Village voids cop contract

A divided Clarkston Village Council Monday night decided to see how much police protection it can get without a contract.

The council voted 3-2 to discontinue its police contract with Independence Township.

The community will rely on the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, which Village President Fonti ApMadoc said has a legal obligation to provide protection whether or not the village has a contract.

ApMadoc had suggested that the village establish its own one-man police force in response to the disbanding of the Independence Township Police Services Department by the township board last month.

She estimated the cost of setting up a one-man department at $24,000, which would require a 1-mill tax increase for village property owners.

The village now pays about $13,000 a year for its police protection contract with the township, plus another $4,900 for a village school crossing guard and a parking enforcement officer.

The council's action Monday night included provision for retaining the crossing guard and parking enforcement officer.

Council members Robert Adams, James Schultz and Connie Fisher voted for the proposal, while Jack Byers and Ruth Basinger dissented.

"I think we've done the villagers a tremendous disservice," Byers said after the vote.

"If somebody calls the sheriff's department in the future and it takes them a long time to arrive, the council is going to be held accountable."

Village President Fonti ApMadoc, while also questioning the wisdom of the decision, noted that the OCSD has a legal obligation to answer calls in the village.

"According to the state law, the sheriff's department must protect us," ApMadoc said. "I do feel however, that we'd get better service on our vandalism, speeding and parking problems by going with our own one-man force."

"The decision isn't binding forever. If we get complaints on this action, we can take one of the other two options in the future, she said.

As the situation now stands, the village will spend $2,400 per year to maintain its school crossing guard and $2,500 per year to keep its parking enforcement officer.

The 52nd District Court will handle all the administrative duties involved in the issuance of parking tickets in the village; thus the village will not receive any revenue from the payment of parking fines.

The council's contract with Independence Township for police protection will be allowed to expire at the end of the village's fiscal year, which extends through March.

Projected cost for police services for the year which ends March 30 is $18,056, according to ApMadoc.

Thayer resigns

Clarkston Village Councilman Michael Thayer, elected to three terms as a member of the village council, has resigned.

In a letter addressed to Village President Fonti ApMadoc, Thayer cited "personal reasons" for his decision and set Jan. 25, 1980 as the effective date of his resignation.

Thayer's replacement, Connie Fisher of 144 North Holcomb, was sworn in by Village Clerk Bruce Rogers and cast her first vote as a member of council Monday night.

Thayer, who also serves as a trustee on the Independence Township Board, had decided earlier not to seek re-election to his council post. His current term would have expired in March.

"President ApMadoc asked me if I would serve the remainder of Mr. Thayer's term, seeing as how I was running for the seat," Fisher said.

Fisher, an eight-year resident of the village, filed last December to run for the two-year term. She is running unopposed in the March election.

Wolfpack still No. 1, dump Central, 80-58

For Tim McCormick, Ed Haddad, John Sheldon and the rest of the Wolfpack seniors, Tuesday's 80-58 victory at Pontiac Central was more than just another basketball game.

This was the same Central team that crushed them during last year's tournament.

A little leaner in talent, perhaps, scoring a rather anemic won-loss record-but a team expected to give CHS cagers all they could handle for four quarters.

But, it wasn't even close--at least not after a 17-14 first quarter.

"I'd have to say this was our best ball game of the year," Coach Gary Nustad said later. "We finally proved why we're rated the number 1 team in the state."

"There was talk that we were overrated, a 1-man ball club revolving around Tim McCormick. I think we proved to everyone that all the kids can play."

McCormick, the Wolfpack's highly talented and highly recruited, 6-10 center, scored 26 points, blocked 10 shots and grabbed 18 rebounds, tops in all three categories.

Behind McCormick was another outstanding performance by junior forward Scott McKoin with 18 points and 6 rebounds.

The Wolfpack also got 2 strong performances at the guard spots, as John Sheldon, contributed a personal high 15 points, while Ed Haddad chipped in 8 points to go along with his team leading assist total of six. "We didn't shoot very well in the first quarter, but we were playing well--moving the ball around and getting into position," Nustad said, explaining the close score at the end of the first period.

"But we had two outstanding quarters in the second and third."

Nustad wasn't kidding--at the start of the fourth stanza, Clarkston lead 63-39.

"I think this is the first time

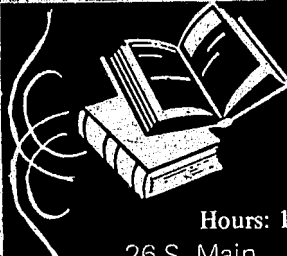

Clarkston beat Pontiac Central in the school's history," Nustad noted.

The win will undoubtedly strengthen Clarkston's number 1 Class A state ranking as it puts them at 12-0 on the season, and 5-0 in the Greater Oakland Activities League going into a Friday night home contest with Waterford Kettering.

"The players really felt good about this one," the coach concluded. "They're in agreement that the talk about us being overrated was the best thing that could have happened to us."

Hearing on funds

A public hearing for suggestions on how to spend $121,414 in Federal Revenue Sharing funds has been set for Tuesday, Feb. 5, by the Independence Township Board.

The meeting is to begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Independence Township Library, 6495 Clarkston-Orion.

The money can be spent on almost anything, said township Clerk Christopher Rose, although there are a few restrictions including an anti-discrimination clause.

The money, for example, cannot be spent on Township Hall because the building is not barrier-free which is also the reason the meeting is to be held at the library, Rose said.

Past expenditures of the funds have been used for dust control, sidewalks, police protection, senior citizen center building improvements and lighting.

An additional $65,000 not spent from previous federal revenue sharing allocations could also be used to cover new projects, Rose said.

A second public hearing is to be held in March, after which the funds will be earmarked for projects.

The library is to close at 7 p.m. the evening of the meeting and will be open later only to serve as the meeting place for the township board and residents wishing to attend.

Here are assessment scores, but . . .

By Pat Braunagel

Beware comparisons and false conclusions!

That advice should be heeded by anyone attempting to make sense of Michigan Education Assessment Program results.

It is important, educators and school administrators across the state maintain, to realize what the assessment program can tell us and what it cannot.

Newspaper reporters and real estate agents are cited by the Michigan Department of Education as corruptors of assessment statistics.

The test results, the department points out, cannot be used alone to provide a complete and accurate picture of a school or a school district.

The assessment tests given in the fall do not provide data for comparison, as typical norm-referenced tests do.

The tests provide information on whether or not a student has attained a specific skill or performance objective.

They yield the only uniform achievement data available for the state as a whole and are therefore valuable to state officials in allocating state funds.

Locally, the results can be used to some degree in curriculum planning—to the degree that the district has educational objectives identical to those tested by the state. But there are many skills which are not tested.

"The objectives on which MEAP is based are minimal performance objectives in reading and math," according to the department. "Students should acquire skills and knowledge in many other areas during the course of their education."

However, the department advises local districts to share test results with students, parents and citizens as a partial indicator of the "health" of minimal basic skills education.

"The test data should not be used to make over-simplified statements or sweeping generalizations about education on a school, district or state level!" according to the department.

Clarkston Schools administrators do not want those reading results to make comparisons among schools—so they send staffs and parents reports pertaining only to one school. Parents also receive reports on their children's achievement.

The proportions report traditionally published in the media has been criticized for its lack of significant data.

Last year, the state devised another system of test result reporting, using percent of skill area objectives attained.

Each objective on the test is measured by a set of five items, except for 10th grade math where each objective is measured by four items. Students who get four or five items correct are given credit for having achieved the objective.

The figures presented below are the average of pupil achievement percentages for all objectives in each category.

Reserve cops 'very limited'

By Kathy Greenfield

The Independence Township reserve police unit will have "very, very limited" powers, according to township attorney Richard Campbell.

"I don't think we should undertake to do anything more than to attend to Clarkston parades and sporting events," Campbell said.

And, although the township board approved retaining the reserve unit last month with the intention of keeping the Pine Knob traffic control contract, Campbell said he does not recommend it.

"I don't think we should undertake to police Pine Knob, because there's the likelihood state crimes will be committed," he said.

Without a full-time officer in the police department, state laws cannot be enforced, according to Public Act No. 246, he said.

"In my opinion, they can have a reserve unit without having a full-time police officer as long as they act in a limited way," he said.

The township reserve officers would have "the same powers to arrest as a citizen would have which would mean, generally speaking, they can't arrest for a felony committed in their presence," Campbell said.

"They're not really policemen in the true sense of the word," he said. "One thing we don't need is part-time policemen."

The township's liability is another concern, he said.

"I don't want them making what would amount to a false arrest," he said. "If they get mad at somebody..."

Campbell is to present his opinions to the reserve unit this week, said Supervisor Whitey Tower.

On Feb. 2, the township police department is to close and there will no longer be a full-time police officer on staff.

The township board voted in

'They're not really policemen in the true sense of the word.'

—Richard Campbell,
Independence
Township attorney

December to dissolve the local police department and contract solely with the OCSO for township police coverage.

"Probably about the same as I do about no police department," is how Tower explained his feelings about a powerless police reserve unit.

"It won't be easy," he said. "Whatever the law is, we'll work it out."

Some possible solutions could be that three full-time township firefighters are also on the reserve unit and, as supervisor, Tower is chief law enforcement officer in the township, he said.

At the end of the Pine Knob season last year, there were 17 township reserve police officers and patrolmen on the reserve unit as well as seven officers from the Oxford Police Department, Tower said.

The township covers expenses for reserve police including uniform expenses and training costs, Tower said.

As long as the officers are working, re-certification is not required and sidearms practice is scheduled when other police department firing ranges have time available, he said.

Although township police reserve members donate their services at times, they are also paid for working parades and school functions—$5.50 an hour for reserve patrolmen, $7.65 for officers and $10.50 for the command officer—and for working with Pine Knob contract—from $8 to $12 an hour.

The OCSO now has nine reserve officers serving Independence and Springfield townships, said Lt. James Curtis, who is in charge of patrol services.

The county reserve officers are not paid for their work, but if an OCSO deputy is hired to work on a function, the cost is about $14.70 an hour.

The OCSO has said it will cover parades without charge and for other functions, one OCSO could be contracted and the reserve officers would serve at no cost.

The county reserve officers are responsible for covering all expenses including their uniforms.

To stay on the reserve unit, the reserves must work 16 hours a month and must qualify periodically with their guns, Curtis said.

Some OCSO deputies have voiced objections to the county reserve unit because it may take jobs away from deputies, but present problems between the union and the reserves should be resolved within a month, Curtis said.

In the meantime, "if the officer on the road wishes to have a reserve officer work with him, he does," Curtis said.

After attending Western Michigan and Michigan State Universities, Mr. Sherman began his newspaper career in 1951 in sales with the Gladwin County Record. He then served four years in sales at the Clinton County Republican News. In 1955, he purchased the Oxford Leader and acquired The Clarkston News in 1966, Lake Orion Review in 1972, and The Davison Index in 1976.

He also publishes two shoppers and has a commercial printing plant along with the newspaper printing facility in Oxford.

Mr. Sherman has served on village, township and school committees, is a member of the VFW and the American Legion and is a past president of the Oxford Rotary Club.

A veteran of World War II, he and his wife Hazel are the parents of three children. His son, Jim, is the publisher of the The Davison Index.

Clarkston News Publisher James A. Sherman [right] accepts the gavel of the Michigan Press Association from Richard Milliman, owner of a Howell-based group of weekly newspapers, who retired as president of the association Saturday.

At one time I was developing a list of alternates to losing weight, the easiest of which was to buy bigger clothes.

An equally simple and extremely satisfying solution to a weight problem is to go to a fat doctor.

A more drastic solution is to join a monastery, where one is provided with a loosely draped robe secured at the middle with two or three cubits of manila hemp.

I once read that in certain Polynesian Islands masculine beauty is judged by bulk and it is said that, "A chief of men sets like a mountain, broad at the base and tapering toward the top."

I considered buying a bottle of instant suntan lotion, moving a considerable distance southwest, and passing myself off as a visiting prince.

I tried living up to the image.

I was tired of overhearing, after some altercation, "I thought fat people were supposed to be jolly?"

The idea of being a clown whose waist size and IQ are the same number was terrifying.

There are those of us who find that being nice all day Christmas and most of Mother's Day is running at design capacity and further attempts simply burn out a jocularity circuit.

With no satisfactory option available, I lost 55 pounds and promptly developed a new problem.

There seemed to be multitudes of people that were on diets who didn't want to talk to me.

It would appear that if someone is feeling heroic about losing 12 pounds, rather than having a dialogue with a person who can gain 12 pounds and still talk about a 43-pound loss, he will discuss politics with a dead chicken.

After I had had pants retailored until the hip pockets met, the creases stood out at 45 degrees as I could have won a funny suit contest at any fair, I found that being a pariah was better than involvement in not too meaningful conversations like:

"How do you feel since you lost all that weight?"

"Hungry."

Jim's jottings

Unruffled

by Jim Sherman

Genial, unswerving, and non-swearing John Hock had his patience pushed to a peak recently.

John lives in Ortonville and works in the office of Oxford Lumber Co., which has a second yard in John's home town.

Being a mature, meeter of the public, John wears a suit and tie to work as all meeters of the public should.

The event we're going to unfold happened last week, but a little background is necessary. For the open house following their daughter's graduation from high school last year, the Hocks, like every other family we know, had to paint their house.

All the rooms were redone, except the kitchen. However, the paint was purchased for that, too.

That brings us up to a recent Tuesday. John was going to paint the kitchen. Since the paint had set for several months, our hero took the gallon of paint to the Ortonville branch of his company to put it in a paint shaker.

In the meantime the Hock's son was preparing the kitchen. He removed all the electric switch covers, things that hang on kitchen walls, and moved the refrig away from the wall.

All John had to do was get the paint mixed up. No problem. Still in his suit and tie (it's a simple, non-dirtying job), John tightened the screws on the shaker holding the gallon.

He switched on the power, the shaker twitched a couple of times, the clamp came loose, and the gallon can jumped up in the air about a foot.

Then it hit the floor...on the top edge.

You guessed it. The contents splashed and spilled. John, not wanting to step in the stuff or soil his suit, moved carefully. He lost the battle to save any of the paint.

He did stay and clean up his mess. Then he called his wife.

He said, "Honey", (Lots of husbands start out that way in similar circumstances.) I'll give you four choices on the painting. You can come down here and pick out new paint, I will come home and get you to come and pick out the paint, we can forget the whole thing, or we can sell the house."

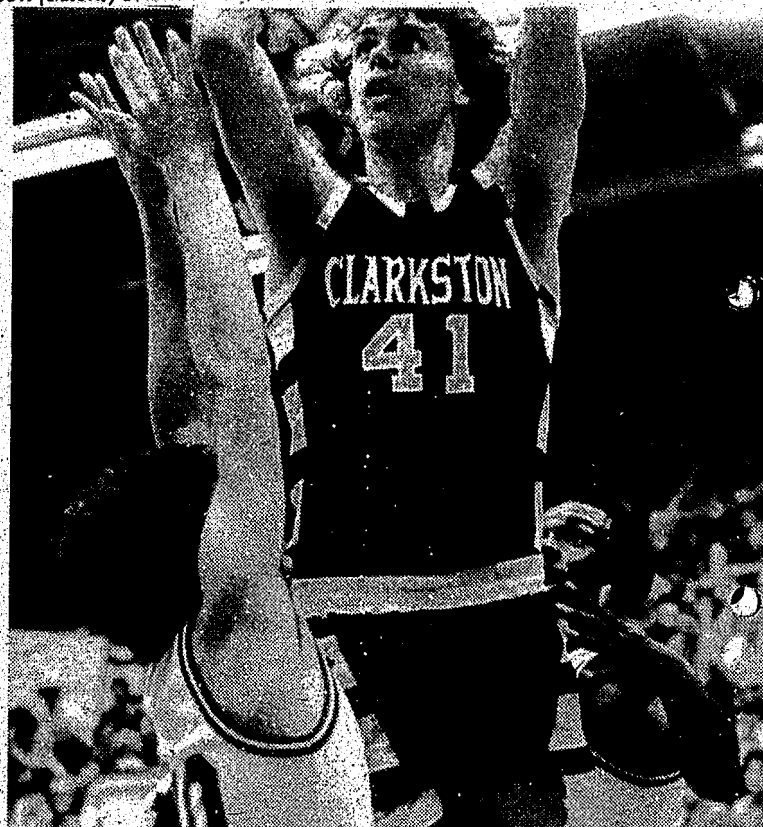

Why, you may ask, couldn't this bungling husband pick out a similar gallon of paint and go finish the job?

He couldn't. John's color blind.

Welcome back, Tim

We hated to hear Clarkston High School's 6-foot-10 center Tim McCormick (and star guard Ed Haddad, too!) were sick with the flu. But as long as they were, wasn't it lucky CHS had to call off its Friday night game anyway because of a sewer backup? A happy coincidence, wasn't it?

Letter to the editor

Pom-pon girls must pay own way

To the Editor:

There comes a time when one is obligated to come to the defense of our teenagers.

To be specific, I present a dilemma that we, the people of Clarkston, have placed on our very hard-working and talented Pom-Pon Girls of Clarkston High School.

Though not school supported, these girls volunteer no less than ten hours a week vigorous practice and each week present award-winning routines for at least three games and wrestling meets during evening hours and on weekends.

These girls are completely self-supporting, paying all their own expenses and even giving their all in presenting various teams with banquet suppers.

The list of their accomplishments is long. They also must maintain strict academic scholarship to continue serving on the squad.

There is never a reserved spot to sit during any Clarkston game. These girls must stand in the hallways or find random places in the bleachers, making communication impossible. In essence, they "must make themselves scarce" until halftime performances.

The problem at the present time seems totally unnecessary. I challenge Mr. Mauti, Mr. Kirchgessner, and Mr. Paul Tungate, in their uncaring neglect of a situation so very easily remedied. Your indifference affects our development.

Our Pom Pon Girls have been preparing diligently to entertain and represent Clarkston at the Pontiac Silverdome game, February 13, 1980.

The girls received written notice this week, from Mr. Tungate, that only thirty "complimentary" tickets were issued from the Pistons to the Clarkston High School.

The girls were informed that they would have to PURCHASE their own tickets to perform at the eagerly awaited game as there were not enough tickets FOR them.

EVERYONE ELSE--Our team, our statisticians, announcers, coaches, and cheerleaders, will receive the complimentary tickets and transportation. This exclusion is inexcusable.

Clarkston is not a wantonly school district.

Certainly someone in our town has some influence with Public Relations at the Silverdome.

Our twelve Pom Pon Girls must buy tickets to perform???

I'm sure a simple phone call would explain and remedy the situation. I hope our administrators are not that uncaring, to single out this group of teens who care enough to volunteer so many hours of time to their school.

Their teacher-sponsor is hospitalized and cannot come to their aid.

Cheerleaders' season never ends

'Join

'Take 'em to

Besides working on their routines, the CHS cheerleaders also spend part of their practices painting signs for the next athletic event. Here, Nickie Collins works on a banner for the Pontiac Central basketball game.

By Al Zawacky
They have tryouts, games each week, practices twice a week and work hard all year long to keep wearing their gold and blue Clarkston High School uniforms.

The football team?
The basketball team?
No, they're the CHS varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders--and there's no better way to appreciate what they add to the games than to go to an event when the cheerleaders aren't there.

"There was a junior varsity basketball game over Christmas vacation that was played without any cheerleaders," Cheerleading coach Gale Jorgensen relates, "and you could tell something was missing--the gym was awfully quiet."

Jorgensen, an ex-cheerleader herself and a 1974 graduate of Clarkston High School, currently has 18 girls involved in the varsity and junior varsity cheerleading program.

Members of the varsity squad are Lori Lewis, Ceree Schraw, Tammy Larkin, Amy Bixby, Nickie Collins, Mary Olney, Sherry Williams and Sue Jorgensen. Chris Savas is manager.

The JVs are Kari Jo Svenkesen, Cindy Larkin, Kathy Wenzel, LeeAnn Carlson, Sonya Funck, Cathy Goldner, Kelly Swift and Karen Karlstrom. Dree Chartier is manager.

"People really don't realize how much time and effort goes into cheerleading," Jorgensen says. "The girls work hard all year long, compete against other teams and attend cheerleading camps over the summer."

"It's a year-round occupation."

About 35 girls tried out for the team this past summer, Jorgensen says, and were judged on the basis of their ability to perform certain jumps, coordination drills and cheers.

And another part of a cheerleader's education is to learn the basics of the games they attend.

"We had some girls on the junior varsity team who really didn't know anything about football," Jorgensen says, noting that this obviously causes problems.

"I had the girls ask me questions to give them a better understanding of the game, and anything that I didn't know we found out from someone that did."

"That's not a problem with the varsity girls--they all know when to cheer," she laughs.

Because football is not only a rather difficult game to follow, but often played in some rather chilling weather--Jorgensen says she preferred basketball during her own cheerleading days.

"You're a lot closer to the crowd at a basketball game, and of course we've always had good teams at Clarkston--which makes the things even nicer."

"This year, of course, has been great--the stands are always full and the people very supportive. I think this can really affect the outcome of a game a lot of times."

Why do the girls get involved in cheerleading?

"Well, when I was in school it was a popularity thing--it was the thing to do," Jorgensen says. "I don't think it quite carries the esteem that it used to--the girls have to go out and earn the respect that used to come automatically."

"And I think they do."

Pass the popcorn, darling

by Jim Fitzgerald

According to the people who know how to be darling, the in thing to do in 1980 is "get all dressed up to stay home and play." It said so in the newspaper.

This was welcome news for me. When I was a very little boy, a neighbor kid regularly came to my door and asked me to come out and play. I am ready to switch.

The last time I dressed up to go out to play, I wore a three-piece suit, dark blue with faint gray stripes, and drove 25 miles round trip, to see a movie at the Prudential Town Center in Southfield. Admission for my wife and me totaled $7. We shared one small box of unbuttered popcorn which cost $1.

We usually attend at least two movies a week and, until recently, we always bought two boxes of buttered corn, and two paper cups of Coke with plastic tops on them. But currently we are dieting, so we've cut back to one measly box of plain popcorn. This not only lowers the calorie intake, it also provides exercise as we wrestle to see who gets to hold the box.

What I really don't miss is trying to find the Coke hole in the dark. I mean the hole in the plastic top on the cup. The idea is to stick a straw through this hole, thus gaining sucking access to the Coke. This hole is covered and must be punched out. Before the diet began, there were several times when I thought I had located the hole when I really hadn't. The result was that my misplaced punch dislodged the top, causing Coke to spill and make me sorry I had dressed up to go out and play.

SOMETHING ELSE MADE ME SORRY at the Prudential theater. I know, because I heard the man sitting behind me mutter, "This is something else."

What it was, first, was a commercial advertising a small motorcycle. Right up there on the big screen where Lee Remick was supposed to be smiling that marvelous smile in a first-run, $3.50-per-ticket film, there were moving pictures of people trying to sell me a motorcycle.

That was the opening commercial. It probably lasted two minutes but it seemed like an hour in purgatory. The audience snarled and booted. The second commercial was even longer. It urged theater patrons to buy a machine with which they could show their own movies at home on their TV sets.

I am not making this up. This theater forced me to wonder why I should pay $7 to see the commercials I left home to escape seeing for free. And then it told me how to stay home and see movies without commercials.

It was the most fun I'd had since the last time a restaurant owner told me yucky stories to ruin my appetite and then told me to go home to eat.

SO NOW YOU KNOW WHY I was ripe to read an article saying it is in to get all dressed up to stay home and play. When I told my wife about the impending change in our lifestyle, I showed her the picture accompanying the article. It featured a husband in a navy velvet robe and his wife in a purple peignoir. They were sitting on a hairy rug in front of a fireplace, "sipping an excellent bottle of wine and playing parlor games."

"You could wear your blue putter pants with the permanent Snickers stains on the lap, and the brown sweater with no elbows," my wife said. "We could sit on the throw rug in front of the furnace vent and sip a jumbo bottle of A&P beer. But we don't have any parlor games. You don't even play cards."

That's true. That little kid never came to my door and asked to come in and play Scrabble. Because I've always gone out to play, I've never learned any of the games people play when they stay home. I can play euchre but only if I'm in an American Legion hall and my partner knows that when I bite my collar, it means I don't have any trump.

"We can get all dressed up to stay home and watch TV," I told my wife. "During commercials, we can make a parlor game out of wrestling to see who gets to hold the popcorn bowl."

Onward and upward.

Pine Knob amusement park raises objections

By Kathy Greenfield

Objections to an amusement park at Pine Knob were voiced by most Independence Township Planning Commission members before the conceptual plan was tabled last week.

The commission unanimously agreed to wait for the township attorney's opinion on whether the recreation zoning ordinance allows an amusement park before ruling on the plan submitted by Gary Francell, Pine Knob co-owner, and David Delpiere, ski resort manager.

About 30 people attended the meeting. Of the 10 people who spoke, two supported the plan.

Orthodontist Charles Munk of Amy Drive referred to Pine Knob Mansion's recent name change to the Hamburger Mansion and the comparison made at the meeting between a proposed amusement park ride and Coney Island.

"Since the hotel, everything Pine Knob is proposing is possibly belittling our community," he said. "I just don't see these as positive steps."

Ted Thomson, who was treasurer for "Citizens Against High Rise Zoning in Independence Township" and worked to defeat the hotel proposal, said he did not object to the amusement park, although limits should be set on hours and the effect on the surrounding neighborhood should be considered.

The amusement park would be mobile, he said.

"It is very easily removed," Thomson said. "I believe it can be controlled under the public nuisance ordinance if it gets out of hand. I don't view this in the same way as some fixed facility you're going to have to live with forever."

An attorney for Borg-Warner, developers of $200,000 condominiums on about 200 acres within Pine Knob complex, also spoke.

"I'd like to register our strong objections," said attorney Timothy Mast.

"We think the property use is incompatible with the present use," he said. "I'm concerned that this will have an adverse effect on property values in the surrounding area."

The 12-ride amusement park plan included three permanent rides—a giant ferris wheel, a merry-go-round and a high tower with a parachute drop reminiscent of a ride at Coney Island, Delpiere said.

A rifle range would possibly be included as well as grass skiing and an Alpine slide, Francell said.

The amusement park would have a 1920s theme working around locally prominent people during that era like Henry Ford and Col. Waldon.

The ferris wheel would be about 95 feet high and the parachute jump between 100 and 225 feet high.

The park would be located around a permanent boardwalk between the Pine Knob Music Theatre and the ski hills.

An aerial tram would operate year-round, taking music concert patrons as well as skiers to the Hamburger Mansion.

The park would operate during the music theater season for three to four hours before shows and for one to two hours after the shows ended.

"This would alleviate some of the traffic problems," Delpiere said.

Although he found the plan "personally objectionable," planning commission member James Brennan said he was sympathetic.

"The owners have been forced to go into this, because a quality development (the hotel) has been turned down," Brennan added.

Township voters rejected the use of recreational districts of 10 acres or more for resort-convention-hotels by a margin of over 70 percent last year.

Although aware of the need for a money-making project in summer months, planning commission Chairman James Smith said he felt the amusement park was not in keeping with the atmosphere at Pine Knob.

"We were talking about a very fine hotel, albeit a high rise. A month later, I pick up the paper and see the Hamburger Mansion," and then an amusement park plan was submitted, he said.

"The hotel was in the past," Francell said, but Pine Knob's plans for quality remain intact.

"I'm not going to have raggedy rides," Francell said, and the 10 to 15 rides would be the finest in the country.

Because the ski resort lost some 50 days of operating time this winter, the amusement park could offset some of the expenses, he said.

"It is to help me make $100,000 to $200,000 to pay the debts of the ski hill, so when I have soft winters like this, I know I can get by," Francell said.

Deputies nab suspect in Independence robbery

A silent alarm triggered at the Pine Knob Pharmacy resulted in the arrest of a burglary suspect in Independence Township last week.

The alarm went off at 11:20 p.m. Jan. 22, and Oakland County Sheriff's Department Deputy Edward Stout arrived on the scene about 10 minutes later.

The two OCSD cars assigned to the township were answering another suspected breaking and entering when the alarm came in, so he answered the call from Pontiac, Stout said.

Bad weather and slippery roads caused the 10-minute response time, he said.

"As I pulled into the parking lot, I observed this male person coming out of the front window," he said. "The frame was there. The window had been completely broken out."

The suspect, toting a black plastic garbage bag and a sledge hammer, ran across the parking lot and placed the items into the trunk of a car, Stout said.

After a short chase from the pharmacy located at 5541 Sashabaw, the suspect was apprehended on Maybee Road just east of Sashabaw Road.

He was ordered to get out of the car, but refused, Stout said.

"Myself and Officer James Pelouquin had to break out his left rear passenger door glass and physically remove him from the car," Stout said. "After being advised of his rights, he wished to remain silent."

Timothy D. Kepsel, 22, of Warren was then taken to the Oakland County Jail.

Kepsel was arraigned at 52nd District Court on Jan. 23. He stood mute and bond was set at $15,000 each for the two charges, breaking and entering and possession of burglary tools. More than $400 worth of merchandise, mostly drugs, was recovered from the black plastic bag, Stout said.

Teen implicated in bomb threat

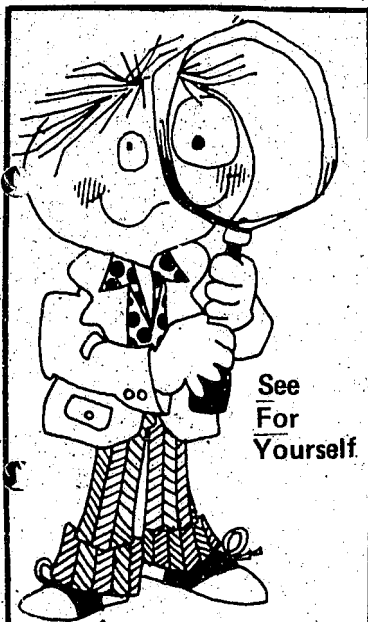

Charges are pending against a 16-year-old Clarkston High School student in connection with a bomb threat.

The telephoned bomb threat was made to the school Jan. 21, said Deputy James Snover of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department who investigated the incident along with Charles Kimbel, director of Independence Police Services and John Kirchgessner, assistant CHS principal.

"A couple of students stepped forward and offered information. It led us to some other youngsters who had overheard the call being made," Snover said.

When the investigation is completed, charges are to be filed with probate court for juvenile action, he said.

"It's a serious charge," he said.

Clarkston sophomore grappler Jeff Miracle [top] battles with an opponent during the Southfield Lathrup Invitational Tournament held this past weekend. Clarkston, ranked fifteenth in the state prior to the match, finished second just 10 points behind number two ranked Davison.

The point after

by Al Zawacky

Freshman volleyball in the Clarkston school system may be only a single year old—but it's already beginning to pay dividends.

January 1979 marked the sport's arrival at both Sashabaw and Clarkston junior highs, thus providing volleyball players with the same ninth grade opportunities enjoyed by their counterparts in football, basketball and wrestling.

And Nancy Foster, Clarkston High School's junior varsity coach, says she can see the results.

"It's definitely made a difference," Foster says. "The freshman programs are very well run, and the girls are coming into high school much more aware of basic skills."

Foster can give no more eloquent proof of the value of the frosh squads program than by simply quoting the JV team's record so far this year: 7-2 overall and a perfect 2-0 in the GOAL.

Combine the extra year of experience with the team's height at the net, and you have the key to the JV's success this season.

"We have one girl over six foot and three others over 5-foot 10," Foster says. "We scare the opposition when we have height like that at the net—and that's been our big strength: our front line hitting."

Foster went on to mention some specific names instrumental to the team's success thus far.

"Lanette Whitehead has been our best hitter—we count on her a lot. Her serving and attacking at the net have been very strong.

"Michelle Ulasich has been our strongest setter, and Sandy Mason has provided overall ability and floor leadership. She keeps us going—we're not the same team when she's not playing."

It would appear that the money spent on the ninth grade spikers was well invested.

Clarkston High School has earned a new nickname: the "Pittsburgh of the Greater Oakland Activities League."

"Pittsburgh, as you no doubt are already aware, is the current home of both the Superbowl champion Steelers and the World Series champion Pirates. There's no pro basketball team in the Steel City, and even though the NHL Pittsburgh Penguins are hardly record breakers, Pitt is nevertheless deserving of the title "City of Champions."

What does all this have to do with Clarkston High?

Only that of the three major winter sports—basketball, wrestling and volleyball—CHS currently holds down first-place goal honors in all three.

In fact, a league opponent has yet to defeat the Wolves in any of the three sports mentioned.

Maybe we've jinxed the situation by even bringing it up—there's still a long way to go in before the end of the winter sports season.

Even so, it's worth mentioning. Who knows—given the capriciousness of fate, next year may find CHS in the position of being the "Detroit of the Greater Oakland Activities League."

Grapplers tie Milford

But take 2nd in weekend tourney

By Al Zawacky

The Clarkston High School grapplers wrestled to a disappointing 29-29 tie against Milford Tuesday night, but bounced back last weekend to post an impressive second place finish in the 12 team Southfield Lathrup Invitational Tournament.

"We just seemed to have a mental let down," coach Rick Detkowski said of the Milford contest. "Milford lost to Rochester earlier in the season and we've beaten Rochester—there's no way we should have lost."

Detkowski could find little fault with his team's tournament performance on Saturday, however.

"But for a few close matches, we could have won the tournament," the coach said.

Clarkston, ranked fifteenth in the state last week, finished just ten points behind tournament champion Davison, ranked second state wide.

The final team scores were Davison 142½, Clarkston 132½, Pontiac Northern 99½, Schwartz Creek 86, Edsel Ford 81½, Walled Lake Western 74½, West Bloomfield 59½, Farmington Harrison 58, Ypsilanti 49½, North Farmington 46, and Southfield Lathrup 43.

Placing for Clarkston were Mike Ogans (first, 145 pounds), Claude Gourand (first, 155 pounds), Mike Conway (second, 138 pounds), Jeff Miracle (third, 132 pounds), Paul Carr (third, heavy weight) and Bruce Burwitz (fourth, 167 pounds).

Winning their matches against Milford were Conway (pin, 1:40), Gavette (decision, 6-3), Lance Jewett (decision, 14-9), Miracle (decision, 8-2), Ogans (pin, 1:56), and Gourand (pin, 1:38).

Carr and Milford's Rich Rosso battled to a 4-4 tie to leave the final score knotted at 29 apiece. The Wolves league record now stands at 2-0-1.

Through Saturday's tournament, Clarkston's top individual records belonged to Conway (19-3-1), Gavette (21-3), Miracle (21-4), Smith (13-4), Ogans (22-1), Gourand (20-2) and Carr (12-5-1).

Cagers postponed

Clarkston High School's plumbing accomplished something Friday that ten prep basketball teams have been unable to do: Kept the Wolfpack from winning another basketball game.

Bloomfield Hills Andover had been scheduled to play CHS's undefeated cagers beginning with the junior varsity contest at 6:30 p.m., but a sewer problem forced a cancellation.

"There was some sewer blockage that prevented the use of the shower, sink and toilet facilities in the high school," said CHS athletic director Paul Tungate. "It's been corrected, and everything is back to normal."

The game will be made up at the end of the regular season on Friday, Feb. 29 in the Clarkston High School gym.

The Clarkston News

Athlete of the week

Last week was a good one—to say the least—for Clarkston High School grappler Mike Ogans.

Ogans took first place in the 145 pound weight class at the Southfield Lathrup Invitational Tournament over the weekend and also pinned his Milford opponent in 1:45 at a dual meet on Thursday.

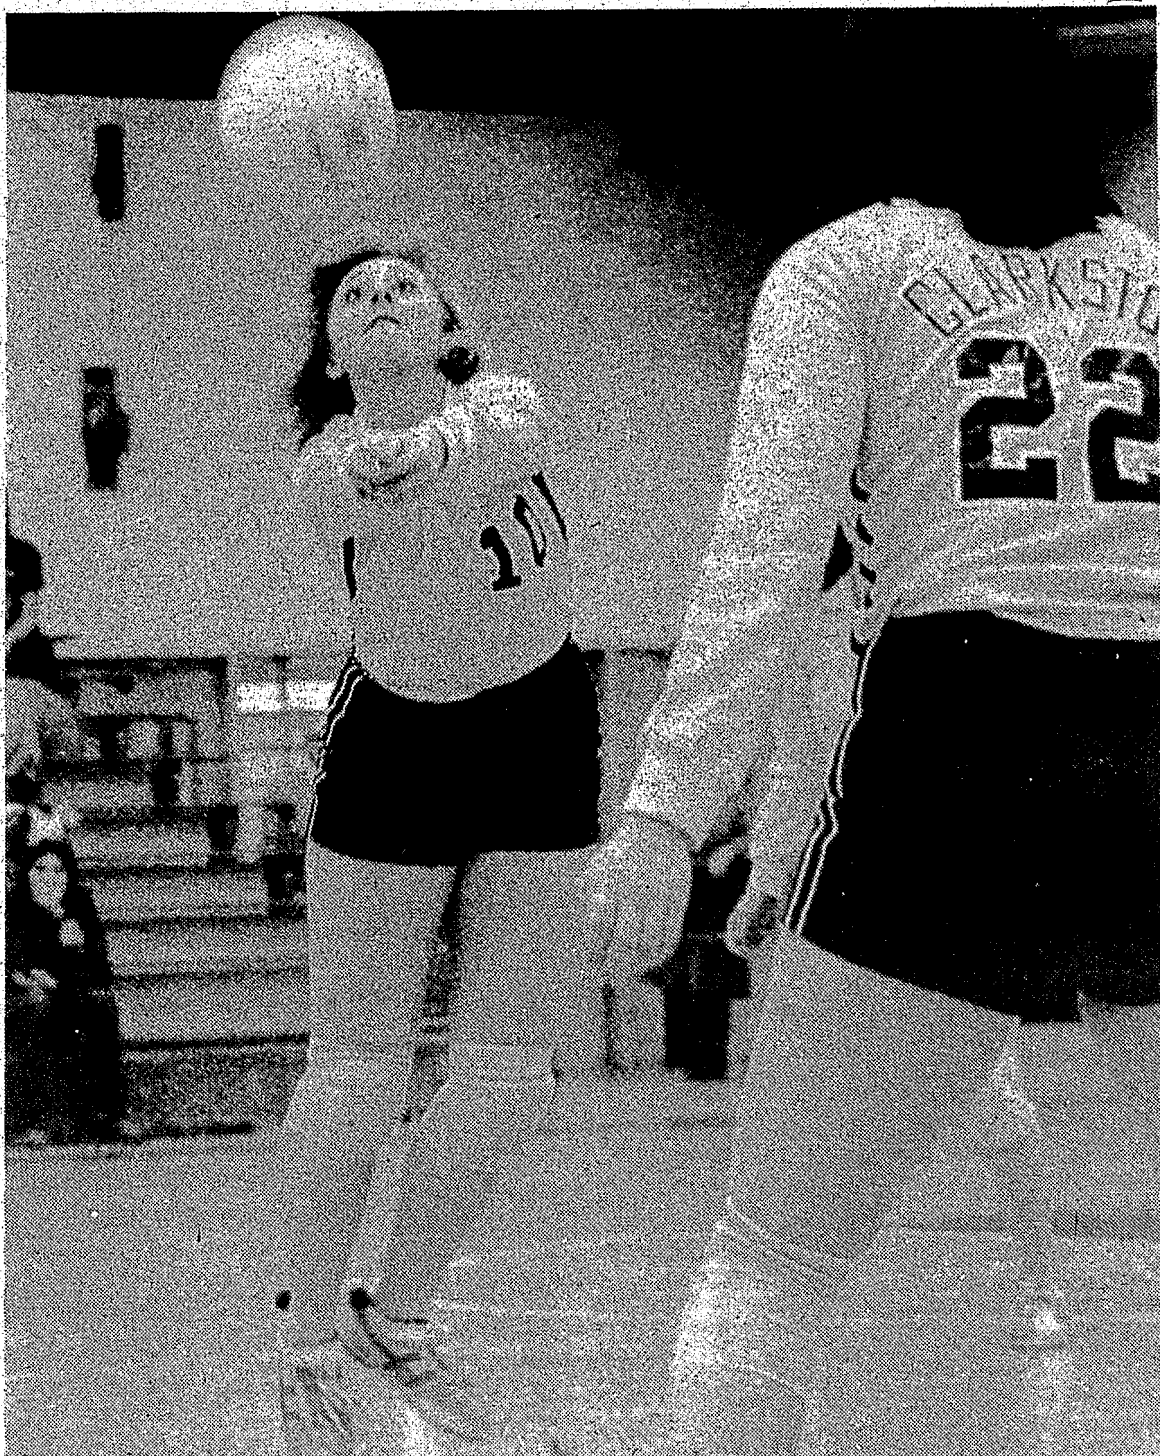

For his performance, the 5-foot-10 junior is this week's Clarkston News Athlete of the Week.

"Ogans had a tough weight class to compete in," said CHS wrestling coach Rick Detkowski, "but his matches weren't even close. Two of his wins came on pins."

Including the tournament results, Ogans upped his overall season mark to 22-1, the best mark on the squad. His only loss, Detkowski noted, was to a wrestler who had been rated number two state-wide last year.

Clarkston spiker Theresa Herr sets up a return at the net for her teammates. The win at Kettering was the Wolves second straight victory without a loss in league play.

Spikers nail Kettering

By Al Zawacky

Following the Clarkston High School varsity volleyball team's first league action last week, coach Linda Denstaedt had plenty of reasons to smile.

Two reasons to be exact: A one-sided victory over Andover by scores of 15-6 and 15-2, and a close win against Waterford Kettering, 16-14, 4-15 and 15-10.

"Monday night (at Andover) we had some luck with us," Denstaedt said. "We just couldn't do anything wrong--we only had to serve 35 times to get our 30 points."

"Everybody on the team just had a fantastic game. We played as a unit."

The Kettering contest, on the other hand, was in doubt right up to the final point. Game one saw the Captains hold leads of 8-4 and 9-7 before the Wolves came back to score six unanswered points, pulling ahead 13-9.

Kettering closed the gap again however, tying the score at 14-14 before Clarkston's Linda Baynes smashed two point-scoring serves to wrap up the win.

Clarkston was never in game two at all, and when the third set started off with a quick three points by the Captains, it appeared as though Kettering had gained the momentum.

But that perception proved to be only temporary when Clarkston's Kass Conway served up a point-scoring volley to break a 9-9 deadlock and put the Wolves in front to stay.

"Linda Baynes and Linda Foster saved us with their serving," Denstaedt said. "Other than that, both teams were making mistakes back and fourth--nobody really had a strong attack."

The victories upped Clarkston's overall record to 5-4, including a perfect 2-0 in the Greater Oakland Activities League.

In the junior varsity contests played before the varsity games, the JV Wolves won their sixth and seventh matches of the season against only two defeats.

Post eighth win

JVs rip Adams, 57-41

By Al Zawacky

Clarkston High School's junior varsity cagers posted their eighth victory of the season last week, a 57-41 non-league win over Rochester Adams.

"We started out slow but played a very strong second quarter," coach Larry Mahrle noted. "That's been a pattern in a lot of our games this season."

Mahrle went on to cite his team's accurate shooting as being instrumental to their last two victories.

"We were 23 for 46 from the field--that's not all bad for a JV team," Mahrle said. "Against Rochester the week before we shot 55 percent--and if we can keep shooting like that, we're going to win ball games."

Leading the junior Wolfpack in scoring and rebounding was Brad Beattie, with 17 points and 9 rebounds. Kevin Coppersmith with 12 points, Ric Schebor with 11 and Craig Schinabel with 10 were the other cagers in double-figures.

Currently, the JVs are in a virtual tie for first place in the GOAL with Rochester. Rochester pulled to 5-1 Friday night with a win over Kettering, while the junior Wolfpack had their contest with Andover cancelled due to the sewer back up at Clarkston High School.

The cancelled game--combined with the fact that CHS's opponent this Tuesday, Pontiac Central, has no JV sports--means that the junior varsity cagers won't see action again until Feb. 1 at home against Kettering.

The resulting ten-day layoff isn't sitting well with Mahrle at all.

"That's going to bother us," the coach said. "In the middle of the season, the more games you play, the better--we're going to have to really prepare ourselves for Kettering."

Of the junior Wolfpack's eight remaining games, seven are at home. The lone exception is a game at Rochester on Feb. 22, a game that may prove to be a showdown for first place and the JV league title.

WATERFORD TOWNSHIP at CLARKSTON (Feb. 5): What do we know about the Skip-pers?...that they won eight out of their first ten games...that against GOAL teams they are 2-0, having defeated Milford 52-36 and West Bloomfield 64-60...that they have some talent in players like John Coe and Ken Hayward...but they won't be playing winless Milford or 2-9 West Bloomfield this time. WOLFPACK by 10.

KETTERING AT CLARKSTON (Feb. 1): Clarkston amassed their highest point total of the season when these two teams last met just before Christmas...that game ended in a 93-56 Wolfpack victory...the Captains have been playing better ball of late, pulling their record up above .500...Jerry Wood has been playing extremely well for Kettering...so has teammate Greg Reppuhn...this contest will be closer than the last one...but it would almost have to be.

Odds are...

Kettering 54, Rochester 53: Kettering handed Rochester their fourth defeat in their last five games and second in the GOAL by pulling out a 54-53 victory in Waterford.

Steve Scott's layup with just seven seconds remaining proved to be the difference, as the Captains upped their record to 7-4 overall and 3-3 in the league.

Rochester dropped to 6-5 overall and 4-2 in conference play.

West Bloomfield 57, Milford 49: West Bloomfield snapped an eight game losing streak and extended Milford's victory drought to ten straight by taking a 57-49 victory.

Al Morris and Greg Salah each had 11 points to lead the Lakers offensive effort, while Rob Sharpe notched 21 points in a losing cause for the Redskins.

Sashabaw Junior High's basketball team was 1-1 last week, posting a 60-47 victory over Walled Lake Western before bowing to Lake Orion East 61-54.

Cougar Rick Williams had an outstanding game against Western, scoring 18 points and pulling down 18 rebounds. Tom Williams further contributed to Sashabaw's control of the boards with 17 rebounds, while teammate Mike Clem also finished in double figures scoring-wise with 10 points.

Kevin Brown paced the Cougar effort against Lake Orion with 13 points and 11 rebounds, while teammate Mike Dearborn contributed 11 points.

Now that winter weather has finally arrived, the Clarkston High school ski team will be able to hold a backlog of meets, accumulated from postponements caused by the unseasonably mild weather.

Clarkston will participate in three meets this week, including a Wednesday contest against Rochester Adams and a Thursday meet against Our Lady of the Lakes.

The Clarkston Junior High basketball team continued its winning ways last week, posting two victories to up its season record to 10-2.

Scott Temple led the way in the first win, scoring 24 points as the Wolverines romped to a 85-46 victory over Children's Village. Temmate Ray Kubani wasn't far behind with 20 points as CJH shot a phenomenal 70 percent from the field and 80 percent from the line.

Three days later it was Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes turn to take it on the chin, as the Wolverines posted a 56-25 win.

Mike Grable and Jim Turk, two 10-year-olds who live in Independence Township, won

State-wide championships in the state boxing tournament held in Flint this past weekend.

All three boys will be traveling to Davenport, Iowa on Feb. 8, 9 and 10 to compete in the national championships.

Purchase of proposed gravel mine nears reality

The purchase of a portion of a proposed 487-acre gravel mining operation in Independence Township using Michigan Land Trust funds moved closer to reality last week.

The House Appropriations Committee gave its stamp of approval to the Michigan Land Trust bill which is to provide $18.6 million toward the purchase of recreational land throughout the state.

State Sen. Kerry Kammer (D-Pontiac), who sponsored the bill, is to speak at the Independence Land Conservancy annual meeting Thursday, Feb. 7, at 8 p.m. at Clarkston Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston.

Some 200 acres that includes part of the gravel mining operation proposed by the Edward C. Levy Co. of Detroit are included in the purchase plans. The proposed gravel pit site is west of Clarkston-Orion Road and south of Sashabaw Road, abutting Independence Oaks county park and the township's Clintonwood Park.

"This property is at the headwaters of the Clinton River Watershed and is extremely valuable from an environmental and recreational point of view," Kammer said. "It contains a myriad of flora, fauna and wildlife and will be an excellent complement for the county's planned environmental education center at the adjacent Independence Oaks park."

Also included in proposed purchases is property owned by the Chrysler Corp. located in Orion Township adjacent to the Bald Mountain Recreation area.

"That acquisition serves two important purposes," Kammer said. "It will provide Chrysler with some needed funds and enhance an already important recreational area."

The Land Trust bill, already approved by the Senate, has to be approved by the House before the money is available.

The bill has been in the House committee since last July.

The appropriation approved by the House committee includes property recommended for acquisition by the Kammer Land Trust Fund Board for 1979 and 1980.

Kammer's bill would take approximately $4.6 million for the from the trust fund and match it with $17.5 million in federal funds and about $1 million in other state and local funds to pay for the land.

Priorities for the land purchases, that also include more than 10 miles of frontage along the Manistee and AuSable Rivers, were set by the five-member Kammer fund board of trustees.

The fund is made up of royalties on gas and oil development on state property.

It may sometimes seem as though the only way to bowl regularly is to join a league. Admittedly, there are times at most bowling alleys when leagues take over, but almost all bowling establishments either reserve lanes for non-league bowlers or reserve special times. There often may be special programs offered which involve lower prices for bowling at certain hours, or for bowling a certain number of strings at one time. Bowling shoes are generally always available for rent and balls are always there if you do not have your own.

You'll always find a wide choice of sports equipment available from us at COACH'S CORNER, 31 S. Main, 625-8457. Ice skates are expertly sharpened, and we have all kinds of hockey and basketball equipment available. We specialize in proper fitting. Hours: Daily 9:30am-6pm, Sat until 5pm.

Coaxing cat from tree a full morning's work

By Kathy Greenfield

Kelly is no longer out on a limb.

The saga of the cat's rescue from a treetop near her home with Dave and Jan Scislowicz on Whipple Lake Road, Independence Township, began at about 7:30 a.m. Friday.

The Scislowiczes were almost certain their pet was dead—she had been missing four days, and was afflicted with an eye problem that needed medication each day, plus a lack of equilibrium caused by an injury when she was a kitten.

"She'd never been gone before, ever," Jan said.

The couple's dogs, trained not to leave their property, ran across the street early Friday morning.

Angry, especially since a dog had been killed recently on the road, Jan followed and chastised the animals.

"They cowered, but they stayed there," she said.

Dogs can be trained

Dogs with pizzazz beyond "fetch and carry" routines can get ready for show business.

An eight-week dog conformation class is to be offered at Springfield Oaks Activities Center beginning Feb. 5.

The purpose of the class is to get dogs ready to show.

Instructor Marjorie Rollins has trained and shown dogs for 17 years. In 1979, she personally finished five champion dogs.

Class fee is $20 for each dog. For more information or pre-registration, phone 625-8133 or 634-9371.

The class is offered by the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission at the activities center located at Andersonville and Hall roads, Springfield Township.

And then Jan heard Kelly meow.

"I couldn't find her for one-half hour, but I could hear her," she said. "Finally, I looked up and saw her and I almost died."

For there, perched high up in a tree was Kelly.

She tried to talk the cat down, but when Kelly appeared to lose her balance, Jan knew the cat needed help.

First, she called the fire department and was told the wooded area where the cat sat could not be reached by the trucks with attached ladders.

The township animal control officer arrived, but had no way to get Kelly down.

Jan called her husband home from work at the Clawson-Tank Co. on White Lake Road, Independence Township, and she called the builder where she works at Acre Real Estate, Independence Township.

The 40-foot ladder provided by the builder, Bob Elmy, wasn't high enough.

He and Gary Feole, a real estate salesperson from Acre, Dave and Jan climbed the ladder nonetheless and tried to coax Kelly down.

They cajoled the cold, frightened cat for about an hour and then left.

Jan remembered some old friends, Gordon and Chuck Mattson of Troy who have worked in landscaping and tree service.

An hour later, they were on the scene with spikes for climbing, a life-line and rope.

Gordon did the climbing—he said he thought Kelly was up about 75 feet—and when he reached the cat, she panicked.

Not one to give up her safe position without a struggle, Kelly managed to get in a few bites and scratches before Gordon could place her in a pillow case and carefully lower her to the ground.

The five-and-one-half hour rescue was over.

"I knew we'd get her out of the tree, because there's no way we'd give up," Jan said. "I just can't believe I have her. Geez, look at her."

Kelly the cat was happily eating cat food and lapping up milk.

Jan tries coaxing the cat down, but Kelly won't budge. After Kelly was missing for four days, Jan was led to the treed cat by her pet dogs.

Safe at last, Kelly the cat gets a kiss from her relieved owner, Jan. Though thinner, the cat appeared to be just fine after her ordeal.

Is your dog gone?

Joe Armstrong, who has served as the Independence Township animal control officer since September, hears all sorts of animal stories.

One of his favorites, that he calls the "Cat Burglar Tale," follows:

"A couple found a dead cat on their porch one morning and decided to dispose of it at the Humane Society. They put it in a grocery bag and placed it in the trunk of their car to drop off after completing some grocery shopping.

"At the grocery store parking lot, they placed the sack on top of their car while loading the groceries. Remembering an item they forgot, the couple returned to the store.

"They just got into the door when they remembered they left this sack with a dead cat in it on top of the car.

"They returned just in time to see a woman take the sack from the car top and leave.

"The couple decided to follow her and ended up at a restaurant where the woman ordered some coffee and then apparently decided the time was right to check to see what she got inside the bag.

"She fainted and fell off the chair. The restaurant owner called an ambulance.

"As she was being carried off on a stretcher, somebody said, 'Hey, wait a minute, this bag belongs to her,' and they wrapped it up and placed it on her chest."

Dogs picked up on Jan. 27—Spaniel-Beagle mix, male, about 20 pounds, from Clinton-Sashabaw road area; calico cat, Maybe-Winell area.

Extra patrol—Jan. 30 to Feb. 6, Woodhull Subdivision off Sashabaw Road.

December statistics—29 stray animal complaints, 11 dogs returned to owners, 12 warnings issued, 9 tickets written, 26 animals taken to Humane Society, over 1,200 miles drive on patrol.

If your pet is missing, call Independence Township Animal Control Officer Joe Armstrong at 625-8600 or the Michigan Humane Society at 391-0800. Animals picked up are destroyed in four days unless claimed by owner.

Firms build low-mortgage houses

By Kathy Greenfield

Soaring interest rates and new house prices have made mortgages for 5 percent down at 9.75 interest sound too good to be true.

But, for now at least, such rates are available through the Michigan State Housing Development Authority (MSHDA) for those with incomes of $20,980 or less, not including overtime. Maximum mortgage amount is $45,000.

Two local companies building homes available for MSHDA mortgages are Aacre Realty, 6565 Dixie Highway, Independence Township, and Forrest Milzow Builders Inc. with its main office in Independence and a model at 1364 Parkway, Waterford Township.

"It's one of the most dynamic programs I've ever seen," said Harvey Feole, owner of Aacre Realty. "It enables people to get into housing who would otherwise still be renting. It allows them to build equity."

Without MSHDA, she would have been unable to sell any homes this winter, said Margaret Stott, sales representative for Milzow.

"I feel it's the only thing that's going to save the building industry," she said. "Most of the people who come in and buy the homes couldn't afford 13.75 percent interest."

Both companies have homes available for inspection, and both said they work with people who need assistance in coming up with the $3,000 to $4,000 needed for a down payment and closing costs.

Monthly payments on the homes not including taxes and insurance are less than $400.

MSHDA has had loans available for single family dwellings since 1974, but the impact of the program became more significant when interest rates rose, said Robert Booze, housing development officer for MSHDA.

"The difference obviously makes us busy," Booze said.

Since the program began, over 7,000 MSHDA loans for single family dwellings have been made, he said.

Legislation is pending in Washington, D.C. that would curtail the loans by adding more stringent requirements, he said.

"It's a strange situation presently that we face," he said. "The program was designed to be never-ending."

If passed, the bill would place more limits on income and cost of the new homes as well as possibly not allowing those who have owned a home in the past three years to qualify, he said.

"The program is very effective and it would certainly be a shame if it were not allowed to continue," he said.

For now, however, about $100 million became available in December for the loans--enough to finance about 2,200 houses across the state.

Aacre Realty has built about 12 houses in the area under the MSHDA program and is in the process of building 12 to 15 more, Feole said.

Those who believe they can qualify for MSHDA loans can fill out paperwork and have the matter handled at the real estate offices.

"A lot of people don't know about the program to take advantage of it," said Randall Cole, land specialist with Aacre.

"Most of the people who work at General Motors, Pontiac Motors or Fisher Body will qualify," Feole added.

Aacre offers four styles of homes and Milzow has four tri-levels and a colonial style available.

The homes have three bedrooms, a family room and one full bathroom in the basic designs.

The basic Aacre house costs $38,500 not including the lot, well or, if needed, septic field. The Milzow price is $46,900 including the lot, water and sewer.

Plans for the houses built by Aacre were submitted to MSHDA and okayed for the loans, Feole said.

Although every licensed builder in the state can participate in the MSHDA program, not all choose to do so.

"It's a very expensive program for the builder," Feole said, because the homes must be completed before any money is received by the builder, but with a regular mortgage, the bank allows the builder to draw some money during construction.

Aacre decided to participate in MSHDA "to keep the business going and to help people out," he said.

"A lot of homeowners are pleased at what they can save with State Farm insurance."

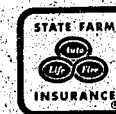

State Farm has become the largest homeowners insurance company in the country by offering low rates and prompt, first-class service. But people are still surprised when they find out we can save them money. When your current policy expires, come see me. I may have a surprise for you.

Career game teaches kids confidence

By Kathy Greenfield

The name of the game was Career Day.

And the Clarkston Junior High School ninth graders faced the first job interviews most had ever had.

As they gathered in hallways and rooms, in practically every group someone was combing his or her hair and many looked downright worried.

Jobs weren't really on the line here—just evaluations by eight local business people and four school personnel that included the question, "Would you hire this person? Yes. Unsure. No."

The possibility of not getting top scores on her two interviews did not worry Chris Lahiri.

"It wouldn't be that upsetting, because it's only your first try," she said. "You'd know what you did wrong, so you could change for your next interview."

The experience of studying job interviewing in school taught the students how to dress, how to act and what an actual interview was like, they said.

"I think it gives you more confidence," said Lori Martin.

Bob Bresler's reactions were similar.

"When I'm 16, I could go in and get a job," he said.

Most students queried, however, said they were worried about facing the interviews.

"I'm enjoying it—I am," said Kathy Humphrey. "But I've been a bit nervous, too. I've never known what an interview was like before."

"I was pretty nervous," said Denny Lankton. "It gives you experience for the next interview you need. Next time I'll be ready."

"Scary in the beginning" is how Adam McCallum described the interviews.

"It was pretty good," he said. "I learned what it was about. It lets you know what to expect from an interview."

Going through the steps of actually applying for a job were the finale of a social science unit on career exploration, said English teacher Kate Germuska.

"When they start out, they're pretty unrealistic," she said. "Everyone wants to be a veterinarian."

The classroom discussions allow the students to think more seriously about career options and what it takes to get a job.

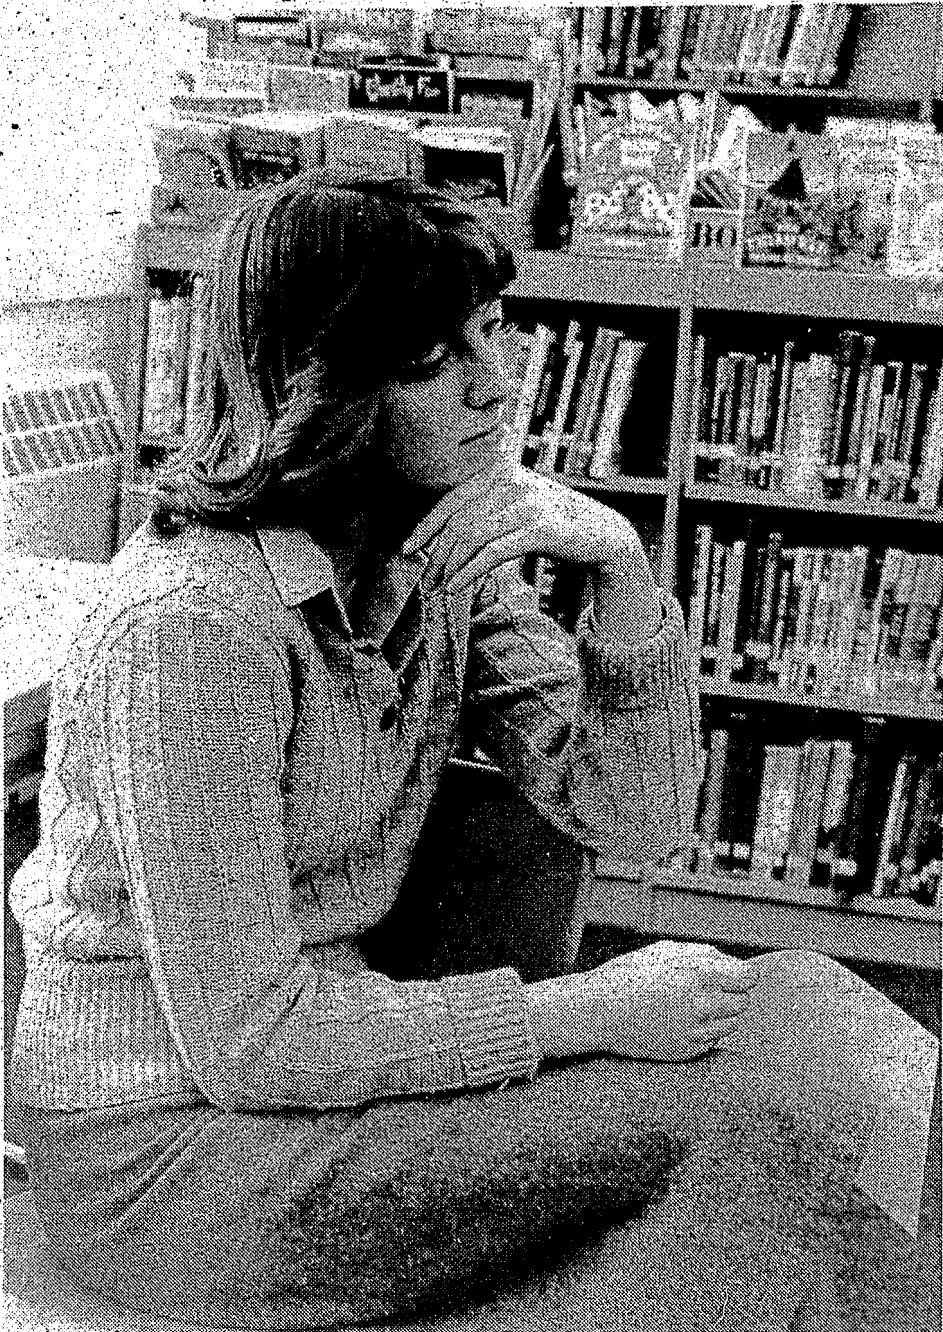

They also identify the qualities they have and think about how to find a job that will lead to a more contented adulthood.

Most students are surprised to learn that, according to studies, three out of five adults hate their jobs, Germuska said.

Topics covered even included what to wear for a job interview and theories on what colors are best.

In short, the ninth graders are studying the rules while they're young.

"It's a big game," Germuska said. "If you learn how to play the game, you'll win."

Her "application" in hand, Kathy Humphrey waits her turn to be interviewed for a job as a bank teller. "I'm a little anxious," she says.

Adam McCallum says he learned what to expect from an interview while talking with Julius Dael of Country Value Hardware. Still, it was "scary in the beginning," he says.

Participants will learn the basic skills of survival in cold weather, view a film on hypothermia (exposure) and help to construct a snowshelter.

Everyone involved should bring rain pants, a jacket and a change of clothes, according to Kathleen Dougherty, parks naturalist and guide for the event.

Other interpretive programs at Independence Oaks this winter include a scavenger hunt on skis Feb. 23 and a special program on owls to welcome spring on March 21.

Facilities for open skiing are also available at Independence Oaks daily from 8 a.m. to dusk.

A bit on Ireland

KILARNEY, COUNTY KERRY, IRELAND — In an Irish pub, some might order a glass of beer. They are tourists, who don't know any better.

Some Irish would properly order a pint of ale of lager—or more rarely, a half-pint.

The true-green Irishman, though, steps up and orders simply, "A jar."

That means a pint of Guinness stout. Paddy Sommers, our driver, explained that when a man has had "a bit too much to drink," he is dubbed "half-jarred."

This is also the term used when a man is rather thoroughly drenched. He is still "half-jarred."

And when a man reaches that awful third stage, the blind, staggering souse, a helpless, babbling caricature of the human race?

"He is still only 'half-jarred,'" said Paddy.

The price of jars or pints is fairly reasonable in Irish pubs—50 pence, or about $1.05 U.S. And that's nearly 20 U.S. ounces—twice as much as you'd get if you ordered a glass of beer in Boca Raton.

Whiskey and gin are expensive in Ireland—twice what they are in the U.S. Even Irish whiskey, Irish coffee, highly touted in the hotel dining rooms, is mostly for tourists.

Census figures ordinarily aren't worth talking about—but this time it was different in Ireland.

For the first time in 100 years, the population of Ireland was greater than the previous head count. This time, an increase of 338,633, about 8 percent.

You can see the results as you travel about—especially in western Ireland, where quite a few housing projects stand out in the ancient landscape. You'll see some new individual houses, and the results aren't too happy always. The traditional Irish cottage belongs to the country; they look solid, substantial and cozy. Their successors have picture windows and TV antennas—a love-child, with American ranch-house and 17th century farm cottages as parents.

Significantly, Ireland has stopped exporting more people than it is producing. Meanwhile, America still has over twice as many Irish as Ireland. The Catholic church still proscribes contraceptives, and abortions.

Divorce is illegal. Only two other political entities in the world make this illegal—Andorra, the pint-sized country in the Pyrennes and the Vatican itself.

Paddy thought someday there might be a referendum on the subject.

Irish papers gave considerable coverage to Teddy Kennedy's candidacy for President.

Observed the Irish Times of Dublin editorially: "... there is little doubt that Senator Kennedy will pocket the Democratic presidential nomination, which might prove to be rather less than the perfect answer to the chronic problems of the United States, or the world."

Ireland has price control. Headline in the Cork Examiner: FOOD, DRINK PRICES SHOCK

The lead on the story: "In what seems like an unending catalogue of hefty price increases, the government has sanctioned dearer beers, spirits, baby food, sugar, milk and cornflakes."

We found just plain high prices in nearly everything we paid for—hotel rooms, meals, crystal, woollens, gasoline ($2.50 a U.S. gallon). Newspapers were 30 cents to 40 cents. Stout or lager or ale was the exception at $1.05 for 20 ounces at the bar. Peat looked as though it would be cheap, too. There was an awful lot of it.

In the south of Ireland—in Killarney, for example—the brogue is thicker than pea soup.

I suggested to a shopkeeper it was hard to understand.

"Twere any warse, I could na' onnerstand meself'."

Gypsies are everywhere in Ireland, but especially along the roadside, where they park their trailers and set up housekeeping and defy the authorities to move them out. They say they've been there as long as the other natives and they'll live where and how they please. So far, they've been successful.

I liked this story of these wandering folk:

An Irishman told an insurance agent he'd like to have a life insurance policy.

"And who are your parents?" asked the agent.

"Never had any."

"Come now—you must know who your mither was."

"Well, if the truth be known," answered the applicant, "there was this gypsy fellow who came through town—and he took advantage of me aunt."

Church names leader of '79

Calvary Lutheran Church named David Bixby as the congregation's leader of the year at its annual meeting Sunday.

Bixby, of Washington Street, Independence Township, won the ninth annual award for his participation in church activities over the past year, said the Rev. Robert Walters.

A basketball autographed by the Clarkston High School basketball team, cheerleaders and church council members was presented to Bixby because of his interest in high school sports.

"He has been the vice president of the congregation--the ranking lay leader of the congregation--for the past two years," Walters said.

Bixby was re-elected to the church council for a three-year term. Larry Beamer of Boyne Highland Trail, Independence Township, and Robin Adair and Michael Lange, both of Brandon Township were also elected to the council for three-year terms.

Alma Harthun of Clarkston-Orion Road, Clarkston, was also honored. Harthun served as parish secretary for eight years and is now leaving the position, although she will still be active in volunteer work, Walters said.

"The scholarships are what Junior Miss is all about," he said.

Plays, exhibits, concerts outside Clarkston-Independence-Springfield

The world premiere of Charles Nolte's "A Summer Remembered" will be Thursday, Jan. 31 at Meadow Brook Theatre on the Oakland University campus. During the summer of 1938, a Midwestern family at their lake-side home exposes its internal doubts and conflicts which are a mirror of mounting world tensions. The play will run through Feb. 24. After opening week, the play will start at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, 6 and 9:30 p.m. Saturdays, 6:30 p.m. Sundays and 2 p.m. Wednesdays. Tickets can be purchased at Hudson's or by calling the Meadow Brook Theatre box office in Rochester, 377-3300.

Neil Simon's "The Good Doctor" will open the winter season for the Oakland University Theatre Arts Program Thursday, Feb. 7.

The Simon script is a collection of scenes either adapted from or suggested by the stories of Anton Chekhov. The play will run Thursday through Saturday for three weeks. Tickets are $3.50 for general admission, $3 for OU students and senior citizens.

French flutist Michel Debost will appear in concert with the Toulouse Chamber Orchestra Feb. 6 at Oakland University. The musicians will perform works by composers ranging from Corelli to contemporaries Rivier and Britten. Curtain time for the single performance is 8 p.m. in Varner Recital Hall. Tickets are $6 general admission and $4.50 for OU students and senior citizens. Tickets may be ordered in advance by calling 377-2000 or purchased at the door.

the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association is scheduled to open Jan. 9.

There will be a reception for artists from 5-7 p.m. The show, which will continue through March 1, will feature works in oil, acrylic painting, drawing, sculpture, jewelry, enameling and stained glass. A later show will deal with other media taught at the association, 1516 S. Iranbrook, Birmingham.

Gisela Caldwell and Peter Calman are two members of the Meadow Brook cast for the world premiere of "A Summer Remembered" this week. The play is about a Midwestern family in 1938, on the eve of a world war.

Coping with kids

by Jim & Ellen Windell

'Man of the family' role not for boys

Mrs. L. was separated from her husband of 12 years.

She was, however, feeling lonely and abandoned.

At times she was angry and at times depressed. She wanted her children to get through the situation as best as possible with as little trauma as possible.

Without her husband there, she said to her 11-year-old boy, her oldest child, that now he would have to be the man in the family.

"This will give him a feeling of responsibility," she said. "He's always saying we don't trust him enough. Now he can be the man and take over more duties."

Mrs. L. is a living parent who has her children's best interest at heart. Nevertheless, telling a boy that he is the "man in the family" is a way to assure some sort of future problems.

Feeling lonely and abandoned, a woman may feel depressed.

She may decide that the one thing she has left in life to keep her going is her children.

It is easy to turn to them during a crisis in life and use them as advisors and confidants. This places an awesome responsibility on a child.

While a child may want more confidence and trust, they also want to be just plain children and sometimes irresponsible.

Having to advise a depressed mother or taking a father's role in the family is a bit more than they bargained for.

Sometimes mothers at this time become even more seductive with comments and there is sometimes the temptation to have a child--boy or girl--to sleep with mother in bed.

For a boy, some of the usual problems involved in sexual identification would be complicated by such a situation.

Another problem that may arise is the contradictory nature of giving a boy the indication he is the man of the family when the mother later begins to date or actually to marry again.

It is clear then that he is not the "man of the house" but a little boy who must share his mother and duties in the family with a complete stranger.

A child's duties and responsibilities may indeed change when a father leaves the house.

However, these changes should be brought about in an atmosphere that implies that the child is still a child, that mother remains the parent who will assume the major responsibilities in the family and protects the children from awesome worries and that she goes outside the family for advice and counseling.
