

Clarkston catches Wolfpack fever

Wolfpack fans found Friday night's game in Flint to be well worth the trip, as Clarkston downed Flint Central 68-63. The win gave the Wolfpack its first regional championship and earned it a berth in the state quarterfinals in Charlotte on Wednesday. New sign on high school drive was "imported" from Waterford.

'No deal,' Locricchio tells county

By Kathy Greenfield

An angry Joseph Locricchio snatched his offer to sell Pine

Knob's recreation facilities away from the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission, according to Eric Reickel.

Reickel, manager of the county parks and recreation department, said Pine Knob Investments co-owner Lechricchio officially withdrew the offer to sell approximately 300 acres of the Pine Knob couples complex on Monday.

After members of the Oakland County Board of Commissioners were quoted in newspaper articles saying they wanted to wait to consider the purchase until after the recreation facilities were no longer under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code, Locricchio said he did not want to sell to the county, Reickel said.

"He was quite angry that they would take that attitude," Reickel said. "(Locricchio) came to us in good faith and we should have negotiated in good faith."

Upset by the action, Reickel also blamed newspaper editorials for Locricchio's decision.

"They took and they twisted information. Then they wrote the editorials the way they wanted them to read," he said.

Most negative comments about the proposed purchase of Pine Knob's ski area, music theater, golf course and Hamburger Mansion revolved around objections to government taking over property from private enterprise, he said.

"There were two reasons and two reasons only why I recommended we look into Pine Knob," he said. "Number one, it had revenue potential."

"The second reason was that Pine Knob is a jewel and it should be preserved. If it was threatened, then the Parks and Recreation Commission should have taken it over."

Reickel said he believes Pine Knob would have been a financially sound investment for the county, and that the recreation facility had financial difficulties because of cash flow problems created in part by the township's requirements for an extension of the sewer line and more toilet facilities at the music theater last year.

In the Detroit area, Pine Knob is the only publicly owned music theater, forcing the facility to compete with government-owned operations like the Pontiac Silverdome, Reickel said.

The $20 million figure was the asking price Locricchio had set for the property, but the county had never established an amount to offer, he said.

In any event, the consideration to purchase Pine Knob has been stricken from the agenda for the parks and recreation commission meeting scheduled today.

"I'm not angry because we lost it," Reickel said. "I think Joe Locricchio has been stuck in the ribs again."

In Ramsey slaying

By Kathy Greenfield

Three suspects have been charged with first degree murder in connection with the shooting death of an Independence Township woman at Richardson's Dairy Saturday.

The charge involves premeditation and could result in life sentences.

Dead is Frances Darlene Ramsey, 21, of Eston Road, who was a cashier at the store located on the corner of Clarkston-Orion and Eston roads.

Night manager Charmaine Klaus, 43, of Waterford Township was also shot in the hold-up attempt, police said.

She is in critical condition at Pontiac General Hospital, but expected to recover, said Lt. Richard Hubble of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCS).

One suspect charged with murder, Albert J. Hartford Jr., 22, of Pontiac, was allegedly shot by one of the women during the robbery attempt.

He is a police prisoner under custody of the OCS at Detroit General Hospital. Although formally charged with the crime, he has not been arraigned, police said.

The other two suspects charged with murder are believed by police to have driven a get-away vehicle.

They are Hartford's brother, Albert, 17, of Walled Lake and Michael Goscicki, 17, also of Walled Lake.

The two teenagers were arraigned before Oakland County District Court Judge Gerald McNally Tuesday and are being held without bond at the Oakland County Jail, police said.

Charges which had been threatened against a third Hartford brother as an accessory after the fact were dropped, police said.

The third brother allegedly took bullet fragments that were needed for evidence, but some of the evidence has been returned, police said.

The robbery attempt occurred at approximately 11:20 p.m. Saturday.

The robber, who was wearing a ski mask, was shot in the face. He fled through the rear door of the store, leaving a trail of blood, police said.

Tracking dogs were at the scene by 12:30 a.m., but the scent was lost about two blocks away.

"We felt, knowing apparently he had been shot, we were looking for the possibility of a body," Hubble said.

Early Sunday morning, a police helicopter scanned the area and police combed the neighborhood behind the store, alerting residents to be on the look out.

Hospitals were also notified that a suspect had been shot in the face.

Police said the suspect was driven to Detroit General Hospital after the incident.

The three suspects are also believed to have been involved in the armed robbery of the Old Mill Party Store on Andersonville Road, Waterford Township, earlier Saturday evening and the Party Down store on Dixie Highway, Waterford Township, Friday night, police said.

Memorial services and burial of Miss Ramsey are to take place Thursday in Greenfield, Va.

Local arrangements were made by Riverside Chapel,

Waterford Township.

She is survived by her mother Mary Trainor of Eston Road, Independence Township; father Frank Ramsey of Afton, Va.; brothers David Ramsey of Waterford Township and Jerry Ramsey of Afton; sisters, Sharon Adams of Drayton Plains; Shelby Ramsey of Afton and Janet Anderson of Crozet, Va.

Rain turns private road into river

The water flows down what used to be Columbia Road, cutting deep pathways.

It looks like a well-established miniature river leading to Round Lake in the northeast section of Independence Township.

Some residents along the road no longer have access to their homes.

Some driveways are eroded, and Monday afternoon there were several people able to reach their homes only on foot, parking at neighbors houses on dryer land.

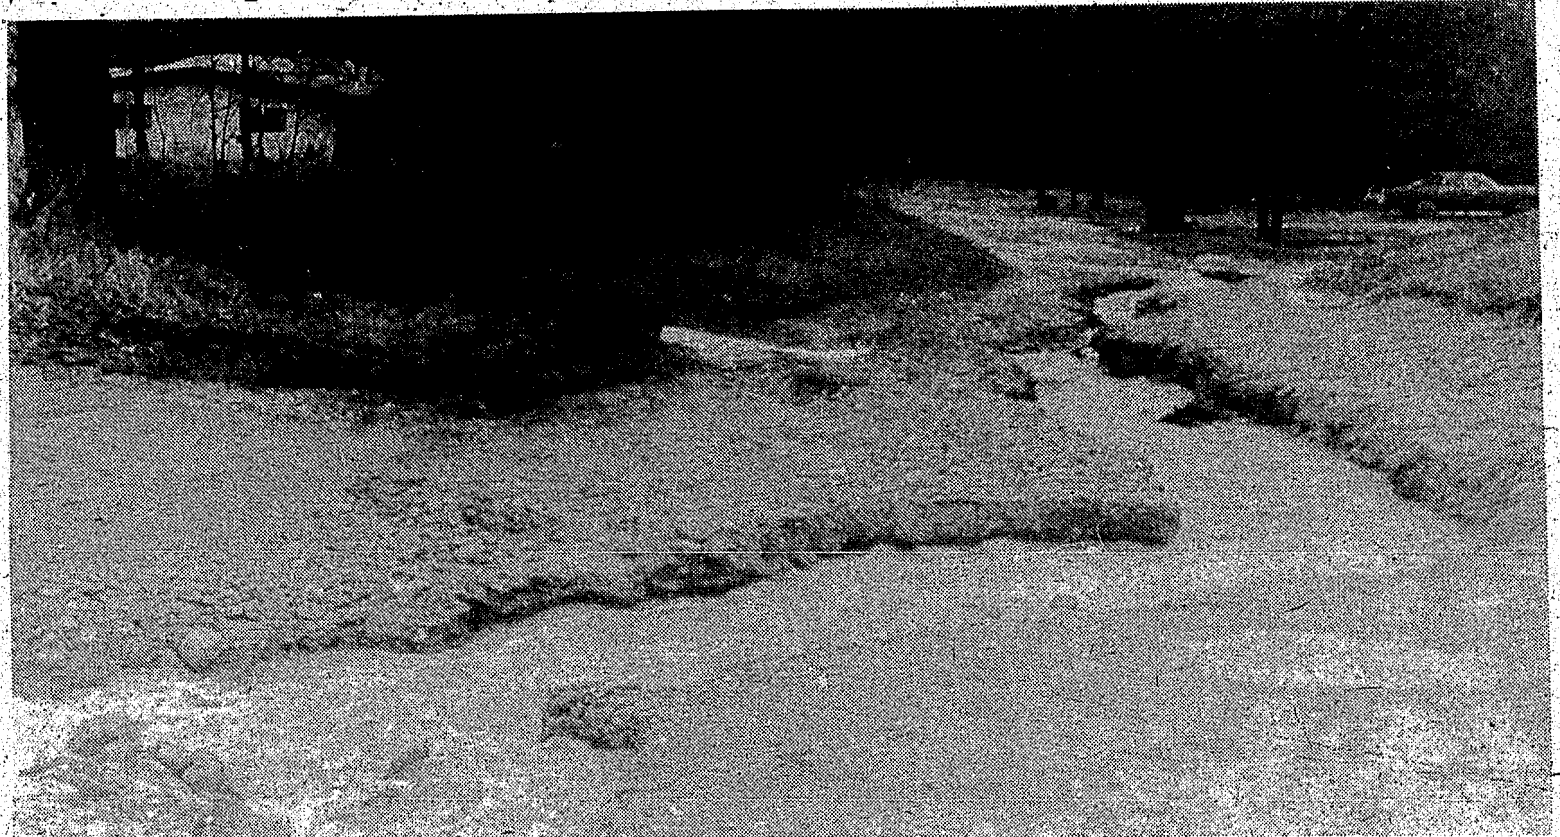

Although they have always had some water problems during the first major thaw, the residents say it has never been this bad.

"We didn't have any water like this until they put in Whipple Lake Farms and brought that drainage ditch through there," said Larry Hart of Columbia Road Monday afternoon.

"This morning, all we've done is contact the county and the township and they've both been out here to look at it and they haven't said what they're going to do about it."

The water in the subdivision developed last spring runs into a retention basin across Whipple Lake Road from Columbia Road.

The Oakland County road crew redirected the flow Monday by digging a ditch along Whipple Lake Road, but the action only diverted the water's flow, Hart said.

Water rushes down Columbia Road and turns the former roadway into a river. Because the road is private, Independence Township Supervisor Whitey Tower says the residents are responsible for repairs.

With the new subdivision came drainage that carries all the water from Stickney Road through the development, into the retention basin and down Columbia Road, he said.

The township engineering firm, Johnson and Anderson of Waterford Township, has checked to see if the retention basin is plugged, said Independence Township Supervisor Whitey Tower.

"We don't see anything wrong now with the retention basin—that would normally take care of the water per se," Tower said. "It's just 8 inches of snowfall and 10 hours of rain. It wiped the hills off."

The county will repair damage to Whipple Lake Road, he said, but because Columbia is a private road, the problem does not belong to the county or the township.

"We don't have any funds for private roads," he said. "There's nothing we can do."

You can't do anything for private roads."

"There's no funding. There's no legal criteria for it right now," Tower added. "I'm hoping it doesn't rain again."

Voters to decide how fire protection tax is collected

By Kathy Greenfield

Voters will decide if the method of levying taxes for fire protection will change in Independence Township and Clarkston at the May 20 presidential primary election.

And included in the ballot question will be, "Said millage, if levied, shall be to a maximum of 10 mills."

The township board approved placing the question on the ballot at the March 11 meeting.

Wording of the ballot question was approved at a special township board meeting Monday, March 17.

The four township board members present—Supervisor Whitey Tower, Clerk Christopher Rose, Treasurer Frederick Ritter and Trustee Rudy Lozano—made the decision to include the 10 mill limit portion after discussion, waiting for Fire Chief Frank Ronk to arrive and then deciding to vote on the matter without Ronk's opinion.

"In order, in my mind, to properly present it to the public, you should say how many mills," said Rose, who noted that Ronk did not want the 10-mill figure included on the ballot.

Tower said that the actual amount to be levied is to be set by the township board.

"I wouldn't want to put it on the ballot unless the people know what they were buying," Ritter said.

"I can't see any reason not to include the amount on the ballot," said Lozano. "Anything else would be deceptive as hell."

"If they can be zapped with 10 mills, I think we should tell them," he added.

"I don't think it's (Ronk's) intent to try to kid anybody," Tower said. "It's back at us. So there it is."

The four voted unanimously to include the 10 mill figure on the ballot. (One mill is $1 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.)

As the meeting was closing, Trustee William Vandermark arrived.

He is opposed to the approval of Public Act 134 that would change the present system of collecting millage for fire protection, Vandermark said.

Because the millage question would be asked separately for township and village residents, if approved by one segment and not the other, the area approving the change "could face increased taxes and the other would continue to be levied 2 mills for fire protection approved by voters in 1978 for 10 years," Rose said.

Contacted after the meeting, Ronk said he was unable to leave the fire station, because firefighters had been called to a gasoline spill in an apartment and he was alone covering the downtown Clarkston fire station.

"It's asinine to think we would spread 10 mills," Ronk said. "The 10 mills is a limit not a goal."

"The first thing is we have to adopt Act 134, then we have to have a public hearing and the township board has to decide (how much to levy in taxes.)"

"We're going to ask for one additional mill (above the presently approved 2 mills) and that's all," Ronk added.

Ronk presented petitions signed by 1,369 township residents to the township board at its March 11 meeting.

The board voted 4-0 to place the fire protection millage request on the ballot, because of the large number of signatures gathered.

Independent view

The winning Wolfpack continues to wreak havoc on scheduled Clarkston High School events.

Opening night for the musical "Carousel" by the CHS drama club remains Friday, March 21, but the dinner planned before the performance has been changed to the Friday, March 28, play date.

"When you plan dinner for 175 and you only have 60, it's a waste of food," says play director Barbara Gibson.

And if the Wolves win today's contest, most of the people will be at the following game rather than the play, she predicted.

This winter's lack of snow and ice that closes schools hasn't gone unnoticed by Clarkston high School student Annette Weber.

"Ma Nature must be on some kind of education kick," writes Annette in an article in the CHS student publication Sunrise.

Annette also has some comments about conference day last Friday that did allow time off.

"Why, however, must the school only decide to grant students a day off for reasons that could possibly make them want to rather be in school?" she asks.

"After all, for some students it may be hard to enjoy setting aside one day of the marking period to let teachers have easy access to their parents."

It's a small world.

Just ask Independence Township Treasurer Frederick Ritter who saw some familiar faces in a passing car while on a recent Florida vacation.

Former township treasurer Betty Hallman and her husband Keith drove by Ritter and his wife Sheila near Sarasota, Fla.

It took about one-and-one-half miles and two stoplights to catch up with the Hallmans, says Ritter, and the couples were pleased and surprised to meet in the Sunshine State.

It's a sure sign of warm weather when job applications for Pine Knob Music Theatre are available.

Beginning Monday, March 24, those seeking work as ushers, rangers or in maintenance can pick up the forms at The Clarkston News office, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, or at Clarkston High School, main office, 6595 Middle Lake, Independence Township.

The News office is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Tower appoints nine to township EDC board

A nine-member board of directors for Independence Township Economic Development Corporation (EDC) has been appointed.

In a 4-1 vote, the township board approved the appointments made by Supervisor Whitey Tower at the March 11 meeting.

The nine members are township planning commission members James Brennan of Sashabaw Road and James Gardiner of Monterey Road; township Treasurer Frederick Ritter; Building and Planning Department Director Timothy Palulian; bankers Martha Wheeler of Hummingbird Lane and Allan Watson of Waldon Road; attorney John Steckling of Waterford Hill Terrace; and business community members June McGowan of Dixie Highway and George Trapp of Mary Sue Street.

McGowan, Brennan, Steckling and Trapp were appointed for six-year terms, Ritter for a five-year term, Wheeler for a three-year term, Palulian for a two-year term and Watson for a one-year term.

The local EDC was okayed after an Oakland County EDC was established, because township board members approving the move expressed a desire for more local control.

Designed to encourage development, the corporation makes available low-interest loans for commercial and industrial developers.

Clerk Christopher Rose, who cast the dissenting vote, said he did not object to the appointments, but rather to the establishments of a township EDC.

Trustees Jerry Powell and William Vandermark were absent.

"I think we should go with the county EDC," Rose said. "The administrative cost to the applicant would be lower."

"There would be less miscellaneous cost to the township and the county EDC would perhaps be better run and the township would still have control."

Available to developers approved by the township EDC would be municipal bonds that now have interest around 8 percent compared to 18 percent for prime interest rates, Rose said.

The first meeting of the township EDC is to be held after the articles of the corporation are published as well as other required notices.

After the EDC board of directors selects its officers, applications for the low-interest loans may be made.

Senior discount directory available

A new directory of Oakland County businesses giving discounts to senior citizens is now available at the Independence Senior Citizen Center.

Listed in the directory, which costs 65 cents, are the merchants and professional people who have registered their discount programs with the Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency.

Plastic identification cards are required to take advantage of the discounts. They prove that the holder is at least 60 years of age and a resident of Oakland County.

Photographs for the identification cards will be taken Friday morning at the local senior citizen center, 5980 Clarkston-Orion Rd. The hours for the camera are 9 a.m. to noon. Further information can be obtained by calling 625-8231.

Here's Herb

By Herb Rose

When Horatius defended the bridge that crossed the River Tiber to Rome, he had many problems—not the least of which was delusions of grandeur.

Anyone who plans on stopping a 90,000-man army with a large carving knife would probably benefit from psychiatric counseling.

Horatius had two professional associates, so the ratio between combatants of 30,000-to-1 must have boggled the mind of the local oddsmakers.

Actually, the ratio wasn't too meaningful, as battles were supposed to be a series of one-on-one confrontations. Horatius simply dispatched his enemies singly and threw them in the River Tiber.

Now, this procedure was acceptable in the Sixth Century B.C., but today it would be pollution of natural water ways, which is an affront to the Environmental Protection Agency as a flagrant violation of the Clean Water Act.

If today's standards were invoked, Horatius would have to develop a tidier method of offal disposal.

He might package his fallen adversaries in Hefty bags and put them by the curb for pickup, but it is unlikely that, under battlefield conditions, 90,000 people would be patient.

Perhaps he could rent some kind of material vaporizer; a Hertz Dispose-A-Man.

I keep imagining the weary Horatius facing an awesome crowd of belligerents, each swinging a primitive piece of meat-cutting equipment and each bent upon making some drastic changes to this beleaguered man's silhouette.

At his side is a mousy young government clerk with a nervous moustache and a piece of paper.

"Mr. Horatius, if you would just sign this notice where it says 'Violator.'"

"Can't you see I'm busy now, son? Come back during my lunch hour."

"You people just don't seem to understand. This is an occupation-related violation of a clearly stated government mandate."

While Horatius was practicing his profession ever mindful of regulatory parameters, the township were tearing down the bridge.

I don't know how they could do this without a proper demolition permit. What is truly amazing is that, at a subsequent date, the Roman Government could let a contract for a replacement structure to be built without the use of high-tensile-strength red tape.

Letter to the editor

To the Editor:

Your "Magic Kingdom" article in the March 12 issue, extolling the virtues of Deer Lake Farms, featured an unusual disappearing act.

The most prolific builder in the development, who currently has completed five homes has another five under construction, didn't even receive an honorable mention, while four other builders whose signs appear far less frequently got some free publicity.

As highly satisfied home owners, we feel that our man-of-the-hour—a Clarkston resident named Bill Scruggs, whose Traditions Custom Homes signs are familiar sights in the area—should have gotten some credit for helping beautify the subdivision.

Very truly yours,

Improving the odds

by Jim Sherman

Among the many things I don't understand is....The State Senate voted at least twice on funding the Detroit Subway. The first time it failed by 2 votes. The second time it passed. Why didn't they go for two out of three?

Why is it we hear of second and third votes on getting a bill passed in Lansing or Washington, but never hear of a second or third vote to deny passage?

Five years ago General Motors, recognizing their "corporate social responsibility," launched a program to involve management in community activities.

That's the way Ann Corwell, a Pontiac Motors public relations gal, expressed it.

A more cynical approach might be that GM decided to follow the lead of unions and get into politics.

GM did not pioneer the corporate move to "community involvement." Michigan Bell was already encouraging its management to run for political office. There were others, too.

Ann Corwell is right out of the Dale Carnegie-GM handbook. She's intelligent, attractive, smiles a lot, direct but not too direct, prepared, and has plenty of presence.

Talking to her after a recent meeting where she was guest speaker, we asked why she didn't mention GM's announced move to build an assembly plant in Orion Township.

"I wouldn't bring it up," she said, "but if you would have asked the question, I would have answered." GM can't be pushy.

Ann Corwell's comment on a 5-year management involvement program got me to thinking. How many local boards have GM employees today who didn't have them in 1975?

Today, the speaker said, "Eight percent of people on the management level at GM are involved on boards, committees and organizations."

I'd say the goal GM sets 5 years ago to "involve" its employees has been darn successful. I'm not sure GM or the community is better off, but the goal reaching was successful.

'If it Fitz. . .'

Pass the ubiquity

by Jim Fitzgerald

My wife says I have the wrong job at this newspaper. She says I should be the Anonymous Gourmet, that shadowy person who eats out every day on his expense account and then lurches to a typewriter to produce erudite paeans to sweet sour sauce and glutony.

For several years I have been dining out under the influence of the Anonymous Gourmet. I have been searching in vain for a salad he has written about many times. Almost every restaurant he reviews has "the ubiquitous salad bar."

In restaurants that don't have salad bars I have asked waiters to bring me a ubiquitous salad. They never know what I'm talking about.

And I have stood long at many salad bars, hoping to find a bowl of dressing or a saucer of crumbs labeled "ubiquitous." Nothing doing.

I finally asked my wife why she never serves ubiquitous salad when we are snowed in and must eat at home. That's when she first suggested I should be the Anonymous Gourmet.

"Free press readers should be told about the excitement of eating at the White Castle in downtown Detroit," Pat said.

The evening before, on our way to the London Chop House, I discovered I had forgotten to wear shoes and socks. I was wearing my bedroom slippers. So we went to the White Castle instead.

At first, Pat refused to go inside. She was put off by the architecture, which is early Alcatraz visiting room. The hamburger clerks are solidly encased in plexiglass, much like new toothbrushes. All purchases are transacted through small openings in the transparent armor.

"There must be a reason for all that security," Pat said. "I'll wait in the car. You can hand me my hamburger through the transmission."

But I pointed out proof that she had nothing to worry about. There were five, count 'em, five uniformed cops inside.

They don't have ubiquitous salad at the White Castle, either, but the hamburgers were splendid and the entertainment was professional. We watched the cops frisk an unsteady customer and pull a car radio antenna out of his pants.

"Whose car was this ripped off?" a cop asked.

"Mine," the customer said.

"OK," said the cop, and he put the antenna back down the guy's pants leg with the same flourish used in returning a sword to its sheath.

I told Pat: "It's convenient that White Castle customers eat standing up at the window sill. At the London Chop House you have to sit down, which is probably hard to do with a radio antenna down your pants."

ANOTHER PLACE I take Pat when I'm wearing my slippers is Zosia's at the Top of the Round Bar. This restaurant is also in the inner city, near Hamtramck, and the customers and menu are both mostly Polish.

Zosia's dining area is spread around a second-floor balcony looking down upon the Round Bar. Other than being in the same building, there is no connection between the businesses. If you are eating at Zosia's and want a drink, you must walk downstairs and get it yourself. If you can talk the bartender out of a mixed drink, he puts the ice in last.

When we were there the other evening, the bar customers downstairs were watching a bowling show on TV honest—and some were rooting in Polish.

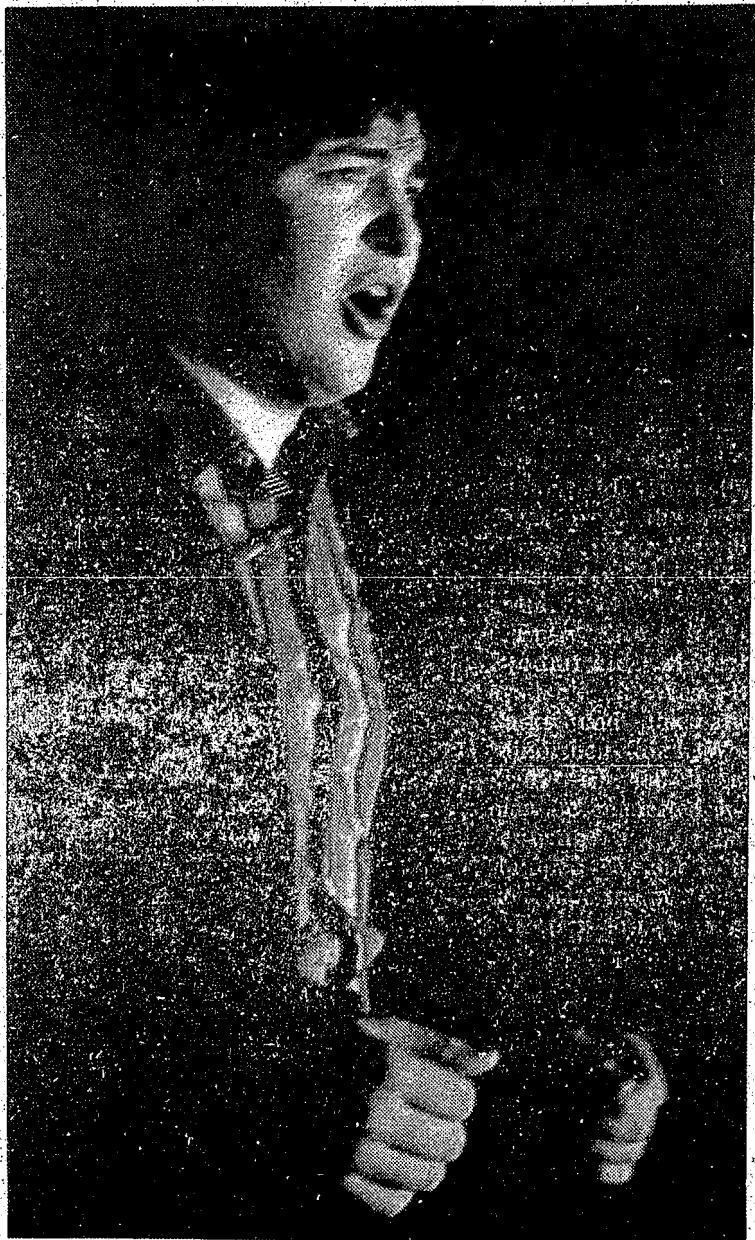

"I'd like to see the mixed reaction in here if 'Bowling for Dollars' were knocked off TV by a special on the new pope," I said.

"Do you come here so you can tell ethnic jokes you should be ashamed of?" Pat accused.

No. I go there because Zosia's diners are probably the best buy in town. Also, on my first visit I was hoping to discover that "ubiquitous" is a Polish word. It isn't. I'll keep looking.

Township approves revenue sharing budget

The $121,414 federal revenue sharing fund budget has been adopted by the Independence Township Board.

The board approved the budget in a 3-2 vote this month.

Money was split as follows: $40,000 for road projects, $20,000 for fire departments, $20,000 for safety paths, $15,000 for the library, $15,000 for road dust control, $11,000 for a community center and $1,414 to microfilm township records.

Support for spot gravel repairs for township roads was voiced by Iva Sommers Caverly of Waldon Road.

"What good are safety paths?" she asked. "You're not going to put any fire truck on them. You're not going to put any police car on them."

"That's why I say use that money to fix the roads."

Elimination of a proposed

$15,000 to support an energy conservation program was disputed by Michael Clark of Clintonville Road.

Clark had suggested checking houses and businesses for energy efficiency on a volunteer basis and offered to serve as a consultant for free to train employees, but his plan was rejected.

Voting to approve the budget were Supervisor Whitey Tower and trustees William Vandermark and Rudy Lozano.

Clerk Christopher Rose and Trustee Michael Thayer cast "no" votes. Treasurer Frederick Ritter and Trustee Jerry Powell were absent.

Independence water, sewer rates going up 20 percent

Higher rates for water and sewer usage faces Independence Township residents.

The average rates will increase $2.50 to $17.50 a quarter for water and $6 to $35 a quarter for sewer.

"The increases are fairly minimal. They average 20 percent," said township DPW director George Anderson. "It sounds like a lot now, but you have to remember, it's the first increase since 1977."

He expects the rates to remain at that level for about three years before another increase is needed, Anderson told the township board at its March 4 meeting.

"If the operation is remaining solvent, I can't understand this great big increase," said Warren Newsted of Marvin Road. "If there wasn't an ad valorem tax, I'd go along with it."

"To remain solvent, we need the increase--and to reduce the ad valorem levy," Anderson responded.

They were referring to the township-wide sewer tax paid by township residents whether or not they have sewer access.

The increase in fees will affect approximately 2,500 township residences, Anderson said.

The board voted 5-0 to approve the higher rates. Treasurer Frederick Ritter and Trustee Jerry Powell were absent.

Flint Central bows, 68-63

Wolfpack wins regional title

By Al Zawacky

No one would have blamed coach Gary Nustad and his Clarkston High School basketball team for gloating a bit Friday night.

After all, the Clarkston cagers had just defeated seventh-ranked Flint Central 68-63 for their school's first class A regional championship—a game that many an "expert" had picked Flint Central to win.

But speaking outside the Wolfpack locker room, Nustad took the victory in stride, declining the luxury of laughing at the expense of those who had discounted his team's chances.

"We didn't win tonight to silence the critics, or to prove anything to anyone," Nustad said proudly. "We won the game for our kids and for our community."

"I told our kids before the game that we will not lose, we will not lose," Nustad continued. "And they believed me."

Just moments before, Nustad had held the regional championship trophy over his head like a conquering gladiator before a screaming throng of 1300 Clarkston fans in the Flint Central Field House. The Wolfpack players and fans responded with the traditional "We're No. 1" sign made with a solitary index finger, and pandemonium reigned for a full 10 minutes.

Even in the quiet corridor outside the Clarkston locker room, the pride and emotion of that moment was still evident in the Wolfpack coach's voice.

"Even late in the game we fell behind by three, we never doubted that we were going to win," Nustad beamed. "We kept our composure, kept our poise and did the job—these are 15 of the greatest kids I've ever had the pleasure of working with."

As always, the most prominent member of that 15-man unit was 6-foot-10½ center Tim McCormick, who scored 31 points, pulled down 19 rebounds and blocked 2 enemy shots. Right from the opening tipoff it was evident that Flint Central could do little to prevent Clarkston's star pivot from penetrating inside and scoring almost at will.

McCormick's outstanding first half enabled the Wolfpack to hold a 34-26 lead at halftime, but the persistent Indians kept chipping away to whittle the lead to three points late in the third quarter.

With just six seconds remaining in the third stanza, McCormick drew his fourth personal foul, sending the Central fans into a frenzy.

While McCormick watched from the bench, the Indians battled back to tie the score and pull ahead by three points with four minutes remaining in the game.

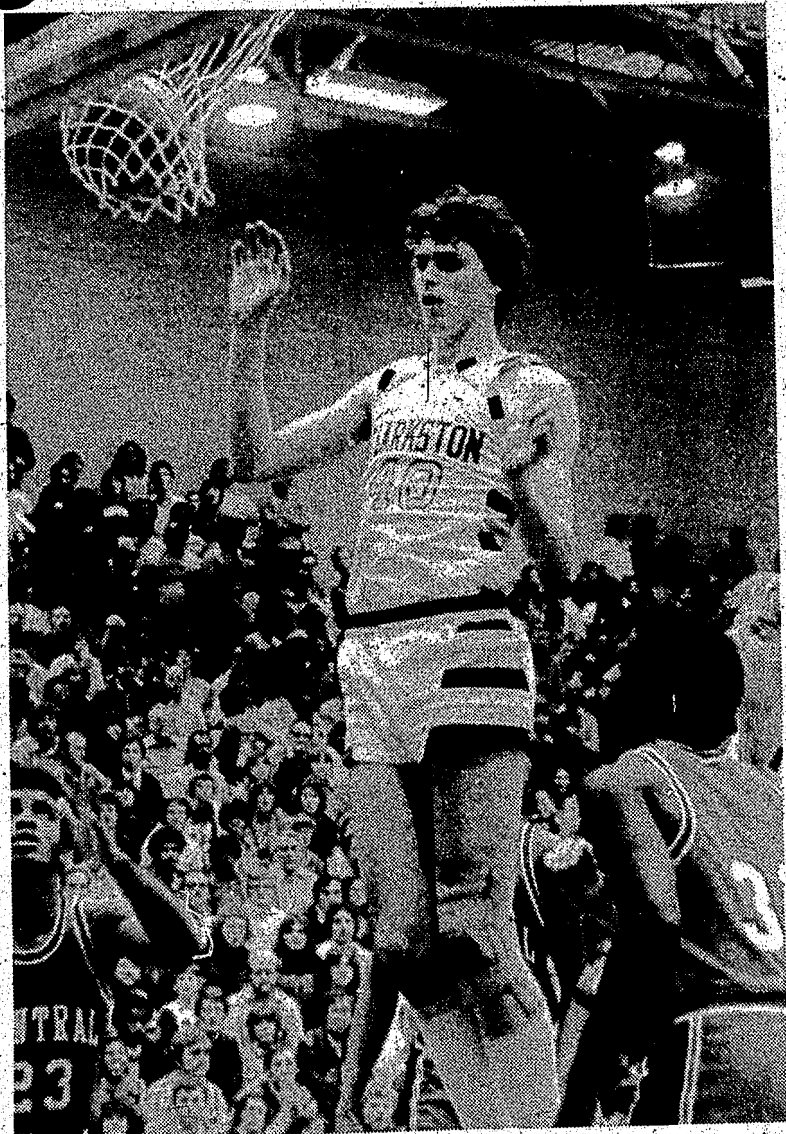

"I thought our kids did a super job in Tim's absence," Nustad said. "They understood that their job was to just keep the game close until we could get Tim back on the floor—Larry Baylis and Chuck Nicolai were outstanding coming off the bench for us."

The Wolfpack also benefited from two strong offensive performances by senior point guard John Sheldon and junior forward Scott McKoin. Sheldon scored 14 points while McKoin notched 12 along with 10 rebounds. Both players converted on pressure free throws in the closing seconds to ice the victory for Clarkston.

Also scoring for the Wolfpack were Greg Lane with 5 points, Chuck Nicolai with 4 and Ed Haddad with 2. Clarkston shot 26 for 45 from the field and 16 for 22 from the line for percentages of .578 and .727 respectively.

Central star Eric Turner led the Indian attack with 22 points.

"People have criticized us for having had an easy regular season schedule," Nustad said, looking back on his team's previous games. "Actually, I think our schedule helped us—it gave our younger players time to develop."

Tim McCormick (40) leaps above the fray to score two of the 31 points he accumulated against Flint Central Friday night.

And with 25 straight victories, the most recent against won of the stronger teams in the state, it was difficult for anyone to challenge Nustad's reasoning.

The Wolfpack will thus head into state quarterfinal competition this Wednesday in Charlotte, with powerful Saginaw providing the opposition. A win Wednesday would place them just two victories away from the state championship.

The Clarkston News

Athlete of the week

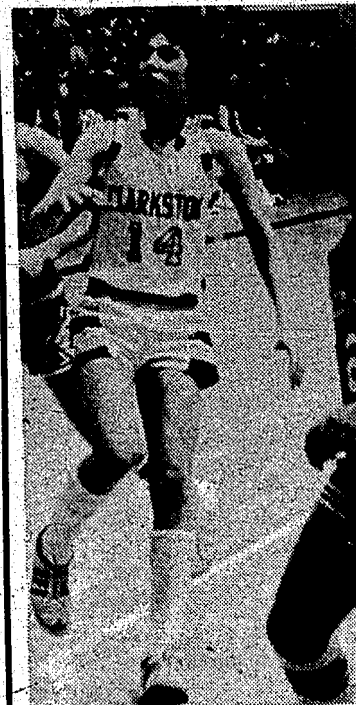

When you look at the two guard spots, the Clarkston High School basketball team seems to have it all: leadership, offensive prowess and defensive ability.

And depth, too. One of the big reasons for that is Larry Baylis, a 6-foot senior guard who transferred to Clarkston from Birmingham Groves this fall.

The addition of Baylis has proved to be a valuable one for the Wolfpack. Baylis filled in admirably early in the season when point guard John Sheldon missed a few games with a muscle injury. Baylis was also one of two Clarkston reserves to see action Friday night in the Wolfpack's victory over Flint Central.

"Larry did a fine job for us coming off the bench," coach Gary Nustad said. "It isn't easy to come into a game cold like that, but he's been doing it well for us all season."

Larry Baylis

The point after

by Al Zawacky

False prophecies from fellow sportswriters:

"Clarkston will probably win the GOAL, but don't look for an undefeated season..." (The Wolfpack ended the regular season schedule with a 20-0 record.)

"Forget Pontiac Central's record... Clarkston has a soft schedule, and is due for an upset..." (Clarkston 80, Pontiac Central 58.)

"It'll be an all-Pontiac district final..." (Clarkston 85, Holly 52, Clarkston 67, Pontiac Central 46, Clarkston 80, Pontiac Northern 45... Wolfpack wins district championship.)

"Clarkston won't get past the regionals... it'll be Flint Central by 15 points..." (Clarkston 68, Flint Central 63.)

Pending prophecy:

"Clarkston will not win the state championship..."

Any takers?

IT'S IRONIC THAT a team with a 25-0 record, ranked No. 1 in the state throughout most of the season, should find itself constantly having to prove its worth.

Ironie, but true. The Wolfpack just doesn't seem to have many believers among the self-appointed experts, who cling to terms like "over-rated," "one-man-team" and "soft schedule" when talking about coach Gary Nustad's undefeated cagers.

Twice this year, once in the playoffs and once in the regular season, some observers favored talent-lean Pontiac Central over the Wolfpack. Friday night in Flint, Clarkston found itself on the short end of a lot of point spreads prior to the game.

Flint Central held two short-lived leads in the contest, while the Wolfpack opened up a nine-point bulge at one point in the third quarter. The inescapable conclusion was that while Central was a very fine basketball team, Clarkston was clearly better.

In the dressing room following the game, it was obvious that the victory was one of the sweetest of the Wolfpack's string of 25 straight.

"We approved we can play with the best," said forward Scott McKoin, while teammate Greg Lane nodded in agreement. McKoin continued buttoning his shirt. "We never doubted that we were going to win tonight," he added.

The point was made that Clarkston held its ground against Central in the first half of the fourth quarter when foul trouble forced star Tim McCormick to the sidelines.

"That takes care of the 'one-man-team' thing," guard Larry Baylis said.

McCormick, it should be noted, scored 31 of Clarkston's 68 points. Central fans could smell a victory when the 6-foot-10 center drew his fourth foul of the evening with just seconds remaining in the third quarter—but the Wolfpack rose to the occasion to keep the score close.

Thus the Wolfpack finds itself on the threshold of doing what almost everyone has said they couldn't do.

Someone asked me after the Flint Central game if I thought that Clarkston would in fact go all the way and win the state championship.

I maintained my stand of eschewing predictions, and with proper dramatic pause, pointed to the Wolfpack locker room.

That's not for me to say, I said.

It's all up to 15 guys behind that dressing room door.

Wolfpack tracks

NOT THE FIRST: Several readers called The Clarkston News office recently to inform us that—contrary to newspaper reports—the Wolfpack's 1980 district championship was not the school's first in Class A competition.

Twice before Clarkston High School teams have won Class A district titles, in 1963 and 1964 to be exact. Coaching both those championship teams was Dom Mauti, currently the school's principal.

With proper embarrassment, we admit that The Clarkston News was one of the erring publications.

SOUR GRAPES: Flint Central coach Stan Gooch on Friday night's game: "Clarkston had better feel lucky to get out of here with a win, because they're not going to get past Saginaw."

But they weren't supposed to get past Flint Central either, Stan.

TIM ON A TERROR: Center

Tim McCormick has been absolutely devastating ever since the playoffs began with the Holly game on March 4.

In the five contests played to date, McCormick has scored a total of 161 points and pulled down 80 rebounds. That's an average of 32.2 points and 16.0 rebounds per game.

Somewhat lost in the shadow of McCormick's play has been the scoring and rebounding heroics of junior Scott McKoin, who's been averaging 17.6 points and 7.8 rebounds.

JOHNNY ON THE SPOT: University of Michigan basketball coach Johnny Orr, on hand at Flint Central-Clarkston contest for obvious reasons, was asked point-blank if the Wolfpack would win the state championship.

"Well, I think they've got a great chance," Orr said. "If Tim (McCormick) can stay out of foul trouble and play his game, they can do it. He's a tremendous player, you know."

The Clarkston Rotary Club thinks Clarkston High School's championship basketball team has done a lot for this town. So much so that the Rotarians plan on doing something for the winning Wolfpack in return.

"We're calling it Wolfpack Fever Night," says Lewis Wint, organizer of the event. "We'll have the entire Main Event Restaurant at the Pontiac Silverdome on Tuesday, April 1 for a special dinner honoring the members of the team."

The reception will begin at 6 p.m. with dinner following at 7 p.m. A headline speaker and honors presented to the players will also be featured at the event, sponsored by the Rotary Club.

Tickets are $10 each and may be obtained at Clarkston High School, Pontiac State Bank's Clarkston office on Main Street, or the Lewis Wint Funeral Home. Ticket sales will be limited to approximately 600.

"Myself and a few friends thought that this would be a good way to end the season, win or lose," says Wint. "I sat down and discussed it over breakfast with Mil Mason (Clarkston superintendent of schools), Dom Mauti (CHS principal) and Paul Tungate (CHS athletic director) and they all thought it was a great idea."

The event is completely separate from the post-season sports banquet that the high school holds to honor its athletes, Wint says.

"This sort of thing is indicative of the type of town this is," says Wint. "It's going to be a town happening—our way of saying thanks to the team for making us all feel proud."

26 mile course

Marathon coming to West Bloomfield

Midwestern runners won't have to travel to Boston and jostle with 8,000 fellow competitors to take advantage of the ideal marathon weather this year—not when Michigan's West Bloomfield Marathon is being held the day before the famous Boston event on April 20 at 9 a.m.

The race is being organized and coordinated for the fourth year by the West Bloomfield Parks and Recreation Department. For the second consecutive year, Vic Tanny International is the co-sponsor of the 26-mile, 385-yard running event.

This year the entire course is within the boundaries of West Bloomfield Township. Proceeds from the race will be donated to the West Bloomfield Emergency Medical Service program.

Entry forms for the West Bloomfield Marathon are available at West Bloomfield Parks and Recreation, 3325 Middlebelt Road, West Bloomfield, Mich. 48033. Applications may be requested by mail by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the recreation department.

Entries cost $5 per person and must be received by 5 p.m. April 14. Souvenir T-shirts are $2 each and orders for these must be received by April 1. Phone information on the marathon may be obtained by calling 334-5660.

The marathon course is an out-and-back route which begins and ends at West Bloomfield High School located on Orchard Lake Road. The course consists of approximately 62 percent paved and 38 percent unpaved rolling roads. There are no extremely steep or long hills, and a course map is included on the application blank.

"We are counting on about 100 volunteers to direct runners along the route, man aid stations (water and Gatorade) every 3-4 miles and to provide splits at 1, 5, 10, 15, 20, and 25 mile marks," says race coordinator Chuck Proulx. "This will be a community event as well as a marathon."

Trophies and medals will be awarded for winners in five men's and three women's divisions for the April 20 race. Certificates for all finishers with final times included will be available at the 2 p.m. awards ceremony in the West Bloomfield High School cafeteria. Five hours is the maximum time allowed to complete the race.

Septics damaging ground water, says Basinger

A recent Michigan State University-sponsored conference on groundwater contamination has confirmed the need for sanitary sewers around Clarkston's Mill Pond, according to Clarkston Village Council member Ruth Basinger, who attended the conference.

Basinger serves as Chairman of the village hydrology committee, which has been doing research in cooperation with the Independence Township Board on the water level and quality of the Clarkston Mill Pond.

The fact that groundwater pollution can be traced to septic tanks has made it especially important that residents living on the Mill pond abandon septic tank use, she said.

"Of importance to the committee's work was the confirmation that the major pollutant of groundwater is the effluent from domestic septic tanks," Basinger said.

"That the surface water in the Mill Pond has been contaminated from this source was reported by the Oakland County Health Department on more than one occasion-but now we have confirmation that the groundwater quality is also being affected."

Corrective action against septic tank pollution has been slow because household effluents have generally been viewed as bio-degradable, Basinger said.

However, representatives of the Michigan DNR's Water Quality Division and Office of Toxic Material Control warned that many of today's household and laundry cleaners contain chemicals that are not only non-biodegradable, but toxic as well, according to Basinger.

"The village council has recently taken steps to end this hazard to the community's health by requiring abandonment of all septic tanks in compliance with our sewer ordinance," Basinger said.

"The appalling discovery that the careless disposal of industrial waste has led to contaminated drinking water prompted the state to provide funds to begin a clean-up, but the program does not include domestic effluent which remains the responsibility of local government.

"It's vitally important then that residents living along the Mill Pond have their homes hooked up to the sewer system."

Firemen seek funds for lifesaver

Springfield Township firemen want people to help them save lives.

They're conducting a fund-raising drive to buy a mechanism called the "Jaws of Life" so they can get accident victims out of crashed vehicles faster.

The expense of the "Jaws of Life" is great, they note, but the minutes that could be saved are precious.

The hydraulic instrument, resembling a huge pair of scissors, can tear a door off a car in 45 seconds to a minute and a half, according to Springfield volunteer fireman Keith Dutcher. The task can now take upwards of a half hour, he noted.

However, the current price of the "Jaws of Life" is $7,500, Dutcher said.

Thus, the firemen are attempting to get financial assistance from persons throughout the community in the form of nickels and dimes, if not dollars. They've put canisters in local businesses.

Those who would like to send donations can address them to: Treasurer, Springfield Fire Department, P.O. Box 104; Davisburg, MI 48019.

R. Kirk McLaughlin

Newcomer announces candidacy

R. Kirk McLaughlin of Springfield Township announced his candidacy for the District 2 seat on the Oakland County Board of Commissioners last week.

McLaughlin, 32, is a Republican.

In his first attempt for an elected office, McLaughlin is running for the commission seat to be vacated by Robert Gorsline at the end of this term.

A pipefitter and United Auto Workers member at Pontiac Motor Division of General Motors Corp., he and his wife Gail have lived at 8119 Ellis Creek Drive since 1978. They have two sons, Todd and Chad.

McLaughlin supports citizen participation in government and views continued reorganization of county government as an area of importance.

He opposes a SEMTA package involving a subway, but until legislation from the state arises, he would sustain from pulling Oakland County out of SEMTA.

His nominating petitions were filed March 12 for the Aug. 5 primary election.

District 2 includes a small portion of Independence Township, about one-third of White Lake Township, and all of Springfield, Holly, Rose, Highland and Milford townships.

Village to reconsider ending police protection

Clarkston village residents may have police protection on an emergency-only basis beginning April 1.

The matter is to be again discussed at the Village Council meeting Monday, March 24.

An opinion by Independence Township attorney Richard Campbell, however, states the village must continue in an agreement with the township to pay a portion of police protection and be included in the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD) contract.

The issue was discussed at last night's township board meeting.

Village council member Jackson Byers asked the board for a clarification on the village's earlier decision to no longer pay a share of police protection costs.

Sixty days' notice was not given before the township-village agreement anniversary date of Jan. 15, said Supervisor Whitey Tower, and the village is, therefore, to keep the agreement through Jan. 15, 1981.

To continue receiving police protection under the agreement would cost the village about $10,000, said Treasurer Frederick Ritter, because this year's contract cost for six deputies at $35,232 each is $211,392.

The agreement that the village pay 4.9 percent of the police budget was reached, because village residents are not assessed the 1-mill tax levy paid by township residents for police protection.

One mill is $1 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

If the village decides to not be included in the OCSD contract, "the village of Clarkston had better be aware it will just be emergency calls," Tower said, referring to responses the OCSD

Byers said the matter is to be discussed at the next village council meeting, and he received assurances that the village could be included in the OCSD contract if desired.

The council meets at 7:30 p.m. at the Clarkston Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston.

(Con't from page 18)

He or she shall be ex-officio a member of all standing committees, and shall have and exercise such other authority as is specifically granted from time to time by the Board.

Music Counts!

MUSIC EDUCATORS NATIONAL CONFERENCE

Mr. Chapman made a presentation at the Board of Education meeting on Monday, March 10, 1980 and Carolyn Place presented this resolution.

Whereas, the study of music contributes to young people's development through heightened skills in listening, reading, self-expression, and creativity; and

Whereas, music education in the schools includes a broad range of types of music and active musical experiences; and

Whereas, music and the other arts significantly enhance the morale and quality of the school environment; and

Whereas, it is the stated objective of the public school to prepare children placed in its charge for a happy, productive role in our society; and

Whereas, the Music Educators National Conference has designated March 10-16, 1980 as Music In Our Schools Week with the theme "Music Counts!"

Now therefore be it resolved, that the Board of Education of Clarkston Community Schools endorses the observance of Music In Our Schools Week as an opportunity to support the purposes and practices of music education and encourages teachers, parents, students, and all citizens to participate.

This Board of Education, for its own part, rededicates itself to the maintenance of the music education program in the Clarkston Community School District, which is relevant to the needs of the children placed in its care and which will reach and positively influence each individual child.

Mark Colwell can heat a glass of water using a magnifying glass.

Rob Sanderson knows how to insulate wall plugs.

Flavio DaCosta saves newspapers for recycling.

The boys, all fourth graders at Clarkston Elementary School, are working to earn the Boy Scouts of America President's Environmental Youth Award.

Members of Pack 126, Den 7, they meet at the home of their den mother Beth Ford, Meadowlawn Road, Independence Township.

The two other boys in the den, Dick Degener and Eric George, made posters urging energy conservation.

In talking about energy, the boys show sophistication about the topic:

"It's not easy," says Flaviko. "It was kind of hard collecting newspapers."

"All you need to do is just keep your heaters a little bit farther down and don't have as many lights on," says Dick. "It's not very comfortable, but I'd

Flavio daCosta finds saving newspapers for recycling "not easy," but it feels good to have the papers on hand for the next paper drive, he says. In just saving papers from his home, he already has three tied bundles.

Clarkston native named Bloomfield's outstanding cop

Randall Armstrong, a member of the investigative division of the Bloomfield Township Police Department, was selected outstanding officer of the year for 1979.

Armstrong was raised in Independence Township, one of eight children of Leo and Hazel Armstrong, presently residing on Dixie Highway, Springfield Township.

A 1965 Clarkston High School graduate, Armstrong was captain of the varsity football team two years and was runner-up for the 1964 state Golden Glove championship.

He has been employed by Bloomfield Township since 1969, serving as a patrol officer until 1976 when he was promoted to the rank of detective.

Armstrong, his wife Shawn and their four children are Waterford Township residents.

Learning about energy

rather save energy."

"I had a habit of keeping lights on when I have homework to do," Matt says. "Now I turn my lights off and go downstairs and my Mom helps me. Then I go back to my bedroom and turn the light on."

"When you turn down your thermostat, dress warmer," suggests Eric. "You won't get cold or sick, and you'll still save energy."

"You have to pay money to save money—first you have to buy insulation and storm windows," says Mark. "After you buy that then you can keep your thermostat down and you don't have to pay as much money."

"If you burn more fires, you can save heat by using your fireplace instead of the heat you use for your house," says Rob.

Working on the requirements for the environmental project was quite an experience, says Mrs. Ford.

Energy conservation is not a new concept, but one the boys are learning at home and at school.

And when her son worked on the solar hot dog cooker and discovered it takes a long, long time to cook using that method, his reaction was less than enthusiastic, she says.

"They knew a lot already," she says. For me to give them anything else, that was the challenge."

"But when you explain to them when put on a larger scale, it has some value."

And when the boys study solar energy concepts, recycling and energy conservation, they will have some good working knowledge, she says.

Tax tips

By George Bennett

Real estate deal can net tax exclusion

The purchase or sale of a house is probably the largest financial undertaking a person will incur during his or her lifetime.

Not only will it be the largest financial undertaking, but also the most profitable if done correctly.

Today's tax laws offer several ways to save or defer taxes on the gain realized when a personal residence is sold.

$100,000 exclusion on sale of residence

The tax laws are extremely generous with regard to the sale of a home by people over 55 years of age.

If when you sell your home, either you or your spouse is at least 55 and neither of you have ever elected the $100,000 exclusion before, then you may qualify for an exclusion before, then you may qualify for an exclusion of up to $100,000 of the gain realized on the sale of your home.

The election to exclude up to $100,000 of gain can only be made once.

If either you or your spouse has made the election during a previous marriage, then you are currently precluded from electing the exclusion. (Taxpayers 65 and older who previously elected the old sale of a residence exclusion may still elect the new $100,000 exclusion.)

Once you have determined that you meet the qualifications, it is necessary to determine whether your home does.

During the five-year period ending on the date of the sale, your home must have been owned by you or your spouse and used as your "principal residence" for periods adding up to three years or more.

Short, temporary absences, such as for vacation or other seasonal absences, although accompanied by the rental of the residence, are counted as periods of use.

The election to exclude up to $100,000 of gain on the sale of your residence is made by filing Form 2119, lines 1-8 and 15-20.

If your gain exceeded $100,000 or you did not qualify for the $100,000 election (either because of age or a previous election), you still may be able to defer the recognition of the gain and postpone the payment of any tax.

If you buy a new home within 18 months following the sale of your old home, or sell your old home within 18 months following the purchase of a new home, no gain will be recognized currently on the sale of your old home, and no tax will be due, if the price of your new home is at least equal to the sales price of your old home.

The gain not recognized is added to the gain on the later sale of your new home.

If you do not invest the same amount in your new home as you received on the sale of your old home, a partial deferral of tax may still be available. Form 2119 is required to be filed when you sell a home.

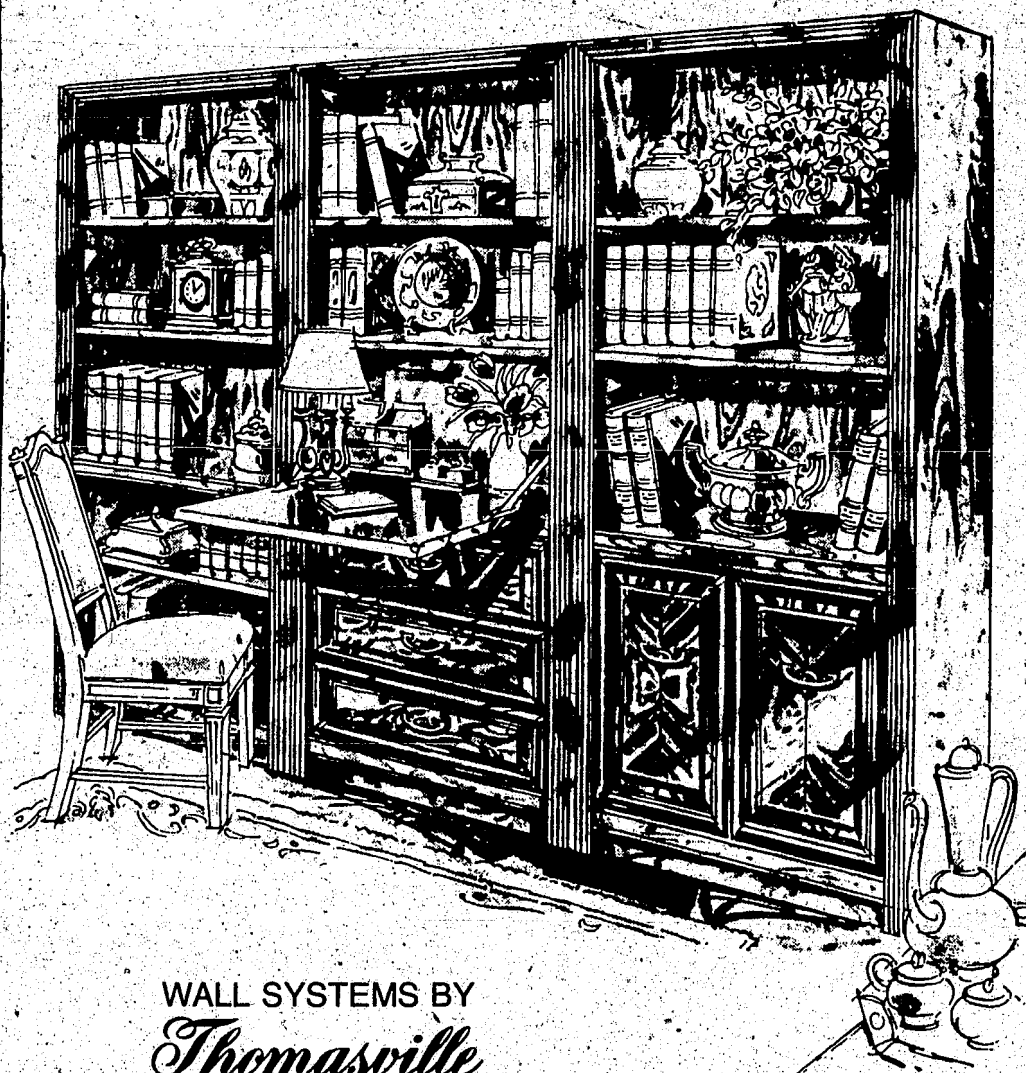

By completing lines 1-14 of Form 2119, you can determine the amount of gain (line 12), if any, that will be recognized this year.

First, the book. "We are just trying to make it come alive," says Pine Knob Elementary kindergarten teacher Jean Bierlein. The pupils watch and listen as Dr. Seuss character Sam tries to convince another character to try green eggs and ham. Volunteer mother Gail Ferguson [at left] reads to the class.

Duane Poole looks a little skeptical about the concoction.

Then, the eggs. Mrs. Bierlein gives Amanda King an assist cracking a regular egg in a bowl. The green dye is added later and the "ham" [really bologna] and green eggs are cooked.

March 27th 7 p.m. to 8 p.m.

They share building joys, traumas

Dave and Carla Endreszl will always remember circumstances surrounding the birth of their second son.

There were living in Dearborn with Carla's mother while building their home on Pine Knob Road, Independence Township.

Figuring he would have plenty of time to get back to Dearborn, Dave asked the police to contact him if the baby was on the way and went for the weekend to work on the phoneless house.

At 7 a.m. Sunday morning, the police knocked on the door, having been called by Carla.

"He made it about a half-hour before I delivered," Carla said.

The Endreszls and sons Eric 3, and Mark, 1, are now settled in their home, marking the end of their first year in May.

Dave, his five brothers, father and "a couple of cousins" built the entire home except for the well, septic tank, basement walls and patching drywalls.

Proud of the accomplishment, he remembers the realities of the task well.

"It was a great experience, but I wouldn't want somebody to jump right into it and say, 'Hey, I'm going to build my house,'" he said. "It was a lot of work. It was tough."

Pressures included taking draws on the bank mortgage and having to get work done before more money could be borrowed.

In addition, payments had to be made before the house was completed, Dave said, and he found it difficult to "lean on people"--living with Carla's mother and accepting so much help.

"My Dad was super--he's kind of a jack-of-all-trades and he knew a little bit about everything," he said. "In the middle of December, it was 5 degrees above zero and he was out here helping me drop the oil tank in."

"Any time I needed something, I just picked up the phone and said, 'Hey, Dad'."

Carla's memories of the year-long construction period are similar.

"It was fun, but a lot of pressure for both of us," she said. "I was pregnant. I used to have to come out here and cook for a crew of 20 while carrying a baby and caring for a two-year-old."

Bittersweet memories aside, the Endreszls are pleased with their home and its comforts.

They found the plan in a magazine and Dave modified it to fit their needs.

"It probably cost me $9,000 to do it, because by the time I got through with the plan, mortgage rates had increased from 8.5 percent to 9.75 percent," he said about the six-month planning stage.

But his work included long-range money savers--facing the home south to take advantage of the sun's heating ability, extra insulation in the walls and ceiling, wooden windows and reduction in total square footage.

The Endreszls use a woodburning stove to provide heat during the day and use the oil-burning furnace only during evening hours.

Although it would be more costly if free wood wasn't available, Dave still figures at present costs, wood would cost less than oil--$500 more for 1,000 gallons of oil than the equivalent 10 cords of wood, he said.

Original house plans that included a family room and living room were changed to make a large, L-shaped open area with the living, dining and kitchen facilities.

"It just fits our style of living," Carla said. "When I'm cooking, I can entertain guests."

Much of their social life involves family gatherings or having people over for dinner and a card game.

Carla enjoys cooking--her specialties are soups, chili and venison from Dave's hunting trips.

Dave also is at home in the kitchen, and he likes to prepare lasagna.

Their plans for warmer months include a large garden on their three-acre site, the planting of more trees--Dave is waiting to see how many of the 1,000 evergreens and 400 to 500 blue spruce he planted have survived--and raising rabbits.

A desire for rural living close to Dave's job as a civil engineer for Waterford Township resulted in their choice of Independence Township as home.

"We always wanted to live out in the country--raise our children here," Carla said. "We think it's a good environment rather than in the city."

Carla worked as a secretary in an elementary school in Dearborn 13 years before ending her career to be home with their young sons.

"I got married late in life and had my children late," she said. "And I'm really into it. I enjoy my home. I enjoy taking care of the kids and the house."

"We're here to stay. I go back to the city and say, 'This is the pits,'" she added. "I'd just never go back. You don't have far to go for swimming, to pick strawberries or get fresh produce."

Country Living

By Kathy Greenfield

Dave thinks about building another house at times, he said.

He would put more windows in facing south, install a solar water heater and include a green house with a passive solar heating system that would include heat retention.

"I talk like I would be upset, but I think it would be easier," Carla said about building another house. "I'd have to support him. I think I would go along with it."

The open floor plan of the Endreszls' home is ideal for keeping an eye on their young sons. From left are Eric, Dave, Mark and Carla.

Bring out yearbooks

The search is on for 1930s and 1940s Clarkston High School yearbooks.

The 50th anniversary committee of the school that now houses Clarkston Junior High plans to use the yearbooks as research material for a 50-year history publication.

Persons possessing the books are being asked to loan them to the 50th anniversary committee.

The committee is also looking for CHS graduates between 1931 and 1937.

Those with books or information on the graduates may call Pat Evans, Kate Germushka or Keith Paulson at CJHS, 625-5361.

Variety show winners

Grand prize winners of the recent Clarkston High School Variety Show are Lisa Steele and Chris Marlowe.

Lisa on piano and Chris on saxophone performed "The Breeze and I," written by Lisa.

They played to a sell-out crowd at the CHS Little Theatre - the event was so popular, people were turned away.

First runner-up in the contest was Stacy Nichols singing "Woman in the Mood" with Lisa providing piano accompaniment.

A tie for second runner-up went to Jerry Rowland on trumpet and Lisa on piano performing "Carnival of Venice," and Tammi Flood singing "He's Listening."

Other acts included rock bands, pantomime, dancers and people just having fun.

Judges for the show were CHS teachers Dan Divine and Mary Anne Olind, Clarkston Schools administrator William Neff, Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson and Kathy Greenfield of The Clarkston News.

New arrival

A St. Patrick's Day baby, a daughter they named Jaime Elena, was born to Mr. and Mrs. E. John Woolley of Pontiac Monday afternoon.

The baby weighed 9 pounds, 4 ounces when she was born at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac. Awaiting her at home is a sister, Stephanie Lee.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Woolley and Mr. and Mrs. James Saile, all of Clarkston.

Honors

Luann Christopher was selected Junior Miss Auxiliary for the year at the annual Americanism dinner recently held at Chief Pontiac Post No. 377 of the American Legion.

The daughter of Samuel and Betty Jean Christopher of Sunnyside Drive, Independence Township, Luann earned the honor through work with the auxiliary, veterans, handicapped children and nursing homes.

She is presently president of her junior unit and second vice president of the 18th district juniors.

Gordon E. Sanders has been named to the academic dean's list for the first semester of the 1979-80 school year at Hillsdale College.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Sanders of Robertson Court, Clarkston, Gordon is a Clarkston High School graduate.

Five local students are among 1,900 names to the Ferris State College, Big Rapids, dean's list for the winter quarter.

From Independence Township are Deborah Chuba of Flemings Lake Road, Tanya Leininger of Foxhollow Court, Mark Townsend of Holcomb Road and Brian Weber of Pine Knob Road.

From Springfield Township is Denise Smith of Davisburg Road.

Look where she is now

Former Clarkston Junior High School teacher Becky Harrold is now living in Pensacola, Fla., and appearing in plays - the most recent is "Dames at Sea," a dinner-theater production by Theatre on the Square at the Holiday Inn in Gulf Breeze. She taught chorus and social studies at CJHS for three years from 1976-79, and moved to Florida when her husband Sherman, who is in the United States Navy, was transferred. She is pictured above with Don Stewart of CBS television's "Guiding Light" with whom she appeared in "Music Man" produced the Pensacola Players. Ms. Harrold corresponds regularly with former student Stacy Nichols, now a 10th grader at Clarkston High School, who lives on Paramus Road, Independence Township.

Community events

The annual "Tootsie Roll" drive for the mentally retarded, citizens of Michigan is planned by the Knights of Columbus, Pope John XXIII Council No. 5436 on March 28, 29 and 30.

The 1979 campaign netted $6,700 for distribution to this area and the goal is to increase that amount this year.

Members of the K of C will be stationed on various street corners with "Tootsie Roll" canisters seeking donations.

Kindergarten readiness is the topic of parents' night at Crosshill Community Preschool, Davisburg.

Davisburg Elementary kindergarten teacher Kristy Rice will speak on the subject.

Open to the public, parents' night is Thursday, March 20, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at Davisburg United Methodist Church, 803 Broadway, Springfield Township.

It's Campfire candy sale time. Members of Campfire will be selling Sander's Crunch Bar for 50 cents and Cadbury's Carmello Bar for $1.50 during the spring candy sale March 22 through April 12.

Profits are divided between the council, the camp and individual groups.

Open house and registration for the Clarkston Pre-School is planned Thursday, March 27, from 7 to 8 p.m.

The pre-school, located at 5300 Maybee, Independence Township, offers day care and morning and afternoon nursery school for 2.5 to 6-year-olds during the school year.

For more information, call 674-1515.

Coping with kids

But what of successful children, parents?

Almost everyone in the fields of mental health and counseling knows a great deal about children with problems.

But usually, they do not have the opportunity to study successful and competent children.

Similarly, more unsuccessful parents are seen than those that have adequately raised their children.

Some things are known about qualities required by parents in order to raise children who possess attributes most parents would desire.

Diana Baumrind, a University of California-Berkely researcher, has been studying childrearing practices associated with competence in the young child for many years.

Her conclusions, although perhaps not startling, do contribute to a description of the ideal parent.

Most of us might agree we would want our children to be friendly, independent and contented. Furthermore, we would feel there should be self-control as well as a certain amount of self-assertiveness in our child.

He should also be able to socialize with others, be realistic and have the self-confidence to try new things.

There is a profile of the qualities a parent must have to raise children possessing all or most of those characteristics mentioned above.

The close-to-ideal parent should be controlling, demanding, warm and nurturing and able to communicate with her children.

She should be consistent, loving, conscientious and able to respect her child's independent decisions. She should also feel secure in handling her children.

Given these qualities in consistent amounts, the children raised should have admirable personality traits.

It is important to recognize that the above profile of the ideal parent suggests that control and firmness are a part of creating a competent child.

Too much permissiveness leads to children who lack self-control and fail to be self-reliant.

Furthermore, parents can be firm and demanding without being punitive or without lacking warmth.

He paddles his own career canoe

By Kathy Greenfield

Airplane radios and canoes have little in common, except in the life of Chuck Boldin.

The Clarkston resident owned Airtronics, a business that dealt mostly in electronics work on airplane radios at Pontiac-Oakland Airport.

He sold the business about a year ago and worked as a commercial pilot flying freight for automotive companies until he bought Glasto Craft Inc. on Dixie Highway in Springfield Township in December.

At Glasto Craft, his work includes making fiberglass canoes, truck tops for pick-ups and molds for inventors.

If activities surrounding his latest endeavor are a sample of the kind of enthusiasm he puts into his work, squash all images of running the business from an office far removed from the factory floor.

In a little over an hour, he washed, rinsed and dried a bright red canoe, helped trim fiberglass mixed with resin from another canoe, gave a tour of the factory that included what he dubbed a "boring but brief chemistry lesson," set up an appointment to teach some pilots how to deliver freight, and talked about his goals for the business and his lifestyle.

For the afternoon, he had lined up two deliveries of canoes he was to make himself in Detroit.

"A couple of people have told 'Boy, you've got a lot of nerve,'" he said. "And that's what it takes is a little nerve and guts and get out and do your thing."

"If I get bored with it next week, I'll put it up for sale," he added. "But I'm not. I enjoy it."

He and his daughter Michelle worked for a month learning the business of canoe-making and working with the other molds in the factory.

It is basically a family operation--besides Boldin and Michelle, there are two other daytime employees and his son-in-law prepares the exteriors of canoes for the next day's work during evening hours.

"He's pleased about his family support, both in this and past careers, and has nothing but praise for Michelle."

"We call her the plant manager," he said. "She is extremely mechanically-minded. She can do anything in the shop and very well. She's a real asset."

Boldin and his wife Carole, who live on Holcomb Street, have four children.

Carole also has her pilot's license and has helped with deliveries of commercial freight, he said.

"Our youngest son, Donald, a year ago, if you asked him what he wanted to be when he grew up, he said, 'A pilot,'" Boldin said, adding with pride, "Now he wants to build canoes."

For now, the most rewarding part of his work is making molds for inventors--the latest is for holding reading materials while in bed.

But, "the canoes pay for the place," he said.

"I like to work with my hands and I just enjoy seeing a good product come out of my hand and feel good at having made it."

The canoes are produced in red, white, green, blue and yellow as well as special-orders for other colors and retail for about $330.

The largest local dealer is Kelly's Sporting Goods on M-59 in Waterford Township.

Storage is the largest problem he now faces--Boldin rented two barns to hold the 80 canoes produced since February for deliveries starting now.

In the future, he would like to add a small office and some storage area plus some mini-warehouses to rent on the one-and-one-half-acre site.

His sales representative would like to sell 1,000 canoes next year, Boldin said.

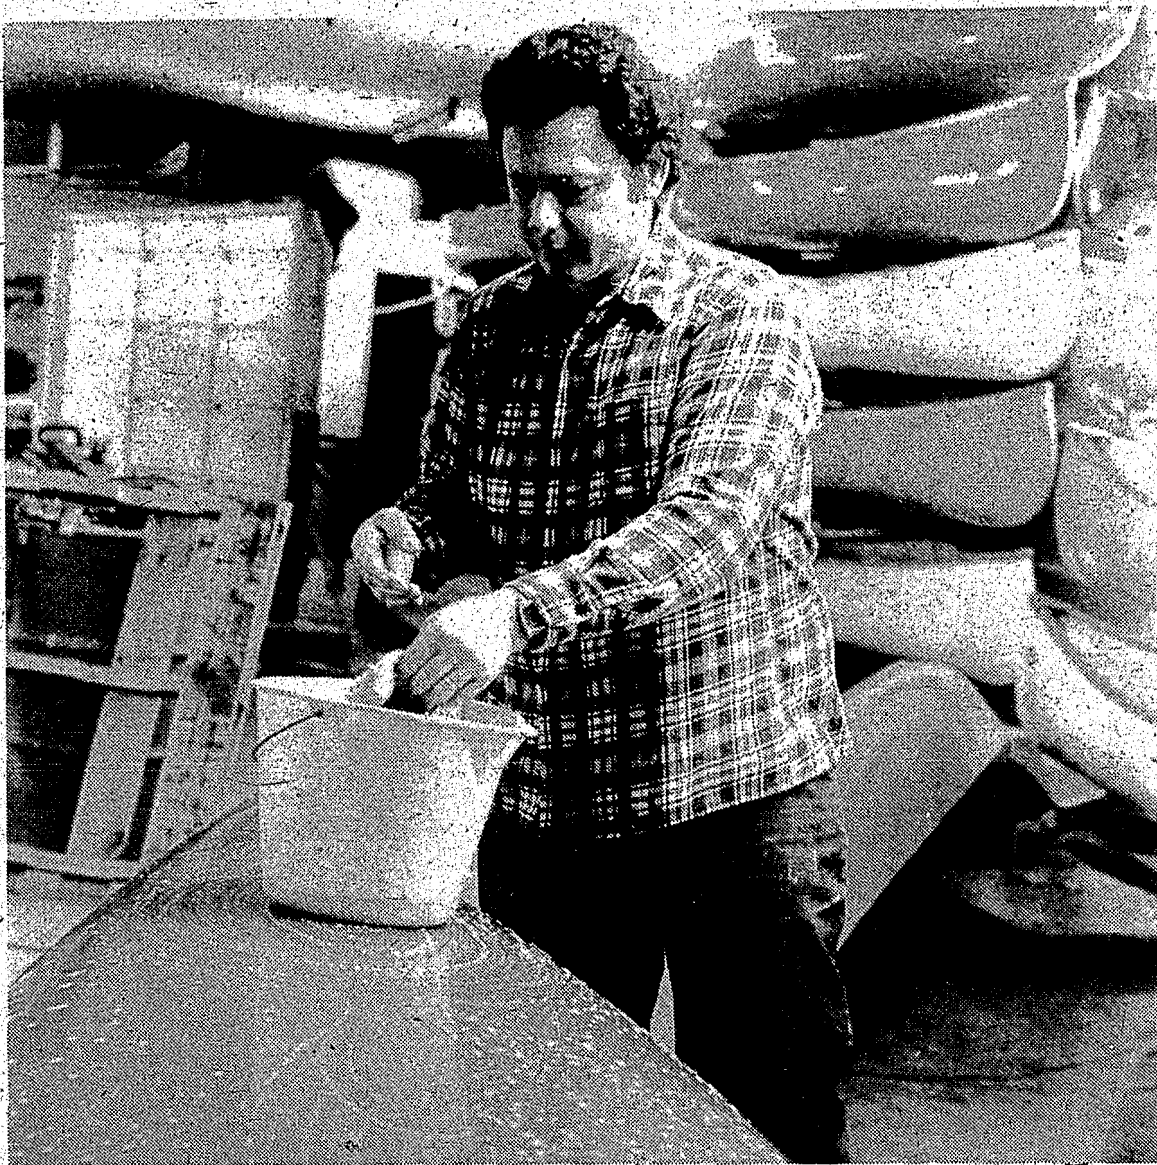

At the present rate of four canoes a day, 20 a week production, it would mean canoe-making for nearly the entire year, with all deliveries in a matter of a few months.

"It makes me wonder if I'm really going to do this or keep it small," he said.

Meanwhile, he has plans for summer family recreation.

In the past, the Boldins would "maybe once a year go on a canoe trip down one of Michigan's rivers," he said.

This year, each family member will be able to paddle his or her own canoe.

Chuck Boldin prepares a bright red canoe for delivery by washing it with soap and water.

Carol Cawley finds selling Viviane Woodard cosmetics a positive experience.

"I feel it's very rewarding," she said. "It raises a woman's self-esteem. I enjoy it."

She owns and operates the Velvet Pumpkin, 3255 Dixie Highway, between Scott Lake and Elizabeth Lake roads, Waterford Township.

They conduct skin care classes in their homes or at the homes of others for small groups of women, give skin care lessons for individuals and volunteer their services for fashion shows and school classes.

All the women agree the cosmetics are of excellent quality—they are allergy tested and guaranteed—but have different reasons for working out of their homes.

Margaret and Carol are housewives. "I have two small kids," said Margaret. "I wanted to get into doing something. It's a nice feeling to wake up in the morning knowing you have a skin class rather than just housework."

She also finds she now puts makeup on before she leaves the house, but the best thing about the job is helping others feel good about the way they look, she said.

Gladys and Diane both work. Gladys teaches fourth grade and Diane is a nurse.

Doing business

In business at the location three years, Carol recently recruited four sales people who work out of their homes.

They are Margaret Shubert and Carol Jones of Springfield Township and Gladys Baker and Diane Chester of Waterford Township.

Glenn promoted

Independence Township resident Richard Glenn has been named president of Jered Brown Brothers Inc., Troy.

The firm was recently purchased by Vickers Limited of England and is part of the Vickers Marine Group within the Vickers Engineering Division.

A major supplier of marine equipment, the Troy firm has provided equipment for most United States Navy vessels, for commercial vessels and for off-shore drill rigs.

Vickers Limited also owns Brown Brothers and Co. Ltd. of Scotland and John Hastie of Greenock, resulting in a leading world position in their area of the marine industry.

Glenn, whose wife Ann writes the Ann's Ark column for The Clarkston News, resides on Reese Road.

"Most people want to make up to look natural. Most don't want the dramatic look," Diane said. "We can make anybody look better."

Two basic types of cosmetics are included in the Vivian Woodard line—Moist Trio and Million Dollar.

The former includes a skin care program for teenagers and is designed for delicate and problem skin.

The latter utilizes vitamins A,

D and E and is super moisturized.

"Your face is the most important asset of your appearance," Carol said. "A good skin-care program is essential to healthy, beautiful skin."

In addition to the cosmetics, Carol carries Cameo custom-fit bras at the Velvet Pumpkin and she recently introduced Knoche breast prosthesis that adheres to the body for comfort and a natural look.

She is also looking for more women who are interested in selling Vivian Woodard cosmetics from their homes.

The carousel required to sell the line costs $95, but it can be earned by setting up skin-care classes, Carol said.

Those interested in an appointment for individual attention, a skin-care lesson for a group, or becoming part of the sales team may call Carol at 674-3597.

Springfield Oaks grows

The size of the Springfield Oaks Youth Activities Center site was more than doubled by the purchase of 50 acres adjacent property.

The $128,000 purchase extends the site, which was formerly 30 acres on the south side of Andersonville Road, south to Scott Road.

The property was purchased from Homer Ellis of Detroit.

Scence of the annual Oakland County 4-H Fair, the site is part of a parcel that also includes Springfield Oaks Golf Course across the road.

The additional property will allow expansion of the fair and provide more parking near the building.

Nearly 50 percent of the cost of the property--$53,700--was a Land and Water Conservation grant under a program administered by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Puppies' first school

Dogs sometimes need schooling just as people do. That's why Springfield Oaks Youth Activities Center in Davisburg is offering a new class beginning April 1, entitled 'Puppy Kindergarten.'

The six-week course runs from 7-8 p.m. each Tuesday.

The class is designed to prepare puppies for dog obedience, according to instructor, Joanne Tarp.

Ms. Tarp plans to cover leash breaking, manners and basic obedience for the puppies, as well as problem solving tips for the owners.

The class fee is $12 per dog. For more information and pre-registration, phone 625-8133 or 634-9371.

Springfield Oaks Youth Activities Center is located at Andersonville and Hall Rds. in Davisburg.

In service

Airman first class Joseph Fusilier has arrived for duty at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

A dental specialist, he was previously assigned at Elmendorf Air Force Base, Alaska.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. O.J. Fusilier of Dixie Highway, Springfield Township, he is a 1975 Clarkston High School graduate.
