Concert frolickers

Maddy Kimball resumes her traditional marching frolic with children at the Village Park Band Concerts. The mini-parade around the concert-goers was a tradition two years ago and when the concerts were restored this summer, Maddy's marches were brought back as well. The Friday evening gatherings feature a 30-piece band led by James Morris and the event is sponsored by the Village Business Association. Three more free concerts are planned to begin at 7 p.m. on July 18, 25 and Aug. 1. For more photos of Friday's concert, see pages 20 and 21.

Parents charge CJHS with mishandling injury

They ask for medical reimbursement; school board takes no action

By Kathy Greenfield

Charging inadequate maintenance of Clarkston Junior High School and dismay with the way the situation was handled, Robert and Sue Moshier asked the Clarkston Board of Education for reimbursement of expenses not covered by insurance when their son received an electrical shock at the school May 27.

The board discussed the incident at Monday night's meeting, but took no action.

"I can find no evidence of neglect on the part of the school," said Superintendent Milford Mason. "I have recommended to the board that they deny any expenses that have been incurred."

The Moshiers' son, Brad, received the shock while standing on a chair and attempting to unplug a spotlight from a wall outlet. He was in charge of lighting for a play at CJHS.

When he pulled on the plug, the conduit moved and he put his hand up to get a better grasp. Brad's fingers touched the plug prong and the resulting jolt knocked him off the chair.

Mrs. Moshier was called at work and told that her son received a shock, but appeared to be okay.

But Mrs. Moshier claims the severity of the shock was never expressed and Brad was not taken to see a doctor until two hours later when he said he did not feel well and she was again called to pick him up from school.

According to reports from Assistant Principal Douglas Pearson and the school secretary, Brad was checked several times and he was told to report to the office if he was not feeling well.

When Mrs. Moshier took her son to the doctor, he was sent to intensive care at Pontiac Ostopathic Hospital and he wasn't released from the coronary care unit until two days later, she said.

The doctor said that because Brad's heart rate was so low, he could have had a heart attack, Mrs. Moshier said.

"I'm assuming because someone tells me he's okay, he is," Mrs. Moshier said. "Is it going to take the death of a child? We were fortunate he didn't die. This could happen to any of your children from the grade school on up."

Cost of the hospitalization was $1,418, she said, but most of the expense was covered by insurance.

After the meeting, Mrs. Moshier said she plans to pursue the matter.

"I think we're going to do a little bit more, but I don't know what exactly," she said. "I think it was a brush off."

Republicans to host candidates night

Independence Township voters will have a chance to meet the Republican candidates and hear them speak Wednesday, July 23.

The free event is sponsored by the Independence Township Republican Club.

It is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. at Spring Lake Country Club, 6060 Maybee, Independence Township.

All local Republican candidates for the township board have been asked to be there. Light refreshments will follow the presentations.

At least one Republican and one Democrat is running for each of the seven board seats. Terms of office are four years.

There are two Republican candidates for the clerk's position and seven Republican candidates running for four part-time trustee positions.

Because only one Democrat is running for the office of trustee, it's important for all voters to meet and hear the Republican candidates, said Dale Stuart, director of the Republican Party for the township.

"Three of the four Republicans that are nominated (in the primary election) are going to be elected in the fall," Stuart said. "Really—the races are between members of the Republican party."

The Republican club is not endorsing candidates for the primary election, he said.

Janet Thomas heads school board

Janet Thomas is the new president of the Clarkston Community Schools Board of Education.

Thomas of Warbler Lane, Independence Township, was unanimously approved as president by her fellow board members during the organizational meeting Monday night.

Other officers elected by the school board are vice president C. Vincent Luzi of Dixie Highway, Independence township; secretary Mary Jane Chaustowich of Clark Road, Springfield Township; and treasurer Addison Hubbard of Glenburnie Road, Independence Township.

During its annual organizational meeting, the board also reset the time of 8 p.m. the second Monday of each month for meetings and maintained last year's salary for school board members of $30 for each meeting not to exceed 24 meetings a year.

Drive-in murder suspect found fit to stand trial

By Marilyn Trumper
Ronnie C. Waters, suspect in the May 3 murder of Deborah Porcelli of Independence Township, has been found competent to stand trial and is scheduled for a preliminary examination on July 21.

The 17-year-old Pontiac youth is accused of killing Mrs. Porcelli as she and her husband Joseph, 29, were parked watching a movie at the Miracle Mile Drive-In on Telegraph Road, Bloomfield Township.

At a forensic examination Monday, Judge Carl F. Ingraham of Oakland County 48th District Court, said findings at the Center for Forensic Psychology reported the defendant is capable of standing trial and he would be able to assist in his own defense.

Waters is being held at the Oakland County Jail without bond on an open murder charge, two counts of possession of a firearm in the commission of a felony and assault with intent to murder.

At the forensic hearing, defense attorney William Waterman appealed to Ingraham to consider setting bond for Waters.

"Your honor, all the evidence seems to indicate that this act was not premeditated, that it was spontaneous," Waterman said.

According to Waterman, the defendant said he "wore the gun to style."

"To style, is the vernacular or street language of a young man believing to enhance his appearance," Waterman said. "This is a classic example of a non-premeditated act. A charge of second degree murder would be more appropriate, regarding the circumstances of public outcry, the fact that he is 17-years-old, a good student and that he has no prior record.

"Under these circumstances I feel he would be a candidate for bond," Waterman said.

Assistant Oakland County Prosecutor Stanly Kogut disagreed with defense's request.

"There was the use of a gun and no denial that the defendant was carrying a pistol. A pistol is used for one thing, to kill, and he is now being held on a charge of open murder," Kogut said.

Under Michigan law, when a defendant is held on an open murder charge, the courts must decide whether he will be tried on first degree, second degree or manslaughter charges.

Because the possibility exists that a defendant will be tried on a charge of first degree murder, no bond is set.

"Based on testimony delivered when the defendant was charged, I am not inclined to set bond," Ingraham said.

On May 3, as the Porcellis sat watching the movie at the drive-in, several men approached their car and asked for a light, according to police.

When Mr. Porcelli said he couldn't help them, two shots were fired into the car, wounding him and killing his wife, police said.

Four other people allegedly involved in the incident are to testify as witnesses, according to police.

A preliminary hearing is scheduled July 21 at 2 p.m. at the 48th District Court on East Long Lake Road, Bloomfield Hills.

The court will decide if there is probable cause to believe a crime was committed and probable reason to believe the defendant committed the crime.

At that time, a more definite murder charge may be leveled against the defendant, Waterman said.

Independence man dies at home

Body discovered days later

By Marilyn Trumper

The body of an Independence Township man who died almost one week ago, was discovered in his home on Andersonville Road on Sunday.

Michael Francis Piscorik, 53, died of natural causes, according to Robert Garton, investigator with the Oakland County Medical Examiner Office.

The body was discovered at about 6:30 p.m. by a visiting friend, according to next-door neighbor Blair Johnston.

"A longtime friend of his came over, discovered the body and came running and hollering out of the house," Johnston said. "My wife had just returned from bringing our daughter home from work, so we took her up on the porch.

"She was hysterical, so we sat her down and gave her a glass of water and called the police," he said.

"It was pretty bad, he'd been dead for several days and it wasn't a pretty sight," he said.

Mail in the mailbox dating back several days, and several days of newspapers, the latest one dated July 8, were on the doorstep and in the mailbox, according to police reports.

"The paper girl asked us if he had gone away on trips, because he often does," Johnston said. "We supposed he had. The last time I saw him, he was weeding his garden on July 7.

"Mike was a bachelor and lived 26 years in that house alone. He didn't have many friends socially and often went camping so it wasn't unusual that we didn't see him for a few days," he said.

"About 20 years ago Mike had a stroke which impaired his speech and made talking difficult for him. It was hard to understand him sometimes too. But it's sad, he was only 53,"

Johnston said.

Funeral services for Piscorik are scheduled Wednesday in Phoenixville, Pa.

Lack of tornado sirens irks mobile home resident

By Al Zawacky

A lot of Oakland County residents might respond to tornado sirens by turning up the TV or rolling over and going back to sleep.

But Dennis Potulsky, a resident of Springfield Estates mobile home park on Dixie Highway in Springfield Township, says he doesn't have that option.

And he says that worries him. "Two years ago the township had the opportunity to install warning sirens, and turned them down on the grounds that there weren't enough people in the township to warrant the expense," Potulsky said.

"I don't understand that reasoning. When it comes to people's lives, it would seem to me that the cost shouldn't be important."

Because mobile home parks are especially vulnerable to tornadoes, the lack of a warning system is especially worrisome to himself and his neighbors, Potulsky said.

"If you live in a regular brick home and see a tornado coming, you can always go in the basement, or even crawl under a table. Either way, you're better off than you are in a mobile home park.

"We've got to have enough warning to have time to get out and find shelter somewhere. Once that aluminum starts flying, you don't stand a chance."

Potulsky said he has contacted State Sen. Kerry Kammer (Springfield Township) and State Rep. Claude Trim (D-Davisburg) on the possibility of installing a warning system.

"I think it's very unfortunate that Mr. Potulsky decided to contact a state senator and representative before coming to the township with this problem," said Springfield Township Supervisor Collin Walls.

"When we decided not to go with the sirens two years ago, it wasn't just from a cost standpoint but from a standpoint of effectiveness as well."

Citizens interested in installing the tornado sirens had approached the township government in 1978, Walls said, but technical problems with the system convinced the township not to install the sirens.

"Interestingly, enough, the people that originated the drive to have the sirens were not from mobile home parks," Walls added.

A study of the population distribution in Springfield Township revealed that the township would have needed five or six sirens—and that even 25 to 30 percent of the people wouldn't have been reached by the system, according to Walls.

"My personal feeling is that the Oakland County warning system has not been as effective as it could have been," he said. "People indoors can't always hear the sirens, and people outdoors can see any threatening weather anyway."

Potulsky said he went directly to his state senator and representative to avoid the "bureaucratic mess" previously encountered at the township level.

"The people in the township have been given the run-around on this before just two years ago," he said.

"There are probably a lot of people who would just listen to the siren and go back to sleep. If they want to ignore the danger, fine—but I think everyone should have the opportunity to make their own decision."

Walls said a special warning system covering the township's mobile home parks might be an appropriate solution.

"This (warning system for mobile homes) is something we may want to look into," he said. "But no one in the township government has been contacted about this problem by him (Potulsky)."

"Groveland Township uses a system whereby the fire department warns mobile home owners in the event of a tornado warning," Walls said. "This is something that we might be able to work out in Springfield with our fire department."

Behind every team, there's a coach...

It may be quite some time before the Detroit Tigers or any other major league ball club has a female manager, but in the Independence Township Parks and Recreation little league that day has already arrived. Under the tutelage of Coach Beth Miller, a Widget squad sponsored by McAnnally Realty has won seven of their first eight contests. There's a story on the team and more pictures on today's sports page.

Township budgets slashed by $54,000

Loss in state shared revenue lowers Independence funds; layoffs result

By Marilyn Trumper

Several Independence Township departments have been forced to reduce their budgets and the collective cut totals approximately $54,000.

The budget slashing was necessary to compensate for cuts in state shared revenue funding, said Whitey Tower, township supervisor, and the budget must be amended legally.

At the quarterly budget meeting July 8, the Independence Township Board unanimously approved the cuts and agreed to call a second budget meeting within two months to re-evaluate the situation.

Layoffs proved to be the number one money-saving tactic in most departments.

"I've already laid off one clerk and as a result I've reduced my budget by $5,000," said Frederick Ritter, township treasurer. "That lay off was effective June 30."

Reading a letter from Timot-thy Palulian, head of the township's building and planning department, Ritter informed the board that following the retirement of a building department employee, Palulian estimated a savings of $15,000.

James Hibler, head of the township's library, said he estimated a $10,000 savings by primarily cutting down on the purchase of books and equipment.

Notifying two seasonal cemetery employees of their pending lay offs, George Anderson, head of the township's department of public works, said he would realize a savings of approximately $4,000.

"I'm at the personnel level I was at five years ago," Anderson said. "I'll take my lumps, but I won't be the only one to take my lumps."

James Sherill, head of the assessing department, said that he runs a seasonal department.

"My situation is temporary," Sherill said. "I see a definite $5,000 savings and as much as $10,000 if I layoff one employee now with the expectation of filling that position in December when I'm busy again."

One part-time employee in the township's parks and recreation department has already been laid off, said department head, Timothy Doyle.

"That is a $3,000 savings," he said. "I issued a layoff for the senior citizen's site hostess director which would have been an $8,000 savings, but Whitey extended that layoff notice indefinitely."

If that lay off is finalized, the parks and recreation department would realize an $11,000 savings, Doyle said.

Whether or not that layoff will take place is still under consideration.

On downtown Clarkston

Flashing street signs to shine

Flashing signs which say, "Walk" or "Do Not Walk," are expected to appear on the corner of Washington Street and M-15 in downtown Clarkston.

"We asked the state about having pedestrian walk signs where they could push a button and stop the flow of traffic," said Village President Fontie ApMadoc.

"Well, we have the flashing signs instead and only on that one corner," she said.

The lights will be placed on M-15, but only to aid pedestrians crossing M-15, and not those crossing Washington Street, said Gary Symons, council member.

"At least six months ago we said we wouldn't go along with the state because the cost to the village would have been approximately $12,500," said ApMadoc.

"So the state is going to put the signs where they will aid people in crossing M-15, which is a state highway and not Washington because the village decided not to pay," ApMadoc said.

"This way though, the kids have to stop and look left and right. Too many people refuse to obey the no turn on red sign on the corner," she said.

No date was given for the state to begin erection of the signs.

Bug study

Most people try to get rid of insects.

But participants in the public interpretive program at Independence Oaks County Park July 25 will try to attract them.

Entitled "The Secret World of Insects," the program will begin at the park's Twin Chimneys Shelter at 8:30 p.m. and run until 10 p.m.

Under the direction of Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission Naturalist Kathleen Dougherty, participants will view a brief slide presentation, listen to tapes and then take to the park trails in search of insects.

"Summer nights are filled by the insect orchestra," says Dougherty. "One of the nighttime players is the tree cricket, who gives the temperature reading by the number of times it chirps."

Participants will also learn to attract kady-dids, moths and other nocturnal insects.

Pre-registration is required by calling 625-0877. The only charge for the program is the park entry fee of $2 for Oakland County residents and $3 for non-residents.

Independence Oaks is located at 95501 Sashabaw Rd., two and a half miles north of I-75 Independence Township.

Rudy Schwarze has been phoning his Market on Main Street, Clarkston, from his room at Pontiac General Hospital to make sure everything is going all right, and that's a sure sign he's feeling better, say his employees.

He is expected to be home today, said his son Fred on Tuesday. Doctors aren't sure exactly what caused the high temperature that resulted in Rudy's hospitalization last week, Fred said, but it may have been a touch of pneumonia.

One Pine Knob Music Theatre patron learned a lesson about leaving his belongings unattended, and it cost him $25.

Ready to come to the rescue of a distressed motorist, the concert goer plunked down a bag filled with food, drink and wallet, and proceeded to help the automobile driver.

Upon his return, the bag of food was still there, but the wallet and several credit cards were missing.

Some days it doesn't pay to be a good Samaritan.

Don't be surprised if you see a bunch of Independence Township firefighters hanging out at Pine Knob Music Theatre during the Diana Ross and Beach Boys concerts.

The firefighters will be trying to "Fill-the-Boot" to defeat Muscular Dystrophy during the concerts on July 25, 26, 27 and Aug. 1, 2, 3.

They will also be at Pine Knob the last two weeks in August.

A unique concept in water life saving techniques has been discovered by the Independence-Township Fire Department.

On Friday during a trial experiment on the shores of Clarkston's Mill Pond, firefighters staged a rescue.

A tank of compressed air was fitted to a fire hose. As the hose filled with air it became stiff and rigid, but most importantly it was floatable.

Feeding the hose to firefighter treading water, the men successfully pulled the victim to safety.

"We've used this technique in the winter to pull someone from out of the ice," said Gordon Mason, firefighter. "We wanted to see if it would work in water, and to see if the hose would float."

Whew!

This year there will be a small extension for Clarkston Village residents when they hand in tax payments.

Clarkston's Village Council voted unanimously Monday night, to extend the village resident's real or property tax payment deadline to Oct. 20, instead of September 1.

By law, the council has the right to do so, and attempts to perform the same act each year, said Artemus Pappas, village treasurer.

THANK YOU:

We would like to express our thanks to all the people who participated in the 4th of July Parade in Clarkston.

It is our hope that next year we will again be able to offer prizes for participants.

This should be a greater incentive for groups or individuals to build floats to be entered in the competition.

A thank you also to the Clarkston High School Band for their performance. Next year we hope the junior high school bands can also be available to perform in the march.

Each year we attempt to have a leading citizen from within our community serve as our Grand Marshal.

Mulberry helper

by Kathy Greenfield

Turtle hunting has taken a new twist.

There's this mulberry tree growing on the shore line down at our neighborhood beach and the kids have discovered the turtles love to eat the tasty berries.

This all came about when some adults at the beach showed how ducks will paddle in to eat the mulberries.

For eager duck watchers the method is simple--just shake the tree and they appear.

But the discovery that the turtles are also waiting for the ripe berries to drop is the kids' alone.

"They fed the ducks and then the turtles came up, too," says my son. "Then we got the idea of getting up in the tree and shaking it and catching turtles instead of ducks."

Amazing.

No one, by the way, has even come close to catching the ducks with the exception of snapping turtles that are rumored to have wiped out a family of four ducklings.

We watch the process of turtle hunting with mulberries and it is absolutely fascinating.

The turtles the kids find are safe and remarkably pretty--they are commonly called painted turtles, colored with vibrant shades of orange and green.

It has crossed my mind that the turtles may not find this whole thing to their liking.

The routine is to catch a few turtles, look at them, have turtle races sometimes, throw them back and catch them again, and then let them go.

What's happened over the weeks is that the kids are getting to know the regulars under the mulberry tree.

"There's this one that's really dark. The shell is a little darker than the others and so is the coloring," says my son. "It's really different from the others. And there's a real small one and another big one."

My son isn't sure if the turtles enjoy the sport, but he suspects at least one does.

"I think the dark one likes it," he says. "He's being caught so much."

The scene isn't exactly like the boy and his purpose that we all know and love from reading and watching "Flipper" on TV.

But it's as close as we'll ever get on our fresh-water lake.

Who are you?

We have received two unsigned letters to the editor in the past few weeks and have been unable to print them.

Because we feel it is important to encourage letters from our readers and are eager to offer space for your opinions, an explanation of our policy is in order.

We require that letters be signed and a telephone number be provided in case we have to contact the writer.

Although we always encourage letter writers to use their names in the paper, because it adds credibility to the writing and those with opinions should be willing to stand up for what they have to say, we will not print writers' names if they ask us not to.

We do keep the letters on file, but the names of the writers are revealed to no one. In other words, someone cannot call us and find out who the author was if that person has requested anonymity.

If you have written a letter lately and failed to sign it, but want us to use it, call or drop in and we'll correct the problem.

And keep those letters coming. We want you to share your opinions.

Jim's jottings

Autos' allure fading

by Jim Sherman

There's a Marathon Oil Co. commercial that keeps repeating "I love cars."

I used to feel that way.

It was the American way. Madison Avenue hucksters made us want to buy a new car every year. And, I wanted to.

The smell of a new car was the greatest smell next to newly opened coffee. The ride of a new car was always softer and more comfortable than last year's model.

Remember how you used to wash and polish your car at least once a week?

Even our Ford Chateau Van was kept neat and tidy.

Then came the move to compacts. The move to plastic, short wheelbase, impossible back seats, tiny trunks, with trunk lids and hoods that won't stay up without props.

I drive one of them. It's a car.

It's not a BUICK ROADMASTER or a CHRYSLER IMPERIAL. It's a car. Something necessary to get from here to there. I'll run it through the car wash next week.

That's where I think we are headed, if we aren't already there, in the American car market.

The love affair is over.

My little car was recalled several months ago, something about the steering or fire or something. When it was in the garage for some fixing recently, I had them check out the problem.

The service manager needed the letter I'd received. They had to know which fault my particular model had. "Just fix one of the above," I said.

Sure, the young folks "love their cars," at least some of them, but they can't wait to jack them up, paint 'em over, widen their track, or customize the windows.

They don't seem to love the car they buy, more they love what they can make the car into.

All the advertising for cars today comes in shouting rebates. These shouts come right after GM, Ford and Chrysler raise prices 2 percent, three times a year.

If the manufacturers aren't expressing pride in their product's looks, feel, and comfort, the public's pride will falter, too.

Who wants to keep shined at mpg?

Whoah, Nellie!

WRIF sports announcer Eli Zaret [left] gets a little friendly advice as he prepares himself for the mechanical bull's wrath.

Kathy Mayer shows her riding expertise as the feared electric bull springs to life.

The bull was flying last week at A.W.'s Rodeo.

The electric bull, that is.

Kathy Mayer of Bluegrass Drive, Independence Township and her friend Beth Barnett of Holly decided to challenge WRIF radio personalities Jim Johnson and Eli Zaret to a rodeo-type competition on the bucking electric bull at the Waterford Township restaurant and lounge.

The event was part of "JJ and Eli's Wednesday Night Challenge" in which Zaret and Johnson accept challenges from radio listeners who are free to choose their weapons.

It was just a fun thing," Kathy says. "Everybody had a good time."

The result was a 449-381 point victory for the female challengers. None of the riders were dismounted—the victory was achieved on the basis of points awarded for style, says Kathy.

"I guess we kind of had a pretty big advantage—Beth and I both own horses and are familiar with riding. That, plus we had more time to practice," she says.

And the spoils of victory?

"We each had dinner on the house and got a WRIF T-shirt."

And plenty of bruises, too.

'If it Fitz. . .'

Fitz gets a date

by Jim Fitzgerald

The National Association of Litho Clubs recently convened at the Detroit Plaza Hotel. I attended, with a vacuum cleaner. The Cincinnati Sex Symbol was also there, with the Itch.

"Lith" is a Greek word meaning stone. Naturally, this doesn't mean Litho Club members get stoned. It means they are lithographers who run around printing words on flat stones because they drink too much to know any better.

That's not a fair description. It is an injustice to judge all lithographers by the behavior of the Cincinnati Sex Symbol, the only Litho Club member who is also my brother-in-law. You may remember him and his red T-shirt from last February.

It was then that I wrote about a visit my four sisters and I and our spouses made to New Orleans. Sister No. 3, Nancy the Itch, is married to the sex symbol, whose given name is Gabby. Everyone in the French Quarter soon learned Gabby is the Cincinnati Sex Symbol because that's what it says, in large litho letters, on his only shirt. The label is necessary because there is absolutely no other evidence of his symbolic status. The sex symbol is short and round. By his own description, Gabby looks like a pull toy.

When the Itch pulled the toy into Detroit for the litho convention, three of her siblings were waiting to pick up the party where it left off five months earlier, when they were deported from New Orleans for marching close-order drill in a cemetery without a mortician's license. The sister who lives in Texas was the only Fitz who couldn't make it to the Detroit meeting, but she phoned every hour to forbid us to have a good time without her.

It is recalled that my much older sister, Terrible Jean, wasn't mentioned in my original report on the New Orleans party. This omission disturbed many readers who feared that her much younger siblings had left Terrible Jean home simply because Greyhound declared her too old to travel. The consensus was that this is no way to treat a matriarch, even if she did once use her little brother for a tent stake, headfirst. I am constantly amazed at the great number of people who approve of innocent little brothers being abused.

Actually, Terrible Jean was in New Orleans, leading the singing in the cemetery, but when I wrote a column about the party, I wiped her out of it by accidentally hitting the wrong button on the magical keyboard which propels these words off into computer land. Terrible Jean loves publicity, so I apologized to her for the error, and she graciously hollered that I have been of no earthly use to her ever since she quit putting up tents.

Anyway, Terrible Jean was definitely present at the Cincinnati Sex Symbol's convention, as several innocent bystanders could testify. They were bystanders when our platoon marched into Rembrandt's Roadster, the downtown bistro where John Williams plays super piano while Katherine Grimshaw provides all the fine singing anyone — except Terrible Jean — could ever want. Terrible Jean decided it should be a sing-along bar and immediately went into her Mitch Miller act, commanding everyone present except me to sing. She allows me to hum only.

This awful noise went on for three hours. After we left, the Roadster management revised its dress code so as to ban anyone with a pull toy, or a vacuum cleaner.

You are probably wondering about that vacuum cleaner. The thing is, my wife had another commitment that night, and I didn't want to be a ninth wheel. It looked like rain, and arks must be boarded by twos. There was an unusual vacuum cleaner parked in the hotel hallway, so I took it by the handle. When I promised to be gentle at curbs, I had a date.

No plugs or extension cords were needed. Just being in the same party with the Cincinnati Sex Symbol was enough to turn my vacuum on.

Onward and Upward, but don't tell my sister in Texas.

Fire stations to remain open

Fire call

The possibility that one fire station in Independence Township would close due to cash flow problems and a manpower shortage has been thwarted for at least three weeks.

In an effort to fill the manpower shortage, the Independence Township Board, at its July 8 quarterly budget meeting, unanimously directed Fire Chief Frank Ronk to offer overtime payment to fire department employees.

As a result, all three township fire stations will remain open on a 24-hour basis until the August 5 primary election when residents will vote on a proposed 1-mill tax increase for the fire department.

"Even with tonight's budget cuts, if the millage passes they can borrow money from the township's general fund budget to float them through December when they can collect the millage," said township Treasurer Frederick Ritter.

Until that time, the overtime payments will come from the fire department fund, according to Christopher Rose, township clerk, but they will only be covered until the fifth of August.

Chief Ronk said he did not feel he would have problems scheduling firefighters to fill the overtime hours now that he had the board's permission to pay overtime.

"Now I'll have all three stations fully manned for 24 hours a day at least until the election," Ronk said. "But if the millage doesn't pass I'll be making cuts and I'll be back where I started with one man short."

If the millage passes, Ronk said he would fill his vacancy by hiring an employee and borrowing from the general fund in anticipation of the millage collection in December.

She's a mom—and a coach, too

Beth Miller's boys roll to 7 wins in 8 tries

By Al Zawacky

Picture in your mind a typical little league coach.

They're tall, short, thin, fat, loud and soft spoken, but the one thing most everyone would agree on is that the stereotype is a male.

But even there, you'd be making a generality that doesn't always apply.

"This is my second year of coaching," says Beth Miller, who coaches a boys' team in the Independence Parks and Recreation Widget League.

"They needed coaches last year, and I volunteered."

Married and the mother of three children, one of whom plays on the team, Beth notes she isn't quite alone in her role of female coach.

"There was another woman last season, but she's gone on to coach Midget ball (12- to 14-year-old boys)," she says.

Baseball's been Beth's game for some time. She's listened to Tiger games on the radio as long as she can remember and says she has "been around baseball all my life."

"One of the biggest benefits of coaching is seeing some of the kids who might have been having a little trouble at first start to come around," Beth says.

"It makes them feel good and feel more like part of the team—and it makes you feel happy as a coach, too."

Most of her male counterparts have treated her fairly and as an equal, although she recalls an incident last season that left her a little miffed.

"The umpire made a call and I disputed it. It wasn't a judgment call—it was something to do with a baseball rule," says Beth.

"The umpire wound up agreeing with the other coach who said in effect that I didn't know what I was talking about."

The best way to earn the respect of your coaching peers is to be successful—and Beth's boys have been pretty convincing this season.

Coming off a solid second-place finish last year, the team is currently cruising along in first place with a 7-1 record.

Members of the team, sponsored by McAnnally Realtors, are Jon Miller, Andy Hunter, Jim Hall, Joe Hamelin, Bryant McAnnally, Jerry Darling, Steve Evans, Chuck Humphrey, Chris Dickerson, Todd Zeller, Danny Bailey, Craig Hubble, Steve Lambourn, Frank Dick and Kevin Heber.

"It's a great feeling to have people come up to you and say, 'Hey, I hear that team of yours is really tearing them up," Beth says. "We've got a really fine group of kids."

Prior to rapping out a little pre-game practice, Beth discusses the upcoming game with McAnnally Realty player Joe Hamelin.

Besides being a wife, mother and a coach, Beth is also a professional beauty consultant.

"Other women ask me how I find time to coach," she says. "It does keep me pretty busy."

She's also benefited from having an assistant coach, Ron Dickerson, who's "been a big help to me," she says.

"I think the hardest thing about coaching is putting the lineup together and deciding where everybody is going to play," Beth says.

"One thing that helps you as a coach is when the parents of the kids are helpful. Our parents have been super and they've been behind me 100 percent—that makes a coach's job easy."

The point after

by Al Zawacky

It's summertime:

Pools are packed, barbecues blaze, sidewalks sizzle...

And Gary Nustad is thinking basketball.

Not that that should come as a surprise. Nustad, who coached the CHS basketball team to its third straight league title last winter, just recently completed his 1980 summer basketball camp.

The camp featured drills, games, films and visits by some guest speakers for the 69 fifth through eleventh graders who participated.

Guest speakers? Now, you might expect a guest speaker at a kids' basketball camp in a little town like Clarkston to be someone named Joe Krupnik, the assistant to the assistant equipment manager at Engadine U.

Not quite. Forget the no frills fare—Nustad goes first class.

"We had Eldon Miller (Ohio State head coach) and Bill Frieder (U of M head coach)," Nustad said. "And we had Tim McCormick, too."

The fact that Nustad is on such excellent terms with two top Big Ten coaches again stokes rumors about a possible college coaching job for the CHS mentor in the future. But Nustad continues to discount the chances of that happening.

"I expect to be coaching at Clarkston High School this winter," Nustad said, reciting an oft-repeated phrase.

But he left the door open—just a hair—by adding: "I'm reasonably certain I'll be back."

REGARDLESS OF WHAT happens between now and the fall, Gary Nustad will face perhaps the biggest challenge of his coaching career next season.

Naturally, a college position would be a tremendous challenge—but no more than the task involved in coaching at Clarkston High School this December.

Graduation has left the Wolfpack with question marks at virtually every position. The GOAL title race will be a real dogfight in '80-'81, and while Clarkston should be in the thick of it, those 30-point cakewalks are a thing of the past.

If the Wolfpack misses out on the GOAL title—not at all an unlikely occurrence—there'll be whispering in the grandstands that "anybody could've coached and won the last three years."

It's not true and it's not fair—but that's what they'll be saying.

Nustad assesses the future of Clarkston basketball with complete candor.

"Haddad moved into Clarkston, Sheldon was a move-in and so was McKoin," Nustad noted. "It's unrealistic to expect our past success to continue unless we expand our lower-level basketball programs for local kids."

"I'm not a miracle worker. I don't think any coach is. We're going to be very thin as far as bench and back-up strength is concerned next season."

But deficiencies can be overcome. "I think we can still win our fourth straight league title," Nustad concluded, ending on an optimistic note.

Beth watches the action along with some of her players during what proved to be victory number seven.

CHS athlete physicals July 23

Clarkston High School boys planning on participating in athletics during the upcoming school year can obtain the required physical examination July 23.

The exams will take place starting at 11 a.m. at Clarkston High School for all boys, grades nine through 12. Cost is $5.

Physical exams are required for participation in all school sports activities. Boys planning on playing fall, winter or spring sports should attend the clinic.

Athletes unable to obtain their physical on that day must pick up an exam form at the high school and have a physical performed by their own physicians.

Rec tennis, BMX race results

There were plenty of strong performances--but the Independence Parks and Recreation tennis team fell just short of posting a victory last week.

A team from Clawson downed the local players 7-6. The Independence squad is coached by Dick Swartout, who also coaches tennis at Clarkston High School.

Individual winners were Dan Travis and Mark Cooper in the 13-year-old boys' singles category; Molly McAuliffe and Lisa Burkemo in 13-year-old girls' doubles; Shelley Van Kevern in 15-year-old girls' singles; Mary Smith in 17-year-old girls' singles and Sam Mallett in 17-year-old boys' singles.

Playing well in a losing cause for the Independence team were John Wiedemann, Stacey Walker, Brenda Kosinski and Kris Tiaht.

Three Clarkston area youngsters were winners in the Bike Moto-Cross races at Waterford Oaks last week.

In the 7- to 8-year-old race, Daven Pyles finished first.

Paul Newton claimed third place in the 9- to 10-year-old category.

A second-place finish was won by Briah Barlow in the 15- to 16-year-old event.

The races are conducted every Saturday, weather permitting, at 10 a.m. at Waterford Oaks County Park. The bicycle motocross track is located adjacent to the Wave Pool on Scott Lake Road.

Boys or girls entering the race must register no later than 10 a.m. at the site the day of the race.

For more information, call 858-0916 and ask for Steve Wofford.

Halfathon race coming to Pine Knob

Independence Township Parks and Recreation and the Pine Knob Music Theater will host their Second Annual Pine Knob Music Theater Halfathon running race August 10.

Registration will take place in the Pine Knob Music Theater parking lot from 8 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. the day of the race. Entry fee is $8 the day of the race and $6 for those who pre-register by 5 p.m. Aug. 8 at the Independence Parks and Recreation office, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Contestants who pre-register by Aug. 6 will also receive a free T-shirt. Halfathon T-shirts will be available after that date at a cost of $3.

The race will begin in the Pine Knob parking lot at 10 a.m. Awards will be given to those placing first through fifth in each age group, provided there are at least eight entrants in that category.

Runners may choose from two distances of 4.6 miles or a half-marathon (about 13 miles). For further information on the race, contact Independence Parks and Recreation at 625-8223.

Wolves' cagers prepare for autumn action

By Al Zawacky
It's upward and onward for the Clarkston High School girls' basketball program.

Based on a summer camp turnout he termed "super," varsity Coach Dave McDonald estimated that close to 50 girls would try out for the basketball team this fall.

"In a way, that's kind of bad—a lot of girls are going to have to be cut," McDonald said.

"But it's great for the program."

Coming off a disappointing season in which inexperience was the Wolves' major malady, McDonald said he thinks the CHS girls' program has turned the corner.

"I'm really encouraged. We've got some good girls coming back."

Pat Bradley [left] and Angie Balzarini go up for the opening tipoff at the start of a scrimmage game during Coach Dave McDonald's summer basketball camp.

A loose rebound always attracts plenty of attention.

She models in national TV ads

Career woman balances family, job

By Marilyn Trumper

It all began when Susan Yuille, 35, got her first job modeling for the Chrysler Corporation's display at an auto show. Her career snowballed from there.

That was 15 years ago.

Since then, she has become one of the top paid models in Detroit, has traveled to Europe, gotten married and is the mother of two children.

"A lot of girls think of modeling as an ego booster, but it's not if you take it seriously," Susan said. "To go ahead, to get anywhere in this business you have to work hard."

Today, Susan is working at her mother's business in Clarkston, The Gift Market.

Periodically rising to aid a customer with a purchase, her blue-grey eyes hold a special excitement for each person.

"When I'm not shooting I'm keeping the books here," she said. "Now though, it's the busy time for shooting commercials and ads, so I've been working almost every day."

Up until nine years ago, she said she traveled around and out of the state quite often.

"But I gave that up," she said. "You can't have a good, solid, happy family if you're not there to contribute and make it work."

"But then again, you can't turn down any job offers. You have to make your career work where you live," she said.

As a professional model, Susan is in many commercials on national and local television.

She is known in the business as the "Fisher Lady."

"I've shot several commercials for the Fisher Wallpaper and Paint stores, but on one particular shooting the camera man said, 'Here comes the Fisher lady,' and I knew I was at home," she said, clarifying her nickname with a laugh.

Susan has been the principal actress in a Detroit, Toledo and Milwaukee D.O.C. commercial and a regional Hughs and Hatters commercial, with a full string of more jobs to her credit.

"I have what is called a believable face," she said. "I'm not beautiful. The believable face together with the 15 years of experience helps me a lot."

Modeling, according to Susan, is not a glamorous profession. All models carry their own wardrobes to a set, and the director chooses which particular outfit they will wear.

"I've even come as far as to drive a truck to carry my outfits in," she laughs. "There are approximately 30 that I take with me to every shooting, although because of the roles I get now my clothes are pretty much classic styles so I don't have to buy clothes as often.

"The only time I feel glamorous is when a make-up artist comes up and powders my face," she laughed.

While loading the truck to head for work is her job, Susan's husband Bruce takes care of the unloading.

Susan and Bruce and their two children Doug, 11, and Britney, 4, live on Balmoral Terrace in Independence Township.

Bruce is an attorney and partner in the firm of Yuille, Zeleznik, Plourde and Russell in Waterford Township.

"We don't like to let the kids watch too much television," Susan said. "I'm particular about what they do watch, but we call the station to see what time one of my commercials is scheduled and we all tune in and watch."

Young Doug is also a commercial actor and has a national ad playing currently on turkey hot dogs.

"I don't like to push him into any one thing," Susan said, "but I like the fact that he enjoys filming and that he's so good at it."

The sharp eyes of television viewers may recognize the face of Susan Yuille, commercial actress, seen regularly in Fisher Wallpaper and Paints advertising.

Absentee ballots for Aug. 5 primary available

Registered voters who will be out of town Aug. 5 or who have another valid reason for not attending the polls may now cast absentee ballots for the primary election.

Voters have several options on ways to request absentee voter applications.

They can call the Independence Township Clerk's office at 625-5111; stop by township hall, 90 N. Main; Clarkston; or request the ballot in writing.

The whole process can take place by mail, or voters can fill out the application and vote at township hall from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday or from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 2.

The last day to vote absentee is Monday, Aug. 4, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Voters can also request a ballot without filling out an application if a letter is written that includes the reason an absentee ballot is needed.

The signature of each person for whom a ballot is requested is required.

Acceptable reasons are: That the voter will be out of town on election day the entire time the polls are open (from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.); he or she is physically unable to attend the polls without assistance; religious beliefs do not allow attending the polls; the voter is age 60 or older; and the voter is confined to jail awaiting arraignment or trial.

Voter turnout for the Aug. 5 primary election is expected to be heavy, said township Clerk Christopher Rose.

"The people are out campaigning--there's been a lot of interest," Rose said. "But also, there are five millage requests on the ballot and that brings a lot of people out."

The township millage requests include a 1 mill police renewal, 1 additional mill for police protection, 1 mill for fire protection, and 1/2 mill for safety paths.

Oakland County Parks and Recreation Department is requesting a 1/4 mill tax renewal.

Detroit Edison is also on the ballot requesting a franchise renewal in Independence Township.

Caution for absentee voters is suggested by Rose, who said it is easy to invalidate ballots, because during the primary, voters must vote for candidates in only one political party.

Lions Club president

Independence Township resident Nick Schlicht was recently installed as president of the Waterford Lions Club. He is a five-year member of the club that works to provide funds to assist the sight and hearing impaired. Nick, his wife Kris and their sons, Nenji, 5, and Eric, 3, live on Allen Road.

The Detroit Science Center has bucked the trend of rising costs by reducing admission fees to the exhibit hall and space theater for July and August.

See the hall and visit one of only six domed theaters in the world, and the only one located east of the Mississippi River.

Tickets for adults are $1.50 and for children under 6 years of age 75 cents. Organized groups of 25 people or more can purchase tickets at $1 for adults and 75 cents for children.

The Detroit Space Theater is currently showing Atmos, a 27-minute examination of the massive forces shaping worldwide weather conditions including the effects of volcanic action.

The Detroit Science Center is located at 5020 John R. in Detroit. It is open Tuesday through Friday from 9-4, Saturdays from 10-5, Sundays from 12-5 and Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings from 7-9:30 p.m. The theater is closed on Mondays.

Dial money-savers

Are there bored kids in the house with too much summertime on their hands and nothing to do?

Are there bugs eating the ready-to-can fruit growing on the trees? Is wildlife munching at that money saving home garden?

If so, then Michigan State University's Cooperative Extension Service (CES) is offering a hot-line program to end those problems.

For answers to lawn care, insect management, vegetable and fruit production or tree and shrub problems call the garden hotline at 858-0902 from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. A garden consultant will answer your questions Monday through Friday and provide answers to your greenery of pesky problems.

Want to know the proper and safe methods of food selection, preparation and preservation? Call the food preservation hotline at 858-0904 for answers. For methods on preservations, and to schedule lectures and demonstrations for groups, call the same number and ask for Lois Thieleke, home economist.

Learning to eat nutritionally and for less is a prime concern today. For best buys, new ideas or information on the Nutrition Day Camp for Youth call 858-0897. Arrangements can also be made through that number for a nutrition aide to work directly with low income families.

For the kids to participate in a variety of fun projects and learning activities, call 858-0889 for information on the 4-H youth program. The 4-H Fair is scheduled August 3-8 at Springfield Oaks Youth Activities Center in Springfield Township.

For current tips on the home and family, food, gardening, insects, lawns, shrubs and trees, fruit and all similar things call the handy hints hotline at 858-2519 for recorded 1-3 minute messages to end all woes.

To make summer more enjoyable, this service is provided by the cooperative efforts of CES, the U.S. Department of Agriculture and Oakland County.

Shades of Halloween

McDonald's crew says farewell to transferred manager in unusual style

By Kathy Greenfield

Toilet paper shall forever be wrapped in Bob Wilner's memories of his two-year stint as manager of McDonald's of Clarkston.

Some of his about 60-member staff snuck away during his recent going away party--he was transferred to the Waterford store--and draped the trees, roof, TV antennae and eaves of his home artfully in the white stuff.

"It was all in good-natured humor," Bob said the next day as he surveyed his home on Cummings Drive, Independence Township. "I think it was their way of saying, 'Good luck!'"

The Halloweenish stunt goes back in Bob's memories even before the house.

"The whole thing started when I got a Corvette," he said. "A few months ago we had a party--they decided to toilet paper my car."

The party was a reward for the hard-working McDonald's staff for placing in the top five stores in the district in a contest for selling the most steak sandwiches.

It was then that the crew covered his car in strips of white.

They made up for that prank by buying him a cover for his Corvette as a going away gift.

Although Bob wasn't sure just who was responsible for the house-wrapping incident, he said he had scheduled an afternoon clean-up.

"Actually, no one will admit to it," he said. "I'm sure there were several of them."

"I wish I could have been there to see the day shift ladies," he added with a laugh. "I can just imagine them out here in the dark tossing toilet paper."

One of the day shift workers is Joanne Carboneaux of Chickadee Lane, Independence Township. Off for the summer, Joanne works at the store when school is in session.

Joanne, of course, was not directly involved in the incident, but she agreed that the toilet paper tossing was all in good, clean fun.

"He's a super boss," she said. "We really have enjoyed having him and hated to see him go."

"He loves us to tell him jokes," she added.

Meanwhile, Bob is trying to assess how much damage the whole thing has done to his reputation in the quiet neighborhood where he lives.

"I think they have the image of me as some young, hotshot bachelor, which I'm not, but..." he said, looking up at the trees.

And so, Bob begins his new job with some good memories.

"This is the store I've been close to," he said. "They're really a super group."

Bob, who is 25, has worked for McDonald's since he was 16. He has been a manager a little over three years.

"I started working as a crew person and I went up through the ranks as I was going to college," he said.

"They said, 'Hey, kid, would you like to be a manager?' and it's all history from there."

He's taking good care of history

By Marilyn Trumper

After dark, not even caretaker Fred Chamberlain will venture beyond the iron fence surrounding Sashabaw Cemetery.

"I get out of here at dusk," Fred said emphatically. "I don't believe in ghosts and I've never seen one, but it's the thought of being here after dusk that makes me leave."

For a man who was "scared to death of corpses" when he was a kid, Fred, 66, has certainly chosen a strange occupation to fill his hours of semi-retirement.

"My people are buried here," he said waving his arm the length of grounds. "I wanted the cemetery to look first class, because a lot of the graves, no one ever takes care of."

A monument just outside the cemetery on Maybee Road, Independence Township, says burials were made as early as 1836, but markers date from 1840's.

"My dad's great-great-great-grandfather is buried right here," he said looking at a headstone nearly in the center of the grounds. "The writing is old and weatherbeaten and you can hardly read it."

"Over here in the corner are my two uncles, my parents, grandparents, great-grandparents and a lot of friends and people I've heard about all my life, or people I knew," he said.

"Here's the Owen family," Fred said. "Henry J. Owen has a school named after him in Pontiac. He was on the school board and a lot of folks would remember the name."

"I don't know a lot about who is in this cemetery, but I can remember when it was surrounded by a white picket fence and when people used to ride their horses to church," he said.

In back of the old Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church, an empty lot with a few wooden posts is all that remains of an old barn where parishioners would house their horses in bad weather, according to Fred.

"The old church is just about the same except for a new steeple and the rear addition," Fred said. "This land, from what I understand, is part of the old Fisher farm."

Many of the headstones are over 100 years old. Cracked and leaning, they stand undisturbed.

"Imagine that when you think about it," Fred said. "These people have been dead over 100 years, that stone has been standing for that long and you can still read the writing on this one."

"That was really some kind of craftsmanship they did on that thing," he said rubbing his hand over a carved rose.

Tombstones tell a story about life, according to Fred.

"Look at that, that woman died real young. I guess a lot of women died in childbirth in those days," he said.

"You can tell when a person

SECTION TWO

The Clarkston (Mich.) News

Wed., July 16, 1980 25

Early in the morning before the day heats from the summer sun, caretaker of the Sashabaw Cemetery, Fred Chamberlain, can be found working. Trimming around headstones is only part of the never-ending mowing and repairing Fred performs while on the job. The headstone behind him is made of stone, with carved features of bark, knot holes, growing ivy, and simulated cut branches.

This work of craftsmanship withstands years of weathering. Constructed in the 1800s, the reliefs are still readable today, with a personal epitaph for the world to see.

Religiously oriented, this headstone displays an open Bible.

Keeping history in shape

was married, who was in their family, ages, it's all right there," Fred said.

Whenever the grass needs mowing or clipping, or when there's work to be done, Fred makes the trip from his home in Waterford to do the work in the cemetery, as he has for the past four years.

"There's an old, old story about a ghost in this place," he said, laughing. "Folks living across Maybee Road swore they had seen a white figure jump the fence and run around the headstones, then disappear."

"In those days, it was really dark out here and Maybee Road was gravel, so it was really deserted. But come to find out, it was just the Goodrich's white dog running around the cemetery," he said.

Even after spending so many hours working the grounds, Fred said he never forgets he's in a cemetery.

Trimming close to the headstones, but keeping careful watch not to run one over, demands a kind of concentration, he said.

"But every once in awhile I'll be lost in work and a bush will blow behind a headstone or a piece of paper will blow by and I'll jump in a start," he admitted with a laugh. Then went about his job as caretaker.

This carved relief of a plow working its way through the fields may have been symbolic of an occupation or a favored pastime.

Perhaps this carving reflects Michelangelo's Sistine Chapel painting of the hand of God reaching from the clouds to greet Adam.

Trace tombstones; preserve the past

If wrist action is down pat, the way is clear for the novel pastime of tombstone tracing.

And a fine place to begin is the Sashabaw Cemetery at 5331 Maybee Road, Independence Township.

Tombstone tracing is the art of copying ancient headstones for preservation purposes.

The process begins by taping a thin piece of paper over the headstone to be traced, and lightly rubbing a piece of graphite or charcoal across the paper.

For best results, a thin piece of paper should be used to feel the contours of the carving behind the paper. Details can be defined by pressing harder on the paper, and to preserve the work, spray with a clear acrylic fixative.

"You can learn a great deal about history from a cemetery," said Sue Basinger, president of the Clarkston Community Historical Society.

"The art work on the headstones is indicative of a particular period in time," she said. "For example a weeping willow was a symbol of death, as is a skeleton head, lambs, roses and wheat or scythes."

"The headstones also have the standard slogans of the day or biblical passages, and are filled with genealogy information like when a person was married, born, died, in the service, if they had a family and on and on," she said.

Registered as a historic state site, the 100-year-old Sashabaw Cemetery awaits history hounds and preservationists.

Filled with the motifs described by Basinger and scores of family history information, the cemetery appears to be a great way to spend a summer afternoon, and is open to the public seven days a week.

A gathering of wheat with a sickle is a symbol of death.

Shulls balance family, community

As the sun sets and twilight fills the sky, Bruce [left], Paul and Chris survey their backyard, a kid's paradise. Somehow the community affirms.

Country Living

by Marilyn Trumper

The rambling backyard of the Shull home on Allen Road in Independence Township is a kid's paradise.

There's a barn, corral, two horses, a dog and cat, swing set, tire swing, pool and slide and a full row of ripened raspberry bushes ready for the picking.

With all that, there's still plenty of room left for the Shull's six-year-old son Paul to practice handstands.

"I like taking gymnastic lessons," Paul said, folding his arms across his multi-colored Mork suspenders and simultaneously flashing his dimples.

"We do strong stuff like handstands and backbends, I practice with the class once a week at the township hall and then all the time at home," he said.

At a tender age, Paul aspires to becoming a wheel potter or simply to ride a horse in a parade.

Both jobs he finds admirable, which brings a smile to his parents' faces, Bruce 34, and Chris, 33.

Between working, school and scores of community organizations the two are involved in, Chris said she feels certain Paul will eventually change his mind.

"We feel we have a responsibility to the community and even though he's young, we know he realizes we're involved and hope that one day he will be too," she said.

When not on the job at the Chrysler Corporation's Highland Park plant as manager of employment, records and benefits, Bruce finds time to work with the Jaycees, to be captain of a softball team in the township's rec department and to be chairman of the Community Center Steering Committee.

"At 35, you have to retire from the Jaycees, so I'm close to my limit," Bruce said. "But from there, I can go on to the Lions Club, the Rotary or scouting or anything else, and I will."

"You've got to keep working within the community with people," he said. "You can't go through life taking from, and never giving back to. It doesn't work that way."

Chris, sharing the same philosophy, and has a string of accomplishments and a list of active involvement in community organizations.

She is president of Friends of the Library, former Jaycette president, a member of the community awards committee and the Women's Club.

She also takes Scottish dance lessons and is working toward receiving her drafting certificate from Oakland County Community College (OCCC), with just two more classes to go.

Not too long ago, Chris said she received her associate's degree from OCCC, and laughs as she recalls studying late at night when the house was quiet and everyone else was asleep.

"Bruce worked for 14 years before he graduated with a bachelor's," she laughs. "It was a running joke in my family when relatives asked, 'Is he still going to school?'"

"Yes, that's true, but it was because of an on-again, off-again work schedule with special projects," Bruce said in a fulfilled rebuttle.

"I spent 14 years in the catacombs of education and Chris kept the family going on a balance. Then when she went to school I kept the balance. It works out real good," and he laughed.

"We feel that as long as community involvement, or school or whatever, is not done to extremes or to the detriment of the family, that they are still important things," he said.

"You have to keep a balance and not spend too much time outside the family. You have to keep things in line," Bruce said.

As if on cue, Paul begins lining up a trail-riding excursion with his mom, to which she's agreeable, but complete plans are saved for the next day.

C & F offers full car, truck, van repair service

C & F Truck and Auto Repair is back in business.

Owner Frank Carrette and his wife Cecelia, who lent their initials to the business's name, had originally opened up their repair service at 4525 White Lake Rd., Independence Township back in January 1978.

"My husband had a heart attack in September of '78, and we had to close down," Cecelia recalls.

Since then, Frank has had a strong recovery, enabling the Carrettes to re-open C & F Truck and Auto Repair earlier this month.

Time and circumstances have changed the nature of their repair business, Cecelia says.

"We used to put the emphasis on truck repair, but now we want to stress that we work on cars, too," she says. "Cars, mobile homes, vans, trucks—we work on everything."

Spiraling car and gasoline prices prompted the move toward increased attention to car repair, says Frank.

"People are taking better care of their cars and keeping them longer," he notes. "Cars are so expensive to replace now, and keeping a car tuned up will save you money with better gas mileage."

The Carrettes are still in the process of getting the word out about their car repair services.

"We've had people come in

The Carrettes have made their home in nearby Waterford for the past six years after moving from Harper Woods. They started their own truck hauling business in 1958 and are still in hauling business, transporting asphalt, sand and gravel for Ann Arbor Construction.

Ann Arbor Construction's location—right next to C & F Truck and Auto Repair—prompted the Carrettes move to Waterford.

And the expense of repairing the trucks they owned led to the Frank and Cecelia's branching out into the repair business.

"We own six Mack trucks to take care of our hauling," Cecelia says. "By opening up the garage, we were able to take care of our own trucks ourselves."

C & F Truck and Auto Repair is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday or by appointment, phone 625-9288.

Doing business

here and say 'Oh, I didn't know you did cars, too,'" says Frank.

C & F Truck and Auto Repair employs two full-time mechanics and can provide most any service required, from tune-ups to tire repair.

Their prices are competitive with any service station or repair shop, says Cecelia.

"We want to provide all the people in this area with good, fast repair service—Clarkston, Davisburg, Independence and Springfield," she says.

Frank and Cecelia Carrette's prospering truck hauling business prompted their expansion into truck repair. Now their garage on the corner of White Lake and Andersonville roads in Independence Township provides complete repair service for cars, trucks, vans and motor homes.

Bailey Lake PTA plans for next year

"Optimism" for the new school year is the word Bailey Lake Elementary PTA president

Erika Eidam uses to describe the atmosphere of the first meeting of the new officers and board.

Several fund raisers are planned by the PTA. They include an Art and Ice Cream Social, Used Winter Equipment Sale, Santa's Workshop and the annual School Fair. Other ideas are welcome.

Funds from last year's event were used to purchase three PET computers for the students.

Plans for the September PTA meeting include encouraging a large parent turnout so they can be informed about planned projects and a discussion on the PTA versus a PTO.

New officers for the 1980-81 school year are: Erika Eidam, president; Dick Schmaltz, father vice president; Mary Ellen Rood, mother vice president; Dennis Wagester, teacher vice president; Georgeann White, secretary; and Margaret Bates, treasurer.

Long trek on 2 wheels

Last April, Montrose, Colo. resident Bob O'Brien (left) decided he'd like to visit New England. Nothing unusual about that, but O'Brien's choice of a bicycle to take the 2,500 mile trip rates as a little unconventional. Taking the scenic route, he visited Michigan's upper peninsula recently, only to find bicyclists aren't allowed to cross the Mackinac Bridge. Overhearing his plight, the Ketvirtis family of 6648 Eastlawn, Independence Township, agreed to transport O'Brien across the bridge on their way home. When O'Brien cycled his way into Clarkston last week, he paid his adopted family a visit. Above from left are Bob, Sharon Ketvirtis, John Ketvirtis and Mary Ketvirtis. After the visit, it was onward to New England. Keep on peddlin', Bob.

Coping with kids

by Jim & Ellen Windell

Positive parents produce winning offspring

Teaching children how to be winners in life may be more a matter of personal example than of wise sayings or heart-to-heart talks.

Being a winner has more to do with attitude than with status or personal possessions, also. If an individual is living well, enjoying herself and taking pride in what she does, then she is a winner.

When a parent is a winner in life, it may be that the mental attitude and healthy outlook will be contagious and the children will have a similar approach to life.

Too often, however, mothers and fathers do not live up to the above description of a winner.

A father may be living well in terms of material possessions, but be unable to maintain friendships, or smile often, or take pride in his job.

A father who comes home grumpy from work, sullen and unhappy with his lot in life is not likely to be teaching his children to be winners.

A mother who feels bored, unfulfilled, depressed, unhappy with the roles she has assumed in life, is also not passing on a winning attitude to the kids in the family.

The most helpful parents are those who are constantly growing themselves. They are involved in varied interests and activities and have a life that is separate from the children.

They are not prolonging their children's dependency.

Helpful parents also take an active part in their community and are effective members of society. They usually know what they want and go after it.

They love life and make the most of their own life doing interesting things in a way that makes them feel good.

Such parents are winners. And because they are, they are likely to have children who are also.

Growing things

by Lyle Abel

Fascinating journey along Interstate 80

There is a saying among the Corn Belt farmers that when conditions are just right the corn will grow so fast that you can hear it growing. We are inclined to believe the story.

On our recent trip to Colorado, the Iowa, Illinois and Colorado corn crop was but knee-high to a short man.

On our return 12 days later, the corn was head-high and some fields had corn that was starting to form tassels.

Our route over Interstate Highway 80 took us south of the drought-plagued areas in the Dakotas and north of the killer heat of Texas and its neighbors.

Likely the unusually warm summer has speeded the growth. All along the trip the crops seemed headed toward bumper yields. Large fields of ripening wheat resembled a billowing sea as the wind moved across the plants creating the effect of waves in our big lakes.

Wheat harvest had begun on our return trip. The modern, high combines made short work of the harvesting job, and we saw numerous large trucks on the highway that were carrying the crop to market or to storage.

All systems of making hay were seen as we traveled. And the methods used seemed to hold for most of the farms in a certain locality.

In one area, the older method of gathering and stacking loose hay with a tractor-mounted rake was common.

Others used equipment to make the usual 60 to 100 pound square bales so common in our own locality. A great many have adopted the equipment to make the huge cylindrical bales that weigh near half a ton.

In still other fields, the cut hay was left in large bread-loaf shaped stacks. There were plenty of livestock to use the hay throughout the trip.

Our reasons for making the trip at this time were at least threefold: To join our daughter on her July 4th birthday, to celebrate our anniversary of the 50th year of being married, and to see the new location in the Denver area to which the daughter and her family had moved.

Speaking of "growing things," does anyone grow faster than a 12-year-old boy who suddenly changes from being a "picky" eater to one with a ravenous appetite? His 10-year-old brother hasn't reached that stage yet.

Here in north Oakland County, most gardeners complain about the rocks in our gravelly soils. The other extreme is the heavy clay soil we found in the lawn and garden at their new Colorado home.

It's slippery mud when wet and brick-like hard when it dries. In fact, on drying the soil shrinks and great cracks appear on the surface of the earth. However, this heavy clay soil appears to be very fertile.

Bindweed is one of the most common weed pests that Colorado farmers and homeowners must contend with. This weed cousin of the morning glory plant is everywhere and is very difficult to control.

Its underground roots grow deep, cut it off and, like General MacArthur, it shall return.

Grasshoppers are a major pest on almost all plants including some trees.

While we were there, another pest came. A "prairie dog" visited the garden and ate off the cucumber plants that were just starting to grow. Prairie dog towns, or colonies, are very commonly seen in the area. Other interesting sights on the trip: The colorful roadside banks that had been planted to crown vetch—the vetch was in full bloom and formed a carpet of pink blossoms; trains carrying Colorado coal seemed to be a mile long; irrigation is the common practice for miles along the highway.

Huge overhead, circular traveling sprinklers are the most common, but furrow irrigation on the level fields; gasoline prices do vary—from $1.08 to $1.31 per gallon from the same major producer!

If erupting volcanoes, killer tornados, blistering Texas heat, riots in Miami, forest fires, mud slides in California and a political election year's rhetoric cause you to fear for the future of our nation, we recommend that you just take a trip over Interstate Highway 80.

It will renew your faith in our great country!

Peeking into the past

10 YEARS AGO

Randy Erb, 17, has the special-heartfelt gratitude of the family of four year old Kurt Cooper, for the construction of a special orthopedic chair. The chair was built in the Industrial Arts Department at the school for Kurt, who is a hydrocephalic.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blasey held a four and five generation get-together at their home on Holcomb Road, last Sunday.

A plane carrying two men crashed near the corner of Sashabaw and Pelton. Luckily no one was injured. Piloted by John Teachworth of Drayton Plains, the plane had developed engine trouble, forcing the plane to land.

One of the largest industrial picnics in Michigan—GMC Truck and Coach Division's annual summer outing—will be staged at the Walled Lake Amusement Park. More than 30,000 GMC employees are expected to attend. GMC is taking over the entire amusement park.

Paul E. Jewell of Caribou Inn observed his birthday recently, and to help him celebrate his wife entertained at a surprise party at the Inn. Thirty guests enjoyed an evening on the spacious sun porch at the back of the Inn.

Like a miniature Mario Andretti, young Mike wears all the protective gear that the pro drivers do.

After the race, Gary Doyle and his son Mike perform a routine engine check. The engine runs on standard gasoline, although some quarter midget cars run on alcohol.

Gentlemen, start your engines

Quarter midgets hit fast—and not so fast—lane

By Al Zawacky

Engines roar while "pit crews" stand by, watching the cars dart and weave along the track.

The tower announces the result while spectators munch hot dogs and sip Cokes as their eyes attentively follow the action.

The NASCAR Grand National? The Indianapolis 500?

Not quite—the scene was the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club in Independence Township, where quarter midget racers from Michigan and beyond participated in an invitational race last weekend.

Boys and girls ages 5 through 16 race in the cars, which are 25 percent reproductions of full midget vehicles. Older racers can achieve speeds of about 60 miles per hour, depending on the track and capability of the car.

Younger drivers chug along at slower speeds—about 15 mph for the youngest groups.

"It's really a very safe sport," says Gary Doyle, whose 10-year-old son Mike has been driving quarter midgets for two years.

"The drivers wear professional-type helmets, leather gloves and jackets and each car has the squirrel cage (roll bar) on top. The only injuries I've ever seen have been the Band-Aid kind."

Getting started in the sport can cost anywhere from $300 to $1,000, although a good used car can usually be bought for around $300 or $400, Gary says.

"I like the engine," says Mike when asked what he likes best about the sport.

Angie Corliss, Brent Corliss and Eddie Johnson are three other Clarkston area youths actively involved in quarter midget racing. The origins of the sports go back long before any of them were born.

"Quarter midgets go back probably 25 years," says Lenore Meimar, who helps out in the tower during the races.

Current auto racing stars such as A. J. Foyt got their start by racing the miniatures, she adds.

"I've got a 16-year-old son who wants to go into stock car racing now that he's outgrowing quarter midget," Lenore says, noting that for some of the youngsters the hobby can lead to an eventual career in racing.

Anyone interested in watching a race can call the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club at 623-0444 and ask when the next contest is being held. Usually the races are held every other week.

"If somebody would like to get involved, they can just come out and talk to anyone in the tower," Lenore says. "We can give them all the details, or let them know where they can get a car."

Good used cars are always available, since drivers past the age of 16 are no longer eligible to race and usually sell their cars, she says.

The Oakland County Sportsmen's Club track is located at 4770 Waterford Rd., just off Dixie Highway in Independence Township.

The sparkling trophies on hand for the winners—donated by Pontiac's Felice Market—drew a lot of admiring stares.

Rounding the curved track for another lap, Mike Doyle's car [right] pursues a fellow racer at the quarter midget invitational race held the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club last weekend. Cars in the race Mike participated in reached speeds of close to 40 miles per hour.
