Pine Knob wants amusement park

By Kathy Greenfield

A 12-ride amusement park is Pine Knob's latest plan.

Conceptual review of the about-five-acre site plan is tentatively set for the Jan. 24 Independence Township Planning Commission meeting, said Timothy Palulian, building and planning commission director.

He and Tod Kilroy, the township planning consultant, met with Joseph Loricchio, Pine Knob co-owner, to discuss the proposed amusement park about two weeks ago, Palulian said.

"Right now, he (Loricchio) wants to put in approximately 12 permanent amusement-type rides on a permanent basis that will act as an ancillary use to the music theater," Palulian said. "It would open before and after the performances, but not during or when there are no performances.

"It will be like a standard fair-

-bumper cars, octopus, scrambler and ferris wheel," he said. "He (Loricchio) also proposes a two-car gondola from the base of the lodge that will ride to the (Hamburger) Mansion and back again."

The planning commission will have to decide if the recreation district zoning includes such a use, but Palulian said approval is likely.

"On its face, it would seem like an acceptable use," he said.

Under the recreation district's permitted principal uses, fairgrounds are included.

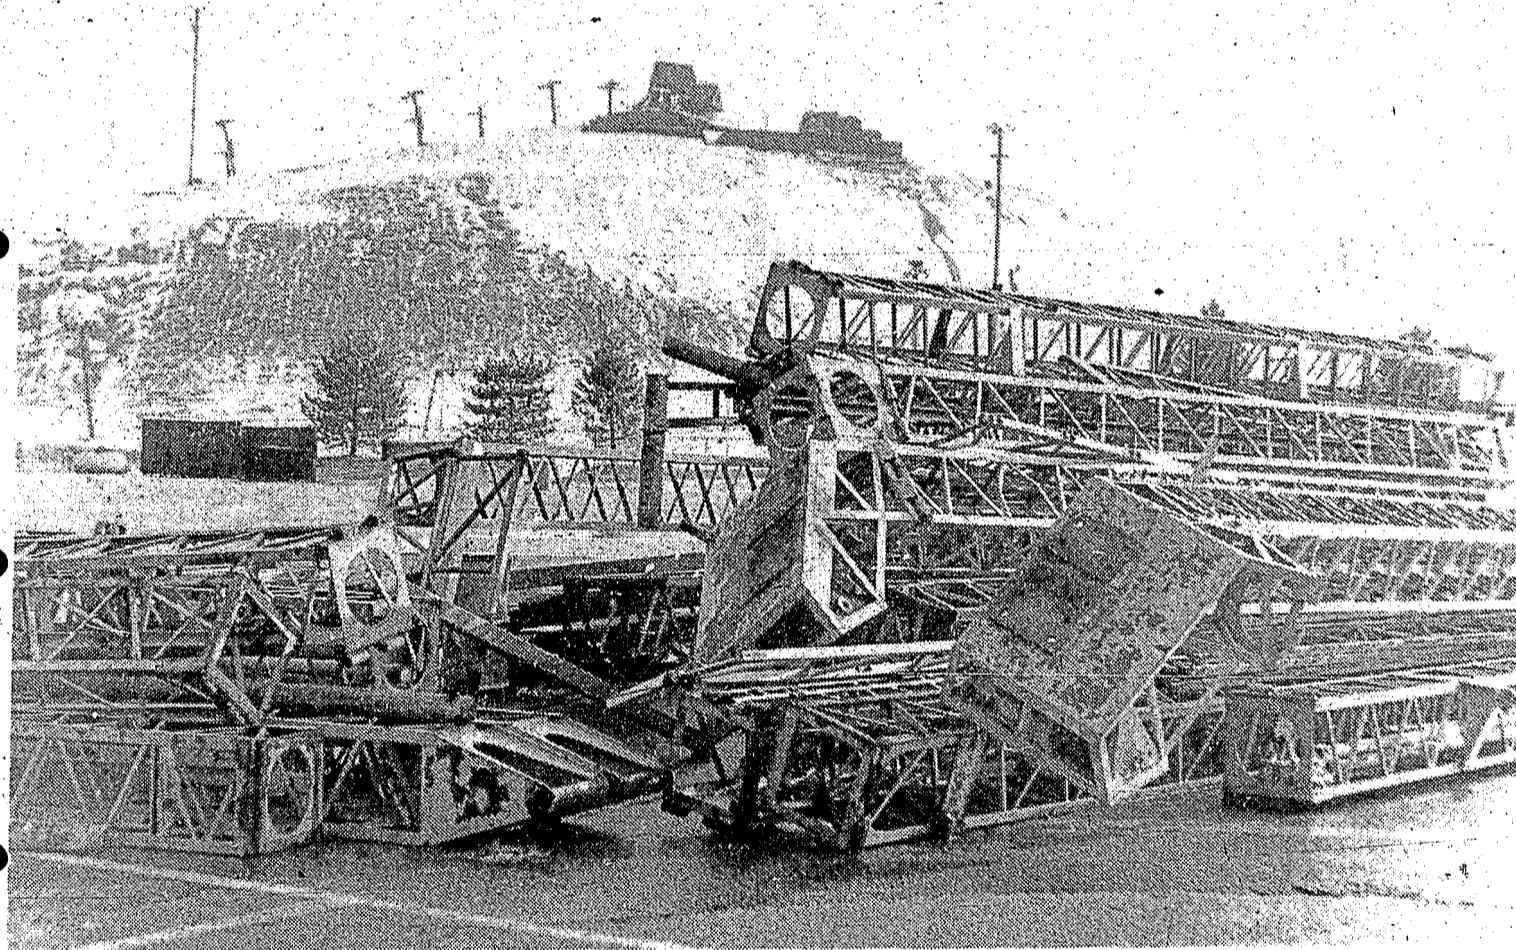

"When I look at the ordinance, I automatically interpret a fairground with amusement-type facilities," he said. "There is also a clause in the recreation district for any use that may be deemed compatible to existing uses as approved by the planning commission."

The first presentation is to be conceptual, so an additional meeting would be needed to consider the final site plan. If approved, construction could begin.

From all indications, Pine Knob is planning on approval.

"They already have some of the stuff there," Palulian said. "It's laying in their parking lot. It's framing for what appears to be amusement rides. I don't know if it would be for bumper cars or a ferris wheel."

The planning commission meets at 7:30 p.m. at Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Dave Delpiere, Pine Knob ski area manager, confirms that the girders and metal objects in the Pine Knob parking lot are an amusement park ride, but says they do not belong to Pine Knob. "I have no real comment," he said. "It doesn't belong to us. It belongs to an employee of ours who is in the carnival business. Some of it has been here since this fall."

Clarkston kids' tests have one flaw

Administrators find reasons for 10th graders' math scores

By Pat Braunagel

The Michigan Educational Assessment Program has once again found Clarkston fourth and seventh graders performing well above state averages on reading and mathematics tests.

However, the district's 10th graders, tested for the first time in the statewide program, fell below average for the percent who made minimal achievement on the math portion of the test.

The report made to the Clarkston School Board Monday night showed that 49.5 percent of the district's 10th graders had achieved at least 75 percent of the educational objectives tested. The statewide percent was 49.8.

School district administrators have listed a number of reasons why the 10th graders did not do as well on the tests as their younger brothers and sisters, and they've asked the public to look at the test results in another manner than that traditionally presented in the media.

By compiling the statistics to compare averages in skill area achievement rather than proportions of overall goals achieved, the district's 10th graders averaged 73.6 percent in math compared to 73.8 percent statewide, a figure administrators claim is not only higher but more indicative of real achievement.

In attempting to focus public attention on one way to report the results instead of another, administrators are confronted with one of the snags in the statewide testing program: how to make the results of the test meaningful to the public and still maintain the integrity of the program.

"As soon as we saw that number, we knew it wasn't so," William Potvin, director of planning and evaluation for the district, told newspaper reporters in a briefing session

Monday afternoon.

"We're convinced that number is not indicative of what our 10th graders have the ability to do," he said. The math score is the one administrators attacked--the reading report showed 65.3 percent of 10th graders in Clarkston achieving at least 75 percent of the goals, compared to 61 percent statewide.

Secondary principals and counselors have suggested some reasons the 10th graders did not achieve better scores.

Potvin said the attitude of students toward the testing had much to do with results.

The students are not used to tests that are over an hour long (this one was three and a half hours), many of them had to leave the classrooms they were in to take the tests and there is no strong motivation to do well on a test that will affect neither their grades nor any future goals, such as college admission.

"It's difficult for them to feel a strong need to do well on the test," he said. He also noted that the roof of the high school was being repaired the day the test was given.

Cable television to get screening

By Kathy Greenfield

Television viewing has become such a popular pastime that cable television companies are willing to bank on the adage consumers frequently pursue—more is better.

MetroVision, a cable TV company from Atlanta, Ga., presented its package to the Independence Township Board Tuesday night.

The board voted 5-0 to establish a committee to investigate available cable TV services and report its findings to the board in April. Trustee William Vandermark was absent.

Named to the committee were trustees Jerry Powell and Rudy Lozano and William Dennis of Clarkston Schools. The Clarkston Village Council is to be asked to provide the fourth member in order to coordinate efforts.

Troy attorney Abraham Singer presented MetroVision's package to the board.

Cable TV has been in existence about 25 years in areas where local television reception was poor.

The RCA satellite has expanded program offerings by cable that include stations from across the United States, Singer said.

MetroVision offers 35 channels including regular stations from major cities plus those devoted to one topic—24-hour sports, 24-hour news, children's TV without commercials, an adult movie channel and a family movie station.

A local government channel and school station are also included.

"The essence of cable TV is that it is a matter of choice—people who want it will choose it," Singer said.

They will also pay for it. MetroVision installation fees are now $15 (usually waived during the first six months of operation).

The cable TV committee is to present a report, but not recommend one company over another, at the first meeting in April "so we can get a move on this," Powell said.

Two other cable TV companies have contacted the township—Rohm and Capital City—and they will be asked to make a presentation to the committee.

Similar proposals have been made to nearby communities including Waterford and Holly townships, said Supervisor Whitey Tower.

"There seems to be a big push all of a sudden for everyone to get a franchise," he said.

Monthly rates are $7.25 for the first TV, $2 for each additional, $7.25 for adult movies and entertainment and $3.50 for family movies.

Most cable TV companies offer basically the same rates, Singer said.

"That's one helluva deal," said Lozano.

"That's why everyone is selling it," Singer responded.

Because cable television companies must be franchised by local governmental bodies, income for the area is also offered.

MetroVision pays 5 percent of its gross income that includes all fees to the local government, Singer said.

Although 5 percent is the going rate, "everything is negotiable," he said, but the figure is "pretty firm" because if it was higher subscribers would have to pay more.

Which cable TV company to award the 15-year franchise to must be based on who the township feels comfortable doing business with and the financial stability of the company, Singer said.

Once approved, the company would start installation and have services available throughout the area in about 12 months, he said.

Wolfpack goes to 9-0 with Tuesday's win

The Grand Blanc Bobcats became Clarkston basketball team's ninth straight victim Tuesday night, as the Wolfpack romped to a 76-31 victory.

Afterwards, Clarkston coach Gary Nustad called it, "Our best performance all year"—and the Bobcats probably would have agreed.

"We played very well both offensively and defensively," Nustad said, "but I was especially pleased with the play of our defense."

"We led 43-16 at the half and never let up."

Tim McCormick was his unusual self in the contest, scoring 29 points, controlling the boards with 20 rebounds, and blocking 10 opposition shots.

Scott McKoin followed with 12 points and 9 rebounds, while teammate Larry Baylis had 9 points, and Ed Haddad had 8.

Still missing from the Wolfpack starting lineup was senior guard John Sheldon, but Nustad expressed hope that Sheldon would play against Rochester at home this Friday.

Rochester, at 4-0 in league competition, remains tied with Clarkston for first place in the Greater Oakland Activities League.

"One reason Rochester is winning is because of the success they had last year," Nustad said. "They've got two really good ball players in Chris Ribant and Dana Brault—we're looking for a real good ball game."

Village explores cop options

By Al Zawacky

A 1-mill tax increase may be in store for Clarkston village residents as a result of last month's decision by Independence Township to disband its police force.

In a move supported for reasons of economy and increased efficiency, the township board voted 4-3 last month to abolish the local department in favor of direct contracting with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department. As a result of the action, the village faces a decision with regard to police protection within its boundaries.

"We have a number of options, and a 1-mill tax increase may be necessary," said Village President Fontie ApMadoc.

One mill equals $1 in property tax for every $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

"We're going to have a public hearing at the council's next meeting on Jan. 28, and would like to hear the opinions of village residents," ApMadoc said.

The council meets at 7:30 p.m. at Clarkston Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston.

ApMadoc outlined a number of courses of action the village might take, including:

Approval of the township's plan, which would charge the village on the basis of its SEV (State Equalized Valuation of property) divided by the SEV of the entire township multiplied by 100. The resulting percent would be the village's share of the cost of providing the township with police services.

The cost of going this route, according to ApMadoc, would be approximately $15,600 per year plus another $2,400 to maintain the village's crossing guard, bringing the total to $18,000.

•The village may choose to form its own one-man police force. The cost of maintaining such a force, including two reserve officers for emergencies and the village school crossing guard would come to just under $23,000.

That price would probably necessitate a millage increase, ApMadoc said.

•Another option would be for the village to do nothing. "The Sheriff's Department is required by law to provide us with protection in the event of an emergency," ApMadoc said, "but that still leaves us with the problem of how to enforce our minor ordinances and building codes."

Councilman Jack Byers spoke favorably of the one-man department plan, suggesting that the 1 mill increase would be money well spent.

"An individual stood up at the (Independence) township board meeting and pointed out that local people dealing with local people created more mutual respect in dealings between a police department and the people they serve," Byers said.

"Even though our own one-man force might cost a little more, I think we'd get more for our money in the long run--and it's been so long since the village has asked for a millage increase while the services continue to increase and improve, I don't think the millage proposal is out of line at all."

Byers made a motion that the council hold a public hearing on the subject, saying that "a closer look at the matter," was in order.

Regardless of which action is taken, a millage increase may become an eventual necessity anyway, according to ApMadoc.

"Even by going with the township and not forming our own department, we may not be able to pull the $18,000 required out of the general fund--and inflation is going to increase that amount each year," ApMadoc said.

New ambulance service for area

By Kathy Greenfield

Riverside Ambulance Service now has an office in Independence Township with a paramedic unit on duty 24 hours a day.

After receiving an advance license from the state, the office opened last week at the Clarkston Professional Building, 5885 M-15.

The ambulance service is to cover Independence, Springfield and Brandon townships, said Lee Moore, vice president of Riverside and paramedic coordinator for the corporation.

Riverside has been working on having an office in the area for about a year, Moore said.

"We felt this area was definitely lacking, so this is why we came up here," he said.

The office space for the Riverside substation has been provided free in order to substantiate the need for a unit in the area, Moore said.

"There is no charge involved (for use of the office). It's just an aid to the community," he said. "We'll probably relocate at a later date."

Paramedics who serve on the ambulances are required to complete a two-year course of study and be licensed by the state.

They can administer drugs and use defibrillation, electrical energy to convert the heart back into some type of normal rhythm.

Once the training begins, it never ends, said Steve Dean, a paramedic assigned to the Independence substation.

"In order to keep our license up, we have to recertify every two years," he said, and the paramedics are also required to work at a hospital 24 hours a year.

Riverside communicates with a Pontiac General Hospital medical doctor for direction during emergencies, Moore said.

"But it's our firm belief people should go to the hospital they desire," he added, and a patient can request to be taken to Pontiac General Hospital, St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital or Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital.

The need for more ambulance service in Independence, Springfield and Brandon townships is why Riverside Ambulance opened a substation in Independence, says Lee Moore, vice president of Riverside and co-ordinator of the paramedics who work on the advance medical service units.

The ambulance would also provide transportation to hospitals in locations besides Pontiac.

"That's no real hang-up," Moore said. "If the patient is stable, that's no problem."

Riverside has six ambulances licensed by the state--two are certified as paramedic units and four are basic units.

One paramedic unit is stationed in Waterford Township and the other is maintained in Independence Township.

Telephone calls for service are relayed from the main office in Waterford.

In emergency situations like automobile accidents, the police or fire departments call the ambulance to the scene.

"They're supposed to call the closest one," Moore said.

"Before Fleet was the only advance unit in the whole area. Now people have an option. With us being stationed on M-15, it makes us the closest one for the area."

With the paramedic team on duty, charges for the ambulance service for emergencies are about $125, Moore said.

In most cases, insurance companies or Medicare or Medicaid are billed for the services.

"We find it's easier working with the different insurance companies rather than harrasing the people for the money all the time," Moore said.

Local ambulance service is also provided by two other companies--Fleet Ambulance Service Inc. with its closest substation in Waterford Township and Holly Volunteer Ambulance (HVA) that serves Springfield Township as well as Holly, Rose and Groveland townships.

Emergency Medical Technician is on board.

Some portions of Springfield Township are quite far from their office in Holly, said Lois Merrill, secretary to the HVA board of directors, so other ambulance companies are called for emergencies.

"If they can service that area faster than we can, fine," said Merrill. "We're here to save lives, not fight over who's going to take the call."

Fleet will continue to serve the area when called, said Thomas Gahan, chief of paramedics for the ambulance service.

"We're still running business as we always have," he said. "We'll always respond to Independence, Springfield and Brandon."

In emergencies, Fleet contacts Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital for direction, he said, and the decision of Riverside to move to Independence could be connected to the use of different hospitals for medical opinions.

"It's just a continuing battle of POH versus PGH, (but) my job is to give service to the community," he said.

Charges for ambulance calls are approximately the same for both Fleet and Riverside, he said.

"The person lying on the floor during an emergency is not shopping for price," Gahan said.

Students expected

Clarkston School District pupils may have a couple of extra days of school they weren't expecting.

They should mark Friday, Jan. 25 and Monday, Feb. 18 on their school calendars as two days they will be expected to be in classes.

The tentative school calendar agreed to last summer--and published in The Clarkston News as well as elsewhere--called for students to get those two days off. Jan. 25 was going to be a marking day for teachers and Feb. 18 was going to be a mid-winter holiday.

However, final settlement of a teachers' contract following their strike erased the new designations. So on both days it will be business as usual in Clarkston Schools.

Dogcatchers don't get any respect

By Kathy Greenfield

Joe Armstrong was driving down a rural road Friday when he passed two teenage girls.

One of them turned around and stuck her tongue out at him.

"I can't imagine why, except it says 'Animal Control' on the side of the truck," Joe said with a smile.

The reaction is not unusual. Dog catchers are just not popular, especially with children.

"Kids hate me," said Joe. "I get the same reaction from kids waiting for the bus or sliding down hills.

"When I'm around, a big scramble is made for the dogs and they start pointing in every direction, yelling, 'Get Home!'

"People must have a stereotype of dog catcher in their mind—they see a guy running around with a net trying to catch a little puppy. They think all he does is catch dogs, check to see if all dogs have licenses and pick up strays.

"The truth is, on strays it's less than 25 percent of the time that I'll catch a stray when people call," he said. "Probably the two biggest reasons for that are I can't catch the dogs, because I can't run that fast and they're gone by the time I get there."

In fact, Joe said, the strays that end up in the back of the animal control truck are those that come when he whistles.

An Independence Township resident, Joe has lived in the northwest corner of the township for about two years.

As animal control officer, he makes about $13,000 a year. His experience with animals includes work on the police force in Kalamazoo for one-and-one-half years where police were also responsible for covering animal complaints and working with dogs in the canine division of the Military Police for the Army where he served two years.

Despite the lack of popularity associated with his job and the low pay, Joe still has positive feelings. He has been animal control officer since September.

"I love my job," he said. "The reason I love my job is because of the people I work with—we're like one big family over there. We're very close.

"I have had other jobs where people talk about each other, but that doesn't happen here," he added. "There's no lack of communication. I really hate to see the two officers leave the department due to the recent board action."

Although the local police department is to be dissolved Feb. 2, the animal control portion of police services is to remain in the township, moving under the Department of Public Works.

Joe's job also includes checking on reports of cruelty to animals — the ordinance includes keeping watch on the care of any domestic animal — cattle, horses, pigs, sheep, goats and poultry as well as dogs and cats.

"I'm also in charge of seeing that the place they live is... the ordinance calls it 'wholesome'," he said.

He also handles dog bites, a fairly common occurrence in the township with an average of two or three each month.

"We quarantine dogs for 10 days," he said. "They can be quarantined at the owner's residence unless the bite is above the shoulders, then they must go to the Humane Society."

There is one part of the job he does not like at all, and that is picking up dead dogs.

"That's really the low point of the job," he said.

The dead animals are taken to the Humane Society.

"I have to put them in a wheelbarrow and put them in a cooler," he said. "I'd say it takes me three-and-one-half minutes and I have learned to hold my breath for three-and-one-half minutes."

Joe has some tips for local dog owners.

Dog licenses must be securely attached around the dog's neck.

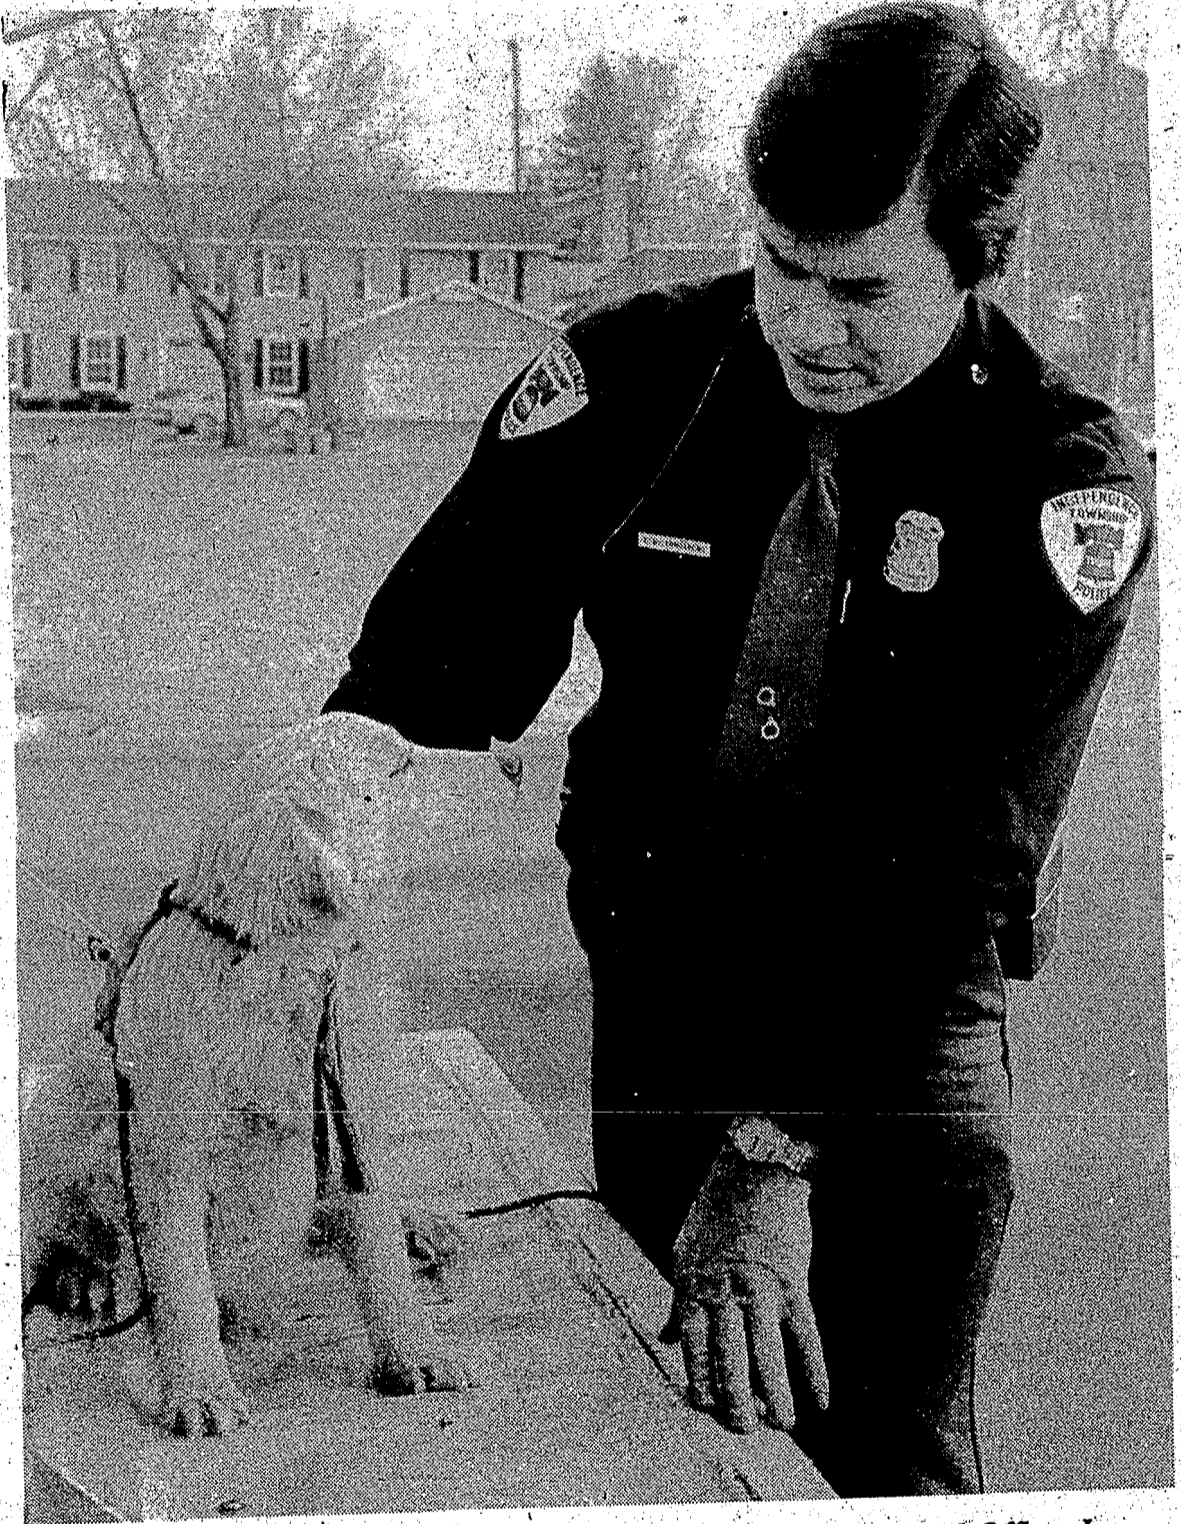

It is also against the ordinance to keep a stray dog without contacting the animal control officer. If the dog is worth less than $100, it's a misdemeanor, but if it's worth more than $100, the person can go to jail, he said.

Dog licenses in Independence Township are among the cheapest in Oakland County, Joe said. The fee is $3 for 1981 tags and the licenses are now on sale. After March 1, the fee increases to $6.

Dog owners who claim

'Kids hate me—when I'm around, a big scramble is made for the dogs...'

*-Joe Armstrong
Independence Township Animal Control Officer*

Most of the dogs caught by Independence Township Animal Control Officer Joe Armstrong are friendly. "They're the ones that come when I whistle," he says.

canines picked up by the animal control officer pay fees also among the lowest in the county, he said.

The first time, the charge is $15, the second time $25 and the third time it costs $50. After that, the dog can be destroyed immediately, he said.

One of the most frustrating things about his job, Joe said, is that people don't take responsibility for their animals.

"People have to remember that not everybody is a dog lover," he said. "People call me and they can't understand why they can't let their dog out to run.

"I mean, nobody likes to step in it," he said.

Responsibilities of dog owners include the obvious like shots and tags and some items not so obvious.

"They must train the dog to stay on their own property. They have to keep the dog from disturbing the peace. They also have to provide proper shelter for the dog," he said. "A lot of people don't do any of these things."

An effort by Joe to see that stray dogs are returned to their owners begins today in The Clarkston News.

Each week, types of dogs and locations where they were picked up will appear in the newspaper.

If a dog is missing, owners should call the Michigan Humane Society at 391-0800 or the local animal control office at 625-8600 immediately.

Because the dogs are destroyed after five days, listing those picked up earlier in the previous week would be futile.

Is your dog gone?

Four dogs were picked up in Independence Township by the animal control officer Joe Armstrong on Monday, Jan. 13.

5800 block of Maybee Road, beagle, tan and black, an older dog.

7200 block of Snow Apple, two dogs running together, mixed spaniel retrievers, small—12 to 15 pounds, one black, one white.

5400 block of Maybee Road, mixed breed, part German Shepherd, medium size, about 20 pounds.

For more information, call the Independence Township Animal Control Division at 625-8600 or the Michigan Humane Society at 391-0800.

Letters to the Editor

Where's safety path plan going?

To the Editor:

This will be the first letter I have written concerning my township, although I have paid taxes in this community for the past sixteen years.

The Clarkston paper has been delivered to me for many years and many of the comments in it were similar to my viewpoint, so I didn't want to clutter it with my scribbling.

There has been a lot said about a safety path or bicycle path.

At the cost of $40,000 to $60,000 per mile, "and you can bet your millage dollars, the high end wins," we are talking about 2 miles of paths 8 feet wide. That is the C.D. money budget funds of 1980.

What a waste of money!

I am a retiree. My after-dinner walk is that long. Gosh! A $160,000 walk! The money would be better spent on regulation sidewalks.

If we must have bicycle paths, take a look at the ones they built along 275. They are not 8 feet, they do not have 4-wheelers on them and many people use them.

They are long and pass through the country.

On occasion I have bicycled on the ones in Romulus with no problems. With a few sharp turns and narrow points, anything other than bicycles would be discouraged.

Still, how long of a path will we build? Where will it start? Where will it end? Who will it benefit?

I can see myself driving along a blacktop strip that starts nowhere and ends nowhere, with my grandchildren and saying, "See that strip of blacktop? Just like some dams I am paying for, it starts in my pocket and ends there, but it has yet to do me any good."

Dark clouds

by Jim Sherman

John Haire of the Cass City Chronicle wrote--when I was 11 I remember my mother saying that the future of small newspapers was doubtful because all the big major accounts were going to spend their money in radio.

Substitute television for radio and you had the concerns of the 60s. Substitute cable TV and cassette recordings and you have the concerns of the 80s.

You can substitute any industry you care to and there are dark clouds on the horizon. The corporate farm taking over for the family farm. The imports killing the auto industry and the appliances industry. Jobs lost to foreign competition.

Any of these fears can be substantiated. In the newspaper industry papers at Elkton, Gagetown, Owendale, Kingston & North Branch have folded within the last 20 years. Papers in Highland Park, Hazel Park and Madison Heights closed last month. Others are on their last legs.

It's sad that these papers are gone because it's a reflection of the struggle the communities they served are having to stay alive.

It's sadder still when papers die in towns big enough to support them. Died when their neighbor publications down the road have prospered.

The economics of newspapers are like any other business. They need good management or they die. The same as the family farm. While many succumb, others prosper.

There's a tendency for the farmer and the publisher to say that it's tougher now to get by than it used to be.

It may be worse today than it was five years ago, but it can't be worse that it was during the depression years. How did businesses manage when there were no checks and virtually no cash?

So it was certainly worse in the 30s than it was in the 70s and is apt to be in the 80s.

The next decade may not be as good as the last 10 years.

Our standard of living is due to go down, say the experts.

Inflation is eating away at all of us. There will be more papers tossing in the sponge. More family farms will be consolidated.

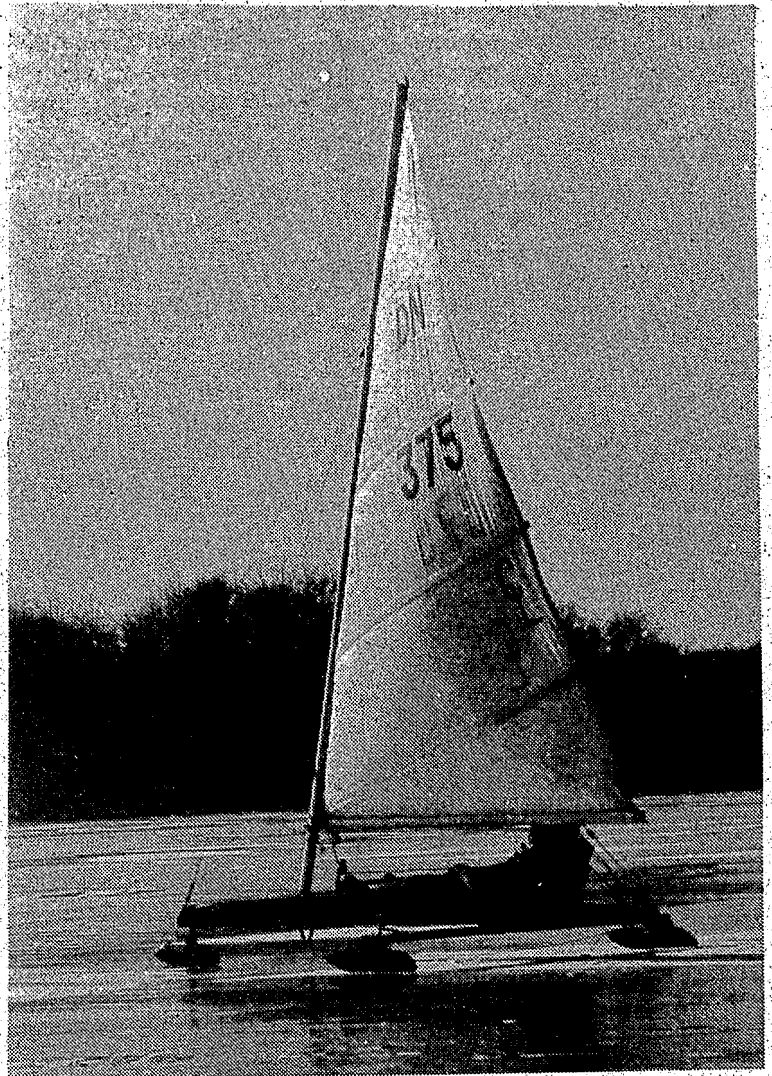

It's probable that the family farms will be bigger. It's sure that the newspapers of the 80s will be bigger than they are today.

They must be bigger to solve the myriad problems ahead. Unchanged will be the determining factor that will decide which family farms survive and which papers will be writing about what the 90s have in store.

It will be the ones with good management supplemented by hard work.

A little bit of luck won't hurt either.

Sailing, sailing

You don't get wet and the ride can get bumpy when sailing across Deer Lake in an ice boat like the one owned by Bruce Whitmer of Wampole Drive, Independence Township. Whitmer and his cousin Tom Lowrie of Brandon Township took advantage of the nearly snow-free ice Saturday to cruise along at speeds 35 and 40 mph.

Sunburn or even windburn is impossible for these winter sailors who bundle up and wear helmets for protection. Here, Lowrie prepares to ride the wind across the clear ice on Deer Lake.

Stung by Flynn story

by Jim Fitzgerald

There have lately been published reports that Errol Flynn was a Nazi spy, Tyrone Power was sexually ambidextrous, Elvis Presley was a pill freak, and Marlon Brando had an unnatural relationship with ducks and raccoons.

In view of all these allegedly clay feet, you might want to think twice before you quit watching the Miss America contest on TV simply because Bert Parks was fired as the singing master of ceremonies.

I'm not saying that some day a book on the history of the Miss America Pageant will charge that Bert Parks was a spy for Bella Abzug. And I'm not saying that the charges listed in the top paragraph are true, even though some of them were made by people close to the accused celebrities. Brando's alleged peccadillo, for example, wasn't published in Field and Stream magazine, it was written in a book by one of his ex-wives.

What I am saying is that all of us should be careful who we idolize, especially if our idols are in show business. If it turns out Errol Flynn really was a Nazi spy, I'm going to wonder if my big sister was right in 1935 when she said little Shirley Temple was really a 35-year-old midget.

IN A BOOK titled "Errol Flynn: The Untold Story," author Charles Higham says Flynn was raised in an anti-Semitic home and developed a fascination for Nazism as a young man in Australia. After he became a movie star, according to the book, Flynn persuaded Eleanor Roosevelt to help a German agent avoid arrest.

(If you know your history, you know Mrs. Roosevelt was the famous First Lady who was alleged to have had a lesbian relationship with a newspaper reporter. She was married to that president who allegedly died with his longtime mistress at his side. I forget his first name.)

I always believed Errol Flynn rid the seas of pirates single-swordedly and the plains of Indians single-gunnedly, and then won World War II single-bombedly. He did all this to keep the world safe for Olivia DeHaviland who otherwise would have married William Lundigan and or Ronald Reagan who were handsome but not devilish enough.

Now Flynn has been branded a Nazi spy by an author who claims he based his accusations on 18 months of research and 5,000 declassified government documents. Such a shocking but apparently verifiable charge is enough to make any heroworshiper worry about what dark secrets might be hidden behind Bert Parks's teeth.

WHEN PARKS was fired, Sammy Davis Jr. sent a telegram to Albert Marks Jr., the chairman of the Miss America Pageant. It said: "They killed Abe Lincoln. They killed John Kennedy. They killed Martin Luther King. And now you have killed one of the greatest names in show business."

Johnny Carson declared Bert Parks a national institution and suggested that unless he were rehired, everyone should boycott the pageant.

Pageant Chairman Marks insisted the uproar caused by the firing should be blamed on poor timing rather than spitting on a sacred statue. Six months ago, when there wasn't so much political tension in the air, no one would have cared if Parks were fired, Mark said.

"Anyone who challenged any American tradition in this time would generate the same reaction," he said.

I'M NOT SURE, but I think he meant if Iran freed the American hostages, Bert Parks would fade away quietly ("There he goes. . ."). If President Carter had heard that argument two months ago, he might have turned over the shah.

But as a stung fan of Errol Flynn, the alleged Nazi spy, I really have no right to ridicule people who think Bert Parks is one of the greatest names in show business (honest, Sammy really said that). I would only advise all Bert Parks fans to withhold total commitment as a hedge against the future, when all the Parks books have been written.

Let's say Johnny Carson protests the Parks firing by forgoing the pleasure of watching a 1980 Miss America candidate twirl two flaming batons as a dramatic symbol of her fiery stance against international terrorism.

Just think how sappy he'd feel if he later learned that Bert Parks had electronically snooped on every Miss America from 1954 through 1979 with the single exception of 1961 when he had a brief ideological split with Bella Abzug.

Establishment of local EDC lauded, criticized

By Kathy Greenfield

Low-interest loans for developers may soon be available in Independence Township through its own Economic Development Corp. (EDC).

In a 6-1 vote, the township board authorized the township attorney to establish a township EDC immediately.

Citing the EDC plans, now underway by Oakland County that would cover the entire county, board members said they based their decision on desire for more local control.

The county will probably approve its EDC early this year, said Treasurer Frederick Ritter at the meeting.

"What would happen, we would lose control over our own community," Ritter said. "This (the local EDC) would give us protection."

"I believe the local control we always seem to fight for would be there," said Supervisor Whitey Tower who would appoint members to the EDC and the board would confirm or reject the appointments.

With the loans, the EDC would retain title to property until the balance was paid in full, Lozano said, and the township would have no liability for the loans.

"It's like a publicly owned mortgage company," Ritter said. "It makes mortgage money available to developers."

Tower said he was concerned about adult foster care homes getting okayed for construction in the township by the county EDC.

"With (a local EDC), at least we'd have control on it," he said.

Clerk Christopher Rose, who cast the only "no" vote, said after the meeting that he is very upset over the board's decision.

"Basically what it does is help promote growth in the township," Rose said. "I don't think that's what the people in the township want. The vote on the Pine Knob hotel shows it."

"With an EDC, it makes low-interest loans available, possibly for the hotel which makes it more attractive for the developers of the hotel to try and get it," he added.

Last spring, the board voted not to pursue a local EDC, because the county was considering a county-wide EDC.

Trustee Rudy Lozano said he brought the proposal before the board again last week because of a request by orthodontist Charles Munk who has a dental office building presently under construction on M-15 adjacent to the A and P shopping center north of Dixie Highway.

"I don't think we should take things back to the board every time we have a problem," Rose said. "I think it was stupid to pass it without any information."

Rose will probably get another chance to voice his objections when the bylaws come before the board for approval, he said, but he is disappointed because the board did not wait to vote on the matter without first consulting the township attorney.

"If we had waited one week for the next meeting, we could have done it right," he said.

Board reappoints two on planning commission

Two issues--Pine Knob and the size of the Independence Township Planning Commission--resurfaced when two members were reappointed last week.

Ormond improvement set for spring

The long-delayed project to pave Ormond Road in Springfield Township is assured of getting underway this spring. The board of Oakland County Road Commissioners today accepted the low bid of Detroit Concrete Products Corporation of Novi, $732,435. To be paved is three miles of Ormond Road from Neal Road to Davisburg Road as originally programmed in 1978 by the Road Commission. Funding will be 100 percent by the road commission from proceeds of the state-collected gas and weight tax.

The township board quickly reappointed James Gardiner for a three-year term in a 6-1 vote.

"How did Mr. Gardiner vote regarding the Pine Knob high rise?" asked Trustee William Vandermark.

"I believe he voted for," responded Trustee Jerry Powell. Vandermark then cast his "no" vote for the reappointment.

Discussion on the size of the planning commission and the old seven members versus nine members question resurfaced during discussion on the reappointment of Jean Benzing.

The nine-member commission was formed to have a better opportunity for a quorum to be present, said Trustee Rudy Lozano who serves on the planning commission.

"I think it just serves to the contrary--with nine members, items are brow-beaten for hours," he said.

Supervisor Whitey Tower said he objected to having nine members on the planning commission one and one-half years ago.

"But the board asked for reappointments," said Tower who appoints the planning commission members for township board approval.

He then asked Lozano if he had any objection to Benzing's appointment.

"I'm just thinking in terms of the numbers," Lozano said.

Powell recommended not reappointing Benzing and waiting for another member to resign, making the planning commission size seven members, but then had a change of heart.

"I've had my disagreements with Mrs. Benzing in the past, but I'm going to move that she be reappointed," he said. "The commission is just too damn big," Lozano said.

"I well agree seven is the key number, but there was opposition to that in the past before," Tower said.

The vote for Benzing's reappointment was 6-1 with Vandermark voting "no."

The United States is the most sports minded country in the world, but until fairly recently, it showed little interest in the most popular sport in the world, soccer. For many years, promoters were attempting to build a following for soccer but couldn't compete with football and baseball. One of the promoters then got the idea of bringing a super star to play here. He hired Pele, the most famous player of the most popular sport in the world. Pele played for his team in New York; the fans came and are still coming.

Wolfpack breezes to 8th win

By Al Zawacky

Friday night's basketball game at Milford pitting 7-0 Clarkston against the 0-6 Redskins had all the makings of a blowout.

So what was going through Wolfpack coach Gary Nustad's mind when Milford pulled out to a 6-5 first quarter lead before Clarkston asserted itself by rolling to a 62-36 victory?

"I wasn't too concerned," Nustad said following his team's eighth straight win. "If anything, I felt it couldn't hurt us to fall behind—that it would get our adrenaline flowing. And it did."

Indeed, the Wolfpack outscored the Redskins 10-2 in the remaining minutes of the first quarter, 24-17 in the second and 23-11 after the halftime to up their league-leading GOAL record to a perfect 4-0.

Tim McCormick played his customary role of leading scorer and rebounder with 24 points and 17 rebounds. Scott McKoin chipped in with 11 points, while John Pappas and Chuck Nicolai each had 6.

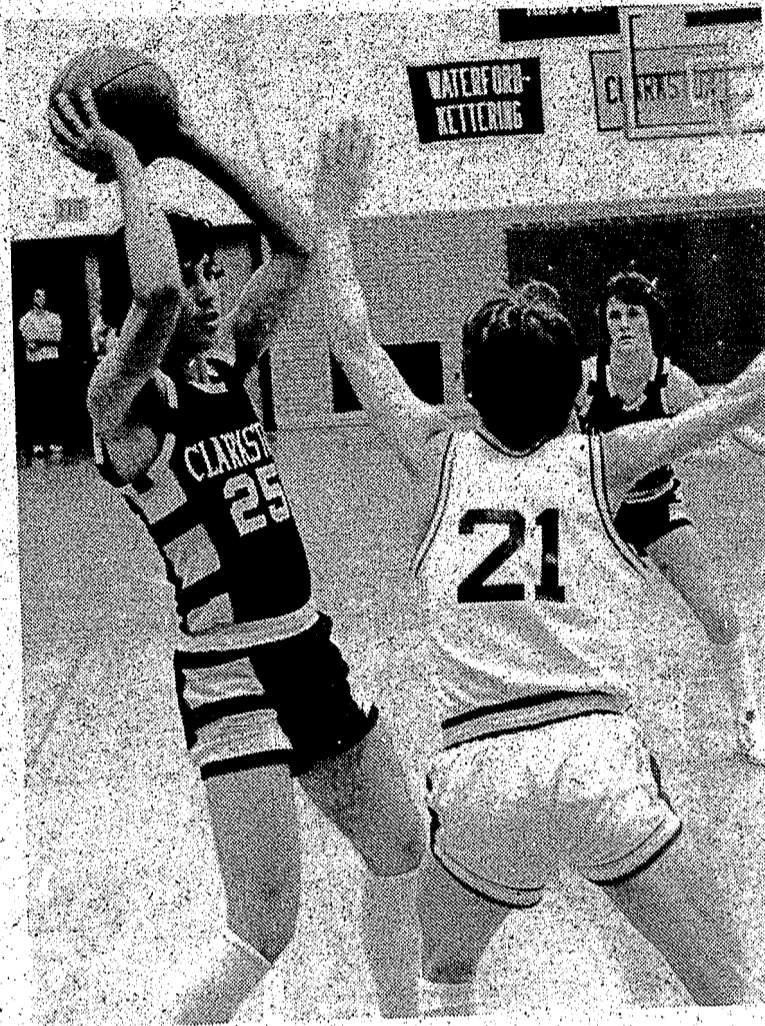

Greg Lane led in assists with six and teammate Ed Haddad had five. Rob Sharpe with 13 points was the leading scorer for Milford.

Missing from the Clarkston starting lineup was point guard John Sheldon, who suffered a pulled thigh muscle and a badly sprained ankle against Waterford Mott earlier in the week.

"You can't help but miss a player of Sheldon's ability, but Larry (Baylis) did a very good job filling in," Nustad said. "He played with a lot of poise and control, especially for his first varsity start."

Also earning praise for his work off the bench was senior guard John Pappas, who played "very well," according to the coach.

"A good ball team has a nucleus of five or six ball players, but the key to a very good ball team is the next five or six backing them up," Nustad noted.

John Pappas [left] contributed six points to the Wolfpack's win over Milford. Also in the photograph are Redskin Jim Cherry [21] and Clarkston's Jerry Tatu.

"I thought we still lacked a little consistency in this game (at Milford), much as we did against Andover and West Bloomfield. We played well in spurts, but we've still got to cut down on our turnovers and play better defense."

Clarkston's Chuck Nicolai [left] goes up for a layup while Milford's Jim Kinney [32] and Wolfpack teammate Scott McKoin [45] hope for different outcomes.

JVs shooting for title

By Al Zawacky

The Clarkston JV basketball team's league title hopes brightened considerably this past week as the junior Wolfpack posted victories over Waterford Mott and GOAL rival Milford.

Mott, a solid 6-1 entering into the contest, pulled out in front 12-4 in the first quarter, but the JV kept their composure to outscore the opposition 18-8 in the second stanza.

The score remained close throughout the second half before Ric Schebor iced a 50-48 victory for Clarkston with two successful free throws with just 12 seconds from the final buzzer.

"We kept our pose right up to the end—that was the difference," said coach Larry Mahrle. "Against Flint Carmen and Kettering, we seemed to choke out late in the game. But against Mott, we played better as the game went on."

Schebor led the JVs in scoring with 18 points, while teammate Brad Beattie was next in line with 13.

Three nights later in Milford the JVs lifted their league record to 3-1 and overall mark to 6-3 with a 57-44 win over the Redskins.

Ric Schebor's two late free throws and 18 points led the way to a 50-48 JV victory over Mott.

Beattie had 18 points to pace the Clarkston attack, while teammates Kevin Coppersmith and Craig Schnabel contributed 16 and 12 points respectively.

"We were in command the whole way," Mahrle said of the Milford contest. "We've been playing well and there's no better time—we've got Rochester next Friday and they're undefeated."

"If we win the rest of our league games, we'll take our third straight league title," Mahrle noted. "Nobody has to do it for us, it's all in our hands—and that's the way we want it to be."

Basketball scoreboard

Friday night's Greater Oakland Activities League results:

Rochester 50, Andover 49: Rochester kept pace with undefeated Clarkston in the GOAL by edging the Barons of Andover 50-49.

Scott Pocock's jump shot in the game's final minute proved to be the difference. Chris Ribant led the Falcons in scoring with 21 points, while Andover was paced by Tim Meter's 18.

Kettering 40, West Bloomfield 38: Kettering posted its first victory in league competition and fourth win overall by downing West Bloomfield 40-38.

Jerry Wood hit on two free throws with just seconds remaining to clinch the victory for the Captains.

The Clarkston News

Athlete of the week

Naming Tim McCormick the Clarkston News' first Athlete of the Week is certainly the most obvious choice we'll make all year.

Hardly a week goes by that a case couldn't be made for McCormick's selection, and this week is typical: a 31-point, 23-rebound performance against Waterford Mott in a 61-39 victory; and 24 points and 17 rebounds at Milford as the Wolfpack downed the Redskins 62-36.

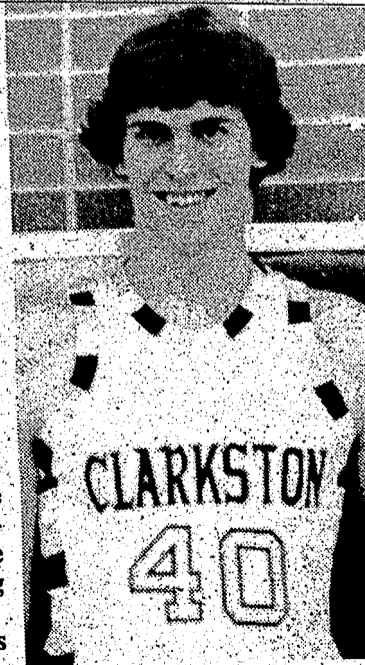

McCormick's career stats speak for themselves—a 14-point-per-game average as a sophomore playing varsity; a 31-point average as a junior last season; and a 25-point, 17-rebound average eight games into the current campaign.

That record is all the more amazing considering that the 6-foot 10 center has been the focal point for all sorts of defensive strategies hatched from the fertile imaginations of opposing coaches.

But none of those schemes have worked. And it's no coincidence that Clarkston has won two straight league titles in McCormick's first two years and are currently engineering their third.

Coach Gary Nustad put it this way: "Tim is not just Clarkston's athlete of the week—he's the athlete of the decade."

Clarkston's perfect wrestling record remained unblemished last week, as the grapplers dumped rival Waterford Kettering 35-17. Here, co-captain Craig Gavette battles Kettering's Karl Kramer, whom he eventually pinned at the 3:37 mark.

Wrestlers crush Kettering 35-17.

By Al Zawacky

Coach Rick Detkowski and his undefeated Clarkston High School wrestling team added another scalp to their collection last week, crushing rival Waterford Kettering 35-17 in their first dual meet against a league opponent this season.

Afterwards, Detkowski expressed satisfaction with the victory but could still see a few flaws in his team's performance.

"We made a few mistakes," said the coach, "but I think a lot of it is because we haven't wrestled in so long with Christmas vacation just getting over."

"Still, it's nice to come out with a victory--none of the kids quit on us and I was really pleased with the total effort."

Winning their matches for the Wolves were Craig Gavette (pin, 3:36), Jeff Miracle (decision, 7-0), Scott Smith (pin, 3:38), Mike Ogans (decision, 4-1), Claude Gourand (pin, 2:35), Bruce Burwitz (decision, 7-2) and Tom Hecker (pin, 2:35).

In addition, Clarkston's Mike Conway battled to a 2-2 against his Kettering opponent in the first match of the night.

Another positive factor at the meet that pleased both Detkowski and assistant coach Don Maskill was the presence of a good number of Clarkston supporters in the Kettering gymnasium.

"It's good to see people out here," Maskill said. "It gives us a boost, especially when we're on the road--we've been winning, and it's generating interest."

"This was a good match to sharpen us up for our next league game against Rochester and our tournament as well," Detkowski added.

The Wolves will meet Rochester at home on Thursday and host the 16 team Clarkston Invitational Tournament on Saturday beginning at 10 a.m. at Clarkston High School.

The point after

by Al Zawacky

Coach Larry Mahrle set two goals for his junior varsity basketball team this season: beat all the Waterford schools and repeat as Greater Oakland Athletic League champions.

Defeating all the Waterford teams (Mott, Kettering and Township) would exact revenge for losses suffered at the freshman level last season, explained Mahrle before the start of the campaign. A league title would be the junior Wolfpack's third straight—an impressive achievement.

Over a month has passed since those goals were set, and while goal one passed by the wayside with a loss to Kettering just before Christmas, goal two is still within reach. That's a tribute to Mahrle, the players and the entire program.

JUST AS THE VARSITY program depends on the JVs for almost all of its talent, the junior varsity looks to the freshman teams at Clarkston and Sashabaw junior highs. Last year's frosh squads suffered through terrible campaigns—Clarkston, for example, went 3-17. 'Nuff said.

But Mahrle didn't panic. Nor did he lessen his expectations of what type of season this was going to be.

"I really believe this team has the talent to produce and win the league—if they'll just believe in themselves," he said.

The results so far have been encouraging. At this writing, the JV cagers are a modest 4-3 overall, but they've managed two solid victories in three tries in the GOAL.

Brad Beattie has been a standout, averaging near 20 points a game. A few other names to remember are Craig Schnabel, Duane Cahill and Kevin Coppersmith.

This is hardly the proper time to be talking about next year's varsity season, with more than half the current campaign and the March tournaments remaining. But contrary to some prevailing sentiment, the Clarkston varsity program will not collapse next December.

It won't be easy to replace some of the departing talent. In Tim McCormick's case, it'll be impossible. But Greg Lane will be back. So will Scott McKoin. It'll be a rebuilding year, sure—but it won't be a disaster.

So much for next year. Back to the JVs.

Another thing about Clarkston's JV program is its honest emphasis on a winning record. That's a refreshing change from the not uncommon claim that winning isn't important in junior varsity—that learning skills and plays is the only thing that matters.

That's a half-truth. Sure, preparation for varsity competition is important—but so is developing confidence and enjoying the game. And the only way to achieve those two elements is to win, pure and simple.

"It's important to develop a winning attitude," Mahrle said last month of the JV program. "Almost all of the current members of the varsity team played for a league championship JV team."

And it's no coincidence that their winning ways are continuing.

Wolf tracks

Nearing the halfway mark of the season, Clarkston's basketball team will enjoy a significant home advantage in its remaining 12 games. Only four road contests remain, and of those three are against non-league opponents.

That one GOAL road game won't be a piece of cake, however: the Rochester Falcons at Rochester Feb. 22.

Guard John Sheldon was absent from his usual spot in the starting lineup at Milford last week due to a pulled thigh muscle and severely sprained ankle suffered against Waterford Mott. Sheldon was back on the court last night in the Clarkston-Grand Blanc contest and should be 100 percent for the Rochester game on Friday.

In their first four games in the Greater Oakland Activities League, Clarkston has outscored their opponents by an average score of 74-46.

A 28-point average victory is pretty good in any league.

Clarkston will face their toughest challenge of the season this Friday at home against Rochester. The Falcons hold the distinction of being the only league opponent to defeat the Wolfpack last year, handing them a 54-45 loss last Jan. 19 to thus earn a share of the GOAL title.

A comparison of how the two teams have fared against league competition so far this season goes like this: Clarkston defeated Andover 61-45, bombed Kettering 93-56, dumped West Bloomfield 79-47 and rolled over Milford 62-36.

Rochester's scores and victories have been considerably closer: the Falcons defeated Andover 50-49, Kettering 43-39, West Bloomfield 50-34 and Milford 44-35.

This statistical advantage means nothing, of course—unless the Wolfpack can hand Rochester their first league defeat of the season Friday night.

Ski trip offered

Freshman basketball, volleyball results

The Clarkston Junior High basketball team was .500 last week, bowing to Rochester West 57-56 before coming back to take a 60-58 victory over Lake Orion West.

In the Rochester contest Mike McCormick was high among Wolverine scorers with 18 points. Teammate Ray Kubani had 15 and Craig Nicolai grabbed 10 rebounds.

Kubani led the CJH scoring attack against Lake Orion, scoring 17 points as well as chalking up 16 rebounds and blocking six enemy shots. Scott Temple had 14 points and Nicolai contributed 12 as the Wolverines improved their season record to 4-2.

Sashabaw Junior High's basketball team saw the home court advantage work in reverse this past week--losing at home to Mason before posting their second win of the season on the road at Brandon.

Sashabaw led Mason 28-21 at the half but were outscored 25-10 in the third quarter to eventually lose 61-48. Rick Williams with 12 points and Tim Williams with 10 were the two Cougars in double figures.

Two days later SJH traveled to Brandon and won a squeaker 49-47. Leading a balanced scoring attack was Tom Williams with 11 points, followed by Rick Williams, Mike Clem and Bob Boyt, all with eight points apiece, and Mike Dearborn with seven.

The Sashabaw Junior High volleyball team is 1-2 after their first three games of the season, defeating West Hills 15-12, 11-15, 15-4 before losing to Lake Orion West 15-10, 12-15, 10-15, and to East Hills 17-15, 12-15, 10-15.

Jamie Howenstein has been the Cougar's leading hitter; Becky Buhl and Linda Hamlett have been strong in the passing department and Peggy Gadberry and Buhl have been the team's leading servers.

The Clarkston Junior High volleyball squad is off to a flawless start in 1980, posting a 3-0 record after matches with Bloomfield, Oxford and Rochester Reuther junior highs. High scorers on serves for the

Wolverines have been Nancy

Hubbard, Traci Sherman and Annette Ulasich, while Lori Martin, Ulasich and Angie Sewell have played very well at the net.

Standouts in passing and saves in their team's first three games are Krista Pilditch, Wendy Ragatz and Hubbard.

Odds are...

by Al Zawacky

At last--two interesting match-ups to evaluate: Clarkston at home against Rochester, and on the road at Rochester Adams.

ROCHESTER at CLARKSTON (Jan. 18): At this writing, Clarkston and Rochester remain in a dead heat for the first place spot in the GOAL...coach John Bailey deserves a lot of credit for the success of the Falcons so far this year, especially in view of the school's lack of junior varsity sports last season...a glance at the stats indicates how the Falcons have been winning--low scoring, defensive minded basketball has been their trademark...this strategem may have worked against Lake Orion and Waterford Kettering, but against Clarkston the Falcons defense will wilt. WOLFPACK by 8.

CLARKSTON at ROCHESTER ADAMS (Jan. 22): Adams' knockout of Rochester earlier this season was no fluke...the Highlanders are tough, and the Metro Suburban League they play in is competitive, to say the least...this is one of those teams the Wolfpack will have to be careful against, as a let down could be fatal, especially on the road...still WOLFPACK by 7.

Need students

There are some adults out there who would make good medical assistants but don't know about the training program for the job available at the Northwest Oakland Vocation Education Center (NWOVEC), center faculty members are hoping.

If a dozen of those who could take advantage of the program don't register for it within the next week, the medical assistant class will have to be dropped.

That's why NWOVEC is breaking with tradition to recruit out-of-school adults for the center's day program.

"We've done as much arm-twisting of counselors in our sending schools as we can do," said NWOVEC Principal Daniel Manthei. "About all we can do now is open the program to out-of-school youth and adults."

The precedent-setting recruiting of high school drop-outs and adults who may or may not have completed high school was brought about by a 12-student shortage in the medical assistant classes which can be taken either in the morning or afternoon. If there aren't 40 students in the classes by Jan. 28, the Oakland County Intermediate schools, which administers the vocational centers, will discontinue the medical assistant offering.

Under county guidelines, a program that doesn't enroll 75 percent of its capacity for two years in a row will be cancelled.

The medical assistant program at NWOVEC has been underenrolled for two years, Manthei said.

Regular daytime students at the center come from seven schools in Brandon, Clarkston, Holly and Waterford school districts.

Manthei said out-of-school persons can now enroll in any class in which there are openings at the center.

"We want to save the (medical assisting) program, but we also want to better serve the out-of-school population," he said.

Interested persons can contact admissions counselor John Tucker at 625-5202 between 7:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. weekdays.

Assessment

The test results for fourth and seventh graders remained about as high as they have in the past.

In reading, 79.8 percent of fourth graders achieved at least 75 percent of the goals, compared to 75.7 percent in Clarkston last year and 65.5 percent statewide this year.

In math, 91.9 percent of fourth graders achieved the goals, compared to 87.3 percent here last year. The statewide score for this year is 82.8 percent.

The reading test results for seventh graders showed 86.1 percent achieving 75 percent of the goals, down slightly from the 88.1 percent reported last year. However, the statewide score this year was only 69.3 percent.

In mathematics, 68.1 percent of seventh graders made the 75 percent cutoff for minimal attainment, compared to 67.1 percent last year and 52.2 percent statewide.

A touch of immortality

Adding a green patina to a completed sculpture, Petrucci explains that he is just "helping nature along" by creating same effect years of oxidation would on bronze figure. "This coloring is not paint, it's a chemical reaction," he says.

By Pat Braunagel

Michelangelo needed help from a Fred Petrucci. Behind each Rodin there's a Fred Petrucci.

Sculptors today throughout the Midwest know his name, and the rest of us are apt to see his work from time to time.

Petrucci makes artists' concepts a reality in his casting foundry in Independence Township.

He is one of few art sculpture casters this side of Italy. The variety of objects in his studio testifies that this is where bronze work must be sent for everything from figurines to fountains.

It's all been coming here since Petrucci opened his Fine Arts Sculpture Center at Waldon and Clintonville roads in 1963.

Petrucci's wife Vivian comments on the immortality of the objects her husband casts and then adds, "They're all over—that's why we enjoy traveling so much."

Away from any established art center, Petrucci has created a haven in which sculptors can leave their work in friendly and skilled hands.

The artist may know the effect he wants to achieve, but Petrucci knows his bronzes and how the metal can be cast and finished to suit a certain purpose.

Petrucci's been at it for 27 years, having learned his craft over a five-year period during annual visits to the Detroit area of Bruno Bearzi, who was director of the Fonderia Artistica Fiorentina of Florence, Italy.

Once Petrucci had mastered the techniques involved in the lost wax plaster investment method and in the less-expensive sand casting, it was no longer necessary for sculptors like Marshall Fredericks to send their work to Italy for casting.

Petrucci discusses his work with enthusiasm, having an empathy that is contagious among the four men who work for him in the foundry he created in a barn.

His employees, he says, need mechanical skills "with a little art background, a little artistic touch."

From him, they can learn the rest.

"I don't keep one man on one job—for a small shop, that would be wrong," he says.

It's important that they enjoy their work, because so much of it requires personalized attention. Much of it must be done by hand.

"There are just not short cuts, no short cuts at all," Petrucci says.

The longest his staff has spent on one piece was two years during which they reproduced a fountain for a park in Louisville, KY.

A bronze statue of "Brighty of the Grand Canyon," whose fame spread through books and a movie, sits on the lip of the canyon after leaving Petrucci's foundry. Sculpted by Peter Jenson, "Brighty" required the presence of a live burro which was shipped to Cranbrook.

At the Blue Cross-Blue Shield Building in Southfield there's "Universe" by Thomas McClure.

In Kingsville, Ont., there's Edward Chesney's statue of bird-befriender Jack Miner.

"That was done two years ago," Petrucci recalls. "The next day vandals poured black paint on it."

He shrugged.

The statue will outlive the vandals and us all.

The Clarkston (Mich.) News

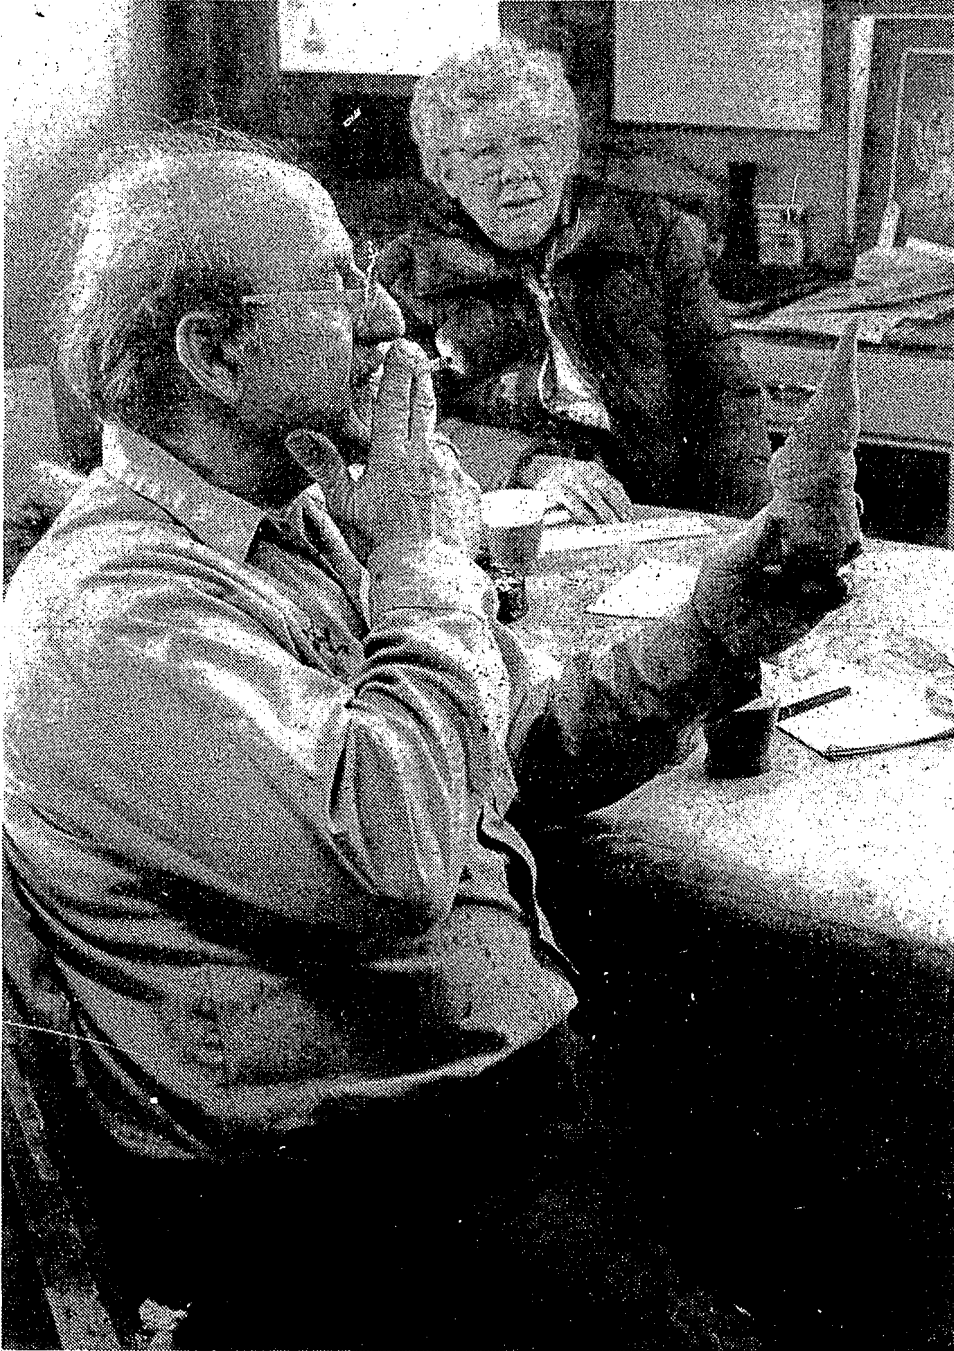

When hiring persons to work for him, Petrucci looks for someone who's "mechanically skilled—with a little art background, a little artistic touch," he says. Beside him is a model for the larger-than-lifesize figure he did of John Henry for sculptor Charles Copper. The work now sits beside a railroad tunnel on a West Virginia mountain.

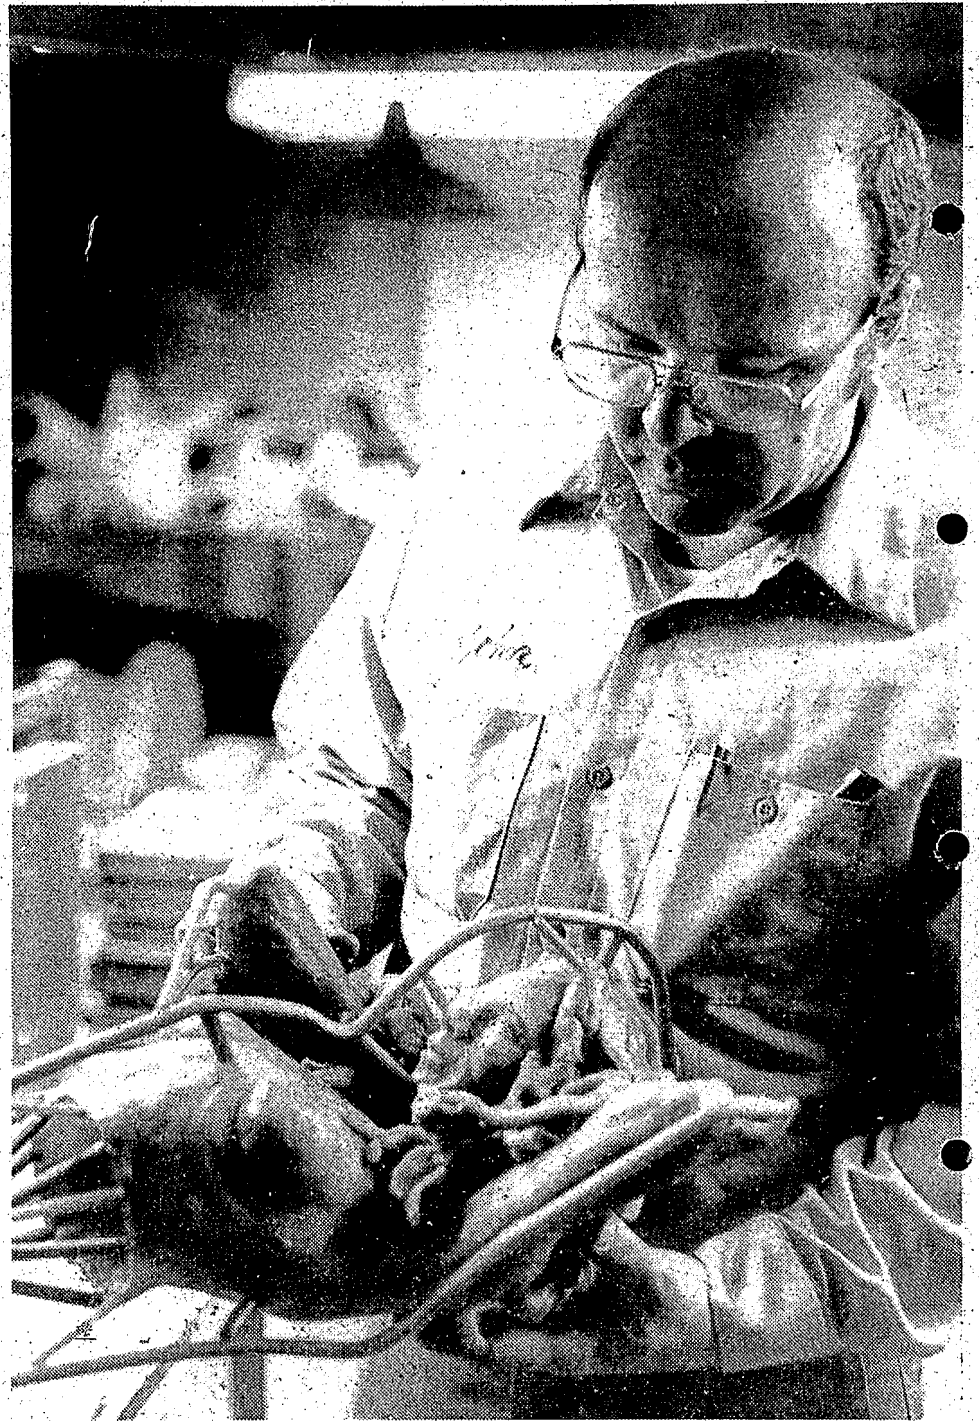

(More photos on page 22)

'There just are not short cuts'

Relaxing at a table in his studio after work, Petrucci and his wife Vivian reminisce about their business. He's holding the model for a gnome cast last year at the foundry.

John King, Petrucci's son-in-law and one of his four employees, braces a wax mold prior to filling it with plaster in one more of the steps involved in the process. "There just are not short cuts, no short cuts at all," Petrucci says of the work which must be done by hand.

How to win at "Money"

Every football fan understands the value of the bench. No team ever wins the Super Bowl without good reserves.

The same idea works in the game of "Money."

To play the game, you simply try to make ends meet. Of course, inflation and taxes knock you back just when you think you're gaining. Then recession hits, or the plumbing leaks, or your car needs a major repair. These things aren't fair but there is no referee.

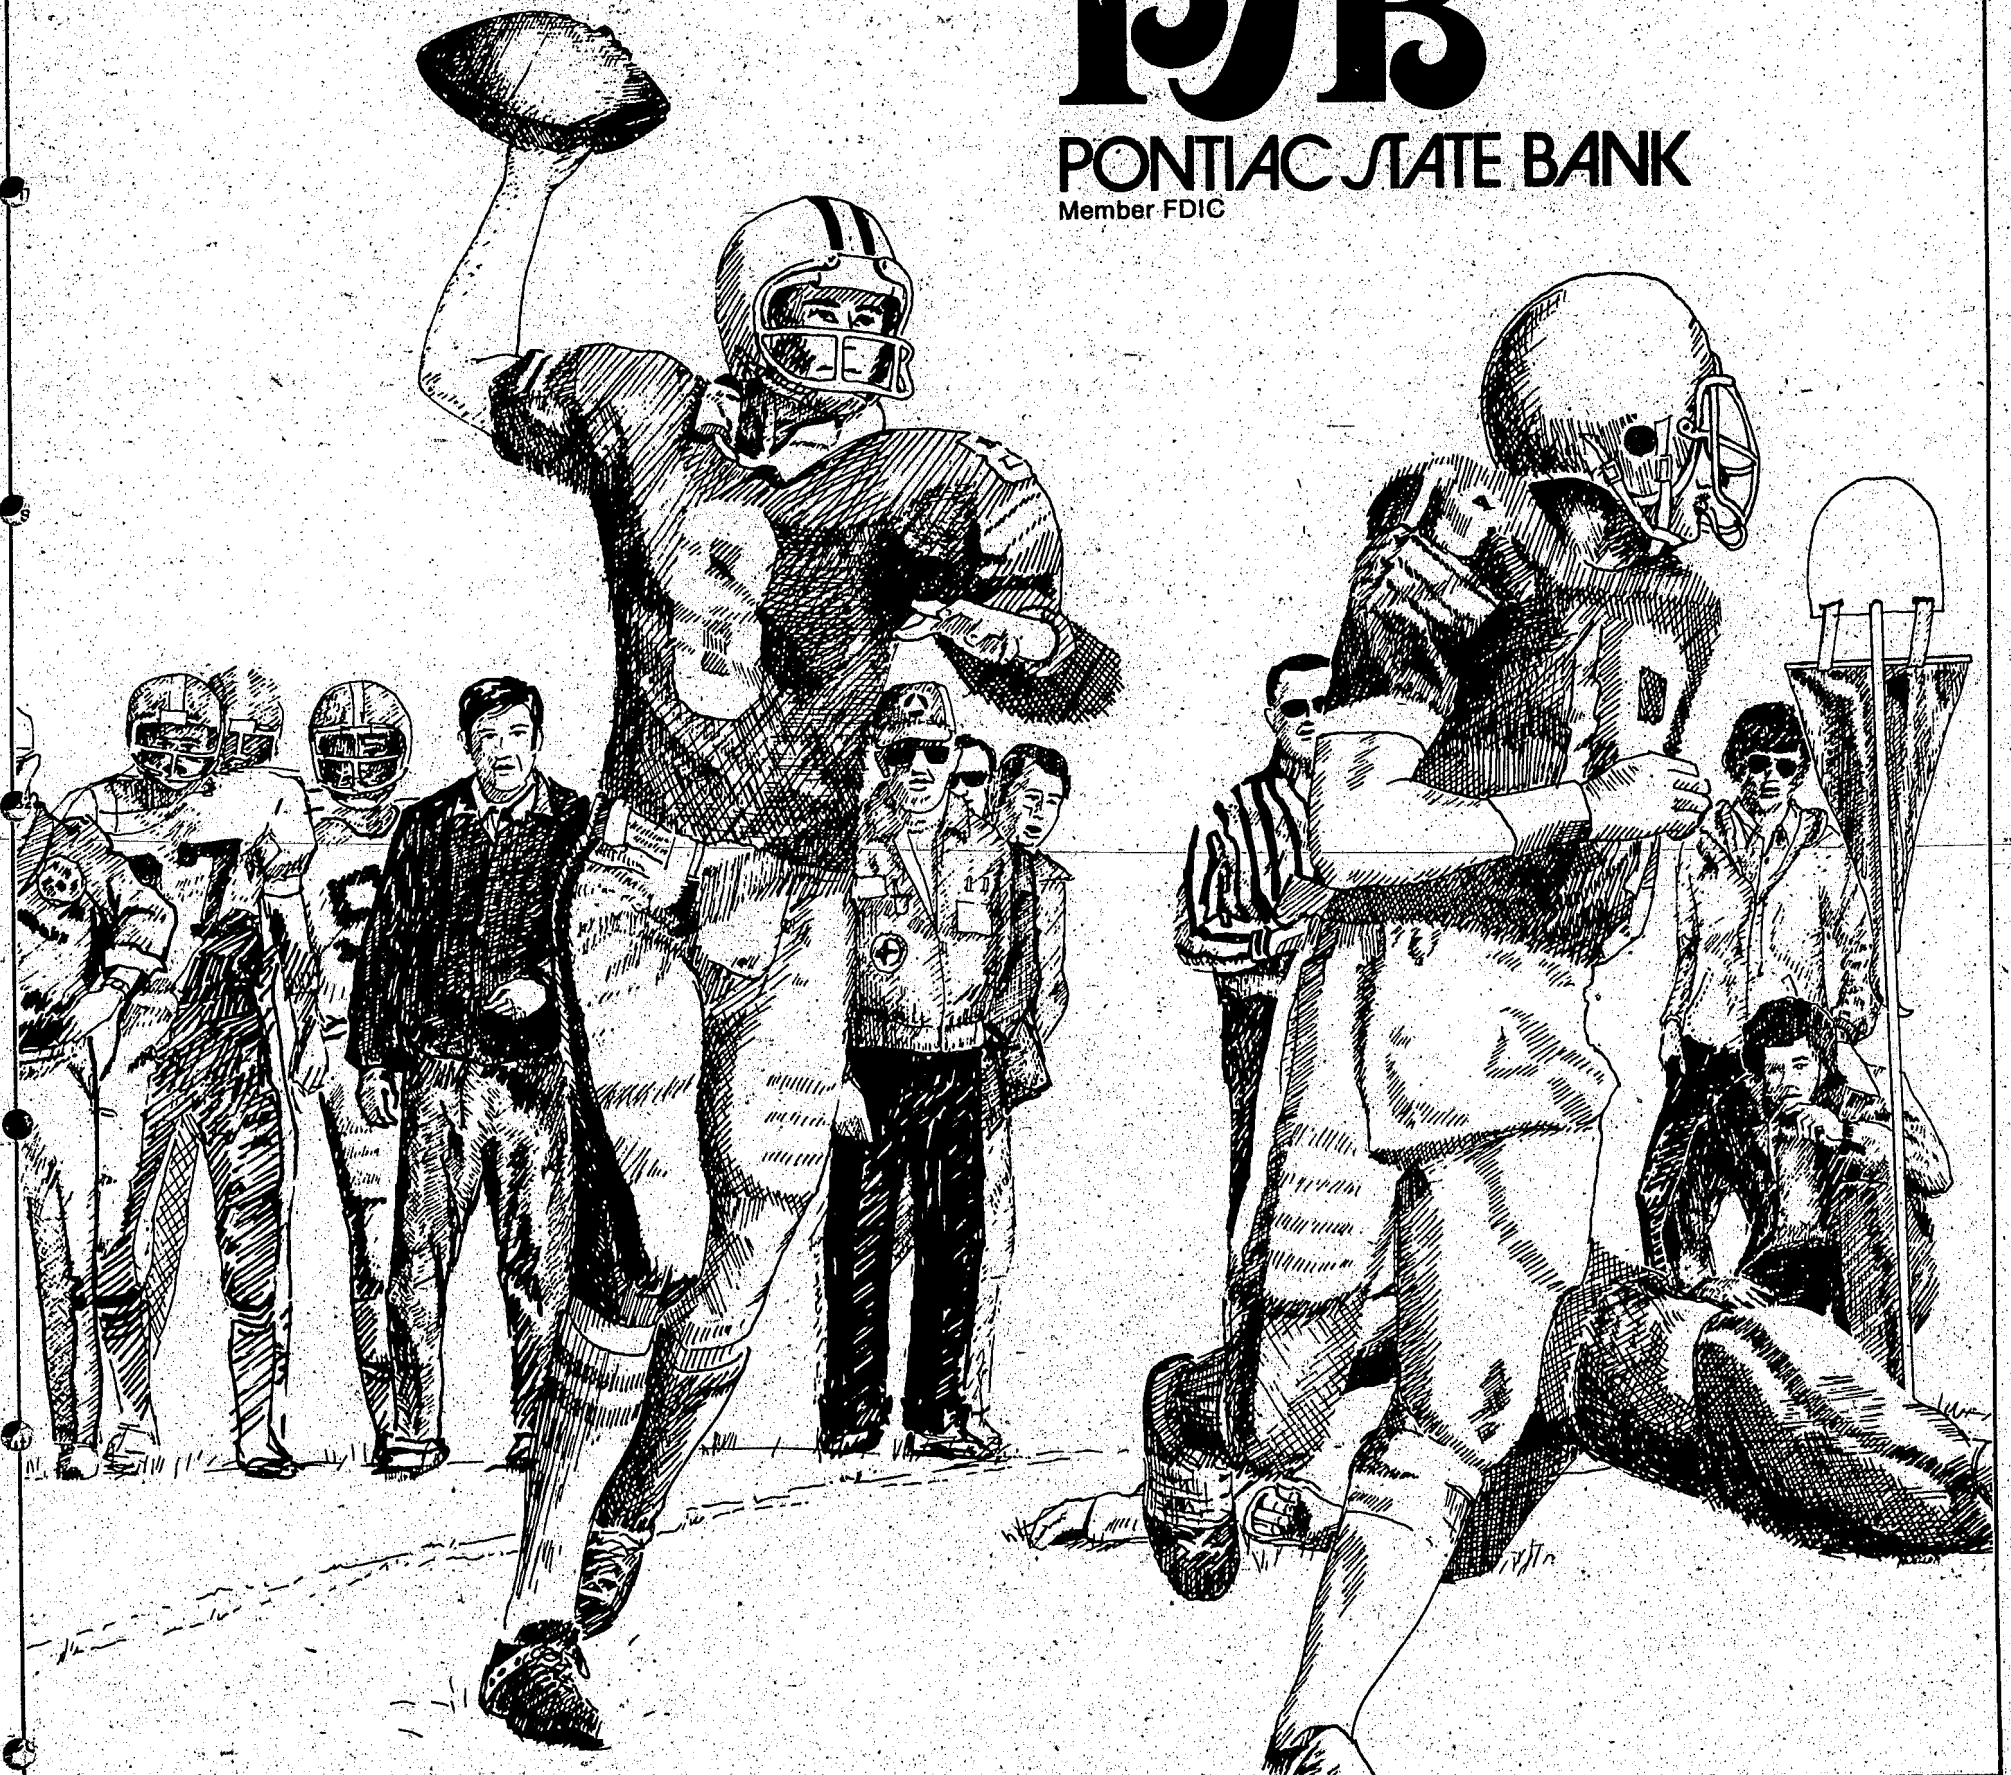

Money in reserve

Most people put a good first team together — a strong paycheck, tight budget and alert defense at the supermarket. But the reserves are sadly lacking. You need savings that can come off the bench in a hurry. And credit that won't quit at the goal line. You need Pontiac State Bank.

Leningers take new tack

Family activities are important to Dick and Sue Leninger who take their youngsters, Jeffrey [left] and Dana, along on camping trips, fishing and deer hunting. For the latter, the children usually spend most of their time inside the family hunting lodge.

Spiraling fuel costs and tighter budgets caused the end of Dick and Sue Leninger's recreational vehicle business, Mr. Motorhome, in Pontiac and Warren.

But their other business, Captain Dick's Seafood Market in Waterford Township, is a going concern.

"Our interests have turned toward the seafood," Dick said. "The area definitely needs a product like that. We liked it and could never find it, so we thought it was an opportunity to get into a little bit more stable business."

"It's proven to be very good," he added. "Our customer list has grown and grown." Plans for expansion are underway.

Sue tends to take a philosophical approach to the end of their old business that closed the first of the year.

"It's scary when it's been so much a part of your life," she said. "But it was good. I'm sure it will come back again."

"If we're in the frame of mind, I'm sure we'll jump back into it again," she added.

Married about five years, the Leningers have been Independence Township residents for about two years.

Their house on Pequosin Trail suits their interests and tastes.

The contemporary home fits well in its natural surroundings with large windows allowing the beauty of the open area donated to the Independence Land Conservancy behind their home to become part of the decor.

An interior designer until they started their family, Sue has decorated using brown, her favorite color, throughout, teamed with natural woods, plants and an abundance of baskets.

When she worked in interior design, her favorite job was with an architectural company in Rochester where she especially enjoyed doing renderings, or paintings of what a building or home would look like when completed.

Now she works as a bookkeeper for their new business and is helping Dick close the books for their old business.

She finds similarities between architectural designing and bookkeeping because they both are exacting fields.

Other interests of the Leningers include sports--snowmobiling, skiing and racquetball--and deer hunting and fishing.

They have a lodge up north and they are always there for opening day of the deer hunting season with about 10 other family members and close friends.

"We usually come back with one or two deer and we dress them out ourselves and skin them at home," Sue said. "It's easy to do and I'd just as soon do it myself."

Having grown up in the country, Sue introduced Dick to hunting and fishing, interests they share with their children, Jeffrey, 4, and Dana, 2.

"We try to do a lot with the kids--go on motorhome trips, camping or fishing," Sue said.

Dick has been keeping busy with the two businesses, and he's looking forward to concentrating his efforts on expanding the seafood business.

Fish or seafood makes up their meals about four times a week, Sue said. She prepares it at home about twice a week and orders it at restaurants when they go out.

One thing they really enjoy about living in the area is a number of new friends they have made. Before, they lived in Dryden in Michigan's thumb and socialized mostly with Sue's family members and friends they knew before they met.

"We have put down roots here and it's the first time we've made friends we haven't known before," Sue said.

"We like the community," Dick added. "We'd like our children to grow up in this environment."

Here's Herb

By Herb Rose

Many acts described in the Bible have been impressing people for years, but sometimes the ramifications of the statistics are overlooked.

For example, people may not be particularly impressed with the organizational talent that was demonstrated when King Solomon dedicated his temple by sacrificing two and twenty-thousand oxen and one-hundred and twenty-thousand sheep.

The simple acquisition of that much stock would require coordination of an impressive network of cowboys and sheep herders and the denuding of an area equivalent to the King Ranch.

After all, Job was recrowned a man of considerable wealth but his livestock inventory included only five hundred yoke of oxen and seven thousand sheep.

Incidentally, it also included five hundred she asses. I've often wondered why he had no he asses. Possibly this sexual imbalance was the result of a genetic defect in his breeding stock.

If these herds were amassed before the abattoir was in operation, an extensive system of corals would have to be constructed and maintained, as would the facilities for feeding and watering these beasts.

In spite of the livestock's predictable demise common sense would dictate the practice of rudimentary humaneness.

I never heard of anyone being damaged by an enraged sheep, but two and twenty-thousand thirsty, hungry oxen might be a little hard to reason with.

There would be a requirement for a continual flow of firewood. If the priests worked an eight-hour day with regulation lunch period, coffee breaks, fatigue allowance and wash-up time, the sacrificial fires would be required for months.

Keeping an operation of this magnitude going for months would require not only executive talent but also immense fortitude on the part of the operatives, two of whom might have had this dialog:

"I hear they brought in another 10,000 sheep."

"Yeah, if I have mutton tonight, I'll flip."

"Don't tell me your problems. I've been on the oxen detail for two weeks and now the wife is having her whole family over for a bar-b-que."

I would think his contemporaries might have had some thought provoking discussions of Solomon's wisdom.

Cheap rent with strings attached

The small house behind the Independence Township Senior Citizen Center may become home for a township employee.

Vandalism at the center and adjacent Clintonwood Park have been minimal, said Parks and Recreation Department Director Timothy Doyle, a fact he attributed to having a family live in the small home on .62 acre purchased by the township last month for about $28,000.

He suggested to the board that the house be fixed up and rented to a parks and recreation employee.

"Give them a bargain, but also this person would be on call 24 hours a day," he said, adding that he or she would be required to investigate any suspicious activity on the property.

"My thoughts were (to use the house) possibly for some of the people who are active at the (senior) center on a cheap-rent basis," said Supervisor Whitey Tower.

The arrangement could provide a full-time volunteer for the senior citizen program, he said.

The township board then named Doyle and the three full-time township officials--Tower, Clerk Christopher Rose and Treasurer Frederick Ritter--to discuss the possibilities further and report back to the board.

'Do Something Different'

Adult education series covers gamut of experiences

Wipe away the mid-winter doldrums by signing up to "Do Something Different."

The series of classes is to be offered by Clarkston Community Adult Education in conjunction with Do Something Different Inc. of Birmingham beginning Jan. 24.

A different topic is to be explored each Thursday evening at 7 p.m. for eight weeks. For $32, six of the eight classes offered can be attended.

Topics range from "An Evening with a Psychic Reader," "Are We Alone in the Universe?" and "Astrology" to "Body Language," "Hypnosis" and "Bio Rhythms."

"What we're really trying to do is introduce people to new ideas and give them confidence to pursue these ideas if they find an interest," said Barbara Blatz, co-founder and co-director of the courses.

Most popular of the classes is "An Evening with a Psychic Reader," she said.

"They're all fun," Blatz added. "The teacher in addition to having the ability to do it must be able to keep the class entertaining and fun."

Designed to open doorways of new adventure, the topics are not intended to be in-depth studies, but offer working knowledge about the subject.

Instructors are from areas across the state.

In existence for seven years, the courses are available at CHS for the first time.

Those who sign up may attend any of the 68 classes of their choice offered at some 50 locations or may choose their six classes from the eight offered at CHS.

Registered class members may purchase additional single tickets for $5 each.

At the time of enrollment, a full listing of classes and locations is to be given to those taking the courses.

For more information, call Jan Gabier at CHS at 625-5841 or the Do Something Different Inc. office in Birmingham at 642-4655.

Peeking into the past

by Rustie Leaf

10 YEARS AGO JANUARY 15, 1970

The engineering firm of McGinnis Engineering Co. of Pontiac has agreed to review and report on the plan for a drain from Deerfield Farms subdivision to the Mill Pond.

A salamander stove used to dry the mortar in brick work ignited planks in the scaffolding at the building site of the Vocational High school on Dixie Highway. Damage was light.

The CHS team were winners in the televised contest between Clarkston and Centerline in the scholastic battle of the "High School Bowl."

The Clarkston Board of Education and the representatives of the Board of Education Association put the final signatures on their contract for the 1969-70 school year. The signing brought 10 months of negotiations to a close.

25 YEARS AGO JANUARY 13, 1955

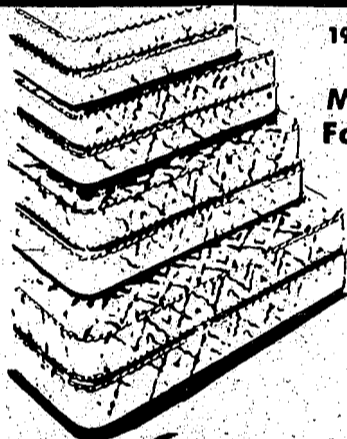

John L. Carey, a prominent resident of Clarkston, will speak on "Subversive Activities in America before McCarthy" at the meeting of the Clarkston's Community Women's Club.

Chairman of the "GC" committee announced that Clarkston High has selected Laura Ruggles to receive the "Good Citizens" award.

Willie has doubts about gold

Bill Myers

San Francisco
Dec. 26, 1979

Dear Brother Willie:

I see you are writing a column on investments. Mostly you seem to yak about those dull old bonds.

Why don't you get with it? Didn't you ever hear about gold? All my friends are buying gold coins, like Kruger Anns, and they are making a bundle.

If you would make me some money, I could get another face lift.

Love,
BABY SISTER

P.S. How come your by-line says "William Myers?" Mother always called you Billy. Everyone else called you Willie.

Boca Raton
Dec. 29, 1979

Dear Baby Sister:

Answer your questions in reverse order:

1. If it's still "William" at the head of this column, it is because the name connotes dignity and strength of character as befitting one dealing in profound subjects.

2. Maybe Medicare will pay for your cosmetic surgery. If not, write the Hero of Chappaquiddick. He'll promise anything the next 10 months.

3. The term is Krugerrands. Kruger for the noted South Africa; Rand for their unit of currency down there. Krugerrands are pure gold and weigh one ounce.

4. Yes, I have heard about gold. I've only heard a mouthful, I have a mouthful of the stuff. So much that the alarm goes off when I go through the check-point at the airport.

Gold's function in the world monetary system is understood by only two men: (1) The vice-chancellor of the Rothschild banking empire, and (2) an obscure clerk in the Bank of England.

Unfortunately, they don't agree.

If you want to buy some gold as an investment - to use the word loosely - one source is your broker. Another is Monex, a big dealer in Newport Beach, Calif. Brokers will keep it in storage for you. So will Monex.

Only reason to buy Krugerrands is if you want to sell them person-to-person some day, or if you want to hold them yourself, since most dealers would not require them to be assayed at time of sale. You pay a premium for Krugerrands above the world price of gold bars. Now the premium is 4 percent.

Here is what it would cost you to buy 20 Krugerrands (20 ounces of gold), and store it for a year:

TO BUY 20 KRUGERRANDS

Base, $500 1 ounce, say	$10,000
Premium above base, 4 percent	$400
Buying commission, 2 percent	$200
Difference bet. bid/asked	$200
TOTAL	$10,800

So after a year, you sell them. The world price is still the same. The premium over gold bar price is still 4 percent. So you receive:

Base Price	$10,000
Premium	$400
Less 2 pct. commission	-$200
TOTAL	$10,200

So you're out $600. That's only part of the story. The $10,800 you laid out a year back would have brought you at least 10 percent in governmental bonds, or $1,080.

So your cost of stashing away 20 Krugerrands for a year has been:
Commission & spread	$600
Lost interest	$1,080
TOTAL	$1,680

If gold goes up in price to $585 in a year then you'll break even.

This is the same metal that was $193 a year ago. Two or three years ago its price fell in half to $106. It seems to be a two-way street.

These dull old bonds you sneer at go on making their 10 percent year after year. Some good utility bonds, such as Commonwealth Edison now yield 12 percent. After 12 percent your money, compounded, will double in six years.

This presumes you don't give your income to your plastic surgeon.

But enough figures for now. You always said they made your head ache.

In answer to your last question - Why don't I get with it? - I am only a simple country boy. I don't pick up new things very fast. I am still taking fox-trot lessons.

YOUR LOVELY BROTHER BILL

Plays, exhibits, concerts outside Clarkston-Independence-Springfield

A Bulgarian cultural program will be presented Sunday, Jan. 27 at the International Institute of Metropolitan Detroit.

"The Great Horn," a Bulgarian-made film which chronicles a 17th Century story, will be featured during the program, which starts at 2 p.m. Parental guidance is suggested because of the subject matter of the film, which is in Bulgarian with English subtitles. Bulgarian pastries will be available as part of the program. Tickets, on sale at the institute at 111 E. Kirby, Detroit, are $2.

"Sherlock Holmes," a state adaptation by William Gillette of Arthur Conan Doyle's mystery novels, opens at Wayne State University's Bonstelle Theatre Friday, Feb. 1 for a two-weekend run.

The play is based principally on two of Doyle's short stories, "A Scandal in Bohemia" and "The Final Problem," the only story in which Sherlock Holmes' arch-rival Professor Moriarty actually appears. Performances are 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, with Sunday matinees scheduled for 2 p.m. For ticket information, call 577-2972.

Beginning Jan. 20 through February, a Sunday drive to Meadow Brook Hall in Avon Township will provide two historic attractions for the price of one.

A collection of vintage designer clothes that span almost 50 years of American fashion will be displayed in the ballroom of the historic mansion on the campus of Oakland University. The outfits are from the Wilson collection, fashions created for the Alfred Wilson and John Dodge families during the first half of this century. The hall itself was completed in 1929 at a cost of about $4 million. It is open to the public every Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. General admission is $3.50, and those under 12 or over 64 are charged $2.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be extended at the Attic Theatre in Detroit through Feb. 24.

"The Oldest Living Graduate," originally scheduled as the next production, has been cancelled. Performances of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at the theater, 558 Monroe, are Thursday, Friday and Sunday at 8 p.m. and Saturday at 6 and 9 p.m. For reservations and ticket information, phone 963-7789.

Michigan Opera Theatre will mark its 10th anniversary this fall with a new production of the opera "Of Mice and Men," which is also a decade old.

The composer-librettist himself, Carisle Floyd, will direct the opera based on the play and novel by John Steinbeck. The production will replace "Lady Macbeth of Mstensk" in the schedule of the opera company.

MOT's upcoming lineup will open with Strauss' "Die Fledermaus," Sept. 12-19; followed by Floyd's "Of Mice and Men" Sept. 26-Oct. 4; Mozart's "Don Giovanni," Oct. 10-18; and Verdi's Rigoletto," Oct. 24-Nov. 1. For season ticket information, call 963-3717. MOT performs at the Music Hall in Detroit.

"Sherlock Holmes," a stage adaptation by William Gillette of Arthur Conan Doyle's mystery novels, opens at Wayne State University's Bonstelle Theatre Friday, Feb. 1 for a two-weekend run.

Performances are Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. with Sunday matinees at 2 p.m. through Feb. 11. Tickets and information are available through Hudson's ticket offices and most Detroit area colleges and universities or by calling the WSU theatre box office, 577-2972.

Choreographer and dancer Jennifer Muller and her company, the Works, will be in Detroit for four performances Jan. 23-26 at the Music Hall

Center for the Performing Arts.

Muller established her own company in 1974 and has toured with it through Europe three times. For information on tickets, which range from $3 to $11, call the box office at 963-7680.

Buckminster Fuller will lecture on "Spaceship Earth" at Oakland University Thursday, Jan. 31.

Fuller, who designed the geodesic dome among other things, has written that "There is no energy shortage. There is no energy crisis. There is a crisis of ignorance." Tickets for the 1 p.m. program in the Crockery of Oakland Center are $1 and will be available at the door.

A workshop entitled "Unstressing Self, Building

Harmony" is among upcoming courses at the YWCA of Pontiac-North Oakland, 269 W. Huron.

Other programs beginning later this month in February include advanced assertion training, divorce overview, mime workshop, ballet and a time and stress management workshop. Preregistration is necessary for all classes and workshops. For information, call 334-0973.

Detroit is one of three cities to host an exhibition of historic Nigerian art, opening this week at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The exhibit, which will open Thursday, Jan. 17 and continue through the fall, consists of 100 objects, including rare Benin bronze plaques and the earliest art discovered in Nigeria by recent archeology.

RELOCATION SERVICES THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES

Obituaries

Gordon Nelson Keller

Gordon Nelson Keller died last week, but his work in remedial reading will live for years to come.

Keller developed "the Discovery Through Reading Program" for Clarkston Schools in the early 1970s. The federally funded project through Title I has also been used in schools across the United States.

"He's touched so many families here either privately having worked with their children or having developed the Title I program," said Robert Brumback, director of special services for Clarkston schools.

"The whole concept was Gordon Keller's and he's always stayed out of the limelight," Brumback said.

But Keller's style of teaching youngsters to read using a method where each child works with a teacher to set goals and then works to attain those goals has not stayed out of the limelight.

His program was validated by the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare as exemplary and innovative, one of only 50 in the nation so designated, said Dorothy Neff, Title I co-ordinator for Clarkston Schools.

Neff's job that is funded by the federal government includes distributing information about the program and training school districts that want to adopt Keller's techniques.

So far, schools in Florida, Illinois, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Texas and South Carolina have adopted his style of teaching and districts in Maryland and Wyoming now have plans to use the program.

"The success of the Title I program has certainly been due to Gordon," Neff said. "I feel I've lost a very special person. When I had a question, I knew I could call Gordon and get an answer."

"He had the most positive way of working with children and with parents," she added. "We're going to miss him very much. We certainly would have been stumbling along with probably another mediocre program, but as it is now, we know we are one of the best."

Jo Vaara, who now teaches kindergarten at North Sashabaw Elementary School, was trained by Keller when she worked in the Title I program for four years.

"He was just a very beautiful man," she said. "He was a positive, uplifting man. He never left you without a solution."

"One of the tips he used to give after teaching all those sophisticated methods, he would chuckle and with a twinkle in his eye and say, 'Use whatever works.'"

He died at age 51 on Jan. 9 at Detroit Osteopathic Hospital in Highland Park. He resided in Royal Oak.

He is survived by his wife Bessie Rayburn Keller; three sons, Donnie and Robbie Spiller and Gordon Keller, a daughter Judy Dietrich; two sisters; one brother; his parents Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Keller; and six grandchildren.

A memorial fund has been established in his name for needy children with special educational needs.

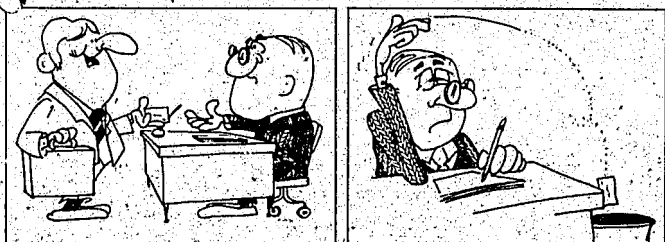

Donations may be sent to Sister Mary McClellan, 380 Hickory Grove, Bloomfield Hills 48013.

The funeral and burial were to be in Traverse City, with arrangements being made by the Martinsen Funeral Home there.

Helen Bailey Kemp

Helen Bailey Kemp, 77, mother of Mrs. Frank (Lila) Roselli of Clarkston, died Jan. 9 in Traverse City.

Statue to overlook All Saints Cemetery

A $370,000 service building and $180,000 monument are to be constructed at All Saints Cemetery by this summer.

The 127-acre Catholic cemetery includes 14 acres in Independence Township with the remainder in Waterford Township. It is located at Andersonville and Nelsey Roads.

Construction materials for the 3,600 square foot service building are to be brick and aluminum siding in earth tones.

"The building has a residential appearance from the Andersonville Road side to try to keep in a harmonious pattern with the community," said Pat Farrell, cemetery foreman.

The monument, to be built at the corner of Nelsey and Andersonville roads, includes a 27-foot high and 12-foot wide backdrop of concrete clad granite and a statue of Jesus Christ.

The statue is to be carved from a solid piece of Sardo white granite by the Wolverine Marble Co. of Detroit.

Developed and operated by the Mt. Elliot Cemetery of Detroit, All Saints has been open since April 1979. There are now seven burials at the cemetery.

Lots cost $430 for each grave site.

"The next area to be developed will be an area where a family can buy a lot for the purpose of erecting a monument," Farrell said.

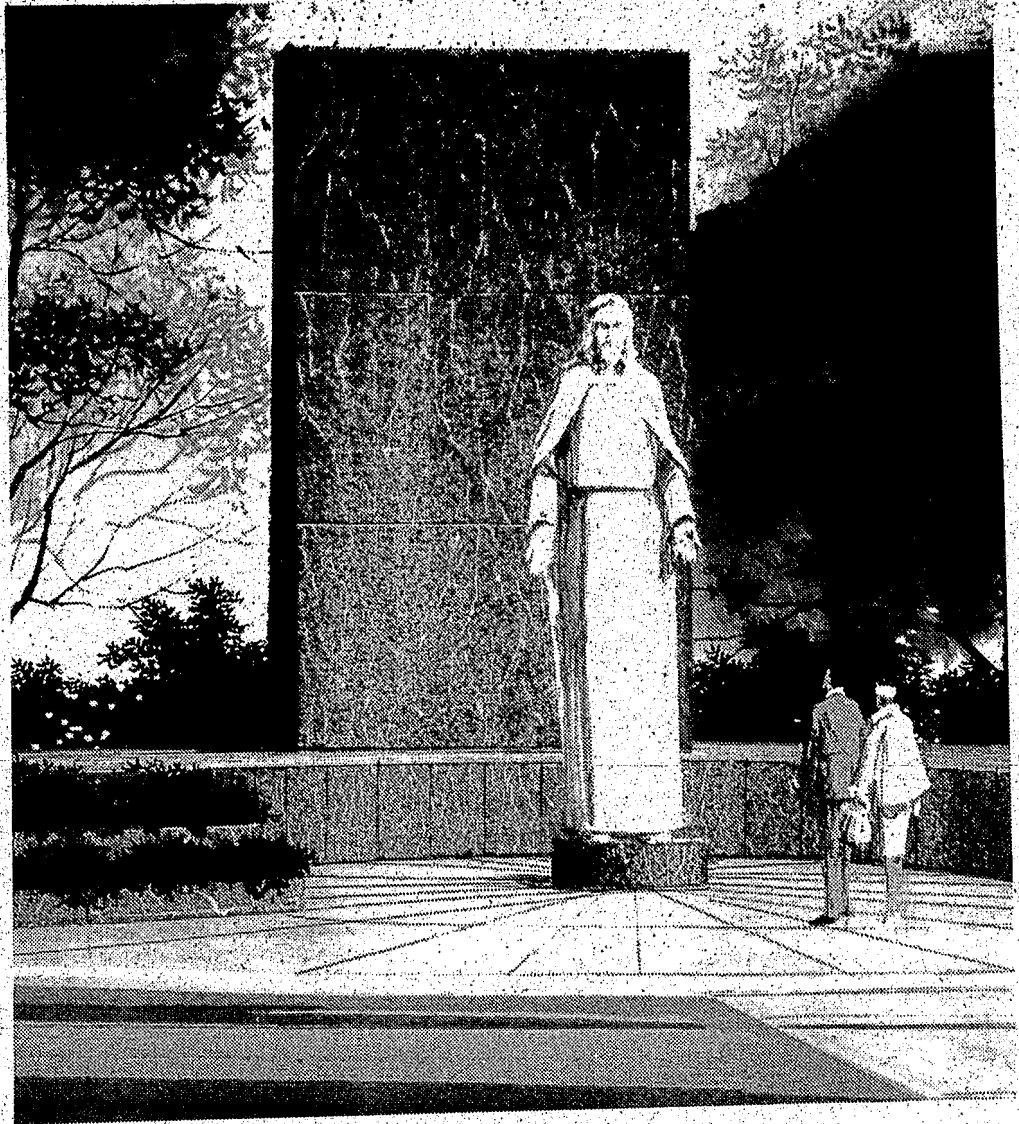

Also planned are three large mausoleum structures, he said.

Construction of the service building is underway with completion expected in late spring.

Granite is now being quarried for the monument, and construction should begin in the spring with completion by summer, Farrell said.

Architects for the building and monument are Harley, Ellington, Pierce, Yee and Associates of Southfield.

A Catholic cemetery, those able to purchase lots are restricted to members of the religion with exceptions including non-Catholics married to a Catholic or non-Catholic parents of a person married to a Catholic.

The statue of Christ is to be erected at the corner of Andersonville and Nelsey roads.

The maintenance building now under construction at All Saints Cemetery will face Andersonville Road and is designed to look like a home. The brick and aluminum exterior earth tones are to be used for the brick and aluminum exterior of the building.

Coping with kids

Parents can help turn failure into success

Success in child rearing may sometimes depend on failure. Sound contradictory? Maybe it isn't. Particularly as it concerns the self image and self confidence of children. Encouragement is a necessary part in helping children learn from their mistakes and feeling good about themselves. Giving a kid an encouraging word shows your faith in her so that eventually she can come to believe in herself.

But, it is easy to give an encouraging word after your youngster has said something or done something that makes us feel proud of her. When she has made us feel good, we in turn can say something that will help her feel good. It is not easy to do that when a failure has occurred. That is, however, the time when a child needs support and a kind, encouraging word. It is when his belief in himself is shaken that parents can be instrumental in bolstering a child's good feelings about himself. It is this--an encouraging word at a time of failure--that in the long run leads to self confidence. Unfortunately, it is our children's mistakes and failures that most disturb us. We take it as a personal failure and a sign that we have not been adequate as parents. As a consequence, we may be harder on our own child than we would be on a neighbor's youngster or a relative's son or daughter. It is when Susan spills her milk at the dinner table that she needs some encouragement. When John fails to make the basketball team, it is then he needs a word that lifts his spirits. Or when Frank fails a math test or comes home with a D on his report card that encouragement is in order. Encouragement under trying circumstances comes in various forms: An arm around the shoulder; "Hey, it's not so bad. You should have seen my grades when I was your age."; "Let's see if we can work this out together."

An alert ignoring of a situation or simply offering no comment; "You had a lot of courage to even try that"; "Sure, but look at how well you're doing in English. You really have been studying"; or "Let's take a break from that and go to a movie together. It may be easier to tackle later." Encouragement is so much better than negative or critical remarks. It not only helps a child to identify his strengths and assets, it shows our faith in him, gives his spirits a boost and best of all it makes mom or dad feel better about themselves. All it takes is some encouragement at a bad moment.

A jam-covered reward for services well performed is consumed with gusto by Matt Phillips, lieutenant for the North Sashabaw Elementary School safety patrol.

Safety patrols eat up this kind of recognition

Robert Sturgis, captain of the North Sashabaw Elementary School safety patrol, and his corps of 61 other patrolers enjoyed a mid-year boost Friday in the form of breakfast at school. Eight and a half dozen eggs were scrambled to be served with sausage and toast and juice. Provided by the PTA, the food was prepared and served by volunteers and teacher Thomas Brown, who's in charge of the patrols. The recognition breakfast was given because "they've been a good group so far," Brown said.

Theresa Medaris [left] and Kim Bender fill up their plates and then put on the finishing touch for a yummy breakfast: a dollop of jam.
