Building permits plunge downward

By Al Zawacky

Requests for building permits have slowed to a trickle in Independence and Springfield townships these past few months, and spiraling inflation and interest rates are getting the blame.

"Our planning commission was meeting twice a month, but now they're just meeting monthly," said Collin Walls, Springfield Township supervisor. "Even with one meeting, they're finding they don't have much to do.

"Last year, we'd have one or two proposed subdivisions at every meeting. But now--zip."

Springfield planning commission chairman William Whitley quoted statistics which showed the number of permits issued in 1978-79 was 251, compared to the 1979-80 total of 298.

The figures are misleading and don't accurately reflect the recent slowdown, said Whitley.

"That 298 represents the activity in the first eight months of the fiscal year, when things were running very well in the housing industry," Whitley said. "The slowdown began in the late fall, and while we expect to see a fall off in the winter, the situation now is far in excess of the usual seasonal slowdown.

"It's a matter of economics," Whitley said, citing current interest and inflation rates both

"If we can eliminate one meeting and save money for the township, we'll certainly do it," Smith said. "We're definitely noticing a drastic downward trend in new sight plans, all attributable to the economic situation."

Smith added the quality of new developments are not being adversely affected.

"It's the moderate income construction that's being paralyzed," said Smith. "The developers are going after the higher income groups--people that are still in the position to buy."

Palulian said the number of permits issued in Independence the first three months this year was 15, compared to last year's total of 18.

'Last year, we'd have one or two proposed subdivisions at every meeting. But now--zip.'

Hop on Easter Bunny's trail

In the grand tradition of the ground hog, the Easter Bunny saw its footprint in the grass last week and postponed the Clarkston Jaycee's Easter Egg Hunt to Saturday, April 5.

An evening-long rain made conditions too "mushy" at Clintonwood Park last Saturday morning, so Jaycee Bruce Shull passed out candy to all comers and invited them back.

It's to be the same time and same place--10 a.m. at Clintonwood Park on Clarkston-Orion Road between the I-75 overpass and Sashabaw Road, Independence Township.

Prizes are to include large coloring books for finders of special eggs and lots of hidden candy.

Children will be divided into four age groups to make the adventure more fair.

"And we'll try to get the Easter Bunny to reappear," promised Jaycee President Dale Adams.

nearing the 20 percent mark. "A developer is not going to invest any money if he's not certain he can sell the property and make money in return."

The situation in Independence Township is similar, according to planning commission Chairman James Smith and Timothy Palulian, building and planning department director.

The Independence planning commission is continuing to meet twice monthly, but that will change if a lack of items on the agenda warrant the elimination of one of the meetings, said Smith.

"It's very difficult to predict if we'll have any relief in the near future," Palulian said. "We certainly won't if interest rates stay where they are or continue to rise--the interest rate is doing a terrible number on the entire construction industry."

"I feel the situation today is far more complicated than the slowdown we had in 1974," Palulian added. "We could stay flat for the whole year, or we could have a break--it's difficult to say. Hopefully, we'll come out of this okay by the end of the year."

Pine Knob hotel height back to zba

Independence Township is to reconsider the height of the proposed 20-story Pine Knob hotel one more time before the matter is heard before an Oakland County Circuit Court judge.

"We agreed to return the matter to the (township) zoning board of appeals so they could rehear the appeal on the height, because it has never been heard," said township attorney Richard Campbell.

At the show-cause hearing between the township and Pine Knob Investment Friday, Circuit Court Judge Francis X. O'Brien said he would like to consider the use of the recreation property for the hotel and the height question at the same time, according to Campbell.

The judge gave the township two weeks to provide Pine Knob Investments with a letter including any objections to the hotel other than use. The appeals board denied the use in December.

After Pine Knob responds to the letter, the matter is to be placed on a zoning board of appeals meeting agenda, Campbell said.

Voters okay $1.16 million budget

Voters recommended approval of Independence Township's $1.16 million general fund budget in a 34-3 show of hands Saturday.

The budget for the 1980-81 fiscal year that begins April 1 was discussed at the Township's annual meeting.

The figure exceeds last year's budget by $45,650 and is relying heavily on state shared revenue to be successful.

The state is expected to allocate $580,000 to the township for use in the general fund wherever needed, according to Clerk Christopher Rose.

"The state shared revenue is the one money we're most concerned about," Rose said. "This money is collected from many areas and distributed back to the municipalities to return to a general fund."

To keep a close watch on state revenue channeled into the township, the board is to review the budget every three months and, according to Rose, cut-backs will be forced if anticipated revenue falls short.

In the state constitution, $450,000 of state shared revenue is guaranteed, Rose said, so the allocation cannot drop below that amount.

"This is a conservative budget," said Supervisor Whitey Tower. "We are trying to look ahead to the three-month review, but it is going to be tough."

Village withdraws from OCSD contract

By Kathy Greenfield

Police coverage is too expensive and the Clarkston Village Council has restated its stand—it wishes to withdraw from the Independence Township Oakland County Sheriff's (OCSD) contract, said Village President Fontie ApMadoc.

"Our cost is just getting too high," she said.

She has spoken to a sheriff's department representative, ApMadoc said and was told only emergency calls would be answered.

But judging from village residents' reactions to the proposal to stop paying for police coverage, ApMadoc said she feels the decision was correct.

"I myself feel they (the OCSD) won't take care of noise in the (village) park, but only one resident showed up at the public hearing and only one resident showed up last Monday night," she said, referring to meetings on police coverage.

The move will save the village about $10,000 a year, the portion of the OCSD contract with Independence Township for six deputies to provide around-the-clock coverage.

The issue goes back to the beginning of the now defunct local police department, ApMadoc said.

At that time, the village dissolved its police department and provided cars and equipment to the township, she said.

An agreement was drawn up between the two units of government with the intent that the cost to the village would never exceed the equivalent to the 1 mill township taxpayers provide for police protection.

One mill is $1 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

According to the most recent figures, cost to the village should not exceed $9,000, ApMadoc said.

When the village decided to discontinue the agreement for police protection, the township was planning to charge $10,000 for the service plus $2.75 an hour for services of a ticket enforcement officer in the village.

The township has also discontinued overseeing the school crossing guard at M-15 and Middle Lake Road, and is now charging $500 for zoning ordinance enforcement in the village plus $10 an hour when the enforcement officer has to go to court, she said.

Monday, the former village enforcement officer was wearing Clarkston Police patches on his uniform.

Parking tickets, still $5, will now be taken to 52nd District Court on Dixie Highway rather than to Independence Township Hall, ApMadoc said.

Volney Shafer's job has changed to providing on-foot police patrol in the village in addition to writing parking tickets.

The crossing guard is now working under the village council.

The only remaining village police function to stay with the township is zoning ordinance enforcement—"We're going along with it," ApMadoc said.

"The real question now is, 'What are we paying our 1.33 mills to the township general fund for?'" she added, referring to the tax levy village residents pay to the township.

Meanwhile, the agreement for police protection between the two areas remains an issue.

A letter from the village council to the township board requesting to withdraw from the OCSD contract was mailed last week.

According to an interpretation by township attorney Richard Campbell, the village is obligated to continue paying for the police coverage until January 1981.

"(The township) has a right to make a claim against the village if they want to," Campbell said Monday.

At an earlier meeting, some township board members indicated the village could withdraw from the OCSD contract if it wished even though the notice procedures were not properly followed.

"It would be my intention to hold them to the contract that expires in January," said Clerk Christopher Rose. "I don't know what the board will want to do."

Voters approve 7.5% hike

Salaries up for officials

Residents of Independence Township attending the annual meeting Saturday voted to boost the three elected full-time officials' salaries by about $2,000 each.

The vote was 28-11 in favor of the salary hike for Supervisor Whitey Tower, raising his salary from $26,636 to $28,634.

In a 29-10 vote, Clerk Christopher Rose's salary was increased from $24,417 to $26,248.

The treasurer's salary was increased from $24,417 to $26,248 in 29-11 vote.

Citing problems with fixed incomes, high mortgage rates and the present uncertain economic conditions, James Smith, chairman of the planning commission, motioned from the audience to raise the supervisor's salary by a cost-of-living increase of 7.5 percent.

"The job only pays so much," Smith said. "The cost of living has gone up everywhere else, and this way there is recognition of the job and the responsibility that goes with it."

The motion for the increase in the treasurer's salary came from James Gardiner, also a planning commission member.

"I wanted to keep a uniform salary among the officers, that's why I motioned for the same cost of living increase," he said.

Salaries of the four trustees were also raised from $3,000 to $3,245 following vote 31-5.

"As a former trustee, I can tell you these men do not do it for the money. Their salaries cannot reflect the hours of work they do and the meetings they attend," said Treasurer Frederick Ritter.

Delivering babies at homes has become a standard thing with Mike Fahrner, 23, a six-year veteran of the Independence Township Fire Department.

Saturday morning, Fahrner was called to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Winslow of Sashabaw Road to deliver a baby, his third such call in the two years he has been part of the medical emergency team for the fire department.

Fahrner was prepared to be a midwife, but was interrupted with the arrival of Fleet Ambulance paramedics who took over the job.

And the Winslows are now parents of their first child, a healthy, 7 pound girl.

If you're just preparing to sharpen pencils, work your calculator and fill out income tax forms, you're not alone.

About 1 million Michigan taxpayers had yet to file returns about three weeks ago, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

Those who are to receive refunds on taxes paid should not expect them for six to eight weeks after filing.

For local residents who still have questions for the IRS, the number to call is 858-2530.

Springfield officials get 10 percent pay hikes

By Al Zawacky

Citizens gathered at the Springfield Township annual meeting Saturday approved 10 percent raises in salary for their township supervisor, treasurer and clerk.

Supervisor Collin Walls will earn $20,500 per year with increase, while Clerk J. Calvin Walters and Treasurer Patricia Kramer were granted increases to $19,400 and $17,600 per year, respectively.

Trustees William Whitley and Glen Vermilye will receive annual salaries of $600 plus $40 per board meeting, up from last year's $500 and $37.50.

Agreement on the increases was reached after discussion and rejection of a proposal by township resident Roger Lickey to increase the supervisor's salary 15 percent and provide a cost-of-living allowance (COLA) similar to that in the auto industry.

The job of supervisor is becoming a full-year commitment, and that, combined with a loss of buying power due to inflation, I feel makes a 10 percent raise inadequate," Lickey said. "Unless we offer the supervisor's position a substantial salary, we'll eliminate most people from wanting to run for the office."

Lickey proposed the supervisor's salary be increased 15 percent immediately and also receive future increases based on inflation. The COLA increases would be paid on a quarterly basis, according to his proposal.

Lickey also suggested an improved retirement and pension program be established for the supervisor's position.

Several residents spoke in opposition to Lickey's plan, including Barbara Hickman of Trotter Lane, Springfield Township. "The board itself asked for a 10 percent increase, and they should know what they're worth," Hickman said.

Dr. O. J. Fusilier, of Dixie Highway in Springfield added that by continually increasing salaries, the people would reduce their public officials' incentive to control inflation.

The majority of residents present agreed that the Lickey proposals were too expensive in view of the present economic situation, and voted to reject them. The 10 percent increases, however, were approved.

At last year's annual meeting, electors approved a 7 percent salary increase for their elected officials.

The new number is . . .

It is now possible to dial direct four offices at the Clarkston High School, following the installation of a new Bell Telephone system.

The system was installed late February in an effort to eliminate the heavy call load at the high school's main office, and to expediate calls to the persons directly involved according to Principal Dom Mauti.

The public can now dial direct the attendance office, counseling, the athletic director, and the main office.

The old system according to Mauti, restricted the number of phones which could be installed in the building. "The personnel had increased, and the phone system had not," he said. "We had two secretaries using the same phone line, and other departments did not have any extensions at all."

With the new system, calls can be regulated to specific persons via a direct line, and six new extensions have been added.

In December 1979, the cost of the system was estimated at $3,000 a year, for three years until the system is paid for.

The new numbers for the high school are as follows:

CHS Main Office	625-0900
Attendance	625-0905
Counseling	625-0904
Athletic Director	625-0906

Help for employers

Businesses with full- or part-time openings can get some help from Clarkston High School's job placement office.

Designed to find full-time work for CHS graduates, community adults and out-of school youths and assist with part-time and co-op jobs for high school students, the new service started early this year.

Placement coordinator Anne Reeves will be available from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily during the school year and from 8 a.m. until noon during the summer.

The office is located at CHS, 6595 Middle Lake, Independence Township. Mrs. Reeves may also be contacted by phoning CHS at 625-0900.

Also on hand at the office are Social Security card applications, information on income tax credits employers may receive by hiring co-op students and data on the legal employment of minors.

WHERE THE INTEREST IS IN YOU

Name that dog

by Herb Rose

Somebody gave me a buff-colored dog which I thought of calling "Fang" or "Killer" or "Bruno," short for "Brunella." Anne, who kept referring to this savage beast as an adorable puppy, felt that a more suitable appellation would be "Peaches" or "Taffy."

The dog is not a thoroughbred and, judging from its tail, one of its forebearers was a pig.

So, I suggested the name "Helix."

I was told that Helix sounds like something you occasionally replace in a car, leading to a recitation like: "We were 10 miles outside of Boise when the Helix burned out."

I pointed out that DONNA was an acronym for "Dog Of No Name Atall" and was given a pained look. It was suggested that I have a "Name that Dog" contest, but I was afraid I would be the owner of a dog named "Stump."

The dog expressed no preference.

I had always wanted the type of dog you could keep in a deep freeze. If you wanted to walk the dog, you could take it out of the freezer, thaw it out and, subsequently, put it back.

Routine maintenance between walks would be occasionally polishing its eyeballs.

The dog was not of a size suitable for freezing, so I thought it could stay on the back porch where there is a television and a good view of the pond.

The dog held a somewhat divergent opinion.

I felt that erecting a simple barricade to stop a scampering puppy should be no problem until I found the puppy could climb like ivy and leap like a gazelle.

I kept increasing the height of the barricade and upgrading its structural integrity in repeatedly unsuccessful attempts to defeat the dog until it appeared that the next logical step was to brick up the entire doorway.

When the dog found it could scale a bookcase and leap to the top of the barricade, I mounted a two-foot square of plywood at the apogee of this leap.

I rather hope the dog noticed the addition before it launched itself into the sub-orbital flight.

It would be discouraging to be coasting in a ballistic trajectory, back smartly arched, front legs up and out, and suddenly realize that you are approaching a solid, if temporary, wall with all the certainty that Newton and the laws of gravity can guarantee.

If the dog didn't notice the plywood before it was airborne, it may have hit a resounding thump, then spiraled down like a wounded leaf.

Currently, the dog is lying on her stomach with chin in paw, drumming on the floor, pensively looking at the barricade for signs of structural defects.

I don't think she is beaten, but we have reached a temporary impasse.

California, there they went

by Kathy Greenfield

She walked toward the ramp leading to the jet that would fly to her new home in San Diego, Calif.

"Goodbye, Pat," shouted my husband Dick.

She turned, waved and smiled, and was gone.

And Pat Braunagel ended her two-year stint as The Clarkston News editor.

We spent a portion of the hour-long drive to Detroit's

Metropolitan Airport Saturday evening going over notes and talking about stories that had to be done for the News.

It was a fitting way to end our relationship as editor-reporter, for I joined the newspaper staff shortly after Pat became editor.

Her departure was loaded with mixed feelings, because although I am happy she will be living in what some consider a near-paradise, I will also miss our friendship.

Pat's husband Don recently became assistant entertainment editor for the San Diego Tribune and Pat plans to take a break for a couple of months before searching for a new job.

She is the second friend I've had who has moved to San Diego.

Perhaps I should be happy that my rarely-to-be-seen-again friends now live in a close-to-perfect climate.

I'm not.

As we were driving home from the airport, I thought again of how nice it would be to gather everyone I've ever counted as a friend together to live in the same community.

I realize people throughout history have tried such projects, usually doomed to failure.

I understand why they try. After working together closely for two years, Pat and I developed the kind of friendship that time or space doesn't erase.

I'll miss her. A lot.

Another friend, Nancy Noble, moved to San Diego about six years ago.

We were neighbors in Ann Arbor, involved in raising our young children.

We keep in touch with Christmas cards, occasional visits and memories of friendship.

I'm sure San Diego will be good to both of them.

And I'll still be at home and comfortable living in Clarkston.

But, there's this place called San Diego that keeps swallowing up my friends.

Band director deserves praise

To The Editor:

Congratulations are in order to the Clarkston Senior High School for its fine production of the musical "Carousel."

Special mention must be made of the excellent job Clifford Chapman did directing the orchestra. Under his direction, the group provided a delightful musical accompaniment—never over-powering the soloists or chorus, and always right on cue.

These qualities should not be taken for granted, and are essential to the success of any musical production.

I think it's unfortunate that Mr. Chapman's contribution was not acknowledged after the final performance Saturday evening.

Let's give credit where credit is due!

Sweet memories

by Jim Sherman

(We started April, 10 years ago with this column. Maybe you'll enjoy it again.)

Sap is running from the maples, and it brings back days of my youth. I hope it does yours. Carefree, happy days of mischief and experimenting. I don't recall my dad tapping the maples, but I do remember a neighbor having a sugar bush.

Sometime Dad must have drained the sap because he had the taps. For you city people, the taps were put into freshly bored holes, from which the sap drained profusely, at least at times.

A brace and bit were used to bore the holes, and I remember our brace had a chunk of 2x4 as a replacement for a broken handle. Affluence was not a common word in those days.

Anyway, you'd pound a nail in the tree above the tap and hang a galvanized pail on it, usually a 10 quart. Now I understand they collect the juice in plastic bags. How clean and how unkind to kids.

Sometimes we kids would remove the pail and open our mouths under the spigot.

Sometimes we'd go out on a cold morning and eat the ice that had formed on the collected sap.

How far removed those days are. Compare it to the scene I'll now describe. Granted the kids are a little older than I when I stole sap.

Friday night I was at Spring Lake Country Club for dinner. There was a wedding reception in the dining-dancing area. I would call it a mod-wedding reception.

It was in no way offensive. It wasn't too loud. It in no way bothered me. I'm used to long hair and extra growths of hair and am generally able to look through it to the flesh or "inner man."

But, one such described person sat very near the salad bar. (Yes, I go to that kind, too.) Waiting in line I noticed this guy had a purse, woman's envelope type with a shoulder strap, over his shoulder.

On the table was a piece of chicken. The wedding guest put the chicken in a cloth napkin, folded it carefully and put it in his purse.

Now, I'm not saying there is anything wrong with that. I'm just passing this idea along for my fellow man . . . so when styles demand that we carry purses we will see there is a practical use.

Somehow I think I'd rather steal sap.

Greg spells his way to success

By Kathy Greenfield

Greg Molzon's hours of study payed off at the regional spelling bee last week.

He recognized the unusual pronunciations of the final two words—salve and adagio—spelled them correctly, and walked away with the championship.

The Clarkston Junior High School eighth grader had out-spelled 30 sixth, seventh and eighth graders from five school districts including Brandon, Lake Orion, Oxford, Holly and Clarkston.

The competition, held at Oxford Junior High School, lasted about one- and one-half hours.

"It was going on forever, but I kept on getting them right," said Greg, who spelled 38 words in-all to win the contest.

Greg's victory was the first time in over six years a Clarkston youngster has won the regional bee.

He also competed in the regional contest, sponsored by The Detroit News, when he was a sixth grader and came in third.

And he was determined not to go down in third place this year, because the two top winners get to travel to the metropolitan contest, said his mother Jeanne.

The last time Greg was in the spelling bee, his father William helped with practice sessions, but this time Greg and his mother put in an average of an hour a day for three weeks prior to the contest.

"He's constantly competing in all sorts of things," said Mrs. Molzon. "He's just a very competitive kid and he loves to compete."

Greg agrees.

"It's just competing and trying to win," he said.

Besides being a whiz at spelling, Greg received all A's the last marking period, was an all-star 8th grade CJHS basketball player and is now on the 7th and 8th grade track team at CJHS, his mother said.

In a mathematics competition last year, Greg came in 25th in the state.

But his favorite subject is gym, he said.

Greg asked his mother to write down all 241 words used in the regional spelling bee, because after it was all over, he couldn't remember which words were given and which ones he spelled.

"From the time he was little, he has kept baseball records and statistics," explained Mrs. Molzon. "He has a very statistical mind."

"Greg, I think has a photographic memory," she added.

The Molzons have already begun practicing for the metropolitan spelling bee to be held at Detroit's Renaissance Center in May.

The location of the next step, that eventually leads to a nationwide contest in Washington, D.C., played a large part in Greg's decision to study so hard.

"That's the main reason I wanted to go," he said. "Just to look around the place."

Although too old to compete, Greg plans to help with the regional contest next year. It is to be held at CJHS, because Greg won this year.

But for now, he's beginning to think about how nice it would be to go to Washington and just look around...

At home on Deerhill Drive, Independence Township, Greg and his mother Jeanne go over the list of words used in the regional spelling bee.

School winners

The following pupils also participated in the regional spelling bee held at Oxford Junior High and did a fine job representing their schools and their community:

David Willson, 7th grader at Sashabaw Junior High; Erin Dupree, 6th grader at Bailey Lake Elementary; John Worster, 6th grader at Pine Knob Elementary; Angela Benscoter, 6th grader at Davisburg Elementary; Lauren Carlson, 5th grader at Andersonville Elementary; and Christine Johnson, 5th grader at North Sashabaw Elementary.

Congratulations to all our outstanding spellers.

These chins are Irish

by Jim Fitzgerald

A few weeks ago, while pretending to be Ann Landers, I wrote about the male mid-life crisis, which causes many middle-aged husbands to bare their chests, wear necklaces and dump their wives in favor of disco dollies. In pleading my own personal innocence, I explained that if I had a mid-life crisis, I probably slept through it.

Several readers reacted doubtfully. Many of them suggested I've been a faithful husband more because of my appearance than because of my laziness. Their explanation of my fidelity is that it takes two to mess around, and I don't have the physical characteristics required to attract a partner. My own little sister, Nancy the Itch, described me as having "more chins than a Chinese phone book." She is a riot.

A newspaper report even confirmed this opinion of my appearance. When my photo recently appeared in the weekly newspaper one of that newspaper's readers wrote: "What really surprised me was to see the item on Jim Fitzgerald and to notice the change in his looks. He needs to come back to Lapeer County again as the toll of Detroit has really made him look much older."

My defense against these insults to my face is to point out that I was attractive enough to convince a lovely woman to marry me. Sure, that was 25 years ago, but youth is not necessarily handsome. My wife says I look better now than I did then. Of course, she sobs when she says it.

A less disparaging reason for my marital fidelity was suggested by Johnny Deignan of Ballston Lake, N.Y. I've never heard of Ballston Lake before, and I've never met Johnny Deignan. Before telling me why I've never been unfaithful to my wife, Johnny introduced himself in this charming manner:

"There's a clan called McElroy in Detroit that likes to get letters but can't write. So they send everybody they know your stuff and sit back for the rebuttals to come in the mail. Since most of us on the receiving end have been dodging creditors most of our lives, you're getting some pretty good geographical coverage, like the McManuses in the Bronx and the Kellehers in Atlanta and the Gallaghers in Syracuse and the Deignans in Denver — and then there's the Plotkins in Philly."

The Plotkins? Johnny explained: "Mary Theresa got out of control right after the war when nobody was looking and Sid caught her. It worked out OK, though. The last young Plotkin was confirmed in November."

Johnny's theory is that I'm a model husband because I'm Irish. He said: "The trouble with the Irish is once they get out of the house, they try to charm the world and never take the time to zero in on only a few hundred, much less one. By the time they get back in the barnyard, the stuff is spread so thin they gotta go out the next night and give the world another dose. I think their inability to handle two gals at a time has something to do with Original Sin. I can't explain it any other way."

The Deignan thesis is plausible and certainly preferable to ascribing my mohogamy to my physiognomy (did Cole Porter ever discover that rhyme?) or even to my lethargy. I've known dozens of Irishmen who turn the dazzle nozzle to spray. My late father, for instance, always became more charming as his audience increased. But that's not me. The larger the crowd, of whatever gender, the more likely I am to take my mid-life crisis home to my wife.

Do you think maybe it's her? Mush isn't my style, so I could never write that I don't chase around because I have a great wife. She's not used to that kind of sugar and, coming from a wise-guy Irishman, it might make her throw up. Beside, I don't think the Deignans or the Kellehers or the Gallaghers or the McManuses would believe me. Maybe Sid Plotkin would.

But I will say this: For over 25 years, she's been the only woman I've ever wanted to run her fingers through my Chinese phone book.

Tim McCormick should stay close to home

To the Editor:

As a resident of Lake Orion, I have followed all the north Oakland County high school teams with great interest since moving to the area in 1973.

This year was of particular joy and interest to me because of the great success of the Clarkston Wolves basketball team and its efforts to win the state championship.

Although they didn't quite succeed, they did bring about a certain degree of community pride, zeal and camaraderie that would have been otherwise lacking.

It probably can be said that our communities should function in this manner daily or at least more often than is presently the case.

But it usually seems to take a tragedy or an extremely successful sports team to get all of us pulling in the same direction: the Detroit Tigers' 1968 World Series win, Michigan State's 1979 NCAA championship, of the "March Madness" that affects local areas of our state where high school teams are trying to win basketball championships.

It was this latter effort that got me to thinking about Clarkston's great player, All-American Tim McCormick.

How great it would be if all of us in north Oakland County could continue to follow his exploits for a local university and not some out-of-state school whose fans wouldn't appreciate him nearly as much as we would here in Michigan.

I believe community pride should be an everyday affair, not just a passing fancy. Keeping out local athletes within the state could be a part of that pride, just as we try and keep the businesses we have in Michigan.

What I would like to see is a community effort to thank Tim McCormick, his coach, Gary Nustad, and all the other Clarkston players for their hard work and dedication and for the joy they brought to this area this past basketball season.

Further, I would like to see a community effort to tell Tim McCormick how much we would like to continue following him at one of our Michigan universities, regardless of which one.

Hopefully, he and other Michigan players can bring a Big Ten, MAC or even a NCAA championship to one of our Michigan schools.

Our state has several universities that academically speaking are as good or better than any other state's. Graduates of these schools can be found leading our businesses, schools, government, etc.

Let's pull together and keep Tim McCormick "home" for another four years, so that all of his relatives, friends, rooters, and most importantly his parents, can see him play by driving just a few hours.

In talking with friends and neighbors, I found out that they all felt the same way but wouldn't take the initiative to write. So I decided to do so even though it may come across as my personal viewpoint.

We know that the final decision is Tim McCormick's, and we wish him much success. He has handled the pressure with great poise and maturity.

Kenneth Highdrueck

P.S. Maybe some one in the high school could start a petition drive to encourage Tim McCormick to play in Michigan.

Bumpy roads disgruntle residents

'Forget about parks and recreation . . . concentrate on our roads'

By Marilyn Trumper

Bad roads were the number one complaint at Independence Township's annual meeting Saturday.

Despite a 34-4 vote recommending approval of the township's $1.16 million general fund budget for the 1980-81 fiscal year that begins April 1, several residents said more than $30,000 should be earmarked to improve road conditions.

Too much time is devoted to planning bike paths, said Charles Smalley of Sashabaw Road.

"Everyone is concerned with the quality of the roads, so forget about parks and recreation, not completely, but concentrate on our roads," he said.

The board is distributing money as reasonably as possible, said Trustee William Vandermark, and the public should address the county with road problems.

"The Oakland County Road Commission collects gas and weight taxes to spend on the road maintenance," he said. "We do not have a road maintenance department in the township. We just don't have the money."

"I voted against this budget," said Jack Hankins of Pine Knob Road. "I pay $1,800 in taxes, I own a well, and I don't ask for a damn thing except for road maintenance. It falls on deaf ears."

"They tell me it's the responsibility of the Oakland County government and that might be, but this affects everyone in the township," he continued.

Hankins also asked board members how many of them live on gravel roads.

"What the hell difference does that make? I drive on dirt roads every day. If you want to pay a 2-mill increase to pay for the roads, then do it," said Trustee Jerry Powell.

Supervisor Whitey Tower, said Independence Township has 56 miles of dirt roads both public and private. Public roads are maintained by Oakland County. Private road maintenance costs are the responsibility of the property owners.

The township's funding for road repair and maintenance exceeds $118,000, and will be drawn from three separate budgets including $30,000 from the general fund.

Federal revenue sharing funds are to contribute $62,000 this year. These are monies returned to states and municipalities based on population and taxes during a one-year period.

This money can be used for any purpose but it has to be kept in a separate fund, according to Christopher Rose, township clerk.

The federal revenue sharing funds will be used to pave Holcomb Road.

Community Development Block Grants of $120,000 have been applied for and accepted by Oakland County. Rose said the funds should be approved some time in September.

The board has allocated $16,200 of the block grant for road improvements.

Community Block Grants are received by applying to the county and being accepted by the federal government. These grants must be used to better the community and be targeted to the lowest income area.

Road repair allocations from the block grant will be used to improve the intersection in the area of Woodhull and Sashabaw roads, according to Rose.

Nicolai, Himes lead solid staff

Wolves counting on pitching

By Al Zawacky

Baseball teams tend to live and die on the strength of their pitching--and judging from that, the 1980 baseball season at Clarkston High School should be a good one.

The Clarkston pitching staff will be anchored by the slants of two returning lettermen: Chuck Nicolai and Scott Himes. Both posted earned run averages under the 2.00 mark last season, and both are throwing well in pre-season workouts.

"Chuck has good velocity and control, and also throws a pretty good knuckle ball," says coach Roy Warner. "Scott's strength is an excellent breaking ball."

"We're hoping they'll both duplicate the outstanding seasons they had last year," Warner continues. "They'll be our big men, but two pitchers don't make up an entire staff--we're going to need good pitching from some other people as well."

Warner looks to senior letterman John Tisch and juniors Kurt Esselink, Phil Breininger, Jerry Charboneau, Ron Feneley and Kevin Krause to provide the Wolves with needed depth on the mound.

The talent and potential is there, according to the coach.

"All I want our pitchers to do is throw strikes, and I think these guys can do it," Warner says.

"If somebody hits the ball, that's what the other eight guys are out there for."

Who those "other eight" will be is still uncertain, according to the coach.

"We have a lot of people with experience (a total of five lettermen and eight seniors on a 17-man roster), but how well they'll play this season really can't be said. Right now, all the spots are still open."

Infield prospects include lettermen Doug Hagyard, Himes, and Tisch, senior Rob Davidson and juniors Greg Lane, Don Mack, Rich Lamphere, Feneley, Charboneau and Breininger.

Top candidates behind the plate for the Wolves are senior letterman Jim Farnsworth and juniors Grant Anderson and Feneley.

Ready to see action in the outfield are seniors Nick Hool and Brent Davies, along with Anderson, Breininger, Charboneau, Esselink, Farnsworth, Feneley, Hagyard, Himes, Krause, Lane, Mack, Nicolai and Tisch.

"We're going to be stressing good defense," Warner says. "If they're all playing equal defense, then we'll go with the better stick."

Hitting was a problem with last year's squad, as the Wolves had only one .300 hitter--Dino Rotundo, who graduated last June.

"A hitter has to have confidence, he has to believe he can hit the ball," Warner says. "We've been hitting well indoors off the pitching machine, but we still haven't hit outside off the live arms."

Clarkston finished with a final record of 6-12 last season, but their league mark was good enough to earn them runner-up honors behind title winner West Bloomfield in the Greater Oakland Activities League.

This year's schedule promises to be another difficult one, and Warner is looking forward to the challenge.

"I like the idea of playing the tougher teams, and our aim is to try and win every game we play," Warner says.

Right now, we've got to concentrate on being 100 percent prepared at the start of the season--the baseball schedule is so short, it doesn't give you any time to work things out once the games start.

"We're working hard on basic fundamentals. I want our players to know exactly what to do in any given situation--if a certain play arises. I don't want any doubt in their minds as to how they should respond."

In stressing strong pitching and good defense, Warner says he'll be trying to get his Wolves to play "perfect baseball"--and wait for the opposition to make the mistakes.

"So often in this game you beat yourself, by not keeping the ball over the plate and committing errors in the field. If we throw strikes, play good defense and get some timely hitting, we'll be very tough to beat."

Coach Roy Warner is counting upon returning hurlers Scott Himes and Chuck Nicolai [pictured above] to take up right where they left off last season. Himes and Nicolai both posted ERAs under 2.00 in 1979.

Senior letterman Jim Farnsworth is one of the Wolves' leading candidates to see regular backstop duty this season.

The point after

by Al Zawacky

Those of you who attended any of the Wolfpack's play off games in person, please rise. I've got a question.

How did you get your tickets?

Perhaps you arrived at the high school and stood in line hours before they went on sale. Maybe you were fortunate enough to be the friend or relative of one of the players, cheerleaders, coaches or administrators.

Or perhaps you were one of those poor, trusting souls who figured there'd be plenty of sellers hanging around the entrances, ready to part with those golden strips of cardboard for a reasonable price.

As it turned out, what few sellers there were proved to be anything but reasonable. Prices as high as $30 apiece were the going rate for the tickets, originally priced at $1.50 and $3 for the semifinals.

All of this prompted a few fans to gripe that the method of distribution was less than fair, a charge that Clarkston High School Athletic Director Paul Tungate disputes.

"We had as many people standing in line as we had tickets before the window was scheduled to open," Tungate said. "There wasn't any point in waiting until the regular time to start selling the tickets."

Further, each student was limited to buying one ticket and each adult buyer to two, said Tungate.

"We had a lot of problems with student distribution. First we offered the tickets during lunch, which wasn't fair because they were gone by the third lunch hour. Then we sold them at 7 a.m., and people complained that by the time the buses arrived, the tickets were gone.

"There were separate lines for students and for adults," Tungate explained. "It was just a matter of getting your own transportation and getting to the school a little bit earlier."

More serious problems occurred Thursday when student tickets went on sale for the semifinals.

Since the tickets were going to be sold during school, students were skipping classes to get a place in line. Pushing and shoving followed, forcing the ticket sales to be postponed until Friday.

"We got the names of the kids in line and all they had to do

Peewees crowned champs

Beauty Rite Cabinets, a Peewee "B" hockey team based in Lakeland Arena, has added another trophy to its collection.

Having already won the state championship, the boys most recently wrapped up the house title at Lakeland Arena. Peewees range in age from 12 to 13 years old.

Members of the championship team include Neil McGinn, Tom Cushman, Dennis Mitchell, Douglas Mitchell, Wayne Bauman, Kurt Kalis, Jeff Thompson, Johnny Barnes, Marty McDonald, Glenn Forbes, Michael O'Connor, Brian Burgess, Matt Landino and Tony Raguso.

On your mark, get set—go!

There's no surer sign of spring than the arrival of outdoor sports. Mild weather permitted the Clarkston High School boys and girls track team to work outside in anticipation of 1980 season, beginning this week. Coaching the girls' team is Gordie Richardson, while Mike Kaul and Walt Wyniemko will handle the boys' squad.

With a mighty leap, Clarkston's Mark Foos expertly clears a hurdle during practice.

McCormick's decision due

By Al Zawacky
Clarkston's Tim McCormick, acclaimed as one of the best high school basketball players in the state, will announce his college choice within a week, according to Clarkston High School athletic director Paul Tungate.

"There'll be a press conference at the high school at which Tim will announce his decision," Tungate said. "The exact day still hasn't been determined."

McCormick denied having reached his decision at Monday night's CHS basketball banquet. Earlier radio reports said the 6-foot-10 star center had narrowed his choices to three schools, and rumors were circulating that the final pick had already been made.

Clarkston High School head basketball coach Gary Nustad maintained Monday night that McCormick was still considering all seven of his previously stated options: Michigan, Ohio State, North Carolina, Michigan State, Central Michigan, University of Detroit and Iowa.

Michigan head coach Johnny Orr's recent departure for the coaching job at Iowa State and the subsequent promotion of Orr's assistant Bill Frieder would probably not have any bearing on McCormick's decision, said Nustad.

Flower arranging

People interested in getting an early start on their spring bouquets can learn the latest techniques of silk and dried flower arranging in a class offered at the Springfield Oaks Activities Center, 12451 Andersonville in Springfield Township.

The class meets Tuesday evenings starting April 15. Students will learn to make wall hangings, centerpieces, baskets and wreaths.

Pre-registration deadline for all April classes is April 11.

Other classes include the art of clowning, leathercraft, puppy kindergarten, calligraphy and basketweaving, and a stained glass course.

Information on class dates, times and fees may be obtained by calling 625-8133.

Recreation shorts

Mentally and physically impaired residents of Oakland County and metropolitan Detroit can participate in outdoor activities at the Waterford Oaks tennis complex on April 12.

The activities will run from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. and include tennis, platform tennis, roller skating and shuffleboard at the complex located on Scott Lake Road in Waterford Township. For more information, phone 857-7780.

An antique show will be featured at the Springfield Oaks Activities Center, 12451 Andersonville Road in Springfield Township, on April 27.

Authorized dealers will display and sell goods from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. For further information, phone 625-8133 or 634-9371.

Arts and crafts classes dominate the spring class offerings at the Springfield Oaks Activities Center starting the week of April 14.

Classes include leathercraft, basketweaving, stained glass matting and framing and clowning. To register and obtain more information on the classes, call 625-8133 or 634-9371.

Friday was give their names to get their tickets," Tungate said. "There was no way we could sell them Thursday—things looked like they might get out of hand.

"Our priorities went like this: First came tickets for the players' and cheerleaders' friends and families; then tickets for the JV players and cheerleaders; then tickets reserved for those who had bought family passes and season tickets and also members of the (Clarkston Athletic) Booster Club; then students and school staff and finally general admission."

Tungate also noted that the list of priorities meant that the school never had more than about 500 tickets for the general public, even in the semifinals in 10,000 seat Jenison Field House in East Lansing.

"In the semifinals and finals, each school in the state gets 10-12 tickets for administrators, the principal, superintendent and the school's basketball coach," he said. "There are over 600 high schools state wide; that takes care of over 6,000 seats right there."

"What remains has to be split up among the four semifinal schools—about 1500 tickets apiece. After following our list of priorities, the bottom line is that only about 500 are left for sale to the general public."

"It's not a system I'm satisfied with," Tungate said. "What it does is hurt the teams that have a good following. Highland Park and Lansing Eastern only sold 1000 of their 1500 allotment. We could have sold 2000."

"Myself, I'd like to see the semifinals and finals possibly moved to the Silverdome, where we wouldn't have the seating problems we have in the smaller buildings."

PERSONALLY, I think the Silverdome is a poor building for basketball, and would rather that the Michigan High School Athletic Association devise a better way to allocate the tickets.

Why grant every high school in the state 10 tickets at the expense of local fans who have supported their team all season long?

But combine hundreds of Clarkstonites who had to be content scanning their radio dials and calling newspapers during the playoffs with all of the scalping that went on in the parking lots, and the trip to Pontiac does indeed have much to recommend it.

Besides attending gymnastics school each week, Julie sometimes practices at home, as well.

Gymnast heads to regionals

By Al Zawacky

A future Olympian in Clarkston?

"Maybe someday," says Julie Boldin, a 15-year-old 10th grader at Clarkston High School.

Julie, daughter of Chuck and Carole Boldin of Holcomb Street, Clarkston, has been winning more than her share of medals recently in gymnastics competition.

Last month she won two gold, two silver and one bronze medal in the Durbin Invitational Meet held at Ferndale High School, and later placed in the top six at the state meet held in Bloomfield Hills.

By placing in the top six, Julie became eligible for the regional meet April 11 near Covington, Kentucky.

"I guess I like the competition," Julie says when asked about her interest in gymnastics.

She got her start at age 12 in an Independence Township Parks and Recreation program gymnastics class conducted by Linda Sturgis.

"Personally, I think she likes the physical aspect of the sport, too," says her mother. "She's always been very active, and this provides an outlet for all her energy."

A qualifying finish in the regionals would place her in national competition and on the road to perhaps someday becoming and "elite gymnast"—a gymnast of Olympic quality.

Julie practices each week in Bloomfield Township at Steve Whitlock's School of Gymnastics. Of the school's entire enrollment, only one gymnast is ranked in the "elite" class, based on accumulated competition scores.

"It takes a lot of work to become an elite gymnast," says Julie. "You almost have to spend all your time practicing."

What are you doing to fight inflation?

"I am waitressing to bring a second income into the house. Other than a second income there is nothing else you can do."—Monica Basset, 6410 Paramus, Independence Township, domestic engineer.

"Inflation doesn't affect me. I am not married and I am living at home."—Bob Callahan, 8225 Waumegah, Independence Township, unemployed carpenter.

"I don't fight inflation too much. I spend all my money because it doesn't pay to save. I didn't save a penny last year."—Mike Curtis, Canton, field engineer.

"I am not buying any new cars, and I have had to cancel a trip to California I had planned for the spring."—John Peoples, Holly, equipment operator.

"I have two woodburning stoves in my home which I am using. I watch what I buy in meat, and this spring I am going to grow a garden to save money."—Anne Langs, Main Street, Clarkston, bronze sculptress.

In few sports has attire changed as much as in tennis. The original purpose of tennis clothing was to give a certain character to the game, and be more suitable for movements necessary for court action. Women's long tennis dresses have become the tennis skirts or one piece dresses of today. Men's attire has evolved from long white slacks to shorts. Perhaps the most significant change has been in the color. For many years, players would not be allowed on various courts unless they were wearing 'whites'. Watch pro tournaments and see anything from stripes to solid colors.

Tennis clothing and equipment is readily available from us at COACH'S CORNER, 31 S. Main, 625-8457. We carry warm up suits, shorts, shirts, shoes, tennis racquets by famous names and balls. Parking problem pressing Shoppers bypassing village shops due to lack of ample parking space is an ongoing business concern.

The Clarkston Village Council is working on the problem but progress is slow.

The latest council move is to consider a special tax assessment district for businesses to buy more parking lot space, but how much time will pass before concrete steps can be taken remains uncertain according to Jackson Byers, Village Council trustee.

The council is proposing to improve an existing area behind the businesses east of Main Street.

Not all the owners of the lots directly behind the stores are receptive to selling their property, Byers said.

"In addition to that, one way proposed to raise funds was to sell municipal bonds, and in today's economy low-interest rate bonds would be difficult to sell," Byers said.

"We are also waiting for the Business Association to organize so that we can meet with them and get a handle on whether or not they want extra parking areas," he continued.

The land behind those stores could be blacktopped, graded and striped for parking, he said. But in order to buy the land it would have to be purchased, deeded, surveyed and contracted prior to construction.

The second proposal to raise money for the purchase of the land would be a special assessment district for the businesses in the village.

"Each store owner would contribute to the assessment based on the number of square feet in their store," Byers said. "But until the Business Association is formed and we can relate our proposals, nothing can be done."

If I were elected president, this is how I would help children:

—I would make sure that every child in the United States would have warm winter clothing so no one would be cold.

—Before I sent foreign aid to any other country I would make sure that every child in the United States had three meals a day.

—I would offer mandatory drug and alcohol abuse classes in school.

—I would have free education so that every child could go to the school of their choice right through college.

—I would improve the foster care program so every child had good parents of some kind.

—I would also offer mandatory training for adults to learn how to be parents.

—I would make a complete education program to help every child become what he wants to be.

—I would also have a free medical care program for every child, so no child would be sick and not be able to go to the doctor.

—I would insist on mandatory arbitration for children and parents who are having problems with each other.

Second Place

By Pat Hull

Fifth Grade

Pine Knob Elementary

If I were elected president, this is how I would help children.

I would try to make this a better and safer world for them so there are no wars or fighting between other countries.

I would try to write a bill about lowering inflation and see if Congress would pass it so the children can afford toys or other things they want.

I would try to get the gas prices down and have scientists work on inventing a cheaper fuel that automobiles could run on so the children can afford the fuel for their cars or trucks when they grow up.

I would also discipline grown-ups for furnishing cigarettes, liquor and other things that could cause damage to their bodies.

I would also try to provide a better education for children so they can get a job when they grow up.

Seventh Grade

Clarkston Junior High

If I were elected president, this is how I would help children.

I would enforce laws on alcohol and drugs except for medical care.

I would provide education of government and politics so children would understand what is going on.

I would promote education in sports, music and foreign languages at a younger age where children could learn better.

Also, I would have more jobs open to children so they could earn more money for themselves and learn the value of a dollar.

I would be more protective against crime.

I would put children representatives in the House of Representatives in Washington to show interest and issues.

I would fight inflation and taxes, but more so, corruption in government.

People at a younger age are less influenced by greed and power unlike older and previous politicians.

The younger generation would be more likely to use their own instinct on issues for the better of society rather than their own personal gains.

I think children should have a say in the world today; after all, they'll be living under the effects of it tomorrow.

If I were elected president, this is how I would help children.

By teaching them how to save money at an early age.

Like stamp days when my mom and dad were kids.

You could buy stamps at school every week, then when your book was filled you would get about $20.00.

Then with that money kids could give it to crippled kids. To buy toys, wheelchairs, learning games and money for doctors and teachers.

This would only be a few cents a week but would make a whole lot of young kids happy knowing people care.

Also let the children know how lucky they are to live in the United States, instead of the countries where kids have to work all their lives.

They don't do or say things they want to.

Also make the kids pick up paper when they see it on the ground to make America look beautiful.

If I were elected president, this is how I would help children.

I would help them by making nice schools for them to go to.

I would make safe playground equipment for them to play on.

I would make an agreement to save energy, because when children grow up, I think they should have a better America than adults have.

This is how I would help America.

I would stop inflation from happening so we could buy things that we need without worrying about the money a lot.

I would invent a new system for factories to control the smoke pollution in America's atmosphere so that we can breathe clean air.

I would raise money for the handicapped so they could get special attention and help.

I would help the Americans in Iran so they could come back to America.

I would help America any way I could.

If I were elected president, this is how I would help children.

My main concern would be children and their families that do not have enough or any food to eat.

It's not possible to give them everything, but I would at least try to help them get some food and some good medical care.

My family is not the richest around, but when I look at an underfed and undernourished child, it makes me feel like a millionaire.

There are millions of people without a good home to live in and good food to eat.

Millions of people are also dying from STARVATION or from NO MEDICAL TREATMENT when they get sick.

It would really make me feel good to know that I helped someone like that.

Another concern of mine is alcohol. Raising the legal drinking age keeps kids out of bars, but they're getting into more trouble trying to get it.

They're trying to sneak or steal it from stores, their parents, other people, anywhere they can find it. I would hold stricter laws on alcoholic beverages.

I would have stores keep beer and wine locked up and have the cashier get it for the customer.

Those are my two main concerns and I hope you will take them into consideration.

Chris Dickerson.

If I were elected president, this is how I would help children.

I would be the kindest and the best.

I would support the children around the world. If you were an orphan and lonesome, you know just what I mean.

I would ship toys and clothes to the children all around the world. I would visit them every other month.

I would have laws against child abuse and things like that. I would give to the needy children and their family, and would get a sports center going.

Best of all, I would care for them. And that's how I would help the children if I were elected president.

Hobbies keep Springfield pair busy

Country Living

By Kathy Greenfield

Putting together model cars is an interest Tom started when he was a boy. He's completed so many, he even has a box full of spare parts.

Tom and Debbie relax in the living room of their home that is decorated in a contemporary style.

Rooms in the dollhouse Tom made for Debbie are so large, they've had to push it against the wall to keep their cats from moving in.

Old cars, a dollhouse and Pontiac State Bank figure prominently in the lives of Tom and Debbie Hagen.

Married five years, the Hagens live in a home they rent near the village of Davisburg in Springfield Township.

Both employees of the bank, Tom is in the maintenance department and Debbie is a supervisor in the records department.

They met while at work.

"I was a filing clerk then," says Debbie. "Tom was working late and he came in and asked if I wanted to go out to dinner."

"I said, 'No.' He called later in the week and asked me for a date and we went to the horse races. We met in August and were married in March."

"I borrowed my friend's Lincoln Continental to take her out on our first date," says Tom. "And then I came back for the next date in a beat-up old station wagon."

It was then that Debbie must have had her first clue about his interest in old cars, but more about that comes later.

In addition to Tom and Debbie, several of their relatives also work at the bank.

Her mother, sister and brother and his brother and brother's fiance are bank employees.

"We're slowly planning a takeover," jokes Debbie.

They even found their home because of a man familiar with Tom's work at the bank.

"He knew Tom was handy and he asked Tom if it would appeal to him to rent it and live here," Debbie says.

They have since finished the basement, put in new floors and installed kitchen cabinets.

The Hagens also own a house in Pontiac, but they rent it to others.

"The country is much prettier than the city," says Tom.

"I wasn't too crazy about it at first, because we work in Pontiac," adds Debbie. "But once I got used to the drive, I liked it-especially in the summer."

There is also a bonus with their country home--a barn that holds Tom's old cars.

He has five of them--two '51 Pontiacs, a '52 Pontiac and two German cars, a '59 BMW Isetta and an NSU Prinz.

Tom's interest in cars goes back to his childhood.

His first car was an old Volkswagen he repaired and drove up and down the driveway until he was old enough to get a driver's license.

Although he likes working on foreign cars, trouble getting parts led him to the old Pontiacs.

"I tried newer cars, fixing them up and stuff like that," Tom says. "But they weren't as fun as the older ones." Debbie likes the cars after they are restored.

"He's asked me to come out there and help him, but it just doesn't hold my interest--handing him wrenches," she explains.

Tom's other hobby is putting together model cars and he searches for old models at swap meets and garage sales.

His best find was at a garage sale up north where he bought a model kit for 50 cents and later saw an identical kit at a swap meet for $45.

Samples of his work line the shelves in the den, basement recreation room and hallway.

"You'd never see me pay $45 for a model car, but I'll buy one for 50 cents," he says.

After working with small cars for so many years, building a miniature wooden house for Debbie's birthday last October was a task he confidently tackled.

It took about two months, working two to three nights each week.

Tom did the work at the bank's workshop.

"She knew I was building something, but she didn't know what it was," he says.

"I was really surprised," she adds. "I was amazed, because it looked so nice. There's so much detail in it and he doesn't usually have much patience for it."

They have been working on furniture kits, wallpaper and family members have even joined in on the project--Debbie's mother is knitting a bedspread and Tom's mother provided a needlepoint book with patterns for miniature afghans, rugs and the like.

Although Tom took a brief respite from cars to make the gift, he's back at it now that the weather is warm enough to allow work in the unheated barn.

"I'd still rather get greasy than get sawdust on me," he says.

If I were elected president this is how I would help children.

I would take care of child abuse as well as I could, since it seems to be the biggest problem.

I would hire many people to act as counselors for these unfortunately hurt children.

It's hard to control this because you don't know when a nice parent will change and there is so much of this cruelty.

I would also build a lot of homes for abused and neglected children.

Kids such as the ones who were just in the newspaper for being undernourished and not loved. LOVE would be a main factor in these homes, because it's the biggest part of a child's life.

Another big problem in the U.S. is kids with problems like drugs, running away, prostitution and more.

I'd have halfway houses built for these kids to talk about their problems together. It just really gets to me when my brother tells me about kids in his third grade that smoke and take drugs.

Another problem is kids that are emotionally disturbed by divorces or fighting parents. There isn't much to do for them except give them some loving people to talk to.

Of course I'll take care of the little things mentioned in the book "Hilarious Letters to the President." Like lengthening recesses and making bedtime later.

These are the things I'd do for children, if I was elected president.

Travel Along with

Claudia Jakus
of Clarkston Travel Bureau

Today's roomy, large windowed, air-conditioned buses make getting around in a strange land about as easy and inexpensive as possible. On the other hand, some feel that bus tours can be confining and much too "pre-arranged". However, by comparison, they are cheap and really worthwhile if one is traveling with limited means. In central Europe, for example, one can see highlights of four or five counties for under $25 per day, everything included. Arrangements are best made in advance through a travel agent. It is smart to be sure to make precise reservations and to investigate the itinerary carefully.

You'll find it is smart to come to us at CLARKSTON TRAVEL BUREAU INC., 6 N. Main St., 625-0325 for all your travel needs. We've done the investigation for you, and given advice from our many years of experience. There are no additional charges for reservations or accommodations. Hours: 9:30am-5:30pm Mon thru Fri, 9:30am-1pm Sat. Have a happy Easter Holiday.

TRAVEL TIP:

Renting a tent aboard is less expensive than overweight baggage charges throughout a trip.

Neighborhood Interest is the highest bank interest in Clarkston.

With our Money Market Time Deposits.

Manufacturers Bank of Southfield has a great interest in giving Clarkston the most for its money. On our Money Market Time Deposits, for instance, we offer the highest interest rate currently available to individuals on a short term deposit.

Just make a deposit of $10,000 or more with us for 26 weeks.

The interest rate is tied to the auction average of U.S. Treasury Bills on a discount basis, and changes weekly. The rate established at the time of your deposit remains constant until maturity.

Check with us for this week's rate.

The higher rate of interest results in higher earnings for you when left to maturity. So high, no bank or savings and loan institution can pay you more.

We also have a large selection of other savings plans that let you save more. One is sure to please you.

We're at 7199 Ortonville Road. Two blocks south of the Ortonville exit of I-75. Be sure to come by, through the Bluegrass Road entry.

Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal of a time deposit and prohibit the compounding of interest on a Money Market Time Deposit.

Saul Rutin, proprietor of Aron's Bookstore, reviews the children's literature section with manager Jeanette Book.

Aron's: A lot of service

Saul Rutin waved his arms the length of a book counter describing the card section that would soon replace that space.

Within three weeks, Rutin hopes to install the 32-foot card section full of "Dynamite Ambassador Cards, the most dynamic card section ever seen," Rutin said.

Rutin is the proprietor of Aron's Bookstore and Cleaners, a new "service and some product" store which opened two weeks ago in Independence Township.

Rutin rents space to Vernon McKinley a photographer, and between the two of them they offer a wide variety of services under one roof.

McKinley Photography has a studio in the bookstore, and offers framing and matting services, with over 300 frames to choose from.

Rutin offers film processing and dry cleaning services, magazines and best-seller books. Children's coloring books are next to find-the-word puzzles, and film and battery displays dot the wall and floor.

"We are saving people from spending gas by providing them a service. They drop off their film and cleaning, and pick them up on their way home," Rutin said. "This is a store which offers services and some product, and we feel the area can handle this type of store."

Aron's Bookstore and Cleaners, located at 4740 Clarkston-Orion, Independence Township, is open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Evening appointments are available for photo-sessions.

The derby race cars were carved from a block of pine by the cub scouts and parents. After all that work, the cars were treated by many with tender-loving-care.

Cub Scouts and Webelos from Pack 126 gather around the track at Clarkston Junior High. The three top winners of the Pinewood Derby are to compete in the Pontiac-Manito District Championship at Sashabaw Junior High School this month.

As the final minutes of the Pinewood Derby of Pack 126 draw to a close Joel Mullen and his little sister Kim watch the track and the crowd. The youngsters were there to watch their brother Matt compete.

Firefighters raise funds for lifesaver

Springfield Township firefighters will don different hats Tuesday, April 15, when they take over ticket sales, the concession stand and ushers' duties at the Clarkston Cinema.

The occasion is a benefit showing at 7:30 p.m. of "The Electric Horseman." Tickets are $1.50.

The firefighters are working toward a Sept. 1 target date to purchase a $6,500 "Jaws of Life" apparatus.

A portion of each ticket sale and a percentage of concession stand sales will be donated by the movie theater's owner Dan Daniels, said firefighter Keith Dutcher, one of a four-member fund-raising committee.

"It's going to be a hilarious night," Dutcher said. "I've never made popcorn in my life."

Clarkston Cinema is located at 6808 Dixie Highway, Independence Township.

The firefighters and wives will put on chef's caps Friday, April 18, and dish up spaghetti, salad and garlic bread at yet another fund-raising event.

The spaghetti dinner is to be held at Davisburg United Methodist Church, 803 Broadway, Springfield Township, from 4:30 to 8:30 p.m.

All proceeds will go to the "Jaws of Life" fund. Tickets, on sale at the door, will be $3 for adults and $1.50 for children 12 and under.

Firefighter Bob Acker will also use his skills to help the funds.

From Friday, April 4, through Friday, April 11, all money from chain saw chains, mower blades, scissors, saws and other tools he sharpens will go toward the cause.

The items may be taken to his business, Bob's Small Engine Repair and Sharpening Service, 13137 Andersonville, Springfield Township (634-4578) or dropped by the lumberyard in downtown Davisburg.

The totally volunteer fire department needs the "Jaws of Life" to tear flipped-over vehicles open wide when passengers are trapped inside, Dutcher said, adding the tool is so effective, it works on train cars.

A bake sale by the firefighters' wives is also planned to add money to the fund.

It is to be held beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday in front of the fire station on Davisburg Road in downtown Davisburg.

In addition, the fire department is accepting donations.

They may be sent to Treasurer, Springfield Township Fire Department, PO Box 104, Davisburg 48019.

New arrival

David and Kay Hurd welcomed their third child into the world March 18.

Matthew Ramon weighed 8 pounds, 15 ounces at birth and measured 20.5 inches.

Waiting to greet their new brother at home on Oakvista Road, Independence Township were David William, 3½, and Carolyn Lea, 18 months.

Grandparents are Katheryn Nicholai of Saulte Ste. Marie and Ramon and Charlotte Hurd of Fountain Valley, Calif.

Great grandfather is Thomas Hurd of Rose City, and great-grandmother is Mrs. Rose of Deckerville.

Recipe File

By Lorna Bickerstaff

Mrs. Ferne Gould of Kerrobert, Saskatchewan, Canada, sent us her Salami recipe. We met Ferne and her husband Bill while vacationing in Florida.

Salami

5 lbs. hamburger (3 lbs. lean, 2 lbs. regular)
5 rounded T. curing salt
2½ T. mustard seed
2½ T. coarse ground pepper
1½ T. garlic powder
2 t. liquid smoke
3 T. Accent

Mix together well. Cover and refrigerate for 3 days. Remove and knead well for 10 minutes. Put back in refrigerator.

On the 4th day knead again and roll in long sausage rolls about 3 inches in diameter. (Should make about 6). Wrap tightly in aluminum foil and refrigerate overnight.

On the 5th day place in broiler pan or cookie sheet and bake 8 hours at 200 degrees. Prick aluminum foil at finish and let juice and fat run off. These freeze well.

Note: If you have a recipe you would like to share with us, please mail it to us or drop it off at the office. Give us your telephone number in case we have a question.

Coping with kids

Movie 'Kramer vs. Kramer' true-to-life

Very few movies about marriage and divorce have the stamp of honesty. There is one that is different.

In "Kramer vs. Kramer," when 7 year-old Billy asks his father if he is going to leave him as his mother did, the question is honest.

And when the Kramers agonize over the decision as to which of them is best suited to raising Billy after the divorce, this is a struggle that is both classic and well recognized by many parents.

"Kramer vs. Kramer" is a moving account of two parents and their small child and how the three of them deal with divorce and parenting.

It is a fictionalized, dramatic movie, but any parent who has had children or had children and then divorced will identify with much in it.

The emotions the Kramers feel and the conflicts they experience are as real to present day American parents as anything depicted in a recent Hollywood film.

Perhaps very few children can actually verbalize the thought so well expressed by Billy ("Are you going to leave me too?"), but almost every child whose parents have been divorced has felt or thought about being completely abandoned.

Like Billy, some children not only have the fear of abandonment but act it out in defiant behavior and eating or sleep problems.

The adults, too, must face the consequences of divorce and the power struggle that accompanies custody decisions.

No loving parent ever involved in a divorce has been immune from the feelings and conflicts portrayed so well by Dustin Hoffman and Meryl Streep as the battling parents of Billy.

As in real life, neither parent is wholly good or completely bad. There is something of both the positive and negative in most real-life mothers and fathers.

And usually both, no matter what the reasons for the divorce, have something important to offer in the raising of the child.

The issues the Kramers faced—job security, identity, adequacy and dating—are just the problems parents face after a divorce. Sometimes these problems do interfere with their ability to be loving, attentive and always supportive parents.

"Kramer vs Kramer" may not help a parent be a better parent, but it may help a divorced parent recognize that others have the exact same feelings as they.

Furthermore, taking your children to see it with you may provide the kind of unique opportunity to share feelings that few other films would.

That may be worth more than the story of the Kramers and their not-so-unique custody battle.

BAND BOOSTERS... HARD AT WORK!

Thanks to our volunteer parents, the Band Boosters are succeeding in their many projects that help support out Band and Color Guard. Besides the many bake sales, popcorn sales, fruit sales and breakfasts, the Boosters a year ago took on a weekly Bingo Game at Sashabaw Junior High every Thursday night at 6:30, which has been very successful in raising money for the band's many activities and towards the purchase of some much needed instruments for the various Jr. High and High School Bands.

Lee and Sandy Freel, chairpeople for the Bingo Committee have done a great job, along with a few very devoted other members to whom we are very grateful. Also a thank you to Mr. Birtsas and Mr. White at Sashabaw Junior High, who have made their cafeteria available and have been just super in their support.

If you are interested in helping these folk keep up the good work, we always welcome new helpers. BE A BAND BOOSTER! Come join the fun and help the kids! Phone:

Dieters' club chooses new officers for 1980

Former leader of the Clarkston TOPS Chapter, Alice Hummel (left), presents a rose to the newly elected leader of the group, Diana Frechette.

Clarkston's chapter of Taking Off Pounds Sensibly (TOPS) presented new officers with roses and rounds of applause Friday morning at St. Daniel's Catholic Church.

The newly elected officers are leader Diana Frechette, co-leader Carol Fox, secretary Marcella Hollis and treasurer Georgie Wills.

The thrust of TOPS according to Marily Fritz, member, is to take off pounds sensibly.

"There is no diet plan, exercise program or anything like that," she said. "We encourage our members to count their calories, but there is no regimen-tation. We use group encouragement and incentives to lose weight."

The TOPS members rely on each other with phone calls to those who are having a hard time losing weight. They also use a secret pals system by calling and leaving small notes of encouragement.

Fritz said men as well as women are welcome to join the club. The Clarkston chapter has 30 members, all of which are women.

TOPS meets every Friday at 9:30 a.m. at the St. Daniel's Catholic Church, Holcomb and Miller Roads.

Island heritage hunt yields 'gold'

By Marilyn Trumper

Some encouraging words from a 93-year-old woman, a map sporting a big X and a copy of a September 1979 National Geographic Magazine were the only clues Don Porter had when he embarked on a "Treasure Island" fantasy for his heritage.

Last February, Don, 33, and his wife Linda, 32, left their Independence Township home for the exotic paradise of St. Vincent, an island off the coast of Barbados in the West Indies.

"We were taking a Christmas Caribbean cruise," Don said. "I knew my grandfather was born on the Eastern side of the island of St. Vincent, and that he had owned one or more plantations, and I had an old map with an X, but that was all I knew."

Don's intentions were to see if there were any Porters left on the island.

After contacting the prime minister of the island requesting research on his family name, Don received an answer.

"The letter told me to pick up the research they had for me, when I arrived in St. Vincent. I really did not know what to expect," he said.

"The tourist department had contacted a 93-year-old woman who worked for and remembered a James Porter," Linda said.

He spent hours researching the island of St. Vincent to better orient himself, Don said. The side trip was only going to be one day, and time was of the essence.

"A friend of mine gave me a National Geographic with an article about St. Vincent," Don said. "It talked about a man, Martin Bernard, who owned a plantation in Orange Hill. Something clicked in my head from the past, and I knew my great-grandfather was somehow associated with Orange Hill."

In his research, Don found that in 1902 the volcano Soufriere's had erupted, destroying the entire northern half of the island, leaving two feet of ash and 2,000 dead.

"I started to wonder: Did the volcano destroy my relatives? Why did Porter leave the island in the first place? And were there any Porters left on the island at all?"

With so little to go on the challenge had to be met.

"I was really excited," Don said. "I had to find out these answers and it seemed the harder I tried to find information the less of it there was. It was all mysterious."

Obstacles were tossed in the Porters' path. Planes to and from each island didn't exist as promised. There were problems with immigration, explanations to customs officials and an unending signing of papers.

There was not a port on St. Vincent, and the Porters were forced to go to Grenada, take a taxi to the northern part of the island, fly to Barbados, and the following day fly to St. Vincent.

"At this point I knew that if I missed a connection I was really going to lose time," Don said. "I only had one day to get my business done on the island, and if I missed the ship they would leave without us. I was considering waiting a week for the next ship knowing it would jeopardize our whole cruise."

"On the island of Grenada I felt as if I had been picked up out of my environment and dropped into a jungle," he said. "There were chuck holes a foot deep, and soldiers with rifles drawn. The atmosphere at the Grenada airport was very military."

According to Don, the Grenada people are friendly with Cubans, and very anti-American.

Following a spine-bending taxi cab ride to the airport and a bilking by the driver, the Porters waited for a standby flight to Barbados. "I kept asking myself, 'Is this the way my life is going to go down?'" Don said.

Unsure of what to expect, the Porters landed at St. Vincent the following day. After two months of research, endless correspondence, and a string of vague senseless clues, the mystery was about to end.

"When we arrived, it was an exotic paradise and a perfect day," Linda said. "A representative of the prime minister was sent to greet us and he had an entire itinerary for the day."

The research that had been done said the plantations grew sugar cane, citrus, nutmeg, coconuts and bread fruit. The Porters were given an 1891 map showing the estates owned by David Kennedy Porter.

The plantations constituted a majority of the island. David

Don and Linda Porter inspect a map of St. Vincent, an island in the West Indies. The Porters have discovered relatives owned most of the island.

Kennedy Porter was the original Porter on the island.

The Porters discovered their relative had donated a cemetery consisting of seven acres to the island and that there was a Porter's Wharf.

"We found that David Porter had arrived on the island penniless, and it was suggested he was a stowaway on a ship from his native home, Scotland," Don said. "When James died, the bulk of his estate eventually filtered down to his great-nephew who squandered it away."

"They said the great-nephew was a very ostentatious SOB," Don continued, "His nickname was Black Jack, and they say he rode into town with spangles and jewels all over him."

The Porters saw the house where Don's grandfather was born, and they were welcomed into the home of the Prime Minister, Milton Cato.

According to Don the prime minister was friendly, interested and hospitable, and proud of their flag.

The people of St. Vincent received their independence from England October of last year.

The Porters were also greeted by the Queen of England's representative on the Island.

"A girl at the hotel said everyone was so excited that Porters had returned to the island after so long," Linda said. "We were treated well everywhere we went."

The Porters beige and white living room in Independence Township is a long way from the blue and green paradise they visited in the West Indies. They have the maps and research, the photographs and movies to keep them interested until they return to St. Vincent in the near future.

Not every man and woman can embark on a possible wild-goose chase and end up with a golden egg.

Curtain time

'Night Must Fall' thrills with suspense

Night must fall and then it's time for terror at Meadow Brook Theatre with the play currently in production.

The play is Emyln William's 1935 thriller "Night Must Fall," a play that has little mystery but a lot of suspense. Directed by Meadow Brook Artistic Director Terence Kilburn, the play runs nightly, except Mondays, through April 20.

Like many of the classics of stage mysteries, "Night Must Fall" takes place in a large English house in a lonely spot in a small countryside village.

There is a murder, by decapitation, and everyone in the theatre knows who did it. Or do we? No one can really be sure until the final curtain.

Along the way, Meadow Brook favorite Tom Spackman, an actor who has been outstanding in several recent plays, does his usual fine job with the role of Dan. Dan is a Welsh bellboy from a nearby hotel who cons his way into crochety Mrs. Bramson's good graces.

Mrs. Bramson, played by Dorothy Blackburn, is an unpleasant woman who runs her home and the people in it through intimidation. She is not well liked, but Dan with his psychopathic charm is able to win her over and obtain a place in her home.

Everyone else, Olivia, Mrs. Bramson's niece, her friend, Hubert, Mrs. Terence, the cook, and Dora, the maid, suspect Dan capable of the murder which has made Forest Corner famous overnight.

Olivia, given a rather brooding performance by Barbara Berge, is attracted while at the same time denying that attraction to the outgoing, always smiling Dan. She seems willing to risk decapitation herself rather than continue her withdrawn, depressing life.

It is at night when Dan stops smiling and his childhood fears seem to drive him toward a darker side of himself.

With anxious anticipation, the audience can sit uncomfortably on the edge of their seats waiting for the suspense to play itself out.

Places to go

A dinner-theater performance of Thornton Wilder's classic "Our Town" is planned Friday, Saturday and Sunday, April 18-20, at St. Mary's College, Orchard Lake.

Tickets are $10 and paid reservations should be made one week in advance.

The college is located at Commerce and Orchard Lake roads, Orchard Lake.

For more information, call 624-4124 or 682-1885.

A contemporary fairy tale said to delight young and old is to be offered for free at the Pontiac Mall April 1-5.

"A Place to be Me" is to be performed at 2, 4 and 7 p.m. by Adventures in Theatre/Albion Productions Inc.

The mall is located at Telegraph and Elizabeth Lake roads, Waterford Township.

Soap opera stars playing Chuck and Donna Tyler on the TV series "All My Children" are to appear at the Meadow Brook Village Mall on April 12.

The hour-long show is to begin at noon. Actress Candice Early, who plays Donna, will sing in person as she does in the Chateau Nightclub on the TV soap.

Actor Richard Van Vleet, who plays Chuck, will also be part of the show.

The mall is located at Adams Road and Walton Boulevard, Rochester.

Things to do

Activities outside the Clarkston-Springfield-Independence area

Send the recipe for your favorite beef dish using one of the lower cost, less tender cuts to the 1980 Michigan Cook-Off, and you may be spending an all-expense paid weekend for two in Scottsdale, Arizona.

The Michigan Beef Industry is looking for new ideas using beef chuck, round, rump and brisket. Finalists in the contest are to compete at Michigan State University, East Lansing on June 21.

Rules include: minimum of 2 pounds of beef not to exceed 5 pounds, cooking time of 4 hours or less, no brand names, entrants must be 18 or over.

Type or print the recipe and mail to Cook-Off, Michigan Beef Industry Commission, 122 S. Grand Ave., Suite 201, Lansing, Mich. 48933.

Entry deadline is May 10. First place winner in Michigan will receive the trip to Arizona and other prizes will be awarded.

Artists may enter works in Holly's fifth annual art show scheduled "50" to be held Friday and Saturday, April 11 and 12, from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Sunday, April 13, from noon to 6 p.m.

Entries must be made April 9 from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the Holly Community Education Center, 111 College, Holly.

There is a limit of five pieces for this juried fine-arts show. Six $25 blue ribbon prizes and one $35 best of show are to be presented as well as other awards and ribbons.

For more information, call 634-7341 or 634-8893.

A variety of workshops for adults and activities for children are part of a "Celebration of the Week of the Young Child" planned April 9-11 at Oakland University, Rochester.

The free programs are to begin at 10 a.m. each day in the Oakland Center on the OU campus.

Adult sessions include "A Child's Reaction to Death and Grief," "Lamaze: Childbirth," "Little Meals for Little Folks," and sessions on better parent-child communication.

For the children, programs include art, storytelling, puppet shows, films and clown acts staffed by volunteer teachers and education students.

For further information, call the university at 377-3180.

Basic steps and energy saving considerations for building your own home are to be covered in a nondegree course conducted by the Division of Continuing Education, Oakland University.

Beginning Tuesday, April 8, the eight-week course is to meet from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Tuition is $55. To register, call the continuing education office at 377-3120.

Divorce workshops for men and women who are divorced or presently in the process of dissolving a marriage are to begin April 14 at Oakland University's Continuum Center.

The five-session workshop is to be held Monday evenings from 7:30 to 10 p.m. at the center, Adams Road near Butler on the east side of the university campus.

Fee is $35.

For more information, call the center at 377-3033.

Would-be presidents confront issues

By Kathy Greenfield

Clarkston school children would face world problems head-on if elected president.

The 361 entrants in The Clarkston News' "Tell-the-Candidates Contest" had plenty to say about the need for peace, the right of children to a good home and loving parents and the need to find cures for diseases like cancer and Reyes Syndrome.

Responses came from third through eighth graders at the six Clarkston elementary schools and Clarkston Junior High School.

The children also wrote about concerns with their schools and asked for statutes to outlaw taxes for children, homework and price increases in candy.

The nine contest winners have been chosen and their letters to candidates are printed in today's Clarkston News.

We would have liked to award 352 more prizes and print all the entries.

We couldn't of course, but we would like to share some of the serious and funny things kids said.

Many youngsters, like CJHS seventh grader Steve Willis, showed sophistication about problem areas in the world.

"We should try to do the very best of our ability to try and clear up the international problems such as Afghanistan, Iran and in Bogota, Columbia," he wrote. "Otherwise, if we have a nuclear war, then there might not be any world left."

The American hostages in Iran were also mentioned by several youngsters, including Rich Lay, a CJHS seventh grader.

"You're doing a very good job in getting the hostages, but you have to try harder," he wrote in his letter addressed to President Carter. "This is a major and touchy subject. We're depending on you to get Americans back from there."

Lisa Thousand, a Pine Knob Elementary fourth grader, summed up what several children said about being tired of worrying.

"I'd try to make peace for the children, because all this going on in the world today is upsetting the children," she wrote.

Lots of kids said they would see that all hungry children got enough food.

"I would be nice to every child in the wide world," is how Steve Doolittle, a South Sashabaw Elementary School third grader, put it.

"I would give food to the poor kids in Cambodia," wrote Jon

Sampson, a Pine Knob Elementary fourth grader. "I would be darned glad to give canned food to these kids."

Child abuse was mentioned by a number of youngsters. They all agreed it should not be tolerated.

Julie Everett, a sixth grader at CJHS, offered a rhymed solution.

"If parents abused their kids, I'd take the kids away.

I would put the parents in jail I'd lock them up and then I would say,

"The kid has to pay the bail."

Good health was another right the children listed and they included good nutrition and less junk food as well as physical fitness.

The need for Clarkston schools to have gymnasiums was listed as a top priority by several children.

Daniel MacDormott, a fourth grader at North Sashabaw Elementary School, also requested a lunch room.

"And Mr. Carter, I want to see you in person in our room 6," he wrote. "Our school needs the money."

Finances were no concern for others who requested wave swimming pools, bicycle motocross trails and ice and roller skating rinks for their schools.

"You already have enough money and if you need more money, say so in the newspapers, TV, etc.," wrote South Sashabaw Elementary School third grader Kelly Avenall.

Several children requested more strict rules including better school bus discipline and making children play safely on playgrounds.

Others, however, would make things easier.

New laws suggested by Danny Sartor, a Bailey Lake Elementary sixth grader, included "the kids can see any movies they want to see. Kids can stay up as late as they want. Kids can get married any time they want."

"I would let (children) drive when they are 11 years old, because it would be nice," wrote Pine Elementary third grader Chris Blimka. "If you could, start as soon as possible."

Sixth grader at Bailey Lake Elementary Dave Lederman suggested cheaper gasoline and oil and lower taxes, but then he got down to the fun stuff.

"Have Christmas 3 times a year, have Easter 2 times a year, have Halloween 4 times a year, have devil's night any time you want to," he suggested as new children's laws.

The nine top winners and 352 other entries to The Clarkston News' Tell-the-Candidates Contest are on their way to Save the Children, an international child assistance agency.

We decided to sponsor the Clarkston-area contest to include opinions of local youngsters in the presentation of letters by children at a special hearing of the United States Senate Subcommittee on Child and Human Development in Washington, D.C. on Save the Children Day, May 1.

The letters will also help provide material for the 1980 Children's Agenda for Action, a children's platform which will be offered to presidential candidates prior to the summer Democratic and Republican conventions.

Co-sponsors of the News' contest provided prizes for our winners.

They are McDonald's of Clarkston, Timberline Saddlery and Ski Co. of the Clarkston Mills, Manufacturers Bank of Southfield, Clarkston branch and Country Cords of the Clarkston Emporium.

About the judges...

It was a tough job.

The stack of 361 entries to The Clarkston News' "Tell-the-Candidates Contest" was whittled down to 70 by News' staff members.

Then judges William Neff, Clarkston School District administrative assistant for elementary education, Christopher Ross, Independence Township clerk, and Kathy Greenfield, Clarkston News editor, tackled the stack.

It took two hours of non-stop reading, but the winners were chosen and all three judges agreed that learning about what Clarkston's youngsters would tell presidential candidates was enjoyable and interesting.

After the judging was all over, Neff and Rose summed up the experience.

"I was impressed, first of all with the knowledge that the children had of current events and the problems that face our country," Neff said.

"I was impressed with the fact that the kids have thought through possible solutions to these problems and they're not any more far-fetched than the ones the adults have come up with," he added.

"I was pleased to see the interest they had in the things that are happening," said Rose. "It was interesting, the variety of suggestions they came up with."

"One thing that surprised me was that I expected more of their items to be geared toward school, because that's a big part of their lives," he said. "But a lot of them were concerned about inflation and taxes and the poor."
