As Randy Livsey drives a draft team down a trail toward the rear of his 62-acre farm off Andersonville Road, he's the picture of an old-fashioned farmer. Although the team was trained by the Amish in German, Randy says he's teaching them to understand English. See story page 7.

Tower: 'GM effect slight'

Construction plans for a huge General Motors plant which have been announced for neighboring Orion Township have brightened the horizon somewhat for Independence Township developers.

But the overall effect of the plant is not expected to be felt much in the neighboring township, according to Independence Supervisor Whitey Tower.

See related story on page 3.

"I don't see it as having too much ultimate effect," Tower said this week. "The DNR proposal is much closer."

The Michigan State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is proceeding with plans to purchase about 1,260 acres of Chrysler property in the western portion of Orion Township.

"That would be a real good buffer for us," Tower said.

"Developers are thinking, 'Oh, good, there'll be some increased activity in the northeast corner (of Independence Township),' " Tower said. "But that will develop anyway."

"Most think that at least it will create the activity that's slow now."

Gravel site condemnation suit likely

By Kathy Greenfield

Independence Township's quest to buy 80 acres of a proposed gravel pit will probably end up in court, township attorney Richard Campbell said last week.

"We'll probably file suit within 10 days," he said.

The lawsuit will ask Oakland Circuit Court to condemn the land using regular procedure—a jury trial asking if condemnation is necessary and setting a fair market value, Campbell said.

The Edward C. Levy Co. of Detroit presented preliminary plans for a 487-acre gravel mining operation to the township in July.

The proposed gravel pit is to be located south of Sashabaw Road and west of Clarkston-Orion Road.

In October, a 72-percent majority of township voters approved a tax hike of .3 mill for a five-year period to purchase 80 acres of the property located on Clarkston-Orion Road adjacent to the township's Clintonwood Park.

Three-tenths mill is 30 cents for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

A meeting between township officials, Campbell and representatives of the Levy Co. was held in December to discuss the 80-acre purchase.

"We probably won't be able to work anything out without proceeding with condemnation," Campbell said after the meeting.

—Richard Campbell, Independence Township attorney

A settlement without the trial is still possible, however.

"If they'll sell, we're willing to buy," Campbell said.

A trial date will not be set until a judge is drawn to preside over the case, and then it will depend on the number of cases on the Court's docket, Campbell said.

"I'd like to move it along as rapidly as possible," he said, and asking for an early court date is probable.

"I could argue that we need the land," Campbell said. "The millage has been approved by the people."

Net news

The News is following Clarkston's No. 1-ranked basketball team closely this year.

On page 2 of this Wednesday's Clarkston News, Wolfpack fans can find a detailed account of Tuesday night's home game against Waterford Township, including stats and quotes from coach Gary Nustad.

$121,414 easy to talk about

By Kathy Greenfield

There were plenty of suggestions on how to spend $121,414 Independence Township expects to receive in Federal Revenue Sharing funds this year.

About 25 people attended Tuesday night's township board meeting and about a dozen offered opinions.

Many requests were regulars--$20,000 for safety paths, money toward paving of Holcomb Road north of the village of Clarkston, $30,000 toward paving Pine Knob Road from Clarkston-Orion Road to Bailey Lake Elementary School, $20,000 to replace money verbally set aside in the past for a community center, but later used to purchase a small parcel behind the township senior citizen center.

There were also some new ideas.

"These funds should be used to benefit the greatest number of people in the township," said Michael Clark of Clintonville Road, who suggested funding an energy mobilization task force with $15,000.

On a volunteer basis, homes and commercial buildings could be inspected for energy efficiency, Clark said.

Advice on how to reduce energy losses could then be made, he said, and Clark offered to volunteer his services on a consulting basis.

Ruth Basinger, Clarkston Village Council member, suggested spending money for algae control on the Mill Pond or for a study to determine sources of "excessive sediment coming into the Mill Pond."

Township department directors also had requests.

A boat launch and dock at Deer Lake for $23,000; a bicycle motocross trail, baseball and soccer fields and a sledding hill on the township's Flemings Lake Road property for $10,000; and a park shelter with a fireplace at Clintonwood Park for $21,000 were suggested by Timothy Doyle, parks and recreation director.

Library improvements, equipment and reference books totalling $15,000 were requested by James Hibler, librarian.

Fire Chief Frank Ronk asked for $50,000 for "much needed" equipment, especially in the medical emergency area.

In addition, dust control for township roads and money to microfilm township records dating 1930 and earlier were requested by Clerk Christopher Rose.

A decision on how to spend the federal revenue sharing funds is to be made after the second public hearing, scheduled March 4 at 7:30 p.m. at the Independence Township Library.

McCormick back in form, Skippers scuttled, 90-60

Clarkston's star center, Tim McCormick was back in form Tuesday night, and it spelled doom for Waterford Township's Skippers.

Coming off his lowest offensive total of the season last Friday, McCormick scored 30 points and pulled down 16 rebounds to lead the Wolfpack to a 90-60 victory.

"I was a little concerned before the game," Coach Gary Nustad said, "Some of the kids were fighting head colds and the flu, but they played over them."

The Wolfpack opened up a 34 point lead at halftime on the strength of some excellent shooting from the field, and the Skippers never quite recovered.

Besides McCormick's 30 points, Clarkston had four other familiar names in double figures: Scott McKoin, 22 points and 11 rebounds; John Sheldon, 11 points and 10 assists; Chuck Nicolai, 11 points and Ed Hadad, 10 points.

It was the 14th straight victory without defeat for the Wolfpack, ranked Number 1 state wide and cruising along in first place in the GOAL. "We played very well offensively, but we could have played better on defense," Nustad said.

"It was just that kind of a ball game--up and down with a lot of scoring."

John Coe led all Township scorers with 20 points, but 14 of them came in the second half with the game already out of reach, Nustad pointed out.

The loss dropped the Skippers record to 10-4.

Clarkston's next game will be a Friday night league contest with West Bloomfield Lakers at home.

The Wolfpack blew the Lakers out in a previous meeting, but assistant varsity coach, Larry Mahrle, doesn't foresee any over confidence problem arising.

"Right now, we're at the top of our game," Mahrle said. Just ask the Skippers.

GM puts its mark on Orion

By Charlotte Wall

Local officials are waiting to hear from General Motors regarding its proposed building of a 75-acre assembly plant in Orion Township.

The corporation has entered into bargaining for a 440-acre site on Giddings Road just north of Brown Road. The county-owned property is now the site of the Oakland-Orion Airport.

G.M. announced last Thursday that the facility would replace the production of Pontiac Motor Division assembly plant and its companion Fisher Body facility.

Rail, water, sewer electricity and highways are presently available to the proposed site, according to the county. State Highway M-24 is one-mile east of the proposed plant site.

County official, Pat Nowak noted other county airports would offer good air transit service for the plant.

No price figure was announced, but the county will seek a fair market value in the sale, according to Nowak.

The 130-acre airport and 280 surrounding acres were purchased by the county in 1962 at a cost of $333,940. Since then the county has kicked in another $100,000 for airport improvements.

If the purchase were realized and a $300 million facility built on the site the total property taxes would be 7.2 million yearly.

It was noted the property is presently producing minimal taxes.

General Motors has stated it needs at least a 400 acre site to build the kind of facility it requires. The company plans a 3,000,000 square-foot auto assembly plant.

Bringing the assembly plants within the requirements of the Clean Air Act Amendments of 1977 and improving productivity to better meet the growing competition from imports was noted as reasons for the new facility.

County Commissioner Mat Dunaskiss speculated that some 8,000 jobs would be involved in the move-5,000 transfer positions and some 3,000 new jobs.

Nowack said he had every reason to believe new jobs would be available. The plant would be one of the largest in the world, he commented.

It is hoped the plan will be brought to the county commissioners' meeting of Feb. 14 for consideration, he said. Dunaskiss speculated a timetable of 18 months prior to construction of the plant.

He noted all tax abatements would have to be approved and the corporation would be required to meet rezoning regulation with Orion Township.

The site is presently zoned light industrial and a zoning of heavy industrial is needed for the planned assembly plant.

To date the township has received no rezoning request from G.M. though the township attorney, Eric McCann stated at the Feb. 4 meeting, that General Motors had made attempts to reach him.

McCann noted he needed the township's approval to speak with General Motors regarding the purchase as there would be a charge to the township for the phone calls.

Trustees JoAnn VanTassel and Bonnie Stickney felt approval should be withheld until G.M. contacts the township.

McCann said he felt the corporation would be inquiring about preliminary steps they needed to take to gain zoning approval and tax reductions.

VanTassel asked what piece of property would be involved in the tax break. She stated the township had received no word from G.M. concerning any township properties.

"If G.M. wants to pay the bill (for speaking with the attorney), let them talk," she stated.

One grain of humor goes long way

It doesn't pay to rub your "Winter Wonderland" neighbors' noses in Florida sand.

Just ask Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson, whose communique from the Sunshine State to about 25 neighbors in Independence Township's Deerwood subdivision were answered novelly last week.

Patterson, who went to Florida to give a speech at a teachers' convention, was there alone for a few days while waiting for his wife Kathy to join him for a vacation.

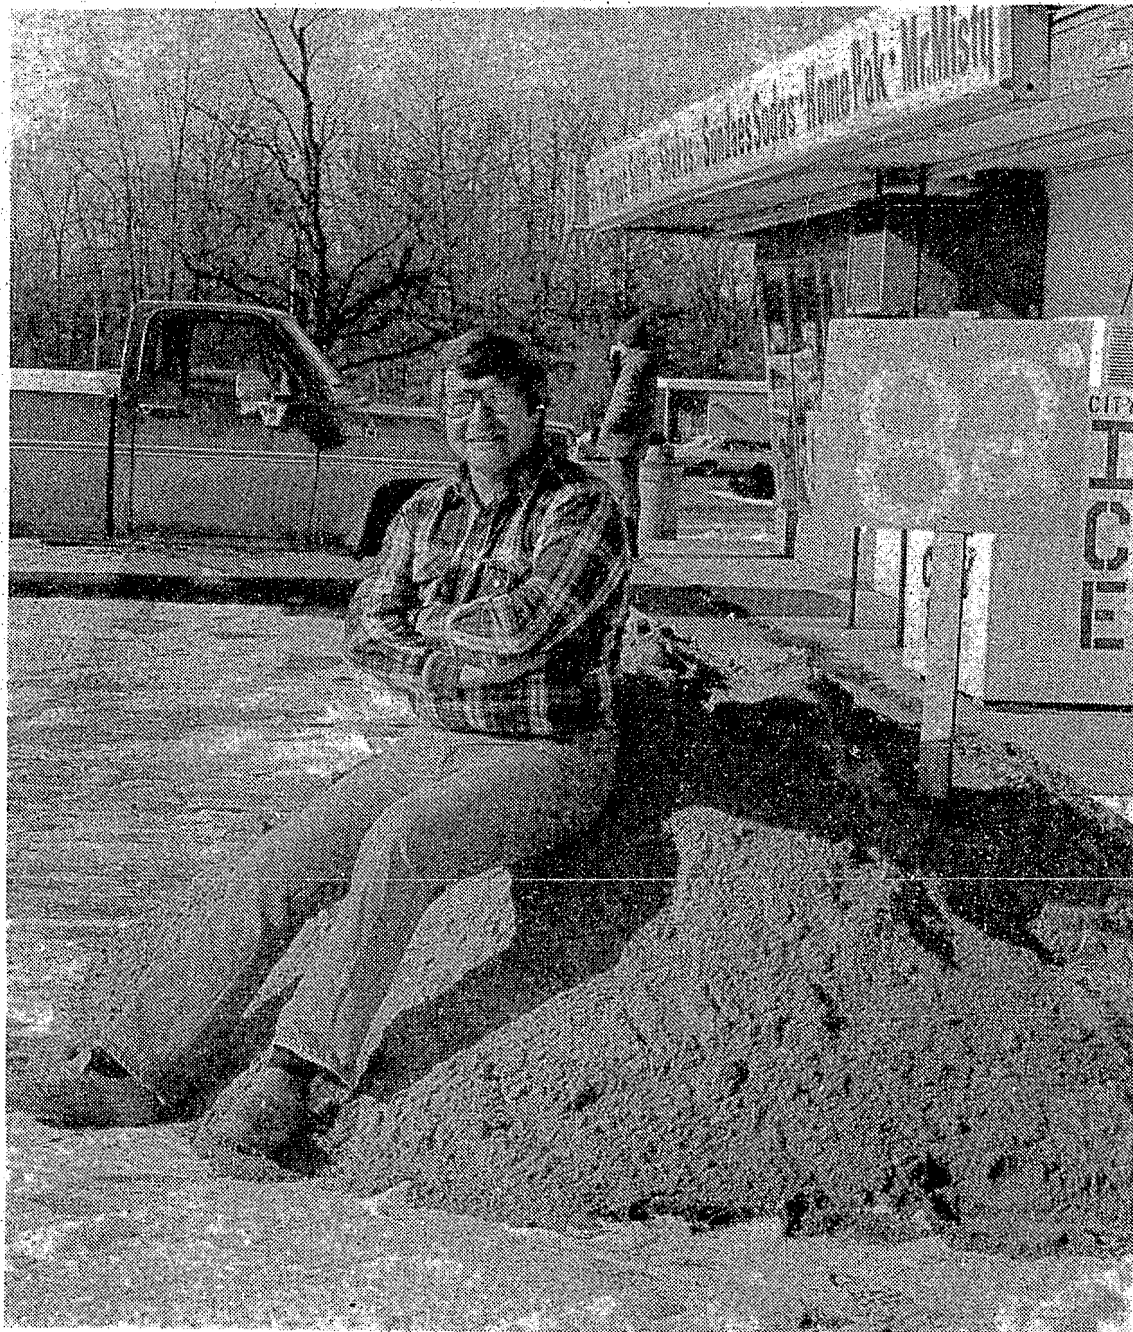

To kill some time, he put sand in envelopes, stuck in slips of paper that said, "82 degrees," signed them "The Florida Flasher" and mailed them to his neighbors.

While the Pattersons held the annual opening of their Dairy Queen on M-15 Friday, they discovered a load of sand in the parking lot.

It was topped with a sign that simply said, "82 degrees."

Although Patterson said he didn't know exactly who was responsible for the prank, about 20 grinning neighbors appeared at the business that evening.

The prosecutor said he suspected a conspiracy and promised a lawsuit would be filed this week.

Will resort become park?

County to decide on P K

A decision on the proposed purchase of about 400 acres of Pine Knob by the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission should be made by the end of February, according to county officials.

A closed parks commission executive session is scheduled this week for informational purposes, said Eric Reickel, manager of the county parks and recreation department.

The next regular meeting of the commission is scheduled Feb. 20.

"I would hope we would be in a position to have made a decision by then," Reickel said. "We do have to move quite rapidly--the owners are anxious and I just want to get it off my back."

County budget department director James Brennan agreed with the time schedule.

"By the end of February, we should know which way we'll go," he said.

The budget department is assisting the parks department in determining the break-even point, which option to recommend for financing the purchase, land appraisal and income projections, Brennan said.

Pine Knob owners Joseph Locricchio and Gary Francell offered to sell 400 acres of the nearly 600-acre Pine Knob complex to the county in November.

The music theater, golf, ski and mansion facilities make up the 400 acres.

The remainder of Pine Knob is owned by Borg-Warner Equities, home-based in Chicago, Ill., and includes 24 condominiums and plans for a total of 650 single-family and condominium units on the property.

Independent view

True blue Michiganians can feel more secure knowing a Michigan flag now flies at Independence Township Hall.

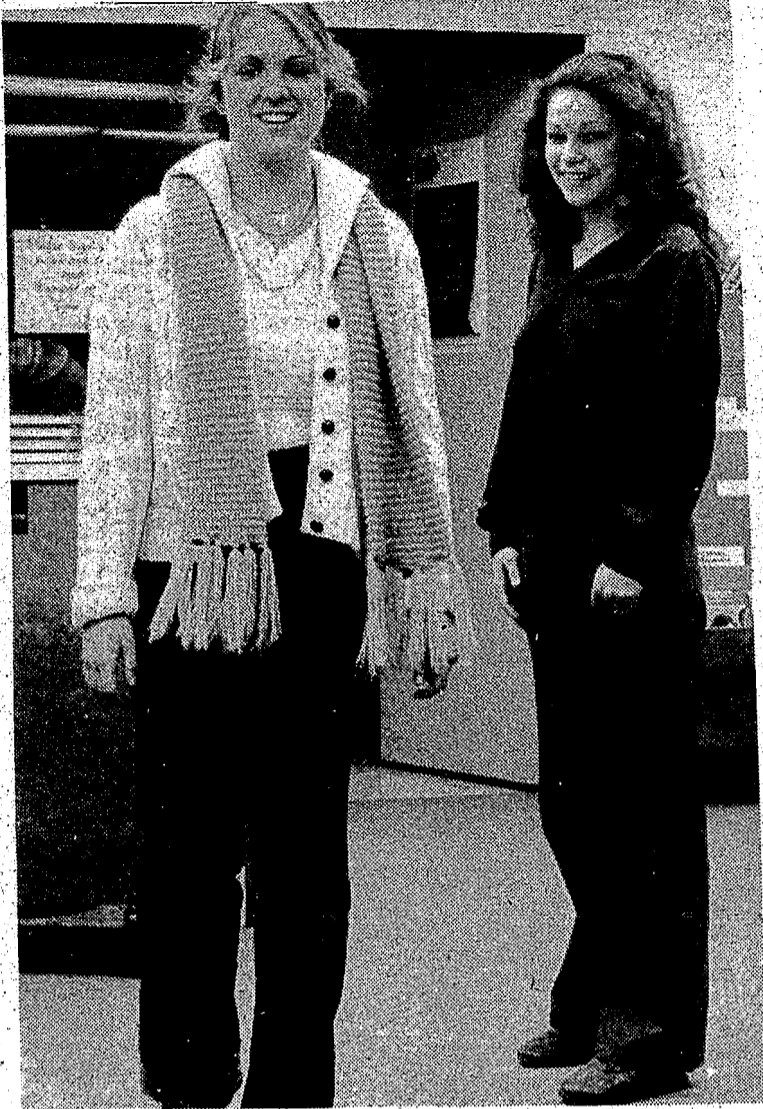

Oddly enough, finding a place to buy the flag wasn't easy, says Clerk Christopher Rose who serves as the organizer of upcoming Michigan Week celebrations (May 17-24).

"I even called the Michigan Week foundation and they didn't know," he says.

Finally, the flag was purchased through the township library after an employee noticed a company that sold books also sold the flag.

The basic price for houses available from Aacre Realty eligible for MSHDA mortgages was incorrectly stated in last week's Clarkston News.

The correct base price is $35,800 not including lot, water or, if needed, septic system.

Retail marketing students Judy Wesol [left] and Jackie Stottlemeyer practice for the Spring Fashion Show scheduled at 2:15 p.m. during NWOVEC'S open house on Sunday, Feb. 10.

NWOVEC open house will feature student skills

An open house at Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center (NWOVEC) is slated Sunday, Feb. 10, to kick-off National Vocational Education Week.

From 1 to 4 p.m., talents and skills of high school juniors and seniors from Clarkston, Brandon, Waterford and Holly school districts will be on display.

Retail marketing students will present a spring fashion show, sponsored by Montgomery Wards, at 2:15 p.m. in the library.

Northwest Inn will feature the service and culinary talents of students enrolled in the food service program. Hours are 1 to 3 p.m.

Menu selections include chicken pot pie with puff pastry top, slices of roast beef heaped on a miniature French loaf with a cheese topping, triple-decker turkey, ham and cheese sandwich and dessert bar.

For more casual dining, the cafeteria, open the same hours, will feature hot and cold sandwiches, salads and desserts.

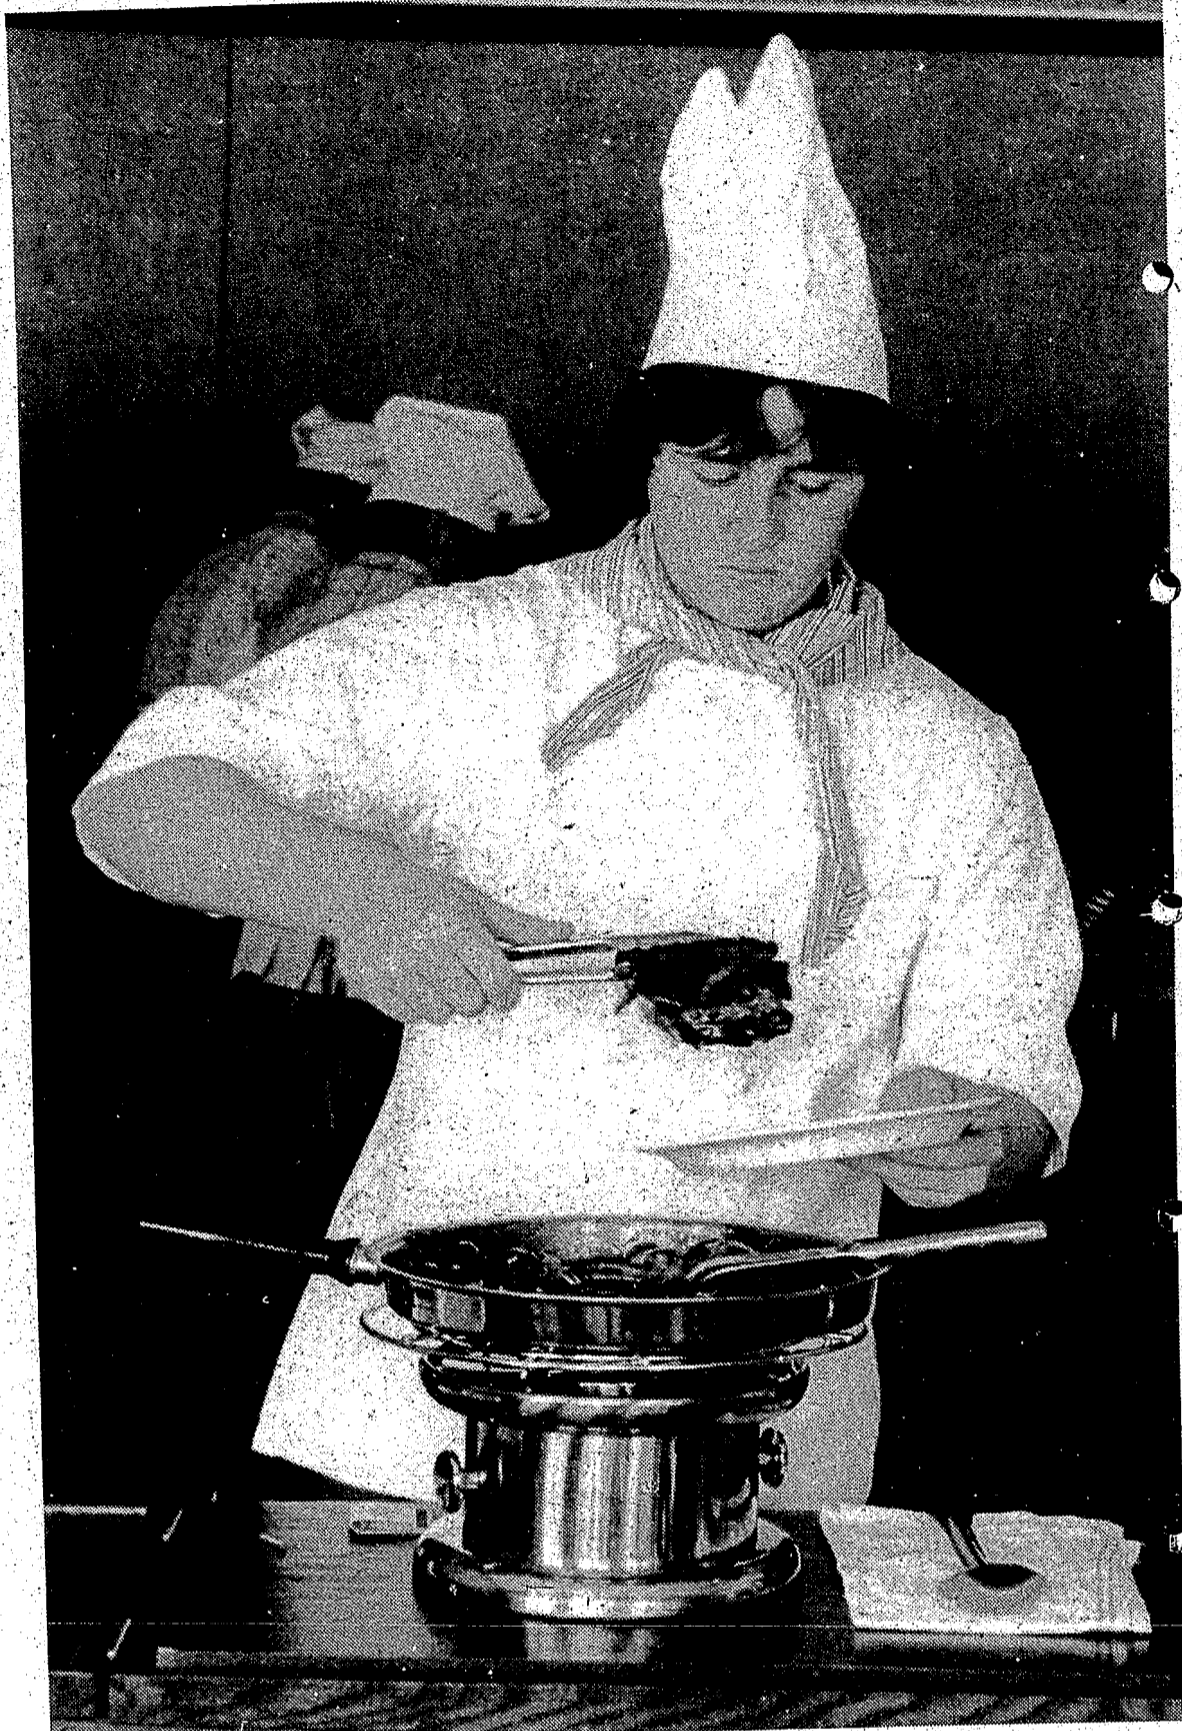

The boutique and green house will be open with items for sale for open house visitors.

Other demonstrations include computing biorhythms, Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation and operating a dynameter, word processing equipment and a numerical control tape mill.

Faculty members and employers talking about job opportunities will be on hand to answer questions.

Students at NWOVEC may take up to two years of vocational training while attending their local high school part of the school day.

NWOVEC is located at 8211 Big Lake, just south of I-75 off Dixie Highway, Springfield Township.

During the 1 to 3 p.m. dining hours at NWOVEC'S Northwest Inn, Carl Swindell is to demonstrate the art of preparing flaming cherry crepes. Students will also display their skills by preparing Caesar salad.

Congrats come in for Sherman

Jim,
Congratulations MPA President Sherman. Sorry I wasn't able to make it down for the investiture. But I am curious--did Fitz sit through your acceptance speech?

Lack of snow and a resort economy that's damn depressed, kept the Smith's at home. A weak excuse maybe, but better than none. And I did want to congratulate you on your ascension to the top spot. Am sure you will give it your best shot.

While I'm passing out roses, well done's are also in order to you and your staff for all the MPA awards. Everywhere I looked in the MPA release announcing the division winners, there was a Sherman Chain paper listed. Nice going...

Our best to you, your family and staff in the upcoming year. And again--congratulations Mr. President.

Gregg Smith

Dear Mr. Sherman:

Congratulations on your newly elected position. I'm sure it is a fine honor as well as a challenge. You and Mrs. Sherman have gone a long way from the old office downtown.

I was pleased to hear that son Jim has joined in the family business.

Sincerely,
Nancy Hall Heyns
Holland, MI

Dear Jim:

It was not until I read Fitz's column the other morning that I was aware of your ascendancy to the MPA throne.

Barbara joins me in belated congratulations to you.

I know from experience that it isn't any hell-roaring job but it does represent a solid measure of respect and recognition from your peers--and that's always a source of personal satisfaction.

It has been ages since we've seen you people. Your kids must be sending money home by now. We still hear at Christmas from Jo and Steve Meads, but we haven't seen them since you and I invaded Oxford a hundred years ago.

Best wishes, always, to all the Shermans.

Sincerely,
Ink White
St. Johns

Dear Hazel & Jim,

Hellow! What a shock I had reading the paper tonight & saw the write up & picture of you! My first thought, "My God, he's died!" Then reading the heading I was grateful it was good news.

So happy for you! Congratulations Jim--I always said you did a fine job! To think the former president of Michigan Press Association happened to have once been a reporter for the Holland Sentinel--small world.

Again, congratulations & best of luck, Mr. President. Hope you'll enjoy hearing from us as much as we enjoyed reading about someone we know from back home.

Sincerely,
former Oxford people

A matter of opinion

by Pat Braunagel

To the losers, laughs

About the funniest thing that happened to the Braunagels last week was that we lost big in the Michigan State Lottery.

Well, it's not so much that we LOST big as that we didn't win much.

It's been a long time since I've gotten very excited about the lottery. Now and then--if enough positive things have happened in one day to make me think I have a lucky streak going--I'll spend $1 on an instant ticket and prove the flash-in-the-pan nature of lucky streaks.

But it's difficult not to get your hopes up when you've got 300 tickets going for you in the weekly drawing--that's 600 chances that you'll have either the two-digit or three-digit number.

Don't think about the possibility of getting both numbers, winning $10,000 and going into the super drawing. I told myself.

The Braunagels had gotten this windfall at the Michigan Press Association's all-Michigan dinner during the organization's convention the previous weekend.

At this banquet every year, there are enough Michigan food products stacked at each diner's place to stock a small pantry.

The idea is that the assembled editors are to sample these goodies and maybe extol their goodness in columns such as this throughout the year.

The Michigan State Lottery Commission gets in on this by giving away door prizes of lottery tickets in multiples of 100.

That's how Don came into possession of three packs of 100 tickets each.

Since Don was out of town Thursday for the weekly drawing, I called on my father-in-law, a lottery buff from the beginning, to share the anticipation and thrill of the drawing.

As the hour for the drawing approached, we turned on the television set and spread the tickets out on the dining room table.

Dad was already looking up and down the rows of numbers when the week's winners were reported. Mom, being his wife, was giving me an account of all the losing tickets she had once discovered in his sock drawer.

Well, folks, she had 298 more to add to the collection. Out of all those tickets, we had two five-buck winners.

You can get a real feeling of the odds against gamblers when there are 298 losing tickets spread out in front of you.

What's so funny about this? It beats me, but the three of us laughed like mad.

And so has everyone else who asked for a report on our winnings.

I mean, the uniform reaction has been knee-slapping hilarity. From which I can only conclude that the Michigan State Lottery is good for a laugh.

And what of the lottery commission's public relations gesture?

Well, they took their chances.

The hand that types the commentaries on this page has been soundly rapped.

Paul Tugate, athletic director at Clarkston High School, did not take kindly to your editor's teasing last week, which, he said, implied that he had been less than ethical in cancelling the home basketball game Jan. 25 because of a backed-up sewer at the school--a game that center Tim McCormick and guard Ed Haddad were going to miss anyway because of illness.

The sewer problem, Tugate informs us, was fixed by about 6 p.m.--but the decision to cancel the game had to be made by 2 p.m. so game officials, the news media and college scouts could be alerted.

The clean-up work in the locker rooms wasn't completed until Saturday, we're told.

Tugate also noted he didn't know about his star's illnesses until Saturday.

We're willing to take back any aspersions that may have been cast Tugate's way, and we won't ask (at the risk of feeding all you wits a straight line) how the sewer got backed up in the first place.

Letter to the editor

How about girls?

Dear Sports Fans of Clarkston,

It is great to see you show up for the boys' sport.

I think we are forgetting the girls.

They sure would like to have some fans too. Besides moms and dads.

They work out every day and play their sport just as hard as the boys. They put their heart and souls in to their games too.

So, come on, sports fans. Come see the girls too.

Mrs. J. Conway

Jim's jottings

Mr. President

by Jim Sherman

We were mentioned at the Michigan Press Association convention last week as the man who was about to "set on the throne."

So much for the dignity of the office.

Standing before 500 of your peers is not something I looked forward to. I shook, shivered, and sweat on numerous occasions before adjourning the convention Saturday night.

I tightened my belt to restrict the breathing, then took deep breaths to help relax. I tried to remember Dale Carnegie's training that says, among other things, "We can't eliminate the butterflies in your stomach, but we can get them flying information."

But the best advice came from my predecessor, Dick Milliman whose home base is the Livingston County Press in Howell. He said, "It will pass."

And, so it did, like everything else. Time covers all.

Our first duty in office was to introduce the entertainment for the night. It was Greek and Middle East music and belly dancing. The latter is ok for a couple numbers, then the music and the gyrations have a sameness.

The awful thing about this belly dancing is that they asked Milliman, Attorney General Frank Kelley and I to join them and a couple more unfortunates on stage.

It may have been a joy to the audience, but it was a pain in the back to me.

There are 311 Michigan newspapers represented in Michigan Press Ass'n. Only a handful do not belong.

We have one major convention a year, always the last weekend in January and always at Kellogg Center in East Lansing. We also have quarterly meetings to preside over and a rather large summer meeting.

There is a considerable amount of fellowship connected with our meetings; however, there are serious moments.

The smiles are gone when we discuss newspaper responsibilities, the affect of court decisions on the people's right to know through the first amendment to the U.S. constitution, and the declining confidence polls show the public has in newspaper people.

There is great concern over this loss of credibility. It is an area we will look at closely, going right back to the college classroom if possible to see if some practicing newsperson input can go into the hiring.

We think perhaps the image our industry projects may have started in the young adult years on campus.

For now, though, we're still nervous.

They pull load of independence

By Kathy Greenfield

When Randy Livsey hitches up his pair of draft horses and sits atop his home-made wagon seat, he looks like he stepped out of the pages of a history book.

That is if the knit cap with a C.A.T. label on the brim and the rubber wheels on the wagon are ignored.

But make no mistake, the image he projects is close to the life toward which Livsey and Iris Charmer are striving.

"We believe this is how you should do it—kind of like the Amish," Livsey said. "I just think horses are the coming thing, because small farmers are coming back. They buy the land and don't have money for equipment."

The horses are much more practical for farming, the couple said, because they reproduce, their feed can be grown and they provide fertilizer.

"You don't import hay from Iran," Livsey said.

Caretakers of 62 acres on Andersonville Road, Independence Township, since 1972, Livsey and Charmer plan to move to their 40-acre farm in Michigan's Upper Peninsula when the time is right.

The Percheron horses bought from the Amish are the last ingredient to prepare for the move, Livsey said, and he's beginning to feel ready to live in the wilderness.

The draft horses—Babe and Marie—were purchased from the Amish in January for $3,500.

The horses are well-trained, understand German commands, so Livsey said he's teaching them English.

In addition to the draft horses, Livsey and Charmer are

Randy Livsey and Iris Charmer load wood on the back of the wagon while the draft horses patiently stand at rest. Noise of the saw mill and the loading activities do not phase the horses, Livsey says. The Percherons are so well-trained that when the reins are dropped, they await further commands.

preparing for the move in other ways.

They have a wood-burning cook stove and wind generator for electricity stored for their new life and Livsey recently built a saw mill at their present location.

Their goal is to make boards to build their own house and barn up north.

Balking at categories like

"back to nature" or "Mother Earth advocates," Livsey and Charmer say they're into just being themselves.

Details about their lives show their strong sense of the importance of maintaining their individuality.

Although the couple is married, Charmer has chosen to use her maiden name.

They eat no beef or pork, but their menus include chicken

(they raise their own), fish and venison.

Livsey hates to admit it, he said, but he drives a bulldozer for a living.

"I have to be an equipment operator in the summer to make things swing," he said. "Most people who run bulldozers aren't ecologically minded, but I am."

He also repairs heavy construction equipment, a skill he said is in demand.

Charmer is working to master the art of weaving before they head north. She makes mostly clothing and plans to raise sheep eventually to provide the wool.

Success in developing their unusual, but comfortable lifestyle, has given Livsey and Charmer a sense of pride.

"You don't have to be totally dependent on the outside world for everything," Charmer said.

'If it Fitz. . .'

Sherman upstaged

by Jim Fitzgerald

Jim Sherman should have refused to comment on allegations that he used Canadian money to buy a United States newspaper from a vending machine. Or maybe he should have thrown a cocktail glass at me and hit John McGoff by accident.

Sherman should have done something colorful to draw attention to himself, and get his name in the big-city newspapers. But he didn't. All Sherman did was get installed as president of the Michigan Press Association, thus climaxing one of the most unbelievable Cinderella stories in the history of journalism. Who cares about that?

The coronation of Cinderella Sherman was held last weekend at the annual convention of the press association in East Lansing. Most publishers and editors of Michigan's daily and weekly newspapers were present to honor their new leader, who owns one of the few newspaper chains that can be worn around the neck. His publications are circulated, maybe even read, in Oxford, Lake Orion, Clarkston and Davison.

Sherman's early history, which I shared, gave absolutely no indication that someday he would ride to the ball in a pumpkin coach. So, under ordinary circumstances, his surprising elevation to the top of Michigan newspaperdom would have been the big news out of the convention. But, because of John McGoff, these weren't ordinary circumstances.

McGoff is fighting hard against Justice Department attempts to see his business records. This battle has gained him much publicity. He has also been on front pages for 1) throwing a cocktail glass at a nightclub entertainer for singing nice things about drugs while McGoff's children listened (he pleaded guilty); and 2) allegedly firing two Panax editors for refusing orders to publish a Panax article they thought was crummy (he denied it).

McGoff insists the press has been exceedingly unfair to him in reporting his troubles. When he agreed to address the convention on "How to Be Oppressed by the Press," Cinderella Sherman never had a chance for glory. McGoff's speech got most of the attention and all of the ink. Sherman brought his wife and three children to the convention so he would have someone to talk to.

MANY PEOPLE in the convention audience disagreed with McGoff's devastating evaluation of the press, but none of them threw their coffee cups at him. "He has a right to voice his opinion without being subject to violence," one publisher explained later. "Besides, we were drinking out of paper cups."

On his lawyer's advice, McGoff refused to comment on his alleged spending of South African money. He did say it would be a violation of freedom of the press for the Justice Department to see his business records. But later he said Columbia Journalism Review magazine should be forced to reveal who paid a reporter for writing an article critical of him.

When later questioned by a newsman who wondered why the magazine's business records should be open, but McGoff's closed, McGoff answered: "I know what you're getting at, and I'm not going to answer the question."

(McGoff is one publisher who should be able to understand why his reporters sometimes can't get answers to hard questions).

ANYWAY, all of this McGoff news appeared in the next day's newspapers, instead of rave reviews of Jim Sherman's inauguration. That's a shame, and poor news judgement.

Sherman and I entered the newspaper business together over 25 years ago, as advertising salesmen. I can remember when he always joined me in scorning such stuffy, boring organizations as the press association. Now he's the president, presiding at countless dinner meetings, and looking down his gavel at people like me who always leave right after dessert, before the speeches begin.

The Cinderella Sherman story illustrates the American dream that any man, if he works hard enough, can overcome the influence of his youthful companions and go on to earn a chain of newspapers around his neck. I would rather read about Sherman than about how the awful press is oppressing poor John McGoff.

Independence doubles cost of house building permits

By Kathy Greenfield

The cost of single family building permits will rise dramatically beginning April 1 in Independence Township.

According to a letter from Building Department Timothy Palulian to the township board, the average cost of a building permit in the township during 1979 was $107.

With the increases approved by the township board in a 4-2 vote last month, the average cost should jump to between $200 and $250, Palulian said.

Trustee Rudy Lozano, real estate broker, who, along with Supervisor Whitey Tower, voted against the increases, protested uping the fees.

"Why now ask for more money when the (construction) business is on its back?" he asked.

"If government could (allow construction) for nothing, they should do it because of the income generated by the new structures," he added. "We should be doing everything we can to encourage builders to build."

Lozano suggested laying off building department employees and cutting expenses rather than increasing the fees to cover costs.

"You'd have to lay off two-thirds of the staff which is ridiculous," responded Palulian. "We absolutely couldn't function."

"We have to maintain a certain amount of service," he added.

The township hasn't raised building fees since 1977, Palulian said, and a comparison with surrounding communities--Waterford, Troy, West Bloomfield, Bloomfield and Avon--showed their average single family building permits at $269.

"I disagree with the total concept," Lozano said. "We figure business is going to be charged that amount, (but) it's paid by the consumer.

"That's the basis for inflation. It's the little guy that buys the product that pays the freight."

"In my opinion it just isn't right," he added.

"If you want to subsidize the building department out of the general fund, I don't have any problem," Palulian said, "(but) as a taxpayer and as a resident of the township, I would have objections to the philosophy."

Voting to raise the fees were Clerk Christopher Rose, Treasurer Frederick Ritter and trustees Jerry Powell and Michael Thayer. Trustee William Vandermark was absent.

Border-straddling sub gets plat approved

Final plat approval for Lake Maria Woods was granted by the Independence Township Board at its Jan. 8 meeting.

The subdivision, located west of Dixie Highway, spans Independence and Springfield townships.

Thirteen of the one-and-one-half-acre house sites are in Independence and 23 are in Springfield.

The board unanimously approved the plat for the Independence portion, requiring review of deed restrictions by the township attorney before the plat is signed by the township clerk and sent to Lansing for recording.

Clarkston youth excels in math competition

Chris A. Kortge, a Clarkston High School senior, sure knows his math.

He placed in the top 100 of more than 23,000 high school students in the 23rd Annual Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition.

Chris, son of Cleon and Eileen Kortge of Chickadee Lane, Independence Township, is the first CHS student ever to achieve top-100 rating in the competition.

His classmate Paul T. Chad, son of John and Mary Chad of Snow Apple Drive, Independence Township, was also one of the 1,000 students who qualified to compete in the finals--and that also is no mean feat, according to Ron Jacobson, head of the CHS mathematics department.

After the first test, on which there were 40 questions, the top 4 percent of the competitors are given a test on which there are five questions.

The top 100 students are to be honored at an awards program at Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant Feb. 16.

More than 40 of the winners will be awarded college scholarships through the program. The competition is sponsored by the Michigan Section of the Mathematical Association of America.

Chris plans to major in physics at Michigan State University.

How would you do?

See if you can answer these questions from Michigan test

Okay, math wizards, try this: "A number of points are given in the interior of a triangle.

"Connect these points, as well as the vertices of the triangle, by segments that do not cross each other until the interior is subdivided into smaller disjoint regions that are all triangles.

"It is required that each of the given points is always a vertex of any triangle containing it.

"Prove that the number of these smaller triangular regions is always odd."

Got it?

That's just one of the five problem questions on the test Chris

A. Kortge of Clarkston took to qualify among the top 100 high school students participating in the 23rd Annual Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition.

If the first problem was a snap for you, try this one:

"Define

$a_1 = 2$ and $a_{n+1} = a_n^2 - a_n + 1$ for all positive integers n . If i is greater than j , prove that a_i and a_j have no common prime factor."

It may be some consolation to know that Chris, asked if the test was difficult, replied, "Very."

Wolfpack Express keeps rolling along

Read about Friday night's victory over Kettering on page 14.

The point after

by Al Zawacky

The scene was the Wolfpack locker room at Milford High School, a good length of time after the Clarkston cagers waltzed to their eighth straight win. The date: Jan. 11. The score: Clarkston 62, Milford 36.

Coach Gary Nustad was there, standing near one of the rows of lockers, performing his post-game ritual of answering reporters' questions following another Wolfpack victory. The players had since showered, dressed and boarded the team bus, and only a handful of fans remained in the quiet gymnasium.

The traditional query about his team's next opponent was asked, and a quick and accurate appraisal of the Grand Blanc Bobcats followed. You don't catch Gary Nustad in the dark about who's coming up on the schedule—the Clarkston coaching staff does its homework.

Then, hands on hips, the coach paused for a moment before breaking the silence with the following observation.

"These next five games could be the turning point of our season," Nustad said. "We've got Grand Blanc, Rochester, Rochester Adams, Andover and Pontiac Central—they're all going to be tough. And how well we do against them will determine a large part of how well we do the rest of the season."

THAT WAS THREE WEEKS AGO, and the verdicts are now in. Four of the five contests are now history, the lone exception being the cancellation that occurred against Andover when the Clarkston High School sewers took a day off.

To refresh your memory, the Wolfpack won all four games—by an average margin of 24 points. Twenty-four, count 'em, points.

Which creates a bit of a problem for coach Nustad, albeit a problem that most any coach would love to have: How do you keep this team fired up and prevent a mental let-down which could prove fatal to the lofty goal now within reach—an undefeated season?

The Wolfpack mentor found one way to do it prior to the recent Pontiac Central Contest. Coming across a newspaper article that predicted a Central upset and inferred that Clarkston was over-rated, Nustad mimeographed some copies and distributed them to his players a few days before the game.

It's hard to argue with the results: Clarkston 80, Pontiac Central 58.

Pontiac Central coach Ralph Grubb may have unwittingly provided Nustad with another little incentive device afterwards when he opined that number two ranked Saginaw was a superior team "all the way around" when compared to the number one ranked Wolfpack.

Recalling Nustad's grin when I asked him if he'd heard that Central was being picked for an upset, Grubb's comments must have the Clarkston coach grinning from ear to ear.

Kettering's Al Duff [32] forms a human obstacle between Clarkston senior guard Ed Haddad and the Captain basket.

JV cagers rip Kettering

By Al Zawacky

Clarkston JV basketball coach Larry Mahrle seems to have come up with a formula for winning: Strong man-to-man defense plus accuracy from the field equals victory.

Friday night the junior Wolfpack worked the Mahrle equation to perfection to post their fourth straight league win, a 43-33 decision over Waterford Kettering.

"Our excellent shooting is what won it for us," Mahrle said afterwards. "And we played outstanding man-to-man defense—we never lost control."

It was the second meeting of the season between the two squads, Kettering having won the earlier clash by a 48-40 score.

"Kettering beat us with a zone defense last time, and they tried to sit on the zone tonight as well," Mahrle noted. "We played it smart and waited for the good shots."

Kettering connecting on their first five field goals of the night to take an early 10-4 first quarter lead, but the Clarkston JVs were never phased.

"We kept our poise," the coach said proudly.

Brad Beattie led the JV attack with 15 points while teammate Rick Schebor added 12. Overall, the junior Wolfpack hit on 20 of 40 shots from the field.

With the win, the JVs upped their league record to 5-1, good for a first place tie with Rochester.

"Our whole goal right now is to win the league," Mahrle said. "What it'll probably come down to is the game at Rochester later this month."

In the meantime, Mahrle noted his squad will face some extremely tough non-league competition in the coming weeks, including Waterford Township and Davison.

Davison posted a 51-39 victory against Clarkston back on Dec. 7, the season opener for both squads.

The Clarkston News

Athlete of the week

John Sheldon has had a lot of changes to adjust to during his prep basketball career, according to coach Gary

John Sheldon in action against the Captains.

Nustad.

"John was a big scorer when he played freshman and junior varsity ball," Nustad explains, "but when he got to the varsity level, our attack was already centered around Tim (McCormick)."

"So he had to change his style and adjust to the situation here—and the stats show how well he's done it. Today, he's one of the top point guards in the county."

This past week more than any other serves as proof of Nustad's assessment, thus making the 6-foot-1 senior the Clarkston News Athlete of the Week.

Sheldon's play was a major factor in the Wolfpack's 80-58 trouncing of Pontiac Central last Tuesday, scoring a personal season high 15 points.

But the 15 point figure didn't last long.

Sheldon followed it up on Friday with a team leading 17 points and 11 assists to round out an outstanding week.

"I can't say enough about the way he's been playing," Nustad concludes.

Sport shorts

Sashabaw Junior High basketball coach Gary Mason was calling it one of his team's finest performances of the season--and Rochester Reuther probably would have agreed.

Led by Tom Williams' 18 points and 13 rebounds, the Cougars improved their record to 4-7 last week by posting a 64-47 victory over Rochester Reuther.

Rounding out a well balanced scoring attack were Mike Clem with 11 points and Mike Dearborn and Rick Williams, both with 10 points.

"It was just a well played game--we blew them out," Mason said. "We broke their press extremely well and shot well from the floor."

The Clarkston Junior High cagers saw their record drop to 10-3 last week in bowing to Waterford Cray 71-46.

"About the only bright spot was our shooting from the line-- we shot 75 percent," coach Larry Sherrill said. "From the field though, it was a different story--33 percent."

Ray Kubani and Scott Temple continued their strong play for the Wolverines, Kubani notching 14 points and pulling down 11 rebounds while Temple chipped in with 10 points and 7 rebounds.

Clarkston Junior High's wrestling team maintained its perfect record at home last week, winning two meets to up its season mark to 9-3.

The Wolverines opened the week on Monday with a 42-25 victory over West Hills. Winning their individual matches for CJH were Jim Walker (pin), John Powe (pin), Denny Lankton (decision), Tracy Kellogg (decision) and Corey Parker (decision).

Voided weight classes awarded forfeits to Brent Card, Scott Lyons, Steve Johnson, Brad Moshier and Kevin McClellen.

On Thursday the Wolverines enjoyed similar success against Lake Orion West, posting a 47-24 win. Voids again played a major role in the contest--Dean Marshall, Tracy Kellogg, John Powe, Brad Moshier and Kevin McClellen all won by forfeit.

Individual winners were Lankton (decision), Lyons (pin) and Johnson (pin).

Johnson's win broke a CJH record when he pinned his opponent to the mat in 11 seconds flat.

Sashabaw Junior High's grapplers posted a 35-26 win over Rochester West last week--their eighth victory in ten meets so far this season.

Winning their individual matches for SJH were Alan Wall (decision), Shannon Shilling (decision), Brian Dennison (decision), Jeff Lawrence (pin), Andre Gourand (decision), Eric Gourand (pin), George Diehl (pin) and Mike Burns (decision).

Wolfpack tracks

BOB McA-WHO? Rumor has it that several Wolfpack fans aren't planning to stick around for the Detroit-Cleveland pro contest following the Clarkston-Davison game next Wednesday at the Silverdome.

In effect, the early departers will be paying $5 just to see the local cagers in action. We suspect it'll be worth it--but Gary and Paul, please don't get any ideas.

GIVE US A SIGN: Outside of The Clarkston News, it seems the best place to keep track of the Clarkston games is on the door of Coach's Corner on Main Street. Wednesday morning after last week's Pontiac Central win, a large square of poster board embellished with magic marker proclaimed for all to see: Clarkston 80, Pontiac Central 58.

ROOF PARKING: Here's a tip if you haven't seen a game yet this season, but are planning to in the near future: Arrive at the high school no later than 6:30 p.m.

Sip a Coke out in the corridor, find a seat in the bleachers, relax and enjoy the JV game. But get there early.

Friday night at game time the only area void of cars was the Clarkston High School roof.

"Nobody seemed to mind," grinned coach Gary Nustad later. "This is the way I like to see it."

PACK HAS DEPTH: Somebody should have told Waterford Kettering what Michigan State coach Judd Heathcote said of the Wolfpack after the game: "This isn't a one-man-team."

When coach Gary Nustad pulled McCormick out of the lineup in the first half, you might have thought Lindbergh just recrossed the Atlantic judging by the reaction of the Kettering fans.

Alas, the Wolfpack continued to outplay the Captains.

"If something happens to Tim, we'll just put McKoin in at the pivot," Nustad observed back in the beginning of the season.

And a McKoin, Nicolai, Lane, Sheldon and Haddad quintet still puts the Caps to shame. Sorry, guys.

Grapplers' winning streak ends at nine

By Al Zawacky

The Clarkston High School wrestling team suffered a double loss last week in bowing to Pontiac Northern 40-24.

Not only did the defeat break the Wolves' unbeaten streak in dual meets at nine, but the match also cost Clarkston the services of senior co-captain Scott Smith for the rest of the season.

"Smith tore up all the cartilage in his knee while wrestling a kid from Northern," coach Rick Detkowski said. "He's got a cast on it right now and is lost for the rest of the year--they might even have to operate."

Minus the services of Smith, the Wolves still managed to pull out a victory against Pontiac Catholic the same evening before winning a league meet against Andover late in the week.

"We don't have any depth this season, so with Smith out we're going to be hurting," Detkowski said. "The guys really felt down about the whole thing."

"Still, I think we've got enough character and desire to keep us going--the guys still really want to win that league championship."

Detkowski's grapplers are currently 9-1-1 overall and 3-0-1 in the Greater Oakland Activities League. Their final league dual meet prior to the league tournament will be this Thursday at West Bloomfield. The Wolves had four matmen go undefeated in the three meets: Craig Gavette, Todd Thompson, Mike Ogans and Claude Gourand.

"We've still got a good shot at the league title," Detkowski concluded. "I hope we can get some people out at our upcoming meets--having people there cheering us on always helps to get us going."

The ice skating portion of the Special Olympics was held Sunday at Lakeside Ice Arena in Sterling Heights, as the Oakland County Olympians competed against their Macomb County counterparts. Angel Joslyn, a member of the Oakland County team, was able to participate and enjoy herself with the help of a special harness constructed by volunteers.

275 participate

'Olympics' fun for handicapped

Some 275 "Special Olympians" participated in the third annual Oakland County Special Olympics Winter Games at Independence Oaks County Park this weekend.

The event is designed to provide fun and recreation for mentally impaired residents of Oakland County ranging in age from 8 to 65, and included such events as cross country skiing, snowball throw, snow shoeing and wheelchair activities.

"We had 476 participants registered," said Nancy Moran, area director for the Oakland County Special Olympics. "But only 275 showed up--there was some confusion about the weather, and it was falsely reported on the radio that the games had been cancelled."

Following the events at Independence Oaks on Saturday, twenty-three members of the Oakland County and the Macomb County Special Olympic Teams met at Lakeside Ice Arena Sunday in Sterling Heights for the skating competition.

First through sixth place award ribbons were given in each age group, sex and ability level at the games. Many of the events were non-competitive.

Among the participants were Kevin Biernat and Cindy Castor of Independence Township, and Kim Arnold and Wayne Moen of Waterford.

On Feb. 20 through 22 Moran will take 25 of Oakland County's Special Olympians to the Michigan Special Olympics Winter Games at Schuss Mountain and Shanty Creek ski resorts.

The events at the start games will be similar to the events held at the Oakland County Winter Games.

WEST BLOOMFIELD at CLARKSTON (Feb. 8): The Lakers are not without talent...Greg Salah, Al Morris, Steve Swanson and Andre Kingston aren't bad ball players...but only on paper is this team in the same league as the Wolfpack...the last time the two squads met in West Bloomfield, Clarkston turned in a rather uninspired performance...and won by 32 points...there's no reason to believe the rematch will be much closer. WOLFPACK by 25.

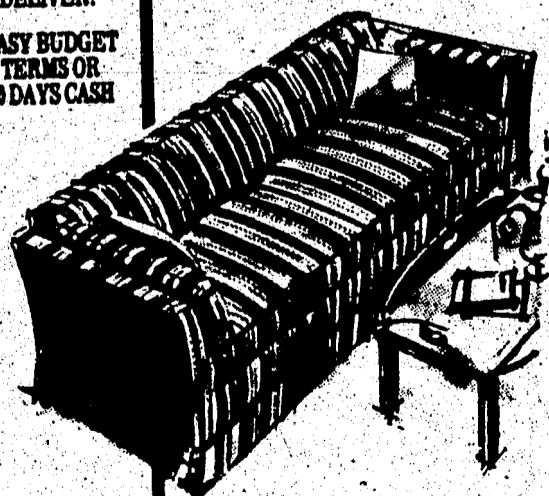

CLARKSTON vs. DAVISON at the SILVERDOME (Feb. 12): Coach Gary Nustad isn't overly pleased about having to surrender the home court advantage, just for the privilege of playing in Pontiac's big white tent...the two teams previously met in Davison back on Dec. 7 in the season opener...it proved to be a close contest, at least by Clarkston standards: a 51-39 victory...Davison's Rob Crane will be hard pressed to repeat his 26-point performance of that night...and if Tim McCormick can avoid the foul trouble he experienced against the Cardinals in December...well, Davison will have their work cut out for them. WOLFPACK by 15.

Wolfpack outclasses 'physical' Captains

By Al Zawacky

Two weeks ago CHS basketball coach Gary Nustad listed the three defensive strategies tried against his league-leading Wolfpack and star Tim McCormick: the press, the diamond and the stall.

Waterford Kettering introduced a fourth Friday night: the street mugging.

"They tried to intimidate us with their physical brand of basketball," Nustad said, savoring his team's 71-45 victory. "But it wouldn't work."

"We just keep our composure and our poise, ran our offense and our defense--and never lost control of the ballgame."

McCormick, who saw only two quarters of action due to some early foul trouble, was the recipient of most of Kettering's roughhouse tactics. When asked if the Captains were the most physical team he's faced, the Wolfpack's 6-foot-10 center nodded.

"I thought they'd try and slow it up on us--like Rochester did," McCormick said. "This win meant a lot to us though--I love beating this team."

McCormick and the Wolfpack had plenty to love at the hapless Captains expense this season. Back on Dec. 20 at Kettering the CHS cagers ran up their highest offensive output of the season in posting a 93-56 win. Combining that point total with Friday's results yields a 63 point difference.

"I think Kettering would have tried to stall on us had they been able to pull ahead," Nustad noted. "but they never were able to."

One of the big reasons they weren't could be found at the guard spots. Senior point guard John Sheldon played perhaps the best game in his prep career, scoring a team-leading 17 points and 11 assists.

Time and time again, Sheldon brought the capacity crowd to its feet with his dazzling lay-up drives.

"John was absolutely outstanding," Nustad said. "And I can't say enough about the job that Ed (Haddad) has done for us defensively."

Haddad chalked up five steals to go along with his 11 points, while Chuck Nicolai scored a season high 13 points.

"Chuck always comes through when he's called on," Nustad said. "Tonight's game showed that he's going to be a very big factor in our title drive--he played super."

McCormick, due to his limited playing time, scored "only" 11 points but did manage to pull down 14 rebounds.

Also scoring for the Wolfpack were Scott McKoin and Greg Lane with seven points, Doug Hagyard and Jerry Tatu with two apiece, and Larry Baylis, who sank one from the foul line.

Free throws were the only thing that bothered coach Nustad in this, his team's sixth straight GOAL victory, putting them at 13-0 overall.

"We shot terrible from the foul line," Nustad said, shaking his head over a 18-for-34 performance at the charity stripe. "I don't see how that can happen--but the final score is the important thing, of course."

Michigan State University coach Judd Heathcote, who along with several other collegiate coaches has been a shadow around McCormick this winter, added his own observations about the game and the Wolfpack's No. 1 Class A state ranking.

"I'd have to say they're No. 1 until somebody beats them," Heathcote said. "They're definitely getting better each game, and they're getting more out of different players."

"Neither Tim (McCormick) nor McKoin had much of a night, but they got some outstanding performances from Sheldon and Haddad--that's what makes a great team."

Every Lassie (and Lad) needs a license

A fire hydrant all its own can be purchased for pooches in Independence Township in the form of their 1980 licenses.

A Saturday afternoon dog clinic is scheduled for Feb. 16 at the Clarkston School District bus garage, 6595 Middle Lake.

Dog owners can buy a license and/or a rabies vaccination between 1 and 4 p.m.

Proof of vaccination is required to purchase a 1980 license. Rabies vaccination good for three years will be $5 at the clinic.

Independence Township, which is sponsoring the clinic, charges $3 for a license purchased before March 1, or $2 if the dog has been neutered.

After March 1, licenses cost

$6 and $4. New residents or owners of newly acquired dogs or those which reach the age of six months after March 1 will be charged at the pre-deadline rate.

Would-be upward mobile are the Hopcrofts, portrayed by Jim Tyrrell and Barb Markwood.

Clarkston Village Players

The Clarkston Village Players are certain they have a hit in "Absurd Person Singular," the comedy about social climbing they now are rehearsing for a Feb. 22 opening.

So willing are they to bank on the reception the play will get, they've scheduled it for three rather than the traditional two weekends at the Depot Theatre on White Lake Road.

The play, involving three couples at parties on three successive Christmas Eves, was written by Alan Ayckbourn, who has been called the British Neil Simon.

Ayckbourn offers daft and deft views of people in motion either climbing or descending the social ladder.

The first of the Christmas E parties is given by a pushy pair, the Hopcrofts, played by Barb Markwood and Jim Tyrrell.

He is a small shopkeeper and Marlene Sewick, aristocratic alcoholic, thinks she has a better way for Marilyn Bridgeman, whose latest suicide attempt involves turpentine.

she is an obsessive house cleaner. They are frantic about having their party get off well, hoping to impress their invited social betters.

In the next act, the action shifts to the home of the Jacksons, played by Marilyn Bridgeman and Bob Arend.

They are on the verge of kind of separation or another: he will walk out on her if she doesn't leave first via one of the various suicides she tries during the party.

The wife's attempts to exit are repeatedly frustrated by her unknowing guests.

The third party is in the home of the Brewster-Wrights, played by Marlene Sewick and Pete Rose, who have been snobbish and patronizing in their first two acts.

She now has lapsed into complete alcoholism, and her banker husband has become apathetic to everything--including the cold of his home resulting from a broken furnace no one will come to repair.

Russ Inman is the director of "Absurd Person Singular," and he also designed the three sets.

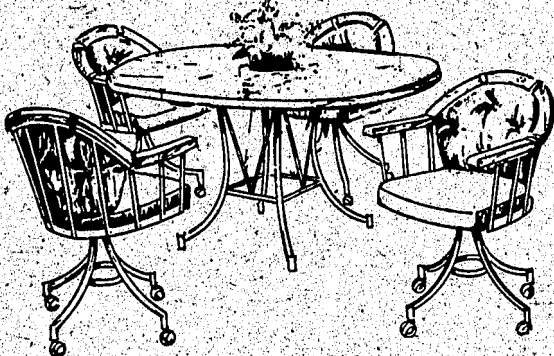

Performances are scheduled

Is your dog gone?

By Joe Armstrong
Independence Township Animal Control Officer

In case you didn't know, this animal control officer donates his time as a reserve police officer and it was in this capacity that I volunteered to be a judge for the Cub Scouts' annual Father and Son Cake Baking Contest.

I figured I had all the necessary qualities—good eyes, excellent sniffer, sensitive palate and a pot belly to prove I enjoy the work.

Judging the cakes was no problem, it was acting the part of a sophisticated cop in front of 200 cub scouts that was tough.

I wasn't sure what they expected, but I was going to give them my best shot.

There must have been 50 cakes and there were five police officers all together, so what we tried to do was narrow it down to seven cakes before the final three winners were chosen.

After choosing the finalists, I decided to have a glass of punch.

Then we decided to huddle over the final seven cakes, kind of blocking the view, to make the contest more exciting.

When we got over there to huddle, I bent over and I spilled punch down the side of my shirt.

I looked down and not only was it running down the side of my shirt, but the stripe on my pants as well.

It really showed, because the punch was red.

So there I was with punch on my shirt, dripping down my pants and they said it was time to go up to the front of the group, announce the winners and answer questions.

I looked around and only one person in the crowd had seen my faux pas and she was chuckling.

Aside from being embarrassed about punch running down my leg, everything worked out well.

Some day, they may roll off your tongue just as naturally as the names Tim McCormick, Scott McKoin, John Sheldon, Ed Haddad and Chuck Nicolai do today.

For every Saturday at Sashabaw Junior High School these five kids and several others like them participate in the Independence Township Recreation Department's basketball program, improving their skills and having fun at the same time.

"The elementary schools around here don't have gyms, so this is really their only chance to learn the game."

The program is open to both boys and girls and is divided up into first-through-third graders, fourth-and-fifth graders and, finally, a sixth-grade group. Starting on Jan. 12, the sessions run for 10 weeks for a total cost of $12.50 per child for township residents.

"The first five or six weeks are all fundamental drills and eye-hand coordination--then we start having scrimmage games," Turk says.

"It's a good experience for the kids--it lets them get used to playing an organized game and familiarizes them with the concept of organized ball."

'Blue chips' are losers

Bill Myers

Turn the calendar back a year. You were about to invest in stocks from a list of the 20 biggest companies in America. Old, established companies, of great resources. Sound, blue chips, every one of them.

Wisely, you didn't want to buy 20 different stocks, but ones representing major industries in America. If there was more than industry represented in this "top 20" then you picked the largest. You settled on a total of eight stocks.

Few trust officers could quarrel with such a selection. They hadn't better. Most of their own investments in stocks for their clients were in just such companies.

Let's see how you could have chosen:

OFFICE MACHINES-IBM
UTILITIES-Amer. Tel. & Tel
OIL-Exxon
AUTOS-General Motors
ELEC MFG-General Electric
PHOTOGRAPHIC-Eastman Kodak
HOUSEHOLD PROD.-Proctor & Gamble

CHEMICALS-DuPont
Here's how the various stock averages performed in 1979:

Dow Jones...plus 4.2 percent
Std & Poor 500...plus 12.3 percent
NYSE Composite...plus 15.5 percent.

So you invested $1,000 each in the above list of eight blue chips. Here is what your stocks were worth as the year ended:

IBM	$863
Amer. Tel & Tel	819
Exxon	1,120
Gen. Motors	930
Eastman Kodak	821
Proctor & Gamble	835
DuPont	961
Total	$6,349
Original investment	$8,000
Loss	1,651
Percent Loss	20.6%

Sort of discouraging to a conservative person who picked the big blue chips, and a diversified list. All rate A plus by Standard & Poor, except GM & DuPont, which are A-

Of course, you did have dividends. Average on your list of blue chips was 6.95 percent for the year.

You had to pay tax on this. If your family income as around $25,000 then your marginal tax was 30 percent. After tax, your net dividend income was 4.86 percent.

During that time, corporate bonds would have yielded you 10 percent before tax, 7 percent after tax. Tax-exempt bonds would have yielded you 7 percent, with no tax.

Bond prices dropped during 1979. On 20-year bonds, a 5 or 6 percent decline. While bond-holders do have a loss in the last 12 months, they also can look forward to the bonds paying off at par when they mature. Stocks have no such guarantee.

in its fourth week, Turk says he can already see improvement in his young cagers' skills and abilities. And most importantly, the kids are having fun.

"I suppose there are a few kids who are kind of pushed into this by their parents, but the vast majority of them want to be here every week," Turk says.

Does the program have any outstanding alumni, currently entertaining SRO crowds at the high school on Friday and Tuesday nights?

"I'd imagine most of the players playing varsity ball today probably started out like this," says Turk. "This program has been around a lot longer than I've been involved—about 10 years or so.

"In the summer the kids can always play the game outside, but in the winter this is really their only opportunity."

Country Living

Ted Remke's man-about-Clarkston.

Life on Main Street suits Ted Remke fine.

Ted, scion of the family whose name is a highway if not household word, became a downtown dweller in Clarkston when he started his own business here.

That's this young man's purpose for being in the village: to make a success of his Timberline Saddlery and Ski Co. in Clarkston Mills.

He opened the store in the new shopping center after deciding he would not follow in his father's footsteps in the manufacture of Remke soft-drink trucks and Brinks armored cars.

Ted made the decision to set up shop here while he was the West Coast salesperson for his father's firm, a period of his life he calls "transitional", based in the San Francisco area for two years, Ted lived in Squaw Valley, where he could better pursue his interest in skiing.

"I identify myself with skiing," he said. "Probably in the future, I'll wind up living in a small town out West near a ski area."

For now, he's quite content with his bachelor digs above Hallman Apothecary, which came complete with a streetscape view of downtown Clarkston.

Ted's been a resident for a year and a half.

"I used to spend most of my time in Grosse Pointe," he said. "Now I'm spending more and more time here."

It was alas, the West that won Ted's heart.

"Aside from that, then this is the place to be," he said.

Ted was eager to get here in 1978, when family friend Marc Alan was nearing completion of his Clarkston Mills venture.

"I wanted to start my own business," Ted said. "I was looking for a business to start."

"I was planning this store while I was still in California. The mall was only half done and I was buying merchandise."

Timberlane's merchandise—ski togs and gear and Western wear—reflect a couple of things about Ted's lifestyle. He likes skiing, sure, but he also likes the practicality of rugged, no-nonsense Levis and other Western wear.

The main appeal of the West to Ted is the traditional wide open spaces.

"It's a freedom thing," he said.

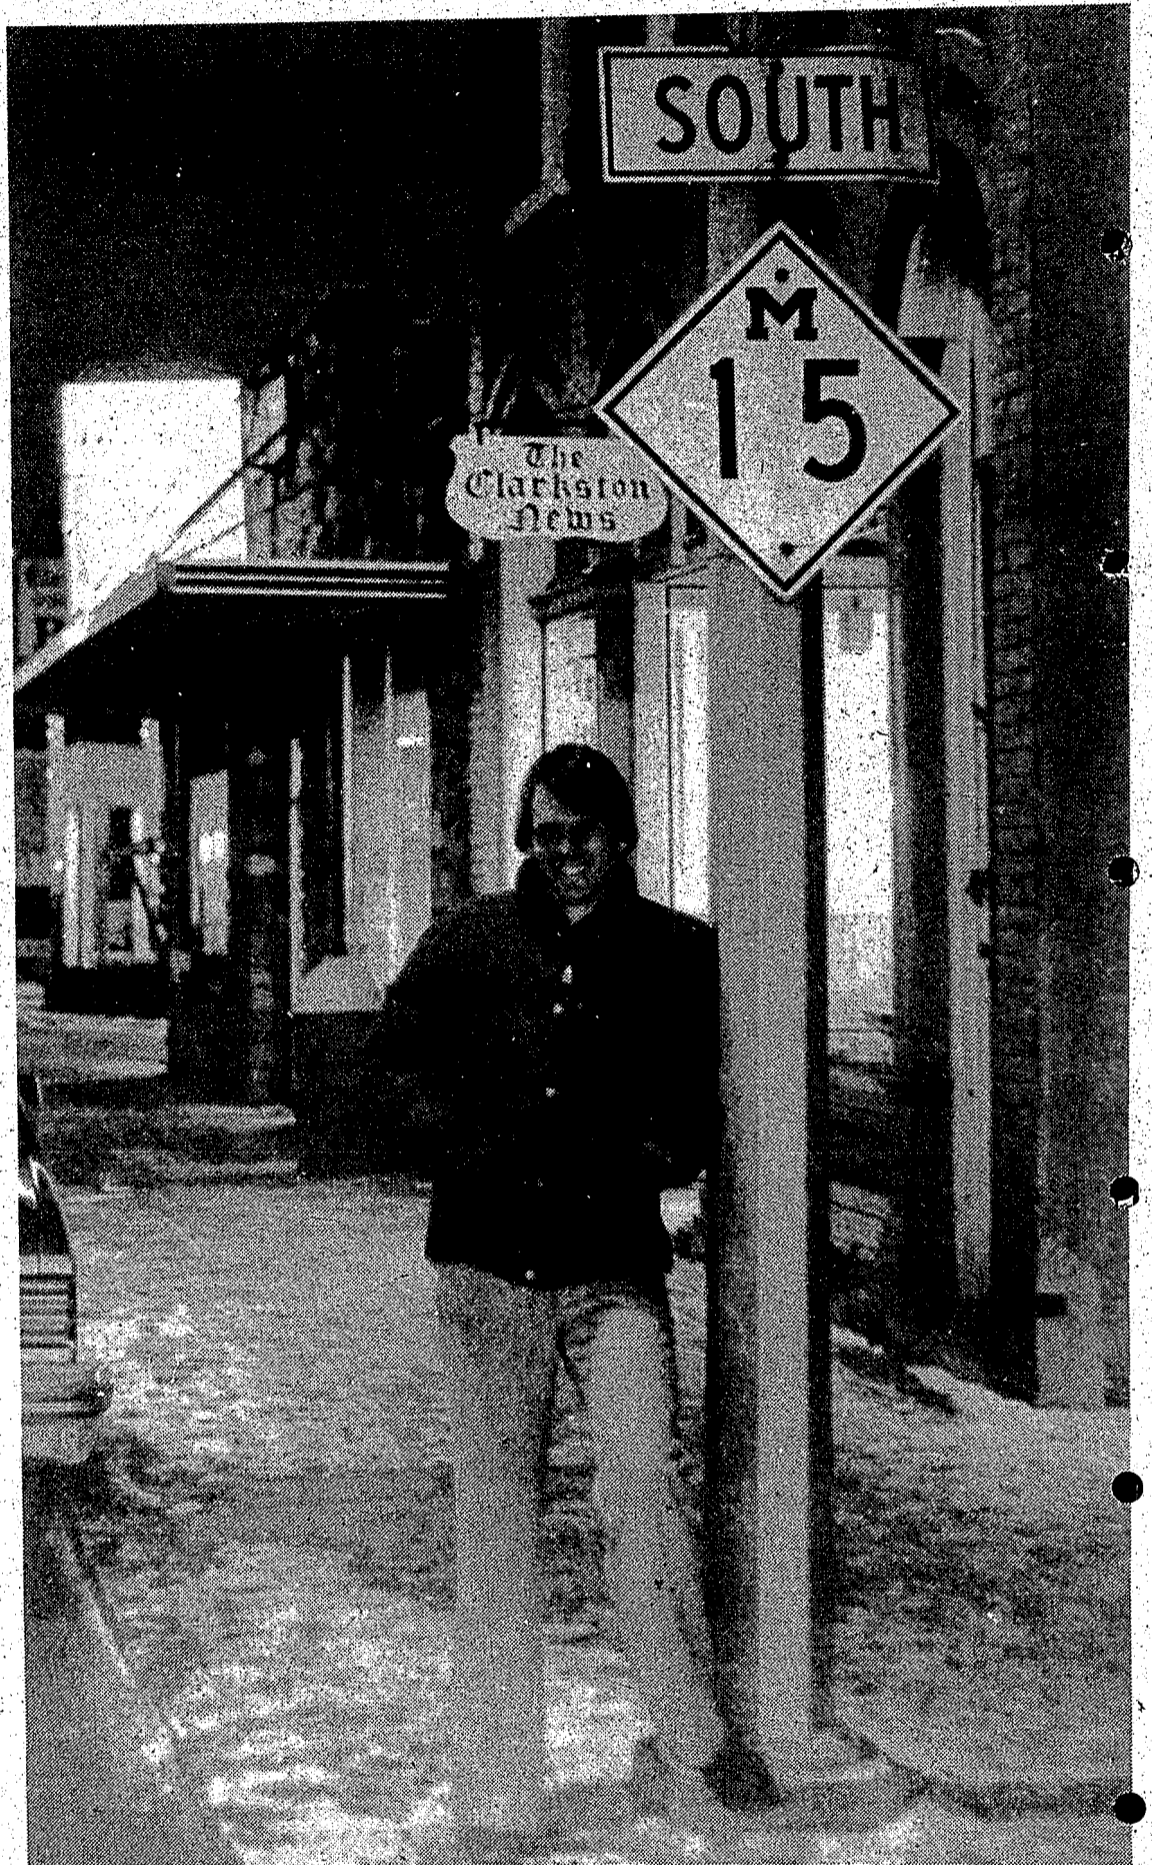

Independence is important to Ted.

"I always think I'm on the verge of something new," he commented.

The Village of Clarkston represents much that is important to Ted and, he believes, to the area.

"It's kind of a last outpost, in a way," he said. "There

Ted Remke loves Clarkston's Main Street, which he sees as vital to the surrounding area. The street also serves as the bachelor businessman's front yard, providing the only view from his two-room apartment.

shouldn't be any problem to keep it friendly and homey."

Subdivision living is not for Ted.

"I couldn't take suburbia," he said. "When I drive by Sterling Heights, with those rows and rows of houses, I really get depressed."

Only child in a wealthy family, Ted describes his childhood as sheltered.

"It caused me to kind of want to be unsheltered," he said.

His educational background is somewhat unorthodox for a businessman.

After studying at Notre Dame, he earned a degree from the University of Michigan in natural resources.

Becoming a forester was "a possibility," but his choice was more a rejection of other academic disciplines.

"Business was for the birds," he said. "English and philosophy was B.S. They didn't mean anything to me the way they were being taught."

Ted has since taken some business courses geared to specific needs he felt.

His idea about operating a business is "to serve needs of the community in a low-pressure way."

Ted notes his life follows no particular pattern. Because his home is close to his store, he does much of his work at a desk in the apartment. His hours are erratic.

"To be settled down when you're single is not easy to do," he said. And so he seldom tries. Meals are usually eaten out—very often at the Clarkston Cafe in the same block.

"I like to have friends over to listen to music and watch television," he said. He's an "addict for rock n roll," he said. "I don't mean Crosby, Stills and Nash. I mean Led Zeppelin and Tom Petty—anything an 18-year-old likes, I like."

On the other hand, he lists golf as his second main passion, next to skiing.

He's also interested in psychology.

"I like to look at myself," he said. "I think I've got a lot to learn about myself."

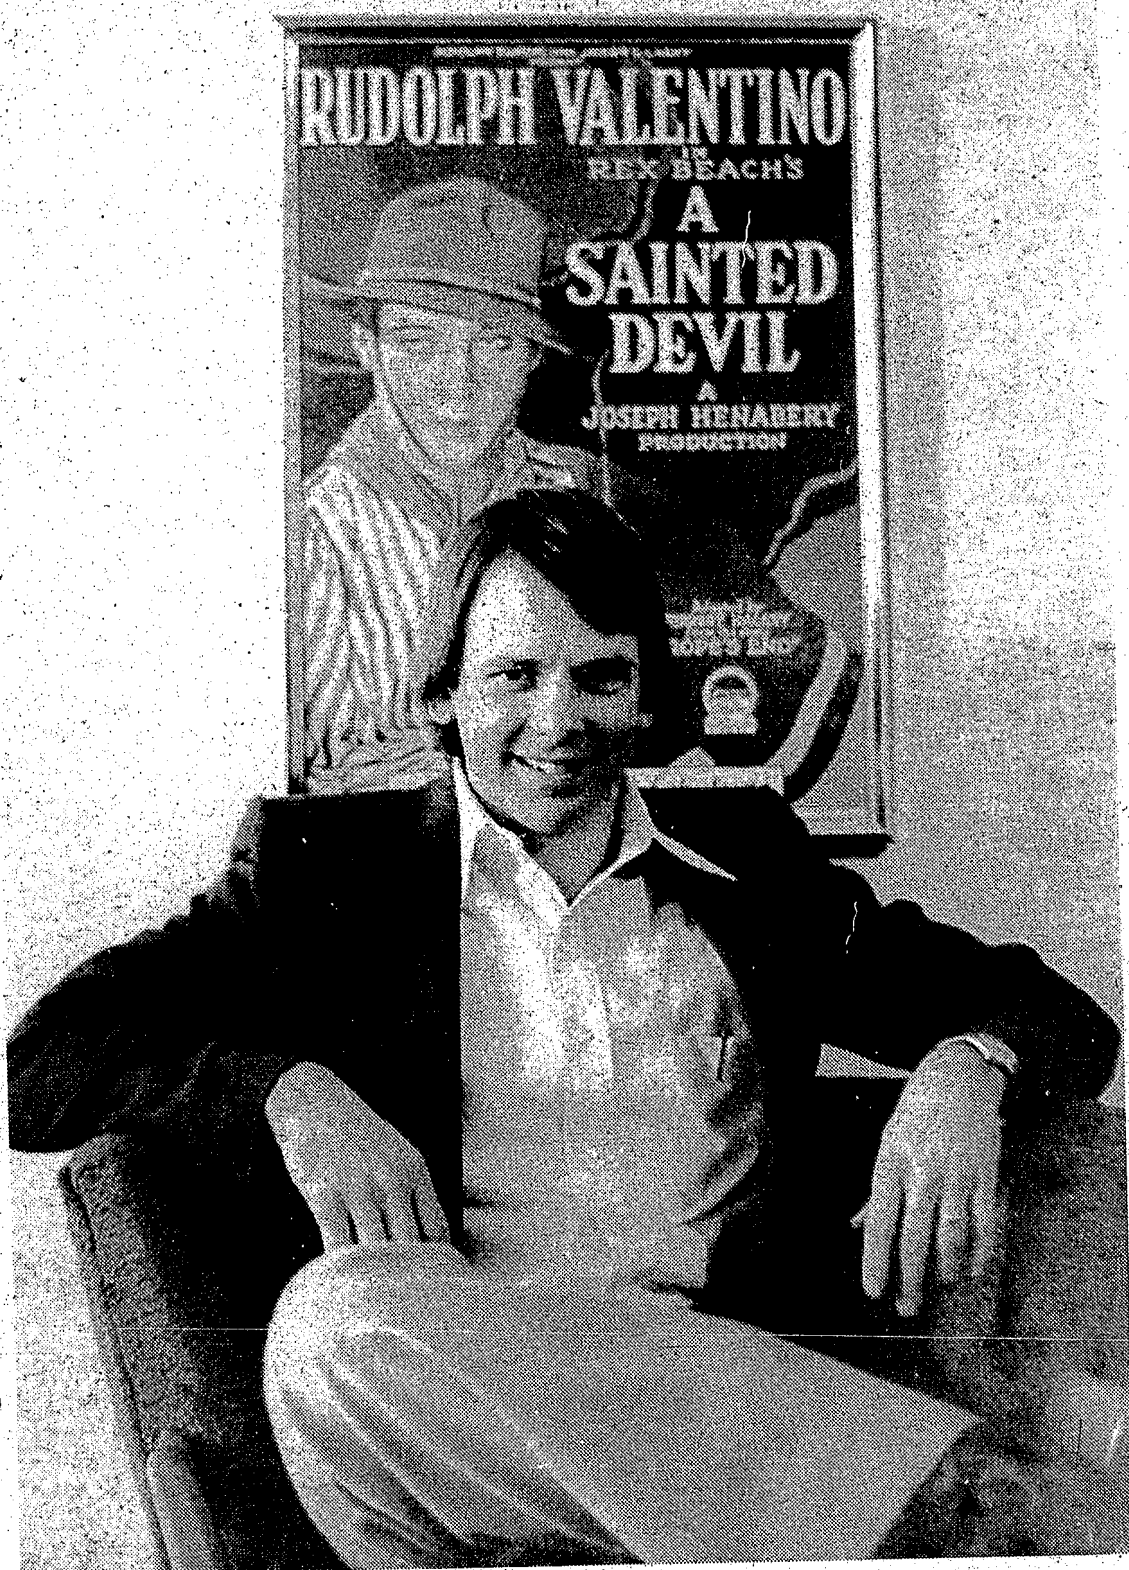

While there's no woman in his life who he's dating on a steady basis, Ted believes he will someday marry.

"To me, it's important to get married," he said.

Personal freedom is another important value to Ted.

"I think a person can do what he wants, although people say that's a pipe dream," he said and then grinned. "Of course, I'm a little lucky about the money scene."

More Country Living

A poster, some plants and a woven wall hanging from New Mexico are among the personal touches in Ted's bachelor apartment, basically furnished with cast-offs from his parents' home.

10 YEARS AGO February 5, 1970

Dr. Leslie Greene, Superintendent of Schools, announced three administrative reassignments: Milford Mason is temporarily working on special assignments in the Central Administration office; William Dennis will serve as acting High School principal; Miss Janet-Gabier, newly appointed Dean-of-Girls, and Ralph Kenyon, Assistant Principal, comprise the balance of the High School administrative staff.

One hundred eighty people who have worked diligently for three years will be rewarded with the dedication of their new church, the Maranatha Baptist Church.

A three generation birthday dinner was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Johnson. Included at the family gathering was Alejandro Orizala, an exchange student from Chile, who is living with the Johnsons.

Tax tips

Utilize significant legislation on income tax rules

(Editor's note: George Bennett of Independence Township, a senior accountant at Price Waterhouse and Co. of Detroit, will share some income-tax advice with Clarkston News readers up until the April 15 filing deadline. Bennett, a 1970 graduate of Clarkston High School, holds a bachelor's and master's of business administration degrees from the University of Michigan.)

In 1978 Congress made numerous changes in the rules for taxation of individuals, but deferred the effective date of many until 1979. Outlined below are the more significant of the new rules.

Tax rate tables. As compared to the 1978 tax rate tables, the 1979 tables consist of wider brackets and include slightly lower rates in middle and lower income brackets.

Standard deduction. The standard deduction (or "zero bracket amount") is now $3,400 (formerly $3,200) for married taxpayers filing joint returns, $1,700 (formerly $1,600) for married taxpayers filing separate returns, and $2,300 (formerly $2,200) for all other taxpayers.

Exemptions and dependents. The personal exemption is now $1,000 (formerly $750). Similarly, as a supporting taxpayer, you can deduct an exemption for any dependent with gross income of up to $1,000 (formerly $750). (The definition of a dependent will be discussed in a later article.)

General tax credit. In 1978 a credit was generally allowable in an amount equal to the greater of (i) $35 per exemption or (ii) 2 percent of the first $9,000 of taxable income. No general tax credit is allowable in 1979.

Child care credit. This credit is now available for dependent or child care payments made by a working taxpayer to a relative (such as a parent), except a relative for whom a dependency deduction is claimed.

Gasoline taxes. In 1979 an itemized deduction is not allowable for state and local taxes on gasoline and other motor fuels.

Political contributions. In 1979 political contributions are not deductible. However, a credit is allowable for 50% of the contribution up to a credit of $100 on joint returns and $50 on other returns.

Unemployment benefits. In 1979 government-paid unemployment compensation may be taxable, under a formula, to unmarried taxpayers and married taxpayers filing jointly with adjusted gross income (including unemployment and disability benefits) exceeding $20,000 and $25,000, respectively. Generally, regardless of income, such compensation is taxable to a married taxpayer filing a separate return.

Visit fit for queen

A weekend visit with some friends in Houghton Lake took an unusual twist for Lisa Baetz. She ended up on the queen's court during the 30th annual festival on ice--Tip-Up Town.

"I was just standing there watching the pie-eating contest and two gentlemen asked me if they could interview me, because I had been chosen as one of the candidates," Lisa said.

Her friend Leslie who lives in Houghton Lake assured her the invitation was official and Lisa agreed.

"Later on in the afternoon, it was confirmed--I was one of the three finalists," she said.

The Baetzes--Randy, Lisa and their daughter Melissa--live on Woodcreek Trail, Independence Township.

They were in Houghton Lake visiting friends--Al and Leslie Methven.

To add another twist to the event, the Baetzes probably wouldn't have even been in Houghton Lake if it hadn't been for The Clarkston News.

Leslie Hursfall Methven is a former Clarkston resident who still receives The Clarkston News.

A Country Living feature on the Baetzes a while back resulted in the old friends getting together again. They had lost track of each other after the two men attended dental school together at the University of Michigan and the couples had been neighbors in Ann Arbor.

The experience "was a lot of fun," Lisa said, and she won several prizes including a trophy with a clock.

A bonus of her day-and-one-half reign was learning some history of the Tip-Up Town queen's contest.

"Apparently when the festival started, they used to pick out the candidates from the fishing shanties," she said with a smile.

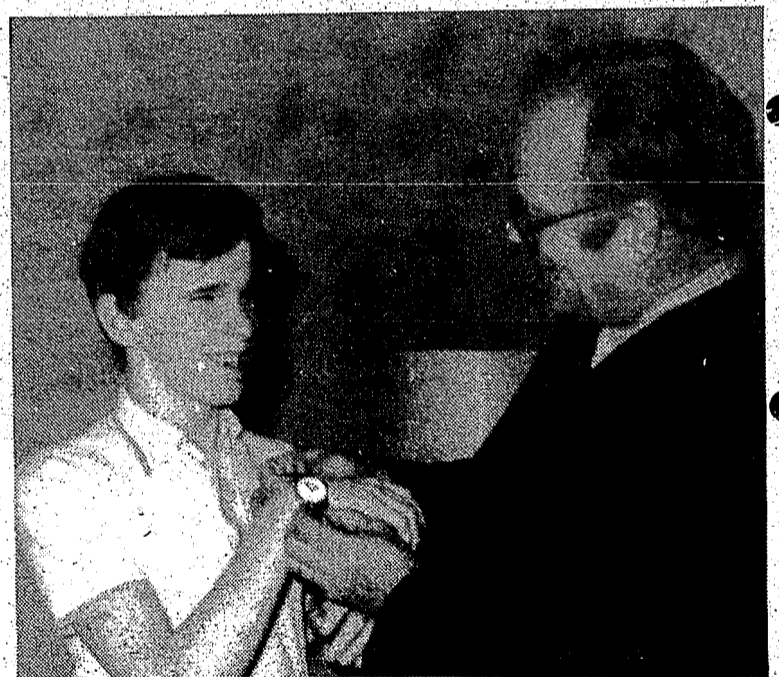

Lisa Baetz became a member of Tip-Up Town's queen's court during a visit with friends in Houghton Lake.

Engaged

Kathleen Marie Ruhala of Laurel, Md., and John Andrew Hanyok of Greenbelt, Md., have set a May 10 wedding date. The bride-elect, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ruhala of Amy Drive, Independence Township, is a Clarkston High School graduate and a 1978 Oakland University, Rochester, graduate. She is employed in a United States government agency in Washington, D.C. Her fiancé, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Hanyok of Greenbelt, Md., attended Prince George College, Largo, Md., and is employed by the Bendix Corp., Towson, Md.

Honors

Frank Davis has been named to the dean's honor role for the fall evening term at Lawrence Institute of Technology, Southfield.

A freshman, Frank is the son of Francis and Ann Davis of Glenburnie Road, Independence Township.

Diana Dunn has been named to the fall semester dean's list at Fort Wayne Bible College, Fort Wayne, Ind.

A freshman, Diana is majoring in psychology. She is a 1979 Clarkston High School graduate.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs.

Ernest Dunn of Dvorak Street, Independence Township.

Jayne Lafnear was recently selected "Outstanding Freshman of the Year" at Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant.

She was chosen for the honor by CMU's Mortar Board, a national senior honor society.

The selection was based on campus leadership, community service and scholarship during her first year at the university.

Jayne is now a sophomore and plans to major in special education for the emotionally impaired.

A 1978 Clarkston High School graduate, she is the daughter of Jim and Karen Lafnear of Simler Drive, Independence Township.

Recipe File

By Lorna Bickerstaff

Jean Saile is sharing a recipe for trifle that was given to her by a friend in London, England. Jean, her husband Jim and three of their six children reside in Clarkston.

Trifle

- 1 jelly roll
- 1 pt. frozen strawberries
- 1 pkg. vanilla pudding
- ½ pt. whipping cream
- 1 tsp. vanilla or flavored brandy
- ¼ c. chopped nuts

Cut enough slices to line a serving bowl. Put strawberries over and let soak. You may make your own vanilla pudding or use one of the variety that is cooked.

Let cool. Put over strawberries. Whip cream, add vanilla or brandy. Put whipped cream on top of strawberries, top with nuts. Refrigerate.

Note: More brandy may be used.

Lions present watch

Clarkston Lions Club member Jim Mahar does the honors in presenting a Braille watch to 15-year-old Harold "Trippy" Brown, a student at the Michigan School for the Blind in Lansing. Clarkston Lions gave the watch to Trippy, with whom Mahar became acquainted when he recently produced a film for the school.

New arrival

Daniel Justen Erdly was born on Jan. 26 to David and Janene Erdly of Grand Blanc.

Daniel weighed eight pounds 10 ounces at birth. Waiting at home for their baby brother's arrival were Jason, 4, and Janelle, 2.

Songs with supper

Songs with supper at the Old Mill restaurant, Waterford Township, are provided Friday and Saturday by the Old Mill Players, a group of Oakland University, Rochester, students who also perform with the school's Meadow Brook Estate. Belting out songs are [from left] Don Martus, Loni Pryce, Chari Suriano and Ric Gibbard. Music is also provided by Meadow Brook Estate members on piano, bass fiddle, guitar and drums. The singers serve as cocktail waiters and waitresses before and after the two shows on Friday and three shows Saturday nights. Musical selections include cabaret, disco and show tunes. Performing waiters and waitresses are an eastern and resort area tradition, said Old Mill manager Les Cooper, and the only other spot in Michigan that he knows of with the same type of entertainment is in Traverse City. Reservations are recommended.

New Hallman's pharmacist

Pharmacist Jerry Dunsmore, who can now be found filling prescriptions at Hallman's Apothecary, may look familiar. Before he became a full-time pharmacist about a month ago at the drug store located at 4 S. Main, Clarkston, he filled in as pharmacist there from time to time over the past couple of years. His wife Joanne has also worked at Hallman's. A Ferris State College, Big Rapids, graduate, Dunsmore has been a pharmacist for 25 years. The Dunsmores live in White Lake Township and have four children, ranging in age from 8 to 12.

Calico Cat moves up Main Street... and purrs

Betty Bell, a salesperson at The Calico Cat, stands amid the crystal glassware and accessories for sale at the shop.

The Calico Cat has moved north.

Formerly located at 69 S. Main, the shop now sports a new downtown Clarkston address--2 S. Main.

The new location has about twice as much floor space, said owner Lonnie Benjamin.

"We're really excited about it. We think it's going to be good for business," she said about the move.

A bonus is two large windows facing Main Street.

"It's a lot more fun to look out on Main Street," she said. "It's a good feeling. Everybody comes in and chats."

Her comments are punctuated by passersby who knock on the window and wave hello.

Calico Cat still carries basically the same kitchen and dining items, but the larger store allows for expansion.

"We're just trying to improve on what we have," Lonnie said. "Something new comes in almost every day and that's exciting too."

On order are new copper pieces that are direct imports from Turkey, Nitty Gritty cookbooks, a Blue Rice china design from Peking, wooden and acrylic salt and pepper shakers and more linens.

The shop also offers such kitchen needs as silverware, china, crystal, copper and solid cast aluminum cookware, bread boards and wooden serving pieces.

Two Independence Township

artists will have their works for sale at the store--Pam Kessler's watercolors and Phil Dimmer's pen and ink drawings.

Lonnie said she is especially pleased about was made possible.

The crystal stemware and accessory line are now located on shelves in a wide hallway at the rear of the store, making it easier for parents accompanied by young children to shop.

There is also a play table for youngsters.

"The only thing we really want the store to be is comfortable for everybody," she said.

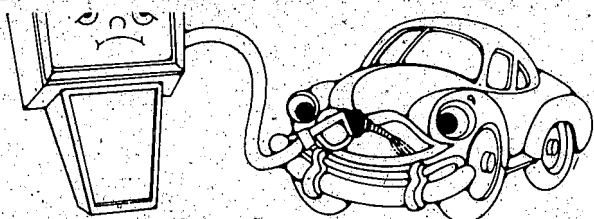

The Benjamins have been Independence Township residents eight years. Durand and Lonnie have five children--two are married and three live at home.

Doing business

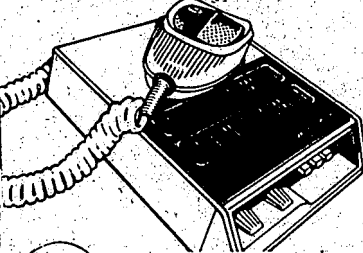

A California artist's clown and hobo figurines, hand-painted with enamel and 24-karat gold finishes, are also sold in the shop.

Play hits home

A Summer Remembered
By Charles Nolte
Meadow Brook Theatre

It's not often, outside of New York, that playgoers have a chance to be part of the world premier of a new play.

However, that opportunity is presently available with "A Summer Remembered," the current Meadow Brook Theatre production.

Written by Charles Nolte, a distinguished director responsible for many past Meadow Brook stage successes, "A Summer Remembered" is a warm, loving and honest look at three months of an extended family's summer vacation at a lakeside summer home.

The setting, the plot and context of the play may not be all that unfamiliar to experienced theatre audiences. Nevertheless, the treatment of the world and a family on the edge of a precipice and the final curtain coming at sunset, while lacking originality, has plenty of humor and an approach that is decidedly warm and human.

The year is 1938 and the Washburn family and assorted relatives and neighbors vacation at a time when the family is breaking asunder and the world may be on the edge of disaster also.

Ted, a muscular but dim-witted 18-year-old, played by George McCulloch, is being pushed toward Yale by his father who needs a football hero to feed his own ego.

Ted would prefer to take a job in a local gas station and marry the summer maid. His father, played with borish bombasticness by Joseph Jamrog, literally crushes his son's plans. Booth Colman, in one of his finest parts as Doc Washburn, is the intellectual physician and curmudgeon of the family. During the course of the summer it comes to light that grandpa Washburn is dying of cancer.

This illness and Ted's conflict cast a pall on the bright summer days.

All of this, as well as the nonsense of the children at the lake, the idealistic but constantly frustrated dreams of some adults and the sense of impending political disaster are played out in front of the idyllic, wooded setting.

"A Summer Remembered" with its excellent scenery, remarkable casting and dramatic lighting is a play that, despite being three acts, you wish would never end. That's always the mark of a play that has hit home.

It will continue at the Rochester theater to Feb. 24.

Travel Along with

Claudia Jakus

of Clarkston Travel Bureau

The primary idea in traveling to a foreign country is to experience and become acquainted with another culture. But even the most enthusiastic travelers are prone to occasional bouts of homesickness. When that feeling sets in it is helpful to know where to find the American attractions. If you are visiting Paris and tire of the Latin Quarter and Parisian nightlife, you will find an American style bar called the Parrot on Boulevard St. Germain. Draft beer is rather expensive but the juke box plays American rock and other contemporary recording stars.

Our primary purpose is to handle all types of travel needs... but we also assist you by making suggestions on what to wear, where to visit, and even on what would be nice to bring back. We hope you'll stop by and see us at CLARKSTON TRAVEL BUREAU INC., 6 N. Main St., 625-0325 before you plan your next trip. We are conveniently located in downtown Clarkston with ample parking. Hours: 9:30am-5:30pm Mon thru Fri, 9:30am-1pm Sat.

TRAVEL TIP:

You may possibly find an American companion in the lobby of the American Express office on Rue Scribe.

SYNOPSIS

OF CLARKSTON VILLAGE MEETING
MINUTES OF JANUARY 28, 1980

Concurred with President ApMadoc's appointment of Connie Fisher to the council, after the resignation of Mike Thayer, effective today.

Roll: Present - ApMadoc, Adams, Basinger, Byers, Fisher, Schultz. Absent - Symons.

Heard a report from the hydrology committee on their progress. Approved the request for a sign with flashing light on Waldon to warn of a school crossing.

Held a Public Hearing to discuss alternatives and costs for police services in the village.

Moved to not renew our contract for police services, except for maintaining our parking enforcement officer and crossing guard. Days - Basinger, Byers.

Agreed to place on the March 10th village election ballot an advisory question on whether or not to continue to allow burning by permit of leaves in the village, as requested by Fire Chief Frank Ronk.

Adopted a Resolution supporting the concept of allocating all revenue sharing funds on a per capita method.

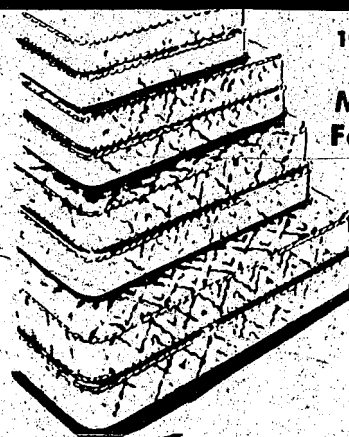

Adjourned at 10:10 p.m.

All votes unanimous unless otherwise indicated.

Activities outside the Clarkston-Springfield-Independence area

"The Hiding Place," a full-length film on the life of Corrie Ten Boom, is scheduled Sunday, Feb. 10, at Mt. Zion Temple.

Ten Boom was held captive in a Nazi concentration camp during World War II.

The film is free at the temple located at 4453 Clintonville, Waterford Township.

For more information, call 674-1415.

The annual gourmet buffet dinner which the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club holds for the benefit of the Drayton Plains Nature Center is coming up on Feb. 23.

Many types of food—from roast duck and venison stroganoff to all sorts of gingerbread delights—are included in the spread. The first setting is from 5:30 to 7 p.m., for which tickets are $5 for adults and $2.50 for children. Adult tickets are $6 for the 7:30-9 p.m. setting, at which mulled cider is served.

The club is on Waterford Road, one-quarter mile east of Dixie Highway. Tickets can be purchased at the door.

Two groups from Oakland University, the Oakland Renaissance Ensemble and madrigal singers, will perform at the Feb. 12 meeting of the Tuesday Musicals of Pontiac.

The program will begin at 1 p.m. at Central United Methodist Church, 3882 Highland, Waterford Township.

L. Brooks Patterson, Oakland County prosecutor, and Howard Simon of the American Civil Liberties Union will debate the capital punishment issue at the Feb. 14 legislative luncheon of the North Oakland Chamber of Commerce.

Advanced reservations are required for the noon luncheon and can be made by calling 335-6148. Tickets are $10 a person.

A speaker from the Domestic Violence Center of Pontiac will be featured at the Waterford Branch of the American Association of the University Women meeting Thursday, Feb. 7.

The 7:30 p.m. program will be held at St. Stephen's Lutheran Church, 3795 Sashabaw. All Waterford-Clarkston area women who are college graduates are welcome to attend. For further information, call 681-0534 or 623-1875.

Your want ads reach twice as far. Cover North Oakland County with your want ad. Only $3 for up to 10 words. Dial 628-4801 or 625-3370.

Joel Grey will unwind a string of Broadway hits to bring that old theater magic to Detroit's Music Hall Feb. 12-17.

Winner of an Oscar and a Tony for his screen and stage performances as the Emcee in "Cabaret," Grey has also made numerous television appearances in addition to his work in films and on Broadway. Showtimes at the Music Hall are 8:30 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, 7 and 10 p.m. Saturday and 2 and 6:30 p.m. Sunday. Tickets range from $6.50 to $14.50 and are available at the Music Hall box office, 350 Madison, or by calling 693-7680.

The 18th annual Oakland County art show and judged exhibition, "Art Forms 1980," will open Thursday, Feb. 7 at the Pontiac Mall, Elizabeth Lake and Telegraph roads, Waterford Township.

The show, featuring oils, acrylics, drawings, graphics, pastels, watercolors, collages, mixed media, sculpture and textiles, will continue through Feb. 17 and can be viewed during regular mall hours.

Boost for boosters in tax-credit bill

Athletics and band boosters and others who help support extracurricular programs in public schools would get tax credits for their generosity if State Sen. Kerry Kammer (D-Pontiac) has his way.

Kammer said he is seeking the tax credit, which would parallel the credit now given for contributions to colleges and universities, because of a fundraising drive presently underway in his district to restore extracurricular activities which had been cut because of budgetary problems.

"This bill in no way relieves the state of its burden of financing education for the children of Michigan," Kammer said. "The state is doing a woefully inadequate job now, and I will continue my efforts to turn that around."

But, Kammer said, "When communities band together to raise funds during times of great budgetary stress, it is incumbent upon us to provide reasonable incentives to help those fundraising efforts."

Under Senate Bill 935, taxpayers would be able to take a credit for one-half of their contributions, up to a maximum of $100 per year for individuals, $200 per couples, much as they now can for colleges and universities.

A community fundraising drive has been underway in the Pontiac School District for several weeks to pay for extracurricular programs.

Coping with kids

by Jim & Ellen Windell

Not just awful parents get angry

What is normal about feeling like you want to kill your child?

A hateful, resentful, perhaps even murderous thought or feeling, may not be that unusual for most adults at one time or another in dealing with children and adolescents.

As parents and adults, however, we are often expected to deal with our anger on a very subtle level.

In fact, we often expect of ourselves that we will never show evidence of the extent of some of our angry emotions. This may be particularly true as it relates to anger felt toward a child.

For most parents, because of a love bond between parent and child, the thought of causing serious hurt or harm to a child is very nearly unthinkable.

When a hostile or murderous thought crosses our mind we may recoil with anxiety, guilt and self-loathing.

To read an account of child murder, child assault or child abuse may cause us great emotional pain and be quite chilling in its effect. That that child abuser or murderer could be us is most terrifying to accept.

But, every honest, normal parent knows in his heart that at sometime we have felt like physically hurting a child.

We may or we may not have succumbed to these feelings.

Children, we know, have been abused for centuries. Children have been safe targets for release of anger and frustration because they often can't fight back and over power an adult.

It sometimes helps to recognize that these feelings toward children are normal reactions to frustrations and are not evidence of a disordered, potentially homicidal parent.

A parent should not have to suffer extreme guilt for feeling aggressive toward an off spring.

If the hostile feelings come too often, then not only should the other feelings and the total relationship be examined, but the opportunities the parent has for creative and fun outlets for anger and aggression should be assessed.

Often parents forget that they, too, need healthy outlets to get rid of anger and frustration.

It makes sense that the most important element in skiing is the snow. How does one get information on ski conditions? There are a number of ways. Many radio stations feature ski reports during the season and some television stations will also give local conditions. You can also call the U.S. Weather service to check the forecast of the areas in which you are interested. Friends who have recently skied these areas can also provide good condition reports. Check snow conditions before making a long trek to ski country.

Check with us at COACH'S CORNER, 31 S. Main, 625-8457 before buying any sports equipment. We handle just about everything you need, and will see that you are properly fitted. It's safer to wear properly fitted equipment, and we're here to help you with all your needs. Open: Daily 9:30 am - 6 pm, Sat until 5 pm.

HANDY HINT:

Many ski resorts have toll free numbers for information on reservations and ski conditions. Call the toll free information number 800-555-1212 for directory assistance.

Janet Rehfus paints a flower on her piggy bank that ended up as a real facsimile of a pig. Other pupils in Gerald Ostrom's sixth grade class at Clarkston Elementary School created piggy banks with features other than a snout and curly tail.

Asher Cornelius didn't actually plan on making a Martian bank, he says. "I put on three legs and started from there."

A fan of television's Mork and Mindy show, John Chamber's bank took shape gradually. "I just started making it and it looked like an egg, so I made a stand," he says as he begins painting "Mork from Ork" on both sides.
