Pine Knob amusement park plans ready to go

By Kathy Greenfield

A 12-ride amusement park at Pine Knob could be constructed before the music theater season begins.

Final site plans for the facility are to go before the Independence Township Planning Commission Thursday, April 24.

If approved, construction could begin immediately. The matter would not be first considered by any other township governmental body.

Location of the amusement park within the recreation complex differs from the conceptual plan approved by the planning commission in a 6-2 vote in February.

But because the concept was approved, the commission's okay on the final site plan should be fairly routine, said Timothy Palulian, township building and planning department director.

Originally proposed to be built between the ski hill and the Pine Knob Music Theatre, the new plans place the rides northeast of the music theater entrance gate and ticket sale office.

The 2.5 acre site presently includes a fenced area used for picnics by concertgoers.

The 1920s theme for the park discussed previously at planning commission meetings by Gary Francell, Pine Knob Investment co-owner with Joseph Locricchio, is not evident on the final site plans, Palulian said.

"What it looks like, they're going to asphalt a certain area adjacent to the music theater and bolt the rides down," Palulian said.

The new plans also show no indication of an aerial tram leading to the Hamburger Mansion as originally proposed and the new site is about two acres smaller, he said.

The highest of the 12 rides proposed is a "paratrooper drop" at between 125 and 150 feet and a ferris wheel at 88 feet.

Other tentative rides include a merry-go-round, octopus, twister, swinger, dodge-em-cars, scrambler, "Himalayan" and two kiddie rides.

When the project was approved in concept by the planning commission, members expressed concern over hours of operation and noise.

"The traffic flow, that's not too much of a concern," Palulian said. "They've got plenty of parking."

The proposed site should alleviate noise concerns, he added.

"They're sitting it in the middle of a bunch of trees that should serve as a buffer," he said.

Francell has indicated hours of operation could be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and after music theater performances, but the decision is not firm, Palulian said.

The planning commission meets at 7:30 p.m. at Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Springing into new season

The spring sports season at Clarkston High School officially got underway last week when the Wolves' track team clashed with Catholic Central in their first meet of the year. Here, Clarkston's Ron Thompson begins his approach in the pole vault competition. Details of the meet are on page 12.

School board candidates file

Reickel decides not to seek re-election

Four candidates have filed for the two Clarkston Board of Education seats that go on the June 9 school election ballot.

Seeking the four-year terms of office are Independence Township residents Ann Glenn, 10175 Reese, incumbent C. Vincent Luzi, 7960 Dixie Highway, and Addison Hubbard, 7126 Glenburnie, and Springfield Township resident Carol Townsend, 5590 Edgar.

Luzi is running for his second four-year term on the seven-member school board, and the other candidates are newcomers.

R. Eric Reickel, a member of the school board since October 1974, decided not to seek re-election.

In the past, Reickel has expressed displeasure over the failure of voters to approve increased tax millage to build a new junior high school.

"I just don't feel motivated at this point to serve the school district," Reickel said Monday. "Maybe somebody else can motivate the people to fulfill the needs of the school district."

"I hope everybody goes to the open house at (Clarkston Junior High) April 26, and sees the needs for themselves," he added, referring to the planned 50th anniversary celebration at the school.

Reickel also referred to the last school board election in which only two candidates ran to fill two seats.

"I'm pleased to see at least the incumbent will be challenged this time," he said, adding that he hopes having several people run for office will bring the issues under greater discussion during the election.

Experts hired for gravel site fight

By Kathy Greenfield

Two attorneys who are experts in condemnation proceedings have been hired by Independence Township.

The township board voted 6-0 at last night's meeting to hire the attorneys to help in the fight to buy 80 acres of a proposed 487-acre gravel pit by the Edward C. Levy Co. of Detroit.

Voters approved the purchase in October in a 72 percent majority vote.

The land purchase is to be funded with .3 mill (or 30 cents for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation) to be levied five years.

The 80 acres are located north of Clarkson-Orion Road and west of Sashabaw Road adjacent to the township's senior citizen center and Clintonwood Park.

Township attorney Richard Campbell filed suit against the Levy Co. in February, asking that the land be condemned to allow the township to purchase it.

An answer and counterclaim to the suit was filed March 27 by the Levy Co.

It states that the property cannot be condemned, because there is "no public necessity" for the condemnation, that the gravel extraction would be for the good of the people of Michigan and further requests the judge to allow mining of the property before it is sold to the township if the judge rules that the Levy Co. must sell.

Treasurer Frederick Ritter, who originally requested the 80-acre purchase, be placed on the ballot, presented the request to hire the two attorneys.

"He (Campbell) feels he needs some additional help from people who are experts in the field of condemnation," Ritter said.

The attorneys would charge $100 an hour and their fees, as well as Campbell's when working on the condemnation, would be paid out of the .3 mill approved by township voters, Ritter said.

The attorneys are Walter Mason and Frederick Steinhardt of Detroit.

"I'd tend to vote against it," said Trustee Jerry Powell when discussion first began. "We are now currently employing four attorneys from four different companies."

"I think we are just spreading ourselves kind of thin or thick, whichever way you look at it," he added.

Needy can get help with energy costs

Senior citizens and disabled or handicapped persons who are facing the choice of paying for heat or food can get help.

The Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency (OLHSA) has established an Emergency Crisis Assistance Program to cover fuel oil, gas or electric bills for those in need.

The program can also assist with food costs and transportation to temporary shelter if needed.

Those needing assistance may call OLHSA at 858-5180.

To establish eligibility for the assistance, applicants should have fuel or utility bills in their name and proof of income for not less than 90 days or more than the previous 12 months.

Payroll check stubs, Social Security stubs, DSS certification of assistance or a medical assistance authorization card (code A, B or E) are examples of proof of income.

McCormick opts for Maize and Blue

By Al Zawacky

The months of speculation finally came to an end Friday morning. Tim McCormick will attend the University of Michigan in September and is looking forward to playing basketball next winter with the Maize and Blue.

Calling it a "very difficult decision," McCormick announced his choice at a press conference at the Clarkston Board of Education office Friday morning, squelching rumors that the 6-foot-10 All-American was planning on attending school south of the Michigan border—most likely Ohio State or North Carolina.

"There were a lot of factors in my decision," McCormick told reporters. "I sat down with my family the night before last and we all discussed it. I made the final decision, but everybody had some input."

"I've always liked the Wolverines, and have followed them as long as I can remember," McCormick continued. "Plus, the people around here has been so supportive of the team and myself, and by playing at Michigan I won't be far from my family and the community."

Michigan had long been considered to have the inside track on McCormick, but the recent departure of head coach Johnny Orr to Iowa State seemed to damage the Wolverines' chances of landing the highly-recruited center.

"I was in Washington (for the McDonald's All-American All Star Game) when I found out about it," McCormick said of Orr's move. "It came as a complete surprise."

McCormick's high regard for Bill Frieder, Orr's assistant coach at Michigan who recently was promoted to the head coaching job, was another deciding factor in McCormick's choice.

"I've watched him (Frieder) on the bench during games, and he really directs things and knows what's going on," McCormick said. "I think he's going to be a great head coach at Michigan."

McCormick added he hadn't been promised any starting job at U of M, but is hopeful that he can earn one on the basis of his play.

"Tim is the type of individual who loves a challenge," said his high school coach, Gary Nustad. "I think his chances of starting next season are pretty good."

McCormick plans on majoring in business administration and would like to see Michigan bring home an NCAA basketball championship "in the next four years," he said with a smile.

He was also asked about his jumper's knee condition, and whether he thought it would affect his play in college.

"I don't think I'll have any problems," he said.

Coach Nustad also indicated at the press conference that he was interested in a college assistant's job and would apply at several schools, including Michigan.

"I think it would be a tremendous experience for me to apply and possibly be interviewed," Nustad said.

Nustad added, however, the possible move into the college ranks was being taken on his own initiative.

"I personally have not had any offers," he said.

Village to force septic ban

The Clarkston Village Council has ruled unanimously to proceed with court action, forcing the last remaining 17 village homes with septic systems to tie into the sewer line.

Those residents who still have septic systems are to be given 30 days to receive a sewer hook-up permit, and then will have 90 days to complete the hook-up, said village President Fontie ApMadoc.

Notification of the court action will be handled by village attorneys.

"Everything is in the hands of the lawyers," ApMadoc said, "and they take it from there."

As of Dec. 31, 1979, there were 281 residential homes in the village, according to Dave Sherrill, township assessor.

The cost of the hook-up will be paid by the homeowners themselves, according to Artemus Pappas, village treasurer.

"For some of those homeowners the cost may be a hardship, and that might be why they have been holding out," he said.

The cost of linking the sewer line will be different for each resident, depending upon the design of their home, and the positioning of the hook-up itself, Pappas said.

There are plenty of patches—270 to be exact—stashed at Independence Township Hall.

Patches??—for holes in drapes, carpets, pants, you ask? Guess again.

The arm patches are for the Independence Township Police Services department that ceased to exist in February.

"Somebody, in their infinite wisdom in October, ordered a box of patches," is the word we got from a source that shall remain nameless.

Get the dirt on the soil in your yard by having it analyzed by Michigan State University through the cooperative extension service of Oakland County.

Fee is $4 for the service and soil boxes are now available at Independence Township's building department office, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

The analysis will include a recommendation for the type fertilizer that will benefit your lawn without causing run-off harmful to lakes and streams.

Ma Bell can make mistakes, but just as quickly she can correct them and mind the errors of her ways.

Those Michigan Bell customers double-billed for phone calls can relax, the problem has been solved according to Soya Jordan, senior clerk for community relations at Michigan Bell.

"The billing error affected the West Pontiac area, but revised bills have been sent out," Jordan said.

Several residents in Independence Township reported double-billing of phone calls during January and February, but have since received revised bills.

Any customer with questions or billing problems can call 332-1310, or for residence phones, 857-9900.

Alternate plan nixed

School line changes to be finalized April 14

By Kathy Greenfield

An alternate boundary line change plan for Clarkston elementary pupils has been considered and rejected, said Milford Mason, superintendent of schools.

And the school board is to make its decision on a plan proposed by Mason at the Monday, April 14, meeting.

Last month, Edward Fletcher of Foster Road, Springfield Township, presented the alternate plan during a public hearing.

The school board had already tentatively approved Mason's plan, but Fletcher was told the alternate would be considered before the school board made its final decision.

The alternate was rejected for two reasons, Mason said.

"His (Fletcher's) proposal moves 186 youngsters. My proposal moves 105," he said. "The whole goal in trying to balance this matter out was to move as few youngsters as possible to make Andersonville (Elementary) at K-6 building.

"His proposal wanted to move a group of people—specifically in the Cranberry Lake area—and those people were moved to Clarkston Elementary from Bailey Lake not too many years ago," said Mason. "My proposed group has never been moved before to my knowledge."

When Fletcher presented the alternate, he said it would save the school district money by reducing mileage, decreasing travel on dirt roads and ultimately resulting in less wear-and-tear on the buses.

The proposed redistricting resulted from complaints by parents of Andersonville Elementary pupils attending sixth grade in the Clarkston Junior High School building.

Major objections were the sixth graders rode school buses with junior high school pupils and they also missed privileges associated with being sixth graders in a K-6 building.

Mason's plan would reduce the Andersonville school attendance boundaries by sending some 50 pupils to Clarkston Elementary from Deer Lake Road up the west side of Deer Lake, both sides of Dixie Highway to Davisburg Road and the streets of Nadette, Englewood and Fairchild Circle.

Pine Knob Elementary would receive about 55 pupils from both sides of Foster Road to Edgar Road and from both sides of Edgar Road and Edgar Court to Andersonville Road.

The pupils sent to Pine Knob would then attend CJHS when they begin seventh grade and the remainder of their classmates would attend Sashabaw Junior High School.

There have been no serious problems with other sixth grade classes at Bailey Lake and Clarkston Elementary that now split when attending junior high school, Mason said.

The proposed change would also place Clarkston Elementary kindergartners at CJHS.

About $8,000 is to be spent to make one of the three CJHS kindergarten classrooms an activity room with mats and equipment for bad-weather days and to provide some playground equipment.

The school board meets at 8 p.m. at the Clarkston Schools Administration Building, 6389 Clarkston-Orion, Independence Township.

Other agenda items include discussion of placing a 3-mill school tax renewal on the June school election ballot and the possibility of starting a soccer program at the junior and senior high schools.

Ruth Basinger is presently serving her fourth two-year term on the Clarkston Village Council.

Her duties as a trustee include chairmanship of the year-old Hydrology Committee that has the objectives of studying the influences on the water quality in the upper and lower Mill Ponds.

The Independence Township Board has worked in cooperation with the village council, providing a share of funds for a study by the United States Geological Survey and a representative on the committee.

Members of the hydrology committee are village residents Rita Chlssom, Hank Radcliff, Clark Lynn and Frank Russell and township resident Judy Lukens.

"The water ought to be everyone's responsibility," says Basinger. "We all do benefit."

Fighting the gap

by Kathy Greenfield

Generation gap is a term I generally treat with indifference. Lately, however, I have been forced to give the entire matter more serious consideration.

There are two songs now popular with the young set that have made me stop and think--one is "Another Brick in the Wall" by a group called Pink Floyd and the other is "Love Stinks" by the J. Geils Band.

The latter speaks for itself, but the former sounds harmless enough until you listen to the tune.

There is a haunting refrain: "We don't need no education."

It has made for some lively conversation around our house, because my 11-year-old and 13-year-old are among the fans.

I've been able to offer some sound, sophisticated advice based on my years of experience.

It goes something like this:

"Listen you guys, if anybody needs an education, it's the group that sings that song. They're killing the English language."

"Mom, it's a great song," they say, "Everybody likes it."

I hold my breath and remind myself about the hundreds, maybe thousands, of times I said that to my parents.

To be fair about the whole thing, I listened to the entire Pink Floyd rendition and had to admit it sounded like the group was having one heckuva good time.

I haven't told my children (yet) about the good-old-days when a song with a similar theme had a softer refrain.

"Here comes summer, School is out. Oh! Happy days."

Now that was okay.

The second gap-maker came when my daughter wanted me to buy her a pair of summer sandals with wooden soles and semi-high heels.

I told her I would provide a pair of sandals that would work for such things as walking a mile.

She does have her own income from babysitting, though, so I told her she was welcome to buy them herself.

She did.

"How do you like them?" she asked.

"They're nice," I replied, "but what about running, jumping, playing...?"

"Mother," she said, "What do you think we do at junior high school, run-up and down the halls all day?"

I'm told the fun has just begun.

A matter of delicate balance

One of the pleasures of living in Independence Township is the residents' pride in their homes as it is reflected in beautifully maintained properties: bountiful trees and flowers, well-trimmed shrubs and nice thick, green lawns.

Another pleasure is the myriad of lakes, ponds and rivers that add sparkle to the landscape and fun to recreation.

There is a very delicate balance between the two--the verdant appeal of the lawns, and clear water that can support healthy fish.

The soil in which our lawns are grown will utilize only limited quantities and limited kinds of chemicals to nourish the grass. Any excess is borne away with the surface water or the ground water.

It is especially important for owners of property on water to find the optimum level of fertilization for their lawns because the run-off bearing the unused nutrients goes swiftly and directly into the lake, pond or river, contributing to excessive weed growth in those immediate waters and, of course, in the waters downstream.

Even fertilized lawns that are not adjacent to surface water can contribute to the choking weed growth, since it has been the practice, historically, to drain high ground into the nearest body of water.

Furthermore, even far away from surface water and on level ground, we don't want the chemicals we spread to leach into our well water.

We would all like to help nature restore her balance in our community. The question is: How can we maintain both healthy lawns and wholesome water conditions?

The qualities of the soil and the kind of vegetation on one lot may well differ from that of its neighbors, and each requires different nutrients.

There is an answer to this technical problem: Michigan State University through the cooperative extension service of Oakland County will analyze your particular soil and recommend the chemical combination that will benefit your special lawn condition without harmful run-off waste.

The fee for the service is $4, paid when you pick up your sample box. For the convenience of Independence residents, the boxes are available at the Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston, in the rear building.

Because every bit of your new, custom formula will go to benefit your grass, there will be a savings in the cost of your lawn care that was not realized when you used a formula that had more nutrients than your lawn could assimilate.

Jim's jottings

Day by day

by Jim Sherman

In February, Jim's Jottings was concerned over the people having to pay part of the GOP's phone bill in Detroit.

Michigan Bell did not hesitate to say it wasn't so. I hesitated in telling you.

In that same Jottings column we wondered at having to pay as much to have telephones moved in one of our offices as for a new installation.

Michigan Bell did hesitate in telling me they'd overcharged, but only because they wanted to recheck their checking... which may have cost more than the $100 credit we received.

Dick Krause, editor of the Lake Orion Review, said the hundred bucks was a payoff to get me to say something nice about Ma Bell.

For $100 I'd say something nice about Jim Fitzgerald.

Anyway, Bell spokesman Jim Helmrich said they first gave the GOP costs for the same service the party had in Kansas City 4 years ago. When the GOP saw the cost of inflation they screamed for lower rates.

They "trimmed the original full-sized sedan down to a very basic, no frills subcompact," Bell said.

So, now that $400 phone is just $290.50. And the service charge is $19.25 a month instead of $42.50.

But, I shouldn't have worried in the first place Helmrich said, Bell and the Public Service Commission insist the GOP pay the entire shot. See... there is some good news.

One more serious topic... Michigan schools, for the most part, are going to be in one heckova financial squeeze this fall.

To get through payroll obligations in the fall, school districts generally have to borrow money. This year they'll be paying considerable higher interest rates on the borrowed money... if they can sell the bonds at all.

Then, since the state is going to be short of money, about a half billion dollars will be cut from the state aid package.

With less state aid coming than promised, with higher interest payments, and with higher inflation costs your school district will be hurting.

Elected board members certainly don't want to go to the unemployed people and ask for a millage increase this June.

And, even those on guaranteed income aren't likely to lead the parade to the polls to yank the "yes" lever.

What to do, what to do? Breathe in, breathe out and live a day at a time.

Welcome aboard, Joe Falls

Dear editor,

Lots of citizens in our town show their pride in the community different ways.

Certainly the Clarkston Basketball team has spurred a great deal of pride in our town this year.

Without rehashing it seems to me that Joe Falls encapsulated all of that pride in his marvelous editorial in the Detroit News Sunday, March 22.

All I'd like to say is "welcome to our town, Joe, we're awfully glad to have you aboard!"

Fond memories

To the editor:

On behalf of the CHS Color Guard, I would like to take this opportunity to thank our supporters.

I would like to thank Mrs. Wheeler and the Pontiac State Bank for allowing us to hold our Saturday bake sales in front of the downtown Clarkston branch.

Without the help of her and the people who bought our goods, we would never have raised enough money to get us to our competition in Cape Cod, Mass.

I would also like to thank our parents who drove us to our out-of-state competitions and helped us bake. Thank you for being there to support us.

Finally, as a senior, I believe Mrs. Wilson, our sponsor, deserves the biggest thank you of all.

Without her time and effort to keep us on our toes, there would never have been a CHS Color Guard.

I thank you all for the memories you have given me, as I will always treasure them.

'If it Fitz. . .'

Weekend of worry

by Jim Fitzgerald

That old woman ruined my good time. Nothing bugs me more than to be feeling fine and then have someone remind me there are pits in my bowl of cherries. Especially on weekends.

On weekends I like to forget all the crap and nonsense that marred the five previous days. I don't mean the crisis in Iran or the dismal prospect of Carter vs. Reagan. That's big stuff and I don't spend much time fretting about big stuff because there's not much one man can do, even on weekdays, about exchanging Raegan and Carter for the hostages.

What I like to forget on weekends is little stuff like a dented fender or a luncheon date with a woman who had a fungus named after her.

I like to forget that my state is run by stupid legislators who won't allow stores to advertise the price of beer, thus preventing meaningful price wars. It is dumb that a guy on TV can tell me a certain beer is perfect for celebrating my graduation from gusto school but he's not allowed to tell me how much six bottles of the stuff cost at the grocery store.

There is an endless list of things I like to forget on weekends. Take volunteer policemen, for instance. They work for nothing, helping regular cops because there is more crime than the paid policemen can handle. But when a budget crunch makes it necessary to lay off regular cops, and the volunteer cops are needed more than ever, what happens? Many of the volunteer cops say they won't work until the laid-off cops are rehired. That makes as much sense as refusing to light a candle until the power is turned back on. I don't want to think about it on Sunday.

On the Lou Grant TV show, the wealthy publisher refused, as a matter of principle, to pay for a news story. But reporter Rossi wanted the story so badly he paid $4,000 of his own money for it. This left Rossi so broke he couldn't afford to eat, which made him scowl.

The producers of the Lou Grant show obviously expect me to believe Rossi is a real live, human newspaper reporter. It is terribly depressing to realize anyone thinks anyone else is that dumb. On weekends, I want to forget that Rossi borrowed the $4,000 at 20 percent interest.

Last weekend, things began in fine shape. My wife and I attended a great musical—"Eubie"—at the Music Hall and then listened to Alex Karras' daughter sing. Mary Gutzi isn't really Karras' daughter, but she played the role on TV in "Jimmy B. and Andre" and currently she is singing beautifully at Stephen's Blind Pig in downtown Detroit while John Williams plays splendid piano, as always. Thanks to all this marvelous diversion, my hedonistic heart was happy and I wasn't worrying about any of the things that mess up my mind on weekdays.

But then came Saturday afternoon and the old woman who fell in the doorway of the drugstore across the street from our home. She seemed to have fainted. I helped pick her up and seat her on a chair. The pharmacist was kind, urging the woman to rest as long as she wished. I offered her a ride home. She said it would be more trouble getting in and out of the car than it would be walking the short distance to her house. She assured me she would be all right. I left her sitting there.

And then I worried about her the rest of the weekend. Did she get home OK? Does she live alone? How is she feeling today? Does anyone care what happens to her? Why the hell didn't I walk home with her?

I see old women like her everywhere, on the streets and in stores. Old men, too. They appear feeble and unsure and in need of help. I'm sure many of them need no help at all, and would scoff at the suggestion. I'm sure many of them have someone who cares what happens to them. But I'm also sure many of them don't. Those are the ones who, simply by showing up, can ruin my weekend.

They can also make me realize what a jerk I am to be worrying about such unimportant things as a dumb TV show and the price of beer.

I know I should have walked home with that old woman.

Springfield electors knock millage proposals

By Al Zawacky

With the proposed Tisch amendment at the forefront of a brewing tax revolt, Springfield Township taxpayers say they are in no mood to pass a millage increase come election time.

That was the consensus of the voters gathered at the Springfield Township Annual Meeting, at which electors offered negative recommendations to the township board when asked whether two millage proposals—one for the township library and one for road improvement—should appear in the ballot.

"People are complaining about their taxes as it is," said Springfield resident Dr. O. J. Fusilier. "I doubt if the road millage could pass."

Barbara Stewart, of Gibbs Road, Springfield Township, added, "If the roads can't pass, the library doesn't have a chance."

Township Supervisor Collin Walls doubted the certainty of either millage question going down to defeat.

"No one seemed to think that the police millage would pass a few years ago, and it did," Walls said.

In his report to the electors however, Walls said he supported the proposed Tisch amendment to the Michigan constitution.

"The voters tried to send a message to Lansing in 1978, but it wasn't heeded," Walls said. "Passage of the amendment might create some problems initially, but in the long run I feel everyone will benefit."

Proposed by Shiawassee drain commissioner Robert Tisch, the amendment would cut assessed property valuation by 50 percent for households with incomes over $10,500; 75 percent for households with incomes between $5,000 and $10,500; and completely eliminate the property tax for those with incomes under $5,000, according to Tisch.

In addition, Tisch says school taxes would not have to be paid by those over the age of 62. The amendment further forbids the state legislature from imposing any new taxes without the approval of 60 percent of the voters.

"It's a drastic proposal, but I still support it," Walls said. "Currently, the state of Michigan has one of the worst business climates in the nation—it's a fact that high-taxing states have problems keeping their industries.

"I feel the domino effect of those corporate dollars staying in the state would be far more beneficial to us than the extra tax dollars accumulated by the state government."

The Springfield Township board will take up the millage question and the citizen input received at the annual meeting sometime in May or June—"In time for the August ballot," said Walls.

Regan seeks commission post

Ardath Regan, Holly village councilwoman and a district director of the Michigan Alliance of Small Communities, is seeking the Democratic nomination for Oakland County commissioner from District 2.

The western Oakland County district, which includes Springfield Township and a portion of Independence Township along with four and a half other townships, has been represented by Republican Robert Gorsline of Milford, who has announced he will not seek re-election.

Regan, 47, has led the battle in Oakland County for per-capita sharing of all unrestricted state revenue funds.

A co-founder of Holly's Carry Nation Festival, Regan annually plays the role of the temperance agitator in the pageant.

A past president of the Holly Area Chamber of Commerce, Regan is the national chairperson of Citizens Against Historical Defamation.

Opposed to the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority, she calls the Oakland County Advanced Reservation Transit (OCART) "a mismanaged fiasco."

Regan is a former teacher who was served for several years on the Holly Village Planning Commission, park commission, and historical commission.

She and her husband Frank have five children.

Talking about . . .

On Main Street, Clarkston, we asked this week's question:

What are your feelings about nuclear energy?

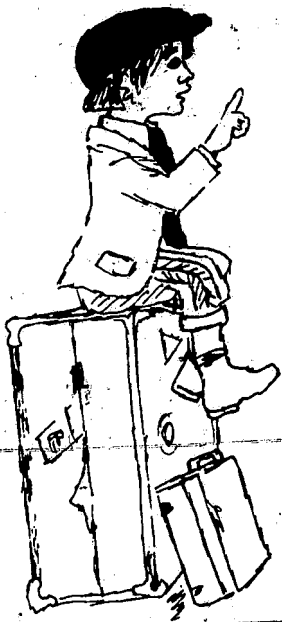

"If we need it we should have it. I don't really know too much about it."—Marge Neville, Hubbard Hills Drive, Independence Township, bookkeeper.

"I am against building more nuclear plants, and I am for solar power. I am afraid of another Three-Mile-Island incident."—Dave Whitehead, Oak Park Drive, Independence Township, employee of Ben Powell Disposal.

"We are going to need it, but first we have to solve the problems associated with it. We don't need a second Three Mile Island."—Rand Oslund, West Bloomfield, advertising consultant.

"It depends on how they deal with it in the near future. The way it is now, there is too much damage and danger involved. First they have to make it safe."—Jim English, Transparent Road, Independence Township, student at Ferris State.

"I think we need it. The other energy is going to run out, and we have to have something to take its place."—Harold Goyette, Main Street, Clarkston, funeral director.

Young softball team optimistic

By Al Zawacky

It won't be easy for the 1980 Clarkston High School softball team to do an encore of last season's 20-8 record.

Nor will it be easy to fill the shoes of numerous players (including three All-county picks) lost to graduation.

But this year's squad will be trying and battling all the way, according to coach Kathy Mahrle.

"We've lost a lot of people, and there are many spots to fill," says Mahrle. "A lot of our success depends on how well and how fast our younger players pick things up."

"But this group is really enthusiastic and trying hard. They're a coachable bunch of girls and they all want to learn."

Of Clarkston's 12-player roster, five members bring experience from last season's varsity team: juniors Jane Acton and Lisa Forsyth, and seniors Linda Foster, Lee Vedder and Kelly Mason.

The Wolves have another senior in first-year play Tammi Bondercuzk, while the remainder of their roster consists of underclassmen: juniors Sheri Owens, Beth Walker, Mary Barks and Cindy Hawley, and sophomores Sandy Mason and Michelle Ulasich.

Mahrle is uncertain who her nine starters will be or what specific position many of them will play once the season starts.

"Even if they start the first game, that's no assurance that they'll be starting the rest of the year," she says. "We'll have to do a little experimenting in the first few games."

One of the few certainties on this year's team is Kelly Mason, who racked up a 6-1 record as a pitcher last season. She'll be counted on to carry the lion's share of the pitching this time around, says Mahrle.

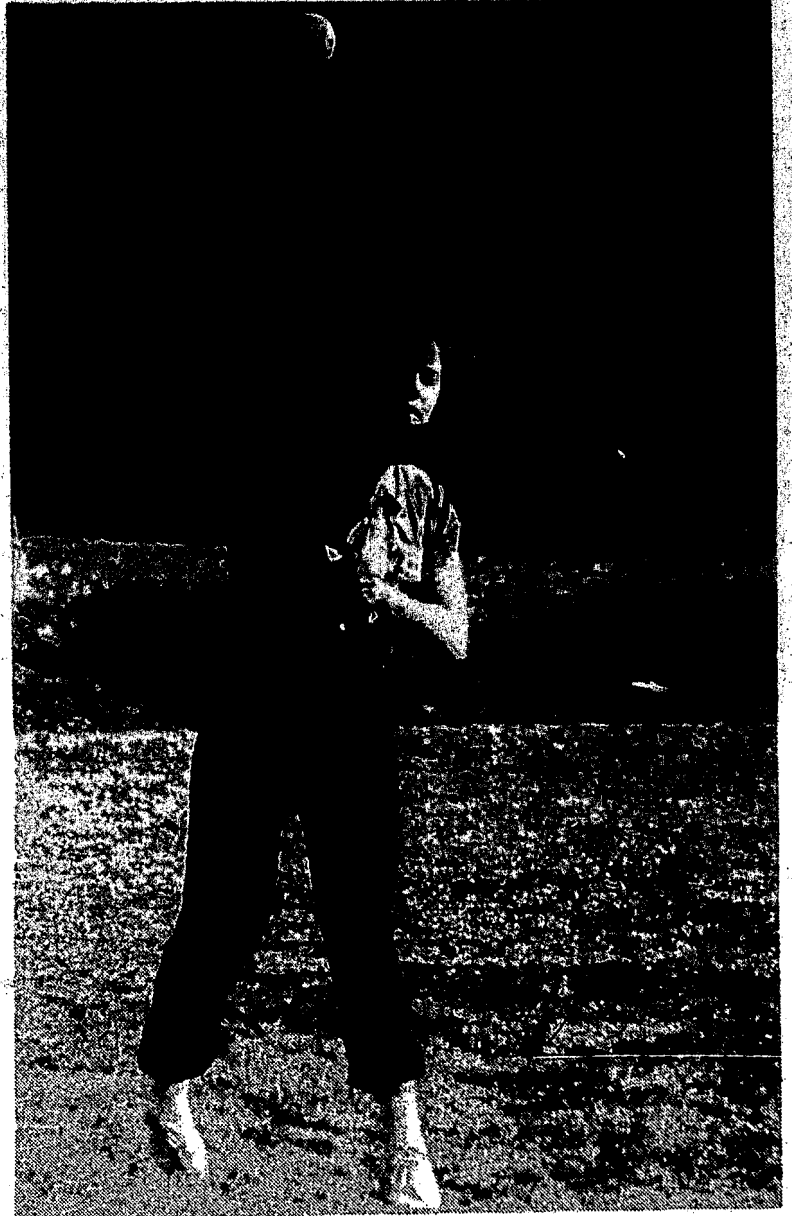

"Kelly throws the ball very well and strikes out a lot of people," says her coach. "She's definitely a key to our how well we do this season."

Owens is another pitching prospect, while Forsyth is slated to see action in the catcher's spot.

Infield candidates are Acton, Foster, Vedder, Walker and Sandy Mason while Mahrle will choose from among Acton, Bondercuzk, Owens, Barks, Hawley and Ulasich in the outfield.

Potential designated hitters are Vedder and Hawley.

Reflecting on last year's 8-2 mark and second place finish in the Greater Oakland Activities

A quick relay to first base by Sandy Mason finishes off a double play drill.

League, Mahrle sees another good race on the horizon this season.

"We play in a very good league for girls' softball," she says. "West Bloomfield (winners of the 1979 league title) is always very tough, and Andover is usually pretty good as well.

"And there's never anybody you can take for granted. We lost out on a share of the title last season by losing a game in Milford—we never should have lost."

The point after

by Al Zawacky

For University of Michigan head basketball coach Bill Frieder, April 4 was indeed "Good Friday."

It was early Friday morning that the phone rang at the Frieder home, with a young man named Tim McCormick on the other end of the line.

"Well, coach," McCormick said following a few perfunctory salutations, "looks like you're stuck with me for four years."

We can only guess what Frieder's immediate response was—but a few cartwheels aren't out of the realm of possibility.

"I THINK HIS FIRST WORDS were 'Oh, boy,'" McCormick said to reporters at Friday morning's press conference, recalling the moment he broke the news to his coach-to-be. "I heard his wife yelling and getting all excited in the background."

Little wonder. Following Johnny Orr's big "au revoir" and exodus to Iowa State, McCormick reacted with genuine shock.

He'd had no prior inkling of Orr's departure, and speculation ran high that the change would push him toward one of his other two favorites—Ohio State and North Carolina.

But McCormick revealed Friday his blood has run "Maize and Blue" for as long as he can remember.

"I always used to follow Michigan—I guess it's kind of been a dream of mine to someday be a Wolverine," he said. "I have a lot of respect for coach Frieder—he really knows the game."

McCormick's final destination was probably the best-kept secret in Clarkston's history.

The reason is simple—McCormick himself hadn't decided until a few days prior to the press conference.

Even the coaches of the seven schools in the running for his services—Frieder included—were kept in the dark until just hours before Friday's announcement.

McCormick had the unenviable task of calling each coach and personally informing the odd-men-out of his decision.

"That was tough," McCormick said. "But they're all class individuals—they all said they were sorry I wouldn't be going to their school and wished me luck in the future."

McCormick's family—his father Tom, mother Terri, sister Lynn and brothers Mike and Kevin, watched proudly while Tim announced his decision.

"It'll be nice to be able to drive just a little ways to see him play," said his mother afterwards. His brothers and sister agreed.

BUT THE GUESSING GAME isn't over. Now the question is, "Whither goest Clarkston High School coach Gary Nustad?"

Nustad took the opportunity of Friday's media gathering to admit his interest in an assistant college coaching job—an announcement that did not surprise anyone close to the Wolfpack these past few seasons.

"How about the open assistant's job at U of M?" Nustad was asked.

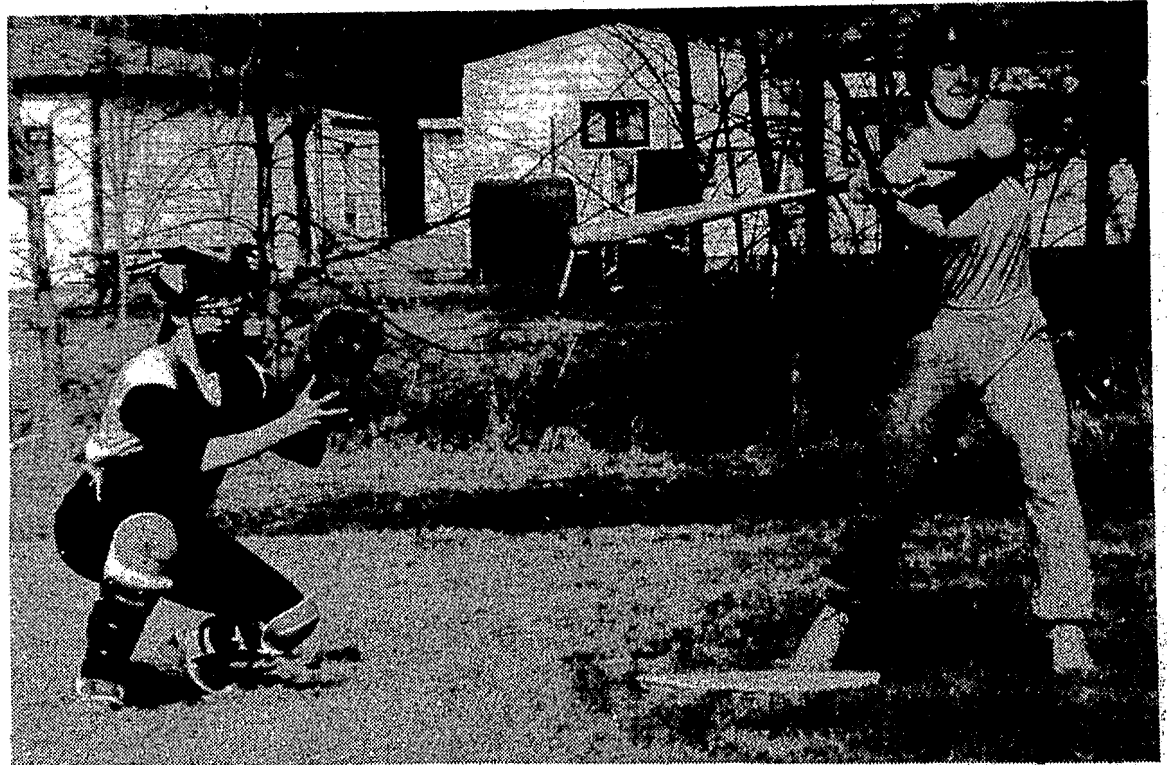

"I'll apply at Michigan, just as I'll apply at a lot of places," came the reply. "To this point, Tim has been my player and I've been his coach—but no longer. We're going our own ways, and there's nothing saying those two paths have to converge."

Nustad was even more reticent when pressed for details afterwards.

"If I were a betting man, I'd say I'll probably be back at Clarkston High School next season," he said.

But he's keeping his options open. Nustad was quick to add. (A prediction: eight months from now the Clarkston High School 1980-81 basketball season will begin play. A guy with glasses and a mustache will be their coach.) Nustad, by the way, has neither.

CHS trackmen edged by Catholic Central

The CHS boys track and field team was giving that little extra effort last week, taking tough Catholic Central right to the wire in the final event before bowing 67-65.

By Al Zawacky

The Clarkston High School boys' track team went right down to the wire in their meet with Catholic Central last week, but when the dust had settled the Wolves found themselves on the short end of a 67-65 final.

The last event was the mile relay, which Clarkston lost by only .2 second.

Highlighting the meet was a school record set by junior Steve Wyckoff, who cleared 6-5 in the high jump.

Other first-place winners for the Wolves were Paul Brown in the discus (109), Mike Ulasich in the 100 (10.9) and Tom Hecker in the pole vault (11-9).

Winning the 440 and 880 for Clarkston were Mark Patterson, Joe Partlo, Steve Neff, Greg Wilson and Ulasich.

Colleges seeking Haddad, Sheldon

Tim McCormick isn't the only Wolfpack alumnus with aspirations of playing college basketball this winter.

Clarkston coach Gary Nustad said senior guards Ed Haddad and John Sheldon have both been contacted by numerous colleges.

"Haddad has talked with the University of Chicago and Sheldon may be headed for the Air Force Academy," Nustad said.

Scott McKoin, a junior who averaged 12 points a game this past season for the Wolfpack, will probably also be a basketball prospect following his senior year, Nustad added.

Recreation for handicapped

Handicapped persons of all ages are invited to participate in "Super Saturday" recreational activities at Waterford Oaks County Park April 12.

From 1 to 4 p.m. mentally and physically impaired Oakland County and metropolitan Detroit residents can roller skate, play tennis, horseshoes or shuffleboard at the new Waterford Oaks Tennis Complex.

Other games and activities will also be available through the Oakland County Parks mobile recreation units.

"Everything the handicapped will need for a day of fun is provided at the park," says Beth Hoffman, therapeutic recreation coordinator with the Pontiac

Parks and Recreation Department.

"However, they should wear tennis shoes," she says.

Fifty cents per person allows all ages admission to "Super Saturday."

The event is sponsored by Pontiac Parks and Recreation, the Northwest Therapeutic Recreation Association and the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission. Since most of the events take place outdoors, "Super Saturday" will be cancelled in the event of inclement weather.

Participants should phone Hoffman at 857-7780 to pre-register. Admission can be paid the day of the event.

Waterford Oaks County Park is located on Scott Lake Road in Waterford Township.

She's a natural

Horse lover wins two show titles

By Al Zawacky

Julie Hawke's affection for horses is a natural.

"The first word I spoke was 'horse,'" she says with a grin. "My sister always liked horses, and I guess it rubbed off on me. I've liked them as long as I can remember."

Still, she was a little surprised to come away from the recent Bloomfield Open Horse Show with two first-place ribbons.

Julie, who lives on 5646 Hummingbird, Independence Township and is a junior at Clarkston High School, took first in the intermediate junior hunter-overfences class and also won the introductory reserve championship at the show, held March 29 and 30.

"It was a shock," Julie says of her winnings. "There were 35 other contestants in my class, many of whom have been showing a long time. And a year ago at this time, I'd never jumped a horse at all."

She and her horse "Shadowfax" won the first-place ribbon on their jumping ability, while the reserve championship is a sort of runner-up award in general categories, she explains.

Although Julie has liked horses for a long time, it wasn't until two years ago that she first owned one. The horse she currently owns has been hers less than a year.

She takes her riding seriously, and notes there's nothing easy to being a good rider.

"You have to learn your horse," Julie says. "It takes a lot of balance and muscle as well."

"You have to know what signals to use, and jumping a horse is even more difficult. You've got to know at what spot to begin the jump, and seeing that spot takes practice and experience. I'm just beginning to learn."

In the future, she plans to compete in new shows with eventual goals of winning a class A championship and participating in the national horsemanship championship at Madison Square Garden, New York.

She's also thinking about going to veterinarian school after she graduates from high school.

"I'd like to work with horses and show them for the rest of my life," she says.

Julie Hawke proudly displays the ribbons and silver cup she won recently at the Bloomfield Open Hunt Club Winter Horse Show.

McCormick to play in east-west classic

Clarkston's Tim McCormick will find himself in some elite company this Saturday when he travels to Oakland, California to compete in the fourth annual McDonald's All-American Basketball Game.

The event brings together the top 24 high school players in the country, selected by a panel of experts including former UCLA head coach John Wooden.

Past McDonald's All-Americans include Ervin "Magic" Johnson, Gene Banks, Sam Bowie, Ralph Samson and Jeff Ruland.

The players will compete against each other in an east vs. west format.

Highlights of the game will be televised on NBC's "Sports World" program Sunday April 13.

Proceeds from the game will be donated by local McDonald's Restaurants to the Northern California-Northern Nevada Ronald McDonald House in Palo Alto, California.

The Ronald McDonald House is a home-away-from-home for parents of children being treated for serious illnesses at Children's Hospital at California's Stanford University.

Past McDonald's All-American Basketball Games have raised more than $55,000 for various charities.

'Wolfpack Fever' banquet salutes Clarkston's best

By Al Zawacky

The Pontiac Silverdome's "Main Event" restaurant belonged to the Clarkston High School basketball team last week--as did the hearts of 560 people gathered there to pay tribute to the most successful cagers in Clarkston's history.

Sponsored by the Clarkston Rotary Club, "Wolfpack Fever Night" was originally the idea of Clarkston resident and avid Wolfpack fan Lew Wint, who opened the ceremonies at the event.

"Everything just went super," Wint said. "There was no expense spared--we wanted this thing done right."

Besides enjoying a chicken and rice dinner, the players were given plaques and team photographs, while parents were presented with color framed photos of their son in action.

Also recognized at the banquet were the efforts of the cheerleaders, coaches, scouts and team manager. Channel 7 sportscaster Dave Diles was the guest speaker, and government resolutions saluting the Wolfpack were read by State Senator Kerry Kammer, State Representative Claude Trim, Independence Township Supervisor Whitey Tower and Clarkston Village Clerk Bruce Rogers.

The players seemed overwhelmed by the show of community affection. "It was great--something we'll remember for the rest of our lives," said Tim McCormick. "It showed us what kind of town we have here."

Teammate Scott McKoin agreed. "It was a great way to finish off the season. I'll never forget it."

Another highlight of the evening was the retirement of McCormick's no. 40 jersey, only the second player in school history to be so honored. Dan Fife, who was on hand to help pass out the plaques to the players, was the other.

"It was just a perfect evening," Wint said. "We started out with the rhythmic applause to welcome the players, and then Jerry Rowland played the national anthem, just like it's done at the games."

"Dave Dials did an absolutely outstanding job speaking--he told the boys that they had earned something that could never be taken away from them, something they could always look back on and feel proud of."

Also present and helping to make the evening a success were CHS Principal Dom Mauti, Rotary Club President Del Lohff, School Superintendent Mil Mason, CHS Athletic Director Paul Tungate, Board of Education Trustee Eric Reickel, John Priebe and Ken Winship.

"Vicci Hamilton, Kathy Patterson and my wife Diane did the majority of the work drumming up sponsors," Wint said. "We established a flat rate of $100 for sponsorship and still had a really good response from community businesses, even with the state of the economy being what it is."

Wint said Michigan coach Bill Frieder was on hand with his wife, who remarked that the evening "put our (U of M's) basketball banquet to shame."

"Judd Heathcote (MSU head basketball coach) said the same thing--this was one of the best banquets he's ever seen," Wint said.

People care in this community--I think we're living in the best community anywhere. Not many people would stand in the cold like our people did in East Lansing to wait for the team after a defeat.

"And we decided to go through with this thing before the playoffs ever started. We were planning on doing this even if they had lost in the districts, the regionals, whatever."

"We were going to hold it regardless because we were proud of them."

Independence businesses offer gripe hot lines

By Pat Braunagei

It's not just business people who can benefit from the Business Association of Independence Township—their customers can take advantage of the organization to air complaints they may have.

Customers of township businesses who feel they have been ripped off or are unhappy with the service they got along with a sale can complain to BAIT's grievance committee.

It's a little-used, and perhaps little-known, function of the association, according to BAIT president Tom Ritter.

"It's like a clearing panel for problems that may arise within the association or problems citizens may have with members," Ritter said.

The co-chairmen of the grievance committee are Harvey Kraft of Waterford Hill Greenhouse and Kim Beattie of Moon Valley Rustic Furniture Co.

Kraft's business telephone number is 623-0081 and Beattie's is 625-3322.

"I think this is one thing that could make us stronger," Ritter said.

Ritter is attempting not only to attract the public to the organization, but to get more business people active in it.

Recent efforts in the latter area have been relatively successful.

More than 100 members and guests attended the association's winter social, one of two such events held annually. There also are two other general membership meetings held during the year.

Ritter said he thinks the association's roster of 78 member businesses has the township "pretty well covered."

"I don't know that there are more than 110 to pull from," he commented.

Now the aim is to get the membership more involved.

The group got its start in 1974 when Independence Township officials started drafting a comprehensive sign ordinance. Some members of the business community decided they had better band together to let their feelings on signs be known.

"In the turmoil of all that was going on, birth was given to the business association," Ritter said.

Kraft was the organization's charter president.

Since the sign controversy quieted down, there have been some other issues, but none of a scope to unite the entire business community.

Still, the group's board of directors deals with community- and statewide issues at its monthly meeting, which is open to all members.

For instance, the board's March agenda included discussion of the 13 percent increase in property tax assessments and the subway proposed for Detroit.

The board planned to take a position on the subway at its April meeting, to be held at noon on April 15 at Ritter's Farm Market.

Ritter admits the organization has taken few stands on issues.

It boils down to a lack of consensus. Business people simply are not of one mind when it comes to politics or programs affecting them in the community.

So BAIT has evolved into less a lobbying group than a means of communicating information.

It's taking a broader approach to the community, Ritter said. Newsletters and telephone networks are important in establishing and maintaining internal communication.

"The organization is going to be no stronger than our ability to communicate what's going on," Ritter said.

He personally finds attending the association's meetings a good way to keep in touch with other business people.

"It's very satisfying," Ritter said. "I usually find out I'm not the only guy in the world with a problem. Although the problems may not be identical, they're similar."

"And we do solve problems," he noted, calling BAIT "a clearing house for the ills of business as well as for good times."

In Independence, there's more of a chance for unity because everyone knows everyone else, he said.

"If we can have fun and maintain our credibility, it's a good mix," he said.

Ownership change

New ownership of Spring Lake Country Club is now official.

Purchase agreement papers were finalized April 2 following over a year of complications with the agreement and transfers, said Dan Fife, part owner and manager of the club located on Maybee Road, Independence Township.

The three other general partners are Don Short, co-owner of Haupt Pontiac, Gordon Spelbring and Hugh Rose, a fellow 1967 Clarkston High School graduate.

Three other long-time friend of Fife are also limited partners in the club.

They are John Getzan, Richard Bass and Tom Woodard.

Village businesses hire ad firm

Shops seek sales boosters

By Marilyn Trumper

Serious about generating business in the village, the Clarkston Business Association has hired an advertising firm to bring more shoppers to the downtown area.

Retail Market Group of Southfield is going to program, organize and promote campaigns to increase business through a variety of channels.

"We have not made definite plans yet," said Carol Eberhardt, president of the business association. "We will have a yearly plan outlining special sales, events and holidays to determine the best type of advertising that should be used for each event."

According to Eberhardt, a consultant will decide if newspaper, radio, or television advertising is the best way to go.

"He has already helped us with merchandising information, and will tell us the best time to purchase stock for our stores," she said. "He is also going to help each business independently with displays and more promotions."

Eberhardt wants the people of the community, and businesses that have not yet joined to know the business association is a professional group, and they plan to stay that way.

Whether it was disinterest, lack of organization or both, Eberhardt said, the two former business associations collapsed.

"The ideas, enthusiasm and revival of the spirit makes me feel it is going to work this time," she said.

The business association was revived early in February through Eberhardt's initiative. She sent letters to all the businesses in the village requesting they attend the first meeting.

"At the first meeting we had 11 people show up," she said. "Attendance has increased, and includes most of the businesses in the village and some real estate companies. At the last meeting we had 30 people."

There were three main reasons to revive and organize the business association, Eberhardt said.

"Gearing up for the annual Spring Stroll last year, I spent a lot of money for advertising for an event that never really took place," she said. "The Spring Stroll should have been well planned by a business association, with events and programs, but it was not."

With new businesses in town not here during the organization of the first two associations Eberhardt felt the opportunity to form a new group had never been better, she said.

"It was essential that all the businesses ban together, because in numbers you get things done," she said.

Together the businesses in the village can share advertising space and costs, and offer a compact presentation of their wares, Eberhardt said.

"With all of the businesses chipping in, we can afford to pay for electronic media advertising," she said.

"My third reason for the revival of the association was to get all the business people in town to know each other," she said. "This way we can direct customers to the businesses in town that have what they are looking for."

With the formation of the association, Eberhardt said the exchange of information has been astounding.

"People are excited and they are showing a real interest in the business district," she said.

The association is in the process of writing its constitution and by-laws, and they have filed necessary papers to incorporate.

For information on the Clarkston Business Association, contact Carol Eberhardt, owner of One More Time, 6 N. Main, Clarkston. The phone number is 625-1166.

Widowed: Coping together in new program

Group offers sources for dealing with problems following the death of a spouse

By Marilyn Trummer

In a nutshell, advice and trust are the two things Diane and Lew Wint are offering to widows and widowers.

Drawing on 21 years of experience in the funeral home business, the Wints felt there was a need for a program dealing with being widowed, so they formed "Widowed Coping Together."

"Widowed people came to us and asked if they could talk to other widowed people," Diane said. "They wanted to talk and relate to people who had been in the same situation they were in."

Following programs adopted by similar organizations, they sent out letters, and made follow-up calls, to widows and widowers inviting them to attend the first meeting in March.

Prior to this, the Wints formed a core group consisting of seven women and one man, who had been through the loss of a spouse.

Knowing there are inherent problems for widowed people, and following suggestions from members during the first meeting, the Wints hired a lecturer to discuss finances and investing.

During the second meeting Wednesday evening, Jack Noonan, a stock broker involved in financial and estate planning discussed finances for widowed people.

"There is a certain amount of fear in handling finances," Noonan said, "but you will slowly overcome those anxieties the longer you do it."

He told his audience they knew a lot more than they thought about money and to let common sense be their guide.

Noonan explained the fundamentals of solid investments which brought a high rate of return and other alternatives to savings accounts.

Many took notes and reviewed the outline Noonan referred to throughout his lecture.

But most of all, the audience listened.

It was quiet, with little fussing or rattling of papers. The widowed wanted to learn how to manage their money, and they sat in rapt attention.

When Noonan discussed the probating of wills in trust, members looked at one another and rolled their eyes. They too had been through it.

One widow said, "You are so insecure as to who to trust. Fifty thousand people are telling you what to do. I want good advice, and I don't know where to turn to get it. I know all of us have gone through the same thing."

"That is what is important about this organization," Diane said. "You learn from the experiences of others. Not just emotionally, but in things like finance too."

Projected speakers for the organization, suggested by members include attorneys, to answer legal questions; auto mechanics, to explain how to do your automobile work; child psychologists to talk about raising a child alone; and a chef, to teach cooking for one.

"The important thing to remember," Diane said, "is that everyone who is widowed, men and women, are welcome. The loss of a spouse does not have to be recent."

According to Diane, some women in the group have come following a death of seven years,

"which just goes to show that there is a need for this type of organization."

There are 40 members in the group, ranging in age from 30-70 years-old.

The core group should relate to a wide variety of people according to Lew.

"They vary in age, the number of children they have, the length of their loss, and the type of deaths their spouses had," he said.

"Widowed Coping Together" uses a hot-line support system, and core group members will give newcomers a ride to their first meeting.

"Widowed Coping Together" meets the first Wednesday of every month, from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. in the Clarkston High School Library.

Anyone requesting more information can call Lew or Diane Wint at the Lewis E. Wint Funeral Home, 625-5231.

No burning issue

Two dozen voters don't make a quorum, the Clarkston Village Council has decided.

In a strictly advisory question on the March 10 village ballot, the council asked voters if they wanted an ordinance passed against burning leaves in the village.

There was no competition for any of the village positions on the ballot, and voter turnout was light.

Of the 45 votes cast, 24 favored the anti-burning code and 21 did not.

The council decided March 24 the advisory vote was not strong enough to warrant official action. So five of the council members passed a motion to take no action, with Trustee Ruth Basinger dissenting. Trustee James Schultz was absent.

VFW organizing

The Clarkston area has been branded a "thriving and upcoming" community by the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) organization and steps toward forming a local VFW branch are underway.

"We felt it was a growing community, there was enough population and there were enough veterans to sustain a post," said VFW state officer Jim Theriault of Ferndale.

Several organizational meetings have been held under Theriault's direction and the group is now planning to meet at Clarkston High School beginning April 16 until a more permanent meeting site is chosen.

In order to be a member of a VFW post, applicants must have served outside of the United States in a combat zone while a member of the US armed forces. Theriault said, and they must hold a campaign medal or service medal.

Prospective members should bring discharge papers or Department of Defense form 214 to their first meeting.

Once 25 members have been signed up, the post can be chartered.

There are now five people working as a committee and four new members for the prospective VFW post, he said.

The meeting on Wednesday April 16, at CHS is to begin at 7:30 p.m. The school is located at 6595 Middle Lake, Independence Township.

For more information, call Charles Waldera at 628-1868 or Theriault (pronounced Terrio) at 543-1254 in Ferndale.

Dinner-theater

The Neil Simon comedy, "Last of the Red Hot Lovers," kicks off a new concept at Spring Lake Country Club next week--north Oakland County's first dinner theater.

Players from the Brandon S.T.A.G.E. Community Theatre are to present the show. Dinner is to be served at 6 p.m. with curtain time at 8 p.m. on the next five Sundays--April 13, 20, 27 and May 4 and 11.

Tickets are $25 a couple and $12.50 for singles. Call Spring Lake Country Club at 625-3731 to make reservations.

The club is located at 6060 Maybee, Independence Township.

Dawn Renae made a surprise entrance into the Winslow household, late March. Looking at their new daughter, the Winslows admit they both wanted a girl, but that it did not really matter, as long as the baby had 10 fingers and toes.

Baby makes grand entrance

By Marilyn Trumper

Walter Winslow kept saying, "I think maybe you are in labor."

His wife Alice kept answering, "No, I just have a bellyache."

Within the hour, Shawn Renae, weighing 7 pounds, was born at home on Saturday, March 28, on the hallway floor. "I had been up for about two hours with a bad stomach ache," Alice, 34, said. "I called the doctor, and he prescribed Kepectate, so did my sister-in-law a nurse. I did not have any pains or contractions, and the baby was not due until April 1, so I did not think I was in labor," she said.

Walter, 36, was concerned and he said he was going to take her to the hospital.

"I went out to start the truck, and decided it would be better to call an ambulance, so I did," he said.

Fleet Ambulance Service was called, and they in turn notified Independence Township Fire Department. The two services work together on calls, but the fire department reached the Winslows home on Sashabaw Road, Independence Township, first.

"When the fire department arrived," Alice said, "the first thing they said was, 'Get this girl down on the floor.'"

"I don't remember any pain, I didn't feel anything," she said. "I didn't have time to think, I just realized, 'Here she comes.'"

Alice and the couple's first child were taken to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac. Both are now home and doing well.

Upon reflection, Walter said, "It is a good thing I was raised on a farm in Flushing, and saw a lot of live births. Otherwise, I would have been all shook up."

Car poolers face spring mud

But there's light at end of tunnel with proposed park-and-ride lot

By Marilyn Trumper

Getting stuck in the mud is not one of the advantages of being a park-and-ride car pooler, but it is one of the consequences.

Several have succumbed to the mud at the vacant lot utilized for parking on Sashabaw Road near the I-75 exit and entrance ramps, according to Edward Roy, whose father owns the Roy Brothers Standard Service station across the street.

"Thursday three cars were stuck in the mud, but they called someone with a four-wheel drive to pull them out, or got out of their car and started shoveling," Roy said.

The owner of the station, John Roy, said five years ago, there were about 15 cars parked there daily.

"Now, there are 30," he said. "As the price of the fuel has doubled, so have the number of cars in that lot."

Car poolers have scattered across Independence Township utilizing any empty land or lots at their own discretion.

"We have had problems with parking in the township office parking lot," said Supervisor Whitey Tower. "We have had to ask car-poolers to leave in the past but it is not as bad anymore. We have had as many as eight or nine cars parked in the lot with no room for employees to park."

Now that spring has sprung, parking at the American Legion Post on Ortonville Road is not a problem.

"Poolers can park all the way in the back of the post now that there is no snow," said Commander Dave Froling. "People used to park up against the building in the winter and we would have to ask them to move because different groups utilizing the building should have those spaces.

"Now there are no problems, we average 38-40 cars a day," Froling said. "There may come a time when we will have to limit the parking spaces on a first-come, first-serve basis."

One local church has offered its lot for park-and-ride drivers, but foresees problems in the immediate future and may have to limit the number of cars parking in the lot, according to the pastor.

For carpoolers, there is one small light at the end of the tunnel.

Construction has begun for the 28 space park-and-ride lot located on Ortonville Road just south of I-75, but subcontractors on the project cannot specify a completion date, according to Tower.

"Three weeks ago workers staked out the site, and stripped the sod," Tower said. "They are putting in the drain tiles now."

The lot is being built by the State Highway Department, but the township will pay for the installation of lighting.

Detroit Edison is to install two 100-watt street lights which are to cost the township $264 a year.

The lot is to have a crushed rock surface and an encircling fence.

'Energy efficiency, ideal setting make 'utopia'

Research office finds harmonious setting across from Pine Knob

By Kathy Greenfield

There are few who would consider a location almost directly across from the busy Pine Knob Music Theatre entrance quiet and peaceful.

But for Gary Kohs, owner of Marketing Corp. of America, the 10-acre site fits his description of utopia.

Construction of his energy-efficient marketing research building is to begin this spring. All goes as planned, it will be completed by September.

Kohs began his quest to find a site for his business over two-and-a-half years ago.

"We didn't set out to come to Independence Township," he said. "We were kind of looking for utopia and utopia was something near the expressway and away from everything."

"We were looking for a piece of land that would suit the kind of building we wanted to build," he said. "We worked with eight or nine realtors all over the northern suburban area."

On one property hunt, Kohs rejected some acreage in Independence Township, but drove by the site he was to purchase on Sashabaw Road.

He knew it was what he wanted, but the real estate salesperson disagreed and told him it would be impossible to buy.

"I was interested, because it was two-tenths of a mile off the freeway (I-75) and it was across the street from Pine Knob," he said. "You want to tell someone you're across the street from Pine Knob rather than on Sashabaw Road. Everybody knows where Pine Knob is."

Kohs set off on his own to check Oakland County deed records that eventually led to finding the property owners.

"It took me a year to convince them to sell," he said.

The long process of rezoning the property from residential to research office was begun, and the township established the new zoning classification because of Kohs' plans.

The building is to take up 1.3 acres of the 10-acre site.

As few trees and plants as possible are to be removed in the building process.

"We're just kind of dropping this building in the middle of the woods," Kohs said. "It's a fantasy come true."

Kohs' architect is Adam Karibian of Adam Karibian and Associates of Detroit.

"You have to take your hat off to Gary," said Karibian. "He knew what he was after."

The 11,000-square-foot structure is to be constructed mainly of redwood, brick and triple-pane glass.

One side of the building will be mainly glass and it will be built into a hill.

A continuous air return at the upper part of the large glass surface is to draw off air warmed by the sun and recirculate it through the building using a furnace fan.

"It's an exciting little building," said Karibian. "The emphasis upon conserving energy is probably the most spectacular thing."

Kohs' business serves mostly automotive firms in marketing consulting.

He and his four staff members are now involved in projects for the Ford Motor Co., Ashland Oil Co. and Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., he said.

Services include advertising and promotion of products and full-size prototypes of automobile designs are included at times.

"We're an idea center, that's really what it amounts to," he explained.

Kohs plans to keep the size of his company small, he said, and the move was more to create a better working atmosphere than to increase business.

"If you've got to work, you may as well work in close to perfect surroundings," he said.

To say Kohs is enthusiastic about the building location is putting it mildly.

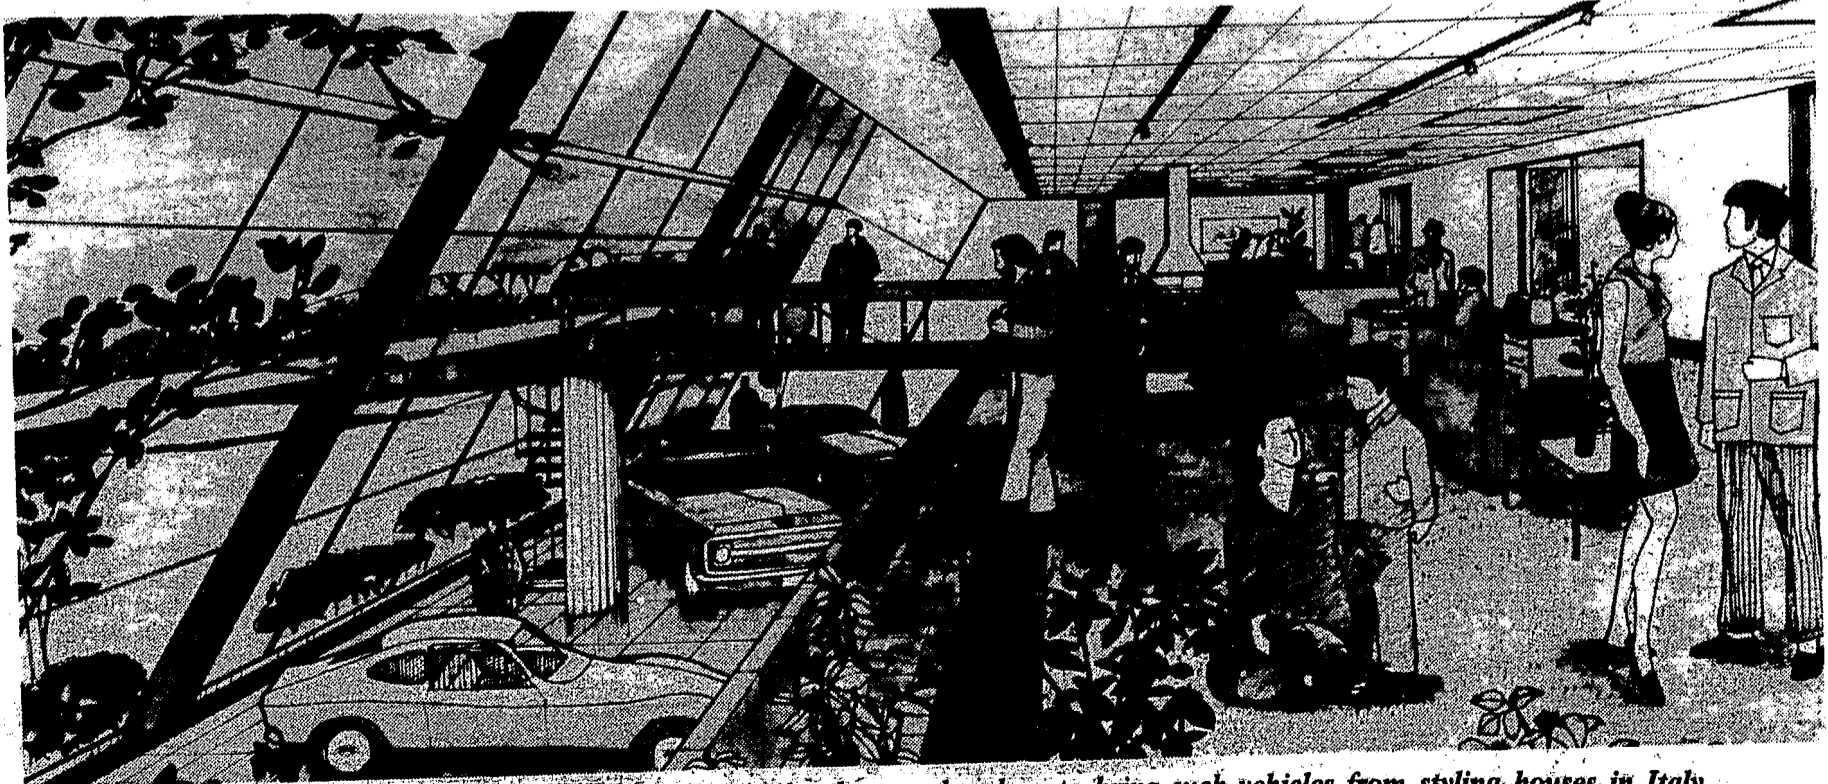

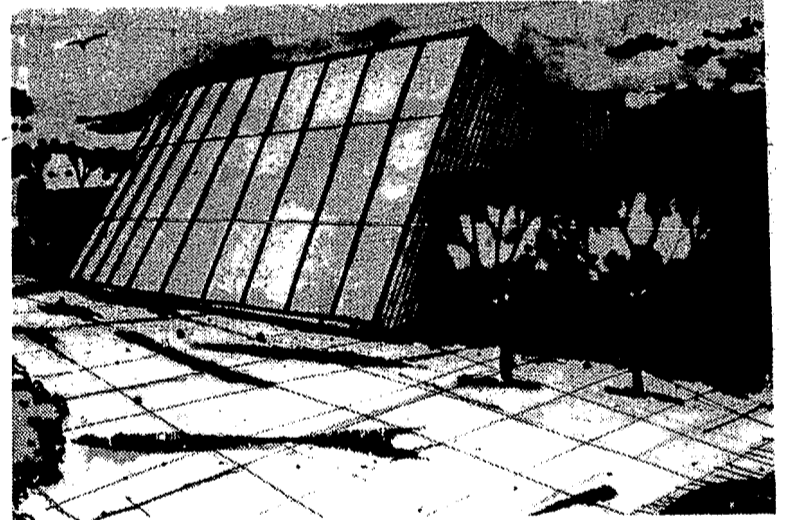

"It's so neat out there, I can't believe it," he said. "You feel like you're in another world—it's fantastic."

All 18 members of the CHS Color Guard travelled to the event. They gathered here before marching into the coliseum in Cape Cod, Mass.

The Clarkston High School Color Guard placed a proud 21st in Class A competition at the Winter Guard Olympics in Cape Cod, Mass., March 28. The CHS group was the only guard representing Michigan in the competition that included 67 units from the United States and Canada. Steve Ragatz, father of one of the CHS guard members, captured in his photographs some of the tension and excitement at the event.

The gun held by the judge goes off and the guard begins its routine.

Country Living

by Al Zawacky

Clarkston High School has been the focal point of Larry and Kathy Mahrle's lives together. Not only do both of them teach and coach athletics there, but the couple first met at the school four years ago.

Mahrles find coaching rewarding

"Opposites attract," according to an old adage—but in the case of Independence Township couple Larry and Kathy Mahrle, the reverse seems to have been true.

Not only are the Mahrles both teachers at Clarkston High School, but they both coach athletics at the school as well.

Kathy teaches English and coaches varsity girls softball, while Larry teaches American History and Government and coaches junior varsity boys basketball.

Noting the life of a coach can be a bit hectic and demanding time-wise, the couple said their similar interests can sometimes put a crimp on the time they spend together.

"You should have seen it three weeks ago," Kathy said. "Softball practice had already started indoors, and Larry was busy with the basketball tournaments. (Larry also serves as assistant varsity coach.)

"People were always calling about tickets or something—our phone rang constantly. We didn't see each other during school either—our rooms are on opposite sides of the building," she added.

"I think the only time we saw each other all day was in the gym. Basketball practice would get over and then our practice would start."

Larry nodded. "We'd see each other on Sunday and say, 'Well, see you next week,'" he joked.

Larry pointed out that being a coach is more than a seasonal obligation. "There's a f'w a y s something to do," he said. "In the summer, I'll be busy with basketball camp."

When asked why they go through the long hours required to be a successful coach, Larry disappeared into another room of their home and came back moments later with an envelope.

"I found this in my mailbox at school the other day," he said, opening the envelope and pulling out a small thank you card.

Inside, a hand-written message said: "I think you're one of the best coaches I've ever had in any sport. Thanks for having me on the team."

It was signed by a member of Larry's '79-80 JV squad.

"It's things like this that make the whole thing worthwhile," Larry said. "I really believe that athletics helps prepare kids for the future. The greatest satisfaction any coach can have is to see one of his players benefit from something he taught him and succeed later on in life."

Kathy voiced similar sentiments. "I enjoy sports a lot and enjoy teaching young people—there's a lot of satisfaction in seeing them learn and improve," she said.

"Some of my players may have played softball all their lives without ever really understanding some of the fine points of the game. It's a thrill to see them execute, say a cut off play, when they may have started the season not even sure what it was."

The Mahrles met four years ago right at Clarkston High School when Larry transferred from Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes. Their first date was at the wedding of another school coach—varsity basketball coach Gary Nustad.

"Gary and I both came to Clarkston at the same time four years ago," Larry explained. "He sent me an invitation to his wedding, and I asked Kathy if she'd like to go with me."

The Mahrles were married in June 1978 and currently live not far from the high school with their dog Sadie, a golden retriever.

They invariably attend each other's games, and savor whatever free time they can spend together during their respective seasons.

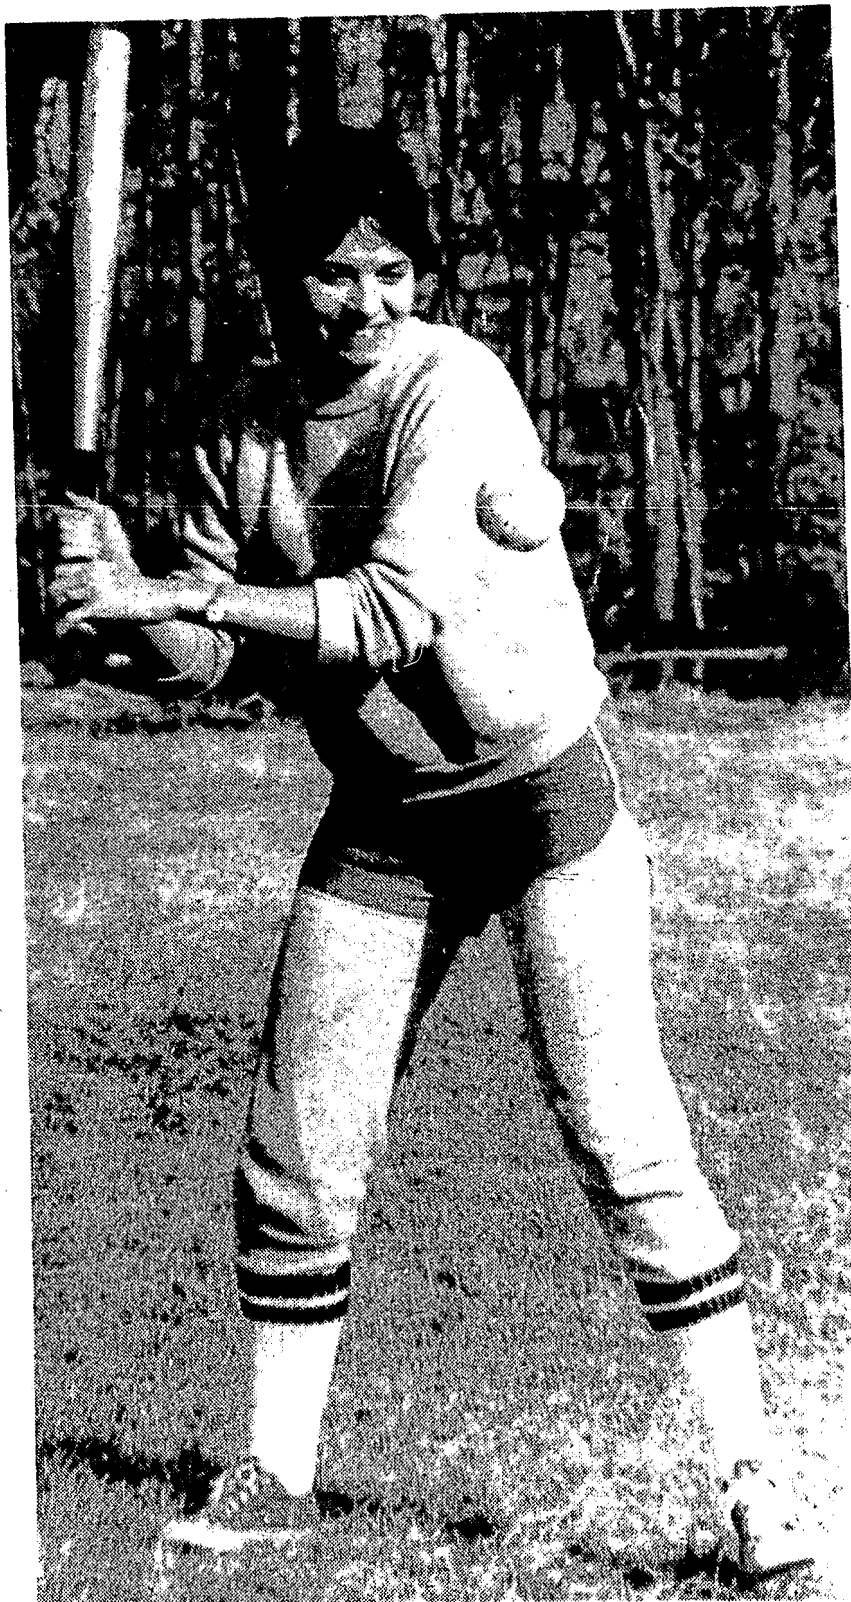

"Just having a quiet meal together is appreciated," Kathy said. "In addition to all the time we spend as coaches, we're teachers first," Larry added.

"No matter how late a Tuesday night game kept you out the night before, you've still got to be at work the same time as everybody else the next morning."

The Mahrles also like to travel, and their most recent trip again highlights their affections for athletics.

"We went to Cooperstown," Larry said.

Cooperstown, New York is the home of the Baseball Hall of Fame.

The coach: Kathy bangs out a few hits during fielding practice.

New diabetics' chapter

The Juvenile Diabetes Foundation is attempting to establish an area chapter for diabetics through the efforts of Candy Margetson.

Members of the 9-year-old foundation approached her with the idea of forming a local chapter, because it was so desperately needed, said Margetson, an Independence Township resident.

Margetson said the foundation is the best organization available to educate people about juvenile diabetes.

"Anyone who wanted information or help for juvenile diabetes had to drive to Lathrup Village," she said. "With a local chapter, we can save people from having to travel from as far north as Flint or into Southfield."

"We can talk to you about where to go for medical help, and counsel those who just need someone to talk to," she said.

"I need to know where and who these people are who are having trouble coping with the disease before I can help them," she said.

Juvenile diabetes afflicts persons of all ages, and they must take insulin shots to remain alive.

The Juvenile Diabetes Foundation is sponsoring a fund drive in May to raise money for scientific research to find a cure for the disease.

For more information call Candy Margetson, at 625-9255.

Goodies go fast at 'Jaws of Life' bake sale

Spaghetti dinner April 18

It didn't take long for firefighters' wives to sellout their baked goods at the Springfield Township "Jaws of Life" bake sale last Saturday.

Beginning at 9 a.m. at the fire station in Davisburg, the wide selection of cakes and cookies were sold out shortly after 11 a.m.

The bake sale was just one of a series of fund raisers aimed at raising money necessary to purchase a "Jaws of Life." The device is able to save accident victims by ripping open vehicles to rescue passengers trapped inside.

The success of the bake sale is an indication of community support, said several of the Springfield firefighters' wives who organized the fund raiser. "We still have a long way to go with the money, but everybody in the community is really anxious to get one. Everybody's together on this," said Maureen Kirven.

"They're awfully expensive, but really neat," added Elaine Wilburn. "We really do need one—it's getting to the point that we have more medical runs than fires in the township," said Blanche Barber.

Another fund raiser planned in a spaghetti dinner on Friday, April 18. Firefighters and their wives will serve up spaghetti, salad and garlic bread at Davisburg United Methodist Church, 803 Broadway, Springfield Township, from 4:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Tickets will be on sale at the door at a cost of $3 for adults and $1.50 for children 12 and under.

Student helps handicapped

David Missine of Springfield Township is using his love of skiing to help handicapped students overcome their disabilities.

Missine, a junior at Michigan State University, is a volunteer in a therapeutic recreation program for handicapped students from the Michigan School for the Blind (MSB) in Lansing.

Each Wednesday from December through March, MSU students and other volunteers assist 46 handicapped children and young adults, ages 7 to 26, in learning downhill and cross country skiing.

Winter sports are important to the handicapped students, said Debra Stuart, therapeutic recreation director at MSB, because of the lack of activities for them during the cold weather. Participation in sports can help them learn to enjoy the winter months, she said, and, if their families ski, can provide them with an activity the whole family can enjoy.

The techniques used in teaching the students to ski are based on those used in two blind skiing programs, BOLD (Blind Outdoor Leisure Development), a downhill program, and Ski for Light, a cross country program.

Blind students are not the only ones taking part in the MSB ski program. Students with other handicaps also participate.

Although an MSB therapeutic recreation representative is present at each ski outing, it is the volunteers who really make the program available to the students, Stuart said.

The technique used in downhill skiing is a certified technique developed by French ski champion Jean Eymere, the founder of BOLD, who was blinded by sugar diabetes.

The student holds on to the middle of a balance pole while two volunteers, one at either end of the pole, guide him down the slope. As the student's body awareness and coordination improve, one volunteer will hold on to the pole and eventually the student will ski down the slope on his own, aided by physical or verbal directions from one of the volunteers.

For cross country skiing, each student is paired with a volunteer who instructs him in the basics of cross country skiing and directs him through the course.

The volunteer-student relationship has a reciprocal effect in that each is learning from the other, Stuart said.

"The volunteers are able to see improvements in the students' agility, confidence, self-image and social awareness," she said. "It is a chance for the volunteers to make a difference for someone else."

Missine, majoring in social science at MSU, is the son of Stefanie Buk of 4200 Dogwood, Springfield Township.

Coping with kids

Parents shouldn't expect thanks

"Kids these days! They don't appreciate anything you do for them."

That's a familiar refrain. We hear it all the time. And we suspect its been said by parents for hundreds of years. And it is probably a true statement.

If parents expect to be paid back for all the sacrifices they have made and will make during the life of their children, they will reap only frustration.

Bringing children into this world and raising them properly is a bad contract.

One party to this agreement-- "I'll be a good parent, see to it that you get all the necessities and a lot of extras and give you love, and work hard and make sacrifices and on your part you thank me and be eternally grateful"--was not present when the contract was made.

No child was ever allowed to negotiate the terms of this bargain before it was settled. To many parents, it may seem obviously in the child's favor.

And so probably it is.

If a parent needs appreciation and a lot of return on the investment they make, it may be better to invest in stocks or bonds than children.

Our children perhaps can never really appreciate how difficult it is to be a parent, until they themselves have children. Anyone who "lives for" their children will die a little inside out of a sense of martyrdom.

So what are the rewards of raising children if they aren't going to thank us?

The rewards are that we get to watch them grow and develop during their early years.

We get to watch them make mistakes, to learn and to develop into individuals.

Individuals capable of contributing something positive to the world, capable of being independent, and capable of raising their own family.

Also, maybe, if we were friendly and loving to them, they will be able to help us when we are in need, although they should have been raised to have their own life and family and we ourselves should plan for our own old age and infirmities.

We can expect that maybe they will want to keep a relationship with us, one that will be based on mutual attraction and respect and from which both of us, until our death, draw something beneficial and healthy.

The real pride in having children should come from watching them grow up, not from the thanks they give us.

Hopefully, we will be able to thank ourselves that we were fortunate enough to bring children into the world who, instead of thanking us for making sacrifices in their behalf, made our universe a better place to live.

Spaying reaps multitudes of benefits

Question: Should I have my dog spayed? I have heard that the dog will be unhappy and might become obese.

Answer: Domestic dogs and cats mature sexually far more rapidly than their counterparts in the wild.

At a time when man was developing new characteristics, this was considered a plus in the genetic configuration. Today, when there is an immense overpopulation of dogs and cats, it becomes necessary to help animals control their members as part of our human stewardship.

Actually, a dog or cat is more peaceful, less confused and less frustrated when it does not have to contend with the territorial and aggressions the sexual chemistry brings about.

There are health benefits. Uterine cancer and infection are eliminated. A weight problem does not occur with proper diet and exercise.

The ideal time for a dog to be spayed is just before or just after the first heat period.

This occurs usually between six and 12 months of age. As you consider owning a dog or you are already owned by one, you must figure this cost into the care and feeding plan.

We simply must eliminate "free mixed breed puppies" that all too often end up the victims of human neglect and disinterest and suffer from not only lack of attention and companionship, but from lack of adequate food, exercise, and veterinary care! Often they are abandoned and left to fend for themselves becoming a health hazard or a neighborhood nuisance. Or they end up getting destroyed at some animal shelter.

We simply must address this problem so that future generations can have the privilege of dog ownership.

It is the surplus animal, the uncared-for animal, using stringent legislation forbidding dogs, when really the fault lies with the person who allows backyard breeding to occur and does not assume his responsibility in containing his dog.

Male dogs also can be neutered to remove the frustration of seeking females in heat.

Dr. Michael Fox, animal behaviorist, says, "If I were a kitten or puppy, I would ask you to take me to the spay/neuter clinic tomorrow!" He says the animal is more peaceful, less confused, and frustrated.

The male cat will not spray, and will not have such a strong odor. The male dog's cancer risk will be reduced.

We have modified our own sexuality to adapt to a modern life. We must help our pets adopt too and have a hand in eliminating pet overpopulation.

Harry Dallou [left] and Matt Cizewski are ready to assist customers with all their food shopping needs at Harry's Fruit Basket.

Personal touch stressed at Harry's Fruit Basket

"Every person who walks into a retail business should be treated with courtesy and integrity. That's been the main reason behind our business' success."

"That's how Harry Dallou, owner of Harry's Fruit Basket, 4710 Clarkston-Orion, Independence Township, accounts for his store's growth from a strictly meat and produce store to a complete food center.

"We have a personal approach to all of our customers and a good rapport with the community," Dallou says. "That and the good response to our high-quality meats have been the backbone of our success."

Previously located less than a block away on Clarkston-Orion Road, construction of the new store began last November. The new location officially opened less than two weeks ago.

"We saw the need for a complete-service retail food store in this particular area,"

Dallou says. "We were at the old location for three-and-a-half years, so it's not as if we're starting from scratch."

The store now has a line of groceries, custom-cut fresh meats, a full delicatessen including sandwiches and salads, fruits and vegetables, dairy products and soft drinks.

Having just received approval for their liquor license application, a full selection of beer, wine and liquor will be on the shelves by this week, Dallou adds.

"Business has been good our first few days," he says. "We've had a good response—people are already familiar with our reputation for quality meats."

Dallou manages the business along with his wife Linda, to whom he gives equal credit for the store's success.

"You've got to have a better half along with you in any business venture," he says.

"She's been responsible for all of the decor in the building, and has done a beautiful job."

Doing business Fighting inflation

Prices of generic prescriptions and some sundry items are to be frozen for the next year at Hallman's Apothecary, Clarkston.

"Ninety percent of all generic drugs available are already on our shelves," said Gerry Dunsmore, pharmacist. "We are negotiating with suppliers for the best possible prices on our regular brand name products and have already offered a 10 percent discount on some of those," he said.

Generic items are those which do not carry a brand name. Examples of generic drugs are aspirin, penicillin, ampicillin, vitamins and thyroid.

Hallman's Apothecary is located at 4 S. Main Street.

Weaver honored

Howard Weaver, president of Pontiac Business Institute schools, was honored at the recent Michigan Business Education convention in Detroit.

He was awarded the "Distinguished Service Award" for outstanding service to business education in Michigan.

A resident of Church Street, Independence Township, Weaver is president of seven business schools located in Detroit, Farmington, Mt. Clemens, Madison Heights, Oxford, Pontiac and Port Huron.

Passes course

James Arnold, an electrical inspector for Independence and Orion townships, was one of 29 persons successfully completing Michigan's first Electrical Inspector Training program.

The two-week course recently held in Lansing was sponsored by the Michigan Chapter of the International Association of Electrical Inspectors in cooperation with the Fire Marshal Division, Department of Michigan State Police, and the electrical industry.

The type of basket being used has no bearing on the kind of egg prospecting involved. As long as the container will hold an egg, anything goes as this candy seeker will attest.

Photos by Marilyn Trumper

The Jaycees annual easter egg hunt at Clintonwood Park, Independence Township, began Saturday morning with mad dashes and a flourish of scooping hands in search of chocolate eggs and hard candy.

It is hard work hunting down hidden candy, so instead, Rebecca Moore, 2, Independence Township, relaxes with a chocolate egg snack, unwrapped by mom.

A-hunting they did go

Now that it is over and the excitement has died down there is nothing left to do but choose the most interesting piece of candy to eat. This egg hunter has his piece all picked out.
