Remke Sr. buys Clarkston Mills

The Clarkston Mills now has a new owner, Ted Remke Sr., and optimism about the future of the shopping mall abounds.

Opened about one-and-one-half years ago, the Clarkston Mills, 20 W. Washington, Clarkston, has been a curiosity for area residents as plans for a restaurant were discussed and then dropped off and on over the time span.

Ted Remke Sr. of Grosse Pointe announced his ownership of the building to the 11 shop owners at the Mills last week.

"We all have a very positive attitude," said Village Haberdashery owner Dan Kelly, president of the Mills business association. "We really feel the Mills is going to be successful and it's in good hands."

Remke, whose son Ted owns Timberline Saddlery and Ski Co. at the Mills, was founder and owner of Remke Manufacturing makers of beverage-truck bodies.

He recently sold the manufacturing business and now serves the firm in a consulting capacity.

Former Clarkston Village President Keith Hallman of Overlook Drive, Clarkston, will assist Remke by coordinating the Clarkston Mills merchants and handling promotional and leasing activities at the site.

"I am pleased that Mr. Remke has control of the Clarkston Mills," Hallman said. "He has a successful track record as a nationally known manufacturer. His purchase of the facility reflects his confidence in its success."

"Mr. Remke is excited about the possibility of becoming a resident here in the future and taking part in community affairs," Hallman added.

An immediate change in the facility is the proposed completion of the first phase of the restaurant that will seat between 150 and 200 people.

"Mr. Remke realizes the importance of that restaurant to open quickly and he's putting great emphasis on 'getting it open," Hallman said.

"It's impossible to anticipate exactly on something of this type," he said about the restaurant. "A lot of work has been completed. I am taking a conservative approach by saying it will be open by June 1, hopefully before that."

In addition to the restaurant, there are about 13 retail spaces in the Mills and 11 are now occupied.

Shop owner Kelly also looks to the new owner for some changes.

"Probably 60 percent of the residents in the immediate area are not aware we're here at all," he said. "This is going to make the difference."

"The new owner has a better understanding of the retail business. He knows our needs. He knows the ingredients for success."

Remke has some praise for the Mills' former owner, Marc Alan of Grosse Pointe.

"He gives recognition to Marc Alan, the former developer, for his desire to bring to Clarkston a development that neighbors, customers, the merchants and the village can be proud of," Hallman said.

No 'raggedy flag' for Clarkston

A brand new American flag flies at the corner of Washington and Main streets, Clarkston, thanks to the efforts of Margaret Roth. Mrs. Roth, an Independence Township resident, took matters into her own hands last week when she noticed the flag pole was flagless. She had been trying to contact Clarkston Village officials about replacing the ragged flag that had been flying anyway, she says. "We just love our country and we love our flag and we wanted our nice flag to fly here," says Mrs. Roth after the flag was raised Friday. "It is a disgrace to our country to fly a raggedy flag, especially in Clarkston, Michigan, the nicest community in the country." Mrs. Roth is given an assist in her patriotic task by [from left] Tam Tino of Milford and Betty Allen of Waterford, employees of Mrs. Roth and her husband Daniel.

Boundaries to change at three schools

By Pat Braunagel

Elementary school boundary changes which would take Andersonville sixth graders out of Clarkston Junior High have been tentatively approved by the Clarkston Board of Education.

Forty Andersonville sixth graders would remain at Andersonville for the 1980-81 school year and the others would be among 105 pupils to be transferred to Pine Knob or Clarkston Elementary School.

The Clarkston Elementary School area would be enlarged to cover approximately 50 more pupils.

They would come from homes from Deer Lake Road up the west side of Deer Lake, both sides of Dixie Highway to Davisburg Road and the streets of Nadette, Englewood and Fairfield Circle in the subdivision off Big Lake Road behind the vocational center.

The proposed change which brought the most complaints from parents attending the Monday night board meeting is the transfer of some 55 pupils to Pine Knob from Foster Road to Edgar Road, both sides of Edgar Road and Edgar Court to Andersonville Road.

Foster Road parents objected to having their children bused to Pine Knob and then later to attend Clarkston Junior High rather than Sashabaw as other Pine Knob pupils do.

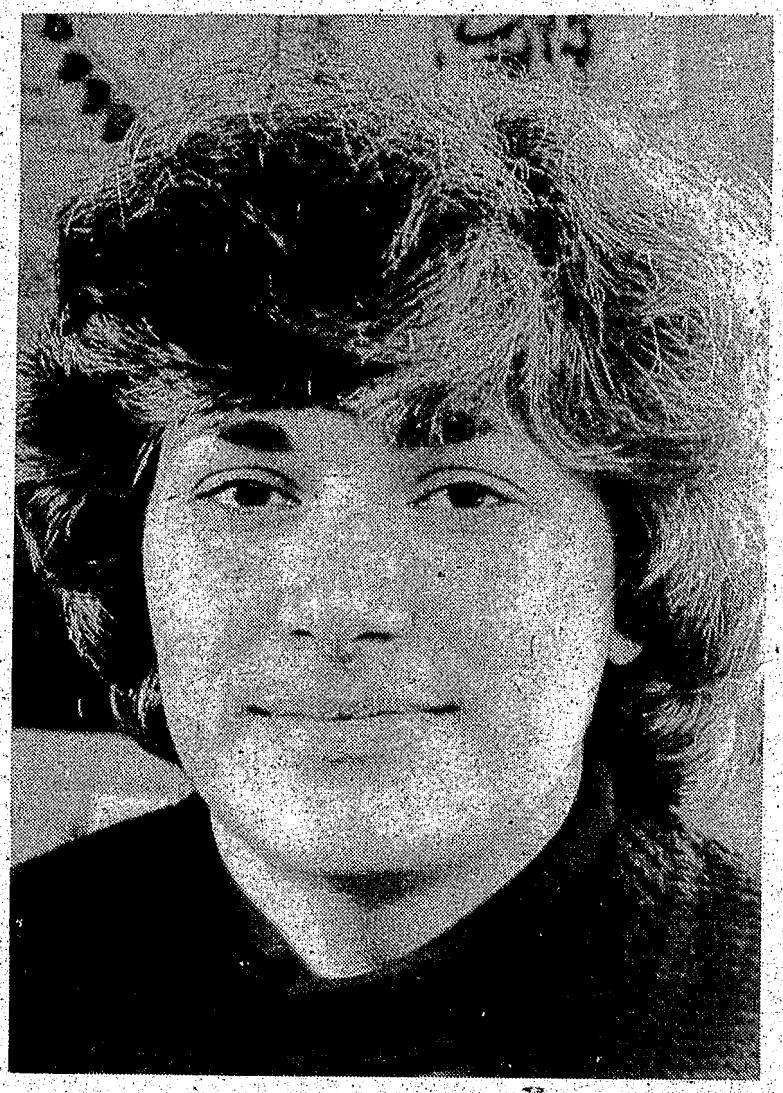

A couple of Andersonville parents commented that the solution was worse than the problem.

The change would permit Andersonville to operate as a kindergarten-through-sixth-grade building and allow elementary pupils to ride elementary rather than secondary buses.

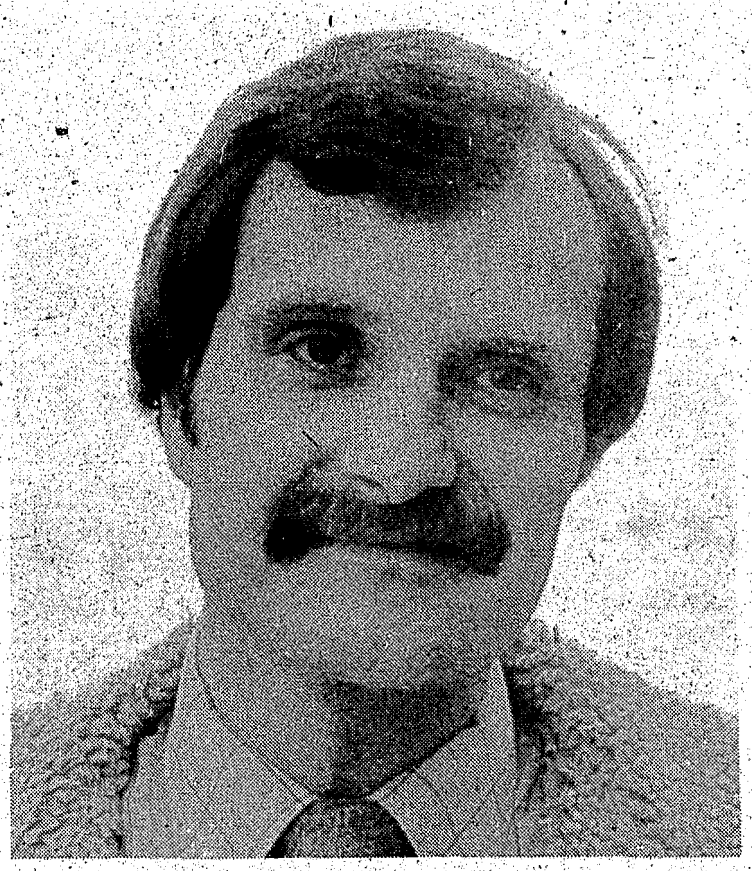

School Board President Robert Walters said he had tended not to favor the plan until a Feb. 25 meeting at Clarkston Elementary School at which "the teachers themselves seem(ed) to be almost enthusiastic."

Public hearing for parents of affected pupils will be held at 7:30 p.m. March 24 at the school district administration buildng.

Profile of Progress

"The business district is going through a period of change and I hope that the landlords and the business people are able to re-evaluate and work together for the betterment of the business district."—Joan Kopietz, owner of Tierra Arts and Design and Clarkston business leader.

"I would like to see at least the initial phase of the safety paths constructed in the next few years—the 19 miles along the major transportation routes. The safety paths are a very positive project in the area with the energy concerns and the safety and welfare of the residents—especially the children."—Joseph Figa, chairperson, Independence Township Safety Path Committee.

"My personal feeling is that the maintenance of the historical significance of the village is the keynote, but at the same time we need business and economic growth as well—the type of growth that doesn't threaten the character of the village. I see these two goals as being both realistic and worthwhile."—Steven Himburg, Clarkston village planning commission member.

Leaders describe parts of whole

What does progress look like to those who have their fingers on the pulse of community life in Clarkston, Independence and Springfield?

It's a general term, and The Clarkston News wanted some specifics. So we went to a few of the many people who have a direct influence on what living in the area is all about.

These aren't the only influential people around, but they are among those whose opinions count.

Read what they have to say on these two pages, on page 40 and in our 84-page Profile of Progress supplement.

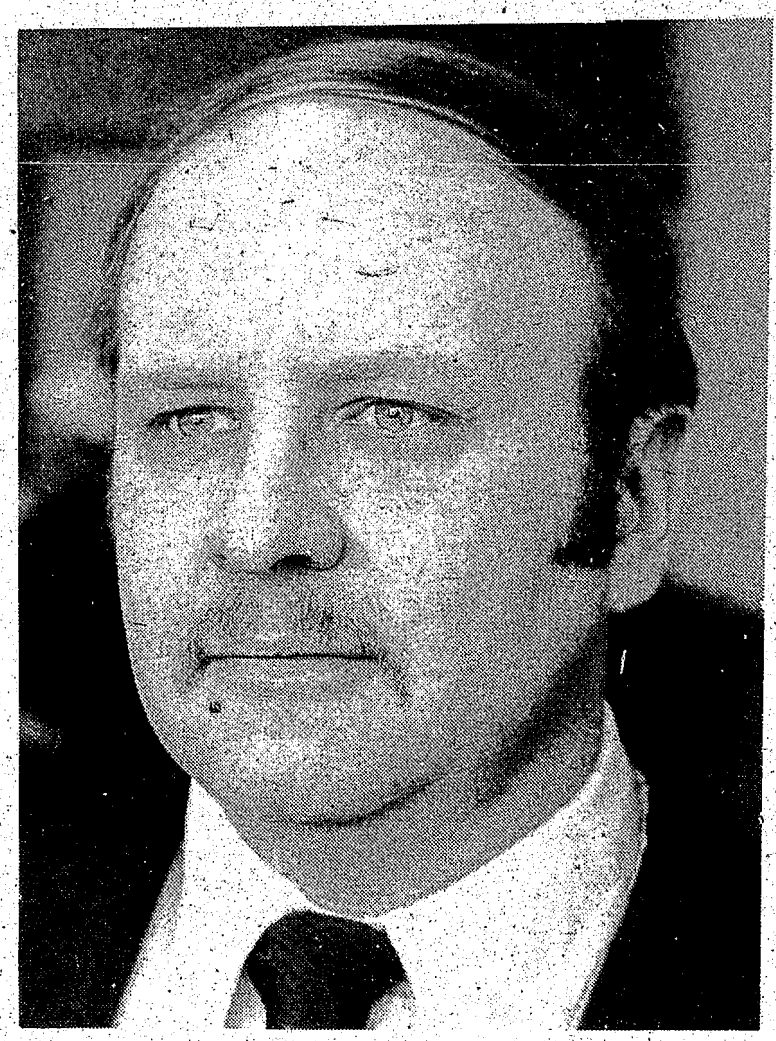

"Youth are not merely resources to be tapped at some future date. They are resources capable of making significant contributions to the community right now. For too long, the high school has shouldered the burden for the transition of youth to adulthood. No single institution may suffice as 'the' exclusive environment for youth. An effective transition must include students, parents, the community and the school."—Jan Gabier, assistant principal, Clarkston High School.

"Surprisingly enough, people coming in—the bulk of the people—don't realize we reduced the taxes last year using general fund surplus—$100,000 was put aside to reduce the sewer millage and general fund income was reduced by $201,000 as opposed to last year. As far as progressiveness by the board, it has to be one of the best things we did."—Whitey Tower, Independence Township supervisor.

"Toxic waste certainly was the most critical issue we dealt with last year. It's still there, unfortunately. With the exception of the residents immediately adjacent, I don't think its impact is fully known yet."—Collin Walls, Springfield Township supervisor.

"A lot of people think a community center is just a place to play basketball. That's not true at all. It's a cultural center and with that I'm talking about theater, the arts, dance. So it's many things to many people, and right now it's being handled haphazardly. There should be a central location for all these activities."—Bruce Shull, chairperson, Independence Township community center steering committee.

CHS attendance policy unchanged

By Pat Braunagel

Enforcement of Clarkston High School's "tough" attendance policy is being tightened up, but protesting parents have won no changes in the policy during this school year.

Some of those who have been complaining about the way the policy is being carried out are threatening a lawsuit.

Clarkston High School Principal Dom Mauti presented a 24-page report to the school board Monday night, much of which was classified material relating to the specific cases of students whose parents have protested the policy.

"We feel the publicity has had a tremendous positive effect on attendance," Mauti said.

Parents are now calling the school in greater numbers when their children are absent, he commented.

The attendance policy has become tougher during the last three years, the principal noted, with the number of permitted absences dropping from 15 to 12 to 10.

Stricter enforcement of the existing policy is now in effect, he said. After two unverified absences, teachers are sending progress reports to parents.

He also noted that students are not to take attendance in CHS classrooms.

One step has been removed from the appeal process when grades are withheld due to absenteeism.

A student can appeal the matter to a committee of three administrators and three teachers.

If a parent decides to appeal the matter further, he or she can go directly to Mauti rather than to the committee. Mauti is one of the members of the committee.

Asked by two school board members about the advisability of his ruling on an appeal of a decision made by the committee of which he is a member, Mauti defended the procedure.

Parents would not be "overwhelmed by numbers" in a meeting with him, he said.

Mauti noted parents have just 24 hours to verify an absence.

"I really don't feel that too many of them are going to be changed after the committee goes through the appeal process," he said.

Some changes in the policy are being contemplated for next year, including the present practice of lumping verified absences with these which are not excused in the appeal process, Mauti said.

"It seems to me the policy is in the long run going to have the result of better learning," Walters said.

Aaron Lefler of Sashabaw Road, whose daughter dropped out of day school after an unsuccessful attendance appeal, is attempting to organize parents for a class-action lawsuit.

Wolfpack to finals

The scenery changes, as do the opposing teams. But the script for the Clarkston High School basketball season remains the same--and nobody's complaining.

At least no one from Clarkston, as the Wolfpack methodically dismantled their opponents for the 24th straight time Tuesday evening--in this case the Schwartz Creek Dragons.

When the buzzer rang to signal the end of Clarkston's first regional playoff contest, the final score stood Wolfpack 73, Dragons 56.

"We were in command pretty much the whole way," said coach Gary Nustad, citing a 34-24 bulge at halftime. "They made a couple of runs at us, but we never lost our poise."

"They (Schwartz Creek) were shooting very well from outside in the first half, but we began contesting their shots later in the game," Nustad continued. "I thought we played very well offensively, but our play on the defensive boards has got to improve for Friday's game."

Statistically, the Wolfpack attack was led by the familiar duo of Tim McCormick and Scott McKoin, who tallied 28 and 25 points respectively. McCormick added 15 rebounds and 6 blocked shots, while McKoin cleaned the boards 9 times.

The victory earns Clarkston a spot in the regional finals this Friday against the winner of the Utica-Flint Central semi-final Wednesday. Flint Central, Nustad noted, is the overwhelming favorite to earn the right to face the Wolfpack.

"There doesn't seem to be any way they can lose--but you never know in the playoffs," Nustad said.

Don't need Pine Knob park

We're pleased to read that Oakland County Parks and Recreation has delayed a decision on buying Pine Knob properties.

A delay is better than a bid to purchase.

We do not favor county ownership of Pine Knob.

To some on the Parks Commission, this may sway their vote in favor of the project. Nevertheless, we'd like it noted to others that everyone is not for more and more parklands.

We realize the various "Oaks" parks were bought by the county with the idea of their being self supporting, and this will likely be the goal should a Pine Knob bid be made.

However, private enterprise, with fewer restrictions and more freedom of movement, has apparently not been able to make a buck.

This is a strong reason to leave the properties in private hands, but we have more ammunition.

Like: Leave the property on the tax roll. Do not over supply us with recreation lands, thus making all more expensive. Do a better job with what we have (bigness isn't always better). Let's not build any more empires. Let's not further burden the taxpayers, especially in these depressed times.

And, finally, Parks and Rec folks should not feel they have the obligation to supply all our P & R needs. It's a philosophy founded in Washington, and It's not good.

As parents and individuals we should be able to use our imagination enough to fill our leisure hours.

Tim's choices

By Clarkston News publisher Jim Sherman

By the end of the month, Tim McCormick, Clarkston High's sensational basketball player, will sign a letter of intent to play college basketball someplace.

Supposedly, he has narrowed the choice to seven. Likely he has narrowed the choice to less than three. And, since he is close to his family, the guess is that he will choose a nearby school . . . U-M, MSU.

Well, some promoters for Oakland University are asking Tim to think of another way.

Mike Weger, former defensive end for the Detroit Lions, has been and is making a pitch for Mr. McCormick. He got past coach Gary Nustad by talking to Mike's mother about Tim's injured leg.

Mothers are always concerned for their children's health, Weger reasoned. And, Weger had checked around enough to learn Tim has "jumper's knee".

It's an injury that put Weger out of professional football. He says Tim could go to one of the major universities, be forced out of competition from injury, and be lost in the campus maze of rejected athletes.

Weger says it wouldn't be that way at O-U. He'd bring in the most knowledgeable doctor, a man from Mississippi, Mike would not be pushed to jump on that leg 12 months a year, and he'd be much more "cared for" at O-U.

Weger makes a great pitch to attract Tim. He talks about Tim's 3.4 grade point average (a high average is required at O-U). Weger talks about exposing Tim to management people in numerous business fields (Tim is going into business management).

And, Weger talks of what McCormick can do for O-U.

"He can make this school, athletically," Weger said. "The impact on O-U and the community would be tremendous."

We can see where Tim would be King of the campus, the drawing card to bring players and name competition to O-U. Games would be moved to the Silverdome; the new sports complex might even have a wing named for him.

However, Weger insists, O-U will not benefit from McCormick as much as Tim will benefit from O-U.

Well, we heard Weger's pitch. And, we can see both sides.

Tim has heard the pitch from both sides.

We just thought you readers might want this little insight on what attempts are being made to lure Clarkston's All-American high school basketball player to various schools.

Maybe you'll understand what mental gymnastics he's been through to make the choice . . . whatever it is.

Letter to the editor

Ode to Wolfpack

To the editor:

CLARKSTON WOLFPACK
By a quartet of fans

If points are needed, he'll do the trick;
He's our big man, Tim McCormick.
With our team our fans will join
To salute a great player, Scott McKoin.
In our offense, turnovers are seldom,
With our super ball handler John Sheldon.
Our defense is great, may I add,
Thanks to the help of Ed Haddad.
Our game plans drive the opposing team insane
With the deceiving moves of Greg Lane.
We are rated No. 1 in the state, need I say less,
With some help from Larry Baylis.
If we are behind one, no need to cry;
We'll get two points from Chuck Nicholai.
When he's on the floor he doesn't mess around;
He's Clarkston's very own Paul Brown.
We've played them all, from the strongest to the weakest,
But we couldn't have won without Nick Lekas.
When the going gets tough and they trap to trap us,
Into the game comes John Pappas.
Especially when one of them is our biggest man, Scott Weaver.
When the score is high and over 80
Some credit has to be given to Brad Beattie.
When it looks like he gave all he can, he'll give a little bit more,
Because that's the way of Ric Schebor.
The coaching is great, the best we've had,

Barrister Bob Parenti has the answer to halting inflation. Under his government, all credit cards would be eliminated. People would "feel" their money slipping through their fingers and tighten their grip.

Then the couselor-at-law would send the men out to do the grocery shopping. He recently had to push the grocery cart a few times.

"Can you imagine, $2.63 for a family size box of Cascade? $4.50 a pound for steak?", he exclaimed.

I checked this week, Bob. Some steak is $4.99. Fried bologna isn't too bad with salad dressing.

The announcement by GM that they want to build in Orion Township, home of our Lake Orion Review newspaper, is exciting.

We remember years ago when GM broke ground in Tecumseh for a new plant. Town fathers, including editor Tom Riordan of the Tecumseh Herald, wanted a grand ground breaking.

They got it. Several sticks of dynamite replaced the silver shovel. Maybe Orion can have a missle directed to the site from a Colorado tunnel.

It's a dog day

A group of dog owners from across Oakland County braved a snowstorm to travel with their pets to the Springfield Oaks Activities Center in Springfield Township Saturday.

The group, made up mostly of young people, made their individual treks to participate in the Oakland County 4-H Dog Project Day. Included among the day's topics were dog training and handling techniques, as well as pet owner responsibilities, according to Oakland County 4-H Program Assistant Georgina Cunningham.

"This is the first time we've conducted the dog project, and we'd like to make it a regular event," Cunningham said. "It's a free program, although we may have advance registration next time--just to give us some idea of how many people are going to be here. The snow kept our numbers down to about 35 today.

"It's a lot of fun--we enjoy our dogs, and the kids do too." Participants were able to view some experienced dogs perform a number of trained feats, including jumping hurdles and tracking a scent outdoors.

Mission accomplished: Debbie Totten and her dog Autumn, an Australian shepherd, return from a successful tracking exercise. The object of the search—an old glove—rests firmly in Autumn's mouth.

'If it Fitz. . .'

Sports - politics parallel

by Jim Fitzgerald

After claiming he won a presidential primary he lost, Ted Kennedy looked into a TV camera and explained: "It's a 15-inning fight, and this is only the first round."

Candidates often see a parellel between sports and political campaigns. If they could see the same parallel, it would be to the advantage of athletes, especially gymnasts who perform on parallel bars. In case you're not familiar with gymnastics, I'm here to tell you that parallel bars are two saloons across the street from each other.

If athletes played games the way politicians run campaigns, there would be no agony of defeat. There would be only the thrill of victory over an opponent, or over the polls, or over the experts' expectations, or over the rainbow. A rainbow victory can be scored when, for example, Jerry Brown is not even entered in the race, but Judy Garland wins on write-in votes.

When the polls predict a primary candidate will get only 15 percent of the total vote, but he gets 18 percent, he is a winner, even though his opponent got 82 percent. The two percent upset gives him the momentum he needs for the next primary election. Without momentum, a candidate lacks confidence. To win the next race, he must be confident of finding another poll that predicted he would receive fewer votes than the number of his local campaign aides, thus making another victory over the polls possible.

If a candidate can't find a poll that forecast he would do worse than he did, he can still win if he can find an expert who underestimated his performance. An expert is anyone whose opinions are publicized through any medium more sophisticated than chalk on a blackboard. If the most obscure columnist predicted publicly that the candidate would receive fewer votes than he got, the candidate can justifiably claim victory by virtue of having "fooled the media." Expert opinions can be written in crayon as long as the paper is lined.

In the absence of a poll or an expert to beat, the candidate who loses to his opponent can still take the rainbow route to a nonchalant victory. He does this by "not formally entering the race" in a certain state and letting a cross-eyed distant cousin do all his campaigning there. Under these circumstances, if the candidate gets only one vote, he can claim a nonchalant victory. He can even say he would have won in a landslide if he'd sent a more attractive cousin.

It's easy to see how an athlete could benefit by using the strategy of a primary candidate. To borrow Ted Kennedy's smile, let's say a prizefighter is knocked out in the ninth inning. He can still claim a victory if he can find a poll that predicted he would last only until the fourth inning, or a little kid who printed on a restroom wall that his favorite boxer would make it to the seventh-inning stretch, as long as the wall was lined.

And if he can't find an appropriate poll or expert, the fighter can reach for the rainbow. He can claim lasting five innings was really a victory because he didn't really train for the fight and, in fact, his one-legged stepbrother did all his roadwork for him. If his beautiful wife had done his running, he would have won in the first round on a bases-loaded uppercut.

You might wonder whether sports fans would appreciate these types of victories. Don't worry. The Detroit Pistons basketball team recently traded its best player, Bob Lanier, to Milwaukee. The Pistons immediately lost 13 in a row while Milwaukee seems headed for a championship. A sympathetic Lanier told a reporter if he wins a championship ring he will give it to Detroit Mayor Coleman Young. City Hall sources say Young is already planning a ticker tape parade to greet the ring when it arrives by mail. Sports fans will accept any type of victory.

There is just one important thing to keep in mind. As Ted Kennedy might say, a baseball player will never win a prizefight in parallel bars simultaneously unless the street between them in mighty narrow.

Light voter turnout urges village bonfire ban

At least two dozen people in Clarkston don't want leaves burned within the village limits.

Of the 45 voters who cast ballots in Monday's village election, 24 supported an advisory proposition in favor of the village council making the burning of leaves illegal.

There were 21 "no" votes on the question, which has no legal weight pending village council action.

All seven village incumbents, who were running unopposed, were re-elected to their posts.

Village Treasurer Artemus Pappas received the highest number of votes, 42. Village Clerk Bruce Rogers was next, garnering 40 votes.

Village President Fontie Ap-Madoc received 33 votes.

Trustees returned to the council are Gary Symons, 38 votes; Connie Fisher, 34; and Jackson Byers, 34. Village Assessor Ralph Thayer also received 34 votes.

Road designation official

In the attractive road category, Gibbs Road in Springfield Township is a winner.

It has been designated as a "Natural Beauty Road" by the board of Oakland County Road Commissioners.

The mile-long road, between Kier and Rattalee Lake roads, joins about 13 miles in other areas given this designation which protects roadside vegetation from destruction by acts within control of the road commission.

The action was requested by citizens' petitions, recommended by Springfield Township officials and supported unanimously by about 50 persons attending the road commission's public hearing on the proposal.

Vocational center surveys graduates

Vocational education students who attended Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center or Clarkston High School during the 1978-79 school year should be betting some mail soon.

A survey questionaire will ask them to report what they are doing and how well they feel the schools served their needs.

The annual survey, conducted in cooperation with the Michigan Department of Education, provides information for education programs.

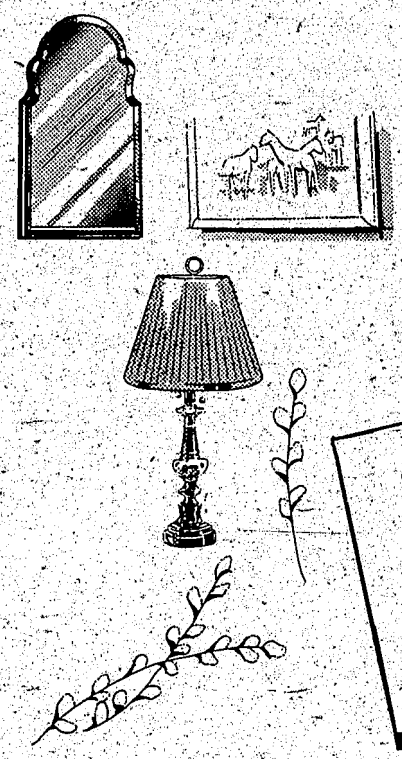

Former students will be contacted by Neal Sage, NWOVEC placement coordinator or Marvin Hess, CHS vocational education director between March 17 and April 30.

Former students are encouraged to answer the follow-up survey so they can be represented in improving the vocational programs.

The identities of those who answer the survey will be kept confidential.

The survey results will be used for planning purposes, future funding and to improve services offered to students.

Wolves win district title

By Al Zawacky

Fifteen Clarkston High School basketball players were in a state of euphoria Saturday night. So were coaches Gary Nustad, Larry Mahrle and about 1800 Clarkston basketball fans.

After all, the Clarkston cagers had just won a class A district championship by downing Pontiac Northern 80-45 in the district finals, the first such title in their school's history.

"We've won class C district titles in the past, but this is our first class A," head coach Nustad said. "It's an accomplishment we can all be proud of.

"This team has been working and improving all season long--we're playing as well now as we ever have."

Indeed, Nustad's Wolfpack has seldom looked any better than they did against Northern, dominating every aspect of the game in rolling to their 23rd straight victory.

The major figure in that dominance was--as usual--Clakrston star center Tim McCormick, who scored 29 points and pulled down 13 rebounds, giving him a total of 102 points and 46 rebounds in the three district contests.

Nustad was running out of superlatives to describe his 6-foot 10 all star afterwards.

"What can you say about Tim? He's unselfish, an outstanding team player--the type of kid who's always giving credit to his teammates for a win. He's not just and outstanding athlete--he's an oustanding individual as well."

And he's also a pretty good basketball player. Louie Rainge, a 6-foot 7 Pontiac Northern sophomore, was assigned the duty of stopping McCormick, but his aggressive play came to naught.

The Wolfpack also benefitted from a sterling performance by senior point guard John Sheldon. Sheldon scored 12 points, stole the ball five times and chalked up five assists. Teammate Scott McKoin was the the other Clarkston player in double figures, scoring 12 points.

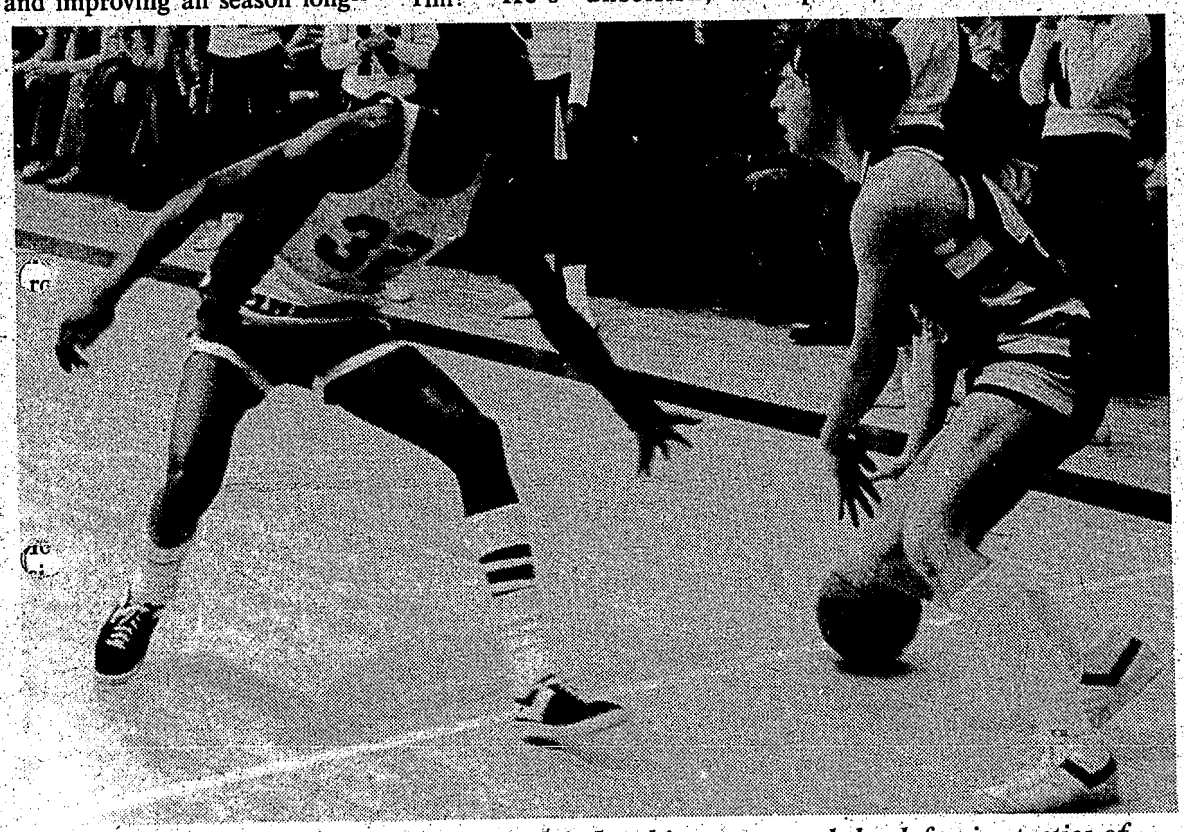

Other Wolfpack point totals were Chuck Nicolai with 9, Larry Baylis with 8, Doug Hagyard with 3, Ed Haddad, Greg Lane and Jerry Tatu with 2 and Paul Brown with 1.

Nustad's cagers are considered serious contenders for the state championship, having been rated No. 1 in the Detroit News poll class A prep teams. Five more victories would bring the state title to Clarkston.

Nustad expressed confidence in his team's ability to face the tougher challenges ahead.

"I feel we have the ability to control the tempo of the game against any team, to enable us to play our game regardless of whether we're ahead or trailing," Nustad said. "I don't think our kids are going to panic in a close game--they have the poise to control themselves.

"If we win--that's great. If we don't, it won't be because of a lack of effort. I can promise you that."

The point after

by Al Zawacky

What can you say about a basketball team that plays bad and wins by 32 points?

The reference, of course, is to Clarkston High School's 85-52 victory over Holly in the district opener last week. For excitement and thrills, the game would compare favorably to spending Saturday night at the drive-in movie with a maiden aunt. And as far as quality of play is concerned, the basketball was similar to that currently being played by the home team at the Silverdome.

But the score stands: Clarkston 85, Holly 52.

ALL SEASON LONG the Wolfpack has been a second half ball club. Games against Pontiac Central, Rochester Adams and several other opponents this season have stayed relatively close for two quarters, only to see Clarkston awake from their doldrums in the second half.

Again, the final scores stand: Clarkston 80, Pontiac Central 58. Who cares if the first half was close, if the Wolfpack lacked a little bit of intensity in their first two quarters?

Obviously nobody if the opposition is class B turned class A Holly, or talent-lean Pontiac Central. But some where down the road—specifically in the regionals—Clakrston will run out of patsies.

What's going to happen then?

WOLFPACK CRITICS have had a field day asking this question, especially in Flint where Clarkston is known not as the "No. 1 rated" but the "over-rated" team in the state.

I'm in no position to compare the Wolfpack to Flint Central, Flint Northern, Catholic Central, Saginaw or the rest, never having seen any of these teams play. But I do profess to know a few things about Clarkston, and based on what I've seen a word of caution should go out to the Wolfpack's prophets of doom.

Specifically: this team just has not played up to its potential. They haven't had to.

There have been flashes, brief glimmering moments when Coach Gary Nustad's cagers showed exactly what they were capable of. They humiliated Kettering 93-56 in December. They bombed a good Waterford Township team 90-60 in February.

Further, Tim McCormick averaged 31 points a game last season, but "only" in the mid-twenties in 1979-80. Do you get the feeling he's being saved for something?

Nustad was asked last month why he wasn't leaving McCormick in the games, giving him a shot at breaking the school scoring record padding his stats a bit. The coach raised his eyebrows. "Everybody already knows what Tim can do," Nustad said matter-of-factly. "Why risk an injury when the tournaments are coming up?"

It is not a coincidence that McCormick scored a season high 39 points in his first tournament contest. There's no longer a "tomorrow" if you lose in the tournaments; McCormick now has the green light.

IT'S A MATTER OF mental preparation—and luck as well. If the Wolfpack plays to its potential, there is not a prep basketball team in the state that can beat them.

But—since they haven't played to their capabilities all year—that "if" is an awfully big one. Can Clarkston rise to the occasion and beat the tougher regional competition coming up?

I'll leave the predicting to someone else. I'm going to just sit back and watch the games.

The Clarkston News

Athlete of the week

And with good reason, says coach Gary Nustad.

"Chuck has done an outstanding job for us coming off the bench this season." Nustad says. "He's accepted his role as our sixth man, and done everything that's been expected of him."

"He does a good job for us on the boards and plays very ell offensively."

Having a player of Nicolai's caliber as a reserve had added a tremendous amount of depth to the 1979-80 Wolfpack, Nustad notes. The consensus is that Nicolai would have been a starter on many other teams, including the Wolfpack's five Greater Oakland opponents.

"His presence is felt on the floor," Nustad says. "He always seems to give us a lift when he comes into a game."

Adults interested in having a soccer program established in the Clarkston school system can attend a meeting in the Clarkston High School cafeteria on March 25 at 7:30 p.m.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the formation of a committee to support the institution of soccer in the local schools.

Wolfpack tracks

POLLS VS. PREDICTIONS: One of the biggest ironies of the 1980 prep playoffs is that while Clarkston has held the No. 1 spot in the AP poll throughout much of the season, virtually none of the "experts" is picking the Wolfpack to win the state championship.

Coach Gary Nustad has never been much of a believer in polls, but he likes his team's chances to go all the way.

"A lot of success depends on luck and preparation," Nustad said. "You can be the best team in the state and still not win the state championship."

"When you've got that mythical No. 1 ranking, people are going to be inclined to say that maybe you're not as good as you're supposed to be. That's to be expected. But I think we've got as good a chance of winning it as anyone."

CRIME DOESN'T PAY: Nor does it pay to foul a member of the Wolfpack, apparently.

Against Pontiac Central, 34 of the Wolfpack's 67 points were scored from the charity stripe.

NO PLACE LIKE HOME? Will playing on a strange court at Flint Central, rather than in the familiar confines of Clarkston High School, adversely affect the play of the Wolfpack?

No way, says coach Gary Nustad.

"As the tournaments progress, the home court advantage becomes less and less of a factor," Nustad said. "Regardless of where we play, our people will be there to cheer us on--I don't think playing away from home will hurt us."

It certainly hasn't so far. The Wolfpack was a perfect 10-0 away from home in regular season play.

ROOM FOR IMPROVEMENT: Coach Nustad was asked after Saturday's district clinching victory over Pontiac Northern if there were still some areas of play where his team could improve.

The response was quick and affirmative.

A natural tendency. He usually does.

In March of every year, an unusual athletic event is held in Sun Valley, Idaho. It is the National Para Ski Competition. Paraski stands for parachute jumping and skiing. The first day of competition involves two parachute jumps from a jet helicopter toward a small target on the ground. On the second day, the competitors ski down two giant slolom courses. The participants and organizers do not claim any special connection between the two activities except that they are fun.

Downtown break-ins, protected suspect cause school/cop rift

By Kathy Greenfield

A rash of break-ins of Clarkston village businesses has resulted in an unresolved confrontation between the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD) and Clarkston High School Principal Dom Mauti.

In about the past two weeks, eight or nine breaking and entering instances have occurred, said Sgt. Roger Allen of the OCSD.

Last week a student at CHS turned over some items missing from Max Broock Inc., 27 S. Main, Clarkston to a teacher.

"The teacher and Mauti refused to divulge the name," said Allen. "This is a felony. The (OCSD) youth bureau is trying to find out who it is."

"It's coming down to the point where we're going to have a role identity here about policing--is it the school or is it us?

"We don't want to have to get warrants for the principal of the high school, but if the issue is forced we're going to have to decide to do what we have to do," he added.

Most of the thefts involved missing petty cash and the break-ins have not stopped since the missing items from Max Broock showed up--there were two more last weekend, Allen said.

Although Principal Mauti said he doesn't know the name of the youth involved in the incident, the school has taken a stand not to identify the youth.

"This is a special case and that's why we feel it can be done that way," Mauti said. "The student who is involved is in a special small class and he has confidence in the teacher.

"It's one of those things. The teacher is very close to these students and she felt this was the only way to do it," he added.

Mauti also said as far as he knows a detective has not visited the school to discuss the matter with either him or the teacher involved.

"It's the first time it's happened (missing merchandise was returned)," he said. "And in talking to the Oakland County Police, it's probably the last time."

"Sometimes you think you're doing the right thing, but in the long run it doesn't work out-that way," he said. "I guess you learn from it. (In the future,) I would refuse to take anything and attempt to return it."

In the meantime, Deputy James Snover of the OCSD suggests caution for local merchants.

"Make absolutely certain to make night deposits and don't leave great amounts of money around the building," he said, also suggesting good alarm systems, locks and use of floor safes.

"Faulty locks and just plain forgetting to lock doors appears to be the major problem," Snover said.

Counselors rally support for free-space drive

Counselors for Pontiac General's Mental Health Clinic satellite formerly located in Independence Township are rallying forces to appear before the township board.

They plan to ask the township to provide free office space for the counseling services one more time at the Tuesday, March 18, board meeting.

Counselor Mary Ann Hennig would like to see "anybody in support of community mental health put some pressuer on the board" at the meeting.

"This will be our last shot, I imagine," she said.

The adult-oriented psychiatric counseling service, with fees based on ability to pay, was formerly located in the defunct Independence Center and then for 90 days at the township's senior citizen center.

The counseling services have been offered in the township for local residents since 1974.

Clients of Hennig and psychologist John Scharfenkamp now have to travel to the mental health facility's main office in Pontiac or to Rochester or Lake Orion where free office space has been provided.

The township board meets at 7:30 p.m. at Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Hire a student

Job hunters and businesses looking for wokrers can get assistance from a new placement service at Clarkston High School.

"We are aware that jobs in our community go unfilled while young people are unemployed," said Anne Reeves, job placement coordinator. "It is our goal to remedy this gap."

The program, part of the CHS vocational education department, is designed to serve CHS graduates, adults living in the area and out-of-school youths looking for full-time work; to provide part-time job referrals and to secure co-op placement for students enrolled in vocational education.

Social security applications are available.

In addition, information is on hand for employers regarding income tax credits for hiring co-op students and the legal employment of those under age 18.

Reeves' office, located at CHS, 6595 Middle Lake, Independence Township, is open from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays.

Summer office hours have been set from 8 a.m. to noon daily.

Call Reeves at 625-0900 for more information.

Three classmates at NWOVEC start own business

By Al Zawacky

High school students Jim Tolbert, Adam Tyson and Tim Moore have found a way to turn old washers, dryers and household appliances into profit.

The three teenagers attend a major appliance repair class at the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center in Springfield Township, and put their knowledge to work about a month ago by opening their own repair business.

"We all just sort of got together and came up with the idea," says Jim, a senior at Clarkston High School. "It's a good way for us to earn extra money--and we can save people a lot of their repair costs."

It was Adam who got the idea to advertise their service in the Clarkston News, and since then business has been picking up. Besides repairing broken appliances, the boys also pick up discarded ones, rebuild and repair them and offer them for sale.

"When you figure the cost of a repair bill, a lot of people would just as soon throw the appliance out--and often times there's just a minor repair that needs to be done," Jim says. "We can fix an old washer just for the cost of the parts and resell it for $50 or so."

Jim borrows a dolly from the vocational center and uses his own trailer to pick up repairs and discards. The boys usually provide the pick-up service free of charge, unless an extended trip is needed--in which case some compensation for gasoline is required.

"Usually, we'll do it for nothing, unless the call is from Oxford or some other place far away," Jim says. "We're not regular mechanics, so we have to take the appliances into the school to work on it."

People can also bring appliances down themselves to NWOVEC and have them repaired for the cost of the parts and a small lab fee that goes for the school's expenses, notes Jim.

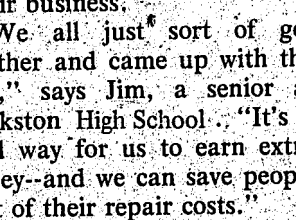

Depending on who does the hauling and repair work, the boys divide up their profits based on each one's share of the work. Jim, Adam and Tim also have their own business cards, courtesy of a NWOVEC printing class.

After graduation, Jim says he is considering electronics as a career, while Tim, a senior at Waterford Mott, expresses an interest in refrigeration. Adam, a junior at Waterford Kettering, says he hasn't made up his mind.

Township animal control department may bite dust

"Is your dog gone?" may be a question only Oakland County Animal Control officers will ask after next week's Independence Township Board meeting.

On the agenda is the possible dissolution of the township's animal control service.

Township Supervisor Whitey Tower and Clerk Christopher Rose have different reactions to the proposal.

"I'm definitely not in favor of disbanding it," said Tower. "We were up to 1,377 calls on animal control alone last year.

"Just a few short years ago, we had three animal control officers thanks to CETA. Even then they were busy," he said. "The reason we got into it originally was the county wasn't responding.

"I don't know how far we're going to go in cutting services," he added, referring to the dissolution of the township police department and the township police reserve unit last month.

"We were talking about the budget of the animal control department which was presented at $56,900 and the first question was, 'How much will the county charge if they do it?'" said Rose.

"They will do it free, so the economics of it bothered some people."

The budget figure represents salaries of two employees--an animal control officer and a dispatcher--as well as a new vehicle and miscellaneous expenses like vehicle maintenance and gasoline, he said.

In addition, although the lack of a local animal control office would cut down service, the township could contract for a county officer to patrol the area 40 hours a week for about $30,000, Rose said.

"It looks like it may bite the dust on an overwhelming vote," the clerk predicted.

Tower, on the other hand, said the county animal control office has given no firm indication that an officer could be provided.

The township board is to meet at 7:30 p.m. at Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston, on Tuesday, March 18.

They seek safety for bus riders

"THE DEATH ZONE"

SCENE 1: An elementary school child, around 6-years-old, gets off the school bus and hurries to show her mother a Valentine she made at school.

Realizing she dropped it, she rushes back to the bus.

SCENE 3: A high school student is standing on a snow bank reaching for a book being passed out of the school bus window.

The bus starts and the student slides down the snow bank and under the wheels of the moving bus.

Bus driver Becky Aninos tackles bus discipline by using the positive approach and suggesting to Clarkston School officials a certificate reward for well-behaved bus riders.

By Kathy Grenfield

Bus safety for Clarkston elementary pupils has taken a new direction.

A film, "The Death Zone," was recently shown to kindergarten through sixth graders at the six elementary schools.

Pamphlets on bus safety are to be distributed and, starting next month, certificates will be presented to children who are the best school bus riders.

Behavior problems resulted in the new approach when bus drivers Becky Aninos, Carol Carlson and Lois Schilter got together with William Dennis, Clarkston Schools' administrative assistant for auxiliary services.

"I think the problems are getting worse," said Schilter who has driven school buses nine years. "Clarkston has one of the best discipline programs, but even so the kids are trying to get away with more."

"We're really hoping reaching these elmentary kids will make a difference for us all," she added.

The film, based on actual accidents, was chosen by the bus drivers and when it was shown at the schools, bus drivers were there to answer questions.

"It's an excellent film as far as I'm concerned," Dennis said. "It shows things that happen every day on the bus and the kids can relate to them."

The bus drivers said the children have been more cautious since viewing the film.

"My elementary kids, many of them have to cross in front of the bus," said Carlson, a bus driver for five years. "Now 25 percent of them look at me for a signal to cross."

"They'll remind each other," added Aninos, who has also driven school buses five years. "They'll say, 'Jim's in the death zone' or 'You're too close if you can touch the bus'."

And with an average of 65 children on each bus load, the responsibility needs to be shared, the bus drivers said.

"They think these things can't happen to them," said Carlson. "They have so much trust in the bus driver and those red flashing lights. I have about five cars a day that go through those flashers."

The bus drivers are also looking to the future for improvements when the positive approach to bus safety is taken with the certificates for good behavior.

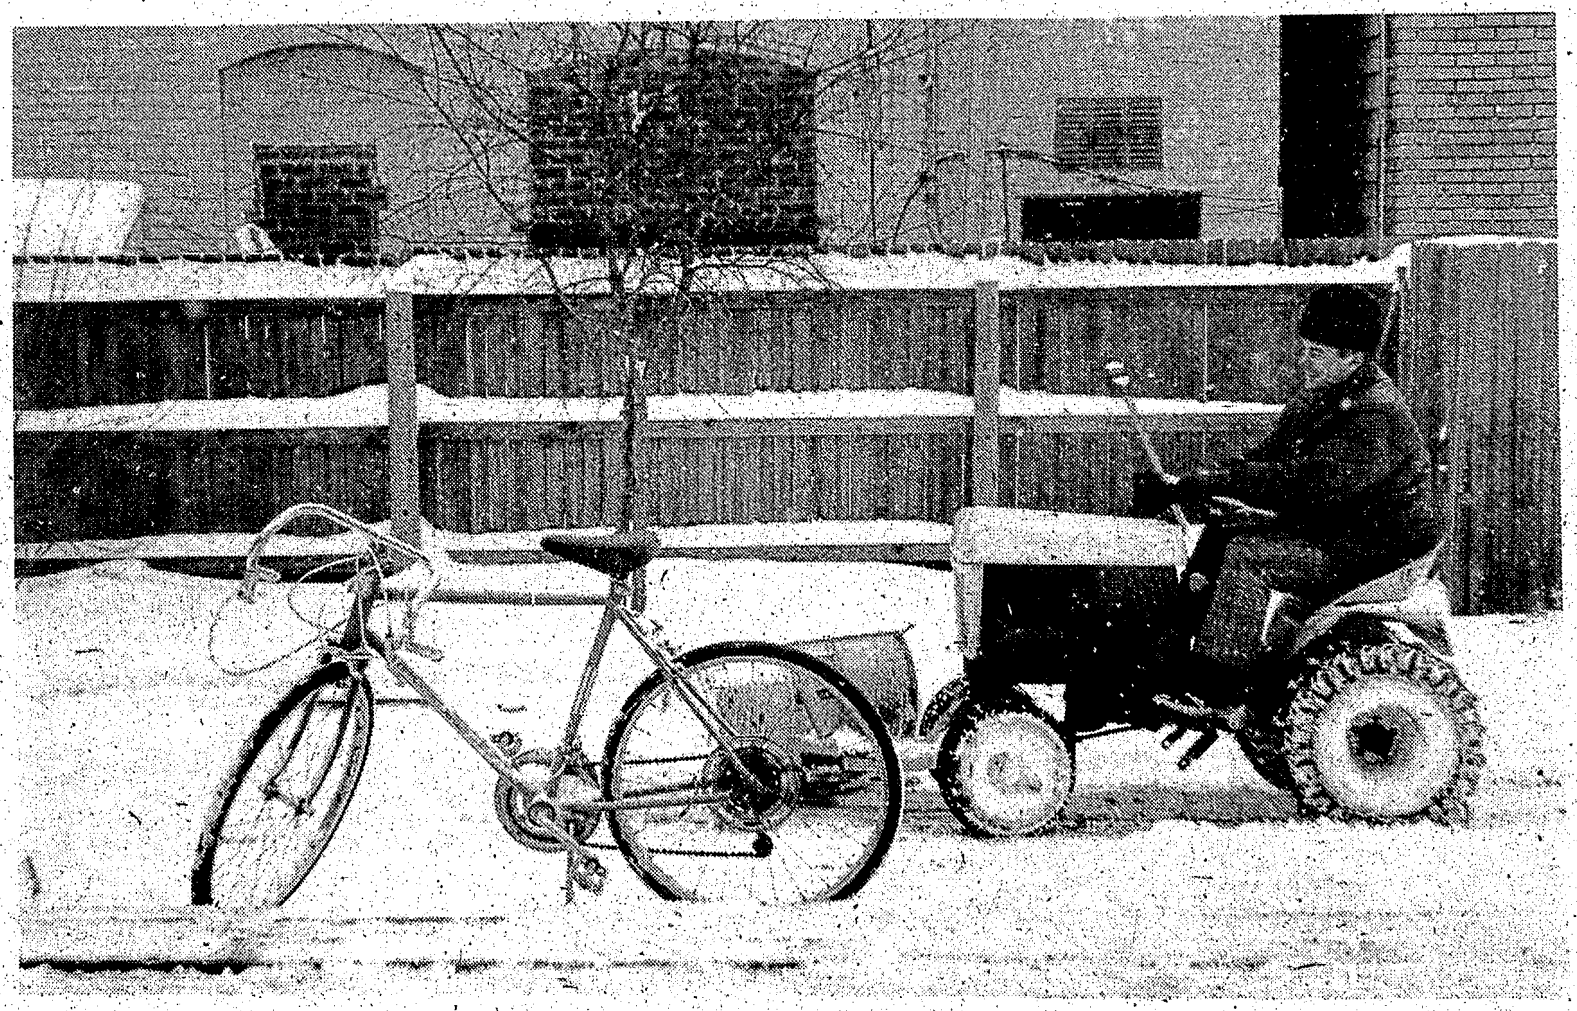

Classroom teachers are to present the awards to the winning pupils each week.

"We've always had a negative means--like if you don't behave, you'll get five days off the bus and the kids who don't behave get all the attention," said Aninos. "Now we'll have a way to give recognition to the good kids."

About 18 of the 40 school bus drivers are participating in the certificate program scheduled to begin after spring break.

"Once the other drivers see how it's working, they'll probably get involved as well," Aninos said.

Vision of spring

When about six inches of the cold, white stuff fell on Clarkston, a bicycle is buried at the home of Bill Basinger, Washington Street, Clarkston. The bike is rescued and Bill tackles the job of clearing the driveway. Although covered with snow, the bike is a hopeful sign of the coming springtime..

Goat update

In case you've been wondering whatever happened to Herkimer and Matilda, here's the answer. The two goats given to unsuspecting Independence Township residents after the first two annual Goat Votes sponsored by the Clarkston Village Players are now parents of twin kids. The goats were given to Alvin and Iva Sommers Caverly by the winners, because the Caverlys, who live on Waldon Road, have enough land to take care of the pair-turned-quadruple. The twins were born Feb. 11. Gathering around one of the twins are [from left] Alvin Caberly, Stanley Bloecker, Matt Lapinski and Michelle Haskins.

Alexanders pursue balanced life

Country Living
by Pat Braunagel

Twenty-two years ago, Betty Alexander agreed to try changing her diet as a possible way to cure some of her physical problems.

Today, she and her family are so involved, not only in natural foods, but in alternative life approaches they see as related, that they have established the Balanced Life Farm at their Springfield Township home.

There Betty teaches classes in natural foods, natural childbirth preparation and yoga.

She and her husband Paul, a certified massage therapist, recently became first-degree Reiki healers, having learned where to place their hands on an ailing body to permit "a transfer of cosmic or universal energy."

The Japanese healing method involving the laying on of hands is over 2,500 years old. Healing energy, Paul noted, can be transmitted like light waves.

It's a concept which comes as a natural extension of the Alexanders' use of reflexology, in which the head, feet and hands are manipulated to cure corresponding parts of the body.

The outside of the sole, of a foot, for instance, is identified as controlling the spine. It's a good place for anyone to massage if they are tired or tense, Betty said.

Betty noted that at this time in her life, it seems that "all things are coming together."

She is gratified to see so many people changing their lifestyles to place emphasis on their health through good diet and exercise.

The physician who convinced her to change her diet to relieve her hypoglycemic symptoms was an obstetrician who was an adherent of natural childbirth.

The Alexanders used natural childbirth methods in increasing degrees for delivery of their four children.

Betty said instruction she gives could be followed by the LaMaze courses during a pregnancy.

Their interest in natural foods led the Alexanders to join the Federated Organic Clubs of Michigan.

From their subdivision home in Oak Park, where they had an organic garden about the size of a garage, the family moved out to a more rural area of Troy to expand their garden.

The next move was to a farm on Rattalee Lake Road in Springfield Township a dozen years ago.

Besides their garden, they keep a horse and assorted dogs and cats. They have had goats to keep the family supplied with milk and cheese.

They started by hanging fruit up to dry, then went to over drying, then bought a nine-tray dehydrator.

One of the persons they met in the organic gardening club a couple of decades ago was also a member of the self-realization fellowship.

In our society, we learn much about the physical body and the mind, Betty said.

"The science of the breath is an inner link between the two," she said.

Betty, who had once been in training to become a nurse, saw the relevance.

"It was like I more and more began to piece together yoga with my medical knowledge," she said.

A yoga teacher for many years, Betty had a yoga record published in 1971.

The Alexanders pursue the "whole earth" idea of the interrelationships which can be discovered among living things.

"I try to keep practical so I can live in society and not be extreme," Betty said.

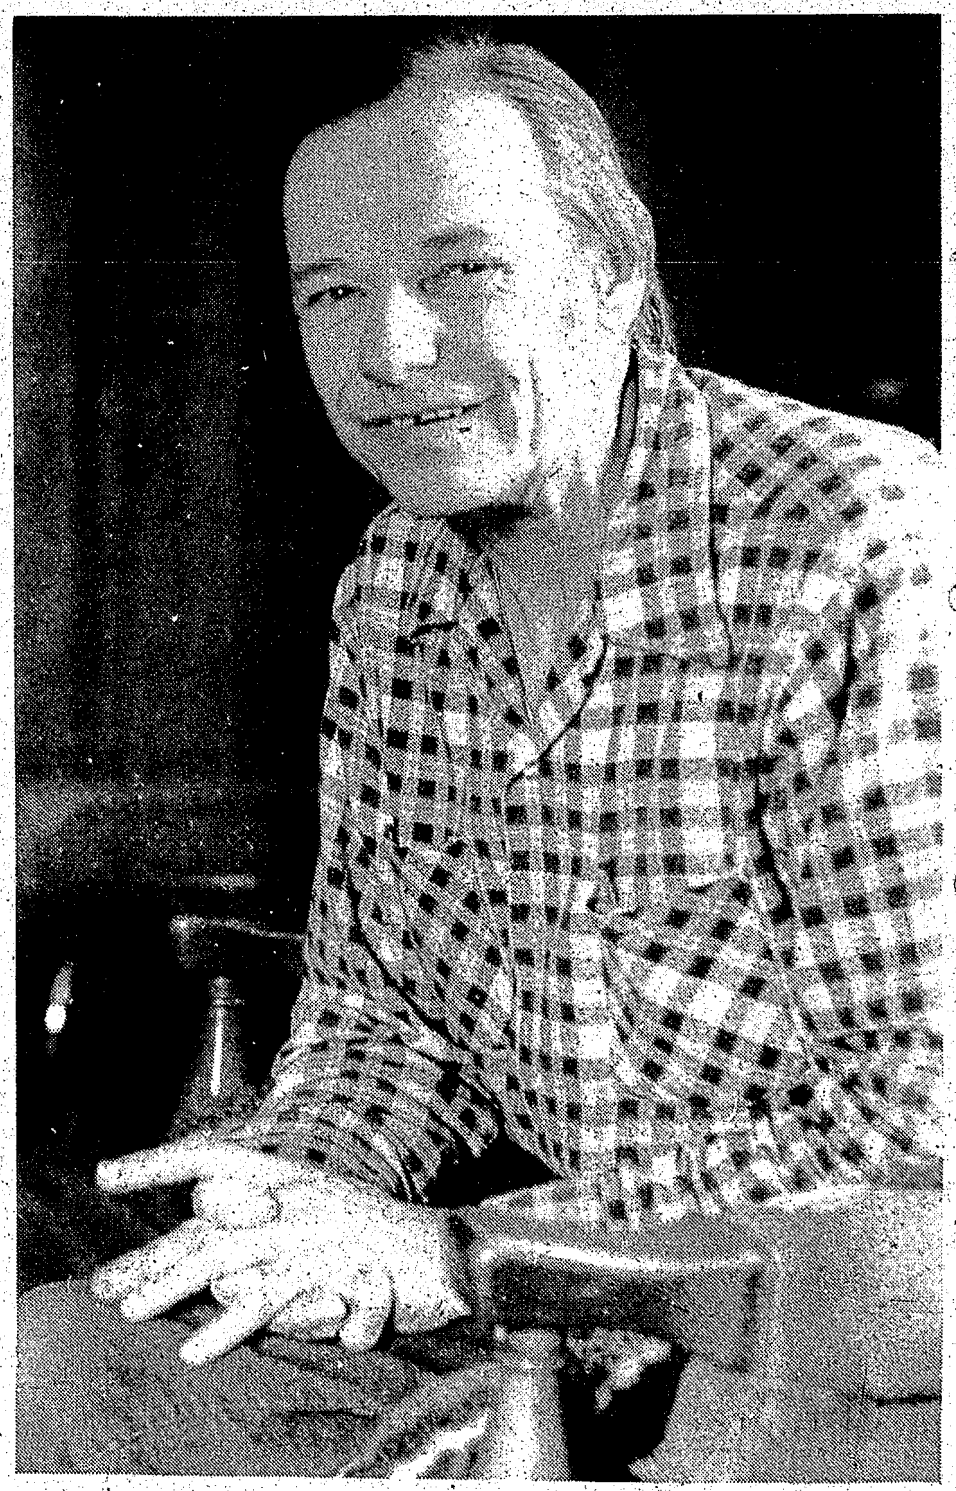

Further indicating how one thing has led to another in her life, Betty told of the demonstration dinners she gives in the preparation of natural foods.

This led her to sell cookware.

"It's the only cookware I've found that doesn't destroy the life force in vegetables," she said.

For Betty Alexander, conversion to a natural-foods diet was the first of many steps into an alternate lifestyle.

Paul, a massage therapist, recently earned his first degree in Reiki healing. The idea of allowing his hands to be transmitters of a universal healing energy is one Paul said he can apply to his work.

Marc Hewko and Jean Smart sing a duet for their part of the show. The pair are co-hosts of the talk show that explores "Entertainment, Now and Then" with the help of the Sashabaw Junior High School chorus. The show is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, March 18, and Wednesday, March 19, at the SJHS gymnasium, 5565 Pine Knob, Independence Township. The show traces the history of entertainment from the early 1900s to the present with experiences of the talk show guests—an aspiring actress played by Caroline Wampfler, a shy cameraman Tony Rafferty, old-time sportscaster Mike Clem, and Miranda Morales

Where to find Neighborhood Interest in Clarkston.

Neighborhood Interest is providing all the banking services you need under one roof.

And providing them in a courteous, professional manner. That way of doing business is what we call Neighborhood Interest. And we think it makes doing business with us a little more pleasant.

Three ways to get no-service-charge checking:

1) With $175 minimum in your checking account, or
2) With a $500 average balance in your checking account, or
3) With a $500 average balance in your regular savings account.

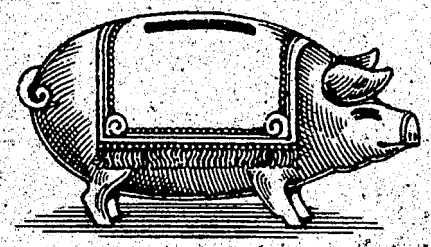

High interest on regular savings accounts.
5-1/4% is the highest bank interest rate allowable on regular savings accounts. You'll find it here.

Convenient automatic savings.
When you want an amount transferred from your checking account to your savings account, we will do it for you, automatically. This is a great way to help you save more.

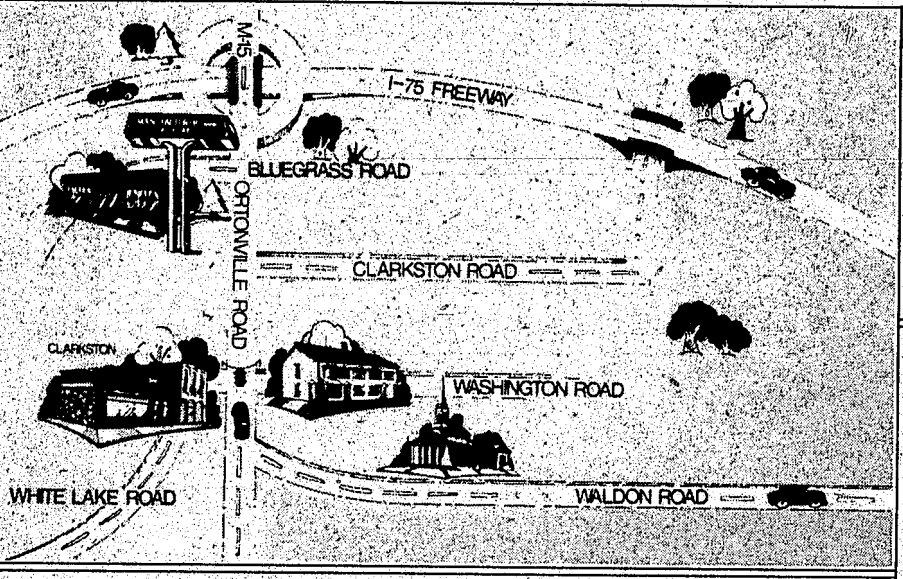

Automatic loan payment.
All of our loan payments can be automatically deducted from your checking account or savings account every month. Just authorize it... and it's done.

Cash Line.
Have you ever wished you could write yourself a loan? Well, with Cash Line, you can. It works two ways: Cash Line can be combined with your checking account to provide you with overdraft protection. Or, with special checks provided by the bank, you can write yourself a "loan" directly from your Cash Line line of credit. Either way, it's a great convenience.

Six-month Money Market Time Deposits: the new way to save more.
For a minimum investment of $10,000, our 26-week time deposit will net you the highest rate of interest currently available on short-term savings deposits. If you compare, you'll find that no bank or savings and loan gives you a higher interest rate than we do on Money Market Time Deposits. And, at your request, we will pay you your interest monthly.

You'll also save more because you're offered more ways to save. We have a large selection of savings plans—one is sure to be right for you. We'll be happy to help you find that perfect plan.

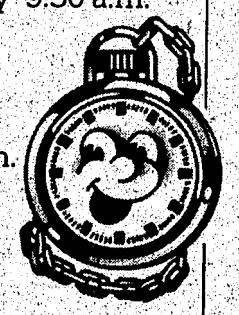

Visit our new Clarkston office of Manufacturers Bank of Southfield.

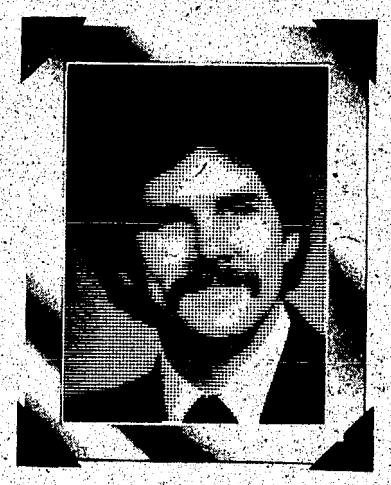

We're thrilled to be doing business in Clarkston, and we're looking forward to serving you. Just stop in and let us go to work for you. We'll do it in a way that says: "We care about your business."

We're at 7199 Ortonville Road. Two blocks south of the Ortonville exit of I-75. Be sure to come by, through the Bluegrass Road entry. That's the way to enter into the newest financial arrangement in town.

Neighborhood Interest is being there when you need us.

HOURS:
Monday-Thursday 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.
Friday 9:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.
Saturday 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.
Phone: 625-0011

Meet Dan O'Connor.
Dan is here for one reason... to serve you. And he and his staff do it in a professional, courteous manner you may not have found at other banks. Stop in and introduce yourself.

Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal of a time deposit and prohibit the compounding of interest on a Money Market Time Deposit.

Ann's ark

by Ann Glenn

A recipe fit for canines

The dog food dilemma: I have had several calls about dog food, what to feed Bowser, which brand is best?

The multi-million-dollar pet food business does try to please the "eye" of the purchasers, if not the intestines of the literal consumer!

It seems that "Consumer Report" has not tackled this business, nor has a Ralph Nader group, or even the American Veterinary Association, so we may be somewhat in the dark!

My biggest concern about pet foods are the color additives to please the eye of the beholder, the preservatives, BHA and BTH and the nitrates and nitrites.

These additives are dangerous to humans and to our mammal friends.

Another concern is the crude protein level; crude protein does not mean utilizable protein!

I used a concentrated food which has high utilizable protein and carbohydrate and therefore reduces the amount of stool. Iamms Eukanuba and Science Diet are two such products.

There are several health food varieties available if you can find them in the health food stores.

They have no additives and are low-heat-processed to not damage the vitamins. Cornucopia and Noah's Ark are two brands.

The question of dry-versus-canned dog food is almost one of personal preference.

With canned foods, try to find one without nitrates and without supplements, because the latter are damaged during the in-can cooking process.

Adding vitamins can then be done on an individual-needs basis. A good powdered vitamin purchased from your vet or the health food store is the easiest.

I sprinkle kelp, nutritional yeast, and vitamins A and C on the dry food that I feed my dogs.

Another problem with commercial foods is that often the individual needs of the dog cannot be met, although some companies are putting out different types for different age groups.

Generally the protein content should be cut down after the first four or five years to ease the strain on the kidneys.

My dogs do get a few human treats: occasional cottage cheese, eggs, whole wheat toast regularly for breakfast, an occasional vegetable, fresh and cooked, and a chunk of fresh meat once in awhile.

Never give sweets! As for people, there is no food value, only empty calories and danger to teeth and gums! A dog bisquit, a rawhide chew, or a very sturdy marrow bone are good for teeth and gums.

You can make an economical ration which will be better than most commercial foods.

Dogs need five times the amount of protein per pound of body weight that humans need.

Here is a recipe:

5 pounds "dog meat" from the butcher or packing plant; 2½ pounds rolled oats and/or cracked wheat; 2½ teaspoons di-calcium phosphate; Enough water to cover the mixture.

Simmer on low heat for 30 to 40 minutes. (This is necessary because dogs do not digest raw grain.) Divide into serving-size portions and freeze.

Serve with vitamin supplement.

Cooked vegetables can be added—soy or corn accoring to your dog's weight and age needs. Added fat is also possible.

I will present a few more self preparations from the American Kennel Gazette in the next article.

Tax tips

By George Bennett

Credits for saving energy

The residential energy credit (a credit is a direct reduction of the amount of tax you owe) is allowed for amounts spent on the installation of insulation or other energy-conserving equipment at your principal residence.

You may qualify for up to $300 of credit against 1979 taxes for the installation of insulation, storm windows or doors, caulking or weather stripping, clock thermostats, furnace ignition systems, automatically operated flue dampers, or furnace replacement burners which are designed to achieve a reduction in the amount of fuel consumed.

The credit for energy conservation does not apply to new residences substantially completed after April 19, 1977, or to fireplaces, heat pumps, exterior siding, carpets, drapes, wood paneling, or other decorative items.

The residential energy credit is computed on Form 5695 by taking 15 percent of your energy conservation costs up to the $300 maximum credit allowable.

Homeowners are eligible for the maximum credit each time they change principal residences, and renters who make these qualifying expenditures also are eligible for the credits.

Credits in excess of 1979 taxes may be carried forward to 1980.

An additional credit of up to $2,200 is available for new equipment which uses or transmits solar, wind, or geothermal energy ("renewable energy source property").

Brothers Robert Clark and Keean Selbee take to cross-country skis and glide into downtown Clarkston, helping one neighbor near their Green Haven Drive, Independence Township, home push a car out of the snow on the way. The boys and their father stop for a snack in town and are last seen heading toward home.

Snow challenge met

"I dreaded this snow," says Bill Basinger of Washington Street, Clarkston as he shovels . . . and shovels . . . and shovels to clear the porch and sidewalk around his home.

Jerome Barry of Main Street, Clarkston, is caught by surprise in the big snow storm and ends up clearing his windshield with his gloved hand.

Profile of Progress

To some, progress can be symbolized by the equipment on a construction site, while others see a commitment to preservation as real progress. Whether it be by leaps and bounds or in an orderly fashion, growth is occurring in this area. The Clarkston News talked with a variety of community shapers to present this special supplement. Realty World/D. S. Carpenter goal-oriented

All of her life, Shirley Carpenter has been a woman with a goal.

Years ago, she looked forward to opening a real estate office and becoming a broker. Today, with Realty World D.S. Carpenter Inc. this goal has been accomplished.

Now her goal is to open branch offices. So far, she has opened one in Brandon Township. One has the feeling the attainment of her goal is not too far in the future.

Before opening her Realty World office eight years ago, Ms. Carpenter worked for Forrest Milzow, a local builder. Milzow encouraged her to strike out on her own.

Realty World is affiliated with Vintage Construction Co. and is also active with Michigan State Housing Development Authority, which is a state program helping low income families purchase homes with lower interest rates.

Shirley Carpenter is compassionate to the needs of the lower income families, especially young people just getting a start in life. She believes it is important to help these young people in the purchase of their first home.

The firm's portable computer can quickly obtain market values, amortization schedules, commercial sales values and other information.

A computer sits in the Realty World office and can be taken into homes and offices to help gather information needed during real estate transactions. This portable machine can quickly obtain market values, amortization schedules, commercial sales values and other information.

Both residential and commercial sales are handled at Realty World by Ms. Carpenter and her crew of 14 sales people. They belong to the multiple listing service and are members of the North Oakland County Board of Realtors.

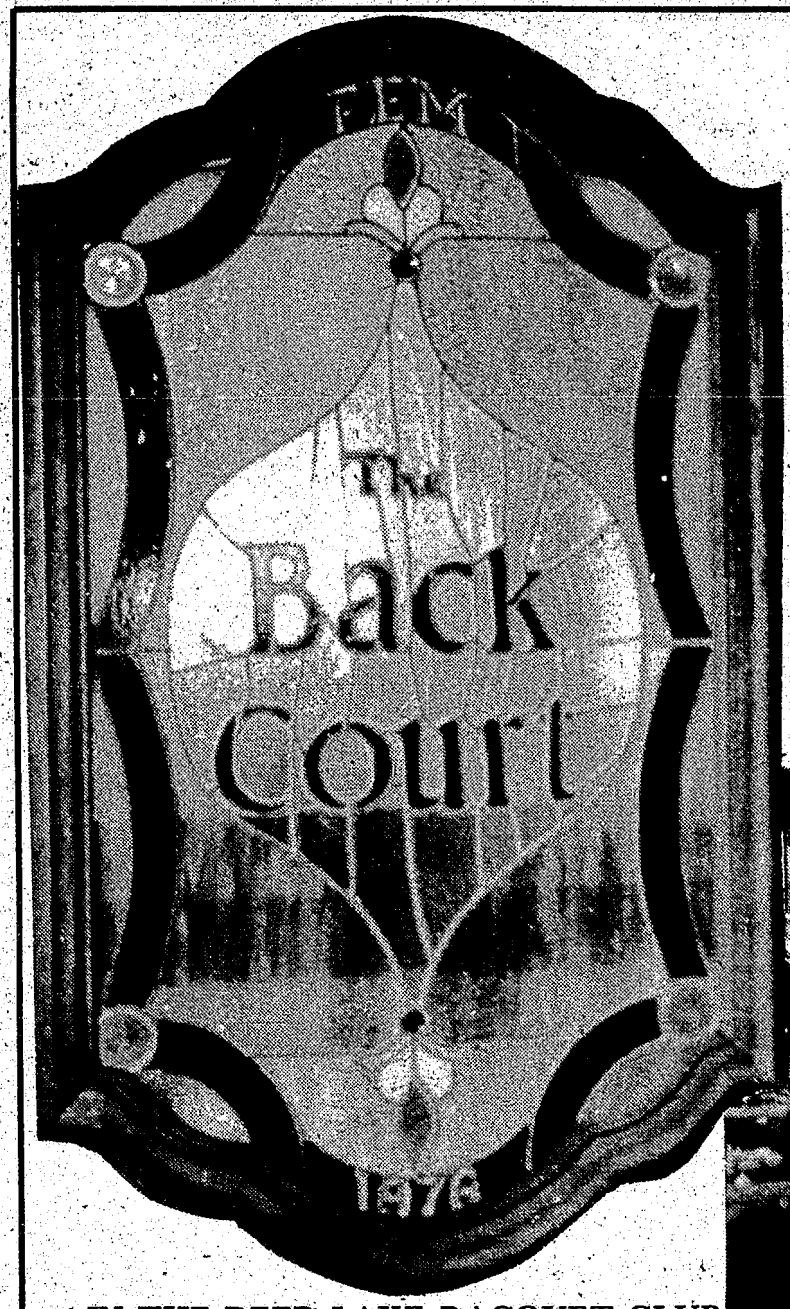

Ms. Carpenter is constantly working to improve services at Realty World. Through constant efforts, she believes she has an excellent closing department.

"I constantly ask others...'what can I do to make this easier and more efficient?' The staff and I attend lectures and meetings, all of them aimed toward making us more professional, more competent."

A natural talent for business management and mathematics has helped Shirley Carpenter attain her present position, she believes.

Before going into real estate, she was a credit manager for Montgomery Ward and worked on profit-and-loss statements for General Motors.

Ritter's has year-round harvest time

Fifty years in the produce business is being celebrated this year at Ritter's Farm Market at 6684 Dixie Highway, Independence Township.

Back in the 30s, Kevin Ritter began selling produce in an "Open Air" market, becoming more and more successful as the years went by.

Today, two of those 12 are still in the produce business. Kevin Ritter, Jr. owns Ritter's Farm Market in Waterford Township. Tom Ritter is owner of the Ritter's Farm Market in Independence Township.

Tom Ritter took over the Independence Township market in 1966 and built the next structure in 1972, enclosing the business and expanding it into a year-round activity.

Two years ago, a picturesque apple and cider barn was added. Cider and doughnuts have been an autumn specialty since then, with the doughnuts made fresh daily.

The market is busy throughout the changing seasons, with mouth-watering displays of a variety of fruits and vegetables, hauled in daily in the big Ritter's truck. Tom Ritter or his wife Karen are often at the cash register themselves, as customers select fresh produce or choose from the many bargains in the dairy and grocery departments.

Ritter's plans for the future include a delicatessen department featuring fresh lunch meats, a wide variety of cheeses and bakery products. The Apple and Cider Barn Doughnuts, such a delight every autumn, will soon be available every day for Ritter's customers.

Ritter, president of the Business Association of Independence Township, believes the Clarkston area is an "envied place" among other communities.

"It has been developed well. Unlike other places, it has had the proper planning, good control of development and a good balance between different factions, residential and business, kinds of business and so on," he said.

Since two of the 12 Ritter children went into political life, the entire Ritter family is civic-conscious and aware.

"It's good to have a business in Clarkston," Tom Ritter concludes, "because it is a growing, prospering community."

Claudia Jakus of Clarkston Travel can make your next trip worry-free by handling all of those bothersome details.

Clarkston Travel makes trips worry-free

Everyone enjoys a vacation.

It doesn't take much coaxing to send most of us scurrying for tickets to travel to the beaches of Acapulco, the tropical delights of Hawaii, the excitement of Las Vegas, the fabled streets of Rome.

Clarkston Travel enables you to enjoy these trips and others like them without the irritation of long phone calls, lists of endless details and aggravating problems with hotel reservations, etc. With Clarkston Travel, you can enjoy that effortless vacation...at no extra cost!

A visit to Clarkston Travel and you're on your way, winging toward the destination of your choice. All the details are handled by Claudia Jakus and her husband, Ray.

Claudia Jakus spent the past 14 years in the travel business, working at travel agencies in other locations. Two and one-half years ago, she and her husband opened the Clarkston bureau.

"We saw a need for it in this area," she explained.

Claudia Jakus manages the business during the week. Her husband helps out on Saturdays whe he is not busy with his regular job at Larden Plastics in Springfield Township.

"A travel bureau acts as agents for the airlines, the tour companies and the cruise ships," she said. "It costs the customer no extra money to use our services. We earn a commission from those who engage us as agents."

She went on to explain various economical vacation packages.

"We sell charter programs, known as tours, to well-known resort areas. These tours include airfare, hotel accommodations, transfers and many other extras.

"We also offer packages at a reduced rate to any vacation area in the world. These are not group tours, but are individually packaged, and can include airfare, accommodations, car rental and much more.

"There are family plans on some airlines, but then it pays to sit down and weigh the various advantages of different fares. For instance, that same family might save more by selecting a Super-Saver airfare, which offers a percentage off for everyone at certain times of the year."

Claudia Jakus said that, despite inflation, folks in the Clarkston area are still travelling.

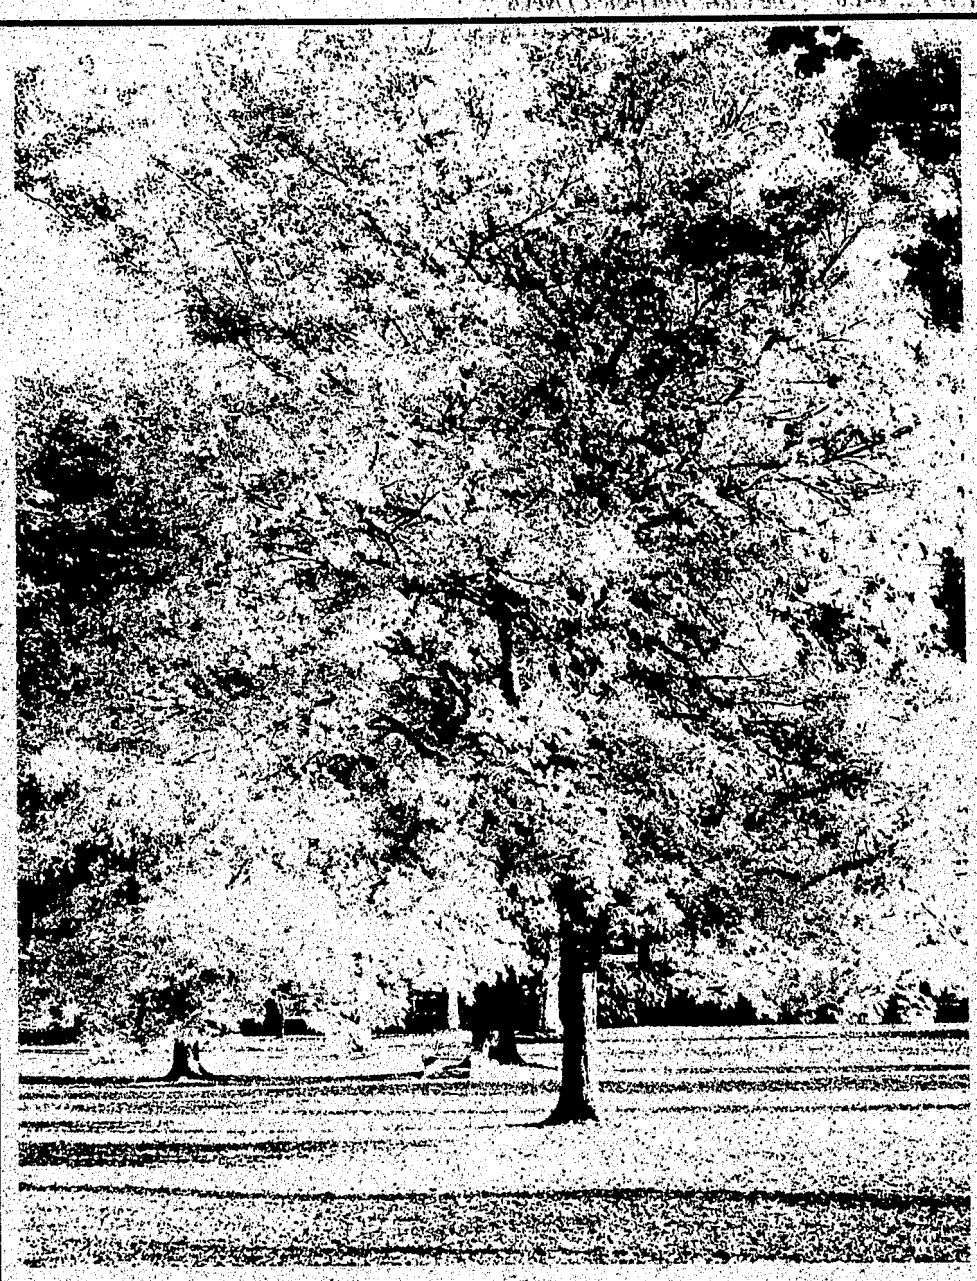

"The American people have become accustomed to the convenience of flight. It is fast and economical. Prices are up a bit, but most people still feel that flying is cheaper in the long run."

In the summertime, travelers go in all directions. Summer is the popular time to visit Europe.

Cruise ship vacations maintain a steady pace throughout the years.

Holidays are busy travel times and it is good to contact your travel agency well in advance.

At Hairstyler I, cut is secret to attractive hair

Dawn Wilmoth and Mary Lange worked together in a hair salon when they decided to open a shop of their own.

In December of 1979, they took over the management of Hairstyler I, which is located at 5219 Dixie Highway in Drayton Plains.

Mary Lange has been licensed for 23 years. Dawn Wilmoth has had her cosmetologist's license for six years.

Together, they have combined the beauty and excitement of today's modern styling with traditional courtesy and old-fashioned personal service. The combination is successful, as their customers can testify.

Hairstyler I caters to entire families. Men, women and children come to the shop for styling, with many modern men taking advantage of the new permanents.

Later, when the owners have become settled in their new business, they intend to add manicures and make-up to the services they offer.

This is the era of "individual" hairstyling, according to the owners of Hairstyler I.

A beautician today is apt to run the gamut of styling in a day's time, creating everything from a short, easy-to-care-for cut which will fall into place with just a shampoo and a whisk of the blow dryer...to an elaborately soft upswept coiffure, falling into deceptively casual tendrils about the face.

Today's stylist must be educated and informed. In the changing modern world, hairstyling can undergo almost overnight changes. The stylist must keep abreast of styles and techniques.

The importance of a good haircut cannot be overemphasized, the stylists at Hairstyler I say. With an expert cut, the hair will fall naturally into place and always look attractive.

Besides the two owners, there are stylists Debbie and Linda at Hairstyler I.

As months go by, both Dawn Wilmoth and Mary Lange are happy that they selected the Drayton Plains location for their shop.

"The people have been very good to us," said Lange. "We couldn't have been made to feel more welcome.

"We had another location selected, then when we heard this spot was open, we decided to take it. We're both glad we did."

CHIROPRACTIC . . . THE NATURAL WAY

Like every Doctor of Chiropractic, Dr. Paul Rumph has a commitment to the health care of the community.

"You must let people know that you care about them as people and that you have their best health interests at heart," says Dr. Rumph. "You must answer all of their questions with understanding and not with a lot of sophisticated language."

Doctor Rumph is always ready to explain health problems in simple, down-to-earth terms. He'll inform you, not confuse you.

And he'll fully explain the chiropractic principle which details how the brain generates powerful lifegiving energy and sends it down the spinal cord, which is housed by the spinal column. The energy then is sent out the spinal nerves to all parts of the body. These life-giving nerve impulses supply the energy required by the body to carry on its normal functional activities.

The body functions properly only if the nerve channels are free and unobstructed. Nerve interference is caused when one or more of the 24 moveable vertebrae is thrown out of its normal alignment.

This misalignment, known as subluxation, can be caused by a sudden jar or jerk. Even nervous tension can twist and contort the spine, causing an interrupted flow of nerve energy.

The Rumph Chiropractic Clinic is a multifaceted clinic designed to meet the varied health needs of today.

Progressive diagnostic tools and x-ray equipment are an important part of the facilities provided for the thorough examination of each patient. Up-to-date adjusting rooms and equipment enable Dr. Rumph to do the most for each patient.

For the victims of acute injuries or illness, the day care facility is always available. The waiting area also serves as a resource center where patients share their progress and take advantage of the materials available to learn about chiropractic and natural health care.

Lamson Pools a natural

Although Sandy and Bob Lamson opened their new Lamson Pools location just six months ago, they're experienced hands at the swimming pool business.

"My husband has been building pools for 12 years, running the business out of our home before we opened this store," Sandy Lamson says. "It's a family-run business, with our three sons working with their dad and our daughter planning on helping me with the bookkeeping this summer."

Pools have long been a part of her husband's life. "He was a swimmer in high school, and when the opportunity came along to get involved in the pool business, he just naturally was interested."

Bob and Sandy Lamson's son Larry goes about some of the tasks necessary to prepare for the busy summer season at Lamson Pools in Waterford Township.

Besides installing in-ground swimming pools, Lamson Pools also sells a complete line of pool equipment, accessories and chemicals, pool side furniture and indoor-outdoor spas.

Located on 5433 Dixie Highway in Waterford Township, Lamson Pools closed temporarily for the winter on Dec. 22 and will reopen for regular business on April 1.

The family is currently busy preparing for the peak summer season.

"There's a lot of preparation and salesmen to contact," she says, adding that she had just recently sold a pool.

Despite a rather sluggish economy and more of the same predicted in the near future, the Lamsons are optimistic about business this summer and don't see economic doldrums affecting pool sales.

"People who buy a pool usually plan and save for a long time," she says. "Those who were planning to buy a pool this summer are probably already in the position to do it. It's a lifelong investment, something you never have to replace.

"Plus, with the cost of gas still going up, it only makes sense to invest in something right in your own backyard that you can enjoy without leaving home. A swimming pool is something the whole family can use and enjoy."

Precision cuts at Hair Scene

Precision cuts, geometric cuts, blow-drys, permanents and hair coloring are the big news for both men and women in hairstyling and the Hair Scene's stylists keep abreast of the latest in fashionable, easy-to-maintain coiffures.

The Hair Scene is located at Harvard Plaza and is owned by stylist Sandi Rafferty who has 13 years experience as a cosmotologist.

Natural coloring is another speciality and the stylists say men need no longer be reluctant to try that new shade of hair.

"Most of our customers return again and again," said Salley Benefiel. "We get to know them and each time they come in, it's like a visit between friends. We like to know our customers are satisfied and help them find hairstyles they look good in and can feel comfortable wearing.

"Men aren't embarrassed about having permanents or coloring their hair anymore. They want to look their best and we encourage them in this."

All you need to know in Real Estate.™

NCOA is The Non-Commissioned Officers Association of the United States of America

Nationwide realty service now being offered to all members

SAN ANTONIO, TX — ERA Real Estate (Electronic Realty Associates, Inc.), the newest NCOA sponsored service, is the nation's second largest real estate franchise organization and number one marketer of home protection plans.

Since April 1972, when ERA Real Estate started with 18 Brokers, the company has vaulted to the top of its field by offering such exclusive consumer services as the Home Buyers Protection Plan and Home Sellers Protection, two programs which cover the major components of the home, and photo-by-wire listings.

ERA CARES

ERA Real Estate also has established itself as a company that cares. In just three years, ERA Real Estate will have raised over $2 million for the "Fight Against Muscular Dystrophy." ERA Real Estate is the only corporate sponsor of the Muscular Dystrophy Association from the entier real estate industry.

"We are pleased to help people buy and sell their homes and alleviate the trauma of moving; provide Realtors across the country with money-making ideas and programs; and to contribute something for the betterment of mankind," said ERA Real Estate President Jim Jackson.

By the end of 1979, ERA Real Estate will have 3,000 Brokers and 40,000 sales associates in 4,000 offices in all 50 states who prominently display the ERA trademark. ERA Real Estate Brokers do more than $12 billion in real estate sales annually.

FILLS VOID

ERA Real Estate was founded by Jackson to fill a void in the real estate market. Brokers could take advantage of their local multiple listing services to find homes for buyers in the immediate area. But there were no listings for homes elsewhere in the country.

Since 40 million people or 14 million families move each year, the need for a national network of real estate brokers linked to a central computer with thousands of listings available was evident.

"Before ERA Real Estate," Jackson said, "nationwide referrals were unorganized and loosely controlled. A Person moving long distance has to travel back and forth to find the right home, and there was no one who could make the search easier."

The ERA Real Estate "Moving Machine" has changed all that. The "Moving Machine" (so named because it helps people move) transmits six photos at a time of homes and descriptive data to prospective buyers practically anywhere in the country. The transmission takes only six minutes from the time the request is made to the central bank of homes on file at ERA Real Estate headquarters in Overland Park, Kansas. More than 50,000 active listings are on file and more than 3.6 million photos have been transmitted since 1972.

DEVELOPS PLANS

Realizing the tremendous investment both the buyer and seller have in a home, Jackson developed the two home protection plans. By the end of 1979, more than $8 billion worth of homes will be covered under the two warranties and in excess of $7.5 million in claims will have been paid by ERA Real Estate to home buyers and sellers.

Under the ERA Real Estate Home Buyers Protection Plan, the buyer is protected for one year against the operational failure of that home's central heting, electric air conditioning, plumbing and electrical systems, the wall, floor or heating units, built-in appliances, water heaters, softeners, and accessible sheet metal ducts which were in good operating condition at the time of the sale. Homeowners pay only a preselected deductible charge per service call.

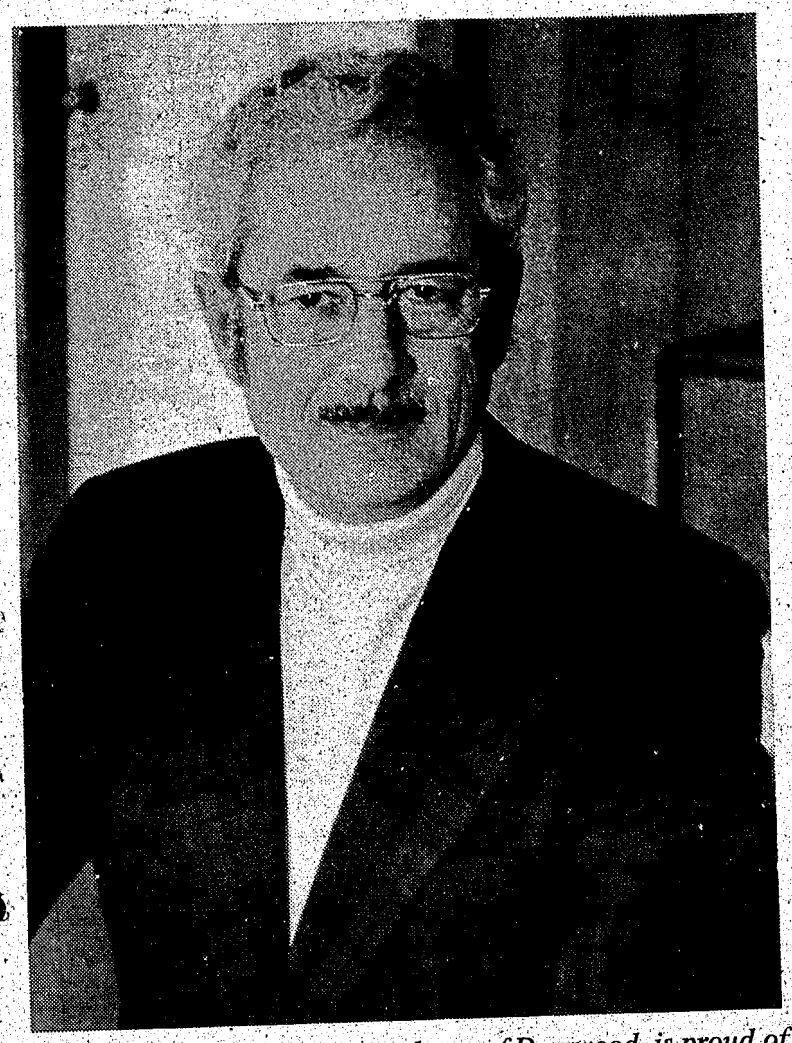

Home Sellers Protection coverage begins 15 days after the home is listed for sale with an ERA Real Estate for repairs after a preselected deductible charge is paid by the seller per service call.

"Both plans take a lot of headaches out of buying and selling a home," Jackson said. "When a buyer or seller calls and complains that his heating system went out, he knows we will take care of the problem as soon as possible because the system is covered by the warranty. The two protection plans are basically peace of mind for the home buyer and seller.

Another major reason for the continuing success of ERA Real Estate is its extensive training program provided for Brokers and sales associates. They are instructed on how to utilize the complete range of ERA Real Estate marketing tools during a 2½-day seminar held monthly at the ERA Realty Institute in Kansas City, MO. The Sales Trainer's Academy, held throughout the country, taches ERA Real Estate office managers how to train and motivate their sales associates in becoming more successful. The new ERA Real Estate Management Seminar defines the function of management and how to get the most from personnel to meet future plans of the country.

This is an open invitation to visit the offices of the local ERA representative, SHOWCASE REALTY, and let us show you how our unique "Moving Machine" works. Call or stop in anytime, the coffee is always on. 674-0444.

subdivision for elementary ... located."

John Helveston, owner and developer of Deerwood, is proud of the homes in the first phase of development and is now selling lots in the second phase.

Deerwood home for its builders

The three builders constructing many of the custom-built homes at Deerwood, just north of the village of Clarkston near Cranberry Lake, live there. Owner and developer John Helveston considers this a tribute to Deerwood, which is located on 350 acres of land.

Deerwood eventually will be divided into 550 spacious lots. The first phase of the development, involving 118 of these lots, is almost completed, with just 15 lots remaining for sale. The second phase is now beginning, with 126 lots available, ranging from a third of an acre in size to a half acre.

Deerwood is located on hilly, wooded acreage...formerly farmland...with an elevation of from 1,050 feet above sea level to 1,230 feet. Landscaping and architecture in all three phases of the development will be carefully controlled, with no two homes alike in the entire subdivision.

The builders active in the second phase will be Stylemaster Building Co., with Joseph Noll; Old Colony Homes, with Richard McLaughlin; and Charter Oak Homes, with Paul and Howard Bourdon. Lot owners can use the services of these builders or bring in custom builders of their own selection.

Deerwood features sanitary sewers, paved streets, storm sewers, community water, underground utility wires, garbage pick-ups and mail and newspaper delivery. School buses are routed through the subdivision for elementary school children.

All natural materials are encouraged in Deerwood subdivision buildings. No aluminum siding is allowed. Homes have exteriors with the warmth of wood, the earthiness of brick or other natural materials.

For instance, if a field was dug up and had to be re-seeded, it was done with a new mixture of wild grasses, flowers and, yes, even weeds...restoring the field to its original natural state.

One feature of Deerwood's second phase is unique, according to Helveston. Most of the lots, he explained, are north-and south-oriented, which makes them ideal for both active and passive solar systems.

"Solar heating has been perfected for hot water heating," he explained. "You can save a large percentage of your fuel bill with this kind of heat. If the lot-owners wish to do so, they can take advantage of these lots in Deerwood to save in this manner."

Helveston, who is from Saginaw, is proud of the homes he has developed in Deerwood's first phase. Today's developers work hard to preserve the natural beauty of the land, he said.

"A home is an investment you want to look upon with pride," he said. "The homes in Deerwood have enhanced the value of the area where they are located."

McAnnally staff has knowledge, understanding

A lovable cartoon character named Lookie Loo is mascot at McAnnally Realtors, a "munchkin-like" creature so lovable he is impossible to resist.

This cartoon mascot symbolizes the understanding and humor available at McAnnally Realtors, where Gale and Judy McAnnally provide home buyers with the finest of service.

McAnnally is affiliated with the International Real Estate Network, with offices throughout the country operating with a common purpose, the relocation of families in any part of the world.

A vast amount of research is done to provide sales personnel with knowledge of relocation needs.

At McAnnally, an audio-visual training system is used to instruct salespeople in techniques and procedures. There are more than 1,400 International Real Estate Network offices in this country, willing to help families relocate in any area they may desire.

Both Gale and Judy McAnnally are brokers, with a staff of 13 sales people and a secretary, Pat Chettleburgh, who has been with them for almost two years. The McAnnallys have three children, Blair, Bryant and Joy and have carried their understanding of youth to their business where they sponsor several Little League sports teams.

Gale McAnnally is also a builder and has worked with other area builders and developers in the sale of lots and homes. They are members of the North Oakland Board of Realtors and the Multiple Listing Service.

Gale McAnnally describes his wife as playing an important role in the business. She manages pending business matters and handles the closing department. McAnnally expects a bright future for the Clarkston area and says there is nothing more satisfying than seeing a happy customer settled in a new home.

"There's a great deal of happiness involved in the real estate business," he stated.

Timberline reflects owner's interest, enthusiasm for outdoors

Timberline Saddlery and Ski Co. has been part of the Clarkston Mills since the shopping mall opened on Clarkston's West Washington Street in 1978.

The store also features year-round clothing for the family....rugged, durable clothing in casual and western styles. There are boots, hats, shirts, scarves and the ever-popular Levi's in a multitude of sizes.

Horse lovers can find horse-care items at Timberline also. There's some tack along with the sturdy boots and clothing riders prefer.

Reared in Grosse Pointe, Remke lived in California for a few years before returning to Michigan to open his store.

He's a candid, relaxed young man who is bringing his love of the outdoors into his store. The atmosphere of Timberline has much of the great outdoors about it. There are sturdy leathers, thick woolens and plaids and rugged sports equipment.

"I like riding, skiing and golfing, things like that," Remke explained. "I have always liked these sports, and I suppose I'm a little competitive. Perhaps that's why I'm trying to succeed in business."

"But I really prefer a simple, uncluttered life. My goal is for personal achievement and happiness, not just financial success.

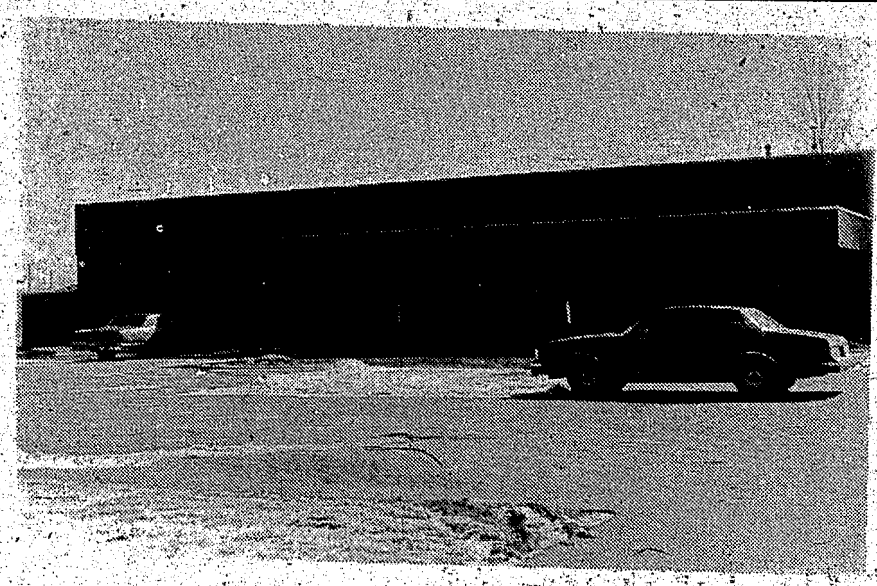

"I just want to supply the needs of the Clarkston area shopper."

"This store is always in a process of change because we are constantly trying new things--things we feel that people need and want."

"I never want it to be any different."

"Years from now, if there is some essential item a customer is trying to find, I want him to come first to Timberline."

"I want it to continue to be that kind of store."

At Merrie Miller, gifts to give or keep for home

If your bathroom is the most uninteresting room in your home, it's time for a visit to the Merrie Miller...a bath and gift shop located at Clarkston Mills.

Nancy Lawson is owner of the shop, which specializes in wall decor, accent pieces and gift items for the home. The Merrie Miller is managed by Delores Oshnock. The shop was opened in November of 1978.

Nancy Lawson credits her husband Bob for much of the shop's colorful decor. He helped build shelves and display cases and encouraged her in every way.

They have four children, Martin, who lives in Lake Orion; Brian, who is attending Michigan State University; Kelly, who is a high school student; and Corey, who is also in high school.

A fine selection of soft, colorful Fieldcrest towels is available at the Merrie Miller. There is also a large variety of Carolina soaps as well as Village Bath items, including soaps, sprays and fragrances.

There is a card rack filled with unique, different cards for all occasions and a few remaining selections of limited edition prints, which Nancy Lawson is discontinuing. A favorite item with Clarkston customers has been the decorative but comfortable Hugglo pillow...which has been featured in special sales.

Nancy Lawson and Dolores Oshnock have proven that no bathroom has to be mundane or uninteresting. A visit to the Merrie Miller will help you improve the decor of your own home...or provide you with that gift item which is both reasonably priced and different.

Successful partnership at Village Haberdashery

The shop carries reliable merchandise with well-known brand names, clothing that can be depended on for sturdy construction and stylish fit.

There are suits with labels like Oliver, Chaps and Stanley Blocker, fashionably cut from cloth of the most popular hues, from soft grey to deep wine.

Shirts from Arrow, Damon and Spire are tailored to fit well and come in a variety of colors to coordinate outfits.

And there are sweaters from Thane, knits in a multitude of patterns and solids.

Owners Dan Kelly and Dolores Priebe are on hand to greet customers. They became ecquainted when he was manager of the store and she was employed as a seamstress and alterations person.

They decided to become partners and purchased the store from its former owner.

Since the decision to form his partnership was made in September of 1979 the two have enjoyed a successful beginning as a retailing team.

They have expressed their merchandising ideas with attractive displays of choice goods in a variety of styles and colors from many fine manufacturers.

As a result, the business has enjoyed a substantial increase in volume, and the owners look forward to many years of productive partnership.

Both are enthusiastic about the Clarkston area.

"The people have been wonderful," said Dolores Priebe. "This has given us both a chance to meet and know so many wonderful people we might never have met had we not gone into business together."

Hearty harvest of seafood at Captain Dick's

A trip to Captain Dick's Seafood Market in the Waterfall Plaza can be as productive as a walk along a wharf in New England.

For those who love seafood, owners Dick Linenger and Chuck Raisanen have compiled a potential smorgasbord of fresh-and saltwater delights.

The Seafood is shipped in from Boston, Florida, Washington and Canada. The store handles retail and wholesale orders, as well as those for parties.

The specialities include frozen oysters, escargot, squid, stone crab, King crab, clams, scallops, frog legs, shrimp, perch, halibut, scrod, flounder, pickerel, white fish, monk fish, Boston blue fish, sole, haddock, cod and live lobster..

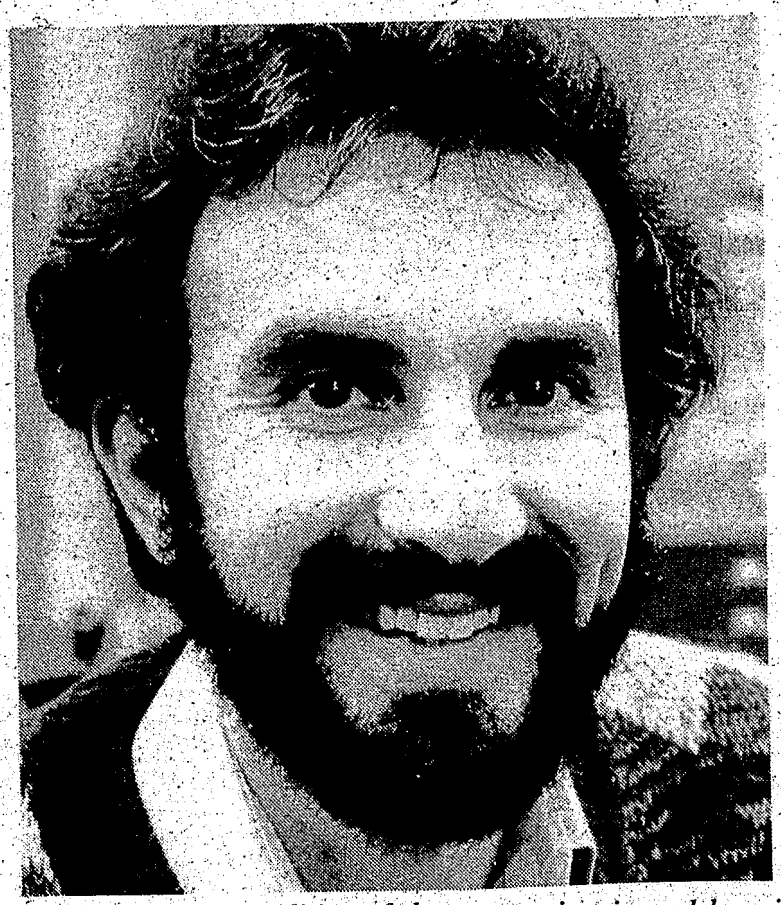

This assortment is especially selected to meet the highest standards of quality.

Large orders should be placed a day or so in advance. Wholesale orders can be filled regularly.

"The economic condition of the country is mirrored here in that development or building in general has a very relaxed posture right now. It's like a '50s kind of year—nothing much going on."—Timothy Palulian, Independence Township building and planning department director.

"I feel the northern part of our township should remian three acres or more. In fact, I feel any area zoned R1-R should stay that way with the exception of possible sewer hook-up areas. We should respect the people who live in that section of our township. We should protect their interests."—Mel Vaara, Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals chairman, member of township planning commission, assistant superintendent of Clarkston Community Schools.

"The next thing to work on is the Tisch Amendment—to get enough signatures, get it on the ballot and get everybody to vote for it. Our taxes for a year are more now than what we paid for this land and that was in 1953."—Iva Sommers Caverly, community activist, Waldon Road, Independence Township.

Nachos, tacos and more at Pancho's

Pancho's Taco House features a full line of Mexican foods, from the ever-popular nachos to the elaborate Chiles Rellenos, which is made of stuffed peppers. They also have American food, for those who do not want to venture into the Latin American variety.

Pancho's Taco House is located at Independence Commons. The restaurant was opened on Dec. 6, 1979. Owners are Nancy and Reuben Guajardo, who own another Pancho's Taco House, complete with food and liquor, at 8748 W. Vernor in Detroit.

The Guajardos have been in the restaurant business for eight years. They have a daughter, Angela.

Pancho's features a luncheon special every day. Nancy Guajardo explains that nachos and tacos remain a favorite in the area.

But more and more people, she added, are exploring the more elaborate Mexican food, such as Milanesa, which is sliced breaded steak fried and topped with a tasty sauce; nopalitos, eggs scrambled with cactus; or huevos con chorizo, eggs scrambled with Mexican sausage.

Pancho's Taco House features a different soup daily, as well as the ever-popular chile con carne. The food is not highly spiced, for the hot sauce and peppers are served as a side dish, enabling the customer to venture into these "torrid zones" at his own leisure.

Pancho's also has a Mexican chocolate drink, spiced with sugar, cinnamon and cloves . . . just the right pick-up for a tired shopper. For dessert, there are sopapillas, fried bread filled with cheese and honey; or bunuelos, a deep-fried pastry sprinkled with cinnamon and sugar.

So, if you're tired of the same old mundane menu and need that feeling of adventure, try visiting Pancho's Taco House and let the Guajardos introduce you to "south of the border" delicacies.

"One of the big changes especially with my job is the way we [the township] can invest money. When I first came in [six years ago], a good share of the money was in a checking account, but now we can invest to earn interest. That enables us to use the money we are holding to a good advantage. For the first nine months [of 1979], it's about $42,000 in interest."—Patricia Kramer, Springfield Township treasurer.

"I would like to see the historical character of the village maintained, the architectural features of the buildings on Main Street maintained and, through this preservation, maintain the unique character of the village. That's why the majority of us are here. There are a lot of people not doing much about it and that's my frustration."—Dr. Gary Symons, dentist with offices in downtown Clarkston and Clarkston Village Council member.

Shirt Shack helps customers have their say

T-shirts are fun and are the latest in "self-expression."

You can really say it all for all the world to see and, with a specially designed T-shirt, you can be as sentimental, as nostalgic, as ironic or humorous as you wish!

The Shirt Shack, as its recent advertising campaign stated, has moved onward and upward. It's new location is in front of the former spot, located right on Clarkston's Main Street.

At first, the Shirt Shack had only five colors of T-shirts in three different styles. Today, they have eight styles of shirts in a multitude of different shades, including the new roll-up sleeves. Awaiting your selection are 400 transfers, ranging the gamut of emotions.

What began as perhaps just a teen-aged 'fad' has blossomed into a pleasure for all ages. T-shirts are one way of boasting about an accomplishment, a business, an organization.

The Independence Township Fire Department ordered T-shirts from The Shirt shack, as have the Spring Lake Country Club, Haupt Pontiac, and many other organizations.

A T-shirt is the perfect gift for a birthday or at Christmas, ranking a special place in gift-giving for that "person who has everything."

Maternity T-shirts are the current news in maternity wear. "Under Construction" they blatantly announce, among other announcements heralding the expectant mother's pride in the upcoming event.

There are infants' T-shirts from birth to larger sizes, as well as bibs, with colorful decals available in nursery colors.

You can purchase a plain T-shirt and have it lettered (15 cents a letter) or you can buy a shirt with a transfer (transfer is included in the price of the shirt). Custom desgins are available as are group rates for larger orders.

Parke Realty combines expertise of pros

Dave Pittenturf and Norma Lussier worked together in a real estate office when they decided to open an agency of their own. Now, both have their broker's licenses and Parke Realty is now open on M-15 south of Clarkston.

General Manager of Parke Realty is Ray Weatherington. Three salespeople are also employed. The agency handles both residential and commercial accounts as well as investment properties.

Builder for Parke Realty is Tom LaValley, who is in the process of developing Butterfield Acres, located at Coats and Seymour Lake Rds. in Oxford Township.

Parke Realty has applied for membership in the Multiple Listing Service and is a member of the North Oakland Board of Realtors.

Dave Pittenturf has been in real estate for the past five years. Norma Lussier was a housewife and mother when she went into real estate sales nine years ago.

Now they have combined their years of experience and their mutual understanding of the community (both are long-time residents of the Clarkston area) and they look forward to years of service.

"It takes time to get settled," said Norma Lussier, indicating the offices where the new carpet was being laid. "But both Dave and I have lived and worked in this area. We believe the future will be properous and that this area will continue to grow."

Parke Realty will grow with us. We plan on giving our customers good service and will carefully select a professional, hard-working staff."

"Real estate is a business where there has always been ups and downs," added Dave Pittenturf. "But we have such faith in a bright future for this area that we have opened this new office. There is nothing more satisfying than seeing a successful completion of a sale."

Both elegant and casual accessories for the table are among the items Hazel Pill carries in the Gift Market.

Gift Market gets friendly Clarkston welcome

Hazel Pill, of the Gift Market, wants to thank the people of Clarkston for their warmth and welcome since the opening of her store on Dec. 1, 1979.

"From the beginning, the people have been wonderful," explained Ms. Pill. "They have been so enthusiastic about the store and have told us how much they like it."

"I want to take this opportunity to thank each and every one of them for the encouragement they have given me. It has made it all worthwhile."

The Gift Market is located in the lower level of Clarkston Mills. The elegant merchandise gleams with light, each shelf holding a colorful display of household treasures awaiting Clarkston area customers.

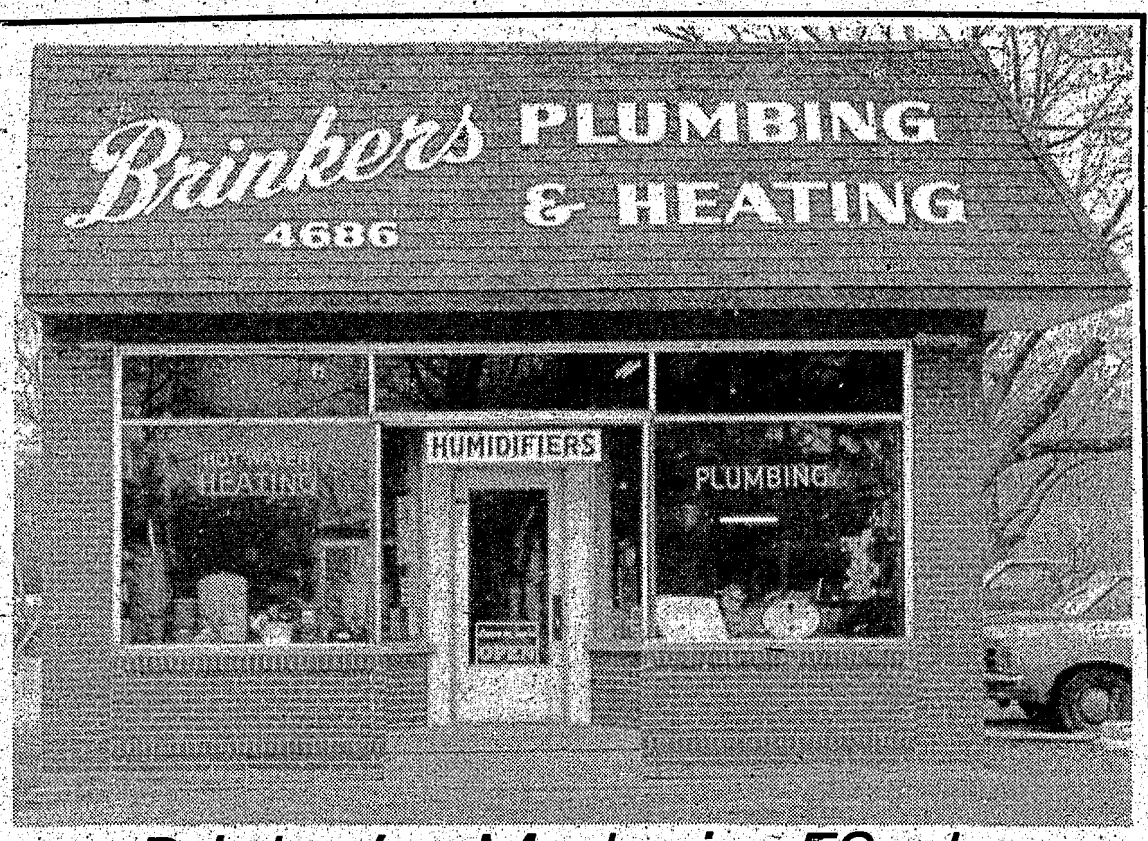

There are Fitz and Floyd dishes, Supreme cutlery, Marsh bakeware and microwave-ware, other Quart bowls, assorted cookware and kitchen utensils, solid brass items, stemware, decanters, candles, stationery and much more.

The table settings are colorful and imaginative and changeable with moods, seasons, occasions. The placemats are varied and prove that "at-home" dining can be gracious. Then, too, there are imaginative, creative items...such as "Sea Reflections" gift ware, reminiscent of a New England vacation at a quiet spot by the sea.

Coming soon at the Gift Market is a bridal registry, where brides-to-be can register the patterns they select. Hazel Pill has a large, extensive "library" of merchandisers and manufacturers.

Hazel Pill is helped on buying trips by her daughter, Sue. She also has a daughter Lisa, who lives in Dearborn; a daughter Barbara Shepherd, who lives in Northville; and a son, Bruce, who is an attorney.

Pacesetter Bank promotes understanding

"Attention to the individual" is the motto at Pacesetter Bank, where full banking services cater to and emphasize the needs of the general public rather than just the commercial bank account.

The new bank, whose home office is located in Grand Blanc, will soon be opening five new branch offices in the Oakland County area to service customers here.

The ground-breaking ceremonies in February heralded the start of construction of Independence Township's Pacesetter Bank and the grand opening is planned for late summer or early fall.

Betty Simmons is assistant vice president and branch manager.

She began her banking career as a teller right out of high school and has risen through the ranks of banking positions to the executive office she now holds, learning every facet of banking procedure along the way.

The new bank offers a full line of banking services. The new building will have several drive-in windows, plentiful parking, a spacious, comfortable lobby and an attractive exterior. Comfort and beauty will be features, with customers relaxed and at home in the pleasant atmosphere.

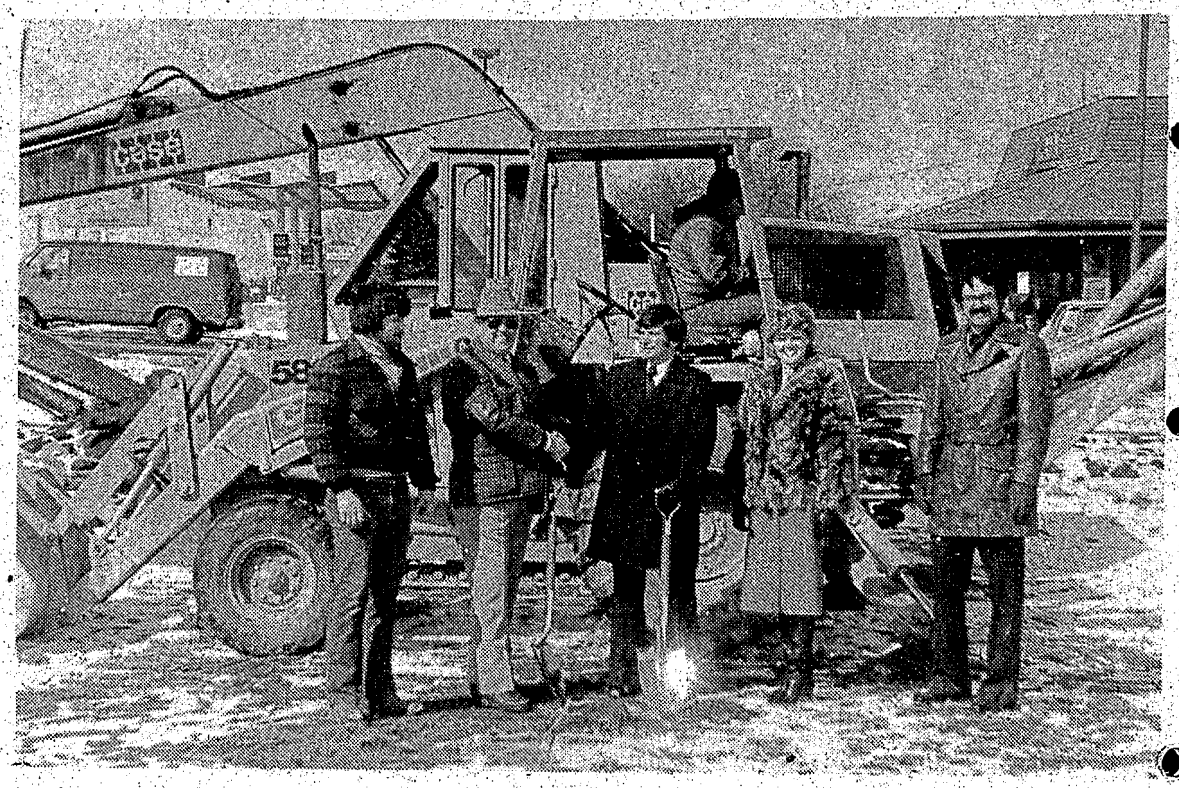

Betty Simmons feels the Clarkston area is ripe with potential and wants to promote understanding and rapport between the village and the township.

"Our bank has done a lot in Grand Blanc to stimulate business in all sections of the township. We'd like to do something similar here.

"After all, what is good for the village is good for the township...and vice versa. When one prospers, all prosper. I guess you could say we're all in this world together."

One of the biggest steps toward this promotion of understanding will be the community room available at the new bank, a spacious center available to civic groups free of charge...a community service Pacesetter is offering its new friends in the Clarkston and Independence Township area.

'After all, what is good for the village is good for the township. . .and vice versa.' —Betty Simmons, branch manager

Kennedy Optical: The business runs in the family

Jan Russell, their daughter, is studying to become an optometrist at Ferris State College. The Russells have one other son, Rick, and a daughter, Alice.

When you make an appointment at Kennedy Optical Center, you are examined by an optometric physician and given a prescription for glasses or contact lenses if they are needed. If you have evidence of an eye disease, you are referred to an opthamologist, a medical doctor specializing in such problems.

After your exam, you are taken to the selection room at Kennedy Optical and, with help if needed, you make your selection of the 500 frames on display. Thes frames include selections from designers Fabrge, Diane von Furstenberg, Christian Dior, Pierre Cardin and Yves St. Laurent; manufacturers Play boy, Norell, Polo and Faberge.

Your prescription is then filled at the Kennedy Optical Center laboratory. The lenses are ground and checked for accuracy. When you are called in, the glasses are adjusted for comfort.

Even the lenses can be a fashionable selection, for Kennedy Optical Center has a varied selection of delicately-tinted lenses. These lenses are not only stylish, but the tinted shades can cut harsh glare.

Contact lenses are also available at Kennedy Optical Center. Both soft and hard lenses may be ordered and fitted there. Also, there are sunglasses and sports glasses, to protect the eyes from damage during sports activities.

Jack Alan is advertising manager at Kennedy Optical Center.

He came in to purchase glasses and walked out with a new job.

His background in radio broadcasting helps in his current position, as does his firm belief in the integrity and ability of the folks at Kennedy Optical Centers.

Alan and Carla Meehle believe good, friendly service, quality merchandise and precise craftmanship is the secret to the success of Kennedy Optical Centers.

"Glasses have to look good and feel good," explained Carla. "Ir's as simple as that."

Several of Genene Collins' customers at Rogena's window and wall covering store, 5 S. Main, Clarkston have found a solution to the problem.

They drop off pieces of carpet, bathroom tile and even bring photographs, and come back later to choose from matching possibilities Collins has selected.

Such personalized service is the rule at Rogena's for Collins owns and operates the store.

"Wallpaper is something you can't walk in and say, 'I'll take that,' take it home and put it up and live with it for 10 years," she said. "It takes time."

A window covering with a different look for sale at the store is a line of verticle blinds called louvers.

An array of colors and textures are available, including cork, suede, macrame and those that take wallpaper inserts.

"In my home, I have plain walls and the pattern in the louvers," Collins said. "Most all of these can be used in any room. You just have to us your imagination."

Hours at Rogena's are 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday.

Waterford Antiques offers beauty, utility

Shirley Richardson enjoys collecting antiques and mementoes from the past. She and her husband, Thomas D. Richardson, have been collecting for many years, a pasttime which started when they first married.

"We seldom bought anything new, unless it was an appliance," said Mrs. Richardson. "We like the beauty of older things and found they were better made and more durable."

Their antique collecting was done in places throughout the United States, where the Richardsons traveled in connection with his job.

"He was transferred to Kentucky and we were able to find some beautiful things there," Mrs. Richardson explained. "Southern antiques are very interesting. "In the days of old...the items were made for everyday use. For instance, a chopping block I have in my kitchen was made many years ago, but is still as useful and as attractive as when it was new."

Last May, Mrs. Richardson opened Waterford Antiques, which is located on Andersonville Road near the Dixie Highway intersection.

The shop is filled with beautiful pieces from Shirley Richardson's collection. There are dishes from all periods of American and European history, furniture, clocks, oil paintings and prints, farm and kitchen utensils and tools, dishes, dolls, furniture, bottles and lamps.

Each item is tagged and identified, a great help to the amateur and Mrs. Richardson can give advice and counsel to those just starting their search for old treasures.

Mrs. Richardson finds her merchandise in different places....from auctions, from home sales, from individuals who bring items to her shop. She is constantly seeking merchandise and explains that, to be classified as an antique, an item must be one hundred years of age to be considered authentic. However, Mrs. Richardson finds that many items not quite that old still have value and beauty.

"A rare antique is expensive, and it is an investment," she explains. "But there are many interesting things from the past we can use and enjoy even though they are not classified as a true antique piece."

Max Broock firm maintains 85-year tradition

The words "tradition" and "excellence" have been used to sum up the Max Broock story.

Max Broock Realtors was founded in 1895 by a gentleman of that name, who directed the management of the firm until his death in 1915. Today, the Broock organization is led by the founder's grandson, Bowen R. Broock and his co-partner, Stephen E. Pew.

Valerie A. Phaup came to Max Broock Realty in Clarkston as a training director in 1977. On May 1, 1978, she became manager-broker of the office which is located at 27 South Main St. in Clarkston. Ms. Phaup is also vice president of the Max Broock firm.

Before going into real estate as a career, Ms. Phaup worked as a home demonstrator. This project became so successful she had 11 employees under her direction. This same spirit and enthusiasm is evident in her work at Max Broock Realtors.

The Clarkston branch is one of two branch offices of Max Broock Realtors, with the main office in Birmingham. Another office is anticipated for in Oxford. Max Broock Realtors are members of four realtor boards and conduct real estate sales, both commercial and residential, as far south as 8 Mile Rd. and Woodward north almost to Grand Blanc. There are twelve sales people employed at the Clarkston Branch.

"We have a good, professional group of people working here," said Ms. Phaup, explaining that of the total of 60 employees in all the Max Broock offices, five people sold or listed five million dollars worth of real estate; and 39 people sold or listed more than a million dollars worth of property.

Ms. Phaup predicts a prosperous future for the Clarkston area with the same or more growth than in the past.

"The Clarkston area is unique in many ways," she explained. "Many people are interested in living in the Clarkston area because it is filled with advantages.

"There are recreational facilities and natural and cultural advantages. The educational institutions are excellent and children can be exposed to all of these advantages. "Thinking it over, it is no wonder Clarkston has enjoyed so many prosperous years and I believe the future will be as bright . . . or brighter."

Dance apparel blues away at Spotlight store

The newly opened store specializes in dance and gymnastics apparel, with a few fun things thrown in to make things even more fascinating.

Spotlight Dance Apparel came into being when the daughter of Cheryl and Edward Giroux, Jamie Giroux, began taking ballet lessons. Five years passed by, with the Giroux family making periodic trips to stock up on ballet supplies, driving 20 miles to a store selling the necessary clothing.

Now, area dance students need not wander city-ward to locate that necessary clothing and equipment.

Pom-pons for cheerleaders are available, as well as dashing, flashing disco hosiery, complete with rhinestones and black seams. Danskin leotards and tights are featured at Spotlight, as well as Leo's skating wear.

Cheryl Geroux says that her entire family helped her get settled in the new shop. Her husband helped construct shelves, racks, framing and the lighting. The shop features a full-length mirror and ballet bar, so dancers can try out clothing to assure its fit and comfort.

Cheryl Giroux's dancing daughter led her to open Spotlight Dance Apparel on Dixie Highway in Waterford Township.

Michael Giroux also helped decorate his mother's shop, making the brackets and the macrame baskets which add to the room's decor.

"Then there was Sue Bushman, a friend," added Cheryl Giroux. "Without her help, I couldn't have put it all together.'

This is Cheryl Giroux of Spotlight Dance Apparel: embarking on a new business venture with the encouragement of both her family and her friends.

Community offers country life —but with sophistication

By Kathy Greenfield

Such qualities have contributed to the residential and commercial development of Independence Township, says Tod Kilroy, township planner.

"The quality of homes, the quality of development is superior to many other communities," Kilroy says. "People perceive the Clarkson area in a very positive manner-quaint little village plus the county park, the township park and the positive aspects of Pine Knob.

"If you have a Clarkston mailing address, it has an appeal that other areas of the county don't have," he says.

When Kilroy, who works for Community Planning and Management of Utica, was first retained by the township, he brought with him the image of a community with strict building standards.

"The township has a very favorable reputation throughout the metropolitan area--being tough and enforcing things and getting the job done right," he says.

After serving as township planner on a part-time basis for about two years, the image has remained intact, he says.

Kilroy spends two days a month working at the township's building and planning office, attends planning commission meetings and prepares written recommendations on proposed construction.

In all, he works on Independence Township business five to six days a month, he says.

When the planner makes comparisons with other areas across Oakland County, he speaks with experience.

'If you have a Clarkston mailing address, it has an appeal that other areas in the county don't have.'

For when he is not working on Independence Township business, he serves as planner in Oakland, Orion, Springfield, Rose, Groveland and White Lake townships and the city of Walled Lake.

Progress, according to Kilroy's definition for the township, is "not a promotion of development or negative action, it's the control and management of different development proposals."

In the 1980s, he sees a new master plan for township development and stiffer regulations on gravel mining activities.

The mining regulations are now being drafted and should be completed before the end of this year.

Work on changes in the master plan should also be underway this year with provisions for commuter parking lots, increased office space and a location for a community center and new township hall.

With an eye to high mortgage interest rates and increased development costs, Kilroy expects the decline in new house construciton to continue into 1981.

In the commercial area, the Hamady Brothers grocery store and shopping center should be underway this year and a retail, office and commercial development at I-75 and Dixie Highway could be started in the next five years, he says.

Beyond that, Kilroy says it's impossible to make predictions.

"There is no one who has a crystal ball," he says. "Who would have expected an energy crunch?"

There is one question, however, that communities will face in the coming years.

"What happens to the young people who want housing?" he asks. "I'm wondering if there's going to be emphasis on trying to reduce costs of homes."

Despite his praise of Independence Township, Kilroy says he plans to remain in his home in Troy.

"My wife and I agree," he says. "We should not live in a community in which I work. You have the tendency to lose your objectivity."

Tod Kilroy is planning consultant for Independence and Springfield townships and much of the rest of North Oakland County.

Framing's a fine art at Frame Art

Russ Klatt is the owner of Frame Art, which is located in Waterfall Plaza on Dixie Highway, Waterford Township. He is the man who helps you select custom or ready-made frames and prints to make your home or office wall look just the way you have always wanted it to look.

The picture frames at Frame Art are directed toward every taste.

There are frames in many sizes, shapes and colors...a gleaming selection to blend with any style of architecture and decor. There are sleek modernistic frames, wood frames, gleaming metal or glass frames, as well as the ornate gold leaf.

Klatt has another store in Birmingham. The success of this first store led to a search for another area with great growth potential. The Waterford-Clarkston area was selected. Frame Art opened in September of 1979 and Klatt reports that sales have surpassed all expectations.

Klatt was formerly a keyboard and sax player in a group playing for Capital Records, serving...among other engagements...as Bob Seger's warm-up band. Between musical engagements, he made frames for an art gallery. These frames were in such demand, he decided to give up his musical career and open the first store.

"Framing is creative work," he pointed out. "We're not a do-it-yourself shop, but we do provide instruction and material if you want to try framing."

"But, here at Frame Art, we have the tools and equipment for quality custom work and can make you a frame you will always enjoy at a price you can afford. Framing can make or break a picture. It must be done correctly to enhance the picture."

Frame Art offers enormous bargains with 20% off list prices as a regular daily savings. Then, too, there are frequent sales.

Frame Art also sells prints...some of them valuable limited editions signed by the artists. Occasionally Klatt sponsors an art show featuring local artists and their work.

"You have to live every day with a picture on your wall," he remarked. "If it is properly framed and mated, a picture can add enjoyment to your daily life."

Hallman Apothecary, located in the center of downtown Clarkston, is a center of activity for area citizens. Robert Bennett purchased the store from former owner Keith Hallman.

"Personalized service is one thing we can offer that the large chain stores can't," he said speaking of the problems of smaller independent drug stores, only a few of which remain in southeastern Michigan.

Robert Bennett of Hallman Apothecary, Clarkston.

Personal service is Bennett's way of life at Hallman Apothecary. Customers are welcomed and made to feel at ease. Their medical needs are carefully filed and attended.

In emergency situations, Bennett has been known to rise from a warm bed in the middle of a cold night to go to his store and fill a prescription.

He hastens to explain that Clarkston area citizens are considerate and late night calls are few, but his phone number is available to customers and he is there when needed.

Hallman Apothecary has a well-stocked prescription department presided over by Bennett, a full-time pharmacist, and a part-time pharmacist. Besides prescriptions, there are gifts, cards, stationery, tobaccos and cigarettes, liquor, beer and wine, candy, infant's needs and the necessary items a well-stocked drug store provides.

Bennett is married to Nancy Bennett, owner of the Village Book Store and the two business owners, on rare occasions, slip in a lunch together during the day. They have two children, Stephanie and Nicole.

Asked about future plans, Bennett said he wants to continue giving Clarkston area customers the personal service Hallman Apothecary has become noted for maintaining.

John Ruppel: He makes instruments that make the music

Ruppel, besides being owner of a stringed instrument store and a serious musician, makes custom stringed instruments including guitars and violins.

J. Ruppel Instrument Co. is located at 3506 Fenton Rd., Flint.

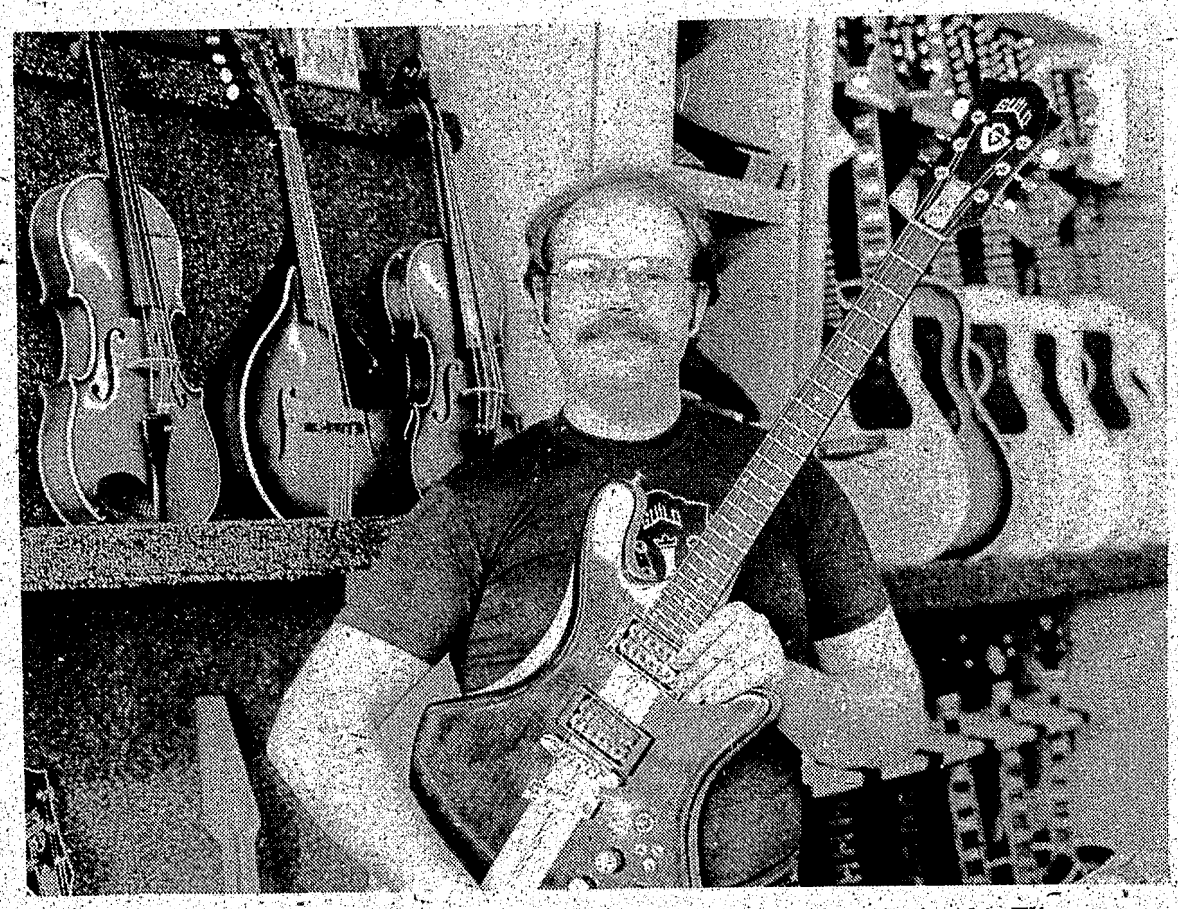

The store specializes in the sales of stringed instruments of all kinds, including numerous makes of violins, Guild and Gibson guitars, banjos, dulcimers and amplifiers and sound reinforcement equipment.

Also available at J. Ruppel Instrument Co. are violin and guitar supplies, such as strings, cords and straps.

Ruppel studied acoustics at Michigan State University. He has also attended several seminars at the Martin and Gibson factories. He apprenticed as a voilin maker for two years and has spend many years in the musical field as a guitar player and violinist.

Ruppel said it takes approximately 300 hours to construct a violin.

The wood selected is usally the curly maple or German Silver spurce. The back, top and neck of the instrument are painstaking hand carved. The ribs are steamed and bent. The violin is glued with a special concoction made from animal hides and fish.

A medium violin might cost about $2,000. However, Ruppel can build a guitar for as law as $750. And if you want to make your own instrument, he can provide supplies and advice.

Although Ruppel likes rock and roll music, he also likes symphonic music. He studied symphonic voilin and the viola for 14 years.

For the beginning music student, Ruppel advises and investment in a good instrument. Cheaper instruments just don't hold up, he explained, and a good instrument doesn't lose its value.

J. Ruppel Instrument Co. will accept trade-ins. Although the store specializes in stringed instruments, they will sometimes accept a set of drums or other musical instrument for trade.

Ruppel also repairs instruments. The back room of the store contains a workbench where he conducts repairs and also builds the custom instruments which are ordered.

With his days filled with musical sales and instrument making and repairing, John Ruppel has few leisure hours.

When he does, those hours are also filled with music. He works on weekends with a Flint area band, playing the rock and roll music he has always loved.

"The first instrument known to mankind was just like a flat board with a single string," he said. "And we've come a long way since then. I think music has played a big part in everyone's life. It gives special meaning to occasions and can give us enjoyment every day of our lives."

Millie Hursfall is proud of her staff

The real estate people at Hursfall Realty, 6 Church St., in Clarkston, are congenial and hard-working.

Their strength and assistance have helped Millie Hursfall in the few short months since the death of her husband, who was founder of the real estate agency, last November.

For almost 14 years, he served as supervisor of the township, before opening the real estate office in 1971.

Serving as associate brokers are Mary Miller and Charles Halpin. Twelve real estate sales associates are also employed at Hursfall, making it one of the busiest offices in the area.

"Real estate is a very good investment, but there are no bargain prices any more," said Millie Hursfall. "But it remains the best investment you can make, and our sales are still good.

"Since the interest rates have lowered, we are getting more and more calls."

A long-time resident of the Clarkston area, Millie Hursfall can remember the time before the "building boom" began. Clarkston was more countrified then, but she is proud of its retention of the historical background.

"It wasn't easy for those in local government to try to look ahead to the future and plan things well," she recalled. "But I think Clarkston has proven to be a well-planned community. I like it here."

Millie has two daughters and six grandchildren. Her grandchildren drop in frequently at the office and she enjoys visiting with them.

Millie Hursfall feels that reliability in a real estate company is of utmost importance, pointing out that Hursfall Real Estate handles both commercial and residential sales and offers full services, including its own closing department.

"It isn't enough to be just well known," she explained. "You have to do your best to satisfy the needs of every customer.

"I'm so proud of the staff here. They have helped me in every way possible. I couldn't have done it without them."

'They have helped me in every way possible. I couldn't have done it without them.' —Mrs. Hursfall

Rademacher 'in people business' too

"We're in the people business as well as the auto business," explained Alan Cecil, who is general sales manager of Rademacher Chevrolet, located at the corner of M-15 and Dixie Highway.

"It is of primary importance that our staff have empathy. I think that is the key word," he said.

Cecil has been employed at Rademacher for 10 years, which is just four years short of Tom Rademacher's purchase, 14 years ago, of what formerly was Haskin's Chevrolet and Oldsmobile dealership, located across the highway from Rademacher's present location.

This purchase was followed very shortly by the move across Dixie to what is now approximately 40,000 square feet of prime property on what could be termed as the area's busiest corner.

Tom Rademacher, who had at one time worked for Chevrolet Motor Co., specializes in the sale of Chevrolets. Today, Chevrolets of all sizes, colors and models, including trucks and wagons, change hands daily at this location, with the eight salespeople handling prospective customers with courtesy and expertise.

There are also offices and a showroom, where the shining collection of new cars is shown, a used car lot, a parts department, service department and garage, bump and paint shop and auto leasing division.

He believes that the trend is toward the purchase of American-made cars.

"A good part of our business is repeat business. The loyalty rate of our customers is impressive," stated Alan Cecil. "Some of the credit goes to our staff of employees. Our turnover rate here is practically nil. We have people who have been with us for many years, including myself."

Cecil points out that there are now many women holding key positions in auto dealerships. It is, he stressed, up to the individual to succeed, repeating that empathy and understanding are necessities, regardless of gender or age.

The Chevrolet Citation and the Chevette have been leading in sales recently. Small cars are definitely here to stay, Alan Cecil predicts, with even more mileage-stretching features.

"In a few years," he went on, "I don't think you'll even be able to locate a large car."

Cecil is originally from Lexington, KY. He worked various positions before settling in the automotive field.

Cecil pointed out that every facet of the business has become specialized. He said that Radamacher mechanics are certified. The sales personnel are highly trained. Such departments as the Parts Division have such modern features as a computer to locate parts throughout the country.

He believes that the trend is toward the purchase of American made cars.

"It's like the motto . . . Be american, buy American!" he said. "This makes sense to me."

Cecil believes that the Clarkston area has surpassed other North Oakland County areas in growth and potential.

"It's a fantastic place," is his summation.

Deer Lake Inn's owners plan to add kitchen

Deer Lake Inn at 7504 Dixie Highway is a warm, friendly place where a person can feel at home.

It usually takes just one visit to become acquainted with owner Bob Beasley and his daughter, Sue Beasley Leroux, who is manager.

The Beasleys purchased the business two years ago, renaming it Deer Lake Inn without any knowledge this had been its original name before it had a series of new owners and name changes.

They are still in the process of renovating and reconstructing the inn, adding a kitchen which will be opened in about two months and moving the bar to a different location for more table space.

Bob Beasley owns two businesses. While Sue takes care of the inn during the day, he works with his son, Jeff Beasley, at R.K. Beasley Contracting Co.

But both father and daughter are at the inn every night, enjoying the music and the customers, getting to know the folks who drop in for a drink and to listen to the entertainment.

On Sunday through Tuesday, a jazz band plays at the Deer Lake Inn. Every Wednesday, a live deejay provides an enjoyable show.

On Thursday through Saturday, rock and roll dance bands are featured.

Wednesday nights are Ladies' Night at the Deer Lake Inn, with drinks at half-price for female customers. Sue Beasley Leroux emphasizes the fact that many women come in to the bar.

"This is a family place," she explained. "They know that Dad and I will be there."

Both Bob Beasley and his daughter are excited about the expansion and addition of a kitchen.

"We're thinking of opening in the mornings for breakfast," he said. "Then we'll have a lunch and a dinner menu, closing it down in the late evening to just sandwiches and late snacks."

Hallmark North realizing a dream

"Our goal is to have 25 working salespeople," stated Bert Schmidt, the energetic associate broker of Century 21 Hallmark North. "We currently have 16 full-time people. That's pretty good for just a year in business."

Century 21 Hallmark North is located at 6751 Dixie Highway at the intersection of M-15 and Dixie. The broker is Dexter Mayworm, who has been in the real estate business for many years.

The Hallmark North office is attractively decorated in glowing earth tones, with warm browns blending with bright gold and muted oranges. Pictures of the staff grace the walls of the outer office and a tour of the inner offices reveals a spacious meeting room and a large sales room.

According to Schmidt, business has been lively...picking up steadily since January, despite the rumors and rumbling of gloom and despair in the media.

"People in the Clarkston area are still looking for homes," he stated. "Mortgage money is available and interest rates are down."

Both Mayworm and Schmidt worked in real estate for many years before Mayworm opened the Hallmark North office in March of 1979, joining the list of 280 Century 21 offices in Michigan and the 7,800 Century 21 offices in the country. Mayworm is director of brokers and management for Century 21 in the state of Michigan.

Century 21 has enjoyed a phenomenal growth since its inception in 1972, growing in leaps and bounds to become one of the largest real estate concerns.

"I used to make a list of things I wanted most of all...sort of a dream list. Number one on this list was a real estate company in Clarkston."

Thanks to Dexter Mayworm and Century 21 Hallmark North, Schmidt's dream has come true. The new company has been heartily welcomed in the community. It's first year has been prosperous.

Plants-plus at Country Greens

Interspersed with the fronds of hanging plants and baskets of flowers are distinctly different gift items.

This is a store which invites browsing in order that you may select that special item you wish to purchase.

Country Greens is owned by partners Laurie Stern and Charles Mahnken. Stern usually manages the store throughout the week and is joined by her partner on week-ends.

The store was opened five years ago. Recently, they have expanded their fresh flower department, offering customers a large variety of cut blooms at economical "cash and carry" prices.

Country Greens also has oriental pottery, candles, enamelware and supplies for herb gardens, as well as many other items.

Stern explained that five or six pots of herbs can guarantee flavor-filled meals throughout a long winter.

As you snip the herbs, they will continue to grow. Just use them fresh to add a subtle flavor to your favorite recipes.

Country Greens also sells dried arrangements. If you have a favorite container, you can bring it to the store and they will arrange an assortment of beautiful dried flowers in the colors and style you select.

"I love plants, indoors and out," said Laurie Stern, "and so this really isn't work for me."

Free figure analysis at Keatington Health Spa

Keatington Health Spa is located in the Keatington Racquetball Club building. It was begun by director Valerie Hadash, who owns another spa, Total Health Spa, in Canton.

Valerie Hadash was formerly a director for another health club. She became interested in women's conditioning and decided to go into business for herself.

At Keatington Health Spa, which opened in November, prospective members are entitled to a free figure analysis and a complimentary workout.

Measurements, weight and height are recorded, as well as your goal weight. When you become a member, you can attend the spa as many times a week as you wish. Instructors will be on hand and your program is carefully tended.

Members of the Keatington Health Spa should dress in leotards, tights, or a sweat suit while doing the exercises, in order to protect legs from the exercise machines. The machines are designed to condition different sections of your body. The exercising can be aimed toward spot-reducing as well as general toning and conditioning.

After your exercise session, you can relax in the comfort of the spa's hot whirlpool bath, allowing the movement of the water to lull your muscles and improve your spirits. A masseause is available, for an additional fee, if you desire.

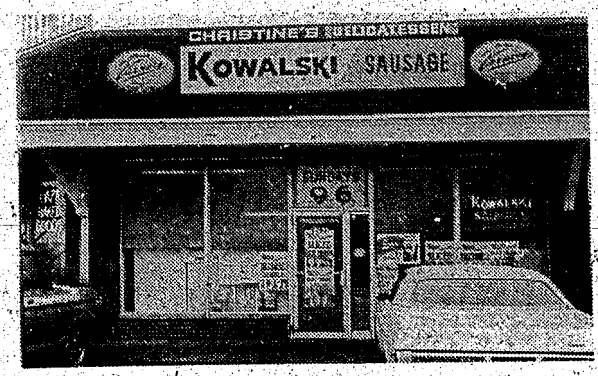

Special programs are available for those with health problems. A nursery facility is available at the spa to watch the kiddies while mother is getting back in shape.

"Conditioning not only makes you look good and feel good," said Valerie Hadash, "but it adds that extra shine to your eyes, that luster to your hair. It only makes sense to keep yourself in good condition."

Linda Siegle keeps trim at Keatington Health Spa.

Country Cords features large variety

As parents, Connie and Sandie Bruce know from experience that there was a need for a children's clothing store in Clarkston.

A year ago, Country Cords Fashions for Children came into being, located in the Clarkston Emporium at 31 S. Main.

Then, just two months ago, the Bruces opened their delightful infants' wear department, on the other side of the Emporium threshold from the older children's clothing department, which features clothing in sizes from 4 to 16.

The infants' wear department is an adventure in ruffles and laces, a pastel paradise with an occasional splash of holiday color, a bonanza for proud parents, doting grandparents or for those who only occasionally add to a child's wardrobe.

Connie is administrative assistant in the Clarkston School System, in charge of personnel and negotiator for the board. Sandie, who previously worked for Clarkston Schools, resigned her secretarial position to manage the store.

They spent many long hours remodeling and redecorating the store. Then the doors were opened to the public and they began giving the personalized service which is their special feature. They deal only in brand names.

"You can purchase clothing in our store that you formerly had to drive to a department store to find," explained Sandie. "And we carry a large variety because we buy in smaller quantities."

They got acquainted with their customers—and their customers' children—and began helping with such problems as fitting the thin or the chubby child.

They also began running sales, with merchandise offered at as much as 50 percent off, sales that are held periodically throughout the year.

Two employees help out with the chores, Cathie Arnold and Carol Dobson. The store is open from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays, with special longer hours, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., on Fridays.

Though novices when they opened the store, the Bruces soon learned the basics of good buying. They visit shows together in Detroit and Chicago.

"Working together gives us a mutual interest," explained Sandie. "I really think it strengthens our marriage and gives us a closer repationship."

"We're home people," chimed in Connie. "We like small towns. We like Clarkston and hope to be in business here for a long, long time."

Sandie [left] and Connie Bruce realize children have special clothing needs and have stocked their store with a variety of dependable brand names.

Rent it or buy it at Michigan Rental

If you find yourself in need of a sewer scoop or a tree-climber, Michigan Rental, at 6507 Dixie Highway in Waterford Township, is the place to go.

Or, if your needs are not so unusual, you can find such necessary items as lawnmowers, construction tools, roto-tillers, tractors, power saws, air compressors, garden tools, vacuum cleaners, towbars, electric hammers and much, much more both for rent and for sale at Michigan Rental.

Just about any equipment you need for any task, no matter how large or small, no matter how unusual, is on hand for rental and often for sale.

You just state your need and explain your task.

Michigan Rental personnel will give you assistance. Plus, they are a certified servicing dealer for Briggs Stratton, Tecumseh, Kholer and Wisconsin engines.

Owner of this fascinating collection of equipment is former concrete contractor Gary Skibowski, who not only can rent or sell just the item you need to complete that home or office chore, but he can advise you on how to do it.

Skibowski is a jack-of-all-trades. He has worked with and liked machinery since childhood.

"Once in a while we get a call for an item we don't even recognize," he laughed. "It has become sort of a fun thing with us. But most things...even unusual items...we do have in stock, either in the store or in the area outside."

Skibowski lives in the Davisburg area in a home he himself constructed.

He and his wife LaVerna have three children, Kimberley, Mark and Jennifer.

The two eldest help out in the store after school. Other employees are Rodney Mellen, Lee Golombisky, Mark Siecinski and Dale Hockin.

Take Rodney Mellen's profitable hobby, for instance.

Smack in the center of all the tools and equipment at Michigan Rental is a large selection of the 2,500 varieties of cacti grown by Mellen. So, if you want to buy or rent a cactus.....

Tools and equipment can be rented by the hour, day or week, according to the size of the task you are undertaking. There is a deposit fee and a base rate.

"Every season is busy," explained Skibowski. "There is more outside work done in the warmer months, but a lot of folks keep fixing things up right through the winter.

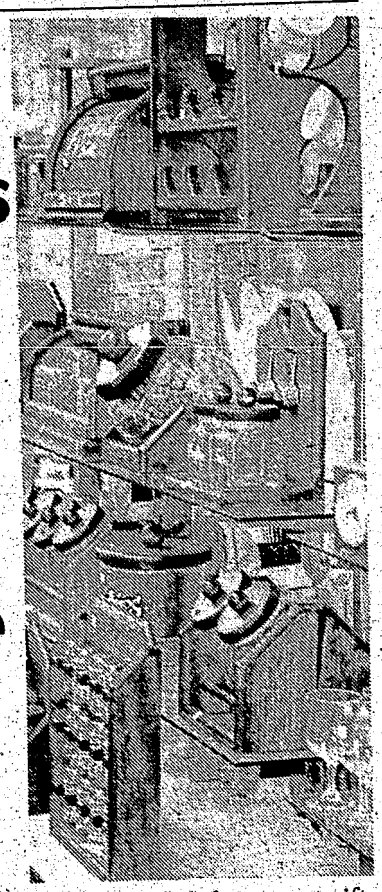

"Then, too, there are the cold weather calamities...the plugged pipes, the flooded basements, the auto repair project. There's always something to do and always some equipment that is needed."

Gary Skibowski likes to enjoy himself and to help people. He figures that, if you are going to spend money on a good time, it should be combined with a worthwhile cause.

This explains why he began selling tickets to fund-raising events...such as the Oakland County Sheriff's Department's dance to benefit the Canine Division and the event benefiting the Springfield Township Library.

"I've lived in this area all of my life," said Skibowski. "The folks here have been good to me. So, I try to help out in anyway I can. It's the least I can do."

Pike homes are cost cutters

Pike Manufactured Homes at 1125 N. Lapeer Rd. between Oxford and Lake Orion can help you save at least 30 percent on the price of a new home. The Oxford office is managed by Scott Pike, son of Pike Manufactured Homes owner and president, Raymond Pike, whose offfices are in Drayton Plains. Pike Homes are either mobile or modular homes, becoming more and more popular as prices skyrocket and interest rates climb.

Dale Madden (left), general manager of Pike Manufactured Homes, congratulates Oxford office manager Scott Pike on the number of homes sold in the area.

Dale Madden, who is general manager of Pike Manufactured Homes, explained that, with a mobile home, a customer can purchase a 924 square foot home for under $20,000. With a modular home, a customer can purchase a 1200 square foot home for under $40,000...to be placed upon his own site.

The company features quality modular homes by Sterling, Sunshine, Travelo and Marlette (which is available only in the Drayton Plains office). Mobile homes are manufactured by Windsor, Parkwood, Parkdale and Marlette.

Pike mobile homes include delivery, complete set-up, heat tape, tie downs, aluminum skirting, and fiberglass storage steps. The homes are built under controlled conditions using kiln-dried Grade A lumber. No mobile home doors or windows are used on Pike's mobile homes, which are fire-proofed and equipped with smoke detectors.

There are several floor plans and color schemes to choose from, with styles in modular homes running from ranch to bi-level. Well-insulated, the homes are "weather-wrapped" with twice the ceiling R-factor specifications recommended by HUD and one-and-one-half times the wall insulating R factors. The homes are so well insulated, Madden stated, that residents can save up to 30 percent of regular fuel bills.

"Our homes meet and exceed local building standards. Since they are factory constructed to our specifications, they are built better than site-built homes," said Madden, pointing out that this is an excellent way to cut the labor costs involved in home construction.

Other features include a choice of exteriors, double jute back nylon and Orlon carpeting with pad, wood cabinets and low interest rates.

"We can get financing as low as 9 and ¾ percent annually," said Scott Pike, "with every mortgage having a non-penalty clause in case you ever want to refinance."

Pike also pointed out that mobile homes do not depreciate in price. Since his company handles a multiple-listing service for mobile home sales, he is in a position to know their value has been escalating in past years.

In fact, Scott Pike is so enthusiastic about his homes; he has just moved into a modular home of his own in Addison Township.

New twists to traditional at First Federal

The belief that a manager of a financial institution is a dull, sedate, rather boring individual in a grey suit sitting in a severe office readying stuffy ledgers couldn't be more wrong in the case of Allan Watson of the Clarkston branch of First Federal Savings of Oakland.

Watson is an artistic and colorful young man, extroverted and friendly, who has brought his love of excitement and people into the office...where he has selected a warm gold and orange decor.

"I don't like math much," he confided. "Of course, I can do it adequately. But I prefer working with and meeting people. In modern banking, public relations and imaginative leadership are important qualities."

Watson has been with First Federal for nine years, hiring in as a management trainee. He has had experience in every department of the bank, moving from the teller window to the savings account department to home improvement loans and the mortgage department.

Banking is a profession which is a gauge of the good times and bad...and Watson can remember the "recession" of 1973-1974.

'I think people are hungry for, small town community closeness.' —Allan Watson, branch manager

He went into branch training at this time and was appointed to the Drayton Plains office. He was able to turn adversity to advantage when, even during these hard times, his branch was No. 1 in the area for home ownership loans.

In 1975, Watson was transferred to the Clarkston branch. This is a delightfully modern building filled with friendly people anxious to serve your banking needs.

Although currently specializing in thrift and home ownership, an expansion of services is planned with the expectation of passage of NOW (negotiable order of withdrawals) accounts for savings and loan institutions.

This will enable them to expand sevices with savings drafts and consumers', auto and short term loans. This expansion is expected to take place in less than a year's time.

Though he was born in Pontiac, Watson and his parents lived in Colorado until he reached the ninth grade. Returning to the area, he graduated from Waterford Mott High School and began attending college, bent upon becoming a commercial artist.

Artistic pursuits are still a part of his life. He and his wife Rhonda like to work with stained glass in their new home on Waldon Road. They have one son, Allan, 8.

The Watsons enjoy the Clarkston area.

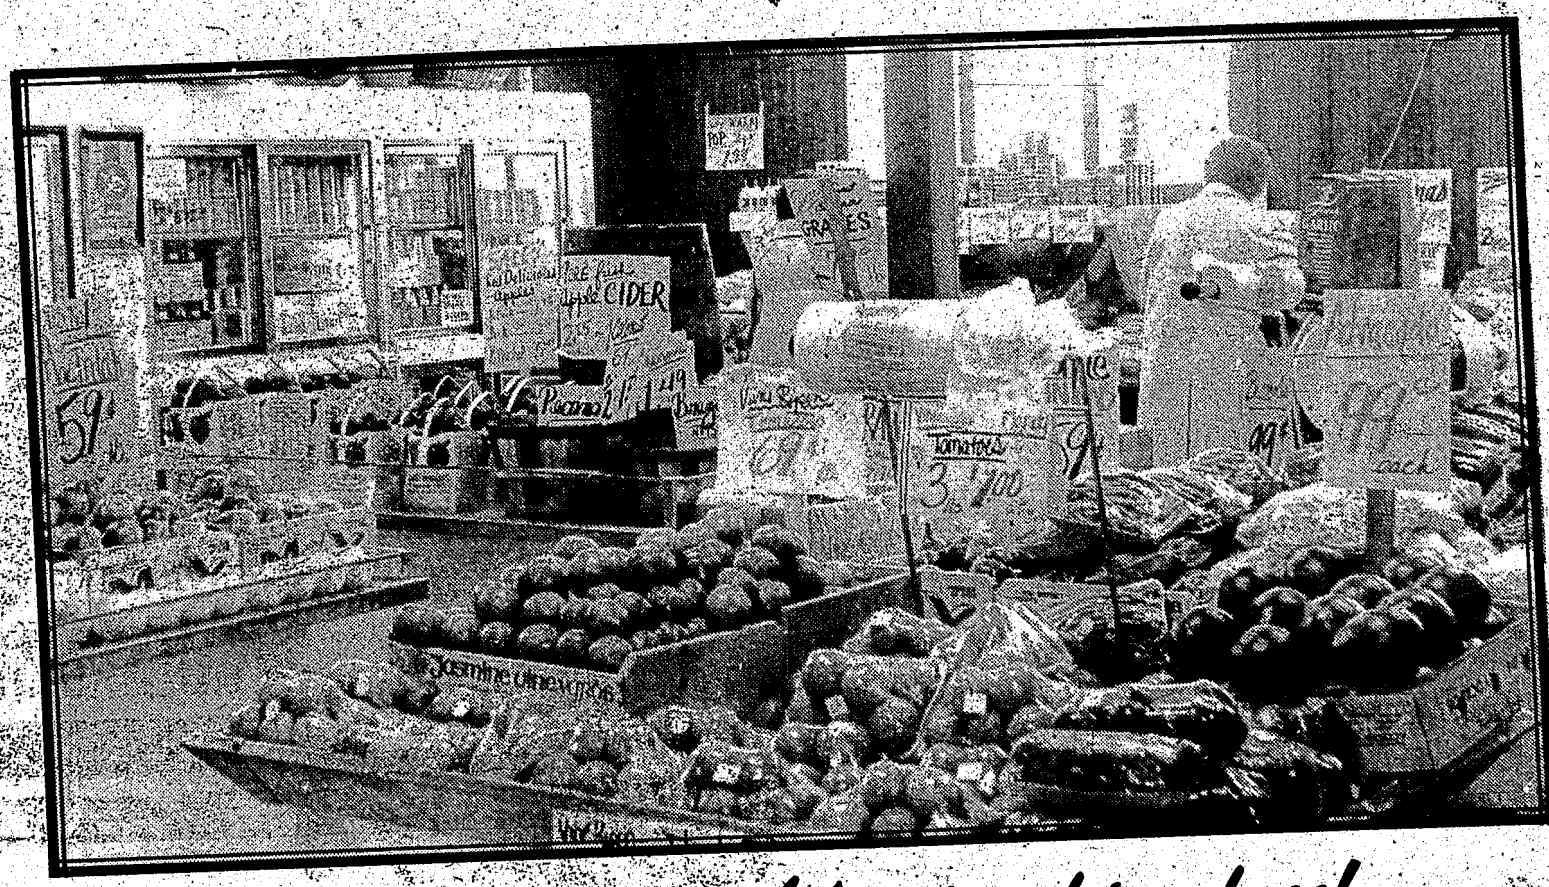

"I think people are hungry for small town community closeness," he said. "We want to know our area and our neighbors and get involved with the community affairs."

Involved is just what he is. Watson is a member of the National Chamber of Commerce, has served as vice president of the Business Association of Independence Township (BAIT) and as chairman for the Independence Township United Way and the Waterford Township United Fund Drive.

Village Total owner has big plans for his growing business

His business, Village Total, located at the corner of North Main Street and Clarkston Road, has been open for 18 months. It is a busy place, keeping the mechanics and towtruck drivers in constant activity.

Clinansmith, in his early 30s, has big plans for the future.

The business has three departments...the gas station, the garage and the towing service.

There are two wreckers and one battery tow truck providing 24-hour service which helps keep area cars on the road.

The garage provides a complete line of repair services. The five mechanics are certified in their fields. Each of them is working to obtain certification in other fields of mechanics.

When he went into a business of his own, he was attaining a lifelong dream.

Always mechanically inclined, he has been interested in automobile mechanics since his early youth.

He credits his success to a group of wonderful employees and relies upon the assistance and advice of such men as wrecker driver Hal Goodwin, who has more than 30 years of experience in repair work.

In the future, Clinansmith hopes to open a much larger garage. He would also like to expand his towing services to a larger fleet of trucks.

"I like Clarkston," he explained. "It's a growing area. With a new business, I can grow right along with it."

Chiropractic allows body to utilize recuperative powers

Oakland Life Plaza is located on Williams Lake Road in Drayton Plains. The Rumph Chiropractic Clinic is located in the plaza.

The waiting room is pleasantly decorated and filled with educational pamphlets on chiropractic procedures, large enough to be used for the introductory meetings held on Wednesday evenings for new patients.

Rumph became interested in chiropractic when he was a youth, suffering from rheumatoid arthritis.

Although he had been a student at Industrial Tech before his illness, following his recuperation he went back to school to study art and science, biology and zoology.

He eventually moved to Davenport, Iowa, where chiropractic came into being in 1895 when a deaf mute, 17 years old, regained his hearing, and there Rumph attended the Palmer College of Chiropractic. He later obtained a bachelor's degree in Chiropractic.

Chiropractic, he explains, is not a way to find miracle cures. It is a method of allowing the body to use its own recuperative powers, which are inherent and will take place if there is no interference with the normal mechanisms of the body.

Rumph said problems stem from blockage at the spinal level resulting in misalignment of vertabrae and pinched nerves, etc.

"In chiropractic, we remove the cause of the problem," he said. "In this area, chiropractic is growing so rapidly there are not enough doctors."

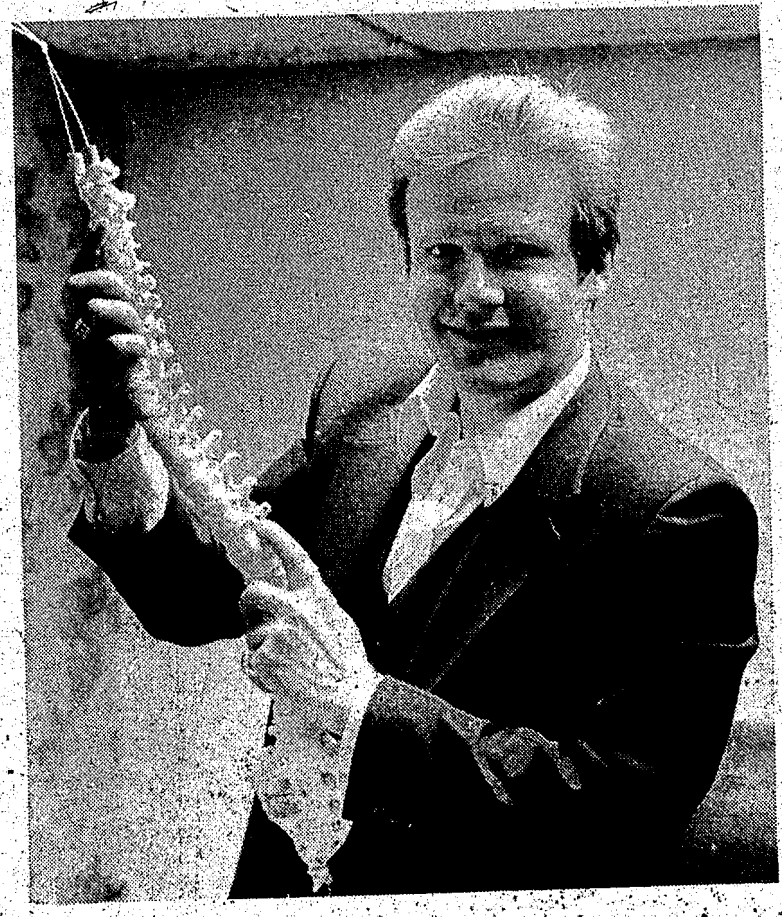

He went on to add that we live in a world of pills, powders and potions, each expected to perform some miraculous task. He spoke of the body as an amazingly strong, resilient machine, capable of healing itself in most cases if the causes of distress are discovered and alleviated.

Nerves, explain Rumph, emerge from the spinal column and travel the the extremities and elsewhere.

If the nerves leaving the spine are affected so that their normal behavior is disrupted, then the body ceases to function efficiently.

Thus, he explains, there are aches, pains, indigestion, constipation and many, many other disorders.

Rumph describes chiropractic as preventative. Both chiropractic and medicine are necessary therapies, Rumph said, but there is a need for better understanding and utilization of both methods.

Kathy King's a sure winner in insurance sales

For the past three years, Kathy King has won top honors for commercial sales in Farmer's Insurance policies in the state of Michigan.

She has placed 18th out of 1,000 salespersons in a five-state region. She is working to uphold this record and garner another year of record commercial sales.

"There aren't too many women in the commercial insurance field," she said. "I have had to work hard. I learned every facet of the business when I started, asking questions, learning everything I could."

The winning insurance agent was born in Pontiac. Her father, F. Jack Douglas, was once a county commissioner, has held other civic posts and is past president of the A.F.L.-C.I.O. He is a retired firefighter. An only child of Douglas and his wife Wilma, Kathy is proud of her father's accomplishments.

King has been in the insurance business for 11 years. During the past three and one-half years, she has been co-owner of a Farmer's Insurance Agency. Her partner is Chet Fenlon. The office is located at 1700 West Walton Boulevard.

King's office wall is covered with plaques and certificates lauding her accomplishments in the insurance world.

She pointed out that more and more women are entering this line of work, often doing very well, she added, because women are frequently perceptive and sympathetic, understanding the concerns of their clientele.

"I make house calls," she explained. "I conduct an annual review with my customers and talk with them at least twice a year to review their needs. Eight percent of our business is referrals.

"Business people of today are very aware of what they want. They want someone to take over their insurance needs, give them the best coverage at the most economical rates and understand their problems."

King's customers extend from Detroit to Cheboygan and elsewhere throughout the state. She is especially careful with new businesses, making sure they have adequate protection with each business expansion.

King was recently married to trucker Harry Akers, but she will retain the name Kathy King in her professional life.

Since her days involve working as many as 14 hours, there's little time for recreation. When she can, she takes a moment to read, cook or enjoy the outdoors.

"Basically, I'm a simple person," she said. "I don't care much for night life. I love my work. It fulfils a basic need and I never get tired of it."

Hard work and dedication have made Kathy King a respected name in today's insurance field.

He was later joined by his father, Bill. Since the beginning, the Goodyear store has provided excellent facilities for area customers for both tire needs and for automobile repair.

The store is located at 5272 Dixie Highway, Waterford Township. It is a complete auto service center, with special prices on oil filters, brakes, tune-ups, shocks, alignments, front end repairs and other necessities. Fully certified mechanics handle these tasks.

Goodyear is the largest tire producer in the United States, says Bill Morris, with factories located throughout the country. Company headquarters is in Akron, Ohio.

Goodyear manufactures a complete line of tires for automobiles and both light and heavy trucks. The Double Eagle is the oldest tire on the Goodyear market, excellent for heavy duty driving and highly durable.

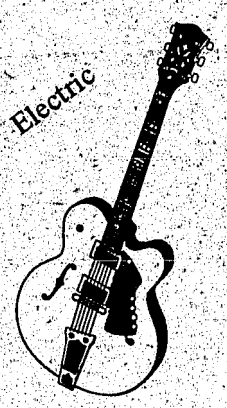

Tiempo is a fast seller at the Morris' Goodyear store, popluar with drivers for its year-round dependability. Then, too, there is the new Arriva, which is also a year-round tire.

The Morrises share all chores equally and have a friendly, relaxed relationship which adds to the congenial atmosphere of the store. Both believe in quick, efficient service.

Your automotive needs will be quickly taken care of at Goodyear, Where Bill and Dan Morris offer courtesy, personal service and the dependability of nationally-known products in the Goodyear line.

Lovett means well-designed jewelry

Lovett Jewelers has an elegant charm, a store which exudes an atmosphere of grace and beauty, of gleaming jewelled treasures and choice ceramic figurines, bringing to mind those special occasions in your life when the glitter of gold and the gleam of jewels has enhanced the memory forever.

Don Lovett has lived in Clarkston for 20 years. Before opening his store, he worked as a manager in another area jewelry store.

Since his retail program in high school, he wanted to become a jeweler. His first job was in a jewelry store. He has spent the years since then gaining knowledge and experience in his profession, a dedicated man with a thorough knowledge of his work.

At Lovett's, you can have your diamonds appraised, something which Don Lovett explains is growing in importance since inflationary conditions can make extra insurance necessary.

Just stop in Lovett Jewelers in Clarkston Mills and Lovett will ascertain the value of your jewelry.

Lovett's desginer, Lynn Fill, is an expert in jewelry design. First, he makes the jewelry in wax, following the suggested design very closely. Then, with the customer's approval, the finished piece is made.

"Every gem is created by nature with an unusual beauty of its own. Each stone has its own natural beauty."

He added that today's jewelry customers want originality and individuality. This is why the custom designing is so popular.

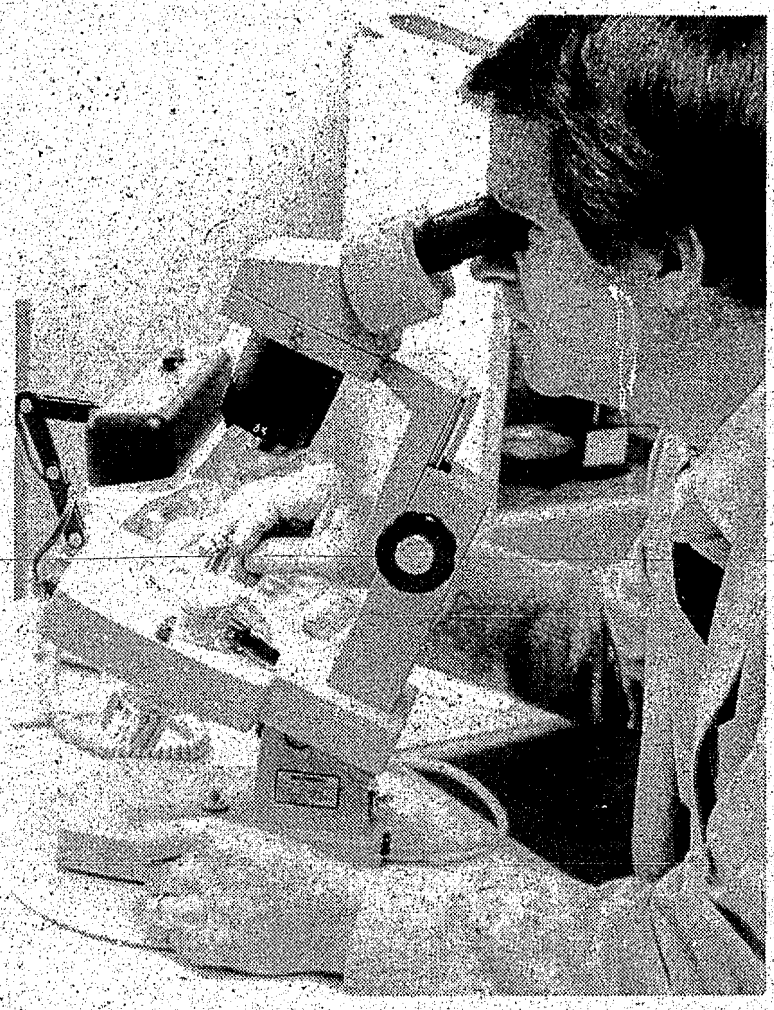

"A good piece of jewelry endures," he explained. "A designer merely enhances the beauty of nature by creating a setting for the gem."

Lovett and his wife, Edith, have a married daughter, Linda; twin daughters still at home, Laura and Lana; and a son, Donald.

And the store is filled with enchantment. There are cases of pewter pieces, fine clocks, charms, pendants, silver services, diamond rings, dinner rings, birthstone rings, watches, brass giftware, Hummel figurines and plates, Irish china (translucent and fragile), Rockwell plates and figurines and much, much more.

Though Lovett Jewelers has only been open since August of last year, it deserves its reputation as one of the finest jewelry stores.

Developer views area potential

Bob George, of New Dimensions, builder and developer, is a newcomer in the Orion area business world. He is a young, enthusiastic member of those who have selected the Orion-Oxford area because they foresee a tremendous potential for growth and expansion.

"This will come. It's inevitable," he stated as he sat in the New Dimensions' offices on M-24, "and with proper planning, the rural atmosphere can be retained even though growth is taking place."

New Dimensions is the exclusive agent for the sale of Kingsberry Homes in Oakland County. Kingsberry Homes, a division of Boise Cascade, a nationwide company, are panelized homes, which means the lumber is pre-cut, although construction and assembly are done on site. Kingsberry has over 190 different floorplans and types of homes...measuring from 1,000 square feet to 4,000 square feet and ranging in type from customized ranch to elaborate contemporary.

These panelized homes meet all state, federal and local housing codes, standards and ordinances, cutting red tape for the customer, who is supplied with prints and specs and preapproved plans for VA, FHA or conventional mortgaging.

Bob George is builder and developer, helping the customer plan just the right home, making financial arrangements and...finally, erecting the home on the site and providing those finishing touches that mean so much.

"Kingsberry Homes are comparable or superior to anything built locally," he explained. "They can be erected in just 60 to 90 days, avoiding surcharges and other increases."

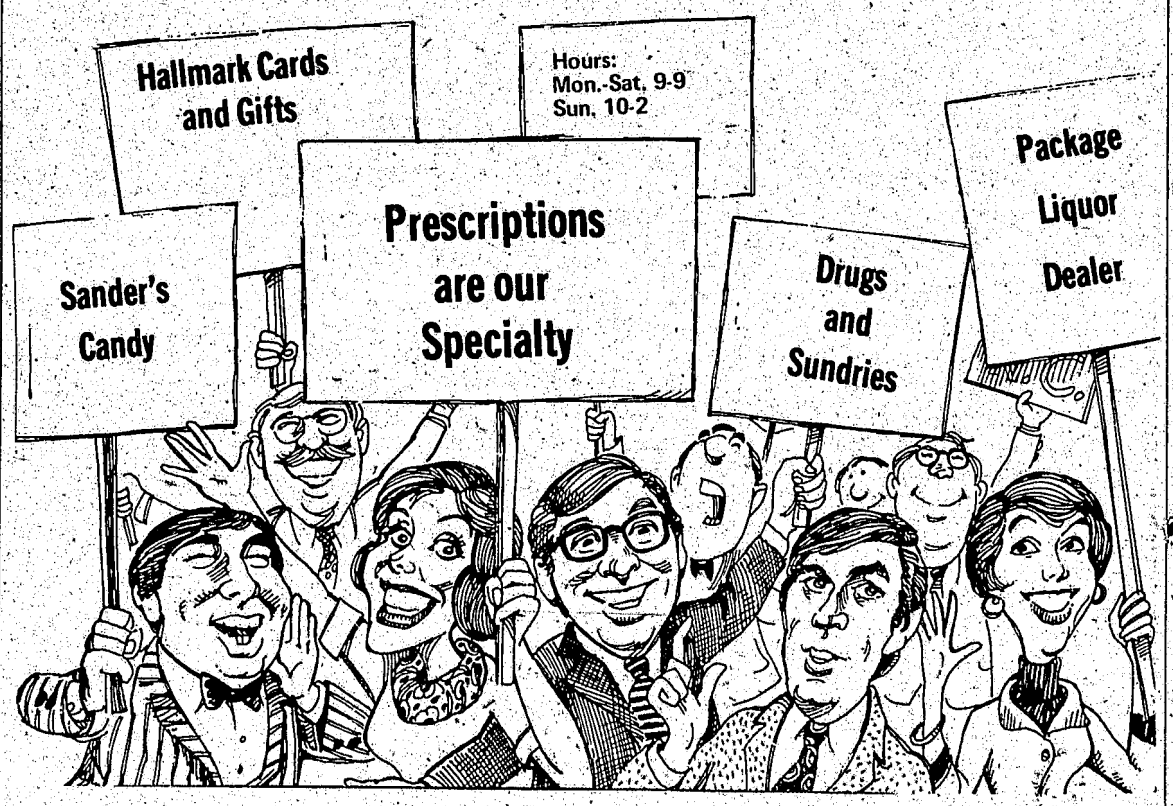

George has been involved in the manufactured housing trade for the past eight years, including five years spent as the president of a building company. He feels the future of the building industry will relvolve around manufactured homes from reliable companies like Kingsberry Homes.

"The homes are fuel-efficient and economical. Kingsberry Homes are a proven product, saving you money through repetition of basic techniques. They answer your home needs and provide a variety of styles. Across the country, the panelized homes have furnished customized, elegant housing at the lowest possible cost."

Carpet Crafters aims to be worth the trip

Dennis R. Potulsky and Keith M. Dutcher are friends, brothers-in-law and business partners.

Potulsky was in the electrical business for 10 years before opening a business of his own. Keith Dutcher worked for a local floor covering concern as an installer.

They decided to pool their talents and Carpet Crafters came into being.

Following him in school was a girl named Carla Dutcher. Today, the two are married. Carla is the owner of Carla's Hair Salon, located about a mile and one-half north of her husband and brother's store.

Dennis Potulsky's parents, Dorothy and Leonard Potulsky, are now retired and living in Cadillac. His only brother is living in Florida. So Potulsky spends a great deal of time with his wife's family in the Clarkston area.

Keith Dutcher's parents, Ruth and Monroe Dutcher, still make their home in Clarkston and have since Keith was five years old. He and his wife, Linda, have two daughters, Julia, 4, and Kelly, 3. The families are close and visit frequently.

Potulsky admits he is a perfectionist. His place of business is clean and well-ordered, his employees are courteous and hardworking. He and Dutcher carry equal loads, with Dutcher doing the installation of floor covering and Potulsky handling business details.

"To me, money is only a means to a goal. I get real satisfaction from doing a good job, having satisfied customers and then seeing them send in their friends. Much of our business is from referrals." "We're a little store in the country, so we have to be worth the trip for our customers," Potulsky said. "We carry quality stock and our prices are comparable...and even better..than in other stores. We have very few complaints."

Carpet Crafters has a full line of quality floor covering, with carpets from Galloway, Masland, Armstrong and numerous other mills. They also carry linoleum and tiles from Kentile, Mannington, Congoleum, Armstrong and G.A.F.

The Carpet Crafters have recently expanded their showroom hours on Monday and Friday evenings until 8 p.m. They have also added to their expert staff, Mr. Gordon Grice, to help the "after dinner shoppers" with their floor covering needs during the new evening hours.

They have 250 books of wallpaper selections including murals and grasscloths. They stock a full line of tools, floor cleaners and equipment for cleaning, installing and papering.

They also rent Steamex Carpet Cleaners, an expert tool for keeping that new carpet spic and span.

"Padding and care are the two necessities for a beautiful, durable carpet," said Potulsky. "There are homes that are looked at...and homes that are lived in.

"Your lifestyle must be considered before selecting a floor covering. If a room has little traffic and you have no children, you can indulge in that pale blue carpet without worry.

"But, if you have four kids and a dog and a houseful of friends, then you'd best select a different shade. Cut and loops are the best for wear, in my opinion."

Potulsky feels that carpeting is too expensive a purchase for costly mistakes in selection. This is why he exercises great care in helping customers make up their minds.

"There are experts we can call if you want professional help in decorating," he explained. "But it's our job to help you select a carpet you can comfortably and pleasantly live with."

The insulating qualities of carpeting make it an economical installation for your home, he pointed out.

Popular today are the Saxony and plush carpets in solid shades or multi-colored hues.

Potulsky believes most of us are "tweeded out" and are ready for a different type of carpeting.

"We'll go anywhere and carpet anything, no matter how small. We'll even carpet a closet," said Dennis Potulsky.

Navarre and Smith create natural look

J. Navarre, Smith and Associates specializes in landscaping, commercial lawn maintenance, snow plowing, snow removal and salt service.

Partners in the business are Jim Navarre and Bruce F. Smith. The business is located at 18½ S. Main in the village.

Navarre explained that the current trend in landscaping is "the natural look," which involves the placement of many shrubs, a natural contour of the land and the use of weathered wood.

J. Navarre, Smith And Associates also does timberwork, such as the construction of flower boxes to enhance the appearance of commercial, apartment and condominium buildings.

They are now celebrating five years of business and feel they have played an important role in the prosperity of those years.

"It makes you proud to look around and see an attractive lawn you have landscaped," commented Navarre.

Navarre is also partner in two other business ventures, spin-offs of the landscaping company.

With Gary Labenz, he is co-owner of Navco Enterprises, which does parking lot sweeping, lot striping, asphalt repair and other services.

In Salvador Construction, he formed a partnership with Paul S. Salvador. This company does excavating, grading, aggregate transport and snow removal.

Patti believes in program of Merle Norman cosmetics

Merle Norman Cosmetics at Clarkston Mills, 20 W. Washington, is owned and managed by Patti Bell.

"I've always been interested in cosmetics," she explained. "I've always used Merle Norman cosmetics. I consider them the finest. So, when I went into a store, I decided to specialize in this product I believed in so much."

At Merle Norman Cosmetics, you can receive a free makeover...an introduction to the cosmetic line. According to Patti Bell, there are just three basic steps to complete complexion care.

First, there is the application of a cleansing cream to remove old make-up and soften the skin.

Then, there is the application of Miracol. This is a mask which insures deep cleansing and also revitalizes the pores.

Voila! Your face has become like an artist's canvas and is now ready for embellshing with whatever cosmetics you desire, be they blushers, eye make-up, contouring, lipsticks or enhancers.

"Keep it natural" is Patti Bell's advice, and she demonstrates the camoflaging wonders of good make-up which leaves the complexion clear and fresh yet cover the flaws, the blemishes, the circled rings beneath the eyes that many women have.

Merle Norman cosmetics can be used by both men and women. It is a complete line of cosmetics, including hair care and fragrances.

Patti Bell's Merle Norman store in Clarkston Mills also features lingerie, umbrellas, jewelry, scarves and other accessories.

Also available is earpiercing, so customers may avail themselves of the delicate line of fine jewelry.

Patti's daughter, Debi Gemmel, also works at the store. And, although it is difficult to believe this youthful businesswoman, is a grandmother, she has three grandchildren, Rob, Todd and Scott.

Relief for budget at One More Time

Budgets squeezed by increasing food costs, higher taxes and more costly utilities can get relief for clothing expenses at One More Time resale shop.

"We're always looking for ways to stretch (budgets)," she says. "This is the answer."

With the average cost of jeans $4 to $6, blouses $4 and dresses from $6 to $15, bargain prices are a rule at One More Time.

And community acceptance of buying slightly used clothing has resulted in considerable expansion since the store opened in April.

"We had 300 hangers and I figure we have 1,800 now and that's just in the women's section, that's not even counting the children's section," she says.

The selection is so wide that Eberhardt says customers looking for an accessory like a blouse to match a suit should try her store.

"I can almost guarantee I can match it," she says.

Clothing suitable for springtime wear is now being taken on consignment every day except Wednesday and Saturday.

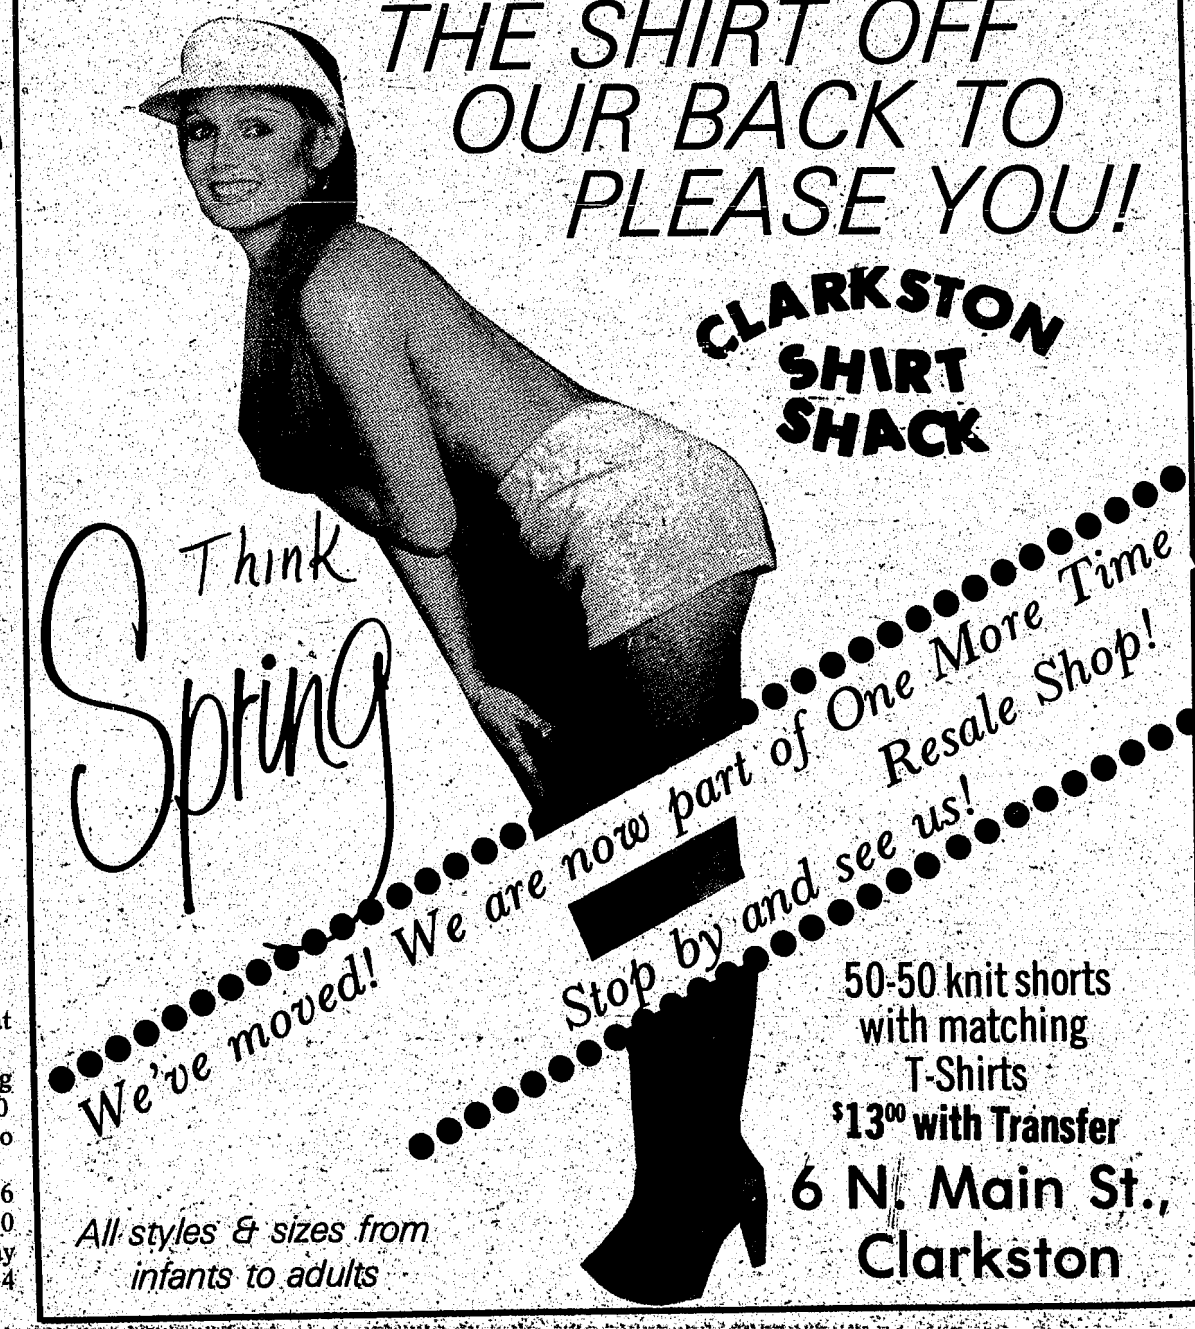

Articles must be clean, in good condition and "somewhat in style," she says.

Carol Eberhardt

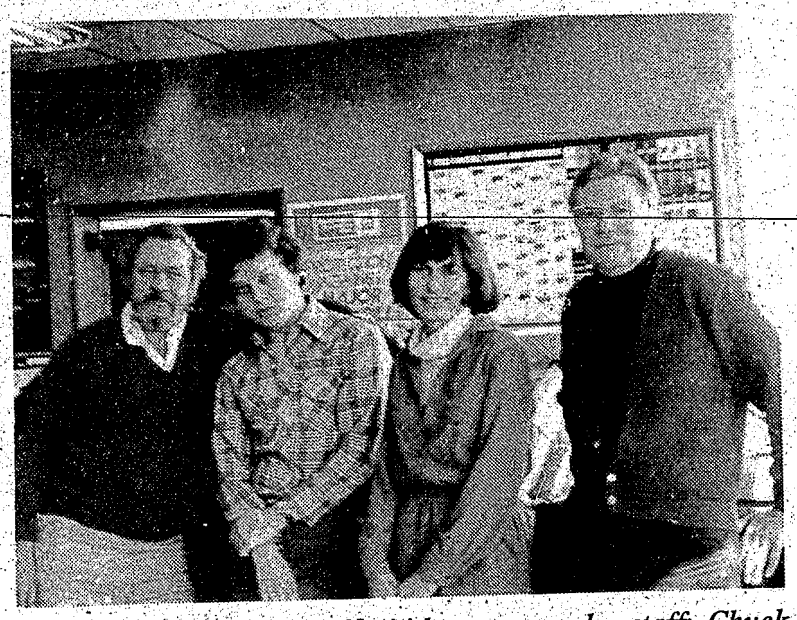

The income from clothing sold on consignment is split 60-40 with the smaller portion going to the resale shop.

One More Time is located at 6 N. Main, rear. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Corbin and Son hairstyles reflect latest looks

In 1953, he moved his business to where it still stands at 5854 Dixie Highway, Waterford Township.

Even though Tom Corbin retired a few years ago, the business is still called Corbin & Son. And what began as a simple barber shop is now a full-fledged hair-care center for the entire family.

Others who had begun as barbers faltered and failed. But as the revolutionary new hairstyles appeared and the shaven look faded, the elder Corbin-who had always been open-minded about styles and had always had women customers-expanded to become both a hair salon and a barber shop.

Following a short time of readjustment, exciting new hairstyles for the entire family became popular and remain so today. Men flock to hair salons for styled, contoured looks. Women remain fond of looking their best in their chosen style.

Corbin & Son offers shampoos, sets, blow-drys, permanents and a variety of hairstyles, both casual and elaborate.

In addition to Dave, there are three stylists at the shop: Pat Kustej, Barb Elert, and Dave's niece, Lori Vernot. The shop features Redkin hair and skin care products.

Dave and his wife, Marilyn, have two sons, Michael, 13, and Kelly, 9.

"I always admired by dad," says Dave. "He grew with the times and was open to change. I try to continue in this same way, gearing our services to the needs of the community.

"Some women prefer casual styles. But there are always those big occasions where a more elaborate hairstyle is needed. For the evening hours, many women like the old-fashioned upsweep, not rigid, but soft and flattering.

"Men like styles flattering to their faces and sometimes this might even involve a perm. There's new freedom in styling now that is good for everyone.

"Hairstyling is like any specialty, whether it be music or cabinet-making. You have to have a thorough understanding of the mechanics, the basics. Then, you have to have artistry. That is the finishing touch."

Rosemary Christie in her Clarkston Mills store.

Christie's is a delightful fashion garden

The bright springlike green of the decor reflects the assorted colors of the fashionable gowns, which bloom like flowers throughout the store.

Christie's came into being when Rosemary Christie called Keith Hallman, marketing consultant for Clarkston Mills, back when the Mills was in its formative stage. She was seeking employment in one of the new stores. Hallman suggested she open a clothing store of her own.

This suggestion was taken lightly by Rosemary Christie, until she told her husband about it. John Christie (known as Jack to friends and family) encouraged her.

"We came to look at the store, fell in love with it...and here I am," she said, with a smile.

Also featured are Cole bathing suits and a full line of fashion accessories, so necessary for that totally fashionable look. Sizes are from 6 to 18, so even the petite woman can find the right outfit for any occasion.

The Christies have three children, all married. They are Mark, who is an architect; Claudia Key, of the Shoe Tree at the Clarkston Mills; and Kimberlee Miracle, who is a homemaker. Rosemary and Jack Christie also have two grandchildren.

Helping at Christie's is Delores Rhodes, who is Rosemary Christie's sister and who recently moved into the area.

Louise Young, with many years of experience in the fashion world, is also employed there. Part-time employee is Joy Kasmar.

"I have such wonderful people helping me," said Rosemary Christie. "And the reception we have received from the people in Clarkston has been just great.

Along with the delicious bakery items, the fresh meats, the grocery items, there is another good reason to patronize Christine's...and that is the bright and cheerful personality of Christine Karbownik.

As she serves each customer, she inquires about his family, has health, his job, his problems. They are not only customers. To Christine, each and every one of them is a friend.

Christine Karbownik knows the deli business from beginning to end. She has spent 13 years as owner of the store, which is located near the corner of Dixie Highway and South Main St. next to the A and P Store. Her business is important, but her primary love is people. It's as simple as that.

"It comes natural to me," she explains. "I love all of them. I smile at them, listen to them and it makes ME happy."

Christine Karbownik's parents were in business in Europe. At an early age, her favorite activity was meeting people and getting to know them. This trait was apparent throughout the years of working in a bakery. It is still apparent today.

Besides the mouth-watering baked goods, the Kowalski meats and the grocery items, there are fresh spices and tobaccos at Christine's Delicatessen.

The store is open from 7 a.m. until 9 p.m. daily. On Sundays, the hours are 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. Six employees help in the store.

Christine has always been interested in the community and has worked hard to promote local schools and other civic organizations. Lately, however, her working hours have left little time for these activities.

"I like the small town. It is like one big family. And I am proud to be in a small business.

"Small business people are the backbone of America. They are the ones who dig into their pockets to help the community. They care.

"How is your husband?" she asks a customer. "Feeling better? That's good. I am happy to hear that. Be sure to tell him I said hello."

Other customers have approached the counter and Christine bustles about, giving them each a moment of her attention, giving each of them that Christine's Delicatessen specialty...service with a cheerful smile.

Progress is 'preservation and improvement of what we already have'

Village President Fontie ApMadoc defines progress in the Village of Clarkston for the 1980's as primarily the "preservation and improvement of what we already have."

"I wouldn't want to see a great deal of change in the village, and would hope that the township doesn't continue to grow at its present pace," ApMadoc says.

"Too much progress and growth will only hurt the village's historical value. But on the other hand, there are things we must move forward on."

One of the most prominent of those, she says, is improvement of the parking situation downtown.

"The parking we have right now is inadequate for the existing businesses," ApMadoc says. "We need to solve our parking problems, not to attract new stores, but simply to handle what we already have."

Historical preservation and continued efforts to further improve the village's aesthetic value are also priorities in the new decade, according to ApMadoc.

Recently the village council viewed a slide presentation by the Historical Research Committee which stressed some aspects of the village's appearance and historical value which could be improved.

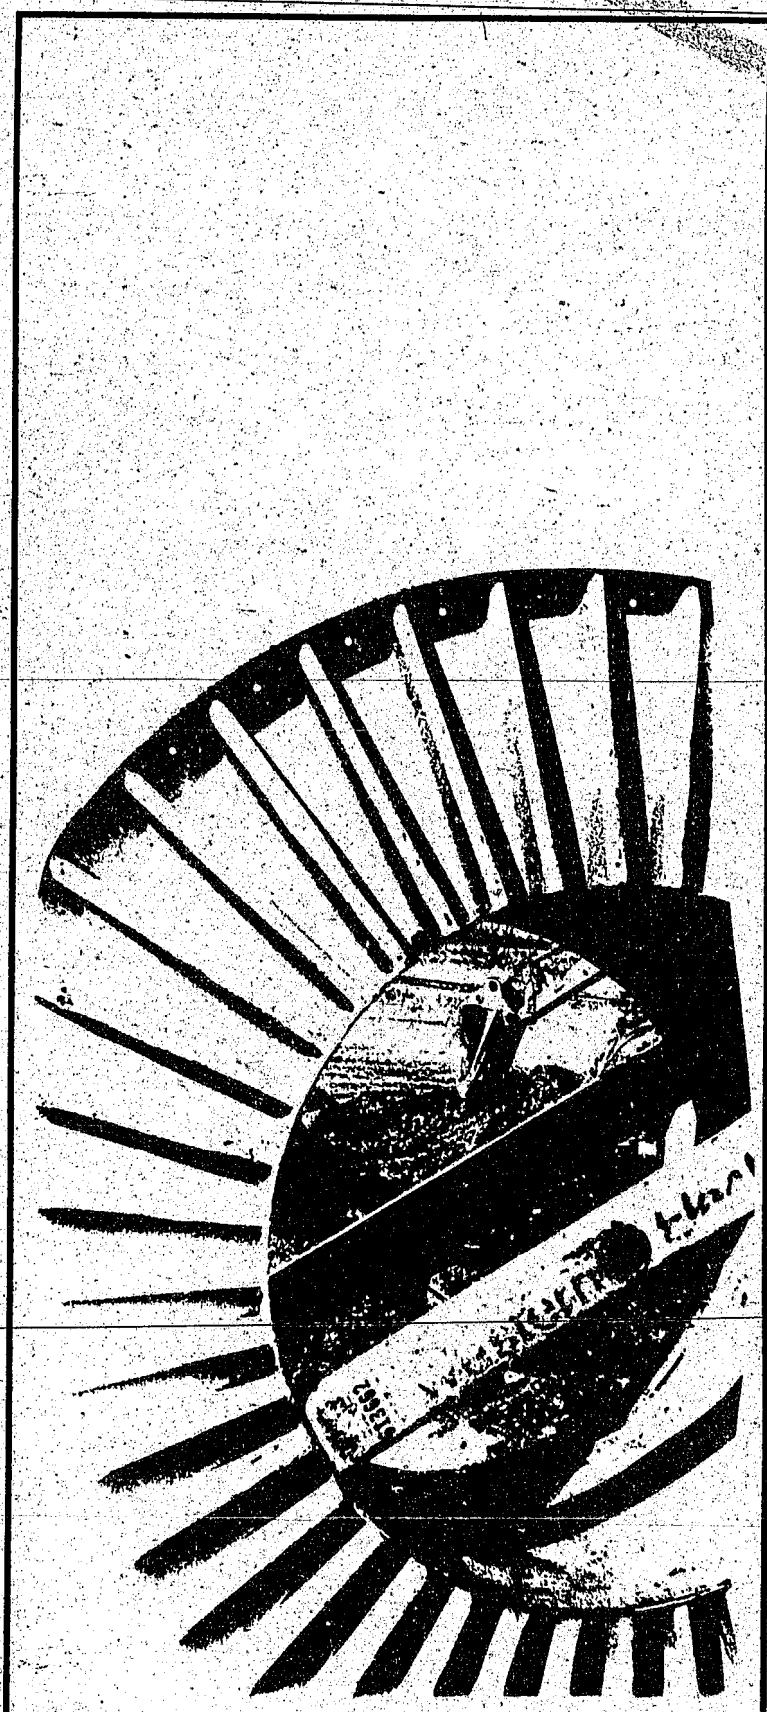

"There's so much we can do to fix up and improve what we have," ApMadoc says. "I'd like to see the village make a commitment in that direction."

ApMadoc also says she agrees with Independence Township Planning Commission member James Brennan, who recently proposed that the township and village planning commissions get together in a joint meeting to discuss a proposed rezoning of 14.7 acres along M-15.

"Getting the two planning commissions together is a great idea," ApMadoc says. "I don't know why an attempt to do this wasn't made sooner."

Deer Lake Farms: 'The Magic Kingdom'

A romantic aura from the past clings to the 372 acres of Deer Lake Farms, land which was formerly the southern half of a Henry Ford estate.

Here, the auto magnate left behind the tensions of industry to taste the country delights Clarkston area residents have enjoyed all along....the fields of wild flowers, the meadows, the trees, the lakes and other scenic attractions.

Gary Sanders, general manager of Towne and Country Realtors, stands on the shore of Deer Lake, which will be left undisturbed for the use of Deer Lake Farms residents.

Hugh Garner is president of Winchester Real Estate Investments, which developed the former Ford property into approximately 150 two-acre parcels.

Only 28 lots remain for sale at Deer Lake Farms, some at a higher elevation with a breathtaking view, others nestled in valleys surrounded by wooded hillsides.

Formerly director of development at the University of Detroit, for Sanders sees Deer Lake Farms as a way of making a dream into a reality.

Here, country living is combined with city amenities...underground wiring, natural gas, city sewers and paved streets. Here, development is carefully controlled and blended with the natural environment.

A peninsula of land in Deer Lake...with 1,800 feet of lakefront...will remain undisturbed to enable residents to enjoy the water.

Mile after mile of winding country roads lead to the homesites, yet they are county-owned with mail delivery and school bus routes.

Then there is Deer Lake itself, 90-feet deep, clear, cold, spring-fed, stocked with rainbow trout, and heralded as one of the cleanest lakes in the state. A stream ambles through the property. And there is tiny Dark Lake, a little larger than a pond and surrounded by natural beauty.

The homes at Deer Lake Farms have been constructed by such well-known firms as Cascaddan, Cedar Knolls, Style-master and C & B Custom Builders.

Each home is original and different, with no two alike...each typifying the dreams and aspirations of those who have selected historic Deer Lake Farms as their home in the country.

Biofit's total conditioning for good looks, health

Ordinary exercise is not enough to keep you in the peak of condition, according to Gary Stempien, who along with partner Ed Wolau is owner of Biofit, located in Waterford Township.

The muscular, athletic young businessman has been owner of the "total conditioning" salon for the past six years.

Manager of Biofit is Kathy Mellen, who was formerly a coach working for the City of Southfield. Ms. Mellen has a teaching degree from Western Michigan University, considers her job at Biofit as in the educational field and wants to spread the word that the way to health is through proper exercise.

Biofit became a co-ed program last May. The women's program is in full swing right now, with special prices offered.

"Women do not develop the muscular look that men do," he explained. "but they can look and feel their best with proper exercise."

The Nautilus machines provide "total" conditioning with the regular exercising of every part of the body. This conditioning aids the cardio-vascular system and reduces body fat.

New members begin slowly, repeating the exercises until the body has had primary and secondary exercising, using what is called the "pre-exhaustion principle" where a single-joint exercise is used to pre-exhaust a given muscle and a multiple-joint exercise is used to force the muscle to work even harder. This workout takes from 20 to 30 minutes, then at least 48 hours must lapse before clients are allowed to return to the Nautilus machines.

"One step at a time," is the way Stempien describes the procedure. "You must remember that the body is a machine, but that there is one difference. When a machine is used constantly, it will wear out. When the body is exercised properly, it is improved and lasts much longer.

"Our sedentary lives cause our muscles to become weak and flaccid and lack of exercise and too much food causes us to become fat.

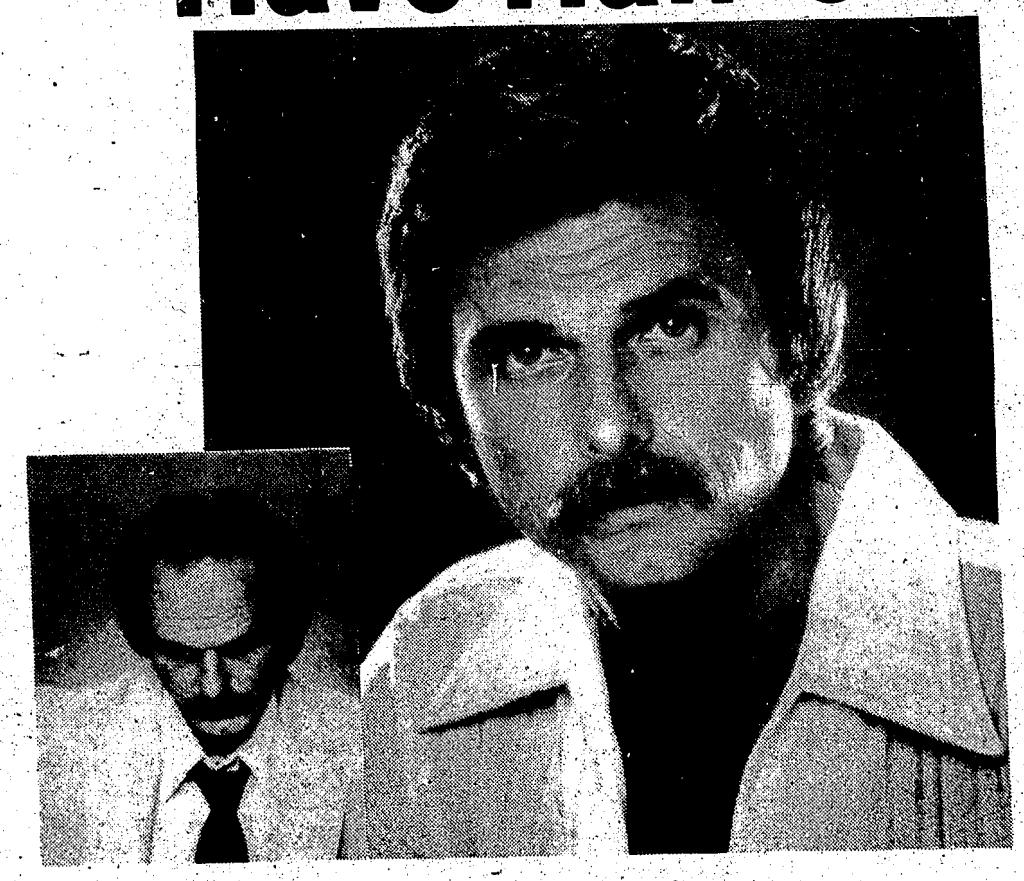

"In pioneer days, people were outside, working in the woods and fields. They were in much better condition than many of us are today."

"It's a way of life for me," said Stempien. "Since I first met the inventor of the Nautilus equipment in 1972 and became involved in this advanced concept of total conditioning, I have tried to help people regain their health and good spirits with the proper exercise."

"Our oldest member is well into his 60s," said Kathy Mellen. "Our youngest member is about 12. This program is important for old and young, men or women. Everyone can benefit at Biofit."

Bud Grant earned his underwriter's title

For the past four years, he has had his own agency in Independence Township, located in the Clarkston Cinema Building on Dixie Highway.

A chartered life underwriter is to insurance what a certified public accountant is to bookkeeping. This means the insurance agent has the necessary education and experience to excel in insurance sales of every kind.

The Bud Grant agency sells life, auto and fire insurance, keeping a close eye on the needs of its clientele.

In 1956, Bud Grant was working in the Flint area at a State Farm agency. In 1965, he went to central Michigan to work in an office there.

The decision to open an office of his own was the culmination of years of hard work.

Grant sells both commercial and residential insurance and states that 1980 will be a year of change in Michigan Insurance. This is because there are legislative changes taking effect which will further regulate insurance rates for "essential insurance".

The term "essential insurance" means that certain insurance is essential and must be affordable for all, but Grant warns that some problems may outweigh the advantages in the new regulations.

"Insurance companies don't set rates," he explained. "We just keep score."

Another change which may soon be taking place is the instigation of a vehicle inspection for Michigan drivers. Grant favors this change and points out that it has worked out well in many other states.

Grant is dedicated to his profession and often accepts speaking engagements at drivers' training classes throughout the area. His wife Shirley is tour director for Meadowbrook Theatre. They have two sons, Mark and Paul.

Grant is a member of the Pontiac Elks Club, the National Association of Life Underwriters, the Business Association of Independence Township and the United States Chamber of Commerce.

'Insurance companies don't set rates. We just keep score.'

Jacobsen's Flowers: 60 years of progress

Bruce Jacobsen has in his possession a history of Jacobsen's Flowers, as told by his father, Harold S. Jacobsen, entitled "More Than a Green Thumb."

This epistle tells dramatically and sincerely of the struggles involved with the beginning of a business, a business which has become an integral part of the Lake Orion scene and which, in April, will celebrate its 60th anniversary.

In April, 1920, Charles V. Jacobsen And Son opened their greenhouses. Charles and his son, Harold, had a farmhouse and 25,000 feet of rundown greenhouses on 10 acres of land.

A store was opened in Pontiac, at 101 N. Saginaw St., destined to stay in that location for 50 years until it was burned down by burglars and a beautiful new shop opened on Elizabeth Lake Road.

After World War II, two of Harold's three sons joined him in the family business. They were Harold S. Jacobsen Jr. (now managing the Pontiac store) and Bruce C. Jacobsen, who is familiar to all plant and garden lovers in the Orion area.

In 1973, a third shop was opened in Bloomfield Hills.

In 1979, a third generation of Jacobsens began working at the shops, when Harold S. Jacobsen III and Bruce's sons, Bradford Jacobsen joined the firm.

A new flower shop was built in Lake Orion in 1946 and a newer store was constructed in 1965, taking the place of the first garden shop which was an army surplus building erected in 1950.

Bruce Jacobsen has instigated many traditions at the store in Lake Orion, including an annual Christmas show and an arts & crafts show.

His wife Marilyn is interested in and collects antiques. Their son, Brad, who is a graduate of Michigan State University, recently married the daughter of Oxford's Mr. and Mrs. William Patterson, Teri Patterson.

Harold S. Jacobsen III, son of Harold II and Marjorie, is also a graduate of Michigan State. His wife is named Michele.

Harold S. Jacobsen Sr. is still active in an advisory capacity at the family business and is called upon many times for his advice and counsel.

The elder Mr. Jacobsen has written a story of a business, established with the principle of hard work and effort and nourished...like the many plants, the Jacobsens have grown and sold....with the bright light of Faith in the future.

In April, 1920, Charles V. Jacobsen and Son opened their greenhouses.

Father, son offer fine jewelry at Waterfall

At Waterfall Jewelers, located on Waterfall Plaza on Dixie Highway, the elegant jewelry is attractively displayed, and the dependable service attracts customers from thoughout the area.

The owners of Waterfall Jewelers are a father-and-son combination. Tom Brown Sr. has had years of experience in jewelry sales. He has spent 25 years as supervisor of a chain operation.

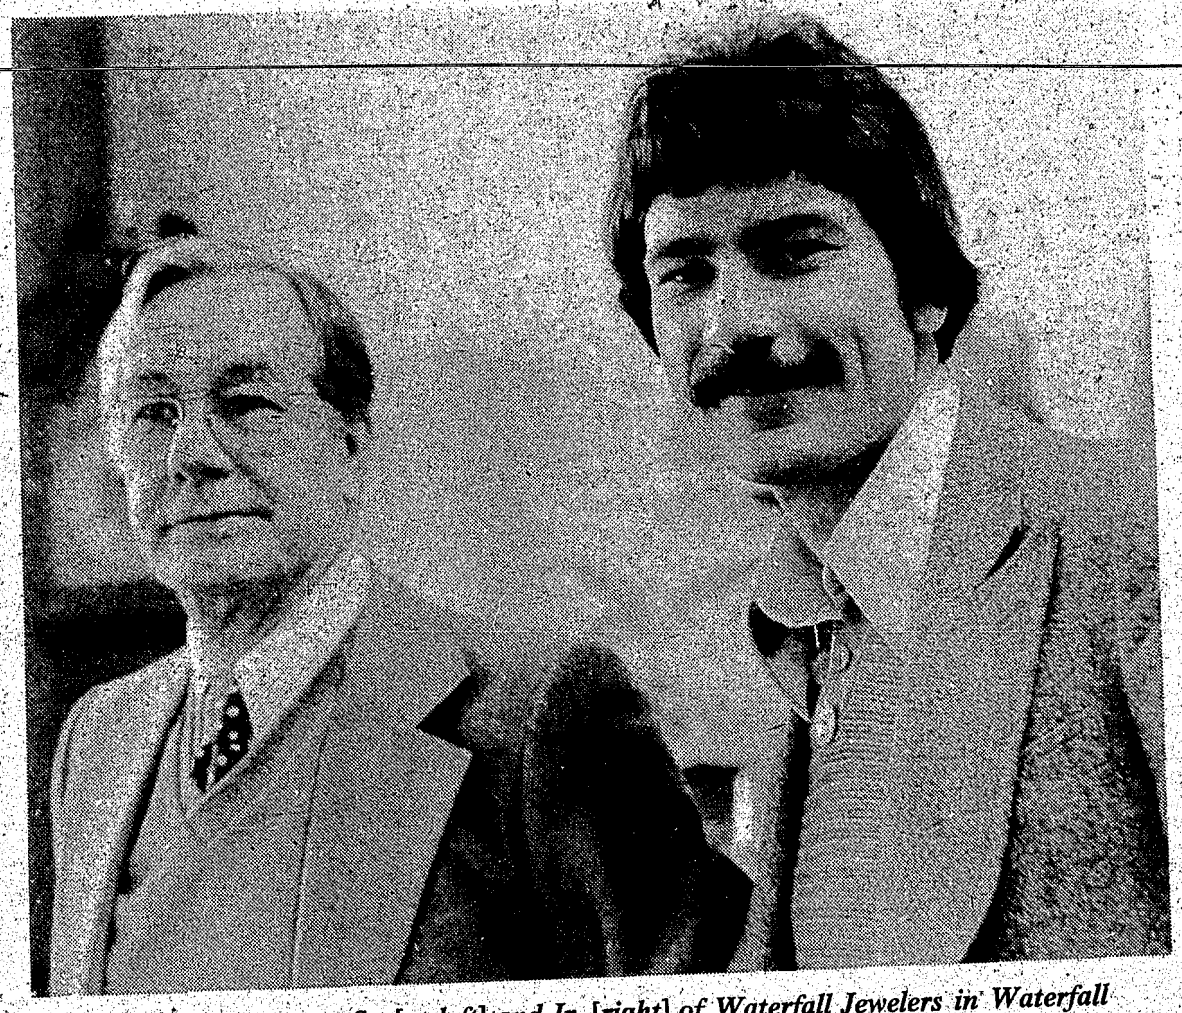

The Browns always wanted a business in their home area. The store at Waterfall Plaza has allowed them to realize that dream.

Here they offer good service and the finest of merchandise to customers they have known for many years.

The store features a selection of quality watches, fine jewelry, Jewel Fire diamonds, clocks, gift items and much more. In addition, Waterfall Jewelers do remounting of rings and repair of jewelry and will help you select the design of that special gift you may be seeking.

In 1957, his father, Michel Gourand, purchased an apple orchard at the corner of Clarkston and Sashabaw Roads. He began selling the fruit along the roadside, as well as managing the small gas station on the propery.

Today, Pierre's Orchards and Country Market features produce and grocery items galore, brought in daily from trips to farmers' markets, carted by truck to provide nutritious and delicious fruits and vegetables for our area homes.

Pierre Gourand took over the ownership and management of his father's store and supervised its expansion. The apple orchard was given up as the market increased in size and patronage.

Pierre's Orchards became the place where area customers stop daily to purchase luscious red apples, oranges, grapefruit and other fruits and vegetables, each selection as ripe and inviting as the first.

"I get up very early in the morning, sometimes at 3:30 or 4 a.m. in order to arrive early at the market," explains Pierre Gourand. "You have to arrive early or the best selection is already gone. So I am among the first to get there. I want the best for my customers."

Pierre Gourand is married to Nicole, who is also from France. After they met here in the United States, they discovered that both had attended the same school in Paris. They have five children, Claude, Chris, Eric, Andre and Chantel, who is four.

Hair care and more at Mr. G's

But Mr. G's Hair Salon provides another service.

This can be done in several different ways. The client might wish a wig or a hairpiece, or a hairpiece can sometimes be permanently interwoven with the client's own hair.

Or a transplant may be desired, with the physician using plugs of hair from other sections of the head, carefully waiting for each to grow.

Ayres explained that entire families come to Mr. G's for hair care and that the salon is open six days a week, closing only on Sundays.

"We offer a full line of unisex hair-styling," he explained. "Our clients are sixty per cent men. We give them the best of service and the latest in styling."

Village Bookstore carries books for all occasions

A village like Clarkston and its surrounding area, alive with history and steeped in the traditions of yesterday, but growing by leaps and bounds, is bound to be filled with people who love to read.

Books are a reflection of yesterday and a mirror of tomorrow. They can be recreational or educational...and Village Bookstore covers both topics.

Children's books, Bennett says, are popular in the Clarkston area. She has a well-stocked young reader's department, and Bennett is the first to point out that a book still costs less than a game or a toy for those special youthful occasions.

"A game or a toy is so easily forgotten," she adds. "But a book can stay with that young reader forever."

Bennett purchased Village Bookstore in May of last year. For the previous five years, she was employed as manager of The Book Worm.

She and her husband, Robert (who is owner of Hallman Apothecary) have two daughters, Stephanie, 12, and Nicole, 9. The girls help out in the store and the Bennett family are avid readers.

A unique service offered at Village Bookstore is that of an "out of print title search." This search can be long and exhausting, involving many inquiries to various publishers, but if the book can be found, Bennett will find it.

Buying trips are made to replenish the rapidly moving selection of books at Village Book Store and Bennett's goal is to purchase books her customers will enjoy and cherish. This includes many gift books on various subjects of interest as well as a large selection of best sellers and old favorites both ficiton and non-fiction.

If you are in perfect shape, with a body that is trim and slim, with no tendency to gain unwanted fat and no problems in turning down a doughnut or a second helping of ice cream, you may not be interested in the story of the North Oakland Weight Watcher's Center.

But if you, like many of us, have a few...or more than a few...pounds to lose, suffer from midriff bulge, sagging thighs or other figure faults and are prone to enjoy the goodies a little more than you should, this story may open a door to good health and good looks.

Ruth Ann understands the problems of the frustrated eater. When she joined Weight Watchers eight years ago, she was 70 pounds heavier and a lot unhappier. It took her a year to lose weight and she now proudly announces she is maintaining her weight beneath her selected goal.

Why did she join?

"One day, I looked in the mirror and said to myself, 'Hey, you're fat!' and decided to do something about it. I tried dieting on my own and it didn't work. So I joined Weight Watchers.

"My lifestyle has changed. I have challenges and interests I never had before, and I find life stimulating and exciting. My whole family has benefited from my weight loss, because I stopped purchasing junk foods. We have healthy, nutritious meals and I feel better than I have ever felt before."

Ruth Ann Roe first became a Weight Watcher, then she became a lecturer, then she began training lecturers.

Other lecturers are Joanna Bowles, who has a 30-pound loss; Dick Corl, with a 65 pound loss; Gerri Batt, with a 40 pound loss; and Gay Currin, with a 50 pound loss. Secretary at the center is Pat Kleine, who has worked for Weight Watchers, Inc. for the past seven years.

Behavior modification is the goal of Weight Watcher's. To lose wieght is not enough, one must learn to keep it off.

Pep Step, a lively exercise plan involving the use of walking to keep trim, is encouraged, and members are taught to make use of tasty recipes, avoiding the hidden calories in rich sauces and gravies, etc.

"Weight Watcher's can change your life," says Ruth Ann Roe. She ought to know...for her own life has traveled the road from frustration to success...with Weight Watcher's.

To Vannelli, co-owner and manager of the Orion Township establishment, the architecture of the building that houses the steak house symbolizes the comfort and peace of a bygone era.

"It is our intention to convey this peace and quiet of the past to the customer as he walks into Gus' Steak House the first, second, third and umpteenth time," he said.

The idea is to treat customers as though each has been long-awaited.

"When seated, they will be served fastidiously, quickly and quietly, making sure all needs are taken care of, and that their comfort is assured," Vanelli said.

"Another reason why Gus' is the way it is is because today it seems that there are so many just beautiful restaurants in this world whose beauty is not matched by the menu or the cuisine," Vannelli continued.

"Gus', in its simple manner, has the cuisine which makes it one of the finer restaurants, yet with the pleasantness and simplicity and comfort and unpretensciouness of the roadhouse it represents.

"Another why for Gus' Steak House is the market of people it reaches—people who are tired of the fast-food syndrome and whose tastes are discerning and whose pocketbooks are willing to pay for the finest quality food and service available at any particular time.

As Vannelli said, "The reason for its excellence, I believe, is that we use the freshest of produce and the freshest fish money can buy and that all of this is prepared very simply and to order.

H and H Collision makes 'sick' cars well again

It's as vast and spacious as an indoor football field and it is filled with approximately 24 cars, each in a different stage of repair and renovation.

Located on Williams Lake Rd. at Dixie Highway, the 11,000-square foot body and repair shop called H&H Collision is owned by Harold Hatmaker who has spent the past 16 years in the field of automotive repair.

His collision shop, once located on M-59, relocated on Dixie Highway for a period of eight years before the new garage was constructed on two and one-half acres at one of the area's busiest corners.

Cars receive expert attention in the body shop, radiator shop, auto glass department and repair garage. Front-end alignments are a speciality, with frame work attended to...even Ford pick-up I-beams are straightened and repaired at H & H Collision. The shop also handles air-conditioning repair.

Hatmaker is assisted by his two sons, Jim and Dennis. His wife, Cecelia, also works at the shop. They also have a daughter, Audrey, and another son, Bill.

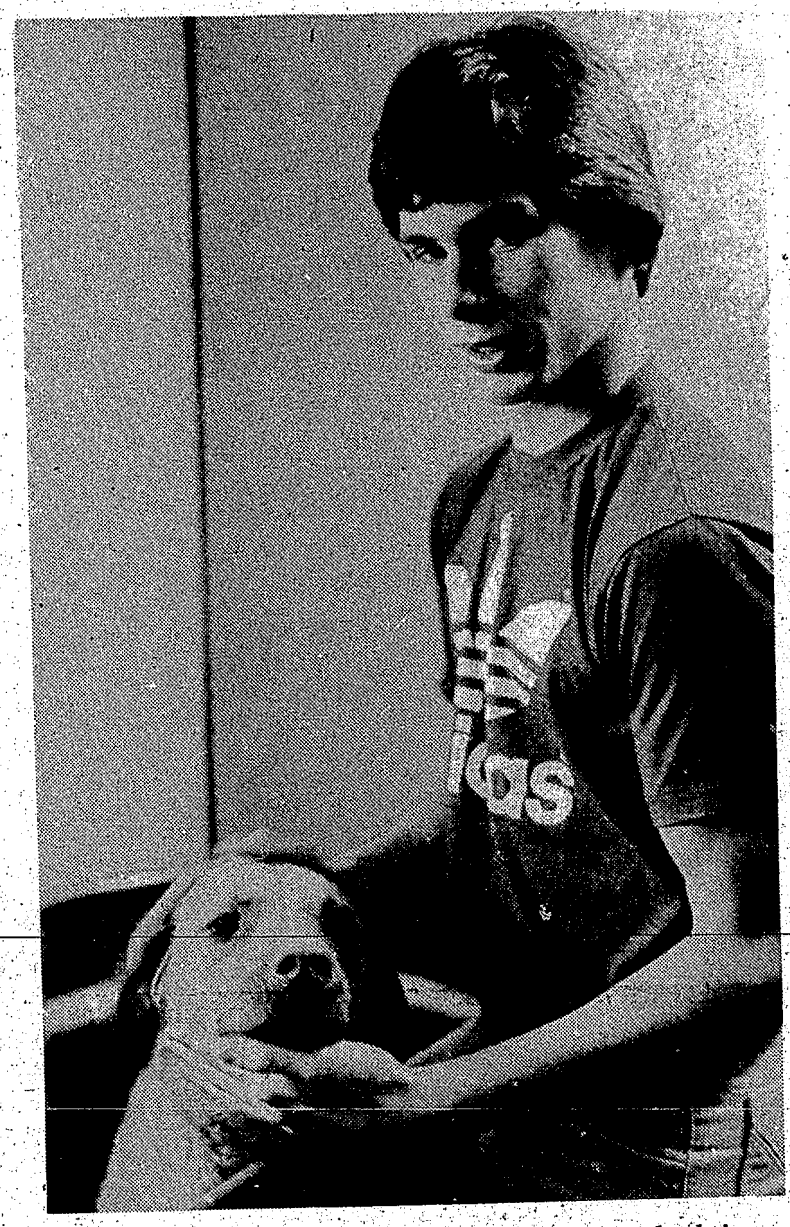

Hatmaker is proud of the new shop with its spacious area for repair work. Along with H & H Collision, at the same location is another Hatmaker enterprise, Astro Auto Sales.

Harold Hatmaker in H and H Collision's garage, where damaged cars are repaired to look as good as new.

Hatmaker has spent a lifetime working around and with automobiles, learning about them, repairing them, bringing them back to mint condition.

Bunker Hill gives pets TLC

Yet it is always a problem to know what to do with a pet over a prolonged absence. Bunker Hill Kennels may be the answer to that question for Clarkston area residents.

Bunker Hill Kennels is located on 10 acres of land on Andersonville Rd. The Bennett family are animal lovers who can provide your dog or cat with the tender, loving care needed while you are gone.

They always have owned and bred dogs and this was their chance to fulfil a dream as kennel-owners, providing family care for pets when their owners are absent.

Special grooming facilities make it possible for Eric Bennett, aged 16 and a Clarkston High School student, to wash and flea-dip the animals, leaving them comfortable and well-groomed...and much easier to enjoy around the house.

The Bennetts also have a son Rick, 24; a son, Tom, 13; and a daughter, Anne.

To make sure facilities are available for your pet, the Bennetts urge pet owners to call well in advance of a trip.

So, if you know you will be away from home, call 625-2766 and assure your animal a safe stay under the protective care of Bunker Hill Kennels.

Tiffany-style fixtures a specialty at Pine Tree

Pine Tree Lighting and Furniture is a wonderland of lights, with more than 3,000 lighting fixtures in the vast building, which has an inventory of approximately $500,000 in merchandise.

Pine Tree Lighting and Furniture is located on M-24 south of Clarkston Road in Orion Township. Ken Latshaw is owner of the store, which was opened three years ago.

Latshaw has been actively purchasing the lamps for over five years from all over the United STates. The unique characteristics of Tiffany styled fixtures, along with their historical heritage, has created a personal interest beyond that of just another retail item.

By sending a truck direct to the factory, Pine Tree has the opportunity to purchase and offer fixtures at greatly reduced prices, ranging from $39.95 to $1,700.

This display, one of the largest in the state, averages over 1,000 Tiffany sales a year and is therefore in a state of perpetual change, with new styles and choices available throughout the year.

Latshaw points out that a potential buyer should consider several features before purchasing. Value of a particular Tiffany will depend on color and age of glass, number of curved cuts, total number of pieces of glass used which reflects labor and quality of finish in the leading.

Latshaw has opened a new Pine Tree in Utica which is also incorporating Tiffanies into its display.

If you are interested in bringing a new image and brilliance to any room in the home, a Tiffany is one of the easiest and least expensive ways to accomplish this goal.

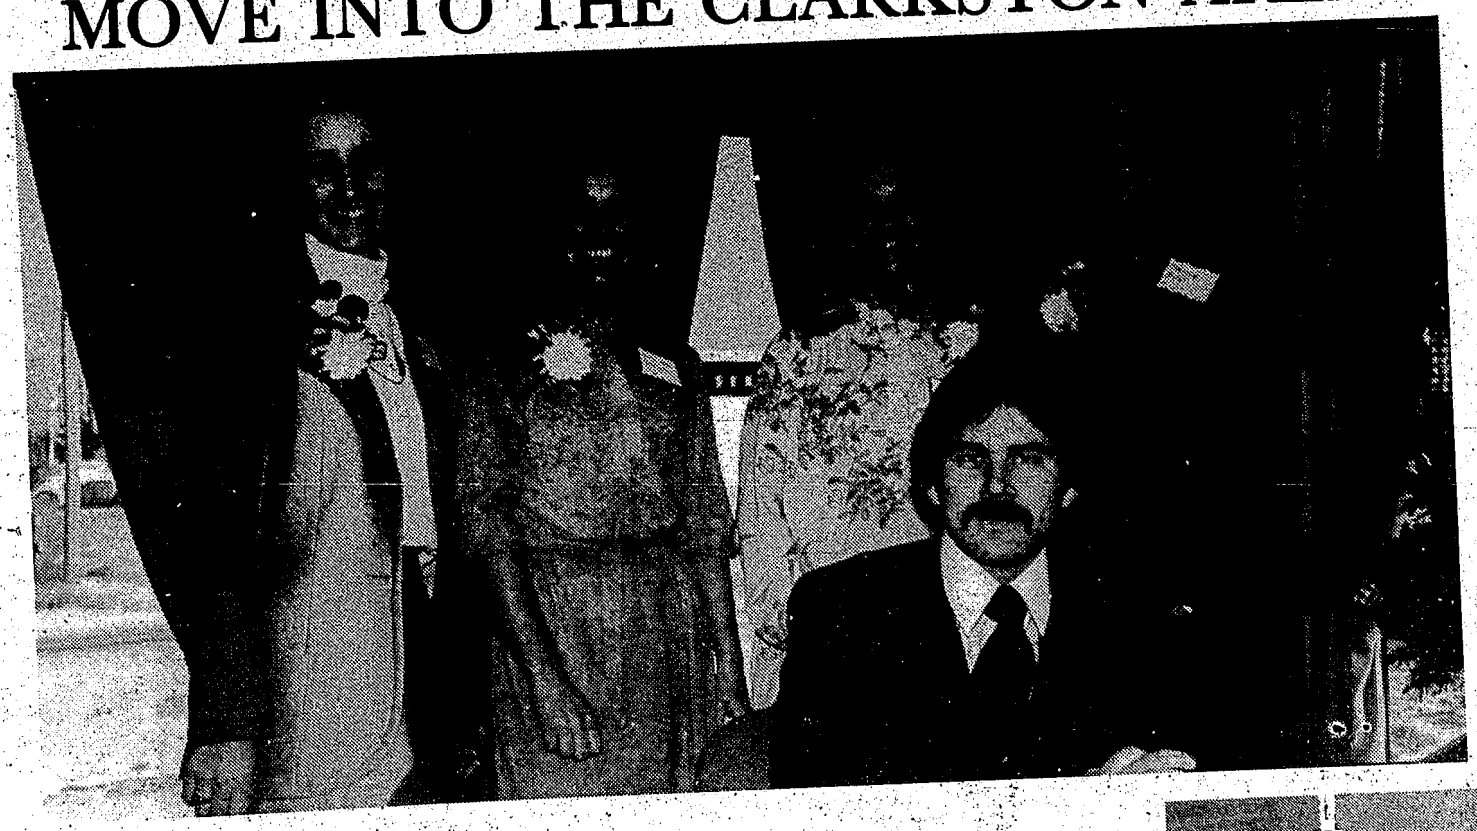

Pine Tree Lighting and Furniture supplies approximately 50 new homes each month with lighting fixtures, servicing both individual home-owners and developers.

Interior decorators are available to give advice and assistance with your home or office decor. The staff, under manager Don Lake, is well-versed in all phases of decorating and happy to lend a hand.

An electrical constractor with 25 years of experience before going into retail business, Ken Latshaw is proud of his large selection of stock and the fact that most customers can find just the lighting fixture they want with just a visit to Pine Tree Lighting and Furniture.

Along with the multitude of lamps and lights, including yard and porch fixtures, Pine Tree has a full line of furniture, including bedroom and dining room sets, grandfather clocks, desks and tables, sofa beds and couches.

Barber I is located in the Oakland Life Plaza on Williams Lake Road, Waterford Township. The Bills opened the shop in September of 1979.

"We are hair designers," explained Sue. "I design a hair style for bone structure body structure and general appearance. I educate people on their hair. And there's nothing I like better than correcting hair with problems."

Sue Bills describes herself as a "perm technician", an expert in giving permanents to both men and women.

A fanatic on "the natural look", she disapproves of hair-dyes and refuses to give them, even though she admits that she may soon have to hire someone to perform this hated task.

Tim Bills always wanted to be a hair stylist. he was an "amateur barber" while in the Army, sitting his customers on garbage cans while he performed his clipping wizardy.

There are 13 barbers in his family, so no one was surprised when he took up the profession.

For 10 years, he worked at the Continental Barber Salon. He is the son of Carl and Alla Jean Bills, owners of Triple A Floor Sanding.

Sue Tersigni, the daughter of Shirley and Joe Tersigni, owners of Times Realty met Tim Bills when he was working in a barber shop.

She used to visit him and give him advice on cuts, until it was suggested that she take up the art. She did so, breezed through the schooling and became a barber-stylist...as is her husband.

"Every face is a picture which needs a frame," says Sue Bills. "Your hair makes your image. And when I tell folks about the molecular structure of the hair, I know they can't get that from a dentist or a doctor, so it's up to me to educate them."

Barber I is a scientific hair care center selling KMS hair care products.

"I'm not a hairdresser," said Sue, emphatically. "Hair doesn't need dressing. I tell folks, 'here, here's your naked hair, no dressing, isn't it beautiful?"

"I believe hair should be maintenance free. With a good cut, it should always look attractive. Permanents are good, too, because they don't damage or break down the hair. This is why I am against hair coloring."

"I like KMS products because they are organic and natural. I could use them on my face, so I know they are safe for hair."

The Bills want their salon to be relaxing, with a personal atmosphere. They do not like the idea of "asembly-line" styling.

They give each customer privacy and an adequate amount of time and attention. Customers are urged to bring their children, and Sue provides youngsters with coloring books and crayons.

Also featured are T-shirts, shorts, sweat shirts, warm-ups, all weather suits, duffel bags and equipment and accessories for the runner, the racquetball player and other athletes.

Owners of the store are partners Bob Harris and Bob Little. Bob Harris was formerly a business owner in Ohio with many years of experience in the retail market. Bob Little is known for his former employment in a large area retail store.

Helping out at the store is Barbara Harris, mother of the four Harris children. She explains that the Harris family are athletic, enjoying sports, the outdoors and the benefits of exercise.

Their first year has been successful, and they have been busy getting acquainted with new customers, buying merchandise and arranging it in the racks and on the shelves.

"It's been an exciting year and a busy one at Runnin' Gear, where they specialize in the importance of keeping physically fit with the latest of athletic gear.

Rose Head of Rosanne's Interiors has had years of experience with both drapery and upholstrey fabric to aid her clients in decorating their homes or offices.

Rosanne's coordinates ideas for home design

Rose Head of Rosanne's Interiors is an interior decorator willing to assist you with the decor of your home, no matter how big or how small the project may be; whether commercial or residential.

By calling 623-6849 and making an appointment at your convenience, you may receive the expertise and counsel that Rose Head has gathered through years of experience.

Mrs. Head has been in the field of interior decorating since 1974.

She began by making draperies and bedspreads, etc., using the finest of materials and craftmanship. This facet of the business became so popular her attentions were expanded to include every room of the home.

When Rose Head visits the home or office of a prospective customer, she listens and looks....learning the lifestyle, individual tastes and preferences and the amount of money available to the customer.

Then the project begins....with Mrs. Head and her client searching through the many fabric samples furnished by Rosanne's Interiors to find just the right color and material for upholstery and draperies, selecting carpeting, deciding upon furnishings and wall coverings and adding those decorative finishing touches as accents.

Rose Head believes in taking treasures out of the cupboards and displaying them with pride. She also believes every home should have one antique in sight, whether it be a priceless heirloom or an item picked up at an auction or sale.

"The women of today are aware of interior design. They know what they want. They know themselves, and their families' tastes. But they often need help in coordinating ideas and keeping their projects within their financial boundaries.

"Often, I take a client to the Design Center in Troy. There are many display rooms there, using a great variety of color schemes and materials. This helps the client coordinate her ideas and decide upon which style or period she herself would prefer."

The other Head children are Roxanne Bonneau, a floral designer whose work has won acclaim in area flower shows; Larry Head and Deborah Nicoson, both of Indiana.

Rose Head is also an antique collector, busy attending antique shows and buying and selling antiques. She is fond of functional design, creating beautiful rooms which are comfortable and practical.

"I accept each project as a challenge," she explained. "I enjoy giving advice on one small room or office as much as I do helping with the decor of a large house.

"When I am completed with the job, I love to see each client living at ease with the furnishings." Decor is a functional part of living.

"The cost must be kept at a reasonable level and, with 500 different pieces of fabric to choose from, it is possible to create a room which is both practical and beautiful at a price you can afford to pay."

Haupt Pontiac new car sales leader

Haupt Pontiac is owned by partners Don Short and D.I. Pettengille and is still among those leading the field in new car sales.

Sales manager is Skip Williams, who has been in the car business for many years. Williams, who is from the Lake Orion area, watches over the sales at the dealership, which is located at 7151 N. Main.

Williams can remember when life was a little less busy, a little less hectic. Each year, he recalls, automobiles have become more and more important to our life style.

The "one-car" family has been replaced by the busier "two-car or more" family, with everyone depending upon their cars in both their jobs and their homes.

"Pontiac is a good-looking car, dependable and economical. Our new smaller models can save you plenty of money on gas," said Williams.

The Phoenix has been top seller recently, according to Williams. This is the car with the exciting new front-wheel drive, a feature which makes it easier to handle, better on mileage.

"With front-wheel drive, it's being pulled rather than being pushed," he explained.

Williams takes pride in the Pontiac lines, likes the new small cars, but believes there will always be some who...because of a large family or a willingness to spend more...will continue to prefer the larger models.

Haupt Pontiac also sells used cars. There is a parts department, a service and body shop and a large showroom with seven sales people on hand to demonstrate the shining new cars.

"Our business depends upon satisified customers. Customers are satisfied when they receive a good product and dependable service."

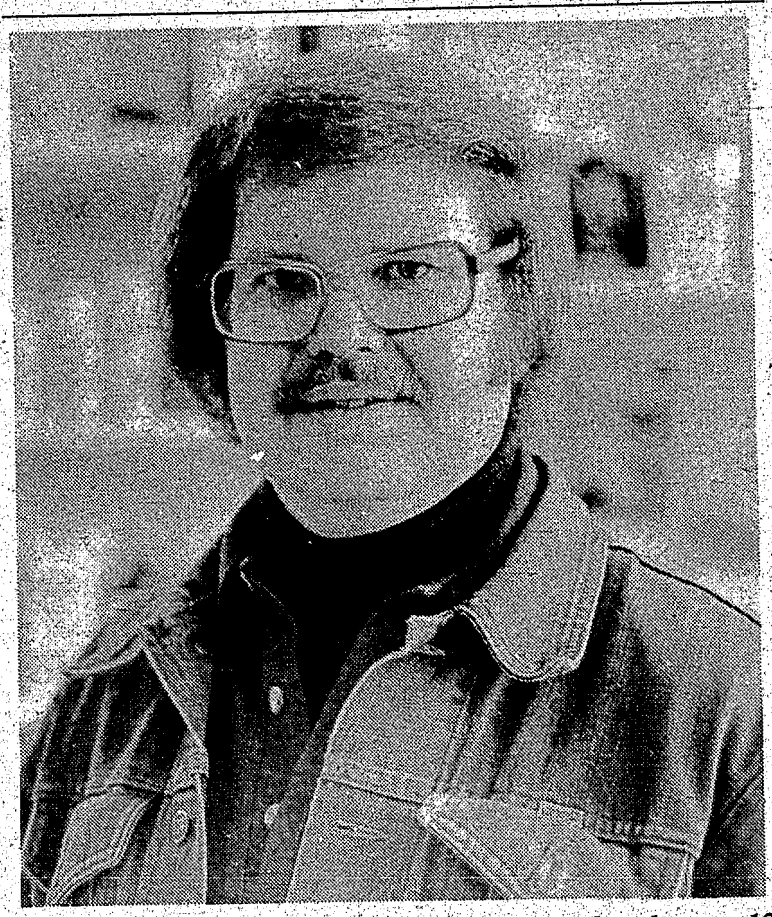

Williams is blunt and to-the-point when asked the most important quality necessary in automobile sales.

"Honesty and integrity," is his quick answer, "combined with a reliable and well-made car. We have customers who return again and again because they know they are getting this."

Haupt has expanded both its show room and service area in past years. It ranks among the top dealerships in sales in southeastern Michigan.

In spring, Regal Feed and Supply is garden headquarters

Pete Hamilton went to work at Regal Feed And Supply when he was 12 years old.

His duties were legion. He swept, cleaned, carried stock, waited on customers.

Five years ago, after learning the business from the bottom to the top, he purchased the store where he had been employed as a boy.

Regal Feed And Supply, located on Dixie Highway in Waterford Township, features dog food, bird feed and rabbit pellets, as well as other pet food and supplies.

There are fertilizers, garden seeds, ice salt and water softener salts and many other necessary supplies, sold in bulk for the most economical prices.

In today's world of inflation, they have become vital for providing fresh vegetables for the table, cutting down food costs tremendously and getting their owners into the fresh air.

Hamilton can give advice on proper planting techniques and growing cycles, too...information often needed by the beginning gardener.

His wife Rose works for the Pontiac Post Office and also sells real estate. They have three children, Sonna, Alice and Jamie.

Catherine's: for fashion and enjoyment

Kathy Boggs and Toni Miller were friends and neighbors before they became business partners.

Each had three children and each felt something was needed to make life more challenging and interesting. When they heard a store was for sale in Harvard Plaza, they decided to combine talents and purchase it.

This was accomplished and the two are now the owners of Catherine's of Waterford, at 5602 Dixie Highway.

"Our husbands encouraged us. They helped us in every way. Without them, it wouldn't have been possible," recalled Kathy Boggs. Kathy is married to Jerry Boggs. Toni's husband is Pete Miller.

The store became theirs in September of 1979. The two partners then applied themselves to building up their inventory and meeting their customers. The results have been encouraging. Their records show that sales have risen from between 60 to 100 percent.

Boggs and Miller often make buying trips to Detroit and Chicago to ascertain that their customers get a large selection of fashionable clothing.

"We like clothing which is unique and original, but not too extreme," explained Toni Miller. "And the price has to be reasonable."

They also feel that their customers deserve individualized service. They keep lists of the names and sizes of their customers. There is no pressured salesmanship but a genuine desire to assist and please. The lay away department is available and the customers can pay for these layaways at their convenience. At Catherine's, the coffee pot is always on and many shoppers stop in for a cup of coffee and a chat.

"We enjoy the store," explained Toni Miller. "And we want ouor customers to enjoy it as much as we do. In this way, we know they'll come back again and again."

Kathy Bodds [left] and Toni Miller are friends who became co-owners of a popular women's apparel shop, Catherine's of Waterford.

They continue in this role and have now opened an office in Fort Lauderdale, FL, to provide t e same service in housing for th se who seek a home in sunnier climes.

Th re are three Swanson And Associates offices in this area. The ma n office is located on Dixie Hig way north of Holly Road, Springfield Township. Other offices are located in Ortonville and in Fenton.

He left the restaurant business for a career in real estate, retaining only one restaurant in the Detroit area.

The Swanson And Associates office on Dixie Highway was opened six years ago. Since that time, their success has been phenomenal.

They are the exclusive brokers for the Pine Knob condominiums, with two sales persons working full time at this project. They also retain the exclusive sales of Bitterbush Development Co., located in Clarkston.

The Fort Lauderdale office is the newest development in the Swanson & Associates list of projects. They also have a Florida Rental program for those winter-weary residents who desire a pleasant vacation in a Florida condominium.

Swanson And Associates also belong to the Homes for Living network, which helps find homes for clients in any part of the country.

Swanson And Associates belong to the North Oakland Multiple Listing Service and the Flint Multiple Listing Service. They are members of the Flint Board of Realtors, the North Oakland Board of Realtors and the Fort Lauderdale Board of Realtors.

"People may be surprised to see our office located where it is so far north on Dixie, but this is the direction of expansion in the area...northward from Clarkston and southward from Flint," said Ron Dunlap.

"We have 40 acres around the office for future development. We try to keep an eye on trends and plan for the future. We think it looks pretty bright and prosperous."

Land conservancy encourages developers to leave open spaces

By Kathy Greenfield

Progressive development includes saving some open space that will never be developed, says Douglas Roeser, president of the Independence Land Conservancy.

"I'd like to have it so in 100 years or five years from now, there will be something left," he says. "In the 10 years or so I've lived in Clarkston, particularly the last two years, it's just been incredible what's happened."

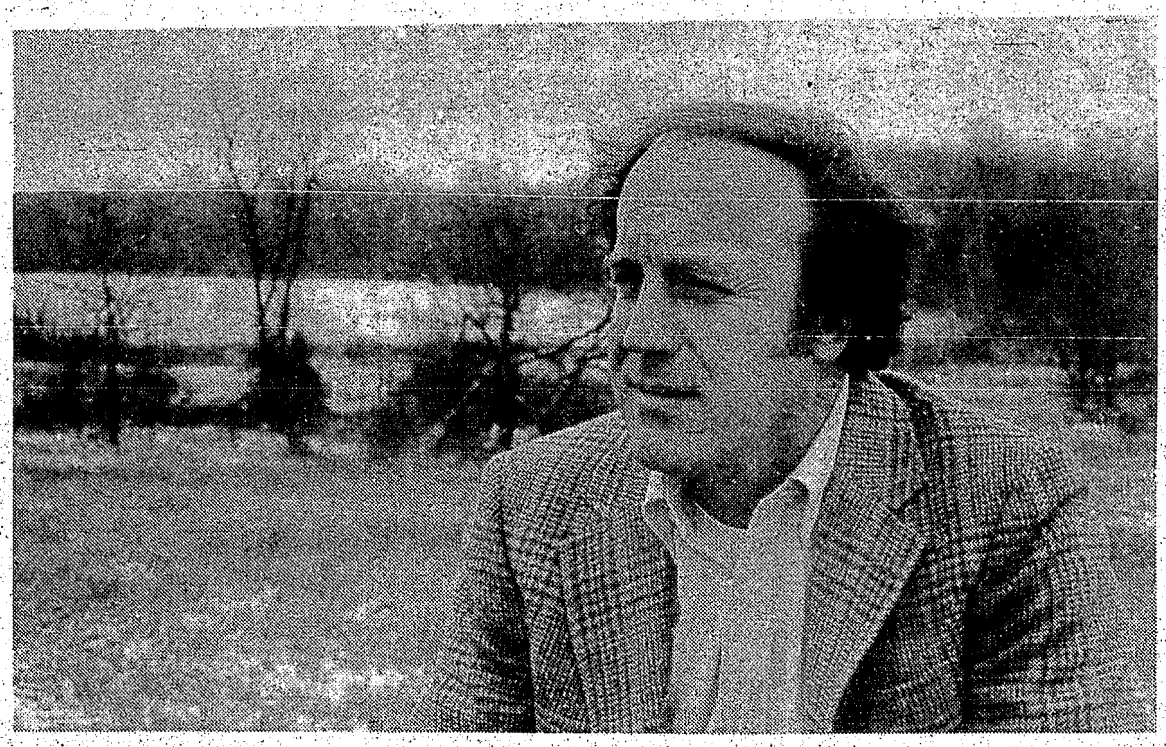

But although development is booming, the Land Conservancy owns or has scenic easements on over 100 acres of property in the township.

"Scenic easements are given to us by developers or whoever happens to have the land," Roeser says. "That's where we feel we have a workable way to secure these parcels.

"What we get in a scenic easement is a legal promise that no change of any kind will take place on that piece of property. Even though we don't physically own it, they are bound legally not to develop."

Established in 1972, the conservancy is a non-profit corporation. Its purpose, according to the bylaws, is to "preserve for the general public the natural and historical resources of Independence Township."

The conservancy deals directly with developers or uses its influence to convince the township government to share its concerns with zoning regulations or working to preserve land within specific site plans.

Not all developers who set aside land within developments decide to involve the land conservancy, but Roeser says who the land is deeded to is irrelevant as long as it is preserved.

Property with a scenic easement is still taxed, but usually at a lesser rate than developed land, he says. Land owned by the conservancy is removed from the tax roles.

"Sometimes people are worried we're going to lose our tax base because of this," he explains. "The main property is still taxed. There are no services required by the township government to maintain them.

"The property we feel becomes much more attractive because the open spaces are still there," he adds. "That's why, in my opinion at least, people are flocking out here by the millions."

Roeser, a dentist, has been a member of the conservancy for about seven years and has served as its president two years.

"I became involved, because I believe in what we are trying to do," he says.

His interests include a variety of outdoor sports—he and his family enjoy cross-country and downhill skiing, and camping and Roeser bird hunts and fishes.

Although at times, he would prefer not to see another house built in Independence Township, he takes a realistic stand.

"Land is going to be used whether I want it or not," he says. "We may as well be involved," he says.

Property in Independence Township either land conservancy owned or with scenic easements includes 11 acres of Waterford Hill, two acres in Springlake Estates off Maybee Road, 55 acres on Greens Lake donated by the Robert Schmudes in memory of their son John who was killed in Vietnam, 10 acres in the Pequoisin subdivision off Perry Lake Road, 11 acres in Steeple Hollow subdivision off Clarkston - Orion Road and 18 acres in the Whipple Tree Lane subdivision near Oakhill and Rattalee Lake roads.

Membership in the land conservancy numbers about 100 families. Dues are $1 per family a year, but "additional donations are welcome," says Roeser.

At the same time, you can provide your family with the fine quality of meat they have become accustomed to seeing on the family table. At Bazley's, standards are high and quality is consistently good.

Bazley's has a new location. They are now located at 4386 Dixie Highway at Drayton Plains, a large building attractively decorated with eye-catching "farm" decor, using natural woods, wagon wheels and baskets of greenery as a background for the fresh produce, grocery items, dairy supplies and meats sold at the market.

All Bazley products are delivered from a large central warehouse located in Williamston. From there, big trucks, loaded with supplies fan out to the 11 locations in southern Michigan where Bazley markets operate.

U.S. Good meat sold, with choice or prime available if desired. All quantity sales are in cash, with cutting and wrapping for your home freezer included in the price.

Bazley is a name well-known in the area, for they have been in the business for 77 years and are recognized for their reasonable prices and quality products.

H & R Block knows nation's tax-return needs

Twenty-five years ago, two enterprising young brothers from Missouri set out to try their luck with the American dream.

The brothers are Henry Bloch, president and chief executive officer, and Richard Bloch, chairman of the board of H and R Block, Inc., America's largest firm dealing exclusively with the preparation of federal and state income tax returns. There's a branch at 4410 Dixie Highway, Waterford Township.

From one office in Kansas City in 1955 which prepared a few hundred returns, the firm has grown to over 8,500 offices throughout the United States, Canada, 11 overseas countries and two U.S. possessions, which last year did 10 million-plus income tax returns. The secret of H & R Block's success: a volume business based on low cost, reliability and a good measure of hard work.

In 1946 the Blochs opened the United States Business Company which offered small businessmen such services as bookkeeping, management assistance, collections and income tax preparation. Taxes, in fact, were done without charge for their business clients.

As the firm prospered, many people heard of their abilities in tax preparation. They sought out the Blochs and paid a small fee to have them prepare their returns.

By the tax season of 1954, tax preparation and United Business were consuming all the brothers' time-seven days a week and nearly every night.

That year Henry and Richard Bloch decided that there was a great need for professional tax assistance for the average man.

On January 25, 1955, United Business was replaced by a new firm which specialized in income tax preparation, H and R Block, Inc.

'Our goal is to provide a real service to those who still do their own income taxes.'

H & R Block devised a method of charging related solely to the number of pages or schedules in the return. The charge did not vary with the size of the income, tax refund or time involved. This same theory of charging is still used today.

When the nationwide potential of the business became apparent, Henry and Richard realized that they could not possibly operate all offices personally. The solution was to obtain qualified local people, train them in Block methods and let them operate on a franchise or salary basis under the H & R Block banner.

By 1969 Block had 3,286 offices throughout the U.S. (including Alaska and Hawaii), Canada and Puerto Rico. The volume was in excess of $56,000,000. In 1978 H & R Block offices prepared more than one out of every nine tax returns filed in the United States.

Although the firm today is the largest of its kind in the United States, Henry and Richard still hold to the original principles and practices that were responsible for the company's phenomenal growth. Each new manager becomes a specialist in Form 1040, 1040A and in personal relations.

Is there still room for growth? According to estimates, some 50 percent of the taxpayers still prepare their own returns. "H & R Block is not interested in the returns already being prepared by CPA's and attorneys," says Henry Bloch. "Our goal is to provide a real service to the majority who still do their own income taxes."

Gravel mine prospects made activist of housewife Janet McCord

By Kathy Greenfield

A year and one-half ago, Janet McCord never would have guessed she would be involved in helping rewrite Independence Township's gravel mining ordinance.

A housewife, she likes to paint landscapes and portraits.

"I learned some of the problems that can be associated with gravel mining when an adjacent operation caused my neighbors to lose enjoyment of their property and my own family's land suffered encroachment and damage," says McCord who lives on Pine Knob Road, Independence Township.

About a year ago, she started looking up the township ordinances governing gravel pits.

She found a 1951 ordinance limiting gravel mining to within 50 feet of a residence and a more recent law reducing the distance to 10 feet.

"It meant a lot of people were living right next to this operation with the dirt and the noise," she says.

When plans for 487-acre gravel mining operation were proposed in another section of the township that includes the Clinton River Watershed, McCord joined forces with others in supporting taxes to pay for 80 acres of the property.

"Since we feel it was really quite a victory to get millage passed for the park land, we feel the ordinance should give us as much protection as possible for things like the river, she says.

Because of the election victory in October when 70 percent of township voters approved three-tenths mill for five years to make the 80-acre purchase, the proposed gravel mining ordinance should stand up in court, she says.

"We're trying to show, which we did show by the election that the public is in favor of protecting the river," she says.

McCord's efforts to get a strong ordinance on the township books has included working with others studying gravel ordinances from other communities and talking with people involved in writing the proposed Michigan gravel mining ordinance.

Written proposals were then submitted to the township.

The activity has resulted in a lot of time spent on some pretty dull reading, but for McCord it has been worthwhile.

"I'd never read an ordinance

Villa Glass created its own showplace

The building where Villa Glass is now located in Oxford was formerly a gas station. Today, it is an attractive and eye-appealing business place with a brick and glass front, designed by two brothers, Rod and Ray Downs, owners of Villa Glass.

Villa Glass first went into business ten years ago in a building located beside the Oxford Theatre Building. The move to the new location and the renovation project took place five years ago.

Walking into Villa Glass is like entering a museum of mirrors and glass. The Downs' brothers provide customers with tabletops, shower doors, tub enclosures, the aforementioned mirrors, and automotive glass.

They service commercial and residential properties, as well as many municipal and public buildings, such as schools. Glass is such a necessary part of modern life that no facet of daily living is exempt from its use.

Ray Downs points out, glass is still economical in this era of inflation. Yet, some parts of his business has felt the inflationary push upward, such as the silver used on the back of mirrors.

"The price of silver has soared," explains Ray Downs, pointing out that it is cheaper and more attractive to replace mirror glass than it is to have it re-silvered.

Six employees work at Villa Glass...as glaziers and as office employees. Secretary is Mary Lou Enneking, who has been at Villa Glass for the past three years.

Rod and Ray Downs also perform the unique service of installing antique car glass, which is usually flat glass and can be installed in either bronze, gray or clear tones.

Both Rod and Ray are antique car buffs. Ray is a member and former officer of the Michigan Hot Rod Association and owns an impressive fleet of antiques, including a 1950 Ford, a 1940 Ford and a 1957 Chevy. Rod Downs took high honors with his 1957 Chevy at the 1979 Michigan Hot Rod Show at Cobo Hall.

Their future plans include giving the same excellent service as in the past to more and more customers. To Rod and Ray Downs, the future is as bright and shining as the rays of the sun through the colorful prisms of glass.

Branch manager of Manufacturer's Bank is Daniel J. O'Connor, in his office in the bank's temporary quarters. Groundbreaking for the new building is expected to take place soon.

Manufacturer's brings new mortgage money into area

Daniel J. O'Connor, branch manager of Manufacturer's Bank of Southfield's Clarkston branch, now located at M-15 and Bluegrass St. just north of the Clarkston village limits, says that his new bank will aggressively seek new mortgage money for the area and encourage residents to open savings accounts with interest rates comparable to any available anywhere.

Free checking accounts with a minimum balance in the checking account or savings are also available at Manufacturer's, O'Connor stated.

He feels other banks frequently become too conservative and states that Manufacturer's will be receptive to individual or commercial requests, no matter how small.

Credit counseling is available if desired and budget planning is one of the services offered by the bank.

Manufacturer's Bank of Southfield has five branches in the Southfield area and one branch in West Bloomfield. The parent company is Manufacturer's National Bank of Detroit.

O'Connor is from Rochester and has been with Manufacturer's Bank for five years, beginning in management training shortly after his graduation from Michigan State University, where he took pre-law and economics courses.

He and his wife Sharon have a son, Ryan, 16 months old, and are expecting another baby soon.

The current quarters of Manufacturer's Bank are temporary. Groundbreaking for the new building at this location is expected to be in March, with completion scheduled for next fall.

The new building, designed by Thomas Strat And Associates, is contemporary, with a modern redwood exterior. It will boast a spacious lobby, three drive-in windows and attractive landscaping.

The store is located at Waterfall Plaza.

Owner Randy Schuck has years of experience in advertising and marketing research and holds a master's degree in business from Bowling Green University, Ohio.

These two young people have given the area a store filled with not only the necessities of home decorating, but one supplying those "finishing touches" which can make a home unique and interesting as well as beautiful.

At Interior Expressions, you can find a complete selection of Fuller O'Brien paints, varnishes and stains, including Penchrome wood stains. There also painting supplies--brushes, rollers, etc.

These wallpapers range from medium to higher grades. There a large variety of designer papers, and new ideas in photo murals, cork and gold leaf, as well as the "Priss Prints"--wallpaper featuring favorite cartoon characters guaranteed to liven up any youngster's room.

There are decorative switchplates, bathroom wall hardware and vanity tops, toilet seats, Vohann ceramic bathroom accessories and accessories in solid oak. Other accent pieces, such as framed mirrors, are on display at Interior Expressions.

"This helps the customer make the correct selection," explained Randy Schuck. "The light in a store often is very different from the light in your home. In this way, you can see the effect of the material and color as it would look on your wall."

These little things make a difference to customers when they are decorating their homes, Randy Schuck believes.

This is why, for instance, he sells sandpaper by the individual sheet rather than in a package of six or eight.

"This way you don't get those five or seven other sheets you don't even want and never use," he said. "You know, those little things can add up."

Mirrors alone can transform dinner for seven . . . to a banquet for fourteen

A Mirrored end wall in this apartment adds extra depth and beauty to the dining area. The chandelier, an important accessory, is given added emphasis by multiple reflections. To provide a softer muted effect, the mirror is made of neutral gray plate glass.

Large structural mirror, Flanked by rustic bookcases, enhances this living room. The mirror also extends below the shelf to the floor, expanding the illusion of spaciousness.

The feeling of depth that a mirror supplies says space where no space exists. In problem rooms this means walls can be visually moved outward, ceilings pushed upward, and space generally manipulated at will. If an area tends to be too long and narrow, a mirrored side wall will visually broaden it. If a room is short and boxey, a mirrored end wall extends the depth. And in low rooms, there is no better way to raise the roof.

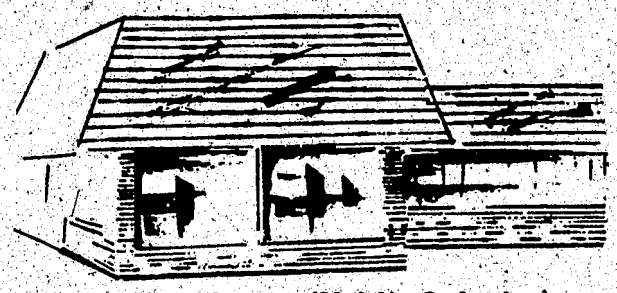

PROPERLY EMPLOYED, MIRRORS CAN EXPAND SPACE, MULTIPLY BEAUTY, CAMOUFLAGE SHORTCOMINGS, AND PROVIDE A MAGNETIC FOCAL POINT FOR ANY ROOM OR DECORATING SCHEME.

Alexander's new Nicholas venture

A luxurious new restaurant on Dixie Highway near M-15 opened in January and is now serving patrons in search of food and refreshment throughout the area.

Alexander's is an attractive building with a brick-and-cedar front, owned by Chris and Nick Nicholas, two brothers who share a mutual interest in the restaurant business.

Chris Nicholas

The Nicholas brothers came from Greece in their youth to join their father. In 1955, they purchased the Tally Ho Restaurant.

Later, Chris Nicholas purchased Paullou Food and Spirits, which was next door to the Tally HO.

About two years ago, plans were begun for a new restaurant which would combine the food and spirits. Thus, Alexander's came into being. A Nicholas brother-in-law, Vernon Post, helped with construction.

Alexander's has a full service bar and a fine selection of wines.

Some Greek foods are featured on the menu, as well as many American favorites...lean, tender steaks sizzling and delicious, spare ribs barbequed to perfection, Alexander's Feast (marinated tenderloin tips with a special sauce), country style fried chicken and many other selections.

There are also salads, pizza, pasta, hearty sandwiches, sea food and a special children's menu. The soups are homemade daily. The desserts are such special treats as the creamy, home-made rice pudding.

Alexander's also has a special luncheon menu, with a sandwich board, featuring smaller portions of the favorite dinner specialities, and soups, salads, pizzas and pastas. Both the luncheon and dinner menus have special children's protions at a lower price.

Brick House is family hair center

Dave Urbats

The Brick House is a family hair care center, located on Sashabaw Rd. between Walton Blvd. and Dixie Highway.

Dave and Maureen Urbats are the husband-wife team operating the salon, both cosmetologists, both providing expert care for the hair.

Dave Urbats, who grew up in the area, attended the Redken School of Cosmetology and David Presley School of Cosmetology. It was at the latter that he met Maureen, who is from Royal Oak, when she attended the school and later returned to instruct classes there.

Dave Urbats has a degree in psychology from Oakland University. He worked for two and a half years as a psychotherapist before going into the field of cosmetology.

He enjoys meeting people. Getting to know customers and their families is one of the highlights of business ownership where he is concerned.

"We live nearby," he explained. "This makes it nice, because a lot of our customers are also neighbors."

Men, women and children come to the Brick House for hair care. The Urbats like to fit a hairstyle to a customer's personality and mode of living. Daily specials enable customers to save money on the services offered at the Brick House.

"Sometimes someone will come in and ask, 'What's the latest?" said Urbats. "I always tell them we want to find out what is the latest for them.

"Most of the people in the area want what I call 'wash and wear' hairstyles. They don't want to bother going to the beauty shop every week.

Barry Young heads enthusiastic staff

Despite talk about a recession, Barry Young and Co. Real Estate has had the best January and February since opening four years ago.

Owner Barry Young attributes the success to the enthusiasm, positive attitude and service the 12 full-time sales staff offers.

"We're creative when it comes to financing and ultimately putting together a buyer and seller," Young says. "In today's market, there are a number of ways to avoid having to pay the extremely high interest rates that we have—this is what we try to achieve for the buyer.

"They're working," he says about the staff. "They're not lying down and playing dead."

In addition to the sales people, the business includes a closing department, printing department, rental program and advertising department.

"Every home that we have is advertised weekly in any of 11 different publications," he says.

The real estate company also covers a broad base including land, commercial, new home and existing home sales.

"We try to have as our goal total service to our customers," Young says. "It may be selfish, because giving service to the customer means you're going to get business and it's a whole lot easier in the long run."

A bachelor, Young has an engineering degree.

Shortly after graduating from college, he started working in the real estate field and it quickly became a full-time career.

"Essentially, this business is fun and I enjoy it day after day after day," Young says. "I don't have any trouble getting up in the morning."

Serving the Clarkston, Ortonville, Goodrich areas, Barry Young and Co. is located at 252 M-15, Brandon Township.

She's involved

McCord sums up what it takes to become involved in strengthening a local ordinance in a word—"persistance."

Now that the township is to consider passage of the new law this month, McCord has reached one goal, but she wants to be sure public interest in the issue of preserving the Clinton River Watershed area continues.

Community involvement in rewriting local ordinances is slight, says township Building and Planning Department Director Timothy Palulian.

And most people involved complain but do little to assist the township, he says.

"She has really helped a great deal with the gravel mining ordinance," he says. "About 95 percent of her suggestions have been incorporated into the proposed new gravel mining ordinance."

Dobson & Rogers offer personal service

Ron Dobson of Dobson & Rogers opened his insurance agency six years ago following 15 years of experience in the insurance field.

Located on Airport Road, the offices are spacious and attractively decorated. There, Dobson and the members of his staff take care of the insurance needs of clients, serving both individual and commercial accounts.

With prices rising, insurance is even more necessary than ever before and Dobson makes a complete evaluation of the insurance needs of each individual client.

In 1980, he explained, the Essential Insurance Bill will go into effect in Michigan, making changes in both rates and coverage.

Ron Dobson

But he hastened to add that, with rising costs, insurance coverage is of utmost importance.

Jacobson Trailer has fuel saver

Grover can do this with the installation of the new "Dual-Fuel," which operates with the combined use of propane and gas systems in motorhomes.

Propane is 50 cents to 70 cents a gallon less than gas, and when used with a gas combination can provide a motor home with a greater cruising range and can also save money.

Sound good? Just drop in at Jacobson Trailer Sales for a free explanation of the "Dual-Fuel" system and an estimate of costs. Remember, this new concept of fuel-sharing can be transferred from vehicle to vehicle, so it is a good investment on tomorrow's vacations.

Grover has owned the business for 14 years. His largest recreational vehicle is the Park model, which is a 35-foot trailer enabling people to travel for longer periods of time, living right in their trailer. The smallest recreational vehicle sold at Jacobson's measures about 15 feet in length.

Trailer equipment and supplies are available, and Jacobson's has a large service garage, a parts department and an indoor showroom.

"Our staff attended a conversion school and we are now the Midas installation center for propane conversion kits which can be installed on most motor homes," he explained.
