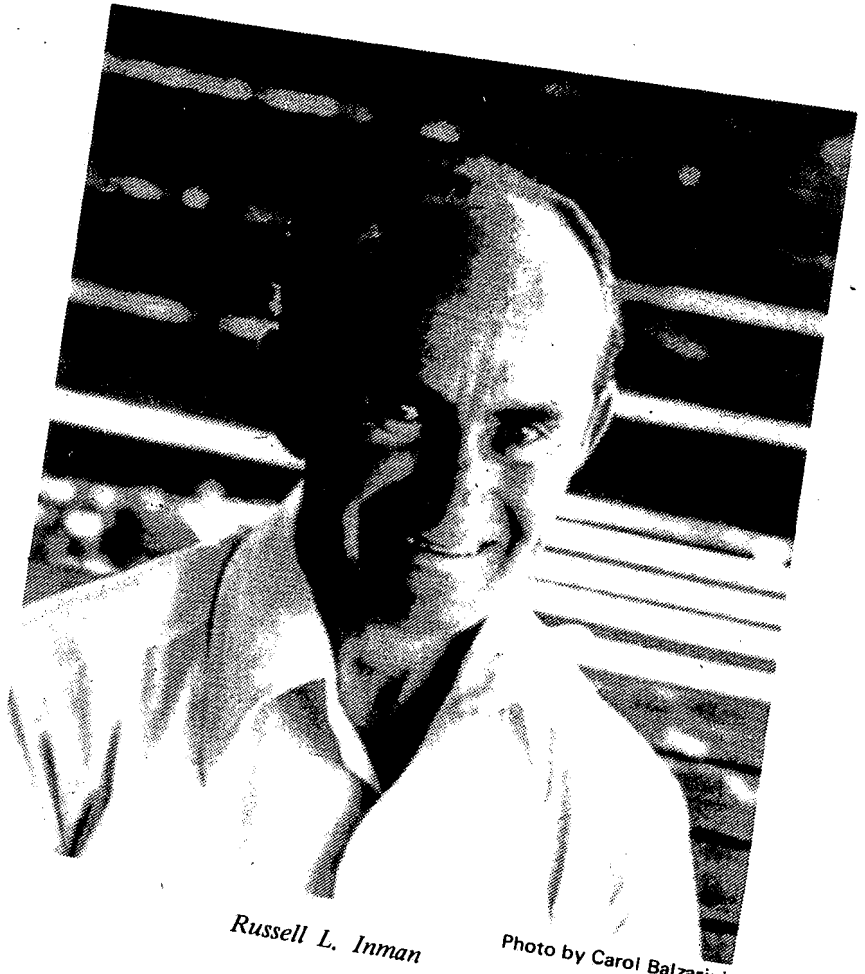

The Clarkston Village Players can and will entertain you. In the doing we hope to be an enriching experience in the cultural activities of your community.

We desire and seek your participation, either as patrons of our theater or as active participants in our programs. Join us, won't you?

Sincerely,

Russell L. Inman

Brother, can you spare a dime?

The financial structure of the Clarkston Village Players is such that income is generated in three separate ways:

- a. Membership dues.
- b. Ticket sales.
- c. Freewill contributions.

Membership dues are assessed at a rate of $10 per person. This rate may be modified by a majority vote of the membership. Membership is open and unlimited.

Ticket prices have been established at $3 per performance. Again, modification may be made by majority vote of the membership. The C.V.P. presently produces four plays per season with six performances for each production. One performance of each production is a benefit-performance; hence, no income is generated.

The constitution of the Clarkston Village Players recognizes contributors as follows:

- 1. Contributors of financial and/or material assistance of $25 to $99 shall be recognized as "Patrons."

2. Contributors of financial and/or material assistance of $100 or more shall be recognized as "Angels."

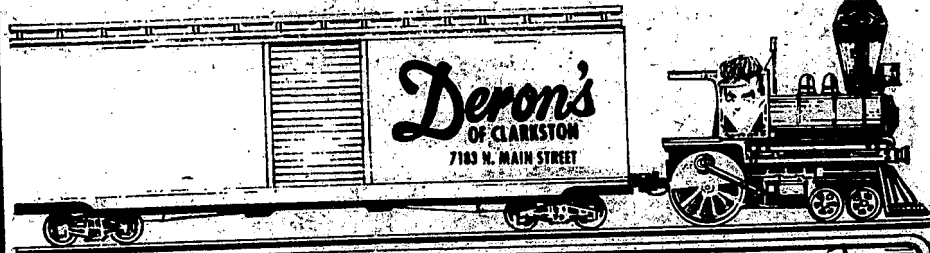

3. The names of all persons/businesses recognized as Angels/Patrons shall be listed in all organizational publications of the C.V.P.

4. Contributors of financial and/or material assistance of $50 or more shall receive two (2) season tickets.

5. Contributors, recognized as Angels/Patrons, may be extended voting privileges upon request.

Financial and/or material assistance in lesser amounts than those listed above are needed and greatly appreciated. However, such assistance can only be recognized with an expression of our heartfelt gratitude.

'John Dough' campaign

By Bob Cook

Until now our facilities at the Railroad Depot have been quaint, lacking what you would call "modern conveniences" such as plumbing for running water and rest rooms and all but limited heating. With increased attendance, which we hope is permanent, these conveniences have become a necessity.

The estimated cost of adding rest rooms, a lobby and a mechanical room, plus a septic field and well, is $25,000. In addition to presenting a four-play season, the Clarkston Village Players are currently involved in trying to raise that sum. We now have about $1,500 in our fund.

We started a bake sale in Holly, netting some $70. Next came a check from Alden B. Dow Associates, Midland architects, for $100. We were better organized by the Fourth of July and did everything from selling flags and donuts and coffee to having a "Help Raise John Dough" float in the parade. Parade participation was a way of introducing our group and its project to the community, raising money at the same time.

Our next fund-raiser was a "Gigantic Garage Sale" at the Depot to which members and friends donated their valuables to add over $500 to our account.

The latest, and most amusing, attempt to date at raising money was the First Annual Labor Day Goat Vote. The idea was to buy a ticket for $1 for someone you wanted to see get a goat.

Russ Inman's slogan "If your neighbor's got your goat, get him one" probably best summed up the idea of the vote. A list of those who had tickets bought for them was displayed on a big board in a village shop window. It was all done in fun.

Our first annual Goatherder of the Year was Bill Dennis, administrative assistant for the Clarkston Schools. His comment of, "Now I'll have to sell my lawnmower," made it all the more fun.

This supplement you are reading will hopefully add a few more dollars to our coffers. The advertisers have donated their ad money to us and we appreciate their help. They are all great; please patronize them whenever possible.

Future fund-raising plans of the Clarkston Village Players include a dinner dance with details coming at a later date.

If you would like to help our cause either with ideas for fund raising or money, please contact any CVP member or me, Bob Cook, at 625-3867.

The way we were . . .

Pete and Janet Rose and Pat Thomas are just three of the many interested people who were involved in the early years of the Clarkston Village Players and still are now. They have collected a number of reminiscences, anecdotes, observations, whatever, of those earlier years.

• One of the actors in our first play was the man who ran Snakes Alive up on the Dixie. He had been in show business and arrived with a very elaborate makeup kit which impressed our green cast.

• Pete Rose wanted no part of that play, but Nick Rossano talked him into being a senator because of his size. He played a Senator Claghorn-sort of person and loved it, and we all know the rest of that story.

• Only once in our memory have we had to have a substitute go on, and that was in "Sabrina Fair" when Sallie Moore was sick and Pat Breidenbaugh played the part with script in hand—and very well, needless to say. The set for that play was beautiful, one that Merle Bennett built.

• Memories of "Ten Little Indians," rehearsed at Lew Wint's: Lew was the hero, Pete Rose the villain. Two children in the front row couldn't believe that nice Mr. Rose would be that mean.

• That same show called for a raised step in the back which seemed sort of unnecessary when they were staging the show. Shortly before the opening, the director realized that Pete was supposed to die in a spot where everyone could see him, and we couldn't see him at the back of the stage. Merle Bennett quickly built an extra-high bench (a beautiful one) for him to sit on. It solved the problem, and the Roses now have it in their living room, one of their favorite pieces of furniture.

• Merle Bennett gave our players so much. He rebuilt the station, built the light board and produced many of the plays. I think he was president for two years. He was in only one play, "Ten Little Indians," as a retired general, which he did very well, but he worried a lot.

• In that same play, Janet Rose played a spinster who knitted. She didn't, so someone else would start it for her and she would rearrange it each night, a terrible mess. The last night of the show, it fell off the needles.

• Our station was obtained for us by Bruce Embrey. He knew the railroad business because of his being a coal salesman. It seemed pretty wild when he thought of it, but we have really benefitted from his good idea. He also helped write the first constitution.

• Husbands and wives have been common working teams in the Players, even daring to appear on stage together. Upstaging has caused many a family argument.

• We did a variety of plays, including one-acts and children's, but found melodrama to be a real gold mine. Pete Rose was our first villain, a most unlikely type, but he proved to be black to the very heart!

• Our first musical was "Deadwood Dick," with Barb Steele as Piano Annie providing both music and musical direction.

• Many of the Players felt a stage of 16 feet was too small for a musical. They proved themselves wrong by producing "Fantasticks" successfully to full houses.

• Since starting at the station, we have produced just three adult plays on other stages, "Under the Yum-Yum Tree," "Fiorello" and "Mousetrap." Our audiences seem to prefer the station theater to any other. We were also afraid the trains would be a disturbing factor, but instead found they added a certain appeal to the play and the theater.

• Our audiences have changed from just family and friends to many out-of-towners who make it a point to know when the plays go on stage.

• We have found that mice have a live-in at the station. Many an actress has had to stifle a scream for the sake of art.

• Our true blue audiences have suffered through cold feet, no water, no bathrooms and mosquitos just to support the Players. On occasion, we have ushered the audience outside to spray for bugs inside.

• The curtain from the old Clarkston Opera House over Hallman Apothecary has been given much tender, loving care.

• "Break a leg"—the theater's way of saying "good luck"—always strikes fear in any actor who tends to be clumsy.

• In "Inherit the Wind," we were going to use a live monkey, but he escaped and spent the final act up in the teasers. He was replaced the second night by a stuffed monkey.

• The true test of Pat Thomas' thespian talent came when she played the Blue Fairy in "Pinocchio." For months after, children she met on the street expected to have instant wishes granted.

• Coffee served during intermission is the Players' way of saying "thank you."

Beginnings:

Players went to work 17 years ago

By Lucia Wilford

Clarkston, as we first knew it in 1954, had many attributes, everything but a little theater group.

We had come from a small community in Ohio where an active players' group had been an important part of our lives as well as of friends' and neighbors'. With our children, over an eight-year period, we had participated in acting, directing, costume and set design—as well as in writing and selling advertising space in programs and housekeeping details necessary to putting on a show.

We were not alone in our thinking or experience. Often at parties and town gatherings, talk would turn to little theater. Clarkston needed it, and had the talent and the energy to put it over.

Now, 17 years later, there is more than one version, more than one recollection of the spark, the action that actually launched the Village Players. Undoubtedly, several people responded positively at about the same time.

My efforts toward forming a group began on a mild day in March, 1961, when I was talking to our neighbor Nick Rossano in the backyard. We had been at a party at Janet and Pete Rose's the night before.

Nick had brought up the subject of little theater, that a group should be started.

I said I'd heard that remark repeatedly for seven years but nothing would happen until someone actually took steps to organize it.

Nick asked if I would do it and I said I would do anything to start it except conduct the meeting. He said that if I would get a group together he would carry on from there. He had had experience in Grand Rapids, knew what was needed.

We set a date for a gathering at our house. I called people I thought would be interested and suggested they contact others.

Not only did my list include our particular social group, but teachers and members of church and town organizations. This included Doris Boynes Storer, who had been effective in organizing an art group a few years earlier.

The turnout was heart-warmingly large.

Nick Rossano spelled out the steps that must be taken. Enthusiasm was high.

In fact, in that first meeting committees were formed and a date was set for a second meeting in early April.

Fast work was necessary to have a play ready for that spring, and to build momentum for another performance in the fall. But it was done.

Late May, the curtain rose on the new group's first production, "Two Blind Mice."

But it was sometimes rough going getting there.

It would take time before a well-organized group would develop, and the early costs included tension and disruption.

The first product, two performances, was, however, rewarding to the group and the community.

I was particularly pleased with the support given by local advertisers to the first programs, which I designed.

Most important, Clarkston Village Players was on its way, in business. Actors, director, set builders, costumers had established a going concern.

First performances were staged in the high school theater, a superb facility but with limitations on availability. Performance and rehearsal dates had to be meshed with school needs. As a consequence, many rehearsals were held in the Township Community Center and in members' homes.

After the first few shows had been staged, the group began to yearn for a place of its own.

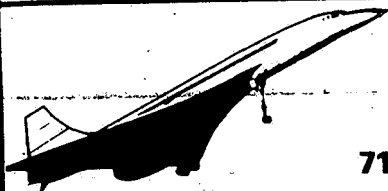

Barns were considered along with the old "opera house" above Hallman's drugstore, but construction and reconstruction costs were prohibitive.

Then Bruce Embry, working on his own, announced the possibility of a long term lease on the Grand Trunk Depot. A home had been found.

Coming up:

Mystery! Farce!
Drama! Comedy!

BY Jan Malane

The Clarkston Village Players' 1978-79 season consists of plays that will be familiar to many of its patrons.

The season opens Oct. 6 with the brilliant murder mystery, "Laura." When Mark first falls in love with Laura, he knows he's in love with a phantom—for Laura is dead. He has come to her apartment to investigate the circumstances of her murder.

From the personal effects in the apartment and information given by the three men who loved her, he has created an image of a woman who seems tantalizingly alive.

When she turns up during a thunder storm, very real and alive, it becomes evident that it was not Laura, but a friend of hers, who was murdered.

Both were rivals for one man's love, and all evidence points to Laura's guilt. The real murderer reappears, however, intending to kill his original target, Laura.

"See How They Run," an action-packed farce, will be the second production of the season, opening Dec. 1.

Galloping in and out of the four doors of an English vicarage are an American actor and actress (he is now stationed with the Air Force in England); a cockney maid who has seen too many American movies; an old maid who "touches alcohol for the first time in her life;" four men dressed as clergymen presenting the problem of which is which, for one is really an escaped prisoner; and, lastly, a sedate bishop aghast at all these goings-on and the trumped-up stories told to him.

The dramatic offering of the season, opening March 2, is "Picnic."

The action takes place in the joint back yards of two middle-aged women. Both are long since deserted by their husbands.

One cares for her invalid mother while the other shares her home with two maturing daughters and a boarder who is a spinster school teacher. Into this congested female atmosphere there comes a young man of neither polish nor promise whose animal vitality seriously upsets the entire group.

The final production of the season, opening May 11, is the comedy "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

Sheridan Whiteside, having dined at the home of the Stanleys, slips on their doorstep breaking his hip.

A tumultuous six weeks of confinement follow. The Stanley living room is monopolized by the invalid, ex-convicts are invited to meals, and transatlantic calls bring a $784 phone bill.

This Broadway favorite was written by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman.

Tickets for all productions will be available at Tierra Arts and Designs two weeks prior to each play. Ticket price is $3 for all performances except for the Thursday night benefits.
