The wheels are turning toward a decision on a zoning amendment that would allow a skyscraper in Independence Township.

The controversial Independence Township recreation zoning amendment that would allow construction of a 22-story Pine Knob hotel is scheduled to go before the Oakland County Planning and Coordinating Committee July 26.

Although it is early to predict an exact time for the meeting, the proposal should be considered during Thursday afternoon, said Paul Long, technical adviser to the committee.

The committee considers township rezonings, then makes recommendations to the township board, Long said.

The majority of the Independence Township Planning Commission recommended approval of the zoning amendment in June.

The final decision rests with the township board, and the matter will probably be on the agenda at the August 7 meeting, according to Independence Township Clerk Christopher Rose.

Meanwhile, the Committee Against High Rise Zoning in Independence Township continues its battle.

"We have about 350 petitions still out and there are over 2,000 (signatures) on the petitions turned in," said Edward (Ted) Thomson, treasurer of the committee and chairman of the Clarkston Planning Commission.

Thomson said he plans to attend the Oakland County meeting and expects a good turnout at the township meeting.

"I would assume we'll try to get a good showing there," he said.

His eyes on the cost gauge, Ole Johnson pumps his own gas at the Payless Gas Station, 6594 Dixie Highway. Johnson, who lives on Roselawn Street in Independence Township, says he pulls into the nearest gas station when his gas guage dips and pumps gas "only when I have to." Other customers at the station said they've been pumping their own gas because of high prices for two months to four years. For more photos and tips on saving fuel and money, see page 21.

Negotiators for the Clarkston Community School District and its teachers have reached tentative agreement on one item—a calendar for the 1979-80 school year.

Determining significant dates for the upcoming school year traditionally is the first action taken by teacher-contract negotiators, although the calendar is not official until a contract is approved in its entirety.

This year's tentative calendar has one major change from those of recent years.

"For the first time in several years, we will be starting after Labor Day," said Conrad Bruce, chief negotiator for the school board.

Labor Day is Monday, Sept. 3. Teacher orientation is scheduled for Sept. 4, and students are to return to classes Sept. 5.

The tentative calendar lists the same number of class days and teachers' duty days as last year's, Bruce noted.

However, there are to be no half-days of classes for pupils during teachers' inservice training programs.

"Those didn't work very well," Bruce noted.

"Attendance was down and those who were there didn't get much accomplished."

Negotiations on the rest of the teacher contract are to resume after a July vacation break.

"Progress has been slow," Bruce commented about the negotiations which began in mid-May.

Negotiators for the school board and the Clarkston Education Association (CEA) have met for 15 hours on four days, he said. They have been considering each side's first proposals.

Bruce presented the board's second proposal to the CEA before the break for vacations.

The next meeting is scheduled for Aug. 1, and negotiators are planning to hold full-day talks every Wednesday through August.

Twenty-one of Oakland County's 28 school districts are currently negotiating teacher contracts.

In the two districts which settled this spring, teachers received pay boosts of some 12 percent a year, including scale increments based on seniority.

In Rochester, teachers got raises in addition to increments of 8.1 percent the first year and 8.2 percent the second year of a two-year contract.

Raises in Bloomfield Hills, not including scale increments, will amount to 24.3 percent over two years.

A significant feature of this year's negotiations in Clarkston is that for the first time a majority of the teachers—52 percent—are at the 11th step or above it on the salary scale.

After the 11th annual step, there are seniority increments at the 16th and 20th years.

Info line

Want to find out in a minute-and-a-half how teacher-contract negotiations are going?

Clarkston Community Schools now has an information line which provides a 90-second tape recorded message.

By dialing 625-4435, interested persons can get an update on contract talks.

Later on, the line will be used to impart information on which there is broad interest—school closings and the like.

Intersection plan shelved for now

By Mimi Mayer

Work on the Depot-Holcomb-White Lake road intersection improvement plan has been shelved indefinitely.

After briefly discussing whether to proceed with a modified version of the project submitted Monday night, the Clarkston Village Council voted unanimously to table the plan.

Council members indicated they would not proceed until Clarkston Mills shopping mall developer Marc Alan contributed the $11,000 he pledged to the project.

Since December, the council had written Alan twice asking him to deliver the funds. Alan did not respond to either letter.

"I think if we go ahead with this, Marc Alan will never give us the money," Trustee James Schultz said.

"I'm just very opposed to going ahead with this without his money. There's so many things he hasn't followed up on. I just feel he's pushed his way in and he'll push as far ahead as he wants," Schultz added.

Trustees Robert Adams and Jackson Byers said they agreed with Schultz. Trustee Gary Symons did not comment and Trustees, Ruth Basinger and Michael Thayer were absent from the meeting.

Originally estimated to cost $33,000, the intersection improvement plan was proposed by Alan's planners Reid, Cool and Mischalski. They had suggested the road improvements to handle the extra traffic Clarkston Mills was anticipated to bring to the intersection.

The Village and the Oakland County Road Commission had budgeted $11,000 each for the project. Alan had promised $11,000 plus an additional $4,000 which the village intended to spend on the road improvements.

In return for his contribution, Alan was leased for $1 per year approximately 7,520 square feet of village right-of-way used in the Clarkston Mills parking lot.

However, when village officials received bids for the road improvement work, the low cost estimate, submitted by Wolverine Asphalt Paving Co., Drayton Plains, was $46,244.70.

Council members at the April 18 meeting asked Delton Lohff of Kieft Engineering to work with Wolverine on paring the cost.

After waiting months for a proposal, the council received Monday night a $23,086 bid for the modified intersection improvement plan from Wolverine Asphalt.

"We were mainly going to do the corner," Village President Fontie ApMadoc said Tuesday.

Included in the work was the tapering of Holcomb and White Lake roads at the intersection, and the widening and grading of nearly 400 feet of Depot Road from the crossroads, she added.

"No way can we turn it (Depot Road) into a two-way road unless Marc Alan wants to pay for the rest," ApMadoc told the Council. "But it will pay for the safety factors which I understand have been there for some years."

"We know we'll never get it any cheaper. Should we go ahead with it just on the corner because of the safety factor or should we just drop it?" ApMadoc asked.

Schultz, who had lived on Holcomb Road for several years, said the accidents occurred at the intersection "only when fast drivers lost control at the corner."

The council will contact the Oakland County Road Commission with the news that the project has been postponed for the time being.

Springfield board rezones 720 acres

Citizens granted 2.5-acre lots for entire neighborhood

By Mimi Mayer

Springfield Township Supervisor Collin W. Walls clearly saw it as a peoples' victory.

"We just celebrated the Declaration of Independence because it says the government is required to fulfill the wishes of the governed," he said.

The vox populi rang for Walls when Clerk J. Calvin Walters, Trustee Glen Vermilye and he voted 3-2 to apply a large-lot blanket rezoning to approximately 720 acres of Springfield Township residential property.

Treasurer Patricia Kramer and Trustee Glenn Underwood voted against the measure passed at the July 5 Springfield Township Board meeting.

Minimum lot sizes in the area will be increased from 1.32 to 2.5 acres once notice of the rezoning is published.

The board ignored the unanimous recommendation of the five-member Oakland County Zoning Coordinating Committee that the blanket rezoning be denied.

A petition signed by 128 Springfield Township property owners asked township officials to add a new suburban farms zoning designation to the township zoning ordinance.

They further requested that the new designation be placed on nearly 840 acres of residential land located in the northeast portion of the township.

The request split the Springfield Township Planning Commission, which voted 3-3 on a measure asking approval of the blanket rezoning.

However, a second motion was passed which forwarded the rezoning request to the county zoning committee and the board with no recommendation.

The area now rezoned includes residential properties located north of Rattalee Lake Road, south of Oakhill and Kier roads, west of Bridge Lake Road and on both sides of Giroux Road, Treece and Raymond courts and Gibbs Road between Rattalee Lake and Oakhill.

Close to 120 acres south of Rattalee Lake included in the petitioned rezoning district were dropped from the suburban farms area "to form a natural barrier" for the new zoning district, Walls said.

A motion made by Underwood which would have further reduced the size of the suburban farms zoning district died without a second.

The board turned its back on a request filed by attorney Robert Waddell, who represented developers Karl Lundquist and Roger Roeser.

Waddell asked that the board exempt from the suburban farms district the developers' 84-acre proposed Green Tree Estates subdivision, located south of Kier Road between Gibbs and Bridge Lake.

Waddell said the subdivision was being platted for 42 sites with lot sizes beginning at 1.5 acres.

"It will cost more -- according to the Kieft Engineering people -- to develop the lots at 2.5-acre lots rather than 1.5," Waddell said, adding that with inflation the rezoning "would presently make these areas undevelopable."

Roger Lickey, 9810 Gibbs, countered the statement by asking that the board avoid spot rezoning.

"I'd like to request of these gentlemen: Don't hand us back a checkerboard. That is not good planning," Lickey said.

Other proponents of the large-lot rezoning cited the preservation of the area's natural beauty and the lack of roads designed to carry increased traffic caused by higher density land developments as reasons for adopting the large-lot rezoning.

Underwood argued strenuously against applying the 2.5-acre minimum lot size requirement to the entire 840 acres petitioned by the property owners.

Noting he favored large-lot rezoning, Underwood said, "I have reservations about applying it to all the properties. I just feel it's taking too large an area of land."

"I feel that developers have proven themselves to be responsible. A lot of people don't want 2.5 acres. It's too much to keep up."

"I don't think it's responsible to support it (large lot rezoning) in large tracts of (undeveloped) land fronting on general use roads," Underwood said.

Kramer said she voted against the motion because a 40-acre parcel of undeveloped land located at the southwest corner of the suburban farms district should retain its 1.3-acre minimum lot size zoning.

The parcel fronts on Dixie Highway and is abutted to the north and south by land designated for commercial and industrial use.

"I still think that one parcel that fronts on Dixie should be used as a buffer zone," she said shortly after the motion was passed.

Commuter lot possible next year

A July 1980 opening date has been tentatively set for an Independence Township commuter parking lot.

Planned by the Michigan

Department of Transportation for nearly two years, the paved lot will be located near the southwest corner of the intersection of M-15 and I-75. It will provide between 23 and 28 parking spaces.

"I would doubt whether anybody will be able to use the lot before next July," said Warren Cox, highway department senior district coordinator.

He added that the department will seek contractors' bids on the project in November and ground breaking is planned for spring, 1980.

The state transportation department will pay the estimated $45,000 cost of the project, which includes design, grading, paving work and landscaping.

However, Independence Township officials, who "expressed an interest in lighting the area" must by law bear this cost themselves, Cox said.

Township Supervisor Whitey Tower said he will approach the Detroit Edison Co., which owns a power substation near the lot, "to see if Edison will do the lighting."

The commuter parking lot has been proposed by the transportation department approximately two years ago.

Lengthy negotiations with the Sun Oil Co. to purchase additional land for the lot delayed work on the project, said William Schram, coordinator of the highway department's statewide carpool parking lot program.

Transportation department and Independence Township officials met at the lot site June 5 to examine project plans. The matter was also briefly discussed at the June 25 Clarkston Village Council meeting.

Walters still No. 1

Rev. Robert Walters has retained his post as president of the Clarkston School Board.

Walters received four votes from fellow school board members Monday night to keep the post he won a year ago.

Janet Thomas, who received two votes for president, was unanimously named vice president. She has been board treasurer.

Vincent Luzi was named to replace Thomas as treasurer.

Mary Jane Chaustowick retained her post as secretary.

Luzi was not present at the meeting.

Developers lose plat approval bid

By Mimi Mayer

The forthcoming implementation of a new large-lot Springfield Township rezoning had immediate effect upon developers Karl Lundquist and Roger Roeser.

They lost their bid for final preliminary plat approval of their 84-acre residential subdivision, Green Tree Estates, minutes after the Springfield Township Board approved the blanket rezoning at its July 5 meeting.

The subdivision was platted for 43 sites which the developers said had a minimum lot size of 1.5 acres, fulfilling former zoning requirements.

However, Green Tree Estates, located south of Kier Road between Bridge Lake and Gibbs roads, is within the large-lot district which will have a minimum lot-size requirement of 2.5 acres once the change is published.

Following Springfield Township Supervisor Collin W. Walls' recommendation, the board voted 4-1 to deny preliminary plat approval for Green Tree Estates. Trustee Glenn Underwood cast the dissenting vote.

The motion, made by Treasurer Patricia Kramer, said the plat failed to comply with some provisions of the Springfield Township Zoning Ordinance.

Lundquist had no comment to make following the board's action. During discussion, he'd said sites had already been sold.

James Sharl, an engineer representing the developers, said with the 2.5-acre lot-size requirement, the subdivision roads would need to be replanned, increasing the cost of the project.

"I don't think the subdivision will look good with the 2.5-acre parcels and one road running down the middle of it as beautiful as it is (now) laid out," Lundquist said.

Walls later said the plat did not meet two provisions of the township zoning ordinance and an Oakland County Road Commission requirement for subdivision plats.

"We had no evidence of ownership," Walls noted.

When the developers offered to submit a copy of their preliminary purchase agreement to the board, Kramer said it would not change her motion.

"So we had no evidence of that purchase agreement," Walls said.

A copy of the plat had not been forwarded to the Holly Area Schools, Walls said.

The plat included several lots that did not fulfill road commission requirements, Walls said.

These parcels had a minimum road frontage under 200 feet. But the developers did not provide the enclosed storm sewers and curb and guttering required by the road commission for smaller lots, he said.

"I do not believe in nit-picking something to death," Walls told the board. "But I do believe that these are items that are spelled out very clearly in our ordinance and they are items which should be taken care of."

Walls added that he would have normally recommended that the board table action on the plat until the noncomplying features were corrected.

Because the board had voted that the rezoning would take effect immediately upon publication, a decision on the final preliminary plat had to be made, he said.

"I don't like to see this kind of thing happen under the wire, so to speak," Walls added.

Three appointed to Springfield plan board

New blood will be infused into the Springfield Township Planning Commission.

William Whitley, 9850 Gibbs Road, and Michael Boyer, 11400 Clark Road, were appointed to the commission by the Springfield Township Board at its July 5 meeting.

Zona Sommers, who joined the commission last December, was named to a three-year term.

Whitley was asked to serve a three-year term as well. Betty Hecker, a commissioner since July, 1976, was not reappointed. Hecker was the commission secretary.

Boyer was appointed for the remainder of Michael Barron's two-year appointment. Barron had resigned from the commission in March because his business was taking him to another area.

With the three appointments, the commission has seven members.

The Springfield planning commission is chaired by Roger Horton. Other members are David Field, Herbert Swanson and Glen Vermilye, who is also a trustee on the Springfield Township Board.

Letters to the editor

Something's rotten here

Citizens and board members,

Another year--another revelation on our sewer funds!

For all of you who have paid the ad valorem sewer tax in 1976, paid again in 1977, still paid again that blasted tax in 1978, will still pay more on that sewer mess in 1979, you may have realized that NOW $1,400,000 was left over when the sewers were built.

Imagine--that money was left over in the fund, but no one could think of paying the annual sewer bills with it!

Oh, no, the officials had to DECIDE how to bilk the taxpayers for more money!

That money was in another pocket--quite hidden from view for us gullible taxpayers.

How can we believe anything quoted by county and township officials any more!

It was bad enough to find there was a surplus in the township sewer funds.

It is bad enough to find the water and sewer department is to build that expansive building on the 20 acres plus out on Flemings Lake Road.

It is horrible to find that $1,400,000 in the municipal bonds sold to finance the $10,100,000 sewer for just one-fourth of the whole township--so the sewers put in cost $10,100,000 minus $1,400,000 which equals only a paltry $8,700,000--unless that is a lie, too!

Shakespeare wrote "something was rotten in Denmark."

Something, surely, is rotten in Independence, and it is more than the sewers.

The village had an area, so-called the "ROSE GARDEN," that was not named for the flowers.

Now that same area is a village park, but the township has something that appropriately could be called a stinking mess in their funds.

What else is hidden?

Where were school bands?

by Pat Braunagel

The Clarkston school bands have an organization of parents which serves as a liaison with the community.

The Band Boosters let us know what the young musicians need and how much non-tax money will have to be raised to round out the band's programs.

And the Band Boosters work ceaselessly to raise that money.

Now the Clarkston community needs a booster organization to explain its needs to the bands.

What Clarkston needed last week was a full-fledged band in its Fourth of July parade.

A parade which attracted as many observers to downtown Clarkston as that one did deserves more than canned music. The Sashabaw Valley Alternative Marching Band, a group of usually-serious musicians putting on a bit of spoof, turned out to be the only unit of live music makers in the parade.

The comment was heard again and again in the crowd of adults and children: "Where are our bands?"

They were sorely missed.

The school bands, which rightfully call on the community for support, should have been represented.

Parades are one way the young musicians can show their stuff and, at the same time, say thanks for the support they get from the community.

Organizers of the parade were told the kids are on vacation. But if the band's color guard can suit up and show up for the parade, why can't a few of the musicians?

Not all of Clarkston's three school bands would have had to be there--just enough to provide some real march-time music.

Clarkston loves its bands and loves its parades.

Both are worth boosting.

Forever stumps

To the Editor:

Approximately eighteen months ago, the village fathers, in their infinite wisdom, reduced the two fine trees in front of my house to stumps, one of which is immediately to the right of my driveway.

After expending copious amounts of profanity in recurring efforts to move recalcitrant cars from the top of the stump, it seemed prudent to mark the obstable.

A flag would have been more decorative than informative so I erected a small sign with the succinct message "stump."

As I was rebuilding my stump sign the other day after the design had been severely impacted by a slow-moving Plymouth, I was brooding about the ever growing list of prognostic inaccuracies that have been espoused by various village spokesmen.

The latest contribution to this bizzare collation was a statement made ten weeks ago at a village meeting, to wit, "The stumps will be removed in four to six weeks."

A year ago the then current inaccurate forecast was "The stumps will be removed prior to July 4th."

The most enigmatic statement was the stumps will be removed "before snow."

I'm still thrashing around with that one. It obviously didn't mean "before snow falls" or even "before snow melts." I'm afraid to ask "before snow what?" in case somebody foresees an impending meteorological cataclysm about which it is best to remain ignorant.

Whatever the phrase means, the stumps are still there doing their thing, which isn't much except reminding me of how much can be accomplished when civic leaders follow a well-thought-out plan; and providing certain conversational gambits.

Recently, I opened the door and a dinner guest fixed me with a gimlet eye and queried, "You are, I assume, Mr. Stump? Will we meet Mrs. Stump? Are there any little stumps?"

It has also been suggested that since I have envinced a penchant for identifying the mundane, there should be other signs in front of my house indicating "lawn," "sidewalk," "driveway" and "door."

Carried to a logical conclusion, this concept would result in Anne wearing a neatly lettered sign saying "wife".

The village fathers have recently installed a stake next to the stump near my driveway and painted some letters on top of this same stump.

I have a horrible feeling that they are now planning to remove one stump and leave the second to bug me forever.

But whether they remove one or both stumps, two questions will remain:

A. Who authorized cutting down the trees? and

B. Why?

Offer librarian higher salary

Dear Editor:

Over the years Clarkston Women's Club has donated countless dollars and hours to the Independence Township Library.

We feel a strong dynamic library can do much to enhance the quality of life for residents of the township.

A library can only be as good as its librarian.

In order to hire a top quality librarian for Independence Township, we urge you to offer a salary commensurate with the other department heads.

We feel that the committee hiring a new librarian should be able to negotiate a salary with a candidate that will insure them to hire the best qualified librarian available.

We would hate to see Independence Township lose the best candidate because the township board was not willing to provide a competitive salary.

We urge you to take a far sighted approach and consider our feelings in this matter.

Sincerely,

Clarkston Women's Club Board

Jim's jottings

Doting on daughter

by Jim Sherman

In the summer of 1971 our son, Jim, took a tour of Europe. He was 17, or close to it.

He had auditioned for, and gained a place with, the choral arm of Musical Youth International. That's a branch of the People to People movement out of Washington.

I felt no hesitancy in Jim's flying off with a hundred other teenagers to expose the American youth to Europeans.

Last Monday morning daughter, Susan, soon to be 17, took off on a similar trip to her brother's.

I felt all kinds of concern.

Maybe it's because she is going so much further...to Australia.

Maybe it's because she's a girl.

Musical Youth International hasn't changed. It's reputation is still outstanding. Mrs. McCoy is still it's leader.

Susan is again one of a hundred.

So why did I find myself wondering about her schedule, her wardrobe, her manners, did she have enough of whatever, and what else can I do?

I don't remember giving any thought to Jim's departure.

Perhaps my sister hit on it when we talked this week.

"You didn't let that child go off on that long trip did you?"

"Without Hazel?"

"Aren't you worried about your baby?"

(My sister seldom waits for an answer to a single question.)

Sure as shootin'. The fact that it's our baby girl who is taking a flight from the nest that got to me.

Actually, she's probably more mature than her brother was at the same age. She may also be more self assured. I really have nothing to worry about.

So, why do I keep checking the calendar to see when Susan is coming home?

I found another good reason to get fit. Notice I didn't say stay fit.

Four of us were stuck in the mud, in a 4-wheel drive, 11 miles from a house, in the dark of night, a couple weeks ago.

We gave up trying to pry the car from the hole about 9:15. Two of us headed out. We were picked up by someone summoned by a concerned wife 8 or 9 miles later.

Stronger legs would have been nice. But then, one such experience in 53 years isn't enough to go on a health kick. That's my thought now, after the legs have become uncramped.

Teenager accepts challenge

'Want car? Build it yourself'

By Kathy Greenfield

When Jerry Rowland was 15, his father offered him a deal.

If he wanted a car, he could have one...if he built it himself.

Jerry says he accepted the challenge with mixed emotions.

"I knew it would be a lot of work, but in the end, it would be worth it," he said.

Now at age 16, Jerry knows for sure the challenge was worth the effort, because he is the owner of a snappy white sportscar—a Bradley GT II.

Jerry, who lives on Kingfisher Lane in Independence Township, discovered the kit in an airliner's magazine during a vacation flight.

Technical advice from his father Jim, an engineer, and some assistance from friends were part of the project, but Jerry proudly says he did "almost everything."

"It took me nine months, kind of off and on, but with something like that, it's never really finished," he said. "You're always adding and improving."

Plans to switch the body onto a standard Volkswagen engine are underway. The changes to a stick shift and a larger engine should be completed by the end of this month.

His father was "kind of like the foreman" for the project that brought them "a lot closer together," Jerry said.

"I guess when you work together with somebody on something, you get to know them better than you did before," he explained.

Jerry had never worked on a car before.

"Now I can sit down and analyze a problem with the engine," he said, and he's also able to make on-the-spot repairs.

The Bradley GT II that 16-year-old Jerry Rowland built from a kit attracts attention wherever he goes. After having owned the car for about a year, Jerry said he has seen only one other Bradley on the road.

He describes his feelings for the car as "over-protective."

"All the cuts and bruises and grease-covered hands, they make you value it a lot more," he said. "I guess anybody who built something would know."

He avoids taking his car to places where it would be parked for long periods of time and never to events like football games, except once when he drove the homecoming queen around the football field.

The Bradley GT II does attract attention.

"I'll park it and go in the store," he said. "I come out and there'll be about five people around it."

Three questions are always asked: "What is it?" "How much does it cost?" and "How fast will it go?"

The cost was about $6,000, he said. The kit included the body and interior items. To that, a Volkswagen chassis and engine had to be added.

He thinks the car will go around 90 mph, but he's not sure.

"I don't speed," he said.

The car has another highlight—it gets about 30 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Jerry's other interests include music—he plays the trumpet—golf and drama. He's also a good student and plans to become a medical doctor.

Being able to build the car and having the desire to do so have something to do with the kind of person he is, Jerry said.

"A person that has personal pride—a person that strives for perfection" is how he describes himself.

He also wanted a car that was different.

"I don't like the ideal of the stereotyped jacked-up Nova with chrome mags," he said.

"I really get a lot of pride in this car. It's nice to have nice things," he added. "It's just something I'm fortunate to have."

He has seen only one other Bradley on the road.

"I was heading north of Dixie," he said. "I honked and waved and that's what he did too."

Taking gas over gifts

by Jim Fitzgerald

The gasoline shortage raises an important question concerning sanitation: What does Texaco do with dirty towels returned by unsatisfied customers?

Another important energy question is: Can Texaco's nine 15-day trial offers be served concurrently, or must they be taken one at a time, thus requiring 135 days instead of only 15?

In one fat envelope, along with my monthly bill, Texaco offered me the free use of:

1. Four bath towels, six dish towels, four hand towels, four dish cloths, eight washcloths, four pot holders and six guest towels.

2. An "entertainment center" including a cassette recorder/player, an FM-AM-CB radio and a three-inch solid state black and white TV.

3. A five-piece luggage set in tan or burgandy and vinyl.

4. A wall/mantel clock.

5. A fire protective chest.

6. A play/record stereo system.

7. A 13-inch color TV with remote control.

8. A deluxe camera outfit.

9. A porcelain-on-steel cookware set.

Each of these nine free offers was lovingly described in nine full-color, multipaged brochures. If, after the 15-day free trial, I want to purchase one of these items, I can charge it to my Texaco travel card and pay only a few dollars a month.

And—the best part of all—the towels and everything else can be ordered by simply dialing a toll-free number at any time of the day or night, including Sundays.

It was this last point that prompted me to slap my son on the head with the nine Texaco brochures. He'd just explained that he drove the family car home on an empty tank because the neighborhood Texaco station had been closed at noon Friday.

"Are you trying to tell me that Texaco, the Fire Chief people, will sell me a towel at 2 o'clock Sunday morning but won't sell me a gallon of gas at noon Friday?" I asked.

Maybe we can buy some gas at a Cannon towel factory," he suggested.

I don't like it when I'm begged to buy towels from a gasoline company that will no longer wipe my windshield, not even with a greasy rag. I know I'm being unreasonable. I know pot holders don't grow on fossil bushes in Saudi Arabia. I don't care. There is something to be said for being unreasonable, and I just said it.

I also don't like it when a business firm sticks its credit card inside my door to sell me a necessity of life and then pulls up its skirt in an attempt to turn our relationship into something frivolous, for only a few dollars a month.

If I want to buy a $450 TV set, I'll go to a TV store. If the manager says he's out of TVs, but tries to sell me gasoline, I'll make do with my old TV. I'll get its picture tube topped off at a Texaco station.

If a luggage manufacturer says he can't sell me a burgundy bag on Tuesdays because the world supply of burgundy is dangerously low, I'll sympathize. But if I see that luggage manufacturer pumping gas on Tuesdays, I'll be irked.

I'll wonder why he is moonlighting at a gas station when he should be spending his Tuesdays and his luggage profits searching for more burgundy, or for a good substitute.

I'm going to accept Texaco's free trial, but I won't buy. After 15 days, I'll send the towel package with a note complaining that the pot holders jammed my carburetor.

Kenneth soars above Eagle Scouts

Kenneth Clayton wears his sash with 44 Boy Scout merit badges only on special occasions.

By Kathy Greenfield

Scouting has been part of Kenneth Clayton's life for over half of his nearly 17 years.

As he begins his last year as a member of Boy Scout Troop 105, he's capping off his interest with an honor not won in the Clinton Valley Council for at least 15 years--the multiple gold palm.

"It's a tremendous recognition," said E. Earl (Sonny) Hays, council executive.

The council serves Boy Scouts in north Oakland and Macomb counties. In all, there are about 21,000 cubs, scouts, explorers and leaders involved in the area, Hays said.

To earn the multiple gold palm, Ken had to first become an Eagle Scout and then earn 20 additional merit badges.

Ken, who lives on Pelton Road in Independence Township, views his achievement modestly.

"It wasn't really all that hard," he said. "It's just something that took a little work."

But included in the 10 requirements for one merit badge on law were a minimum 250 word essay on observations in a courtroom, visiting a lawyer and discussing his career and listing 15 jobs that deal with aspects of law.

Among the 44 merit badges Ken has earned are first aid, wilderness survival, carpentry, cooking, citizenship and coin collecting.

"It's been interesting and educational, it's been a lot of fun," he said.

Ken, who is a member of the National Honor Society, is just beginning his senior year at Clarkston High School.

His goal is to become an attorney. Although he plans to quit scouting while he is a university student, the action will only be temporary.

"It's helped me a lot and I feel it might help other kids," Ken said about his desire to eventually become a scout master.

"I think scouting has really helped him grow up," said Ken's mother Mary Ann Rochon. "He just isn't interested in going out and getting into trouble. He's a very well-behaved kid and I know he's learned a lot of that in scouting."

Victor Van Hentenryck, Pontiac Manato Boy Scout district chairman, met Ken about seven years ago when he was a Webelo in his troop.

"He's the most outstanding of all the scouts I've ever had," Van Hentenryck said.

That's no small compliment, he added. There are 14 former Eagle Scouts now serving in the armed forces, two West Point cadets, two ministers and couple of lawyers out of the group that numbers 107.

"I'd like to have about 10 like Kenny," he said. "He's a natural leader without being a bully. Kenny is the type--he can be given a task and he'll see that it's done."

A special court of honor for Ken is scheduled tonight at the Chief Pontiac American Legion Post in Independence Township.

Ken is to receive his multiple gold palm and an additional honor.

"He's the district scout that we're submitting to the council and state for being the scout of the year," Van Hentenryck said.

Summer busy for hoop squad

By Mimi Mayer

Ask the Clarkston High School boys' varsity basketball team, "How did you spend your summer vacation?"

It's likely they'll respond, "Playing hoop."

Coach Gary Nustad is insuring that his boys are polishing their basketball skills by playing in a tough summer league and attending basketball camps.

"It's a necessity," Nustad said. "In order to keep your program very competitive with the other teams in the area, you've got to keep working. We've been successful because we don't quit working during the off-season."

Nustad noted that with summertime play, the Wolves can concentrate on developing specific talents rather than preparing for weekly games.

"In the regular season, every game counts. Off-season is the best time to keep these guys involved in upgrading their skills," he said.

For this reason, Nustad enrolled the Wolves in the Metro Detroit Summer Basketball League, where they've established a 2-4 record.

Not only are they playing against "some of the top 15 teams in Southeastern Michigan," like 1979 state champs Detroit MacKenzie High, but the Wolves are mastering a new kind of basketball, Nustad said.

"It's an excellent learning experience for us," he continued. "The physicalness of the game they play is a little bit different from what we're used to playing."

The Wolves' wins occurred when starting five Tim McCormick, John Sheldon, Ed Haddad, Chuck Nicolai and Scott McKoin all were playing.

The Wolves just weren't at "full strength" when one of these boys missed a game, Nustad said.

The Metro League directors recognized McCormick's and Sheldon's talents by drafting them for the leagues' all-star game Friday night.

Only the top 15 kids in the league received this honor, Nustad said.

From June 25-29, the Wolves attended a team basketball camp at St. Mary's College of Orchard Lake, where they won 11 out of 14 games.

"Excellent situation for the team, excellent situation for the fellas," Nustad commented. "It really provided a chance for team harmony."

And beginning Thursday, the five starters will travel to Pittsburg, Pa. for what Nustad described as "one of the finest basketball camps in the country" - the Five Star Basketball Camp.

All these activities are paying off, he said.

But Nustad is unwilling to forecast how the Wolves will fare once the Greater Oakland Activities League season begins.

"The kids are getting better all the time," he said. "Only time will tell what the season will be. It's a long time between then and now. There's no telling how we will do."

Boys win BMX races

Rainy weather delayed this week's bicycle moto-cross (BMX) race at Waterford-Oaks county park until Tuesday evening (July 3), but it didn't dampen the spirits of 103 youngsters who competed for trophies.

Among the winners in age categories between 7 and 16 years included several Clarkston area youngsters and a Davisburg resident.

Kurt Harms placed third in the age 9-10 category; Rob Mortimore was second for 13-year-olds and Mike Clem won first place in his race against other 14-year-olds.

Brent Richardson of Davisburg placed third in the age 14 category.

Waterford Oaks is the scene of BMX racing each Saturday beginning at 10 a.m. Mud, hills and banked turns can be tackled by boys and girls on special bikes to compete for awards.

Riders must wear special protective equipment and pass a bike inspection. Entry fee is $1. There is no admission charge for spectators.

The BMX track is located in the back of Waterford-Oaks Wave Action Pool on Scott Lake Road, Waterford Township.

Village balks at streetscape cost

Clarkston officials want a professional designer to suggest renovations of the village business district.

But some are balking at the $16,700 price tag for the work submitted by historic architectural designer Betty-lee Francis.

Because owners of business district buildings cannot be forced to implement the designs, the Clarkston Village Council is investing ways, to pare the project cost.

Trustee Gary Symons was authorized by the council at its Monday night meeting to discuss with Francis' methods of reducing the expense. He will also seek from other urban designers bids for the work.

Although no written commitment had been signed, the council had planned to hire Preservation Planning Inc., Francis' design firm, to render a streetscape of the business district.

During public hearings held in January, an unspecified amount of Community Development funds from 1978 through 1981 had been tentatively earmarked to pay for the work.

Francis was asked by village officials to submit drawings for new business signs and storefront renovations, improvements of downtown alleys and sidewalks and methods of developing more parking in the area.

Springfield hires new engineer firm

Johnson and Anderson Inc., Springfield Township's municipal engineers since 1973, has been replaced by Mosher-Mead Inc.

The Springfield Township Board unanimously approved the change at its July 5 meeting.

Township officials began investigating other engineering firms in March when Johnson and Anderson's annual contract came up for renewal.

The engineers had proposed a change in their fee scale which "would adjust their charges monthly, based on the current Consumer Price Index. That could be very hard to work with," said Township Supervisor Collin W. Walls.

Mosher-Mead, 9359 Dixie, Springfield Township, was one of six engineering firms approached by Walls and one of four which submitted bids for the post.

The three others were Giffels-Webster Engineers Inc., Avon

Township, Spalding DeDecker and Associates, Madison Heights, and Johnson and Anderson, Walls said.

Walls told the board he favored Giffels-Webster or Mosher-Mead. Trustee Glen Vermilye made the motion that Mosher-Mead be hired.

"All of them came very highly recommended by the municipalities they represent," Walls later said. "They all have very good reputations as engineering firms."

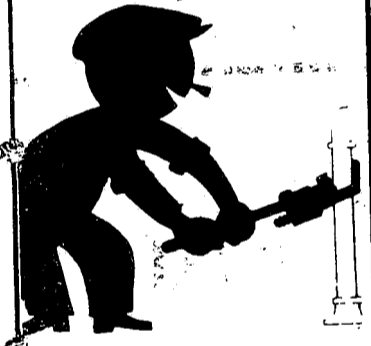

"It wasn't one of those choices you make when it's the lesser of two evils. They are all very good engineering firms," he added.

Mosher-Mead will charge the township on an hourly basis, Walls added.

"I can't give you a set figure because it varies with the type of work they're doing," he continued. "Probably 99 percent of the work done by municipal engineers is reviewing plats and site plans and those fees are paid by the developers themselves."

Clarkston survey in Lansing

The survey on Clarkston's historical buildings is now in Lansing.

Jennifer Radcliff, president of the Clarkston Community Historical Society, briefly presented a binder containing a copy of the survey to the Clarkston Village Council at its June 25 meeting.

Radcliff later reported that the survey, completed by historic architectural designer Betty-lee Francis and a group of college students, has been forwarded to the Department of State's Michigan History Division.

The division will review the data contained in the survey and forward it to the Michigan Historical Commission for final judgement.

The commission, which will not meet until September, will decide whether Clarkston is to be given the historic preservation district designation.

If the historic label is granted by the state, the history division will forward Clarkston's application to the National Register of Historic Places for federal recognition.

Radcliff noted Thursday that she had not heard from the history division since sending them the survey.

If you know of historic site, write

Questionnaires which will help document local history are available from the Clarkston Community Historical Society.

The surveys will aid a group of Oakland University researchers which is collecting comprehensive historical and archeological data on the early days of Oakland County.

Two questionnaires focusing on historical structures, from homes to abandoned railroad trestles, and archeological evidence, such as Indian mounds, can be obtained from Jennifer Radcliff, president of the historical society.

The researchers are especially interested in gathering background on Independence Township, the history of which has not been as thoroughly documented as Clarkston's, Radcliff said.

Information culled from the surveys will be stored in archives established at Oakland University and in Lansing.

The archeological surveys will remain anonymous. "so people will not be besieged by people with shovels and rakes looking for arrowheads," Radcliff said.

Contact Radcliff at 625-8181 to obtain a copy of the questionnaire.

WHERE THE INTEREST IS IN YOU

Girls State:

Learning experience not sedate for Renee, Lisa

Renee Tezak was elected as state senator, despite her implication in a pay-off scandal which occurred while she headed the county road commission.

Lisa Steele took another tack. Her dedication to Federalist Party politics helped her up through the partisan hierarchy until she chaired the committee which penned the Federalist platform for the gubernatorial race.

And in the meantime, the Skylab space station fell to earth, a mayor was assassinated and the Siamese Liberation Front kidnapped the governor.

All this happened in mid-June when Independence Township residents Renee, Guyette Road, and Lisa, Kingfisher Lane, participated in the American Legion Auxiliary's Girls State program at Olivet College.

Lynn Bennett, who heads the local Girls State selection committee, said Clarkston's American Legion Auxiliary Post No. 63 has sent at least two young women to Girls State every year since 1966.

Developed in the 1940s to spark youth interest in politics, Girls State-like Boy State, its brother program--miniaturizes the world of state government and current affairs.

When Renee and Lisa describe their experiences at Girls State, their eyes shine and their conversation is peppered with laughter.

"I thought it was going to be like a school situation," Lisa said. "As soon as I met my roommate, it changed."

"I just really enjoyed myself. And I learned so much!" Renee added.

The pair agreed that Girls State boosted their confidence,

'It makes you have such a well-rounded attitude about the world. It makes you care about what's going on in your city and your county.'

—Lisa Steele

made palpable the nebulous world of government, exposed them to new friends and different lifestyles and piqued an interest in politics.

"It makes you have such a well-rounded attitude about the world," Lisa said. "It makes you care about what's going on in your city and your county."

In fact, their only complaint was an 11-day isolation from boys.

As Lisa said, "I definitely made up my mind I was not going to an all-girls' school."

Girls Staters are assigned to the fictitious Federalist or Nationalist political parties as well as make-believe counties and cities, each with their unique traits and problems.

For instance, Lisa's home city of Crakes City was fraught with the ills which plague large, older urban areas. Prostitution and a large gay populace caused municipal officials considerable headaches, she said.

Clarahan, Renee's city, was in an agricultural district. However, the roads were slowly deteriorating due to the constant stream of oil tanker trucks trafficking through the area.

Lisa Steele

Renee Tezak

Mock elections are held, where participants campaign vigorously for executive, legislative or judicial posts and confront contemporary issues.

Those who don't want to run for office may join the press corps or special interest groups to lobby for a pet cause.

And the topics taken on by the 504 Girls Staters this year read like a catalogue of front-page Michigan news.

Terrorism, sex education in the schools, Project Seafarer, government surveillance of private citizens, environmental protection, gay rights, prison reform, minority quota systems, child abuse--all were discussed or acted upon by the Girls State municipal, county and Michigan officials.

During these activities, the girls had ample time to experiment with role-playing techniques.

When Renee posed as a bodyguard to the lieutenant governor, she donned dark glasses and a trench coat and toted a machine gun which squirted water.

The girls received their Olivet dorm assignments based on

YOU ARE INVITED to see our wide selection of wedding stationery and accessories. Wedding invitations, napkins, guest books, and thank you notes. Latest styles. The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston. 625-3370.

Because most eligible girls are unaware of the program, Renee, Lisa and Theresa Herr, the alternate, were the only applicants this year, Lynn said.

"A lot of them turn up their noses," she continued. "They say, 'I just finished government class and I didn't like it at all.' But this is a little different from what they do in class."

Indeed. How many teachers would encourage two of their students to dress up in a single shirt, pretend they're the Siamese Liberation Front and kidnap a make-believe governor?

As Lisa wistfully said, "It's an experience we'll never have again."

Obituaries

Daniel T. Trainor

Requiem mass for former Clarkston News editor Daniel T. Trainor, 36, of Pontiac was Saturday at Gesu Catholic Church, Detroit, with burial in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, Detroit. Trainor, 36, died July 3. A freelance writer at the time of his death, Trainor had been a reporter for the Macomb Daily and Oakland Press. He was editor of the Clarkston News in 1976-77.

A third generation Michigan newspaperman, Trainor was the grandson of a Detroit News reported and son of the late James Trainor, former Detroit Times city editor and press secretary to Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanaugh. Surviving are his wife Catherine; two daughters, Erin and Shannon; a son, Sean; his mother, Mrs. James T. Trainor; six brothers; and three sisters.

Dorothy B. Lewis

Dorothy Bromfield Lewis of Livonia died July 2 at the age of 85.

Mrs. Lewis was born Jan. 15, 1894 in the village of Franklin, the daughter of James and Lillian VanEvery.

Mrs. Lewis's great-grandfather, Colonel Peither VanEvery, built the Franklin Cider Mill and was in Michigan's first legislature. His original farm is what is now known as Detroit's Water Works Park. Colonel VanEvery also planted what is now the famous 12 pear trees known as the 12 Apostles.

Mrs. Lewis is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Herbert (Christing) Baker of Livonia and Mrs. Lillian DeBaptiste of Detroit.

She is also survived by a brother-in-law, Jhon W. DeLind Jr. of Clarkston. Graveside services for Mrs. Lewis were held July 3 at Lakeview Cemetery, Clarkston with the Rev. James R. Balfour officiating. Funeral arrangements were by the Goyette Funeral Home, Clarkston.

Firemen on duty around clock

Firefighter Christopher Cowdin spent his first all-nighter at Independence Township Fire Station No. 1 Sunday night.

The event marked the recently hired firefighter's first day on the job and coverage of all three fire stations seven days a week, 24 hours a day, said Fire Chief Frank Ronk.

Although Cowdin was "a little restless," and "said he didn't sleep too well," his first night was quiet, Ronk said, with only one call, a medical emergency, a little after he started at 6 p.m.

The township's other two fire stations will continue to be covered 24 hours a day.

Firefighters rotating duties at Station No. 1 in the village of Clarkston are to be Cowdin, Gar

Wilson and Steve Ronk.

Capt. Jack Beach, Neil Ashley and David Johnson have been assigned to Station No. 2 at Clarkston-Orion and Sashabaw roads.

Fire Station No. 3 at Maybee and Pine Knob roads is to be covered by firefighters Gordon Mason, Michael Fahrner and Daniel DeLongchamp.

Some thoughts to ponder while pumping gas

Carla Potlusky of Springfield Township is a four-year veteran of self-service gas stations.

Clarkston News

SECTION TWO

The Clarkston (Mich.) News

Wed., July 11, 1979 21

Just call

A toll-free telephone number is in service for potential tourists to the Sault Ste. Marie area.

The service, offered by the local Chamber of Commerce, is "to eliminate any concerns that tourists may have while traveling in Michigan."

Service stations are monitored weekly for the report.

The number to call is 1-800-682-4807 with questions about gasoline supplies and "additional information about anything."

Be 'car-free' for day

Ever think about setting aside one day a week as a "car-free" day? How about a Wednesday or Sunday when you can leave the car home and find other ways to travel?

Walking, biking, or sharing a ride are all good ways to save energy.

Save 15¢

A gas station offering its fuel for 15 cents less a gallon would be swamped with business.

But you can shop anywhere for gas and, by following four energy-saving steps, the lower expense can become reality.

Slowing down from 70 to 55 mph on expressways can save enough gas to equal 6 cents a gallon.

Keeping a well tuned car can save 4 cents a gallon more.

And using radial tires and making sure they're properly inflated are two steps that can save a nickel more a gallon.

Inflate

It's time to get out the owner's manual for your car and read with interest the proper level of inflation for your car's tires.

According to the United States Department of Energy, tires that are kept inflated at the highest level recommended by the manufacturer can save about 40 gallons of gas a year.

Springfield Township resident Rene Hubbard has been filling her own gas tank for about a year.

Judy David of Eastlawn Avenue, Independence Township, has been pumping her own gas "ever since prices went up—about two years."

Don't waste trips

With a little pre-planning, an easy way to save gas and money is simply to drive less.

On the average, a wasted trip costs $1 worth of gas. So, use the telephone to call ahead and make sure that what you want is available.

Shop, bank and pay bills by mail. That 15-cent stamp is indeed cheaper than a gallon of gas.

Ride a bike or hike to your destination and you'll have more money to spend once you get there.

And if you ride to work with a friend only one day a week, you can save at least $100 worth of gas a year.

More such tips are included in a free booklet published by the United States Department of Energy.

Doing Business

Kennedy Optical offers 'fast, friendly service'

As soon as laboratory services join Kennedy Optical, customers in a hurry for prescription glasses can expect even faster service.

If lenses and frames are in stock, "we could do it within an hour," said Timothy Russell, co-owner of the store located at 5660 Dixie Highway, Waterford Township.

For those not in a hurry, when the laboratory opens within two weeks, glasses could be ready in a day.

"That's our main thing—service," Russell said. "We think our niche is the market place is to give good, friendly service."

The family owned and operated business has another location at the Miracle Mile Shopping Center, Bloomfield Hills.

"It's all family. My father has been in the business 45 years. My brothers do all the lab work for us," he said, adding that his sister is in pre-optometry at Ferris State University.

Services at the optical center include eye examinations by optometrist Franklin Middleman on Wednesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays by appointment and on other days when requested.

Contact lenses, repairs, sports glasses, filling eyeglass prescriptions and a wide selection of designer frames are also part of the business.

Frames range in cost from $14 to "as much as you want to pay," Russell said. "If you want diamonds in it, I can do that, too."

The store participates in all insurance programs and is approved for filling safety glass prescriptions for General Motors Truck and Coach and Fisher Body employees.

The optical center opened in October.

Timothy Russell, co-owner of Kennedy Optical, planned the building's remodeling and did much of the work himself. The open floor plan is accented by several floor to ceiling windows he installed.

Remodeling the location was Russell's project. He drew the plans and worked on the building all last summer.

"I feel great. It was quite an accomplishment," he said.

"Actually, it was a lot of fun."

And he points with pride at a Waterford Township certificate of appreciation for his efforts.

Hours at Kennedy Optical are from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday.

What to do about cameras when traveling? It is best not to take too much fancy equipment unless one is an expert. If you do not own a camera, pick up an inexpensive, easy-to-operate model before departing. As for film, it is well to carry a good supply but the traveler does not need to be too concerned about running out. Familiar U.S. brands are stocked almost anywhere at prices comparable to those in the U.S. Most important, if the camera is of foreign manufacture, register it with U.S. Customs before boarding your plane for departure. This will insure that you will not have to pay duty on it when returning home. This applies to jewelry, watches and furs as well.

Cruising with the Crabtree family

The vintage '57 Chevy behind Joyce and Roger Crabtree of Snowapple Drive, Independence Township, was Roger's Christmas gift to Joyce this year. The couple keeps alive the tradition of cruising Woodward Avenue by piling their children in the car and heading out on a Saturday night.

Roger Crabtree gave his wife Joyce a vintage white '57 Chevy for Christmas.

On Valentine's Day, Joyce received a steering wheel for the car from her mate.

And she was wild about both gifts.

Restored Chevrolets from the '50's play a big part in the Crabtree family's social life. As founding members of the Oakland County Classic Chevrolet Club, they've met and befriended other fans of 1955, '56 and '57 Chevys.

Frequently they travel from their home on Snowapple Drive, Independence Township, to Frankenmuth, Greenfield Village and the Detroit Zoo with other club members.

"We're still cruising Woodward Avenue on Saturday night. Now, it's a little different. We take the kids along," Joyce said.

"It's not as cool as it once was," Roger joked.

Because the other club members have children, the Crabtree boys Danny, 4, and David, 8, relish the outings.

As for their daughter Heather, 6 -- "Well, she can take it or leave it. She likes to go to the zoo and on the picnic -- the fun things," Joyce said.

When Joyce and Roger married 13 years ago, "she really didn't like cars," Roger said. "Now I think she likes them as much, if not more, than I do."

"When we got married, he didn't have any clothes, but he had three suitcases of used car parts," Joyce said.

Roger's love affair with cars has been a continual thread throughout the years. He guessed that he'd rebuilt approximately 13 cars since their wedding day.

His present project is renovating another '57 Chevy, including the mechanical and body work.

Although Roger and Joyce had gone to Avondale High School in Auburn Heights, they didn't meet until a year after graduation.

Joyce said she reluctantly agreed to go on a blind date with Roger, the courtship ensued and they married.

Shortly thereafter, Roger enlisted in the service. He was transferred to Germany where Joyce joined him four months later.

Before moving to Independence Township a year and a half ago, the Crabtrees lived in Pontiac. The very day Joyce was fuming about their homes' plumbing problems, a real estate agent approached.

A neighbor had always admired their home from afar and was eager to buy, Joyce said.

When Roger and Joyce accepted the buyer's offer, the same resourceful real estate agent showed them their house on Snowapple.

"We looked at the house and decided it was just perfect," Roger said.

As soon as the Crabtrees moved, they began redecorating their home to suit their tastes. Roger added new cabinets to the kitchen and removed the paneling from the bedrooms.

Roger has also worked on the Crabtree yard to make it a nice place for the kids to play. The latest addition is an above-ground swimming pool which Roger installed during the hot weather in early June.

"I thought, 'Man, I can't wait to get it filled up.' Then it got cold. It doesn't bother the kids. They go in and splash around and come out with their teeth chattering," Roger said.

But Joyce is yet to jump in the pool.

"I want bathtub water," she said.

Because both Roger and Joyce hold full-time jobs, they share the child-rearing responsibilities.

When Joyce hustles off to her morning shift position as a data clerk at a Chrysler Corp. Troy office, Roger rides herd on the brood.

Joyce takes over when Roger works as a machine operator

The above-ground pool sitting in the Crabtrees' backyard provides fun for David, 8, wearing the baseball cap, Heather, 6, and Danny, who's sitting on the stepladder leading to the pool. Joyce and Roger are yet to plunge into the water.

afternoons in the General Motors Central Foundry, Pontiac.

The Crabtrees have found Clarkston to be an excellent place to raise their children.

"The kids are happy here," Joyce said. "You know, there's always so much going on around here, especially for the kids."

Beyond David's regular games with an Independence Parks and Recreation Department T-ball team, the kids are still young enough to build their world of fun in the neighborhood.

But Roger and Joyce have tried to introduce them to new experiences by enrolling them in the Drayton Plains Free Methodist Church's children's programs.

Asked which opportunities they would like to pass on to their children, Roger and Joyce agreed that education tops the list.

"I would like them to have their own choices," Roger said. "I want them to have a good education so they can choose in life." "And care about themselves and other people," Joyce added. "I don't care if I have an atomic scientist. I just want them to be happy." "Just working and making money -- there's more to life than that," Roger said. "If you don't enjoy life and you don't care about other people, then what is there to life?"

Peeking into the past

Things to do

Frolic through July by participating in Michigan festivals.

The mini-vacations can refresh the spirit and save money otherwise spent on activities that would mean driving a great distance from home.

The following list of celebrations are from the Automobile Club of Michigan:

Detroit is observing the 10th anniversary of Ethnic Festivals every weekend through Sept. 23.

Music, dancing, food and arts and crafts from most of the world's major countries are to be featured at the new riverfront Philip A. Hart Plaza.

Other Old Country festivities include the Alpenfest in Gaylord July 17-22 and a Venetian Festival in Charlevoix July 26-29.

Harvests from Michigan's orchards and fields are also reason to celebrate.

Traverse City's National Cherry Festival is July 8-14; the National Blueberry Festival in South Haven is July 18-22; and a potato festival is held in Munger July 26-29.

Nautical themes surround the Port Huron Blue Water Festival July 6-15; the Coast Guard Festival in Grand Haven July 29-Aug. 5; and showboat festivals in Chesaning July 9-14 and in Lowell July 23-28.

Among other festivals slated this month are Bay Country Days in Bay City July 19-21 and the Cheese Festival in Pinconning July 20-22.

Participate in one of two sessions of cheerleading at the 14th Annual Cheerleader Spirit Conference of Eastern Michigan University, July 15-19 and July 22-26.

The conference, open to junior high, high school and prospective cheerleaders, is to emphasize education and learning experiences.

The $71 on-campus registration fee includes instruction, housing and meals. It does not include insurance and participants must provide proof of health and accident coverage.

The commuter fee, $32, covers instruction only and students can purchase a lunch each day.

Advisors and sponsors are invited to attend at a cost of $48.50, which covers room and board.

A $15 deposit or full tuition is due with registration and the balance must be paid one week prior to the desired session.

For more information, or to register, contact Sandra E. Wright, director, Division of Continuing Education at Eastern at 487-0407.

Attend an all-you-can-eat salad lunch at the Seymour Lake United Methodist Church, corner of Sashabaw and Seymour Lake Road.

The lunch, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. July 13, will feature all types of main dish and dessert salads, rolls and beverages. The public is welcome.

A bake sale of homemade pastries and bread will also be held Friday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Again, the public is invited.

Help celebrate the grand opening of a farm zoo at Keatington Antique Village, 2335 Joslyn Court, Lake Orion and take your pet to the "Blessing of the Animals" at 1 p.m. July 15.

A Scottish Bagpipe Band, Sons of Scotia, from Lake Orion, will be on hand to escort Rev. John H. Albrecht of St. Mary's In-The-Hills episcopal Church, to the blessing, at the south end of the Zoo.

The church will also sponsor a family spaghetti dinner at the church the same day from noon to 5 p.m. and there will be an antique show at the village.

Explore the topic of meditation.

Illiana, publisher of monthly "New Age Teachings," is to be the guest of Balanced Life Center July 18 at the Citizens Bank community room, Holly Plaza, Grange Hall and Saginaw roads, Holly.

Persons interested in attending the natural food potluch at 6:30 p.m. and the meeting at 7:30 p.m. should call 634-4571.

Take time out to browse through the Antique Show and Sale at the Pontiac Mall, 315 N. Telegraph, Waterford Township, July 15-22.

The antique collection will include furniture, art, glass, rare books and turn-of-the-century dolls, with dealers on hand to appraise or repair antiques. Admission is free and appraisals are $1 per item, during mall hours, weekdays and Saturdays from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sundays from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The ultimate in steam cleaning is only a phone call away!

Note this bottom-side view of the Rug Doctor Vibra Brush method carpet cleaner in action.

- A. Hot water and cleaning solution jets into the carpet.
- B. Vibra Brush (like electric tooth brush) agitates carpet back and forth 3,400 times each minute. This breaks soil loose and polishes each carpet fiber to a clean, brilliant finish. This type of brush does not distort pile.
- C. Powerful suction extracts hot water and loosened soil back up to waste tank.

We are the only cleaner in the area that has the VIBRA-VAC METHOD.

Real Estate HAPPENINGS

by Bob & Marvel White

There are several considerations that should be made in computing the real cost of home ownership. A conscientious broker will assist in considering such fixed expenses as mortgage, insurance payments, taxes, and cost of utilities. But, another expense important to plan for involves the house itself. If the house is not air-conditioned, for example, and the family decides this is important, it will mean an expense. An extra telephone will show up as an extra charge on bill-paying day. Deciding to add to or change the landscaping may also involve extra costs. List desired changes and improvements, and their probable cost. Then figure them in to the cost of home ownership.

BOB WHITE REAL ESTATE, 5856 S. Main St., next to the Clarkston Post Office, as part of the community, has a vast amount of knowledge about values, local affairs and developments and services. Whether you are buying or selling, BOB WHITE REAL ESTATE is the real estate office that will successfully assist you. Our reputation for knowledge of the community brings prospective buyers and sellers to our doorsteps and we are able to conclude such transactions to the satisfaction of all parties concerned. Open 9a.m.-9p.m., til 6p.m. Fri. & Sat., 11-5 Sun., 625-5821.

Coping with kids

by Jim & Ellen Windell

Summertime's good time for learning

Learning and academic practice for children doesn't have to stop just because it is summer time.

While children, especially those with learning problems, often need vacation from the pressures of school, these same youngsters are the ones who so desperately need to rehearse their skills.

Children may shun a textbook or a workbook in the summer and on vacation, but they can still get in some reinforcement of reading, writing, and arithmetic.

However, parents may have to be creative and opportunistic to approach this in indirect ways.

Some ideas that some parents have used successfully during the summer are offered in this column.

Reading can be encouraged in several ways. A child can start a neighborhood or family newspaper.

The amount of reading which will be incidental to such an endeavor is enormous. It also means writing (or typing), copying, planning and collecting (and counting) money.

A newspaper can include various original pieces of writing and thought; for instance, poetry and interviews.

Letting a child be the family map-reader on a vacation can increase the child's confidence in reading, his or her use of directions and planning. It may also have the effect of increasing dad's trust and confidence, if he can be patient.

While riding in a car, train or plane on vacation, children can be prepared for leisure time activity through crossword puzzle books (appropriate to the child's age), comic books and travel books written for children.

A trip to the library prior to a vacation may turn up several books about the geographic area to be visited that will be interesting to children who are always eager to do advance planning about all the things they plan to do when they get to the vacation destination.

While on vacation, children are usually enthusiastic about picking out postcards to send back to grandma and grandpa and various other friends or relatives.

They can write these messages themselves even if they only can fit five or six words on the card because they write so large. This will be valued as precious by the receiver and provide good practice for the child.

During times on trips (like rainy days at the cottage) when there is nothing else to do, the whole family can play table games and card games that involve reading and math.

Crazy Eights, 500 Rummy and Pinochle are card games that require the use of numbers and counting.

If you are staying home and the children are looking for something new to do, they can be encouraged to gather the younger children in the neighborhood and have a story hour three times a week.

A child could be responsible for picking stories and reading them to younger children. This could be expanded to having a lending library if several older children lent some of their old children's books.

Finally, after the vacation, youngster may be interested in learning more about a place visited or something collected or observed on a trip.

After a vacation to the ocean, a child who collected a number of shells may want to get books from the library to identify all those pretty shells.

Tips on taking family pets vacationing

The summer months come and often take us on journeys near or far afield.

The question arises: What to do with the family pet?

When the suitcases come out at our house, there is a faithful retinue of dog and cat guarding so when each bag exits, they too can make a dash for their prepared spot in the car!

Our calico cat likes the back window, the Maltese the space between the seat and door on the floor, and the Afghans think they should have a whole seat to themselves.

We have found it enjoyable to travel with pets, and have found them to be on better behavior than at home—perhaps because of the added attention of being confined together.

We have been well-accepted in our travels.

There are a few things to remember for your convenience and the comfort of the dog as well as courtesy to the public in general.

Pack a sack of the animal's usual food as well as a bottle of usual water. Different-water can be upsetting.

I always take a towel for muddy feet, and a scoop and plastic bag to clean up and dispose of droppings. A toy and brush and leash should be included.

Remember to never leave your pet in a closed car in the summer. The heat inside can skyrocket in a matter of minutes and be fatal to the animal.

Always park in the shade and open windows a crack or more depending on the animal. Prepare to stop at rest areas and exercise the dog or cat and give them an opportunity to drink.

Motel chains that accept dogs, cats, and birds include Holiday Inns, always, and most Sheratons, Hiltons, Days Inns and Econo Lodges.

For more information about these and other hotels send $1 to Gaines, 250 North Street, White Plains, N.Y. 10625, for their booklet "Touring with Towser" which has travel tips and hotel listings.

Also, if you contact a local dog club, they will put you in touch with someone who travels for dog shows for further information.

Some states require veterinary Health certificates; you can check this with your vet.

To go in and out of Canada, you are required to have a certificate of Rabies vaccination under one year old.

A bird travels well but requires a cover over the cage if there is a draft in the car. You should have your own water supply to which the bird is accustomed.

People often don't think of travelling with a cat, and there are stories of cats escaping from cracks in windows and never being recovered.

I have found my cats just as amenable to travel as dogs and they have always stayed near us, our possessions, or our vehicle.

If your cat is on the wild side, you can purchase a carrier from a pet store and confine him for the trip. This is also safe for dogs.

If the cat complains at first, it will subside in a few minutes.

It is good to acquire the carrier a week or so before a trip, feed the animal in it, and close the animal in for short periods so he becomes a little accustomed to the new surroundings.

If you are flying, yes your pet can join you!

Some airlines allow a carrier on board with a pet if it will fit beneath the seat.

You must make a reservation to do this because only one pet per area is allowed (1st class and coach). You will need a health certificate.

Larger dogs do well in a carrier in the luggage compartment which is heat regulated and compressionized. You must reserve for this also.

Up until 1976, dogs were permitted in compartments on trains.

For some reason, in that year, man's best friend was denied those privileges, and many people who had selected train travel over any other mode were disappointed.

As the need for mass transit arises in our time of energy crisis, this should be an alternative!

It was wonderful to see people in Europe over Easter travelling with their well-behaved dogs and cats.

We deserve the same privilege!

Write to Allen Boyd, President, National Railroad Corp., 400 N. Capitol N.W., Washington, D.C. 20001, and so express!

The other alternative is a reputable, licensed boarding kennel with sensitive people recommended by your veterinarian.

In the meantime, Bon Voyage!

Pine Knobbing

Fun, fun, fun with Beach Boys

By Michelle Marzahl
For The Clarkston News

It was the Fourth of July, but the real celebration at Pine Knob last Wednesday night was the return of the Beach Boys.

The same loyal fans were back to hear the California sounds of surfing, blonds, cars, and being in love.

Memories brought back by "Be True to Your School," "Barbara Ann" and "California Girls" sparked the audience to dance and sing as well as swing sparklers to their favorite tunes.

Any Beach Boys song made the audience happy, but the excitement slowed down with songs from the latest Beach Boys release L.A. Light Album.

Audience participation and enthusiasm about the rock and roll of yesterday is what made the concert click.

The Beach Boys harmonies were intact and the songs were polished after years of performances, but one thing the Beach Boys lacked was energy.

The Wilson brothers and Al Jardine seemed a bit worn out and sluggish throughout the concert.

Lead singer Mike Love was the only one who showed energy as he dominated the show. He strutted across the stage, jumped on platforms, and extended his microphone into the audience.

Love tried to respond to the audience. He tried to talk to them and act out the songs they remember so well.

Bruce Johnston, keyboard player and producer of Light Album, was given a chance to display his talents as the Beach Boys left the stage and he sang

"I Write The Songs", his composition that was made popular by Barry Manilow.

Johnston's solo number was a nice addition to the concert as he personalized the words with "I write the songs that make the Michigan girls cry."

After an hour of playing, the Beach Boys ended their concert but the audience brought them back for an encore.

The Beach Boys had captivated their audience to have an evening that was "Fun, Fun, Fun."

Kids, my Dad's got a great special for you!

A CONSUMER TIP Manufacturer's prices printed on labels or packages are often used on cheap items to give the illusion of bargains. Widely advertised items will be featured at special prices way below list prices in many stores. These so-called list prices can be misleading. Don't let yourself be fooled. The only way to know whether you are getting a bargain or not is to shop around.

Not missing an opportunity to clown with the crowd are members of the Waterford Township Fire Department. Decorated vehicles ranging from bicycles to semi-trucks plus floats, drum majorettes and even a spoof marching band entertained spectators who lined Main and Church streets to enjoy the Clarkston Fourth of July parade.

July 4th fun

What better way for parade marshal Martha Wheeler to lead the parade than beside Independence Township Fire Chief Frank Ronk, who drives the 1925 Ford Model T fire truck.

Will the winners of the 1979 Clarkston Fourth of July parade please step forward? Cash prizes, given by Independence Township Fire Department who sponsored the event, await them.

Fire Chief Frank (Tink) Ronk knows that the Crafts and Cider float won the best overall float award.

He's also aware that the Sashabaw Valley Alternative Marching Band (SVAMP) was awarded the best walking unit prize.

And he realizes that the child pulling an infant in a gaily decorated wagon got the best kid prize.

But only Claude Trim, the strolling state representative whose float was named "Most Patriotic," has collected his cash.

Ronk suggested that the winners contact the fire department to reap the awards of good parading.

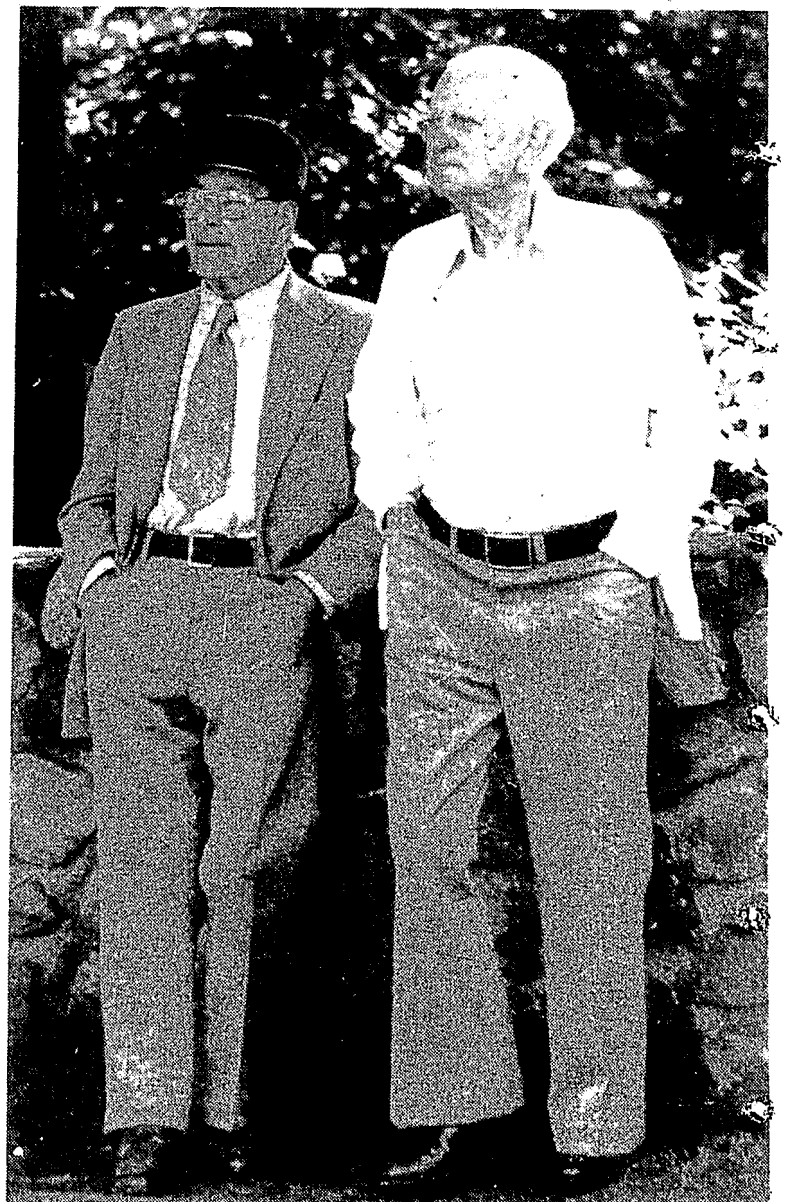

Among the members of the Sashabaw Valley Alternative Marching Band [SVAMB], which won the best marching unit prize, are drummer Dan Cote, Independence Township, and his daughter Gina, age 3.

Members of the Citizens Against High Rise Rezoning in Independence Township milled through the parade crowd passing petitions to parents and balloons to children. Following the parade, anti high-risers Henry Radcliff [left], Treasurer Ted Thompson, who chairs the Clarkston Planning Commission, and Sue Laearmont discuss the groups' aims with Betsy Travis.
