Lake Oakland continues fight

After five residents have been eselected for the adult foster care home proposed for 5127 Timber Ridge Trail, Independence Township, a show cause hearing in Oakland County Circuit Court is scheduled to resume.

Judge*Hilda Gage halted the Sept. 17 hearing when it was discovered residents for the home would be selected within a week.

The hearing is to resume Oct.

At that time, the exact disabilities of the residents would be known, leaving no room for speculation, she said.

Gage also said she felt there was slight chance for success in the lawsuit brought by Lake Oakland Woods subdivision residents, charging that the establishment of an adult foster care home in their neighborhood would be in violation of their deed restrictions and the township zoning ordinance.

Based on appellate court decisions and legislative rulings, this court has serious doubts about the likelihood of success," Gage

After the hearing, the subdivision residents' attorney commented on the judge's statement.

"I'm not dissuaded at all," said attorney Donald Schuster. "All the evidence and testimony has not yet been presented and I feel sure Judge Gage will rule in our favor.

"If not, we'll appeal and Judge Gage knows we will," he said. "But I'm confident we'll Gage postponed the hearing after receiving assurances from a Macomb Oakland Regional Center representative and Jon R. Garrett, attorney for the foster care homeowner and applicant, that the home would not be occupied until a ruling has been made on the motion for they preliminary injunction.

Schuster is seeking a preliminary injunction to prevent the home from establishing until the court's decision is made in this case.

The proposed foster care home is slated to house five developmentally disabled adults between the ages of 20 and 40.

Developmentally disabled persons can suffer from mental retardation, cerebral palsy, autism, epilepsy or dyslexia, a reading disability.

Residents of the subdivision say that the establishment of such a home would not only be in violation of thier deed restrictions, but also in violation of the township's zoning ordinance.

Deed restrictions in Lake Oakland Woods limit the use of homes to single family and define the term single family as one or more individuals related by blood, marriage or legal adoption.

Traditionally it seems the Army's been noted for grand snafus. Credit for this one, though, goes to the Oakland County Executive Office for sending the Village of Clarkston a certified registered letter—which cost the county $1.40 to mail.

Upon opening the important looking envelope, village Clerk Bruce Rogers was amused to find the letter a -BLANK!

Perhaps Ruth Basinger, council member, had the right idea when she proposed the old stand-by—a little lemon juice.

It looks like there's plenty of room on the OCART buses seen lately driving around Independence Township.

Designed mainly for the handicapped and senior citizens, rides on the 18-seater buses are by reservation only.

Advance reservations must be made one to six days before needed for time of pick up and drop off.

Members of the general public who are not handicapped or senior citizens may also ride the buses, but they must call 24 hours in advance or the same day to see if there is space available.

Cost to ride from a township address to the Village of Clarkston would be about 60 cents one-way and from the township to Pontiac would be about 80 cents, said an OCART spokesperson.

The bus can also take travelers to Detroit via a transfer in Pontiac.

3 tax proposals; 3 viewpoints differ

By Kathy Greenfield

As it goes with debates, the Michigan. representatives of the three tax proposals earmarked for the November ballot all said theirs was best.

But the Tax Proposal Debate, sponsored by the Independence Township Republican Club Sept. 18, offered some tangible means of comparison.

During the debate, the most verbal of the nearly 80-member audience voiced their approval for the Tisch Amendment with comments and applause. Many seemed to have their minds made up before the debate began and, at the end, their opinions had apparently stayed the Speaking for the Smith-Bullard proposal was Kay Cushman, president of the Cushman said.

League of Women Voters of posal was Dick Jacobs, a sales representative from Grand Blanc who said he joined the Tisch bandwagon after disappointment with the results of the operating millage from local Headlee Amendment approved by voters in 1978.

Executive assistant to the state budget director Pat Mc-Carthy presented the Milliken Coalition proposal.

Their views are presented herein the order they were given during the debate.

SMITH-BULLARD

The League of Women Voters supports Smith-Bullard, opposes Tisch and has taken no stand on the Coalition,

The purpose of Smith-Bullard would be paid. is to provide equal education for Representing the Tisch pro-children throughout Michigan, she said.

According to Cushman, the method includes:

•Removal of all school taxes. "About half the millage you pay is for school operating expenditures," she said. "If you remove that from your (property) tax bill, you would be paying half less,"

•An increase in income tax and the imposition of taxes on industrial, commercial and outof-state owned property. Taxes would, therefore, be based on ability to pay.

•Help for persons over age 65 who are retired. If total actual property value was under $50,000, no property taxes •Retaining local voterapproved millages for such services as fire and police.

Cushman warned that if Tisch passed, meetings like the Tax Proposal Debate would be commonplace each time a new tax was requested.

She also said Tisch threatens our representative form of government.

"We (the League) believe the Tisch proposal puts unnecessary restraints on the spending power of the legislature," she said.
"Representative government demands the legislature to take charge," she added. "It's your job to see the right kinds of people are elected."

TISCH

Using 1978 as a tax base year, the State Equalized Property Valuation would be reduced by 50 percent and 60 percent of the voters would have to approve tax increases above yearly residential and agricultural growth of 2 percent, said Jacobs.

"The most important thing about the Tisch amendment is this: It would allow voters the opportunity to limit govern-, ment," he said.

According to Jacobs, Tisch would also:

•Provide the only real tax reduction of the three proposal choices. He called the Smith-Bullard proposal Socialistic in its goals.

•End voter apathy. The need to vote on tax increases would stir people to be more active in elections, he said.

•Boost the economy. "Take money away from government, give it to the private sector and you always have growth," he

.Not hurt schools, because 'Reople would have their money back at the local level and they could afford to vote for school millages if they were needed."

Using California's Proposal 13, passed there in 1978, as an example of the impact of a tax cut, Jacobs said the result was 100,000 government jobs lost, 500,000 created in the private sector; a drop in unemployment; and a 14 percent increase in retail sales.

COALITION

most homeowners. •Help the senior citizens who need it: "Tisch would benefit the Chicago businessman who has a cottage on Lake Michigan," he •Maintain levels of federal income to the state. "Tisch would cause a $600 million loss in federal income," he said. "This is a tax shift, but it's money going out of Michigan." In In-dependence Township, federal aid loss would be $183,000 in 1981 and $250,000 in 1982 if Tisch passes, he said.

•Maintain state aid to fouryear universities. Under Tisch, the $646 million now going to the 15 state colleges would drop to $208 million, he said. It would be survival of the fittest with some schools possibly deciding to become private and setting tuition between $5,000 and $6,000 a year.

"When the state officials speak of the devastating effect of the Tisch amendment, this is one area of which they speak," he said.

 Shift to sales tax for needed income. "Tisch would shift the tax burden to business," he

California's Proposal 13 cannot be proven to be the reason for the state's prosperity, he ad-

'California has been on an upbeat economy for years," he said, because of the aerospace industry.

In addition, when Proposal 13 passed, there was a large state surplus.

"Michigan has no surplus. It is on a downbeat economy," he said.

If all present taxes are added up, the average California resident's taxes are $9 higher annually than a Michigan resident pays, he said.

McCarthy also warned that voters should make a specific choice on the tax proposals, because all three could feasibly meet with voter approval and result in lengthy court battles.

"You can vote for all three if you wish," he said. "But if you have one you do favor, it's just as important to vote 'no' on the other two."

Taxpayers face 1 mill for sewers

Independence township property owners can expect to pay a 1-mill sewer ad valorem tax come December.

An earlier proposal to use a $1.5 million surplus in construction funds to replace this year's millage was defeated by the township board in a 5-2 vote at the Sept. 16 meeting.

An annual 1-mill levy in Independence Township generates $204,000 in revenue.

Tornado siren issue resurfaces in Springfield

By Al Zawacky

Residents favoring tornado alert sirens in Springfield Township are trying to persuade the township board to reconsider a decision which nixed the warning system two years ago.

Petitions in support of a tornado alert system are currently being circulated and will be presented to the township board at the regular monthly meeting Oct. 1, said Cindý Carr, who is sponsoring the drive.

"It's not a full-scale petition, drive," .said Carr, current treasurer and past president of the Davisburg Jaycettes. "We're just trying to show the board that there is support for the sirens."

The refusal of the board to reconsider its decision would lèad to more vigorous action on the part of the siren proponents, she added.

The township board rejected the proposed warning system when the issue arose in May of 1978, according to Collin Walls, Springfield Township supervisor.

"My view is no different now than it's ever been," Walls said. "Based on the information I've seen, I don't think the sirens are very effective.

'This doesn't mean that the board won't be open-minded about reconsidering if enough public interest is shown."

Walls added that having weather station radio monitors or the fire department warn residents in especially vulnerable

- 1. Scrape off all loose or peeling areas.

So take a little extra time now to prepare your house correctly and I assure you it will be years before you will pick up another paint brush.

Macho plant

by Kathy Greenfield

You can tell an awful lot about a peperomia in a red metal pot wo/man by the plants s/he keeps.

Sounds like a true or false test question if you add the proper. punctuation,

Then what you would read next would be a dissertation by leading psychologists about what plants REALLY mean.

If that's what you're looking for, stop reading.

What's going on here is we've had this influx of plants in our office in the past week or so.

We've joked about proper plants for our office before.

Former Clarkston News editor Pat Braunagel used to say she was going to hang gingham curtains in her office window and place potted geraniums on the Eu de Apple Pie or the Essence of Fresh Baked Bread could then be sprayed throughout the office and a homey atmosphere would prevail.

That was just idle chatter. Now we have the real thing.

Gail Olson, member of the advertising staff, has a variegated spider plant on her desk. It as a gift from her boss, advertising director, Lori Duckett, for work well done during an advertising special section.

Very recently, reporterphotographer Marilyn Trumper brought in a cactus assortment for her desk top.

Last, but not least, reporterphotographer Al Zawacky purchased a Venus's flytrap for his corner of the room.

Now, what does all this mean? Darned if I know, with on possible exception.

Al's bit of greenery received my full attention when he started feeding it flies.

"Okay, I can relate to the need for some personal touches in the spot where you spend much of your time," I told him, "but, why, for gosh sakes, a flyeating monster?"

Al, who most always thinks fast on his feet came through

'It's my image," he said. "I wanted a macho plant. You know, one that eats meat."

We talked about thinking up a name for his plant - and came up with some good ones. Al said he could even start a diary with entries like: "Walt ate two flies today."

Al's deadly serious in some ways about this whole matter. I realized that yesterday when I noticed he'd moved Walt to the front of the office to catch a few sun rays floating in through the window.

He really cares about the health and welfare of that plant.

Which perhaps proves that you can tell a lot about a wo/man Then Barb Crites popped a by how s/he keeps plants.

Timely search

I don't know how long Hazel's watch had been lost before she told me about it.

I do know that she'd looked in every nook and cranny of the house first. She did not willingly blurt out, "I just lost the most expensive gift you ever gave me.".

It only became the most expensive through inflation and the high price of gold. When I bought it Hazel would rather had an old piece of twisted wire to hang on the wall.

She's not big on jewelry. Which is fine with me. I'm not big on buying

But Hazel would wear the Longines just often enough to let me know she still cherishes anything I would give her. I never saw her wind it, though it wasn't electric.

Too, she wore it often enough to get it dirty, because one of her early comments was, "I only wore it once since I had it repaired."

Later I saw the bill. It was dated in July.

I figured Hazel was so casual about where she left the watch, it was "put away", or in a crack in the sofa, or hanging on one of her pieces of twisted wire.

But my wife kept after me. A couple times a day she'd remark, "I only went to the IGA that day," or, "I suppose I could have lost it in the wastebasket at the office."

I still figured it was about the home somewhere.

Then, when putting the paper together 2 weeks ago, I spotted a small advertisement. It read, "Lost: Ladies gold watch. Reward. 628-4801." That's when I fully realized Hazel really felt she lost the Longines.

This isn't intended to be a commercial, but it well could be. The next day Betty Newmyer of Oxford called. "I think I found your watch," she said.

"Where did you find it?" asked the loser, "Near the Nugget," Betty said.

Hazel's hopes plummeted. She hadn't been there.

by Jim Sherman

The conversation continued. "Can you describe your watch?" the finder asked. Hazel couldn't.

Like I say, she's not big on jewelry, but just ask her about any of the dozens of pieces of twisted wire she has.

In the end, Hazel found the original box, remembered the watch, and the two were reunited. Hazel's happier than a pig in the mud, and we're both rejuveniated with renewed belief in our fellow man, or in this case, woman.

Thank you very much, Betty.

Army joiners can sign-up right in Independence

"Walk-On-In." The message on the door is clear - the United States Army wants: Clarkston area recruits.

Now at 5888 Dixie Highway, Independence Township, the recruitment station opened its doors at the new location Sept.

Formerly located in Holly, the office serves post office coverage areas of Clarkston, Holly, Davisburg and Ortonville.

"We moved down here, because the (US) Department of Defense data we received says most of the enlistments in our recruiting area come from the Clarkston area," said Sgt. James Strong, station commander.

"As far as I know, this is the first recruiting office we've had right in the Clarkston area," he said: "It's a better location as far as the traffic goes — it's more accessible for most of the population areas we do cover."

In the past year, 31 Army enlistments were made from Clarkston, 24 from Holly, 10 from Ortonville and eight from Davisburg.

Qualifications for enlistees include such things as age 17 to 35 (17 with parental consent and those who have not yet reached their 35th birthday); good general physical condition; if married, no more than three writing and the person is sworn dependents counting his or her into inactive Army reserves. spouse; if unmarried with dependents, custody of the children must be made to the other parent, the child must be adopted or legal guardianship must be given up.

A close look is also taken at any legal violations.

"If somebody has an open traffic ticket, they can't join," Strong said, until after it's paid.

Ten years ago, a judge would say either you join the Armed Services or we're throwing you in jail," he said, but the philosophy has changed.

If a potential enlistee has been convicted of a crime, the decision whether or not the person can join the Army is made on an individual basis, Strong said.

The Army also no longer takes persons who have not graduated from high school or at least "sat through 12th grade," he said.

The new rule went into effect about six months ago. If a high school drop out wants to join, he or she may join the Army reserves, however.

"The attrition rate for somebody who hadn't graduated from high school was about 40 percent, where the attrition rate for somebody who had graduated from high school was 10 percent," he said, explaining the Army's decision to change the rules.

Assuming a person has met other qualifications, the next step is a screening test, then the large Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery test, and then a physical examination.

If qualified, the enlistees can choose a job from over 300 offered by the Army, Strong said. The job is then guaranteed in

It can then mean a wait as long as a year until there are openings in the area. The wait, however, can be much shorter.

"Last week, we tested a young man on Tuesday. We guaranteed him a job on Friday and he left on Monday," Strong said. "Now that's an exception. Most of the time it's 30 days at least."

When Strong became an enlistment recruiter three years ago, the atmosphere was a bit hostile at times, he said, but it has changed.

Even then, the young men and women were not usually hostile, but their parents were, he said.

Many people had the idea the Army was going to trick their son or daughter into signing up, he said.

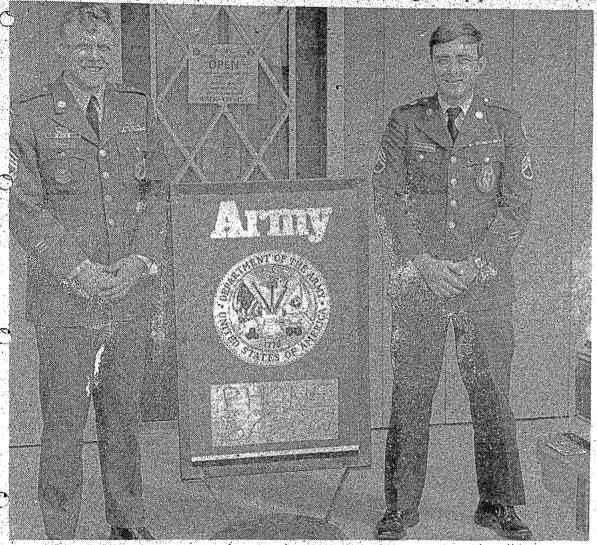

'It might have been that way 10 years or so ago, but it isn't now," Strong said. "I don't think there's high pressure sales any more. The Army's always here - we've always been available."

The change in parental attitudes may also be because 'we're farther away from Vietnam and people are more aware of what the Army can do for thier son or daughter."

A 15-year member of the Army, Strong is pleased with his career choice.

"In the 15 years, I've been around the world twice," he said. "If I hadn't joined, I'd probably be working in one of the shops somewhere and wouldn't have been anywhere.'

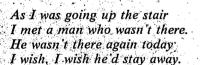

The recruiting station is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. The telephone number is 623-7287.

Set. Strong [left] and Sgt. Dennis Christopher are ready and available to sign up Army enlistees at their new location on Dixie Highway in the Times Realty building.

Fantasy for president

by Jim Fitzgerald

That's a verse from out o childhood. It popped into my mind last week when I read what John Anderson said when he learned President Carter had called him "a creation of the press."

"We are not a fantasy," Anderson said, speaking in the plural so his campaign aides wouldn't feel left out, ethereally speaking. "We are not the Thadow on the stairs that the president, Mr. (Jody) Powell and his campaign managers seem to think."

A creator makes something unique, out of nothing, or almost nothing. It is well known that God created Eve from one of Adam's ribs. President Carter didn't say whether the press had anything to start with when it created John Anderson. If I wrote the president's speeches, he would have said the ppress created John Anderson from Ronald Reagan's hair. Everyone knows Anderson has Reagan's hair.

And if I wrote Anderson's speeches, he would have admitted being the dark at the top of the stairs. Also, Anderson would have asked President Carter to loan him one of those "Stealth" bombers for campaign traveling. An invisible man should trave in an invisible airplane, unless he wants other passengers to come aboard and sit in his lap.

But that's enough nonsense. The presidential campaign is serious stuff, and I herewith pose a serious question: What would be wrong with having a fantasy for president?

If it's possible for Jimmy Carter to believe John Anderson was created by the press; it's certainly possible for ordinary citizens to believe a fantasy can be president. All it takes is faith, which moves mountains. And if there were a mountain in the White House, the sun could sink behind it, creating dark on the stairs.

Stick with me; this will all become clear to you in a few paragraphs. The important thing to realize is that every person can have his or her own fantasy elected president. Fantasies don't take up any room, so there could be thousands of them in the Oval Office at the same time. Every citizen who exercized his fantasy franchise would be satisfied. Any citizen who didn't fantasize would have no right to complain about other people's fantasies. As for shadowy darkness, it is to be desired in the White House. Jimmy Carter is making this point perfectly dusky in his TV commercials that show him walking around in the dark, working nights to save the nation. Carter's advertising stresses that being president is not a nine-to-five job, and he must work a lot of overtime, sitting and thinking in the gloaming, trying to figure out, for the nation's sake, how to turn the lights on.

Many people say Carter's TV commercials are slams aimed at Ronald Reagan who has been accused of being lazy and unwilling to work more than banker's hours. Carter may be trying to create the fear that Russia could invade New jersey undetected because President Reagan left his office early Friday afternoon.

Of course, there is also a rather widespread belief that Carter has to. work overtime to keep the nation in so much trouble, and if he would cut back to a four-day week, complete catastrophe might be avoided. For many people, Carter's empty chair at the Baltimore debate will contain his best qualities.

The truth is that it has become a boring cliche for people to say they don't like Reagan or Carter and Anderson hasn't got a chance, so what can be done to preserve the republic? The answer is that all ye of much faith should elect the fantasy of your choice.

My fantasy is that when the moon comes up over the mountain in the White House, it will shine upon the man on the stair who isn't there again today.

Remember, it wouldn't be fair to eliminate John Anderson from consideration simply because he's the only candidate who has publicly announced he is not a fantasy. The creative press is sometimes sloppy, and that might not have been Anderson talking. It might have been his hair.

Moving moment

It is a moving moment when Janet Dobson [left] accepts the plaque dedicating the new piece of playground equipment at Clarkston Elementary School to her daughter Jennifer and son Timothy. Principal Cecelia Wiar made the presentation during a ceremony at the school last week. The playground equipment was installed before school began this fall. It was purchased with $8,000 raised in PTO-sponsored projects with an additional $10,000 added by the Clarkston School Board for grading and other playground improvements. Jennifer and Timothy Dobson and their father Ronald were killed when the family's single-engine airplane crash landed in a field near "Owens Sound, Ontario, Canada, in May. Jennifer was a sixth grader at Clarkson Elementary and Timothy was a Clarkston High School sophomore.

Painters' alert

Rainy weather put a damper on the "Painting Bee" scheduled a couple of weeks ago at the Springfield Township Library, so a new date has been set.

Volunteers are sought for Saturday, Sept. 27, to paint the outside of the library building. It is located at 10900 Andersonville Rd., Springfield Township.

Paint and brushes will be provided as well as lunch for all workers.

For more information, or to offer your services, call Ina Golden at 634-4235.

In the event of rain, the "Painting Bee" will again be rescheduled.

Crafters wanted

Yule craftspersons and giftmakers are wanted for the second annual Christmas Arts and Crafts Bazaar planned by the Andersonville Elementary School PTO.

Table rentals are available for those who wish to sell their wares during the event planned Monday evening, Nov. 24. Cost is $3 or $5, depending on size.

Items children could purchase as gifts as well as any Christmasrelated craft would be most welcome, said Trudy Locher, PTO president.

She may be contacted for table rentals at 625-5180 or call Mary Jane Chaustowich at 625-5978.

Andersonville Elementary is located at 10350 Andersonville Rd., Springfield Township.

Springfield surplus

Springfield Township's financial audit is completed, and indicates that the township ran a ling in the future, he added. budget surplus in excess of $128,000 for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1980.

Copies of the report are available for public inspection at the Township Hall, 650 Broadway, Springfield Township, said Collin Walls, Springfield super-

"Basically, the surplus is the result of our having spent less than we budgeted and having some unexpectedly high revenue." Walls said.

"I believe it's best to be conservative when budgeting such things as state shared revenue, and we received far more than we anticipated.

According to the audit report, compiled by Basar, Parish and O'Donnell of Rochester, the township received $44,093 more in state revenue than it had originally budgeted.

State shared revenue includes funds from the state income tax, sales tax, revenue sharing and the single business tax.

"Our interest income was also in excess of the budget," Walls added, citing unforseen increases in interest rates:

Springfield had originally budgeted for $10,500 in interest revenue, but in actuality was able to realize an income of $44,972, according to the audit report.

Walls said the budget surplus would be carried over to the next. fiscal year, used as a hedge against future inflation and, in the case of the fire fund surplus, used to help finance a second fire hall.

Although the township ran in the black, a tax cut is not loom-

'My feelings on this are twofold," Walls said, "One, that no municipality should operate without some sort of cushion - provided it's not ridiculous; and two, that there are too many unknowns in our other revenue sources.

"We can't be sure what will come out of Lansing or Washington — but the local tax base is a certainty."

In levying the millage rate for the upcoming year, the township board voted this month to levy 1 mill; less than the maximumallowed, Walls said.

One mill is $1 for every $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

day, but the success of the Craft and Cider show filled the park up with people so they've put it off until this week," he said.

One light is slated to be attached to the pole already erected on the paved lot of the village hall and the other two lights and poles are slated to go in the grassy area of the park

Hughes, Wolves skin Falcons 18-0

Victory sets stage for West Bloomfield showdown

By Al Zawacky

The Rochester Falcons saw all thev'll ever want to see of Clarkston running back Mark Hughes

Friday evening.

Hughes, the Wolves diminutive break-away threat, rushed for 184 yards on 18 carries and scored two touchdowns to lead the Clarkston High School football team to an 18-0 whitewashing of the Falcons before a large and appreciative home crowd.

'He's matured a lot," CHS head coach Walt Wyniemko said of the 5-foot-8, 160-pound senior, comparing the Hughes of 1980 to the Hughes of 1979. "He's stronger, faster - and he's getting better blocking.'

Indeed, Hughes was not the a blue chip performance. The defense, led by the likes of some inspired play by Kurt Norman and Bruce Burwitz, was again conversion attempts failed. outstanding in posting the tory and threaten to score, the game. Wolves had a knack for coming But Rochester quarterback up with the big play that killed the Falcons' momentum.

"We felt at the beginning of the season that one of our object. tives was to formulate the big plays that can turn around a ball game," Wyniemko said.
The coach was obviously recalling the 1979 season when it seemd as if every "big play" wound up in the visitor's stats and doomed the Wolves.

Friday's game was the first Greater Oakland Activities League contest for both teams. Rochester brought a 0-2 record to town on losses to Ayondale and Southfield Lathrup, while the Wolves were 2-0 with wins over Swartz Creek and Clinton-

The two league rivals battled only Clarkston gridder to turn in through a scoreless first quarter, scoring on a 1-yard dive by Hughes and a 3-yard run by Karl Fritzinger. Both two-point

Ron Jenkins, who was limited to 57 yards in the air for the game, was intercepted at the Clarkston 10-yard line by defender Steve Wyckoff.

Hughes scored his second TD of the game and sixth of the season on an 8-yard run to close out the scoring before the third quarter ended. Again, the Wolves failed to convert on the PAT attempt. According to Wyniemko, the Wolves' coaching staff huddles each week and decides by Thursday whether they'll go for the two points or the one against an upcoming opponent.

"We base our decision on a lot of things—our scouting reports, our performance at practice, what we feel will give us the biggest lift, the field conditions, the weather," he said.

"I'm not concerned. We feel that going into a game we have our PAT people ready."

Statistically, the Wolves totaled 361 yards offense and 17 first downs to Rochester's 153 yards and seven first downs.

Declining to gloat over his team's 3-0 start. Wyniemko's thoughts quickly turned to his team's next contest—a 7:30 p.m. showdown against undefeated West Bloomfield on the road Friday.

"I think it's going to be a good football game,"Wyniemko said. "You've got two undefeatedteams meeting.

"But we're not going to approch this game any differently than any other. We take each game one at a time and we want to win them all.

"If we don't beat them, we'd have to go in (win the GOAL championship) on somebody elses coattails—we'd have to depend on someone else to beat them for us.

"That's not the way we want to do it."

Talk about a brilliant scheme. I don't generally put much stock in fortune tellers, but Madame Gypsy is an exception. I had doubted the powers of the life-long soothsayer and prognosticator until she laid this one on me last November: Tim McCormick will attend college in the fall of 1980.

But she gave me some strange headlines...

But the Wolves rallied in the third quarter to take a 27-26 lead and held on to win it.

Two days later Clarkston faced Lake Orion in it's league opener, and the result was never in doubt.

The Wolves pulled out in front 9:2 at the end of the first quarter and stretched their lead to 25-7 at the half.

"I had to figure that we were in pretty good shape at the start of the second half, so we called off our press," McDonald said.

"I was really impressed with the defense on our press. Lake Orion was 2-1 coming into the game, so they aren't a bad ball club. We just played well."

McDonald singled out for special praise the work of defensive work of Michelle Ulasich, a solid performance coming off the bench by Annette Ulasich and the all-around good play of Forsyth and Whitehead

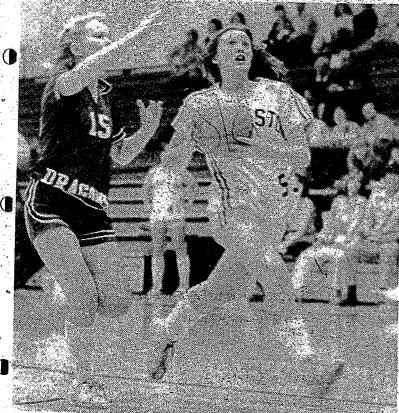

Leading a balanced attack against lake Orion were Tracee Antos with 10 points and Janet Zografos and Whitehead with seven.

Lynn McCormick set the Wolves' pace in rebounding with a total of 10, while Karen Miller was Orion's leading point producer with eight.

JV's survive doldrums to down RHS Falcons

By Al Zawacky

On the scales, the numbers favored Rochester.

But on the scoreboard Thursday night, the numbers favored Clarkston.

"And for the second time this season, coaches Gordie Richardson and John Getzan could relax in the coaches' office and smile, having just led their Clarkston High School JV football team to a 21-7 win over league rival Rochester.

"They were huge," Getzan said of the Rochester players afterwards. "They weren't extremely quick, but they were big.'

Based on the game's opening minutes, it appeared as though the Rochester Falcons, not Richardson, Getzan and the Wolves, would be doing all the post-game smiling.

Taking the opening kickoff, the Falcons proceeded to march down the field almost at will, violate the Wolves' goal line and split the uprights to take a quick 7-0 lead.

The fast TD failed to rouse Clarkston from its first-quarter doldrums — but the Wolves got the one big break that turned the game around.

It came when Clarkston defender John LaPorte intouchdown - and day - for the Wolves.

"That was a key interception," Richarsaon commented 17-yard pass from quarterback later. "It slowed their (Rochester's) momentum.

when Brown connected on a 31-yard passing play to teammate Scott Temple. Williams followed with his second PAT of the night and the Wolves had a 14-7 head.

Bruce Dale notched the third Clarkston touchdown on a 3-yard run following a Rochester fumble on the Falcon five.

Williams again kicked the extra point.

Brown finished the game with seven completions in 15 attempts for 118 yards, while Dale led in the rushing department with 134 yards in on 29 carries.

With the win, the Wolves improved their overall season mark to 2-1 and league record to 1-0.

Some kids reciprocate by stealing from and vandalizing the schools they attend.

One school principal, Daniel Manthei of Clarkston's Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center (NWOVEC), said that last year the school's reported figure for loss, theft and vandalism was just under $1,700 and there was at leat another $1,000 loss for items not directly attributable to student vandalism or theft.

"My real concern here is with attitude," Manthei said. "The students' parents pay taxes and the kids feel they own the school and what's in it.

"They don't think they're stealing: They think it's something that's rightfully theirs," he said.

"We had a kid take a vice one time. The instructor went out to the kid's home and found the vice bolted onto a work bench in the garage.

The kid's parents knew he'd taken it from school and the kid even admitted it," he said.

Every year, hand tools like socket sets and wrenches are stolen from auto repair classes, and larger tools like air wrenches have been taken too.

"The kids even take Annually parents pay school hemostats and bib clips that go around patients' necks in the dental assistant class," he said. "They take them because they make good roach clips."

A roach clip holds the end of a marijuana cigarette.

When students enroll at the beginning of the year, NWOVEC collects a deposit to offset the loss of textbooks and tools, and the school returns the money if everything's intact at the end of the year.

The fee for most classes is $10, but can be as high as $25 to pay for uniforms in the food service classes.

"Originally we only asked a $10 deposit in that class for a $50 uniform," Manthei said, cut down on loss and vandalizm school's out $1,200," Manthei "Kids realized soon enough the kind of deal they got. A $50 uniform for a $10 deposit saved thein $40."

service department comes from people stealing flatware, and it's not all kids.

"Customers come in and take it right off the table. We reorder sizable amounts of it costing hundreds of dollars a year. That figure is not calculated in the $1,700 figure,' he said.

"Nor is the cost to replace a $1,000 lightpole that was in our driveway circle. Vandals knocked that down," he said.

by prosecuting thieves through the courts and utilizing student and teacher pressure.

Recently a 17-year-old In-Asnother high loss in the food dependence Township youth, a NWOVEC student last year, was prosecuted for stealing a diesel blower valued at over $1,200.

> Originally he was charged with a felony, but from plea bargaining, the sentence was reduced to 18 months probation, the last 60 days to be spend in the Oakland County Jail if the requirements weren't met. He also must pay restitution to the school for the stolen blower.

For thieves, there's a great deal of pressure from teachers and peers, he said.

"There are kids who will turn the thieves in or shame them into returning whatever they took. Teachers do too.

"We had a stolen hemostat returned through the mail, after the thief was shamed into returning it by the teacher," he said.

"The kids really got on the guy who took the blower and did everything except resort to physical force. It didn't work, though, because he'd sold it."

Talking about

On Main Street, Clarkston, we asked this week's question:

Would you favor or oppose instruction in the schools that would deal with morals and moral behavior?

"Yes, because the kids need it in the schools and not in the streets." - Sue Augustyn, Troy, homemaker and mother of seven children.

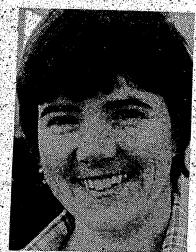

"I think that right from wrong should be part of the whole day, but as far as anything else, I'm not sure."-Barbara Ferguson, Surrey Lane, Clarkston, teacher, and mother of three children.

Thanks to energy crunch, chimney sweeps are back in demand

By Al Zawacky Ten years ago, 18-year-old David Roan would have been part of a dying profession.

Like blacksmiths and cob- the traditional garb of black suit heat their homes, the chimney blers, there weren't many professional chimney sweeps and stovepipe hat.

But today, as more and more sweep is back in demand.

"I got started two-and-a-half and had to clean the chimney, but I didn't know the first thing about it.

"She happened to see a magazine article about chimney sweeping, and I started getting interested.

'My dad said it would be a good business to get in to and my grandma financed the equipment I needed."

Although many aspects of the trade are unchanged from 19th century England, one piece of Roan's equipment provides a big technological advantage in cleanliness over predecessors.

It's a large, extra-powerful, vacuum-cleaner-type device that prevents dirt and soot from getting into the house while the chimney is being cleaned.

Other than that, the basic sweeping procedure hasn't changed.

"The only way to clean a chimney is to scrub it," Roan says. "And to do that you've got to have the proper size and type brush.

'Each chimney is different, too. There are different shapes and sizes; some you have to clean from the top and others you have to get from the bottom.'

His customers usually react with surprise and delight when they see him arrive wearing the traditional chimney-sweep garb, Roan adds.

'They think it's really nice," he says.

Because of the low social status afforded the job in England, sweeps took to wearing tails and top hats to help earn the respect of their clients, Roan explains.

Plus, the large top hat is a traditional English symbol of good luck, prompting all sorts of good luck tales associated with seeing a sweep, touching him or having one's chimney swept.

"We haven't had that tradition here in America," Roan notes. "Here, the pioneers were do-it-yourselfers, and knew enough to do it on their own."

Today, many younger people are burning wood while being ignorant of the important chimney-maintenance procedures familiar to their grandparents, he says.

"Whenever wood, oil or coal burns it gives off a substance called creosote," Roan explains. "As it goes up the chimney, it'll turn solid when it comes in contact with a cooler part of the chimney."

After continued use, the creosote coating on the chimney will thicken until a spark can ignite it, he says. A highly flammable substance, as little as a quarter-inch layer is enough to start a chimney fire.

And a chimney fire, he says, is no laughing matter.

"It burns just like a huge torch," Roan says. "It sucks all the air out of a room and hurls it out, making a noise like a train.

"It can burn as hot as 3,000 degrees, hot enough to melt the masonary and ruin the chimney. If nothing else, it'll scare the heck out of you."

Roan runs his business, the "Hearthside Chimney Sweep." out of his home at 9867 Marmora in Independence Township. Customers can contact him by calling 628-5154.

"They can call be just to check out their chimney to see if it's safe," he says. "There's no charge for an inspection.'

Although the job remains a dirty one, the vacuum and a facial mask effectively eliminate the health hazards that earlier sweeps faced, he notes.

"I plan on doing this as long as people burn wood," Roan says with a cock of his hat. "It's a lot of fun and a great career."

ATTENTION BRIDES: The Clarkston News will be happy to let you check out one of our wedding invitation books overnight or for the weekend. If there is a particular book you would like, please call 625-3370 to reserve it.

As more and more people turn to wood and coal in these energy-troubled times, David Roan figures his future as a chimney sweep is assured.

'I've worked more different jobs than anyone I know," she laughed.

Single, Cathy lives in an apartment off Andersonville Road in the southern end of Independence Township.

She grew up in Clarkston, left after graduation, and returned last November after five years of adventure and education in the electronic media world.

For two years, Cathy worked as the night disc-jockey for WNIC AM-FM in Dearborn.

That was just the way to get into television," she said. "Myfirst real love is television pro-

"Lonely people call and the weird guys are always calling," she said. "I used to have to leave work with a baseball bat, a thought that scared my parents. to death.

"The police used to have to escort me to my car," she laughs

Cathy quit the job with the realization that living was more important than "spinning records.".

"Somebody broke into the station and went after the guy who was on the shift ahead of me-with a knife. That's when I quit," she said.

When she thinks about her early days in radio, it's not the break-in that makes her cringe.

"WNIC was an easy listening station then, and I cringe when-ever I hear "Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head." I think I know all 435 versions of that song." she laughed.

Cathy went back to school and attended Lansing Community College, working on the college's cable channel to Lansing.

"Now that's my first love, television producing," she smiles. "If somebody offered me a good-paying job in T.V. I think I'd take it.

"In Lansing, I produced, directed, and sometimes hosted a program called 'The Missing Half,'" she said.

"It was a woman's show and we brought in women for the show from all areas of life. It was a show on women's issues of

"We brought in women alcoholics and shadowed their faces if they didn't want anyone to know who they were. We did features on abuse, and women and child care was a hot issue on campus at the time.

"The hardest part was coming up with something new each week," she said.

But challengers for Cathy seem to be a way of life.

Three weeks ago, she quit a part-time job selling vacuum cleaners and seweing machines and began her own business.

It's called "Cathy's Crafts," quilts, toys and gifts.

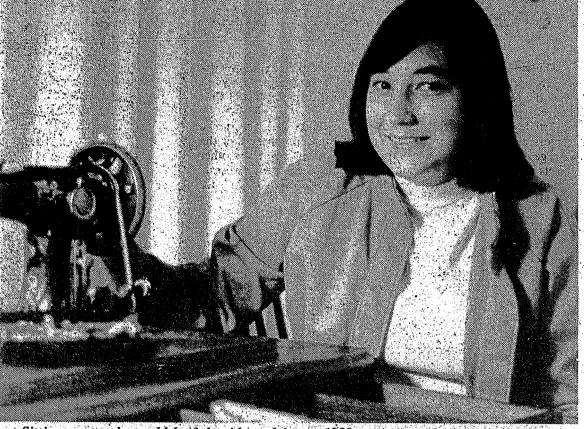

So far the business has been a Success.

"I was a little worried when I started this," she said., "I'd thought about it a lot before I quit my job. But I've been sewing from the time I was little. I enjoy it, and I really like dolls."

Cathy rises at 8 a.m. and sews constinuously until 1 a.m. the following day.

It's a discipline she credits to her earlier days as a member of college though and I hope to get the Civil Air Patrol.

"I think that's where I learned discipline, and it's hard. Johnny Carson is my mainstay in the a special cabinet to hold tobacco early morning, but now he's only and snuff, another; an icebox part," she laughs.

Manufacturing her products is a production line job, she said.

First the patterns are cutout:, the faces of the dolls are traced and hand embroidered, the parts are sewn together, the bodies are stuffed, the hair's put on and finally the clothing.

"I started selling handmade dolls at Clarkston High School's Jaycees Christmas Bazaar. Then I sold them at shows and to friends. I thought, 'I can make a' living at this.' And so far it's working," she said.

The dolls are machine washable from top to bottom and duable, she laughs recalling a test of truth.

"I was at a craft show, and a little girl and grandmother bought a doll. The next day they were back at a booth and the little girl's grandmother said she wouldn't let go of the doll allthat

She took it into the bathtub. to bed that night, and she was standing there with her fingers entwined in its hair, twirling it around," Cathy laughed.

From one pattern Cathy has made up to 200 dolls.

Friends ask me if I ever get and she sells homemade dolls, tired of looking at the same doll, but I don't. They all have their own personality even when there are 30 of them on the couch at one time," she said.

One of her hobbies is collecting dolls, and she said she has 365, one for each day of the year.

She also enjoys photography and has the fixings for a darkroom in her home.

"But I haven't set up since I moved in, because there hasn't been time. It was my minor in back into it soon," she said. Cathy also collects antiques.
