2 trustee incumbents axed

Independence Republicans choose Rose for clerk;
Kozma, Vandermark, Travis, Stuart for trustees

By Marilyn Trumper

The primary race for clerk and trustee positions is over in Independence Township, decided yesterday by a turnout of more than 25 percent of the township's registered voters.

Karen Herron (D) and incumbent Christopher Rose (R) are slated to run for the position of township clerk in November's general election.

In the Republican candidate for clerk race, Rose soundly defeated Ralph Chambers with votes tallying 1,206 to Chambers' 699.

Herron, running unopposed on the Democratic ticket received 290 votes.

In the township trustee race, the four top vote-getters on the Republican ticket were Larence Kozma with 1,279 votes, William Vandermark with 1,230 votes, Daniel Travis with 1,038 votes and Dale Stuart with 943 votes.

Guy Z. Derryberry, a Democrat running unopposed for a trustee seat received a total of 274 votes and will be pitted against the four top vote-getting Republicans in November.

Defeated Republicans running for trustee seats were incumbent Jerry Powell, who has sat on the township board eight years, with 847 votes; incumbent Michael Thayer, a two-year township trustee, with 740 votes; and Lynn Edward Mead with 535 votes.

In the race for township supervisor both candidates ran unopposed in their political parties.

Democrat Floyd (Whitey) Tower received 376 votes to newcomer Republican James B. Smith's 1,417 votes.

In the township treasurer's race both candidates also ran unopposed.

Democrat incumbent Frederick Ritter received 356 votes to Carol Balzarini's tally of 1,300 votes.

Voters pass 3 of 4 millage proposals

With a good showing in voter turnout Independence Township voters approved three of the four millage proposals on yesterday's primary ballot.

The 1-mill fire tax increase was approved with 1,722 "yes" votes and 1,424 "no" votes.

The 1-mill fire protection increase will bring $215,000 more to the township and the Village of Clarkston annually over the next 9 years, plus the 2 mills previously approved by voters.

With a "yes" vote of 1,431 and "no" votes totaling 1,415, township residents narrowly approved an annual 1/2 mill for the construction and maintenance of safety paths for the next 10 years.

Voters also approved a 10-year renewal of an existing annual 1-mill tax which pays for police protection currently provided by the contracted Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

When ballots from the township's 11 precincts were counted, 1,878 residents voted "yes" and 978 voted "no."

Residents soundly defeated a proposed 1-mill police millage increase which would have been collected over the next 11 years, with no votes totaling 1,804 and yes votes equaling 901.

According to Christopher Rose, township clerk, over 3,000 of the township's 12,000 registered voters came out for the election, compared to 2,600 in 1978.

Springfield nixes millage duo

By Al Zawacky

In a very tight turnout, Springfield Township voters rejected two township millage proposals by wide margins in yesterday's primary election.

A proposal that would have provided a 1-mill levy for the township library was defeated 469 "no" votes to 246 "yes" votes, while the other proposal, raising 1 mill for road improvement, was nixed 434 to 282.

On the partisan ballot, Republicans Charles Going and Frederic Stewart were assured seats on the township park commission by being the top two vote-getters among three GOP candidates.

Going tallied 176 votes and Stewart had 144, while Robert Stiles totaled 140. Going and Stewart will thus run without Democratic opposition for two seats on the park commission in November.

Springfield Township Clerk J. Calvin Walters termed Springfield's 18 percent voter turnout, including a scant 9 percent in one of the township's four precincts, "very disappointing."

"The total number of people voting was 794," Walters said. "Based on the turnout at precinct one (At the township hall), I had figured we'd go over the 1,000 mark."

Outside the park commission race, none of the other partisan candidates faced elimination in the primary.

Running unopposed in their parties in the supervisor's race were Republican incumbent Collin Walls, who tallied 291 votes, and Democrat John Mulloy, who totaled 123.

For treasurer, Republican incumbent Patricia Kramer had 280 votes to Democrat Marjorie Kirk's 154; Republican incumbent Walters, as the lone candidate for clerk in either party, totaled 279 votes; incumbent trustees Republican William Whitley and Democrat Glen Verilye garnered 230 and 155 votes respectively, and among township library board candidates, Mary Watson was the top vote-getter with 208, while fellow Republican Shirley Secatch had 163 and Democrat Ina Golden 142.

Quest continues to stop adult foster care home

By Marilyn Trumper

Residents living in Lake Oakland Woods subdivision are moving full speed ahead with plans to enter into litigation to stop the establishment of an adult foster care home in their neighborhood.

That word comes from the residents' attorney, Donald E.

Schuster, who says that while negotiations between the state and residents are underway, he fully expects to file suit in circuit court within the next two weeks.

In late July, the prospect of a proposed foster care facility at 5127 Timber Ridge Trail, Independence Township, stirred area residents into action, with the intent of thwarting state licensing in court.

Schuster contends the residents' chances of succeeding in the case look good.

"The deed restrictions in this subdivision limit the use of a home to single family, and in this case the term single family is specifically defined to one individual, or two or more related by blood, marriage or legal adoption," he said. "The proposed use of the home does not fit any of those definitions."

At the Independence Township Board meeting on July 29, Schuster announced additional strategy and asked the board to consider entering into joint or separate litigation to enforce the township's zoning ordinance.

Approaching board members, Schuster said the most recent legislation concerning adult foster care homes failed to include a section from a previous act which prohibited local zoning ordinances from keeping adult foster care facilities out of a community.

"That's my strategy, and what appears to be a mere technicality in the law has great legal significance," he said, following the meeting.

The board did not take action, but asked instead that Schuster submit a written proposal to the township attorney specifying exactly what he had in mind.

The Independence Township Board has scheduled a public hearing on the matter for Tuesday, Aug. 12, at 7:30 p.m. Independence Township hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Tax collection waived

Independence Township residents will have a slight decrease in taxes this year, but they won't have more change in their pockets.

The same decrease occurs yearly.

The township board voted unanimously at the July 29 meeting to waive the 1 percent tax collection.

"We are allowed by (state) law to collect the 1 percent if the treasurer's job does not have a set salary," said Frederick Ritter, township treasurer. "We do this every year."

Pine Knob ignores demands to stop ride

By Marilyn Trumper

Each and every day the first ride of the proposed "Wonderful World of Pine Knob" continues to operate. Joseph Locricchio, co-owner of Pine Knob Investment, receives a ticket from Independence Township.

Efforts by the township to encourage Locricchio to submit the complete, revised final site plan for the proposed park have failed up to this point.

"I don't feel I'm required to submit it," Lochrechio said. "If the courts tell me I have to, I'll have it prepared and ready to submit. But that ride is not a permanent ride, it does not have a foundation, and I could pick it up and move it within 12 hours."

Since July 25, the township has been issuing tickets to Locricchio on a daily basis.

The problem stems from a township planning commission meeting in April when Lochrechio's final site plan was approved, but with stipulations.

The stipulations included a landscaped greenbelt on the park's northern boundary, a description of the rides and the distance between the rides, all of which had to be added to the final site plan before a building permit would be issued to construct the rides.

Locricchio had not submitted the final site plan on June 17 when the ride had already been erected and workmen were making repairs ready to open for business that week.

At that time, the township gave Locricchio a deadline to get writers' cramps. I'll go to court and prove that it's legal under my zoning.

"When the planning commis-

'I see it as harrassment. The township submit the plans or face possible court action.

On June 20, Locricchio submitted an incomplete revised final site plan, only adding the location of the northern green belt.

On June 27, the State Department of Labor inspected the ride and gave its okay.

The Himalayan has been in operation as early as July 10 when a township employee attending Pine Knob's Theatre saw it and reported the information to the building department.

Locricchio was given a four-day deadline date of July 23. Just two days later, when the final site plan had not been submitted, the township began issuing tickets on a daily basis.

"I see it as harassment," Lochrechio said. "They can keep issuing tickets until they sion approved my site plan it was stamped and the legal descriptions were there — the rides, the distances and the buffers. Where I put the ride, it's surrounded by a greenbelt. It's just one ride.

"The plan is not designed for rides that are meant to be in one exact spot. Besides, it's temporary, not permanent," Locricchio said, "and I will appear in court."

For violating a zoning ordinance Locricchio faces up to a $500 fine for each ticket that is issued, said Richard Campbell, township attorney.

"He has 10 days to appear in court and plead," Campbell said. "He can plead guilty and the judge would set a fine, or he can demand a trial."

Campbell indicated that stronger court action may result if the ride continues to operate.

Township board to make final decision

ZBA recommends mining operation approval

By Marilyn Trumper

With one recommendation for denial and one recommendation for approval, the Independence Township Board must decide if 47 acres in the township will be mined for dirt and gravel.

In June, the township planning commission in a 5-1 vote recommended denial of a permit to mine dirt and gravel from the property located near the intersection of Sashabaw and Maybee roads.

On July 29, the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) in a 3-2 vote recommended issuance of the mining permit to Village Development and Charles Nunn, but with the stipulation that all regulations in the new zoning ordinance be followed.

Because of a recent amendment to the township's zoning ordinance regarding mining operations, residents will have another chance to air views on the controversial issue when the matter comes before the township board for a final decision. No date has been set.

At the July 29 meeting, ZBA

Chairman Mel Vaara and member John Dunlop voted to deny the permit and members Jerry Powell, Robert Newlin and Paul Menke voted in favor of the proposal.

"I consider it to be a land balancing program," Jerry Powell said, following the meeting. "I guess it boils down to a matter of semantics."

"I'm in favor of the proposed development of an industrial park, and the township will have a trustee who oversees the operation of the mining on a daily basis. As it stands now, they (the developers) can't create the industrial park the way he proposes unless the land is reshaped," Powell said.

"Hopefully we've not made a mistake, but it would be the right decision I think, with the contract and the trustee," he said.

Opposed to mining operations in the township for some time, Vaara said he still is just as strongly opposed.

"They (the developers) call it land balancing. In my opinion it's the removal of gravel and that's mining," he said.

"I've been with the ZBA for 10 years and my first case was the Stickney pit. The developers said it would be in operation for five years, that was five years ago and it's still in operation."

"The developers say this one will be in operation for five years. I can't believe that. If they find more gravel below it may be in operation longer," he said.

"I'm also concerned about the health, safety and welfare of the residents living around this proposed pit. They shouldn't have to live with that," Vaara said.

When developer Charles Nunn appears before the township board, he will have to submit new engineering specifications under the new ordinance, said Timothy Palulain, head of the township building and planning departments.

"Among other things he has to submit an outline of the perimeter of the pit, the number of trucks traveling in and out of the pit, how often and for how long," he said.

If mining operations are approved, the board will be responsible to appoint the third party trustee to oversee mining operations, Palulain said.

The developers have no deadline for submittal of engineering specifications, but when the information has been handed in the matter will be scheduled for township board action, he said.

"I'm guessing it will be a minimum of 90 days before that's taken care of, Nunn said, following the meeting.

"I don't think people understand my proposal, but I can't build my industrial park until the land is balanced. Right now I can go in and build up to eight to 12 buildings without a permit, but I want 24 taxable lots," he said.

"To build the 24 lots, the land has to be changed and that can be done faster if there is processing on the land. I'd rather have it take four years just trucking it out and not have all the havoc with a crusher," he said.

Nunn has purchased the property from the current owner subject to the township's agreement to allow the land balancing.

If he is denied the permit by the township board, Nunn said he was certain "the question would go to the courts because of all the money invested by both parties to date."

Deputy clerk named

Rosemary Howey has been appointed the new deputy clerk for Independence Township.

The Independence Board officially recognized Howey as deputy clerk at the July 29 meeting.

Along with the title, Howey has the authority to act in the township clerk's absence and will receive an additional $1,200 a year for carrying out her new duties.

Father held without bond for son's murder

By Marilyn Trumper

A 52-year-old Independence Township man, accused in the murder of his son, sat quietly at a preliminary examination Thursday morning at the Oakland County 52nd District Court.

Robert Raymer of 6048 Waldon is being held in the Oakland County Jail on an open murder charge for allegedly stabbing his 25-year-old son to death.

The body of Charles Raymer was discovered at the Waldon address about noon July 18, said Oakland County Sheriff's Department Deputy Lawrence Liggett, in testimony delivered during the preliminary exam.

"When I arrived we found the body in the bathroom, and two men were standing at the kitchen table," Liggett said. "When I walked into the kitchen the defendant stood up, he had been sitting, and said, 'I killed him; take me to jail.'"

Assistant Oakland County Prosecutor Frederick Miller asked Liggett if the defendant at any other time admitted to the crime.

Liggett said yes, at least three times before Raymer was read his rights, and several times afterwards.

"He repeated his son had had a mental disease since he'd been 10-years-old and that he (the victim) had been under psychiatric care in the hospital," Liggett said.

Reading from a police report Liggett continued, "He said he decided to kill the boy today and sent Christine out to play."

Christine is the defendant's 12-year-old daughter, according to Hascal Raymer of 5215 Frankwill, Independence Township.

Hascal Raymer is the defendant's brother who was called to the stand and questioned by the prosecution.

"On July 18 he came over to my house and I believe he said 'I've killed Charles.' I could hardly believe it, but he said, 'Yes I did,' " the brother said.

He said he called the sheriff's department and they returned to the home on Waldon Road to see if anything could be done.

Miller asked if the defendant had said anything else at that time and the brother answered, "He said he would have killed himself if he'd had a gun."

"He said he couldn't stand it anymore, the pressures—his son's illness, financial problems. His son had been ill for approximately 15 years. He'd just retired and there wasn't as much money," he said.

Defense attorney Joseph L. Hardig Jr. cross-examined Hascal Raymer on his nephew's illness.

"He had a mental illness, stomach and food problems," Raymer said. "He couldn't eat, he couldn't keep food down, he'd vomit after most meals."

"He (the defendant) was depressed because there was nothing he could do about it, the boy kept getting thinner and blocking out the 'world,'" he said.

"In 1963 he (the defendant) had a mental breakdown," the brother said.

Raymer was hospitalized on more than one occasion for mental illness, according to the testimony of his brother.

In a summation of testimony, Miller asked Judge Gerald McNally to bind the defendant over to circuit court.

"I feel we have established every element of first degree murder, and the defendant did in a premeditated fashion, murder his son Charles as expressed by his statement that he asked his daughter to leave the house," he said.

Without comment, Judge McNally bound Raymer over to Oakland County Circuit Court on a charge of open murder, without bond.

The circuit court arraignment is scheduled Aug. 14 at 8:30 a.m. before Judge Farrell E. Roberts.

Following the preliminary exam, defense attorney Hardig indicated he would move in the direction of having Raymer undergo a forensic examination. In a forensic exam, an individual is examined by professionals to determine whether or not he is capable of standing trial and aiding his attorney in the defense.

Here's Herb

6 Wed., Aug. 6, 1980
The Clarkston (Mich.) News

Lofty observations

by Herb Rose

While most people are anxious to tell you where they spent their vacation, I am a little reluctant to admit I spent a portion of my discretionary time on my roof.

The location description does not readily fit used cliché's like, "It is really lovely this time of the year," or "The people are so friendly."

The roof is not lovely anytime of the year and I saw no one, friendly or hostile.

Actually, I would have been more than a little surprised to meet an acerbic pedestrian meandering from gable to gable, perhaps asking, "Excuse me but which way to Washington Street?" "Straight ahead, then turn left at the ridge pole."

The need for a new roof was irrefragably established when it was observed during a moderate rain that more water came into the house from the roof than from the wall.

Consideration of the clear dichotomy between the purchase price of the shingles and the estimated cost from roofing contractors as well as evaluation of the simplistic disciplines of nail driving left me scaling the house with a hammer clenched in my teeth.

In the next several days I made a series of observations that a more Sherlockian mind might have forseen:

A. Few shingles are installed at ground level. If you are confronted with a pile of shingles and a house, you have only two viable options, either carry the shingles up to the roof or lower the roof by burning the house down.

B. There are any number of positions which will allow you to drive nails into the surface on which you are standing. All of these positions are uncomfortable.

C. The speed with which a hammer slides over the edge of the roof to the ground is slightly greater than the fastest motion your hand can make.

D. Although the intervals at which the hammer strikes the thumb are random, the pain is consistently severe.

I also found a rather curious change in the overall dimensions of the house. The villa Rose is diminutive when we are entertaining and miniscule when we are looking for closet space but during a reshingling operation, the roof area assumes the proportions of the King ranch.

An individual shingle has the covering effect of a postage stamp on a conference table.

I visualized myself spending my declining years listening to conversations like:

"What is greatgrandpa doing?"

"Reroofing."

"How long has he been at it?"

"Don't rightly remember when he wasn't."

Berry patch tremors

by Kathy Greenfield

Michigan's earthquake was a major disappointment.

I didn't feel or see a thing.

Lost were all the opportunities to share the experience with others.

In contrast, I'm well versed on such topics as the big ice storm that knocked out power for days; the snow storm that closed all roads and highways; the thunder storm that kept everyone awake; or the tornado that almost struck.

I even lived in New York City when "the lights went out" during the major blackout in the '60s.

When the tremor hit Michigan, I was out in the raspberry patch at my parents' home in Rochester.

Boy, do I have tales to tell about raspberries.

The tasty red fruit ripens during our hottest weather which coincides with the peak of mosquito season.

That means to pick them, you have to choose between clothing suitable for the heat or clothing designed to help repel the obnoxious pests.

Got the picture? Sun beats down. Person in berry patch wears long-sleeved shirt, long pants, socks and tennis shoes.

Picking the berries is a real challenge, because the green leaves hide the beauties.

You can be finished with a section and look back to see all sorts of what are probably the best berries in the patch left on the bushes.

As many a wary berry picker knows, you can't look back.

Otherwise, you spend a lot of time running back and forth in the patch finding out if that berry back there is really ripe or if it was just a mirage.

My parents have two large raspberry patches--the new one and the old one that still produces berries, so it was never ploughed under.

Sounds terrific for berry lovers. The problem is the berries require picking every other day and there are about 20 quarts out there for each picking in the peak of the season.

The number dwindles slowly and the season goes on for weeks.

Take the earthquake day, for instance.

There were many over-ripe berries that had to be removed, because the last pickers, as we say, missed a few.

We cajoled the rain clouds to start dumping their load immediately so we could run for shelter and we also talked to the birds.

We told them they could swoop in any time and eat as many berries as they wished--how about all of them?

No kidding, you have to do this to retain sanity in the berry patch.

Anyhow, I figured it out. When the earthquake struck, we must have been shaking the bushes to make the over-ripe berries drop before we picked the good ones.

After reading newspaper reports of the earthquake, I realized I had one more chance to talk to someone close who may have experienced the real thing.

My husband was in Kentucky when it happened, and according to the accounts I read, the quake was the strongest in that part of the country.

"What was it like?" I asked, all smiles.

"I didn't feel a thing," he grinned back.

Rats.

Jim's jottings

Beef relief temporary

by Jim Sherman

The main duty of the president of the Michigan Press Association is to preside over four meetings a year. Two of them are rather large.

About 150 attended the summer meeting at Boyne Mt. They gathered as we introduced Patricia Bario, Deputy Press Secretary in the White House.

She's originally from Kinde, MI and went through the Free Press, Detroit News, and Wyandotte Tribune on her way to Washington.

Naturally, she defends Jimmy Carter, her boss. One reason she lists for supporting the president is that he has provided more jobs than any other president in the history of the U.S.

Mrs. Bario was not exactly in friendly confines. Audience questions indicated a predominance of Republicans.

One question, after she had referred to the time between August 5 and Nov. 4 as the "funny season", was, "Some of us think the last 3½ years has been the funny season. How is Mr. Carter going to answer the questions of inflation, unemployment, and recession?"

We thought the question harsh, but Mrs. Bario calmly stated, "I guess we'll just have to wait and see.

Next question?"

Mrs. Bario made one statement that was challenged the following day by Bob Waldron, former state rep and now a lobbyist for Mich. Petroleum Institute.

The lady from Washington said, "We had no idea we could do so well on saving energy." By "we" she meant the White House.

Waldron said, "Really, the market did it."

Waldron drew another conclusion worth noting. He said, "Certainty has gone out the window."

We agree.

Just about the time you understand a tax law, labor law, court ruling, or a new piece of legislation, it's challenged and changed.

After over 200 years the court is still interpreting what the writers of the U.S. Constitution meant. With this precedent set, there will likely to no end to interpretations.

Waldron said, "We need incentive and certainly for growth."

One other comment from Elton Smith, head of the Farm Bureau in Michigan. "Watch out for meat prices for the next 6 months to 2 years. The beef sell out because of the drought will bring only a temporary relief."

Kids travel vicariously with Jesus

The road to Bethlehem is a long way from the hallways of St. Daniel's Catholic Church in Independence Township, but kids attending Bible school this summer don't seem to mind.

This year's theme of the church's fourth annual week-long school was "Travels with Jesus," and while the hot dusty roads and blue Sea of Galilee weren't really there, imaginations ran rampant.

The pre-schoolers through sixth graders created a village from cardboard, a blue sea from paper and flocks of sheep from cotton.

There were paper sandals with yarn toe-holds, fisherman's nets from rope, pottery from Play-Doh and bright sand tinted with food coloring.

"The kids have been busy making sand paintings and wood workings, because Jesus was a carpenter, and weaving, because weaving was a trade at that time," explained Kay Chenoweth, director of religious education at the church.

"They've been making pottery because that too was a trade. They even constructed a well with water because of the community wells of the time," she said.

The class met each morning last week for three hours.

The first hour is spent in a study session and classes are broken down into groups, Chenoweth said. The next two hours are spent in recreation and making crafts.

This year 70 kids participated in the group and still the church had to turn some away, she said.

"It's proven to be a good program and the kids have mixed reactions," she said. "On Friday they don't want to go home and others ask why we don't do this all the time."

Crayon drawn walls for the homemade community well serve the purpose quite nicely, as does the Velvet Peanut Butter bucket. Shea Kammer and Melissa O'Dea recreate a typical scene thousands of years old.

In the total awe of a self-made scroll, Jerry Kirchgessner seems pleased with his creation. During Bible summer school, children from St. Daniel's Catholic Church learned about trades, cultures and communication of the past.

Being Billy's Brother

by Jim Fitzgerald

Recent well-publicized events raise a fair question concerning the possibility of influence peddling by members of the Carter family. It has to be asked:

How many people are nice to President Jimmy Carter simply because he is, Billy Carter's brother?

On the afternoon of Oct. 28, 1977, I was in the White House, interviewing President Carter. The occasion was something called a Regional Columnists Briefing. Twenty-nine other columnists were also present. After hearing what Jimmy had to say about Billy, I couldn't help wondering if we all would have been there, treating the president with such obsequious respect, if he hadn't had a famous brother.

My doubts began when David Mann-wiler, columnist for the Indianapolis News, asked President Carter for his comments on Billy Carter's public performance. Before I give you Jimmy Carter's answer, it should be pointed out that a presidential aide later gave each of the columnists a verbatim transcript of the briefing. I said mine for posterity because I realized I might never get another opportunity to interview Billy Carter's brother.

So the following is exactly what Jimmy said about Billy, and I can prove it on White House stationery:

Billy is a very intelligent, very competent, very likable person. And he is my only brother, as you know. I admire the way he lives his own life, I have never had any occasion to be embarrassed by Billy, nor have I ever tried to interfere in Billy's life-style. I think he is probably at least as well known as I am and probably his popularity rating would exceed mine right at this time.

I don't get to see him very often because he does stay busy, but Billy is a good man, and I am proud he is my brother.

Remember, President Carter said this about Billy in 1977, almost three years before some ambitious people were tempted to be nice to Jimmy only because they hoped he would use his influence with Billy to get them plush jobs working for Libya. It is a credit to Jimmy Carter that he was early to realize it could be risky for a president of the United States to have a powerful relative.

I still remember how guilty I felt when I heard Jimmy say Billy was even more popular than the nation's top elected official. It must be confessed that, early in the Carter years, I didn't appreciate Billy's charms. I still have a clipping of the first paragraph I ever wrote about Billy, and I'm really ashamed to quote it but, only to illustrate the depth of my reformation, I will:

I got my first extended look at Billy Carter last week, on the Mike Douglas TV show. He grins and giggles and stammers and says nothing. His agent could make Billy a fortune by renting him out as a major irritant.

Of course, I wrote that before my illuminating visit to the White House, before the president told me that Billy is intelligent and competent. Since then, I've grown to realize that Billy Carter's TV personality is deceptive. Underneath that Howdy Doody exterior there is a man so brilliant and lovable that people will pay $220,000 just to be near him.

So it wouldn't be surprising if someone tempted President Carter to peddle his influence with his brother. There are a lot of congressmen, for instance, who would like to get close enough to see how Billy Carter does it the next time he gets a loan from the First Libyan Bank of Plaines. Some Washington observers believe the president has already accepted payments in return for arranging for his "friends" to meet with Billy.

Maybe. But remember Abscam. That may not be President Carter luring congressmen with offers of appointments with Billy Carter. That may be an FBI man in disguise.

The real President Carter may have choked to death long ago while trying to eat all the transcripts of the 1977 briefing in which he told how proud he was of his only brother who has never embarrassed him.

Onward and Upward.

Independence sewer fund bails out fire department

Efforts to end the Independence Township Fire Department's cash flow problems will come via a loan from the sewer fund and not the township's general fund as originally proposed.

On July 16, the township board agreed the fire department could borrow up to $100,000 from the township's general fund to float them through to December in anticipation of collecting the proposed 1-mill tax increase on the primary ballot.

At a meeting on July 29, the township board, in a 4-2 vote, approved transferring the funds to the fire department from the sewer fund.

"To keep the general fund from becoming depleted, I'm proposing that we loan the fire department money from the sewer fund, because the sewer fund balance is greater," said Frederick Ritter, township treasurer.

The $100,000 loan is to be paid back at 5 1/4 percent interest by the end of the fiscal year, March 31, 1981.

Anything over and above the $100,000 mark will be contingent upon the extra 1-mill passing in August, said Ritter.

"We'll make the transfers as they need it," he said. "The money will not be paid out all at one time and the fire department will have the opportunity to pay back the loan early."

The township's fire department currently owes the general fund approximately $45,000, Ritter said.

Trustees Jerry Powell and William Vandermark voted against the sewer fund transfer.

"I didn't feel it should be taken from the sewer fund," Powell said. "I should have been taken from the general fund as it always has in the past."

Vandermark's reasoning differed slightly.

"I don't think it was a good idea to transfer such a large sum of money, and if the millage fails to pass there's no way to pay back the money if it's spent," he said.

When it's their turn to bat, the boys on Coach Tungate's T-Ball team always know their position in the batting order. Tungate has the numbers one through nine written on the players' hands to quickly eliminate any confusion or arguments.

Baseball sans pitchers

Littlest little leaguers have game down to a 'T'

By Al Zawacky

Take ordinary baseball, remove the pitcher from the scene and add a half-wood, half-rubber perch at home plate, and the result is "T-Ball"—the beginners' version of the national pastime.

In the Independence Parks and Recreation little leagues, 10 boys' teams and five girls' teams, ranging in age from 6 through 8, battled it out in T-Ball action this season.

Michigan State Police finished first for the boys, while A Ladies Delight took first place honors in girls' soft T-Ball.

"When the kids are this young, you feel successful if you can just teach the kids all the positions and where to throw the ball," says Paul Tungate, who coached a boys' T-Ball team sponsored by Gardner and Gardner to a 9-5 record this season.

"We lost our first scrimmage game 40-5, and I was wondering if we'd win a game all season. But you can see the big improvement in the kids since the start of the season."

Rather than having a pitched ball, the ball is placed on a device similar in principle to a golf tee. The batter is then given the standard number of swings at the stationary ball. Once the ball is hit, the game proceeds as in regular baseball.

Obviously, there aren't any walks—but strikeouts aren't unheard of.

"In the beginning, some of the kids don't know anything at all about baseball," Tungate says. "You can tell who the parents are that took some time with their kids to teach them a little about the game."

Perhaps the best indication of the team's progress is that the team pulled off an unassisted triple play recently.

"There were runners on second and third with nobody out," recalls George White, one of Tungate's assistants. "Our third baseman (Jamie John) speared a line drive, stepped on the bag and tagged out the runner coming down the line from second."

The important thing about any little league sport is that the kids enjoy it, says Tungate.

And as a former high school varsity coach and chief mentor of the 1976 state championship squad at Clarkston High School Tungate enjoys the opportunity to remain in coaching. Currently, he serves as athletic director at CHS.

"This keeps me in coaching," he says. "You think at first that you're not going to miss it, but you do."

Looking out onto the field, where a batted ball had just resulted in a reign of youthful confusion, Tungate breaks into a grin.

"Of course, it takes a lot of patience to coach at this level," he chuckles.

The Point After

by Al Zawacky

Sports Lingo 101

Somewhere in the sparsely populated farmland of the midwest, several feet underground, is a large classroom.

Now, what I'm about to tell you will be denied by a lot of people. It's apparently top secret—as clandestine as the latest CIA undertaking.

But by using my powers of reason, I've been able to surmise that every athletic coach in the United States spends at least a full year in this subterranean school learning a new language.

Sports people, you see, do not speak English. At least not in America. Maybe they do in Paraguay or Panama, but that's irrelevant.

Anyway, I came to this conclusion when I realized that every coach I've ever talked to—and that's quite a few—always says the same things. And none of them make any sense to the non-sports person.

It doesn't make any difference whether he or she coaches baseball, football, basketball, key, or any thing else. Yet they all continue to flatly deny ever having taken "Sports Lingo 101," underground or anywhere else.

Fine. I respect their privacy. But as a public service, I think I should define a few of the terms studied in S-L 101; thus:

"Paper:" Believe it or not, this must be some kind of playing surface. Ask the coach of an undefeated powerhouse how good his next 0-7 opponent is, and he'll build them up by saying, "They're a better team on paper."

Unfortunately, the games are almost invariably played on turf, gym floors or ice, where the winless team is usually every bit as bad as its 0-7 record.

"Rebuilding:" losing coaches do not say they're having a terrible season. They say they're rebuilding.

The advantage in this is that rebuilding programs can be extended as long as required. The Detroit Red Wings can thus honestly say they are in the 25th year of their 30-year rebuilding program.

"Breaks:" All I know about breaks is that good teams seem to get them and bad teams don't. If somebody could package breaks and open shop in Milford, they'd make a fortune.

"Mental-Physical:" It's important not to confuse these two terms. TEAMS that relish body contact are called physical. MISTAKES, in any form, are mental.

Strange, but these terms are not interchangeable. Teams that shy away from body contact are not called mental, and plays executed to perfection are not called physicals.

You would not say "Waterford Kettering is very mental, and that allowed us to win on that one great physical," even though you'd probably be making about as much sense as anyone else in sports.

NOW THAT YOU'VE been introduced to five of the most important words in nonsensical sports jargon, you'll no longer be in the dark the next time, somebody observes:

"We're a physical team, but we made some mental mistakes and couldn't get any breaks and wound up rebuilding on paper."

It's going to happen—and you'll be ready.

It's not as easy as it looks — Justin Ross is just a little off target in this attempt to lace a hit.

Kris Tiaht took a first place in the 13-year-old singles and a runner up in the 13-year-old doubles competition recently.

Tennis players reap awards

Clarkston area girls Kris Tiaht, Molly McAuliffe and Mary Smith all came away winners from the Northwest Parks and Recreation League Tennis Meet two weeks ago.

Kris placed first in the 13-year-old singles competition, while Mary took first among 17-year-olds for the third consecutive year.

Kris and Molly also teamed up to take the runner-up spot in the 13-year-old doubles competition.

The league meet took place in Hazel Park and included players from Hazel Park, Clawson, Rochester and Independence Township parks and recreation department teams.

The girls are coached by Independence Parks and Recreation tennis instructor Dick Swartout, who also coaches boys' tennis at Clarkston High School.

Resident tackles energy conservation with gusto

By Marilyn Truemper
Energy conservation.

That's an issue Michael Clark tends to press to the forefront and confront township officials with on a continuous basis. For ammunition, he's using Independence Township's 1979-80 audit report.

"I'm more resolved after the audit meeting than ever before to make an issue of energy in this township," Clark said. "It's impossible to tell anything from the audit reports when trying to distinguish how much was spent in what type of utilities for what department.

"For example, the Senior Citizen's Center has to have heat and costs are going up all the time. We won't know how much more of the township's money is being spent on the new building if it's not broken down," he said.

Tax credits and grants are available to encourage participation in energy conservation, he said, and the longer the township waits to think about energy conservation the worse the problem becomes.

"I've told the township board they should have an energy audit, and begin with that," he said. "So often people figure it will go away if they don't address the issue, that's why I'm back again and again. Everybody seems to have his head in the sand."

Up to 50 percent can be saved in utility costs by implementing conservation methods, Clark said. And when grants or loans are applied for and accepted, often the government pays up to 95 percent of the costs.

Clark lives on Clintonville Road.

His occupation involves the manufacturing of solar collectors, for he is marketing director of Gulf Thermal Corporation, a manufacturing company.

"I've been accused of trying to find a part-time job, but the fact is that I've offered to volunteer my services. Our families have been living here a long time and the tradition has always been to help the community, he said.

"I don't care whose solar collectors the township would decide to use, I would just like to see something done.

"We have a stagnant administration which has failed to work cohesively and get something done.

"In two years, between 1975 and '77, I estimate that the cost of electricity was up 90 percent and heat up 200 percent," he said. "I want to find out exactly where that money is going, I want it laid out clearly and concisely."

"The new Department of Public Works building and the Senior Citizens Center is not calculated in the projections for utility costs. We all pay the bills," Clark said. "Let's see how motivated we are to find out what we're paying for."

Independence audit smooth

Newly released figures from an unqualified audit report for Independence Township's 1979-80 fiscal year reveal the township spent $50,253 less than the general fund's budgeted $1,111,800.

An unqualified report is one which auditors submit as complete without having to qualify any of the figures.

An auditor from the firm of Doeren Mayhew & Co., Troy, presented the board with the report at the July 29 meeting.

The township started off the 1980-81 fiscal year on March 31 with a general fund surplus of $303,564 accumulated from previous years.

In addition to the general fund, the police fund shows a surplus of $8,072 and the sewer fund, a surplus of $155,040.

There were losses in the fire fund of $45,587 and the water system fund of $20,712.

Copies of the audit report are available for public review at the Independence Township Library, or the township clerk's office in Independence's Township Hall 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Independence says 'no' to mobile home park

Without discussion and in unanimous agreement, the Independence Township Board denied the rezoning of 51 acres of land in the southeastern section of the township to accommodate a mobile home park. An application filed by Gregory Christopher in April requested the rezoning for a proposed plan with 400 trailer sites on the land located south of Maybee Road and east of I-75.

At that time, Timothy Palulian, head of the township's density requirement allows no more than four units per acre.

and that Christopher's outline requested double the amount of trailers the township allows.

On May 14, the township's planning commission reviewed the request on rezoning, and based on planner's recommendation, the commission recommended denial by the township board.

In his report, planner Tod Kilroy gave several reasons why he felt the rezoning of the land should be denied.

An area southwest of the 51 acres is zoned for apartments and condominiums, and both a multi-family residential development and a mobile home park would create too great a density in one area of the township, he said.

Kilroy also noted that the proposed mobile home park plan includes 400 trailers within the 51 acres and that was in excess of the township's density requirement.

At the township board meeting July 29, Christopher Rose, township clerk, motioned for a vote to deny the rezoning based on the planning commission's and planner's recommendation for denial.

Application Gregory Christopher was not present at the township board meeting.

Pair of perpetrators pilfer family's pulpwood Pawnee

Be on the lookout for a male figure, no age given, approximately five feet tall, weighing 200 pounds.

Last seen in the Clarkston area, he was wearing an orange poncho and multi-colored feathers.

The wooden Indian was stolen Saturday from the front yard of a home on Clarkston-Orion Road, Independence Township.

It had an estimated value of $250, according to police reports.

The sculpture has been a local landmark since installed some three years ago in front of the Barna residence.

A birthday gift from her husband, Vivian Barna said she was shocked to find the Indian gone.

"Nothing's sacred," she said. "I just can't believe it. It weighed 200 pounds and was a good two feet into the ground."

She had heard a chain rattle and looked outside that night, and she saw a truck pull off. Some newspapers by the side of the road where the truck had been made her believe it was a newspaper delivery truck, Mrs. Barna said.

Early the next morning, her son came running in the house to report the missing Indian.

Mrs. Barna immediately called the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

"Then I found out the sheriff's deputies had bets on how long the statue would last," she laughed, finding a bit of humor in a rather glum situation.

The Barnas have plans to replace the statue.

"We're going to cement it into the ground," said Mrs. Barna.

Meanwhile, the incident inspired Deputy Gary Spalo to put some sparkle into the police report.

"Statue stealthily stolen by slyly slinking suspects sometime before sunrise," he wrote.

"No evident evidence evolved from investigation. No seamy suspects sighted. It is believed intoxicated transient from Pine took the statue."

"A pair of perpetrators pilfered the pulpwood Pawnee (i.e. wooden Indian) from its prominent position and ported it to possibly a pick-up which was precariously parked on the roadway."

The sheriff's department is conducting an investigation to attempt to recover the stolen property.

Talking about . . .

At the shopping center on the corner of Clarkston-Orion and Eston roads, we asked this week's question: What do you think about the recent law passed in New York City that prohibits cars carrying just the driver and no additional passengers from crossing the Manhattan Bridge?

"I think basically it's a good law, it cuts down on the congestion. After all, New York is supposed to be wall to wall bodies. It's difficult for me to equate to living here in the Clarkston area, and I guess a lot of people will be aggravated."—Dave Millen, Bluewater Drive, Independence Township, roofing contractor.

"I think they should leave that kind of decision up to the individual, but they can suggest it. Today too many freedoms are taken away from people by the passing of laws, and when laws are passed too many angles in the laws are not looked into."—Jan Green, Thendara, Road, Independence Township, artist.

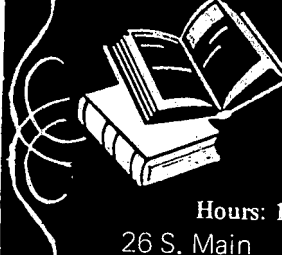

"That could be a touchy situation, and a lot of people could really be inconvenienced, especially those going to work. But if you look at the other way it helps keep down pollutants in the air and cuts down on gas consumption. But it should be a volunteer situation."—David Midkiff, Longview Street, Independence Township.

"I'm not really sure what I think, but it doesn't seem to be absolutely necessary. If they can pool it they should."—Nelma McKinzie, Waterford, clerk with St. Paul Title Company in Troy.

"Yeah, I agree with the law. There's got to be more than one person living around in the same neighborhood who works where another person does. They can get together and ride together. It's bad enough paying for gasoline for one."—Gary Gaines, Eston Road, Independence Township, mason.

Assuming that the judges would not be able to interpret his costume, Adam Willard, 9, sports a sign around his neck. Adam took home a prize for his costume of Kermit the Frog, a favorite character of Muppet fanciers.

Halloween in July

Over 40 kids from all over the township came to join in the July masquerade, sans full moon, orange pumpkins or the cry of "Trick-or-Treat."

They came to participate in the annual Independence Township Library Summer Reading Club's costume party. The fact that Halloween is months away did not matter at all.

Dressed as elephants, ball players, ballerinas, and chorus-line-dancers, the kids filled the library's floor from wall to wall.

For eight weeks in the summer, the library offers different events for kids, and the costume party was the seventh week's activity.

Laurel and Hardy films brought shrieks and giggles from the crowded room, and later cookies and pop satisfied hungry appetites.

The kids' costumes were judged, and four prize winners went home with books or puzzles. Others received a gift certificate to Burger Chef.

"All of them were winners and all the kids did a good job," said James Hibler, library director.

Derek Shirley dressed as a dragon, Adam Willard as Kermit the Frog and Derek Hackbardt as a robot, took prizes for the boys' competition. Angela Nichols dressed as a bride and Kelly Stickney as a Chinese Lady were winners in the girls' competition.

Country Living

by Al Zawacky

The Potluskys enjoy a refreshing glass of iced tea at the counter bar separating their kitchen from the living room. "This is probably the most popular spot in the house," Carla says. "Whenever we have people over, it seems this is where they sit."

Potluskys praise mobile home life

Dennis and Carla Potlusky say they considered all the advantages and disadvantages of mobile home living over three years ago.

And the result was a solid win for the advantages.

"I'm the type of person who can't see going into debt so deep that you can't see the light at the surface," Dennis says, sitting in the living room of his home at the Springfield Estates mobile home park in Springfield Township.

"Carla and I had a lot of money tied up in our businesses, and we couldn't see going out and spending the kind of money they're asking now."

Dennis listed some of the advantages enjoyed by residents of the park: Use of park club house, swimming pool, golf course, free snow removal and a security patrol that provides vacationing residents with a little extra peace of mind.

The lot size is large enough, he adds, to permit the mobile home dweller to landscape or plant a garden just like his conventional home counterpart.

"We pay rent on the land, but we own the structure," Dennis says. "It's an investment, just like buying a regular home."

After taking a sip of a nearby soft drink, Dennis comments that the popular view that mobile home parks don't pay their fair share of property taxes is far from accurate.

"We pay taxes included in our rent, and you can believe that the owner of this property pays an enormous amount of tax to the township and the schools," he says.

Which raises an interesting point about land ownership, Dennis notes: Even if you own your lot, you continue to pay taxes on it—as much as mobile home owners must pay rent.

"Even if you've got that deed right in your hand, you never really own the property. Paying taxes every year is really no different from paying rent."

"And when you consider all of the free services we get living in a mobile home, I can't say I feel bad about renting."

Both Dennis and Carla are self-employed businesspersons. Dennis and partner Keith Dutcher own The Carpet Crafters

Shoppe on Dixie Highway in Springfield Township.

A short drive farther north on Dixie Highway, also in Springfield Township, will bring you to Carla's Beauty Salon.

"Originally, I wanted to be a teacher," says Carla. "But after I got out of high school, I just didn't want to go through any more schooling."

So instead of attending college, Carla went to the Elite Academy of Cosmetology. She worked as a beautician in Bloomfield Hills six years before opening her own business.

"I didn't really know if I wanted my own business at first," Carla recalls. "The idea was kind of scary."

But judging by the results three years later, she made the right move. Today, business is terrific," she reports.

Dennis originally worked in the electrical contracting business and had over 10 years experience in the field when he and Keith decided to strike it out on their own in the carpet business.

Keith, who is Carla's brother, was working as an installer for a carpet dealer in Clarkston when Dennis acquired an interest in the business, Dennis says.

"There was just something about it—the way you could make somebody's house look great, and the satisfaction you got from doing a good job," he says.

"I asked Keith how much he thought it would cost to go into business for ourselves, and that's how it got started."

Six months later, the Potlusky-Dutcher partnership opened its doors for business. That was in 1975.

"I had a pretty good job, so I was taking a pretty big chance by going into business for myself," Dennis says.

"But when you own your own business, at least you have some control over your own destiny. I figure if I'm destined to get an ulcer, heart attack or nervous breakdown, it's better I should get it for my own business, rather than somebody else's," he chuckles.

Being in contact with the public as much as they are, both Dennis and Carla take a keen interest in local politics and community affairs.

"I believe everybody should vote," says Dennis. "I can't think of anything more important. I don't think I've missed a single election in the last 10 years."

"I think of my father—he served in World War II, and I don't think I've ever known him not to be in some kind of pain because of the wounds he had."

"Hell be the first one to tell you how many men had to die just so that we would have that right to vote. If I was in a body cast in a hospital, I'd have somebody put a pencil in my mouth, and I'd vote absentee ballot."

Dennis adds that his interest and outspokenness in local government may lead him someday to run for public office. "I'm definitely interested," he says.

For relaxation and diversion, Dennis enjoys photography while Carla has a creative flair. She knits, paints and makes knick-knacks and decorative pieces for around the house.

They also enjoy traveling, especially to Mackinac Island where they recently purchased some land.

"We'd like to build a home there someday," Dennis says. "Mackinac Island is beautiful—we really love it up there."

The rural life of Mackinac Island is reflected in the area in which the Potluskys live. "It's nice to be able to see vegetable stands and horses along the side of the road," Carla says.

They moved to their Springfield Township mobile home park over three-and-a-half years ago from Union Lake, but neither Dennis nor Carla are strangers to the area.

Both grew up in the Clarkston area and graduated from Clarkston High School—he in 1965 and she in 1970.

"This is really a nice park," Dennis says. "We enjoy our privacy, but the people here are friendly and always ready to help—and of course, we're always willing to lend a hand to a neighbor, too."

Carla and Dennis sit comfortably on the porch of their mobile home in Springfield Township. Though skeptical at first about mobile home living, Dennis says he's now a believer. "We've got 1,000 square feet of living space, and we can decorate and furnish just as we could in any house," he says.

Shows entertain canine fans, people-watchers

Summertime brings travel and family times of togetherness.

For us this meant a trip, dogs in tow, through our beloved New England for sightseeing and the New England circuit of dog shows.

A series of five shows begin in Northampton, Mass. go to Vermont for three days, then on to New Hampshire.

We then circle through Canada taking in a series of shows in Ottawa in addition to the sights and culture and extensive parks the area has to offer.

Eight dogs, three daughters and two parents were packed in our green van for the eventful two weeks.

Heather, age 19, home from college, wrote this description of the typical dog show:

I don't know if you've ever been to a dog show but they are quite exciting and/or amusing depending on whether you're in the ring or not.

On the morning of the show the huge grooming tent is like a combination of an obstacle course, a beauty salon and Marlin Perkins' Wild Kingdom.

If you can successfully dodge the flailing combs, wet towels and clouds of canine hair spray, it is fun to watch a poodle being painstakingly clipped, a sheepdog lost in puffs of powdery hair, a Maltese having its little colorful ribbons tied, or a bulldog being sponged off.

At last it's ring time.

In each ring is the judge and one or two stewards who pass out numbers to be worn as armbands by the handlers, get coffee for the judge, check off the attendance in each class and call by walkie-talkie for the "sanitary engineer" or "clean-up crew" (Dad just calls them poop-scoopers) in case of an accident.

The part of the ring which is under the tent is bordered by crowds of handlers with dogs, spectators and friends and family of those in the ring — all muttering under their breath.

The handlers mutter that they wish the class ahead of them would hurry up and that that kid handler is walking along shaking a dust mop. If you listen at the sidelines you'll hear as many different opinions on the quality of the dog as there are people watching.

The spectators either mutter inane questions to no one in particular ("Why does one dog have a blue leash and the other a white one?") or they talk to each other about their dog at home who is much cuter or much smarter than any in the ring.

Friends and family of exhibitors toss combs, bits of dog food or whatever else the handler may need into the ring, and alternately cheer and curse as the judge makes decisions.

Inside the ring the judge usually examines each dog in a posed position ("stacked") first. He looks at their teeth, checks coat texture and basic soundness.

Then he'll watch each dog move around the ring. With the Pekinese it looks like the handler is walking along shaking a dust mop.

If you listen at the sidelines you'll hear as many different opinions on the quality of the dog as there are people watching.

My Dad loves our dogs but he doesn't really get into the competition aspect.

He enjoys dog shows because of the funny people who gather at them.

After careful observation he declared to me on this trip that Afghans and bulldogs are most likely out of all the breeds to be shown by people who look like an Afghan (lankly, build, long hair, haughty expression) or a bulldog (stout, often red-faced, short of breath).

It is amusing to see how many poodles are handled by people with frizzy hair; greyhounds by people with long bony limbs; etc.

We all enjoy dog shows because we get to travel to fun places and to work and play together as a family and with our dogs.

Genesee County Show at IMA Sports Arena, Lapeer St., Flint, Aug. 16.

Aug. 17 is Pontiac Kennel Club on the grounds of Oakland Community College; Highland Lake Campus in Union Lake.

Coming in August: Three Michigan dog shows where you can meet breeders and see your breed displayed in style.

Shows begin at 9 a.m. and go until 4 or 5 in the afternoon. If you would like to know a specific time for the breed of your choice, contact me.

Nutritious and healthy is Simply Natural's style

The name of Nancy Galbraith's recently opened health food business speaks for itself: "Simply Natural."

None of the food items on her store's well-stocked shelves contain artificial additives, preservatives or chemicals. Everything is indeed, "simply natural."

"I've been into health foods for about 10 or 12 years," Galbraith says. "It's really encouraging to see all the young people that come in."

Starting children very young is the key to breaking the junk food habit and to enjoying natural foods, she notes. Children raised from birth on a proper, healthy diet are not only indifferent to sweets and "junk food," but in many cases actually develop an aversion to it.

"Twenty years ago, you were really a nut among the berries if you were into health food," Galbraith says. "Today, more and more people are turning to it--people are realizing just how bad some of the processed foods we eat are for us."

Besides a full line of health and natural foods, "Simply Natural" also carries a full line of vitamins and has a sit-down "Juice Bar" in the back of the store.

yogurt after they've tasted it. "They'll say 'Gee, I didn't know it tasted that good,'" Galbraith and her daughter Terri Taber operate the store at 5625 Dixie Highway in Waterford Township's Waterfall Plaza shopping center.

Health foods may cost a little more, but the investment in personal health is worth it, they say.

"You're really getting more for your money nutrition-wise," Taber says.

"There are people who won't buy food anywhere except at a health food store," adds Galbraith. "We've had a very good response so far--the people coming in have been really excited about having a health food store here."

Business briefs

Realtor Sheldon B. Smith, 41, has been re-elected chairman of the Mackinac Island State Park Commission for an unprecedented sixth consecutive term. Appointed to the commission by the governor in 1973, Smith was first elected to chair the group in 1975 and is the first chairman in the 85-year history of the commission to be elected to six consecutive terms. He is the president of Sheldon Smith Inc., Realtors. Smith, his wife Jane and daughter Jennifer reside in Waterford.

Doing business

Natural refreshers and treats such as frozen yogurt, freshly made natural peanut butter and fresh fruit juices are the fare at the juice bar.

And Galbraith stresses that you don't have to give up enjoying eating by switching over to health foods.

Pluck blueberries from your own bushes

Midsummer is blueberry season in Michigan.

Persons who have had the experience of picking the cultivated blueberries are always amazed at the size, color and ease of harvesting these delicious fruits and frequently ask about growing them in their home grounds.

Wild blueberries are a native American fruit. Harvesting the wild berries is still a favorite summer event for many families who search the woods and swamps of our state for them.

Only the low-bush varieties grow wild in favored locations in the southern part of the state and it is from these plants that our cultivated varieties have been developed.

Blueberries grow well only on an acid soil.

The first step for anyone who plans to grow them is to have the soil tested. The acidity reading is measured by a pH scale which for blueberries should be between pH 4.0 to 5.1.

In addition to the acid soil, blueberries also require a constant but moderate supply of moisture throughout the growing season.

One reason the crop has become so well established in the state is that in Michigan we have the special soils and climate blueberries require.

Throughout the state there are many acres of "sour" sands and occasional acid mulch soils that are suitable for these berries.

It is on these soils that commercial plantings have been developed into one of the state's successful enterprises—triumph of the efforts of scientists who developed the improved varieties and the venturesome growers who were willing over the years to invest the work, patience and money to develop this relatively new commercial crop.

The homeowner wishing to have a few blueberry plants to supply the family's needs and to have something out of the ordinary needs first to get the proper soil.

To meet the soil acidity conditions, one may mix in a liberal amount of acid peat to the soil.

The nurseries that supply blueberry plants usually give good directions on soil preparation. The Oakland County Extension office has folders giving excellent information. A telephone call will bring a copy to you.

Blueberry plants with their fine foliage and attractive form make them suitable for ornamental plantings. In the fall of the year, their leaves will add a touch of red color to your plantings that can rival our "burning bush," euenymous, now so widely used. Yes, with patience and proper care you can grow your own blueberries!

Let's Go

Summer months need not be a vacation from learning — for children or adults.

With so many offerings nearby, day trips can provide economical family outings that are entertaining and mind-expanding.

Recently, a group of second and third graders from Clarkston Elementary School went on such outings with a teacher, Ann Touscany.

The children's writings on the mini-excursions provide a candid look at some day trip possibilities.

Greenfield Village and the Henry Ford Museum of Dearborn are the first in a series of six family adventures to appear in "Let's Go."

GREENFIELD VILLAGE

"It looked so hard to make some of those old-fashion candles, because it took forty dips for one candle and there were 24 on each ring.

"It also took 80 dips to dip them when it was hot.

"We also went to a one-room house and we only got one dress for the summer and one for the winter.

"Later, we went and got some potato chips and some ice cream bars.

--Amy Keller and Julia Meredith

HENRY FORD MUSEUM

"I thought the museum was neat."

"I especially liked the big generators in the power section.

"I also liked the Interpretive Center. It showed an old-fashion bathtub and some showers and the earthquake of 1908.

"In the transportation section, we saw lots of old cars, bicycles, motorcycles, airplanes and trains. And the old trains used wood instead of coal for their fire.

"At the souvenir shop, I bought a Civil War battlefield map. It shows every battlefield in the whole Civil War.

"In the lighting and communication section, we saw Bell's telephone and old-fashion TV sets.

"And in the agriculture section, we saw a man making brooms with something called broomcorn."

"When we went to the Henry Ford Museum, I think that the transportation part was the best, because it had airplanes and cars and all the other ways of travel.

"It had an electricity part too. There was a part with all kinds of guns.

"It was very big. The inside is a lot different from the outside."

-- Ben Huffman and Matt Plec

"Outdoor Wood fences make good neighbors."

by Sam Kilman
The Outdoor Woodsman

"When I set out to build a fence around my place, the neighbors took it kind of personal.

Gettin' boarder happy, they called it.

But when they saw the good-looking fence I was building with Outdoor brand Wood, they started comin' around.

'I'm not fencing,' I said. 'I'm lumberscaping.'

Well, I sunk my posts right into the ground. Didn't dip 'em in anything. Didn't bother to stain or paint any of the wood. 'Won't have to,' I told my friends. 'I'm just going to leave 'er weather to a natural grey that'll blend right in with the landscaping.

'You'll get rot and termites,' they warned.

'Uh-uh,' I said. 'I've got Outdoor Wood. It's lumber that's been deep pressure-treated with Wolman® preservatives to protect itself against everything that bugs wood!

Next thing I knew they were leaning over my new fence asking where they could get Outdoor Wood. So, I told 'em what I'm about to tell you.

Get down to your nearby lumber dealer, get yourself some Outdoor Wood . . . and get lumberscaping. Pretty soon, you'll be an Outdoor Woodsman, too. And, neighbor, that's a fun thing to be."

Village Players call actors

11 and 12 at 7:30 p.m., at the Depot Theatre, 4861 White Lake, Independence Township.

For additional information on casting phone the Players' president Jim Tyrrell at 673-5910.

Birthday celebration

Sally Lindeman rang in her 40th year with a bang recently.

Friends Pat Evans and Linda Palace threw a surprise luncheon at Pat's home on Deerhill Drive, Independence Township.

Many of the about 20 guests were Sally's co-workers from where she teaches at Clarkston Junior High School.

Other friends had gathered, in the meantime, at Sally's home on Paramus Drive, Independence Township.

And when she returned, she found newspapers spread throughout.

The intent was just to create a wild and carefree mess, said the caller to the Clarkston News.

He must have decided to spread the news in more than one way.

CHS reunion cancelled

The Clarkston High School Class of 1975 reunion has been cancelled.

Lack of response was the cause, said organizer Kerry Steiner.

Of the 600 members in the class, he heard from only 25 people, and the number includes spouses, he said.

The event had been scheduled at Addison Oaks on Aug. 31.

Those with questions may call Steiner at 625-0940.

Well-earned inclusion

In last week's Clarkston News, the names of three members in the Little Feathers of Davisburg (Blue Bird Club of the Detroit Area Council of Camp Fires) were inadvertently dropped from a line of type.

Jennifer Groleau, Erin Nichols and Ellie Stackpoole shared their troop's pride in receiving a special merit award for their art entry in the 1980 Camp Fire National Art Competition

The girls, all third graders attending Davisburg Elementary School contributed to the creation of a soft sculpture pig-tailed Blue Bird head which won the award.

Coping with kids

Informed teen handles divorce best

"They won't bounce me back and forth between them," 15-year-old Mike asserted forcefully. "I'll run away. I won't take it."

Mild-mannered Mike has seen his parents fight many times, but now when they argue they are throwing in angry comments about a divorce.

Mike thinks he knows what will happen if they get a divorce. He thinks they will try to use him in hurting each other and he refuses to take it.

There are two things operating in Mike's problem situation.

One is, as Mike says, "I'm always the last one in the family to know anything."

Although he is not the youngest child in the family, he is left out when information is being passed around at home. When his father was suspended from his job for a "white collar crime," everyone else knew before Mike.

He is not sure if they are serious when they toss out comments about divorce. How could he be? He feels like he usually functions on partial information and what he doesn't know he must make up.

The other problem for Mike is that while he can deny how bad it is at home most of the time, if they were to get a divorce he could not hide the unsavory truths about his parents from himself or outsiders.

He believes that he will be rejected by others should they ever know what his homelife is really like.

There is much more fighting than he tells even his therapist.

At a time, when as an adolescent, Mike is struggling to deal with his image of himself and the images of his parents, they threaten to hit him with more reality than he is willing to accept.

Awareness of his own previous innocence and the disillusionment he lived under in regard to his parents is a bit much when so much else is happening in his world at this age.

Mike is depressed now and will be even more depressed should his parents actually divorce. Forced to acknowledge the unpleasant features of his parents, he may even run away.

Mike is a good, although unfortunate, example of how teenagers often have greater difficulty dealing with a divorce than do younger children.

But, how parents handle the divorce--and how they keep the children informed about what is really going on between mother and father--can be useful in helping even a troubled adolescent deal with the turmoil of a split-up family.

County parks await crowds

Seniors have reduced rates

Senior citizens can enjoy reduced rates while taking advantage of the leisure activities offered at Oakland County parks.

"The parks and recreation commission recognizes that, retirees are on a fixed income. Whenever possible the parks commission wants to make costs reasonable for senior citizens to enjoy the parks," says Eric Reickel, commission manager.

"We have found that senior citizens are not aware of our reduced fees, and are now making every effort to make it public knowledge.

Free admission on weekdays is available at Independence Oaks, providing seniors with the opportunity to swim, picnic or spend a day fishing.

Special low rates are also available for canoe, rowboat and paddleboat rentals.

Springfield Oaks in Springfield Township offers special senior citizen rates at its 18-hole golf course, and The Waterford Oaks game complex offers tennis, horseshoes, shuffleboard and platform tennis at special rates.

Information on special senior citizens activities and rates can be obtained by calling 858-0906.

Photography was just one field in which young people submitted projects and competed for awards at this week's 4-H Fair. Here, Jake Hines holds up his creation.

Meet you at the fair

4-H carnival will run through Saturday

From cows to horses to science projects to carnival rides is waiting for fun seekers and the curious at the Oakland County 4-H Fair currently being held at Springfield Oaks Activities Center, on Andersonville at Hall roads in Springfield Township. The fair will continue until Saturday — parking is $2, but admission to the grounds is free. This was the scene Monday afternoon as Alice Hodgson groomed her horse "Koyup" for an upcoming competition.

Bonnie Hines stands proudly with her prize-winning coat. She made the coat herself in about a month's time.

Jennifer Mann and her rabbit "Twix" were participating in the rabbit competition. The rabbits are judged on the basis of their coats and general appearance, she says.
