Smith ousts Tower

Rose wins with 70 percent; Ritter lone Democrat on board

By Marilyn Trumper

Republican candidates in last night's election captured all but one seat on the Independence Township Board.

James B. Smith

Lone Democrat Frederick Ritter was re-elected treasurer over his Republican opponent Carol Balzarini by a margin of 560 votes. Final tabulations placed Ritter with 53 percent of the votes cast — 4,830 to Balzarini's 4,270.

In the race for supervisor, James B. Smith (R) defeated Democrat Floyd (Whitey) Tower by 1,142 votes, or 56 percent. Final tallies showed Smith with 5,084 votes to Tower's 3,942.

Republican incumbent Clerk Christopher Rose soundly defeated Democrat Karen Herron by 70 percent with 3,718 votes. Final counts showed Rose with 6,306 votes to Herron's 2,588 votes.

In the trustee race, single Democratic candidate Guy Z. Derryberry lost out to his Republican opposition, capturing only 3,533 votes.

Incumbent Trustee William Vandermark (R) was re-elected with votes totaling 5,978.

Republican candidate for trustee Larence R. Kozma captured a majority of the votes with a count of 6,045.

Other winners in the race for trustee were Daniel F. Travis (R), capturing 5,888 votes and Dale A. Stuart (R) with 5,865 votes.

About 73 percent of the township's registered voters cast ballots.

Smith was visibly pleased with the election results.

"I feel I'm replacing a good man who is a credit to his community, and who certainly did his best. I don't see this so much as a personal victory, as much as it is a humbling challenge to bring about the goals and policies talked about during this election," he said.

Ritter, celebrating his victory at home, said, "I'm grateful to the voters who have recognized the treasurer's position requires sound financial acuity. I respect their opinion and I'd like to insure them that I will continue to do my best to represent them as I have in the past."

Rose said he was happy for election to his third straight term, adding he appreciated support from those who helped.

Voters soundly defeated a proposed 1/2 mill for road maintenance.

The final count for the road millage was 6,139 to 2,276.

Springfield race unseats incumbent

By Al Zawacky

In the only contested race in Springfield Township, Republicans Mary Watson and Shirley Secatch were elected to four-year terms on the township library board in Tuesday's election.

Candidates for positions on the township board and park commission ran without opposition in Springfield's remaining races.

Watson, an incumbent, received 1,680 votes in the library board race, while Secatch had 1,544. Both GOP candidates outpolled incumbent Democrat Ina Golden, who had 1,108 votes.

In the supervisor's race, incumbent Collin Walls (R) had 2,012 votes, while Democrat

John Mulloy, who had withdrawn from the race too late to have his name removed from the ballot, had 861.

An identical situation occurred in the treasurer's race, where incumbent Patricia Kramer (R) garnered 2,053 votes to Democrat Marjorie Kirk's 844. Kirk announced her withdrawal from the race last month.

The remaining unopposed winners were incumbent Clerk J. Calvin Walters (R) 2,140 votes; incumbent trustees William Whitley (R) 1,746 and Glen Vermilye (D) 1,318; and park commission candidates Charles Going (R) 1,831 and Frederic Steward (R) 1,806.

Approximately 68 percent of Springfield Township's eligible electors went to the polls Tuesday.

Family opens home to retarded adult

Glenn and Donna Underwood of Independence Township share an alternative philosophy about adult foster care homes.

They've offered to open their home to house a developmentally disabled adult.

On Sept. 17, the Underwoods submitted a request for foster care licensing of their home located at 5450 Maybee Rd.

Underwood, his wife and their three children ranging in ages from three months to eight years old, moved from Springfield to Independence Township last January.

They are in the process of completing construction on their new home.

"We've been involved in the program before, and I have a background in this area," Underwood said. "My brother is mentally retarded.

"The home we're living in now is big. We have five bedrooms and a lot of extra space. My wife and I started talking and decided that because we had the extra space, we'd use it."

The Underwoods have applied to house one resident.

"Because we have young children, my wife is home all day long," he said. "This is not something that turns us off. If we can provide a home for someone in a normal atmosphere, we want to do it."

There has been strong opposition to group homes across the state he said, but his is a different type of situation.

"The person would be living with our family. There's no reason for alarm. This can be a very rewarding experience, and it's a well-planned and run program."

Underwood spoke to the public's embarrassment in dealing with the mentally retarded.

"So many people have trouble coping with the embarrassment. To do this (opening your home) takes someone with a desire and someone who is not embarrassed," he said.

Foster care home applications may take up to six months to process, according to Michael Swajan, an adult foster care licensing consultant with the Department of Social Services.

The moral character of the applicants, their physical health and a string of standards are required for review. The home must be inspected for safety and pass fire inspections.

The number of residents in any home cannot exceed six, and the home cannot be located within 1,500 feet of another adult foster care home facility.

A state act says local zoning ordinances cannot prohibit a home from becoming established if the home complies with the number of residents and the 1,500 foot limitation, according to Swajan.

Since last May, the Underwoods' application has been the fourth submitted for foster care licensing in Independence Township.

Independence rifle ban shot to Hades

By Marilyn Trumper

Communication breakdown. That's when the art of relaying information goes to pot.

When it happens in marriage, folks file for divorce.

When it happens between two governmental bodies, divorce is impossible.

three consecutive weeks and, finally, the governor's signature.

Then and only then does the law become valid.

"We have a real communication breakdown here," said Bruce Andrews, supervisor of the Legal and Policy Section in the DNR's Law Enforcement

Back in January of this year, the township board passed another ordinance banning the discharge of firearms 1,500 feet south of Perry Lake Road.

"Here it is, almost one year later, and we're still waiting for the township to post special signs, so our inspector can insure it's been done correctly. Then we can move on to the next step," he said.

"They think they've made a law, here it is almost one year later, and they haven't."

Christopher Rose, township clerk, is frustrated trying to work with what little information he says he receives.

"We take action, send it into the state and nothing happens. Then six months later we'll get a letter telling us what to do next. There is a lack of communication. Why don't they send him down here to tell us what to do? We'll do it. But we don't know what to do.

"That guy really annoys me," Rose said.

Reconciliation appears impossible.

Can townships receive annulment?

Commentary

So there's going to be a messy reconciliation between Independence Township and the state's Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

Back on Sept. 16, the township board voted unanimously to ban hunting and discharge of rifles in the township, except at approved target ranges.

The law was supposed to become effective 30 days after publication.

Over and done with? Never?

To make the decision into law, there are 15 steps required by the state.

They include: Holding a second public hearing, approval and passage by several state committees, the signature of the attorney general, the posting of special no hunting signs, the printing of the ordinance for Division.

The process is at the point where a second public hearing has been scheduled for Nov. 12, Andrews said.

"But there's going to be at least a minimum of three to six months before the law is in effect. The township's ordinance has no effect until the governor signs the paper," he said.

Clarkston searches for new engineering firm

Council member Basinger blasts present engineers for conflict of interest

By Marilyn Trumper

Clarkston's Village Council is scouting for a new engineering firm, one which handles only municipalities and does not take private work.

At Monday night's meeting, council members agreed to invite several engineering firms to November meetings for question and answer sessions.

The decision to hire a new firm grew out of council member Ruth Basinger's concern with the present engineering company working for the village.

"Kieft did the engineering for Deer Lake Farms and at the same time was representing the village. There was a retention basin required by the village and township for that development to keep sediment from draining into the Mill Pond," Basinger said, following the meeting.

"That's an example of conflict of interest. Another example is the case where one village resident, who has not yet hooked into the sewer, is being advised by a member of Kieft Engineering. The village is in the process of bringing action against that person to hook up," she said.

Basinger also said Kieft Engineering was representing Deer Lake Racquet Club with its sewer extension and, because of that, the village did not receive advisement from Kieft on how that would affect village property.

"Anytime, in my opinion," she said, "an engineer is representing a project that will affect the village, the village should have advisement from its own engineer."

Delton Lohff, president and an owner of Kieft Engineering, contacted after the meeting, said he'd not been approached by any member of the council about a possible conflict of interest.

"We've served the village for 24 years," Lohff said. "I think we've done an adequate job and I don't see those as conflicts of interest."

"I feel that if someone thinks there is some kind of problem, they should discuss the problem. Just hiring a new engineer is not the proper way to operate," Lohff said.

Jim Scharl, a registered land surveyor with Kieft, and an owner, also spoke regarding allegations of a conflict of interest.

"I was originally contracted by the village to expedite the resident's sewer hookup," he said. "I was told to find out if there was a problem with the hookup. I got into the middle of a situation, but I did what the village asked me to do."

According to Scharl, Kieft designed the house lead service for the racquet club's sewers, but the sewers were on township land.

"The plan was inspected by the Oakland County Road Commission and other agencies. Why should I charge the village for work that can be done by other agencies? I used the experience of others to save the village money," he said.

Scharl also said he was unaware the retention basin installed for Deer Lake Farms was not functioning as it should be.

"That is in the township and the township has the maintenance agreement to insure it's operating correctly," he said.

"I was unaware that it's not operating correctly and it comes as a surprise to me. It was designed to meet county specifications. If it's not functioning then that should be looked into," he said.

At the meeting, the council agreed to invite the firms of Carlson, Hohlock, Mitchell and Piotrowski from Flint, Gould Engineering Inc. from Clarkston.

Council member Robert Adams objected to hiring the will flow into their work. That is in no way a reflection on Mr. Moshier," Adams said.

"We're talking public work projects from engineering firms. I wouldn't come into the village as a construction firm and do civic work," he said. "I have a Madoc agreed.

"I don't see how you can live here and not be pulled," she said.

Council member James Schultz said he felt positive about having the village firm of Moshier-Kapelczak, stressing that Harry Moshier is a village resident.

"I have the tendency to go against someone living in the community and dealing with the community, because I think bias certain feeling about the village that my outlooks would bring to bare. On the other hand it could well be advantageous to have the engineer living in the village, but if he had a pet peeve, well . . ."

The council has invited the firms to attend meetings on Mondays, Nov. 10 and 24, at 7:30 p.m., at Clarkston Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston.

Village selects planner

Clarkston's Village Council unanimously approved the appointment of Martha Johnston to the village's planning commission Monday night.

Johnston lives at 6260 Middle Lake Rd., Clarkston.

"We have no representation on the planning commission from that area," said council member Jackson Byers, concurring with President Fontie Ap-Madoc's appointment.

"Her husband is a former council president. She's very active in community affairs and I think she'd take a keen interest in whatever she does. She'd be a real asset," Byers said.

Johnston is replacing former planning commission member Nancy Prucher who resigned due to moving to Mexico.

Independent view

No, Clarkston High School hasn't changed its school colors. It's easy to get that impression, however, when driving by the CHS athletic field off Waldon Road.

Both the press box and concessions stands this year were painted in shades of brown and beige, forsaking the traditional CHS hues of blue and gold.

We have it from a reliable CHS source that the color change was based on the desire for more "earth colors" at the field. Maybe the Clarkston Wolves should change their name.

$13 million budget okayed

The $13 million budget for Clarkston Community Schools has been approved.

After nearly two hours of discussion, the school board unanimously okayed the 1980-81 budget last week.

Projections show expected revenue to be $12,348,768 with expenses totaling $13,013,847.

The resulting deficit of $665,079 is to be covered by using surplus funds from previous years, reducing the district's equity fund from $2,304,710 to $1,639,631.

Superintendent Milford Mason said he expects the revenue to be close to his projection.

"If anything, there is probably a likelihood of less than what I predicted," he said.

A drop in state aid of almost $800,000 was the largest expected decrease in funding over last year's figures and federal funds were also projected to drop about $20,000.

Other decreases, like an expected $100,000 less in interest on investments, were directly related to the state aid losses.

Revenue from local sources showed the only increase over last year's figures with property tax collections expected to exceed $7 million, up over $1 million from last year.

Overall, projected expenses were estimated to increase by an average of 9.6 percent for the six elementary schools and up an average of 4.3 percent for the two junior highs and the senior high.

Notice is a fraud

When two men brought a notice to our office telling of new benefits for veterans of World War II, we were surprised and pleased.

We were surprised that nothing had crossed our desk telling of the benefits, and pleased that they brought it to our attention.

The notice had been printed in a union newspaper. It read "Attention Veterans of WWII". It told of a bill being passed "in Congress recently... giving a dividend of 65c per $1,000 of their GI insurance for each month of service."

There was even a coupon to fill out and name and address to send your claim to.

The whole thing is apparently a fraud.

The Oakland County Veterans Services office said, "There's nothing to it. Every year this notice is put in union papers. The Veterans Administration is trying to track it down."

"Perhaps you can put something in your paper telling that there is nothing to it."

Too bad. It means $143,000 to us. JAS

Without trees...

by Kathy Greenfield

I've finally figured out why trees have that final burst of glory in the fall.

Memories of all the spectacular reds, golds and rust-colored leaves save them from doom after people rake up all the leaves in their yards.

As I sit here with aching hands after pushing a rake for several hours, it wouldn't be too difficult to convince me that I don't need trees.

Indeed, if someone offered to take a chain saw to their trunks, I don't think I'd try to stop them.

As we tackled the heavy coating of leaves in our yard, I remembered Sunshine Acres.

I used to laugh about that name. The subdivision had no trees. I could just imagine how it would feel to live in a home in Sunshine Acres. It would be difficult to get out of the sunshine there.

Suddenly, Sunshine Acres doesn't sound so bad.

By now, though, somebody probably destroyed its appeal and planted a tree or two.

Tomorrow, I'll like trees again. Honest.

Come to think of it, if there weren't trees, there wouldn't be newspapers, at least not as we know them.

That doesn't have a lot to do with the kinds of trees that grow in our yard, but it's a point or two in their favor.

On the subject of newspapers, one of the questions I'm most frequently asked is how we get our feature story ideas.

Most of them come from our readers.

Just how important it is for people in our community to let us know when they have ideas came to light recently.

A Sashabaw Junior High School student wrote a letter to our paper claiming that we showed favoritism to Clarkston Junior High School in our coverage.

We printed the letter without comment, although the situation we have faced for some time is that although we had called the school and asked for story ideas, few came our way.

After the letter appeared, it was the topic of a discussion at a parent's meeting at the school and since then, we've had calls every week from teachers at SJHS with requests for coverage.

The whole point is that we need to hear from you if you have ideas.

The student's letter resulted in exactly the kind of response that was needed. We thank him.

Letters to editor

They add congratulations

Dear Editor:

We at Pine Knob Manor Homes would like to add our congratulations to the many you have received for the recent honor and awards accrued to your fine local paper.

As was noted by the article for

"Monthly Detroit," the amount of local feature material and pictures helps us tell people about Clarkston as a community in which they would like to live.

The Michigan Press Association recognition of the local and feature excellence is indeed a plus for Clarkston, as well as a very good rating in the General Excellence category.

Just wanted you to know we read your publication with interest and appreciate having an award-winning paper in Clarkston.

Jim's jottings

Sweet music

by Jim Sherman

It was more than a year ago I ran across the book on "Learning to play the Harmonica — The easy way".

I pulled it out of storage and put it on my desk. It's in a basket with a busted tail light lens from my trailer, Dad's diary, snowmobile licenses, a Bic lighter, a sheet on exercises, a broken petcock, and other assorted goodies I'm going to use or replace.

Since we can't seem to find time to learn to play the piano, why not try the Harmonica?

There is one darn good reason.

I heard and watched a Harmonica player last Sunday.

We always said that watching a professional do anything is fun, and the Harmonica player is no exception.

The occasion was my brother's 35th wedding anniversary. We went to Ada to the home of Ed and Cathy (nee Howick) Sherman. My nephew married an Oxford girl and took her away.

One of my brother's friends is Pete Pedersen, and among Harmonica players few stand with him. He has made nearly all the scores for Harmonicats recordings, including "Sabre Dance".

Two weeks ago he was in New York playing the background music for one of the tv Soap shows. He played the background music for the movie "1,000 day war". He's written hundreds of jingles for commercials, appeared as guest artist with the Memphis Symphony, writes scores for entire orchestras, and writes, directs and plays in special productions.

Now living in Toronto, Pete last Friday "did" a commercial for the City of Ottawa, something about keeping the city clean. It's a 30-second commercial and took six hours to produce.

My brother went to the studio to watch his friend one day. He was there 2 hours, and said the commercial sounded great the first time. Not so to Pete's ear. It took 4 more hours to get it right.

In April Harmonica players from around the world are going to Boston for a 'session'. Pete's helping plan it.

This isn't just name dropping. It's just a way of telling you why I'll never learn to play the Harmonica.

Pete played for this gathering for 20 minutes, and after listening to "Peg of my Heart" and the theme from Dr. Zhivago, among other, I'm burning my lesson book. I think I'll throw out the broken petcock, too.

The Claw Print

SJHS classes create parody, poke fun at newspapers

By Kathy Greenfield

They stood in groups, many dressed in Halloween costumes, eagerly reading the orange, white and black magazine.

Its name: The Claw Print.

Those familiar with the Sashabaw Junior High School newspaper will instantly recognize the difference, for the regular paper is called the Paw Print, a symbol of the school's athletic teams—the Cougars.

The Claw Print is a creation of two eighth grade English classes and the outcome of a unit on creative writing taught by Barbara Markwood.

The index

is called

'Intestines,' . . .

It's loaded with pokes of Halloween fun at the school newspaper and the magazine also hits some everyday happenings.

There are plays on words throughout—the index is called "Intestines," there's a "Horror-Scope" with signs like "Sagiscarious," the school is called Spookbaw Junior High and an advice column is dubbed "Dear Dracula."

Bewitching weather reports are offered for Devil's Night with predictions for "devilishly cold" temperatures, "haunting high winds and screaming rains. Werewolves may be heard around midnight...temperatures in the terrifying 20s and dropping as the dead, silent night arrives."

For Halloween, the magazine forecast "blood-chilling temperatures...beware of bats and witches as dusk approaches...temperatures are expected to be a ghostly 15 degrees."

The parody also tackled the school lunch menu: "Goblin Ghoulash with bat wing bread and butter OR Headless Horseman Hamburger on broom. Treat: Gopher Gut Cookies."

Television didn't miss the scathing pens of the SJHS writing team either.

Channel 13 began its program listings at midnight. On Blood Boat, "Gravedigger and Ghoul fall in love" and Horror Island is where "vacationers come for fun and meet death when Tattoo poisons Mr. York (a real thriller)."

Unclassified ads were also there. "Wanted: A new spell for exterminating teachers. Call Wanda anytime at 502-6535.

The five-page Claw Print sold for 15 cents.

One of the eighth graders selling the finished product was Bill Bentfield.

"I like selling it and telling them about it," he said. "You watch their faces light up when they read it."

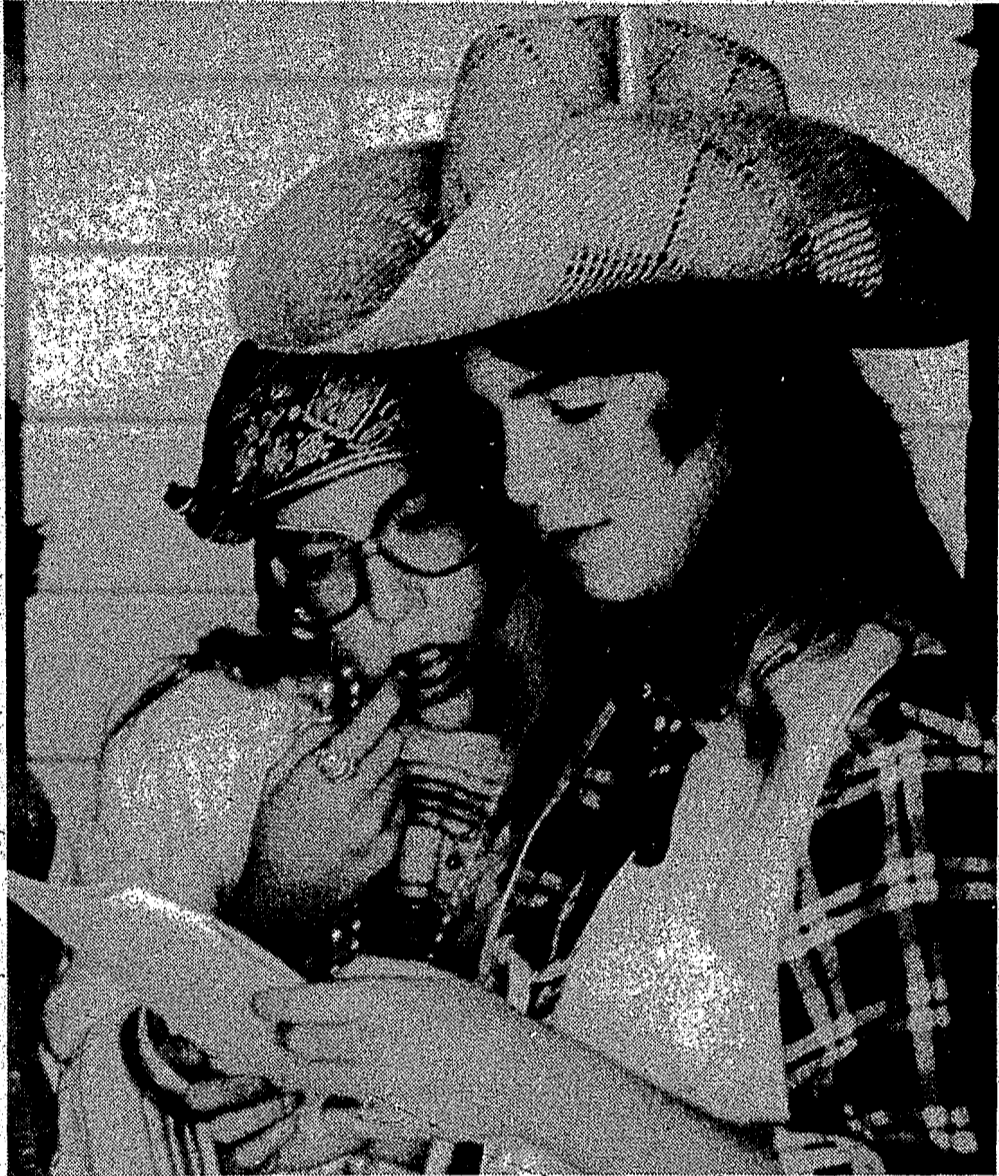

The kids were equally enthusiastic while writing, said their teacher.

They were giving up study halls to work on the projects, taking work home and staying after school.

"I had kids grab me before first hour and say, 'Read this and see what you think,'" she said.

They also worked together editing what they wrote and swapping papers to make sure everything was correct.

"The kids did all the actual writing. I had to do very little editing," she said. "It's a product of their imagination."

Dressed in Halloween costumes, Kim Lafferty [left] and Kim Billig take time during the lunch break at SJHS to read The Claw Print.

'If it Fitz. . .'

Dog it in Lansing

by Jim Fitzgerald

It could cost Michigan taxpayers millions of dollars because state legislators failed to enact a budget for the current fiscal year. But it couldn't be helped. The legislators were busy with more important matters, such as selecting a state dog.

My friend Ralph doesn't believe it. "What could be more important than the budget? Those stupid bums ruined the state's credit rating because they're afraid of losing votes. They should be shot."

Ralph is peeved because a powerful investment firm lowered the state's bond rating from AA to A. This means the state and all its municipalities are nationally recognized as lousy credit risks and must pay more interest to borrow money. Only five other states are rated below AA.

"The rating was lowered because we are a state without a budget," Ralph said. "There is no budget because spending cuts are necessary, and the legislators didn't have guts enough to make them before the election. Those spineless jerks care more about kissing lobbyists and keeping their jobs than they do about making this state a decent place to live."

I told Ralph he was being unfair, and legislators really do care about the well-being of their constituents. To prove it, I showed him House Bill No. 6017, which was introduced last month. This is complex legislation requiring much study and debate. It is easy to understand why the House, faced with 6017, was too busy in September to come up with a state budget before the Oct. 1 deadline.

The Bill was introduced by Rep. Thomas H. Brown, D-Westland, and referred to the Committee on State Affairs for further action. It states: "THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF MICHIGAN ENACT: Sec. 1. The Brittany spaniel is adopted as the official state dog."

As I told Ralph, first things first. What is the sense in a state having an official dog if it doesn't even have an official dog?

"Brittany is in France," Ralph said. "What is the sense in loaning money to Chrysler if one of the United States is going to choose an import as its official dog?"

Ralph was off base, of course. Brittany spaniels are not the same as Peugeot cars. The spaniels may be French, but they are pointers used to help kill American birds. You might say French cars are sometimes used to kill American people, but that's different. Our hunters use Brittany spaniels to control the bird population and prevent them from taking over the nation. A pheasant in the White House would be a mess, but a Peugeot could be parked.

Naturally, there are citizens who would prefer to be represented by a different breed of dog than the Brittany spaniel. Ralph, for instance, favors the cockapoo, which is a combination of cocker spaniel and poodle, not to be confused with the cockatoo, which is a bird that sometimes drinks too many cocktails, but never while flying through Brittany.

All of this bird-dog stuff probably confuses you, which is what I intended, to make my point. I want you to appreciate the complexity and the difficulty of the task faced by lawmakers everywhere, not just in Michigan. Every state needs an official dog, and every state legislator must contend with intense lobbying from people who favor certain breeds, from people who oppose imported dogs, and from people who think pigeons are a greater threat than pheasants to public safety.

Rep. Thomas Brown should be admired for being brave enough to resist the meaningful alliteration of a parked Peugeot. Even though it is an election year, he has come out foutsquare for the Brittany spaniel. The Committee on State Affairs must now deal with all that those four squares portend. After that, the full Legislature will deal gingerly with the dog matter. And then, perhaps, there will be time to enact a state budget.

In the meantime, taxpayers shouldn't gripe about the high cost of living without a budget. After all, money is nothing compared to the importance of the Legislature decreeing that an entire state be sitting under an admirable dog when it raises one hind leg.

Deputies seek exhibitionist

Oakland County Sheriff's Deputies are looking for a suspected exhibitionist who reportedly approached two sisters walking near their Springfield Township home on Sunday.

According to police reports, the girls, 9 and 14 year old, were walking down Rattalee Lake Road when a blue van drove up.

The driver asked directions to Eaton Road, and when the girls told him they did not know, he drove down the road, circled and returned.

Reports said he asked them if they wanted to "smoke pot and party." The girls answered "no" and walked away.

According to reports, the eldest girl looked over her shoulder to discover the man standing nude outside the van.

Police are looking for the driver of a 1973 blue Ford van, with a circular window on the side and with windows in the rear.

The driver, reported to be in his 20's, has a mustache.

Fund-raising effort literally goes up in smoke

Disappointment reigned Sunday when fund-raising efforts of the Clarkston High School Color Guard and the Band Boosters were burned to a crisp.

The groups had joined forces to raise money through a newspaper drive for color guard travel expenses when they compete with other high schools.

The papers were gathered and placed in a large metal container at the west end of the CHS football field parking lot.

When the person assigned to standby at the collection spot arrived Sunday morning, the smoldering remains of a weekend's work were discovered.

"I think it's unfortunate," said Steve Ragatz, Band Boosters president. "I hope whoever is responsible realizes the destructive power of what they've done — both physically and morally."

"It makes it tough, being the economy the way it is," he said. "The school can't subsidize us. You try to do what you can for these kids. It's demoralizing."

Ragatz said he believes whoever was responsible for setting the blaze was a local resident. He also blames parents for not knowing what their children are doing.

"I just hope that somebody that is responsible for guiding these people can find out who did it and do something about it," he said.

If the newspapers had not been burned, the group would have received a profit of $60 to $75.

Now the company that provided the metal container is considering charging a fee of $40 to $50 to pay for having the newspaper ashes dumped.

The fire was contained inside the container. Members of the Independence Township Fire Department extinguished the blaze.

Talking about . . .

On Main Street, Clarkston, we asked this week's question:

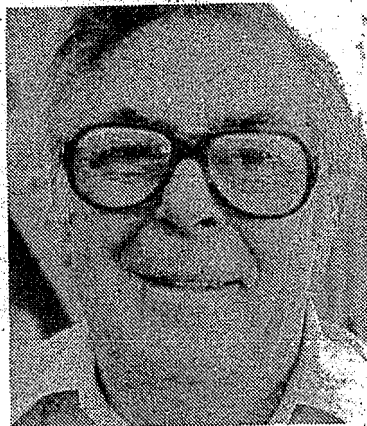

When do you think the American hostages in Iran will be released?

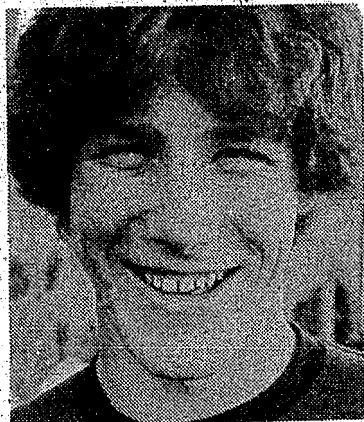

"Probably within the next three months. They don't have a real reason to hold them anymore. They've held them for one year and haven't gotten what they wanted."—John Lundgren, Fenton, refrigerator service.

"I hope soon. I don't think their release has anything to do with the election. I hope they are released because the world wants peace."—Kris Goodwin, Morningstar Court, Independence Township, bookkeeper.

"I think relatively soon, but it doesn't look like it will be before election. I think they're afraid of Reagan though, and may move after the election."—Bert Kyle, Robertson Court, Clarkston, salesman.

"I don't know when. It's already been one year and the way it looks now it's going to be awhile longer."—Mike Welch, Eastview Road, Independence Township, busboy.

"I think fairly soon. Iran is having too much trouble with Iraq. I think they realize they don't need anymore problems."—Carolyn Kuzma, Allen Road, Independence Township, housewife.

Win caps Wolves' 'great season'

By Al Zawacky

It was Halloween night, and Clarkston Coach Walt Wyniemko came prepared with both a "trick" and a "treat."

The "trick" came on Clarkston's first possession of the game, as quarterback Brad Sheldon took the snap from center, flipped a lateral to teammate Mike Stefanski and watched Stefanski throw a bomb to Greg Wilson good for 70 yards and a touchdown.

Boom. Clarkston Wolves 6, Brighton Bulldogs 0 and the game less than one minute old.

And when the contest was over and his Clarkston High School football team had wrapped up the season with a 21-12 non-league victory, Wyniemko unveiled the "treat." A large hollowed-out pumpkin inscribed "GOAL champs" and filled with Halloween-type goodies.

The players — as evidenced by the quick disappearance — appreciated the gesture. And Wyniemko appreciated the season and the effort his players had given him.

"We had a great season," Wyniemko said, rolling off the impressive season statistics: A school record of five shutouts, Greater Oakland Activities League championship with a perfect 5-0 record and a 8-1 mark overall.

"We accomplished more than a lot of people expected, and put some excitement into the community," Wyniemko said. "We were ranked fourth in our region out of about 30 teams, and had a shot at the playoffs right to the end."

Indeed, several players lingered in the locker room longer than usual, waiting for the final verdict on the Wolves' long-shot playoff hopes, which hinged on some out-of-town scores.

When the final, inevitable bad news came, Wyniemko looked back on his team's only loss of the season — a 3-0 upset at the hands of Rochester Adams that cost the Wolves a spot in post-season action.

"It still hurts to think about it, but that's life and that's football," he said. "The past is over, and we had a great season. We've got to look ahead to the future."

Although the Bulldogs scored more points on Clarkston than any other team had managed this year, the Wolves trick double-pass play in the opening minute quickly set the tempo of the game.

"That stung us," agreed Brighton Coach John Seckinger. "The thing that surprised us, though, wasn't the play itself, but that they completed it. We had seen them work on that play in practice and knew exactly what they were going to do."

"I'm proud of my kids. They played awfully hard against a very good ball club," said Seckinger, whose team finished 4-5 on the season. "Clarkston hit us on defense, hit us on offense — and that quarterback of theirs is one helluva thrower."

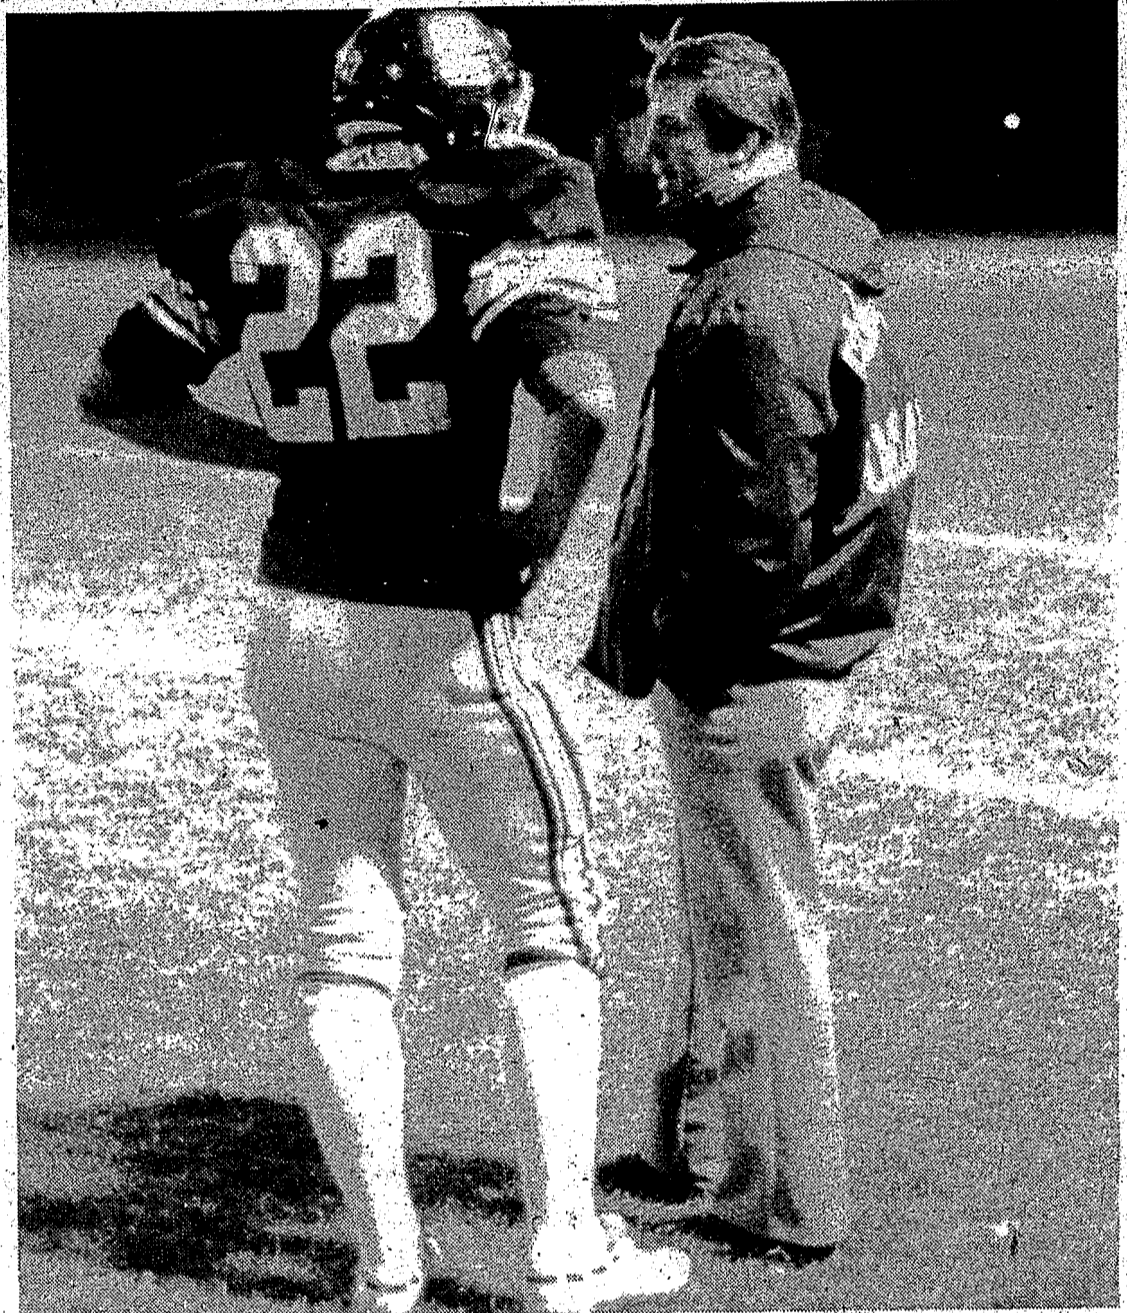

That's quarterbacks, coach Sheldon and Stefanski combined to put the ball in the air 30 times for 227 yards, a season high.

Sheldon plunged one yard into the end zone for Clarkston's second six-pointer of the game, followed by Ron Feneley's second of three successful extra point kicks.

The Wolves final TD came on a nifty 21-yard run by Mark Hughes, who snared a bouncing football in the Clarkston backfield and eluded several would-be tacklers on his way to the end zone.

Mike Schumborg led the Clarkston defensive effort with seven tackles, as the Wolves defense finished the season with an average of 3.33 points allowed per game.

"We had tremendous leadership from our seniors this year," Wyniemko said. "We went into the game knowing we still had a shot at the playoffs, and we wanted to be able to go out as winners, no matter what."

Clarkston senior quarterback Brad Sheldon listens while Coach Walt Wyniemko gives instructions for the Wolves' next offensive play.

Frustration reigns, but JVs still post victory

By Al Zawacky

It was an unprecedented situation.

Gordie Richardson was speechless. That's right, Clarkston High School junior varsity football coach Gordie Richardson.

Asked to describe his team's 15-14 season-finale win over the Brighton Bulldogs, the usually articulate Richardson fell silent.

Finally, he uttered a single word.

"Frustrating."

A few moments later, the coach elaborated.

"What else can you say about a game where you're leading 15-0 with just a few minutes left, in control all the way — and then you have to hang on to win right at the wire?"

"Not only that, but every time we did something right, we wound up with a flag on the play. 'Frustrating' is the word that best describes the entire game."

Of course it could have — and would have — been far worse had the game not ended up with Richardson's Wolves on top. The victory gave Clarkston a final record of 7-2, including a 5-0 league championship mark in the Greater Oakland Activities League.

The Wolves built up a 15-point lead on a 2-yard quarterback keeper in the first quarter by Kevin Brown, and a 10-yard run by Brian Davies in the final quarter. Will Williams kicked the extra point after Davies' TD, and George Diehl sacked the Bulldogs behind their own goal line in the third quarter for a safety.

Diehl's two-pointer proved to be the difference.

"We played a great defensive game except for two plays,"

Richardson said. "They faked a punt — which we were looking for — to set up their first touchdown, and they blocked a punt to score another."

It was, as Richardson repeated again, pure frustration.

Still, Richardson and fellow JV Coach John Getzan could look back on the season and reflect on a job well done.

"I can see a tremendous improvement in individual skills," Richardson said. "We took some kids this year who might not have believed they could be winners, but together we became winners."

"The thing that seems hardest for sophomores to grasp is the fact that football season doesn't just run from July through November. It's a year-round occupation, and you're only going to be as good as your off-season program."

P.T. Barnum would have been proud

HOW TOUGH ARE YOU?

Pretty catchy slogan. No matter where you were in the Pontiac Silverdome during the "Toughman Contest" a few weeks ago, you found yourself challenged by that taunting phrase. It was plastered on walls, emblazoned on T-shirts, printed in the program and bellowed by the announcers.

Myself, I left the Silverdome Friday night confident that I was pretty tough — or that I at least possessed an unusual amount of stamina. After all, I had just endured two straight hours of watching the "Toughman Contest," breaking the previous tolerance record of one hour and 45 minutes set by Ray Charles.

You see, most of those in attendance weren't tough enough to put themselves through the punishment of actually watching the "action." They spent their time whistling at the women, dumping beer on each other and brawling in a way that put even the most infamous bachelor parties I've attended to shame.

It's probably just as well, because all they missed were two evenings of hokum and farce that would have made P.T. Barnum envious.

Barnum, you will recall, once said "There's one born every minute." Considering the fact that some paid $20 to witness this charade, P.T.'s observation can now officially be adjusted to "one every second."

THE TOUGHMAN CONTEST, simply put, is not what it claims to be. It is not a bunch of average Joes battling it out in barroom fashion. The typical contestant who signed up on the assumption that it would be wound up with — to put it delicately — footprints in his derriere.

Without any solid boxing experience, even the strongest and "toughest" man amounts to nothing more than ring-fodder for the polished fighter. And the Toughman Contest's $50,000 purse to the winner attracts more than a few men who strain the definition of a true amateur.

One of the participants was a guy named Todor Stefanov Velev, a former captain of the Bulgarian National Boxing Team with a track record of 288 victories in 324 matches. The genuine brawlers, bar bouncers and truck drivers didn't stand much of a chance; some were mauled in a spectacle that would have been right at home in the Colosseum of ancient Rome.

IT WAS CLEAR from the way the event was staged that the promoters didn't have much confidence in the ring action alone. The fights themselves weren't enough to get the crowd going; other methods also had to be used.

A group of curvaceous females were one of the instruments utilized to ignite the fans. Wearing skimpy costumes that looked like Earl Scheib sprayed them on, these women would strut and wiggle around the ring with a large cardboard sign to announce the start of each round. The almost all-male crowd reacted accordingly with whistles and leers while the announcer drooled, a lascivious "AIIIIIIright!"

On those occasions when he wasn't "AIIIIIIrighting," the announcers voice was imploring you to buy something. Buy a "Toughman" T-shirt, buy a "Toughman" pennant, buy a "Toughman" program. And don't forget your "Toughman" tickets for the finals tomorrow night.

But the PA men were at their best when they periodically pleaded with the fans — who seemed more than a little bored — to vent their rowdiness and make more noise.

"Come on, get behind your favorite toughman! The more noise you fans make, the more exciting these fights will be!"

Since when? I always thought it was the other way around.

Clarkston harriers hope to continue improvement

By Al Zawacky

An old proverb states that a "journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step."

Coach Mike Kaul figures his Clarkston High School cross country team has made that first step in the 1980 season.

"I'm very encouraged about our progress, but we have a long way to go," Kaul said, reflecting on the season. "I think the key to our rebuilding is recruiting."

"We had only two sophomore boys and two sophomore girls come out this year," Kaul continued. "That's four out of a class of 400 kids — you can't expect to build a strong program that way."

The Clarkston harriers managed a split in their last two regular meets, as both the boys' and girls' team defeated Pontiac Northern, but lost to Oxford.

The girls' squad downed Northern 26-29 as sophomore Sheri Rowland took first place with a time of 21:57, while senior Scott Ferguson paced the boys' 22-33 win with a first-place time of 17:01.

Despite losing, both Ferguson and Rowland again placed first in the Oxford meet. Rowland had a time of 20:22 while Ferguson posted his best time of the year at 16:09.

Clarkston's performance in the Greater Oakland Activities League meet held Oct 18 in West Bloomfield represented a solid overall improvement over last season. The boys finished fifth — one place higher than last year, while the girls placed third — a three place jump over 1979.

Kaul singled out the performance of Rowland for special praise, noting that she finished eleventh in the league with a time of 20:42 while running against girls from Milford and Rochester — "the two best teams in Oakland County," according to the coach.

"She did extremely well, especially for a sophomore," Kaul said.

Milford won the league championship for both the boys and the girls — an achievement that Kaul would like to see Clarkston accomplish in the future

"It's a challenge for me as a coach to recruit and build the program," said Kaul, who is completing his second season as Clarkston's cross country coach. "We have some ideas that we're going to try during the school year."

IT'S A WINNER!

Sashabaw blanked again, 22-0

Wolverines party as curtain falls on season

By Al Zawacky

For the Clarkston Wolverines, it was a sweet, record-breaking victory.

For the Sashabaw Cougars, it was the same old story.

And for the fourth time in two seasons the Clarkston Junior High football team kept cross-district rival Sashabaw Junior High off the scoreboard, rolling to a 22-0 win at the Clarkson High School athletic field Wednesday evening.

Pandemonium reigned in the Wolverine locker room afterwards, and with good reason: The season-ending victory wrapped up school season records for the best record (8-1), fewest points allowed (54), most points scored (202), and tied the record for most shutouts (five).

Wolverine coaches John Craven and Dave Smith turned the dressing room festivities into a genuine party, passing out cans of cold soft drinks—half of which wound up being sprayed across the room as the Clarkston gridders celebrated in style.

"Guys," Craven said with a grin, "there's no practice tomorrow."

The players responded with cheers.

Craven discreetly slipped out of the locker room and into the coaches' office a few moments later, avoiding a cola bath and a dunk in the showers from his victorious Wolverines.

"I really thought Sashabaw hit well tonight," Craven said, sipping a soft drink salvaged from the ongoing victory celebration. "Their defense played well—they had some good pops on us."

"But I thought we pretty well controlled their offense. They couldn't move the ball."

It was a familiar story. In the previous three meetings between the two teams, the Cougar defense turned in gritty performances each time—but to no avail as the offense chalked up nothing but goose eggs.

Sashabaw Head Coach Chris

Krueger had very little to say about the disappointing loss:

"Our kids played hard, but we're just too small," Krueger said in reference to Clarkston's big advantage in size. "They just wore us down."

Krueger singled out the defensive play of Mark Cummings, Mike Goodsell, Dan Fenton, Chris Hadley and Bob Ruell as highlights for the Cougars.

The Wolverines struck first in the second quarter, scoring on a 1-yard sneak by quarterback Bill Hudler. Rob Mortimore carried into the end zone on an option for the two-point conversion, enabling Clarkston to carry an 8-0 lead off the field at halftime.

Most of the play in the third quarter was deep in Sashabaw territory, but the Cougar defense rose to the occasion each time.

In the fourth quarter, however, the Wolverines were finally able to capitalize on excellent field position. Clarkston's Lee Vail Boyd snared a Cougar punt and returned it 35 yards, setting up a first and goal at the eight.

It was Mortimore who scored the touchdown, scrambling in from three yards out a few plays later. A pass from quarterback Craig Kulaszewski to Chris Everett on the PAT attempt netted another two points and a 16-0 lead.

The Wolverines third and final touchdown came on a 13-yard run by Jeff Dufour, a six-pointer that was again set up by a long punt return by Boyd. The extra point attempt failed.

Leading Clarkston's defensive effort to its fifth whitewashing were Hudler, who recovered two Sashabaw fumbles, and Glen Sherman, who had one interception. Ken Johnson and Kurt Bottorff each had a team-high seven and a half tackles.

"The whole defense played well," Craven said. "The score would indicate that."

Two individual records were also set, Craven noted. Hudler established a school record for most yardage per completion, while Kulaszewski set a school record for pass completion percent.

CHS Assistant Coach Dave Smith gets a soda-pop shower from one of his players as the Wolverines celebrate their victory after the game.

Hudler's record broke a long-standing mark achieved by George Porritt, currently an assistant football coach at Clarkston High School.

As done throughout the season, the Wolverines alternated Hudler and Kulaszewski at quarterback against Sashabaw.

"The thing I really feel good about this season is that every single player played in every single game," Craven said. "That says something for our depth."

Suddenly, a few pop-and-water-soaked players burst into the coaches' office. Somebody had been hurt "pretty bad" in the dressing room, they said.

Craven shook his head and the players started laughing.

"If you guys think I'm going down there, you're crazy," the coach grinned, smelling a ploy to get him into the locker room for a forced trek to the showers.

It was one of the few plays the Wolverines tried this season that didn't work to perfection.

CJHS avenges defeat in frosh cager battle

By Al Zawacky

The Clarkston Junior High girls' basketball team was on its game last Thursday, and that spelled trouble for rival Sashabaw Junior High.

Dominating the rebounding and leading throughout the entire contest, the Clarkston Wolverines downed the visiting Cougars of Sashabaw 31-21, avenging a 34-28 defeat earlier in the season.

"Our rebounding helped, but basically we just played a very good ball game," Clarkston Coach Dennis Bronson said later. "We were able to maintain good control all the way through the game."

"The last time we played them, we weren't able to practice much before the game — and I think that made a big difference. We had games Friday, Monday, Thursday and then had to come right back Monday at Sashabaw."

Bronson's opinion that the Wolverines were sharp drew no dissent from Sashabaw Coach Nancy Foster.

"Clarkston did play very well, and we just couldn't put the ball in the hoop," Foster said. "We were taking good shots, but the ball just wasn't going in."

Sue Ketvirtis was a major cog in the Wolverine victory, leading both teams in scoring and rebounding with 11 points and 21 rebounds. Teammate Cathrene Rademacher cleaned the boards 13 times.

"Their rebounding got them a lot of easy baskets," Foster noted. "They'd get the ball right under the hoop and just have to tip it in."

Sue Castillo led the Cougar attack with six points, while Kim Lorenz was Sashabaw's leading rebounder with nine.

"We went into the game thinking that we'd do all right, but we were a little apprehensive about the floor," Foster said, referring to the smaller dimensions of the Clarkston Junior High playing surface.

"It's always an advantage to play at home, but that's particularly true when the court is so different."

Bronson however, doubted that it made too much difference.

"Our floor isn't really that much smaller," he said. "I don't really think it was a factor."

Counseling for all ages; fees based on ability to pay

The state's unemployment rate rises.

More and more men and women are losing their jobs, consequently remaining at home and discovering a family life they never knew existed.

Family disputes erupt when dad wants to watch a particular television program and the kids are used to watching their shows.

Financial problems resulting from job loss create stress in a husband-wife relationship.

Sometimes the wife is working and the husband can't deal with a role reversal.

Many turn to alcohol for consolation.

Fred Baumann, assistant director of the Consortium for Human Development has counseling programs to deal with these types of situations.

The agency is geared to aid people of all ages with a broad range of mental health, public health and vocational services, Baumann said.

"Right now we're seeing an increase in counseling for the unemployed. It's a circumstance of the times. This is, however, a full-service agency and we deal with marital problems, substance abuse, sexual dysfunctions and we do forensic work in cooperation with the courts," he said.

The Consortium's areas of specialization for both adults and adolescents is long and varied, but the most important thing, Baumann stressed, is the organization's sliding fee scale.

"We never turn anyone away because they cannot afford to pay for counseling. We are a non-profit organization and people pay on their ability to pay," he said.

The Consortium is a state agency funded by the Oakland County Department of Public Health, City of Troy, IIT-Higbie and through private donations.

"We take people's word that they cannot afford to pay for therapy. There is no investigation into finances or anything like that," he said.

"In many instances, laid-off auto workers are covered for this therapy in their insurance policy and should take advantage of the opportunity if they need counseling," he said.

The Consortium was recently selected as a membership agency to the United Auto workers Union, he said. It's also approved by Blue Cross/Blue Shield and other insurance agencies.

"Everyone, regardless of their ability to pay is counseled by the same professionals and in the same rooms," he stressed. "We treat everyone the same."

The Consortium, on Sashabaw Road, Independence Township, established in this area in July of 1979.

"In 12 months, we serviced 430 clients," Baumann said.

"Some clients remain five to six months, others are here for one or two sessions," he said.

"About 25 percent of our clients come from the Clarkston area and then Waterford, Pontiac and Brandon," he said.

The staff, Baumann said, was recently enlarged. They now employ four full-time counselors, two with master's degrees in social work and two with master's degrees in psychology.

The Consortium also employs one consulting psychologist and one psychiatrist.

"Our program has been very successful within the last year," he said. "We are utilized by the local schools and are active in the courts and Clarkston Area Youth Assistance."

"We stay away from heavy medication for our clients and we don't believe in anesthetizing them. We teach them to deal with the problem. It's not going to go away."

The Consortium is located at 5645 Sashabaw Rd., Independence Township. They have offices in Troy as well.

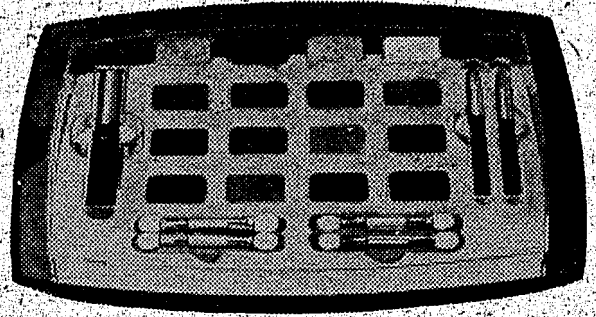

They are open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday and Saturdays by appointment only.

"People only have to call and ask for an appointment," Baumann said. "There are no doctor's examinations, no screening, nothing like that."

The first session would be spent talking over a situation, discussing how therapy can benefit a person and making them feel comfortable with the idea of counseling," he said.

For information or for an appointment phone 625-9600.

Same classes; different hats

Students join teaching staff at alma mater

By Marilyn Trumper
Chalk it up to some kind of destiny.

Three students turned teacher or teacher's aides, who've returned to instruct at the same school they've graduated from; Clarkston's Northwest Oakland

Vocational Education Center (NWOVEC).

"I never really thought about teaching when I went to school here," said Dave Lessel, retail-marketing instructor. "Oh, I guess it was somewhere in the back of my mind. I guess I thought, 'Yeah, someday I'd like to do that.'

"I sat in the same class I'm teaching in now, but at the time I planned to be a clerk in a store and work my way up to a management position," he said smiling.

Dave, 24, said while attending college he changed his mind, majored in education and graduated in 1978 from Central Michigan University with a bachelor's degree in education.

"It's different being on the other side of the desk," he said, shaking his head. "But it's a good feeling and a rewarding feeling."

Dave worked his college internship at NWOVEC, taught summer school there for three summers and worked in the Oak Park schools for two years before joining the NWOVEC staff this fall.

NWOVEC's principal, Daniel Manthei, recalls how Dave was hired for the job.

"Our retail instructor was moving out to California and we needed a replacement," Manthei said. "We called Dave because he'd taught here, knew the school and the system."

"It's kind of interesting," Manthei continued. "Just two hours before our call to Dave, he'd gotten the pink layoff slip from the Oak Park school."

"I've watched Dave through high school, college, as an intern, and as a professional teaching adult. He has the same drive and enthusiasm he had seven years ago when he first came here to school," Manthei said.

Dave laughs, admitting he doesn't remember the curriculum he sat through as a student, but he has definite ideas about the curriculum as a teacher.

Dave is responsible for the establishment of the school's latest addition, the Boutique.

"The store's open every day for one-half hour. My students go to wholesale houses to buy for the store. We have a student manager, assistant manager, bookkeeper, credit manager and advertising manager," he said.

"The students are learning. They know where they stand in a business and how to work career ladders. They can move from sales to management positions," he said.

The store, open just two weeks, has turquoise jewelry, radio station rock-n-roll tee shirts and candy, and they're expecting more merchandise daily.

"The people who've shopped here point to the jewelry and say, 'It can't be real, it doesn't cost enough,'" Dave said. "Well, it's turquoise and sterling silver. We just don't have the high mark-up other stores have."

The store has helped a great deal with teaching, he said.

"The kids are really learning and they know where they stand in a business. They are also learning how to work with career ladders and how to move up from clerk to manager."

"I really like this job. It's a way to share my past experiences in retailing and my knowledge," he said.

Steve Badger, 20, also a NWOVEC graduate, teaches as a paraprofessional aide in the school's paint and body shop.

"I worked in several body shops before returning here to teach," he said. "I came back for one reason. The opportunity to work with my old teacher, Ellis Allen."

"Everything I know he taught me. Every day, I learn something new from that man and I have the opportunity to teach others as well. If it weren't for Al, I wouldn't be here now," he said.

Following Al's advice, Steve graduated and went on to work in several body shops.

"He always told us to go out and learn from as many people as we could. I did. I could make more money working one day at home than I could here in one week, but it's the chance to keep on learning that keeps me here," he said.

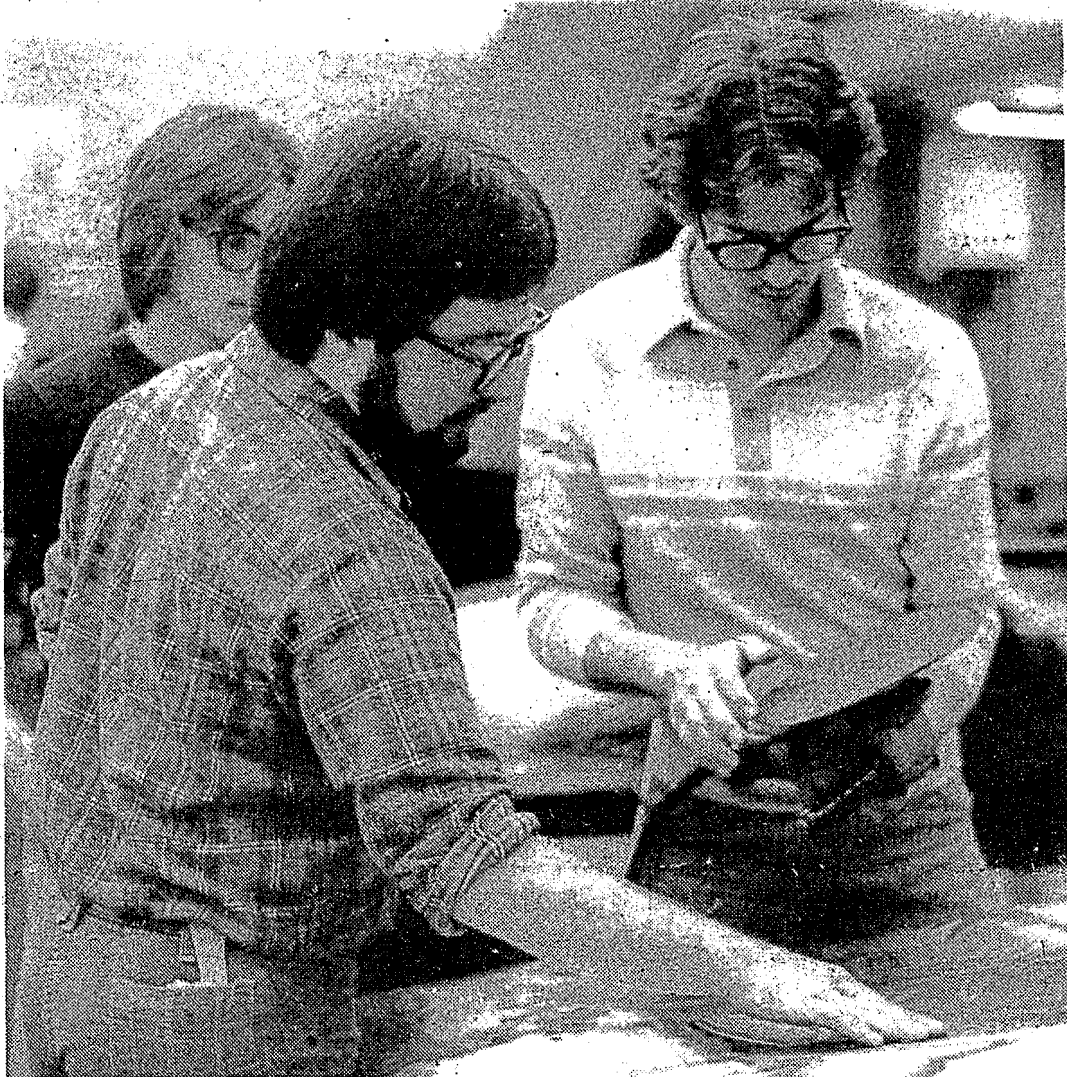

Steve said he encountered some hassle from students, because he knew many of them and attended the same time they did in earlier years.

"They learned right from the start, though, that I was here to teach them and I wasn't going to put up with any horseplay. I've explained to them that this class is like a job; don't do anything here you wouldn't do on the job and you'll do fine," he said.

Steve has taught at the school for a year and has proven an asset, according to Manthei.

"He impresses me," Manthei said. "Although he's young, he's been away several years and worked in the outside and has had the experience."

Steve Badger explains to two students the correct way to operate a grinder. It's not so difficult—as long as you don't press too hard, keep the grinder moving at all times and, whatever you do, don't gouge the metal if possible.

WTI aims at teaching self-sufficiency

By Marilyn Trumper

Thirteen members of Waterford Training Institute's student body registered to vote.

The event may not sound spectacular for those who accept the privilege without question.

But, for these students it represented a major step.

They are mentally impaired.

The training institute, formerly located at the Oakland County Mental Retardation Center, moved to 1150 Scott Lake Rd. last January. It's funded by the Oakland County Schools.

Almost 20 percent of the school's population is comprised of Independence and Springfield Township residents, said Director Charles Koneval.

The school caters to the special needs of the mentally impaired from Holly, West Bloomfield, Huron Valley, Waterford and Clarkston Schools.

It offers programs for the newborn diagnosed as mentally impaired and specific programs at two elementary schools for those age 5 through 14. Those 14 to 26-years-old attend the institute.

"Our students have distinct limitations," said Koneval. "Here, we give them realistic objectives, providing them with programs they can learn from."

"Our objective is to make the students self-sufficient. My goal is to make them as independent as I can, to have them live in foster care homes and work in a shelter workshop. In some cases, it could also mean apartment living."

Some students appearing at the school have spent a majority of their lives in an institution. They have to be taught to accept criticism and praise. They learn the social graces, how to keep themselves clean by washing, shampooing hair and brushing teeth.

Many do not know how to tie a shoelace.

The school provides this type of instruction, Koneval said. Through gym classes, students learn to develop muscle coordination and good sportsmanship.

The average person has a difficult time understanding the world of the mentally impaired, he said.

"Some students come to us with some of those skills, others do not," he said. "Usually, people with average intellect learn by living. Unintentionally they learn, like osmosis. They store up examples, file them away in a drawer and pull them out when a situation arises."

"Our students are not able to call up information and they have to be taught to respond to situations," he said.

The institute currently has 11 graduates working in outside jobs, he said.

Fast-food restaurants, cafeterias and other schools hire students to work as janitors, to clean parking lots and, in one case, as a cashier.

"I'd like these students to be able to give to the community and not take," Koneval said.

Students at the school create pottery, wooden toys, pine cone wreaths and more. They are taught the art of following directions and creating a finished project by following a step-by-step procedure.

Many of their works are sold at fairs and profits are re-invested into the program to buy more materials.

Students at Waterford Training Institute enthusiastically play Polly Hockey, diligently working to steal the puck from the opposing team's player. Through competition, students learn coordination, develop stamina and good sportsmanship.

Kid-size voters carry strong ideas

When final votes were tallied from three Clarkston elementary schools participating in mock elections, Ronald Reagan achieved a landslide victory over President Jimmy Carter.

Bailey Lake, Pine Knob and North Sashabaw Elementary schools all participated in the lever-pulling event.

While ballot proposals varied, the registering process for all schools was the same.

All students voting were required to register, were issued voter registration cards and had to be checked off the master list seconds before casting their votes.

The event proved to be more than a learning experience.

Students at N. Sashabaw Elementary were adamant about their choice for president — and opinionated.

"I voted for Carter. He's the best man for the job," one fourth-grader said. "Reagan will get us into a war. I know, I saw it on TV."

Another student offered his opinion.

"I voted for Anderson. I don't like any of the others. Besides in advertising he said Carter would get us into a war and Reagan would raise taxes."

One fifth grader spoke out in favor of Reagan.

"I voted for Reagan. My dad did so I did," she said. "Carter did a terrible job and Anderson is not so good."

North Sashabaw students voted only for presidential candidates.

The final count from votes cast in the fourth, fifth, and sixth grades: Reagan 157, Carter 95 and Anderson 47.

Pine Knob Elementary students, grades kindergarten through sixth, voted for presidential candidates and the first four proposals.

Upperclassmen, who were sworn to secrecy, entered voting booths for kindergartners who were both too short to reach the levers and unable to read the ballots.

Final vote tallies were: Reagan 261, Carter 209 and Anderson 128.

On proposal A-Smith-Bullard: Yes 90 and no 71.

B-Lowering the drinking age: Yes 60 and no 96.

C-Milliken Coalition: yes 56 and no 118.

D-Tisch Amendment: Yes 78 and no 106.

Bailey Lake Elementary students were offered a wide variety on their ballots. Grades fourth, fifth and sixth participated in the mock election.

The final count: Reagan 176, Carter 110 and Anderson 65.

Should Clarkston's elementary school have gyms?: Yes 297 and no 25.

Favorite Seasons: Summer 175, winter 112, autumn 35 and spring 29.

Favorite holiday: Christmas 309; Halloween 36; Easter, Thanksgiving and July 4th tied with four; Valentines Day two votes; and Labor Day received no votes.

Favorite professional sports teams: Lions, 255; Tigers 60, Express 24, Red Wings 8 and the Pistons 5.

Volunteer mom, Michelle Kosiba, calls through the curtain to insure all goes well with a fifth grade voter. Others wait anxiously in line for their turn to pull the levers.

The face decorators, there were 10, are members of Clarkston Junior High School teacher Janet Gleeson's drama class. The students attended a two-hour workshop on make-up and put their talents to work decorating Pine Knob Elementary pupils for Halloween. The younger children paid $1 for a face which did not even cover the cost of make-up, the teacher said. Instead, the experience allowed the drama club members a chance to be creative and gain some experience for when they begin working as a mime troupe.

CHS students voice opinions

By Al Zawacky

Independence Township's incumbent supervisor, treasurer and clerk will be re-elected to new four-year terms and Republican Ronald Reagan should be our next president.

At least that's the way 279 Clarkston High School government students called some of the local and national races in the mock election held at the high school last week.

The students have a pretty respectable track record for predicting the actual election results, notes CHS government teacher Larry Rosso.

"Student attitudes quite often reflect the political views of their parents, so these mock elections can often be a pretty good indicator of the actual results," says Rosso. "The student track record on ballot issues is bad, but on local candidates it's been pretty good."

Two years ago the students correctly predicted winners in every state and local race except the Independence Township trustee race, where the students correctly picked two of the four eventual winners.

"You have to keep in mind that these figures only reflect the local voting patterns, so they might not be accurate at all in a statewide or national race," Rosso notes.

"And the results of the ballot propositions are never very reliable. Two years ago the students voted overwhelmingly — as you might expect — not to raise the drinking age to 21."

Prior to the actual election, Rosso and fellow government teachers Jim Wenger, Larry Mahrle and Gary Nustad each took turns playing the various presidential candidates in a series of mock debates.

"We threw the mud a little more than even the real campaigns are doing," Rosso joked. "If anything surprised me about the results it was that Anderson did as poorly as he did and that Reagan didn't do better."

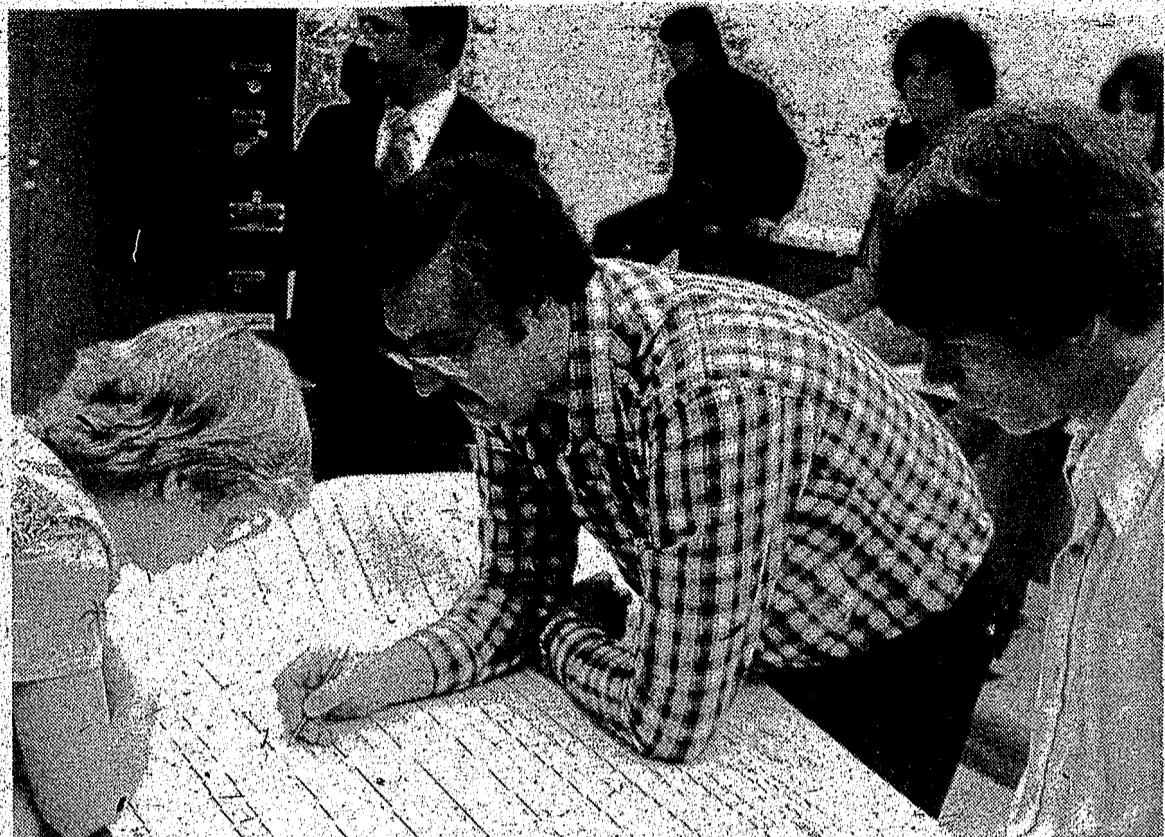

"The township races were also a surprise — I certainly thought the supervisor's race would be much closer than it was."

Wenger points out that the mock debates may have artificially affected the results.

"The students might have had a tendency to associate a particular teacher with the actual candidate," he says. "Another factor in the state representative race was the fact that Claude Trim actually came to the school to speak to the students. We had invited (Republican challenger Sharyn) Gidday also, but she was ill on the day she was supposed to be here."

Independence Township Clerk Christopher Rose set up actual voting machines at the high school the day of the voting, allowing the students to pull the same levers many of their parents would be pulling on election day.

The biggest non-surprise, predictably, was the student vote on Proposal B which would lower the state's drinking age from 21 to 19. The final tally was 234 "yes" to 28 "no."

As Independence Township Clerk Christopher Rose reads tallies from the back of the voting machine, CHS government teacher Larry Rosso writes the numbers on a paper ballot. Two students watch with interest for the final totals in Friday's mock election at Clarkston High School.

...voting results show stand for drinking age

Teachers

"He accepts responsibility; his students respect him and like him. He manages the class well," he said.

Jim McArthur, 20, began working at NWOVEC this fall. "No," he laughed. "I never thought I'd be teaching here after going to school here. When I graduated I started working in a shop."

"Believe me, I only miss working in the shop on paydays. Teaching is different than anything else. You have to have patience. You have to be willing to explain things over and over until a student catches on."

Jim's been on the job a few short months, Manthei said, so it would be too soon to judge his performance.

"But I can say this," he said. "I think that by the next year, Jim will be in the same position as Steve. Give him a year to fully test his weight to teach, and he really likes it here!"

Over 70 tables of handmade items are to be included in the CAI third annual Holiday Craft Bazaar.

Food and drinks will also be sold and Santa's helpers will be on hand to carry special messages from boys and girls to Santa.

The bazaar is planned from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the CAI Building, 5640 Williams Lake Rd., Waterford Township.

***

Meadow Brook Village Mall invites music and choral groups to share Christmas cheer with shoppers.

Performances are planned at 7 p.m. Friday, Nov. 28, through Tuesday, Dec 23.

Call 375-9451 for available dates and additional information.

***

An antique show and a Christmas Boutique are planned Nov. 6, 7 and 8 by the women of St. Paul's United Methodist Church, Rochester.

Donations are $1.

A tea room will feature homemade soups, salads, sandwiches and baked goods from 11 a.m. until one hour before closing.

An antiques appraiser will offer services from 1 to 3 p.m. daily.

Hours are 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Thursday and Friday and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

The church is located at 620 Romeo St., Rochester.

***

Yule shopping with a different twist is offered by St. John's Episcopal Church's 24th annual Christmas Auction.

All items up for auction are handmade. There will be dolls, afghans, tree decorations, wall hangings and more.

The event is planned Wednesday, Nov. 12, with items on display for viewing beginning at 7:30 p.m. and the auction at 8 p.m.

The church is located at the corner of East Holly Road and Falk Road in Holly.

"Our Town," a Pulitzer Prize-winning drama by Thornton Wilder, opens a four-week run at Meadow Brook Theatre on Nov. 6 at 8:30 p.m.

The theater is located on the campus of Oakland University near Rochester.

The play runs through Saturday, Nov. 30 with performances nightly and matinees. The theater is closed Mondays.

Tickets for "Our Town" and the remaining six plays of the theater season may be purchased by calling the box office at 377-3300.

***

The Junior Group of League-Goodwill hosts its 33rd annual Antiques Market at the Fairlane Manor, Dearborn, beginning Saturday, Nov. 8.

Fifty-six antique dealers are to be there plus a Goodwill Booth and an old-fashioned country store. Donation is $3.

Luncheon, dinner or afternoon tea will also be available.

Hours are 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 8; 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Nov. 9; and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nov. 10.

Fairlane Manor is located at 1900 Hubbard Dr., Dearborn.

***

A class on oil painting techniques of the old masters will be offered at the Auburn Hills campus of Oakland Community College beginning Nov. 8.

The course is non-credit and will run six weeks to Dec. 13. Cost of the class is $25.

Persons interested in participating in the class can contact course instructor Jim Mumby at 673-5808 or call OCC at 852-1000 for more information.

***

Waterford-Clarkston area women who are college graduates may attend the Waterford Branch of the American Association of University Women's meetings.

Two speakers are featured at the Thursday, Nov. 6, meeting at St. Stephen's Lutheran Church, 3795 Sashabaw Rd., Waterford Township.

Nelson Haynes, environmentalist for Oakland County, and Debra Rowe, energy consultant for Star Pak Solar Systems, are to discuss conservation and alternative energy sources, particularly solar energy.

For more information, call 625-9467 or 623-1875.

***

A Vespers recital, featuring the talents of Oakland University music student Doris Williams and the church organist Charles Wilson, is planned Sunday, Nov. 9.

The program is to begin at 4 p.m. at the First Congregational Church in Pontiac on Huron Street, across from Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital.

An hour of harpsichord and organ music interspersed with sacred songs for soprano, flute and bass viola da gamba is to be followed by a reception.

There will be no charge, only a free-will offering near the end of the program.

***

A free class for youths between ages 12 and 16 on snowmobile safety is planned Saturday, Nov. 15 and 22.

Presented by the Oakland County Sheriff's Department Marine Division, the hours are 9 a.m. to noon at the Oakland County Law Enforcement Building, 1201 N. Telegraph, Pontiac.

State law requires children to have in their possession a snowmobile safety certificate while operating a snowmobile not on property owned by the parent or guardian or not under direct adult supervision.

A certificate will be issued to children age 12 and over upon successful completion of the class.

Call the marine division at 858-4991 for more information and pre-registration.

Garlaks come home to Clarkston

Country Living

by Marilyn Trumper

"John and Mary." It's simple sounding and easy to remember.

For the Garlaks, John, 33, and Mary, 27, the name represents nine years of hard work, determination and adventure.

To an audience, the name represents two voices and a guitar manifesting into a packed powerhouse of entertainment.

Last July, the husband and wife singing team, and their five-year-old son Colin, returned from California to home turf, Holcomb Street in the Village of Clarkston.

"When we left for California, Colin was a year old," Mary said. "We'd been back and forth several times before, but this time we returned for two reasons. Our roots are here, about 95 percent of our family is here and it was time to come home.

"Also, we plan to put together a band and we know more musicians here than in California," she said.

"When we first left for California, we bought an old mail truck, converted it into a camper and took off," John laughed. "We lived in it for six months. We were the tail end of the flower child generation."

Most of their time out west was spent in San Francisco.

"We went in and out of different bands, we performed on street corners and at the wharf," John said. "We knew Shields and Yarnell when they were just starting out and performing at Union Square."

Mary laughs, recalling a few incidents.

"It was so funny. Shields would mimic people who were walking down the street and he'd follow them. One time he was punched, and another time some guy chased him with a gun.

"Then, 10 years ago, there weren't as many mimes on the streets. Now they're filled with them and others. Everybody sets up a suitcase and a basket and everyone contributes," she said.

With a strong concentration on vocals, the couple agree they produce a unique harmonious blend.

John plays guitar, they both sing, and the electricity between the two is almost visible enough to cut with a knife.

There's an energy, as if each song were being performed for the first time. This, coupled with the interplay of smiles, eye contact and foot-tapping, finger-snapping rhythm makes for an entertaining team.

Mary's voice is resonant, deep and pure. John's is slightly higher and just as on target in key.

"I met Mary through her brother. He and I were playing in a band together," John recalls. "I was playing guitar and singing. Mary walked up and put harmony to it. We stopped and laughed and then thought, 'My God, let's pursue this!'"

As professional entertainers, John and Mary survive on their abilities as performers, and John admits it's often "scary".

"Somehow you keep a positive attitude and keep plugging away. You can never let it get you down," he said.

Since their return to Clarkston, John and Mary have appeared at the Deer Lake Inn, the Back Seat in Keego Harbor, the Holly Hotel and the In Between in Pontiac.

"You never lose those butterflies," John confesses. "I don't think you ever lose them. If you do, you're not good. You become too sure of yourself and cease trying."

"The first song is the hardest," Mary said. "You have to win the crowd over and break the ice, and you never know how you'll be received.

"The music business is hard. It's really a struggle as with any of the arts. People tend to think it's easy or fun. It is fun, but not easy.

"There have been so many times I've not wanted to go on stage and be happy. You're tired, or you've just had an argument. But, the show must go on," she said, grimacing at the cliché.

Together, John and Mary practice for hours, learning new songs and working on the old songs. Then, too, there's the everyday living and working together.

"Yes, it gets tough," Mary said. "There are times an evening away is good."

"For the majority of people, a man goes to work for eight hours, comes home, eats dinner and falls asleep watching the television," John said.

"Communication is the secret.

Hard hitting notes fly from the acoustical guitar as Mary and John harmonize their way across the stage with finger-snapping, foot-tapping songs. Monday and Tuesday, the married duo entertains audiences at the Deer Lake Inn.

A lot of people who see us on stage ask if we're always that happy. It's not always a bed of roses, we're human too," he laughed.

If a comparison were to be made, Mary said their sound has been influenced by and most resembles Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young.

"But, we sing Linda Rondstat, the Eagles, James Taylor and groups like that," she said.

John is a 1965 graduate of Clarkston High School, and Mary attended Our Lady of the Lakes in Waterford. They know the area.

But for their son Colin, the experience of living in the village, and being in Michigan is an exciting one.

"He said to me just the other day, 'Mom, I really like living here. I like the music store,'" Mary said.

Colin readily admits there's more to it than J.R. Ruppel's.

With the return to Michigan, he's discovered a big family he's never known. The anticipation of playing with two favored cousins this night keeps him peeping out from behind the curtains and looking toward the sidewalk.

The family is planning a special Christmas celebration which should prove quite a gathering, Mary said.

"He's also excited about seeing snow for the first time. He's never seen it fall from the sky. The other night, we called him from work so he could wake up and look at the snow," she said.

"Do you know what his response was?" John asked. "Well, it's not sticking to the ground."

The Garlaks have made one preparation for winter.

"Out in California they don't put heaters in cars because they don't need them," John said. "We had one put in our truck two weeks ago."

The next few months should prove exciting for the Garlaks. A new entertainment arena to explore for John and Mary, and the promise of snow for Colin.

Give them something you know will last.

In this changing world, there is one solid way to build your child's or grandchild's future security: The John Hancock Estate Creator. No wonder this program is popular. You may choose to pay cash premiums only for a limited time, then arrange to have the policy's future premiums funded from its growing loan value.

Policy loan values may also be used for tuition or any other purpose. The tax benefits of this concept may be attractive to you now. And later, your special young person becomes the owner of an important life insurance asset.

You can fund the Estate Creator through the Preferred 25 Policy, John Hancock's lowest net cost coverage for a young person in good health.

This is the wise time to give the child something you know will be of lasting value. This is the time to talk with me about all the advantages of John Hancock's Estate Creator.

Betrothed

Nicholas and Patricia O'Dea of Reese Road, Independence Township, announce the engagement of their daughter Kathy to Don Sharp, son of Dale and Rosemary Grable of Oak Park Drive, Independence Township, and Paul and Marilyn Sharp of Roseville. The bride-to-be is a 1979 Clarkston High School graduate. She is employed by McDonald's of Clarkston. Her fiance, an Oakland Community College student, is a 1978 CHS graduate. The couple plans a Sept. 25, 1981 wedding.

Jaehns celebrate

Richard and Louise Jaehns of Big Lake Road, Springfield Township, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday. Their children, Ron and Jackie DuCharme of Clarkston and Harry and Marjorie Kirk of Davisburg hosted a party at Roma's of Bloomfield. Former schoolmates of the Jaehns and some of the many friends they met along the way joined in on the family celebration.

Recipe File

By Lorna Bickerstaff

Linda Elkins said this is a delicious dessert, but very rich. Linda, Roland, and sons Ed and Don live on Mary Sue Street in Independence Township.

FROZEN DESSERT

- 2 c fine vanilla wafer crumbs
- 1/3 c melted butter or oleo
- 1/2 c soft butter or oleo
- 2 eggs
- 1 1/2 c powdered sugar
- 1/4 c sugar
- 2 T cocoa
- 1 c heavy cream
- 1 c chopped nuts
- 1 ripe banana, mashed
- 1/4 c sliced maraschino cherries

Mix together crumbs and melted butter, reserve 2 tablespoons for top. Press remainder in 7x11-inch pan. Cream 1/2 cup soft butter, eggs and powdered sugar, spread over crumbs. Combine sugar, cocoa and cream and whip until stiff. Fold in nuts, banana, and cherries. Spread on top of mixture in pan. Sprinkle crumbs over and chill 24 hours or freeze.

Andrews-Lewis exchange vows

Brenda Lewis and Michael Andrews were wed recently at the Clarkston United Methodist Church.

Laurie Miller Hunt of Clarkston served as matron of honor and Douglas Goodman of Pleasantville, N.Y. was best man. The Aug. 15 wedding party also included Lori Lewis, Kelly Evans, John Andrews and Eric Mellendorf.

The bride, a 1975 Clarkston High School graduate, received her bachelor's degree in nursing from Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti.

Presently employed at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital of Ann Arbor, she works in the Step-down Medical Intensive Care Unit.

She is the daughter of Ed and Gloria Lewis of Independence Township.

The bridegroom, also a 1975 CHS graduate, received his bachelor's degree in 1979 from the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

The son of Robert and Helen Andrews of Waterford, he is currently attending the University of Detroit's Dental School.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Andrews

Mooney-Hamlin wed Oct. 18 in candlelight ceremony

St. Anne's Episcopal Church, Walled Lake, was the scene of the Saturday evening wedding of Renee Carol Hamlin and Jeffrey Thomas Mooney.

Rev. Harding officiated at the candlelight service.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Alan Hamlin of Almond Lane, Independence Township, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mooney of South Lyons.

For her Oct. 18 wedding, the bride wore an antique ivory family heirloom gown of Chantilly lace with a fitted basque waist, short sleeves and a boat neckline trimmed with iridescent sequins. The full shirt formed a chapel train.

She wore a large picture hat trimmed with seed pearls and a veil and carried a cascade bouquet of a large white orchid, pompoms and ivy.

The bride's sister, Sheryl Hamlin, was maid of honor. Lori Hamlin and Yvette Hamlin and Gail Mooney, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids.

The attendants wore floor-length gowns of apricot nylon.

They carried old-fashioned lanterns with candles and cascades of white and apricot carnations, baby's breath and ivy, and wore hairpieces of small apricot carnations and baby's breath.

Tricia Ann Roberts, a cousin of Drayton Plains, was flower girl. She wore a long ivory organdy dress with short sleeves, and white gloves, and carried an ivory lace heirloom basket filled with apricot rose petals.

The flowers were done by Pam Howie, the bridegroom's cousin.

Greg Mooney, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and ushers were cousins Keith Howie of Hartland, Pat McBrien of Madison Heights and Dale Kyser of South Lyons.

The groomsmen wore brown tuxedos and apricot shirts.

To receive guests at a reception held in the church parlors, Mrs. Hamlin wore an apricot floor-length gown with ivory accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Thomas Mooney, the bridegroom's mother, received guests in a floor-length apricot, orange and purple print organdy dress. She wore a white orchid corsage.

When the couple left on a honeymoon to Niagara Falls, the new Mrs. Mooney wore an ivory handkerchief-hemline dress with a lace top and short sleeves.

The couple will reside in Pontiac.

Mrs. Jeffrey Thomas Mooney

In service

Michael Saile of Independence Township received a Civil Air Patrol Meritorious Service Award at the Michigan Wing Conference held recently in Jackson.

Saile served as the 1980 summer encampment commander and received the award for his leadership and guidance in making the week-long training exercise for teenage cadet members successful.

A former cadet, he now holds the grade of captain in CAP and serves on the Oakland County Group XII headquarters staff.

Saile was among over 275 people who attended the annual conference Oct. 24 to 25.

Civil Air Patrol is a civilian auxiliary of the United States Air Force chartered by Congress in 1941. Its volunteer members participate in a threefold mission: Aerospace education, a cadet program for teens, and emergency service and disaster relief.

For more information about CAP, call 675-3066 or write PO Box 1282, Pontiac 48056.

Staff Sgt. Craig E. Peters is a member of an organization that has received the United States Air Force Outstanding Unit Award.

Peters, who is stationed at Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Peters of Church Street, Independence Township.

The award is granted for exceptionally meritorious service or outstanding achievement that clearly sets an Air Force unit apart from similar units.

At college

Two local students have been awarded William T. Morris Scholarships to Oakland University, Rochester, for the 1980-81 academic year.

Leslie Fortin of Cranberry Lake Road, Independence Township, was recommended for the scholarship by the OU Human Resources Development Department.

Anthony M. Becker of Peach Drive, Independence Township, was recommended for the award by the OU Department of Music.

Shelley Glenn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Glenn of Reese Road, Independence Township, is one of two featured cast members in Kalamazoo College's one-act play, "Touch the Bluebird's Song."

Shelley portrays the character Tracy in the play by Louis E. Catron which traces the personal changes that severely test the love between a young man in the Navy and a young woman attending college.

Jane Elizabeth Meeker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Meeker of Almond Lane, Independence Township, has been elected president of the Inter-Society Council, the student government organization at Bob Jones University, Greenville, S.C.

Jane, a 1977 graduate of Clarkston High School, is a senior at BJU majoring in business management in the School of Business Administration.

Fire facts

Helpful facts about wood-burning stoves

People today are accustomed to the conveniences associated with modern heating appliances. If you are planning to install a wood burner this year, get all the facts, follow codes and don't get careless with your new burner.

Listed below are a few helpful facts:

1. Stoves

- A. Sheet metal: Least expensive. Heats up quickly and cools quickly. Life span of five to 15 years. Should be inspected regularly for thin spots.
- B. Plate Steel: 1/8 inch to 3/16 inch thick. Longer life than most metal types. Retains heat longer. Watch for good draft control.
- C. Cast Iron: Often lasts a lifetime. Holds up well under extreme heat. Will crack if dropped.

2. Chimneys

- A. Prefabricated: Should be insulated and UL approved. Should be inspected annually for thin spots.
- B. Masonry: Should have clay flue inside. Should be inspected and clean before use.
- C. Chimney Installation: Should extend three feet above a flat roof. Two feet above any ridge within 10 feet. Should be 16 feet from stove outlet to chimney top. Never vent more than one heating appliance into one flue.
- D. Stovepipe and Connectors: Keep short as possible. At least 24 gauge steel. Fasten sections together with screws. Try to avoid 90 degree angles. At least 18 inch clearance. Proper installation through walls and floors.
- E. Clearances: Floor at least 12 inches beyond stove and three sides. Radiating stoves should be 36 inches from combustibles. Circulating stoves should be 12 inches from combustibles. Legs of stove should be at least four inches long. Line bottom and sides of stove with fire brick or sand.
- F. Chimney Fires: Call fire department at once. Close oxygen and use approved fire extinguishers.

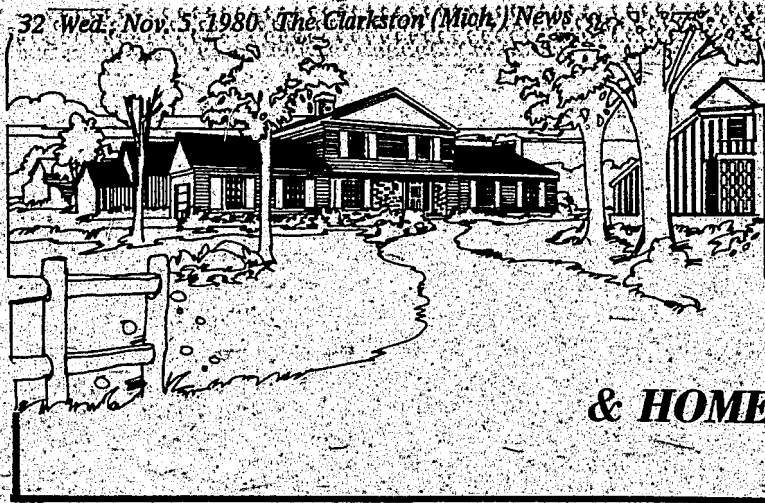

Have a safe and happy heating season!

Brayton's brings fashions to Clarkston Corners

Gloves, scarves and fall fashions fill the inside of Richard Brayton's new women's shop located in the Clarkston Corners. Richard expects new fashions to arrive each day.

Richard Brayton beamed when a customer walked into his store and asked, "Is this the same Brayton's of Rosedale Park?"

Just two weeks ago Richard opened his new store in downtown Clarkston.

"In that time, I've had many women come in and ask the same question," he said. "That's really nice. I had no idea the name was so well known in this area."

Located in the Clarkston Corners building, the shop is filled with dresses, jumpers, blouses, slacks, handbags, gloves, hats and more.

"I waited five years to find renting space in this town," Richard said. "I like the village, it appeals to me with its charm and size."

"I felt the village needed another women's apparel shop with moderately priced, almost-designer clothing," he said. "I haven't filled the store with all my expected stock yet though."

For the holidays, Richard promises chiffons, velvets and tafetas.

"We're expecting more sweaters and sportswear to come in too," he said. "Much of our clothing is moderately priced. We have sweaters ranging between $18 and $20."

Richard's background is filled with retail merchandising experience.

He's owned card shops, china and glassware shops and other apparel stores.

"Just about everything is for sale in here," he laughed. "Even our displays. I use lamps and tables and gift items. I guess I like having them around as a 'rawback from the old days.'"

Each customer walking through the door receives some kind of recognitions from Richard.

"I like people," he smiles. "I'm always on the floor and chatting. I think 99 percent of the people who come in here are really nice people."

Brayton's is also offering a fashion show the second Monday of every month at 12:30 p.m. at Jacob Petty's Seafood and Steak House in the Clarkston Mills shopping mall.

Doing Business

Diners will have the opportunity to enjoy local women modeling Brayton's latest fashions during their lunch.

"It's a nice idea," Richard said. "We're using local gals. They'll all be familiar with the cost and material of each outfit they're wearing so people should feel free to ask them any questions."

Brayton's is located at 32 S. Main Street, Clarkston, in Clarkston Corners.

The annual children's Halloween Costume Party held Oct. 25 was a great success.

The following children won prizes for their imaginative costumes: Brian Harrison, Derek Shirley, Mathew Eby, Susan Laermont, Heather Luchenbach, Jeffrey Harrison, Steven Bowers, Gretchen Eidam and Carey Garascia.

We would like to thank all the children who attended for their great costumes and Halloween spirit.

The 11 a.m. Pre-school Story Time for Wednesday, Nov. 12, includes: "The Little Red Lighthouse," a dramatically illustrated story of a little lighthouse; and "Living Things Can Break, Too," which shows the human body as a fragile machine.

The 4:30 p.m. Movie Hour on Nov. 12 features "The Wisest Man in the World," which retells the legends of the wisdom of King Solomon; and "Dear Kurt," a story about the All-American Soap Box Derby.

Some new books just in include: "The Covenant" by James Michener, "Different Families" by Alison Skelton, "Fires of Winter" by Lucille Kallen, "Come Pour the Wine" by Cynthia Freeman and "Bellefleur" by Joyce Carol Oates.

Coping with kids

by Jim Windell

Tackling good-parent, good-kids myth

There are many myths about parenthood. Some, such as "Children are fun to raise," are quickly dispelled by first-time parents, while others, such as "Love is enough," tend to persist over time.

There are plenty of other myths about parenting and parenthood and raising children, but one of the most obvious myths is one that goes something like "Good parents make good kids."

Like most myths or bits of folklore, there is at least a kernel of truth buried deep inside. Good parents do indeed have a better chance of raising successful children than average or poor parents.

However, some good people have had malicious, mean or just plain bad parents. On the other hand, being a good parent and a decent person to boot doesn't insure successful children.

In almost every family, there is a child who has some problems of a greater or lesser degree. It is almost inevitable in families (of several children) that one child will be thought of as the black sheep.

Good parents may have a higher batting average in terms of raising children, but even good parents cannot expect to bat a .1000.

Not the greatest baseball player, not Ty Cobb, Ted Williams or Pete Rose, ever hit a .1000 or even came close.

In the major leagues, a .300 batting average (which essentially means three hits for every 10 times at bat) is considered outstanding.

So, why shouldn't parents think of themselves as successful if they have one child out of three that isn't as successful as the other two?

Because the myth that says that "You are a bad parent if you have a child with problems."

"Somehow we tend to grow up with the belief that we can have good children if we are really good as parents. If we do everything right, from loving the child from the moment of conception to the time he leaves home, and read books to him at an early age, and toilet train him at the right time, and help him with his homework, and take him to cub scouts and never spank him, he will turn out to be a credit to us as parents.

And if he doesn't, then we know we failed and we must feel guilty. Obviously, parents should try to be as good as they can be with their children, but children have problems sometimes through no fault of the people who raised them.

Physical, chemical, genetic, sibling position, in-born temperaments and social factors sometimes over rule all the kindness, love, attention and expertise of even the best mother and father.

YOUR EYES

By Dr. Theodore B. Walton
OPTOMETRIST

An infant is unable to tell about his vision problems and besides, how would a child know if his vision was sub-normal? He has nothing with which to compare his visual experiences. When a child reaches the age of three, and certainly before he enters school, his eyes should be examined by an optometrist.

Parents should be alert to danger signals regarding their children's eyes. Does the child frequently rub the eyes or complain that eyes hurt? Does he hold his head in awkward positions, tilted or thrust forward, as if trying to see better? Is he often unable to locate and pick up small objects that have been dropped?

If these, or any other signs of imperfect vision are noticed, arrange for an optometric examination of the child's eyes as soon as possible. Don't wait until he starts school.

"I call it Halloween Fiasco," says Bailey Lake Elementary School fourth grade teacher Bill Rathburg. "It's a hodgepodge collection of Halloween skits, poems, pantomime—a little bit of everything and just a lot of fun." Rathburg's fourth grade classes have put on the production for schoolmates and parents for the past seven years. "They are always thoroughly entertained," he says. Pictured are most of the talented crew that put on this year's show.

Halloween spellbinder

Even the witches are sophisticated in this production. From left, Rachel LaPratt, Troy Cartier and Allen Vaughn portraying three witches from Shakespeare's "Macbeth".

Dr. Diabolical, alias David London, entertains with a string of one-liners that would have done Groucho Marx proud.

The ghostly voice of B.J. Deloney gives this message: "I'll haunt you forever unless you agree to mend your ways." Pat Eschker, as Lucifer Mean, takes the advice and doles out Halloween goodies to deserving kids.
