The thrill of victory

Sashabaw Junior High's second half rally got plenty of exuberant reactions from the Cougar bench last week, as the Cougars overcame a first half deficit to post a 34-28 victory over rival Clarkston Junior High. This successful Cougar field goal has Sashabaw's Heidi Wagner [third from left] flying—literally—out of her seat. There's a story and more pictures on Page 23.

Kirk bows out of Springfield treasurer's race

By Al Zawacky

Four months ago there were races on the Springfield Township Board; then there was one, and now there are none.

Marjorie Kirk, who had been running as a Democrat against incumbent Republican Treasurer Patricia Kramer, has announced her withdrawal from the campaign.

Kirk's action came less than two months after John Mulloy, also a Democrat, announced his withdrawal from the Springfield Township supervisor race.

An eight-year resident of Springfield Township, Kirk said she made the decision to withdraw after "long and serious deliberation."

"I've accepted added responsibilities with respect to employment and many civic things I've become involved in," she said. "I don't think I could give the treasurer's job the time it requires."

"My life is moving in another direction now," Kirk said, adding her thanks to "all those who have offered their help, support and encouragement in my campaign."

Like Mulloy, Kirk's name will still appear on the November ballot, each candidate having withdrawn from the race too late to have his or her name removed.

Both candidates ran unopposed in the August primary, Kirk picking up 154 votes to Kramer's 280, while Mulloy garnered 123 to Republican incumbent Collins Walls' 291.

Under present Michigan election laws, a candidate who has already been nominated by his or her party can only withdraw in the event of physical disability or by moving.

"I simply won't campaign for the office," Kirk said.

She had previously challenged Kramer for the treasurer's job in 1978, losing with 48 percent of the vote.

As a result of Kirk's withdrawal, all five incumbents on the Springfield Township Board face no opposition in the Nov. 4 election: Supervisor Walls (R), Treasurer Kramer (R), Clerk J. Calvin Walters (R), Trustee Glen Vermilye (D), and Trustee William Whitley (R).

Move likely to stimulate growth

Sewer line to extend north of I-75

By Marilyn Trumper

Sewers are moving north in Independence Township.

The move, in the opinion of township planning consultant, Tod Kilroy, will create urban density to the north, and limit capacity for growth in the south.

At the Oct. 8 meeting, the Independence Township Board approved a preliminary plat for Pine Bay Estates and the extension of the sewer system north of I-75 to service that development.

The problem with extending the sewers north, Kilroy's report said, involves adequate purchased capacity in the Clinton-Oakland sewer interceptor.

If the sewer system is extended north of the expressway, there will be no capacity for the planned "urban" developments in the township's southern portion, he said.

Pine Bay Estates is to include 43 acres, north of I-75, south of Cranberry Lake Road and east of Allen Road.

The development is to have 93 homes on 15,000 square foot lots.

The land was originally zoned single family residential, and still is, said Timothy Palulian, head of the township's building and planning department.

In 1975, the township's master plan was modified and most developments north of I-75 were slated to be rezoned to 1 1/2 acre lots.

"While the master plan was modified, the zoning was never changed," he said.

"Construction of those homes on 15,000 square foot lots is in conformance with the zoning ordinance, but not with the master plan," Palulian said.

There are other implications with the sewer extension north, according to Kilroy's report.

The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) has adopted a map which marks existing and potential sewer services for a seven-county area, and those potential sewers could be eligible for federal funding.

The extension of sewers north of I-75 for Pine Bay Estates is not illustrated on the SEMCOG plan, and that development will not be eligible for federal funding to assist in construction or operation, Kilroy said.

"That's the problem I have with this," said Christopher Rose, township clerk, "it could cause us problems four or five years down the line. If someday we decide to extend the sewers south to Waterford Hill, we won't have the capacity to do it."

"Then if we apply for federal money, SEMCOG can say, 'You weren't supposed to extend the sewers north in the first place.' This could be shutting out future plans," he said.

Trustee William Vandermark agreed.

"If we create great density north of I-75, there is a limited amount of sewer capacity to the south. If we use it up in the north, the south will have none left. It's as simple as that and I have problems with that," he said.

The township board's final vote was 5-2.

Vandermark and Rose voted not to approve the sewer extension. Supervisor Whitey Tower, Treasurer Frederick Ritter and trustees Jerry Powell, Rudy Lozano and Michael Thayer voted in favor of the motion.

"We have always worked on a first-come, first-serve basis in this township regarding sewer expansion," Tower said. "The proposed development meets with the zoning requirements. Also, the developer has to pay the full cost of installation. We've encouraged this in the past. We don't have to pay anything."

Lozano offered a different viewpoint.

"I think it would be absolutely ludicrous on the part of this board to deny the sewer expansion. Especially when everyone in this township is paying the sewer tax."

"An inept study was made, so now what are we supposed to do? Tell the developers that another inept township board can make a decision on it?" he asked.

Question township board candidates

Take questions about Independence Township government directly to the candidates Monday, Oct. 20.

The Meet the Candidates Night is to begin at 8 p.m. at the Clarkston High School Little Theatre, 6595 Middle Lake, Independence Township.

All 11 candidates for township board offices have been invited to participate in the event sponsored by four local organizations.

Moderator is to be Robert Olsen, a partner in the firm of Oakley, Olsen and Knaus, insurance brokers with offices on South Main Street, Clarkston.

Olsen was chosen for the job to keep the event as non-partisan as possible. Although he works in the community, he lives elsewhere and will not vote for the local candidates.

Format for the candidates' night is to include five minutes for statements by each of the six candidates for the full-time offices of supervisor, clerk and treasurer.

Three minutes each are to be allotted to the part-time trustee position candidates.

Doors at the Little Theatre are to open at 7:30 p.m.

The event is co-sponsored by the Business Association of Independence Township (BAIT), Independence Township Lions Club, Clarkston Area Jaycees and Clarkston Business Association.

And away they go . . .

Runners hit the streets and roads around Clarkston Sunday during the Clarkston Band Benefit Race. They all started together and set out east down Depot Street before swinging north and running back to the Clarkston Village Park for an awards ceremony and refreshments provided by the Clarkston Band Boosters. The last name of the winner of the 5 kilometer race was Fejton, a resident of Ann Arbor. Bill Atkinson of Farmington placed first in the 10 kilometer race. Ed McInnis of Springfield Township, a member of the Clarkston High School Jazz Band and Concert Band, planned the fund raising event. About 40 runners participated, he said, and the event earned a profit of $80 for the CHS band program. Band members provided plenty of help, Ed said, and special thanks go to track coaches Mike Taylor who designed the finish line and Mike Kaul who marked the course, and the township fire department, on hand in case of an emergency.

Incumbent Frederick Ritter:

Loss of revenue is township's primary concern

By Marilyn Trumper
Maintaining a level of service Independence Township residents have become accustomed to — and doing it with less money — is the most important issue facing the township today, said Frederick Ritter, Democrat incumbent for treasurer.

"Last May when the governor reduced the state shared revenue the township lost $80,000," Ritter said. "Two nights ago, he cut the state's budget by over $100 million."

"When we received the first cut, we anticipated more cuts and estimated an overall loss of $225,000. We don't know how much of the new cut will filter down to a loss for the township," he said.

The township's general fund was budgeted this year for $580,000 in state shared revenue, and that's been cut to $526,000, he said.

"These cuts have been figured without any of the other three tax proposal amendments on the November ballot," he said. "We're in limbo as those relate to the township and once they do pass they are up to the interpretation of the legislature."

Ritter could not speculate on where cuts would be made within the township if the proposals pass.

"That would be a decision for the seven member township board with input from the department heads," he said.

Ritter also sees increasing police services in the township as an issue.

"I think the level of service from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department has been excellent," he said. "I also think the level of service should be increased. The sheriff's department is the most cost effective.

We have a higher level of professionalism."

Candidates running for office, Ritter said, have made issues out of several other topics, but they are not issues.

"The issues that candidates have spoken to are being dealt with in a quality manner by professional people. I don't think growth is an issue. Our growth has been done in a methodical and well-planned manner," he stressed.

"We have a master plan and a zoning ordinance and we are where we ought to be as it relates to those plans," he said.

Ritter, 31, has lived in the township for the past 14 years.

He said his qualifications, and the reasons he should be re-elected are one in the same.

"There are two functions of this job," he said. "There is the legislative aspect working on the township board, and the administrative aspect working in the office of treasurer."

"Legislatively, I've been treasurer for two years, trustee four years, I sat on the planning commission for one year and the zoning board of appeals for three years."

"I've been in the middle of issues and have a full awareness of the issues, and I've been making decisions on those issues," he said.

"Legislatively, I have the experience to bring back to the township board, and that's important for the sake of continuity."

"The fact that we lost three incumbents in the primary

Challenger Carol Balzarini:

Lack of board leadership is main issue today

By Marilyn Trumper
Carol Balzarini, Republican candidate for Independence Township treasurer, cites lack of leadership on the township board as the most important issue facing the area today.

And, she said, it's costing the taxpayers money.

"Just look at how the attorneys' fees have doubled in the last year," she said. "As an example, we are paying .5 of a mill for the next 10 years to acquire 80 acres on Clarkson-Orion Road."

"That property was offered to the township at least four years ago, and the township board decided that maybe it was too expensive, that they couldn't afford it."

"Now we're paying to buy the land, so the attorney can condemn it. If that's leadership," Balzarini said, "then we're in trouble."

Balzarini also points to litigation with Pine Knob Investment

Co. over a proposed 20-story hotel.

"Lack of leadership has gotten us into that mess with Pine Knob," she said. "It seems to me that if we'd had a unified board with a reputation of strength, I'm not sure we'd be sued or hassled as much."

"We need forceful, decisive people. Unless we do have them, anybody who wants something is going to run all over you," she said.

"We're at the point where we have a township governed by an attorney. They can't make a decision without consulting an attorney. We didn't elect an attorney, we elected a township board and we elected them to make decisions," she said.

The lack of cooperation between the township board and the school district is another issue Balzarini is concerned with.

"They are the two focal points of the township," she said. "There is a deplorable lack of cooperation between the two of them."

"As an example, one reason the township board has put off any decision on paving Pine Knob Road from Bailey Lake to Clarkson-Orion Road, is because it would benefit the school district more than the township," she said.

Balzarini also said she sees a need to return the volunteer police force to the township.

"The village opposed getting rid of the volunteer force, so did the schools," she said. "Those men lived in this community, they fulfilled a necessary function in the community. I think they should be brought back."

She is also opposed to gravel mining in the township.

"I think the Levy plan for the operation off Clarkson-Orion Road is deplorable. We're supposed to cheer the man because he promises a 300 acre lake when he's finished. Another lake in Oakland County is not terribly impressive," she said.

Balzarini, 42, has lived in the township 10 years.

She's qualified for the job of township treasurer for several reasons, she said, pinpointing her experience with the public as the reason she should be elected.

"I'm a graduate of Michigan State University with a degree in communications," she said. "I worked as a reporter and have

ZBA to give sworn statements on hotel votes

By Marilyn Trumper

Members of Independence Township's Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) face questioning under oath regarding votes on Pine Knob. Investment's proposed 20-story, ski-run-roof hotel.

So ruled Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Francis X. O'Brien at a hearing on Oct. 8.

Thomas Eaguso, attorney for Pine Knob, motioned for the taking of statements from ZBA members, saying there is no law which prohibits the act and Pine Knob wishes to exhaust all avenues available.

"We want to insure the record and decision of the zoning board was based upon proper procedure," Raguso said. "The ZBA is a quasi-judicial body and they are not comparable to a circuit or district court judge," he said. Richard Campbell, township attorney, argued against the motion, stating the board was a quasi-judicial body not subject to inquiry.

"I don't believe, on the pleadings and statute, there is any basis for discovery. If Pine Knob is concerned about the completeness of the record, they can hand it back for a rehearing," Campbell said.

O'Brien ruled in favor of Raguso's motion, saying he could find nothing which prohibited the taking of statements. According to both attorneys, ZBA members are to be scheduled for questioning at a location agreeable to both parties. Normally, an attorney's office is used, they said.

Campbell said he will be on hand to represent ZBA members and that he has the right to object to questions.

If Pine Knob insists on answers to questions, Campbell said, the matter would go before the courts for a ruling.

No date has been set for questioning ZBA members.

means there will be new faces on the board. Someone has to have some feeling for the history of what's been happening to inform the new people," he said.

Speaking about the administrative aspect of the job of treasurer, Ritter pointed to his four years as treasurer and 12 years experience at the management level in retail.

"This puts me in a position to be aware of things that are important to this job — business, finance, office procedure and dealing with people across the counter in a personal service capacity," he said.

"When people make a decision on who to vote for, they make that decision based on what that person has done in the past.

"In this office the most important fact is that I've invested the township funds, and in two years I've earned for the township $380,000 in investment earnings," Ritter said.

'...a pulse on the community' had experience in dealing with the public. I'm probably better acquainted with the issues than most of the people running for office.

"I have the ability to make intelligent decisions that are required. I've taken a class in governmental accounting to prepare me for the job of treasurer. I've worked on numerous committees and I have good rapport with most of the people I encounter," she said.

"I think in a sense, I can provide a balance on the township board and I think they need a woman's point of view.

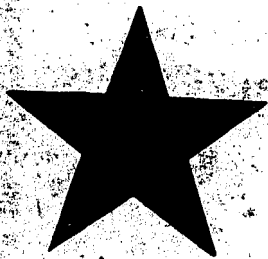

"I have a pulse on the community," she said. "This has to be one of the most valuable things going for me," she said.

Neighbors' help needed

To all my neighbors in Birdland and surrounding neighborhoods:

I am asking your help and consideration this year in bagging your fallen leaves rather than burning them.

Our son is bothered with severe asthma, especially in October and November as the wet, moldy leaves fall to the ground and are subsequently burned.

I'm sure there are many others in Clarkston with asthma, emphysema, and other lung diseases who are also affected.

Most of us, I'm sure, never think of endangering someone's health by our burning—we enjoy it as a fall family tradition, along with pumpkins, cider and donuts.

Lots of us even enjoy the smell of burning leaves.

Many local communities have adopted ordinances prohibiting leaf burning for environmental and health reasons.

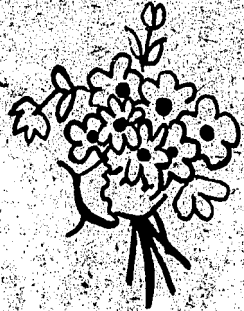

Since we don't, please consider going to the extra bother and expense of bagging for one little boy who surely represents many others.

We appreciate your neighborliness.

Tisch passage would send Lansing a message

Back in the Spring, seemed like everyone wanted to be President of the United States.

Now no one wants what's left.

Predictions right now are that it will be the lightest presidential election in recent history.

That's too bad, but still it's our privilege to not vote, just as it is our privilege to vote.

Lack of interest in the top race in the land is bound to affect local elections. Drumming up excitement for a candidate is difficult.

The only trend we saw in the primary was one to "turn the rascals out."

The people seem to be in a mood to vote "agin" whoever has been responsible for passing laws and making rules the past year "that got us into the mess we're in."

This feeling is making the Tisch tax cut amendment (Proposition D) very popular.

At this point we, too, favor its passage.

The people in Lansing failed to get the message with Headlee, then they failed to enact it, and doggone it, there IS waste in government.

Why in the world didn't the governor, the legislators, the courts make Headlee effective? Why did they wait so long to draw up tax shift plans? A "No" and a "Tisch" vote may get through to them.

Sweet dream

by Kathy Greenfield

There are times when I yearn for the good old days when the major event was planning dinner for my family and preparing it.

As these bubbles of fantasy overtake me, I'm aware that such a time never existed, but it's nice to dream.

Last week was a real killer.

Relief came with visions of gourmet delights whipped up by me in a few leisure hours, fresh-baked apple pies, chocolate chip cookies, that sort of thing.

It all started on the weekend when a bolt of some sort came loose under the kitchen sink.

It happened when I wasn't home.

When I opened the front door, I heard water running. As I meandered into the kitchen and started sloshing in water, I knew there was trouble.

A hunt for water valves in the basement soon revealed several inches deep there, too.

Gad, what a mess. It took a long time to clean it up and then I was left without hot water in my kitchen.

I tend to be pessimistic about these sorts of things and held my breath waiting for the next disaster.

This tendency tends to be rather unsettling—thoughts creep into my mind during regular happenings. A few gasps and groans before my car starts up result in panic waiting for it to die forever.

What happened next wasn't so major, just frustrating.

It was one of those evenings after work when lots of things needed to be done. I decided to tackle them all at once.

Thus, the washing machine was chugging, the dishwasher was being emptied, dinner was cooking and I was sort of running in between.

That's when I dropped the glass that shattered all over the dining room floor.

Okay, so I found the broom, couldn't find the dust pan, swept it into a pile, scooped it up with a piece of paper and ran the electric broom.

Meanwhile, the broccoli burned—that is one horrible odor.

Total loss, down the disposal the green and brown broccoli buds went. I opened a can of fruit cocktail.

Tra la, the pork chops kept cooking until they were done to leather-like imperfection.

Things settled down. The not-so-good dinner was eaten, floor cleaned, dishwasher emptied.

On to the laundry. Right before the final spin, it had stopped.

I tried resetting all the fuses. I tried readjusting the load, I tried pushing all the buttons. I tried turning the dial six times.

That's when I gave up and called it a night.

Bathroom wonder

by Jim Sherman

Going through some old papers we came across this letter that was written by an Arkansas woman to her son:

Dear Son: Your pa has a good job now, the first one in 48 years. We air a great deal better off than we were. Your pa gets $14.95 every Thursday, so we that we would do a little fixin' up.

We sent to Montgomery Wards for one of them new-fangled things called bathrooms you hear tell of in some houses. It is put in place by a man called a plumber. On one side of the room is a big long thing like pigs drink out of, only you get in that and wash all over. On the other side is a little thing called a sink, this is for little washings such as your face and hands. But over in the corner - now son I'll bet you we've really got something thar. The little contraption that you put one foot in and wash it clean and then you pull a little chain and get fresh water for the other foot. Two lids came with the dern thing and we ain't had any use for them in the bath room, so I am using one for a breadboard and the other one had a big hole in it, so we took it and framed Grandpa's picture with it. They are awful nice people to deal with. They sent us free a big roll of writing paper with it.

Take keer of yourself, son.

I met a fellow who doesn't think I am his equal, but I am. He's a conceited idiot.

Here's some interesting facts on the rise and decline of people:

- China is the most populous country in the world, with 975 million people. It is followed by India (676 million), the Soviet Union (266 million), the United States (222 million), Indonesia (144 million), Brazil (122 million) and Japan (117 million).

- The longest life expectancy is 76 years, in Iceland.
- Afghanistan has the shortest life expectancy, 37 years.
- The highest crude birthrates in the world are found in Kenya and Gaza (53 births per 1000 population). In Kenya, women average 8.1 children in a lifetime.
- East Germany has the highest proportion of people over 64, with 16%.
- In Sweden, only 8 infant deaths occur per 1000 live births, the lowest infant mortality rate of any country. In Bangladesh, by contrast, 153 infants per 1000 live births die in their first year.

Apathy comes in two forms

Voter apathy is a term that gets bandied about a great deal during elections.

There are two classes of apathetic citizens.

The first simply chooses not to vote. The second does his or her patriotic duty, but lets others decide what the vote should be.

Both forms of apathy are distressing, because if there's any place left in our country where voters can get to know their elected officials and meet them head on and demand answers about matters likely to affect the future of their area, it's on the local level of government.

Independence Township voters can do just that on

In many cases, unfortunately, such events are poorly attended.

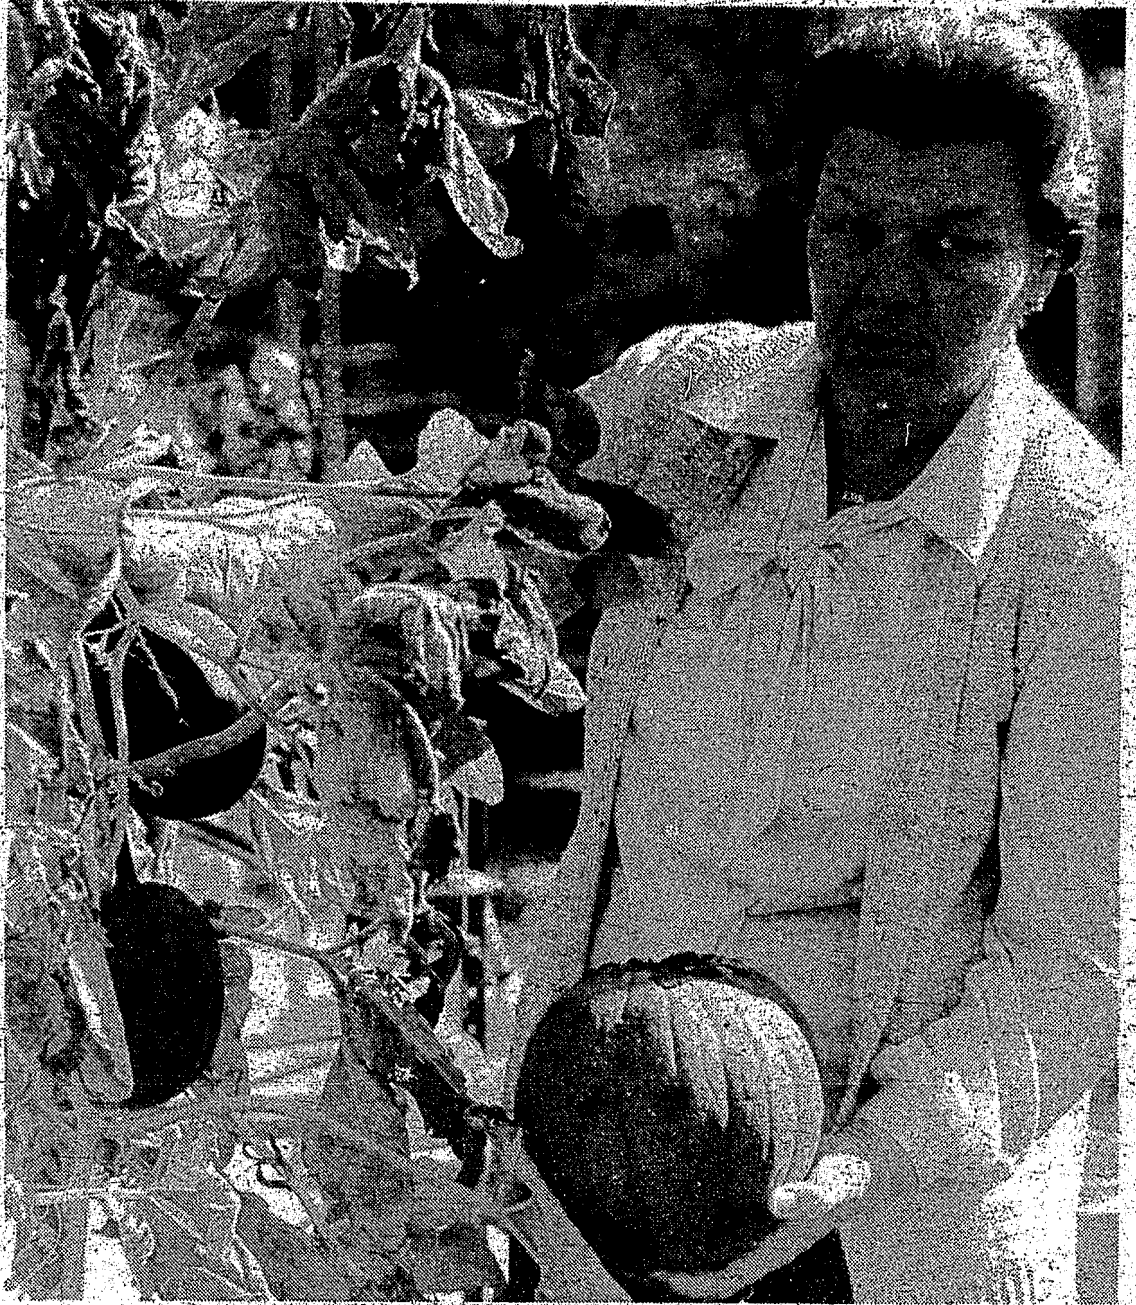

We hope that voters trying to decide which candidates to support turn out en masse.

This election, possibly more than any to date, is critical for the township's future, for those elected are to sit on the township board the next four years.

If we could have one wish, it would be for voters to wise up and grab their rights as Americans by taking time to vote with personal wisdom.

Let's be sure we're voting for individuals and not just for a political party, for a political committee or for someone who spends a lot of money to get elected.

Super squash

The biggest acorn squash she's ever seen was the final product as frost hit the garden of Erna Cooper of Ascension Street, Independence Township. The vine grew around a flower trellis that covers a walk in the garden of Erna and her husband Gerald. "The flowers didn't do anything; the squash vine just took over," she says. The beauty weighs over 7.5 pounds. Average weight for acorn squash is between 1.5 and 2 pounds. "It should feed the whole family for Thanksgiving," says Erna. The squash has a circumference of about 25 inches.

'If it Fitz. . .'

Sandy beach soothes rocky life

by Jim Fitzgerald

A psychologist named Gabrielle Brown has written a book called "The New Celibacy" in which she claims married couples can improve their relationship by not having sex with each other.

Two other psychologists, Jerry Weskott and Susan Nilsson, teach workshops at Ohio State University. They encourage married couples to fight in public places, such as restaurants.

The expert opinions of these three psychologists have received considerable publicity in the lifestyle sections of newspapers whose editors are keenly aware of their responsibility to fill the space between Ann Landers and the blazer jacket advertisements. The husband, whose favorite experts are all psychologists, reads this good stuff and then explains it to the wife.

It is the husband's belief that their marriage is remarkable and therefore worth saving by following expert advice. Whenever a psychologist cites dozens of case histories indicating no couple wearing shin splints has ever been divorced, the husband is eager to make the wife understand why they should always kick each other below the knees.

The reason the husband thinks they have a remarkable marriage is the beach phenomenon. They have been happy together for over 28 years of courtship and marriage without once walking on the beach while holding hands. It's likely no other couple in the world can make that statement. This is truly remarkable.

Anyone who has ever been to a movie or watched TV knows all sexually and spiritually successful relationships between a man and a woman are initially sandy. When Jack and Jill first begin to discover each other, the camera shows them splashing along the water's edge in their bare feet. Often she will run, and he will chase her and they will fall together on the shore, laughing and discovering.

This romantic scene isn't confined to courting. After the wedding, when a crisis arises in a filmed relationship, it's back to the beach. And when two silhouetted figures are seen coming together on surf and sand, the audience knows it isn't lobster tail and steak. It is another divorce avoided, and two more lawyers switching to malpractice suits where legal fees won't be wiped out by the romantic footsteps of doctor and patient walking together on the stupid beach.

The closest the husband and wife have ever come to this type of beach romance was once in Kentucky when he put both arms around her bare shoulders, luminous in the moonlight, and embraced her hotly to keep from falling into a Holiday Inn swimming pool. Yet, their relationship has somehow survived happily, and the husband expects to be invited to appear on a TV show called "That's Remarkable," sans beach pail.

Anyway, to help keep their remarkable marriage intact, the husband explained to the wife about celibacy and fighting in restaurants, as recommended by expert psychologists.

Gabrielle Brown says short-term celibacy will prevent sexual boredom and give us time to focus on other aspects of our lives," he said. "And those Ohio State psychologists say fighting in restaurants is a good idea because there is less chance of leaving a disagreement unresolved forever. Neither one of us will storm out in the middle of a restaurant argument for fear of missing dessert."

"What does celibacy have to do with restaurant fights?" she asked.

"That's what's so smart about psychologists," he explained. "They have figured out how to help you fight temptation and keep your kisses off my beautiful body. After I kick your shins in McDonald's, you will find that celibacy comes easy."

"What other aspect of our lives do you think we should focus on?"

"I think it's important that we look within ourselves to try to discover why we never walk together on the beach," he said. "I think we might discover we could have become celibate a long time ago if we had only been wise enough to step on surf and sand without waiting for it to appear on the menu."

"You should have been a psychologist," she said. "You are certainly silly enough."

Clarkston schools audit shows $152,000 surplus

By Kathy Greenfield

The audit for the Clarkston Community School District has been completed and it shows a surplus for the fiscal year of 1979-80 of about $152,000.

Added to previous equity, the schools now have about $2,305,000 in the bank.

"I like our position a lot better than many, many school districts across the county and state," said Milford Mason, superintendent of schools.

For the 1980-81 school year, the tentative budget is to be approximately $13 million and revenue is expected to be about $12.4 million.

Some of the equity, approximately $650,000 worth, is to be used to balance this year's budget.

"It's dismal in itself for the year," said Mason. "However, I don't mean to cry wolf. We are in good shape.

"I can see the very clear prospect that we can operate through '81 and '82," he added. "If the state has not recovered from its economic downturn and if there is no more money in the (state school aid) fund, I can't make promises beyond that."

The audit report by Moore, Rae, Thomas and Fellows of Troy was presented at the School Board meeting Monday night.

Revenue for the fiscal year that ended June 30 was $12,319,000, according to the audit, and expenses totalled $12,167,000.

Income for the district included 63 percent from local sources, 43 percent from the state, 3 percent federal and 1 percent other.

On the expense side, 70.5 percent or $8.6 million was paid for salaries to the district's 538 full-time employees and part-time workers.

Outside purchased services including utilities, special repairs, insurance and fringe benefits accounted for 16.2 percent of the money spent and 13.3 percent was for supplies like textbooks, library books and office supplies.

The district spent $1,151,213 more than the previous fiscal year that ended June 30, 1979.

Salaries accounted for the major increase in expenses. The $838,000 increase was due mainly to the terms of a teacher's contract that was in effect for the first year, according to Stanley Darling, business manager for Clarkston schools.

Cost of the audit is to be approximately $10,000, Darling said.

"It was a good audit and a fair audit and it did represent what happened during the year," he said.

Three items were mentioned in the audit in which the district did not follow generally accepted auditing principles.

The first was no record of general fixed assets which would include buildings, land, desks and equipment.

Such information is kept on data cards, but not listed separately, Darling said. To do so would require the services of an additional bookkeeper on the staff, he said.

The fixed assets amount to about $25 million and they include nine school buildings, the administration buildings, special services, the bus garage and four additional garages.

Total land owned by the district is about 445 acres and 191.8 acres of that amount do not have buildings, Darling said.

The second item involved school buses which are not listed as general fund expenditures in the year purchased.

The expense of buses is spread out over seven years of accounting, said Darling, and the practice is acceptable in business.

The third area mentioned in the audit was gasoline and food inventories which are not listed as assets at the end of the year and expenses at the beginning of the next year.

The amount is small, $3,000 to $5,000, Darling said, and inventories are not taken, mainly because the items are spread throughout the district because of lack of a central warehouse.

Copies of the audit report are available for public inspection at the Clarkston schools' Administration Office, 6389 Clarkston-Orion, Independence Township.

Sheriff's log

Friday, a fan parked in a lot next to the football field at Clarkston High school, 6595 Middle Lake Rd., Independence Township, had a tire punctured on his car.

Cost to repair the damaged tire is not available, according to police reports.

Friday, a patron locked his bicycle in front of Howe's Lanes, 6697 Dixie Highway, Independence Township, and upon return found the bike had been stolen.

Cost to replace the stolen bike is not available, according to police reports.

Friday, a thief attempted to steal a lawn chair from the front yard of a home on Morningstar Court, Independence Township, and was caught by the owner.

The homeowner yelled for the thief to stop and the thief dropped the chair and broke it.

Cost to replace the damaged chair is estimated at $250, according to police reports.

Saturday, vandals threw a rock through double glass windows of a home on Snowapple Drive, Independence Township.

Cost to replace the damaged window is estimated at $40, according to police reports.

Sunday, vacationers found the screen door of their cottage on Ember Road, Springfield Township, had been torn off by vandals.

Cost to repair the damaged door is estimated at $15, according to police reports.

The above information was gathered from Oakland County Sheriff's Department reports.

Circuit court sends Pine Knob back to township

ZBA to decide if ski run gets building permit sans court action

By Marilyn Trumper
Pine Knob Investment Co. has been sent back to the township level with its request for a building permit to construct a proposed 4,000-foot-long ski run.

At a show cause hearing on Oct. 8, Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Frederick C. Ziem directed Pine Knob to appear before the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) and appeal the building department's decision to deny the permit.

Pine Knob is scheduled to make its appeal at a special meeting of the ZBA Oct. 20 at 7:30 p.m., at Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

At the show cause hearing, Ziem said Pine Knob must first exhaust all avenues of the township before any further court action would be taken, and he ordered the township to submit to Pine Knob, in writing as soon as possible, the reasons for the permit denial.

Co-owners of Pine Knob Investment, Joseph Locricchio and Gary Francell, are charging the township illegally and improperly denied a building permit for the construction of the proposed ski run.

Pine Knob contends it does not have to appear before the township's planning commission for site plan review and instead can immediately apply for a building permit.

The focal point of debate between Pine Knob and the township is section 5.12 of the township's zoning ordinance.

"It reads, '...site plan review and approval is required for all new principal uses, accessory buildings and additions to existing structures.'"

"From 1962 to 1971 when the plaintiffs (Locricchio and Francell) purchased the property, it has been and is being used as a ski resort and it's used for skiing," said Thomas Raguso, attorney for Pine Knob.

"There's a question here of the plaintiffs' right to develop their property. They have the use. They are not applying for a new principal use.

"They are proposing a ski run which is a structure, not a building, and it's not an addition to an existing structure," Raguso said.

Richard Campbell,

township attorney, argued Pine Knob had not exhausted all administrative remedies.

"If they disagree with the decision, they can go before the township's ZBA for an interpretation," Campbell said. "Then they are permitted to come to the circuit court if they disagree with the ZBA's decision."

It was then that Judge Ziem directed Pine Knob to appear before the ZBA appealing the building department's decision to deny the permit.

Two weeks ago, Timothy Palulian, head of the township's building department explained why he denied the application for a permit.

Palulian said that while the proposed ski run is a structure, its proposed use constitutes it as a new principal use which requires planning commission review.

According to plans submitted to the township's building department, Locricchio's proposed ski run will rise 185 feet above the highest peak at the Knob, five feet above the present radio tower.

The ski run is to be constructed of poured concrete and steel and to measure approximately 92 feet wide, with approximately 80 feet in the center for skiing.

Lake Oakland residents drop suit temporarily

First application withdrawn; new one filed for adult foster care home

By Marilyn Trumper

For the time being, Lake Oakland Woods subdivision residents have dropped a lawsuit filed in Oakland County Circuit Court to block the movement of an adult foster care home in their neighborhood.

The withdrawal of the original application for the home's state licensing and the submittal of a new application for state licensing of the same home prompted the move to drop the suit.

In late July, the prospect of a proposed foster care home at 5127 Timber Ridge Trail, Independence Township, stirred area residents into action.

The lawsuit reached the show cause level where residents sought a preliminary injunction to prevent the home from establishing until the courts had made a decision in the case.

Judge Hilda Gage postponed the show cause hearing on Sept. 17, and rescheduled it for Oct. 8 so residents slated to live in the home would be selected.

In the interim, J. Jameson Inc., the first non-profit organization, withdrew its application and Kay Jan Inc., a new non-profit organization filed an application for the same house.

When the application filed by J. Jameson was withdrawn two weeks ago, the residents' attorney Donald E. Schuster said he would motion for a dismissal of the case because there was no longer any activity by the named defendant.

On Oct. 8, when the show cause hearing resumed, Schuster's motion was granted by Judge Gage.

"There's a good possibility that we'll file another lawsuit in the future, but it probably won't be until there's some action," Schuster said.

"The township must first be notified by the Department of Social Services (DSS) of the new application. They have 45 days to notify the residents within 1,500 feet of the proposed home, and to notify DSS if there is another foster home within 1,500 feet.

"It will be at least 45 to 60 days before we act," he said.

"Until the 45 days are up, no action can take place anyway."

Residents of Lake Oakland Woods subdivision are charging that the establishment of an adult foster care home in their neighborhood would be in violation of the township zoning ordinance and their deed restrictions.

The proposed foster care home is slated to house five developmentally disabled adults between the ages of 20 and 40.

Clarkston schools observe 'Bus Safety Week'

A little lost time while driving can save a child's life.

That's one of the messages of "Bus Safety Week," being observed from Oct. 12-18, says William Dennis, administrative assistant of auxiliary services for Clarkston Community Schools.

"In the last school year we transported over 5,200 children every day over 101 routes," Dennis says. "Nearly 600,000 miles were traveled and 148,000 gallons of gasoline were consumed.

"Our main concern is safety. One of the biggest hazards is created when motorists do not observe the school bus flashing light system."

Clarkston uses the four-light bus warning system, Dennis explains. Flashing red lights are located on the front and rear of the bus to warn motorists when the bus is going to stop.

Motorists are required to stop at least 20 feet from a stopped school bus that displays the flashing red lights until students are safely on or off the bus and the lights go out, he says.

"One of the most frequent complaints of the bus drivers is that motorists do not obey the law — we have about 10 of these reports each month," Dennis says. "Each time this happens the violator creates a real hazard for students boarding or leaving the bus.

"We haven't had anyone seriously injured because of an accident, but there have been some close calls."

Elementary school pupils will review safety procedures and be involved in emergency evacuation drills during "Bus Safety Week," Dennis adds.

Both drivers and riders receive regular instruction on safety and first aid, and the bus fleet is thoroughly inspected each year by experienced state police.

"The Clarkston Schools Transportation Department attempts to keep a regular pick-up and drop-off schedule," Dennis says. "If students are at their assigned stops at least five minutes before the bus is supposed to arrive, it will help us to maintain this schedule."

Safety path construction hits snag

By Marilyn Trumper

Bikers, skate boarders and joggers will have to wait until next spring to cruise on the first safety path scheduled for construction in Independence Township.

The bids were in for costs to build the first path, slated to run the length of the west side of Sashabaw Road, from Clinton Road north to Maybee Road.

At the Oct. 7 meeting, the township board reviewed bids which varied between approximately $64,000 to $83,000 and voted 6-1 to reissue bids in the spring expecting them to return with lower costs.

The lowest bid of $64,256 was 30 percent higher than the engineer's estimate for the project costs.

Board members said that because of oncoming winter weather, estimates returned in the spring would probably be lower.

William Pfahlert, chairperson of the Safety Path Committee, favored acceptance of the bid and moving ahead with construction.

"We may pay a penalty for construction in the spring," he said. "The cost to build the first path may be $64,000, it may be less and it may be more."

"We might do better to use the construction of this first path as a learning experience rather than going whole hog and building them all next year," he said.

Currently the township has $70,000 in community block grants and revenue sharing funds to pay for safety path construction.

In August, township residents approved an annual 1/2 mill tax for collection over the next 10 years to pay for safety path construction.

Township Treasurer Frederick Ritter said he would inquire about purchasing tax anticipation bonds from the Michigan Municipal Finance League to finance the cost of building the entire proposed safety path network.

The safety path committee's outline of all proposed paths in the township equals approximately 41 miles, 32 miles along paved roads and nine miles next to gravel roads.

The first path's location was chosen for construction because it fulfills the requirements set by the Community Development Block Grant fund which says safety paths must be built in an area where greatest need would be met.

Fire facts

Check for fire hazards

The major cause of most all fires in the home stem from two basic problems, carelessness and lack of maintenance.

The term used too often when describing the cause of many fires is "Accidental."

Most every "Accidental Fire" is caused from either carelessness or lack of proper maintenance. These fires could have been prevented!

Fire prevention is a full-time job, you must always be on the lookout for a possible fire source. Take away the source and you prevent a possible fire.

Take the time and check your home or business for careless fire hazards. The time and money you have spent on your home can all be destroyed in minutes by fire. Take the time, NOW to protect your future from fire.

Here is a list of hazards to look for in your home:

1. Bad electrical wiring and overloaded circuits.
2. Improper flammable liquid storage (gasoline, paint, etc.)
3. Natural gas odors.
4. Matches in reach of children.
5. Poorly operating heating units and dirty filters.
6. Cigarettes left burning and unattended.
7. Heavy lint build up on electric motors, special attention to clothes driers.
8. Combustible trash stored near open flame or pilot lights.

Springfield firefighters buy their 'Jaws of Life'

Springfield Township firefighters at long last have their own "Jaws of Life" device, thanks to a lot of community spirit on the part of local residents.

"The people responded very well and gave us good support," said Marlin Hillman, Davisburg fire chief, of the fund raising drive that netted the $6,200 needed to purchase the device. "Things worked out pretty well."

Everything from spaghetti dinners and 50-50 raffles to a dinner-dance were used to raise the money. Several local businesses also contributed to the "Jaws of Life" fund.

A hydraulic device powered by a small gasoline engine, the "Jaws of Life" is a rescue tool used to free accident victims trapped in vehicles. The device can also be useful in freeing persons trapped in building fires.

After viewing demonstration of the "Jaws" by different manufacturers, the firefighters decided to purchase the device made by the Hurst Company earlier this year, Hillman said.

"It's in our rescue unit right now and ready to go," he said.

The fund raising drive will officially end Oct. 18 at Springfield Oaks Activities Center with a long-planned dinner-dance, proceeds from which went to the "Jaws" fund. The event is already sold out, Hillman said.

Victory assures league crown

Wolves win, but there's no party

By Al Zawacky

It was the biggest win of the season for the Clarkston Wolves, but ironically it seemed to be the least satisfying.

Big because by downing arch-league rival Waterford Kettering 14-8 at home Friday evening, the Clarkston High School varsity football team clinched at least a share of the Greater Oakland Activities League championship — the Wolves' first since 1977.

But what few bits of revelry there were in the Clarkston locker room afterwards seemed forced. Clarkston Assistant Coach Kurt Richardson fretted about the lone Kettering touchdown that spoiled the Wolves fourth straight shutout. Head Coach Walt Wyniemko seemed even more restrained in victory than usual.

"This is a strong rivalry," Wyniemko said. "We knew it was going to be a tightly played game, and we were ready for that."

The win gave the Wolves a 6-0 overall record and a 4-0 mark in the GOAL, good enough to clinch at least a share of the league title, even if Clarkston loses next week and West Bloomfield (3-1) wins.

But Wyniemko couldn't have been less impressed.

"Our number one goal, right from the beginning of the season, is to win the GOAL — outright, without any losses," he said. "That hasn't been done yet."

"It's a special thing to be able to win the league outright," added Assistant Coach George Porritt. "Usually, two teams share the title."

Probably the biggest reason behind the Wolves' restrained emotions was Kettering's final touchdown coming with just seconds remaining on the clock. Losing the shutout was evidently a major disappointment for the Wolves — it would have been the team's fifth whitewashing in six outings.

"Hey, we won the game," Wyniemko said, putting the lost shutout in perspective. "It would have been nice to get the shutout, but that's football."

Neither team was able to score in the hard-hitting first half, but Clarkston managed to break the deadlock on a 46-yard drive climaxed by quarterback Brad Sheldon's 3-yard dive into the endzone.

Mark Hughes increased the Wolves lead on a 4-yard TD run with less than two minutes remaining in the game. Ron Feneley kicked both extra points to account for Clarkston's 14-0 margin.

Kettering quarterback Rich Miller, who passed for 138 yards in the contest, connected with Don Starnes on a well-executed aerial with just 17 seconds remaining, then hit Bob Hein for the two-point conversion to make it 14-8.

Clarkston had a few anxious moments when Kettering tried an onside kick on the kickoff, but the Wolves recovered to wrap up the victory.

"The team that made the fewest mistakes won," said a disappointed Kettering Head Coach Mel Patterson. "Clarkston is well schooled, well coached and plays very good defense."

"They were just a little too much for us."

The Wolves next game — their last in the GOAL — is this Friday night on the road against Milford.

The kick is up...and the kick is good! The Clarkston sideline erupts with smiles, cheers and applause as the Wolves go up 7-0 in the third quarter of Friday night's title-clinching victory over Kettering.

JV gridgers clinch third straight title

By Al Zawacky

There were whispers, back in the beginning of the season, that this would be a "lean year" for the Clarkston High School junior varsity football team.

The prophecies proved false. "I was pleased with the way we played," said JV Coach Gordie Richardson after his Wolves downed the hitherto undefeated Waterford Kettering Captains 12-6 in an afternoon tilt Thursday.

"Our defense turned in a lot of great plays," Richardson added. "There were a lot of zeros (in Kettering's offensive play-by-play stats)."

The league victory improved the Wolves' Greater Oakland Activities League mark to 4-0 and overall record to 5-1. As a result, the JVs clinched at least a share of the GOAL title — their third straight.

Both teams were unable to score in the first quarter, but Bruce Dale got the Wolves off square one and on the scoreboard in the second, returning a Kettering punt 52 yards into the end zone.

Brian Davies added to the Clarkston total in the fourth quarter on a 1-yard dive across the Captain goal line, but the shutout was spoiled in the game's final minutes.

Taking possession on their own 28, the Captains proceeded to march down the field 72 yards in 13 plays to score their lone TD.

"I was disappointed at the end that we let down and let them score," Richardson said. "I thought Kettering's touchdown was more a result of our getting lax than Kettering playing that well."

"Still, I had to be pleased with our overall play. They did some things on offense that we hadn't seen before — although we do prepare for that — and we reacted pretty well."

The Wolves totaled 250 yards offense, including 185 yards on the ground and 65 through the air.

Pat Rausch and George Diehl were two defensive standouts, Richardson added.

The Point After

by Al Zawacky

Give Clarkston fans a wishy-washy '5'

It's time to destroy the myth of the Clarkston sports fan.

As any Clarkston chauvinist will tell you, this town has a rich athletic history and more community spirit than places like Waterford and Bloomfield. You see more than just parents and friends of team members at Clarkston High School athletic events — you find honest-to-goodness fans.

And our fans are more numerous — more demanding and critical, perhaps — but also more supportive. They are somehow better than the fans you find in other communities.

They cheer louder. They own more booster club pins per capita. They buy more hot dogs and quaff more Coca-Colas. This is, after all, Clarkston — people care about their athletes here and treat them with special respect.

Maybe this was the case five years ago. But it isn't today.

FRIDAY NIGHT'S VARSITY football game was the biggest game Clarkston High School has played in three years. The undefeated Wolves with a chance to clinch a share of the GOAL title vs. arch-rival Waterford Kettering. Decent weather, too.

Judging by what the Clarkston chauvinists say, you would have expected both grandstands to be filled while hundreds of standees circled the field.

That wasn't the case. A respectable crowd was on hand, but certainly no more than a big game in Waterford, Rochester, Milford or anywhere else would have drawn. Where is that "special" quality, that extra supportiveness that Clarkston people are supposed to have?

Even the people that were there showed all the boisterous enthusiasm of a chess tournament crowd. A man eating mashed potatoes in the grandstands could have won a "noisemaker of the night" award.

SEVEN MONTHS AGO this town went ga-ga over a state-class basketball team, and the chauvinists were in their glory. Only in Clarkston could this kind of enthusiasm and support be generated, they said.

In other words, there are communities somewhere that would react with a yawn to a 6-foot-10 center; Johnny Orr, Judd Heathcote, Eldon Miller and the rest sitting in the stands; television cameras and an army of sports writers on hand in the gym; a league championship, district championship, regional championship and state semi-final berth.

Only Clarkston would go bananas over such a season?

Well, so would Lake Orion. And Milford. And Rochester. West Bloomfield, Waterford, Troy, Warren, Southfield, Sterling Heights... Come to think of it, what community wouldn't?

Any town can get excited about success. Communities are only special when they can enthusiastically support mediocrity as well as league championships.

And how do Clarkston fans react to .500 seasons? The same way fans do in Milford, Troy or Warren — they stay at home and watch the Friday night movies.

You can bet that Clarkstonites will not be parking on the lawn and lining up at the ticket windows to see the basketball team this winter.

Let's cut out the ridiculous self-flattery. There's nothing special about Clarkston when it comes to the community's support of its athletic teams.

On a scale of one to 10, the Clarkston fans rate a wishy-washy five.

Sashabaw bows again, 32-0—but nobody's quitting

Nobody in the Sashabaw Junior High locker room is about to throw in the proverbial towel on the 1980 football season.

Not SJH football coach Chris Krueger. Not his players, either. "The kids aren't getting discouraged," said Krueger after the SJH Cougars took a 32-0 drubbing from Waterford Pierce last week. "They still want to play football and are looking forward to our remaining games."

The contest against powerhouse Pierce was never really in doubt. The Cougars managed just 38 yards total offense, with 21 of those coming on their first offensive play of the game. The SJH offense never even touched the ball in the third quarter.

Sashabaw did benefit from some strong performances by Mike Goodsell at defensive end, and Tony Rafferty and Dan Fenton at defensive tackle, Krueger said.

With the loss, the Cougars season record dropped to 1-4-1 with games against Lake Orion on the road and Clarkston Junior High still remaining on the schedule.

Wolves in Brief

Clarkston's passing tandem of quarterback Brad Sheldon and favorite receiver Kevin Krause is drawing attention from Wolves' opponents.

Stopping Sheldon and Krause was a high priority on Kettering Head Coach Mel Patterson's game plan Friday night. Patterson afterwards referred to Sheldon and Krause as Clarkston's "special combination."

Even with the extra coverage, Krause still managed to make four receptions for 58 of the Wolves' 76 yards through the air.

"He caught passes that were tipped with two or three guys hanging on to him," praised Clarkston Assistant Coach George Porritt. "Those are college-type receptions."

Say goodbye to the Milford Redskins.

Milford will depart the Greater Oakland Activities League at the end of the school year, making the upcoming Wolves-Redskin clash in Milford on Friday the last football game between the two schools in the foreseeable future.

Replacing Milford in the GOAL next season will be the Corsairs of Waterford Mott.

Victories in their last three games—Milford, Rochester Adams and Brighton—would pretty well wrap up a playoff spot for the Wolves. Clarkston is one of the few remaining undefeated teams in its respective region.

They may not have chalked up the shutout, but the Clarkston defense still played well against Kettering's aerial circus in Friday night's 14-8 victory.

Karl Fritzinget, Mike Organs and Mike Schumborg were the Wolves' leading tacklers, while Rich Lamphere stopped a Kettering drive with a crucial interception in the third quarter.

Wolverines taste defeat

So much for an undefeated season.

The Clarkston Junior High football team bit the dust for the first time in six games last week, bowing to Walled Lake Central 26-6 and laying to rest any hopes of a 9-0 campaign.

"We're disappointed, but we've still got a pretty good season going," said CJH Coach John Craven. "We're not going to just roll over now and play dead."

Walled Lake Central was in control from the opening kickoff, marching down the field on its first possession to take an early lead. Central added touchdowns in the second, third and fourth quarters to wrap up the victory.

The Wolverines' lone TD came with six minutes remaining in the game on a 21-yard passing play from Mike Har-baugh to Mike Roeser.

The score stood 20-6 at that point, and an onside kick got the ball back in Clarkston's hands, brightening the Wolverines' chances to get back in the game.

But a costly turnover followed a few plays later, ending any CJH comeback hopes.

"Every time you start a season, your goal is to go undefeated," Craven observed.

"But we can't let this get us down. We can still finish 8-1 and 7-1 is the school record."

Brighton, the Wolverines' next opponent, will be no less a challenge than Walled Lake Central proved to be. The Brighton freshmen haven't lost a game in three years and will bring a 21-game winning streak to the CJH home field Wednesday.

Wolves now 5-4

As defense goes, so goes varsity cagers' success

By Al Zawacky

It's really all very simple: When the Clarkston High School girls' basketball team plays a ball-control, defense-orientated game, they win.

But when they play a wide-open offensive style, they generally lose.

Last week they did both, bowing to Walled Lake Western 57-51 on Tuesday before bouncing back to a 44-38 win over West Bloomfield Thursday.

"We played excellent defense," said varsity coach Dave McDonald of the West Bloomfield contest. "And when we play good defense, we usually win."

"I'm a running-type coach, but it's not working — against Walled Lake Western we were opening up and trying to score a lot of points, but it only hurt us."

Sophomore Annette Ulasich was the star of the game with 19 points, the highest total achieved by a Clarkston player this season. Senior Lisa Forsyth was strong on the boards with 12 rebounds.

The Wolves also benefited from a strong comeback performance by Lynette Whitehead, who suffered a broken hand three weeks ago. The 5-foot-10 junior scored four points and pulled down seven rebounds.

"We played very good control ball — we moved the ball around and took the good percentage shots," McDonald said.

Senior Lynn McCormick also had a strong game against West Bloomfield, McDonald added, scoring eight points and cleaning the boards nine times.

The non-league loss and league victory in last week's action moved the Wolves record to 3-1 in the Greater Oakland Activities League and 5-4 overall, good for second place in the GOAL behind undefeated Waterford Kettering.

"Kettering is a fine team — they play really well together," McDonald said. "They beat us pretty bad over there, but we'll have them at home next time."

"It's up to us to get back at them."

Odds are...

CLARKSTON at MILFORD (Oct. 17): Consider the Milford offense. The running backs have applied for pilot's licenses. Quarterback Dave Monroe can throw and scramble, if he has to. The line is decent and provides the talented backfield with adequate protection.

Now consider the Milford defense.

Actually, there doesn't seem to be any evidence that a Milford defense exists. They say it does, but many remain skeptical.

The Wolves proved weeks ago that they can win on the road, and looking for a serious deficiency in the Wolves' game is like trying to find a parking space on Clarkston's Main Street.

The Redskin offense could make this contest interesting, but the outcome seems preordained. CLARKSTON by EIGHT.

WEST BLOOMFIELD at LAKE ORION: Pity poor Lake Orion. You'd think that one Greater Oakland team would treat the league's newcomers with a little civility and let them win a game in front of the home crowd.

But the Lakers won't feel obliged to be any kinder than the Dragons' previous four opponents. WEST BLOOMFIELD by 12.

ROCHESTER at WATERFORD KETTERING: Betting on Rochester to win a football game is like betting on Harold Stassen to win the Republican nomination for president. But for some unearthly reason, we smell an upset here. ROCHESTER by TWO.

Wolverines win boards; Cougars win game

By Al Zawacky

The Clarkston Wolverines may have dominated the boards, but it was the Sashabaw Cougars who dominated the scoring.

That was the story last week in the Sashabaw Junior High gymnasium as the SJH girls' basketball team downed cross-district nemesis Clarkston Junior High 34-28.

"I told our girls at halftime that we were being pushed under the basket — that we had to spread out more to get the rebounds," said SJH Coach Nancy Foster. "Even so, we still got killed on the boards."

The Cougars weren't doing too well on the scoreboard, either — at least until the fourth quarter. It was then that the Wolverines found themselves inundated by a furious Sashabaw rally.

Trailing 17-12 at halftime and 23-18 at the end of the third quarter, the Cougars outscored Clarkston 16-5 in the final stanza to earn the victory.

Leading scorers in the contest were Sashabaw's Sheila Moore and Clarkston's Sue Ketvirtis with 10 points each. Cougar Sue Castillo and Beth Chartier of the Wolverines contributed eight points apiece.

"I'm not disappointed with the way we played," said CJH Coach Dennis Bronson afterwards. "We just missed too many good shots, and Sashabaw played very well in the second half.

"They deserved to win." The large Sashabaw contingent on hand in the SJH gym, who yelled themselves hoarse in the pivotal fourth quarter, probably would have agreed.

"It helps," said Foster when asked of the affect a good crowd has on her players. "I think the crowd might have hindered both teams a little at first by making them nervous — but once we got settled down, it definitely helped us."

"The rivalry (between SJH and CJH) isn't as intense as it used to be, but it's still there. This game means a little more to the players."

Carol Hunter and Ketvirtis were the Wolverines leading rebounders, pulling down 17 and 13 respectively. Lin Klinger was the leading rebounder for Sashabaw with 10, while teammate Kim Lorenz had eight.

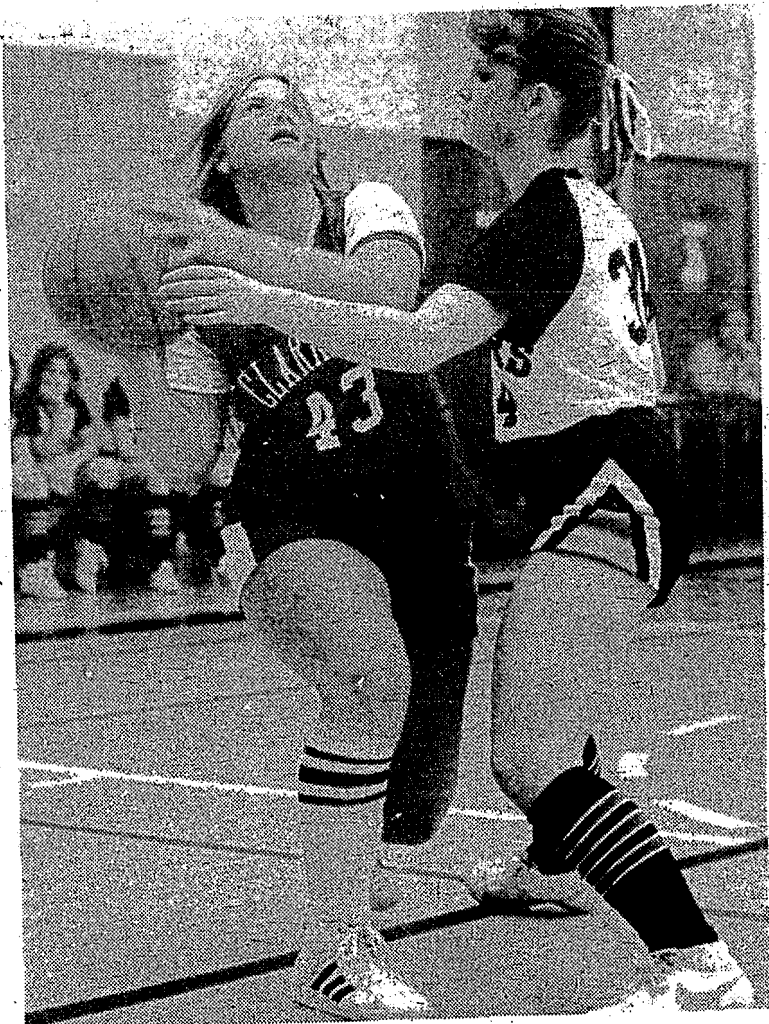

With the victory, the Cougars improved their record to 2-4 on the season, while the Wolverines dropped to 4-3.

"I think this is the first time Sashabaw has defeated Clarkston in basketball in about four years," Foster said.

"If we can keep playing as well as we played tonight, we can beat anyone."

Who's got the basketball? Cougars Kris Kelly [50] and Sheila Moore [44] head toward the basket, but Wolverines Beth Chartier [25] has other ideas.

Wolverine Terri Fields [left] has her eyes fixed on the basket as she attempts to shoot over the defensive tactics of Cougar Misty Moshier.

CHS alum starring for Adrian College

A Clarkston High School alumnus is making quite a name for himself in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

Tim Fogg, son of former Clarkston area residents Max and Verónica Fogg, rushed for five touchdowns to lead the Adrian College Bulldogs to a 31-3 victory over Alma College Oct. 4, earning him the MIAA's offensive player of the week honors.

The 5-foot-10, 185 pound junior totaled 173 yards rushing on 31 carries against Alma, earning him the praises of Bulldog head coach Tom Heckert.

"Tim's effort was truly remarkable," Heckert said. "How many times will any running back score five touchdowns in one game?"

"The offensive line opened some big holes, but even when there was no room, Tim broke tackles and stayed on his feet."

Fogg is a 1978 graduate of Clarkston High School. His parents currently make their home in Kendallville, Ind.

Surprise!

Friends cook up party Bill Mitchell will never forget

By Kathy Greenfield

Restaurant owners can be difficult people to plan birthday parties for — what does one do? Cook up a gourmet delight? Go to a new, outstanding spot for dinner?

Barbara Blachura of Independence Township and Virginia Mansfield of Holly chose instead to cook up a 54th birthday surprise Bill Mitchell is bound to remember forever.

Mitchell, who owns Mitch's Tavern in Pontiac, must have known something was up when the mobile home the partygoers were riding in stopped next to McDonald's of Clarkston on Dixie Highway.

Members of the Clarkston High School met him there, played happy birthday tunes, and joined in on a parade around the McDonald's building.

Once inside, the look on Mitchell's face was priceless when he spotted the decorated corner of the fast-food restaurant and the hand-lettered sign that simply said, "Billy No. 54."

There was plenty of laughter and glee over the successful surprise.

Mitchell calmly lit a cigar and was heard to mutter things like: "And they told us to get dressed up," "Who's paying for this?" and "I can't believe it."

The three couples — Barbara and Leon Blachura (he owns North Oakland Development, the company that built the new Mitch's Tavern), Virginia and Rudy Mansfield, and Edna and Bill Mitchell — frequently go out for dinner together, usually to places like the London Chop House in Detroit.

"We just thought that it would be funny," said Barbara about the party. "He says Virginia and I never pay for the dinner — that the men always pay."

No worry this time. The women said it was their treat.

With absolute pleasure, Virginia Mansfield lets Bill Mitchell know that this is it—his 54th birthday party is to be celebrated with a birthday party at McDonald's.

As Mitchell grimaces over the loud music, members of the Clarkston High School Marching Band play him a tune at McDonald's of Clarkston.

Half century later, quilt's like new

After 49 years, a quilt originally begun by Dellah Johnson, 91, is finally reaching completion.

For nearly half a century, the calico blue and pink bear's claw quilt has rested inside a trunk at her home on Holcomb Street, Clarkston.

Recently the family heirloom was resurrected by Mrs. Johnson's three daughters and a family friend for the final tying ceremony.

Without a doubt, the tying ceremony was a real "trunk veto," qualifying the quilt for place at the foot of a bed.

Inez Tubbs and her mother Mrs. Dellah Johnson.

The four women, under the supervision of Mrs. Johnson, got together last week to complete the quilt.

"I began piecing the quilt together one winter," Mrs. Johnson recalls. "But somehow it never was finished, I had a child soon after, and I raised a family of six. There just never seemed to be enough time.

"I mentioned it from time to time, and even asked church groups if they would tie the quilt for me. But they always wanted to sell it or raffle it off, and I wanted to keep it.

"Now," she said smiling, "it's going to be finished."

It may have taken 49 years to finish the quilt, but the colors are no worse for the wear and all the hand stitching is strong and solid. Dellah Johnson's three daughters and a family friend got together to complete the final tying in a good old-fashioned quilting bee. From left, daughter Inez Tubbs, Mrs. Johnson, daughters Uldene Jones and Dawn Tower and friend Grace Hoyt.

PLANNING A PARTY? Clarkston News now has "Hello My Name Is" name tags in red, blue and green.

Ask a lawyer

by John Leh, J.D.

QUESTION: Is divorce the only way to get out of a marriage?
ANSWER: No. In Michigan, marriages may be terminated by divorce or annulment, or the marital relationship can be terminated without an actual divorce in an action called separate maintenance.

There are some basic differences between these actions.

An annulment is based on the theory that there never was a valid marriage. A divorce actually terminates the marriage, and separate maintenance does everything a divorce does without ending the marriage.

The court will annul a marriage if it is proven that the marriage was invalid. A bigamous marriage is invalid, so is one where one of the parties was insane at the time of the marriage. If you get your beau, or wealthy neighbor, dead drunk and then get married, there may be evidence that the marriage was fraudulently induced and it may be annulled.

Both divorce and separate maintenance require a showing that the marriage relationship has broken down and there is no reasonable likelihood that the marriage can be preserved. There is no way one party can prevent a divorce if the other party has made the required showing. Because the separate maintenance action has the same requirements at the divorce action, if one party files for separate maintenance the other may counter claim for divorce (and upon proper showing that the marriage has broken down and there is no likelihood of reconciliation) the court must grant the divorce, not the separate maintenance.

In each action the court has the power to make property settlements. Since an annulment is based on the theory that the marriage never existed, there can be no provision however, for either party to make support payments or alimony to the other. That type of award is based on the obligations of marriage and can be awarded in a divorce or separate maintenance.

News wins awards

The Clarkston News topped all other weekly newspapers in its circulation category by winning the most awards in the top three spots in the Michigan Press Association's 1980 Newspaper Contest.

Five certificates were awarded in the following categories: Second in general excellence and thirds in local news reporting, use of graphics, editorials written by former News editor Pat Braunagel, and feature stories.

News reporter Marilyn Trumper's story "Island Heritage Hunt Yields 'Gold'" was chosen as the feature winner.

The contest results were announced this week in conjunction with National Newspaper Week (Oct. 12-18), a time when a concentrated effort is made to stress the community service role of a newspaper and the relationship between personal freedom and freedom of the press.

Colorado Press Association judged the 948 entries from 72 weekly newspapers in four circulation categories and 33 daily newspapers in three circulation categories.

You rang?

by Herb Rose

We were talking about the study in contrasts that is provided by the behavior patterns of restaurant employees, noting the not-overly subtle difference in a waitress' response to a stated preference for fruit juice rather than a cocktail.

I used to say: "A martini," when asked if I would like something from the bar, and then would have trouble stemming the flow of libations which were backed with suggestive question like: "Another drink before dinner, sir, or shall I put in your order?"

Now, when I ask for grapefruit juice, I quickly find myself being addressed by an unsmiling waitress saying: "Here is your grapefruit juice, your dinner and your check."

A greater enigma was presented the other day.

You might think that the quiet-spoken diner who signals the waitress as unobtrusively as possible and expresses his wishes in dulcet tones would be the customer treated with solicitous courtesy in the hope that he not only return but bring more like him.

Your thinking is flawed. My point was proved when I attempted to replace my coffee cup on the saucer and I neglected to notice a small, closer container of cream that had rolled under the cup. After nearly spilling the coffee, I took another sip, removed the troublesome cream container and confidently replaced the cup unsquarably on a second overlooked container.

In exasperation I said a four-letter word.

I did not mutter this word under my breath. I said it in a clear, resonant voice that, like a hard hit golf ball, carried well.

Had I been on stage, I would have been assured that those in the back row heard me clearly and understood perfectly.

What followed was truly fascinating. A sudden, almost reverent, hush fell over the entire area.

We were aware of dishes rattling in the kitchen and the soprano laughter of a feminine diner in another room. Somewhere a fire engine was answering a call.

Then, as the background noise rose to its usual level, the first of innumerable, extremely attentive waitresses arrived, asking: "Is everything all right?" "May

I fill your coffee cup?" "More bread, perhaps?"

Not only was there a myriad of waitresses, but the manager stopped to see that all was well. I almost expected the parking lot attendant to report on the status of our vehicle.

I has the feeling that the entire staff had been admonished with: "I don't know what he wants, but see that he gets it."

It is comforting to know that a single spoken work can so inspire people.

I am thinking of plotting a chart of responses against a list of words and publishing it as an adjunct to some Diner's Guide.

After 21 years, Margaret Turk retires

She still loves to cook for crowds

Cooking Sunday dinners for her family is an activity Margaret Turk still enjoys even after 21 years of preparing lunches for Clarkston Junior High School pupils.

By Kathy Greenfield
Margaret Turk remembers the evening 20 years ago before she took over the job as cook manager at Clarkston Junior High School.

"When they asked me if I wanted to be head cook, I didn't sleep all night, because I didn't know how to cook spaghetti," she says with a laugh.

The memory was shared last week as Margaret was honored at a retirement luncheon attended by co-workers and friends at the school.

Although the job started with one misgiving, Margaret quickly overcame her worries.

"I enjoyed every minute of it," she says. "If I didn't like to cook, this wouldn't have been a good job for me."

Margaret, 61, would still be on the job if it hadn't been for a heart attack last year.

After spending the past 21 years cooking for 600 to 700 pupils a day during the school year, she states her dismay at having to retire with tears in her eyes.

"It's with deep regret that I have to leave this school," she says. "It really bothers me."

There's still plenty to do around her home on King Road, Springfield Township, though.

Margaret and her husband Willard raised six children and are now taking care of five grandchildren, three of whom are still in school.

Margaret also enjoys cooking up dinners at home for her large family.

"Every Sunday, nearly all my kids are home," she says.

She's also looking forward to her husband's retirement and would like to return to Hawaii for another vacation.

And she feels good. "I feel I'm just 50 today," she says. "I feel young."

DAR Award winner likes challenges

'Julie LePere is an outstanding student'—Gabier

By Kathy Greenfield
Most of all, Julie LaPere likes challenges. That's why volleyball, trigonometry and tutoring appeal to her, she says. Her attitude, one that Clarkston High School Assistant Principal Jan Gabier describes as "Continually giving 100 percent," has resulted in Julie being named winner of the first senior class honor of the year — the DAR (Daughters of the American Revolution) Award.

When the announcement came over the high school PA system, Julie was taken by surprise.

She was in her trig class, making last-minute adjustments on her homework.

"I wasn't really paying attention to the announcements when they came on," she says, remembering the morning of Oct. 3. "I heard my name come on and it scared me half to death."

Her classmates quickly informed Julie that she had won the DAR award, though, and she was pleased.

Julie, 17, lives on Clarkston-Orion Road in Independence Township. She is the daughter of Juanita LePere of Independence Township and Dr. Ronald LePere of Waterford Township.

Volleyball is her favorite sport and she plays on the CHS tennis team as well.

"It's exciting," she says about volleyball. "I'm not tall, so I'm a setter. It's a challenge to get under the ball before it hits the floor."

Her height, measured to the fraction of an inch, is 5 feet, 2 3/4 inches.

As Julie speaks of the activities she likes best, the word challenge keeps cropping up.

"I like a challenge," she says about working with elementary school pupils in a communications skills class at the high school and tutoring a junior high and she's thinking of majoring in journalism. She also wants to play on a college volleyball team.

Selection of the DAR Award winner is made by the CHS administrative council, made up of department heads; by the two senior class sponsors; and by the three high school administrators.

The award is based on established qualities for good citizens — leadership, depen-

Julie LePere: "I like a challenge."

school student at home.

"If you can say something to make them understand, it's great," she adds, explaining it's important to talk about the kinds of things that interest the children.

Her favorite subject is English.

"I like Spanish, too. It helps me understand English better," she says.

Julie plans to attend college ability, service and patriotism.

Gabier is one of the school administrators involved in the selection of the DAR Award winner.

"Julie is an outstanding senior, and when I say outstanding, I mean outstanding," she says.

"If you give Julie a job, you know she's going to do it well and give 100 percent. She's just a delightful girl."

Talking about . . .

On Main Street, Clarkston, we asked this week's question:

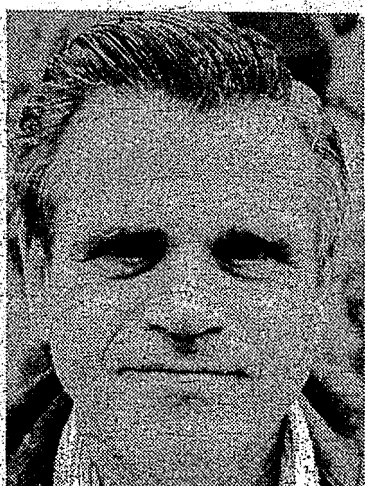

What's your opinion of adult foster care homes?

"They're all right. You've got to have them there, they're better off than in an institution. In a home, they have a family environment."—Benny Hanson, Brandon Township, farm worker.

"I think they'd be all right for this area. The homes are well supervised and they don't do any harm."—Ruth Anderson, S. Main Street, Independence Township, housewife.

"They are all right with me. Those people have to live somewhere. If everybody keeps turning them down in neighborhoods where are we going to put them?"—Lawrence Clark, Clarkston-Orion Road, Independence Township, employee of the Ford Motor Co.

"I wouldn't want one next to me. It would bring down the property values. On the other hand, it would provide a good place for the residents to have a normal environment to live in. Too many of those homes go in without the surrounding residents knowing what they're agreeing to. They don't get the full story."—Jeri DeCiantis, Hadley Road, Independence Township.

"I think zoning laws should be upheld regardless of any reason. There should be a voter referendum regarding special zoning for these homes."—John Feldmann, Parview Road, Independence Township, plant protection for General Motors Corp.

Merl Troth: 'Pearfect' apple man

By Martha Fulford

Merl Troth has been growing fruit since he was knee high to a duck. At least, so says his wife, Pearl.

The Troth's backyard is a veritable jungle of fruit trees, heavy limbs bowing under the weight of ripening fruit.

Merl's corner of earth hosts a hefty sampling of most of nature's sweets. There are half a dozen varieties of grapes; raspberries, strawberries and cherries; plums, pears and gooseberries.

"Our vegetable garden has everything you can think of," adds Pearl.

And, of course, there are lots of apples. Sixteen kinds of apples.

Under his father's direction, Merl planted his first apple tree in 1906, when he was ten years old. "I held the new apple trees in the hole while my dad shoveled dirt on them," said Merl.

That was in Indiana, where his father owned a 100-acre orchard. As Merl and his brother grew, so did the orchard. At one time the family's 320 acres was the largest bearing orchard in the state.

Disaster struck in 1936. It flew in with record packs of locusts and one of the worst hail storms on record. "The hail was two inches deep and just crawling with locusts," remembers Merl.

The elements stripped all the bark off the trees that May. "We had some experts from Purdue come down to look over the trees," said Merl. "They told us not to put another dime into them. Well, we sprayed and pruned anyway, and had a nice crop of apples coming out on the trees. But as the fruit ripened and got heavier, all the limbs broke down; they had been so weakened by the hail.

"You know, after you get that stuff in your blood you just can't shake it out."

Merl moved to Michigan in '37 and worked at a number of jobs as a toolmaker. "I had experience doing that because we always had to repair our own tools out in the orchard," said Merl.

After working in Detroit with Studebaker for four years, he returned to Indiana where his father was busy setting out a new 30-acre orchard.

Merl eventually returned and settled in Lake Orion's Bunn Run, putting in 15 years as tool-room supervisor at GM Truck and Coach. Later he and a friend opened their own company, Crescent Machinery.

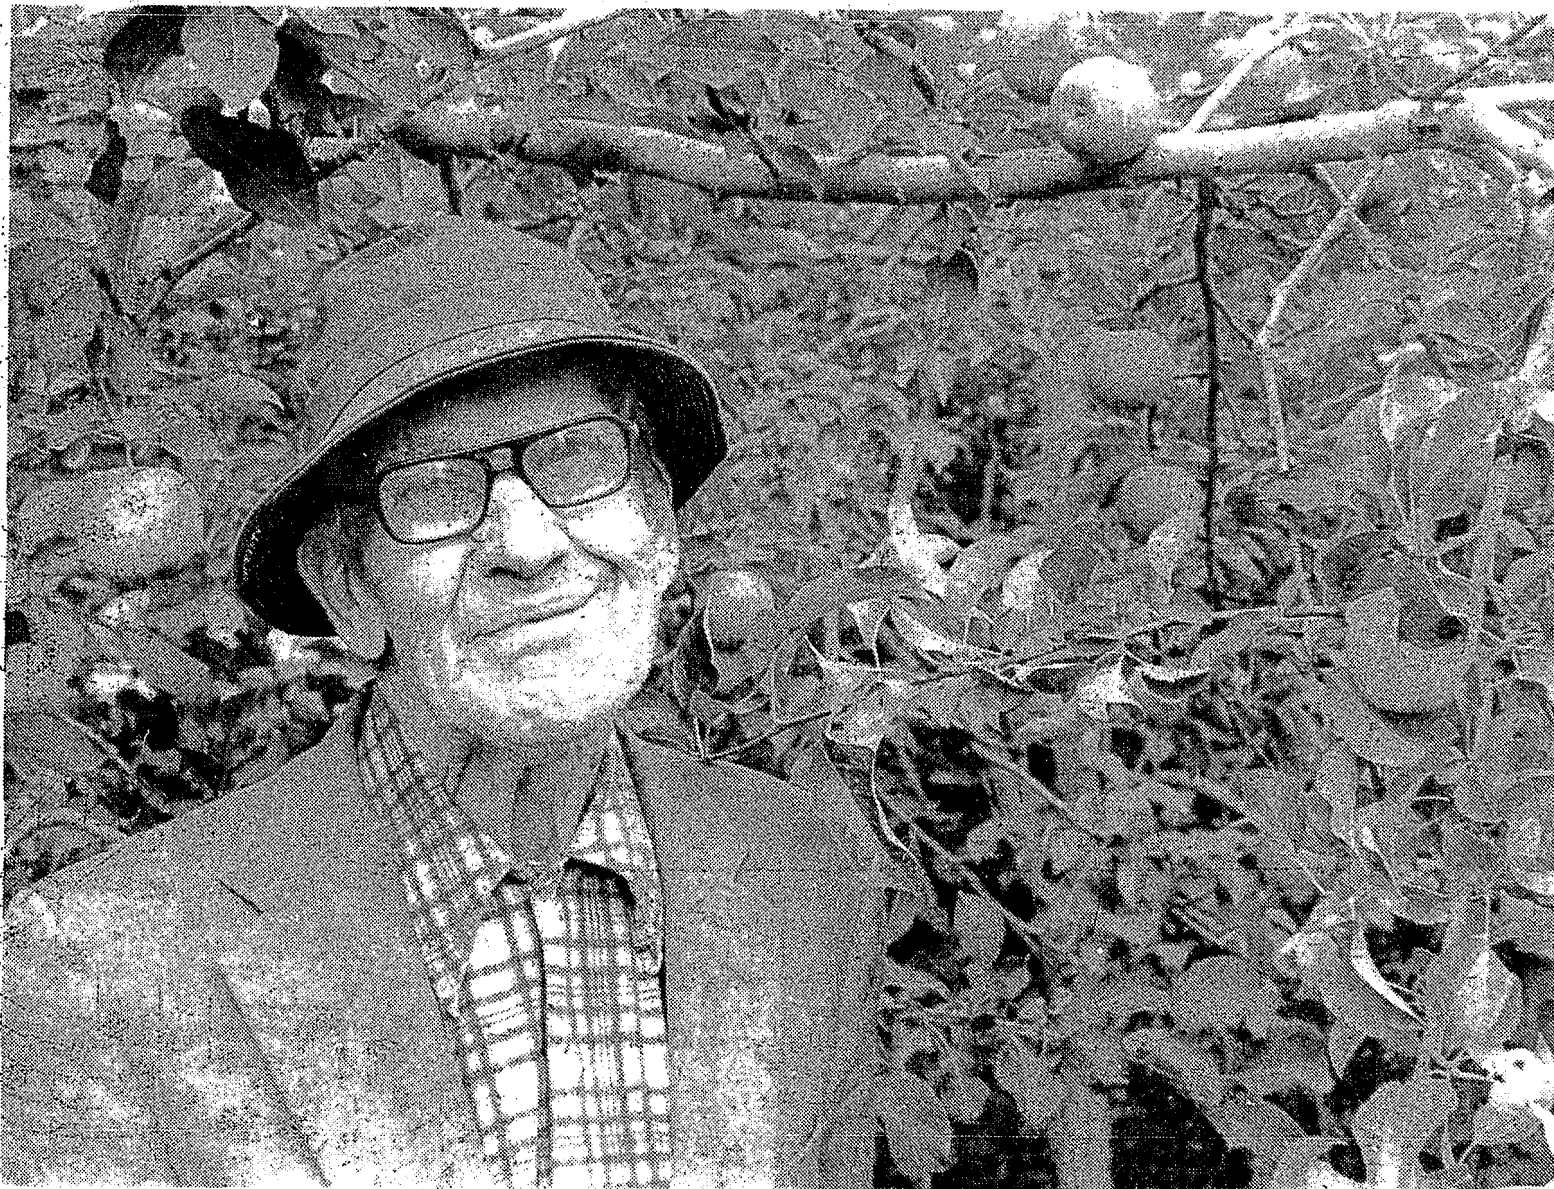

From apples to tools, then back to apples. These days Merl spend most of his time working with his trees.

Grafting has always been his hobby. One tree has 11 different varieties of apples on its boughs. Merl also has pears growing on his apple trees and red-faced apples spotted among the pears.

A 52-year-old Russian apple tree stands right outside the Troth's back door. At one time Merl wanted to cut it down. The apples ripened in June and they had a bad color. They tasted good enough, but that was "because after you've gone all winter without apples, that first one tastes pretty good."

After thinking it over, Merl decided he didn't want to lose the tree after all. Instead, he started grafting all sorts of other limbs on to the Russian.

Figas see area from varied angles

Country Living

by Al Zawacky

Joe and Joyce Figa view life in the Clarkston area from two very different perspectives.

"I'm originally from Pontiac, so I was kind of a city kid," says Joe, relaxing in the family room of the Figas' home on Snowapple Drive in Independence Township.

"Joyce, on the other hand, was a farm girl," he says, recalling the time they met as students at Michigan State University.

A native of Marine City, a small town about 20 miles south of Port Huron, Joyce's perspective of Clarkston is naturally a little different than her husband's.

"Compared to the way I was brought up, this is the city," she chuckles.

Although relative newcomers to the Clarkston area, the Figas quickly found themselves pleased with the friendly people and the small-town atmosphere.

Prior to living in their Independence Township home the family lived in Troy for three-and-a-half years and in Flushing for seven-and-a-half.

"Clarkston still has that small town feeling—A feeling that's very difficult to describe," Joyce says.

It's more than just the rural atmosphere, notes Joe—it's a feeling of continuity with past history that you don't get in boom-town suburbs like Troy.

"Clarkston has a unique flavor," he notes. "I think it's important to be able to drive down Main Street and see homes 50, 60, 100 years old. It gives you some stability, and provides a living link with the past.

"I think the area is really going to have to struggle in the future to maintain that flavor—you have to draw a delicate balance to providing jobs and services and keeping that unique character alive.

"And when what we've got here is gone, it's gone forever."

Joe works with the Oakland County Parks Recreation Department as chief of design and development, a job that makes him responsible for the coordination, planning and design of park development projects.

way to get around."

Joe earned a bachelor of science degree in Landscape architecture at MSU, while Joyce holds a bachelor's degree in teaching and a master's in food and nutrition research.

Although she has the education and training for a job in the business world, Joyce's role of homemaker and mother to three children is an occupation she's proud of.

"Fourteen years ago when I had my oldest child, I decided my career would be my family," Joyce says.

She has spent some of her

In fact, they like school. Kind of, anyway.

Chris says he likes everything about it, especially reading, while Rob and Jeff appreciate being with their friends.

"It's really not so bad," Jeff says of school and the work involved.

As for hobbies, Rob enjoys working with model trains, Jeff likes working with model cars and engines, and both Chris and Rob played little league baseball in the Independence Parks and Recreation program this past summer.

In the Figa's backyard you'll

'Clarkston has a unique flavor. . . it gives stability and provides a link with the past'—Joe Figa

His interest in recreation and the community in general led him to serve one year as chairman of the Independence Township Safety Path Committee, a group of township residents dedicated to having a system of bicycle and safety paths installed in Independence.

"We now have a new chairman, but I'm still active with the safety path committee," Joe says.

Following voter approval of a millage proposal to help finance the system, the construction of the first phase of the paths will probably begin next spring, he notes.

"I think the paths are compatible to our community," Joe says. "They'll provide people with a healthy, energy-saving spare time doing volunteer work in schools and is currently taking an income tax course sponsored by the tax-preparing firm of H and R Block.

"It's pretty difficult," Joyce says of the course. "They go into a lot of detail and explain every-thing.

"And since I haven't taken a class since I've been in college," she adds with a chuckle, "it's proving to be quite a challenge."

There are three boys in the Figa family: 14-year-old Jeff, 13-year-old Chris. Jeff and Rob attend school at Sashabaw Junior High, while Chris goes to Pine Knob Elementary.

Asking the Figa boys how they like school will not produce the usual twisted frowns and hanging tongues.

find evidence of one of Joe and Joyce's favorite hobbies — gardening.

But the small vegetable garden behind their home is really only the tip of the iceberg — they also own property in Joyce's old home town of Marine City where they grow a cornucopia of apples, grapes, cherries, pears, apricots and numerous vegetables.

"There are chores like pruning and spraying, but we both really enjoy it," Joe says. "We own about 60 acres, but we rent most of it out and just have a small area set aside for ourselves.

The land itself has been in the family for a while, Joyce explains. "My mother planted all of the trees 15 years ago when she retired," she says.

"We buy fruits and vegetables in the summer," Joe notes, "but once our harvest comes in, we're pretty well set."

Although the Figa family is orientated to the rural way of life, they both find city life an interesting alternative that does have its advantages.

The whole family was fresh from a drive to downtown Detroit's Renaissance Center area, and by taking the trip straight down Woodward Avenue a good example was provided of the city's best — and worst.

"The whole world can't be cities, and the whole world can't be Clarkstons," Joyce says. "For some people, the city is a better way of life."

"No matter where you decide to live, you have to give up something," Joe adds. "It's just a matter of where you place your priorities.

"I think people in small towns are more aware of their environment — they're more relaxed and there's less hustle and bustle.

"We love this area, and it's where we've chosen to live — but we can appreciate city life, too."

Joe and Joyce Figa say they appreciate a small-town atmosphere, and think they've found just that in their present home. Approaching their third year as Independence Township residents, the Figas like Clarkston's historical flavor and rural atmosphere. From left are Jeff, Chris, Joe, Joyce and Rob.

4-day work week here

Recently we looked at the U.S. auto industry and offered our opinion that given another year, America will outperform the foreign competition.

We think there's the management know-how to do this, and the physical plant to turn out the product. The natural resources of coal and steel and easy access to them and the thousands of small suppliers with experience in building car parts, make a mighty machine.

The sand in the gear box right now is the sky-high wage settlements pushed through by Doug Fraser of the United Auto Workers.

The Detroit News editorially said recently:

"Company managements have much to answer for, too. It was they who failed to resist excessive demands—with the result that a person screwing a bolt into a car earns about $20,000 a year before overtime.

"By 1982 he will be making over $30,000 a year, if he has a job. With fringe benefits, the total cost to his employer will be more than $41,000 a year."

The News pointed out that from 1958 to 1977 auto workers wages went up 205 percent, while consumer prices went up 110 percent.

In 1978 they figure that auto workers got $27 a day in fringe benefits. That's the same amount they got in wages 20 years ago for a day's work. The cost of living allowance (COLA) is now close to 100 percent so inflation doesn't worry the people on the assembly line—unless the plant shuts down, as so many have been doing.

The number of paid days off has become ridiculous. In the new contract, personal paid holidays were increased from 12 to 26 a year. You get a day off for your birthday, for example, and three days off if Aunt Minnie dies in Tennessee.

Legal holidays total about 10. Columbus has to be venerated on his day, too.

Then there are vacations, up to four weeks of those.

The four-day week is no longer a dream. It's here. If you have 26 paid days off, plus 10 legal holidays, plus 15 days of vacations, that's a total of 51 days—close enough to one a week.

And the economists are puzzled about our decline in productivity! You'd think it would occur to the pointy-heads that you can't build as many cars in four days as you can in five.

On top of all this there is the antagonism of Washington and the hot-eyed crowd of Ralph Nader who want to saddle new cars with $500 air bags that hardly anybody wants.

All this mania for the riskless society has a cost, it costs you as a car buyer. And sooner or later it hurts car sales, and that means jobs.

All the gimmicks of the Department of Transportation haven't accomplished half as much for safety as the simple lowering of the speed limit.

So while the American industry can fight the imports, the pay scales make it hard. Our resources and our system can triumph eventually, but Doug Fraser will make it difficult.

Village Needlecrafts: Stitchery hobbyists' haven

Village Needlecrafts has everything for the needle point or cross-stitch minded person.

But it's not only the shelves filled with embroidery floss, or wools, or the dozens of patterned canvasses that greet customers' eyes and capture their attention.

It's also the pegged hardwood floor, the plastered ceiling and large colonial fireplace, along with the large spinning wheel, big wooden bench and dozens of antiques serving as displays.

Owner Chris Boyd likes her new location. She recently moved to 69 S. Main Street, Clarkston, from the building next door.

Her new location is a mixture between shop and home.

"I've had people come in and tell me this is the Plum house," she said smiling. "They come in and tell me that they used to live here or had relatives living here."

Along the fireplace mantle rests displays of completed needle points and scattered throughout the store are more with everything from geometric to Christmas designs.

Chris offers shelves of books on different stitchery techniques. There's everything from the unusual to those found in certain areas of the world, like the Orient.

There are purses with canvas patches so the customer can create a personalized handbag and pillow forms and canvases for personalized headrests.

"I think I have just about everything here," she said. "But I don't carry supplies for knitting or crocheting. I don't know how to do those things myself, so if a customer asked for help, I come on in and bring it with them.

"I'll sit down and take a look at it and see if I can't help them out," she said.

Village Needlecrafts is open Tuesday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. It's closed Sundays.

On Mondays, the shop is closed, Chris said, because classes are held that day.

couldn't help them."

"I do offer workshops and needle point classes for those interested in the field. I plan to offer some more this year for cross-stitchery and bargello," she said.

Bargello is a technique of stitching with straight lines to form a geometric pattern, she said.

Chris has been in business downtown Clarkston for the past five years.

"Sixty percent of my customers are from the Independence Township area," she said. "After five years you know your customers. They come in and chat and it's nice. I've always told them if they have a problem with a project, to Chris Boyd, owner of Village Needlecrafts on Clarkston's Main Street, takes time out to work on a stitchery canvas. Many of the displays in the store are Chris's own creations, and she's always ready to help a patron who's stuck on a particular stitch. Stocking up for the holidays, the Merry Christmas displayed on the table is just one of the many designs she carries.

Tom Bateman to remain active

Bateman Realty Co. sold to Bob Shooltz

Bateman Realty Co. has been sold.

Tuesday, former owner Tom Bateman, announced he's sold to Bob Shooltz and the company will now be known as Bateman Shooltz Realty Co.

For the past eight years the company's closest facility in this area has been the Clarkston-Waterford office located at 5400 Dixie Highway, Independence Township.

Shooltz, of Oxford is now president and chairman of the board. He joined Bateman as a sales-trainee in Oct. 1972 and has served as executive vice-president since June of 1977.

Active in the National Association of Realtors (NAR) and the Michigan Association of Realtors, Shooltz presently serves as committee chairman and director of the North Oakland County Board of Realtors.

"Our goal," Shooltz said, "is to continue in the tradition of Bateman professionalism and to expand the number of offices to provide a full scope of services so we may better serve the public."

"Our motto has always been, 'It pleases us to please you,'" he said.

Bateman is to remain active as president of Bateman Investment and Community Company.

Elsie Coldwell continues as secretary-treasurer with the company and June Conlin remains as vice-president.

From suffrage to present and more

Program for women voters

A program discussing the history, significance and importance of women voters will be presented by Sue Wagner on October 22, 7:30 p.m. at Upland Hills Ecological Awareness Center.

The presentations will include the way women have exercised their voting right since suffrage, an explanation of women's issues at the 1980 national convention and women as a special interest group. There will be a question and answer session after the presentation.

"We hope that this evening will offer women in the community the basis for viewing their interests and the 1980 election decisions that they will soon make," said Wagner.

Sue Wagner is the Lansing Legislative Liaison for the National Organization for Women. She has a master's degree in history with an emphasis in Women's Studies and is co-director of the Michigan State University's Natural Science Department's program, "Science, Politics, and Feminism." She is also an instructor at Lansing Community College.

For more information, people may call the Center at 693-1021. The fee for the presentation is $2.00.

Fruit is the apple of his eye

Today that old tree, with sagging limbs propped up by two-by-fours, fathers Golden Delicious, Dr. Matthews, Rambo, Grime's Golden, Jonathan, Stark's Earliest, Wine Sap, Star Crimson, Jona Red and the Russian granddaddy, Astrichan.

They all taste different, too. Wine Sap is a special, "old fashioned" apple because it keeps all winter.

Grafting limbs on other trees is quite a common practice. "Any fruit with five seed cavities can be grafted to an apple tree," said Merl. "When you graft a pear to an apple tree, it has to be done in April when the sap's coming up."

One of the benefits of growing different varieties on a single tree is the increased fertility. "Some apples won't pollinate themselves," said Merl. "So if you get a bunch of different ones together near the bees, you'll get all kinds of apples."

"You know, fruit trees are just like people," added Merl. "They get sick, they have fungus troubles, bugs bite 'em. But if you care, they'll pay you back mighty well for the things you do for them."

The old 'apple a day' adage must have some merit to it. At 84 Merl Troth is still climbing trees and ducking bees. He takes care of apples, and they've taken darn good care of him.

Coping with kids

Too much rebellion indicates need for help

by Jim Windell

A certain amount of rebellion is expected during the adolescent years, we all know.

Yet, when a young person is acting out too much against the parental values, it is often the case that there is more to it than just rebellion and coming to terms with one's identity.

Take the situation in the Flynn family.

Walter, at 15, has run away once and discovered by his mother using drugs. After scoldings and groundings, both his mother and stepfather felt that an indefinite grounding was in order because "he can't be trusted when he leaves the house."

Mrs. Flynn, a direct and open woman, had confronted Walter and told him that he needed help.

His stepfather was more angry, hurt and tended to let his wife handle the discipline.

Arguments took place between Walter and his mother over his grounding and the issue of trust. These verbal clashes made it appear that the most serious problem was between Walter and his natural mother.

Walter kept insisting that it was his mother with whom he was angry and who caused the biggest problems. He felt that if the two of them could talk everything would get better.

There were no angry exchanges between Walter and his stepfather, who legitimately, because of his job, was not around as much as Mrs. Flynn. She was also more confronting.

One day in an argument with his mother, Walter had a brilliant flash of insight.

"I kept saying the problems had nothing to do with my stepfather," he said later. "But, it has everything to do with him."

Having lost his natural father through a divorce at age 3, his stepfather entered his life before Walter started school. His real father disappeared and was rarely heard from.

The issue of fathers was basically too sensitive for Walter to deal with. Fearful his stepfather would leave him as his real father did, Walter could not direct his anger toward his stepfather.

"I knew she'd always love me and never leave me because she is my real mom. I wasn't so sure of my stepfather."

When Walter could express those feelings to himself and his stepfather, a new breakthrough took place in the family. Walter's rebellious behavior had little reason to continue.

"I've been afraid he would leave me, too, just like my father did."

There was no question about his feelings of love toward the man who had been a good father for so many years, but he could really only show the other side of his feelings toward his mother.

Ann's ark

by Ann Glenn

Doggone discipline

J. Allen Boone in his book, "Kinship With All Life," describes a man going to a desert hermit and asking his help to understand his dog and get to the truth of the animal.

The hermit answers, "There's facts about dogs and there's opinions about dogs. The dogs have the facts, humans have the opinions."

A few queries recently about dog discipline problems, what to do when, and many whys require that I say my piece in this regard.

I have been accused of personification of animals, because I think that they pre-think of ways to get even with us or of things to do.

Years of experience tell me that dogs have us pretty well figured out.

Why does a dog soil the floor after years of being trained when a new baby comes home?

Why does the toy lap dog suddenly jump on the table when a new kitten or bird is added to the household?

Why do two dogs do something together that they would not do alone?

What do humans do to discipline their dogs? You get as many answers to this question as there are people to ask.

"I hit him with a newspaper," "I scream and yell," "I smack the dog's rear," "I never hit a dog or a child."

Discipline of a physical and vocal nature should only be used on severe crimes and then only when all else fails. Its effectiveness is not dependent on physical force or abuse, but rather on timing, a flair for drama, and surprise.

The dog should be sat down, eye-to-eye contact made, firm words with a sharp under-the-chin hit made. Never hit from above. This technique is generally for large, rather unruly dogs.

The shakedown method is to sit the dog and stand directly in front of the dog. Grab the skin of the jowels below the ears and shake speaking firmly.

You do not lift or throw the animal, but firmly get his attention as would happen in the wolf pack if the alpha wolf were showing the dog who was in charge. This is less severe and is for young dogs not puppies under six months, small dogs, etc.

There are only four or five crimes that a dog can commit that merit this discipline and they are only used when all else fails:

1. Aggression to humans — barking, charging, nipping.

2. Aggression between two dogs, usually both males or females.

3. Stealing food or objects from the counters or the table.

4. House soiling — but only when you are sure the dog has had every opportunity to understand what is expected of him and is not a victim of neglect.

Discipline must be clear and on the dog's level. Go get your dog for a correction. Never call him to you then punish him.

Sit the dog to avoid the dog scooting away.

Use eye-to-eye contact with the dog.

Use the under-the-chin or the shakedown method of discipline.

Never use an object to hit the dog. Never hit from above. Be very dramatic with your voice.

Ignore the dog for about one-half hour after discipline. Do not hold a grudge — forgive and forget.

Make up by speaking softly, asking the dog to do something for you (sit, praise, down, praise, heel, praise, or take a short walk with the dog).

Remember that the dog's prime desire is to be with you and to please you.

If you are resenting what the dog is doing or the time you are taking to care for the dog, your feelings are sensed by the dog and he feels frustrated.

Don't give up on the dog before you seek help, and try to build a relationship and truce.

Every bit of caring we do adds dimension to our lives.
