Clarkston schools fight test apathy

By Kathy Greenfield

Apathy, noise, moving from class to class and lack of review made Clarkston High School 10th graders score low on the Michigan Assessment Program test, say Clarkston school administrators.

Steps have been taken to assure higher scores when the test is given to 10th graders in September, said Assistant Superintendent of Clarkston Schools Mel Vaara in a report to the school board Monday.

At least 75 percent of the educational objectives in the math portion of the test were achieved by 49.5 percent of the 10th graders last year, while the statewide average was 49.8.

In reading, however, 65.3 percent of the 10th graders achieved the 75 percent goal as compared to 61 percent statewide.

Of the 545 students who took the 40-section math test, 271 passed between 30-40 goals, 160 passed 20-29, 80 passed 10-19 and 34 passed 0-9.

The test results were studied by principals and counselors, Vaara said, and during a recent in-service day, all junior high math teachers and the high school math department heads spent the day going over the test results.

"Many of them were flabbergasted at the low scores of some very good students,"

Vaara said. "There really isn't any vital motivation factor for these students to do well on this test."

Reasons to do well may be supplied this fall when those who do poorly may be required to take an additional half-credit in math and those who do well may receive an extra one-fourth credit, he said.

The main goal is to "change the attitude of the 10th graders," said Vaara. "When the fourth grade students take the test, they want to please the teacher."

"When they hit the seventh grade, it becomes tougher. When they hit the 10th grade, it gets tougher and tougher."

In contrast, the students do well on college preparatory tests, he said, because they know the results can have an impact on university entrance requirements.

In addition, efforts will be made to make the test atmosphere quiet, to keep the students in the same classroom for the three-hour test, and to spend class time reviewing such things as fractions and decimals.

After viewing samples of questions the 10th graders missed, comments were made by people attending the board meeting.

Larry Smith, a resident of the Deer Wood subdivision, said the test results indicate a lack of

Slip-sliding away

Finally, after mounting all those steps, Jim Newcombe discovers it is a long way to the bottom for such a tiny person. Somehow trying to grab hold of the sides of the slide doesn't seem to help much. Jim was playing Sunday on the giant slide at Independence Township's Clintonwood Park.

For Kyle Johnson

Life term in Hockey case

Kyle Glenn Johnson was sentenced to life imprisonment without parole Tuesday morning for his part in the brutal murder of Monica Hockey in Independence Township Sept. 2.

Seconds before pronouncing sentence, Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Farrell Roberts asked the Independence Township resident if he had anything to add.

"Yeah, Charlie Manson was right, you people are all crazy," the 20-year-old Johnson said.

Michigan law allows for an appeal to be filed within 30 days of sentencing, but Johnson's attorney, J. Robert Sterling, said Johnson has no plans to appeal at this time.

"He has indicated to me that he does not want to appeal, but he does want a copy of the trial transcripts," Sterling said. "We can review the transcripts and perhaps find something we didn't see before, but any appeal under these circumstances would be tough."

Sentencing for Jeffrey Allen Coyle, 19, the second man found guilty of first-degree murder in the Hockey slaying is scheduled April 22.

Coyle, also of Independence Township, faces the same mandatory sentence for first-degree murder--life imprisonment without parole.

Twenty-year-old Monica Hockey was tortured and beaten to death last Labor Day weekend.

Her body was found concealed under a couch by a bicyclist in a wooded area off Clintonville Road.

Johnson will be held in the Oakland County Jail pending transportation to Jackson State Prison.

One minnow's their net gain

With a net big enough to catch a whale, these three boys spend the last Saturday of Easter vacation skimming for minnows in the stream which feeds Parke Lake. Chris Sorgatz, 13, (left), Matt Doolin, 12, and Rod Swanson, 11, all live on Snow Apple Drive, Independence Township. The minnow bucket they carted along in anticipation of a big haul was not needed. Alas, the fates were against the boys. After all their work, their only reward was a single minnow.

"horse sense" and recommended required business math.

"It appears to me you're teaching to a test rather than teaching to the problem," he said.

"We are firmly convinced that a lot of this material was taught and a lot of the kids who missed it on the test got A's when it was taught in class," said William Potvin, director of planning and evaluation for the school district.

The review should refresh those students' memories, he said.

The test results were an embarrassment, said Sally Binard of Hummingbird Lane.

"I think it's a shame that we have to sit here and make excuses for what the kids did," she said. "It was really a very basic test."

Emphasis on math education by the school district is low, she said, pointing out the students are required to have a full credit of physical education and only one-half credit of math to graduate.

She also suggested math texts used in elementary schools be re-evaluated, because she said they do not cover fractions and decimals well enough.

"That may be why your 10th graders weren't able to do it, because they didn't get enough of it in fifth and sixth grade," she said.

Other people at the meeting were less critical.

"I have gotten over the shock of these test scores," said Jeanne Molzon of Deerhill Drive, and she commended the school board for taking steps to rectify the problem.

Three court suits filed

Toxic waste controversy heating up

By Al Zawacky

Clean-up efforts continue at the toxic waste dump sight in Springfield Township, but there remains little agreement between residents and local, county and state officials about the current state of affairs.

Several residents have taken their complaints to court. Three suits have been filed in Oakland County Circuit Court, and more are pending.

Defendants in the suit include Springfield Township, Oakland County, dump sight owner Clara Nickson, several industrial companies and two waste disposal firms.

"One of the problems we've encountered in this case is the fact that the illegal dumping began in the late 1960s and early '70s" said John Eite, attorney for one of the plaintiffs. "Some of the people involved--Tucker Ford and Joe Nickson, for example--have since died."

The problem arose last year when barrels of toxic industrial waste were found leaking on a 160 acre parcel of land located east of Ormond Road and north of Shindler in Springfield Township.

The parcel has been the property of Clara Nickson since the death of her husband Joseph Nickson in 1971. The late Tucker Ford allegedly was responsible for much of the actual dumping, Eite said.

The leaking chemicals contaminated well water in the area resulting in health and economic damage to the affected residents, according to Eite.

"The County Health Department is responsible for the health and safety of Oakland County residents," said Eite. "Clearly, the residents feel the county did not fulfill their obligations in this case."

Springfield Township Supervisor Collin Walls said water in the area is currently safe, but it's not a belief shared by some Shindler Road residents.

"There are still barrels out there, but they've all been re-contained and are no longer leaking," Walls said. "All the recent tests taken by the state on the water turned up either negative or with traces of contaminants way below maximum levels of safety."

But the tests don't impress Shindler Road resident Karen Fraley, one of the plaintiffs represented by Eite.

"We're still using bottled water--it's gotten to be a way of life with us," Fraley said. "The state may make a few tests that say the water is safe, and then turn around a month from now and say things have changed."

"People just don't realize how many barrels there are on that property--there had to be thousands. I can't take any chances with the health of my family."

The long-term health effects of drinking the water may not be known for some time, she said, adding that her children had been complaining of more stomach aches than usual after they had consumed the water.

"We were the last people to find out about this. We complained to the township without results, and the county and the DNR hushed the whole thing up," she said.

"I feel very badly that anybody would feel that way about the township," Walls said. "We (the township) found out about the full scope of this thing the way everybody else did--in the newspapers."

"What this situation has created--beyond the possible effects--is a psychological effect as well. And I'm not minimizing either--people understandably feel funny about drinking the water."

Drawing a positive link between the chemicals in the water and effects on residents' health will be one of the goals of the lawsuit, said Eite.

"We've identified approximately eight to 10 people who've died of cancer in the last 10 years who could possibly have consumed the water," Eite said.

One of those deaths was that of Joseph Nickson, he noted.

"We've requested death certificates from the Oakland County Health Department to determine if this number of deaths is unusual," Eite said.

Eite was also unimpressed by recent DNR tests concluding the water is currently safe for drinking.

"Now that the spring thawing and rain is here, more chemicals trapped in the soil could end up in the ground water," said Eite.

That the test results are subject to possible change was confirmed by Dick Lehner, district engineer for the division of water supply of the state of Michigan.

"We're going to continue to monitor the water through the spring and summer months," Lehner said. "The situation could possibly change somewhat, although at the present time nothing found in our latest test results (in January) would indicate any type of health hazard."

Principle contaminants tested for by the state were PCE and TCE (polychloroethylene and trichloroethylene) and not PCB (polychlorinated biphenyls) as had been reported earlier, Lehner said.

"PCE and TCE move very rapidly through the soil, where as PCB tends to tie up with the soil and move very slowly," he said. "Our initial sample taken last year showed PCB right at the detectable level, but that result has never been reproducible. It could have been something in our lab equipment."

PCE and PCB are both suspected carcinogens, while the toxicity of TCE is not as well defined, Lehner said.

The state is currently supervising the removal of the barrels to a permanent approved sight out of state and may remove some of the contaminated soil depending on further test results, Lehner said.

Continued monitoring will be shared by the Oakland County Health Department said Ron Grimes, environmental health services supervisor.

"I've seen nothing that would indicate a health problem in the water at this time," Grimes said. "However, we'll continue our testing."

Bike ban

In keeping with the village ordinance to keep bicycles off the sidewalk, Volney Shafer, Clarkston Village patrolman points a finger to move 'em out. The ordinance, passed two months ago, says bicycles are not allowed to be ridden or parked on the sidewalks of the zoned business district. This area runs the length of Main Street from Washington to Church Street. "It's just a matter of getting the kids used to the idea of parking their bikes in the rack by the flag pole," Shafer said. "They are not arguing. The kids just move them, but it is going to take awhile." A bike rack has been provided in the parking lot adjacent to the Mill Pond for peddle-happy kids to park.

Motorcycle theft leaves victim angry

By Al Zawacky

Independence Township resident Charles Weichel always believed the Clarkston area was one of the best possible communities he and his family could live in.

Basically, he still does. But he's beginning to wonder.

"You hear so much about all the good things about living in Clarkston," said Weichel, who lives on Amy Drive.

"But we have problems here, too," he added, upset over the theft of a motorcycle from his property late at night on Easter Sunday.

"I had the bike locked in the barn and chains on both the front and rear wheels," Weichel said. "Whoever stole it really went to a lot of trouble."

"The really strange thing about this is that I've got two cycles, and the one they didn't take was unchained. They're both good bikes, but somebody obviously wanted the one."

A few days later, the Oakland County Sheriff's Department called to inform him that the bike had been found--"kicked in, stripped down and burned," according to Weichel.

A motorcycle enthusiast, Weichel said he bought the bike two years ago. He hadn't ridden it much and it was still in excellent condition.

"It would take about $1,700 to replace it at today's prices," Weichel said.

And that would be $1,700 of his own money, he pointed out. The bike was not insured.

"Actually, this incident is just part of the overall problem," Weichel added. "There's constant vandalism--kids riding cars over lawns, knocking down mailboxes. Someday, somebody will happen to be on one of those lawns and get killed."

Lt. Richard Hubble of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department said the department is sympathetic to the problem and responds in any way it can.

If there are no suspects and no witnesses, there's not a great deal we can do," Hubble said. "If a certain subdivision constantly has problems, we can ask the road patrol units to pay special attention to the area--but we can only be so many places at one time."

Vandals who ride over lawns almost have to be caught in the act, Hubble noted. And without further leads, just recovering the missing property is difficult.

"We have a good neighborhood here," Weichel said. "It's really a shame that these kind of things have to happen."

Cops fade from village parade scene

By Marilyn Trumper

Unless the village council can fill the void left by the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD), Clarkston will not have police officers overseeing parades in the coming months.

"I don't know what we are going to do. I don't know whether we can hire deputies from another district or not," said Fontie ApMadoe, president of the village council. "Our reserves are gone. Maybe we can hire another village's reserves."

In May when the village withdrew from the OCSD contract with Independence Township, police protection was forfeited for parades. This service was to be provided free under the mutual services agreement with the township, according to Frederick Ritter, township treasurer.

Without this existing agreement, any extra deputy hired would cost the village $16.41 an hour.

Unless the village has an existing contract, they cannot contract with us for extra men," said Captain Billy J. Nolin, OCSD. "We go only where there is an existing contract, unless it is a matter of life or death."

According to Christopher Rose, township clerk, the village has to provide adequate police coverage for road closures which always occur during parades.

Because the parades are within the village limits, the village is now responsible to provide its own police protection," Rose said. "We (the township) cannot close streets within the village, because they have cancelled their contract with us. Someone from the village will have to approach the road commission seeking a permit to close the roads."

The problem with police protection and road closures was discussed at the Independence Township Board meeting April 15.

"Since the village had decided not to go with the contract, we wouldn't want to indicate we're going to spend any money on police for the parade," said Supervisor Whitey Tower.

The OCSD in the meantime is refusing to recognize the village's withdrawal from the contract, until officially contacted by Tower.

Undersheriff, Robert Nyovich said Sheriff Johannes Spreen had not been contacted by Whitey Tower concerning the Village of Clarkston's withdrawal from the contract.

Closure of roads and police parade protection are not the first problems to appear following the village's withdrawal from the contract. There is concern over the park located on Depot Road in the village.

"I patrolled Clarkston last summer and was always dispatched to go talk to kids getting rowdy in the park. Many of them were underage drinking in cars, fighting and getting rowdy. We had to ticket them and ask them to leave. If we're not down there patrolling it could get out of hand," said an OCSD deputy.

"I do not blame the Sheriff's Department," ApMadoe said. "I am not expecting them to patrol. The village had two public meetings and only one person showed up to voice an opinion.

"This is a bunch of confusion trying to work something out. It is a shame all the way around," she added.

Village to ask township to hire parade patrols

Clarkston's Village Council took action Monday night to rectify problems with road closures and police protection for parades.

The council decided to send a letter to Independence Township giving permission to hire police and approach the road commission with road closure requests for village parades.

How the township will react, however, is not yet known.

Last week, Township Clerk Christopher Rose said the township board thought it was no longer authorized to perform those duties for the village, because the village had withdrawn from the contract with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD).

"If the township does not accept our authorization, we have two alternatives," said president Fontie ApMadoe at the village council meeting. We have approached Frank Ronk, Independence Township fire chief, to contract for the use of his reserves as parade protection. We can hope they agree."

ApMadoe also said the village can try to hire two members of the community trained in law enforcement.

Checking the obligations of the Michigan State Police as far as law enforcement in the village and what type of coverage they could expect from state police in the future, was also suggested by council members.

ApMadoe polled the council to update their stand on contracting with the OCSD.

"I think we'll have to go without it," said Robert Adams. "I think we're paying too much now. I would be willing to reconsider if we can get in on the 1 mill, which was what was in the original contract."

Council members, Gary Symons, James Schultz, Ruth Basinger and Connie Fisher agreed with Adams.

Council member Jackson Byers offered a different opinion. "I feel we owe the village police protection," he said.

A penny saved...?

by Herb Rose

At one point in developing my private collection of idiosyncrasies, I started putting my loose change in a piggy bank.

Until then I had kept my loose change on the dresser, and for 10 or 15 years there was no particular alteration to the size of this coin pile.

The significance of the zero growth rate was lost upon me until, when I was living in Cape Kennedy and my family was in New Orleans, the mound of change spread like a fungus in a rain forest.

I thought at first this uncontrolled proliferation was directly attributable to the Florida climate but later decided there was a curious relationship between the proximity of my family and the decrease in the change inventory.

It was hoped that the incorporation of a piggy bank into my routine not only would make coin acquisition more difficult but would also impact potential marauders psychologically with monstrous guilt feelings.

Although the money did accumulate, the piggy bank was not inviolate, and it grudgingly funded several small projects. Approximately two years ago, at the time I developed a need for an extension ladder, I noted, with a combination of glee and back pain, the piggy bank was heavy enough so that moving it would gladden the heart of an avaricious chiropractor.

I found a bank in Pontiac that had a coin sorter/counter. So, with copious wheezes and groans and bits of profanity grunted through clenched teeth, I put the piggy bank in the car.

After I got to the city I was forced to conclude that nothing is unusual on the streets of Pontiac.

I staggered along the sidewalk, knees together, feet apart, cheeks and eyes bulging, with an enormous blue plastic piggy bank swinging perdulously in my clasped hands and no one batted an eye.

I felt I was so normal a pedestrian I could almost overhear comments like: "The last one had a red piggy bank." Anne joined the Pontiacians and pretended she didn't know me, with a feigned nonchalance examining the window displays in deserted stores.

As I watched the contents of the piggy bank being dumped into the maw of a machine that totaled the face value of the coins, I had the uneasy feeling that this device, like the slot machines of Las Vegas, was programmed to return a fairly high percent of the monies it received.

The total was a stunning $585.32, which was promptly deposited, less the cost of the ladder.

I was smugly thinking the other day that my piggy bank is now earning a fast 5½ percent when I wondered, with awful pain, how many old silver coins I had sold for face value.

I have heard that a roll of old quarters could be worth $600. Maybe, as they say in Brooklyn, "It's best you shouldn't know."

Choosing a path

by Kathy Greenfield

I fall into the late-bloomer category.

Dick and I were married after my freshman year in college as he was beginning work on a master's degree.

Both native Michiganders, we lived in New York City's Greenwich Village for the first year of our marriage.

We worked and attended New York University.

Having grown up in Rochester, Mich., life in the big city was an education in itself.

We did relatively sophisticated things like attend every Broadway and off-Broadway play we could, and we behaved like kids other times.

Our most notable digression was the small motorcycle we used for transportation. We parked it inside our sixth-floor apartment thanks to a friendly doorman who looked the other way when we rolled the cycle through the lobby to the freight elevator.

I'll never forget the horror-stricken woman who ran into us and the cycle in the elevator when she was returning from the laundry room.

We did our best to ignore her, and really only feared eviction once when a friend at a party decided he'd try to start the motorcycle. It worked.

But I meander. All this happened nearly 15 years ago.

I quit work and school about two years later when our daughter Corey was born. She was followed a year and one-half later by our son Craig.

I was a housewife for several years thereafter.

Our lives involved several moves—in all, after New York, we lived in Indiana, Virginia, Kentucky and then back in Michigan at Orchard Lake, Ann Arbor, Grayling, Drayton Plains and now, for nearly four years, Clarkston.

When Corey and Craig were in school full-time, I started a small toy store in Grayling.

The store was a great adventure. I loved buying the merchandise to sell, but it actually only supported itself.

All the bills were paid with ease, but there was little left over for a salary for the sole employee--me.

About a year later, we returned to Oakland County and what had remained to be home for us.

We hunted for a house in Clarkston, but found nothing suitable on the market, so we settled in Drayton Plains.

It was then that I started back to school.

I was an English major, but I decided to try my hand at journalism courses.

That was it. I knew I had found my niche.

It was a decision made after age 30. I have often thought I was lucky to be able to make a career choice after living so much of my life and knowing myself better.

We began house hunting in Clarkston again after a year in Drayton Plains.

It was a casual search, but when we found the older home we now live in, we bought it immediately.

I was still going to school then.

There were times when I would read The Clarkston News and think how great it would be to work on its staff.

About two years ago, I joined the News as a reporter.

And now I'm editor.

Can you really trust a computer?

The question is making Independence Township resident George White nervous.

White, who serves as community relations director for the Pine Knob Music Theatre, said concert tickets will be handled by computer this year and will be for sale at all Hudson's stores.

"The computer is really going to have to be on the ball to know when the tickets are gone," he said, referring to the number of sold-out concerts usually held at the outdoor music theater.

Individual tickets are to go on sale sometime in May, although the exact date is yet unknown, said White.

Series tickets for Pine Knob went on sale last week.

Concert-goers who have had season tickets in the past get the first shot and they face a line-up that includes no dates or times.

The unusual brochures, that do include price, were mailed last week.

In case you're curious, stars that are to appear at Pine Knob's Music Theatre this summer include Liza Minelli, Donna Summer, Bob Hope, Marshall Tucker, the Allman Brothers, Barry Manilow, John Denver, James Taylor and Chicago.

The Clarkston News' phones were ringing with long distance calls last week while Tim McCormick announced his decision to take his basketball talents to the University of Michigan.

Those curious about Tim's choice included newspapers in Ohio and North Carolina.

Lawmakers come through

by Jim Sherman

Our company owns a van. We figure it's a necessity to carry papers to the various post offices. That makes it a 1-day-a-week vehicle.

It also makes it "nobody's vehicle."

Someone keeps gas in it, but it goes ungreased, unoiled, dirty, and uncared for. I've learned the attitude toward this van is not unlike the care received on other company cars.

Once in a while someone mentions hearing an unusual noise, and a month later it's mentioned again. Six months later instead of needing new brake shoes, entire brake drums are installed.

This background may explain why our van went unlicensed until this week.

Driver Jack Lindley noticed the omission while in Clarkston April 2. He became extremely nervous, and visions of a $75 fine danced in his head.

He watched the rear view mirror more on the way back to Oxford than he did the road in front of him.

Two days later, while in Davison, I saved $2.50 by buying new plates for the van outside the subway (Wayne, Oakland, Macomb) area. The next day it was announced that the van wasn't being driven in violation of the law at all.

Seems none of us really had to have 1980 plates. Those who had been ticketed for being plateless were entitled to a refund.

In what is called a 'legislative foulup', the new law making plates expire on birthdays did not make the 1979 plates officially expire.

And, our elected representatives wonder why the Common Man refers to them as dunderheads, to name one of the better names.

A friend thought I'd like to know how to gauge the weight of a fish.

He says... Measure the fish from tip of nose to fork of tail, then around the fish in front of the Pectoral fins.

Now take the girth measurement and square it, then multiply this by the length measurement and divide the sum total by 800. That gives the fish weight.

Here is an example: Girth of fish 12 inches; length of fish 30 inches; 12 times 12 equals 144; multiply by 30 equals 4320; divide by 800 equals 5.4 pounds.

I looked up where the Pectoral fins are, now all I have to do is catch a fish.

Teenager pursues 'titanic' hobby

By Kathy Greenfield

Dallas Keffer, at age 15, is the most publicized Titanic buff for his age, he says.

The reason for all this is the Clarkson High School 10th grader, who lives on Semindale Drive in Springfield Township, actively seeks to share his knowledge about the 68-year-old disaster at sea.

Every year as the April 15 anniversary of the sinking of the British luxury liner nears, Dallas contacts newspapers and asks if they would be interested in a story he would write.

When the Detroit Free Press responded by offering to do an article on Dallas, he accepted.

The story went out on the wire and Dallas figures he now has appeared in about 100 newspapers in cities across the United States.

The result has been lots of mail--over 100 letters.

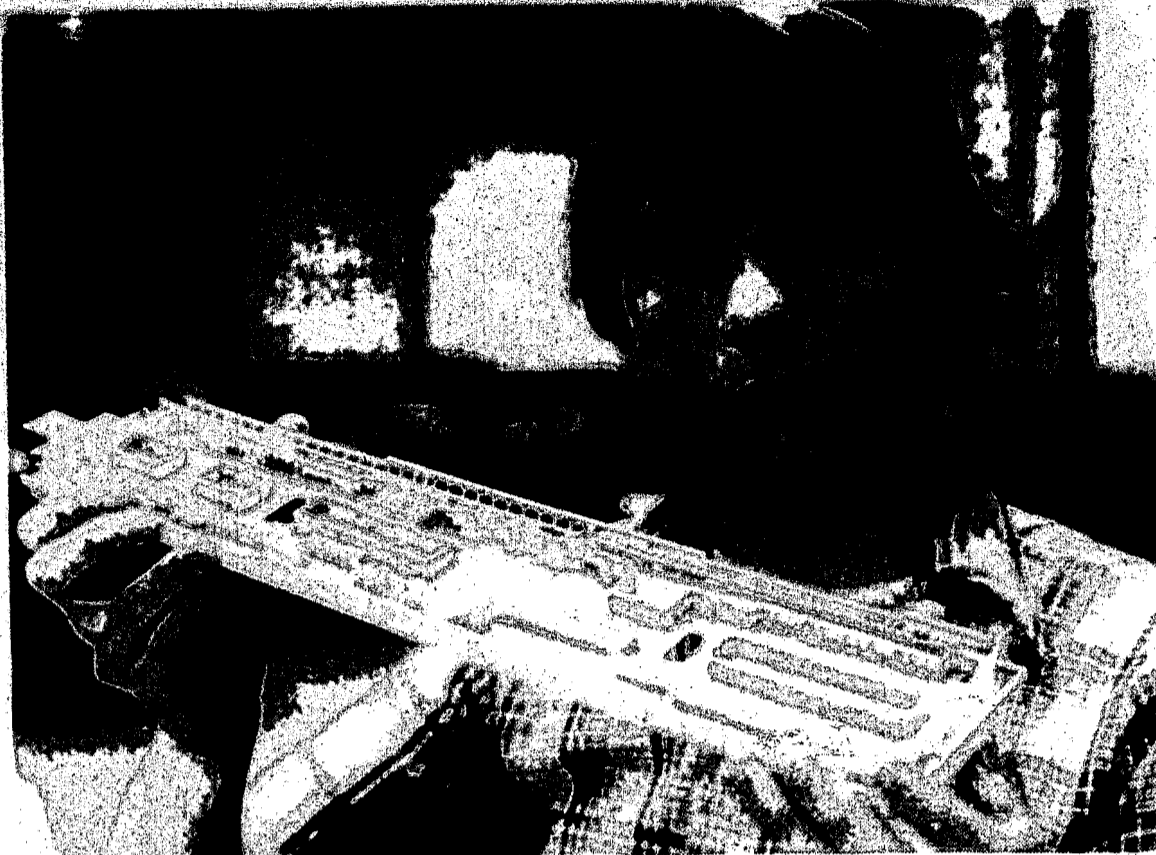

"It's fun getting all this mail," he says. "The only problem is getting it all answered. I've got about 24 to answer tonight."

Letters aren't all Dallas has received--on reader sent Dallas a book published in 1912 shortly after the Titanic sank on its maiden voyage from England to New York, and Dallas thinks its worth about $3,000.

He also has a 1912 poster of the Titanic sent by someone who saw his story.

A stickler for details, Dallas says he was a little disappointed in the way some of the stories were rewritten in newspapers.

"One paper said they call me 'Captain Titanic' and they salute me every time I walk in the door," says Dallas about part of the story that talked about his classmates at CHS.

Dallas holds part of a Titanic model he is working on.

"That's all exaggerated. The most they've ever called me is 'The Captain' and only one or two have saluted me.

"When a story like that goes out over the wire, it's bound to be changed a little or a lot as it was.

"The way they exaggerated like that, it makes me sound like I'm a little bit crazy--eccentric maybe," he said. "Maybe I'm slightly eccentric, but not to that degree. They make me sound like a nut or something."

Dallas' interest in the Titanic is, however, intense to a degree that is unusual for a boy his age.

He has so much knowledge of the event, that significant dates, like his birthday, have taken on Titanic facts as well.

"Ironically, my birthday falls on the day the ship Imperator was launched in Germany," he says when mentioning that he will be 16 in May. "It was going to be their answer to England's Titanic."

Dallas' interest in the ship felled by an iceberg goes back eight years.

"It's my favorite thing in the world," he says. "I don't worship it. I do believe in God. He does come first."

"The Titanic is my main material interest," he says. "There's just something about the Titanic that grips your interest and doesn't let go."

Work continues on the Titanic film Dallas started last year with fellow CHS members as actors and actresses.

"I've decided to take it easy and do things when I'm fully prepared," he says.

By the time he completes the film--probably in February of 1981--he'll have used a cast of over 100 including extras in crowd scenes, he says.

Dallas also has another hobby--building models of the Titanic. So far, he has put together about 50.

He has sunk them all so far, some for other films he has made and some just to test theories on exactly how the Titanic went down.

When not busy with his film or school, Dallas has another project he plans to begin.

Studies of two other tragedies--the sinking of the Lusitania and the crash of the Hindenberg--are going to be pursued, he says.

They pique his interest, because they were similar to the Titanic in that nobody expected them to be destructable either, he says.

'If it Fitz. . .'

Stand up for your TV

by Jim Fitzgerald

Lately the husband has discovered he can adjust his TV set simply by leaning toward it. Like penicillin, it was an accidental discovery.

One night, in the middle of "M*A*S*H," the color suddenly left Hawkeye's face. The husband has never owned one of those remote control gadgets that allow a man to control a TV set several feet away without leaving his chair. He has always wanted one, but his wife has forbidden it for selfish reasons, worrying that if he weren't forced to stand up to switch channels, he might forget how to walk and she would have to carry him to bed every night.

So when Hawkeye paled, the husband struggled toward the TV. Before he got there, the color returned. He figured that was life. "A watched pot never boils," he explained in memory of his grandmother.

"What does that mean?" asked the pampered wife for whom boiling pots have always whistled.

"It means if you watch a pot to make sure it doesn't boil over on the stove, it never will. But the minute you go into the pantry to churn butter, the pot begins boiling," he answered. "As long as I sit in my chair, there will be no color on that TV. But the minute I stand up, the color will return, before I touch the set. That is the perverse nature of life. If life weren't supposed to be that way, God would have commanded us to spread the churned butter on both sides of the bread."

Sure enough, when the husband sat back down, the TV turned black and white again. And when he stood up, the color returned before he got halfway to the set. After this procedure was repeated several times, and the husband was beginning to pound his head against his knees, he turned sly. He pretended to get out of his chair but actually only leaned forward. The TV set was fooled and the color came on. But when he leaned back, the color disappeared again.

This was when the husband knew he'd crossed over into the twilight zone.

Simply by rocking back and forth in his chair, he could control the hues on his TV set across the room. "You are married to a man with mysterious powers," he told his wife as he rocked and the TV chameleoned.

At first, the wife insisted the coordination was coincidence. She said the TV would lose color even if the husband didn't lean back, and vice versa. But it never happened that way. She was finally convinced when he orchestrated the changing shades of "M*A*S*H" merely by thrusting his arms toward the set while remaining seated, much like Leonard Bernstein conducting from his piano bench.

"I'll concede you are controlling the color, but you don't have any mysterious power. I could do the same thing if I were sitting in your chair," she said. "When you lean forward your body somehow interferes with the TV signal. Our antenna probably needs adjusting. There is a logical explanation for everything."

No one else will ever sit in my chair.

My power might be diluted by the presence of a foreign body," he proclaimed. "For my next demonstration I will float in the air and eat off our best dishes."

It has always disturbed the husband that the best-looking dinner plates in their home are hung on the wall close to the ceiling. Even if someone could get high enough to eat off them the food would slide off the plates. The husband often calls these plates to the attention of guests eating off chipped saucers from Kmart. He tells the guests that after dinner they are welcome to take a walk on the handsome rug hanging on the wall in the family room. The wife thinks he is the funniest thing since butter churners.

"I would like to watch you float. In fact, I would be satisfied to just watch you get out of that chair and walk," she said. "It is always a rare pleasure to watch you do anything except sit."

"What you are forgetting," he said, "is that a watched pot never boils, especially in the twilight zone."

Police log

Oakland County Sheriff's Department deputies were kept busy over the weekend in Independence Township.

Sometime between the hours of 5 p.m. and 11 a.m. Saturday a Suzuki motorcycle was stolen from the garage of a township resident on Enismore Road. The motorcycle's value is estimated at $650, according to police reports.

Vandals knocked out lights and destroyed a coke machine at the Payless gas station on Dixie Highway, Saturday morning.

According to police reports, the vandals first knocked out the lights to conceal their activity, then dragged the machine behind a fence and pried it open.

The change from the machine had been emptied the night before according to the station manager, Janet Barranger.

Police were unable to take finger prints because of the rain.

Sunday, two patrons parked in the lot of Spring Lake

Country Club, Maybee Road, had hubcaps stolen off their cars.

Cost to replace the wire wheels are estimated at $25 each, according to police reports.

Two residents of the township living on Pine Knob Road and Woodcreek Trail, had bicycles stolen from their garages Sunday.

The estimated loss of one resident's red, 20" Schwinn bicycle is $150 according to police reports. The second bike, a silver 19" Schwinn is valued at $219.

Gaining entrance through the garage, thieves broke into an Independence Township home on Milane Road and stole two 12-gauge shotguns, a selection of liquor and a jar of antique coins.

The residents returned home following a week's vacation in Florida to find their home ransacked. Police reports estimate the value of the shotguns at $200.

Springfield may join county EDC

Formation of an Oakland County Economic Development Corporation (EDC) district in Springfield Township will be one item on the agenda at the township board's next monthly meeting May 7.

Township Supervisor Collin Walls expressed support for the formation of an EDC district, but added the board's final decision would be influenced by reactions at the public hearing during the monthly meeting.

"I think the EDC is a definite asset, provided that it's used with some common sense," Walls said. "We obviously don't want Springfield Township to become the industrial center of Oakland County—but I think that goes hand in hand with our zoning ordinances."

"What we want in the way of industry and development is a small, clean, neat industrial park setting. The EDC will allow these businesses to stay and expand local employment."

Noting that Oxford Township recently turned down an EDC proposal, Walls said that "a lot depends on the public comment we get at the May 7 meeting.

"I think a lot of it (Oxford's decision) had to do with GM attempting to build in neighboring Lake Orion," Walls said. "It's created an anti-industrial feeling there."

"We don't want a GM plant here in Springfield, and the EDC isn't going to force us to have big factories," Wall said.

"Again, it's just a matter of doing it right."

Acting like a publicly owned mortgage company, the Oakland County EDC would provide low-interest loans for developers in Springfield Township.

"It'll be interesting to see what type of feedback we get at the public hearing," Walls said.

Steve Howe pitching for Dodgers

CHS alumnus posts first major league victory

By Al Zawacky

To the rest of the nation, last Saturday's Dodger-Astro pro baseball game pitted the cities of Los Angeles against Houston.

But not in these parts—here, the game was billed as Clarkston vs. Houston, as Clarkston High School alumnus Steve Howe took to the mound in the 12th inning of an 18-inning marathon.

The result? Howe baffled the professional batters in the same manner that he stymied collegiate and prep swingers earlier in his career. In five innings pitched, Howe surrendered no runs, one hit, two walks and struck out one to earn his first major league victory.

"I always thought that Steve could make it to the majors," said Paul Tungate, CHS athletic director and Howe's former prep coach. "He just threw unusually hard for a high schooler, and had really good control as well."

Howe posted a 24-1 varsity record in his junior and senior year at CHS, chalking up an incredible ERA of 0.37 as a senior.

That was in 1976, when Tungate and his Wolves won the state baseball championship. In 94½ innings, Howe struck out 122 batters and walked just 29.

"We were kind of like this past season's basketball team that year," Tungate said. "We were one big family, and everybody contributed—in 31 games, we only committed 47 errors. That's pretty impressive for a high school team."

Howe went on to star for three years with the University of Michigan, posting a 28-7 record before signing on with the Dodgers last year.

Last Saturday, as one would expect, was an exciting one for the Howe family. The Dodger-Astro game was televised in Detroit, and Steve's parents, Virgil and Barb Howe of Independence Township, were glued to the TV set.

"The whole family was watching," recalled Jeff Howe, Steve's brother. "Our parents are really happy and proud."

But Jeff isn't particularly surprised to see his brother playing in the big leagues.

"He's always had the attitude that he was going to make it, and worked real hard to achieve his goal," Jeff said. "Steve set some pretty high goals for himself, but he always seems to pull through."

Meanwhile, the Howe family's phone has been ringing with congratulatory calls from friends and family.

But the commotion hasn't bothered the Howes, Jeff said.

"In a way, I guess, we're all kind of enjoying it," he said.

Clarkston's Steve Howe has made it to the major leagues. An outstanding hurler at Clarkston High School and later at the University of Michigan, Howe posted his first big league win April 12 as Los Angeles downed Houston 6-5. It was the second appearance in a Dodger uniform for Howe, who has yet to be charged with a major-league run.

The point after

by Al Zawacky

"The Olympic Games should be above politics..."

Lord Killanin, President International Olympic Committee

With these words, the IOC chieftain recently dismissed any thought of a boycott of the 1980 summer games in Moscow.

If only Killanin could come up with a magic phrase to dismiss the Red Army from Afghanistan. And while he's at it, he could expell the uninvited Russian guests from some other countries as well—Hungary, Rumania, East Germany, Bulgaria, Cuba, Poland, Latvia, Czechoslovakia, Estonia, Lithuania...

IF YOU HAVEN'T guesses by now, I support President's Carter's call for an olympic boycott—and incidently, I don't find myself agreeing with the current occupant of the Oval Office very often.

It's all a matter of where you place your priorities.

How can the United States in good conscience play games in the capital of a nation that is raining nerve gas on Afghan tribesmen? How can we justify providing the Soviet Union with a propoganda coup in light of the Red Army's penchant for taking trips outside the country?

I suppose there are good points to be made on both sides, but upon closer observation, many of the anti-boycott arguments don't hold water.

"The Games should be above politics," they say.

Who denies that they should be? But who is naive enough to believe that they actually are?

The same IOC that spouts pap about not soiling the games with politics recently booted Taiwan out of the Olympics for political reasons.

And if the games are truly sans-politics, why are there two Koreas and two Germanys competing?

WHAT THE IOC IS WORRIED ABOUT is that the Americans are setting a bad precedent, one that places the future of the games in doubt.

If the boycott succeeds, they reason, future Olympiads will have other countries sitting on the sidelines due to real or imagined grievances against future host countries.

The end result could be the disbanding of the olympics entirely—which would be a shame, because the games are tremendously entertaining and fun.

But Killanin sees the games as being much more than entertainment.

In his closing remarks at the Lake Placid winter games last February, he stressed how important the games are to international good will and cooperation, implying that the olympics are useful in preventing armed conflict.

That's a nice thought, but there aren't many facts around to support it.

Since the advent of the modern games in 1896, we've had the Spanish-American War, Russo-Japanese War, World War I, World War II, Korea, Vietnam and other "small" wars too numerous to list. Figure about 30 million human lives in that 84 year period.

Now name one potential conflict the Olympic Games have managed to prevent. If Killanin could do that, US participation in Moscow would be justified.

Knees limit McCormick's play in all-star game

The best high school basketball players in the nation squared off in Oakland, California last weekend in the fourth annual McDonald's All-American Game, and Clarkston's Tim McCormick was among them.

McCormick played 13 minutes in the contest before sore knees forced him to the sidelines. During his stint, the former Wolfpack star scored two points, grabbed 10 rebounds and blocked three shots.

McCormick's team, representing the west in the east vs. west format, came away with a 135-111 victory in a game that "didn't feature too much in the way of defense," according to Clarkston High School coach

Gary Nustad, who attended the event.

McCormick's knee problems weren't anything serious, Nustad added.

"Tim will take about a month or so off to rest," Nustad said. "Given the opportunity to rest and work on a weight lifting program designed to strengthen his knees this summer, he'll be OK."

Icers take Adray title

Coach Dick Molter's Lakeland Arena Junior C Hockey Team didn't have a very successful regular season—but they made up for it in the playoffs.

Molter, co-coach Don McArthur and manager Bob Haase guided their team to victory in the Adray Playoffs held on March 28, 29, and 30 after posting a 4-7-9 league record in the regular season.

Following a playoff-opening loss to Birmingham, the team rolled to four straight victories, including a 4-0 win over the same Birmingham squad to take the title.

Goalie Marty White was outstanding in the nets, surrendering but six goals in the five game playoff.

"We just seemed to jell late in the season," said Molter. "I was especially proud of our team because of the class and sportsmanship they've shown all season long."

Tennis, anyone?

Having fun is the keynote in the youth instructional tennis programs at Deer Lake Racquet Club, 6167 White Lake, Independence Township.

But several youngsters are looking down the road to possible college scholarships and even pro careers, says tennis director Chris Pedano.

"We've got a few that could turn pro some day," Pedano says. "It's all a matter of whether they continue to develop or burn themselves out--it takes a tremendous amount of concentration to be a successful tennis player."

At a cost of $5 for club members and $6 for non-members, beginning youngsters can participate in the Youth Program held on Saturdays, featuring an hour of swimming and an hour of tennis instruction.

As they mature and their play improves, they go on to the Junior Development program and finally to the Junior Excellence program. Barry Sturm and Greg Leston assist Pedano with the instruction.

"It's a big advantage for the kids to start young," Pedano says. "We've got some starting as young as 3 years old. The more they play, the quicker they develop their coordination."

"But it's not just a matter of skill and talent--it's also necessary that the kids show a lot of desire. Again, the mental aspects of the game are very important--more so, I think, than in many other sports."

The programs are open to youths right up through high school age. Enrollment in the advanced Junior Excellence program costs $30 for four weeks of instruction.

"All people have to do to enroll is call the racquet club and ask to speak to me," says Pedano. "We'll give them all the details over the phone."

The phone number at Deer Lake is 625-8686.

"...and then you follow through..." instructs Tennis Director Chris Pedano to Tommy Brozovich, an attentive young pupil.

Bobby Riggs proved you're never too old, and youngsters Dawn Martin [left] and Chris Klebba are living proof that you're never too young for the court sport, either.

But new firefighter gets job

Hiring practices under fire

With the hiring of Danny Wall, Independence Township's Fire Department is back to a full-time fire fighting staff of 11. Wall's application to join the firefighters was approved 4-2 at last week's township board meeting.

A volunteer firefighter, Robert Anderson, was also approved in a unanimous decision by the board.

Objections to Wall's application were based on budget and hiring practices.

Wall was the only applicant for the job, said Fire Chief Frank Ronk, who asked the board to waive competitive testing.

"There will be testing as far as agility and the oral interview and so forth," Ronk said.

"The policy has been to hire within until we no longer have applicants from within," he said. "We're not getting as many people within. You might say we're down to the end of the line."

"I essentially don't agree with that policy," said Trustee William Vandermark. "I don't feel comfortable with literally keeping people out."

The policy to hire from the volunteer staff has been in effect since 1972, said Ronk.

"We felt people within the community were certainly interested in the community," he said.

This is the first time, since the policy was adopted, there was only one applicant for a full-time position, the fire chief said.

"It's pretty hard to offer a man $13,600 to start," he explained.

Clerk Christopher Rose objected to hiring another employee, because during the last fiscal year the fire department spent $37,000 more than its income from taxes and inspection fees, he said.

"I don't think we should fill this position," he told Ronk. "I don't think you have the money."

Supervisor Whitey Tower, Treasurer Frederick Ritter, and trustees Jerry Fowell and Michael Thayer cast majority votes approving Wall's hiring, effective April 19.

A resident of Major Avenue, Independence Township, Wall has served as a volunteer for the fire department since April of last year.

The fire department has been without its usual 11 full-time members since Feb. 18 when Jack Beach resigned to work for the Keego Harbor Police Department.

Anderson makes the number of volunteer firefighters 35. The volunteers are paid $5 an hour when called for emergency duty.

From little acorns...

Seedlings will be made available for the public to purchase by the Oakland County Soil and Water Conservation District beginning April 19.

Each year the department offers seedlings for soil conservation purposes at a minimal cost, according to Lou Taylor, district aide.

These seedlings are from 6 to 12 inches in height and cost from $6.50 to $11.50 in lots of 50 depending on the type of seedling and its size.

The department is offering spruce, white dogwood, autumn olive, canoe birch and tulip poplar seedlings.

Order blanks may be obtained from the district office, located at 8326 Highland, Pontiac. The seedlings can be picked up at the County Office Complex on Telegraph Road.

For more information call 666-2232.

The Independence Township Board will receive and then publicly open sealed proposals for the remodeling of a Senior Citizen Center - Carriage House for the Department of Parks and Recreation on Tuesday, April 29, at 3:00 PM EST at the Township Hall, 90 North Main Street, Clarkston, Michigan.

The project consists of remodeling approximately 1400 sq. ft., one story building for recreational facilities. Proposals shall be for combined architectural, mechanical and electrical work.

Obtain contract documents at the Architect's office for $20.00, deposit per set of drawings on or after April 14, 1980. Deposit to be refunded on return of sets in good condition without annotations.

Attention is called to the fact that not less than the minimum salaries and wages as set forth in the Contract Documents must be paid on this project, and that the contractor must ensure that employees and applicants for employment are not discriminated against because of their race, color, religion, sex or national origin, in accordance with Executive Order 11246 Equal Employment Opportunity and Notice of Requirement for Affirmative Action to ensure Equal Employment Opportunity.

Contractor must comply with the Davis Bacon Act July 2nd, 1964 (Title 40 SS 276A). The Equal Employment Opportunity Act September 28, 1965 No. 11246, all United States Department of Labor Regulations and Standards Title 29, 1, 3, and 5, and Title 18, U.S.C., Section 874 known as "Anti-Kickback Act" and the Federal Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970.

Award of Contract may be made on the basis of the proposals most advantageous to the Owner.

Talking about . . .

On Main Street, Clarkston, we asked this weeks question:
Do you head for cover when the tornado siren goes off?

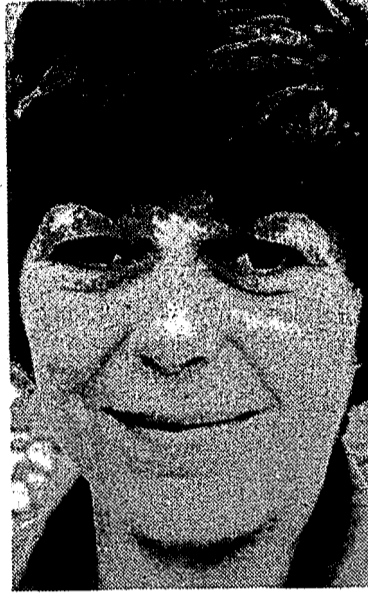

"I sent my son down to the basement, and I went upstairs and opened up all the windows and doors. Then I sat at the top of the stairwell and waited until it was all clear."—Gary Camp, Chapelview Drive, Independence Township, pipe fitter.

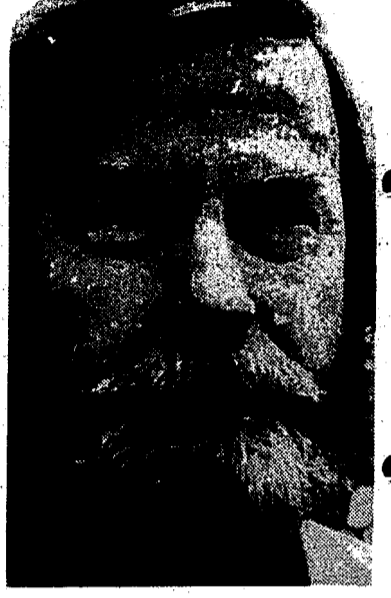

"Yes, we went out into the corridor of the Clarkston Mills, and even brought in two children for safety. We even took them home to their parents after it was over."—Helen Bedell, Burton, saleswoman.

"No, I just kept an eye out for the tornado, and listened to the radio and television."—Richard Butler, Ellis Road, Independence Township, unemployed.

"No, I don't go for cover when the siren goes off. To tell you the truth, when the siren went off Tuesday, my son came upstairs where I was sitting, and we discussed what it meant." — Gwen Kage, Scenic Ridge, Independence Township, Home-maker.

"I did not hear the siren, but then I was in and out of the office all day Tuesday."—Louis Wiltse, Taylor, architect with office in downtown Clarkston.

Tornado sirens whip up response

By Marilyn Trumper

Tornado warning sirens that blasted throughout Independence Township last week sent residents scurrying for their phones to call emergency numbers instead of running for cover.

"The phones were ringing off the hook with questions like, 'Why are the sirens blowing?' and 'What should I do?'" said Frank Ronk, chief of Independence Township's fire department. "For a year-and-a-half we have tried to educate the public about what to do when there is a tornado warning, and we have publicized what the siren blowing means. But when it happens there is mass panic." "Don't people realize that when they call the police and fire departments that they are tying up emergency lines and people who may have an injury or an emergency cannot get through?" he asked.

The fire department received 50-75 calls in 15 minutes, according to Ronk.

"We had four people manning the emergency lines. Had a real emergency come in, we would have taken three of those people, leaving only one to handle all those calls," Ronk added. "That is just impossible to do."

Ron Hill, disaster control coordinator for Oakland County, said his office received 50 calls from the media and private parties and the Oakland County Sheriff's Department received over 100 phone calls when the warning sounded April 8.

"We had people in mobile homes call to find out where to go," Hill said. "People should know where to go. We have made an effort to inform the public through the media and pamphlets, but they still call and tie up the emergency lines."

When the warning sounded in Clarkston, two girls were rescued by Dolores Priebe, an employee of the Village Harbardashery in the Clarkston Mills.

"They were about 10-years-old, and had ridden their bikes into town," Dolores said. "We told them to bring their bikes into the corridor for safe keeping, and after closing time I took them home. They were frightened, and couldn't ride home in that weather."

The township's seven tornado sirens are installed and working according to Chief Ronk.

The sirens cost the township $13,126 through a matching funds program, according to Whitey Tower, township supervisor.

"The federal government paid 50 percent, the county paid 25 percent, and the township paid the remaining 25 percent," he said.

Projected costs for the county were $1 million dollars in 1978, but not all the sirens have been erected throughout the county according to Hill.

"We have 101 sirens on the system both new and modified," he said. "But we originally expected to wind up with 120."

This spring the county hopes to install three more sirens and will continue with installations as long as federal dollars hold out, Hill said.

Tower was not exempt from panic calls during Tuesday's tornado warning.

"I got a half-dozen calls after 5 o'clock when the offices were closed," Tower said. "I thought the township residents understood that when the siren blows anytime, except for 1 p.m. on a Saturday, that they are to take cover. It is time for another reminder in our spring newsletter." When there is a tornado warning, the sirens are sounded at the same time county-wide. The National Weather Service automatically sounds the alarm, but they don't have the equipment available to pinpoint specific areas in Oakland County, according to Hill.

The tornado warning sirens are tested on the first Saturday of every month at 1 p.m. to insure they are in working order.

'Boy was I surprised,' says 74-year-old

So were her party givers

By Marilyn Trumper

Most of the guests were hidden in the family room while the rest huddled in the alcove pulling apart the curtains and peeking through.

They watched as Pam Tweed tried every lie and bit of coaxing she could muster to entice Leonora Ceresa into the house where a surprise party was scheduled to go into action in her honor.

Back and forth Pam ran asking for advice from frustrated family members, friends and neighbors who couldn't believe it. Instead of a surprise party for Leonora on her 74th birthday, the surprise was on all 60 of them.

Leonora wouldn't budge. Someone suggested dragging her out of the Volkswagon Dasher she was sitting in, but the whole gang opted to finally walk out and greet her in the driveway, yelling "Surprise!"

"Oh you're all crazy," Leonora said as she sat in the car staring and shaking her head. "I am going to faint."

Leonora thought her granddaughter Pam was going to take her out to Chinese dinner, and she didn't want to go into the house where a bridal shower was supposed to be happening.

The shower was the fabrication used to explain all the cars parked in the driveway.

Leonora's daughters E.J. Goodwin of Independence Township, Irene Fedorka of Walled Lake and her granddaughter Pam of Independence Township put on the wind-ding at the Goodwin home on Morningstar Court.

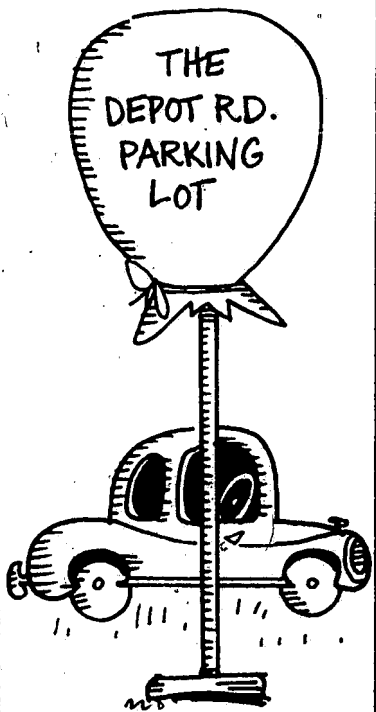

Leonora, a two-year resident of Clarkston, lives on Madison Court.

"I just didn't want to go into a room full of people at a bridal shower, especially people I didn't know," she said. "Boy was I surprised."

Leonora wipes her brow after learning friends and relatives were gathered to wish her a happy 74th birthday.

Early spring, little snow spark grass fire warnings

By Al Zawacky
An early spring may be a blessing when gardening, driving or paying heating bills, but it also carries with it some hidden dangers, according to Independence Township Fire Chief Frank Ronk.

The absence of snow and cold temperatures has meant the arrival of grass fire threats said the chief, noting that Independence Township firefighters have already answered 15 such calls this year.

"Right now, the danger is extremely low because of the wet weather," Ronk said, citing several days of rain and cold. "But all we need is one sunny, warm and windy day, and the danger will be there."

Grass fires are always a threat in the early spring months after the snow is gone and before the grass begins to grow, Ronk said.

"What you have in the spring is nothing but dead grass," he said. "The ground below can be damp, but the grass can still burn like tinder."

"The threat is also high during drought periods in mid-summer and late in the fall when the grass dies again," Ronk said. Ronk cited careless outdoor burning and vandalism as the two major causes behind the fires.

"A lot of it is kids playing with matches, or just setting out deliberately to set a fire," he said. "I would say that 50 percent of the fires are started deliberately."

"It's a difficult thing to stop, too. We have to depend on the people in the community to spot and recognize the culprits."

Residents often tend to forget a permit from the fire department is needed before any outdoor burning may be legally performed, Ronk said.

"People see their neighbors—who've already obtained a permit—burning, and figure they can, too," he said.

Independence Township has some specific guidelines to keep burning safe and minimize the risk of starting fires:

- Only if conventional disposal of the material poses real hardship to the owner should burning be used.

- A permit from the fire department is required to do any type of burning in anything other than an approved container.

- If burning is objectionable to other persons due to the hazard created by the fire or the health hazard caused by the smoke, the burning must be discontinued.

- All burning is to terminate and be completely extinguished by dark.

- A fire extinguisher or garden hose capable of extinguishing the fire must be at the point of burning at all times until the fire is completely out.

- Any permissible burning of materials must be kept in small piles for burning.

- The only materials that may be burned upon issuance of a permit are leaves, scrap wood, brush and tree trimmings.

- Waste paper may only be burned in an approved burner.

- No garbage shall be burned at any time.

- All domestic burners must have a screen type lid to protect from flying sparks.

- No burning of any type is allowed on commercial, multiple or industrial properties at any time.

- The Independence Township fire department should be contacted in the event of special problems arising related to the township burning code.

Swing with jazz ensemble

Swing with the sounds of the Clarkston High School Jazz Ensemble and 19 high school jazz bands this week.

The CHS musicians are to present the third annual Jazz Concert Wednesday and host the State Regional Jazz Festival Saturday.

Both events are free.

On Wednesday, April 16, music will range from the sounds of jazz styles from the "Big Band Era" to the contemporary innovations of Stan Kenton.

Student soloist are to include Jerry Rowland on trumpet; Chris Marlowe, Cliff Matushin and Bob Brand on saxophone; Lisa Steetle on piano; and Paul Brown, Tracy Bailey, Derek Place and Mark Hanna on trombone.

The regional festival on Saturday, April 19, begins at 8:30 a.m. After an hour-long break for lunch at noon, the jazz bands from across the state will continue to play until 4:30 p.m.

Saturday's performances will be judged by members of the state band association and each band will receive a rating from first to fifth.

The CHS Jazz Ensemble has consistently achieved first and second division ratings in its three-year history at regional festivals.

Both events are to be held at the CHS auditorium, 6595 Middle Lake, Independence Township.

CHS band members near goal for DC trip

Raising $12,000 for a trip to Washington, D.C. is no easy task.

But 80 members of Clarkston High School's Jazz Ensemble and Symphonic Band are three-quarters of the way toward reaching their goal.

The Band-A-Thon planned from Friday, April 25, at 4 p.m. to noon Saturday, April 26, is the next fund-raising event.

"The kids are going to be taking pledges, just like they would for a walk-a-thon," said Band Director Clifford Chapman. "They'll be playing 20 hours straight in shifts."

All 80 students will be on hand at the beginning of the Band-A-Thon and all will be there at the end, Chapman said.

"We'll be running through our entire musical library," he said.

Members of the community are invited to drop by and listen to the music or bring their musical instruments and join in from 4 to 10 p.m. Friday and from 8 a.m. to noon Saturday.

The Clarkston Band Boosters have helped raise the $9,000 already gathered by the CHS band members for the trip for the band members and five chaperones.

The invitation to participate in the Festival of Nations at the Capitol was received by the band in November.

Selection of participating bands was through a competitive audition based on musicianship and achievement.

The festival is administered by International Music Festivals, a non-profit organization promoting musical excellence and high educational standards through national and international experience.

"For Clarkston's bands, the invitation to participate is an honor and an earned privilege," said Chapman.

Oakland County Sheriff's Department deputies scaling walls is only one of the features of the ESCAPE program tour. This deputy has been trained to propel himself off the wall, going up or down. This technique is used to gain access to a window from the roof of a building.

Caesar, a three-year-old German Shepherd, sits placidly with a gun in his mouth as if it were an everyday occurrence. Ed Stout, a 15-year veteran of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, is the senior dog handler for the department. He trains Caesar to retrieve anything that has a fresh human scent upon it. Caesar hustled up the gun from behind a pine where it was planted by Sheriff's Deputies during a hunt demonstration.

Sheriff Johannes Spreen exhibits checks totaling $1,000 which he is donating for the ESCAPE program's kick-off. Spreen has kept the checks from speaker fees he has received over the years, and he says he will continue to use any similar checks for the same purpose.

New ESCAPE program

Tours teach respect

By Marilyn Trumper

Kids are involved in half of all crimes and fatal accidents according to Oakland County Sheriff Johannes Spreen.

Many kids, he said, have no respect for the law.

"Ten percent like and respect us, and 10 percent hate our guts," he said.

Peer group pressure has a strong influence among the young, and the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCS D) has plans to equalize that pressure.

A new program Spreen instituted this week, "Enroll in the Sheriff's Crime and Accident Prevention Education" (ESCAPE), is targeted toward educating young people about the workings of the police department, but people of all ages are encouraged to participate.

Spreen said the program will last three hours, and will consist of lectures by trained department specialists and a tour of the jail and complex.

By Thursday of this week,

Clarkston News

Spreen said he plans to send letters to teachers and school administrators in the county, informing them of ESCAPE and inviting their participation with class trips.

The program is geared toward explaining a deputy's job, and why that job is necessary.

The program is also aimed toward explaining what the Sheriff's Department is doing to help the community, and how they have helped in the past.

The public will have the opportunity to examine police cars and boats at close range, view a slide show, and witness a special police sniper unit scale walls.

Spreen is also planning to offer a track and retrieve demonstration with a police dog.

"Most importantly we want to bring these kids into the lecture room and engage in a dialogue," Spreen said. "So that when those kids leave here they will have a new respect. I want to hear them say, 'I would like to be a member of the OCS D.'"

Spreen said he will use $1,000 of his own money, saved from speaking fees, to kick off the program. He said he thinks this money will last for several months, and he hopes others will see the benefit of the program and contribute towards it.

The $1,000 is to be spent on refreshments for visitors of the complex who are participating in the ESCAPE program, Spreen said.

Information about the program may be obtained by calling 858-4950.

Sunday delight at Spring Lake

Last of the Red Hot Lovers

By Neil Simon

Brandon S.T.A.G.E. Community Theatre

Spring Lake Country Club

"Shouldn't there be something more than this?" 43-year-old Barney Cashman asks in the first act of Neil Simon's "Last of the Red Hot Lovers."

Suffering one of adult life's unpleasant transformations, poor Barney tries to experience something else in his orderly life besides the predictableness of his staid, faithfully married situation.

That is the premise of this Simon play which first appeared on Broadway in 1969 and has been done by nearly every amateur and community drama group in America since.

Barney goes through the motions of attempting to have an affair now in the dining room of Spring Lake Country Club on Sunday nights. There, the Brandon S.T.A.G.E. Community Theatre group is producing this comedy in a dinner theatre setting with a cast that seems ideal.

"Last of the Red Hot Lovers" is not the greatest Simon play, but when you work with a premise that makes a good one-actor and try to stretch it to three acts, the problems are evident.

Better maybe that he kept it to one act and included it in one of his Suites (Like Plaza or California).

However, audiences in the last 10 years have not been particularly bothered by the weakness of the play and have been laughing their way through it as they did at Spring Lake Country Club last Sunday night when the play opened.

Making her directorial debut, Becky Roberts has fashioned a play that has many hilarious moments.

The middle of three acts is by far the funniest as Dick Williams, who plays the part of Barney with appropriate conservatism and a frequent worried knitting of his forehead, encounters a lovably fresh and certifiably wacky woman in Bobbi.

Bobbi is a would-be singer and actress who has a frizzy mind and an uncanny way of falling into sexual predicaments.

Fran Moore plays the part of Bobbi with a toss of her long blond hair that defines her character better even than her lines.

In each act, Barney takes a different woman to his mother's apartment in the hopes of some few moments of blissful love which will help him be something other than a nothing. Perhaps, he thinks, an affair will assure him that he will, in fact, not die soon.

The first act is his first try at uncomplicated sex, but Barney soon finds that he is too complicated himself for that. Also, he has the misfortune of inviting Elaine to his mother's place.

Marge Forbes, as Elaine, is a sarcastic, abrasive, hard-boiled woman who speaks in clipped and flippant statements that destroy Barney's illusions about a beautiful, fantasy affair.

She has been through this scene many times before.

His last attempt to live out his fantasies ("For once, I would like to know that I didn't just exist, I lived.") in act three is with Jeanette. She is a woman in he and his wife's circle of friends. She is a chronic depressive who pops pills to avoid suicide.

Barney's afternoon with her begins with her crying and asking him cynical questions about the awful state of the world. It ends with a mad chase around the room with the purse-clutching depressive.

Barney works through his mid-life crisis and seems to be a stronger, more self-assured individual at the conclusion of the play. Even if he isn't the red hot lover he thought he could be.

There are plenty of laughs here in a well-acted and well-directed performance.

At the moment, this seems to be the best way to spend a Sunday night in this area.

Ronald House to benefit

'McHappy Day' coming April 27

Customers curing their "Big-Mac attacks" at local McDonald's Restaurants April 27 will be doing more than just satisfying their appetites.

They'll also be donating to charity as result of McDonald's "McHappy Day" festivities.

"McDonald's will donate 25 cents of the price of each Big Mac sold to the Ronald McDonald House," says Jan Green, McHappy Day coordinator at McDonald's of Independence Township, 6695 Dixie Highway. "It's all part of McDonald's 25th anniversary celebration."

Located in Detroit near Children's Hospital, the Ronald McDonald House acts as a home away from home for parents and relatives of ill children at the hospital.

Lodgers are asked to contribute just $7 a night to the facility's operation, but families unable to pay the amount may stay free of charge, Green says.

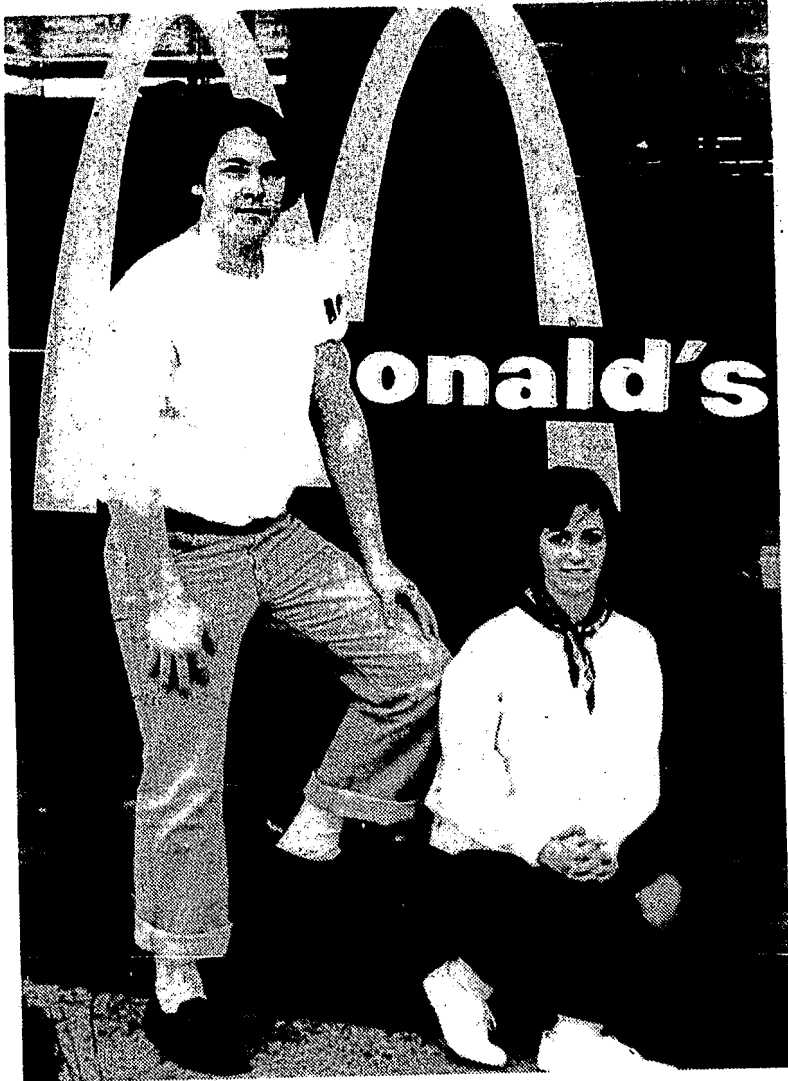

Adding to the festivities on "McHappy Day" will be balloons and visits from local celebrities, including CKLW radio disc jockey Dick Purtan. McDonald's own Ronald McDonald will also put in an appearance.

To commemorate McDonald's founding in 1955, employees will be dressed in 1950's attire and free slices of birthday cake will be handed out.

"McHappy Day" will officially begin at 10:30 a.m. when Big Macs and the rest of the lunch menu start, says Green.

"We're going to keep the activities going as long as all the supplies hold out--hopefully, until late in the evening," she adds. "It's going to be fun for our customers and employees alike--and it's all benefiting a good cause."

No, it's not a scene from "Sha-na-na"—it's McDonald's employees Mike Clair and Cindy Brewer, modeling the proper attire for McDonald's "McHappy Day" coming April 27.

Country Living by Marilyn Trumper

Shelly Poole laughs as she confesses. "Our garage is usually cleaner than the house."

Shelly, 29, and her husband Barney, 33, recondition old cars, and working in the garage has become a family affair at their Independence Township home.

According to Shelly, even their 6-year-old son Duane gets into the act.

"He tries to help as much as possible," Shelly said. "He knows all the names of the tools, and spends a lot of hours helping his dad out in the garage."

Work on Pot-O-Gold, the Pooles' 1929 Ford, two-door street sedan, has subsided for the day.

Instead of tools, the garage floor is littered with unassembled swing set poles. The Pooles' daughter, Michele, 10, stands quietly to the side and waits for its completion.

Time for swing set assembly was not always available. For the last seven months, every free minute was spent whipping Pot-O-Gold into shape for her first showing.

After the months of buffing, rubbing, sanding, scraping and painting, the Pooles' diligent work was recognized.

Their first time out showing any car, the Pooles took second place in the street sedan division at the seventh Annual Port Huron Autorama, March 30.

Pot-O-Gold's paint job merited 10 extra International Show Car Association points, and the Pooles later found out that they were tied for second with the car's interior.

Work on the car's interior was done by Sportcraft Interiors of Waterford Township.

"I was really surprised," Barney said. "The first time out winning a second and the 10 extra points, well I just couldn't believe it."

"It makes you know it was all worth it," Shelly said. "You know how your car matches up to the other guys', but you see your own car all the time and get used to it. You don't realize the impact it has on other people, or the judges."

Pot-O-Gold has a vinyl padded roof, and custom stitched running board bearing her name. She has a gold paint job, with a striking smoke effect to her trim.

"We think the smoked effect was what gave us the extra points," Barney said. "There was a lot of stiff competition with the black and wild cherry paint jobs on the other cars, but ours was unique."

The most difficult aspect of reconditioning old cars is the art of parts hunting, according to Barney.

"I am his 'gopher'," Shelly said. "I gopher this part, and gopher that part. When I walk into a parts store, management always says, 'Here comes Barney's wife.' You lose your identity after awhile," she laughed.

Barney, an 11-year veteran of Bloomfield Township's Fire Department said, "One of the best things about that job, are the hours. It's a 24-hour-shift job, so it leaves plenty of time for working on the car."

When Pot-O-Gold was bought, "she was a basket case," according to Shelly.

"I answered an ad in the paper, brought her home and she sat for three years before I started work on her," Barney said. "She was all rusted out, and had been sitting in a garage in Commerce Township."

Now, with eight coats of gold paint, and 16 coats of clear lacquer, the car that was bought for

The family that builds together washes together. That could be the motto of the Poole's, the family whose hobby is reconditioning old cars. When their '29 Ford needs a bath, Barney and Shelly, their daughter Michele, and son Duane all pitch in and help. After all, they can't win second place in a car show and plan to win more without the constant attention required to keep the car clean.

When the work is done it is time for play. The whole family rides in the car for outings, which the Poole's attend frequently. Members of Classic Rods and Kustoms, the family regularly goes on rod-runs and to club functions driving in style, in a car even Henry Ford would be proud of.

$500 is worth $15,000.

Pot-O-Gold is the Pooles' second reconditioned automobile. Their first car was a 1932 two-door sedan. It was stolen in Ohio while the Pooles were on their way to the Street Rod Nationals. "Now we have our eye out for a second 1929 Ford for me," Shelly said.

"We are going to make it the twin of Pot-O-Gold with a few changes. We hope to have the first twin set like this, because we don't think it has ever been done before."

Only the frame and the back seat are original on Pot-O-Gold. "The rest is all reproduction parts," Barney said. "But they are hard to find. I've had to order them from all over the country."

Car buffs use a communications and skills network system, trading information and talents.

"There is always someone who knows how to find a certain part, or how to shoot paint better than the next guy," Barney said. "This is where Classic Rods and Kustoms comes in."

Barney is serving his second year as president of the club. "Members help each other on their cars, find parts and offer suggestions," he said. "It is also a social club with family events."

Last year, the club sponsored a car wash downtown Clarkston, and donated the proceeds to the Clarkston Band Boosters, according to Shelly.

In between cups of hot coffee to keep Barney awake while he's working in the garage, Shelly becomes the "wrench-handler".

"I help out whenever it is possible. I am the wrench handler when we come to things that are mechanically over my head," she said.

Receiving a second-place award for their first-time showing, can only mean one thing for the second showing of Pot-O-Gold.

"Next time, we'll go for a first!" they agreed in unison.

Forty five cadets and five senior CAP members arrived at Patrick Air Force Base for the purpose of witnessing the launching of Apollo 13.

Announcing their intent to seek re-election were Independence Township Supervisor, Duane Hursfall and Township clerk, Howard Altman.

Between 300 and 400 people answered the call for help from the Woodhull Subdivision clean up committee and turned out to help clean up tons of accumulated junk from the area. More than 150 of this force were CHS students.

Dine, dance at Club Players

He's always enjoyed entertaining, says Independence and Brandon township attorney Richard Campbell, so his first venture as a restaurateur suits him well.

Campbell, who lives in Waterford Township, and his partner Dr. David Swayze, an Independence Township resident, own The Club Players, 4922 Dixie Highway, Waterford Township.

Doing business

The two purchased the restaurant, formerly the Panhandler, last September, closed it five weeks to redecorate, and it has been in full swing since November.

"Before, the place was a drinking bar," says Campbell. "We are emphasizing food and an atmosphere that is compatible with family dining and with dancing in the later evening with snacks until midnight."

Chef Skip Julius, formerly of Pontiac Silverdome's Main Event, is in charge of the kitchen.

"He's excellent at specialty dishes," says Campbell, who recommends the chef's daily soup creations, special omelettes and daily entrees like Eggs Benedict.

Also on the menu are seafood, steaks, hamburgers and sandwiches, salads and snacks.

The average price of a dinner is about $6 and the highest priced item on the menu is a tenderloin filet at $8.95.

Manfred Ostermeir has been general manager of the restaurant since January.

Before joining the Club Players' staff, he was general manager of Archibald's of Birmingham.

Ostermeir, born and raised in Germany, got his start in the restaurant business at the Gen. Von Steuben Hotel in Wiesbaden, Germany, as a wine steward and bartender.

He came to the United States in 1970.

"I took an immediate liking to Mr. Campbell," says Ostermeir about his decision to work at The Club Players. "I feel I can learn more being involved in an independent operation."

"You can be more creative and it is a creative business."

Campbell's daughter Joy serves as floor manager for the restaurant and his daughter Vicki works part time as a waitress.

Touches of hominess have found their way to the menu with many dishes named after Campbell's friends and business associates.

Sandwiches, for instance, carry such handles as R.T.'s Treat, Sponge's Special, Harold's Rarebit and Fast Freddie.

A six-day-a-week operation, The Club Players is usually closed on Sundays except for special days like upcoming Mother's Day.

The new decor at the restaurant consists of plaid carpeting and a color scheme of rust, brown and tan.

Eclectic best describes the choice of high chairs at tables in the bar area and at "stand-up bars" there and near the dance floor, bentwood chairs at the other tables, brass accents, framed movie posters and life-size blow-ups of Marilyn Monroe, Clark Gable and James Stewart.

Band music begins at the restaurant at 9 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

"There's no hard and no punk rock. It's designed for dancers that learned to dance in the 50's. My design is to appeal to the mature crowd like myself," says Campbell, who is 46.

Monday night is ladies' night with half-price drinks for women and music provided by guitarist Ed Blach with easy-listening tunes of artists like Neil Diamond and James Taylor beginning at 8 p.m.

Hours at the restaurant are 11:30 a.m. to 2 a.m. Monday through Friday and 5 p.m. to 2 a.m. Saturday.

Dinner is served until 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday and until 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and snacks are served until midnight.

Chef Skip Julius prepares his own soups.

Joy Campbell serves as floor manager and Manfred Ostermeir is general manager of The Club Players.

Coping with kids

Divorce can spur destructive contest

"He's turning the kids against me," complained a recently divorced mother of two children. The husband in the same family, now living away from the children, said, "I don't want her to win the children over to her side."

His side, her side. It sounds like a competition and a tug-of-war.

Such rivalries with the children seemingly as the prize to be captured are not unusual following a divorce. Each parent tries to have the children like them best.

Even otherwise rational, intelligent and loving parents behave as if their future happiness was determined by whether the kids like them or their former spouse better.

And what does it do for the kids?

Not any more than it does for the parents. It is a destructive, divisive battle that leaves everyone depressed and angry.

It usually does nothing but add to the guilt of most parents who know the hammerlock they have on the emotions of the children is wrong.

The children are usually upset and the symptoms they report are common for children with problems: nightmares, poor appetite and crying spells.

The problem is rightly the parents and their own difficulties with loneliness and separation.

Bringing in the children into it with criticisms of the other parent and various covert or blatant attempts to win the children over complicate the problems and obscure the real issue.

In most cases, the real issue is that one or both parents are hurt, angry or bitter because they have been left.

Winning the children over to their side somehow proves that they are better loved (at least by the kids) and are still adequate (at least as a parent).

It may be some comfort to a divorced parent to know that the kids are "on my side" against someone who could leave "a loving person like me."

Dragging the kids into the problem further upsets them when they are already greatly disturbed by the parent's actions.

Sometimes, post-divorce counseling is needed individually or together for two parents, now separated, who have not learned to deal with a former spouse and their feelings toward that person.

Insurance agent takes time to explain policies

Mike Block says he's always ready to provide clients with personal service. His office on Dixie Highway in Independence Township can handle all his customers' insurance needs.

Mike Block's major tasks as an associate agent for John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company are "solving problems" and "explaining policies" in terms that all prospective clients can understand, he says.

Doing business

"You hear a lot of people say they have life insurance, yet they don't really know what the policy does for them," says Block.

"What I like to do is sit down with people, take the time to pinpoint what problems might arise in their lives, and show them how they might need what we have to sell.

"There's no high pressure involved--the customer knows his own needs better than anyone," he notes.

Block joined John Hancock in 1966 and is currently affiliated with O'Keefe, Cavanaugh, Dold and Associates, a financial planning firm based in Gross Pointe. He manages the firm's branch office in Independence Township, 6751 Dixie Highway.

"O'Keefe, Cavanaugh, Dold and Associates is a partnership of professionals," Block says. "We've combined the talents of various professions to assist the business and professional person in financial planning."

But no policy is too small for personal attention, Block adds.

"We have a small office here, and are always willing to take time with each prospective customer," he says.

Besides being associated with John Hancock, Block says he also calls on other insurance companies as well to fit the customer's needs.

"We can call on John Hancock, and they're one of the best-known and most respected insurance carriers in the United States," he says. "But we find at times that it's impossible to represent the clients best interest with just one insurance company--due to the complicated, varying needs of the individual.

"It's always been our policy to place our client's needs ahead of those of any particular insurance company."

This flexibility enables Block to insure individuals who may have been unable to obtain insurance in the past due to medical problems, he said.

"One of the companies we represent has guaranteed life insurance up to $75,000, regardless of past medical history," he says.

And while not specializing in auto, home and other types of insurance, Block says he offers all these policies as customer services.

"The thing we want to stress in is that people can get professional, personal service here at rates competitive with any other firm.

"Since we're not tied down to a particular company, we can keep the customer's needs and interests in the forefront without having him pay any more than that he might on some 'discount' policy," Block says.

Olsen appointed instructor

Robert A. Olsen, CLU, has been appointed to the faculty of the Life Underwriter Council of Washington, D.C.

He is to instruct local classes in training of agents and managers in the life insurance industry.

Olsen is a member of Oakley, Olsen and Knaus, Licensed Insurance Consultants, 39 S. Main, Clarkston.

His appointment as an instructor was effective March 25.

After speeding down the steep hill the game becomes one of make it or lose it. Beneath the I-75 overpass on Clarkston Road, Mike Acha, 12, of Waterford Township starts to lose it but recovers nicely. He lands without a tumble.

By leaps and bounds

As the front wheel flies up in the air, Matt Scott, 14, Buffalo Street, Clarkston, readies his face as well as his body for that final moment of impact.

While the front spokes may be covered for safety, the nature of youngsters is to go for the thrill of it all. Dave Acha, 16, of Waterford Township is giving this jump all he has.
