Cider and Crafts Festival draws crowds to scenic village park

The natural aura of the park adds to stained glass creations by David Alschbach of Oxford. Among those pausing to reflect the beauty of the intricate glass works are Manfred and Marilyn Haring of Cincinnati, Ohio. The couple is visiting Marilyn's parents in Ortonville. Works in wood, clay, yarn, fabric, metal, watercolors and photographs were among other offerings at the festival.

Proposal B

passed is their goal

By Kathy Greenfield

The anti-gravel-pit movement to purchase 80 acres owned by the Edward C. Levy Co. of Detroit now has a name--"The Gravel Isn't Green Group."

About 35 people gathered Sunday at Independence Township Hall at a meeting conducted by Treasurer Frederick Ritter to present his opinions and ask for volunteer time and money to work on getting approval for a millage request on the Oct. 16 ballot.

Voters in the township and the village will be asked on the ballot to approve higher taxes of .3 mill for five years to buy the property.

Three-tenths mill is 30 cents for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

If approved, the proposal would raise taxes by $6 a year for a home assessed at $20,000, or one-half market value.

"It's the concern of the township that if this gravel pit is mined, it will drastically affect the township park," Ritter said, referring to 40-acre Clintonwood Park that abuts the proposed 500-acre mining operation that would span 23 years in 12 phases.

The Clinton River Watershed that runs through the western portion of the property would not be mined within 200 feet of the stream, according to Levy plans.

Ritter said the operation could still have an impact on the Watershed, but that a water study would have to be done before the effects could be estimated.

"About one-half mile north (of the proposed gravel mining operation) is the absolute beginning of the Clinton River," he said.

Included in the $350,000 the .3 mill would raise, are interest and legal fees, Ritter said.

"I only proceeded on this after I got legal opinions," he said. "It's the township attorney's opinion that we can probably purchase the land for under $250,000."

The millage would be reduced if expenses were less than $350,000, he said.

Under the Michigan Land Trust Bill, between 200 and 300 acres surrounding the Clinton River Watershed are under consideration for purchase by the state.

Most of the land is within the proposed gravel mining operation.

After purchase, the property would be turned over to the county and become part of Independence Oaks county park.

The proposed state purchase is seventh on a list of about 150.

"What we're trying to do is push it up on the list--make it a priority so we can get in there before Levy," said State Rep. Calude Trim (D-Davisburg).

"If we can get in there before Levy does, it will help us tremendously," Trim said. "If the township would move to acquire that 80 acres, it would probably help us to move that up in priority."

"We feel if we do our part and the state does its part, then Levy will leave us," Ritter said.

Possible tree damage still concerns residents

Possible damage to trees along the course of a proposed Oakland County drain brought Hiwood Subdivision residents to their fifth Independence Township Board meeting last week. The legal description, provided by the county drain commission, was approved at the meeting.

Because the drain was approved on June 19 by the board, the move was only a formality, said Supervisor Whitey Tower. "A lot of damage may surface after a year—maybe more—and then where are we going to go?" asked Gail Meyers of Kingfisher Lane.

be returned, checks would be made by the county drain commission and the township, Tower said, but the residents would not be contacted.

Then Nancy Woodruff of Kingfisher Lane interrupted. "Could you just make a notation out of the goodness of your hearts to notify us before the money is returned?" she asked.

"I'd like that recorded in your notes," she added.

"Done," said Clerk Christopher Rose.

County changes mind on roads

The Oakland County Road Commission has changed its philosophy regarding a few roads in Independence Township.

Previously planned major Telegraph Road-style thoroughfares throughout the county in 1972 road plans have been scrapped.

Maybe, White Lake and Oakhill roads now have 120-foot rather than 204-foot rights-of-way.

"They will be major thoroughfares, but they will not be regional thoroughfares like Telegraph Road," said Tod Kilroy, township planning consultant. "That was what was originally visualized by the road commission, but they've changed their plans."

The Independence Township Board approved the changes proposed by the road commission at last week's board meeting.

Deletions of previously planned extensions of Shappie Road between Perry Lake and Sashabaw roads, Clarkston-Orion Road to the northeast, the attachment of Pelton and Pine Knob roads, and Davisburg and Hubbard roads were also approved by the township board.

The township planning commission had recommended leaving Clarkston-Orion, Pelton and Pine Knob road extensions on the map, but the township board disagreed.

The board voted 5-0 to go with the county road commission's recommendations.

"There will be no money returned until we're sure there's no damage," responded Tower. "It could be a year and one-half. It could be two years."

The four-foot wide underground drain system is to span the subdivision, commonly known as Birdland, located north of Maybee Road and east of Dixie Highway.

The drain is to be paid for by Winchester Real Estate, developers of Chestnut Hill Farms located east of Birdland.

A six-month bond, the amount to be determined by township director of public works George Anderson, was required by the board to cover any possible damage to trees and other plantings.

Conservation went back and forth between Tower and Birdland residents who asked for longer protection than six months.

Before the bond money could

Bikes get rack

Village ponders fine

The Clarkston village council has delayed action on a proposed amendment that would prohibit bicycle riding on many city sidewalks pending further study.

A 64 year old ordinance against the practice is still on the books, setting a maximum fine of $25 and a possible 10 day jail sentence for violators. Council is considering a modified and enforceable ordinance that would limit bike traffic and assure pedestrian safety in the wake of several citizen complaints.

"Many people, especially senior citizens, aren't walking as much as they used to for fear of being run down by bike riders," Council President Fontie Ap-Madoc said. In order to eliminate congestion caused by riders who park their bicycles on the sidewalk, a bike rack has been installed in Rudy's parking lot on the corner of Washington and Main.

State law requires bike riders to yield the right of way to pedestrians at all times.

Independent view

Pine Knob Music Theatre fans will be pleased (maybe) to know the "outdoor summer theater near Detroit" made "People" magazine this week.

It seems, according to the Chatter column, that Johnny Carson was a bit nervous about appearing before a live audience of 8,000, because his Burbank, Calif. studio seats a mere 500.

"Carson took comfort in what friends had observed after a peek out front: 'Half the audience is on grass,'" Chatter reports. Oh my!

The Clarkston School District administrators who negotiated the new three-year teacher contract have received praise from the only other people who know how they conducted themselves—those on the other side of the bargaining table.

In both attitudes and demeanor, the negotiators for the school board displayed a dignified, professional and calm manner, an anonymous teacher-negotiator said.

"The atmosphere was the best it's been for a long time," he said, emphasizing he was referred to the bargaining table conduct and not the school board's decision making.

***

The first item on which the two teacher-contract negotiating teams agreed, we've been told, was that there would be no smoking at the bargaining table.

This was mainly a concession by the Clarkston Education Association team since only one school administrator smokes.

***

Virginia Walter, who had just left office as chairperson of Clarkston Youth Assistance, got a good word and did a good deed at last week's Clarkston Board of Education meeting.

She attended the session to ask for a $1,000 contribution from the board for the organization which works in behalf of young people who may have had a run-in with school or legal authorities.

She reported that youngsters who have come in contact with the Youth Assistance social worker seldom repeat their offense. There is, she said, a low rate of recidivism.

The request for money went through without a hitch. School Board President Robert Walters, commented, "Anyone who can so easily pronounce 'recidivism' has to be trustworthy."

The arrival of Randy and Kathy Barnard's new baby sure caused a flurry of public relations activity.

First, The Clarkston News received a telephone call from one of Kathy's co-workers at Independence Township Hall where she has been in charge of the lunch program as the assistant senior citizen coordinator.

Then Kathy's Dallas Webber dropped by, sporting a bright yellow T-shirt emblazoned with proud Grandpa statements.

A letter also arrived:

I know the new grandparents (Webbers) real well. This is their first grandchild and I have never seen such proud people in all my life!" wrote Carol Latham.

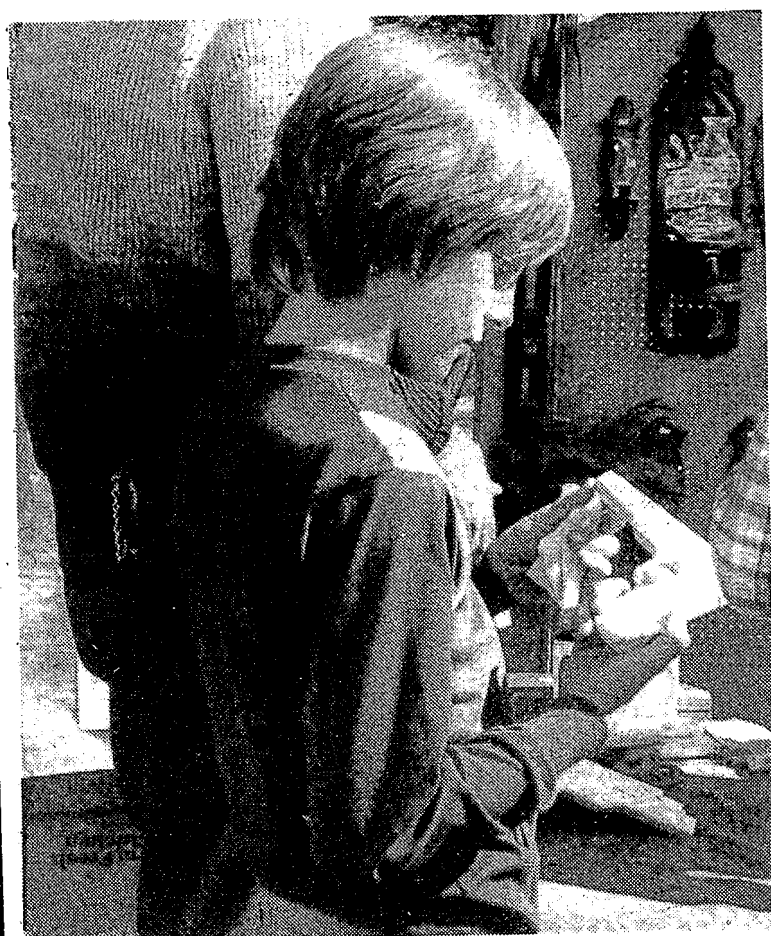

"I understand the baby is the prettiest thing anyone has ever seen," she continued.

That's quite a welcome for little Dallas Christine.

Her birth announcement is on the Millstream page in section two.

Brightly-colored sun catchers created by Springfield Township crafter Eilene Still were ideal for the bright sun-shiny Sunday, as this couple discovers.

Zippy pistols were hot sellers at the Crafts and Cider Festival. Waterford Township resident John Zuk pauses to examine the rubber band gun created by woodworker Frank DeMercy of Vassar.

Modified M-275 plan 'okay'

The Oakland County Road Commissioners plan for a "modified" M-275 freeway in western Oakland County met with the unanimous approval of Clarkston's village council Monday.

A resolution was adopted stressing the council's support of the modified proposal and continued strong opposition to any of the other three plans that would terminate in the vicinity of M-15 and create a "devastating traffic flow through the historic village."

"We have never doubted the need for a highway connecting I-75 and I-96 in western Oakland County," Council President Fontie ApModoc said, "but the Vivian, Rosman and Union Lake plans are clearly unacceptable to the village.

All three plans call for the expansion of the existing M-15 highway, with disastrous effects on downtown Clarkston and Main Street, according to Ap-Madoc.

Reactions from other communities have also been generally favorable to the modified plan. "The modified plan clears up some environmental problems with a few changes in Union Lake and Commerce Township," ApMadoc said. "It seems to be the best proposal for all the communities involved."

Taxes add up

Special assessments not paid by Independence Township property owners will be added to their December tax bills.

Permission to add the tardy taxes to the upcoming bills was granted to David Sherrill, director of the assessing department, by the township board last week.

Totals of delinquent taxes include $1,080 for Mill Pond clean-up, $150,160 for sewer assessments, $91 for water usage and $13,009 for sewer usage.

Carriage house to become senior center asset

Steps toward improving the carriage house behind the Independence Township senior center are underway.

The new senior center, located on Clarkston-Orion Road adjacent to Clintonwood Park, is small, with a sitting room, meeting room, kitchen and dining area, said Timothy Doyle, parks and recreation department director.

"It would be nice if we had a large, open room the size of the carriage house," he said. "If there was a large arts and crafts project or a dance, it would be nice to have it in that building."

To put in heating, add structural supports and dry wall, the cost would be about $25,000, Doyle said.

To add a green house and an arts and crafts area, the cost would increase by an additional $25,000, he said.

Basic drawings for both changes were made by Lawrence Institute of Technology students as a class project, and the next step is obtaining architectural drawings, he said.

Money for the project is available through previously set-aside funds from the Community Development Act and from revenue sharing, Doyle said.

"It's definitely an eyesore," said Trustee Jerry Powell about the carriage house. "We ought to tear it down or fix it up."

In a 5-0 vote, the board directed Doyle to contact Macuda and Associates of Pontiac for architectural drawings.

The architectural firm is also working on plans for the proposed township maintenance building on Flemings Lake Road.

Bands to meet, compete

More than 1,000 students, members of 12 high school marching bands, will compete in the second annual Clarkston Invitational Marching Band Contest Saturday, Sept. 29.

The contest, sponsored by the Clarkston Band Boosters, is to begin at 6 p.m. at the Clarkston High School athletic field.

Tickets are $3 for adults and $1.75 for students and senior citizens.

The appearance of 1978 CHS graduate Douglas Roosa as field commander of the Marching Broncos of Western Michigan University is a highlight of the evenings.

Roosa, who served as drum major for the CHS band from 1976-78, will lead the WMU band in an exhibition.

The CHS band will also appear in exhibition.

Competing high school bands are to include: Saginaw Carrollton, Tecumseh, St. Charles, Caro, Bentley, Montrose, Royal Oak Dondero, Flint Powers, Durand, Plymouth Centennial Park, Flint Northern and Flushing.

Class A, Class B and Open class competitions are planned.

Special awards for best color guard, best drum major, best percussion, best marching and maneuvering and best wind section will be awarded as well as first, second and third place trophies in all classes.

An overall champion trophy will be awarded to the highest scoring band, regardless of class.

Letters to the editor

Pine Knob group's actions criticized

To the Editor:

The Clarkston Community Historical Society's Fifth Annual Crafts & Cider Festival was held last weekend.

It is our major event and fund-raiser of the year, and has always been held in a spirit of community goodwill.

This year several groups inquired about participating in the Festival.

One group opposes the proposed gravel mining operation, one group is the Committee Against High Rise Zoning in Independence Township, one group represents those supporting Pine Knob.

Our policy has always been to not use the festival as a forum for political activity. We explained our policy to each group, and requested that they not appear at the festival.

Despite this, the group supporting Pine Knob showed up. They had been given permission by Keith Hallman, marketing consultant for Clarkston Mills, to use the parking lot directly across Depot Road to set up their trailer.

Not only were they present, they were giving away free cider!

The selling of cider and donuts during the Crafts and Cider Festival raises the major portion of our funds for the year.

The money we make selling cider by the glass is spent on Township projects. We have bought books, periodicals, and other materials for the Independence Township Library.

We are researching the records of all Independence Township cemeteries.

We are involved in a project to microfilm old Independence Township records.

We have been working with Independence center since May, and recently donated $500 to the center to preserve and paint the building it occupies.

The president of the historical society, Jennifer Radcliff, made this clear to Irene McCabe, leader of the group, and requested that they stop giving away free cider. They refused, and continued to give away cider the entire weekend.

In the past we have limited our involvement to one single letter, sent to the Township Board, which declared our opposition to any height variance to the zoning ordinance.

Now we have experienced first-hand the callous disregard this group has for the citizens of Independence Township, and the civic pride we value in our service organizations.

These people place Pine Knob and their own profits above the welfare and concerns of the rest of us.

We believe that the construction of any hotel by such a group will not prove to be beneficial to the people who live, work, and do business in Independence Township.

The Board of the Clarkston Community Historical Society.

Here's Herb

Chatter or ladder

By Herb Rose

After running on conventional behavior patterns for twenty-seven years of married life, my wife went into a totally new mode by becoming a fulltime student driving toward her masters degree in library science.

The impact on me of her involvement in this program became blindingly clear the other day when I was painting a second story surface on my energy-absorbing house.

I decided I had been standing on the ladder too long when I noticed my arches were up to my knees, my muscles hurt, my bones hurt and I think my fat hurt. It was time to take a break so I wearily unhooked my feet from the ladder and went in the house.

Going inside proved to be a colossal mistake. I expected a certain amount of sympathy and consolation.

After all, wives have been comforting husbands ever since

Umac came back to the big cave after an indifferently successful dinosaur hunt.

Instead of being given supportive reassurances, I received a 12-minute lecture on "the reference function in the library of today."

Actually, the lecture was probably somewhat longer and I had the uneasy feeling that I should be taking notes in case there was a pop quiz next period.

However, after 12 minutes, I had all the resting I could take so I crawled back up the ladder.

Fortunately, Anne doesn't like to climb a ladder so she could only stand on the first rung with one up-raised finger and say, "And another point that Katz makes is..."

My options are clear, I can resign myself to be inundated in a torrent of library expertise or I can spend the next two years on top of a ladder. Hobson's choice.

Fontie answers Ruth

Dear Ruth,

I am sorry I started this debate in the paper, but I was upset, very upset, and now you have put me in the position of defending myself.

We did not receive our Michigan Municipal Review until sometime between Aug. 27th (our last meeting in Aug.) and Sept. 10 (our first meeting in Sept.). Unfortunately, the M.M.L. convention started Sept. 13th. I came prepared to discuss three issues that I thought particularly pertained to the village:

Policy No. 3—state and local fiscal relations.

Policy No. 11—State revenue sharing.

Policy No. 8—Land use and planning control.

As far as the resolutions were concerned, I thought we should all glance through them and discuss the ones that we thought were of the most importance to us.

The one point I want to bring out: you and I attended the M.M.L. Convention in 1977 (I was very green to the whole procedure). You were our delegate and I was the alternate. You went to vote on issues and I went to attend the workshops.

I did not realize at that time that the policies and resolutions were to be discussed ahead of time. Naive me thought the council left it up to you as to how you should vote.

I do not know if you voted or not, but I do know that we had no guidance from the council.

Ruth, I am sorry I started this and this is the last letter I will write on this subject.

Sincerely,
Fontie

Jim's jottings

Is Blue Cross truly non-profit?

by Jim Sherman

I pay $127.83 a month for Blue Cross Insurance.

That's quite a bit.

In a year I've paid $1,533.96. That is I would if the billing remained constant, which it doesn't. It's gone up twice in the 12 months.

How much do you pay for Blue Cross insurance? Perhaps you don't pay any attention because it's deducted from your pay. Or, to put it another way, the company pays for it.

However, if that portion of your salary didn't go for insurance, there's a good possibility you'd have more for beans.

We point this out to stimulate your thinking about the Blues recent loan to Chrysler Corporation.

BS/BC has loaned the troubled carmaker 50 MILLION DOLLARS in an unsecured loan.

My first question is, how can a non-profit company come up with 50 MILLION DOLLARS to loan any one?

Then, if BS/BC has 50 MILLION DOLLARS to loan for a high risk company, with nothing for security, how much must they have stashed away in the first place?

Take yourself. Suppose an acquaintance has a history of being down on his luck. He asks for a hundred dollars, because with that and what other friends are giving him he might be able to put it altogether and come out on top in his economic scrap for life.

How much money would you have to have in the bank to loan this person $100?

For myself, I can't imagine. I haven't had that much up to now.

Yet, BS/BC has enough surplus of our money to loan (maybe give) 50 MILLION DOLLARS.

Stories have been printed of this non-profit company seeking to hide their books from public scrutiny, and we can see why.

With 50 MILLION DOLLARS to risk, we suggest they, or the state group that governs them, are paying no attention to the non-profit rating anyway.

The Blues obviously have considerable profit. They also, obviously, like to take risks, while insuring us because we don't.

The same stories tell of the insurance writers wanting to become private... of wanting to drop their non-profit status.

Rare individual receives tribute

1932 olympic contender hasn't stopped fighting

By Kathy Greenfield

Heroes are rare these days.

But 30-year Independence Township resident Frank Crowley's friends carry the kind of admiration that belongs to heroes.

Some 300 people gathered Sunday at a benefit sponsored by the Waterford Lions Club to pay tribute and to help Crowley, 70, in his bout with cancer.

A 1932 Olympic contender in the 1500-meter race, Crowley has been confined to a wheelchair since the early 1960's. In 1954, he was elected to the State House of Representatives where he served one term.

Crowley then became manager of the Birmingham Secretary of State's Office.

About a year ago, he continued working at an office job in Lansing, where he drove daily until stricken with cancer a few months ago.

Detroit Free Press sports writer Jack Saylor has known Crowley about 30 years.

They met shortly after Crowley moved to Independence Township while working as a beer distributor. Saylor was assigned to do a story on the former Olympic runner.

Both golf fans, the writer and the runner met on the greens until a spinal problem resulted in wheelchair confinement for Crowley.

"I never saw anybody with such indomitable spirit," Saylor said. "It would have been so easy to fold it up when he went into the wheelchair.

"He just more or less said, 'Let's get on with it.'"

Jim Schell, manager of the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club where the benefit was held, has known Crowley about 25 years.

Schell was Crowley's campaign manager when he ran for office in 1964.

"He was the first to introduce the beginnings of barrier-free design," Schell said.

Fond memories surround their friendship.

"His personality glows," Schell said. "He's the typical, happy Irishman who is proud of his heritage—just happy-go-lucky, a lovable cuss."

Bob Ranzilla, owner of Lakeland Hardware, Waterford Township, met Crowley 16 years ago.

"He's a real inspiration. There's an all-American guy," Ranzilla said.

"A great athlete, officer in the Army, on the Olympic team, the legislature, secretary of state...He's kind of lived it all.

"The guy's an inspiration to me, always has been," Ranzilla said.

And so, Crowley's friends gathered Sunday to repay some of the time, energy and fun he has given others.

They say he deserves more than they could ever return.

Sometimes laughs blow up in your face, and what was funny yesterday isn't funny today. This can be a problem for smart-aleck columnists who write today for reading tomorrow. In the dark of overnight lousy things can happen to screw up the chuckles.

I wanted to write something about Sophia and Dickie, two dogs belonging to Christina Ford, estranged wife of Henry Ford Number Two. I thought it might be amusing to compare Sophia and Dickie to Albumen, who was a cat, and Hey You, who was a dog.

According to a newspaper article, Christina named Sophia the dog after her good friend Sophia Loren, the actress. Christina and Sophia the actress didn't mind that a Labrador retriever was named after her. In fact, Sophia the actress is expected to visit her namesake in Grosse Pointe sometimes this autumn. That's class.

Albumen was named after an egg my son was eating when his mother asked what to call the cat she opted from a neighborhood garbage can. That's not class.

The newspaper described Christina as "emoting with wide, gray green eyes and delicately pushing her long streaked blond hair away from her face" as she said: "Dogs don't betray you. They're faithful. This love is genuine. Their feelings for you are real".

That's heavy stuff coming from the estranged wife of a famous man who is often seen in the company of another woman. People who read between the lines might suspect that if Christina ever has another husband, he will wear a leash.

I asked my wife why she brought Albumen home. Pushing her hair curlers away from her wide pink ears, she said, "No home is complete without a lovely cat to live in the basement to be loved and cherished."

Reading between the lines. I suspected we had mice in the basement.

Albumen was like every other cat I ever met. Her love wasn't genuine, her feelings weren't real, she wasn't faithful, and she'd betray her mother for a dollop of cat food. I have always found cats to be sneaky and aloof. When it comes to cats, it is easier for me to establish a close personal relationship with the white of an egg.

My experiences as a dog owner haven't been much better. Hey You, for example, was a huge, dumb collie who moved into our home unnamed but was quickly christened Hey You because that's how every message yelled at him began:

"Hey You, get off that stove," Hey You, quit biting my nose." "Hey You, don't tip over the garbage man until he gets out of his truck."

There was also: "Hey You, quit chasing cars." He didn't quit, and he was killed by a Chevrolet. The only way to get the kids to stop crying was to bring home a new puppy who was named Hey You Too. He also grew up to be a stupid, useless dog who tipped over garbage men.

I've often wondered why our family had such bad luck with pets. After reading about Christina Ford and her dogs, I think the trouble was caused by the unclassy names we gave our cats and dogs. After all, why should a cat named after the worst part of a fried egg feel genuine love for the person who ate the egg? Why should a dog be faithful to anyone who calls him Hey You?

On the other hand, a dog named after Sophia Loren would have more pride than to mess around with strange garbage men.

Christina Ford's second Labrador retriever, Dickie, is named after another of her good friends. Dickie the dog is female. Dickie the friend was a man named Louis. Cute? Should we laugh?

Now on the morning after the dark night.

Louis' nickname was Dickie, and his surname was Mountbatten. Irish terrorists killed Lord Mountbatten with a bomb on the day before I was going to write how daring it was for Christina to name her dog after her friend Dickie, Britain's most famous lord.

Sometimes laughs blow up in your face. This blow-up started me into renewed appreciation of how intelligence separates animals from the people who give them silly names. The animals are so dumb they don't know how to kill each other with bombs.

Festival art draws attention

During the three-day festival's final hours, Gordon and Jo Sparks of Troy were at the center of a crowd exploring works of potter I.B. Remsen of Ann Arbor. Visitors packed the Clarkston Village Depot Road park to sample cider, donuts and honey and view the artistry of craftspeople from around the state at the event sponsored by the Clarkston Community Historical Society.

More Letters to the editor

High-rise better than black top and malls

To the editor:

As property owners in Independence Township for 25 years, we would like to express our opinion and encourage those who have pondered the question of the high rise hotel at Pine Knob to consider this.

We have noticed more and more the spread of offices, shopping centers and parking lots. Is it better that our land be consumed by sprawling shopping malls and black top?

Are we going THAT way?

We would rather see a few buildings than the continuous loss of our land.

In the name of progress in our community, which is inevitable, let us look at where the best possible locations for a structure such as this. In the middle of the Pine Knob complex is the ideal place for it.

We have had many lovely homes built in our area, which is no more than right, and we have the village which will and must remain a historical site.

In this county we are fortunate to have the Silverdome, Meadowbrook, Pine Knob, many parks and more. The heart of winter and summer entertainment.

As retirees the proximity of these places is important to us.

Other pluses which will help us are reduction in taxes and employment for people of our community.

Seniors say thanks

Dear Editor:

Starting with the Glennie Township Board in 1975 and continuing with the succeeding two Whitey Tower Township Boards, a small band of community senior citizens of Independence Township and surrounding areas have persisted on establishing a senior citizens center in this township.

It is going to be officially opened on Oct. 27, 1979.

Starting with a $10,000 allocation of revenue sharing funds in 1975, succeeding township boards have seen fit to add slices of CDA and revenue sharing funds to the initial seed money to help bring this venture to fruition.

Now the center is not the ultimate in senior citizens centers, but we consider it the first building block for future senior citizens to build on.

So, township and area senior citizens, we urge you to come out of the woodwork and join us. We know that there are well over 1,000 of you out there and we need your help and advice so that we, as seniors, will be a positive force in the township and area.

Thank you, citizens of Independence Township.

We consider this center as a gift from you, for our use. Hope we can be worthy of it.

S.S.,

Independence Township.

Dermatologist starts practice

Dermatologist Richard Schwartz is working out of a temporary office at the Clarkston Professional Building, 5885 M-15, Independence Township, while waiting for his permanent office space to open in the same building. Schwartz completed his residency in dermatology at Wayne State University in June. A graduate of the WSU medical school, he specializes in internal medicine and worked in an emergency room in Scottsdale, Ariz., before deciding to return and concentrate his studies on diseases of the skin. He performs minor surgery and treats any type of rash or cosmetic problem. Although he had planned to return to Arizona, his wife Jane wanted to stay in the area, Schwartz said. "In my wanderings, I came across [Clarkston pediatrician] Dr. James O'Neill and he sold me on the place," he said.

The Wolves attempt a running play here in the first half of their 30-6 loss to Bloomfield Hills Andover Friday. Clarkston had little success on the ground against the Barons, gaining only 80 yards.

Sports

Clarkston's Ron Thompson [no. 66] and Dennis Hughes [no. 43] discuss possible strategies early in the game.

Clarkston quarterback Nick Lekas finds himself a little rushed to find a receiver as a result of defensive pursuit by Andover.

Wolves lose again

By Al Zawacky

It wasn't a pretty sight at Clarkston High School's football field during the Wolves' home opener Friday night—but at least the visiting Andover Barons were quick and merciful.

Almost too quick, in fact. Baron quarterback Mark Vestevich romped 53 yards into the endzone one minute into the game, and before many of the Wolves had even settled into their seats the Wolves were on the short end of a 7-0 score. Another first quarter Andover TD followed shortly, and the Barons were well on their way to a 30-6 victory.

"I really thought we were ready to play tonight," said a disappointed coach Walt Wyniemko in the gloomy Clarkston locker room afterwards.

"A 53-yard run on the second play of the game, and then that long pass in the second quarter (A 41-yard bomb from Vestevich to Barry Tornow, setting the stage for the third Baron TD)—the big play has been killing us all year."

Following Andover's second touchdown, scored on a 10-yard run by Vestevich, the Wolves appeared ready to make a football game out of the contest, scoring on a drive from their own 34.

Brent Davise, Kevin Krause and Joe Partlo made tough receptions on three passes from quarterback Nick Lekas to keep the drive going. Lekas himself scored the TD on a keeper from the one yard line.

Clarkston's attempted two point conversion play was unsuccessful, and before the half could end Vestevich completed two passes of 41 and 8 yards for another Baron touchdown.

Ron Breaugh's kick for the extra point was good, and the Barons led at the half, 21-6.

Andover picked up an additional two points in the third quarter on a safety and added their final touchdown before the quarter ended on a 2 yard run by George Henney.

Statistically, Andover had 295 yards rushing to the Wolves 80 and 75 yards passing to Clarkston's 80. Jim Farnsworth, for the third week in a row, was the Wolves leading ground gainer.

Clarkston will host the winless Falcons of Rochester this Friday in another GOAL battle. Game time is 8 p.m.

Player of the week

Kurt Norman

It isn't easy to pick a player of the week these days.

In fact, it would have been next to impossible following Clarkston's 30-6 drubbing at the hands of Andover if it hadn't been for the Wolves number 53, Kurt Norman.

Norman, a 6-foot, 185-pounder was a standout on the Clarkston defense, figuring in 14 tackles against Baron ball carriers

Mike Ogans and Ron Thompson also turned in blue-chip performances on defense for the Wolves.

Harriers must rebuild

First-year coach Mike Kaul says that 1979 will be a "re-building" year for the Clarkston High School Cross Country program.

"We've got the smallest team we've ever had here and only two seniors," Kaul noted as his squad ran in preparation for their next meet. "What seems to happen is that kids get involved as sophomores, but lose interest and drop out by the time they're seniors."

"Our goal will be to retain our underclassmen next year as well as recruit more members."

The Wolves are currently 1-5 on the year, posting their lone victory against Lapeer West. "Two of our losses have been very close," Kaul noted. "The kids are putting forth a good effort—that's the important thing."

Girls pick opportune time for first win

By Al Zawacky

The Clarkston varsity girls' basketball team may have taken a while to post their first victory of the season—but they couldn't have picked a better time to do it.

Losing a rescheduled game against Rochester Adams 53-31 early in the week, the Wolves played their first league contest two days later against Andover and pulled out a 38-35 win—leaving them with a 1-0 record in the GOAL.

"The fact that it was a league game made the victory especially nice," coach Dave McDonald noted later. "Andover was rated as one of the better teams in the league—we're improving all the time."

"We're a very young team," McDonald continued, "and we're still concentrating on the basics. We're running a simple man-to-man defense, and it worked against Andover."

Individual scoring leaders for the Wolves in the Rochester contest were Lisa Forsyth with 12 points, Tracey Antos with 6 and Lanette Whitehead with 5. Against Andover Antos had 14 points and Forsyth posted 11 while grabbing 13 rebounds.

The Wolves, at 1-0 in the league and 1-3 overall, will play a road contest Tuesday against Waterford Mott.

JVs win second straight

Mike Stefanski scored one touchdown on a one-yard quarterback sneak and passes for two more in leading the Clarkston JV football team to their second straight victory, an 18-0 shutout over Rochester.

Duane Cahill caught both Stefanski TD passes of 10 and 11 yards while teammate Tim Brennan had an outstanding game on the ground, rushing for 103 yards in 16 carries. Bruce Burwitz and Mike Westwater intercepted two Falcon passes right at the goal line late in the game to preserve the Wolves' shutout.

"We're getting better all the time," said a satisfied JV coach

Gordie Richardson later. "I was particularly pleased to see our defense rise to the occasion late in the game—we were going with our second string defense by then."

The Wolves will see their next action in Bloomfield Hills Thursday at 7 p.m. against Andover.

I've never considered myself to be much of a boxing fan. In fact, when I was assigned to cover the "toughman" contest at the Silverdome, my immediate reaction was hardly one of enthusiasm. From what I had heard of it, the contest sounded like some sort of circus sideshow, boxing's answer to the farcical "championship wrestling" programs appearing on low-budget UHF stations for the benefit of chronic insomniacs.

You know the type—two overweight, gravely-voiced buffoons stand and hurl expletives at each other in their pregame interview, jump in the ring, commit several feigned acts of violence on each others person (any of which, if actually carried out, would probably result in instantaneous death) and then, to the hoots of the puerile crowd, the pre-selected winner emerges victorious.

That's what I expected in Pontiac. What kind of quality boxing could one expect from bar bouncers, brawlers, truck drivers and lumberjacks, anyway?

I was in for an education.

I got my first lesson at the Silverdome three Sundays ago, watching the Lions play the Redskins as the guest of Art Dore, the fight's organizer and promoter. Like any proper occupant of one of the stadium's executive suites these days, I spent my time eating, drinking, conversing—anything to avoid watching the woebegone cons. "The toughman contest is boxing the way it used to be," Dore began as I opened up my notebook. "Two guys go in the ring and duke it out with pride and money on the line—the action is non-stop. The professionals nowadays, they know they're getting paid no matter what happens. Why box when you can take a nose dive and get paid a million dollars for it? A lot of the fights are just plain boring."

No argument there.

"I know for a fact that nobody is going to go home disappointed with a lack of action in the toughman bouts—they're going to see some good, hard, exciting boxing. Hey, some of these guys have come from California, Texas, western Canada, traveling thousands of miles at their own expense to compete. Nobody's going to come that far to take a dive."

I was beginning to gain interest.

"We use standard Queensberry rules and professional referees. It's not some kind of freak show, it's good old time boxing and the spectators get all the action they like to see."

Noting that this was not the first toughman contest that Dore had staged, I inquired as to the success of the previous bouts.

"We've held them in Flint, Bay City and Marquette," Dore responded, "and were we to return to any of the three, we wouldn't be able to find an arena big enough for the number of tickets we could sell."

I was sold. The Wolves home opener with Andover prevented me from attending the preliminary rounds Friday night, but I was in the audience for the finals on Saturday, not really knowing what to expect.

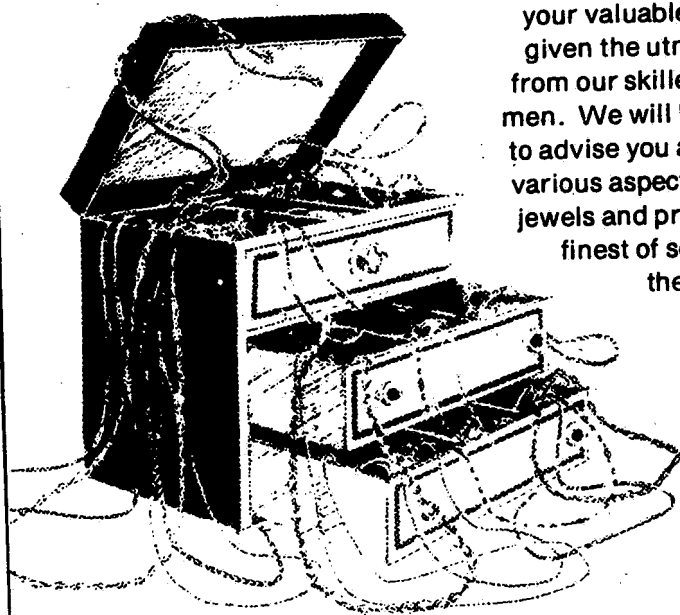

Jim Berden, our local contestant, had failed to show up for Friday night's action, but I didn't see that as cause for me to lose interest. And I didn't. The matches were exciting, hard-fought, occasionally bloody and definitely entertaining. Roosevelt McKinley, a 6-foot-2, 215 pounder from Ypsilanti, took the $50,000 first prize.

The only thing that tainted the spectacle was the behavior of the crowd. Beer, food, programs and fists were flying in several areas of the 9,000-plus crowd, keeping the Silverdome's security force busy much of the night.

I wonder how many people in the crowd thought the same thing I did as the police broke up these juvenile delinquents: If these turkeys are so tough, why aren't they in the ring?

Hmmmm. Then again, it's a little tough to throw beer with boxing gloves on.

Prospects still good for moto-cross track

Independence Township's proposed moto-cross race track may not become a reality this year as was first hoped, but parks and recreation director Timothy Doyle considers its eventual construction to be "just a matter of time".

We were given approval by the township board to go ahead, but were told to stay within our original budget," Doyle explained. "The key is to come up with the funds--there are several families in the community interested in the project."

A couple of ball fields and a soccer field will be built nearby the proposed bicycle moto-cross course if there is enough money in his budget, said Timothy Doyle, parks and recreation department director.

Doyle asked the township board for approval to add the fields to the 23-acre Flemings

Lake Road site north of I-75 when, and if, the moto-cross track is built this year.

Cost of a legitimate race track has been estimated at $3,500, and Doyle sees one opportunity to obtain the needed funds when the township receives its portion of federal revenue sharing money this fall.

"Generally, the money becomes available in October or November, but the hearings held to decide how it will be spent usually come after the first of the year," Doyle said.

That fact combined with the expected short arrival of winter weather tend to diminish the prospects for any sort of track being completed before the end of the year, Doyle said.

"But we've by no means given up," he concluded. "Again, I'd have to say that the track's construction is just a matter of time."

Junior high roundup

The Clarkston Junior High Wolverines bounced back from a disappointing 6-0 loss to Rochester Vanhoosen two weeks ago to post a 14-12 victory at Rochester West Wednesday.

Richie Schrader scored both CJH touchdowns, one on a 16 yard run and the other on a passing play from quarterback Rick Carter good for 20 yards.

Mike Wyler, who led the Wolverines with seven tackles, set the stage for the second TD by intercepting a Rochester pass and returning it 35 yards to the 20.

Bruce Dale crossed the goal line for the two-point conversion following CJH's first six-pointer, providing the Wolverines with what proved to be the winning margin.

Currently 2-1 on the year, CJH will be off this week but will resume action at Rochester Reuther Oct. 3. Game time is 4:15 p.m.

***
The word out of Clarkston Junior High is that it'll take quite a bit to keep defensive linebacker Bill Turk out of the Wolverine lineup--more than a case of appendicitis, that much is certain.

Playing his first game since having his appendix removed four weeks ago, Turk turned in a solid performance against Rochester West, recovering a fumble and intercepting a pass in Clarkston's 14-12 victory.

***
Sashabaw football coach Chris Kruger saw several causes for optimism following his squad's first victory of the season last week, a 26-16 win over Rochester Reuther.

"I think we're finally starting to put it all together," the coach said afterwards. "We were hitting people and our offense finally started moving the ball."

Sashabaw quarterback Mike Dearborn was a big factor behind the offensive improvement, tossing two touchdown passes of 65 and 35 yards to teammate Kevin Brown and another good for 11 yards and six points to Tom Williams.

Brian Davies scored the other Cougar TD on a three-yard run as well as picking off a pass from center Will Williams on a broken but successful play for the two point conversion.

Defensively, Kruger praised the work of Larry Liggett, Kirk Charboneau, Mike Clem, George Diehl, Chris Warden, John Laporte and Shawn Moselle.

The Cougar's next game will be a road contest against Lakeland this Wednesday, game time 4 p.m.

Conservatory marks 20th year

Historic building housed 1800s harness shop

Besides the sounds a pedestrian may hear, the only other indication that the little old red house at 49 S. Main is a school of music in this sign near its picket fence. Horatio Foster had operated a harness shop in the building before his death in 1851.

John Williams, piano teacher at the Clarkston Conservatory of Music for a decade, is one of the musicians who makes regular use of the school's Steinway.

Denis Moffat's last concert in Clarkston, in 1966, was an occasion for much rejoicing, recalls Ivan Rouse, Clarkston Conservatory of Music director making plans for Moffat's visit and concert this weekend.

Moffat, an instructor at the University of Chicago, had just returned from studies in Paris as a Fulbright scholar when he played to an audience of some 500 persons in the Clarkston High School auditorium 13 years ago.

Six encores were required of him, Rouse said. The conservatory director also remembers the gift of gratitude the local music institution received for arranging Moffat's concert.

"A lady from Grosse Pointe called the next day and said she was so moved she gave us a Steinway," Rouse recalls.

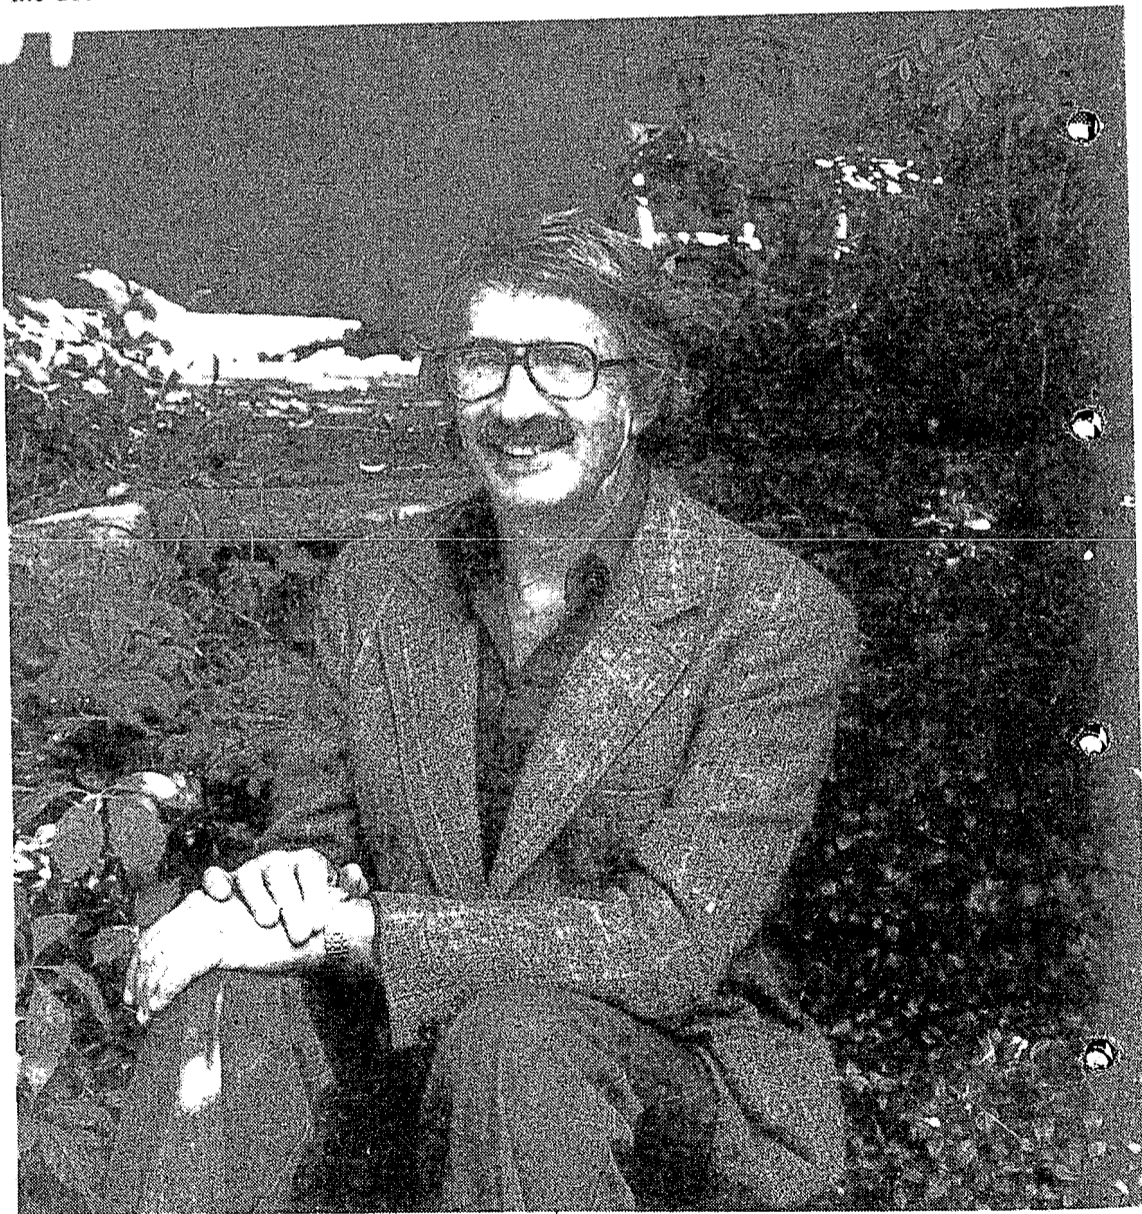

The grand piano occupies a place of honor at the conservatory, which is celebrating its 20th anniversary with Moffat's concert.

The performance is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. Sunday at Colombiere Center. Moffat will play works by Beethoven, Greig, Debussy and Chopin and one of his own, a medley of Swedish folk songs.

Tickets are $4 for adults and $2 for students. They're available at the conservatory or at the door.

Pianist Denis Moffat returns Sunday to the community which has given him warm welcomes and on which he indirectly bestowed a Steinway.

Now planning the 20th anniversary concert of the institution he founded, Clarkston Conservatory of Music director Ivan Rouse returned to his hometown two decades ago after studying piano and performing in the United States and abroad. An ambience of serenity pervades both the studios and the garden at the conservatory—and it's one Rouse has endeavored to maintain. "I'm concerned that that kind of atmosphere is present when instruction is going on," Rouse said.

To promote home improvements

CDA employee sought

The search is on for a Community Development (CD) employee to promote house improvements in Independence Township and Clarkston.

"They (the Oakland County CD office) stimulate activity, because they have the money down there," said Clerk Christopher Rose. "In December '77, we sent out a letter to everyone in the township and we only got two responses."

The program is designed to provide home improvement grants or low-interest loans for low-income residents.

The CD employee would be hired and trained by the Oakland County CD office and all payroll, fringe benefits and expenses would be paid by the county.

"We don't know whether or not the (need) is there unless we promote it," said Treasurer Frederick Ritter. "If he fails, then we won't be out any money, because it will be paid for by the county."

"It may entail him going door-to-door," he said.

Creation of the rehabilitation technician position was approved in a 5-0 vote.

The CD worker's tentative schedule would be to work four-and-one-half days in the township and one-half day in the village each week, Ritter said.

Clinic gets moral, not financial support

No cash, but a letter of support for the recently opened Consortium of Human Development in Independence Township, has been granted by the township board.

The non-profit mental health clinic that offers alcohol and drug abuse counseling as well as adult, youth and family counseling opened in June at 5645 Sashabaw Road.

Fred Baumann, director of the new site, presented the request for $1,000 a month.

Of the 32 clients at the clinic over the past three months, eight were township residents, he said.

Local government support is needed to receive state funding for the clinic, he said.

"I'm willing to accept a letter of support from the board so we can bypass this first budget struggle with the state," he said.

"Without having some kind of track record other than just what's reported tonight, I surely couldn't support $1,000 a month," said Supervisor Whitey Tower.

Although new in Independence Township, the program has been in effect 10 years, Baumann said.

The city of Troy supported the clinic with $14,000 its first year of operation and doubled the amount the second year, he said.

"I think it's important that we indicate some sort of support," said Clerk Christopher Rose. "It's something our community should have."

"I think we should look at next year, possibly coming up with $1,000 a month or more," Rose added.

In a 5-0 vote, the board approved writing a letter of support and agreed to consider financial assistance for the clinic in 1980.

Delinquency cure?

By Al Zawacky

Juvenile delinquency is a problem which cuts across all social boundaries, be they ethnic or economic.

It appears in virtually every neighborhood from the deepest parts of the inner city to the most affluent sections of the suburbs.

Even the Clarkston area, remote as it is from what is sometimes viewed as an urban problem, is not immune, and to assure that the battle with delinquency will never be a losing one, the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee was formed.

Operating under the auspices and sponsorship of the juvenile division of the Oakland County Probate Court since May of 1961, the all-Volunteer committee consists of citizens dedicating much of their time and talents to the organization's proclaimed goal of "delinquency prevention through community involvement."

"Prevention" is a keyword in the committee's activities, as was apparent at the group's annual meeting last week at the Episcopal Church of the Resurrection.

"Our goal is to keep the youngsters out of the juvenile justice system in the first place," Kay Karla, of the parent Oakland County organization said in speaking to the assembled sponsors and volunteers.

"Countywide, including Clarkston, we've serviced 23,000 people this last year through parent education, our donkey basketball game, the summer camp program and other community services," she said.

One new program is called PLUS—People Listening, Understanding, and Sharing.

Through this program volunteers assume a one-on-one big brother/big sister relationship with a youngster brought to the attention of the group's social worker.

Volunteers agree to spend time with their "matched" youngster at least once a week for a year.

Two very specific accomplishments of the Youth Assistance organization in past years have been the impetus for the establishment of independence center, a charitable organization providing services for citizens of all ages, and the hiring of a full-time recreation director by Independence Township.

A Youth Assistance social worker is available week days at independence center. While the social worker is assigned to cases by the probate court, youngsters can come to him on their own for guidance and counseling.

Parents and other community members can also request the help of the social worker. The majority of the youngsters he sees are referred to him by the schools or local police.

Each summer, the local Youth Assistance organization sends young people to camp on the recommendation of classroom teachers.

The group's camping program this year involved 52 youngsters: two who went to day camp, eight to Camp Oakland and 42 to Michigan Christian Camp for a week.

The group remains very dependent on community support and volunteer help to function.

Karla, noted in reference to this being the International Year of the Child: "Through your help and the help of volunteers like yourself, we can all make every year the Year of the Child."

Youth Assistance tries prevention

Working in association with the Oakland County Youth Assistance organization, the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee has provided counseling for 126 school youths in the past year.

In addition, the group's adult education program serviced 70 adults and 54 youths were able to participate in the organized camping program.

Sponsored by the Oakland County Probate Judges, the Clarkston village government and board of education, as well as Springfield and Independence townships, Clarkston Youth Assistance relies heavily on community volunteers who sit on the several committees making up the organization. Fifty concerned citizens currently serve on the committees, directing such things as parent education classes and the camping program.

Holding their annual meeting last week at the Episcopal Church of the Resurrection, the organization's new officers were announced and a guest speaker spoke to a large gathering of community leaders and supporters.

Among the changes in officers, the Rev. Alex Stewart, who has been associated with Youth Assistance since its inception, assumed the role of chairperson replacing Virginia Walter. Walter received an honorary award during the luncheon-meeting in recognition of her long and successful tenure as chairperson.

Curtain time

Two actresses shine in '5th of July'

5th of July
By Lanford Wilson
Attic Theatre
Greektown, Detroit

Two charming actresses, Artelia Bowne and Martha Sanders, make this Lanford Wilson play worth seeing before it ends its run at the Attic Theatre on October 13.

Wilson's "5th of July" concerns an informal reunion of several people from the anti-everything days of the late 60's in Berkeley, CA. Among those people who meet in an old house in Lebanon, MO, are Kenneth Talley; a legless Vietnam veteran; Jed Jenkins, his botanical lover; John Landis, a hustling character; Gwenn Landis, John's wife and a wealthy, neurotic druggie who aspires to pop-stardom as a singer, and June Talley, Ken's sister who has her illegitimate teenage daughter in tow.

It is that daughter, Shirley, played by Martha Sanders and her aunt Sally Friedman (Artelia Bowne) who make this play so delightful.

They both are winsome members of the family and their very presence on the stage bring about pleasure for the audience.

Shirley is a wise-beyondher-years 13-year-old old who would prefer to be 21. She also fantasizes as she parades around in her grandmother's fancy dresses, flourishing a cigaret in a long holder, that she will be the greatest artist Missouri ever produced.

Aunt Sally is a lovable old character who talks to her scissors and her glasses, both of which she is forever losing, and carries the ashes of her cremated husband around in a candy box.

With a loving and deft touch, Wilson shows an understanding of normal and abnormal psychology as this collection of people work out some of their conflicts.

Wilson is an important contemporary playwright who has a knack for delineating engaging people and tossing off dialogue that is hilarious and warm.

The natural and tender relationship between the two gay lovers is worth seeing as it is rarely accomplished on a stage.

Don Fausett dons his wings and takes to the skies at least once a week, winter and summer.

Flight fantasy a reality

Don Fausett soars with his dream

By Kathy Greenfield

A motor's buzz announces Don Fausett's presence in the skies around Clarkston.

An upward glance reveals a pterodactyl-like image in flight over treetops.

"It's like no other experience," Fausett says of motorized hang gliding.

"It approaches the freedom of flight fantasy most people have had sometime in their lives of stretching their arms out and soaring."

Fausett compares his yellow, orange, red and brown wings to other creatures.

"It looks like a giant moth or butterfly," he says. "There's a natural form to these things that you don't get in a regular aircraft."

The glider has a 35-foot wingspan. Equipped with the engine and seven quarts of gasoline, it weighs about 100 pounds.

One gallon of gasoline equals about an hour's worth of flying time.

"I never fly slower than 20 and never faster than 25 in normal cruising around the neighborhood," he says.

A relative newcomer to the sport, Fausett has been gliding for about one-and-one-half years.

While flying through the air, he is suspended in a mountain-climber's harness.

Fausett uses a mouth throttle shaped like a giant wooden clothespin to control his speed.

His mouthpiece is "quite practical," he says, because it leaves his arms free to maintain balance and to steer.

"In essence, you're doing a balancing act with your arms," he says. "I compare it to a workout on parallel bars."

Shifting his weight to control the craft has caused his shoulder and arm muscles to develop more than at any other time in his life, he says.

"If you're not in shape, by the time you get through training for this sport, the fat will go away from your body," he says.

The loss of between 10 and 15 pounds and a recent medical examination have left Fausett feeling good about his lung capacity and heart.

Fausett works in the personnel department at Chevrolet Gear and Axle, Detroit. He is a 27 and one-half year veteran employee of the company.

"My job at the plant is somewhat sedentary. My main responsibilities require that I stay in the office," he says, "So this sport comes as a nice contrast for a man my age."

A pilot for 21 years, Fausett attributes learning to hang glide in such a short time to his airplane skills.

He is part owner of a Cessna 182 and a Bellanca Super Viking, both four-passenger planes.

For economy, he prefers the glider.

"I characterize this type of flying as doing more with less," he says. "I'm burning a gallon of gas an hour. I'm virtually operating in my backyard."

Folded and wrapped, the glider is towed for the short trip to Bailey Lake Elementary at least once a week where he uses the fields for take-off.

The Fausetts--Don, his wife Alice, and children, Yvonne, 11, and Brian, 9--have lived on Stowe Trail, Independence Township, five years.

"We moved out to the lovely hills of Clarkston from Royal Oak," he says, and from the air, the hills are even better.

"I think it's kind of neat to be able to fly so low and slow and have such perspective," he says. "Trees diminish in size; you become aware of rises in the terrain."

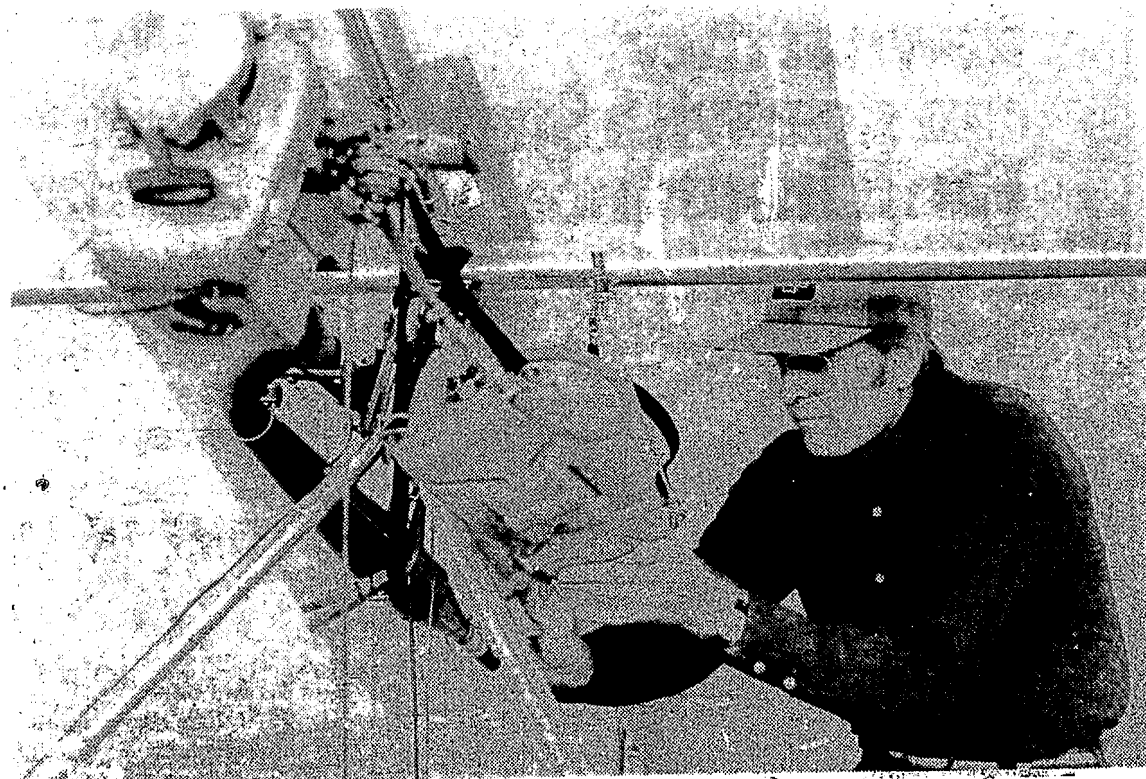

Although there is an element of danger in his sport, Fausett has developed a philosophy.

"The thing that disturbs people most is you see the men, you see the person," he says. "That bothers people, because they relate that to their own feelings--they would not like to hang in space."

"I think it's a sport we're going to be seeing a lot more of as people accept the fact that it's not unnatural for people to float around overhead as long as they have safe equipment and proper control," Fausett says.

Fausett's protective gear consists of a helmet and a mountain climber's harness.

Fausett straps on the 7-quart capacity gasoline tank that provides enough fuel to fly for about one-and-three-quarter hours.

Coping with kids

Each child a miniature Incredible Hulk

The Incredible Hulk serves a useful purpose for our children. If it didn't, it probably would not be so popular.

Inside each child is a scary, devastating monster that could destroy in a fearsome rage all of those things and people that cause frustration.

They are exposed to many frustrations during those early years of childhood when they are learning to gauge right and wrong and to meet all of the many demands and expectations of adults.

Even the angry and aggressive feelings associated with these frustrations can usually not be expressed overtly because of further criticism from parents and teachers.

Children can handle these frustrations through various defense mechanisms such as sublimation (Playing war, Cowboys and Indians and Cops and Robbers) or vicarious release.

A suitable vicarious release is through watching horror movies or TV programs with a certain amount of violence and aggression.

These programs, like The Incredible Hulk, allow symbolic release of anger. That is perfectly harmless and perhaps in one form or another necessary to each and every youngster.

The Incredible Hulk is the personification of that raging beast within the child over which is struggling to gain control and mastery.

His unacceptable angry feelings and impulses are pushed out of his conscious mind in order to get along with the adult society and end up in the unconscious mind where they come out in the form of dreams and fantasies.

Imagination and fantasy give a young child control over a very real danger.

When the Incredible Hulk returns to his more civilized form as Dave Banner, it is a visual conformation to a child that he too can come to terms with his own internal monster. His contacts, then, with the adult world are strengthened by his periodic escape into the realm of fantasy where aggression can be unleashed with impunity.

Four Jesuits who 'went teaching' celebrate at Colombiere Center

By Pat Braunagel

"...and then I went teaching."

Rev. Edward J. Hodous, S.J., was recalling his ordination as a Jesuit priest, an event that occurred 50 years ago.

The ordination came 15 years after he had taken his vows as a member of the Society of Jesus, in the midst of a life of scholarship.

Teachers, philosophers and lifelong students--these are the Catholic Church's Jesuits.

These priests are also men, who share the problems common to mankind in old age--a lessening of physical faculties, a certain capriciousness of memory and the need to be dependent on others.

Four of the 10 priests who live in the infirmary at Colombiere Center in Springfield Township celebrated significant anniversaries this month. Two have been priests for 50 years. The other two have been Jesuits for 60 and 70 years.

The occasion included a special Mass, dinner in the main dining room with all the residents and staff of Colombiere and a sharing of recollections with The Clarkston News.

The four have lived related lives as Jesuits, and yet each has his own distinctions.

Rev. Marshall L. Lochbiler, celebrating his golden jubilee as a priest, is now a patient in the infirmary of an institution he once headed when it was Colombiere College, having also served as rector of the University of Detroit.

Hodous, also a priest for half a century, is described by Lochbiler as a "brilliant scholar of the Sacred Scriptures," who has studied and taught in Rome and traveled around the world.

Of the eight languages he has mastered, Czech is one in which he also sings, and he proves this with a rousing rendition of the Czechoslovakian national anthem.

Rev. Edwin J. Gaffney, a Jesuit 70 years this month, was pastor of St. Peter and Paul Church in Detroit at the time of his retirement. Still he describes with obvious pleasure children with whom he became acquainted as a young hospital chaplain in Cincinnati.

Rev. Joseph M. Teply, a member of the Society of Jesus for 60 years, is a victim of Parkinson's disease and does not speak--but it is told about him that among his accomplishments was the devising of in-car speakers for drive-in theaters.

All have lived lives of scholarship, some entering the order immediately after high school and some after they had completed four years of college.

"I took a regular college course at the University of Detroit," Lochbiler relates, describing a liberal arts curriculum. Then he entered the Jesuit novitiate at Florissant, Mo.

He was ordained in 1929 at St. Louis University, where he earned a master's degree in philosophy.

Interspersed with teaching assignments was further study

He had been a student of English literature at the University of Michigan for two years when "I was taken out because they needed me to teach at the University of Detroit."

He was in Ohio for 14 years as rector of the two schools before returning to the U of D as its rector and chairman of the board in 1950. From 1956 to 1964, he was president of Colombiere College.

Although failing eyesight is a bother, Lochbiler does as much reading as possible in spiritual books and current magazines like Time and Newsweek.

He and Hodous also go for walks round the grounds at Colombiere.

"The nurses are very nice out here--put that in," he advises this reporter.

He joined the Jesuit order after graduating from the U of D because "I had worked with these men, knew them, liked them and liked their way of life."

He also liked "the possibility of improving myself without limitation."

"I don't know of another organization where a person can get so much training in his field," Lochbiler said.

Gaffney described some of the training the young Jesuits received at Florissant and at St. Louis University.

A native of Bay City, he had graduated from Notre Dame University when he entered the novitiate.

"At St. Louis, we studied for seven years, three classes a day--all in Latin, a dead language," he said. "They don't teach Jesuits Latin anymore."

Before the adoption of the English Mass, the potential priests listened to lectures and held discussions in Latin, building their theological and philosophical foundations.

"It was a matter of learning propositions," Gaffney said.

Rev. Edwin J. Gaffney recalls, with pleasure, some of his early years as a priest, when he served as hospital chaplain.

Behind eyes which indicate his awareness, Rev. Joseph M. Teply sits silently in his room at Colombiere.

Rev. Edward J. Hodous has a gift of gab in a half-dozen languages, and he also sings in a couple. He has a storehouse of tales to tell of his travels around the world.

Their anniversaries spark memories

"and learning about those who think differently--adversaries: Darwin, atheists and non-believers."

About once a month, each novice would take the professor's place, and his fellow students would interrogate him.

"They'd think up the worst questions they could--to have some fun of it, of course," Gaffney recalled.

Destined to become a parish priest in Cleveland and Detroit, Gaffney and the other Jesuit students also engaged in debates.

The church, he said, "must adapt to the times in order to live."

Life magazine's cover story on the pope's upcoming visit to the United States attracts the attention of Rev. Marshall L. Lochbiler in his room at Colombiere. The Jesuit priest was once president of Colombiere College on the same site.

"That's a principle of life," he said. "Adapt to the times--without changing doctrine, of course."

Hodous began his university studies at St. Louis after joining the order.

After his ordination at Woodstock College in Maryland, he "went teaching" and was subsequently sent to Rome for study.

"I was there five years, during which time I traveled all through the Holy Land," he recalled.

He taught Jesuit scholars for a decade and then was an instructor at the U of D before returning to Rome for another five years of study at the Biblical Institute.

While preparing his thesis on the Bible, he was among a group of Jesuits that traveled throughout the Near East and to South Africa to visit archeological sites of religious significance.

His familiarity with languages--English, German, French, Italian, Bohemian, Spanish, Latin and Greek--helped him not a whit when the group got to Kurdistan and visited a sect of "devil worshippers."

"I couldn't speak with them because we didn't know their language and they didn't know ours," he said. "But they were nice, very courteous people"

After his retirement, Hodous taught American Indians in the northern part of the United States.

"I went out there to have some fun," he replied.

Tiply, a native of Chicago, entered the Society of Jesus in 1919 when he was 20.

He was one of the order's "pioneers" at West Baden College in Indiana and later was in charge of the printing presses at John Carroll University in Ohio.

He was also something of an investor, having authored articles entitled "Fundamentals for Pulpit Acoustics" and "Planning Construction for Proper Acoustics."

While at John Carroll, Teply's work in acoustics led him to devise the system by which each car at a drive-in can have its own speaker.

A patient at Colombiere's infirmary for more than a decade, Teply has come up with a practical idea or two to help the staff there.

These last bits of information are given to us by Brother Bernard Polinak, S.J., who visits Teply daily to help the priest with his meals.

Dinner is served from dishes on a placemat that says, "Smile--God Loves You."

There may not have been much for Clarkston fans to enjoy in either half of Friday night's football game, but in-between time at least the band was a spectacle worth watching, staging a flag waving show complete with color guard.

Standard Federal opens branch in Waterford

An atmosphere of quiet comfort greets customers at the recently opened Waterford branch of Standard Federal Savings.

Muted tones of brown and beige, light-colored oak, contemporary furnishings, plants, original art work and natural lighting through large windows set the tone.

The new building--completed a few weeks ago--is the fifth branch with the same basic exterior and interior design, said Susan Keys branch manager.

The savings and loan corporation has some 46 branches in the Detroit and Ann Arbor metropolitan areas.

It is the second largest savings and loan organization in Michigan and 13th largest in the state, Keys said.

The local branch was opened with temporary offices in the Waterfall Plaza about one-and-one-half years ago.

Now that the new building is completed, a grand opening celebration is underway with a gift of Oneida silverplate for deposits of $500 in new or existing accounts.

The closest Standard Federal branch before the Waterford opening was at Long Lake and Telegraph roads, Bloomfield Hills.

"This is a big growth area and we wanted to be out with it--as it has worked out, we've really, really done well," Keys said, and the Waterford office is now fourth largest of all branch locations for mortgages.

Keys has been manager of the branch since October. She and her husband Rod live in Waterford Township.

"The thing we try to do is offer good, friendly service," she said. "And I don't think you'll find a company that will process a loan faster."

In addition to services like a wide range of savings plans, mortgages, travelers' checks and money orders, the branch offers safe deposit boxes and drive-in windows.

The branch is open from 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Fridays and from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

It is located at 5619 Dixie Highway, adjacent to the Waterfall Shopping Center, Waterford Township.

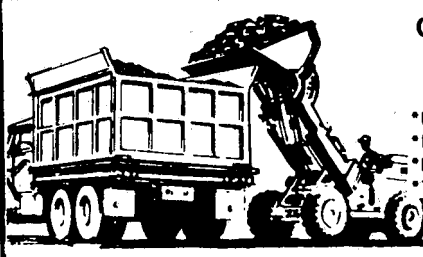

With mortgage rates at 12 1/4 percent with 20 percent as a down payment, banks and savings and loan organizations are encouraging increased savings accounts, Keys said.

"The rate is way up there, because we don't want to lend more money right now, she said. "We need savings accounts."

"The only way it will come down is if we get more savings," she said.

Susan Keys is manager of the newly constructed Standard Federal Savings Waterford Township branch, one of 46 locations in the Detroit and Ann Arbor metropolitan areas.

Win a Free Vacation for two in the Bahamas

We're very close to a milestone at Pontiac State Bank. Our big network of 24-hour teller machines will soon reach $50,000,000 in cash withdrawals . . . and we're celebrating with a contest.

$50,000,000 Bank Now Countdown

A contest for everybody

If you can guess when Bank Now will reach the $50,000,000 mark, you could win a free winter vacation — a trip for two to the Bahamas. Eight days and seven nights as guests of PSB.

For Bank Now Customers Only

The same big prize goes to the PSB customer who withdraws the 50 millionth dollar on any Bank Now machine. No entry form needed. The lucky customer will win automatically.

We'll help you guess the day and time. Tune to radio station WPON (1460 AM). We'll broadcast reports each weekday (at twenty minutes after the hour) — giving you the Bank Now total as of the previous day. You can keep track of the countdown and make an educated estimate of the moment we'll reach $50,000,000.

It's easy to enter the Countdown Contest. As soon as you estimate the winning time, just fill out the form below and mail it to PSB.

Entry Form: Bank Now Countdown Contest

I estimate the Bank Now network will reach a total of $50,000,000 in cash withdrawals, as follows:

Month _____ Day _____ Hour : Minutes AM or PM _____

My Name _____ (Please Print)

Street Address _____

City _____ ZIP _____

My Phone No _____

B

All entries must be completely filled out and mailed to Pontiac State Bank, Bank Now Countdown Contest,
P.O. Box 599, Pontiac, MI 48056

Entries must be postmarked no later than midnight of the day before Bank Now reaches a total of $50,000,000 in cash withdrawals. The winner will be the entry that predicts the day and time closest to the minute when the $50,000,000 total is reached, as determined by Pontiac State Bank records. Earliest entry takes precedence. In case of a tie, a drawing will be held to determine the winner. Employees of Pontiac State Bank and their immediate families are not eligible.

Country Living

Evans' home exudes local history

The Moon farmhouse is one of those Independence Township residences we might well wish could talk.

From its vantage point on Dixie Highway, in Moon Valley on the north side of Waterford Hill, it has witnessed the parade of progress in the community for more than century.

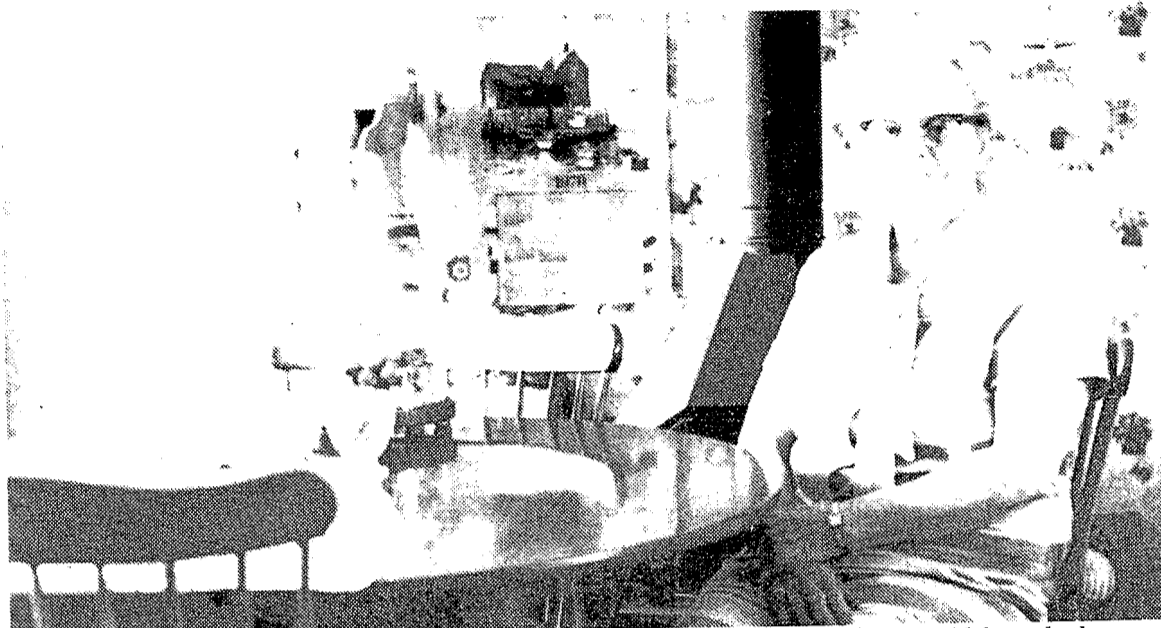

Its comments on changing modes of highway transportation could fill several chapters in a book.

From the time it was built in 1868 to well within the auto era, the house was situated on a dirt road.

But the road, the original Detroit-to-Saginaw Turnpike, has always been an important one.

The house, now owned by Mrs. Benjamin F. Evans, is on a 110-by-150 foot lot surrounded by businesses in a commercial area which has largely been developed since she and the late Mr. Evans moved here 36 years ago.

The farm covered 120 acres when Stephen Moon moved his family up from Drayton Plains after the Civil War.

Mrs. Evans enjoys the warmth of the large country kitchen of her home. Although the room is the same size and shape it was a century ago, Mrs. Evans has added many personal touches.

Stephen's son Melvin prospered as one of the leading stock farm owners of the township.

The house was sold in 1910 to the Jones family. For eight years prior to the Evanses' purchase, it was owned by Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis.

Meanwhile, the auto had been invented and was being used not only for inter-city travel on the Dixie but to take vacationers out to the resorts in the Clarkston area.

Mrs. Lewis established a tearoom in the front part of the house, removing the wall between two small bedrooms to create more space for tables.

Moon Valley Dinners offered a chicken dinner for $1 or stick for 85 cents. Luncheon sandwiches were 10 and 15 cents.

When the Evanses moved in, Mr. Evans established his garden equipment business next door.

It was 1943 and the property was still out in the country.

"Nobody was across the street--there was just us," Mrs. Evans recalled.

She and her husband became part of a kind of tourism that has continued to flourish. The year they moved to Independence Township, the couple took the first of many trips they were to make with a travel trailer.

Pulling a trailer behind a six-cylinder Plymouth, they went to the West Coast and up into the Canadian Rockies. With that trailer and three others which succeeded it, they traveled throughout the contiguous United States, up to Alaska and down to Mexico.

At home, they continued the modernization process on their house, preserving the character of the residence which had been central to life on a farm.

Right off the large country kitchen is a pantry which was once the room in which farmhands cleaned up before they came in to meals. A hand pump, no longer functional, can still be seen in the kitchen as a reminder of bygone times.

The original handmade woodwork has been maintained. A fieldstone fireplace in the living room was not part of the original building but had been added by previous owners.

Mr. Evans and his son Kenneth went to work to correct one of the shortcomings common to old homes.

"When we came here, there was only one clothespress, and that was upstairs," Mrs. Evans said.

The fieldstone fireplace which dominates the living room was added to 111-year-old Moon farmhouse during this century.

More Country Living

Back when the Moon farmhouse was much newer, Moon Valley looked like this if viewed from the north side of Waterford Hill. Surrounded by farm land, the house was beset by clouds of dust raised by traffic on Dixie Highway. Photo courtesy Clarkston Area Historical Society.

Activities Center offers sports, dance

A wide selection of activity-oriented classes will begin the week of October 1 at Springfield Oaks Activities Center.

Courses include beginning and intermediate tennis for men and women, and an introduction to the sports of volleyball and badminton.

The tennis classes will focus on the basics for beginners and help improve strategies for those who already play.

Volleyball and badminton will include supervised play during each session.

Easy disco dancing for couples and beginning ballroom dance will be taught by Birmingham residents Chuck and June Kopta, dance instructors for over 25 years.

The couple, who teach dance on cruise ships, attracted more than 85 persons to their disco class last year.

The Koptas emphasize that all of their classes are open to couples and singles and that "everyone gets involved."

Additional special interest classes at Springfield Oaks include beginning dog obedience, beginning basket weaving and dried flower arranging.

Courses meet from five to eight weeks. Registration deadline is September 23.

Springfield Oaks Activities Center is on Andersonville Road, Davisburg. It is the home of the annual Oakland County

4-H Fair and serves as a facility for receptions, dances and shows.

To register for courses or for more information, phone 625-8133 or 634-9371.

At the present time, there is no women's marathon event in the Olympics. In recent years, however, women have been running in non-Olympic marathons all over the world. They have not yet beaten the men, but their times are certainly respectable, and there are enough women marathoners to make for fast Olympic competition. In spite of this, women are forbidden to run even 3000 meter races in the Olympics. The pressure is on. Women and their supporters are working slowly but persistently to have long distance women's races in future Olympics.

Athletic shoes by Adidas are available from us at COACH'S CORNER, 31 S. Main, 625-8457. We specialize in the proper fitting of shoes and other pieces of equipment, for most sports. ## SYNOPSIS

SYNOPSIS OF CLARKSTON
VILLAGE COUNCIL MEETING
MINUTES OF SEPT. 24, 1979

Roll: Present, ApMadoc, Adams, Basinger, Byers, Schultz, Thayer. Absent, Symons.

Authorized a member of the hydrology committee to attend two wetlands conferences, paying the expense of $10 per conference.

Authorized Trustees Adams and Symons to attend a Rehabilitation Workshop at the county, paying their expenses of $5 each.

Adopted a Resolution supporting the modified M-275 Plan A and opposing the Rosman, Vivian, and Union Lake freeway proposals that terminate near the village.

Discussed the noise problems at night in the village park with some S. Holcomb residents. It was agreed to check on stricter police enforcement of our ordinances there, to check on posting signs listing rules in the park, and to ban parking on the north side of Depot between the alley and Holcomb through a Traffic Control Order.

President ApMaoc will check with Police Chief Kimbel on the possibility of adopting a Traffic Control Order which would make it illegal to ride bicycles in the business district.

Authorized President ApMadoc to sign the amendment to the contract with Preservation Planning dealing with reimbursable expenses.

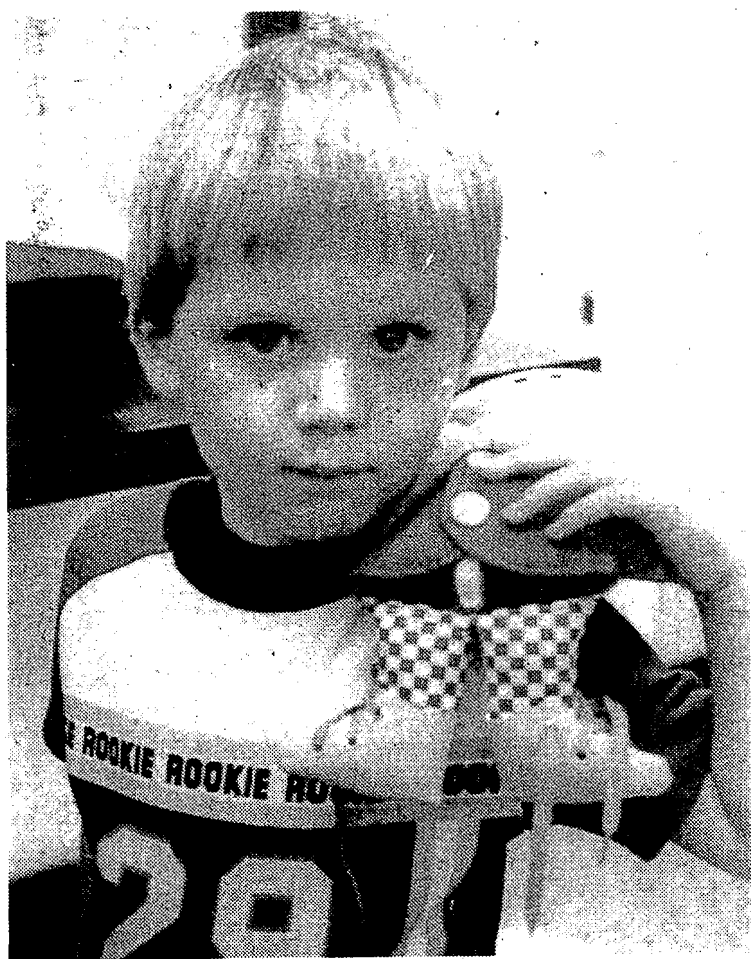

Discussed the complexity of adopting a zoning ordinance amendment restricting the height of greenbelts between residential properties.

Adjourned at 9 p.m.

All votes unanimous unless otherwise indicated.
