Clarkston kids face changes

By Kathy Greenfield

There will be some cuts—about $300,000 worth—in the Clarkston Community School District budget this year.

Faced with less-than-previously-expected income, the district is slated to run one-half-million dollars in the red. Money saved from previous years, or equity, will be used to balance the budget.

It's the first time expenses and revenue haven't equaled each other since the school millage passed in 1977, said Milford Mason, superintendent of schools.

"Starting in late spring, the depressed economy in the state of Michigan started to hit us," he said.

As cuts were made in state revenue, Mason presented estimated budgets to the school board in April, May and June, and each time, the expected income was less.

"So in July, we said, 'Look, it's obvious Michigan simply does not have the revenue it had before,'" Mason said. "I felt it was necessary to set a target for me to work with a deficit budget."

A usual estimate, based on the increased costs of employee salaries and benefits and supplies, is 10 percent more money needed, he said.

"I am estimating right now that we can expect probably not more than 3 percent new revenue from last year," Mason said. "If I had $828,000, I probably could operate with a balanced budget."

The district, that includes six elementary schools, two junior highs and one high school, has set a $13,056,135 budget for 1980-81.

The majority of the reductions to save the necessary $300,000 were made in auxiliary services—ground maintenance, buses and custodial care.

"The theme, in large part, was to have most of the cuts not directly affect the academic program," Mason said.

Some of the larger cuts are:

- Eliminating the reading support position at Clarkston Elementary—the services are to remain available by using four reading specialists in five elementary buildings.

- Delaying the purchase of a new reading series for 5th and 6th graders. "If for some reason, our money situation improves, I would opt to purchase the books," Mason said.

- Curtailling the purchase of teaching supplies in all grades.

- Using no general fund money this year to purchase library books for elementary schools.

- Reducing interscholastic activities in secondary schools by eliminating junior high cross country and 7th and 8th grade basketball.

- Dropping intramural basketball for 7th and 8th graders, flag football for 7th graders and tackle football for 8th graders.

- Reducing textbook purchases for secondary schools by $10,000.

- Making an effort to save gasoline used in buses by cutting down warm-up time and reducing the number of bus stops.

Such tactics should work for at least two years before the extra money runs short.

"We're working our way through this recession, but we're in a controlled situation," Mason said. "When you go into deficit spending, there's a day of reckoning down the line."

"1981-82 will also be a very poor year for school districts," he said. "If the economy picks up in 1981-82, there is a lag time before that improvement is felt by the school district."

"If things haven't changed, our equity will be exhausted," Mason said. "Then we'll be in the same fiscal position we see now with many school districts."

Mandy Peterson's pouting face grows longer and longer as the waiting period for screening progressed, and consolation from her dad Doug doesn't help at all. Mandy is disgusted because she thought this was the first day of kindergarten and not the obviously disappointing screening day. For more photos, see Section 3 of today's Clarkston News.

Police log

Saturday, an outboard motor chained to two trees on the waterfront, off Rockcroft Road, Independence Township, was stolen. Cost to replace the stolen engine is estimated at $300, according to police reports.

A mailbox with an estimated value of $20 was knocked over on Big Lake Road, Independence Township, on Saturday, according to police reports.

Saturday, thieves broke into a car parked in the driveway of a home on Perry Lake Road, Independence Township.

They took an AM-FM cassette stereo, speakers, tweeters, C.B. radio and tapes with an overall estimated value of $871, according to police reports.

Saturday, residents living on Dixie Highway in Springfield Township, discovered their garage had been broken into and two Yamaha dirt bikes valued at $2,000 each had been stolen.

Thieves had pushed aside a Step-Van parked up against the closed garage door, opened the door and taken the bikes, according to police reports.

Sunday, two beer tappers with an estimated value of $400 each were discovered stolen from a field in the rear of the American Legion Post No. 63, 8041 M-15, Independence Township, according to police reports.

Sunday, the cars of five Pine Knob Music Theatre employees were broken into, and some vandalized, while parked in the private employee lot.

Thieves took $20 from a wallet and a tape case with 10 cassettes from one automobile.

The console of another car was damaged, and thieves took one tape and $10 in cash.

Vandals bashed in the hood of a 1980 Pontiac, but cost to repair the damage was not available.

Vandals cut the convertible top of a fourth car, took a pair of prescription glasses valued at $120, a set of car keys, a C.B. microphone, and $4 in change, according to police reports.

Vandals tore off the side mirror of a fifth car, ripped the driver's door off the hinges and took the gasoline cap, according to police reports.

Early Monday morning, deputies from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department caught three men stealing gasoline from a car parked in the lot of Sashabaw Collision, 4712 Sashabaw, Independence Township.

The men, 18, 19 and 20-years-old, were issued citations to appear in court, according to police reports.

The above information was collected from Oakland County Sheriff's Department reports.

Shallow dive injures teen

AN 18-year-old Independence Township man is listed in critical condition today in Pontiac General Hospital's intensive care unit following a swimming accident on Deer Lake.

David Watson of Allen Road, attending a party Saturday night at a friend's cottage, reportedly dove into knee-deep water, injuring his neck and back.

Prior to making the dive, Watson was warned by friends of the water's depth and was told not to make the jump.

"We don't know why he did it," said a close friend of Watson's, Robin Bisha. "We told him not to, but he did it anyway."

"We keep trying to think about what happened and figure it out, but we're not sure if he dove into the water or ran off the dock," she said.

Watson has lost the use of his arms and legs, Bisha said, but those are just the preliminary reports.

"The doctors have to wait until the swelling goes down before they'll know for certain just what the damage is," she said.

"Right now, all we can do is pray for a miracle."

Watson is a 1980 graduate of Clarkston High School.

Flying glass foils robbery

A Waterford man fouled up an attempted break-in in Independence Township on Saturday, and wound up calling the Oakland County Sheriff's Department to bail him out of the mess.

According to police reports, the 25-year-old man wounded himself with an inch-long gash to the hand, after breaking the front window of Burke Walls & All, 7110 Dixie Highway.

The report said the suspect remembers yelling for help and dialing the Sheriff's Department to come to his rescue.

Deputies arrived on the scene while the suspect was explaining his predicament to the police dispatcher over the store's phone.

He was taken to Pontiac General Hospital where he received stitches, the report said.

The suspect's name will be released following his arraignment in 52nd District Court where he faces charges of illegal entry and malicious destruction of property under $100.

Cops nab gun-toting ticket hustler

A Drayton Plains man, arrested on charges of carrying a concealed .22-caliber revolver at Pine Knob's Music Theatre, is free after posting a $1,000 bond. Denny Raymond Salkeld, 21, was arraigned in the 52nd District Court on Friday on charges of carrying a concealed weapon without a permit and altering the gun's identification numbers, according to a court spokesperson.

Police reports said Salkeld approached two plain-clothed Oakland County Sheriff's deputies at a George Benson concert, and offered to sell them tickets for $13, $2 above the listed price.

Identifying themselves as police, the officers searched Salkeld, found $70 in cash, seven rounds of ammunition and the revolver.

A preliminary exam for Salkeld is scheduled for Aug. 29 at 8:45 a.m. at the 52nd District Court on Dixie Highway.

A landscaper's concept for the proposed Clarkston Hillside Garden outlines which trees will be available for planting. Clarkston Village President Fontie ApMadoc anticipates strong participation from village residents in her drive for donations.

Hillside garden to adorn village park

By Marilyn Trumper
Clarkston's Village President Fontie ApMadoc has set out to beautify Depot Road Park.

Through donations, ApMadoc wants to create Clarkston Hillside Gardens. An area approximately 400 feet long adjacent to the Village Hall, which would be filled with lush evergreens and shade and flowering trees, interspersed with flowers and shrubs.

"I've had this in mind for years and years," she said. "It would be like a memorial garden, but not just for those who have died."

"I already have several people who intend to donate money for trees, and dedicate them to their children, grandchildren or whomever," ApMadoc said.

"Not only will the garden be a beautiful addition to the park, but it serves a purpose too."

With the cooperation of Bordine's landscape designer, Robert Clack, a full scale plan has been created with costs to meet anyone's pocket book.

Costs to purchase shade trees to donate to the garden range from $135 to $255, including planter's fees, mulch and proper soil for around the base, Clack said. Costs for flowering trees range in price from $95 to $125.

"We think we've worked it out to where a plaque will be placed at the base of the tree with the donor's name and the name of the person it's being planted for," Clack said. "They will be brass and cemented into the ground so no one can bother them."

The plaques should cost approximately $25, Clack said.

"Those who can't afford to buy a tree are welcome to donate any sum of money, and we'll use that to purchase shrubs and flowers or possibly pay for upkeep," he said. "We also have plans to build a retaining wall out of brick on the north end of the garden."

Plans are underway to begin planting and building the wall as soon as donations start rolling in, Clack said.

All donations will be acknowledged with a receipt from the village for tax deduction purposes, he said.

To donate a tree or money, or for more information, phone Clack at 625-9100.

Due to the Labor Day holiday Monday, there's an early deadline for want ads and news items this week.

Those wishing to place ads should call The Clarkston News office before 4:30 p.m. Friday and all news items should be in by 2 p.m. Friday.

The office, normally open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, will be closed Monday.

Sewer fund assists police budget

Money from the sewer-bond and interest redemption fund is going to pay Independence Township's bill to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department at least until December.

At the Aug. 19 meeting, the Independence Township Board voted unanimously to transfer $20,000 from the sewer fund to the police fund.

"It's strictly a cash-flow problem," said Frederick Ritter, township treasurer. "Our fiscal year runs from April to March and we don't collect taxes until December. That's two-thirds into our fiscal year.

"The sewer fund is currently our only liquid fund," he said.

The $20,000 is to be paid back by the end of this fiscal year, March 31, at 5 1/4 percent interest, he said.

The police fund currently has a "close to zero" balance, Ritter said.

Watershed appointment made

Frederick Ritter, Independence Township's treasurer, has been appointed delegate to the Clinton River Watershed Council.

At the Aug. 19 meeting, the township board unanimously approved Ritter's appointment and the appointment of alternate delegate Lucy Kasl of 8330

Poquosin Trail.

Ritter will attend council meetings and represent the interests of the township as they relate to area rivers, lakes and wetlands.

Republicans elect officers

The Independence Township Republican Club has elected new officers.

The choices were made at the Aug. 21 meeting.

President is Bob Borrer of 4104 Meyers, vice president is James Maddox of 4785 Clintonville, treasurer is Mary Vandermark of 6657 Snowapple, and secretary is Dr. James O'Neill of 7755 N. Holcomb.

Circulation jumps

Summer reading must have become a favored pastime, because Independence Township is full of bookworms.

Over the past year library circulation has increased by 27 percent, according to figures released by Library Director James Hibler.

In June circulation was up 43 percent over last year and July's figures show a 45 percent increase.

Column, letter insulting

To the editor:

As a township voter, I must respond to Kathy Greenfield's column and Jean Saile's letter.

Do the writers think the majority of the voters could be fooled into voting for someone they did not believe in just because they were endorsed by a certain group?

I would wager most of the people in this township do not have any idea who the group was that did the endorsing.

The candidates fought a good campaign and won. I feel it is a direct insult to our good judgment and intelligence to have the only newspaper in town print such allegations and insinuations.

The candidates who were dropped probably thought they could rest on their laurels and not work for the necessary votes. But then, maybe the voters thought there were no laurels.

How many neighborhoods plead for concerned citizens? When we have them, the writers say it is living room decision-making.

It seems to me the more discussing, the more ideas presented and the more people involved, the greater the span of ideas.

What about the articles of a few years ago about voter and citizen apathy?

As far as the "newcomers" to which Mrs. Saile refers, is there supposed to be a time distinction in voter and citizen participation?

Who are the "old line bluebloods" anyway? Newcomers should be encouraged to share in their community and its government.

Each candidate stands on his own qualifications and past record, and that is how I voted.

School starts

by Kathy Greenfield

My husband brought home the four lawn tickets to Bob Seger's concert Monday night and displayed the prize to our two children.

He knew they were eager to attend at least one Pine Knob concert this summer, and what could be more thrilling being there for one of popular Seger's performances?

"I'm not going," said our 13-year-old daughter. "Mom and I were going school shopping and I need a blouse."

Much to her distress, we made other plans for the shopping trip, threw some food together and headed for the Knob. (She did, by the way, enjoy the show.)

These kinds of things seem to hit plans of parents this time of year, because although for kids, school is inevitable as taxes are for parents, its approach often causes unexpected reactions.

Some children, like our daughter, take the organized approach and get ready by planning something immediate—like what to wear.

Others, like our son, toss out comments and questions that are subtle, but let you know that the school year ahead is on their minds.

Our son's back-to-school statement was to ask for a new pair of ski boots.

That took me by surprise, but I found out he wants to join the school ski club. He and a friend had discussed the possibility and he wanted to be ready.

Many youngsters simply bubble over with excitement—just being around them lets you know something's up.

It's a time when many parents ask, "What's bothering John?" or "I can't understand it. Why is Mary acting so silly all of sudden?"

Kids we meet when taking pictures for The Clarkston News seem to carry with them a sense of anticipation—it's the same sort of feeling we discover at Christmastime.

They are all getting ready for the big event—returning to school.

We've zeroed in on some individuals to illustrate the theme of our back-to-school supplement, "Transitions."

We photographed and talked to children beginning kindergarten, junior high school, senior high school and college.

We even found a woman who is returning to school this fall to work on her bachelor's degree.

Clarkston News columnist Jim and Ellen Windell, who are child psychologists, gave us an assist with a discussion on ways parents can help smooth the transitions.

It was interesting and fun to put together the collection of reactions and philosophies about school. We hope you enjoy reading about them in Section 2 of today's News.

Firefighters are truly terrific

To the editor:

I would like to say a few words about the Independence Township Firefighter's Association.

THEY ARE ABSOLUTELY TERRIFIC!

Saturday night there was an accident to which they were called for help.

This in itself is not amazing, but consider these facts:

1. The siren went off before the phone was back in the cradle.

2. We had to meet them to show them where the accident had occurred and they arrived at the meeting place several minutes before we did.

I don't know how much time this encompassed, but I do know that it was faster than I could ever have imagined.

We in Independence Township don't know what a jewel we possess in our fire department. This only becomes apparent when we require their services personally.

I hope and pray that not many people ever have cause to find out about our wonderful firefighters.

But, please, say a prayer for these devoted men and post 625-3311 near your phone in case you should ever require their services like we did Saturday night.

Robin Bisha

P.S. Thank you Bettjean Collins, Larry Dean, Bob Hecker, Robin Cremer, Mrs. McNally and everyone else who was there when they were needed. Please pray for a miracle.

For bringing family eatery to town

Dear Editor:

They say Jacob Petty is a mythical person, so I can't write to him to say, "thank you." That's why I'm writing to you instead.

The mythical Jacob Petty and his fine crew of real waitresses helped six adults and three children (ages one, two and three) celebrate Grandma's birthday in great style Sunday.

Son No. 1, who is a fussy eater, really liked his dinner. (He picked the onions out of the salad.) Daughter-in-law who watches her diet ate only half her fish; she took the other half home in a doggy bag.

The children, whose idea of a perfect meal is a peanut butter and jelly sandwich, seemed quite happy with a children's plate. Grandpa didn't have much to say. He was too busy eating his prime rib and baked potato.

Son No. 2 enjoyed his dinner; but being a frustrated musician, he especially liked the way the waitresses joined the family chorus in singing "Happy Birthday."

Grandma, for her part, was delighted with the whole affair and especially the delicious birthday cake that came at the end.

Thank you, Jacob Petty, for bringing a family restaurant to Clarkston. We have been waiting a long time.

I'm not signing my name to a birthday letter because if I did my friends might start asking how old I am.

Signed, Happy Grandma

Jim's jottings

Half-green thumb

by Jim Sherman

I should pay more attention to "growing things" columns instead of thinking that because I was raised on a farm I know how to sow.

I only think of this at harvest time. In the Fall I realize how dumb I was last Spring.

To begin with, the only things in our garden are what we like to eat most. Radishes with bread and butter are Hazel's favorite food. Naturally, they are planted first.

Sweet corn, tomatoes, zucchini and sweet onions fill the rest of the plot. We used to plant pumpkins, not for the pies, but for another of the holidays for kids.

The jury is still out on the onions, but the corn, tomatoes and zucchini have not been spectacular to say the least.

We planted the entire box of seed for the sweet corn. There are as many stalks as I have fingers. They were knee high by the fourth of August.

They didn't tassel, they quit. The only chance we have of having corn on the cob 10 minutes from the garden is to take a stove and water to a roadside stand.

The tomato plants are just that plants. I've cut off the tops three times, but have had one ripe tomato. I've had a lot of rotted tomatoes.

We have enough zucchini, but not the abundance we anticipated. Again we planted a box of seed, but got five plants. Maybe we're fortunate and don't know it. The plants are humongous. We fear for what we might find under the giant leaves.

The garden didn't start out badly. The radishes were great. Big, solid and sweet.

I attributed that to planting them within reach of the lawn sprinkler, when it was needed early in the year.

I attribute the profusion of tomato and zucchini vines to the same sprinkler, plus what Mother Nature provided in great abundance.

I can't explain the corn.

Unless it's punishment. For sweet corn, put on the table with just the right size kernels is my meal of meals.

When the salt and butter is smeared on my cheek bones and dripping from my chin I'm happy. (At times like this I wish I was a song writer.)

But, for two years in a row my sweet corn crop has failed. Next spring I'm going to find a clean liver to plant it for me.

He launches third party bid for MSU board

A vote for Libertarianism is a vote for less government, says Jim Hurrell

By Al Zawacky

Jim Hurrell chuckles when describing some of the reactions he gets when people find out he's a member of the Libertarian Party.

"They think I'm some kind of communist," he laughs. "I tell them that communism is on the opposite end of the spectrum — that they believe in a state-controlled society, whereas we believe in individual freedom."

Free enterprise, personal liberty and a non-interventionist foreign policy are three pillars of Libertarian philosophy, Hurrell says.

He traces his interest and affiliation with Libertarianism to a book he read by Robert J. Ringer, "Restoring the American Dream," and a brush he had with "big government."

"Ringer's book is really fantastic — it really describes the essence of Libertarianism," Hurrell says.

A veterinarian with an office in Drayton Plains, he recalls an incident in which a fellow vet was audited and forced by the state to pay sales tax and back interest on medicine he was dispensing.

"We're a service profession, and the way the law reads we don't have to charge sales tax on medicine," Hurrell says. "I don't claim to be a legal expert, but I read the law and that intent seems pretty clear to me."

"They treated him (the veterinarian) like a common criminal," he adds, shaking his head. "It really gave me a clear picture of how big and oppressive the government's become."

Hurrell's involvement in Libertarianism combined with the fact that he's a Michigan State University graduate led him to run for a position on the MSU Board of Trustees this year.

"I bleed green and white," he says, expressing his love for his old alma mater.

On the national scene, he rejects the trio of Ronald Reagan, Jimmy Carter and John Anderson, favoring instead the Libertarian candidacy of Ed Clark.

"Reagan has good Libertarian ideas when he talks about getting the government off the people's backs, but he's an interventionist on foreign policy," Hurrell says.

"Carter has allowed the federal budget deficit to continue to grow, and Anderson's idea of putting a 50-cent tax on every gallon of gas is just going to create more government involvement in energy."

"Essentially, Libertarianism is the belief that the individual has the absolute right of freedom, as long as what he's doing isn't fraudulent or harming others," he says. "Thomas Jefferson, George Washington, James Madison, James Monroe — all the founding fathers were Libertarians. That's what they waged a revolution for."

"We believe, as Jefferson did, that it's the government that should be put in chains — not people."

Hurrell also points out that the Libertarian ticket will be on all 50 state ballots this election year — a sign that people are growing tired of the two party system, he says.

"We see ourselves as the third party of the future and the conscience of the two major parties," he says.

"If we have to go out-of-business because the major parties start adopting Libertarian ideas, that's fine. But I don't think that's going to happen, and I don't think that a vote for the Libertarian party is a wasted vote."

"It's a vote for less government."

A glance at the rear bumper of Jim Hurrell's Trans Am will give you a quick knowledge of his political convictions. The founding fathers who authored the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution were America's original Libertarians, he says.

MSU home not a hut

by Jim Fitzgerald

A Michigan State University official recently described the home of the school president as "the front door to the university." When I went to MSU, I didn't enter through the front door. I was slightly poor, and had to live in an overcrowded Quonset hut on the scruffiest edge of campus. I give you this background so you will know where I'm coming from before I get where I'm going.

Where I'm going is toward the conclusion that higher education at most universities doesn't make sense. To give you an example, I cite the current flap at MSU concerning the home of University President M. Cecil Jackett. You've read about it.

A lot of taxpayers are upset because, without being asked how they felt about it, they were forced to pay $85,000 to remodel the president's home. That's pretty rotten, but it doesn't bug me as much as the fact that Mackey is living in the house in the first place.

The two-story brick home belongs to Michigan taxpayers. Mackey lives there for free. He doesn't pay one cent rent. And taxpayers pay him $75,000 a year to be university president. Most people making that much money are able to pay for their own housing.

On the other hand, most MSU students have no income. They depend on handouts from their parents to pay thousands of dollars in tuition fees. These students could really use free housing, but they don't get it. They must pay thousands more for a place to sleep.

So the guy making 75 thousand bucks a year gets a free home, while Joe Slob the student, who makes no bucks a year, must pay rent while also paying to be a student. What kind of sense does that make? Everyone agrees this nation would be better off if it contained more well-educated citizens. A lot of citizens who don't go to college would go if they could sleep free in President Mackey's bed.

Also, $17,500 will soon be spent to remodel the president's private box at the taxpayers' football stadium. MSU Athletic Director William Beardsley explained that a wall must be knocked out of the box, which seats 50 to 75 people, so there will be more "milling around area." It is no fun to watch a football game if you don't have lots of private room in which to mill.

The official explanation, of course, is that the president of a large university needs a large home and a large stadium box in which to entertain his friends and other anointed people who want to visit the campus and extend compassion to a guy who makes only $75,000 a year and can't afford to pay rent or buy a football ticket.

Once my parents visited me at MSU when I was living in that Quonset hut, sleeping on the top of a three-bed bunk. To express my appreciation for them subsidizing my education, I took them to a football game. I stood in line for five hours to buy three seats in the end zone where it was so crowded we had to wait until after the game and most of the people had gone home before we had enough room to mill.

Some state legislators are angry because the $85,000 was spent remodeling Mackey's free home without formal approval of the MSU Board of Trustees. University policy requires that all remodeling expenditures over $25,000 must be OK'd by the trustees before the first cent is spent. Mackey's explanation was that various parts of the remodeling were done piecemeal, at less than $25,000 per piece, and "I did not look at these things as being a combined project."

This is a sly gambit, often used by tax-supported officials who slip through spending ceilings by buying $24,000 worth of drapes on Monday morning and paying $10,000 more to have them hung that afternoon. I know a young man who had to interrupt his college education because his bank put a $2,000 ceiling on his school loan, and he needed $3,000. The dumb kid should have asked for a piecemeal loan — 1,500 on Wednesday and $1,500 on Thursday.

One of the pieces in the MSU remodeling project was $12,060 for a grand piano. I should make it clear that the piano was for President Mackey's home. I don't know if a piano will fit in his football box. I do know that if there'd been a piano in my Quonset hut, my roommates and I would have been forced to mill in place.

Township municipal workers ratify 3-year pact

By Marilyn Trumper

After more than four months of negotiations, Independence Township's American Federation of State and County Municipal Employees (AFSCME) have agreed on a contract.

On Aug. 15, in an 18-5 vote, AFSCME workers ratified a three-year contract.

The overall package includes scheduled pay raises in April and October over the next three years, totaling a 10-percent annual pay increase, retroactive to

April 1 when the old contract expired.

Salaries have risen from $5.45 to $5.90 an hour and employee Cost of Living (COL) has increased for $50 every three months under the old contract to $100 every three months.

In addition, employees will receive an extended life insurance policy totaling $20,000, compared to a $15,000 policy under the old contract.

The township has been negotiating with AFSCME's local 2720 since the contract expired on April 1, and a mediator was brought in to speed up the talks on Aug. 1, said Whitey Tower, township supervisor.

The contract covers grievance procedures, holiday schedules, vacations and bumping procedures, said Christopher Rose, township clerk.

"There were more problems with language than anything else," Rose said. "The contract now clearly spells out recalls, layoffs and bumping procedures."

"I think we could have had an accepted offer even without the mediator," Rose said. "It would have taken longer, that's all."

The first week in June union employees turned down virtually the same package in a 22-3 vote.

"I find it hard to believe they voted it in," said Michael Turk, a township employee with four years seniority. "The only changes were a salary raise change and some language changes."

The contract allows for a

5-cent raise in the first year which was previously to be given in the third year. By giving the 5-cent raise in the first year, union employees will receive approximately $100 extra annually instead of waiting to receive a single $100 raise in the third year.

Turk was also disgusted with the $100 COL pay and the hourly wage increases.

"What's $100? That's nothing at today's prices. The township's full-time board members received a bigger pay raise over the past three years than we did for ours."

"And as I understand it, our union representative was threatened that if we didn't settle, our retroactive pay would be denied," he said.

Staff representative for the Michigan AFSCME Council number 25, Billy Burling, said retroactive pay is always negotiable after a contract has been turned down for ratification.

"Yes, there was some discussion on retroactive pay, there is always that discussion," he said.

"But that's not why it came back to the table with the committee's recommendation to ratify. It came back because the committee felt this was the best possible offer the township could or would make. Not because of the threat of withdrawing retroactive pay," he said.

"While it's not as good a contract as it could be, we did make some gains with the second contract," he added.

Non-union

workers

rate equal

benefits

Non-union, full-time employees of Independence Township are scheduled to receive the same wages and benefits as union employees.

The Independence Township Board unanimously approved that decision and a three-year contract for the township's American Federation of State and County Municipal Employees (AFSCME) at the Aug. 19 meeting.

Items in the new contract include scheduled pay raises over the next three years, and raises from $5.45 to $5.90 per hour this year.

The employees will also receive a cost of living increase and an extended life insurance policy.

Currently the deputy treasurer, deputy clerk and a vacant position of supervisor's secretary are the only full-time, non-union jobs in the township, said Christopher Rose, township clerk.

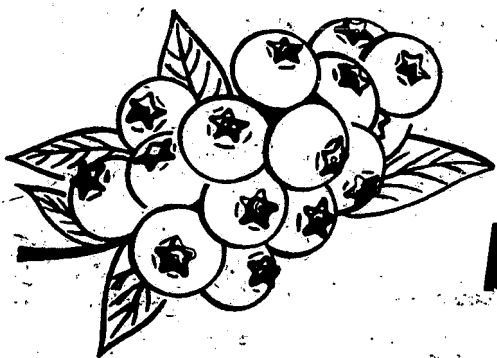

The position of deputy treasurer is scheduled to be filled by Aug. 25, Rose said, so the salary in that office is not retroactive to April.

Newcomers abound on Clarkston's roster

Hughes, Rexford, Schumborg captain Wolves' 60-man squad

By Al Zawacky

A bit of advice for Clarkston High School football fans on opening night: Make sure you get your hands on a program.

Graduation makes wholesale roster changes the rule in high school athletics — and the 1980 CHS varsity football lineup is no exception.

There'll be 33 new faces in the Wolves' 60-man roster when the hometowners charge onto the field against Swartz Creek Sept. 5. And those 33 newcomers, combined with 27 returning vets will make up a solid football team, says CHS Head Coach Walt Wyniemko.

"I'm not going to make any comparisons (between the 1980 team and last year's squad)," says Wyniemko. "Right now, we're 0-0. Comparisons can be made at the end of the season."

"We have a good, hard-working group of kids, and we're all looking forward to the season."

The Wolves' captains this season will be seniors Mike Schumborg, Mark Hughes and Bryan Rexford.

Williams, Steve Wyckoff, Mike Ogans and Ray Davis.

Kurt Norman, who played varsity ball for Clarkston last season as a sophomore, is the lone junior entering the 1980 campaign with varsity experience.

Of the Wolves' 33 newcomers, four are seniors: Dave Hertler, Derek Place, Jim Smith and Arden Collier.

Most of the remaining 29 underclassmen additions to the roster played junior varsity for Clarkston last year.

Standing by a principle he stated last season, Wyniemko says he won't base his starting selections on who's a senior and who isn't.

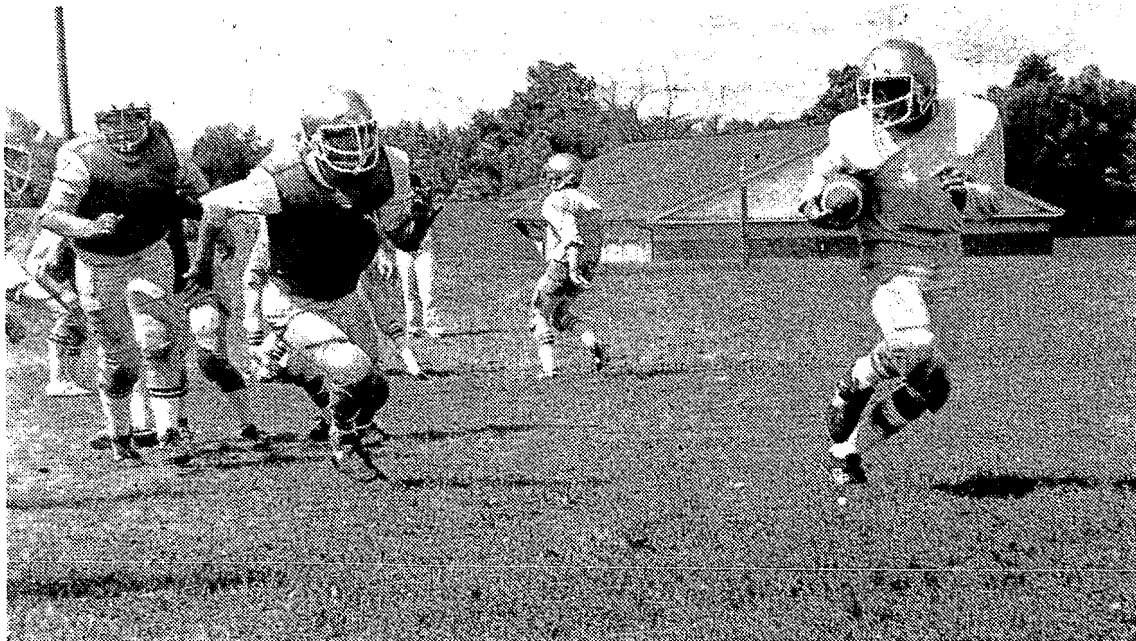

"When a kid comes into our program, we don't classify him as a senior or junior," said Wyniemko. "When he puts on that uniform, all it says on the front is 'Clarkston' — there's nothing saying whether he's a junior or a senior."

"We believe in playing the 11 best football players, regardless of what class they're in."

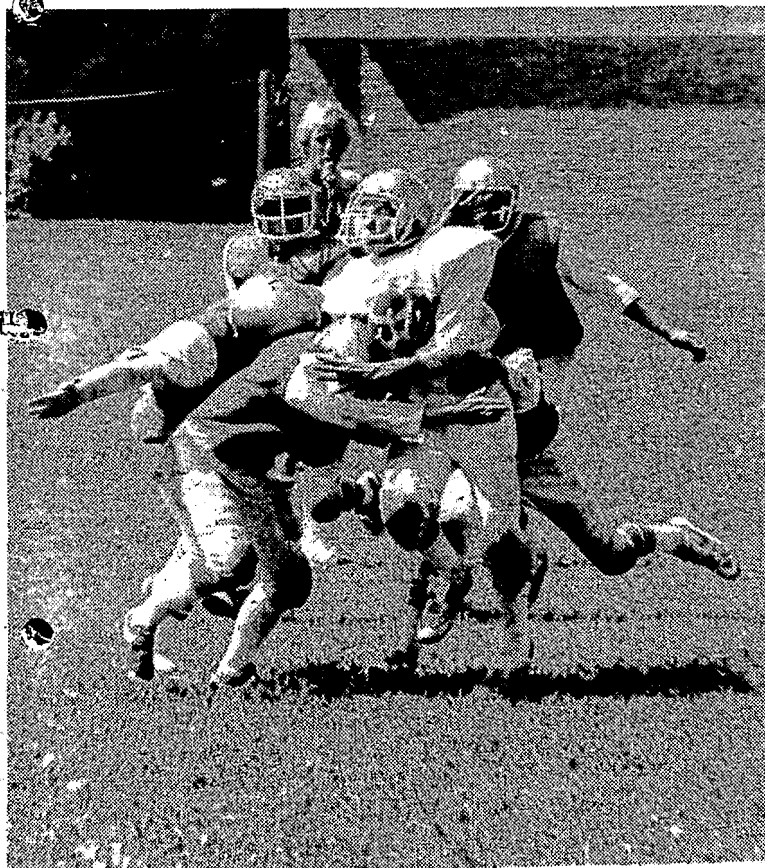

Next week: Some optimistic forecasts.

SIH Assistant Coach Jim Smith proves to be a formidable defensive lineman during a Sashabaw practice last week. The Cougars hope to improve on last season's 2-6 record in 1980. Chris Kreuger, head coach at Sashabaw, says his Cougars will be quick and strong in the backfield this season.

Cross-town rivals Clarkston Junior High and Sashabaw Junior High have been working hard in recent weeks, preparing for their season-opening clash on the high school field Sept. 4. Here, members of the Clarkston squad practice one of their plays.

CJH Head Coach John Craven figures his 1980 Wolverines will be a pretty tough team to beat. Last season Craven's gridders posted a 5-2-1 final record.

The Point After

Unsolicited opinions

KIRK'S DILEMMA: Word has it that Tiger outfielder Kirk Gibson's wrist injury might land him in a football uniform some day.

There are those who say that Gibson made a mistake by casting his lot with baseball, but it doesn't really matter — he'd be a star in either sport.

Gibson is too good an athlete not to develop into a top-notch centerfielder. He is too good an athlete not to learn how to hit, consistently and with power.

His prowess on the football field and potential for stardom in the NFL has few dissenters. He'd be a standout there, too. Regardless of where he ends up, Kirk Gibson is one of the few athletes around actually worth today's ticket prices.

BASKETBALL SCANDAL: According to a copyrighted story in the Los Angeles Times, three out of four players in the National Basketball Association are regular snorters of cocaine.

The really sad part about this story is that several people — myself included — aren't the least bit surprised. The NBA has promised an investigation, but what will they do? What can they do? Nothing.

BERGMAN BOWS OUT: Red Wing defenseman Thommie Bergman has decided to call it quits.

Praise heaven. When it came to injuries, Bergman was made of glass. And when it came to banging heads in the slot area — he was 100 percent marshmallow.

HOWE'S HE DOING? The latest stats on Steve Howe, the Clarkston High School graduate currently throwing smoke for the Los Angeles Dodgers, are enough to make any loyal Tiger fan's mouth water.

Howe's won-loss record isn't too glittering at 6-5, but check out his ERA — 1.88 at last report. That's tops in the NL.

It is interesting to note that the Tigers had a shot at Howe — but opted for U of M's Rich Leach instead. Now, why would the pitching-poor Bengals do such a thing?

You figure it out.

Mary Ellen Hanson, wife of the late B.J., tries a short putt on the 18th hole. At her side is Jan Gabier, who also participated in the event.

Golf outing raises funds for Hanson scholarship

The friends of the late B. J. Hanson gathered at Spring Lake Country Club Monday morning for a golf outing and luncheon to raise money for the B. J. Hanson scholarship fund.

Twenty-four golfers and 60 lunch participants raised about $300 for the fund, according to Paul Tungate, Clarkston High School athletic director.

Named in honor of B. J. Hanson, the scholarship is awarded to the CHS senior judged outstanding in both science and athletics, fields in which the late CHS athletic director and science teacher devoted much of his life.

John Tisch, who graduated from CHS in June, was presented with the $1,000 scholarship check at the luncheon.

A standout with the varsity football team last fall, Tisch graduated magna cum laude and plans on majoring in mechanical engineering at Michigan State University this fall.

CHS Equestrian Team to meet

Clarkston High School students who own horses and those who are interested in horses may attend the organizational meeting of the Equestrian Team on Wednesday, Sept. 3.

Meeting time is 2:45 p.m. at the high school.

Ninth through 12th graders who wish to join may call Arlene Laurie at 625-0267 or the coach, Dee Nelson, at 625-5101.

The club participates in three meets throughout the fall with other high school teams.

Sponsor of the organization is Jo Fetsco, CHS Spanish teacher.

Netters' experience prompts optimism

ABA-sanctioned race Sept. 6

Bicycle motocross racers will have a chance to qualify for statewide competition in the American Bike Association (ABA) sanctioned race coming to Waterford Oaks Sept. 6.

BMX enthusiasts will compete in their respective age divisions under the ABA's national point system. The races begin at 1 p.m. with registration taking place between 10 a.m. and 12:30 p.m.

Winners will proceed to the state championship Sept. 21 in Woodhaven, says Steve Wofford, Oakland County Parks and Recreation BMX supervisor.

Competing in the ABA contest offers riders an opportunity to vie for more than the regular trophies awarded at Waterford Oaks in their weekly Saturday morning races, he notes.

"It means the riders will be able to earn ABA points, and they really follow that," Wofford says. "It's sort of an honor to accumulate ABA points."

Jon Kipke, Oakland County Parks assistant manager, says the Waterford Oaks track has been improved to meet ABA standards.

"It's a professionally designed track with features that pro riders have suggested we include," Kipke says. "The improvements will make the track safer, faster and more competitive."

The track is located near the Waterford Oaks Wave Pool, off Scott Lake Road between Dixie Highway and Watkins Lake Road in Waterford. More information on the race may be obtained by calling 858-0916.

More numbers and more experience are making Clarkston High School Girls' Tennis Coach Becky Craig optimistic about the upcoming 1980 season.

"We've got more girls this year than last, and usually when school starts we pick up a few more," says Craig.

The girls were advised at the end of last season to play during the off-season, she adds. Many did — and the results are apparent.

"When we play teams like West Bloomfield, most of the girls out there have taken lessons," says Craig. "Last year I highly recommended that our girls take lessons either through the rec department or a racquet club, and the girls that did have really improved."

"We play three matches a week once the season starts, and that doesn't leave much time for practice," Craig continues. "So it's important that the girls play year round — tennis isn't the kind of game you can get good at in a month or so."

The Wolves two co-captains this season are seniors Julie LePere and Alex Campe. Other seniors include Kris Kwaszewski, Merci Sanchez and Kathy Williamson.

Junior roster members are Gina Myers, Mary Kubani and Shaun O'Brien. Seven sophomores round out the Wolves' lineup; Sam Mallett, Wendy McIlrath, Audrey Campe, Diane Dobson, Michele Barks, Mary Smith and Shellie Van Kearen.

"We're going to be stronger," says Craig. "Our returning girls have been practicing all summer, and we've got some good players from the junior highs."

New St. Daniel's nears construction

After several years of work and planning, the congregation of St. Daniel's Catholic Church in Independence Township, is soon to realize a victory.

A new church building is planned for construction just northwest of the current church, located on the corner of Holcomb and Miller roads.

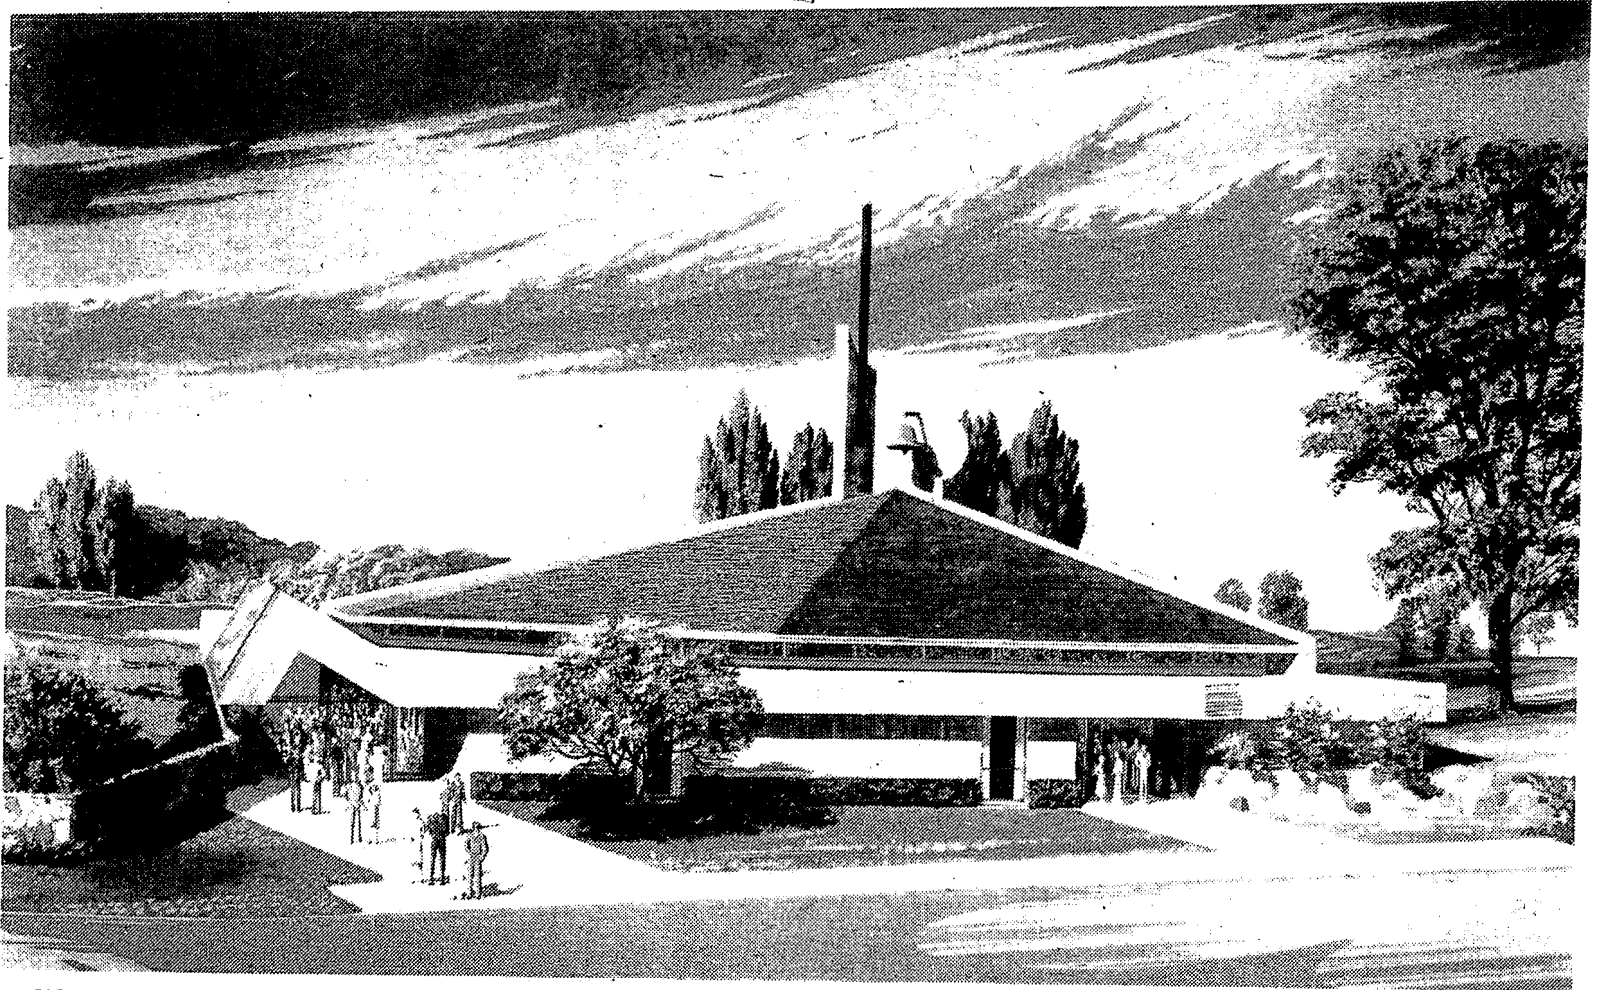

"I had this new church in mind soon after I arrived to serve this parish three years ago," said the Rev. Charles E. Cushing. "We're a growing parish and our size is doubling."

The proposed church should seat 700 people for services, Cushing said, and will cost upwards of three quarters of a million dollars.

"Our current church has been here since 1964 and seats 340 people," he said. "We'll use the church we have now for a hall and some classes when the new one is completed."

The normal routes through the township's planning commission and zoning board of appeals still have to be traveled, Cushing said, and he has to submit architectural plans to the diocese for approval.

Groundbreaking ceremonies are scheduled Sept. 15.

Ultra modern, this proposed new building for St. Daniel's Catholic Church in Independence Township, should be under construction this fall.

Township hires deputy treasurer

Lillian A. Jawlick of Milan Road, Independence Township, has been hired as the new township deputy treasurer.

At the Aug. 19 meeting, the Independence Township Board unanimously approved the appointment and hiring for the position required by state law.

Jawlick, an employee of the Pontiac State Bank for the past four years, will begin her new full-time job with the township on Aug. 25.

The position of deputy treasurer was recently vacated when the former deputy treasurer moved over to the clerk's office.

"I hired someone outside the township because there isn't anyone currently employed at the township that I would feel comfortable having administer my office or having my vote on the township board," said Frederick Ritter, township treasurer.

"The position was vacant. I had to fill it by state law, and I wanted someone with a well-rounded background in public contact, finance and all phases of office procedures. Lillian fulfilled those requirements," he said.

Jawlick will represent the treasurer in his absence on the township board and vote at his direction, Ritter said.

The township deputy treasurer receives $5.90 an hour for performing secretarial duties and an additional $1,200 annually for holding the office.

1981 trips slated

Independence Township Parks and Recreation will sponsor trips to Florida and Hawaii in 1981.

The Florida trip will leave March 9 and return March 16. Cost of the trip is $539, which includes round trip jet transportation, hotel accommodations, sightseeing, tour escort and tips for baggage handling.

Hotel accommodations will be at the Lucerne Hotel in Miami;

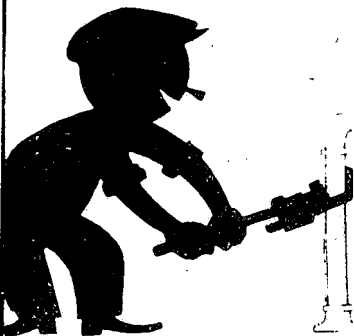

all accommodations will be double occupancy, but single accommodations are available at additional cost.

The Hawaii trip will leave Sept. 25 (1981) and feature a deluxe tour of all four islands. The cost of the 14-day Hawaii trip is $1,239.

Further information on either the Florida or Hawaii trips can be obtained by calling the Independence Parks and Recreation Department at 625-8223.

DeShane:

By Marilyn Trumper

On the west side slope of Pine Knob's ski hill sits a non-obtrusive white, aluminum-sided trailer.

It's here that much of the decision-making, wheeling and dealing, and business transactions go down surrounding the Knob's Music Theater.

In charge of what outsiders would view as absolute mayhem is the theatre's manager, 26-year-old Joel DeShane.

The job entails everything from making sure there's enough copy paper for the machine to ordering a special fish platter for an upcoming Bob Seger concert to insuring every specification on a performer's contract is met.

DeShane's tiny office in the rear of the trailer lacks all the characteristics of a business executive's.

There is no plush carpet, no walnut paneling, the walls are empty of original lithographs, there are no rented plants and there's no portable bar with crystal decanters.

Instead, a dozen "returned your call" messages line the desk top, adjacent to two telephones, and a third telephone hangs on the wall. A file cabinet rests in the corner next to a coffee maker ing show.

Donning the suit coat and rolling down the sleeves, DeShane heads for the theater's back stage area to eliminate some problems, insure himself that everything is moving smoothly and to discuss the entire affair with Stage Manager Jack Kovacs.

Working his way through the myriad of tunnels, he runs into an injured stagehand talking on a pay phone.

Poking him in the stomach, DeShane asks good-naturedly how he hurt himself.

The man answers that he stapled his finger, and DeShane jokes about the bill and speculates on who's going to pay it.

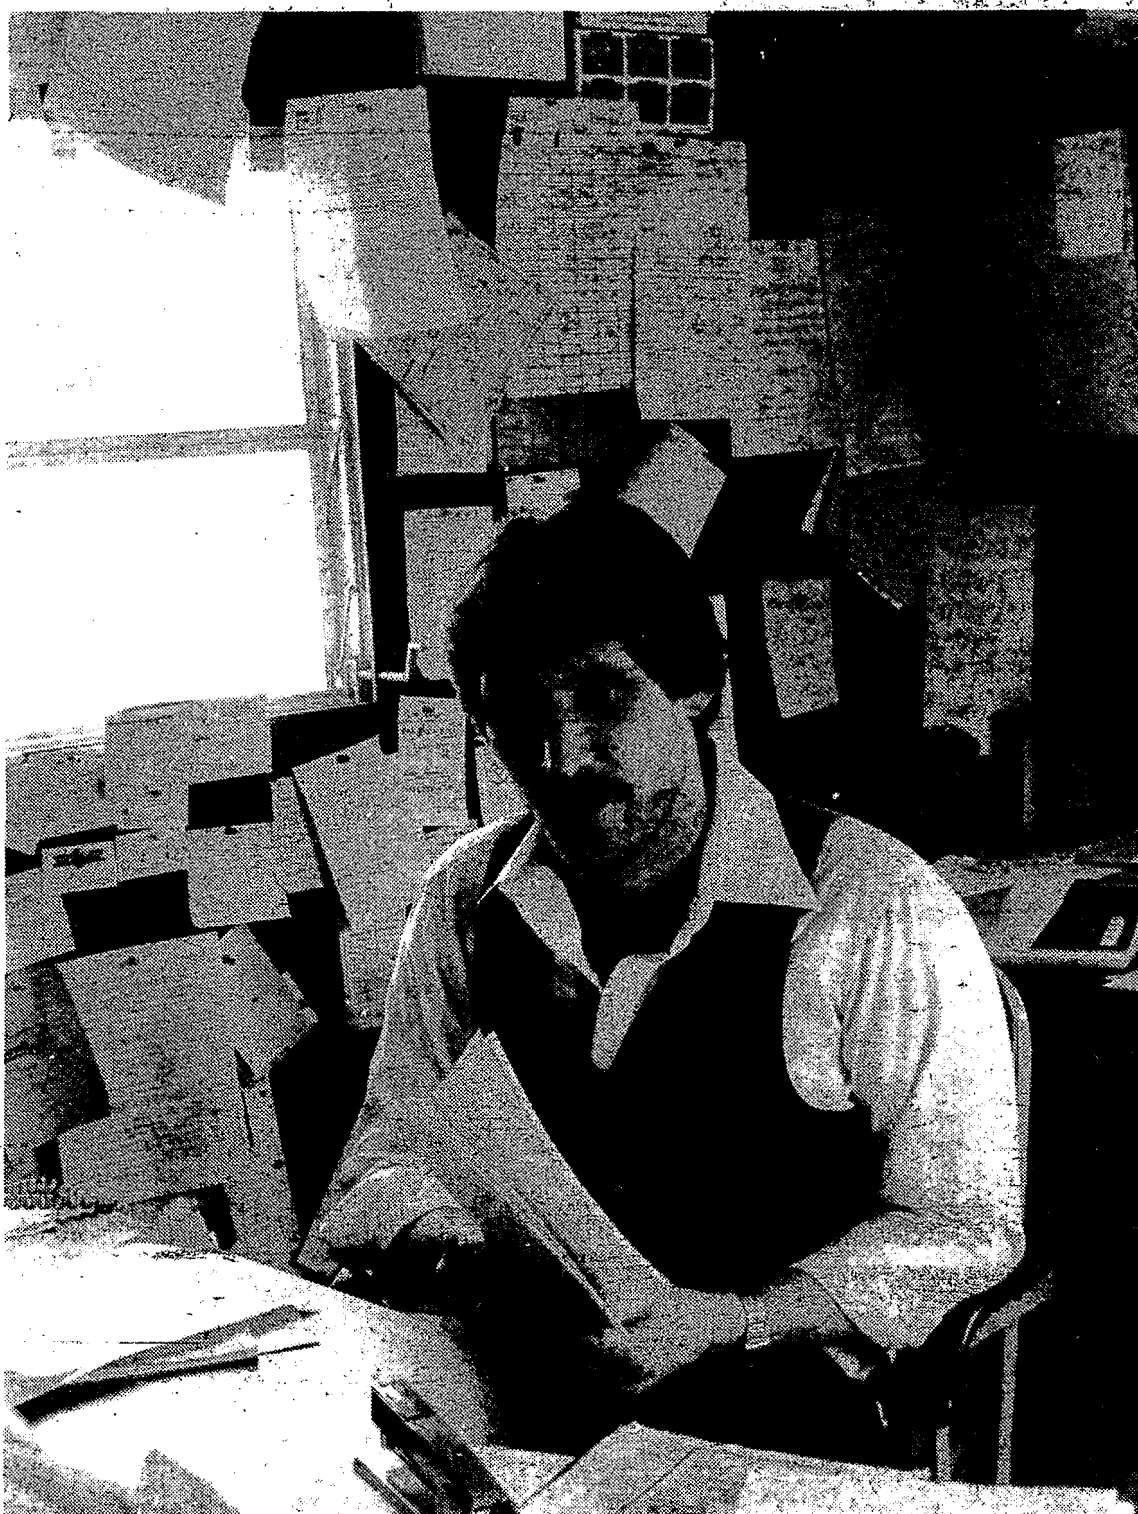

Through the sound of string musicians warming up, he moves on to shake the hands of regulars hired through the musicians' union.

Finally, he finds Kovacs and they walk out to the stage, sidestepping piles of amplifiers, coils of wires and instruments.

They discuss lighting, sound and an unusual stream of technical terms.

Satisfied that everything is under control, he returns to the backstage area to meet the head of a production company hired

When the Pine Knob show goes on, it's music to his ears

In charge of everything from copy machine paper to completing every specification in a performer's contract, Joel DeShane, manager of Pine Knob's Music Theatre, sits at his desk ready to tackle the next item on the agenda.

SECTION TWO

The Clarkston (Mich.) News

Wed., Aug. 27, 1980 21

And refrigerator. Promotional posters line the walls and the floor's white tile is blackened from busy traffic.

Full garbage bags gorged with used tickets sit in the corners. There are a couple chairs and the shelves in the rear wall are filled haphazardly with contracts, telephone books and manila envelopes.

DeShane arrives, surveys the day's work, opens up his brief case and sets down a walkie-talkie, a veritable appendage of himself.

Picking up the phone, he sets out to make the first of several phone calls. This one goes to a member of the Seger entourage.

With the initial social amenities over he says, "Yes, there will be extra backstage passes; yes, there will be food for the stagehands; yes; yes; yes..."

P.M. Magazine is considering filming an episode on Seger at Pine Knob. He dials again.

"Our New York Corporate Office has set the hall rental fee; yes; yes; yes..."

By now his suit coat is off, the sleeves are rolled up and he's been interrupted by maintenance personnel, his secretary and a landscaper.

They inform him that the toilet paper rolls have come in, there are several more telephone calls and the new belt for the lawnmower has been found.

Friday night's performer is George Benson, and stagehands are working diligently to put everything in order for the even-to do work for the Benson performance.

Grabbing two slices of bread and slapping on some meat, DeShane eats over a paper plate and asks if they'll be ready by 6:30 p.m.

Moving outside the pavilion, he checks on the landscaper and they discuss the purchase of new lawn mowers - one durable enough to do the job, but the right size to keep from tipping over on the steep hills.

On the way back to the trailer he stops to discuss deliveries made by Federal Express with a second stagehand.

Upon return to the trailer the suit coat's off once again, the sleeves are rolled up and it's back to the phones.

"I'm tired. I'm ready for the season to end," he says, leaning back in the chair. I've been working since June 23 without a night off and I'm tired, the staff's tired, we're all tired."

The days, he said, usually begin in the afternoon and continue long past concerts, and the job keeps him working 10 months out of the year.

A graduate of Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant, DeShane majored in physical education and athletic training and he has a teaching certificate.

"I love my job because it drives me crazy. It's what I call a busy man's job."

"Recently I've gained some new responsibilities, some additional jobs and the work has increased. But this is not really busy, this is mild compared to the month of July," he said.

"When I took over, the theater was a mess and I've done a lot of work on theater operations with maintenance and hospitality."

"It's hard to run a business when it only runs several months out of the year, but the kids do a terrific job," he said.

DeShane appears to have the innate ability as a boss to joke with his employees yet keep their respect, evident from the number who discuss ways to cut down on costs and by those who remain on the job when they could disappear into the vast acreage.

"My employees do a great job and they work hard. It's a tough job to do," he said, speaking from experience.

Theater manager since 1978, DeShane made his way up to the position after working security and a variety of other jobs at the Knob.

"I'm looking forward to working more with advertising," he said. "And some day getting involved with bookings. I know I can't do this for the rest of my Lake Independence Township.

He also plans to substitute DeShane laughs and remains mum about his blood pressure District this winter when the level and dives into the pile of Music Theatre's operations close pink "returned your call" messages.

Single and living in Royal Oak, he said he would like to one more sandwich off a paper plate before show time.

John Kovacs [left], stage manager for the music theater discusses production format and deadlines with DeShane.

Pine Knob fans welcome him home

Rock 'n' Roll will never forget Robert Seger

"C'mon Deeeetroit!" That's all it took to raise 11,000 people to their feet.

Like a puppeteer pulling all the right strings and knowing all the right lines, Bob Seger and The Silver-Bullet Band returned to home turf Sunday night, and owned the audience at Pine Knob's Music Theatre.

Initially walking out onto the stage, Seger and the band received a standing ovation, greeted instantly with applause, whistles and whoops. Little encouragement was needed the rest of the evening to entice audience participation.

Fathers lassoed into escorting young daughters for the evening were among the first to be on their feet "Horizontal Bopping."

Grey-haired senior citizens were rocking and rolling and those not tall enough to see above the crowd, but old enough to realize a happening, joined in the party.

Seger's appeal spans generations, after all, "Rock & Roll Never Forgets."

The band offered cuts from "Live Bullet," "Night Moves," and "Stranger in Town." Nearly every cut off Seger's latest album "Against the Wind" was played.

Seger, the master showman was hot.

His microphone became the magic wand, as he aimed it at sections of the crowd, he virtually turned them on and off at will.

"Hey Clarkston, Michigan," he yelled in a resonant tone. "Who wants to go to Fire Lake?"

The spotlight shown on a snaking sea of arms washed in the rays and the crowd roared.

"Betty Lou's getting out tonight! What do you think about that boys?"

And in answer to the question the "boys" let him know, with yells and screams.

Balancing on the stage edge, Seger continued the act comes to the band with fine throughout the show, extending reputation. Greg Frost, formerly of Grand Funk Railroad it to band members gearing up for guitar runs or sax solos—pounded the ivory off the old 88

Pine Knobbing by Marilyn Trumper

Alto Reed, saxophonist, was in his prime as never before.

Haloed in the spotlight for "Turn the Page" off the "Live Bullet" album, the crowd waited silently for the haunting emptiness he portrays, then screamed for more.

Reed, appearing and disappearing as if an apparition, delighted the crowd with his antics. He appeared on stage atop the piano and finally wound up in the audience to the delight of a middle-aged man, both of them spotlighted and washed in a rainbow of spinning lights.

with a vengeance.

The rest of the band performed with the sound and strength that's made Silver Bullet what it is.

When Seger and the band broke out with the classic "Night Moves" near the end of the performance, mirrored balls reflected shimmering lights off the ceiling and walls.

The audience loved it.

Winding up the show, Seger and the band played the deadly "Let it Rock" and ended the song with his traditional thank you, leaving an audience of seasoned Rock'n'Rollers.

Open-air freedom delights Millers

Country Living

by Marilyn Trumper

Bringing the outside in is an ongoing theme of the Miller's home on Oak Hill Road in Independence Township.

Nestled among a sea of tall green trees, the vertical cedar-sided home, situated on three and one half acres, easily blends with its surroundings.

But, the many sliding glass doorwalls, high peaked ceiling and dozens of houseplants virtually extend the inside out.

Both Steve, 33, and Alice, 32, are blase about the home which took them a year to build, but they are the first to praise the northwest area of the township where they've chosen to live.

"I really like living here," Steve said. "I'm not the kind to compete with neighbors. In the city, if Joe next door has two of this, you feel you also have to have two."

"Out here, I come home from work and I don't have to look at Joe next door with the 16 kids in the pool and all that. I'm just not made that way, and it's not like that here."

"Our neighbors are great," said Alice. "When we were building, they let us hook into their electrical system, borrow water, just everything."

This is the second home they've built together, Alice said. Originally they lived in Mt. Clements, built a home in Washington Township, moved to Pontiac and then built this home.

"It was weekends and nights after work and it was hard," she said. "It was a year where we virtually lost contact with everyone."

"We all helped. Even I was right up there on the roof with a pair of jeans, sliding up and down and working," she laughed.

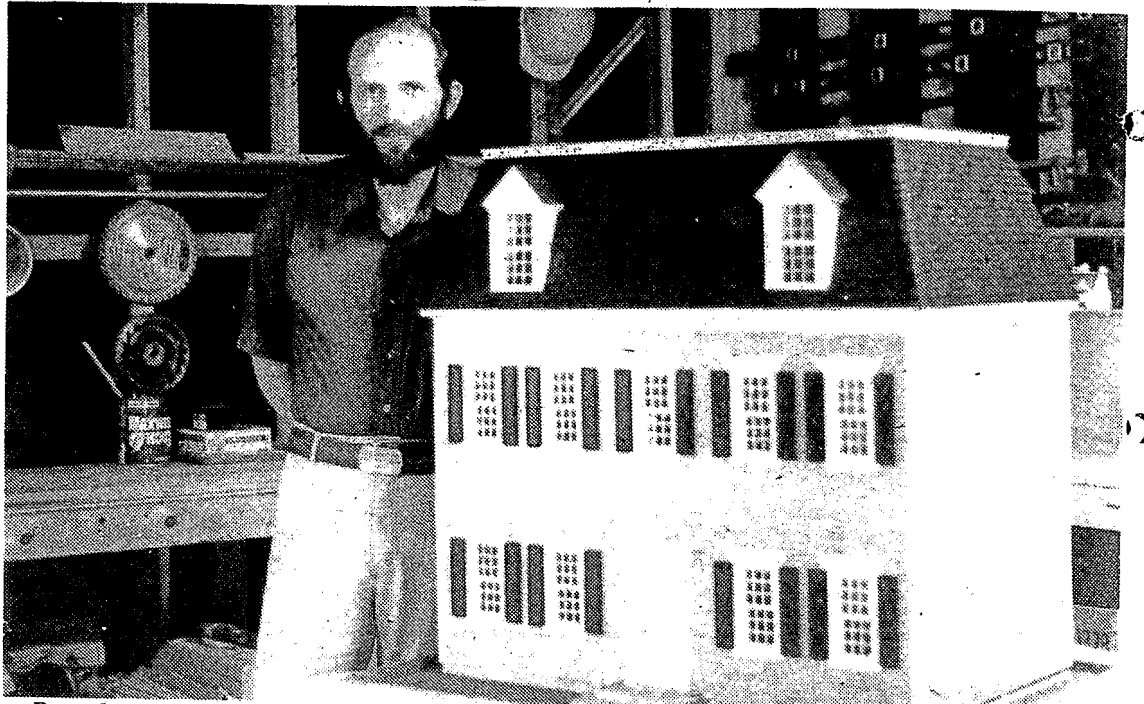

The couple's 6-year-old son Jamie is visiting his Great-

Grandma Miller during the last few free days of summer vacation.

"He helped too," Alice laughed again. "He had his own hammer and saw. Really, I believe he's the only kid who knows what a wall stud is."

Last summer, she said, Jamie emphatically notified everyone, with the air of a builder, that it was time to install the insulation.

Steve is a carpenter with a builder's license and he planned the home's construction with energy efficiency in mind.

Proud of the sturdy construction and architectural finesse, Steve displays his new-found hobby, creating miniature doll houses with all the hardware of a normal size home.

"Last winter our fuel bill was $130," he said proudly. "We heat as much as we can with wood."

The lower level of the home has two staircases. When the stove burns the wood all heat rises. A Casablanca fan stirs the air up the west staircase, forcing the cold air upstairs down the east staircase where its heated again.

"The house was warm last winter, although we did spend most of our time downstairs," Alice said. "But that's pretty much where we live anyway."

"Last winter we used most of the wood kept from clearing the land for building and I brought logs from Up North," Steve said. "Although I believe there's still enough on the land to use for this winter if I wanted to."

All windows face the south, the home is well insulated and windows are all wood, Steve said.

"I think it's a combination of all that that's made this work so well," he said.

Although Jamie is away for a few days, his presence is seen all around the yard and house.

A man-made pond adjacent to the road is filled with stocked blue gill, bass and bullheads, Jamie's favorite area.

"One of the best things about living here is the fact that so many of our friends like to come out and visit," Alice said. "It's different than the city. When they come they bring their kids and the kids love it."

"They run from one thing to the other — from the pond where they net the fish to the tire swing to the sandbox and back again," she laughed.

"We just hose them off before they come in the house and it's great. It's much easier to take care of more than one kid than it is to entertain just one," she said.

Alice teaches at Auburn Shire Elementary School in Utica, and each day she drives Jamie to school at Rochester Christian.

"That's our time to be together every day," she said. "I drive him to and from school and it works out real well."

The couple is expecting their second child in January, an event which makes them both smile.

Steve has embarked upon a new construction trend, which takes him only a few steps from the kitchen and into the garage.

He's into building little houses now and not just the big ones," Alice kidded.

"I think it looks rather Georgian in style," Steve said, surveying a miniature doll house that will eventually evolve into an exact replica of a normal home.

"I got into this about a year ago when I saw what the kits were going for and the components for the house. I bought a magazine on the doll houses and the lady told me she couldn't keep them in stock."

"The ones I'm going to build will be a better quality than the kits and the workmanship is excellent. I'll sell them for a price probably equal to the kits or not much more," he said. "But these are things which can be handed down easily from generation to generation."

Steve has scored the flooring in the doll house to make it look like hardwood and intends to install electricity. The black shingles on the mansard roof interspersed with dormer windows lend to the whole effect.

"I want to construct up to a dozen models and then give people their choices," he said. "I'll put together as much or as little of the house that they want."

With all this building going on, with both big and little houses, the Millers said they've had enough moves for awhile and plan to stick to the Independence area for quite some time.

"If we ever move again," Steve said, "we'll go to Florida."

A sailing enthusiast without a boat, Steve's eyes light up as he thinks of the white sandy beaches on the Atlantic Ocean ready for a seasoned sailor.

"If we go, it's no food, no coffee, no milk, no nothing. The first thing, the first major purchase is going to be a sailboat," he laughed.

Dense woods surrounding the patio of the Miller's home is prime atmosphere for family barbecues and entertaining guests. Steve and Alice enjoy the twilight as the summer sun fades.

Gordon Lightfoot puts on good, solid show

Some things will just never change. Gordon Lightfoot will always be singing about disappointments found in love, of sailors and sailing the oceans and Great Lakes and against the injustices found in the world.

The Canadian folk singer performed before a sold-out Pine Knob Aug. 18. Despite a late start and too many people milling about, Lightfoot turned in a very entertaining two hours. Lightfoot and his band opened ed the show. He apologized for the late start and explained they had been looking for a warm-up act, but couldn't find one in time.

Terry Clements did a superb job on lead guitar, providing a good balance to Lightfoot's vocals. (In his introduction, Lightfoot commented, Clements was a man "who is a legend in his own mind.")

Pine Knobbing by John Corriveau

Rick Haynes on bass, Pee Wee Harris on pedal steel guitar and Barry Keane on drums provided a good tight rhythm section.

The first set started smoothly, though the pace was too fast. Lightfoot seemed a bit hurried and had a problem with running his lyrics together. Except for those people completely familiar with his songs, Lightfoot's singing was hard to follow.

However, by the second set, this problem had vanished. It should be pointed out that throughout the first set about a fourth of the audience was still taking their seats. This would be distracting for any performer.

The first set was made up of songs like "I'd Do It Again" and his theme song for an upcoming documentary film "The Ghosts of Cape Horn."

The second set included many of Lightfoot's "hits." He sang "Sundown," "If You Could Read My Mind," and "The Wreck of the Edmund Fitzgerald," and his famous "Canadian Railroad Trilogy."

He also took a number of requests from the audience. Lightfoot's repertoire is so large over the dozen or so albums he's written, you can hear the audience yelling out about a dozens of different titles throughout the entire night.

There were no surprises at Lightfoot's concert. He performs live with the same band he records albums with.

The songs come out with same perfection and clarity they achieve on the albums. It was a good, solid performance.

Gordon Lightfoot continues on to sing the ballads and folk songs which made him famous. Performing before a sold-out crowd at Pine Knob Music Theatre, Lightfoot delighted concert goers.

Growing things

by Lyle Abel

Time to prune; sow some flower seeds

Like the rest of our good old U.S.A., we in north Oakland County have our share of woes — unemployment, inflation, political confusion, and crime — just to mention our major troubles.

However, one of our usual gripes, the weather, changeable though it has been, really has blessed us this summer so far.

If you are skeptical about this statement just talk to someone from the corn belt states.

Just this past week we had a call from Wayne Seifert and his family. Wayne served Oakland County and southeastern Michigan as Horticultural Agent several years back.

He is now located in southern Illinois where, with the Extension Service, until this year he worked with the horticultural interests of the area. He told us of the very universal damage done by the prolonged hot weather.

It was so hot that crops were not pollinated. There are but few kernels on the ears of corn and all kinds of produce is of sub-standard quality.

Livestock on many farms barely survived. Imagine living under continual 90 degree-plus heat both day and night for weeks on end!

Truly we can be grateful for the favors our fickle Michigan weather bestowed on us this past summer. Seifert certainly marveled at our green lawns and appreciated a respite from the heat.

Seifert's many acquaintances and friends in our county will be interested to hear that he has left the Extension Service. He is now the biological consultant (not his official title) at a regional air base in southern Illinois.

The job consists of advising on the care for all the growing things on the base including trees, landscape plantings, the lawns and golf course, even how to manage the fish and weeds in the lake on the property. He and his family had returned to Michigan to look after his aging parents who are not in good health.

Interest in gardening tends to wane as the end of summer approaches.

Most of our vegetables and fruits are either harvested or soon will be. There are still plant diseases, insect pests and weeds to contend with and several crops that can be planted for fall use, but mostly we are looking forward to next year's garden.

Some of the late summer jobs are as follows:

If you like pansies now is the time to sow the seeds and do it soon. The same is true for English Daisies and forget-me-nots.

It is also the ideal time to seed a new lawn or the bare or thin spots in the old lawns.

If your peony plants need to be divided and replanted now is the time to do the job. One should dig the plants carefully saving as many of the smaller roots as possible.

When planting take care that the buds or "eyes" are not more than two inches below the surface when the planting is completed. This precaution will make certain the peonies will bloom in following seasons.

Phlox is another flower than can be lifted, divided and replanted at this season. Plants that are undisturbed should be pruned back as soon as blossoming is finished, being certain to remove even the faded blooms. It is also a good time to propagate any choice kinds of phlox by root cuttings.

One other suggestion: If you are going to plant spring bulbs now is a good time to get them ordered.

SYNOPSIS

OF ACTION TAKEN

2. The meeting reopened.

Fire facts

Pre-plan emergencies

When fire enters your home unexpectedly, it will bring the element of panic with it. You must control this element in order to survive.

If panic controls your judgment and actions during a fire, your chances of survival are greatly reduced.

The key to reducing the amount of panic lies in being prepared for a fire before it strikes.

Ask yourself these questions. They will help to reduce panic when fire enters your home.

DO I KNOW THE TELEPHONE NUMBER OF THE FIRE DEPARTMENT AND WHERE CAN I FIND IT IN A HURRY? (Phone stickers are available at your fire stations)

DO I HAVE A FIRE EXTINGUISHER? IS IT FULLY CHARGED? DO I UNDERSTAND HOW TO USE IT? These questions will flash through your head in a matter of seconds. The answers must follow just as fast.

The head of the family must also add to the list of responsibilities during a fire, the safe escape of family members. You must emphasize to your children the devastating effects of a fire.

Instruct them to insure they will know what to do and how to react in case of a fire. Panic is hard to control in children, especially when it deals with a subject they know nothing about. Teach your children what they should do when a fire strikes.

If you can prepare yourself and your family before fire enters your home, you have greatly increased your chances of survival.

Do it NOW, once a fire starts, it will not wait for you to decide what should be done next.

Your life may some day depend on what you do NOW, preplan your emergency.

SPECIAL SECTION OF THE CLARKSTON NEWS
AUGUST 27, 1980

Helping smooth inevitable yearly transitions

By Jim and Ellen Windell

Every year of childhood represents a transition for children.

Unlike adults who, except for the big transition stages (starting a career, becoming 30, entering the 40's, and retirement), let one year slide relatively smoothly into the next, children find each year exciting and somewhat terrifying.

During the school years, every year produces anxiety for kids as they expect that "next year," symbolized by a higher grade each September, will be too hard and finally he or she will have met a challenge too tough.

As children are individuals with differing rates of physical and mental maturity, any year could be the most difficult.

In general, however, the most important transitions for youngsters occur at the time of entering first grade, then going on to junior high and finally entering high school.

New responsibilities are expected with each of those major plateaus and new, more refined coping skills are required.

Parents can ease those transition times.

Worried moms and dads, eager to know if they are doing enough of the right things can ask themselves some of the following questions:

1. Have I done my part to provide intellectual and social stimulation outside of school?
2. Have I helped her learn social skills and attitudes necessary to get along well with peers?
3. Am I reasonable in my expectations of what any school can do for my child?
4. Do I generally back up his teacher and the school's rules and regulations?
5. Have I made attempts to get to know her teachers and tried to enlist their cooperation?
6. Am I willing to do my part to make it a better school? Would I volunteer to help out at school? Am I reasonably well-informed about the problems the school system has?

7. Am I also cautious about spending time at school so I don't interfere too much in his world?

8. Have I done whatever possible to clear up home and family problems that might cause her to spend too much time worrying and thinking about family conflicts?

9. Have I provided quiet times and an adequate place for him to study?

10. Am I interested in her school activities and do I participate by listening, asking questions, sharing enthusiasms, helping her ponder problems and offering lots of encouragement? In other words, do I treat her school life as important as she does?

Carri Lathers listens for the sounds entering her headphone set and whispers softly as the tone is heard coming on and off.

Trevor Dion is enthusiastic about throwing and catching the ball with teacher Pat Loveless, and he performs the operation without a single error.

Beginnings

Photos by Marilyn Trumper

With her leg often kicking in obvious boredom, Brandi Geoit waits not-quite patiently for her dad, Albert, to fill out the necessary forms which will admit Brandi to kindergarten.

Nary a tear was shed as 4 and 5-year-olds tramped in for pre-kindergarten screening.

Some were polished spic and span and others trodded in with brand new "tenny-runners." It was a big event.

On Thursday, youngsters came to Sashabaw Junior High with moms or dads and were ushered singly into the first test room.

Teachers wanted assurances that the kids could bounce a ball and return a thrown toss. Kids were asked to announce certain colors when shown objects and to recite the numbers they knew.

Hearing and vision were tested and then it was all over.

The general consensus was one of anticipation, and all the kids were raring to go to kindergarten, no-holds-barred.

A single girl was disenchanted, but only because pre-school screening didn't in any way measure up to a first day of kindergarten—and that's what she expected.

Looking up to her mother for reassurance, Kelly Rappuhn, 5, is next in line for kindergarten screening. Her little sister Carmin, 4, who will be back next year for her screening, is scanning the entire operation.

New Clarkston Junior High students and their parents gathered in the crowded school gymnasium last week to listen to CJH Principal Duane Lewis and Assistant Principal Doug Pierson welcome them at orientation last week. Students later received their class schedule and school handbook, met some of their teachers and practiced finding their way through the strange corridors of their new school.

Moving on up to 7th grade

Wood Shop Instructor Jeff Smith was on hand in the CJH wood shop area as teachers welcomed future students at Clarkston Junior High's orientation held last week. Looking forward to the new Junior High experiences awaiting is student Pete Sans.

One new experience is having a locker and combination lock, so it's a good idea to practice the combination. Cindy Barnett had a little bit of trouble at first, but with the help of her mom Sheri Barnett, was finally able to open the stubborn lock.

Chris Burton and his mom Linda Burton unlock the mysteries of the computer-printed class schedule.

Getting ready for high school years

By Marilyn Trumper
High School.

Those three years of dating, proms, driving, nose-to-the-grindstone textbook classes and a period of growing up.

Over 300 students from Sashabaw Junior High School will be timidly moving through Clarkston High School's front doors this fall, only to bust out with confidence and enthusiasm three years into the future.

For two Sashabaw Junior High School students taking that first step this year, worries encompass everything from making the sport's team to the school building size. Anticipations range from getting a driver's license to dating.

"I'm looking forward to playing in sports," said Mike Dearborn, 15. "I want to make the basketball and baseball teams, but it's going to be hard to compete and make it."

"I've been practicing all summer long and feel I'll do pretty well. I sure hope so," he said. "The big thing that worries me is the classes. I wonder how hard they'll be and how much studying I'll have to do."

Just six months from now, Mike will be a legal, full-fledged licensed driver in Michigan.

"I can't wait for that," he smiled broadly. "That's something I'm really looking forward to."

The future, Mike said, is a long way off, so he hasn't decided on whether college is part of his future or not, but he's keeping it in mind.

"I know the size of the school bothers some of the kids," he said. "But it doesn't bother me. I've been to basketball camp there and so I know all the halls and rooms."

Nancy Kussavage, also 15, is concerned about the size of the school, and doesn't hesitate to say so.

"I'm worried about getting lost inside and the fact that all the older kids will be taller than me," she said. "In junior high I was always one of the tallest."

She had made plans for the future.

"I think I'd like to go into modeling or study fashion design," she said. "I change my mind all the time, though. I'm just going to take all my credits and get it over with, and take it easy in my senior year."

Nancy is also an athlete, and has already made Clarkston's junior varsity basketball team.

"The season starts in two weeks, and I'm happy about that," she said. "But with basketball and school the work load will probably be a strain. I'll have to study harder."

"The one thing I'm really looking forward to is getting my license to drive. I've already got my permit and when I turn 16 in January, that's when I get my license," she beamed.

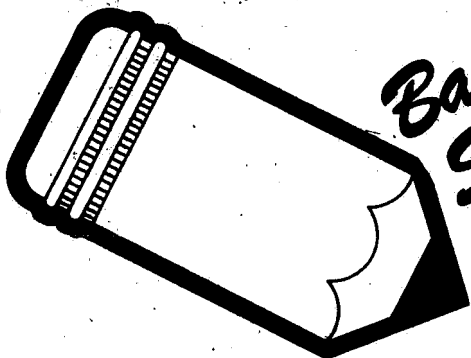

Nancy Kussavage takes time out to wash a car, keeping it in shape for the day she's legally able to drive alone.

Mike Dearborn has been in front of the net all summer.

College bound

Leaving home for the first time

By Al Zawacky

Deciding to leave home to attend college is often the first big decision a teenager makes in his or her life.

It's a decision that is sure to affect the future, daily lifestyles and sometimes, attitudes.

Dan Brennan says he expects life to be "quite a bit different" at Michigan State University — but adds that he pretty much knows what to expect.

"I have an older brother, and he told me a few things," Dan says. "I've spent a couple weekends there, so I've got a pretty good idea of what to expect."

The top student in his class with a perfect 4.0 grade point average when he graduated from Clarkston High School last June, Dan plans on majoring in engineering at Michigan State.

He says he's looking forward to the new experience of living away from home when he leaves for East Lansing next month.

"I've lived at home for 18 years," Dan says. "I wanted to try something new."

"Dan's last few months have been productive ones. He currently works in an engineering-related job for the Oakland County Department of Public Works.

"I just applied there — and a lot of other places," he recalls. "I do some drawing, but it's not really the type of engineering that I'm going into."

'I've lived at home for 18 years — I wanted to try something new.'

— Dan Brennan

Dan says he'll be living in a dormitory, and figures he'll probably be coming home quite a bit — at least during his freshman year.

"I'll probably come home to pick up some more of my things and to see the (Clarkston High School varsity) football games," he says. "I've got a brother that's going to be playing."

And a full 16-credit class load should keep him pretty busy when he's up at school, Dan adds.

"I expect it to be quite a bit different than high school, but it doesn't worry me," he says. "I'm looking forward to it."

Dan Brennan says he's looking forward to the new experience of living away from home in a college dorm at MSU.

Tackling college from home base

Staying at home has its advantages — fewer distractions, less costly

By Al Zawacky

Clarkston High School graduate Dawn Reis believes in looking forward to the future, not backward to the past.

With the start of her college studies at Oakland Community College looming just a few weeks away, Dawn says she's looking forward to the changes and challenges.

pus was based on financial grounds — although her own personal preference was a factor too.

"It was mostly for financial reasons," Dawn says. "I want to at least get an associate's degree, and then maybe transfer to a major college — but it's definitely cheaper to live at home."

'It's definitely cheaper to live at home.'

— Dawn Reis

And you won't find her growing sentimental or nostalgic about the "good old days" in junior and senior high school.

"I don't think I'll miss high school — I'm just looking forward to the future," says Dawn. "I know it was easy in high school and that it's going to be harder in college — but I'm still looking forward to it."

She plans on majoring in data processing at OCC, a decision she reached with the help of her counselor.

"It's a good field to get into — that's where all the jobs are now," she says.

Her decision to commute to school rather than live on cam-

"Maybe I was a little scared of going to a big college and living away from home," she adds, citing the distractions and partying that goes on at college dorms.

"I've always been the kind of person that would put off studying if I had a chance to go out," she grins.

As a three-year varsity standout for the Clarkston High School volleyball team, Dawn is also interested in participating in athletics at OCC.

"I'm going to check into it," she says, noting that her best memories from high school revolve around her wearing varsity blue and gold out on the volleyball court.

CHS alumnus Dawn Reis figures she'll be better off commuting to school rather than living on campus. Her family's comfortable Waterford Township home provides a better opportunity to study for the more difficult college-level courses, she says.

Going back to school

After marriage and a child, Kathy Austin finds career goal

By Kathy Greenfield

Kathy Austin never considered herself a housewife in the traditional sense.

"I don't like to be home two or three days at a time," she says.

"Lots of times," she adds, "I felt stupid around the house. I mean, give me a new recipe and I'll mess it up."

As she sits in her home on Knox Road, Independence Township, the surroundings don't give credence to her statements.

She pulls out a wedding album and shows a picture of her husband Jerry. The home is nicely furnished and spotlessly clean. And her son, John, displays plenty of affection for his mother.

Kathy admits a lack of self-confidence has been a shortcoming for many years, but this feeling is quickly disappearing.

At age 34, she is looking forward to attending University of Detroit on a full scholarship to complete work for her bachelor's degree beginning next month.

After graduating from high school, she attended one year of junior college and took secretarial courses. The experience was rather dismal.

She had a couple of jobs before she was married and has almost always worked part-time since.

The list of jobs is lengthy. They range from waitress, dessert server and drug store clerk to door-to-door cosmetic salesperson.

"Mental health and being happy is much more important — Sometimes it was just breaking even," she says.

She still plugged along, however, changing jobs and adding variety to her life.

"I had all these little jobs which I enjoyed at first, but after awhile, there was no challenge," she says. "I got bored with them."

The decision to return to school came after a particularly trying experience when she worked as a waitress.

She served a large group of people and did a good job, she says. When they left a 5-cent tip, that was it.

"I said, 'I'm not appreciated here. I'm going back to school,'" she says.

And she did. It was off to Oakland Community College where she met with a counselor.

"I said, 'I have no idea what I want to do. All I know is that I want to help people,'" Kathy remembers.

The counselor suggested the two-year mental health program.

Her reaction was positive: "Wow, that's what I wanted to do — to help people and get paid for it," she says.

"I've always wanted to be of service to people," she adds, "to give love, be needed."

Then she had to face memories of not doing all that well in school.

"I was scared," she says. "I thought, 'You know you didn't do well before. Can you really do it?'"

"I found out I was a lot smarter than I thought I was," she says, adding that the 12-year gap between high school and college gave her some advantages.

"When they ask you to write a paper, you have a lot more to draw from than an 18-year-old," she says.

During the three years she spent getting her associate's degree, she gathered some unforgettable experiences.

In work-study programs she taught English as a teacher's aide to Indo-Chinese refugees who lived and worked on a mushroom farm, worked two semesters with pregnant teenagers, and spent one semester working at the domestic violence center in Pontiac.

"I never thought of going any farther," she says. "I just thought, 'This is great. I like it. I'll get my degree and go on with it.'"

After graduation, she worked in an adult foster care home.

"A degree was not needed," she says about the job. "There was not enough challenge."

At this point, Kathy was ready to meet her new needs head-on. She applied for scholarships from three colleges.

"Believe it or not, I got all three," she says with a proud grin. "I mean, here's this girl who thought she was a dope."

Her goal is to eventually receive a master's degree in social work and to be a counselor.

Her new-found career goals have been met with enthusiasm by her husband Jerry, Kathy says.

"He's been real supportive. He's different than a lot of the men I've heard about," she says. "Anything I can do to boost my self-confidence, he wants me to do it."

Perhaps the best thing about the changes in Kathy's life is the way she now feels about herself.

"Since going back to school, I feel better than I ever have about myself," she says. "It brought out my talents and I never realized I had any."

"It's so important," she adds. "If you don't feel good about yourself, it's hard to treat others well. So your family benefits too, because you're a happy person and when you're happy, you get along better."

Kathy and her son John will both be hitting the books this fall. He's an elementary school student and she plans to set to work full-time on her bachelor's degree.
