No Junior High on ballot soon

By Maralee Cook

In a special three-hour-long meeting Monday night, the Clarkston School Board voted not to put the $9.1 million school bond issue back to the voters in the near future.

While all board members, administrators and teachers present at the meeting agreed that the proposals were valid and necessary, most felt some changes would have to be made before another election was held.

Sixty five percent of the voters opposed the issue in last June's election, and some of the school board members do not think that voters' attitudes can be turned around in six to eight months.

"I would hesitate toward putting anything on the ballot because we don't know what the climate is," said school board secretary Mary Jane Chaustowich.

"We have to listen to that," added Janet Thomas, board vice president, speaking of the large majority of voters who turned the issue down.

Thomas also suggested the bleak economic forecast could encourage a negative attitude toward the millage.

Trustee Fernando Sanchez agreed that the board must "pay attention to the people. But we have to lead the people," he added, "to tell them what their children need."

Other factors affecting the election of the bond issue were voters' confusion over the details of the building package—which would have to be resolved—and that the major portion of the proposal, the building of a new junior high, outwardly seemed to affect a relatively small part of the community.

The current operational millage expires with the 1980 tax bill and should be put up for a 3-mill renewal in June, said Milford Mason, Clarkston Schools Superintendent.

One mill is $1 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

Most board members said if voters were faced with both a millage renewal and bond issue election within two or three months, both could be voted down.

Board members agreed that the day when Clarkston Junior High School becomes non-operational is in the foreseeable future.

If the school district is not prepared with another existing facility, all junior high students will have to attend Sashabaw Junior High School on half-day sessions, said Eric Reickel, board trustee.

Reickel also said he felt the members of the community are lethargic, and was disappointed that Thomas and Sanchez were not opposed in the last election (only because it shows apathy).

"I won't run for school board again," said Reickel. "I'm very disenchanted and have no respect for the parents. They should come begging on their hands and knees pleading for improvements in the schools."

Reickel added that by his not running for re-election, voters would be forced to make a choice for his successor.

If the school facilities and services are to be improved, the board agreed that changes in the package offered to the voters would probably have to be made. They also said voter confusion over wording of the issue would have to be eliminated, which could best be accomplished with better communication between the school board and the community.

Thomas suggested that facility improvements be simplified and the cost made more palatable to the voters.

She recommended that the junior high school, library and high school additions be voted on separately over a period of time, and/or the additions be placed on a two or three year millage, as opposed to a lengthy bond issue.

Vince Luzi, school board treasurer, suggested that the package be narrowed down to the most important item, or that the voters be given a choice of improvements to vote for.

Board members agreed to continue discussing how changes could be made in the present building package so that the issue of facility and service improvements can be eventually be put before the voters again.

A date for a special meeting in January for those discussions to begin will be decided upon at the regular board meeting in December.

Police protection issue rages on

By Kathy Greenfield

Everyone agreed more money is needed for police protection in Independence Township.

Otherwise, about 65 people who attended the two-hour-long hearing on whether the local police department should be eliminated last night presented a variety of opinions.

The township board called the meeting to get residents' opinions on the issue.

The proposal to eliminate the local department and increase the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD) contract was made by Treasurer Frederick Ritter earlier this month.

Ritter's proposal includes eliminating the local department that has a director and two patrol officers and increasing the OCSD contract from four to six deputies until the contract period ends in April.

Then, if the township decides to stay within the police millage and other income, the deputies would remain at six. Or, they could be increased to eight, maintaining close to the present $260,000 police budget, Ritter said.

Some residents supported Ritter's proposal.

"I don't understand why we have a dual department," said Riley Cathcart of Sashabaw Road. "It seems to me it's costing more than to go entirely with the OCSD."

"The handwriting has been on the wall for some time," said Walt Labenz of Holcomb Road. "There's only one way to go—that's contract."

If a local department were formed, the expense would increase, said Al Aderholt, member of the police advisory board.

"Once you're on the hook, you can't wriggle off," he said. "It's entangled and it's going to cost. The cost factor is there and you can't get out of it."

A letter to the township board from James Brueck, police advisory board chairman, was read by Ritter.

"In reviewing Mr. Ritter's proposal to dissolve the local department and contract with the OCSD, I support this proposal and would encourage your adoption," Brueck wrote.

Other residents said the township should have only a local police department.

"Many small departments exist and do very well without relying on the sheriff's department at all," said Sgt. Charles Smalley, a township reserve officer, and he suggested an "improved local effort with the (Michigan State Police) as a 'big brother.'"

"We certainly could work as a team," Smalley said. "Then and only then could the township live up to its name—Independence."

"I like the idea of going with a full township department and have the county maintain the road patrol—then if you have any problem, you can call the county or the state police," said Mike Darby of Reese Road.

"We do have a building now. We do have four patrol cars and a radio," Darby added. "You're throwing away probably $150,000. You're going to throw the whole thing away."

Other residents asked the township board to go with one department or the other, urging a decision.

Increased police millage requests defeated by voters in the past were discussed by Marty Newsted, former police advisory board member.

The voters defeated millages, because they did not know where the money would go—to a local department or to contract OCSD deputies, she said.

"By making no decision, you've decided to stay the way you are," she said. "Please make a decision one way or the other."

"We don't get that many complaints from the people," said Supervisor Whitey Tower.

"I think the combined force has worked best," he said. "The complaints we receive usually are not on the combined forces, but on personalities of officers on both forces."

"I submit to you the defeat of the millage was a big complaint," Newsted replied.

"You've been messing around with this for two years," said Mickey Morrow of Warbler Lane. "No matter which way we go, for God's sake let's go one way: I don't think we're getting anywhere going on like this year after year."

The board has set Dec. 4, at its next regular meeting, to vote on the issue. The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

• Didn't want to make waves

Cop charged, dates back two years

By Kathy Greenfield

Charges against Police Officer Thomas Cavalier were not made sooner, because they were seen as a threat to the existence of the Independence Township Police Services department, according to Supervisor Whitey Tower.

The township board in a 5-1 vote decided to level charges of official misconduct, habitual neglect of duty and incompetence against Cavalier at a special meeting Nov. 21.

Two board members—Treasurer Frederick Ritter and Trustee Rudy Lozano—asked why there had been problems for a period of about two years without any action.

"I have requested his (Cavalier's) removal on several occasions and they went to the supervisor and that's as far as it goes," said Charles Kimbel, director of police services.

Because of budget problems and lack of funds, "I would say it would probably have to do with the fact that if this came about (the firing of Cavalier), I would probably lose the whole department," Kimbel said.

Each time Cavalier's termination was discussed, there were other factors influencing the decision, said Tower.

Once it was budget-setting time and another time federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds were ending, Tower said.

"We're up here literally fighting for what I think is our lives—literally don't make waves on it," Tower said, referring to the life of the local police department.

The question of keeping Cavalier on the staff has been ongoing for a two-year period, Tower said but now there have been three written reprimands.

The regular procedure for firing an employee has been verbal warnings and the written reprimands, Tower said, and his preference is "trying to correct the problem with the employee."

"I did think we were making inroads, but at this point in time, I don't think we did," Tower said.

The charges against Cavalier are to be presented in written form this week, Tower said after the meeting.

Cavalier, who is on vacation, is to return Dec. 5.

Following procedures of the Veterans' Preference Act, Cavalier must be presented with written charges, a hearing before the full township board must be held at least 15 days after the charges are presented, and a determination of the charges must then be presented to Cavalier in writing, attorney Peter Keenan told the board at the meeting.

After a nearly two-hour long discussion, Trustee Jerry Powell listed "areas we have to be concerned with."

Under official misconduct, Cavalier's failure to appear in court, failure to deliver a subpoena, transferring prisoners without authority to another police agency and a lawsuit were included by Powell.

The lawsuit, that was settled earlier this year by the township's insurance agency for $2,500, involved an incident at Pine Knob when a woman was handcuffed to her steering wheel and she damaged a ring, Kimbel said.

Under habitual neglect of duty, Powell listed habitual lateness, general rudeness to fellow employees and to the public.

Under incompetence, a general misuse of township equipment and three accidents in 11 months were included by Powell.

"I think these should be written charges to Cavalier and let him come back and defend these charges," Powell said.

Ritter objected to the charges. "I think we have to bear some of the responsibility for this problem, because we haven't given the guys the tools to work with," he said, explaining that since the two local officers were hired, they have received no further training beyond the police cadet school Cavalier attended in 1977 and his co-officer attended in 1978.

Tower, Clerk Christopher Rose, Powell, Trustee William Vandermark and Trustee Rudy Lozano voted to make the written charges. Ritter voted against the action, and Trustee Michael Thayer was absent.

Serving up donations for SCAMP

The Clarkston High School student government is sponsoring an 18-hour volleyball marathon December 7 and 8 to benefit SCAMP, a summer camp for children with special needs.

Over 120 students have signed up for the event, which begins at 6 p.m. Friday and runs until noon Saturday.

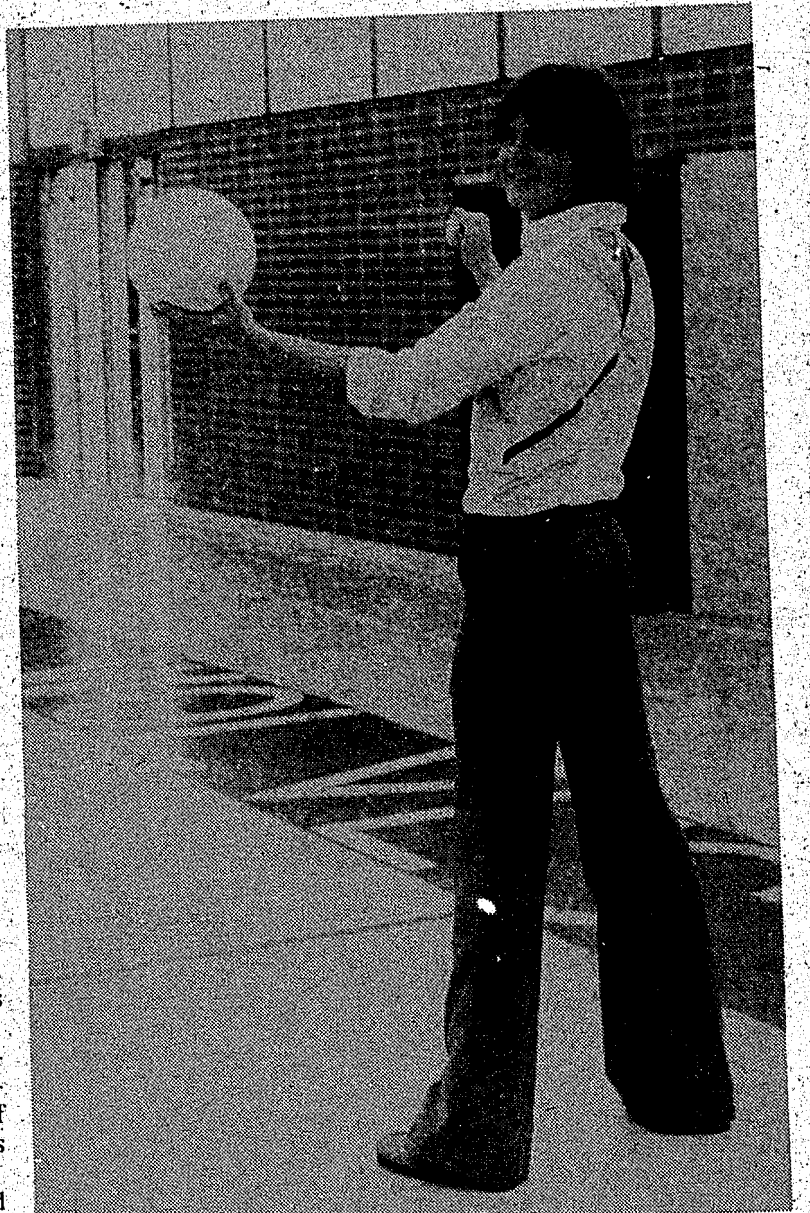

According to Steve Sanders, the CHS student in charge of publicity for the event, over 35 area businesses have already pledged donations.

Sixty students will be on the Clarkston High School volleyball court at all times, with players rotating every half hour.

Sanders said student government members decided to sponsor the marathon because one of SCAMP's regular benefits was not held this year.

SCAMP, which is conducted by Clarkston Community Schools, is funded by donations through the SCAMP Funding Corporation.

Sanders said student government members hope this will be the first of many such events.

Setting up a serve for SCAMP is Mitch Lowery, co-chairman of the marathon. Area businesses have pledged donations for the event which will be held in the Clarkston High School gym.

Village delays police decision

By Al Zawacky

The Clarkston Village Council heard arguments in the ongoing police protection controversy Monday, but again postponed taking any stand until members could study the matter further.

Council President Fontie ApMadoc said she would poll the council this weekend by phone to arrive at an official position. The extra days will allow members to attend the township board public hearing Tuesday, and read the police advisory board's report.

The controversy involves Township Treasurer Frederick Ritter's proposal that Independence Township Police Services be eliminated in favor of contracting more deputies from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD).

"This (proposal) would offer residents much better service and protection for fewer dollars—that's simply a fact," Ritter said. "We could save from $65,000 to $80,000 a year by just contracting with the county."

"What we have under the current system are communication problems and duplication of efforts," Ritter continued. "We're not getting any benefits out of the extra money the township spends to maintain its own force."

Councilman Jack Byers expressed concern about the county's ability to enforce minor village ordinances and provide protection for parade routes and funeral processions.

"I think we need some sort of force directly responsible to the township—the township currently handles such things as parking violations, crossing guards and enforcement of minor ordinances," Byers said.

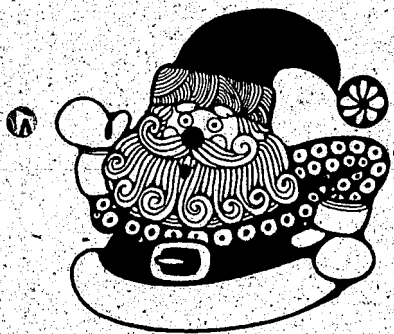

Lt. James Curtis of the OCSD said the county could handle such tasks.

"Provided we have adequate notice of an event, we can't foresee any difficulties," Curtis said. "We have handled parade routes in other townships like Avon's Christmas parade without any problems.

Ritter discounted the necessity of maintaining a police force to handle small civil infractions, parking violations and crossing guards. "A civilian force can handle all of these duties," Ritter claimed. "Animal control could be conducted by the department of public works, and the crossing guard and parking officer could remain as employees of the township."

Council will express an opinion on behalf of the village at the township board meeting on Dec. 4, at which the matter is to be voted on, ApMadoc said.

HEY, Kids! He's making a list and checking it twice. This year send your letters to Santa Claus, c/o The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016. All letters received on or before Dec. 14 will be printed in The Clarkston News before Christmas.

'I'll blow your head off'

About $2,700 was taken from a man attempting to make a night deposit at Pontiac State Bank's Pine Knob Branch last week, according to police. The incident occurred at about 8 p.m. in the parking lot alongside the bank located at Sashabaw and Maybee roads, Independence Township.

As the manager of a gas station got out of his car, "an individual wearing a ski mask stated, 'Don't open the (night depository) box. Drop the bag, or I'll blow your head off.'" Detective Sgt. Roger Allen of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department said.

The gas station manager, who Allen said he would prefer not to identify, did as he was told and returned to his car.

The manager then saw another man pick up the bag and the two masked suspects fled on foot in a westerly direction to a field behind the bank, Allen said.

An OCSO helicopter and tracking dog were called to the scene, but the suspects were not found, he said.

The investigation is continuing, Allen said.

Bike banning closer in Village

Clarkston's long proposed bicycle riding ban appears to be nearing implementation as a result of Village Council action taken Monday night.

"We still have to paint and post the signs, as well as issue public notice," said Village Council President Fontie ApMadoc. "We're probably talking in the neighborhood of 30 days before the ban actually takes effect."

The ban, initiated out of concern for pedestrian safety, prohibits the riding or parking of bicycles on Main Street sidewalks between Washington and Waldon roads. Violators would be ticketed and fined $5.

"The way present traffic control ordinances are written in the village, no new ordinance is required to ban bike riding," explained attorney John Steckling to the council.

Steckling, a member of the law firm employed by the village, said that the riding ban could take effect once the signs were posted.

With the expected short arrival of winter snow and cold putting a damper on bike travel, the full effect of the ban may not be felt until spring, ApMadoc noted.

What price good fortune?

By Al Zawacky

There's a hidden danger in Independence Township's apparent good fortune compared with Detroit's experience during last Monday's wind storm which whipped through the state.

After all, while Independence escaped from the gale generally unscathed, events in Detroit sounded like something out of Ian Fleming's "Goldfinger." There were reports of sharp metallic traffic signs being blown off their posts and whizzing odd-job style by pedestrians; thousands of homes were without power, and even the ice in Olympia Stadium is said to have temporarily melted.

All of these incidents raise serious questions about Detroit's attempt to portray itself as a major convention center. We must ask ourselves: if the city suffers this type of damage when a mere gale sweeps through town, how can Detroit hope to survive the near hurricane blasts generated by a major political convention? Rather than fearing for the structural soundness of the new Joe Louis Arena, the conventions may attempt to move out into our neck of the woods—perhaps into the Silverdome.

In these days of energy conservation, the ability to operate the dome for several days without having to run the blowers to keep the roof up will make good economic sense to many.

We the people must prevent this from occurring: no conventions in Oakland County!

And speaking of the weather—lest we become a little too smug about our ability to resist nature's harangues—the weather bureau is cautiously predicting southeast Michigan's first significant snowfall of the winter by the end of the week, depending on the temperatures.

Given nature's way of dealing even-handedly in the long run, we can only reach one conclusion: Detroiters, keep your umbrellas handy. Independence residents—get out the snow shovels.

Gale force winds nearing velocities of 60 mph swept through southern Michigan Monday. Among trees that toppled was this old timer that appeared to be uprooted on the shore of Parke Lake, Clarkston. Independence Township's fire department reported no major problems attributable to the high winds, but a brown out was reported in the Walters Lake area, a fire department spokesperson said.

Jim's jottings

Procrastinating . . .

by Jim Sherman

Do you put off preparing for winter?

Outside our back door icicles grow from roof to ground. They hang (freeze and thaw) so close to the door jam sometimes it's impossible to open the storm door.

We take boiling water and pour it along the bottom until enough ice melts we can kick the door open.

On days when the ice is especially thick we've gone out another door and chipped the ice away with a hammer and screw driver.

It left permanent scars on the cement.

And, every year we wait until the ice is built up on the roof and eaves too far to remedy the situation.

That's just one of the winter-care projects we put off.

Another is the removal of dead marigold plants. Next spring and summer we'll be chopping at tough stems when we should be hoeing.

We treat raking the same way. We keep hoping a strong fall wind will erase the dead leaves collected in our front yard. Actually, the wind should blow them away. That's what put them there.

Which brings me to pine needles.

I thought pines and cedars shed every other year. Last year we had 40' bushel of needles and this year there are 50. Of course, that's an estimate.

I haven't gotten around to rake them up either. No way a wind will eliminate that chore.

Then there's the darn catalpa tree. I think that's the name of the tree that has those 2-foot long pods. They hang in your face all fall while mowing under the tree, then don't yield to the moving blade in the spring.

No, I haven't raked them up either.

Then there's the storing of yard games in the space above the garage, putting new spark plugs in the garden tractor, and running heating strips in one corner of the roof to prevent leaking.

No wonder people move into apartments.

They don't have to worry about such things as exchanging screens for glass in doors and windows, draining the lines of lawn sprinklers and...and...for heavensake, I forgot about the lawn sprinklers.

Lions provide services for needy

By Maralee Cook

Last year the now one-and-one-half-year-old Clarkston Lion's Club spent over $4,500 from donations to help the needy, said John Moreau, Lion's Club president.

Of that amount, $3500 was donated by area residents during White Cane week last April.

"People are very generous," John said, pleased that the club was able to raise so much money.

John and D'arcy Gonzalez, manager of Pontiac State Bank's Union-Commerce branch, had originally been members of the Pontiac Lion's Club. Because of job changes they could no longer attend the club's noon meetings, and thought the time might be right to form a branch in this area.

They found 31 men who agreed with them and formed the Clarkston club in March 1978. There are now 44 members.

While the Lion's Club is the largest single organization in the world of men devoted to working in and for their community, said John, each community club is autonomous.

Most of the clubs in Michigan are involved in sight conservation, said John. Those activities include free eye tests; purchasing eyeglasses, collecting old eyeglasses and hearing aids for the needy; and acting as a referral source for leader dogs and the eye bank.

The Clarkston Lion's Club has purchased a braille watch for a young boy who attends the Michigan School for the blind and has helped provide treatment for an area child who is autistic and emotionally impaired.

The club arranges for transportation to the Pontiac Lion's Club monthly bingo games for the blind which are played with braille cards.

There are two stores in the Flint and Detroit area which specialize in products for the blind, such as electric frying pans with braille instructions.

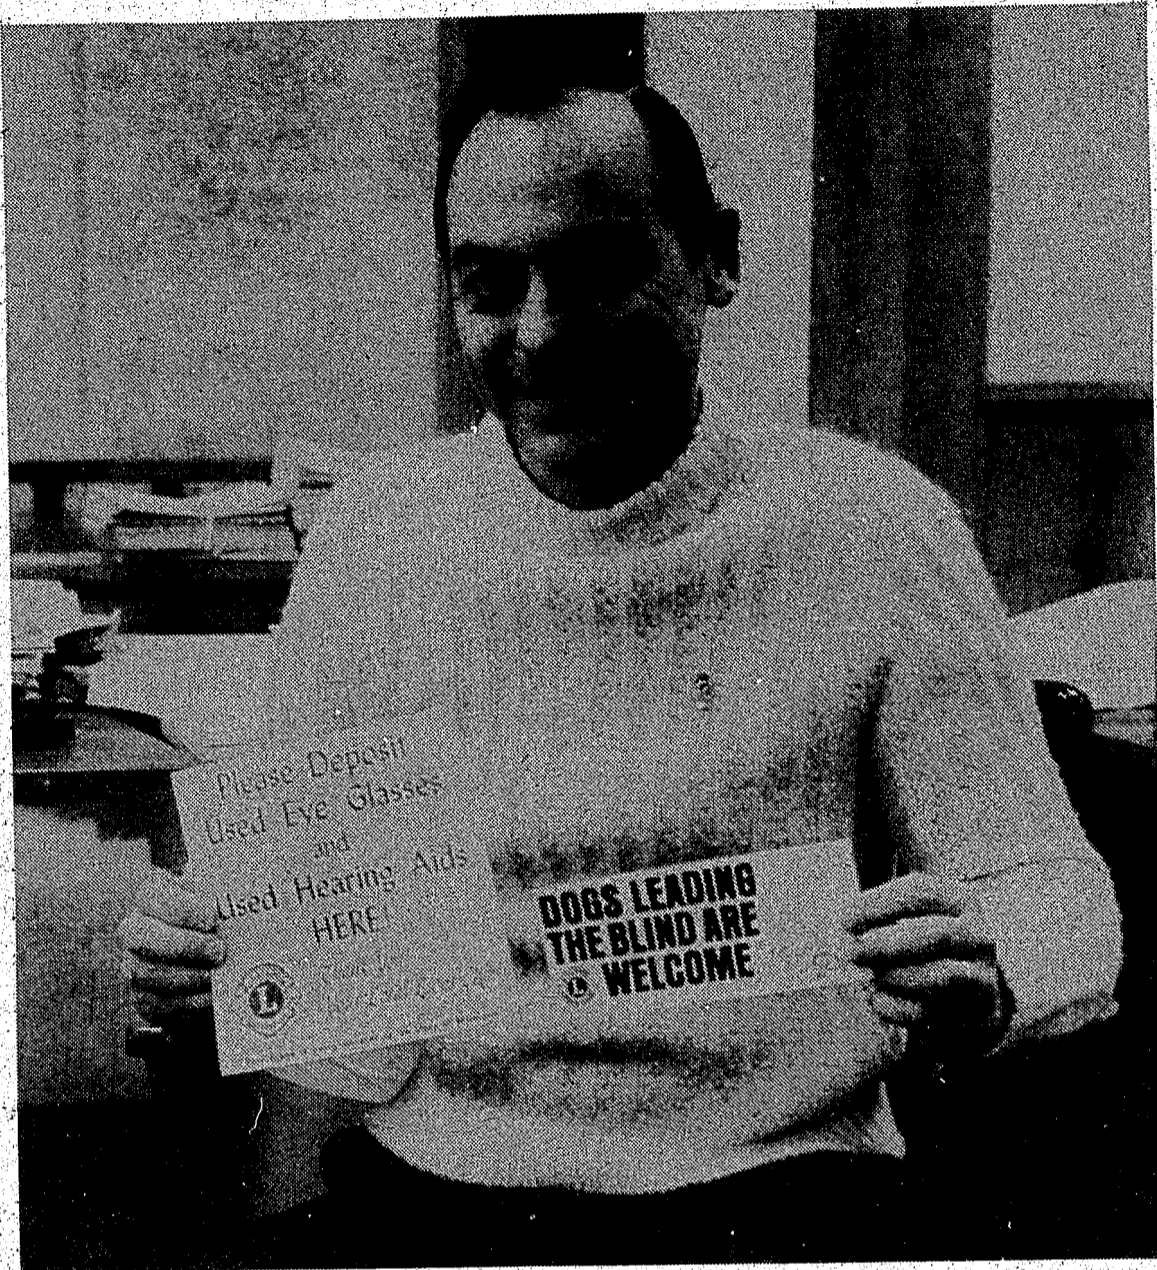

The Clarkston Lion's Club will arrange for transportation for a blind person to one of the stores, or will arrange for an item to be purchased for the person in need.

Club profile

WDET radio station in Detroit offers a program for the blind, and Clarkston Lion's Club members also distribute special receivers so area persons may listen to the program.

Fund raising activities include raffles, White Cane week in April and the upcoming sale of Christmas candy in cane-shaped containers.

The Clarkston Lion's Club meets the first and third Thursdays of each month at Spring Lake Country Club. There is no limit on the number of members, said John, and those men who are interested in joining the club may call Jim Mahar, chairman of the membership committee, at 623-9396.

Window stickers for merchants, giving notice that leader dogs are allowed in their establishments or that they provide a drop-box for used eyeglasses, are available through the Clarkston Lion's Club. Club president, John Moreau said all mail addressed to the Clarkston Lion's Club, Clarkston 48016, will reach him.

Sexy Rexy's not "Crowd"

by Jim Fitzgerald

A young woman who works as a secretary in a law office, told me she is furious about a TV show called "Three's a Crowd." She also said her idea of a great time is to watch a disco dancer named Sexy Rexy take off his clothes.

Her name is Mary. She doesn't like the TV show because it "perpetrates and encourages gross sexual attitudes toward women and condones sexual harassment." She admits she lifted that quote from Gloria Steinam.

Mary likes to watch Sexy Rexy perform because "men go to bars to watch women strip, so why shouldn't women do the same thing to men? It's only fair." That quote belongs entirely to Mary, but I suppose Gloria Steinam might agree with it.

I've never seen "Three's a Crowd" and I never will. I'd rather go to the dentist. It is generally believed that it is unfair to criticize something you've never seen ("try it, you might like it") but that's a lot of baloney. If you have any nose at all, you don't have to open the backhouse door to know it is overflowing.

My TV Guide told me "Three's a Crowd" is produced by Chuck Barris, who also produces "The Dating Game" and "The Gong Show." The three who make the crowd are a husband, his wife and secretary. The plot is that the secretary admits she has Xeroxed the cute mole on the husband's fanny, and the wife screams. The happy ending comes when the backhouse submerges.

Sexy Rexy is something else I've never seen, but I don't have to open his backhouse door, either. I've read that he's a 21-year-old dancer from Indianapolis who makes a lot of money by dropping his pants while women scream in dismal bars, not to mention ecstasy.

Mary the secretary reports that women react to Sexy Rexy by jumping on tables, pounding on floors, and imploring him to remove his bottom-layer bikini. These women justify their peculiar behavior by saying they are only acting the way a man acts when he sees a woman strip on stage. They have a lot to learn about being equal.

In bars employing nude females, an occasional drunken man might become excited enough to plink his swizzle stick against his glass. But most male patrons of female skin shows sit quietly, pretending the skin has no effect whatsoever on their libido. They look bored, and they talk business and sports with each other, glancing only now and then at the bare women bouncing nearby. Most men don't appear to be having nearly as much fun watching naked gogo girls as Mary and her friends have watching Sexy Rexy.

Also, Mary said, the enthusiastic women are not celebrating Sexy Rexy's body nearly as much as they are celebrating one more victory in the never-ending game of catch-up they are playing against men.

I'll accept that. But how does Mary explain the glaring contradiction? She deplores "Three's a Crowd" because it encourages "gross sexual attitudes toward women." But doesn't Sexy Rexy encourage women to have gross sexual attitudes toward men? And isn't a gross sexual attitude repugnant no matter which sex is on the receiving end? Would "Three's a Crowd" be more acceptable if the secretary and spouse were men fighting over the cute mole on the fanny of a female boss?

Mary conceded I might have a point, but she said I should sit on it until nude male dancers outnumber nude female dancers, or until some irate woman shoots Chuck Barris, whichever comes first. Catching up is hard to do, tra la la.

It's OK with me if nude male dancers become as popular with women as nude female dancers are with men. Women deserve an equal opportunity to be as stupid as men. It's also OK with me that "Three's a Crowd" is one of the most popular syndicated TV shows in the nation.

To each his own. All I ask is the freedom from being forced to open the backhouse door.

Church St. station called inadequate for 'appartus'

Downtown Clarkston's fire station on Church Street may be on its way out.

"There's no doubt about it, No. 1 has to be replaced. 'It's inadequate,' Fire Chief Frank Ronk told the Independence Township Board last week.

The other township fire stations—No. 2 located at the corner of Sashabaw and Clarkston-Orion Roads and No. 3 on Maybee west of Sashabaw Road—need additions, Ronk also said.

"It's a necessary evil—we have to do it," Ronk said, citing growth in the township.

Ronk discussed using federal Community Development (CD) money for the additions.

Fire Station No. 3 is located in the southeast section of the township which has the lowest income average according to the 1970 census.

"That's where we're likely to get our first shot of CD," Ronk said.

The station presently has two bays that hold two fire trucks and it can sleep two people.

The proposed $70,000 addition would sleep up to four people and house an additional fire tanker.

No action was taken by the board, but Ronk said, "That's what we have to do in the near future."

If CD funds are not used, a request for a special tax assessment district would go to the voters, Ronk said.

An addition to Fire Station No. 2 could also be funded by either method, he said.

The proposed $100,000 addition is for an additional grass firefighting rig and a pumper or tanker.

"I just wanted to bring you up to date on where we are," he said. "By next winter, we've got to do something house-wise for our apparatus."

Replacing the village Fire Station No. 1 is his top priority, Ronk said, but the matter would be discussed "probably two meetings down the way."

The cost would be about half-million dollars to start, he said.

Fire call era ends

Fire department dispatching from private homes has all but ended in Independence Township.

Two of the three dispatchers have been terminated and the third is on-call.

Fire Chief Frank Ronk asked the township board last week for special recognition for Harold and Norma Goyette and Michael and Barbara Thayer for seven years of service.

"The reason for the change is it's becoming more of a long-term thing," Ronk said. "You're up most of the night.

"The calls are increasing, it just makes sense that the people in the fire stations are handling these alarms," he said. "It's my decision that this is the time to make the change."

In 1972, the three dispatchers were hired to cover emergency calls during evening hours and on weekends.

Although their yearly salaries were $5,000, the reason for the terminations was not money, Ronk said after the meeting.

"We're going to spend everything we've got," he said.

The board approved a resolution thanking the Goyettes and Thayers, noting that the men's names were removed from the payroll only last year.

Jack and Gail Hess will take emergency calls as needed, Ronk said.

Cagers seek third straight title

By Al Zawacky

Following last season's 20-3 record, Greater Oakland Activities League co-championship and berth in the district finals, it would be understating things a bit to say that the Clarkston High School varsity basketball squad is optimistic about its prospects in the 1979-80 campaign.

When coach Gary Nustad's team takes to the court in their season-opening contest at Davison Dec. 6, nine members of the 13-man roster will be seniors, including three returning starters who received All-Metro North mention at the end of last year.

Nustad acknowledges his cagers' enthusiasm and high hopes, but is cautious about making any sort of predictions. "I'm not much at making pre-season guesstimates," the coach said after a recent practice session. "There are four long, grueling months of play ahead, and only the strong come out on top in March."

"Expectation levels often exceed realistic levels," Nustad continued. "I think it's part of my job to keep things in perspective. We've got a very good and talented team, but it takes an entire season of hard work and dedication in order to perform."

Nustad said his first and foremost goal this season is to win the GOAL championship—an achievement that would give the Wolfpack three straight league titles in his four years of coaching.

That achieved, an undefeated campaign and a solid performance in the state tournaments would be his squad's remaining two goals.

"So much in tournament play depends on luck that it's really pointless to talk about how far any individual team should go," Nustad observed.

"I've seen undefeated teams lose in March while teams that were around 500 go all the way. Right now, we're just concentrating on winning our league."

Much of the Wolfpack's hopes this year revolve around their three returning starters: Tim McCormick, Ed Haddad and John Sheldon.

McCormick, a 6-foot-10 center who started as a sophomore two years ago, averaged a sensational 31.3 points per game last season, was named to the All-Metro North squad and established a school record with 625 points during the year.

Haddad was the only other Clarkston cager to average in double figures scoring wise with 10.1, while Sheldon posted a 6.3 average.

Both were given All-Metro North honorable mention, and Sheldon was also voted the Wolfpack's most improved player.

Other prominent starting candidates include senior Chuck Nickolai and junior Scott McKoin. Senior Larry Bayliss at the guard spot and senior Nick Lekas and junior Greg Lane at forward are also vying for starting positions this season.

Seniors Doug Hagyard, Paul Brown, John Pappas and juniors Jerry Tatu and Rick Schebor round out the Wolfpack roster. "Every player still has a chance of seeing a lot of playing time," Nustad stressed when mentioning his starters. "I plan on giving about eight or nine players regular duty during the course of the season."

Nustad sees Bloomfield Andover and West Bloomfield as the Wolfpack's strongest league opponents this year, but also added that the remaining GOAL teams promise to be competitive as well.

"West Bloomfield will be a very talented, if somewhat young team, and Andover has a star in Tim Meter," Nustad said.

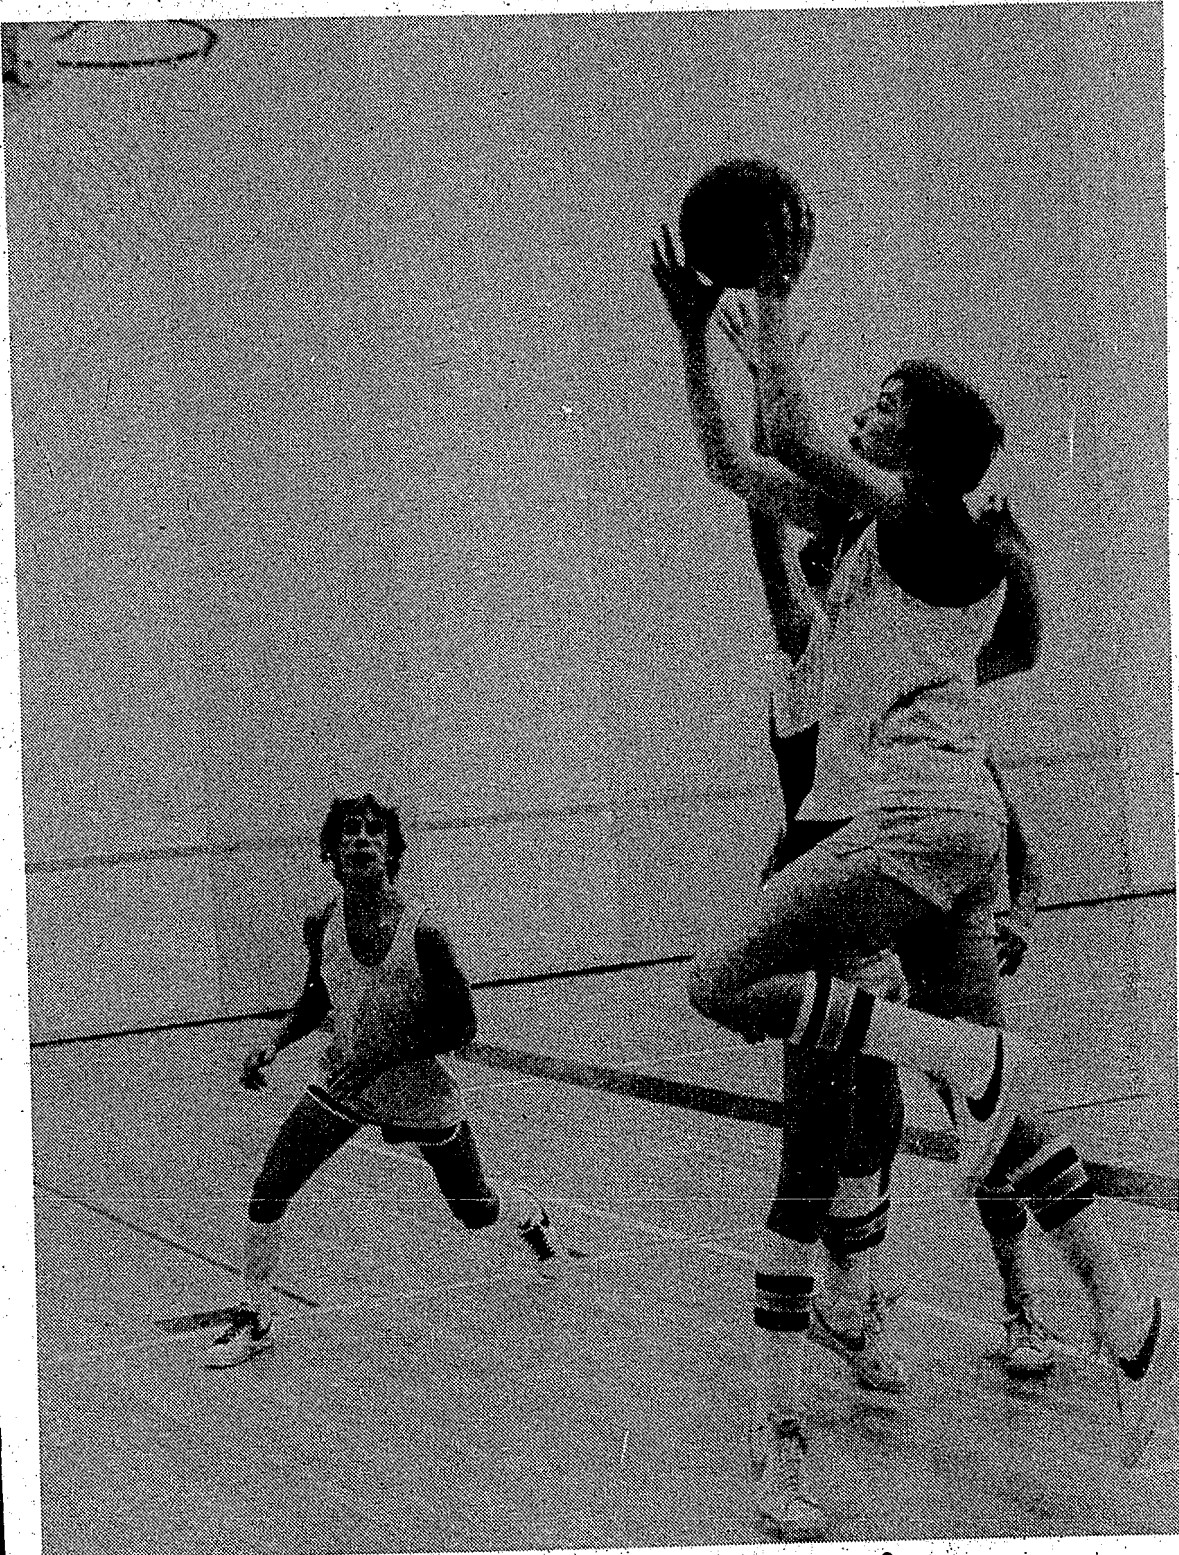

"Rochester has lost some people, but they'll be tough just on the basis of having won last year—their kids have learned how to win."

Nustad observed that Kettering traditionally plays tough against his team as well, and Milford, "a very physical team", according to the coach, is always difficult—especially in their own gym.

Nustad concluded by saying he was pleased with his squad's effort and attitude in the pre-season practices.

"These guys have to stick together for four months—it's important that they get along well," Nustad said. "I think that's one of our strong points—this group is willing to pull together, help each other and play as a team."

Future varsity in action

The varsity Wolfpack isn't the only local team working hard in preparation for the start of the prep basketball season next week—the JV cagers are stretching their muscles as well. Here, JV player Craig Schnabel goes up for a shot while teammate Joel Schrader [left] looks for a possible rebound.

The point after

by Al Zawacky

Last week I was present at the Clarkston Area Jaycees' meeting at the Clarkston Village Hall, during which Detroit News sports columnist Joe Falls made an appearance as guest speaker.

Falls, who makes his home in Independence Township, related a few humorous anecdotes and answered some specific questions about the Lions and Pistons as well. But there was one seemingly minor point he brought up that I remember best.

"It's important not to get caught up in an event," Falls noted. "You've got to keep yourself back in order to remain objective and be a good reporter."

That's always a tough assignment—basically because many of the people who write sports tend to be fans as well. For my own sake, Falls' words caused me to think of the upcoming Clarkston High School basketball season.

The 1979-80 Wolfpack—this is a team that has talent, that has enthusiasm, that has experience. What's more, it appears to have

(More 'Point After' on page 12.)

Local gymnasts fare well

Local gymnast Cindy Salter is continuing her pursuit of qualifying for the state gymnastics meet this January, performing well in a recent Class III B Division Open at Steve Whitlock's School of Gymnastics.

Cindy's score of 33.2 in compulsory events of 33.2 qualified her for competition in the state tournament, and her mark of 21.05 in optional competition was just one point shy of the necessary total.

In order to compete in the state meet, minimum qualifying scores must be achieved in both compulsory and optional competition.

Julie Boldin, Andrea Zanotti and Kelly Kareem were also in action recently, the first two girls competing in Class II while Kelly competed in Class I, all against a visiting team from Garden City named the "Rebels."

Julie placed sixth on vault and had an all-around score of 54.95; Andrea had a total score of 41.20, performing best on the bars and beams with an 8.25 mark in both; and Kelly posted a 55.80 all-around mark with scores of 7.55 on both the floor and vault competitions.

the desire and the character to play over all the pressure they must feel in the wake of the high expectations the community has of them.

It is going to be tough, very tough for me to try and keep from becoming a cheerleader for the likes of McCormick, Haddad, Sheldon, McKoin, Nicolai, et al. And I haven't even seen them play a single game yet.

Wolfpack Coach Gary Nustad is the type of mentor who credits his players with all of their success, minimizing the importance of his own role.

"I can't go out there and shoot a free throw for them," he says very matter-of-factly.

I've got to contest that a bit—a high school coach doesn't show his worth so much in the games, he shows it during his team practices where the learning actually takes place. Nustad's practices are organized and purposeful—he earns and receives the respect of his players and his school.

I can remember saying in a column a few months ago something to the effect that basketball coaches make little impression on their teams, that they either "have that big center, or they don't."

Gentlemen, enjoy this while you can, for it's not my nature to admit it: I think I was wrong.

If you didn't attend the University of Detroit Titans exhibition intra-squad scrimmage at Clarkston High School Nov. 19—well, welcome to a club of thousands.

The sad turnout had to be a major disappointment to the Titans, whose stopover in Clarkston as part of the public relations minded "Titan Caravan" was no coincidence. This is, after all, the home of a top-notch high school program, a town that logically should love its basketball.

There could be no crying about ticket prices, either—admission to the contest was free. What more could a basketball fan ask?

It is interesting, if nothing else, to speculate what type of crowd would have been on hand if Dick Vitale were still coaching at U of D. I was no big fan of Vitale's, but his position as a master of salesmanship and public relations is well established.

And his coaching and recruiting ability—as indicated by his win and loss record at the Titan helm—need no defense.

To make a long story short, I'd be willing to bet that the gym would've been packed.

I hope Vitale forsakes the Pistons and, health permitting, returns to a position in his true niche—the college coaching ranks.

"Organized and purposeful"—the Wolfpack works out under the watchful eye of coach Gary Nustad.

Coach Dave McDonald lends some advice to his cagers at Monday's practice in preparation for tournament play.

Julie Rawlings looks for an open teammate to pass off to during a varsity-JV inter-squad scrimmage.

Girls prepare for cager tourney

The Clarkston girl's varsity basketball season ended on a disappointing note Tuesday, but despite their 70-47 defeat to Rochester, coach Dave McDonald and his cagers are putting the regular season behind them and looking forward optimistically to tournament play.

The Wolves will play their opening tourney contest against Waterford Kettering at 7 p.m., Nov. 27, in the Clarkston High School gymnasium as a result of a drawing held last week.

"We're not displeased with our opponent, especially considering that we could have drawn a powerhouse like Grand Blanc," McDonald said.

McDonald noted that the Kettering Captains defeated his squad twice in their two meetings during the regular season, but doesn't view that as a bad omen.

"The old saying is that it's very tough to beat a team three times," McDonald said. "That, plus the fact that Kettering has always been a big rival of ours should enable us to play a strong ball game.

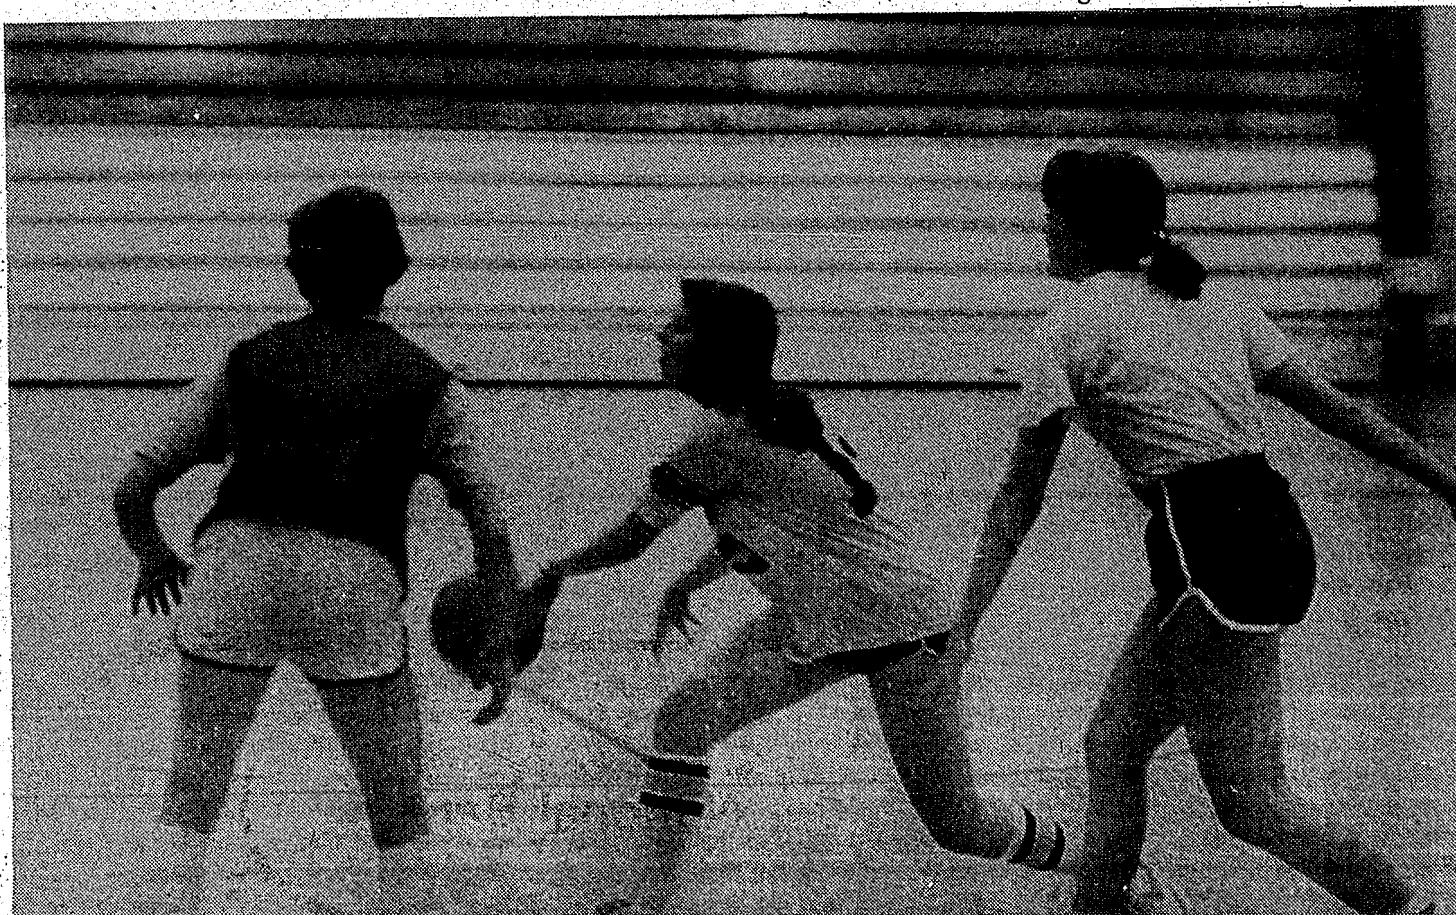

"We've been working on a few new wrinkles in practice that we'll try on Kettering," McDonald added. "They've got a very good guard that has been doing much of their scoring—we'll be trying a few things to slow her down a bit."

In the Rochester game, Kelly Ketzler and Pat Bradley each had eight points to lead the Wolves offensively, while all-state candidate Sue McColgan set a sizzling scoring pace with 34 points to lead the Falcons to the victory.

"They jumped ahead to a big lead early, and since the game didn't mean anything in the standings, we rotated our players and did some experimenting," McDonald explained. "The tournaments, of course, are a whole different story."

The winner of the Wolves-Captains contest will face Lake Orion in one of two contests to be played Wednesday night, with the finals scheduled the following Friday night. All the games will be played at Clarkston High School.

Julie Blackette breaks toward the basket—but not without some pursuit by two opponents.

Dressing up for Frosty Fashions

By Kathy Greenfield

It takes more to get ready for a fashion show than to just put on the clothes and walk on stage.

Peggy Vermilye, a Clarkston High School student, got some fashion tips for her part in Frosty Fashions planned by the CHS Business Office Education Club (BOEC) on Thursday, Dec. 29.

Last week, she went to the Essence of It in the downtown Clarkston Emporium and was outfitted for the show by Connie Bixby, the store's assistant manager, and Nina Skrubb, fashion co-ordinator for the store.

Peggy arrived at the Essence casually dressed, but before she left, she had a whole new stylish look with a good sweater, corduroy skirt, a hat, jewelry and the boots of the assistant manager.

Working with the about 10 girls who will model fashions from the Essence of It is a task Nina said she enjoys.

"It gives the high school girls a chance to try out new things," she said. "It helps them to get a better self image.

"The whole idea is just fun—that clothes can be fun, and that's what we're trying to show," she said.

Owner of the Essence of It Barbara Wittenberg agreed.

"You don't have to look like everyone else to be your own person," she said. "Many people from Clarkston aren't showing their individuality through dressing."

What she hopes the message will be, she said, is "how you can get dressed up, have fun and not spend much money."

Frosty Fashions will be packed with ideas for Christmas shopping and will include evening wear for the holidays, said CHS teacher Anne Reeves who sponsors BOEC along with Joann Eaton.

BOEC members plan to use the money they earn to help pay for an overnight stay at Detroit's Renaissance Center during state competitions with other high school students.

Models for the show will be club members, CHS teachers and parents of students.

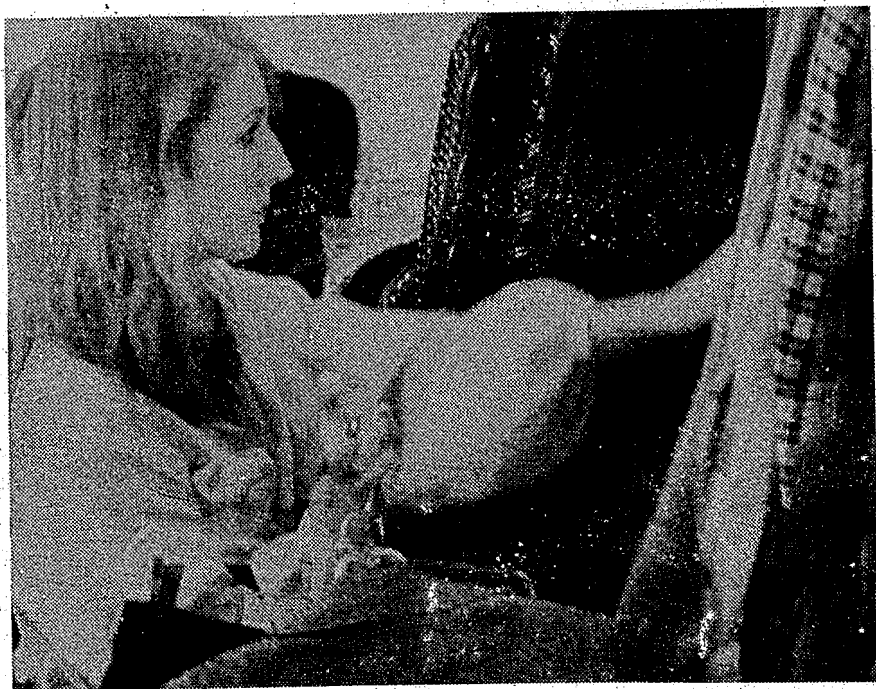

Other stores providing fashions are to be Catherine's of Waterford Township, Pine Knob Warehouse of Independence Township and Kay Baum of the Pontiac Mall.

Frosty Fashions is to begin at 7:30 p.m. at the CHS Little Theatre.

Tickets, on sale at the door, will be $2 for adults, $1.25 for students and free for children under 10.

The evening includes entertainment, door prizes and refreshments.

Nina scans racks of blouses, but later decides a belted sweater is just the thing to complete Peggy's outfit.

Coach sets team goals

JVs stress basics, 'winning attitude'

By Al Zawacky

How does it feel to play junior varsity basketball at Clarkston High School? It might appear as if the JV cagers labor in the long shadow cast by the school's highly successful and highly visible varsity squad.

But that's not the case at all, according to junior varsity coach Larry Mahrle.

"Although technically we're separate teams, I like to think of the varsity and junior varsity squads as one big unit," Mahrle says. "I think the health of our program depends on the strength of both."

"Until last year, we weren't drawing too well," Mahrle continues. "But now we get a pretty good turn out of parents, cheerleaders, the sophomore class and of course the varsity players. They root for us and we root for them."

"And the crowd can be a very definite factor in the way we perform," the coach says. "I don't think it matters too much in the pros, but at the high school and college level a good crowd is like a sixth player out there."

Mahrle began his coaching career at Clarkston High School three years ago, after coaching JV basketball for three years at Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes. During his tenure, the junior varsity Wolfpack has won league championships the last two years while winning 67 percent of their games overall.

"The major purpose of the JV program as Gary (varsity coach Gary Nustad) and I see it is to teach fundamentals and develop a winning attitude in the players," Mahrle says. "I think we've done our job in both respects."

Mahrle cites that of the present 13 players on the varsity roster, almost all of them had the experience of playing on a league championship team at the junior varsity level.

"Gary and I share the same game philosophies and work together as much as possible," adds Mahrle. "We're both wary of the zone, preferring to go with a man-to-man defense; we run similar patterns and believe in being aggressive."

"We constantly stress to the younger players the importance of their defensive play," Mahrle continues. "After all, everybody talks about the offense, but it's the defense that wins ball games."

Four of coach Nustad's varsity cagers are alumni of Mahrle's JV program last year: Scott McKoin, Jerry Tatu, Doug Hagyard and Rick Schebor. And there appears to be some strong potential on this season's junior varsity squad as well.

Mahrle cites the practice play of forwards Brad Beattie, 6-foot-2, and Craig Schnabel, 6-foot-1.

"They'll give us a lot of our scoring punch," says the coach. "Duane Cahill (6-foot-3) has improved tremendously at center, and Scott Weaver has been running well at the point guard."

Joel Schrader, who has seen limited action during practice due to a foot condition, and Kevin Coppersmith, a transfer student from Texas, are two unknown quantities.

"In what little we've seen of Schrader, he's shown potential," Mahrle observes. "Coppersmith is a big kid, but he's been fighting the flu and is still adjusting to our system."

Looking ahead to a long and hard battle for the Greater Oakland Activities League title this season, the coach harbors no doubts about his team's potential to claim another championship.

"We've established a number of goals for ourselves: to win the league title and to go undefeated against all the Waterford schools—Mott, Kettering and Township," Mahrle says, explaining that as ninth graders, many of his players can remember losing to the powerhouse Waterford teams.

"I really do feel that this team can do it, provided they want it—if they show up for practice on time, work hard and learn as much as they can, particularly in their defensive play."

"Again, it's defense that wins ball games."

Nichols family finds busy is best

For Therm and Judy Nichols, Clarkston has provided the small town atmosphere they both missed while growing up.

Therm was raised in Avon Township while Judy, whose parents owned Jacobsen Trailer Sales, lived across the street from the dealership on Williams Lake Road in Waterford Township.

Before moving to Independence Township, Therm and Judy lived on Tubbs Road in Waterford. Their home was near one of Oakland/Pontiac Airport's runways, and from their house, laughed Judy, "you could see the fillings in the pilot's teeth."

Their growing family prompted the need for more living space, and they began looking for a new town and a new home.

They found a building site they liked on Paramus Drive, picked out a builder's model home, and 12 years ago, began to call Clarkston home.

"I always liked the looks of Clarkston," said Judy. "I like small towns and think it's fun to be able to know so many of the people we see uptown."

"You can identify with it," said Therm, adding that the whole family enjoys the idea of a center of activity which Clarkston offers.

The Nichols also like their close proximity to Clarkston schools. Son Andy, 6, attends Clarkston Elementary, Jim, 13, goes to Clarkston Junior High, while daughter Stacy, 15, is a student at Clarkston High School.

Between jobs, hobbies and school, about the only thing the Nichols family does together on a regular basis, said Therm, is attend services at Calvary Lutheran Church.

Therm, who is a residential heating contractor, also is a dealer for gas cooking grills.

He first gained experience in the heating industry as a gas appliance serviceman for Consumers Power Co.

After working in that capacity for seven years, Therm left in 1971 to join Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center, and helped set up their first appliance repair class.

Five years later, Therm decided to start his own business.

Therm enjoys being out and working with people, he said. His business has grown steadily, he added, and in the future he would like to open a retail outlet for heating and cooling supplies.

Judy, who is a non-practicing medical assistant, works part time at Terri Berri's Gifts in Clarkston. She said she does her part for Therm's business by answering the phone and making appointments—for which, she added, she receives a token paycheck.

Stacy, who belongs to a swing-jazz choral group, has Broadway on her mind. She is a member of the Clarkston High School drama club and varsity choir. And, her jazz, tap, piano and voice lessons keep mother and daughter very busy.

Jim is a budding photographer, taking pictures for the school newspaper and yearbook. His range of photographs include candid shots, posed and action athletic team shots, and photos of dances.

He hopes soon to set up a darkroom and start developing film.

Jim, who also collects stamps, has an interest in music and sings in the Clarkston Junior High chorus.

Although Andy professes to enjoy watching Woody Woodpecker cartoons, Judy says he also has an ear for music, and has been known to pick out a few simple tunes on the piano. Andy was recently chosen student of the week in his first grade class. He said it was because, "I've been kind."

In addition to school and hobbies, the Nichols are involved in church activities. Jim is attending confirmation classes, Judy and Stacy sing in the adult choir and Therm is on the church council.

"I'm glad they're involved," said Judy of her kids' activities. "There's a lot of running for Stacy," she continued, "but I'm glad they have something they're interested in."

Judy said her hobby is her children, although she does like to get out once in awhile with her Bunco group and bowling. Judy bowls once a week with a women's league.

Judy and Therm have been bowling in a mixed league at Howe's Lanes for 13 years with the same partners—Sharon and Therm, who enjoys having his own business, hopes to open a retail outlet for heating and cooling supplies. Son Andy, 6, was recently chosen student of the week in his first grade class.

Jim's and Stacy's hobbies keep them busy. While Jim prefers photography and collecting stamps, Stacy plays piano, sings and dances.

Emmet Morse—who got them together on a blind date.

Since both Therm's and Judy's parents live in Florida, most of their vacations are spent there. But things may change in the future, thanks to a trip to Mexico the Nichols recently took courtesy of a sales promotion through one of Therm's manufacturers.

Judy and Therm spent five days in Cancun, a resort area on the Gulf of Mexico.

"It was gorgeous," said Judy.

Those five days of hot sun, beautiful scenery, ancient Mayan ruins and bargaining in old market places put the bug in the Nichols to do a little more traveling.

"We're kind of attracted to old things," said Judy, about the antiques in her home, although, she added, they are not serious collectors. Most of their antiques have special meaning, like these shoe lasts, used by Judy's grandfather, who was a shoemaker.

Sibling rivalry — natural phenomenon

Are we ever free of sibling rivalry and the feelings that go along with this natural phenomenon? The resentments, hero worship and even passionate loyalties as well as intense competitions?

An internationally known concert pianist, seemingly as secure as anyone could imagine a person to be, recently confided something to us. "I've always envied my brother," she said, "Because he was never made to practice the piano. Also, he had such wonderful artistic talents."

Her brother also confessed recently to her that he, too, had always been envious of her because she was so highly acclaimed around the world while he toiled at his craft with relative anonymity.

This we find is not a particularly unusual situation. The feelings we have toward our brothers and sisters from childhood often last into our adult years.

And, it doesn't seem to be dependent on how our parents treat the children. Jealousies and hostilities, love and secure bonds develop between siblings no matter what the parents try.

Parents who promote a close and loving family may find years later that their children are very different and don't actually like each other. In other families where closeness was not at all emphasized the children in later years may be inseparable friends.

An important aspect in the question of the relationship between siblings is their individual personalities and how they get along. Patterns of behavior based on conflicting personalities would not be expected to change as those basic personalities would not change over the years.

Sibling ties, no matter how good or bad the relationship, seem to remain secure throughout life. Very few people toss off the relationship with a sibling as unimportant.

The feelings for a loved or hated brother or sister seem to be invested with much emotion that may remain constant over the years.

One thing, however, does seem certain. The childhood battles between brothers and sisters often leave indelible scars.

This seems especially true when the battles are fought for the love of a parent when there is not quite enough love to go around.

PORTER'S ORCHARD

(1½ miles East of Goodrich on Hegel Rd.)

Old hand at wallpaper has new business

Rogena's Wall and Window Coverings opened this month in downtown Clarkston, but owner Gene Collins is neither new to the area nor to the field.

She sold wallpaper at a local hardware store eight years before deciding to open her own business.

With over 100 wallpaper books and a full line of draperies, shades, blinds, verticals and curtain rods, the shop makes it easy to satisfy various decorating tastes.

"It's strictly an individual thing—every family is a little different," Gene said. "When it comes to a room, you have to pretty well do it yourself, because you're the one who's going to have to live in it."

With her respect for individual lifestyles comes an assortment of designs to suit each one.

"The books run from the inexpensive to the designer series," she said.

Gene has six wallpaper hangers she can recommend for those who want to have the job done, but "most people can hang it themselves if they decide to do it," she said.

The supplies including cutters and adhesives are for sale at Rogena's, and Gene can also tell customers how to do the job.

An unusual feature inside her store is a playroom to entertain youngsters while their parents shop.

"More than half my people that come in here have small children, and you can't expect a little guy to sit still for an hour with nothing to do," she said.

When she first saw the space in her store formerly used as an office, Gene's reaction was, "Aha! That's the playroom."

"That probably comes from being a den mother and all those good things," she said.

A 27-year resident of Independence Township, Gene and her husband Ron have five sons, a daughter, a daughter-in-law and a grandson.

Hours at Rogena's, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, are 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday.

Rogena's Wall and Window Coverings also offers a variety of wall murals like the one pictured above with owner Gene Collins.

Self-respect taught at Weight Watchers

Monday's grand opening celebration of the new Weight Watchers Center in Waterfall Plaza was highlighted by the appearance of Florine Mark, club president for Michigan, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, parts of Ohio and Mexico.

Ms. Mark participated in a ribbon-cutting ceremony, presented donations for the Waterford Goodfellows to Waterford Township Supervisor James Seeterlin, and spoke to club members about the Weight Watchers program.

The new branch at 5651 Dixie Highway, opened for business September 24.

Various clubs, meeting in schools and churches in Waterford, Drayton Plains, Clarkston and Davisburg were consolidated to form the new branch, and its members total over 400, said Ruth Ann Roe, North Oakland County area manager.

Ms. Mark, who lost 50 pounds through Weight Watchers 15 years ago still attends meetings for weight maintenance.

"We teach self respect at Weight Watchers," she explained to club members. "We all want to look better, at whatever age. I believe you can do anything you want to do, if you want to do it bad enough."

Ms. Mark said the point of the program is to build new eating habits for its members.

Weight Watchers also offers a Personal Exercise Program (PEP), which was developed under the supervision of Lenore Zohman, M.D., a specialist in the field of cardiopulmonary rehabilitation.

Weekly meetings are held during the day and in the evening at the center. There is also a special Saturday morning meeting for pre-teens and teens, which is currently attended by about 20 boys and girls.

The fee is $10 for the first week, and $4 for every week thereafter.

"If members follow the program," said Ms. Roe, "it works."

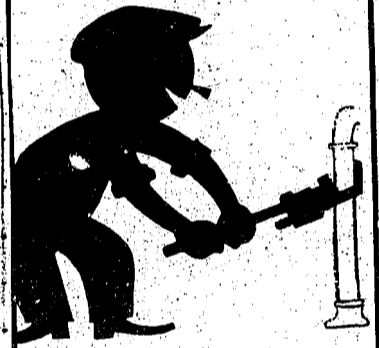

Florine Mark, president of Weight Watchers for Michigan, spoke to club members at the grand opening celebration of the new center in Waterfall Plaza. "I feel better today than I did at 20," said Ms. Mark, who lost 50 pounds through the program 15 years ago.

Gift ideas for animal lovers

As the Christmas holidays loom big and bright before us, I thought I might share a few gift ideas with you.

First of all, and fresh off the press is a book by Conrad Lorenz, the expert on geese, about geese-watching—the fascinating behavior characteristics, emotional bondage, grief, all told in delightful regard for these majestic birds. The incredible photography in breathtaking, unspoiled beauty make this book a true coffee table delight. "The Year of the Greylag Goose," Wolfe Publications, $25.

Another fascinating book is William Hedgepeth's "The Hog Book," Doubleday, hardback, $10, paper $6.95. Most people think of hogs as synonymous with filth and greed, or as pork chops. In a humorous blend of fact and fancy, the author builds respect for the qualities of the everyday barnyard pig. The book ends with a description of the pigs' last journey through the mindless machinery of the slaughterhouse, but the reader has a new vision of the common, hot-blooded, feeling, intelligent, big-hearted, fastidious, nimble-footed hog that nobody knows.

"The Gift of Birds," a new publication of the National Wildlife Federation, explores the endless wonders of birds in recollections by Roger Caras, Emily Dickenson, and other poets and naturalists. It features over 200 full-color photographs, paintings, and illustrations ranging from exotic birds to familiar birds and shows how they live, raise their young, learn to fly, and much more. Before Jan. 1, the price is $10.95. Write to National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Another marvel is the fleeting beauty of butterflies block printed by Kazaka Sekka. The book, "A Flight of Butterflies," W.W. Norton, $16.95.

An all-time favorite that I mentioned last year is the book "Mutt" by Dolensek and Burn, published by Potter Press. This sensitive portrayal of the less prestigious pup and his workings and wormings into the hearts of his people is a coffee table must for the dog lover. It comes in hard and soft cover, the latter being $6.95.

If you are looking for dog and cat care books, be sure to glance at ones by Dr. Michael Fox, one of the most prominent animal behaviorists of today.

As for bird guides, try Roger Tory Peterson's, or the Audubon guides. Be sure to get the one for the region of your interest.

"Equus," by Robert Vavra with a forward by James Michener is the most intellectually and visually exciting horse book I have ever seen. This is a must for lovers of the horse mystique. There is also a gorgeous Equus Calendar available for $4.95. The book is published by William Morrow and Co. and is $30.

You might like to give a gift of membership in the National Wildlife Federation which provides a bimonthly magazine and publications to members at a discount as well as information on camping and seminar opportunities. This is $8.50. Contact the federation at the above address.

The Michigan Audubon Society in conjunction with The National Audubon Society, offers sanctuaries, field trips, movies, camp-outs, a beautiful magazine, bird walks, and information on environmental issues. Memberships are tax deductible and are $18 for individuals, $21 for families, $13.50 for senior citizens and $15 for senior citizen families. Write to the Michigan Audubon Society, 7000 Westnedge, Kalamazoo, Mich. 49007.

Michigan Natural Resources Magazine is a bargain at $7.97 with its lovely pictures, interesting and informative articles, and travel information. It comes on a bimonthly basis. Write Box 30034, Lansing 48900, or phone 1-800-247-5470.

Animal Alert

Are your outside animals adequately sheltered in clean, dry quarters; protected from prevailing winds; insulated; and provided with clean, dry straw bedding?

Now is the time to get ready! Have your dogs checked for internal parasites now because the stress of cold to a debilitated dog can mean death!

PICK UP your "Complete Guide for Every Bride" at the Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston. 625-3370.

Clarkston United Methodist Church Holiday Bazaar

Holiday Bazaar at Clarkston United Methodist Church includes an array of Christmas gift items, luncheon and entertainment for the whole family.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the church located at 6600 Waldon, Independence Township.

Lunch from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. includes a choice of chicken casserole and sloppy joes plus molded salad and homemade pies.

For 25 cents, the Methodist Youth Fellowship senior high youth group will offer a drama at 11 a.m., noon, 2 and 3 p.m.

The junior high youth group will paint faces and conduct a cupcake walk.

The bazaar will feature toys, baked goods, needlework and a country store.

Betrothed

John and Sylvia Imbrunnone of Norman Road, Springfield Township, announce the engagement of their daughter Lisa Ann to Bruce E. Berard, son of William and Joyce Berard of Union Lake. The bride-elect attends Oakland University and Oakland Community College and is employed as a legal secretary. Her fiancé also attends OCC and plans to attend electrical trade school. He is employed by Resnick Electric, Detroit, as an apprentice electrician. A May 24 wedding is planned.

Recipe File

By Lorna Bickerstaff

Jan Weber's chess pie will be served at the Clarkston United Methodist Church Bazaar luncheon this Saturday. The pure vanilla extract used in the pie may be purchased at the Country Store booth.

Chess Pie

- 3 large eggs
- 1½ c sugar
- 1 T vinegar
- 1 T cornmeal
- 1 stick margarine or butter
- 1 T pure vanilla extract

Melt margarine and let cool. Beat eggs until light, add sugar, corn meal and vinegar and stir to mix well, but don't overbeat. Add cooled margarine and pure vanilla extract. Pour in unbaked 9-inch pie crust. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour.

Student assistant Lisa McGuffin, who is a member of the Detroit City Ballet Co., sets the pattern for the girls to copy.

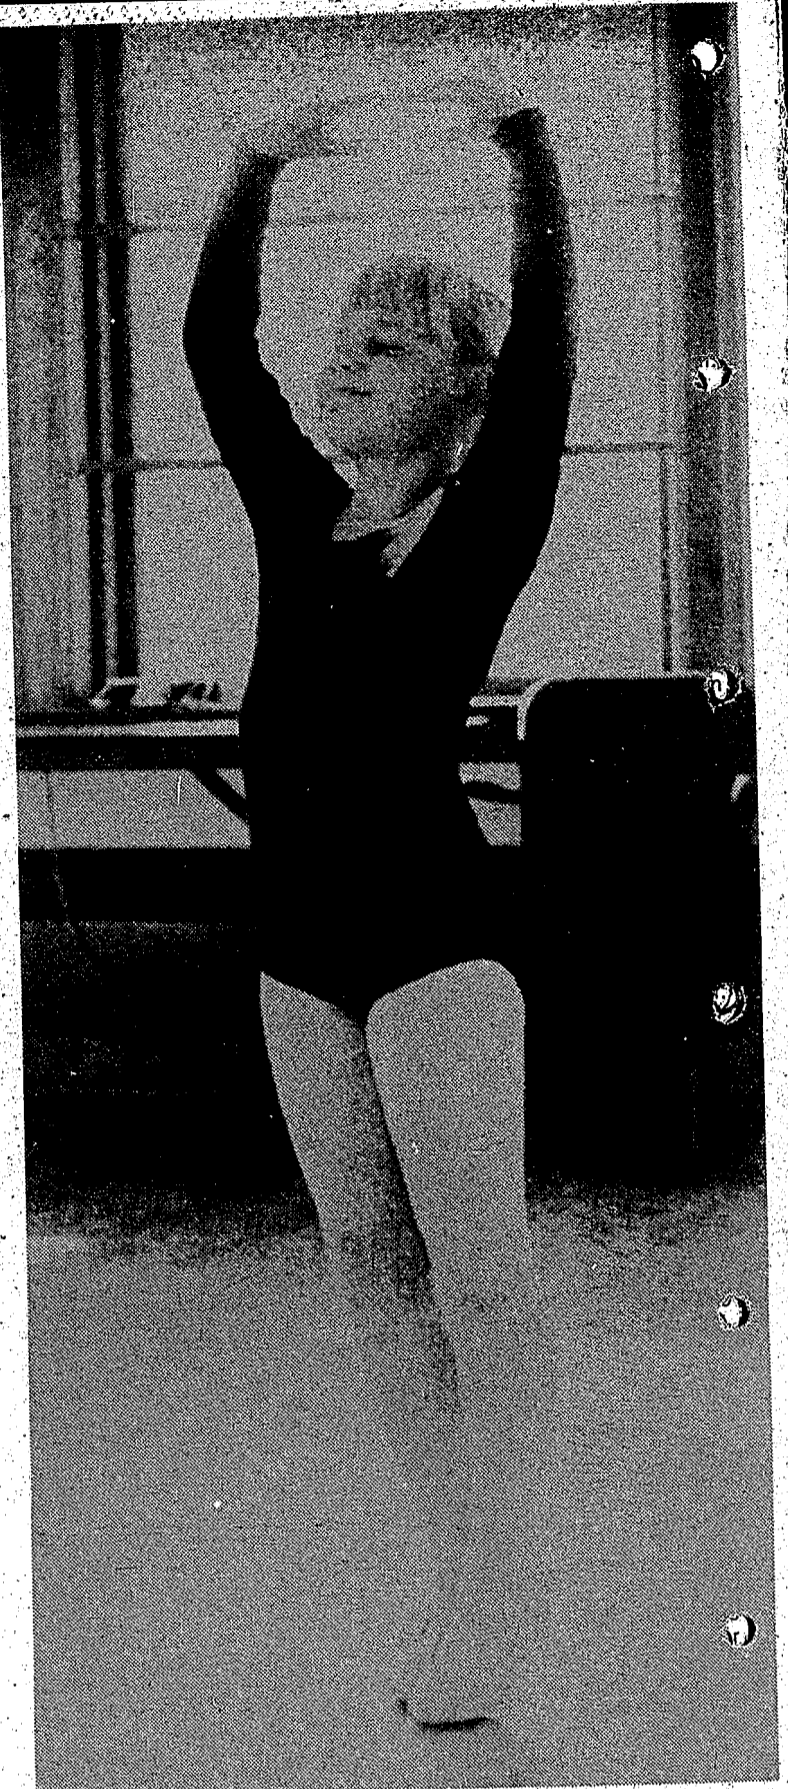

Showing what her teacher calls "a touch of Swan Lake," Stacey Seacatch [front] and Nancy Needham practice yet another ballet position.

Tamara Clark [left] holds her pose as Robin Nicholas is helped into a correct start position for a Retire. In addition to ballet for ages four through adult, Zoe Ann teaches tap, jazz, Scottish Highland, adult ballroom dance and teen disco for the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department. Registration for the next classes is in January.

Dance, dance. Dance!

Karen Bielecki responds to her teacher's plea to "Smile!" with a mighty pleased expression.

Zoe Ann Keros has a master's degree in dance from University of Michigan. Her participation in the dance lessons through the recreation department is mainly due to fond memories. "When I was younger, I took some lessons through a recreation department and it was very, very enjoyable," she says.
