Republicans vie for clerk, trustee ballot slots

By Marilyn Trumper

The primary race is on in Independence Township with seven Republicans running for four trustee slots and two Republicans vying for the clerk's position.

In all, 15 candidates filed for the Aug. 5 primary election by the 4 p.m. deadline Tuesday.

All seven positions on the township board are up for re-election with at least two people running for each full-time office.

In each case, with the exception of the full-time clerk's office and the part-time trustee positions, one Democrat and one Republican has chosen to run.

Barring a successful bid by a write-in candidate, those people will be the candidates in the November general election.

The Aug. 5 primary will whittle down from seven to four Republican trustee candidates, and only one Republican clerk will be chosen by his or her party.

All election candidates must live in Independence Township and will be formally accepted pending verification of petition signatures.

In the running to fill the seat of township supervisor are incumbent Floyd J. Tower (D) 177 North Main, Clarkston, and James B. Smith (R), 8551 Allen.

Candidates for the position of township clerk are incumbent Christopher Rose, (R), 6767 Snowapple, Ralph A. Chambers (R), 6196 Paramus, and Karen Herron (D), 6315 Maybee.

The race for the position of township treasurer is between incumbent Frederick P. Ritter (D), 6593 Amy and Carol Balzarini (R), 1027 Reese.

Incumbents in the race for township trustees are Michael Thayer (R), 46 Clarkston-Orion, Jerry E. Powell (R), 6134 Overlook and William D. Vandermark (R), 6594 Cherylawn.

Newcomers seeking trustee positions are Dale A. Stuart (R), 7336 Mustang, Daniel F. Travis (R), 7973 Perry Lake, Lyn Edward Mead (R), 5495 Boyne Highland and Larence Kozma (R), 5190 Woodcreek. The only Democrat in the trustee race is Guy Z. Derryberry, 6953 Tappan.

Rudy Lozano, completing a two-year term as township trustee did not file for re-election.

"Being in the real estate business and the climate being what it is, I no longer have the flexibility to devote the time to the township," Lozano said.

Lozano, co-owner of Evans and Associates Real Estate Company in Waterford, explained further.

"I've enjoyed the people I've worked with and the job I've performed, but business takes too much of my time and it would not be fair to the township if I committed myself to a four-year term."

Springfield park board attracts 3

By Al Zawacky

Springfield Township voters will affect the outcome of one township primary race by going to the polls for the Aug. 5 primary.

Three Republicans have filed their candidacy for two seats on the Springfield Park Commission. The top two vote getters will appear on the general election ballot in November.

The 10 remaining individuals who filed for five different offices are all assured spots on the November ballot, pending certification of the signatures on their filing petitions and their residency in Springfield Township.

Candidates for supervisor, treasurer, clerk and trustee have all filed unopposed in their respective parties, while two Republicans and one Democrat have filed for two positions on the Township Library Board.

Filing for the park commission openings were Republicans Charles A. Going, Frederic Steward and Robert J. Stiles.

Going, 41451 Parker, is the lone incumbent. Stewart lives at 9901 Gibbs and Stiles at 10735 King.

Without any Democratic opposition in November, the top two vote-getters in the August primary are assured of election to the Park Commission.

Filing for election to a four-year term as township supervisor were Republican incumbent

Collin Walls and Democrat John H. Mulloy Jr.

Walls, who lives at 8805 Marquait, was first elected supervisor in 1976 and ran unopposed for re-election in 1978.

Mulloy lives at 9358 Eagle Hill.

Filing for treasurer were Republican incumbent Patricia L. Kramer, 8585 Eaton, and Marjorie Kirk, 1037 Big Lake. Incumbent Republican J. Calvin Walters, 7225 Ormond, was the only person to file for the position of township clerk.

Filing for trustee positions on the township board were Democratic incumbent Glenn J. Vermilye, 12601 Andersonville, and Republican William K. Whitley, 9850 Gibbs.

Vermilye has served on the township board since 1974. Whitley is currently serving on the board as well, having been appointed to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Glenn Underwood.

The three persons filing for library board positions were Republicans Shirley Secatch and Mary J. Watson and Democrat Ina J. Golden.

Golden, 8569 Tindall, and Watson, 13459 Rattalee Lake, and the two incumbents, Secatch, 8612 West Ellis, Golden and Watson are all assured spots on the November ballot, with the top two vote-getters in November winning seats.

Local questions

Millage renewal proposition

What it says—

Shall the constitutional limitation on the total amount of taxes which may be imposed in any one year upon property in Clarkston Community School District, Oakland County, Michigan, be increased for the period of ten (10) years from 1981-1990, both inclusive, by three (3) mills ($3 per $1,000) on assessed valuation as finally equalized, to defray a part of the operating expenses of the school district (such increase being a renewal of this 3 mill increase which expires in 1980)?

What it means—

The ballot request asks for a 10-year renewal of an existing 3-mill tax for operational expenses for Clarkston Community Schools.

A homeowner with property assessed at $40,000 (or one-half market value) pays $120 for the 3-mill tax levy, because 3 mills are $3 for each $1,000 of assessed valuation.

The Clarkston Community School district covers most of Independence Township and a portion of Springfield, Waterford and White Lake township.

The present 3-mill levy does not expire until 1981 when the renewal propositions would go into effect if passed.

Because the state aid formula used to determine how much money comes to the school district is based, in part, on millages approved by voters, the 3 mills represent a total income of about $953,000 to the district.

The current tax rate for the district is 29.047 mills. Of that amount, 20.79 mills are voter approved and 9.54 mills are from the Oakland County allocation.

The school budget is about $12,136,000.

(See related story, page 4)

Clarkston Board of Education

Four candidates are vying for two seats on the Clarkston Board of Education.

The four-year terms are to expire in 1984.

The candidates are: Ann Glenn, Addison Hubbard, incumbent C. Vincent Luzi and Carol Townsend.

For background information and their statements, see page 3 of today's Clarkston News.

County-wide questions

OCC transfer proposition

What it says—

To be levied as a replacement for corresponding reductions in building bond debt service tax levies, shall the limitation on the property taxes in the Oakland Community College District, State of Michigan, (except taxes levied for building bond debt which are not subject to limit) be increased but not to exceed 2/10 mill (20 cents per $1,000) for the year 1981 and each year thereafter of the state equalized valuation of the district?

What it means—

The transfer proposition is a request to voters to allow the transfer of a millage presently collected for the building fund to be transferred to the operating fund, said Lila Johnson, chairperson of the board of trustees for Oakland Community College and campaign manager for the millage transfer election.

If approved, the amount would be up to .2 mill which equals $8 for a home with an assessed property valuation of $40,000 (or one-half market value).

"We plan to use (the money) for maintenance of buildings and the advancement and improvement of our career education area," Johnson said.

OCC has four campuses in five locations across Oakland County—the southeast campus has two sites, one in Oak Park and one in Royal Oak; the Orchard Ridge campus is in Farmington Hills; the Highland Lakes campus is in Union Lake; and the Auburn Hills campus is east of Pontiac.

OCC district trustees

There are 10 candidates running for three seats on the six-member Oakland Community College Board of Trustees.

They are to be elected for six-year terms to expire in 1986.

The candidates and their addresses are: Theodore Dziurman, 4228 Allegheny, Troy; Robert Filiatrault, 2352 Bratton, Bloomfield Hills; Mariellen Greenbury, 36675 Greenspring, Farmington Hills; incumbent David Hackett, 1380 Ruby, Rochester; Margaret MacTavish, 3919 Mt. Vernon, Birmingham; Richard Pappas, 3912 Anvil, Troy; Veronica Sexton, 1466 Rivona, Pontiac; Nancy Vangilder, 5348 Greenbriar, West Bloomfield; incumbent Barbara Willing, 126 E. Rowland, Madison Heights; and John Yezman, 1220 Auburn, Rochester.

Clarkston School Board candidates

Voters will select two for four-year terms Monday, June 9

Ann Glenn

Addison Hubbard

C. Vincent Luzi

Carol Townsend

Ann Glenn

Ann Glenn, 42, is presently a member of the Michigan White House Conference on Families and a member of the Michigan Citizens Committee for the Arts.

She studied the field of medicine while attending Duke University and the University of Utah.

From 1971-76, she was a member of the Chittenden South School Board in Vermont, and served as president of the Williston Elementary School in Vermont two years.

A director of Bible study for youth at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, she is also on the board of directors of women's programs for the church.

She and her husband Richard and their three children, Heather, 19, Shelley, 18, and Lisa, 13, live at 10175 Reese, Independence Township.

Her statement:

I am a candidate for the school board, because I believe in citizen involvement and because I have served on a school board in Vermont. I feel my experience there will be valuable to the district here.

I believe in children and the worth of each in view of their differing growth patterns, emotions, and interests. I believe in worthy family membership and that parents need to be heard in their schools and in the district.

The state of the economy is going to require courage and creativity to best meet the needs of our youngsters. I have experienced in this area and believe schools are as good as the attitudes they display toward children.

Facilities are a need, but program, in many cases, need not wait for this to come about. Physical education in elementary and advanced placement in high school are two needs I see which would have not cost implication.

A board member should be familiar with the personality of each school, its needs, strengths, weaknesses. He should have the time to be accessible to schools, parents, and students. I commit to do this.

Addison Hubbard

Addison Hubbard, 36, is an accountant for General Motors Corp. Truck and Coach Division, Pontiac.

A graduate of Ferris State College, Big Rapids, he majored in accounting. He has also completed the GM Advanced Management Program.

He serves as father-vice president of the Clarkston Elementary PTO and is chairman of the playground committee for the school.

He and his wife Cindy and their two children, Brian, 7, and Bradley, 3, live at 7126 Glenburnie, Independence Township.

His statement:

My first goal would be to improve the standard of education for our students. Clarkston has the potential of being a leader in education in southeastern Michigan and to reach higher standard than has been exhibited lately.

I was not satisfied with our present results in the Michigan Education Assessment, Metropolitan Achievement and the Otis-Lennon Ability tests.

These tests showed where improvement is needed in the area of math, and I feel that we should reevaluate our math curriculum and make changes in the number of credits required.

I do not understand why Clarkston has been satisfied with results that are average and why we are not striving for results that are above average.

I feel that the problem that will cause the most concern in the years ahead is the budget. This concern has come about due to the roll-back in property taxes from the Headlee Amendment, a 1 percent to 3 percent decrease in state funds, and the possibility of the Tisch Amendment passing, which will cause the school system to make sacrifices in the budget.

If elected, I would like to establish a budget committee of board members and administrators to set the budget and make sure it is maintained.

C. Vincent Luzi

C. Vincent Luzi, 40 is assistant director of personnel for Oakland County. Presently a member of the Clarkston Board of Education, he has served one four-year term.

A graduate of Western Michigan University, he has taken post graduate courses at WMU, Michigan State University, Oakland University and Detroit College of Law.

He was employed by Clarkston Community Schools from 1962-65 as a teacher, and is presently a member of the International and Michigan Personnel Management Associations, and the National and Michigan School Board Associations.

He and his wife and their two sons, ages 11 and 8, live at 7690 Dixie Highway, Independence Township.

His statement:

I believe my responsibility as a board member is to:

- Provide leadership which will unite the community to provide the best possible education for every child in the district.

- Work toward community cooperation by keeping the board of education open to the ideas and opinions of all parents, teachers, administrators and other interested citizens.

- Promote the open meetings concept and inform citizens fully as to how and why board decisions are made.

- Keep education of children and meeting children's needs in the process of education as our first and foremost concern.

- Act as community control on the expenditure of tax dollars and to keep the public fully informed on how its school tax dollars are being spent.

I believe schools work best and accomplish worthwhile objectives when the entire community—parents, teachers, administration, students and our neighbors—commit ourselves to the reality that we are all accountable for the result of our schools and the educational process we have molded.

Carol Townsend

Carol Townsend, 29, is a computer terminal operator for Motorcar Transport, Pontiac.

A Waterford Kettering High School graduate, she has attended banking and business courses offered by the American Institute of Banking.

A member of the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation, she is presently assisting in forming a local chapter.

She and her husband Donald and their two children, Jennifer, 9, and Joanna, 7, live at 5590 Edgar, Springfield Township.

Her statement:

It's a fact that we need more representation on our school board that is able to respond to the needs of our community.

I feel that some areas of the district are being represented quite well, while others are being overlooked and denied the attention they are entitled to.

I believe the main function of the school board is to insure the very best education for the children of the community.

To make this possible, we need more school board members who are responsive to the needs of the district.

In order for a board to be effective on all levels, I think the member should have the time to put forth all his or her effort and ability to make our children's education the best it can be.

I don't think this is possible for a person who runs a business or is involved with many organizations and committees.

I'm not knocking these, it's just that I feel a board member should have school business on his or her mind rather than what's next on the schedule.

Above all, our children deserve the best education that we can possibly give them, and I feel I can give my best by working on the school board to insure the public opinion is heard and dealt with.

School program cuts certain, says Mason

By Kathy Greenfield

Cuts in programs offered by Clarkston Community Schools are now inevitable, according to Superintendent Milford Mason.

While Mason earlier predicted if the 3-mill tax renewal proposal on the upcoming June 9 school election ballot passed, the district could maintain its present programs, recent changes have made such a plan impossible.

And the need for voter approval of the 3-mill tax renewal is even more crucial, Mason said.

"I just can't emphasize strongly enough that we need the support of everyone on the continuation of the 3 mills," he said. "There will still have to be cuts even with a positive vote."

"What's happened to us has been critical. I accept the fact the state is in trouble and we have to do with less, but we've gotten the double and triple whammy."

"I won't even speculate on the cuts right now," he said, adding that he plans to have details ready for the July school board meeting. "It's going to have to be a combination of belt-tightening and cutting."

The first budget blow came when recent state cuts of about $35 million for education reduced expected income to Clarkston schools by about $597,000.

In addition, last week when the 1980 State Equalized Valuation (SEV) report, which is used to determine taxes, came in from Oakland Schools, the income projection was cut even more.

The condition of the economy was reflected to a greater degree in the SEV than he expected, Mason said.

New construction figures are used with the Headlee formula to determine the amount of money that goes to the school district, and Mason's estimate of new construction was $6.5 million higher than the actual figure.

The result was a reduction in expected income by an additional $136,428.

Now instead of the $340,347 budget deficit Mason predicted in April with his first preliminary budget, the expected deficit has increased to $733,764 and if the 3-mill tax renewal proposal fails, the amount will swell to $829,837.

The district has accumulated equity amounting to over $2 million since 1977, so the money should help alleviate results of Headlee and the economy.

"I did so to buffer the day when the economy might create funding problems," Mason said about the equity. "That day has arrived."

But even if the economy improves significantly in the next year, the schools will again face lower income because of lack of building and problems generated by loss of funds on the state level, Mason said.

"Needless to say, I'm wringing my hands," he said.

In 1979-80, the Clarkston schools' budget was $12,136,370.

In preliminary budget for 1980-81 lists estimated expenditures of $13,335,344 and estimated revenue of $12,601,580, creating a deficit of $733,764.

If the 3-mill renewal fails, the revenue estimate drops to $12,505,507 with a deficit figure of $829,837.

"I seriously believe the deficit beyond 500,000 must be cut from the 1980-81 budget," Mason said. "To do otherwise will place us in an act of compounding the deficit in 1981-82."

With voter turnout expected to be light June 9, it looks like a vast minority of registered voters will determine the outcome of the election, according to township Clerk Christopher Rose.

The number of voters for a school election usually numbers between 1,000 and 2,000, Rose said, and there are between 10,000 and 11,000 registered voters.

Election results of the local questions which include the proposed 3-mill renewal and four candidates for two four-year terms on the Clarkston School Board are to be announced Monday evening at the school board meeting.

The board meets at 8 p.m. at the Board of Education offices, 6389 Clarkston-Orion, in Independence Township.

He bounces back

By Marilyn Trumper

This might be termed a hair-raising experience.

Brad Moshier, a ninth-grader at Clarkston Junior High School, was working diligently at his job as lighting director for the school's then upcoming play, "Never Spindle, Mutilate or Fold."

To his surprise, and the surprise of the students looking on, Brad touched a plug prong that was in the wall socket. When 110 volts of electricity charged through his body, he proceeded to spindle and fold, right onto the floor.

"I was standing on a chair trying to unplug a plug from the wall socket, when the wall plate moved right along with the plug," Brad said. "I tried to push back the plate and accidentally touched the prongs of the plug that were still in the outlet."

"I was knocked off the chair I was standing on, hit the wall, and one student watching said I fell into a spotlight."

"I was really scared," the 15-year-old said, "when I couldn't move my arms for a few minutes after it happened."

At the time, he said he was all right, but later that afternoon he went to the school office complaining of nausea.

"We called his parents, and they called the family doctor," said Douglas Pierson, assistant principal.

Brad was taken to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital and remained for two days, coming home Thursday morning.

"The doctors found that I had a slow pulse but they didn't know if it was because of the accident, or because I'm an athlete," he said.

The junior high's play was preformed May 28, so Brad won't be returning to finish as lighting director.

"But I will be lighting director on any future plays if I can," he said, in a shocking display of bravery.

Many of the monuments we saw were framed by the bus windows. There were monuments all over the city, practically on every street corner.

Before leaving for the Festival of Nations, we had our "departure talk." Our band director, Mr. Chapman, ironed out the details, while still in the high school band room, to make our trip to Washington, D.C. a success. We left late Thursday, May 22, on two chartered buses and arrived at 2 p.m. Friday for our three-day stay.

Capital weekend

This picture was taken in our assigned practice room at the hotel. Called the Palladian Room, it was a huge banquet room. It was like an echo chamber—it was confusing to play and try to listen at the same time, because you were hearing sounds you played awhile ago.

The Jazz Ensemble "struts their stuff" during the toughest part of the competition trip—the judging.

The competition took place after dark at a high school in Virginia about 45 minutes from our hotel. The Jazz Ensemble and the Symphonic Band both got third division ratings and bronze medals. I am a percussionist with the Symphonic Band. We were under a lot of pressure during the competition. When we left, we weren't really ready to compete, but we finally pulled it together at practice. It was do or die, because if we didn't do it then, we couldn't have competed. All the bands that played that weekend got "3s," so we felt we did as well as some bands and better than some. It was an experience not soon to be forgotten.

Letters to the editor

Trash, weeds tarnish beauty

Dear readers:

It has been a long time since I have talked about beautification around our Village, but I have never stopped thinking about it.

Last year through a large donation, Village funds and Community Development funds, we planted another 22 trees around our Village.

We have lost a few of those trees and I want to appeal to you for help this year.

If you have a young tree in front of your home, please water it, fertilize it and love it. Watch it grow, spread its limbs and become another friend to our community.

I attended the Community Awards Banquet and I was stirred by Coach Gary Nustad's talk on pride.

I too am very proud of our community and our people. However, one or two businesses don't seem to care.

It would not cost much and would help some young person if these businesses would hire someone to keep their places of business—and parking lot—cleaned up.

June 9th Betty Lee Francis, our historical preservation planner, will be showing slides of the business section with suggestions on how we can make the area more attractive and warmer place.

I hope we have standing room only at the Village Hall—June 9 at 7:30 p.m.

Last year, Janet McCord and I started a memorial tree planting program.

This fall I will be donating two trees—one for the death of a wonderful 98-year-old aunt and one to the birth of a new grandson.

Duffy Liddicoat has already donated two trees for her two new grandsons. Gary Symons is donating for his two children.

We are going to start planting the steep hill at the east side of the park, behind Village Hall.

You do not need a cause to donate a tree. You may just want to help make our Village and park beautiful.

Donations may be sent to Art Pappas, 375 Depot, Clarkston. Note: your check for beautification—it is tax deductible.

Tuesday evening I took a walk along the east side of the stream in the park.

I wonder if we can get some organizations such as the Jaycees, boy scouts, girl scouts, etc., to help clean out all of the debris, large limbs, pop bottles, etc., etc.

Right now the mosquitoes are "en masse," but maybe this fall?

Fontie ApMadoc
Village President

Candidate corrects

Open letter to the editor:

Your unintentional error in describing the boundaries of Oakland County Commission, District 3, serves to emphasize one of my deep concerns...people do not know enough about county government.

Many do not know who their county commissioner is, what he or she does, or what a great influence county government has on their every day lives.

Mind you, I am not complaining...I am sure the error was not intended and you did a beautiful job in editing my candidacy announcement. However, let me correct the error!

County Commission District 3 encompasses precincts 2, 5, and 11 in Independence Township, all of Orion Township, precincts 4, 6, 8 and 9 in Pontiac Township and 16, 35, 43, 44 and 47 in the northern sector of the City of Pontiac.

No doubt these boundaries will change as a result of the 1980 Census, because they are based on a "one-man, one-vote" concept.

Your description indicated that it included half of Waterford Township which is not true.

Again, I want to correct the error for the benefit of your readers and not to complain.

Charles T. Whitlock
Candidate for District 3

Which is worse?

by Kathy Greenfield

The big question Saturday was, "What did you do when the tornado siren went off in the middle of the night?"

I became cynical after over an hour of watching late-night television.

The saga began with visions of Kalamazoo dancing through my head while I got up to look out the window.

A constant rumble of thunder, lightning and winds whipping through the trees sent me scurrying toward the television for the visual message I knew would flash across the screen.

"Was that a tornado siren?" asked a voice six inches from collision in the dark hallway.

"Yes," I told my daughter. "Don't worry. Go back to bed."

A few minutes later, we were both parked in front of the TV.

First, we tried Channel 4. "Tornado warning" it blared in print and included a list of several counties.

Nothing there I didn't know, I figured.

So with an ear to the storm, we watched Johnny Carson and somebody kibitzing about how unlikely it was our solar system is the center of the universe.

Interesting (yawn) stuff.

We switched to Channel 2 and watched the end of "The Rookies" with the same detailless message tacked to the bottom of the screen.

"They'll break in with an announcement if a tornado actually touches down," I thought.

Mel of Mel's Diner on TV's "Alice" was playing a police officer on the show.

I decided he'd lost his credibility for that kind of role by portraying a greasy spoon owner later in his career.

Channel 7 was the next logical step.

Something called "Scream Theatre" was on. We watched long enough to determine a couple was planning some kind of wicked crime.

The only reason we watched that long was because the message moving across the screen directed residents of our area to "take cover," but for two other counties, the direction was, "take cover immediately."

It was somehow reassuring.

Back to Channel 4 and the "Midnight Special."

Performers play top hits after inspirational introductions by deejay Wolfman Jack.

"Okay," I thought. "It's always interesting to see what singers of popular songs look like."

Besides, the message moving across the screen included a time limit of 1:30 a.m. for the storm warning.

After a couple of singing groups performed, there was a karate-chop dance routine to a song from Bob Seger's "Night Moves," album.

I found that mildly strange.

But it was nothing compared to the next bit of entertainment when a man in skin-tight black pants with a whip in his hands twirled and snapped his way through a tune.

"Tornado scares couldn't merit such a pastime as midnight tube watching," I thought.

Despite the on-going tornado message, we went to bed.

Two lessons were learned here—first, late-night TV is incredibly boring; and second, every time the government gets control of more buttons, things get worse.

I liked it much better when we relied on ourselves to decide when we needed to take cover or maintain a storm vigil.

Old-time remedy

by Jim Sherman

While cleaning paint brushes the other evening the smell of turpentine brought back a childhood memory.

What was that mother served for some illness? A teaspoon of sugar with some drops of turpentine, or the other way around?

It must have worked since I'm here to tell about it.

One that didn't work, and killed me was doses of Epsom salts. I just looked up what that stuff is—dehydrated magnesium sulfate.

I swear, my father used Epsom salts on warts. I know we soaked his lame ankles and sore feet in solutions of it.

And, dad figured every disease known to man could be flushed out with a dose of salts. He must of bought that stuff in bulk, 'cause he sure believed in using it.

"It'll carry away the cold germs," Dad would say. After we were three, none of us kids were sick in front of dad.

It wasn't a case of do as I say, not as I do, either. Dad believes in it for himself, too. It may be he believes you have to do a little suffering if you want to be healed, but I think the salts cure is so bad that you just naturally feel better later.

Like, it feels so good when you stop hitting your thumb.

There's just enough logic in dad's philosophy that we have a bottle of Epsom salts in the bathroom, the natural place for it.

Stands to reason, if Drano can do it for house plumbing, why can't salts do the same thing for human beings?

Send no medical answers please.

A recent Lansing college graduate brought her Oxford mother some cut flowers for Mother's Day. Handing them to her mother the grad said, "I picked them at the Blind School." Mother looked aghast. Daughter said, "Don't worry, they couldn't see me." Actually, daughter picked them off Blind School property and mother later found humor in daughter's remarks.

She delivers pregnant message

Mary Anne Altenburg [center] shows her Lamaze class how the coach can assist in childbirth with a pelvic rock designed to relieve back pain and to attempt to rotate a baby in the normal position for birth. The expectant mother is Lorraine Block of Dora Lane, Independence Township. Her husband Mike [left] is to serve as her coach.

Joe and Shirley Alessi share a smile as she practices methods of relaxation during the class. The Alessis are Waterford Township residents.

By Kathy Greenfield

Seven pregnant women and their seven coaches listen intently as Mary Anne Altenburg explains the birth process.

They practice breathing exercises, communication and methods of relaxation.

All the while, Mary Anne encourages, checks on procedures and makes sure when the time comes for delivery, the women and their coaches will be prepared.

Her message is the Lamaze method of childbirth.

In the past seven years, Mary Anne has had two children using the Lamaze techniques and she has taught over 1,000 women and over 1,000 coaches the same methods.

A graduate of Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wisc., she has a bachelor's degree and is a registered nurse.

She and her husband Reed live on Kingfisher Lane, Independence Township.

They have three children, Laurie, 9½; Mike, 7; and Kevin, 2½.

"When Laurie was born, I was your typical (obstetrical) nurse," Mary Anne says. "I was just fresh out of school and thought I knew everything.

"Then I got pregnant myself and saw what it was like on the other side of the bedpan."

She remembers screaming all the way through delivery.

"I wasn't even sure I wanted to have any more children," she says.

But when she heard about Lamaze, she decided to check into it.

"It was very noncommittal, just looking for something for myself," she says. "It was a whole different ballgame."

Her enthusiasm led her to take classes on teaching Lamaze when she decided to seek part-time employment.

And when her youngest child was born, she taught classes throughout her pregnancy.

"I was right down there with them during the exercising," she says.

Lamaze emphasizes several points.

In most cases, the coach is the father and that's important for many reasons, she says.

"This not only gives the fathers something to do, but they are just so helpful," she says. "There's so much they can do and it also bonds the parents closer together.

"This whole theory is that this is a family event—one of the biggest passages of your life," she says. "We're trying to keep the parents together as well as the baby. It gets the whole family off to a good start."

The classes cover three topics—the female anatomy, the course of normal labor and delivery and the Lamaze techniques.

Lamaze is commonly called "natural childbirth," a term Mary Anne says is misleading.

"People get the impression this means cold turkey no matter what—that this means anesthetics are 'no-nos,'" she says.

"Lamaze emphasizes just prepared childbirth," she says.

"It's not always with anesthetics, probably 80 percent of our deliveries go without a hitch, but when there's a hitch, that's when you start intervening.

"We hope to keep everything as natural as possible," she adds.

The six-week series costs $25 and is offered through the Lamaze Childbirth Association (546-8898).

'If it Fitz. . .'

The continuous search

by Jim Fitzgerald

A reader named Carol Murray figures writing a column takes only a few minutes a day, and she wonders what I do with the rest of my time. What I do is look behind bushes and under beds, searching for myself. Hoping to weather the male midlife crisis, I am trying to find my identity so I can have it altered.

Carol put her question this way:

"If your job is to help me start out my day on the right foot, then you are successful. But I imagine you typing some funny short story, which would take about an hour, and the rest of the day is spent sitting with your feet up on the desk and drinking coffee. Somehow your job seems too easy. There must be more to it than what I can think of. Please describe your job..."

Carol's description is accurate, except I don't drink coffee. In my younger years, I worked much harder. I was an assembly line worker for Chrysler, a mailman, a sports writer, an editor and several other things. I didn't have all these jobs at the same time, but sometimes it seemed that way. In those days, the only time I put my feet on a desk was to change a light bulb on the ceiling.

But about five years ago, I suddenly realized I was middle-aged and I still didn't know who I was, or where I was. I decided to cut my working hours so I'd have sufficient time to find myself. As a steady reader of interviews with psychologists and movie stars and other experts on functional living, I knew how important it is for a person to find himself or herself, whichever the case may be.

Once I read that Burt Reynolds didn't find himself until he was 40 years old. At the time, this made me feel smug. I had thought I found myself when I was only 30, while looking in a mirror. But, after serious reflection, I decided my mirror was of no real substance. I realized it was shallow of me to think I could polish my image simply by rubbing it with Windex. I kept looking.

My concern deepened when I read about Dom DeLuise, the chubby comedian, who said: "... It's so easy to lose who you are."

This raised the possibility of more than one search for the same me. Even if I did find myself, I could later lose myself. Repeated searches would leave me no time for work at all, not even as a one-hour-a-day columnist. I vowed that once I did find myself, I would never let myself out of my sight.

Then I read an interview with Michael E. McGill, a PhD from the University of South Carolina. He wrote a book called "The 40 to 60 Year Old Male," in which he said every male has a midlife crisis. By age 50 I had experienced no hot flashes and no impulse to wear a pizza-sized medallion around my neck, so I naively hoped I had slept through my midlife crisis. Dr. McGill convinced me I was mistaken.

"The midlife crisis stops when the man alters his identity in such a way that he is no longer vulnerable to threats to that identity which brought about the crisis in the first place," Dr. McGill said.

And that's all for today. Not only is my hour up, but I just glanced out the window and I think I saw me walking down the street, toward a saloon.

McGill said, "If there is no fundamental alteration in his identity, the man will remain ever vulnerable to those same threats, ever vulnerable to crisis."

This means when I finally do discover my identity, my task won't be completed. I must also take it in for alterations. Naturally, there is no way I can know whether I should be shortened or lengthened until I find me. Maybe all I will need is a tuck under the chin.

Obviously, my time is running out. I don't want to be an old man before I know who I am. Certainly, I don't want my survivors to say I died of midlife crisis, at the age of 80, without ever knowing who I was.

So, in answer to Carol Murray's question, that's what I do when I'm not writing a column. I try to find myself.

And that's all for today. Not only is my hour up, but I just glanced out the window and I think I saw me walking down the street, toward a saloon.

Arson suspected in M-15 bank site lumber fire

Arson is suspected in the Sunday evening fire which damaged lumber stacked next to the Manufacturers Bank of Southfield under construction on M-15.

"We'll be looking into how the fire occurred and who could of set it," said arson investigator David Milam of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department Arson Investigation Squad.

"It's definitely arson," said

Gar Wilson, of the Independence Township Fire Department. "There were gas cans around the lumber and a mixture of what smelled like diesel fuel and motor oil dmped on the lumber.

"We had the fire extinguished soon after arriving, it was not real intense," he said.

Fire Chief Frank Ronk turned the case over to the fire investigation squad because he suspected the deliberately set fire was more than a kid's prank.

"During the initial investigation that night we thought it was a malicious prank by kids," he said. "But now we are asking the county to look into it because we think it might be a suspicious fire."

Mower's lament

by Herb Rose

At one time a few years ago, I was cutting my lawn with a mower that had a gas leak around the carburetor.

I just over-filled the gas tank and was back at the grass-shortening operation when the entire machine burst into flame.

The idea of strolling back and forth pushing a four-wheeled conflagration would have been non-productive at best, because the lawnmower wasn't running. Besides the ineffectiveness of continued mowing effort, I felt the machine was going to blow up.

Somewhere in my accumulation of not-frequently-used information, I was told one does not run away from a pending explosion—one falls down!

I took two steps and executed a flawless swan dive into the tall grass. Nothing happened.

I lay there for awhile, drumming on the ground with my fingers, then rolled over and sat looking at the briskly burning lawnmower.

I decided against calling the neighborhood kids for a cook-out, sheepishly brushed the dirt off my clothes, unreeled a hose and extinguished the blaze.

The burning of the rotary should have signaled a three-day celebration. I don't like cutting the lawn and usually let it grow long so I can more easily see where I've been.

This practice tends to annoy guests who acerbically claim they have trouble finding smallish things like lawn chairs.

My brother once observed that, under normal conditions, you could hide a fair-sized moose in my backyard.

I pointed out that if I had a moose, I would lash an eight-foot flagstaff to its antlers and hoist a bright orange highway marker.

However, I would worry that some older couple leisurely canoeing around the pond in the cool of the evening might have their marriage ruptured by the shock of seeing a fair-sized moose flying an orange flag staring balefully at them from among the tall grasses.

The nuptial breakdown might start with the comment: "I don't care what you say, I'm not drinking any more of your home-made wine."

I decided to eschew all power mowers as ridiculous accoutrements of a physically decadent society and get a good workout with the old hand-push mower.

After some experimentation, I concluded that some of modern society's accoutrements weren't so ridiculous after all.

I also found by checking ahead and behind myself that the grass was growing faster than I was cutting it.

I didn't want to spend my declining years cutting the grass listening to conversations like:

"What is that clackety noise coming from the seven-foot grass in that wildlife preserve?"

"I'm not sure. Probably Herb and his mower."

by David McNeven, Coach

Willow fishing creels tend to become sour and foul smelling after a long fishing season if not cleaned regularly. Based on a butcher's method for "sweetening" his chopping block, here is a procedure that will get your creel smelling just like new again. First, rinse the creel in mild soapy water. Then, rinse it a second time to remove the soap. Set the wet creel on a pad of newspapers to dry. When the creel is about 95% dry, sprinkle salt generously all around the insides and let stand overnight. The salt will draw out the remaining moisture and along with it any lingering odors. Next day simply shake the salt out.

It's simple to find sporting goods by coming to us at COACH'S CORNER, 31 S. Main, 625-8457. For Father's Day we have a wide variety of items, and even sell fishing licenses. There are golf gloves and bags, track shoes, tennis rackets, balls and clothing and table tennis nets and posts, paddle ball and racquet ball equipment. Hours: 9:30am-6pm, until 5pm Sat. Have a nice Father's Day.

HELPFUL HINT:
Minimize the need for such cleaning of your creel by lining it with sweet fern before putting any fish in it.

Concern about group home instigates calls to officials

By Marilyn Trumper

Group homes for the mentally retarded are a constant concern in many communities.

One such home has been in the Village of Clarkston for 10 months and is no exception. But here concern is for the well-being and care of the home's residents, and not because the group home exists, according to Village President Fontie ApMadoe.

ApMadoe and State Representative Claude Trim (D-Springfield Township) have received several calls from concerned citizens about the residents' care.

"People have called to tell me that one man at the home stands next to the road and waves his arms, yelling at passing cars," ApMadoe said. "A source told me that teenagers driving past the home, see the man and taunt him from the car windows."

"Now I think group homes are a great way to keep non-severely mentally handicapped people in society, with a home life, instead of cooping them up in an institution where they won't receive individual care."

"But the people who run the homes must be organized and well-trained," she said.

Trim has also received a phone call of concern, but did not respond to the caller's complaint.

"I received a message that one of the neighbor's from the home had called, complaining that some of the men were fooling around in the stream behind the home," he said.

"I didn't respond to that call, because the stream isn't deep enough to drown in, so I felt the complaint had no substance."

"But, if everyone in charge of the home does his job, the home should be well-run. It's like having one gear in a clock that doesn't carry its own weight. You can't afford to have one person not do his job," he said.

The home in Clarkston houses six mentally retarded, moderately functioning men, between 20 and 50 years old.

All have self-care skills, according to Margi Dodge-Booth, the Clarkston area social worker monitoring the home under the Macomb Oakland Regional Center (MORC) program.

"Self-care skills include bathing, dressing and all the men have the ability to communicate."

"We are trying to teach these men to become independent and to function in society. They already perform high functioning skills like cooking, house cleaning and laundry."

"We are trying to make them as independent as possible so that they will be able to move into an apartment on their own and be able to work," she said.

Dodge-Booth monitors the program, visits the group home in Clarkston at least once a week, and said she is in daily contact with the home.

North West Regional is the non-profit corporation which runs and operates the group home, according to Dodge-Booth. There is someone in the home 24 hours a day and the staff ratio is one to three.

The supervisor of the MORC program, Ron Cornelison, said, because people in communities often complain about the homes, the homes are always scrutinized.

"We closely watch those homes like a hawk," he said. "We have to. The people in the homes are not neglected, but they may be sometimes unattended. We have to insure everything is maintained because the public looks for excuses to complain."

Village President Fontie ApMadoe received a call complaining about the length of the grass in front of the home. She in turn called Trim.

"I immediately called the man at MORC and the grass was cut that day," Trim said. "I encourage anyone with problems to call me, and I'll get right on it."

Gregory Farnum, one of the home attendants, said no one ever comes to the house and complains; they always complain through MORC.

"We didn't have the grass cut because the mower was broken, and we had to borrow one from another group home," he said.

"I know about the tauntings from people passing by in cars. We have one guy who likes to stay outside when he comes home from training."

"When he's out there they honk the horn and yell at him."

"This bothers him and it's not hard to tell. He's aware he has a problem, and he knows he doesn't fit in with everyone else to the extent he would like to," Farnum said.

All of the home residents work, go to school or to some form of training on a daily basis.

Only two of the men are allowed to leave the grounds unattended, and then only with permission, Farnum said.

Trim speaks favorably of such homes, and supports them in the community.

"I'm a proponent of foster care homes for those people who have been screened and are considered capable of living within a community," he said.

"The fears of any people in the community about these homes are unfounded, because they have never been in contact with a retarded person."

"What we need is more community involvement. In the past, society has shoved these folks behind walls and they are never seen again. Interaction can make everyone appreciate each day of living," he said.

Independence couple keeps fit on the run

Hobby leads to Belle Isle medal for Linda Creswell

By Al Zawacky

In fighting the never-ending "battle of the bulge," Linda Creswell thinks she's found the perfect weapon.

Early each morning, she and her husband Mike don running shoes and run anywhere from four-to-six-and-one-half miles near their Independence Township home, regardless of the weather.

"My husband got me involved about five years ago," Linda explains. "He was already into jogging, and asked me if I'd care to give it a try."

"I lost 12 pounds in three months and I feel fantastic."

She follows a specific regimen, running six-and-one-half miles three days, four miles three days and resting one day each week.

Last month she decided to participate in the Motor City Striders jogging club and Diet

Pepsi sponsored marathon race on Belle Isle and won a medal—much to her surprise.

"I just wanted to compete—I really didn't think I'd win anything," Linda says. "I hadn't trained for it at all."

"There were a couple of times when I thought I was going to wind up walking, but I'm so glad now that I didn't quit."

Mike notes there were probably between 2,500 and 3,000 runners in the Belle Isle race, and only the top 100 were awarded medals.

Both husband and wife would like someday to compete in the famous Boston Marathon.

"The Boston Marathon is the ultimate for runners," Mike says. "The Belle Isle race was 10,000 meters—that's about 6.2 miles—while in Boston the course is 26 miles."

"That gives you some kind of idea of what it takes to compete in the Boston Marathon," he adds.

Seeing your family doctor or a heart specialist before attempting to run is the advice Linda gives to beginning runners.

"I had a stress test before I started," she says. "It's always smart to be on the safe side."

Once they started running on a regular basis, there were a few difficulties to get used to, Linda says with a chuckle.

"The neighborhood dogs caused a problem—whenever they see somebody running, I guess their first impulse is to chase after them," she says. "After a while though, they got to know us and left us alone."

"It's important to run at your own pace, too. The first month I was in a lot of pain, and some of that was because I was trying to keep up with my husband—his legs are a lot longer."

It takes a little while for the initial pain and soreness to subside, but the results are worth it, Mike notes.

"It probably takes about six months to a year to really get used to it, but you finally get to the point where you can just about run forever," he says. "It's really exhilarating."

"We run in the morning, because that's when the temperature is cool enough. If it's more than about 80 degrees outside, it's not really very smart to run."

Linda says that one of the bonuses of running is the ability to enjoy some rich foods without gaining weight.

"I can eat foods that I normally wouldn't be able to," she says.

Linda Creswell shows the form that earned her a medal at the 10,000 meter run held on Belle Isle last month. Running is one of the best ways to stay in shape year round, she says.

"We heard people tell us about the terrible things that would happen if we kept running—our knees would go, our feet go flat, and the stomach is supposed to fall."

But some of the people who made those predictions are now running themselves, Linda notes.

"I guess they saw that none of those things happened to us," she laughs.

"And running has got to be the cheapest form of exercise there is," Mike adds. "You can spend a fortune for membership in a health club, but to run all you need is a pair of running shoes."

The point after

by Al Zawacky

So I guessed wrong.

So there was no baseball strike. Life goes on.

If you're inclined to believe that the entire thing was nothing more than a slick publicity stunt by the players and/or owners, shake hands with a fellow believer.

I suspect that a long strike in the middle of the summer would have damaged pro baseball severely for two reasons: One, because the fans would have slowly come to the realization that pro baseball isn't really that important to enjoying the summer after all; and two, it could point out the fact that the players and teams kids worship couldn't care less about the fans.

Neither the owners nor the players seemed eager to let America find out it could get along quite well, thank you, without pro baseball.

I asked my sport-hating fan and friend Don for his opinion of the almost-players' strike.

"What would have happened to downtown Detroit if the Tigers had gone on a long strike?" I queried.

Don rolled his eyes, gazing heavenward and slowly raising his head in solemn silence. I could tell he was about to say something profound.

Finally, after proper dramatic pause, he spoke.

"Nothing."

"Nothing?"

"Nothing. Not a thing."

"Now wait a minute," I retorted. "Without pro baseball players, who would do the Track-Two commercials? The 60-second Lite Beer spots? The plugs for everything from Chevrolets to Seven-Up?"

"Not only that," I continued, "but how about the effect it would have on the peanut industry? The hot dog manufacturers? The people that make the pennants and souvenirs? The long-range effect of a baseball strike would be devastating to the entire economy."

Don was unmoved.

"Name one other profession," he said, "in which a general strike would do the city as little or less harm than a baseball strike would."

The ball was now in my court. I stuttered and fumbled for an answer.

Finally, after 15 minutes of intense thought, I was able to opine that it really wouldn't hurt the city at all if 25 guys who clean the rest rooms at the Renaissance Center decided to hit the picket line. So there.

My antagonist only grinned.

"I guess you've never been in the Ren-Cen," he said, "and had to use the john."

Wolves lose pre-district

By Al Zawacky

Even though her team lost its pre-district contest to Waterford Mott and had this been eliminated from the district playoffs, Clarkston High softball coach Kathy Mahrle could label the 1980 season a success.

"I'm basically really pleased with the way the season turned out," Mahrle said.

Heavy graduation losses had left the Wolves with a lot of unproven talent and a question mark in the pitching department at the beginning of the season.

But the team quickly jelled and posted a final record of 13-6, including a second place 6-4 mark in the Greater Oakland Activities League.

The Wolves carried a 7-4 lead into the seventh inning against Mott and were just three outs away from a district playoff berth when disaster struck.

The Corsairs began hitting while the Wolves began juggling, committing six errors as Mott scored 12 times.

Clarkston tallied three runs in their half of the seventh, but it was too little too late, as the Wolves bowed 16-10.

Leading the attack for Clarkston was Lanette Whitehead with a triple, single and two RBIs.

The Wolves rounded out their 1980 campaign with an 11-10 win over Birmingham Groves and a 15-10 defeat, again at the hands of Waterford Mott.

A total of seven Wolves earned all-league status for their efforts during the season. Making the first team were Sandy Mason, Jane Acton and Kelly Mason; Lee Vedder made second team; and Cindy Hawley, Linda Foster and Lisa Forsythe were given an honorable mention.

Vedder led the Clarkston nine with a .418 batting average, 19 RBIs and 22 runs scored.

Racquetball classic

Deer Lake Racquet Club will host the first annual March of Dimes Racquetball Classic June 20, 21 and 22 to help in the battle against birth defects.

Registration forms are available at Deer Lake Racquet Club. Entry fee for all divisions of competition is $15, and the entry deadline is June 14.

Divisions are Open, Class B, Class C, Junior 18 and under and senior 35 and over. All classifications will be divided into men's and women's divisions.

Awards will be given for first, second and third place winners in each division. In addition, a drawing will be held for all participants for prizes including a weekend trip for two to Toronto. Deer Lake Racquet Club is located on 6167 White Lake Rd., Independence Township.

Members of the league champion and undefeated CHS JV softball team take a break between innings of their 28-7 romp over Waterford Mott. The victory left the Wolves with a final season mark of 17-0 and a host of promising varsity candidates in 1981.

Flawless JVs finish season 16-0

Clarkston second baseman Alex Campe puts the tag on a sliding Waterford Mott player—but a split second too late. It didn't do the Corsairs much good however, as the Wolves waltzed to a 28-7-victory.

By Al Zawacky

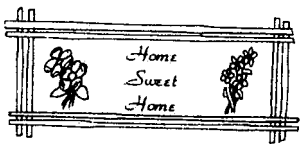

It's by far the most coveted achievement in the world of team sports: The unblemished final record—the undefeated season. Perfection is never very easy to attain.

But the Clarkston High School JV softball team attained it, rolling through five weeks of competition to post a final season mark of 16-0.

"We had a lot of depth this season," said first-year coach Carla Teare after her Wolves dismantled Waterford Mott 28-7 for their 16th and final win of the season. "We didn't have anybody that couldn't step into the game and do the job."

Members of the undefeated 1980 squad were Patti White, Laurie Lanoue, Jeanne Herron, Louise Baylis, Terry Schellinger, Tammy Wilder, Alex Campe, Sonya Funk, Barb Burzyck, Sherry Chernenko, Elsa Olsen, Shaun O'Brian, Sharon Hesse and Merci Sanchez.

"Every girl improved over the season," Teare said. "A lot of the girls will make fine varsity players next year. We had a few that probably could've played varsity this season, but I was glad to keep them."

Baseball team ends disappointing year

By Al Zawacky
The Clarkston High School baseball team's final game of the season had a terribly familiar ring to it.

Facing West Bloomfield in their pre-district contest, the Wolves succumbed to two season-long problems-- inconsistent hitting and some crucial errors in the field.

The result was six unearned runs for West Bloomfield late in the game, enabling the Lakers to coast to a 7-1 victory and a berth in the district playoffs.

The loss eliminated Clarkston from district playoff contention and left the Wolves with a final season mark of 5-17.

Clarkston drew first blood in the West Bloomfield contest, jumping ahead 1-0 in the first inning. Junior Ron Feneley singled, advanced to second on a sacrifice bunt and came home on a single by senior Doug Hagyard.

But the Wolves' bats fell silent the rest of the way, while the Lakers scored once in the fifth and six times off three Clarkston pitchers in the sixth.

Senior Nick Hoot ended the season as the team's only .300 hitter at .319, while junior Greg Lane led the way in RBIs and home runs with 11 and four respectively.

Feneley posted the best ERA on the club, .058 through 12 innings worked.

Three Clarkston players made all-league honors: Junior Rich Lamphere, infield, first team; Feneley, catcher, second team; and Hoot, outfield, second team. Lamphere was also named for a Region 12 honorable mention.

Correction

Last week's story on Springfield Township resident Mike Turk was misleading.

Turk will not be taking a leave of absence from his job at the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department while playing for the Detroit Auto Kings pro softball team.

Junior Kurt Esselink was one of three Clarkston hurlers used in the Wolves' 7-1 pre-district loss to West Bloomfield.

Independent view

If you have to eliminate that craving for fast food, the nearest place will still be McDonald's on Dixie Highway.

There will not be a hamburger shop just north of the village of Clarkston on M-15, said Donald Short, co-owner of Haupt Pontiac.

Short denied all circulating rumors which indicate he and partner D.J. Pentlingill intend to manifest the vacant Texaco station down the street from the dealership into a fast-food hamburger restaurant.

Speaking for himself and Pentlingill, Short stifled another rumor—he said neither man has any intention of selling the Pontiac dealership at this time.

Without a doubt, the 25 students from Clarkston Elementary learned about architecture on their historical walk through the village.

The kids were quizzed with three different sets of questions on the walk back to the school last week. They had to write down the address of any home which matched the description of the test questions.

The results were remarkable, according to Sue Basinger, president of the Clarkston Community Historical Society.

Not only did they put down the right answers, but the kids offered additional information about the homes, she said.

With strong interest and recall, surely in this bunch of elementary students there is a budding Frank Lloyd Wright or Albert Kahn.

Four millage proposals on August primary ballot

Independence Township residents face four millage proposals on the August primary ballot.

At the May 27 meeting, the Independence Township Board voted unanimously to place on the ballot a 1-mill police millage renewal, for 10 years, from 1981-90.

A second vote was unanimous for a proposed additional 1-mill increase for police services for 11 years from 1980-90.

In yet another unanimous vote, the board placed on the ballot a proposed new tax of one-half mill to pay for the construction of safety paths in the township, from 1980-89.

In a 4-2 vote, the township board voted to place a proposed 1-mill fire increase on the ballot, with Clerk Christopher Rose and Trustee William Vandermark voting "no".

The millage would be for a period of eight years, from 1980-88.

One mill is $1 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

There was some concern from one board member on public reaction to police and fire millage proposals on the same ballot.

"If the people vote it down, they vote it down," said Trustee Michael Thayer. "We may be jeopardizing the police millage, because the public won't know which way to turn."

Amusement park controls status quo

By Marilyn Trumper

Controls on amusement parks in Independence Township have been delayed for the time being.

Any action in that direction will come from the township planning commission, when a decision is made on tackling a proposed zoning ordinance amendment discussed May 22.

At the meeting, township attorney Richard Campbell commented on the amendment and the problems within the proposal.

"In my opinion you can't do this," Campbell said. "You can't limit the rides to 16 because it is an arbitrary number."

"You have to have some form of reasonable standard with long proven figures to back it up."

"If you're going to set 16 rides as the limit, you have to say why, otherwise people are going to ask, 'Why not 18?'" he said.

The amount of traffic generated and the number expected to attend plus the effects of a specific number of rides would all figure into final proposal as reasonable standards, according to Campbell.

One member of the commission asked Campbell if the outdoor gathering ordinance could regulate amusement parks in any way.

"The outdoor gathering ordinance is intended to address single events, not ongoing business like an amusement park," Campbell said.

"If I took this outdoor ordinance before a judge and told him it applied to a recreational district which the amusement park is in, he would tell me it's absurd."

"The very tenure of an outdoor ordinance speaks to 'single' gatherings and I don't think we could successfully apply the outdoor gathering ordinance to the amusement park," he said.

Another planning commission member asked about crowd control and what powers the township had over the issue.

"We can't tell them how to control their crowds any more than we can tell the shopping center down the road how to control their crowds," Campbell said.

"We can enforce parking and if they create a nuisance, we can sue them, but we can only control what our zoning ordinance mandates," he said.

The planning commission has several options, according to Campbell.

It can adopt the proposed zoning ordinance amendment as is, but he said it may not be defensible in court.

The commission can modify the ordinance with reasonable standards, or they can choose not to act upon it at this time. Independence Township is currently in the process of re-vamping sections of the Zoning Ordinances of the township.

James Smith, chairman of the planning commission, indicated the zoning ordinances on amusement parks may be formalized and established then.

Springfield subdivision gets plat

A 31-lot subdivision located off Norman Road north of Susin Lake in Springfield Township has received final plat approval from the Springfield Township Board.

But the approval is conditional upon the construction of a retention basin before any actual building begins, said Springfield Township Supervisor Collin Walls.

"The township engineers will be checking to make sure that it (the retention basin) is done and done right," Walls said. "We won't issue any building permits until it is."

Del Lohff, president of Kieft Engineering, which designed the Susin Hills Farms subdivision, said the basin, sanitary sewers and road paving could be completed in "a couple of weeks."

"They could begin building in as little as six weeks," Lohff said.

Talking about . . .

On Main Street, Clarkston we asked this week's question: Would you rather pay higher Social Security taxes than have benefits lowered or the retirement age raised? In a recent poll by the National Commission on Social Security a wide margin of people supported such a plan.

"The whole system is a mess anyway. Depending on a person's age and economic situation it will affect everyone differently. There is not any one good answer."—Mary Jane Scharfenkamp, Deerwood Road, Independence Township, homemaker.

"We've got a bunch of boneheads running the government now who shouldn't be there, and as a result the Social Security system is bad. We pay and don't receive the money in return which is rightfully ours. We have to change the whole system."—John DiPietro, Snowapple Road, Independence Township, secretary-treasurer for refrigeration firm.

"None of the above. A lot of areas have been taken over by Social Security. As an example, total compensation for people who have not retired but don't work, and they give out a great deal in this area. This is where they are losing."—Dorothy Zwicker, Perry Lake Road, Brandon Township, nurse.

"I'd rather not have Social Security taxes at all. I'd rather be responsible for my own retirement. Besides, I won't ever get the interest from the money I'm paying in right now by the time I retire."—Carl Tookey, Green Haven Road, Independence Township, pilot.

"Don't raise the retirement age and don't lower the benefits. I'd rather pay more into the system so that I would be assured it would still be there 10 years from now. It really is not that much that we pay into the system anyway."—Betty Hovey, Tappan Drive, Independence Township, homemaker.

Planners suggest grounding proposed gravel mine

By Marilyn Tromper

Dirt and gravel mining of 47 acres near the intersection of Sashabaw and Wakdon roads has been denied by the Independence Township Planning Commission.

The final vote of 5-1 on the controversial issue came after more than an hour of discussion from the 12-member audience and a unique approach offered by developer Charles Nunn during the commission's May 22 meeting.

"We are offering a trust agreement to insure and guarantee the township will not lose in this arrangement," said Nunn's attorney, John Steckling.

"An independent trustee, a third party, will be vested with the authority to monitor our actions and to make sure something is not done incorrectly.

"We will also have funds placed into the trust fund, whereby if violations are existing the money can be removed to handle the problems. As of yet, however, there have not been any dollar amounts mentioned," Steckling said.

In the past, Independence Township has had problems with mining operations functioning long past a contracted time period, said commission member Mel Vaara.

"My experience with gravel pits has been bad," said Vaara. "Once they start operating the judges always give them more time to mine.

"The residents who live around them always suffer for years and they shouldn't have to," he said.

"I am not concerned with trucks riding over someone's lawn as much as I am concerned with the noise, dust and traffic," said commission member Jean Saile. "A damaged lawn can be repaired, but the money will not end the dust, traffic and noise."

Another commission member offered a different opinion, on the trust agreement.

"It is a refreshing change, but there are problems outside the limitations of the people involved to rectify," said James Brennan. "That area is bad zoning and requires massive land balancing.

"We're past the point of realizing it's not suitable to develop as it is. But if we allow mining in this area we would be setting a precedent and people would want to do the same thing up and down Sashabaw," he said.

A final vote of 5-1 denied the mining permit with Saile, Vaara, Brennan, Jean Benzing and James Smith voting "no." John Gray supported the issuance of the permit. Rudy Lozano and James Gardiner were absent.

Most of the residents attending the meeting were opposed to allowing the mining permits. One resident was in favor of the developer.

"I don't have any objection to the dust as all of you people have," said Iva Sommers Carver, of Wakdon Road, Independence Township.

"It is you who run to buy that gravel and sand to fill in your yards or driveways, and I don't blame anyone for wanting the use of their land.

"And the development of the proposed industrial park on that land would provide a good tax base," she said.

Village Development and Charles Nunn are seeking the mining permit to remove 100,000 or more yards of dirt and gravel from the land.

The acreage is zoned light industrial, and there are proposed plans to develop an industrial park on the land. But without up grading the slope of the land first, they cannot build, Nunn said.

Nunn did not ask specifically for mining processing privileges, but did ask specifically for mining processing privileges, but did explain to the commission that in bids it appeared if processing on the land were permitted, he would be able to begin the industrial park construction much sooner.

Processing the crushing of gravel, within 47 acres might produce sand, pea and road gravel, providing a wider market for sales, according to Steckling.

If processing is denied, the job would take longer because a trucking company would remove the dirt and gravel on a demand basis, only, he said.

Following the commission's denial to recommend the mining permit, the issue now goes before the township's zoning board of appeals where the final decision will be made.

Independence, Springfield primary votes costly

By Al Zawacky
Compared to the cost state-wide, votes cast in the presidential primary election in Independence and Springfield townships two weeks ago were a bargain.
In Independence, ballots cost the township about $2.05 apiece, according to Independence Township Clerk Christopher Rose.

And each vote in Springfield cost approximately $2.50, said Springfield Township Supervisor Collin Walls.

Both those figures were less than the state-wide average estimated by state election officials at about $5 per vote.

"We had to pay 20 election workers, set up the machines, pay for legal notices--and only 624 people voted," Walls said. "The cost is even higher when you allocate the time spent by the township clerk."

Rose said the $2.05 figure in Independence was based on a total cost of $5,300 divided by 2,584 ballots cast.

"I'd say it (the primary) was a waste of time," Rose said. "On the Democratic side, the two candidates running weren't serious contenders, and the results in the Republican voting didn't have much of an effect on the national race."

State Democrats selected delegates to their convention in

New York this summer by party caucus before the primary vote was held.

Thus, both President Carter and challenger Edward Kennedy had removed their names from the ticket, leaving only California Governor Jerry Brown and Lyndon LaRouche on the Democratic ballot.

And while Michigan voters gave Republican George Bush a victory over fellow GOP hopeful Ronald Reagan, Bush nevertheless announced his withdrawal from the race shortly thereafter.

"Unless the state primary is moved up to an earlier date, when it would still have some impact, it should just be abolished altogether," Rose said.

"This election was just a waste of time and money," he added.

Main Street facelift

Now's your chance to see an outside interior decorator at work.

Main Street Clarkston may undergo a historical facelift designed by Betty Lee Francis of Preservation Planning Inc.

Francis is scheduled to make a presentation to the Clarkston Village Council at its June 9 meeting.

She is to present plans for the proposed re-design of Main Street facades, signs and street furniture in keeping with a historical nature.

"I'll have slides of most of the Main Street facades and we'll discuss how the buildings have changed and how they can be returned to the most original appearance," she said.

Prote, Krause and Allen, a landscaping architectural firm will also be on hand to present proposed greenery changes.

The Clarkston Village Council meets at 7:30 p.m. in the Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston.

Clarkston Youth Assistance salutes: Junior high aides who devote time to others

Several students at Clarkston and Sashabaw junior highs are spending time usually set aside for study hall helping elementary school pupils and teachers.

They're all part of the Elementary Aide Program, in which older students proficient in certain areas help out in elementary school classrooms.

"The aides volunteer for the work," says Doris Beattie, a member of the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee.

Beattie is chairperson of the group's Youth Recognition committee, which seeks out and recognizes positive accomplishments and work done by area youth.

"They're giving of themselves and helping younger kids," she says.

Students at Clarkston Junior High do their volunteer work at Clarkston Elementary, while those at Sashabaw Junior High go to nearby Sashabaw Elementary.

Growing things

by Lyle Abel

Lilac care tips; Memorial Day memories

Those of you who remember Lyle Abel's writings in The Clarkston News the summers of 1977, '76 and '75 will be pleased to see he's returned.

His theme is gardening and a love of plants. Formerly the Oakland County Agriculture Agent (from 1954 to 1967), he's had a lot of experience answering questions from gardeners and will answer readers' questions in his column.

Just drop him a line at the News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston 48016.

He and his wife Marian have been Independence Township residents since 1968.

—The editor

Late May is certainly lilac time in North Oakland and it seems as though they are especially beautiful this spring.

Lilacs are about the most commonly planted of our flowering shrubs and for good reason. Not only are they very faithful in producing a bountiful show of blooms season after season but they also are very hardy plants even in the severe and changeable weather we have here.

Lilacs grew wild in northern Europe and were one of the first shrubs to be brought over with our earliest settlers.

Another nice thing about a lilac is that it will grow under adverse conditions of poor soil, little moisture and some shading. However, they do respond very well to a good soil, some fertilization and ample watering.

Very little pruning is needed other than to remove the excess suckers from the base, any weak shoots and an occasional thinning. Do avoid topping or "dehorning." You will remove all the flowering twigs.

Several scale insects are the major pests of lilacs plus an occasional borer.

Most of the scales have a susceptible period in their life cycle which makes it quite simple to control them.

This period is about now. This is the time when they emerge from under the protective shield or scale and for a short period have nothing to protect them from a contact spray such as malathion or oil. So, if your lilacs have scurfy, scaly bark now is the time to control the pests.

Like so many of our plants there are much improved strains of the lilac over our common variety.

There are numerous named varieties in all colors - lilac, violet, red, pink, reddish-purple, and all shades of purple.

We also have Hungarian, Persian, Persian, Himalayan, Chinese and Japanese lilacs!

Before the time Memorial Day became part of a "three day week-end event" and also before cemeteries became our present day commercialized "Memory Gardens," it was a community custom to go to the cemetery where one's ancestors and the veterans of our wars were buried and to renovate or renew the flowers, trees and shrubs which had been planted in tribute to and in memory of them.

Most of the care of these cemeteries was a family responsibility. The appearance of the family's burial plot reflected their taste in what was a fitting memorial.

Some believed in imposing headstones and ornate statuary, but nearly all included plantings of flowers, shrubs or trees.

Flower choices ran to the perennials - peonies, day lilies, iris were among the favorites. Shrubs chosen included lilac, spirea and mockorange. Trees chosen were standard evergreens or durable maples.

This custom still persists today and in the thousands of cemeteries throughout the nation there has been a flurry of activity to care for the family plot.

There is sort of a "spring housecleaning" spirit in these activities and as a result on Memorial Day the plots are again beautiful with fresh plantings of geraniums, marigolds, petunias and a host of other plants which greenhouse operators have been working at for months to have them ready for this season.

And what a good job they have done to provide us with the much improved varieties of flowers that are available at this season!

Fortunately Clarkston is one of the communities that strives to observe Memorial Day with fitting parade and ceremony. Our present day very mobile population easily loses touch with their "roots."

It is very good that in our community we take some time to remember our dead and pay tribute to them. It is largely due to the efforts of those who went before us that our nation has become such a marvelous place in which to live.

In my case, Memorial Day was a time when, as a Boy Scout, I attended a program in the village park honoring the veterans of the Civil and Spanish-American Wars! The parade was small - a veteran's Honor Guard, a Drum and Bugle Corp, some veterans who could march and our scout troop.

We marched the three miles from the Park to the cemetery where flags were placed on the graves of the veterans and where we listened to the bugler play taps to the roll of the drum.

No wonder that we came away instilled with pride in our nation and a feeling of gratitude for the blessings that our forebearers had bequeathed to us.

Ford fever grips George McCall

Auto-baron Henry Ford once said something to the effect that history is bunk.

Out of his disdain for interpreted history, Ford created Greenfield Village.

He felt it to be a truthful account of history which could not be interpreted, because it existed.

Ford would admire the perseverance and determination of another history-hound in search of the truth, 31-year-old George McCall.

For the past 10 years, McCall, a former Clarkston resident, has researched and written, interviewed and taped, collected and swapped Ford history and memorabilia.

McCall is possessed with one cause and it's generated with respect for the auto-barons and a great love for Henry Ford.

In his words, it has "taken over my life."

"Ford was a fascinating and extremely complex man," McCall said sitting in his Brandon Township home.

"It's been written that he had no less than 97 different personalities.

"He was at the same time a genius and an ignoramus. He was not an educated man as far as being worldly, but he could formulate ideas and put those ideas into practice. Ford could organize."

He was an organizer of men and he'd get the job done," McCall said.

McCall's search for the truth has led him on a unique scope of experiences and some once in a lifetime opportunities.

He has attended the funeral of Mrs. Horace Dodge at Rose Terrace. He's traveled to Manitoulin Island in Canada where Danny Dodge, the son of Matilda and John Dodge of the Dodge Motor Co., was killed on his honeymoon. McCall has been tracked down and questioned by Ford Security employees.

"That was an experience," McCall said. "I turned around in Benson Ford's driveway on Lakeshore Drive and two weeks later Ford security came to the plant where I was working and wanted to know why I did it."

"I talked to the two men for about two hours and told them a lot of things about the Ford family. The next week one of them came over to the Fair Lane Mansion and took the tour," he said.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Horace Dodge is one occasion McCall said he would remember forever.

"The Louis XV Rose Terrace was filled with flowers, and I remember specifically seeing some from Ethel Kennedy," he said.

"It was June 2, 1970 and the home was open for viewing to the public. I got off work, put on a suit and went to the home."

"I was like a kid in a candy store. While it was a solemn occasion, it was a chance to get in and see Rose Terrace."

"There were 'Pointers' lined up waiting to get in, dressed in their tennis outfits. They weren't there out of respect for the late Mrs. Dodge, they just wanted to get in and see the house."

"At least I had the decency to put on a suit," he said.

McCall has been working on restoring the power house at the Ford Fair Lane Manor in Dearborn. His stepfather Mike Boutell from Clarkston has been helping him do the job.

"I volunteer all my time and the university takes all the glory," McCall said. "I do the work because it's something I believe in and because of my love for Henry Ford."

"But the university doesn't want to pay the money for the upkeep of the building and I feel like I'm beating my head against the wall. The two of us work alone and it's long hard lonely hours. But the building needs to be saved," he said.

McCall has created a taste and feel for craftsmanship in his own home in Brandon Township.

Carved into the mantle of the fieldstone fireplace in his home, McCall has created an exact replica of the mantle on a fireplace at Fair Lane.

"Chop your own wood and it will warm you twice," is one of the first things a visitor to McCall's home would see on the fireplace mantle in the living room.

"I took 15 polaroid shots, taped them together, made a stencil, and carved for two weeks," McCall said. "I'm real pleased with the results because you never know how something like that would turn out."

The Clarkston area is filled with Ford history, and according to McCall there are still men around who worked at the Ford farm on Holcomb Road, and remember Henry Ford.

"I've interviewed a man who worked for Henry Ford on what is now the O'Neill farm," McCall said. "One man in particular, Arnold Mann died not too long ago, but he worked for Ford on the Holcomb Road farm."

"Mann told me about how Henry Ford sent a set of McGuffey Readers to his son. Henry Ford never finished school, he quit in the sixth grade, but he never forgot how much a McGuffey reader meant to him I guess," McCall said.

The farms in Independence Township were used for experimental tractor farming, according to McCall.

"On July 11, 1947, the worldwide debut of the new Ford tractor was in Clarkston," McCall said. "Clarkston was a village industry of Ford's. He had 150 of them scattered all over the states up until the time he died."

On September 19, 1940, Henry Ford purchased what is now the Independence Township Hall on Main Street Clarkston.

"He bought the hall from the estate of Washington Irish for $5,200 and used it as a factory to produce seat covers."

At the time, the hall was filled with sewing machines for employees, but after work, Ford would force employees into his type of relaxation.

"Ford had private fiddlers who played for his dances," McCall said. "If you were a Ford employee you went to the dance, you didn't have a choice."

"Ford was into early American dancing and as a result everybody else was too," McCall said laughing.

"He had dances in the top floor of the hall, and the fiddlers sat in a band shell just above the stairs. He also had a fiddler on call 24 hours a day, and if he didn't think you had a certain step just right, he would pull you off your job and make sure you got the dance step just right."

Country Living

by Marilyn Trumper

"Behind the township hall, Ford built a steam-generated powerhouse and made his own energy to service the factory. Someone along the way made the wise decision to throw out all the machinery and put in offices," he said sarcastically.

"It won't be so long before they'll wish they hadn't done it, but then it will be too late," he said.

When Ford was in his declining years, as McCall terms it, he purchased what is now the Clarkston Mills.

"That was in 1941, and he made parts for the war," McCall said. "If you go in there now and look up over the stairs leading down, you can see where the original and new building match up."

For the 75th anniversary of the Ford Co., McCall wanted to do something special, something that would reflect how he felt about Ford.

"I got copies of signatures from members of the Ford family, I got them from wills and from Clarkston Village documents, land contracts."

"With a jeweler's glass, a quill pen and an onion skin I copied the signatures to one-inch, and blew them up to three-and-one-half feet in length."

"With an overhead projector I copied them onto my garage door. It was two weeks worth of mosquito bitten nights, but I did it," he said.

Centered in the signatures is the official 75th anniversary logo of the Ford Motor Co.

"I'm involved with this because I'm interested and I love the study of Henry Ford," McCall said. "I learn something new every day. Ford was one of the most, if not 'the' most influential man in the automobile business to ever come along."

This painstakingly hand-painted mural reflects, for all the world to see, the respect George McCall holds for the history of the Ford family. McCall spent two weeks of mosquito-bitten nights working on the one-of-a-kind masterpiece.

R and N takes customized approach to fencing

Richard Smith is doing what he likes best--working with his hands, tackling a challenge and being his own boss.

Smith owns R and N Fence Service, 5279 Dixie Highway, Waterford Township, and recalls it was at his brother's suggestion that he quit his job at Ford Motor to enter the fence business some 16 years ago.

"I had a pretty good job at Ford, but I didn't like it," Smith says. "Basically, all I did was stand around."

"So instead of just complaining about my job, I decided I'd do something about it. I've always liked building things and working with my hands--and here, I can do that."

Four years ago Smith pooled his resources and accumulated know-how by opening R and N and going into business for himself.

"They told me it would take about two years before I'd make any money, and they weren't lying," Smith recalls with a chuckle. "It's been a challenge."

Doing business

and there've been some heart aches along the way--but it's finally paying off."

Business was so good last year, Smith says, he had to turn down a few jobs. With the general slowdown in the economy lately, this year has been a different story.

"Last year we couldn't keep up," he notes. "This year we're just going from job to job without always having another lined up like we did last year."

Smith points to his customized approach to fence building--building a fence to special customer specifications--as one factor that separates his business from most lumber yards and other competitors.

"If a customer just brings in his own design or a picture of what he wants, we'll build it," he says. "A lot of places will offer you three or four standard styles, take it or leave it."

"I worked for some companies that would sell people one thing, and then give them something else and tell them it's the same. That's not the way we do business--we give the customer exactly what he wants in design and material at a fair price."

Smith utilized the first initials of his own name and his wife Norma's to come up with the name R and N Fence Service.

The Smiths make their home in Waterford with their four children, two boys and two girls.

"I found out that the name I wanted was already being used by another business," Smith says. "So we decided to go with R and N."

Owner Richard Smith puts a finishing touch on a display of a few of the fence designs available at R and N Fence Service. Smith says he'll custom build any design fence that a customer brings in.

Search for 'real' parents leaves love intact

How would you feel if you had given a child all your love for 15 years and then that child goes looking for his "real" parent?

In most cases you would feel a certain amount of resentment and disappointment.

At least, a great many parents of adopted children feel these things when those children begin to wonder about their natural mother and father. And not only to wonder, but to actively search for them and attempt to arrange a meeting or reunion.

As increasing numbers of adopted young people seek out their first parents, they either have the total support or opposition of their adopted parents. The issue usually raises anxiety on both sides, however.

The young person expects their adopted parents to be threatened and may not tell them they would like to find their natural parents.

The adopted parents themselves may fear the child's love for them will be transferred to the newly discovered natural parent. Or they may fear the young person will find out more about their birth or conception than will be healthy for them.

In some instances, they may be fearful that finding the natural parent leads an unusual or unhealthy life style will change the adoptee for the worse.

On the other hand, many adopted parents recognize that it is natural for adopted children to sooner or later, usually in early adolescence, seek out and ask questions about their origin and their "real" parents.

These adopted parents may give support and help to their children to find their parents and offer moral encouragement.

Opposition by the adopted parents usually does not cool the curiosity of an adopted child who wants to know more about where he came from, what his parents are like, why he was given up for adoption and if he has inherited a strange or genetic disease.

Many young adoptees see finding their natural parents as a process for making themselves "whole" or complete. Without knowing more about their ancestry, they feel incomplete.

It seems apparent that if there is a good, healthy, open relationship between adopted parents and their adopted children that the search for a natural parent and even the finding of them and the establishment of an on-going relationship will not destroy the good relationship.

Close family ties and the bonds of several years of devoted love will not be erased by learning more about their origin or heritage.

in the application for the building permit, or if construction is not being undertaken in accordance with a building permit or applicable ordinance, statute or regulation, a building permit may be suspended or revoked, in whole or in part, or construction being undertaken without a permit stopped, pursuant to the following procedure:

A. The Building Department shall give written notice to the holder of the building permit, or to the person undertaking construction without an appropriate permit, which notice shall appraise said person of the alleged violation, and also state that said person must appear in the Building Department within one (1) full working day and show cause why the permit should not be suspended or revoked, or why construction should not be ceased. If the aforementioned persons cannot be located after a reasonable effort, or their identity cannot be determined, such notice may be delivered to the person in charge, or apparently in charge, of the construction.

B. In the event that there is a failure to appear for the purpose of showing cause, as heretofore provided, or if, upon appearance, just cause cannot be shown as to why the permit should not be suspended or revoked, or why construction should not be ceased, the Building Department shall issue a written order to stop all, or part of, the construction, and post a copy thereof upon the premises.

C. Construction shall not be continued in violation of a stop-construction order, and such continuation shall constitute a violation of this Ordinance, and in addition thereto, the Township may seek injunctive relief in the Circuit Court for the County of Oakland.

D. Any person aggrieved by the stop-construction order may appeal to the Construction Board of Appeals.

ARTICLE 10. Construction Board of Appeals

Sec. 10.1. A Construction Board of Appeals for the Township of Independence shall be created, consisting of five (5) members appointed by the Township Board for two (2) year terms. The members of the Board of Appeals shall be qualified by experience or training to perform the duties of the members of the Board of Appeals. A person may serve on the Board of Appeals of the Township of Independence concurrently with such service upon the Board of Appeals of another municipality. One member of the Board of Appeals shall serve as Chairman, who shall preside over meetings and hearings, and one member shall serve as secretary of the Board of Appeals, who shall take and keep a public record of the minutes of the proceedings of the Board of Appeals, and also keep a record of all determinations made by the Board of Appeals.

Sec. 10.2. The Board of Appeals shall have jurisdiction to hear appeals for refusals by the Building Department to issue permits, or appeals from any other decisions relating to this Ordinance, and, further, the Board of Appeals may grant variance from the specific terms of this Ordinance if a literal application thereof shall result in an exceptional, practical difficulty to the applicant, and if both of the following requirements are satisfied:

a. The performance of the particular item or part of the structure with respect to which the variance is granted shall be adequate for its intended use and shall not substantially deviate from performance required by this Ordinance of that particular item or part for the health, safety and welfare of the people of the Township of Independence.

b. The specific condition justifying the variance shall be neither so general nor recurrent in nature so as to make an amendment of this Ordinance with respect to the condition reasonably practical or desirable.

Sec. 10.3. The Board of Appeals may attach to any decision granting a variance any written condition in connection with the variance that, in its judgment, is necessary to protect the health, safety and welfare of the people of the Township of Independence. The breach of such condition shall automatically invalidate the variance, and also invalidate any permit, license or other permission granted on the basis of the previously issued variance.

Sec. 10.4. Hearings before the Board of Appeals shall be by petition, submitted on the forms provided by the Board of Appeals.

Sec. 10.5. All decisions of the Board of Appeals shall be made after ten (10) days notice to all interested parties and a hearing at which interested parties are permitted to present their position.

Sec. 10.6. Decisions of the Board of Appeals shall be rendered in writing, and denials for relief shall be accompanied by stated reasons therefor.

Sec. 10.7. Decisions of the Board of Appeals shall be appealable to a court of competent jurisdiction, provided, however, that such an appeal shall not stay the decision of the Construction Board of Appeals unless specifically so ordered by the Court.

ARTICLE 11. Fees

Sec. 11.1. Fees for the administration and enforcement of this Ordinance, including the issuance of permits and inspection of construction and performance governed by this Ordinance shall be in accordance with the fees set and adopted by resolution to the Township Board of the Township of Independence of June 6, 1971, heretofore published, as amended by the Township Board from time to time.

ARTICLE 12. Penalties

Sec. 12.1. Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this Ordinance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be subject to a fine of not more than $500.00 plus costs or prosecution or by imprisonment in the County Jail for a period not to exceed ninety (90) days or both such fine, costs and imprisonment, as may be determined by the Court.

Sec. 12.2. A separate offense shall be committed upon each day during or when a violation occurs or continues.

Sec. 12.3. The Township may obtain injunctive relief to restrain violation hereof.

ARTICLE 13. Repealer and Exemption in Accordance with Act 230 of the Michigan Public Acts of 1972.

Sec. 13.1. Upon the effective date of this Ordinance, all other ordinances currently in existence shall be repealed insofar as they are inconsistent with the provisions of this Ordinance.

ARTICLE 14. Severability

Sec. 14.1. In the event that any section, provision, phrase, or word of this Ordinance shall be held void, ineffectual, or unconstitutional, in accordance with Act 230 of the Michigan Public Acts of 1972, as amended, or by a court of competent jurisdiction, said holding shall not affect the validity and effectiveness of the remaining sections, provisions, phrases or words of this Ordinance.

ARTICLE 15. Declaration of Adoption and Effective Date

Sec. 15.1. This Ordinance is hereby declared to have been duly adopted by the Township Board of the Township of Independence, County of Oakland, State of Michigan, at a meeting of said Board duly called and held on the 1st day of October, 1974, and the provisions of this Ordinance, except with respect to Section 3.2. of this Ordinance, the provisions of which section shall be effective 60 days after passage of this Ordinance.

Peeking Into the past

by Rastie Leaf

10 YEARS AGO June 4, 1978

Chosen to become JV cheerleaders for the next athletic season were: Vicki Hart, Debbie Willets, Jama Grammer, Roberta Warden, Cindy Booker, Kathy Ronk, Alice Marshall, Arlene Bixley and Sue Elliot.

25 YEARS AGO June 2, 1955

Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Emery were delightfully surprised on Sunday, when their son unexpectedly walked in. Jack has been in Germany for the past 17 months and not expected this soon.

Twenty-five couples, Merymixers, and their guests, held a barn dance at the Hal Brown farm last Friday night. The hay loft was appropriately decorated and everyone had a grand time.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Schroeder, with their three daughters, are back in town after spending the past three years in Syracuse, New York, where Mr. Schroeder was sent to work for GMTC.

Top candy seller for the Camp Fire Girl's recent candy drive was Carla Hendrick. Carla sold a total of 180 boxes.
