Political committee's candidates sweep election

And quest for all seven slots on the township board continues

By Marilyn Trumper

Independence Township's "Residents for Responsible Government" showed its power in the Aug. 5 primary election.

The political committee appeared on the scene a few months prior to the election and immediately stormed the campaign trail.

Their efforts were rewarded when the seven top vote-getting candidates across the board were those endorsed by the influential group.

Using money acquired from individual donations and a fundraiser, the group poured approximately $750 into each candidate's campaign for a total of almost $6,000.

Their strategy included contacting residents who had signed anti-high rise petitions last year using intensive over-the-phone vote solicitations and mailing candidates' pamphlets.

"A nucleus of people we knew thought like we did," said Ted Thomson, who was in charge of financing for the committee, "and the group that's running were part of the anti-high rise people who signed the petition."

Members of the organization contacted almost all the 2,700 people who signed the petition, he said.

Slightly more than 3,000 of the township's 12,000 registered voters cast ballots in the Aug. 5 election.

"We went about it with a positive approach," said Dr. James O'Neill, head of the organization.

"We said, 'These are the people who have worked to stop high rises in the township—it had nothing to do with Pine Knob—and they are responsible to what the majority of the people wanted.

"I'm very pleased and grateful to the people of the township," O'Neill added. "I thought we would get three and not all four of the trustees we endorsed."

Although he did not want to predict the outcome of the November election, O'Neill did say he thought the treasurer's race between incumbent Frederick Ritter (D) and Carol Balzarini (R) would be close.

Thomson, however, offered a prediction.

"It's the national election and I anticipate a strong Republican win. All seven of our candidates are Republicans and we should benefit, and I think we'll get them all in."

One thing the group will avoid is "getting fat and happy" over the recent victory, O'Neill said.

Plans are underway to campaign strongly between now and November and to continue to solicit funds, Thomson said. "Residents for Responsible Government" formed with people active in the township's affairs, including gravel pits, safety paths, the fight against high rises and police problems, O'Neill said.

"I think everyone who won is a good representation of the township," he said. "They're a pretty diverse group and many of them don't necessarily agree on many things."

The seven Republican candidates who won the primary elections and were supported by the group are James Smith, supervisor candidate; Carol Balzarini for treasurer; Christopher Rose for clerk; and the four trustee candidates.

Larence Kozma, Daniel Travis, Dale Stuart and William Floyd (Whitey) Tower, Karen Herron for clerk, incumbent Supervisor

Their opposition on the Democratic ballot in November Treasurer Frederick Ritter, and Guy Derryberry for trustee.

Township fire station closing

Independence Township's fire station on the corner of Sashabaw and Clarkston-Orion roads will be shut down to a full volunteer staff for at least the next two months, said Fire Chief Frank Ronk.

With the resignation of a second firefighter effective yesterday, the department no longer has the available manpower to fill overtime hours, Ronk said.

Approximately one month ago the Independence Township Board voted to suspend hiring in the fire department because of fund shortages.

The fire department, then one man short, filled the open position by paying overtime to other employees. Now two men short of the needed staff to run three stations on a 24-hour basis, Ronk said he is forced to close station two.

New hiring in the fire department hinged upon passage of 1-mill on the Aug. 5 ballot.

"I expect the township board to direct me to begin hiring procedures at the next meeting," Ronk said. "But it will take at least two months before we have filled those positions."

"The new employees will have to go through a testing period, become familiar with the township and our equipment," he said.

Get ready!

It may be a shade too early to be sipping cider or raking leaves — but if you're a Clarkston High School football fan, it's already that time of year again.

Football camp opened this week as the Wolves gear up for their season opener Sept 5 at home against Swartz Creek.

What changes are there on the Clarkston coaching staff? Who'll be coming up from the junior varsity?

How do the returning veterans and lettermen look in the pre-season drills? How about the schedule?

These are just some of the questions you'll find answered in The Clarkston News' sports pages.

This week, in the first of a series of four weekly gridiron previews, we analyze the changes taking place in the coaching staff and also provide a varsity schedule you'll want to clip and save.

You'll find this week's story on page 13.

If you follow Clarkston High School football, The Clarkston News is your ticket on the 50-yard line this fall.

New station planned for fire department

Immediate changes in the Independence Township Fire Department are not to be expected even with approval of a 1-mill fire tax increase on the Aug. 5 primary ballot.

"There won't be any big changes for the next year," said Frank Ronk, fire chief. "I won't receive any of that money until December, and when I do, I have to spend at least $150,000 to pay back the township." The fire department still owes the township general fund approximately $45,000, and two weeks ago the department borrowed $20,000 from the township sewer fund.

The department will continue to borrow up to $100,000 from the sewer fund as needed, and that money is to be paid back at 5 1/2 percent interest by the end of the fiscal year, March 31.

"The money that's left over after paying back the township will go for hoses and nozzles and things like that," Ronk said. "Those things have doubled in price since they were last ordered."

"By next year though, we hope to hire additional people in the department. We hope to add on an addition to Station 2 so that we can house a pumper. We want to replace two pumper trucks and a tanker and build new headquarters," he said.

Currently Ronk said he is looking at land in and around the Village of Clarkston for the new headquarters.

"I'm tickled to death that the millage passed. I really didn't have a pulse on it," he said.

The 1-mill fire protection increase will bring $215,000 more to the township and the Village of Clarkston annually over the next 9 years, plus the 2 mills previously approved by voters.

Village to pay more for sidewalks

The construction of new sidewalks and the repair of old walks in the Village of Clarkston are going to cost more than anticipated, says Robert Adams, member of Clarkston's Village Council.

Adams informed the council Monday night of an error in calculations and said the project would cost $14,095 instead of the original amount of $10,300.

"The firm's plan is in three stages and I did not see the last two stages," he said. "However, they are still the lowest bidder."

Phase one of the plan is to begin as soon as possible and involves the construction of approximately 1,250 feet of new sidewalks at a cost of $10,300.

Phase two entails the repair of 117 feet of deteriorating sidewalks, but construction is contingent upon the village receiving $3,500 in Federal Community Development funds scheduled to arrive this month.

Phase three involves final grading and seeding and is also contingent upon the village receiving the Community Development funds.

Phase two will cost $2,500 and phase three will cost $1,295, Adams said.

The village currently has $9,000 in Community Development funds left over from 1978-79 to pay for sidewalk construction.

Clarkston's Village Council voted unanimously to allocate the needed balance of $1,595 from the village's general fund to pay for the necessary construction.

Police millage defeat won't change service

The sound defeat of a proposed 1-mill police millage increase on the Aug. 5 primary ballot probably won't affect Independence Township's services from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department one bit.

That word comes from Lt. Richard Hubble, township resident and member of the sheriff's department.

Hubble, who is in charge of road patrols, said the same service will be provided to the township and nothing will change.

"If the millage had passed the department would have had 12 men able to work the township and it would have been self-sufficient," he said. "Currently we have nine, which is adequate."

"I would have liked to have seen it pass," he added. "But I guess with economics the way they are, the people just didn't think they could handle it."

In the same election, voters approved a 10-year renewal for an existing annual 1-mill tax which pays for police protection currently contracted from Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

When ballots from the township's 11 precincts were counted, 1,878 residents voted "yes" and 978 voted "no."

Township Clerk Christopher Rose said the board thought the police department was underfunded, prompting the millage increase proposal.

"What we have could be considered an adequate coverage, but also could be made better," he said. "Our money to pay the sheriff's department is supplemented with federal revenue sharing funds and the general fund, and those monies could be freed for other purposes."

"I think it's too bad that it didn't pass. It would have provided additional service to the township," he said.

Had the millage passed, it would have provided an additional $204,000 annually to the township for the next 11 years, for a total of over $2 million.

Residents voted the proposed 1-mill increase down with 1,804 "no" votes, 901 "yes" votes.

Bike path construction no closer with millage

Construction of safety paths in Independence Township won't begin for some time, even with the narrow approval of an annual 1/2 mill tax to be collected for the next 10 years.

"There's not been any construction area chosen yet," said Joseph Figa, safety path advisory committee chairman.

"Probably what will happen next is that we'll be looking at property during the next few months. There is not any major criteria that has to be followed, whereas with the first safety path in the southern part of the township, we had to meet government criteria because it was paid for with community development funds," he said.

"We'll probably be considering areas around schools, libraries and parks, places of major activity," he said.

Over $1 million will be collected to pay for safety path construction in the 10-year collection period, said Frederick Ritter, township treasurer.

That amount will increase as the state equalized value increases and property taxes go up," he said.

Currently the township has a proposed safety path package outlining routes equaling approximately 41 miles—32 miles along paved roads and nine miles next to gravel roads.

Township residents voted in favor of the millage proposal, 1,431 to 1,415.

"I'm very pleased with the outcome of the election and personally I think it's a worthwhile project," Figa said. "With gas prices the way they are, people take shorter trips and now will be able to ride or walk those short distances."

The safety path millage will not be collected until December.

Springfield millage defeats draw mixed reactions

By Al Zawacky

The solid defeat of two Springfield Township millage proposals in last week's primary election has brought varying reactions from township officials.

Both proposals would have levied an additional 1 mill apiece for five years, one earmarking the money raised for the Springfield Township library and the other for road improvement.

"My general reaction would be one of disappointment," said Collin Walls, Springfield Township supervisor. "I'm even more disappointed with the voter turnout (17 percent)."

"You would think that two local millage questions would be more important than the indication given by the number of votes cast," he said.

Springfield Treasurer Patricia Kramer, who had opposed placement of the millage proposals on the ballot when the question came up before the township board in June, said she was not surprised by the election results.

"If people want tax relief, they're not going to be passing an increase unless they're sure the money is needed," Kramer said. "People know they need police and fire protection—they don't feel that way about the library or road improvement."

Considering that several school millages—including a proposed increase in the Holly school system—have gone down to defeat recently, it wasn't too likely increases for roads and the library would win approval, Kramer added.

"I didn't really expect the millages to pass, but I didn't think they'd lose by this much," said Springfield Township Clerk J. Calvin Walters.

"I'd have thought more people would support the road millage, and the library has supporters who can organize and get out the vote."

Both millage proposals were rejected by wide margins. The library proposal was defeated with only 34.4 percent of the voters voting "yes" to 65.6 percent voting "no."

The road millage was defeated by a smaller, but still substantial margin of 39.4 "yes" to 60.6 percent "no."

"We weren't real hopeful that it (the library millage) would pass," said Springfield Township Librarian Cathy Phillips, expressing her disappointment over the election results.

"We felt this was a bad time to be approaching the voters for a millage increase. But the money we have right now will last us through March, so the real effect of the vote won't be felt until about March or April," she said.

"The township treasurer has assured us that there is money available for the library in the general fund. The millage defeat will hurt new book purchases and new programs we had planned—but we'll still be here."

"We'll just have to keep things on an even keel." Had the road millage passed the money raised would have been used for a program of ditching, crowning and graveling roads, according to Walls.

In Independence Township

Layoffs loom despite surplus

Independence Township began the 1980-81 fiscal year with a surplus of $303,564 in the general fund, but threats of looming layoffs still haunt government employees.

Employee cutbacks are related to the township's loss in state shared revenue and losses in business revenue, not to the 1.31 mill-tax not levied in 1979, said Christopher Rose, township clerk.

Last summer at the initial suggestion of Rose, the board voted not to levy the 1.31-mill tax which would have brought the township an excess of $200,000 in revenue. One mill is equal to $1 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

At the time, the board also discussed using some of the surplus, which exceeded $500,000, to pay for capital projects like the Senior Citizen's Center, a fire hall, fire truck, safety paths and to pay off the sewer department, Rose said.

"We would still be having layoffs today even if we collected those mills because we would not have that money available anyway," he said. "If we had hit bad times last year, we would have retained the surplus, cut-back on employees and slowly used the surplus."

"Our present surplus is both cash and invested capital. A good portion of it is operating capital which can't be used because it keeps our general fund from having to borrow money every year," he said.

Approximately $150,000 of the $303,564 surplus this year is operating capital, he said.

Cuts in state shared revenue have contributed to employee layoffs and the township has lost $30,000 of expected revenue as of this month and expects a greater loss in the future, he said.

Departments in the township are not making as much money because of the economy, Rose said, and permit issuances are down in the building department by half of what they were last year.

Dispute sends Independence sliding into court

By Al Zawatzky

The Independence Township building department says Pool Mart owner Pete Gannon has an illegal sign on the roof of his swimming pool business.

Gannon says the device is not a sign but a pool slide—and the dispute will see the two parties sliding into court next month.

"We classify the slide as a display, which falls under the township ordinance on signs and displays," says Tim Palullian, head of the Independence Township building and planning department.

The ordinance says that signs cannot exceed the height of the roof, which makes this a clear violation," he adds.

Township ordinance enforcement officer James Hock noticed the pool slide at 5738 M-15 in May and informed Gannon of the violation.

"He hasn't acted," says Hock. "Anytime there's a violation of a zoning ordinance, the individual has the right to go before the zoning board of appeals. Mr. Gannon hasn't taken that opportunity."

As a result, Hock issued a citation requiring Gannon to appear before Judge Gerald McNally in Oakland County 52nd District Court Sept. 17.

He is ready to go to court, Gannon says, unless the judge tells him otherwise, the slide will stay right where it is.

"It's a matter of principle," he says. "The thing that upsets me is that nobody from the township hall has had the common courtesy to come down here and talk to me about this.

"If they're going to call my pool slide a sign," Gannon says, pointing over his shoulder, "then everyone of those cars (on a nearby parking lot) is a sign too."

The presence of the pool slide on his roof has had an unmistakable impact on his pool business, he adds.

"It's helped my business, and this being my first year out here, I need all the help I can get," Gannon says. "A lot of people can't see us driving down the road, and the slide catches their eye."

I just want a judge to tell me—it is a sign, or not? If he says it is, I'll take it down. But the way their ordinance reads, I don't think it is—it's a product I sell."

Gannon adds that although he has a lawyer, he doesn't plan on using his services in court "unless things start getting a little overboard at the hearing."

"They've written me tickets because I've failed to remove an illegal sign," he says. "I haven't acted because I don't have any sign."

The township ordinance does include "displays" under its sign definition, says Gannon, but later defines a display as a device that has "no direct or indirect sales or advertising content."

"That makes it pretty clear to me that the pool slide is not a display, and therefore not a sign, either," he says.

Palullian, however, says that Gannon is quoting the township's definition of a "decorative display," which is not the type of display referred to in the sign definition.

"Those are two separate things," he says. "While the slide is not a decorative display, it still falls under our definition of a sign."

Slide or sign? Poolmart owner Peter Gannon and Independence Township will find out the answer for sure when they take their dispute to the 52nd District Court next month.

Letters to editor

Let's have open primary

To the Editor:

Surprise, surprise. John and Jane Doe take it on the chin again!!!

Aug. 5, 1960, John and Jane do their patriotic duty and venture to the polls to cast their vote.

But wait! Of all the candidates on the ballot (approximately 25 to 30), they are limited to a choice of only 3.

When voting, we must select a party and thereby eliminate the freedom of choice our forefathers lived and died for.

How about it, Senator Cleghorn, let's dump this system of declaring a party and let John and Jane have a choice of all the candidates on the ballot!!!

Mr. Galley

Don't blame someone else

Township residents and voters: Are you satisfied? If not, did you vote?

Of course, those that aren't

Are you proud of yourself, or

The Clarkston Business Association would sincerely like to thank Mr. Morris for taking care of the necessary paperwork and organizing all of the musicians for the recent concerts that were held in the park.

They certainly were well attended and enjoyed by one and all. A sincere thanks to all who supported the concerts and the musicians who gave their time.

Our pop and popcorn sales were a success, so we do have a little money to put towards next year's concerts. We would like to have them a little longer next year, but that does require some funds.

Anyone wishing to donate to the concerts may do so by sending their check to the Clarkston Business Assoc., P.O. Box 296, Clarkston.

Again, thanks to one and all who attended as well as participated.

For vote of confidence

The members of the Independence Township Fire Department would like to thank the residents of Independence Township for the vote of confidence displayed by the approval of the fire millage issue at the Aug. 5 election.

Due to the approval, we will be able to continue the level of both fire and emergency medical

Election surprise

by Kathy Greenfield

There were some surprises in last week's primary election.

At the top of the list was incumbent Independence Township Trustee Jerry Powell's defeat.

Powell has served as a trustee on the board eight years.

He had survived other political upheavals and had provided each new board with a great deal of knowledge about township affairs.

After attending all but one or two township board meetings in over two years, I for one was greatly disappointed that Powell lost his bid to appear on the November ballot.

He was a strong board member who possessed the refreshing quality of "telling it like it is."

There was never any question why he voted as he did. And "up front" people are all too uncommon on the political scene.

His attitude may have been his undoing this time around.

Although a Republican like the seven-member slate supported by the victorious Independence Residents for Responsible Government, Powell made no attempt to be selected for support by the group.

He greatly disliked the idea of having such a force of people backing his campaign and influencing his decisions, he said.

His attitude was one more reason for admiration.

After the election results were in, Powell was understandably upset.

"It was tough," he said about the defeat. "Eight years is a long time."

The slate proposed by the political committee now, it seems, may have clear sailing the way to making up the entire township board for the next four years.

Powell is upset at the prospect and so am I.

"It's the rubber stamp," he said, making a prediction about what will happen when it comes to decision-making time if all seven indeed win in November.

A friend who does not live in the township was discussing the implications of the election.

"All the decisions will now be made in somebody's living room," she said.

She and Powell were discussing the same worries.

I share them as well.

When you're talking about a force of many of the most prominent citizens in a community who are backing a group of politicians with cash and who successfully are assuring victories, the possibility of strong influence is there.

I'll miss Powell's presence on the board come November when the new representatives are elected and sworn in.

It's not that I always agree with everything Powell said for, because many times I did not agree.

But I admired his guts.

Jim's jottings

New clinic comes in handy

by Jim Sherman

Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital opened their clinic in Oxford July 14.

It took me until August 3 to have to use it.

Friendly Dr. Donald Ramsey, with his friendly stretcherside manner was the official needle piker and stitcher-of-the-day.

Before POH opened their health care center the administrators asked people who wanted to transfer from the Pontiac-based facility.

Dr. Ramsey raised his hand, but took lower pay. To continue living in the manner he'd like to, he works a 12-hour shift in the emergency room at POH Friday nights, or at least some of them, besides his clinic work.

The emergency room isn't new to him. But neither is he totally calloused to it. He did say that you do get used to seeing people cut up and wounded.

"We'd call it the Friday Night Knife and Gun Club," Dr. Ramsey said.

Then Saturday night's there'd be a re-run.

Some of it was comical, in a way, he said. If someone came in who had been cut with a knife or shot, the police would come in to question them.

Dr. Ramsey said the patient frequently responded with something like, "I don't know who did it, but he'll be here tomorrow night!"

My injury was simple (I'm glad you insisted on knowing), but Dr. Ramsey complained about not giving him consideration when I did it.

He said, "I wish you'd thought about me a little bit. If you would have gone straight in, I could have done a much neater job of sewing."

"Now I have to make a flap and you stand more chance of having the stitches tear out."

His manner was so friendly I promised to cut myself straighter next time.

I'm reluctant to tell people I cut my hand on a rotary mower. It conjures up all sorts of twisted faces.

I have to add quickly that the mower was not on, that I was putting a blade on the mower at the time.

The bolt needed just a bit more tightening when the socket wrench slipped.

The bandages brought questions of sympathy, but the worst part of it was the way my fingers hit the typewriter keys.

When I typed appropriate it came out a 1/2 aro'ariate.

Adult Basic Education has many rewards

By Marilyn Trumper

Louise Russell's eyes light up as she recalls teaching a group of Cambodians how to use the telephone.

Joyce Love's mouth turns into a smile as she remembers how a student in her adult education class reacted to opening his first bank account.

Both women are teachers in the Adult Basic Education Program that serves the Clarkston, Brandon and Holly area.

The state and federally funded program is free to people wishing to return to school for courses in reading, writing and spelling, math, and English as a second language.

"Some of my students have high school diplomas, but still can't read or do math," Joyce said. "I try to give them an ego trip, I tell them that they're not dumb."

"So many of the students have been told that they're dumb for such a long time that they believe it," she said.

The students in Joyce's evening classes are all ages, she said, but they've come back to school for one thing—to learn.

Many of the students are prepped to take their General Educational Development exam (GED), and go on to do it, she said.

"I had one student who finally learned after 25 years how to do multiplication tables. Some students opened bank accounts last year for the first time. They were afraid to do so before because they couldn't balance a checking account," she said.

"For some it's the first time they've done a crossword puzzle, or filed income tax forms. It was a revelation to many of them, and to me, too," she laughed.

Joyce stressed that many of her students are professional people, working in hair salons, as dog-groomers, licensed contractors, and on and on.

"They just haven't mastered certain skills and that's what my job is," she said.

Joyce teaches two nights a "survival English," how to handle money, to use the phone, all the things we take for granted.

"There are not too many language barriers we can't jump," she said. "I realize that it's all a learning process and what I can't get across through mime I get across with pictures," she said.

"Joyce makes calls to encourage students to come back to class, has provided students with rides, and both of them have paid for refreshments out of their own pocket money," he said.

"Louise opened her own home to the students last year when there wasn't any other place to conduct classes," he said.

"They're both dynamite teachers."

People interested in attending classes can phone Dennis Jacobs in Brandon at 627-2882, Jan Gabier in Clarkston at 625-5841 or Dan Rolls in Holly at 634-7341.

Classes begin September 15 and all students must be registered before the 26th.

week in the evening. Louise teaches two days a week.

"That's the nice thing about the program," Louise said. "If someone's shift changes they can pick up where they left off with either me or Joyce and never lose a lesson."

Louise teaches both adult education and English for the foreign born.

"Last year I taught a family of Cambodian refugees living in Ortonville," she said. "It truly was a rewarding experience."

Louise, 75, has been teaching for the past 16 years in Detroit and moved to Clarkston a year ago.

"It's different than teaching in a regular classroom where there are discipline problems. These people really want to learn and it's almost pathetic. They are so afraid that they'll do something which is not 'acceptable' or that they won't appear thankful for being here," she said.

"I teach them what I call

"The ones who do make it here in the states are super people to start with," Louise said. "They have survived so much..."

Over the past 16 years, Louise has taught doctors, engineers, lawyers, architects and those without any educational background at all.

"When I see them go," the silver-haired teacher said, "it's rewarding to know they learned from me."

Joyce, 47, expresses her feelings differently.

"When I've taught a student and taught them well, it feels like I'm a step down from God, it's very fulfilling."

Dennis Jacobs, director of community education, readily compliments the two women.

"I don't think I have ever been associated with two more dedicated people who are extremely qualified and really take the student's interests to heart. Both of them go far beyond the call of duty."

Louise Russell and Joyce Love have worked hard to teach basic adult education and to instruct the foreign born of the Clarkston area. The results have been rewarding.

'If it Fitz...'

Fitz's photo sale

by Jim Fitzgerald

Recently, Henry Ford II sold the pictures off his walls to raise cash. I am thinking about this sale because these words are being typed at home and while trying to think of something profound to write. I am looking at the pictures on my walls.

I am working at home because a labor dispute has rendered my downtown office off limits. If you are reading this, the strike is over and things are looking up. But if you never read this, I could soon be short of cash. I am wondering if I could sell the pictures off my walls.

They are the usual family photographs, covering 25 years of ordinary living. We were a traveling family when the kids were young, and there are pictures taken in front of the White House, aboard the Mayflower and alongside countless Holiday Inn pools. But the best photos were clicked near our old home—at the local hospital, for instance.

This is my favorite. It shows me, in 1956, sitting next to my wife who is in bed. We are in the maternity ward and I am holding our second child who is one day old. The picture was taken by a friend and we had no idea how interesting it was until it came out of the darkroom.

That's when we noticed that a fourth face had mysteriously appeared in the photo. A little girl is peering in through the hospital window, holding her tiny hands alongside her scrunched-up face to keep the glare from the glass out of her nosy eyes. It is our six-year-old daughter who was supposed to be home. She had walked to the hospital, balancing a kitchen stool on her head. She needed the stool to stand on to see in the window. She has always been our most resourceful child. If the maternity ward had been on the second floor, she would have called a fire truck.

Also on my wall is the inevitable picture of a first haircut. Our son is getting it, at age two. In the barber's big mirror is a reflection of the proud father beaming like the All-American idiot waiting for Norman Rockwell to paint his portrait. Twenty years later, I treasure this photograph because, from the looks of him today, it's the only haircut the kid ever had.

Now I'm looking at a photo taken of the three kids when they were ages one, five and nine. I'm embarrassed to remember that this is the picture I put in the local newspaper, along with some mushy words, as a Christmas card to the whole town. I worked for the newspaper and was allowed to brag about my kids in print. My boss preferred boring the readers to paying me enough to buy regular Christmas cards.

Another photo, taken about the same time, shows me lying on a couch in a Detroit motel, with the three kids sitting on top of me. Detroit was only 60 miles from our little hometown, and I often took my family there to expose us all to big-city culture. This photo suggests I was the type of father who enjoyed romping playfully with his children. Actually, my wife sicced the kids on my prone body to prevent me from getting up and leaving her to take care of them while I went to a dirty movie.

According to the pictures on my walls, my kids spent most of their formative years marching in a parade. One daughter played the clarinet, the other daughter twirled a baton, and the son made stupid faces. In our town, each June on the last day of school, all the kids were required to march down the main street by class, kindergarten through 12th grade, while their parents stood on the curb and made Kodak stockholders wealthy.

I was never a good photographer, and I remember one parade my aim was bad and I got a Polaroid picture of a stranger playing drum, instead of our daughter playing clarinet. By the time my wife spotted the error, our daughter was out of sight. My wife said I'd have to run three blocks to get a picture of our own kid. I said I'd rather adopt the drummer.

According to news stories, Henry Ford got $18.3 million for his pictures. I probably couldn't get that much for mine. If I could, I probably wouldn't sell. Which only proves what you already knew—the right kind of kids can make saps out of their parents.

There. That should be profound enough.

Independence fees double for attorney, planner

By Marilyn Trumper

Moves to check growth and control planning in Independence Township have been costly.

The township attorney's fee for the 1979-80 fiscal year more than doubled with a figure of $42,966 compared to the previous year's figure of $20,986.

The fee doubling trend continued with the township planner's fee jumping to $16,138 compared to 1979's $8,194 figure.

"It's because of Pine Knob," said Whitey Tower, township supervisor. "We have to have the attorney review everything and his work load has increased."

"The Pine Knob Hotel referendum, plat reviews, millage election, two gravel pits and the lawsuit all cost money. The attorney is paid for everything over and above his retainer fee, and the planner's hours have also been increased," he said.

The auditor's report, prepared by Doeren Mayher & Co., Troy, on the township's general fund revealed the 1980-81 fiscal year began with a surplus of $303,564, a fund balance left over from previous years.

In 1979-80, the report shows the township spent $50,253 less than the budgeted $1,111,800.

For several departments a comparison between 1979 budget figures and 1980 budget figures show a sharp difference.

A 1.31 mill tax was not levied in 1980, cutting the current tax figure to $530 compared to 1979's figure of $201,528.

The amount of revenue entering the township through federal grants trailed in 1980, dropping to $152,960 from the previous year's figure of $300,870, following the loss of the CETA program which paid salaries of persons hired who had been previously unemployed.

The amount of state shared revenue entering the township increased in 1980 by $96,194, but is expected to drop sharply during the present fiscal year.

"As of August we know we've already lost $33,000 in state shared revenue. We're projecting a yearly loss of approximately $72,000 to $80,000," Tower said.

Revenue in the building department dropped by $19,201 and is expected to drop even farther this year because of construction slow-downs.

"Budget-wise we hope to see a turn around the first period of 1981," Tower said. "Even though the department has increased permit fees there are not as many petitioners. Fewer people are building."

The township's recreation department nearly doubled revenue in 1980 through fee increases with a figure of $22,687 compared to the previous year's tally of $11,386.

Expenditures in the township board's budget increased in 1980 because the township hired two additional trustees to sit on the board.

"Their salaries created the major differences for the comparisons in budgets," Tower said.

Salaries to pay newly hired employees to replace lost CETA employees created the bulk of salary expenditures in the building and cemetery departments as well, he said.

Copies of the audit report are available for public review at the Independence Township Library or at the Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

PK's Himalayan rides on—legally

The first ride of the proposed 'Wonderful World of Pine Knob' is now operating legally, following last week's submittal of complete revised final site plans by co-owner of Pine Knob Investments, Joseph Locricchio.

Locricchio has handed in all the information required by the township's planning commission, said Timothy Palulian, head of the township's building and planning department. "The ride still has to be inspected and issued an electrical permit by the township, but other than that it's all finished," Palulian said.

The township has been encouraging Locricchio to submit the plans for almost two months, finally resorting to issuing tickets for each day the ride was in operation in violation of ordinances.

The Himalayn will operate for the remainder of the Knob's music season, and then be disassembled for the winter, according to Palulian.

Lightning bolt blasts bark off tree

The Scott family had settled in for the evening, dinner preparations were underway and a boy from the neighborhood was calling his parents to see if he could spend the night. Then the lightning struck. "We had closed all the windows and were looking out," said Carol Scott. "Right then I saw it hit the tree. Sparks went flying out and the bark took off flying everywhere."

Bits of the tree were later found 40 to 50 feet away and one piece hit the cover of their pontoon boat with such force it tore a hole through it, said Roger Scott.

"That's the first time we've ever had lightning strike that close," he said. "That's close enough."

The Scotts live on Myers Road in Independence Township. The cottonwood tree sits on the bank of Lake Oakland behind their home and their business. Scott's Lock and Key Shop on Sashabaw Road.

The boy who was making the telephone call also felt the effects of the lightning—sparks flew through the line and he ended up with a blister on his cheek, the Scotts said.

But the old cottonwood tree, that the Scotts figure must be well over 100 years old, bore the biggest scars.

Bark was stripped off a large area that was white just after it was hit, but the next day it had turned red—it was "bleeding."

When the bolt hit, the noise was so intense that people came running from all over the neighborhood to find out what happened, they said, and the next day someone who lives five miles away said he heard the blast, as well.

"It's the loudest sound I've ever heard," said Carol.

"It was like a sonic boom," Road in the Thendara Park subdivision, the storm did little damage across the township, he said. "Usually when we have a severe electrical storm, we have several locations where either lightning strikes or trees are down," he said. "That storm just kind of hit certain spots and several miles away off Eston it was over."

The incident, which occurred Aug. 5, was isolated, according to Fire Chief Frank Ronk.

Aside from roads washing out

Roger and Carol Scott survey the damage to the cottonwood tree that was struck by lightning last week near their home on Lake Oakland.

Football season draws near

'Wolves' coaching staff sports new faces

By Al Zawacky

You don't have to check a calendar to know that football season is approaching.

Just look at the expression on Walt Wyniemko's face nowadays. The smile and gleam in his eyes are a dead giveaway. "It's great — I'm excited and we're all looking forward to the season," says Wyniemko, who is starting his second year as head varsity football coach at Clarkston High School.

Bubbling with optimism and anticipation, many aspiring CHS gridders began working out on the field four weeks ago on their own initiative.

It wasn't until July 28 that supervised workouts began, under the direction of Wyniemko, his varsity assistants, junior varsity and freshman coaches.

Among those assistants are many familiar names back from last season — but a few new faces as well.

Gone are varsity assistants D. J. Campe and Darrell Marsh, due to personal and business conflicts; Dave Smith, another varsity assistant in '79, will assist Clarkston Junior High Head Coach John Craven this fall.

Replacing Marsh and Campe will be newcomers George Porritt and Dave Martin. Wyniemko's third assistant will be Kurt Richardson, the lone holdover from last season.

Gordie Richardson and John Getzan will be back at the JV helm, and the tandem of Chris Krueger and Jim Smith will remain the same at Sashabaw Junior High.

"I don't think our coaching staff has really changed that much," Wyniemko says. "We have some new faces, but we've been meeting once a week since June, and have gotten to know each other well."

"Everyone has his responsibilities. I feel we have a very knowledgeable staff."

Porritt is a CHS alumnus and former quarterback at Hillsdale College. Martin held an assistant's job at Oxford High School prior to making the move to Clarkston.

Wyniemko has divided the coaching duties this way: Richardson will handle the offensive receivers and will also be defensive coordinator; Porritt will coach the quarterbacks and outside linebackers; Martin has the specialty teams, tight ends and defensive line; and Wyniemko will oversee the inside linebackers and the offensive line.

The CHS head coach is particularly proud of the numbers his program has attracted this summer. Over 90 students have participated in the workouts, and Wyniemko expects to have over 60 players with him at football camp this week.

The Wolves are attending camp in Grand Valley — at an individual cost of about $80 apiece, he notes.

"You hear so much about programs declining in other areas, I think it tells you something about the local community when we can get that kind of participation," Wyniemko says.

It's a positive sign that Wyniemko and company are indeed building a solid program. Perhaps the words on the coaching staff's custom-printed T-shirts say it best: "Football...is a way of life (in)...Clarkston."

VARSITY SCHEDULE: Here are the Wolves' nine opponents this season. Home games are in caps.

Sept. 5, 7:30 p.m. vs. SWARTZ CREEK; Sept. 12 at Mt. Clemens Clintondale; Sept. 19, 7:30 p.m. vs.

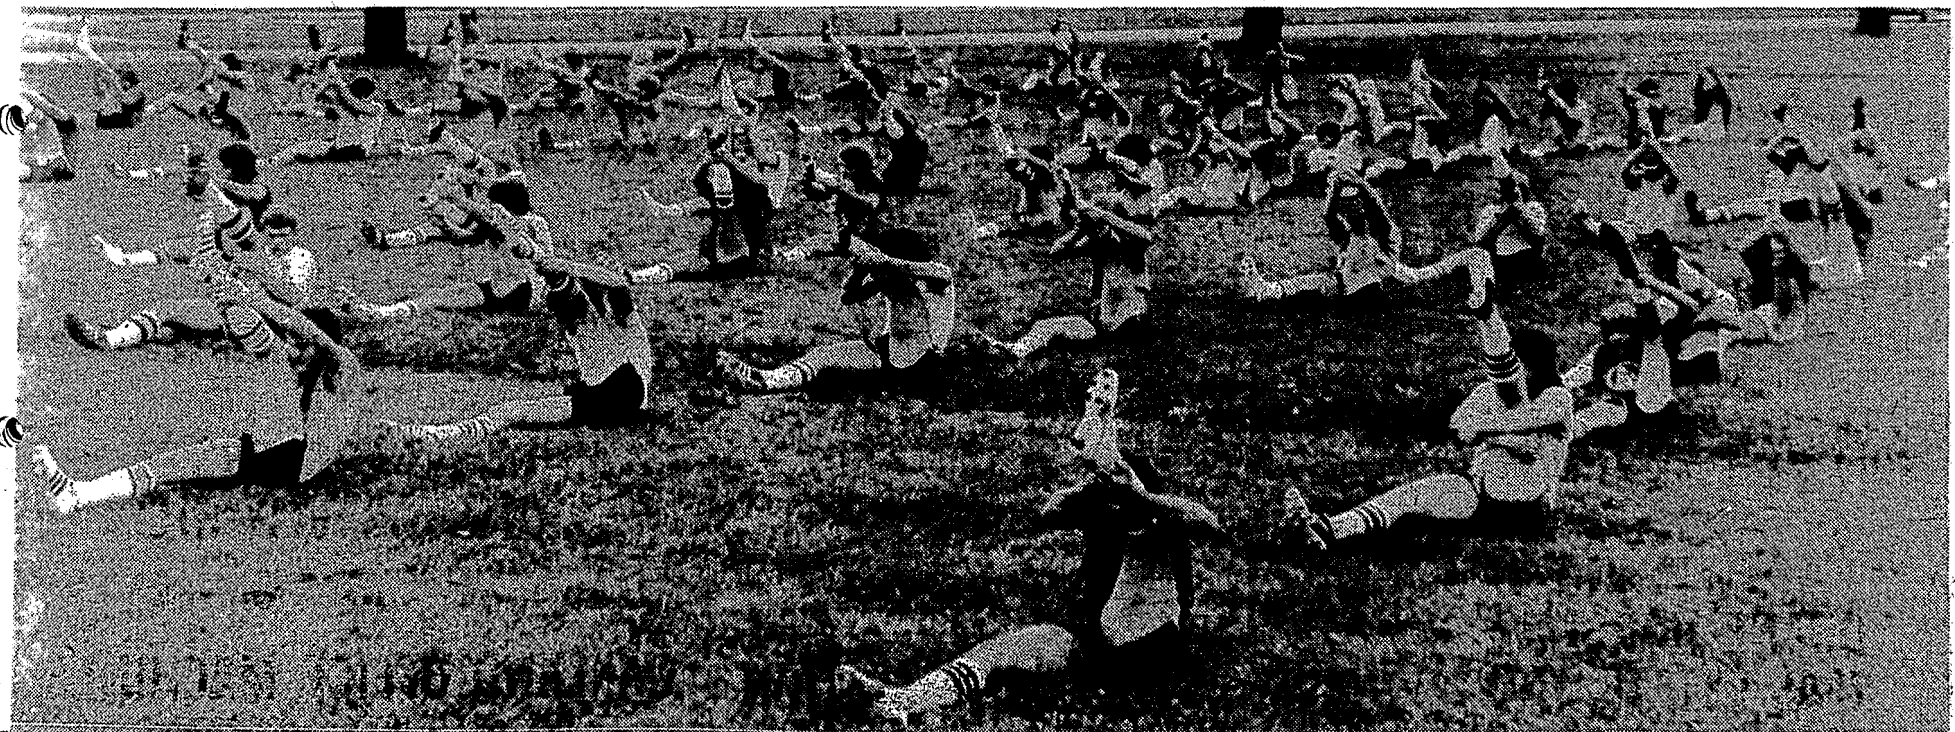

ROCHESTER: Sept. 26 at West Bloomfield; Oct. 3, 7:30 p.m. vs. LAKE ORION (Homecoming); Oct. 10, 7:30 p.m. vs. WATER-FORD KETTERING: Oct. 17 at Milford; Oct. 25 (Saturday), 2 p.m. at Rochester Adams; Oct. 31, 7:30 p.m. vs. BRIGHTON.

Next week: Analyzing the schedule, and a look at the new Greater Oakland Activities League.

Like a finely tuned machine, a landscape full of Clarkston High School football hopefuls perform their exercises in flawless unison. Over 90 youthful gridders have participated in Coach Walt Wyniemko's summer workouts, and about 60 are currently attending football camp.

Ed McInnis' affection for running [he's a member of the CHS cross country and track teams] prompted his organizing a 5,000 and 10,000 meter benefit run for the high school band.

CHS band to get proceeds

Student plans benefit run

By Al Zawacky

Seventeen-year-old Ed McInnis has managed to turn his love for running into a fund-raising event for the Clarkston High School band.

On Sunday, Oct. 12 at 1:15 p.m., a 5,000 and 10,000 meter running race will take off from the Clarkston Mills Mall parking lot on Depot Road, with the proceeds from the race going to the CHS music makers.

Ed, a senior at Clarkston High, is the organizer behind the race, having come up with the idea back in June.

"It was pretty much my own idea," he says. "I have gotten help by talking to people from the parks and recreation department, Runnin' Gear and Coach's Corner — people who are more familiar with setting up a race."

Ed hopes to attract about 200 runners to the event. The entry fee is $2 for the 5,000 meter race and $3 for the 10,000 meter for those who pre-register, and $2.50 and $3.50 respectively for registration the day of the race.

Persons interested in participating in the race can pick up applications at the Independence Township Parks and Recreation office in the township hall; Coach's Corner sporting goods store on Main Street in downtown Clarkston; or at Runnin' Gear, 5570 Dixie Highway, Waterford.

"Even if we raise just $100, it's still money the band can use," he says. "The band depends a lot on outside funds — the Clarkston Band Boosters raise a tremendous amount of money."

Ed's interest in the band and running are reflected in his school activities. He's a member of the cross country team, the track and field squad and plays the trombone in the band.

"It's hard to describe why I like running," he says. "I just like the feeling you get when a whole bunch of people are lined up ready to run a race."

Ed doesn't plan on participating in what he has officially dubbed "The Clarkston Band Benefit Race," but will limit himself to the organizing and planning.

Ribbons will be presented to the first three finishers in each age group, and prizes will also be awarded, he says.

And besides achieving the satisfaction of helping the band, Ed also hopes to earn his scouting Eagle Badge for his work on the project.

"I've been in scouting since I was about 11," he says.

If you attended college at Michigan State or consider yourself a Spartan fan, please, read no farther. I've got all the sworn enemies I need.

Anyway, while taking my daily sojourn northbound on I-75 the other day, I passed four cars plastered with green and white bumper stickers and three cars promoting the maize and blue of Michigan. There was a starkly different nature between the two camps.

Michigan people seem to extoll the virtues of their school. "U-M is No. 1" and "Go Blue" are the standards. Occasionally, they ride Ohio State a bit, but that's acceptable seeing as how Buckeyes are indigenous to that tacky collection of amusement parks and toll booths they call

"Ohio."

In contrast, State fans seldom have anything good to say about MSU — only a lot of rotten things to say about Michigan.

Every now and then you'll see a "State is Great" sticker, but it's almost always joined by another bumper proclamation like:

"They call it maize — we call it corn."

Or, "I brake for animals — except for Wolverines."

"Michigan State is the university of Michigan."

So for that day, anyway, award MSU an undisputed 4-0 shutout win over Michigan in the cheap shot competition.

Even as a non-U of M graduate, I think I can detect a bit of an inferiority complex among MSU athletic fans. Why else all this childish sniping at a sister school?

If they're going to run over mascots, they should stick to outstate Badgers and Wildcats, not Wolverines.

Of course, the most effective weapon in the State arsenal I ever saw was a bumper sticker that said "Hail to the who? MSU 24, U-M 15."

That's effective, because it leaves the Wolverine fan without any possible response. Ordinary car bumpers aren't big enough to hold all the scores of the recent Michigan football victories in 1970, 1971, 1972, 1973, 1974, 1975, 1976, 1977, 1979...

I guess when you win one game in the last 10 years, that victory has got to be enshrined in some special way — like on a bumper sticker.

There's music in the air . . . at times

By Marilyn Trumper

The constant drone of music floating up and over the hills of Pine Knob's Music Theatre has been a complaint of neighboring residents for years.

Every so many nights, there is a different band at the Knob, always there is a different audience and there is always a different atmospheric condition to contend with.

Those are the factors George White, director of community relations for Pine Knob's theater uses to explain why noise is heard in one area on a particular night, and not heard in that same area the following night, when the same band is playing to a sell-out crowd.

When the J. Geils Band played Pine Knob's theater on July 21, the harmonics of Mr. Magic could be heard in the parking lot of the Maranatha Baptist Church on Flemings Lake Road.

However, the music was barely audible when White took a decibel reading on the corner of Pine Knob and Clarkston-Orion roads, and did not register on the decibel meter when a reading was taken at the end of Stowe Trail.

"I can't figure it out," White said. "The best explanation is that atmospheric conditions change and affect the way sound travels."

"On the corner of Pine Knob and Clarkston-Orion roads I'm closest to the property as in any other area. It's fairly elevated there and the middle lawn speaker faces this way. There's nothing to obstruct the sound and yet my reading is 48 decibels and over at the church it varied between 50 and 54 with one peak of 58 decibels," he said.

The township's zoning ordinance regulating sound says that 55 decibels is the maximum limit allowed, and that noise level readings must be taken on the closest adjoining residentially zoned property.

Residents have used the decibel argument to gain leverage in an effort to fight the noise, but according to White, a decibel reading is not accurate, and it registers higher than what the actual noise level is.

"Any outside sounds are picked up on the meter," White said, "and affect the reading. Airplanes passing overhead, birds, slamming doors and when a car passes by it buries the needle."

"I have to wait for the precise moment that I hear only the band, or just the crowd or a combination of the two, and that's hard to do," he said.

In the pavillion of the theater, the audience is subjected to decibels as high as 103 from the amplifiers, and when cheering and applauding on their own, reach decibel readings of 106.

The management spent in excess of $200,000 on an instrument which automatically cuts off the sound coming through the amplifiers if the sound exceeds 98 decibels, White said.

"We're still working on keeping the noise level down and we've been doing much better. We have the hot-line phone number residents can call if they experience too much noise."

"The phone rings in my home and at the trailer on Pine Knob property, if I'm not in either place I get the message and check out any complaints," he said. "And I do have them turn down the sound at the theater."

Dick Schmaltz lives on Stowe Trail, and admits that sometimes the sound coming from the Knob is too much.

"I've complained a couple of times this summer, but usually because the concerts ran into 11 p.m.," he said. "The real aggravation is the traffic and the patrons that hang out until 1:30 p.m. if it's a late concert."

"Now I will say that Pine Knob is getting better. We have the rangers who keep people out of our subdivision and they're doing as good a job as they can, and Pine Knob is doing a lot better job than in the past."

Schmaltz was not home the night of the J. Geils July 21 concert, but he said his wife was, and she did not hear anything from the Knob, as far as loud music.

"I guess that if they keep this up, in a couple of more years, it ought to be 'almost' pretty good," Schmaltz said.

Outside the Maranatha Baptist Church on Flemings Lake Road, George White, director of community relations for Pine Knob's Music Theatre, patiently waits for that split second to take a decibel reading.

CHS athletic track faces revamping

By Al Zawacky

Clarkston High School's weather-beaten and crumbling athletic track will be getting a facelift shortly.

The Clarkston Board of Education, at its regular meeting Monday night, unanimously approved spending $10,348 to repair the track before school starts.

"Our track was built in 1964 and is used by three schools," said Conrad Bruce, administrative assistant of personnel services. "In that time we haven't done anything except paint lines on the track."

"Currently, the track has holes, cracks—the main running lanes, which are the first three lanes—are especially bad. It's not safe anymore."

The R.J. Thomas Company has a good reputation with previous tracks and submitted a reasonable bid, said Bruce, recommending that the Thomas Company be contracted to do the work.

A lower bid had been submitted by another firm but an investigation of some of the firm's past jobs revealed some workmanship problems, he added.

"One job they did, the school had to call them back three different times," said Bruce.

The board approved Bruce's recommendation unanimously.

"The company said the work has got to be done in warm weather, so they'll have to begin immediately and complete the work before school starts," said Bruce.

"Our tennis courts (adjacent to the CHS parking lot) are in the same condition as the track," Bruce added.

"Fortunately, through an agreement with the parks and recreation department, we've been able to use Clintonwood Park for our tennis meets."

"Sometime in the near future, we're going to have to have the high school tennis courts repaired."

Clarkston schools to trim bus stops

By Al Zawacky

Clarkston school bus riders may find themselves facing a little longer walk to and from their bus stops this fall.

In an attempt to cut down on fuel consumption, each bus route will be audited for unnecessary stops during the first month of school, said William Dennis, Clarkston Community Schools' administrative assistant for auxiliary services.

Stops determined to be too close together and wasting fuel will be eliminated, he said.

"The thing I would like to stress is that we've operated the (bus) routes for the greatest possible convenience and safety of the students," Dennis said.

"We're not going to sacrifice anything with regards to safety, but where safety is not an issue we've reached a point where we may have to give up a little convenience."

The economy measures would also include reducing idling and warm-up time, resulting in a potential savings of between 5,000 and 10,000 gallons of gasoline over the course of the school year, according to Dennis.

"Those figures are what I'm shooting for," he said. "With the cooperation of the parents, students and drivers, I think we can realize that kind of savings."

School bus drivers will be instructed to run their routes as usual when classes begin late this month, said Dennis. Stops will then be eliminated as determined by Dennis and Transportation Supervisor Gary Bliss during the opening weeks of school.

"There haven't been any changes or eliminations made

Township repairs residents' roads

Wed., Aug. 13, 1980 19

Independence Township's government has come to the rescue of residents living on Tiohero Road in the northeast section of the township.

When heavy weekend rains washed out a section of the private road over two weeks ago, leaving four foot deep holes and exposed power lines, homeowners were in a frenzy.

Because the road is private, homeowners were forced to pay costs to repair the road, and the homeowner's association did not have adequate funds to cover the repair costs.

For two days last week, township employees worked to cover the exposed power lines and fill in the caverns with a clay and gravel mixture, said George Anderson, head of the township's Department of Public Works.

"Saturday we finished the job," he said. "Our employees did the work and we hired Lee Beardslee Excavating to carry the loads."

Whitey Tower, township supervisor, saw the road problem as an emergency situation and had the township take care of the problem, Anderson said.

Dealership gets new owner

Haupt Pontiac is Haupt Pontiac no longer.

Ownership of the Pontiac car dealership on 7151 M-15, Independence Township, officially changed hands Aug. 4 when Randy Hosler purchased the business from previous owners Don Short and D. I. Tettengil.

Hosler and his wife Connie are now sole owners of the dealership, which has been renamed "Randy Hosler Pontiac."

Customers doing business at Hosler Pontiac might not notice too many changes, Hosler said. "We really haven't made many personnel changes," he says. "We haven't changed anyone in the body shop, although we do have a new sales manager."

That new sales manager is Hosler's father Duane.

A resident of Independence Township for two years, Hosler is a seven-year veteran of the car leasing and selling business. He previously worked at dealerships in Flint, Bay City and Pontiac before purchasing his present business.

His wife of four years is the daughter of former business partner Al Bauer, with whom he was a part-owner of Al Bauer Oldsmobile in Pontiac.

Clarkston Youth Assistance salutes:

SCAMP volunteers who spent summer weeks helping others

Fifteen young people spent five weeks this summer helping others by working as volunteer aides for SCAMP.

Although not paid for their work, they were hard workers and enthusiastic, says Pat Loveless, assistant director of the camp.

"They really are a lot of the verve and vitality of the whole program," she says.

The junior high school students usually worked with three other staff members—a special education teacher, an adult aide and a high school paid worker.

The youths helped with the planning and their ideas were a part of what the camp is all about, she said.

"They're often extra hands for tasks that need manpower," she added. "They're great!"

SCAMP, a summer day camp program for over 1,000 young people from northern Oakland County, ended July 30. It served young people between the ages of 3 and 26 who may have special needs or who may be handicapped.

Clarkston Youth Assistance is a local organization that seeks out and recognizes positive accomplishments and work done by area young people.

Banks family embraces lake living

Country Living

by Marilyn Trumper

One-year-old Kelly daily steals the hearts of her two big brothers Wendell and Scott. Bewitched by her blonde hair and sparkling smile, both guys can't help but cater to their baby sister's every whim.

Personality is an integral part of the Banks family.

It's in every member of the household, it's in their A-frame house and even the dog Boo is an independent soul.

Wendell and Sally's Swiss chalet type home sits on the shore of Lake Oakland in Independence Township, complete with flowers painted on shutters and the traditional jig-saw designed fence.

The Banks moved into the home about three years ago, says Wendell, 36, and it's been work ever since.

"We bought the home from a pastor," he says. "It wasn't finished and we've been working on its completion and now it's about three-quarters of the way finished.

"I work on it weekends and nights and the whole family works too. The two boys just finished tilling the lawn," he says, pointing to the long, deep backyard.

Sliding glass doors from the living room open onto a patio porch overseeing the lake. Picnic table and chairs, a swinging bench and small inflatable pool reveal the patio is a favorite family collecting place.

The pool is for the family's youngest member, one-year-old Kelly.

"When we lived in Waterford," Sally, 35, says, "the kids had a pool, but now they use the lake. They're all good swimmers, and were on a team at the Pontiac Swim Club."

On this night, the family's pet dog Boo is taking advantage of some good fishing and good company.

"He's out fishing with grandpa," Scott, 14, says without surprise. "I tried to get him to come home and he wouldn't get out of the boat."

The family laughs and Wendell, 16, the Bank's oldest child recreates a scene from the past.

"We have a pontoon boat and Boo likes to go for rides. When we're out on the boat and dock it, everybody walks into the house and Boo waits until the last man is off the boat hoping he'll find some takers for one more ride," he laughs.

"That's not all," Sally says.

"We take turns pulling each other on the Zip-Sled and Boo waits for his turn too. He likes it.

"We call him Boo because when we brought him home Wendell took one look at him and said, 'Boo-hoo,' because he didn't want a dog," she laughs. "The name stuck."

Lake Oakland provides more recreational diversions than a pool and is used much of the time by all of the family.

"We have a sail boat, a Scorpion, and it seats two people," says 16-year-old Wendell. "We don't use it too much anymore though unless it's really windy, that's when it's exciting and it's not fun unless the boat's moving really fast."

"I'd love to learn to wind-surf," Scott says wistfully. "But you're talking big bucks because those things cost a lot of money. But, it would be great."

Running across the patio from brother to brother, offering tasts of well-chewed cookie, is Kelly. She knows where immediate attention can be found, Sally says.

"They both play with her a lot, she adores her brothers," Sally says. "Jeanna-Maria grew up with them both and always played with them, but Kelly came along later, and well..."

Sally leaves the sentence unfinished, unable to explain the novelty of the blond-haired-blue-eyed imp with the bewitching smile.

Jeanna-Maria, 12, enjoys the lake as well as the rest, but clarifies that her mom accompanies her on the boat.

For the past eight years Jeanna-Marie has taken Scottish Highland dance lessons.

"I like it, and the longer I work at it the more I learn," she says. "I learn more and more steps, blends of other steps. But it's very military and creative.

"And you learn a lot about history too," she says. "Long ago the Scottish military men performed a sword dance before they went into battle. When they jumped over the swords, if they touched them, it was bad luck and they were supposed to die."

Tradition and history is important to the Banks family.

Sally is program coordinator for Clarkston school's Indian education program, and teaches people about their Indian heritage.

Recently, Sally and 26 people hiked the Buckeye Trail in Hocking, Ohio for 10 days to learn about their Indian heritage and culture, camping under the stars and living off their backpacks.

Through the program, the Banks' children learned their personal Indian history and culture, and all three of the oldest kids nod, agreeing with their mom.

"In the winter we put on a Snow Snake tournament," Sally says. "It's a traditional Iroquois game where contestants throw a javelin for distance down any icy patch. There's lead in the nose of the javelin so it gains momentum as it goes."

The brothers enjoy neighborhood baseball in the summer, and during the school year Scott runs track at Sashabaw Junior High. Last year he was voted most valuable runner, his father boasts.

This fall Clarkston Senior High School will be Scott's new stomping grounds, and he said he's looking forward to it but doesn't think he'll try out for track.

"I need to take a break for a while," he says.

Wendell says that when he's not working at the Chrysler Defense Center as a dewaterian, or working on the house, he likes to play a little golf, and especially softball.

"I've played in rec leagues for 18 years," he says. Boasting a golf average of 40.5, he continues, "but I don't play golf all that much anymore. I just don't have the time."

The sun sets on the waters of Lake Oakland, ready for the Banks family to tackle it the next day with another round of recreation, be it boating, fishing or just swimming.

Free advice offered for cutting fuel costs

Utility costs are rising just like the Doobie Brothers' song, "Minute by Minute".

For a way to cut those costs, utilize natural energy and receive money back from the government at the same time, the Michigan Department of Commerce comes to the rescue.

The department's Energy Administration is offering free information on how to finance solar energy installation in your home, and it's all in a publication entitled Sun Dollars.

Sun Dollars lists government related sources for loans, grants and state and federal tax credits.

For the tinkerer the United States Department of Commerce is offering special assistance.

Inventors working on energy-saving devices can receive financial and administrative support from Uncle Sam in testing their device, negotiating a contract and in other areas.

For the homeowner thinking of installing an energy-saving device added incentives include home improvement grants or loans, tax exemptions, improvement loan guarantees for veterans and loans available for new mortgages.

There is even a plan for consumer cooperatives interested in supplying manufacturing or installing solar energy equipment.

The combined total of present Michigan and U.S. tax credits could reimburse a homeowner up to 65 percent of the cost of residential solar system, said Peter S. Walters, energy administration director.

In Michigan, over 400 residents who installed solar, wind or hydro power systems in 1979 qualified for such tax credits, he said.

Interested persons can receive a copy of the Sun Dollar by writing the Michigan Department of Commerce/Energy Administration, P.O. Box 30228, Lansing or by telephoning the state's toll-free Energy Hotline at 1-800-292-4704.

New business helps land contract sellers, buyers

In the midst of a depressed housing and real estate market, Mark Cleary's newly opened real estate investment company is booming.

Opening last week at 59 S. Main, Clarkston, Cleary's business is affiliated with the Detroit-based United States Mutual Real Estate Investment Trust, which he says is recognized as the nation's only realty trust that invests primarily in land contracts.

"We offer an alternative to conventional mortgage financing," Cleary says. "Many people don't want to sell on a land contract, because they can't get their cash immediately."

The advantages of selling on a land contract are numerous for both the seller and the buyer, he says. By financing the buyer himself, the seller can expect to sell his home faster at an amount closer to his asking price.

The buyer, meanwhile, benefits by a lower interest rate that can save him thousands of dollars over the course of the duration of the loan, Cleary says.

"We have the resources to enable someone to sell their home on a land contract and get their cash the same day," he says.

"In addition, we can purchase existing land contracts from sellers who want to receive their equity before the contract's full term."

In just his first four days of business, Cleary says he's received over 60 bids.

"It's so difficult to get a mortgage nowadays, that people are taking a long look at the alternatives," he says. "The American dream is to own a home, and we're providing the easiest way to do it."

Cleary and his wife Denise currently make their home in Troy, but they are contemplating a future move to the Clarkston area.

Doing business

"If things go well, we'll probably move out here within a year. We really love this town," Cleary says.

His office on Main Street will service people in northern Oakland County as well as Lapeer and Genesee counties.

"Out of that whole area, we didn't exactly pick a major metropolis (for the office location)," he jokes. "I guess that tells you how we feel about Clarkston."

Cleary's office phone number is 625-8381.

Mark Cleary's recently opened business on Clarkston's Main Street provides a viable alternative to conventional bank mortgages, he says.

Business brief

Linda Powell recently attended the 27th annual session of Credit Union National Association Inc. School in Madison, Wisc.

The two-week session was part of a three-year summer program designed to increase the students' knowledge of credit union operations.

The school serves more than 22,000 credit unions across the United States, Canada and Panama.

Powell, who lives on Maple Drive in Independence Township, is office manager of the Pontiac Telephone Employees Credit Union, Pontiac.

Coping with kids

by Jim & Ellen Windell

When are children ready for school?

"Terry is only four, but he already knows his numbers and the alphabet. Shouldn't he start school in September?"

"Rachel seems so small and immature. She is already past five, yet I'm not sure she should be in school yet."

These comments often come from parents who notice characteristics of their children and wonder what is best about starting school. Often they do not know who to talk to or what to think.

Most parents are anxious that children begin school and do well. But, they would rather hold a child back if starting too early would be detrimental for his or her future development.

There are certain specific factors parents should take into consideration when attempting to make some determination about their child's readiness for school.

Compared to other children his age, does he seem immature?

Children who are immature often do less well in school. It is sometimes the case that the immaturity is a sign of a neurologically based learning problem.

Is the child overly active and does she have trouble concentrating?

Such factors often are, like general immaturity, associated with learning disabilities and need help, not just a postponement of the beginning of the educational experience.

What about his speech?

Immaturity in speech and language ability, not just difficulty pronouncing some words (which is normal), may be an indication of other learning problems in the future. Sometimes, it is best to start with a speech and language evaluation before making a final determination of school placement.

Other things to take into account before a child starts school may include the following: Is he a boy? Boys are more likely to have learning problems in the early years.

What about her physical size? Does he look forward eagerly to beginning school? Was she born prematurely? (Many premature babies have not caught up by the early school years.)

How much mental and intellectual stimulation has the child had? Has he had a pre-school or nursery school experience? Did the teachers in nursery school think she was ready for regular school?

If there are good reasons for a child not starting school, then the youngster needs a careful evaluation. A year home from school, in and of itself, is not the solution.

Orientation slated for CJS, SJH

It's time for the Rotary Club's annual Labor Day Parade and this year's theme is comic book and funny paper characters.

On Sept. 1 anyone and everyone who wants to march in the parade is asked to appear at Clarkston Junior High School on Waldon Road at 8:30 a.m.

A panel of judges is going to look at all the floats and entries and present winners with awards. There's a category for the President's float, which will lead the entire parade, says parade chairman Tom Murphy.

For those entries coming closest to the parade's theme there are prizes in two categories, said he.

At 10 a.m. the parade is scheduled to travel down Church Street, to Main, north on Main Street to Miller road and disperse there, he said.

This year's parade Grand Marshal is Dr. James O'Neill.

The Rotary Club encourages anyone and everyone to participate in this year's parade.

Growing things

by Lyle Abel

Keeping sweet corn fresh, pest free

When is fresh sweet corn really sweet?

The gardner who can harvest the corn and serve it within minutes of the time the ear left its stalk is the one who best knows the answer to that question.

Sweet corn, more than any other garden vegetable, loses its fresh, sweet flavor very rapidly once it is picked.

If you can cook it within a half hour of the time it is picked you can enjoy a real tasty delicacy that makes all the work of growing the crop very worthwhile.

Commercial sweet corn growers who market a quality product overcome this loss of flavor by cooling the corn ears very rapidly.

Their harvest begins in the cool, early dawn.

The ears go directly from the stalks into ice water; to the packing shed, is bagged, iced and delivered to produce dealers where it is kept in coolers until placed out for retail sale.

It is the sugar in the corn that gives the flavor. Unless kept very cool, the sugar becomes starch and tastes like starch!

This change from sugar to starch is at least four times as rapid at a temperature of 55 degrees than at 32 degrees.

If you care to see how sweet corn is handled, ask for a tour of their facilities at our local Ritter's market. You will find it interesting.

Karl Bailey, once horticultural agent for this area and now living on Adams Road, at one time had a very interesting system of merchandising his crop of sweet corn.

Sales were made only in the late afternoon as people were returning home for their evening meal. The corn was picked from the field and stacked on a flat bed trailer where buyers could choose the ears they wanted.

So successful was this arrangement that lines of buyers wanting fresh corn for supper caused a traffic problem. Once one has eaten really fresh corn it calls for more.

While corn is one of the easier of our vegetable crops to grow, it does take up a lot of the garden space and there are problems—birds, raccoons, borers, ear worms—all want to be in on the harvest!

The worms found in the ears of corn are of two kinds—corn borers and corn ear worms. The borer over-winters in the stalks left from the past season's drop. It will feed on the kernels of the corn and will tunnel into the ear and into the stalk also.

Corn ear worms have a more interesting life cycle. It is a migrant worker. Starting in the south with Mexico then Texas it follows the developing crop northward.

The earworms feed only at the tip of the ears where it has hatched from eggs laid by a moth on the silk of the ear.

These moths are attracted by lighted traps that are set to detect their arrival. Commercial growers are warned and a spray of insecticides can be applied to control them.

Home gardeners too can get good control by using a mild insecticide, Sevin, as a dust or spray applied to the silks as they emerge from the husks.

If you are an organic gardner who shuns all insecticides try using mineral oil in an oil can apply it to the ear's tip—inefficient but effective.

Control from bird damage is more difficult. For a small planting, one can cover the ears, once the kernels start to develop, with paper sacks or cones made of newspapers.

Raccoons? Perhaps catch them in a live trap move them somewhere else. Repellants are only occasionally helpful.

Edgar Guest Jr., one-time local radio personality, once stated: "To get the true flavor of sweet corn you first get the kettle and plunge the corn into the of water boiling before you pick boiling water." the corn. Then pick the corn and Enjoy your sweet corn; eat it run—don't talk—to the kitchen fresh.

Kids on parade

"Instead of fighting or arguing for the past few days, they've all been playing together," says Elaine Buynak, a neighbor on Nadette Drive after watching the neighborhood kids' parade last week. The youngsters got together, planned the parade, dressed up in fine style and even included a "wedding" of two little ones, a talent show and a parade just for decorated bikes in the afternoon's events. After opening "the best" wedding gift, little Celeste Postal [front at left] grins for the camera. The other children are, from left, Laurie Postal [who holds up the big buck], Marc Swartout, Kristi Swartout, Brian Bovey and Aaron Keech.

Despite a groom who turns away and a bride who looks a little concerned, Derek Hill plays the role of a preacher with enthusiasm.

As the parade begins, the baton twirlers lead the way. Out front are Laurie Postal [left] and Michele Keech with Lisa Blimka not far behind with her baton ready to twirl as well.
