Sheriff protection now full-time

By Kathy Greenfield

Emergency calls for police assistance in Independence Township should now be directed to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD) 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The number to call is 858-4911.

The two local police officers resigned from their positions Monday to join the OCSD and the contract increasing the township's OCSD coverage from four to six deputies was signed last week, said Supervisor Whitey Tower.

The township police department is winding down now and is to be officially disbanded Feb. 2.

"Back records will have to be gone over with the county to pick up back cases, warrants, etc. It could be upward of 800 cases," Tower said. "The girls are working on it to have it in some shape to send to the county."

"Everybody's been geared here," Tower said. "It's quite an involvement. You have so many mechanics in dumping a department."

Charles Kimbel, director of township police services, is to remain on the job until Feb. 2.

There are no lay-offs anticipated of the remaining police department staff with the exception of Kimbel, although Kimbel could continue to be a member of the township's police reserve unit that the township board voted to maintain, Tower said.

The animal control officer and one dispatcher are to be maintained under the township Department of Public Works and continue to provide service Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Residents with animal complaints can call the same number as in the past--625-8600.

The other full-time employee is to be transferred to another department.

"At most it might cause some problems with part-time help," Tower said. "It will all work out hopefully for everybody's best."

Citing economic reasons and displeasures with split police coverage formerly provided during the day by the local department and during the evening by the OCSD, the township board voted 4-3 last month to disband the local police department.

Tower, who voted against dissolving the local department, said he remains displeased with the change.

"I still feel that we had the best services with combined and I think it's going to be obvious," he said. "Now I'm the only complaint person left."

"We have set up a complaint procedure," he added. "They will have to go through the county. Some people not happy with the way it went are now registering complaints."

One call last week was from residents concerned over an investigation by the local police department on broken windows that have been an ongoing problem for a few months, Tower said.

"Now all we can do is turn the records over to the county," he said.

... But politics linger on

By Kathy Greenfield

Political pressures continue to surround the dissolution of Independence Township's police department.

The latest turmoil involves changing the location of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD) substation from Colombiere Center, Big Lake Road, Springfield Township, to the police services building adjacent to Independence Township Hall on Main Street, Clarkston.

For the time being, the police services building will continue to house the local animal control officer and dispatcher as well as the township reserve police unit, said Supervisor Whitey Tower.

There are also problems because of limited parking facilities, he said.

"The statement came out yesterday that they (the OCSD) weren't willing to move at this time," Tower said. "It's their choice at this time not to (use the building)."

Without positive encouragement to move, the OCSD will stay put at the Colombiere location, said Capt. Billy Nolin of the OCSD.

"We don't want to jam ourselves in a building where they don't have the room," Nolin said. "If and when (the township) vacates the building, we would move in."

"Our sentiments are we're real comfortable where we are. We have access to all areas," he added. "Why cause problems by going someplace else?"

Nolin also said the OCSD was told there was a problem with parking space, and the county would need room for about six cars.

Treasurer Frederick Ritter, who made the original motion to disband the local department, finds the situation upsetting.

"There isn't a parking problem," he said. "That's just an excuse that's been fabricated by people who don't want the county to move in, because they really don't like the idea of not having a local department."

Ritter said he would like to see the township reserve unit moved to the lower level of township hall that was vacated when the township senior citizen center was opened, and animal control should be moved to the public works department, of which it is to be a part.

"You have to look at your benefit ratio," Ritter said. "What's more important--dispatching an animal control officer and dispatching 16 reserve officers maybe two nights a week or making the building available for around-the-clock protection from the county?"

"I can't see housing the county out of Springfield when we can house them here and get 60 percent additional coverage at no extra cost," he said.

If the OCSD was housed next to township hall, in addition to the six officers paid for by the township, four more would be working out of the building and a command sergeant would spend some time at the office, Ritter said.

Hokey hockey

To Jeffrey Galley's delight, his father Ronald pulls him around the ice on Clarkston's Mill Pond at the end of a large hockey stick. After a long ride, the elder Galley dropped to the ice, laughing, and said, "Daddy's going to have a heart attack."

11th win toughest

The undefeated Clarkston high school basketball team played what proved to be their toughest game of the season Tuesday night at Rochester Adams.

In stark contrast to cake-walk against Rochester Friday, the Wolfpack trailed at the half—the first time that's happened this season—before recovering to post a 71-61 win.

"We came out very flat in the first half, and Adams is a good club," Clarkston coach Gary Nustad said, explaining the halftime deficit.

"We picked up and played with greater intensity on defense in the second half."

Six-10 center Tim McCormick was again the dominating factor in the victory, scoring 29 points, grabbing 20 rebounds, and blocking 7 shots. Scott McKoin added 18 points, and John Sheldon, returned to action from an injury to rack up 14 points and 6 assists.

Missing from the lineup was senior guard Ed Haddad, out with the flu.

Obituary

John Skarritt

A Masonic funeral service for John Kimball (Kim) Skarritt Sr. of Clarkston is to be held Thursday at 11 a.m. at Goyette Funeral Home, Clarkston.

Burial is to follow at Lakeview Cemetery.

Skarritt, 80, died Monday after a long illness.

A retired repairman from Pontiac Motor Division of General Motors Corp., Skarritt was a life member of Cedar Lodge No. 60 F&AM.

Surviving are his son John K. Skarritt Jr. of Clarkston, four grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Burglary suspect held

A suspect has been charged with breaking and entering a Clarkston gasoline station late Sunday night.

Robert Heatley, 20, of Pontiac was arrested inside Morgan's Marathon service station, 28 S. Main, at about 11:40 p.m., police said.

He was charged with breaking and entering and released on bond Monday.

An amount of coins were recovered from Heatley at the time of arrest, said Detective Sgt. Roger Allen of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Another subject arrested in the same matter was released, pending further investigation, Allen said.

Police have been unable to make a connection between the case and another suspected breaking and entering discovered about two hours later at 1:48 a.m. at the Gulf service station, 7650 M-15, Independence Township.

Police were checking the building during normal patrol when they found it broken into, Allen said.

Cash and coins were missing from the building, he said.

Funds earmarked for park, paths

By Kathy Greenfield

The majority of the proposed $120,200 Community Development budget for Independence Township has been earmarked for recreational projects.

The township board approved the budget in a 5-2 vote on Jan. 8. The figures will be submitted to the Oakland County Community Development office for approval and then to the federal government for the final okay.

All but $24,000 of the budget is to be spent in Census Tract 3, located in the southeast section of the township, the area determined by the 1970 United States Census to have the lowest average income.

Census Tract 3 which measures about three square miles includes the Woodhull Lake Subdivision, the location board members have said at previous meetings should benefit most from the Community Development funds.

"I don't think we're directing money in that low income area," said Trustee William Vandermark. "Some of the dollars will benefit Woodhull, but not as much money as I feel is desirable."

"At least half of it is directed toward that census tract," disagreed Trustee Jerry Powell. "To say we're not helping the Woodhull Lake area is just not accurate."

Objections to using Woodhull Lake's name in connection with discussion of the Community Development grant were made by Woodhull resident Donald DeWald of Jerome Boulevard.

"Everyplace says Woodhull Lake--low income. There's no low income there," he said. "What it looks like in the newspapers is that's a slum area."

Suggestions for spending money in Woodhull were made by Roger Mulherin of Glenalda Street, also a resident of the subdivision.

There are places on Clintonville Road and Woodhull Drive "where you could break an axle," he said, and he requested gravel or paving where the two roads meet Sashabaw Road.

Mulherin also requested money for additional street lights and for dust control.

The proposed Community Development budget approved by the township includes the following:

- Park property acquisition--$30,000. The land under consideration is 10 to 14 acres north of Maybee Road and east of Sashabaw Road. Projected cost of the property is $110,000 or less and the board discussed spending Community Development money not yet spent from the past three years and also additional money from the 1981 allotment.

- Safety path construction--$20,000. Combined with $30,000 now in revenue sharing funds earmarked for safety paths, the total should allow construction of approximately one mile of sidewalks in Census Tract 3.

- Senior citizen center improvements--$20,000. Items discussed for the expenditure included $11,000 for asphaltting the parking lot and $26,000 for an elevator chair lift to make the top floor barrier-free. The paving must be completed this year, so the remainder of funds will probably be saved until the cost of the elevator chair can be covered.

- Fire station addition (Maybee Road station)--$30,000. The amount is to cover part of the projected $70,000 cost to make an addition to the station that serves the Census Tract 3 area. Plans are in the works to request the rest of the money from Community Development funds the county is splitting between communities with projects deemed worthwhile.

- Road improvements in Census Tract 3--$16,200. According to discussion, the money is to be used in the Woodhull Lake area.

- Planning and management fees--$2,000. The amount is to cover any engineering costs for projects.

- Contingencies--$2,000. The sum is set aside to cover any cost overruns on projects.

Disagreement over the need for more parks resulted in "no" votes cast by trustees Rudy Lozano and Michael Thayer.

"I don't think this township absolutely needs another park,"

Lozano said. "I feel there are other priorities right now other than to continue to expand our park property."

A door-to-door survey was made in eight subdivisions near by the proposed park off Maybee Road, said Timothy Doyle, parks and recreation director.

"We go ahead and survey 700 and some homes--542 respond, 500 says yes and 42 says no," Doyle said. "Part of the Community Development's Act main contention was to have a project 10 years from now where you have something to show for that money."

Working with brushes over 100 times softer than camel hair, Oakland County Sheriff's Department ID Technician Richard Cech dusts the truck cab for fingerprints. He found no prints, indicating that the driver of the stolen gasoline tanker wore gloves.

To haul stolen fuel

Now they're stealing gas trucks

By Kathy Greenfield

Trucker Don Sinclair was driving past the northbound I-75 rest stop in Springfield Township early Friday morning when he spotted a familiar truck.

The semi-truck trailer capable of holding 9,000 gallons of gasoline had been reported stolen from Refiners Transport and Terminal Corp., Melvindale, early Thursday morning.

Sinclair, who drives a similar truck for the company, stopped to investigate.

It was 8 a.m.

Sinclair figured the truck travelled about 100 miles judging from the amount of gasoline gone from the truck's tanks.

Considering the distance from Melvindale to the rest stop, he said the truck was probably used to transport gasoline pumped from one location to another, he said.

To his knowledge, the truck was not carrying any fuel when removed from the truck yard, but a truck taken about six weeks earlier had been full, Sinclair said.

Security around the gasoline trucking companies has been increased, he said, because the incidence of stolen gasoline has gone up.

"I think you're going to see more of it with the price of gas," he said.

Richard Cech, identification technician for the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, was sent to the scene to check the truck for fingerprints.

Finding an abandoned tanker in Oakland County is rare, he said.

Working with two points against him--the cold weather and a truck that was cold when found--Cech dusted the truck's cab for fingerprints, but found none.

The cold affects the clarity of prints, but he found none, indicating that the driver wore gloves, he said.

"No good leads," Cech said, and the case was turned over to the Melvindale Police Department for further investigation.

Citing an increase in supply and gasoline costs, Holly Volunteer Ambulance (HVA) has raised its rates for non-members.

HVA's three ambulances serve Springfield Township as well as Holly, Rose and Groveland townships.

Effective Jan. 15, loading fees increased by $10 to $60 for residents of the townships served and $85 for non-residents.

Mileage fees were raised by 50 cents to $1.50 per mile one-way to the hospital for residents and $2 for non-residents.

Rates will remain the same for members at least until July 1 when present contracts expire, said Lois Merrill, secretary to the HVA board of directors.

Yearly membership dues are $12. There is no loading fee for members and mileage one-way to the hospital is $1 per mile.

HVA is staffed by volunteers, including an Emergency Medical Technician, who receive $5 for each ambulance run in order to qualify for workmen's compensation, and she is the only HVA employee paid a salary, Merrill said.

Gasoline prices caused the largest increase in expenses, accounting for $4,595 in 1979, an expected increase of 20 percent in 1980, she said.

His hand is faster than the eye

Magician Scott Bell spends hours perfecting his magic tricks. He enjoys entertaining and the expressions on people's faces when his magic takes them by surprise.

By Kathy Greenfield

Becoming a magician takes plain hard work, says 15-year-old Scott Bell.

The young magician devotes some 10 hours a week to practicing his craft.

And when he appears at birthday parties, picnics and cub scout meetings, his diligence pays off.

"It's always hard for me to do my first trick. After that, I like it," he said. "I like seeing the people—the expressions on their faces. I like entertaining people."

Scott goes all out for his shows—dressed in a blue tuxedo, top hat and white gloves, he performs a routine of at least 15 to 20 magic acts, working behind a dragon-covered stand.

The Clarkston High School tenth grader is the son of Archie and Jeannette Bell of Marconi Road, Independence Township.

His interest in magic began with his uncle, Bill Bell, who is a semi-professional magician, Scott said.

About three years ago, his mother bought Scott some magic tricks of his own.

"I liked them, so I've kept on doing it," he said.

A four-day magic convention in Colon has helped Scott's interest grow.

"You get to meet Blackstone Jr., the magician, and magicians from all over the world," he said, and there are showrooms and lots of magic tricks for sale.

The hobby is expensive and Scott's parents have helped him with costs. He plans on finding a job as soon as he's old enough to drive and he also supplements

'You should never buy a trick and go out and do it.

You have to practice it 25

his income by babysitting.

He's very popular on the babysitting circuit, entertaining his young charges with magic tricks.

Scott has also started giving magic shows for youngsters for a fee. He charges $20 an hour.

He reads a lot of books about magicians in addition to spending hours practicing new routines.

"You should never buy a trick and go out and do it," he said. "You have to practice it 25 times in front of a mirror."

A big event in the Bell house is a family magic show by Scott and his uncle around Christmas-time when about 16 people gather for a two-hour presentation.

Scott's parents are pleased with his achievements.

"We're really proud of him," said his mother.

"I think it's great," said his father. "It's good for him and he's so natural doing it."

"It keeps me out of trouble," Scott added.

'If it Fitz. . .'

Dear Mrs. Idiot,

by Jim Fitzgerald

Ann Landers recently revealed, in Ladies Home Journal, that when her husband told her, during dinner, that he was having an extramarital affair, she immediately went out to do some shopping for him. She explained that "he never even bought a suit without me."

Miss Landers' cool attitude didn't save the 36-year-old marriage. Soon after she returned from shopping, there was a divorce, and he quickly got married again, probably in a new suit. My wife, although it is none of her business, is very angry about the whole unhappy episode.

Nothing makes my wife madder than middle-aged husbands who leave their wives for younger women. Even though Ann Landers is the world's most famous dispenser of advice to troubled spouses, my wife insists Ann is a barefoot shoemaker.

Ann shouldn't have bought her departing husband a suit, my wife said, she should have hit him on the head with the dining room table. This violence wouldn't have restored romance to the relationship, but it would have provided a memory to make dining alone more pleasant for Ann, especially if the table were badly cracked. That's what my wife said.

Just because she says things like that, you shouldn't start thinking funny things about me. Not all middle-aged husbands stray, and I am all of them. The combination of love, laziness and Monday Night Football make me the perfect fireside husband, and we don't even have a fireplace. In fact, this perfection probably prompts my wife's strong sympathy for wives who aren't so lucky. She feels guilty about having me while Ann Landers has only millions of readers to tell what to do.

BUT LET'S GET SERIOUS. I received a serious letter from a Flint woman whose husband has taken a walk. I guess she wrote to me because she doesn't want to buy the big jerk a new suit. I'll call her Jane. Listen to what she said:

"My husband was a wonderful guy—or so I thought. And then he went into mid-life crisis. First, he let his hair grow longer and had it styled. Great. Then he wanted a necklace, and I laughed. He was too masculine and 52 years old.

"Then he wanted to go to bars and dance among the 28-year-olds. I did it a couple of times, but then told him I thought we looked foolish. And then he left home. For the past two years he has been 'free to do as he pleases.' I almost divorced him, but then read a book, 'How to Survive the Male Mid-life Crisis.' I don't think it told me how, but it helped me understand him.

"The girls he has been seen with are young, unattractive and chubby. So, I'm not jealous. I look better at 55 than they do at 35.

"We have been married 35 years. If my husband had known what to expect when he hit 50, maybe he would have handled it differently. Three years ago I had never heard of the male mid-life crisis. It is far worse than female menopause. It destroys marriages and families. We had everything any responsible person could want. Even he admits we had a wonderful marriage. Now we will be lucky if we don't lose our home.

"Maybe you can do a column on these idiots. So many marriages have broken up because they can't face their age..."

END OF QUOTES from Jane. I don't have to write a column about those "idiots." She did it for me. We've all seen those 55-year-old swingers with their shirts open to the paunch, chains dangling, trying to look 25 but only looking silly. I don't care how rich he is, it's easy to laugh at Hugh Hefner.

I don't pretend to be an expert on why these guys act so stupidly. I'm not as smart as Ann Landers and her troops of clergymen, lawyers and toilet paper hangers. And so for firsthand experience, if I had a mid-life crisis, I probably slept through it.

I suppose it would be fair to tell some abandoned wives if they'd make themselves more interesting and attractive, their husbands wouldn't go somewhere else to get their buttons pushed. And it would be equally fair to tell some husbands that if they were as charming at home as at the corner disco, they wouldn't need an extension cord to get turned on.

The moral is if you know how to light the fire, you don't need a fireplace. Ask your partner. (Do you suppose this is how Ann Landers got started?)

Larry Powell would like to raise about $2,500 by selling used books and other items to help a friend who has cancer.

Wanted: Used books

He seeks help for cancer-stricken friend

Moved by the plight of a friend stricken with cancer, Larry Powell is seeking donations of used books and other items.

Powell wishes this friend to remain anonymous, but she was recently divorced, is the mother of three children and is a person he has come to admire over the seven years he has known her, he said.

His friendship with the woman came through activities in the National Federation for the Blind and through the "common denominator of being blind," Powell said.

Powell and his wife Lois are working together to make the fund-raiser a success. The Powells live on Faye Street, Independence Township.

The money from selling donated items is needed to help pay for his friend's chemotherapy treatments.

"She went to the hospital a week ago to take some final x-rays and it came up that she did have malignant cancer," he said last week.

The treatments are to cost about $1,100 each and insurance will cover about $800 of that amount, he said. Powell would like to raise a total of about $2,500.

"Our main function right now is to collect books and those types of things, because there's no way she can cover that," he said.

He has found places that will buy used paperbacks with both front and back covers, used record albums in good condition, men's magazines, children's books (paperback and hardcover), used 8-track tape decks and used batteries.

He will also accept donations of returnable bottles and cans.

So far, Powell has collected about $50 worth of used books just calling people he knows, he said.

"Some people are donating 10 or 50 books," he said, "And some people are donating five."

"I don't care if it's one, it's one more than we have," he added.

At least one local church has agreed to participate in the collection of old books and has set up a drop-off center, Powell said.

If the effort to help his friend is successful, Powell would like to set up a trust fund to help the blind and physically handicapped.

"I've been lucky," he said. "You've got to give some back once in awhile."

Those with items to donate or groups who would like to help may call Powell evenings at 674-3784.

League choir in concert

A 120-voice Greater Oakland Activities League Choir will perform Tuesday, Jan. 29 at Clarkston High School.

The choir will be made up of the top 24 students from five participating schools in the Oakland County league.

Sending representatives to the mass choir are the vocal music departments of the following schools, listed with their directors:

Bloomfield Hills Andover, Bruce Synder

Clarkston, Grayce Warren

Milford, James Cutty

Rochester, Frank Irish

West Bloomfield, Carolyn Thebideau

The directors prepare the chosen music at their respective schools. There will be a mass rehearsal and banquet before the concert, which is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. in the CHS auditorium.

Guest conductor for the league choir will be Dr. Charles K. Smith, director of choral activities at Michigan State University.

Smith directs MSU's chorale and State Singers and guides the advanced degree programs in choral conducting at the university.

Music selected by Smith for the league choir to sing is: "Movin' On" by Hannisian, "Sing Ye Righteous" by Viana, "Evening Song to God" by Haydn, "Shenandoah" arranged by Erb and "Shepherd Me, Lord" by Kingsley.

In addition, each school will send another performing group.

These will be the Jills, bell ringers from Bloomfield Hills; the Clarkston High School Madrigal Singers; the Show Choir from Milford High School; Rochester High School Chamber Singers; and West Bloomfield's Lads and Lassies.

Tickets for the public are $1 and may be purchased from the music departments of any of the participating schools or at the door.

Players rehearsing

Six Clarkston Village Players now are rehearsing their roles for the troupe's next production, "Absured Person Singular."

The six, who will portray three married couples who give wildly disorganized Christmas Eve parties, were selected after recent auditions.

Barb Markwood and Jim Tyrrell are paired as a socially ambitious couple.

Marilyn Bridgeman and Bob Arend will portray a couple whose marriage is on the verge of collapse.

Pete Rose and Marlene Sewick will be seen as a successful banker and his wife.

Russ Inman is directing the production which will open for a three-weekend run Feb. 22. There will be an afterglow audience and cast following the opening-night performance at the Depot Theatre.

Tickets are available at Tierra Arts and Designs, 20 S. Main, Clarkston.

Nutritious gathering attracts seniors

By Kathy Greenfield

Food preparation can be a hassle for people whose children are grown or who live alone.

At the Independence Township Senior Citizen Center, anyone 60 years old or older or the spouse of someone 60 or older can eat a well-balanced lunch Monday through Friday from noon to 1 p.m.

And the meal is free, although donations are asked for coffee and tea and donations may be made for the meal.

The meals are prepared and delivered by the Oakland-Livingston Human Service Agency (OLHSA).

As many as 30 people gather at the center on Clarkston-Orion Road north of Sashabaw Road to dine each day, said Barbara Kirk, site hostess for the nutrition program.

Last Friday's menu was German potato salad, sausage, spinach, bread and butter, milk and a banana.

Kitty Jones of Sashabaw Road, Independence Township, said the potato salad was a treat, because she no longer makes it at home.

Going to the center for lunch breaks up the day, she said, and gets her out of the house.

"There's a lot of company," said Bea Brewer of Flemings Lake Road, Independence Township. "We came over here yesterday just for lunch and we started playing cards. You know what time we got out of here? Four or five o'clock!"

"Most of the people who come, it really isn't the food, it's the company," said Ken Clair of Brandon Township.

"Where it helps a lot of people, it might be the only full meal they get. They may not bother to fix a meal, just a sandwich or something," he added. "It's here available for them."

The only request made of the lunch-goers is that they call in for reservations, preferably a week in advance, although that is not a firm rule.

Frequently, people call the morning of the lunch and ask if they may join in, Kirk said.

"I usually order a few extra in case somebody comes along like that," she said.

Even senior citizens on special diets can participate in the program, she said.

"We'd like to really build it up," Kirk said. "If we have more people coming out, they'll see the facilities we have and join in on some of the other activities."

Volunteers are needed to drive people to the center for lunch.

If interested, call Rina Chemin, senior citizen coordinator, at 625-8231 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

The same number may be called to make luncheon reservations.

Bea Brewer dishes up a well-balanced, hot lunch at the Independence Township Senior Center. The meals are provided Monday through Friday from noon to 1 a.m.

Acapulco is not a new place to visit, but it is still as glamorous and enjoyable as it was in Hollywood's golden days when movie stars made it a famous vacation spot. One of the few places where you can be sure of beautiful weather, Acapulco shines brightly every day. There are marvelous hotels with great food and first-rate service; exceptional tennis, wonderful people, lots of discos ringing with music all night long. As in Hawaii, the dress is casual, and its great estates and old villas invite the vacationer to house-see.

Reservations to Acapulco can be made with just a phone call to us at CLARKSTON TRAVEL BUREAU INC., 6 N. Main St., 625-0325. Falcons no match for Wolfpack

By Al Zawacky

The fans were practically hanging in the rafters at the Clarkston High School gymnasium Friday night, anticipating a real barn-burner as Clarkston's Wolfpack and the Rochester Falcons met in a showdown contest for first place in GOAL.

But while both teams brought 4-0 league records into the game, the Wolfpack exposed the Falcons as more pretenders to the throne, taking an easy 43-22 victory.

The score represented the lowest offensive output of the season for both teams as Rochester emphasized ball-control and delaying tactics from the opening tipoff.

Indeed, half the first quarter had ticked away before either team put points on the board.

"That's the third strategy that other teams have tried against us," Clarkston coach Gary Nustad said later. "They've tried to press us and wear us down, but our stamina has held up."

"They've tried to box Tim (Clarkston star center Tim McCormick) in by playing him man-to-man while playing a zone against everyone else, but that hasn't worked because the other kids scored."

Rochester's tactics, while novel, met with a similar lack of success.

"That's the first time anyone has tried to slow the ball down on us," Nustad noted. "What (Rochester coach) John Bailey did was take a page out of the Al McGuire coaching book: when you're on the road, you attempt to slow the game down and control the tempo to take the crowd out of the game."

"When you're at home, you attempt to create the play, run more and shoot more to pump up the crowd and get them behind you. I thought our crowd tonight was tremendous—they stayed with us."

"I thought this was a good experience for the kids as well," Nustad continued. "They're going to come up against this type of strategy again, and when they do they'll know they can handle it. We showed a lot of poise."

The low scoring contest resulted in more than a few curious statistics. For one, the Wolfpack shot 100 percent from the line—one for one—and McCormick, who usually grabs about 18 rebounds a game picked off only six as a result of the lack of action around the baskets.

McCormick also led Clarkston in scoring with 18 points. Teammate Ed Haddad added 6, John Sheldon, Greg Lane and Chuck Nicolai 4, Scott McKoin 3 and Doug Hagyard and Jerry Tatu 2.

Chris Ribant and Ron Jenkins led Rochester with four points. No member of the Falcons snared more than a single rebound in the team total of three.

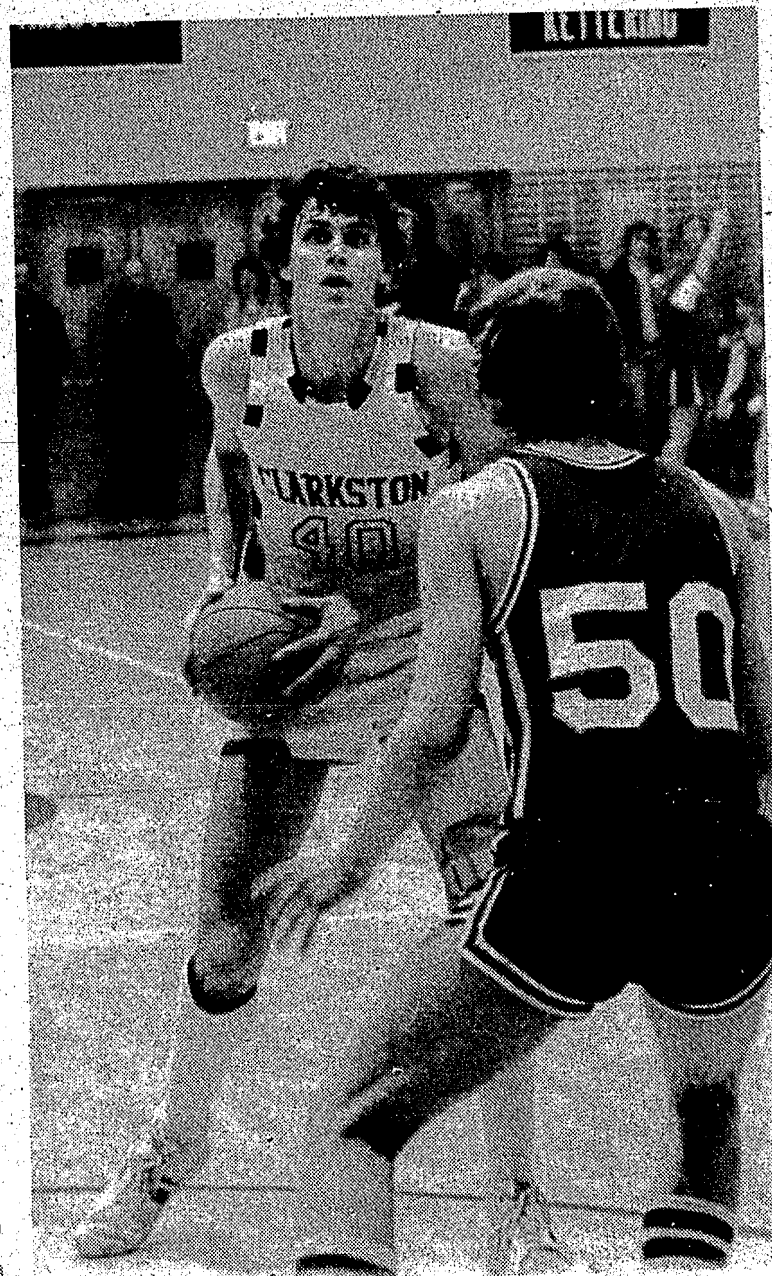

Despite his team's tenth straight victory without a loss, Nustad remained cautious about the rest of the season.

"I felt last week that our next five games—Grand Blanc, Rochester, Rochester Adams, Andover and Pontiac Central—would hopefully act as a springboard to take us all the way to the end of the season."

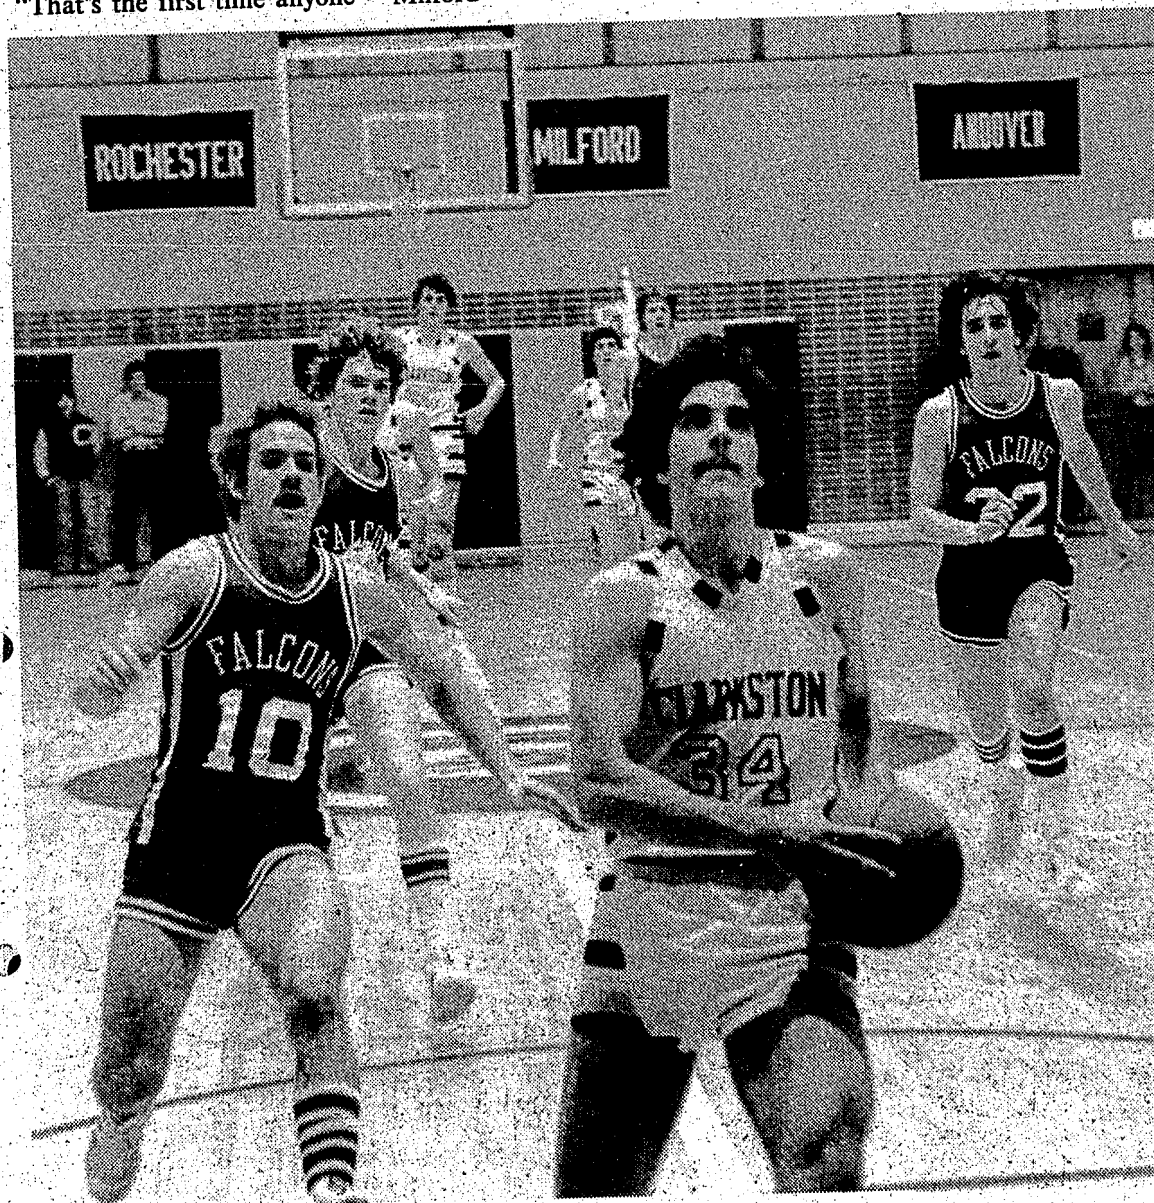

Winning all five of those games, the coach pointed out, could propel the Wolfpack to an undefeated regular season and a positive outlook heading into the March tournaments.

Greater Oakland Activities League Basketball Standings

Team	W	L	PF	PA

Rochester	4	1	209	200

West Bloomfield	1	4	248	300
Milford	0	5	212	290

The Wolfpack's Tim McCormick [40] was his usual self in the Rochester contest, leading both teams in scoring with 18 points. Here, he plots his way around Falcon Dana Brault.

A fast break and two points for Clarkston follow a Rochester turnover, as Ed Haddad [34] outraces three Falcons to score one of his three buckets.

The Clarkston News

Athlete of the week

A good start often leads to a good finish—which explains in part the success of Clarkston High School's undefeated wrestling team this year.

When the 98-pounders square off at the start of each varsity meet, the Wolves virtually assure themselves of getting off on the right foot by sending out sophomore Mike Conway, The Clarkston News' Athlete of the Week.

Conway's season mark is an impressive 16-2-1, including a first-place finish in the Thurston Invitational Tournament, fourth place in the Oakland County Invitational and another first place performance in the Clarkston Invitational Tourney held this past weekend.

"Conway had three pins against some pretty tough kids, one of whom was 20-3 on the season," said CHS wrestling coach Rick Detkowski. "His other win was a 5-0 decision."

Of Conway's 16 victories, 10 of them were on pins—and two of those came in the first minute.

Meanwhile, the sophomore grappler's two rare defeats couldn't have been any closer: both were 1-0 decisions.

Random ramblings:

Polls: According to the latest prep basketball poll by Associated Press, Clarkston is the second-best class A team in the state. Or was it third best? Fourth?

Does anybody really care?

Maybe I'm a little dumb, but looking down the list of the top 10 teams I couldn't find a single team that the Wolfpack has played. And that makes me wonder how anybody can say who is better than whom.

But I guess the ratings are kind of fun to argue about, anyway. If the polls were a food, they'd be like the parsley sprigs they put on your steak: nice to look at, but not meant for internal consumption.

Moscow: How do you feel about the Carter Administration's threatened boycott of the Olympic games this summer? It would be interesting to get some reader feedback on this.

Dome: Roughly three more weeks to the Clarkston-Davison basketball game at the Silverdome.

If you've never seen a prep game in Pontiac Stadium, you're missing some good entertainment. There's a special electricity surrounding these games that is difficult to express in words, but easy to sense at the game itself.

Much of it comes from the players—even if they never play in the Silverdome again, you've got to envy them the sensation of playing on the same court that Lanier, McAdoo and the rest perform on.

This is it—the big time. What self-respecting sandlotter hasn't dreamed at one time or another in his life of playing at Tiger Stadium? To this day, I still think I'd like a shot at over-running fly balls in center field just like Ron LeFlore used to. (Sorry, Ron).

The Pistons and Silverdome management deserve praise for scheduling these prep games. It's one of the (few) things they've done right.

Hot Soccer: The Detroit Express and the new sport in town—"hot soccer"—have gotten a lukewarm reception from local sports fans. According to a recent press release, attendance has averaged under 3,000 a night—hardly the stuff dreams are made of.

That's a shame, because the game itself is pretty decent, action-wise. My only complaint is the positioning of the goals as just a hole in the boards, thus eliminating all the action and passouts that occur behind the net in ice hockey.

Little league

Parents wishing to enroll their sons or daughters ages 7 through 14 in little league baseball can bring their children to Davisburg Elementary School, 12003 Davisburg Road, on Feb. 11 or 12 from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Signing up for the Davisburg Little League costs $18 for a single child, $21 for two and $30 for three or more.

Wolf tracks

Coach Gary Nustad on the Rochester game: "I thought Rochester's strategy was sound, but they probably waited a little too long before opening up—there's no point in stalling when you're behind by 10 points."

But while the Wolfpack's coach may have been able to appreciate the logic behind the Falcon's tactics, few of the Clarkston fans appreciated the somewhat boring basketball that resulted. Rochester was serenaded off the court at halftime by a chorus of boos from the Wolfpack faithful.

Question: When was the last time the Clarkston High School varsity basketball team lost a contest at home?

Answer: Feb. 17, 1978. Final score: Andover 56, Clarkston 49.

A prediction: it's still a little early to be popping champagne to celebrate the Wolfpack's third straight GOAL title. But conceding first place to Clarkston, we see Bloomfield Hills Andover—not Rochester—taking runner-up honors.

Contrary to what you may have read here last week, senior John Sheldon did not play against Grand Blanc—nor was he 100 percent against Rochester.

To err is human, as they say.

Sheldon, an outstanding playmaker who has been a standout at the point guard this season, is still recovering from an injury suffered against Waterford Mott two weeks ago.

Sheldon did see limited action against the Falcons, and coach Gary Nustad says prospects are bright for a full recovery in the near future.

In the meantime, the Wolfpack has proven that its talent is anything but shallow—Larry Baylis and John Pappas have played solid ball in Sheldon's absence.

SJH spikers victorious

By Al Zawacky

The results couldn't have been much closer or the action much more exciting as the Sashabaw and Clarkston junior high volleyball teams squared off Monday evening in the SJH gymnasium.

With the score standing 14-13 in favor of the home team, Sashabaw Junior High's Becky Buhl served up what proved to be the winning point, earning the Cougars a hardfought two-games-to-one victory.

"I was pleased with the way we set up the ball and attacked in the first and third game," said SJH coach Sue Kosloski. "In the second game we weren't doing those things, and it cost us."

Sashabaw opened the match with a 15-5 victory in game one, only to see the Wolverines bounce back in game two to post their own 15-5 win.

The final game saw Sashabaw in the lead most of the way, opening up a 14-9 margin before a CJH rally closed the gap to a single point.

For a moment the momentum seemed to shift to the Wolverines—but the Cougars regained their composure to pull out the victory.

"I wasn't really too concerned towards the end, when they (CJH) came back like and scored those four straight points," Kosloski said. "I just figured if we could keep the kids cool, keep them from getting frantic, that we'd be OK—I know we can play the game."

Kosloski went on to praise the work of several of her players: setters Dawn Willett and Marina Hamlett; Peggy Gadberry, Jeanine Ditch and Nancy Davis for their hitting; and the servers Becky Buhl and Jamie Howenstein.

Both the Cougars and Wolverines are 3-2 on the year, and will meet again before the end of the season on Feb. 20 at CJH.

Michelle Reid slams one netward for Sashabaw Junior High.

...and a few plays later Lori Martin returns the favor on CJH's serve.

CJH grapplers turn tables on Sashabaw

By Al Zawacky

Clarkston Junior High Wrestling coach Dave Stobbe wasn't overly surprised by his team's 42-26 victory over rival Sashabaw Junior High Monday night—even though the win marked the first time in five years that the Cougar grapplers had lost to their Wolverine counterparts.

"The kids were just so determined today that nothing else seemed to matter," Stobbe said. "They said they were going to beat Sashabaw—and they went out and did it."

Stobbe gave much of the credit to three Wolverine veterans—Brad Moshier, Scott Lyons and Steve Johnson. Each had wrestled with the team since seventh grade—providing them with some extra incentive to defeat the rival Cougars.

"They can remember getting beaten by Sashabaw pretty bad back in seventh grade—I think there was one meet where they didn't score a single point," Stobbe said. "They wanted this one bad—and it was good to see them get it."

The meet was actually much closer than the 42-26 score might indicate, as SJH pulled out in front several times during the 14 individual battles. When the two squads last met, the Cougars won on the strength of their light weights—a fact that Stobbe was well aware of.

"If there was anything surprising about the match, it was the play of our light weights—they performed even up against some tough kids and kept the score close," Stobbe said.

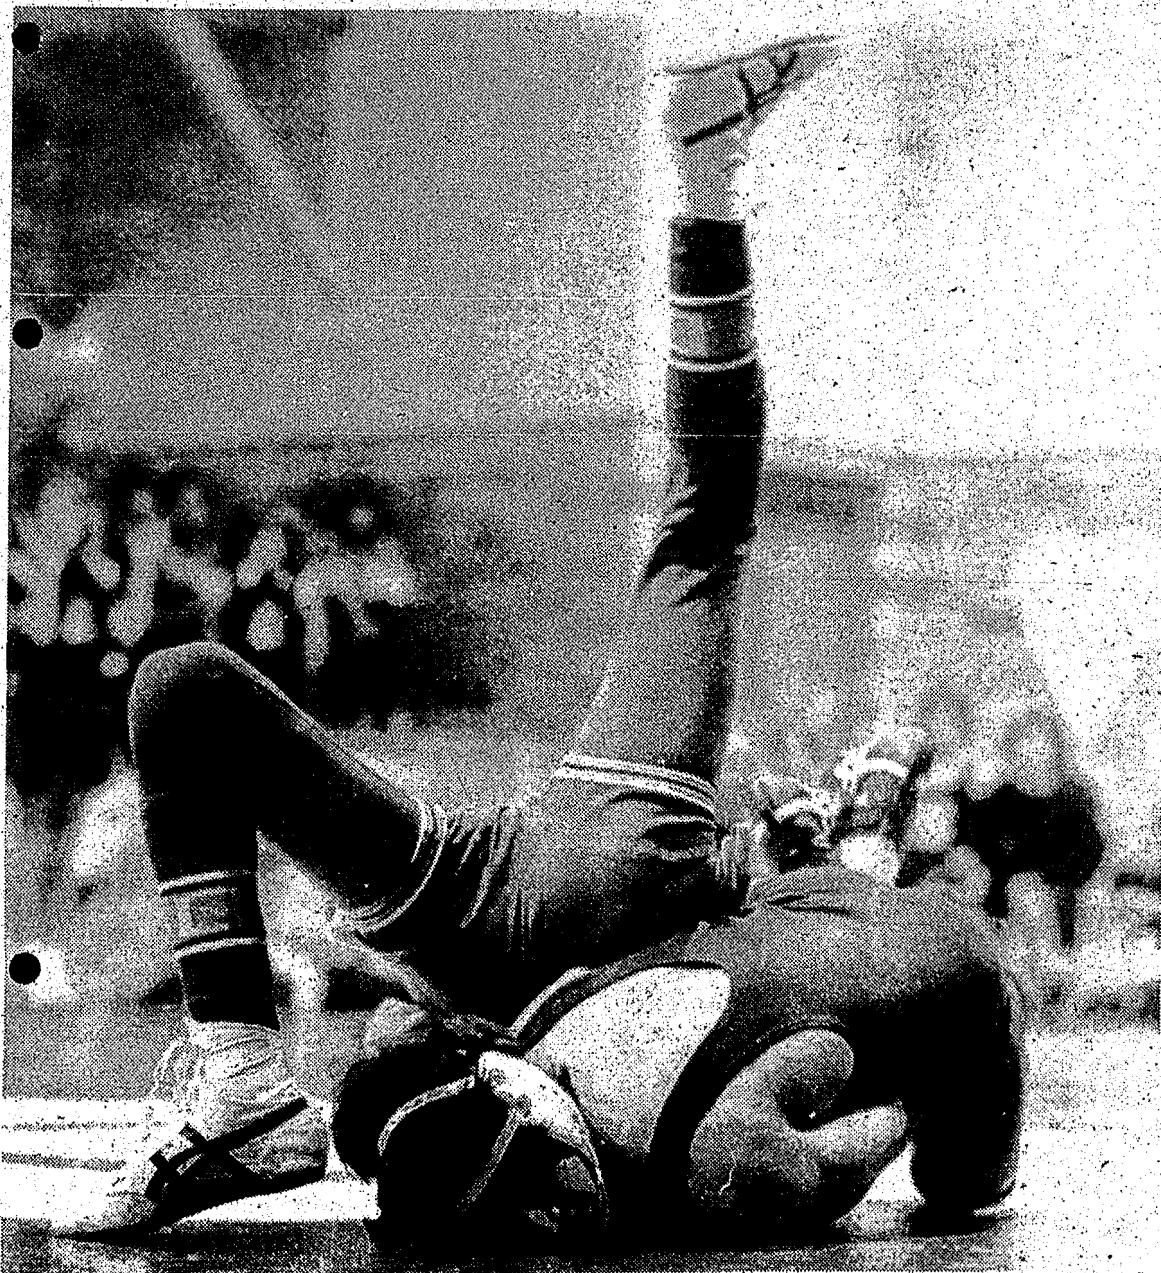

"When we trailed by only a few points going into our heavy weights, I knew we were in good shape to win."

Winners for CJH were Denny Lankton (decision, 11-1), Jessie Breece (pin, :56), Jim Walker (decision 17-4), Scott Lyons (pin, 3:52), Steve Johnson (decision, 9-8), Brad Moshier (pin, 2:05), Brian Tilley (pin, 1:04) and Kevin McClellan (pin, 2:40).

SJH's winners were Alan Wall (decision, 4-0), Kevin Knott (pin, :20), Jeff Lawrence (decision, 13-1), Andre Gourand (pin, 1:25), Eric Gourand (decision 4-2) and Mike Wendorf (decision, 14-7).

"The crowd was definitely a factor in this win, too," Stobbe added. "Having all these people here cheering us on made the kids wrestle that much harder—we really got that second effort today."

The victory gave the Wolverines a split in the season series against the Cougars, and upped their overall record to 6-3.

Bob Haran of Boy Scout Troop 189 explains what to do for a choking victim to paramedic Pat Turner. Bob lives on Allen Road, Independence Township.

His hands moving, Norman Duff of Ellis Road, Independence Township, earns top scores for explaining how to determine what is wrong when someone is unconscious and what to do about it.

"Victims" feigning a compound fracture, head injuries, burns, fainting and choking were treated by about 112 youngsters at the First Aid Meet of the Boy Scout Pontiac Manito District Saturday at Clarkston United Methodist Church. Although the injuries were not real, volunteers from Fleet Ambulance and the Pontiac Boy Scout Explorer Post worked together to make the scenes real. Injuries were recreated complete with fake blood, synthetic wounds and symptoms. Fleet paramedics and emergency medical technicians rated the boys' techniques. A side benefit was time spent explaining exactly what to look for and how to handle it. Here paramedic Pat Turner demonstrates how to check to see if the victim, Vince Burtch of Pontiac Township, is choking while Boy Scout Chris Sorgatz of Snow Apple Drive, Independence Township, watches.

Ecumenical service

Some 15 churches will participate in an ecumenical vesper service Sunday at Colombiere Center.

Choirs, ministers and church members will represent churches throughout North Oakland County and the metropolitan area.

Music for the service has been selected from the works of Handel, Franck and the contemporary folk composer Hal Hopson.

Champagne, antiques accent gallery opening

Champagne, art and antiques from Europe and Mideast will play roles in the grand opening of a new business by a Springfield Township couple.

Paul and Carolyn Sadows will introduce Prestige Galleries Inc., the auction gallery they are establishing with another couple in Southfield, through a gala champagne event at the Northfield Hilton in Troy Thursday night.

"We have some fabulous pieces," Paul said earlier this week. "We have some fine paintings and Persian rugs."

One of the items the Sadows consider a coup for auctioneers is a Faberge teapot made for the Czar's brother in 1892.

Also listed by Paul among some "rather exciting items" are a 15-carat Ceylon sapphire and some rare antique Turkish rugs.

Many of the items are from the estates of Muriel Vanderbilt Adams and Oral Kelly.

Viewing of the items will begin at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, with the auction scheduled to start at 7:30 p.m.

On Thursday and Friday nights, at the same times, there will be auctions at the gallery at 21421 Hilltop, near Telegraph and Eight Mile in Southfield.

The Sadows, who are opening the business with Mark and Diane Gordon, suggest that persons planning to visit the gallery call ahead for directions. The number is 358-4580.

On to D.C. for CHS band

The Clarkston High School Symphonic Band and Jazz Ensemble plan to spend spring vacation in Washington, D.C.

The musicians have been invited to participate in the sixth annual Festival of the Nations April 4 through 7.

Festival of Nations is sponsored by International Music Festivals, a non-profit corporation, to encourage and support high performance standards by non-professional organizations.

Attendance at the festival allows musical groups to hear performances by a variety of organizations from a wide geographic area.

In addition, festival groups are scheduled to perform in a variety of concert settings near the festival site.

Final ratings comprising five divisions are awarded. The CHS bands will be entering the AA classification, representing the highest category for high school divisions.

The bands will prepare for this event with concerts and fund-raising activities through February and March.

Cost of the trip will be about $10,000, most of which is to be raised by the Clarkston Band Boosters and the students.

Planned activities include a Rock-a-thon and Tag Day.

Volunteers as well as financial support and donations are needed to offer this opportunity to the CHS bands.

Anyone wishing to make a donation may contact Clifford Chapman, band director, at CHS, 625-5841.

The Band Boosters also sponsor a weekly bingo game Thursdays at 7 p.m. in the Sashabaw Junior High School cafeteria.

John Zubalik likes hometown best

John Zubalik has come home. As he talks about adventures in Utah, Florida, East Lansing and Mackinac Island where he has lived and worked since graduation from Clarkston High School in 1976, John's thoughts turn to what brought him back to the place he's called home since he was three weeks old.

"It's a big world out there," he says, "I felt I would be most successful where my roots are. The people are friendly."

"I felt it was time to establish myself. I saw what I wanted to see and I was ready to get into something where I could be independent and ready to use my skills as a person."

During his three-year-long sojourn, John had jobs as a cook

He now has two jobs—selling real estate for Century 21 and cooking three evenings a week at the Old Mill restaurant, Waterford Township.

A career in real estate is his goal and he's optimistic despite the recent slowdown in sales triggered by high interest rates.

"When the times are hard, you have to work a little bit harder," he says. "When the times are hard, I think people do a better job."

When not working, John enjoys activities like snow and water skiing, scuba diving, fishing and hunting.

His interests could have a lot to do with what it was like growing up in the Clarkston area.

I felt I would be most successful where my roots are.

in two restaurants, a glazier installing glass windows and doors, a page at the Michigan Capital Building and a construction worker.

He moved back to his parent's home on Marconi Street, Independence Township, last spring and is now in the process of moving to an apartment.

"I plan on staying here," he says. "I'll eventually buy a home."

The oldest of nine children, John's family ties were a factor in his decision to return.

"That's one of the reasons I came back," he says. "We're pretty close."

"It's always been open and free," he says. "We could walk to the lake and go swimming and fishing or go hiking in the woods."

His money-making ventures began when he was about 9-years-old. They included such things as helping a pine-tree grower, picking apples at a local orchard and mowing lawns.

Recent increases in the township's population have left him undaunted, however.

"I like the way it's growing," he says. "I don't want to see it become a thriving metropolis. I'd like to see it become a comfortable, country community."

A bachelor, John finds life in the area to his liking.

"Being single and living in Clarkston has been exciting for me," he says. "I have a good time anyplace I go. There's a lot of things to do—there's Pine Knob, you can ski, go to concerts. Sometimes if it's a nice day, you can spend it in the park with your friends."

He spends about one-half of his time in the general area and takes advantage of nearby cities the rest of the time, attending events like the Auto Show in Detroit or driving to Canada.

Meeting people is a knack John says he possesses.

"I meet people everywhere from grocery stores to stops," he says.

A typical incident happened last week while he was passing out flyers advertising his real estate selling.

"I came to this house with cars parked all over," he says. And then he saw a sign announcing a birthday celebration.

"All of a sudden, the door flies open and a woman says, 'You must be my present,' he laughs.

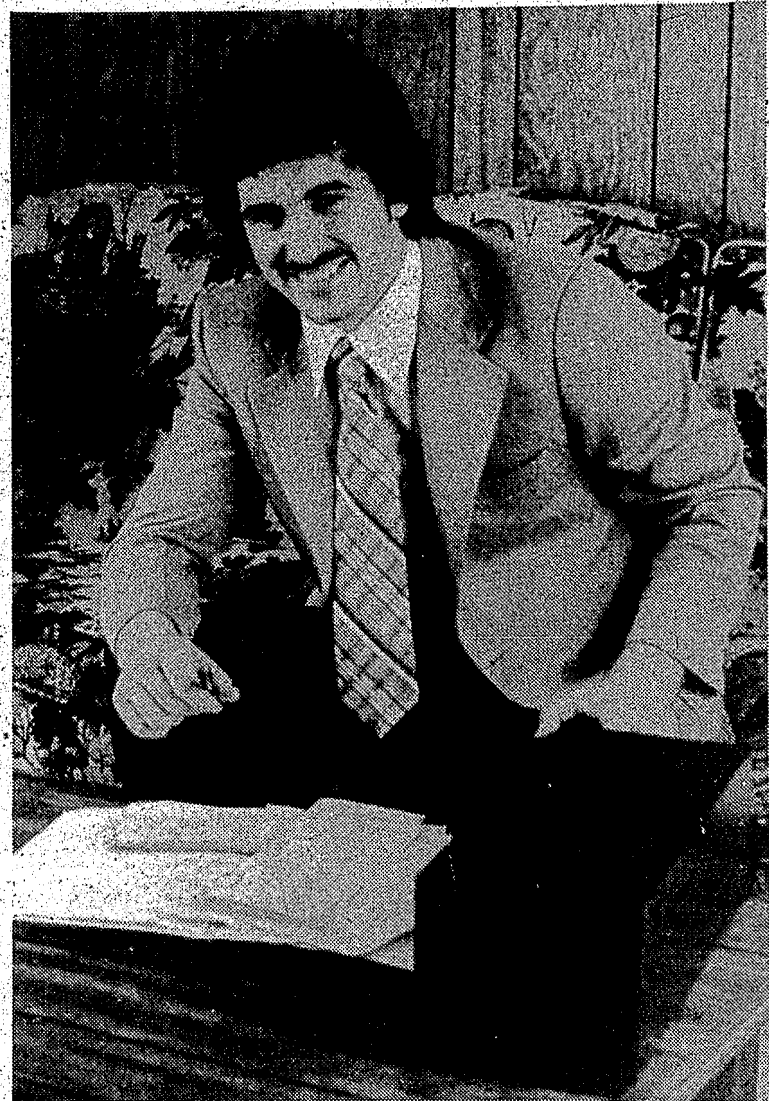

So he went inside and joined the party for awhile.

"It turned out they were all friendly and they knew my parents," he says.

John is aware of the changing social and political climate facing his generation, having done a study on changing lifestyles while in college.

"I like right now," he says. "There's a lot out there for me. I feel comfortable."

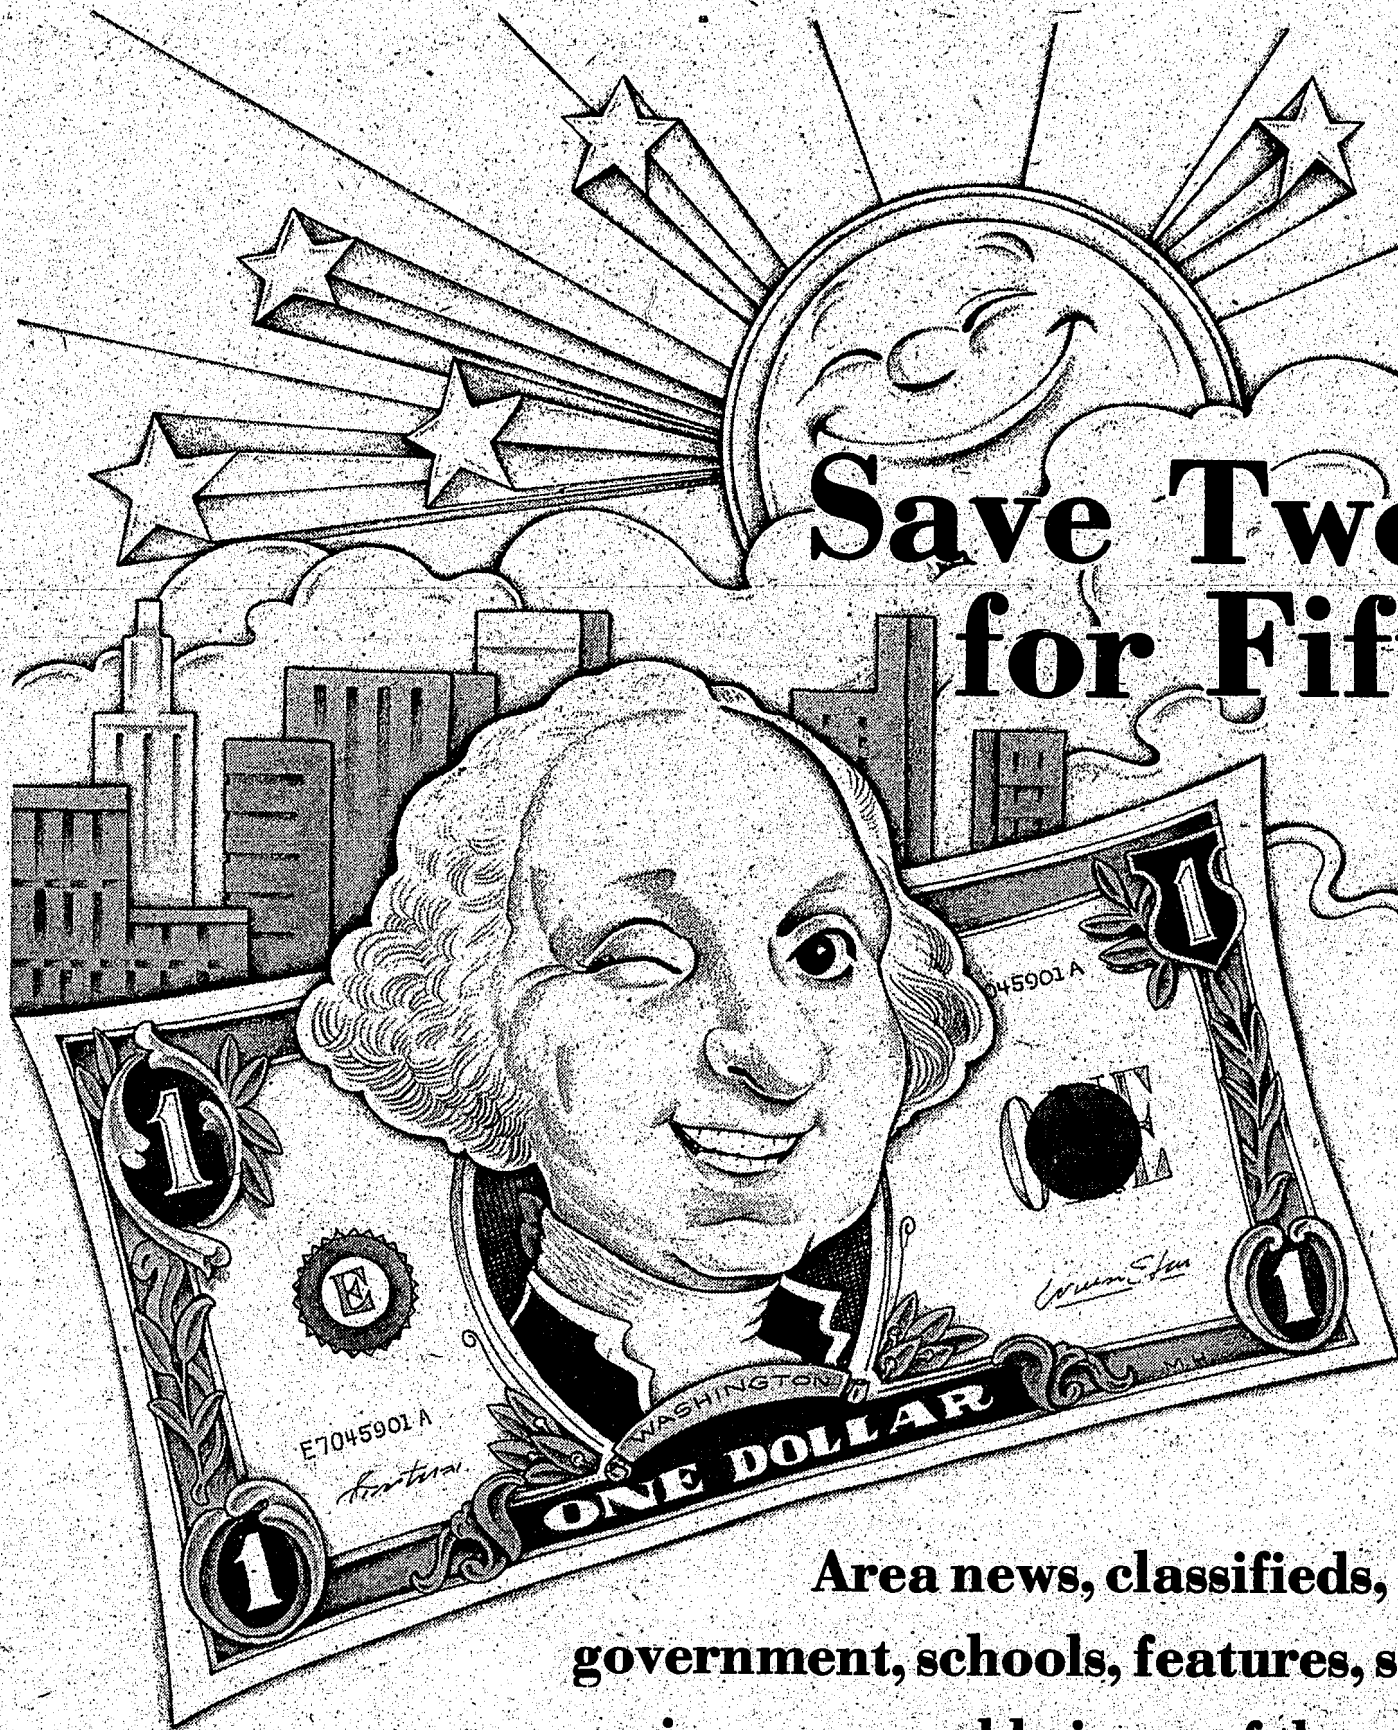

"There's a lot of things that are going on that aren't comfortable, like the economic situation and the housing situation, but it gets better every day," he adds. "The world is pretty much what you make it."

John takes the optimistic approach to his new career as a real estate salesman. "There's a lot of things that are going on that aren't really comfortable like the economic and the housing situation," he says. "But it gets better every day."

John holds onto the Zubalik family hunting dog that has a habit of greeting him by jumping up and taking happy-licks. The dog is shared by his father and brother Ernie, John says.

Discussed the idea of establishing a special assessment district for parking, as per the recommendation of the parking committee. It was decided to hold a Public Hearing on this after legal requirements are researched by our attorney.

Adopted a Resolution from the Citizens for Regional Water and Sewer System to support legislation to regionalize the Detroit Water and Sewer System, and to contribute $100 towards this. Abstain: Basinger.

Agreed to have the three buildings on S. Main inspected again by the building dept. for dangerous facades before commencing legal action to get the repairs completed.

Approved paying our part-time help $7.50 per hour when they're needed between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. Nays: Thayer.

Discussed the possible alternatives for police services in the village now that the township has disbanded their police force and gone with an Oakland County Sheriff contract. It was decided to hold a Public Hearing on this matter on Jan. 28 at 7:30 p.m. at the Village Hall to further discuss this matter.

Adjourned at 10 p.m.

All votes unanimous unless otherwise indicated.

Diary tells why teen turned to drugs

Our column this week is devoted to some excerpts from a 15-year-old girl's diary.

Cindy M. allowed us to have this diary at the beginning of her treatment.

In her own words, and with little comment needed for us, it dramatically indicates some of the turmoil adolescents feel and why they may turn to drugs.

"My life is screwed up! I admit I'm not straight and don't do all that is expected of me.

"I want to be myself! I'm sick and tired of being ignored, hit, yelled at and shoved around like a piece of crap! That's what I feel like: crap! That's when I turned to drugs.

"Once I was off drugs for three months and I wanted them back so bad! My life was rotten and my problems unbearable, but I forced myself to stay off the dope.

"Well, I turned back to them after I ended up in the hospital because of my nerves. The doctors didn't say it was nerves, but they didn't say it wasn't either."

"Besides, I know my own life and all the bull...that has gone on and keeps going on. I know why I turned to drugs...to get my mind off of this f---ing life of mine!

"I want to leave this house and these people. 'Don't run from your problems,' I keep telling myself. 'Don't run, it'll make things worse in the long run.' But, I want to so bad.

"I want to live with my dad. He cares about me. He loves me. 'My mom doesn't care. At least she never shows it or tells me.

Sure, sometimes she buys things for me; lets me eat and sleep. But not live!

"She never says 'good work' or 'I love you' or anything in between all that. All she does is bitch about things I do wrong."

"The more she bitches, then the more I do wrong and the deeper I get into drugs. The more dope I have and the more I do wrong, the more she bitches."

"It's a bad cycle: I've tried to talk to her. It's impossible! She starts yelling."

"If I trust her with something personal...I mean she just doesn't understand me and because of that she yells, which only makes things worse. Then she yells because I don't trust her with my problems."

"I've just read over what I wrote. It's sad. Damn, damn sad. If only somebody knew the help I need...somebody professional. Somebody who could get me away from this."

"But, I'm scared. I don't know where to go for help or where they're at or, well, I'm just plain scared!"

"I love to be high."

"In a way, I guess it's like running from my problems. But, I guess somehow it's different."

"It gives me the comfort I need without me leaving home."

"I would explain it better if I understood it. All I know is that I need somebody to listen to me without it being a burden and without them saying anything to my parents or sisters."

TYPEWRITER RIBBON, adding machine tape. Clarkston News, 5 S. Main St.

"I find myself wanting to cry a lot...I hate to cause problems. Maybe my mom's right. Maybe I do pay too much attention to myself and my feelings..."

Very little comment is needed to explain what Cindy was feeling or why she decided to use drugs.

She explains it so well and her parents were so pathetically unaware of what she was experiencing. How often we see this kind of situation.

As Cindy said, it's damn sad.

Kids vs teachers . . .

Faceoff: The puck is dropped between opposing centers from the teacher's team and the sixth grade squad—and last week's floor hockey game is underway.

As is evident here, the sixth graders were giving that little extra effort throughout the game—which may explain their 10-8 victory.

Goalie Matt Tinker thwarts a teacher's scoring attempt with a stick save, knocking the puck away from the goalmouth.

Davisburg challenge in seventh year

By Al Zawacky

At Davisburg Elementary School, "aggressive hockey" is not only back in town—It never left.

That was evident last Wednesday afternoon in the school's gymnasium as the sixth grade all-star floor hockey team and the Davisburg teachers faced off in their traditional annual battle.

And the result? A victory for the sixth graders by a 10-8 score, highlighted by David Rabaja's winning goal and some goal-tending by Jim Junker, Kevin Lalone, Matt Tinker and Jamie Heitman that would have made Rogie Vachon proud.

Prior to the teacher-pupil confrontation the boys' floor hockey program was completed with the championship game between the Hi Stickers and the Roughnecks.

The Hi Stickers survived the showdown to win the championship, led by captain Jeff Glime

"The kids were good," agreed one of their sponsors, Ed Talley, who as a teacher at the school competed against them. "They beat us, alright."

The game was a see-saw battle all the way through the four fifteen-minute quarters, but toward the end the teachers appeared to weary a bit.

The teachers could take some consolation in the fact that they still hold a big edge in the seven year history of the contest, losing only twice in the seven meetings.

"We play the kids in basketball and softball as well later in the year," said Nancy Hanes, gym instructor at the school. "The kids really enjoy these games—and so do we."
