Village council considers ban on leaf burning

Proposal arises from township resident's request

By Marilyn Trumper

In March of 1980, village residents defeated a ballot proposal to ban burning of leaves in the Village of Clarkston.

Now, eight months later, Clarkston's Village Council is considering overriding resident opinion, and instituting a ban.

The council's considerations grew out of Beverly Clemo's request at Monday night's meeting.

Clemo, an Independence Township resident who lives at 6900 W. Church Street just outside village limits, pointed to air pollution as a primary reason to institute the ban.

"This is a matter of regional concern," Clemo said. "I know a proposed ban was turned down by village voters, but the question is what are we going to do about it?"

Clemo referred to dense smoke rolling across village streets, remaining there, and endangering the lives of pedestrians. She also was concerned with air quality and the number of people burning leaves without a permit.

Quite frankly, Mrs. Ap-Madoc," she said, addressing the village president, "this is a decision which should be made by the council. If it's not, I see that as a cop-out. There is an alternative to burning — bagging and mulching.

"Part of the problem is the closeness of homes, the trees and the terrain," she said. "People can be burning a block away, the wind changes and the smoke literally goes through our home."

Independence Township Fire Chief, Frank Ronk, said he has limited burning permits to three permits per street, per day, good for one day.

"They have to stay with the fire and stop burning after dark. But if they don't do it," he said, "we don't know about it unless someone calls. I don't have the manpower to go out scouting."

Jerry Powell, co-owner of Ben

Powell Disposal, said after the meeting that his company will pick up bagged leaves on regular pick-up days.

"Powell did stress consideration, saying if a resident put out 50 bags he would not pick them up in one trip, but over a period of time.

In an informal poll, council members favored a ban on leaf burning by 4-2.

"I'm against the ban," said Jackson Byers. "Leaves burn

Tisch an exception

Springfield Township voters follow trends

By Al Zawacky

Springfield Township voters reflected the attitudes of electors throughout Michigan in Tuesday's nationwide election — with one big exception.

Proposal D, known as the Tisch Amendment, was approved in Springfield by almost two to one, although the proposal lost by a wide margin statewide.

"The fact that it (Tisch) passed in Springfield didn't surprise me at all," said Springfield Township Supervisor Collin Walls.

"If anything, I would have thought that it would have won even bigger. But I am surprised to see Tisch lose so badly statewide."

Proposed by Shiawasee County Drain Commissioner Robert Tisch and placed on the state ballot by petition, the amendment would have rolled property assessments back to 1978 levels, cut them in half and required the state to make up most of the revenue lost by local governments.

In contrast to the results in Springfield, the Tisch amendment went down to defeat statewide by better than 10 percentage points.

"My only reaction would be that I hope the legislature and the governor realize that there are still a large segment of people that feel something should be done about the property tax situation," Walls said.

"They can't go on expanding the state government and setting up new programs as though nothing has happened."

In the only contested race in Springfield Township, incumbent Democrat Ina Golden was outpolled by incumbent Republican Mary Watson and Republican newcomer Shirley Secatch for two posts on the library board.

Golden said her defeat was probably the result of a strong Republican showing nationwide, paced by Ronald Reagan's decisive victory over incumbent Democrat Jimmy Carter in the presidential race.

Reagan's margin of victory in Springfield was in excess of 20 percentage points, twice his margin nationwide.

"I guess I lost on the coattails of the Carter massacre," Golden said of the results.

"I'll continue to support the library in the future, and I'm glad for Shirley (Secatch). She's been active with the Friends of the Library for a long time, and will be a good addition to the library board."

Springfield voters followed the trends set by the electorate as a whole by turning thumbs down on the six ballot proposals other than the Tisch amendment and giving the nod to William Broomfield (R) for congress, Claude Trim (D) for state legislature, Daniel Murphy (R) for Oakland County executive and L. Brooks Patterson (R) for Oakland County prosecutor.

A notable exception was in the county sheriff's race, where Springfield picked Republican James Stewart over county-wide winner Democrat Johannes Spreen, 1,534 votes to 1,508.

Leaves

seven days out of the year where fireplaces burn 365 days a year. If you ban one, why not ban the other. I think it would be imposing a hardship on a majority of the people for a vociferous minority."

Council member Gary Symons disagreed.

"If it would solve the problem by having Powell pick up the bagged leaves, I'd be in favor of it. I bag mine."

Council member Ruth Basinger was against the ban. Members James Schultz, Constance Fisher and Fontie ApMadoc were in favor of the ban.

At the Nov. 24 meeting, the council is expected to appoint a new member to replace Robert Adams who resigned two weeks ago.

At that meeting, ApMadoc said, the council would vote on the proposal to ban the burning of leaves.

President-elect Ronald Reagan's landslide victory across the nation last week got some help from Independence Township voters.

Nationwide, Reagan defeated President Jimmy Carter with a 10-point spread—51 to 41 percent.

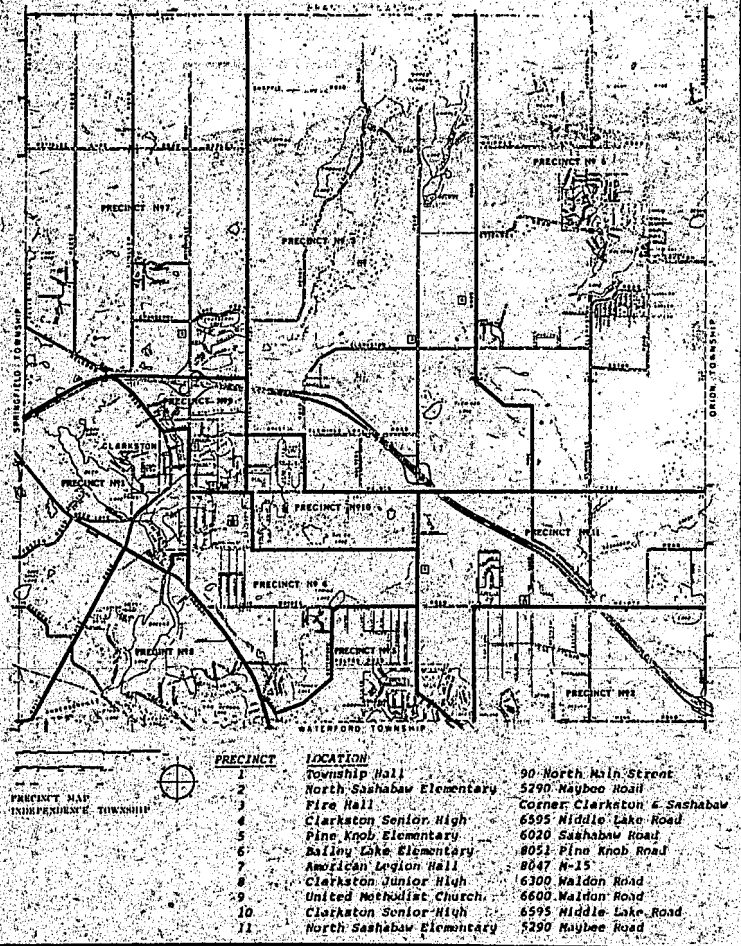

In Independence Township, the point spread was over 30 percent, with Republican Reagan taking 60.7 percent of the votes cast for president and his Democratic opponent taking 29.8 percent.

Reagan and vice presidential candidate George Bush took 5,939 votes in the township. By precinct, the tallies were: 1. 425, 2. 360, 3. 580, 4. 486, 5. 326, 6. 668, 7. 569, 8. 618, 9. 288, 10. 396, 11. 426 and 797 absentee votes.

Carter and Vice President Walter Mondale received 2,921 votes in the township. By precinct, the totals were: 1. 119, 2. 237, 3. 258, 4. 197, 5. 322, 6. 434, 7. 212, 8. 241, 9. 118, 10. 209, 11. 260 and 314 absentee votes.

In the Libertarian party, Ed Clark and David Koch received 138 votes; Citizen's Party candidates Barry Commoner and LaDonna Harris had 15 votes; 743 votes were cast for the Anderson Coalition team of John Anderson and Patrick Lucey; and Independent candidates Gus Hall and Angela Davis received 15 votes.

Board to serve 4 years

Members of Independence Township's Board elected on Nov. 4 will hold office for four years.

This is a first for the township.

In 1978, the state passed legislation mandating four-year terms for township board members, according to Christopher Rose, township clerk.

In the past, he said, trustees were elected to four-year terms, and the full-time positions were filled for two-year terms.

"This resulted from a push from townships statewide," he said. "I think it will work out better. It's always been that you'd just learn a job, spend two years training and then lose in the election. A new man would come in and have to start learning all over again."

"It really takes a year to a year-and-a-half before a job is learned. You have to go through all the different experiences, the budgets, taxes and every season has its own problems," he said.

Some voters had to wait

Independence Township residents in many precincts waited two hours for the opportunity to cast ballots in the Nov. 4 national election.

"The lines were longer this year for two reasons," explains township Clerk, Christopher Rose.

"First, we had a long ballot, I know when I voted it took most people two to three minutes at the booth. Secondly, there was a high voter turnout. In precinct six alone over 1,200 people showed up to vote. There was no way I could have predicted that kind of turnout.

"It's never happened in the past. They are not our largest precinct and I can think of no reason why such a high turnout resulted," he said.

Rose said he has theories on how to eliminate long lines in the future.

"We could buy more voting machines, split the precincts and make them smaller, or convert to the punch card method."

"Since the last election, we purchased four extra voting machines. That eliminated some of the long lines," he said. "It would also be expensive to go to the punch card method, but those machines are easier to score and fold down to the size of a suitcase."

Rose estimates it would cost $30,000 for the township to incorporate the punch card system, and said he intends to investigate all the different systems.

Tisch won local favor

Independence Township voters agreed with the rest of Michigan on six of the seven statewide ballot proposals.

They were not in agreement, however, when it came to Proposal D, the Tisch Amendment, which had a final local count of 5,354 "yes" votes and 4,120 "no" votes. Statewide tallies defeated Tisch by 10 percent of the votes cast.

All other proposals were soundly defeated by local voters.

On Proposal A, the Smith-Bullard tax plan, voters cast 7,316 "no" votes and 1,645 "yes" votes. Proposal C, the Milliken-Coalition tax plan, was defeated 7,324 to 1,535.

Voters said they did not want the drinking age lowered to 19 in a margin of nearly two to one with 6,244 "no" votes and 3,154 "yeses."

Proposal E, the prison construction question, was defeated 6,184 to 2,872.

A similar tally was taken for Proposal G, the bid to allow the legislature to pass laws relating to their exemption from civil arrests with 6,308 "no" to 2,623 "yes" votes.

Proposal H which would have restricted the authority of the lieutenant governor and established a method to fill a vacancy in the office was defeated 5,341 to 3,329.

Camp Oweki feels financial crunch

By Marilyn Trumper
A financial right hook has dealt a hard blow to Camp Oweki. Owned, operated and financed by Camp Fire Inc., Oweki's 150 acres located near Gulick Lake in Independence Township serves 250 youngsters from the Clarkston area involved in the organization. Over the past eight years, costs to operate the camp have steadily increased, while use of the camp has declined, said Executive Director of the North Oakland Camp Fire Council, Jack Pugh.

"Each year it costs between $30,000 and $40,000 to run the camp, and this includes maintaining the property, paying insurance, utilities and staff to manage the operations," he said.

"We depend on income from outside organizations utilizing the facilities for more than half of our revenue," Pugh said. "Right now we're operating at $25,000 a year and that's at a minimum budget."

For the past year and a half, groups have been studying possible solutions to pull the camp out of its fiscal bind, he said, and they've come up with four possible options.

The first option involves extensive building on the camp's grounds, which should ultimately increase Camp Fire and outside rentals of the premises, Pugh said.

The second is to make no improvement to the camp and continue to operate at a minimal level so that summer camp and weekend opportunities for Camp Fire members will still be available.

Thirdly, Pugh said, the options exists to lease the camp for another community use in keeping with Camp Fire goals.

The fourth option, one of permanence, involves selling the camp altogether and relocating the day camp program to another area.

"It's important to remember that these are all options," Pugh stressed. "We've not made any final decisions yet. We are a non-profit agency and there is no surplus for us to invest. We have to use what we have."

"We're working now on how to operate the camp at least expense to service the greatest number of people. We raise our funds through camp rentals and product leader sales."

"If any civic group is interested in renting the camp, we encourage a call," Pugh said. "For now, we'll just have to wait and see what happens. We're weighing our options before any decision is made."

Camp Fire leaders and assistants are invited to attend one of two meetings scheduled to share ideas and receive feedback on the proposed options.

The first is Wednesday, Nov. 19 at 7:30 p.m. at the Y W C A, 269 W. Huron, Pontiac and the second is scheduled Thursday, Nov. 20 at 7:30 p.m. at Elmwood School, 2251 Auburn Rd., Rochester.

Letters to editor

Tower was dedicated to job

To the Editor:

I have grown up hearing that old cliché, "MONEY TALKS." I now know this is true after the Nov. 4 election.

Floyd Tower is one of the most dedicated people to his job that I know. He has always tried to do what was best for the township at the present time and for the future.

I wonder if Mr. Smith will spend the countless hours away from family and friends that I know Mr. Tower did.

I also wonder if Mr. Smith will take his briefcase and work along with him on weekend camping trips with family and friends.

I wonder if Mr. Smith will spend long hours trying to find dry ice for the ordinary people when — heaven forbid — we ever have another ice storm as we did in 1978. Will he also work long hours following the Edison crews around to make sure that power is restored to our area in a fast and efficient way?

I also wonder if Mr. Smith will open his own home to friends that have lost their power — give them a place to sleep and a good, hot homemade meal.

I guess what I really wonder the most — did Mr. Smith win this election or did Dr. O'Neill and his very influential committee?

I only hope that the Township of Independence will be satisfied with the decision that they made. I know I won't.

Second Man: I understand where you're coming from, but I think, on an issue as important as this, I would like to make my decision after I've listened to the people.

First Man: Don't worry, I've already talked with both of them.

END

Okay, so I've had a little fun. I don't believe this scene will become reality, but the task of defining who "the people" are still deserves some serious attention.

This election, as with all hard-fought battles, has divided our community and the wounds will not heal for some time.

The letters to the editor in today's paper are a good sample of the feelings — they range from some hearty self-congratulations to downright bitterness.

Between the two supervisor candidates, the election campaigns are worth some review.

Independence Township's new Supervisor James Smith talked about forming citizen task forces made up of "the best people (I) can find" to study local issues and concerns.

His past support of a nine-member planning commission, which he chaired, is certainly a point in his favor — Smith's philosophy was that nine people offered a greater range of opinion and expertise.

As a retired owner of Howe Smith Inc., designers and distributors of educational systems and equipment, he has administrative experience that should be beneficial to our township.

Former Supervisor Floyd (Whitey) Tower leaves office with a well-deserved reputation of working to help the people of this community with problems brought to his attention.

In the areas of caring about others and doing his utmost to serve the community, Tower was tops.

On the same topic, my father made a thought-provoking statement after the election.

"After awhile, politicians forget they're there to serve the people," he said, "and they think the people are there to serve them."

We shall see.

Here's Herb You're staying where?

by Herb Rose

The other day I was reiterating my often-stated position with regard to the once proposed hotel, "I don't want a 22-story building in my backyard," when I thought, "Why not?"

If some of the visionaries who plan communities can see Clarkston as a forest of high rises, why don't I reap some of the economic harvest?

Although my lot on the Mill Pond is rather narrow, I could still build a 22-story building — only it would be 50-feet wide! I would call it the "Pond View," or if the wind around a stiletto-like structure set up interesting vibrations, the appellation "Whispering Steel."

There are those who might think a 22-story building would be out of place on a residential street, but I'm sure that a competent architect, using the techniques of his profession, could blend it into the background.

In lieu of a ski run, guests could get their thrills sliding down a corkscrew trough into the Mill Pond. I could also offer a parachute jump that would be equaled by few and a high dive that you wouldn't believe.

For people of a less athletic bent, vantage points would be established so that, during the season when the pond is being treated, one could sit in the cool of the evening and watch the weeds die.

The proximity to the downtown business district should be an advantage. We have been told of the boon to Clarkston merchants of such a hotel.

Although I, myself, have a little trouble conjuring up an image of a couple of reveling conventioners staggering into Rudy's for a loaf of whole meat, we might as well minimize the stagger distance.

A greater economic impact will result from the lack of on-site parking, which will necessitate leasing remote lots and hiring a fleet of shuttle bus drivers. Of course, most guests will, as part of their check-in procedure, sell their cars.

It never ceases to amaze me the wonderful worlds that can be discovered when you follow a course of pure logic.

Bank mascots

by Jim Sherman

All banks should be piggy banks. We won't carry it so far as to say that the home offices of National Bank of Detroit should be in the shape of a pig, but their branches should.

There are enough kinds of pigs, and all sizes, that each set of banks could choose their own mascot-motif.

Since that isn't about to happen, we'll limit our crusade to just the banks with the slit on the top. We got one for our anniversary that's just great. The slot is wide enough to drop in more than one coin at a time.

The withdrawal hole is large enough for easy borrowing. It'll show up real nice in our collection . . . of two. So much better than the Tootsie Roll job or the cartoon character, Woodstock.

Daughter Luan asked for volunteers to help her with her diet. Mother and I quickly responded. Neither of us are overweight . . . in our own estimations, we just wanted to help Luan.

No bets were made as to who would lose the most in 14 days. At 217 they figured I had so much more to start with they'd be risking their money.

The other thing is, I was on a diet once before. They know it takes stubbornness to lose weight successfully. That alone put me in first place.

At 206 I left the regimen. Hazel dropped a little, but she should have gained. She ate more on the diet than she does off.

Luan, well, Luan had a couple occasions . . . MSU homecoming, MSU Halloween, and more temptations, like getting up in the morning.

With friends like Harm Fritch . . .

He called to say some friends were going to vote for Tisch because "Jim Sherman had always shown a lot of good judgement."

Harm told them, "He ought to have a lot of good judgement, he never used any of it."

People power works again

To the Editor:

Some time ago as a reporter, I wrote an article about the residents of Lake Oakland Woods who organized to fight the unkept promises of their builder and the shortcomings of township government.

I referred to their efforts as "people power."

Only last year, two separate groups of citizens organized to fight a proposed hotel and a possible height variance.

As a result, 73 percent of the voters who turned out for the special election said "NO" to both questions.

"People power" got out the vote and told the township board just exactly how they felt.

On a similar scale, that very same "people power" elected six good citizens to the township board last week.

The Independence Residents for Responsible Government recruited a veritable army of people to mail out cards and letters, make phone calls, carry signs and hand out literature on behalf of the Republican team.

In addition, each candidate recruited his own group of workers.

These three instances point to one very clear conclusion: Never underestimate the power of people dedicated to bring about change if they really work at it.

These people were all dedicated, they all worked hard, and their efforts were rewarded. They brought about the changes they sought and they are to be congratulated.

Township voters merit praise

CONGRATULATIONS are due the voters of Independence Township.

Almost 80 percent of you who are registered voted in the election of Nov. 4th. Some of you stood in line to vote till 11 p.m., even though it was possible you knew the national race was over.

As fellow residents and neighbors of the township, we as a committee want to thank the voters for their support of the candidates we endorsed.

In closing, the Wednesday after the election, the committee took down all of the signs we could locate for the candidates we endorsed.

If you are aware of any we missed, please call 625-8181.

GOP club says thanks

Dear Residents:

The Independence Township Republican Club would like to thank the residents of Independence Township for their participation and support in the last election.

Your nearly 80 percent turnout at the polls demonstrated your concern for the community and the future of our country.

We would also like to thank the candidates of all parties for their participation and hard work toward the goal of giving the electorate good and viable choices for public office.

Sound decision made at polls

Dear Editor:

Jim Smith's victory demonstrates intelligent judgment on the part of an informed populace.

His managerial expertise, clearly demonstrated in the private sector, is a system of transferrable disciplines that can now be exercised in public service.

Let us have no agonizing over decisions made in living rooms.

The decision was made at the polls and it was exceedingly sound.

Editorial

The message seemed clear, but you have to wonder

Two headlines in Friday's Detroit Free Press sent us reeling. We tore them out and put them side-by-side to make sure we really saw what we thought.

Yes, there they were in black and white.

"Reagan's goal: A 10% Tax Cut"

And, "New Taxes Proposed to Balance Budget" by the Milliken Administration.

Governor William Milliken and House Speaker Bobby Crim both have said the voter's message last Tuesday was clear, the people are considerably riled by high taxes.

Yet both said they favor a balanced package of tax increases and cuts in spending to balance the budget.

Wednesday (today) we'll know for sure what Gov. Milliken has in mind. He's due to make recommendations for the budget the legislature failed to approve October 1. Instead they extended the old budget until after the election.

We feel the budget should be balanced by a cut in spending PERIOD.

That's what the rest of us have had to do.

But, we know that isn't government's way. Government lives on increasing their own revenues, even thrives on it. Saying people "demand" services, governments set up new agencies, then cry, "Surely we can't cut out the inspections of barber shops!"

Try it! Has OSHA accomplished anything insurance rates couldn't?

Michigan is awash with citizens fed up with paying skyrocketing taxes and seeing no improvement in police protection, schools under-educating or miss-educating, and their roads inadequate.

Mr. Milliken, tax increases should be put out of your mind . . . unless you really plan on not seeking another term. —JAS

'If it Fitz. . .'

Smile, for the 10-day week

by Jim Fitzgerald

Everyone can't have a good day. There aren't enough days in the week. Everyone is in too big a hurry. Look at Jim Garner. Don't look at George Ramsay: Garner sells Polaroid cameras on TV. Ramsay sells extra days on calendars. I'll tell you about him later.

One of Jim Garner's big selling points when he's pushing Polaroid is speed: "You see the picture in seconds, not minutes."

That's marvelous. Using the speed criterion, the only thing more wonderful than seeing a photo of your baby daughter 10 seconds after taking it is to take no photo at all. Just look at the baby. "You see her as soon as you see her, not in seconds."

Personally, I like the way we do it in our family. We first see our photos anywhere from six months to several years after we take them. This way, faded memories are revived. We can argue about whether it was at a Holiday Inn in Kentucky or Alabama that our son took his own picture while swimming on the bottom of a dry swimming pool.

Nuts to Polaroid. Photographed events can be enjoyed twice when the film isn't taken to the drugstore for development until the roll is finished. If a family uses several cheap cameras on the same trip, and doesn't take too many pictures because film costs money, it is possible for several rolls of film to remain unfinished forever, if not longer.

It is adventurous serendipity to pick up developed pictures taken at a daughter's wedding and discover the Fotomat envelope also contains pictures taken the day she began kindergarten.

I don't understand why anyone wants to see a photograph 10 seconds after it was taken. That's the same as taking a second glance, one eye-blink after the first glance. What's new? Nothing.

Some people claim the big advantage of an instant photo is you know immediately if it didn't turn out good, and you can take another picture without driving back to the Holiday Inn in Kentucky, or Alabama. That's nonsense.

Photographs are best, a year later, when they're bad.

The best photos in our family collection feature people with no heads. My wife takes them. She is the world's best photographer of belt buckles.

I specialize in pictures taken too far away from the subject, so you can't tell if that is Cousin Al in the Grand Canyon, or an ant on a picnic blanket. These uncorrected photos, after finally making it through a Fotomat, provide instant laughs whenever viewed. This is a lot more fun than Polaroid's instant correction.

Of course, Jim Garner is right. Most people are in too big a hurry to wait more than 10 seconds to see a photograph. These people think there aren't enough days in the week. They should buy George Ramsay's calendar which has 10 days in every week.

No kidding, Ramsay is a bearded, puckish, 44-year-old printing salesman who lives in Livonia and says such things as: "I like old planes, where you look at the noise and see the plane."

The three extra days on Ramsay's calendar are Restday, between Sunday and Monday and Funday and Meday, between Saturday and Sunday. The names of the three days explain what they are for. If you don't understand how they could be used, you really need them.

Ramsay's calendar is handsomely printed, with grand photographs by Bob Buchta of Detroit, wisely captioned. Ramsay is currently lining up outlets to sell his product, for $3.95. It's the whimsical type of thing that should be sold in a store with a name like Emily's Across the Street. Or Ramsay can be contacted at 12380 Globe St., Livonia, 48150. Phone 464-4242 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

The 10-day calendar is nothing important, but it's more fun than a pet rock. It would make a fine Christmas gift for the man who has everything except the time to wait six months to laugh at a photograph of his belt buckle.

Tower faces job hunt; leaves with pride intact

'We put our hearts and guts into this for 4 years'

By Marilyn Trumper

The next week will be one of transition for Floyd (Whitey) Tower, Independence supervisor.

Sitting behind his office desk, Tower, 48, shakes his head and says, "It was not an election for Democrats. Few survived the Republican sweep."

Tower, elected to office in 1976 and 1978, lost out to James B. Smith (R), in Tuesday's election. Smith will be sworn into office Nov. 20th, Tower's last day as township supervisor.

"I'm no political expert, but even trying to feel the polls I felt I had a 50-50 chance," he said. "Even the three precincts which normally vote Democratic didn't this time."

"Some people might wonder, 'Maybe I could have done this, or should have done that.' I don't think so. I spent more in this election on signs, advertising, everything," he said.

Prior to his 1976 win, Tower worked in electrical construction for 23 years.

"I know I have to seek employment and I don't like not working," he said. "I've made a commitment to my family for some time off."

"It's just been three days following the election and already I feel the pressures of this job leaving," he said. "I worked hard at it. I spent more hours here than in the last 23 years when I worked two jobs."

Tower has a master electrician's license. He probably won't jump back into the field immediately, having promised himself one week of deer hunting, he said.

Recalling election night, Tower said he headed out to one of the precincts to read numbers off the voter machine.

"I took off the figures, they read 197 to 110, and I knew then I wouldn't make it," he said.

Stressing there was no animosity toward candidates who won the election and that he intends to remain living in the community, Tower said, "We put our hearts and guts into this for four years. I have no problems walking out. My family should be proud."

Setting up task forces is Smith's first priority

Perhaps it was the long wait in line to cast his ballot that proved to be too much for one Independence Township man.

Still a half hour away from the voting booth at Pine Knob Elementary School, the man collapsed into the arms of a fellow waiting behind him.

"We just laid him down on the floor and called an ambulance," said Rena Bernor, election chairperson of Precinct 5. "They came within five minutes."

"He never did get to vote," she said.

Hospital spokesmen would not disclose the nature of the man's illness, only that he is listed in good condition at Pontiac General Hospital.

Some voters in Precinct 6 waited three hours to cast ballots, according to Independence Township Clerk Christopher Rose.

"According to the election workers, the people waiting in line realized the strain," Rose said. "They made the best out of a bad situation, chatted with those in line, and left saying good-bye."

There were reports of folks reading books, newspapers and hemming skirts while they anticipated venturing into the voting booths.

Republican Charles Whitlock, who was elected to the Oakland County Board of Commissioners Nov. 4, claims a first.

No one from Independence Township has served on the board since 1968, when it was reduced to 27 members to comply with the one-man, one-vote philosophy.

Whitlock, who lives on Drayton Road in Independence Township, will soon represent District 3 on the commission. He outpooled Democrat Jerry O'Dean of Orion Township by 1,132 votes.

He attributes his successful bid for office to the advantage Republicans had this year and to his door-to-door campaign in all 24 precincts in the district which includes all of Orion Township, a portion of Pontiac Township and precincts 2, 5 and 11 in Independence.

"I think you put these factors together and it led to a successful campaign," Whitlock said.

The United Way Auction held last month at Ritter's Farm Market netted over $600 for the charity organization.

The event, offered by the Clarkston Business Association in cooperation with United Way, was such a success that it is to become an annual fund-raising effort.

It's a life and death matter.

When the yellow light is flashing on Waldon Road, just over the hill from Clarkston's junior high, senior high and elementary schools, the speed limit is 25 mph.

Don't move up to the car's bumper in front of you, encouraging the driver to increase speed.

Laws are made for reasons.

Drive 25.

It could be your own child's life you're saving.

By Marilyn Trumper

Public involvement was James B. Smith's political platform cornerstone in the race for Independence Township supervisor.

Following his victory over Democrat Floyd (Whitey) Tower in last week's election, Smith said one of his first moves after taking office will be the establishment of task forces.

"There will be some changes. First, plans for task forces will be announced," Smith said, clarifying that the task force subjects would be announced following the swearing-in ceremony on Nov. 20.

"There will also be a serious study of the sewer fund surplus. According to figures from the latest audit, there is a surplus in sewer funds of $1.5 million at the county," he said.

Smith also said he intends to review sewer system fund earnings.

"According to the latest audit reports, that fund has retained earnings of $914,516, but there should be $400,000 there," he said. "We're going to look into this, but we'll need more definite information from the financial consultant and the township auditors."

Viewing the four years ahead, Smith said he sees a new spirit of cooperation among the government and residents, and among board members.

"I've already had pleasant talks with Mr. Ritter and Mr.

Rose and the trustees and I see every combined effort to accentuate the positive.

One thing's for certain, the enlivening of a new spirit of cooperation. We can solve these problems, which in the past have arisen from lack of communication," Smith said.

"I want to talk to all the township employees as a whole. We have a golden opportunity to use our talents and new ideas in this administration to create a brighter future for Independence Township," he said.

POSTER BOARD, white and colors. Clarkston News, 5 S. Main

TO THE CITIZENS OF INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP

Please accept my most sincere thanks for your vote of confidence in re-electing me your treasurer.

I look forward to hearing your viewpoints and to the opportunity of continuing to represent you on the Independence Township Board.

I would also like to express a very special thank you to everyone who openly supported me and worked so hard to make this campaign a success.

And Ritter.

Clarkston Chiefs host 10th annual banquet

Lion Eddie Murray, CHS Coach Walt Wyniemko are speakers at little league football awards dinner

By Al Zawacky

It was a time to eat, a time to listen and a time to reflect back on jobs well done.

The scene was the 10th annual Clarkston Chiefs little league football banquet, held Thursday evening at Springfield Oaks Activities Center, which featured a buffet dinner, trophy presentations and two guest speakers.

Addressing the large crowd of parents, players and cheerleaders were place-kicker Eddie Murray of the Detroit Lions and Clarkston High School Head Football Coach Walt Wyniemko.

Murray fielded questions from the audience, some of which were no less profound than the queries heard at a professional press conference.

"Do you like (Lions' General Manager) Russ Thomas?" asked one of the little-league grid-ders.

"No comment," Murray said with a wry smile.

"What two teams are going to be in the Super Bowl?"

"Well, the Lions are going to be one of them . . ." Murray began, and the audience cheered and applauded.

Wyniemko spoke about the high-school team's highly successful 1980 season, referring to his squad as "52 special players who all had the same dream."

"Work hard, dream and reach for the stars," Wyniemko advised the young Chiefs' players. "The harder you work, the luckier you'll get."

The coach also presented trophies to seven members of the league-champion CHS varsity football team this year, all of whom are alumni of the Chiefs' little league program: Seniors Ron Feneley, Mark Hughes, Rich Lamphere, Greg Thomas, Ray Davis, Mike Ogans and Bryan Rexford.

This year's Chiefs teams were highlighted by an outstanding junior varsity squad, which was undefeated, untied and unscored on in seven contests. The freshman team finished the season at 5-2, while the varsity ended the campaign at 2-3-2.

Approximately 151 players and cheerleaders were honored with trophies for their play and participation in the Chiefs' 10th year of operation in the Suburban Midget Football Conference.

"I think our primary aim is to take boys and build them into young men," said Harry Shoup, a member of the Chiefs board of directors. "The program teaches them how to train, to take orders, to work together — things that are useful later in life."

"After five years, they're not boys anymore. They're men. I think that shows up in the junior high and the high school programs, and I think the coaches there would agree."

Eddie Murray of the Detroit Lions proved to be a popular figure as players, cheerleaders and family queued up at the end of the evening for autographs.

Members of one of the Chiefs' cheerleading squads performed a favorite cheer for the audience during the award presentations.

A trophy for everyone was the story Thursday evening, as each boy and girl received a memento for his or her participation in the Chiefs' program this year.

Led by the strong play of sophomore Mary Smith, the CHS tennis team won its first matches since the 1976 season, posting an overall record of 7-7.

Netters make progress

Smith qualifies for state competition

One of the reasons for the Clarkston High School team's big improvement this season can be stated in two words: Mary Smith.

After two years without a victory, the Clarkston netters won seven of 14 matches this season — and sophomore Smith's play in the regionals qualified her for state competition held Oct. 25.

"I think it's a combination of the players and myself having more experience," said second-year coach Becky Craig, explaining the CHS tennis team's progress this season.

"You can't expect to do well with girls who just come out in the fall — you've got to play all year around. And we've got girls that do — we won some matches 7-0."

Smith said that she was "a little surprised" to find herself in state competition in her first year on the team.

"I wasn't really expecting it, but it just sort of worked out that way," she said.

"I'm really glad it did, though."

Although she lost in the opening round in the state competition, Coach Craig pointed out that qualifying for state as a sophomore was quite an accomplishment.

Smith began playing tennis just four years ago and enjoys playing over the summer in the recreation department programs.

"My parents helped get me started," she said. "It just looked like a lot of fun, something I'd be able to enjoy doing."

The Point After

by Al Zawacky

Many reasons behind Wolves' success

It was quiet and dark at the Clarkston High School athletic field Friday night. It'll be that way this coming Friday as well, and for the next 40 Fridays after that, too.

The short high school football season is over. And in the center of the glass-enclosed trophy case near the main office at Clarkston High sits the Greater Oakland Activities League championship trophy, right where the players had said all along it would be.

"We accomplished more than a lot of people expected," Coach Walt Wyniemko observed at season's end, reflecting on his Wolves' perfect 5-0 in the GOAL and 8-1 record overall.

It was a somewhat pointed remark, for I was among the unnamed "lot of people." Back at the beginning of the season, this football pundit descended from his ivory tower and generously allowed that the Clarkston Wolves would probably finish with six victories.

What were the reasons for the football team's abrupt turn-around? And are there causes for optimism about the future?

First, the reasons for the 1980 success:

WORK AND TALENT: A team will win football games when it combines dedication with natural talent. Neither is a total substitute for the other.

The natural ability was there, and the players and coaches did their best to develop it.

SENIOR LEADERSHIP: One of the Wolves made an interesting observation on the sidelines last month during the Clarkston-Milford contest, saying that one of the differences between this season and 1979 was the team's "togetherness."

"Last year we were juniors and seniors," he said. "It seemed like the seniors just wanted to get their last year in. This year we're one team—I think the (summer football) camp brought us together."

That might ring as a bit of a cheap shot at last year's seniors, but I don't think it was intended to be. It simply points out the fact that the class of '81 played a key leadership role, as any senior class must if the varsity team is to be successful.

COACHING: In Walt Wyniemko, Clarkston High School has one of the finest coaches in Oakland County, if not the state.

That may seem like over-indulgent praise, but it is in fact a rational dissertation of the facts concerning every aspect of coaching. Wyniemko surrounds himself with excellent assistants, works hard, gets along with young people and knows the game. His program attracts huge members.

He has proved that you don't have to abuse players or be "the most hated coach in the league" to be successful. Everything that a good high school coach should be, Wyniemko is.

THE SCHEDULE: The Detroit Lions are benefiting from a soft schedule this season, and the records of the Wolves' nine opponents this year are hardly a litany of success, either.

Only two of the nine finished above .500, and combining their records yields a cumulative mark of 29 wins, 52 losses.

Whether this was by design or not, it was one of the best things that could have happened. It didn't do the Wolves any good to be devoured by Grand Blanc, Andover and Lamphere last year after coming off of a 2-7 campaign in 1978.

Next year's schedule will be tougher, with Bloomfield Lahser replacing Clintondale and Waterford Mott taking the place of woebegone Milford in the GOAL.

One of the keys to truly "rebuilding" a program is putting some victories on the board, regardless of who they're against. Now that Clarkston football has been boosted by a winning season, the schedules will grow tougher—and the Wolves will be ready.

AS FOR THE future, it's impossible not to be optimistic about 1981 and the seasons beyond. Clarkston has the old will to win again, and they've got a talent pool and the coaches to turn that will into reality.

1980 was not a fluke, but a beginning. There are even better seasons ahead.

Cagers' tough schedule drops CHS to 9-8

By Al Zawacky

What appeared to be the toughest part of the schedule is proving to be just that.

Playing league-rival Milford and perennial non-league power Oxford in the same week, the Clarkston High School varsity girls' basketball team suffered two defeats, dropping to 4-4 in the league and 9-8 overall.

"We knew we had this part of the year coming," said CHS Coach Dave McDonald. "We had Kettering, Oxford and Milford, three in a row—I think their combined records are something like 70-7."

Playing at home against Oxford, the Wolves quickly found themselves victimized by some hot shooting. Oxford went up 18-0 in the first quarter, led 32-10 at the half and held on the rest of the way to post a 54-24 victory.

Tracee Antos led Clarkston's attack with six points, while teammates Lynn McCormick and Jane Acton each had four.

Oxford looked good — they just came out, poured it on and beat us," McDonald said. "They were shooting even better than usual (Oxford was 13-1 going into the game). We didn't have a whole lot of trouble with the press, we just weren't shooting well and they were."

Two days later at Milford in a Greater Oakland Activities

League clash, the score was closer but the result was the same as the Wolves fell, 55-49.

Senior Lisa Forsyth, a standout all season long, broke the 20-point mark for the second time this year with a 22-point performance. Forsyth also led the Wolves in rebounding with 16.

Teammate Annete Ulasich added 12 points to the Clarkston cause.

The Wolves trailed by 15 points at the half against Milford, but their second-half rally fell six points short of putting the game in the win column.

"It was a good game," McDonald said. "Milford's tough, and we came back to make it close."

They want football fans to see the lights

By Al Zawacky

In 1955, Dwight Eisenhower was president, the present Clarkston High School hadn't been built — and the light system at the CHS athletic field was installed at a cost of $20,000.

Twenty-five years later the lights are showing their age, and Conrad Bruce, administrative assistant for Clarkston Community Schools, is hoping to rally some community spirit to get the system replaced.

"This fall we had whole banks of lights go out on us," Bruce says. "We played Brighton (the last game of the 1980 CHS football season) with seven burned-out lights.

"The wires are deteriorating and causing short circuits, and even the poles need to be replaced. The company that does the maintenance on the lights doesn't feel its safe to have men climbing the poles."

Bruce says that a study conducted by Arden Engineering Associates, Inc. of Southfield reported that nothing in the present lighting system was salvageable.

The light created is inadequate, the poles and crossarms present possible safety hazards and the system utilizes inefficient lamps which consume five times the electricity of more modern lamps, according to the report.

Cost to replace the system is estimated at $60,000, Bruce says.

"That money isn't available in the general fund, and I doubt if a millage proposal to raise the money would stand a chance," he says. "The only way to raise the money is through donations and contributions from businesses and people in the community.

"The thing that convinced me we can do it was when I saw Brandon raise $35,000 to keep their athletic program going. I think we can accomplish the same thing here."

Bruce added that the new lighting was important, because the condition of the present system would rule out the possibility of any home football games at night next season.

"We count on our gate receipts, and the gates at (Saturday) afternoon games are always bad," he says, adding that the current lights cost about $10 an hour to operate and that a new system would provide five times the light at a similar cost.

"We spend about $1,000 a year on maintenance with the current system. It's ridiculous for us to stick another penny into it," he says.

A drive to raise the money is currently being planned.

Construction of new church underway

One year from now, all this dirt should be sporting an ultra-modern church, predicts Father Charles E. Cushing, pastor of St. Daniel's Catholic Church. Groundbreaking ceremonies in September kicked off construction of the new Catholic Church, planned to seat over 700 people. Construction costs are expected to meet $950,000, Cushing said. The new site is adjacent to the present church, on the corner of Holcomb and Miller roads, Independence Township. Currently workers are laying the cement foundations, he said.

Clarkston Cafe chef tours fine European eateries

He competes internationally; looks for five-star secrets

By Marilyn Trumper

Dinner in the Eiffel Tower. Watching on the streets of Brussels as anti-terrorists march 150,000 strong, waving banners and chanting slogans.

Feasting upon fresh Dover sole in Amsterdam.

Catching the late train in time to make one of Switzerland's five-star restaurants, walking in, slipping the chef a bottle of wine for a tour of the kitchen and seizing the opportunity to learn secrets.

The making of espionage, double-breasted raincoats and clandestine meetings beneath fog-enveloped London Bridges? Au contraire!

It's a high-point recap of some of Clarkston Cafe's chef Greg Goodman's adventures in Europe.

Between Oct. 24 and 30, Goodman fiercely competed in Frankfurt, Germany among some of the world's best chefs.

Sponsored by the American Culinary Federation, Goodman worked 22-hour days, as a member of the American team, creating culinary delights to tantalize tastebuds.

"It was certainly an educational trip," Goodman said. "I had the opportunity to see a lot of different techniques incorporated by people all over the world."

"I was always being exposed to something different. Although chefs from all over the US were there, and the cooking was different, it was similar in many ways."

"But those from other countries have foods available to them that we here don't. I could never recreate some of their dishes, because they had foods I've never seen — fresh, mandarine oranges, melons from the Middle East," he said.

Goodman talked of cathedrals carved out of blocks of chocolate and salt-dough-and-spice sculptures which took months to create.

"In Europe, the labor force is paid less than here. They have more people available to work on those sculptures for months at a time. Here, we're more business oriented and pay twice the money. I really think those cathedrals were a six-to-eight-person job and occupied hundreds of hours," he said.

Goodman arrived 10 days before the competition was scheduled to begin, and spent those days traveling to five countries, eating in the five-star restaurants and seeing as much of the continent as he could.

He hit Holland, Switzerland, Germany, Belgium and France, returning with a few culinary tricks up his sleeve.

Now comes the time to incorporate them into his creations at the Clarkston Cafe.

"I'm looking for a coffee grinder. Every cafe had one to grind your coffee to taste," he said. "It's unreal. I never thought it made such a difference, but it does. I'm not a coffee drinker, but when I was there I had coffee five and six times a day with pastries."

"As each day passes, more and more of what I've learned is coming back. You don't have total recall the first day back. But there are going to be some changes," he promised.

Greg Goodman, 27, chef at the Clarkston Cafe, recently returned from an international cooking competition in West Germany. Although a long way from this Waterford Township home, Goodman and the 13-member American team competed fiercely. The group won the gold medal in the hot platter competition with their Black Sea Bass St. Augustine and Turkey Breast Oklahoma. They also took second place to West Germany in the cold platter category.

Obituaries

Wilma E. Doebler

An Eastern Star Memorial Service was held Nov. 5 for Wilma E. Doebler of Independence Township and a funeral service was held Nov. 6 at the Clarkston United Methodist Church with the Rev. James Balfour officiating.

Burial followed at Seymour Lake Cemetery.

Miss Doebler, 74, was a lifelong member of the Clarkston United Methodist Church, a member and treasurer emeritus of the Joseph C. Bird Chapter No. 294 OES and an honorary member of the Past Matrons Club.

She was also a member of the Ladies Auxiliary Pontiac Commandery No. 2 and the Oakland County Farm Bureau Women's Group.

She was the sister of the late Harold Doebler.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Lewis E. Wint Funeral Home, Independence Township.

David W. Green

Memorial service for David W. Green of Traverse City was held Nov 5 at Goyette Funeral Home, Clarkston. Burial was at Lakeview Cemetery.

Green, 38, died Nov. 30. A former Clarkston resident, he was a mechanic and served in the United States Coast Guard from 1960-64.

Surviving are his parents, former Clarkston residents Frank and Eva Green of West Branch; and brothers, Douglas of Davisburg, Larry of Atlanta, Melvin of Bellaire and Herbert of Keline, Texas.

The family suggests memorials to the Michigan Cancer Society.

Airborne voter makes polls on time

By Marilyn Trumper

Resounding at first like a pair of wall-shaken maracas, chopper blades slice the calm in the Village of Clarkston and move on to stir up the waters of Parke Lake.

Spotting a grassy knoll just over the hill from Independence Township Hall, the pilot maneuvers levers and the chopper leaves the air, landing firmly on the ground.

For a moment nothing happens.

The chopper, with sides sporting the painted words "TV-2" and "Eyewitness News Copter," rests in the grass, surrounded by blowing leaves.

Abruptly the door opens, out pops a sportily dressed man who runs across the lawn toward township hall, joining those in line waiting to vote.

This is not a routine act in the life of Jim Bleicher, news operations manager for WJBK's Eyewitness News, but he laughs it off as if it were.

Flown to his precinct to cast his ballot, Jim explains there just wasn't enough time to vote that morning.

While the ride was a break from daily living, his job is far from mundane.

Monday through Friday, Jim drives from home on Holcomb Street, Clarkston, to the Channel 2 offices in Southfield.

"This is a good business, I love it," he said smiling. "It's never the same thing every day. You meet interesting people. It's not a 9 to 5 job; the subject matter is stimulating and the competition is tough."

At 32, Jim projects an all-American image.

He speaks fast, yet articulately, punctuating points with hand and facial movement.

"I'm in charge of assigning stories, deciding what's to be covered and how. Reporters and camera crews report directly to me and the two others above me."

"When the news comes on, I'm anxious," he said. "I have to be sure I've made the right decisions, that I haven't missed anything."

"I'm a channel flipper, moving from station to station. When the news is over, we have a meeting. It's hard when you hear, 'Bleicher, why didn't we have that?' and good to hear,

'We really kicked 'em on that.'"

Jim, his wife Judi and their son Matt, moved to Clarkston two years ago.

"We really like it here, but we haven't been able to become involved in the community as much as we'd like. It's not a good thing for me to do anyway," he said, "with my having to maintain a level of objectivity."

"Not only that, but this is a transient business. By the time a guy is 32, he usually has seen the country and lived in five or six cities," he said.

Jim has worked at Channel 2 for seven years. He admits that's rare.

"The hardest part of the job is deciding the right angle for a story. We cover the entire metropolitan area and there's so much breaking news that we don't have to scratch for stories.

"We're not able to give township residents satisfactory coverage, unless it's a big story than we try to get out there."

"We did touch on the Pine Knob controversy and the success of Clarkston's basketball team," he said.

To keep abreast of events, Jim reads seven newspapers daily.

He works 11- and 12-hour days.

Few viewers tuning into the 6 o'clock news realize stories appear because of Jim's decisions.

High pressure, long hours and little recognition go along with the job.

"But I haven't gray hair and ulcers yet," he said, laughing.

Flying via helicopter into downtown Clarkston with the sole purpose of voting is all in a day's work for Jim Bleicher. Bleicher is news operations manager for WJBK's TV-2, and he lives with his wife and son on Holcomb Street.

Churning up leaves the skycopter lands behind Independence Township Hall dropping Jim off to vote. It was into the polls and out, then back to the newsroom in Southfield.

Talking about . . .

On Main Street, Clarkston, we asked this week's question:

Were you surprised at the results of the election?

"No. I just had a feeling that Carter would lose, because Reagan had a lot of good things on his side going for him." —Brenda Brown, Wealthy Street, Independence Township, unemployed.

"Not really. I just thought Jimmy Carter wouldn't win, mainly because of the hostages—and American defense." —Roy Nelson, Crosby Lake Road, Springfield Township, assembly line worker.

"Yes. I was. I thought it would be much closer. I went by all the pollsters. I didn't expect a landslide." —Fred Spain, Parview Drive, Independence Township, teacher.

"No. I wasn't surprised that Reagan won. I was surprised by the landslide, but I'm glad he won." —Pat Campbell, Deerwood Road, Independence Township, housewife.

"I was surprised. I thought it would be closer than it was. I think it was probably several things—the economy, the hostages, the impact of the moral majority." —John Wilson, Hillside Drive, Independence Township, retired.

Independence home delights Counts

Country Living

Owning your own home creates a special feeling of satisfaction.

It's nice to be able to look at each pillar and beam, each brick and piece of molding, and know that everything belongs to you. Homes are often lasting monuments to years of hard work.

In the case of Gray Counts and his family, the feeling is especially true. The Counts not only own the home on Rattalee Lake Road in Independence Township — Gray built much of it with his own two hands.

"Our builder did most of the basic things," Gray says. Things like the electrical wiring, plumbing, hanging the drywall and roughing the house in.

"I took care of the painting, roofing, cement work, finished carpentry, the fireplace."

A designer at the General Motors Tech Center in Warren, Gray has an art and sculpture background that clearly manifests itself in the home's large fireplace.

Made of canyon stone, the fireplace was the end result of five long months of painstaking work quarrying the stones, cutting, shaping and cementing.

"We bought some of the stones," says Gray's wife Kay, "but a lot we found right on the property. You'll find a rock out there that doesn't look like much, but when you split it, it's beautiful."

My brother-in-law did all of the outside brick work," Gray adds. "I can do brickwork, but I'm not particularly speedy.

"Basically, it was just a matter of working with the builder. Anything we couldn't do or didn't want to do, he'd take care of."

Gray, Kay and their three children — identical 14-year-old twins Polly and Molly and 9-year-old Betsy, made their home in Walled Lake before moving to their new home in the Clarkston area in 1978.

The move was hardly a smooth one, Gray and Kay recall with a chuckle.

"The builder told us the house would be ready to move into by September, so we sold our house in Walled Lake," Gray says.

After the Counts sold their house, they took up residence in a 20-foot trailer for what was supposed to be a short two-month wait.

The trailer wasn't a mobile-home designed for year-round comfort, Gray points out. "I told the builder that the place had to be ready, because we couldn't live in that trailer over the winter," he grins.

But as delay followed delay, two months became three months. Then four. Winter set in, and to make matters worse, it was one of the coldest on record, with the zero mark often chillingly breeched.

Before it was over, the Counts had spent over nine months in the little trailer at Holly Hills

Camp Grounds, about eight miles from their present home.

It was, as Gray says, "rather uncomfortable."

Even today in their permanent home, winters can still be pretty rough. The farsighted Gray built his home with extra insulation, a heat pump and a wood-burning stove — but there's little that can be done when the snow piles deep on unpaved roads and driveways.

"Actually, the snow removal is pretty good on Rattalee Lake — it's usually cleared the day after a storm," he says. "We did have a time when we couldn't get in our driveway for two months two winters ago when all that snow fell."

Attempts to plow the snow only piled it higher — to the point that even four-wheel-drive vehicles couldn't conquer the 6-foot mound.

"We had to drive on the grass to get to the house," Gray recalls. "It wasn't until March — when some of it had melted — that we spent a whole Saturday shoveling out the driveway by hand."

"Still, I wouldn't trade problems like that for living out here. It's so peaceful and quiet — right now you can hear the wind whistling in the fireplace, so usually it's even more peaceful.

"When you live in the city, the traffic is a constant noise. Here, we lift our heads up whenever we hear a car go by."

Born in Detroit, Gray's parents moved to Walled Lake when he was 18, where he met Kay, a Walled Lake native. The family enjoyed living in Walled Lake but, as Gray says, "We wanted to move even farther out into the country."

"I'd heard about Clarkston all my life," he recalls. "I remember it as this neat little community with all the old houses at the end of Woodward Avenue on our way up north — there wasn't any freeway then."

"So for a long time, I thought it'd be nice to live here someday."

The final impetus for the move to the Clarkston area came from Kay's brother, who lives right next door and built his home at the same time the Counts family did.

"My brother-in-law just said, 'Why not get together and buy a hunk of land and live in Clarkston?'" Gray says. "And that's what we did."

Living out "in the country" gives Gray a better chance to work on one of his favorite hobbies — gardening. Kay does the canning, and the family also enjoys fresh honey by keeping honey bees.

"We grow just about everything," Kay says. "Corn, green beans, potatoes, squash, pumpkins, carrots, radishes, grapes, berries — you name it."

It all adds up to a happy existence, notes Gray, making his long trip to work worth the extra time and distance.

by Al Zawacky

"I was a little worried about the long drive at first, but I've got a friend out here that I car-pool with, so it's really not bad," he says.

"It's worth it to be able to live out here."

Twins Polly and Molly attend school at Clarkston Junior High and are both members of the cheerleading squad, an activity that keeps them busy three evenings a week.

"There's the football game, the girls' basketball game and one night of practice," Polly says, itemizing the three evenings. "It keeps you busy, but it's really a lot of fun."

"I guess I like it because I've always been athletic and I like to jump around — and be loud," she adds with a grin.

Being twin cheerleaders have made Polly and Molly two very well known girls in the school. "It's a lot of fun being twins," Polly says. "Our friends can tell us apart, but most people that don't know us that well are always asking 'Are you Polly or Molly?'"

The family regularly attends Drayton Heights Free Methodist Church and is active in church activities, including the church youth program.

In his spare time, Gray enjoys

Cost-cutting energy tips available

Energy misers and cost-conscious consumers, Independence Township's Building Department has just the thing for you.

The building's bulletin board is filled with pamphlets and brochures on how to cut heating costs, and more importantly, they're free.

Walk in and pick up information on how to:

- Insulate water heaters and save fuel.
- How to improve the efficiency of an oil-fired furnace.
- How to understand a utility bill.

They have information on utilizing energy tax credits, a toll-free energy information service, insulation and common-sense energy tips.

Open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, the building department is located in the rear of Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Nothin's cooking

It's a burning problem.

The stove now sitting in the lodge at Camp Oweki, the Camp Fire facility in Independence Township, heats to a roaring boil or not at all.

The group is looking for someone to donate a stove in working condition. The gift would be tax deductible.

Call Bonnie at 338-4036.

Come to the party!

Everybody's invited to a Swearing-In Party at Independence Township Hall on Saturday, Nov. 15.

Judge Gerald McNally, of Oakland County 52nd District Court, is to be on hand to take the oaths of office from the seven-member township board.

The ceremony is to begin at 3 p.m. with a reception and light refreshments immediately following. The party is to end at 5 p.m.

The purpose is for residents of the township to meet the elected officials — Supervisor James Smith, Clerk Christopher Rose, Treasurer Frederick Ritter and trustees Larence Kozma, Dale Stuart, Daniel Travis and William Vandermark — and their families.

The new officials begin their four-year terms at noon on Thursday, Nov. 20.

Township Hall is located at 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

hunting and fishing, and is looking forward to going deer hunting in the coming weeks.

"I guess the thing I miss most about Walled Lake is that I planted an orchard out there, and now that we're gone it's starting to bear," he said. "Our trees out here are still really small."

"I think we had a total crop of two apples and two pears this year," Kay jokes.

"All the trees on the property we planted ourselves," Gray adds. "When we moved our here, there weren't any at all — and I guess that's one of the few drawbacks. We like a forest-type environment — and that's going to take some time."

Kids turn tycoons

They join forces to provide string of services in Ortonville

By Marilyn Trumper

A bleached white yacht anchored off the coast of a Mediterranean island is missing in this scenario.

These tycoons shy from the tables at Monte Carlo and sipping champagne at Maxim's in Paris.

They'll shun the jewels at Tiffany's and snub the bright lights of New York's Studio 54.

They are the moguls of Ortonville's Mill Street.

They've cornered the dry cleaning market... and they're all kids!

The Steins, Joanna, 12 and Jason, 10, and the Browns, Dawn, 15, and Judd, 13, are all brothers and sisters, the result of a "Brady Bunch" kind of thing.

Just 10 days ago they opened The Ortonville Service Center, a brainstorm to fit all the village's needs.

The business specializes in services.

They send out your soiled and crumpled clothing for dry cleaning. Shoes, watches, home appliances and office machines are channeled out to respective businesses for repair and maintenance.

The end result is convenience. This business saves customers miles of driving and what's most important, it doesn't cost more.

"We send our work to the dry cleaner in Lake Orion," Dawn explains. "Because we increase his business, he doesn't charge as much, so we tack on the difference for our profit. A customer will pay no more to have a suit cleaned here, than if he went into Lake Orion. But he'd save on time and gas by coming here."

The Service Center, housed in a red, wood-sided building with a wagon wheel over the door, is located at 380 Mill Street, Ortonville.

Written in a kid's scrawl, the store's hours have been posted on the front door, nicely outlined on a sheet of paper torn from a stenographer's notebook.

Rock-n-roll music plays softly from the backroom as Jason, the youngest member of the team, waits on a customer.

Biting his tongue between his teeth, he concentrates as he counts back change from a $10 bill.

Already, it's a learning experience.

"We take turns working shifts," Judd explains. "Jason and I work together one day, and the next day it's Joanna and Dawn. We take turns working every other Saturday, too."

"We've already had 35 customers," he announced proudly. "And, we've taken in one pair of boots and a battery charger."

The kids open the store and work after school, 1:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. They're closed Sundays.

Open just 10 days, the business is sparsely decorated, but they have plans.

Some shelves to house appliances and shoes, some chairs, and a few more racks are to be added.

The business grew from their dad's nine-year-old idea.

The village needed these services, and the kids agreed they wanted to provide them.

"Our mom owns the building," Joanna said. "We get the first month's rent free, but after that we have to start paying rent. A cleaner used to be here, but he moved, so we moved in."

"My dad offered the use of the place to the high school, but they didn't want to use it. So we did," she said, smiling.

The kids's dad, Ron Brown, meandered in for an afternoon visit.

"The high school didn't want the responsibility," he explained. "They would have to pay workmen's comp and liability insurance. The kids don't have to, because they are self-employed."

"They're their own bosses and everybody has an equal say in the business."

With that, Jason walks over to his dad, looks up and asks, "Dad, can we get off 10 minutes early tonight to go trick-or-treating? It starts at 6 o'clock."

Ron laughs. "Don't ask me, ask your partners," he answered. "They have to learn to decide these things for themselves. But, it does make for some pretty long business consultations."

As business partners, the kids pay the bills, keep daily books, make sure there's enough money in the register to operate the store and handle all the advertising.

Between customers, the kids do their homework and clean the building.

Already, there have been sacrifices to make a go of it.

"I've given up my gymnastics

Patently filling out the forms, Jason (left), struggles to remember each step. It's always easier when you're receiving coaching from business partners, [from left] brother Judd and sisters Dawn and Joanna.

and I've dropped volley ball," Dawn said. "At night, after work, I take care of my horse."

Jason has skipped several soccer practices to work, relieved there's only one more game to contend with.

Judd, the conservative member of the group, was worried about pranksters on "Devil's Night."

"I didn't want to come back here and have to clean up a mess," he said. "But nothing happened. I was glad about that."

The foursome spend days whipping the building into shape for their opening. Both the inside and outside sparkled.

Last week, days after opening, a Blazer truck ran into the corner of the building, smashing all their hard work.

The ups and downs of the business world are at their finger tips.

It's a learning experience, a responsibility and a decision. And they're going for making venture all rolled into it — these magnates of Ortonville's dry cleaning world.

Marie Schlautmann is making Cranberry Relish Mold to be served with a chicken casserole at the St. Daniel's Holiday Luncheon, Friday, November 14 from 11:30 to 1:30 p.m. Marie and Harry reside on Cranberry Lake Road in Independence Township.

Cranberry Relish Mold

- 1 No. 2 can (2½ c.) crushed pineapple
- 2 pkgs. cherry flavored gelatin
- ¾ c. sugar
- 2 c. hot water
- ½ c. cold water
- 1 c. chopped celery
- 1 T. lemon juice
- 1½ c. ground raw cranberries (1 lb.)
- 1 small orange, ground
- ½ c. broken walnuts

Drain pineapple, reserving syrup. Combine gelatin and sugar; dissolve in hot water. Add cold water, lemon juice and reserved pineapple syrup.

Chill until partially set. Add pineapple and remaining ingredients. Turn into 2 quart mold. Chill until firm. Unmold. Makes 12 servings.

Profitable pumpkin

Shopping adventures await at Daisy Chain Gifts

Any customer walking into Daisy Chain Gifts is in for a shopping adventure packed with stories and an array of unusual merchandise to please all comers.

Co-owners Jan Sutton and Marguerite Sonia enthusiastically convey the history behind local and national artists whose works are for sale.

There are pen and ink drawings by a Pennsylvanian who calls himself a "pigologist." Each of his drawings depicts a pig in one form or another, dancing, bathing or just hanging out.

There are handcarved figurines in various colors of wood. Jan readily explains the creators are a young couple from Mt. Clemens who traveled back to Germany to learn their craft.

Sun catchers in the window glisten. Created by a Wisconsin woman, the sun catchers come in a variety of unusual shapes - a spider in a web, the Blue Bird of Happiness and a set of golf clubs, to name just a few.

Soft sculptors, created by a New York woman, have distinct personalities. One, an ice cream cone, is sporting a cherry. Upon inspection, the cherry becomes the red cap covering the face of a knarled old woman.

The list goes on and on. There's a story on every table, a tale on every shelf.

Shopping becomes more than necessity or a pastime. In Daisy Chain Gifts, it's an adventure.

Weathered shelves line the walls. They are filled with musical pop cans, a zoo of stuffed animals, mugs, jewelry and miniscule pottery figurines.

Cases of pewter figurines sit atop tables and Norman Rockwell statues line the inside of glass display counters.

Customers can order personalized pillow cases, covered with drawings of their favored pastimes, pet names, coveted foods and family pets.

They offer appliqued jean skirts, cards and more.

"Every time you come in the store, you'll see something you've never seen before," Marguerite promises.

One of the most unusual products is a personalized music box. Customers can bring in a picture, it's laminated to the top of the box and there are 50 songs to choose from for music.

Doing Business

"This is a one-of-a-kind gift," Marguerite explains. "I don't care if a couple receives a fine piece of china for a wedding gift. Such things can be duplicated. But not this. Right now we're putting one together which has a wedding announcement on the top, and 'We've Only Just Begun' for the song."

The offer a frog-faced lemon squeezer, ash trays with feet, ceramic thimbles and printer's drawers.

"We have something for everyone," Marguerite said. "And the best thing is that the prices are varied. From the least expensive to the most expensive, we have a wide price range."

Daisy Chain Gifts is located inside the Clarkston Corners, 32 S. Main, downtown Clarkston.

They're open Monday through Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Thursday and Friday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

For more information, phone 625-2883.

Co-owners of Daisy Chain Gifts, Marguerite Sonia [left] and Jan Sutton, are excited about their new business venture. The corked bottles shelved behind the women contain intriguing ingredients. Buyers of the corked odysseys can possess such imaginative fantasy as "great truths," "common sense," "loop holes," and "red-tape" just by opening the tops.

Manufacturers Bank celebrates new location

Manufacturers Bank of Southfield is now celebrating the grand opening of its new building in Independence Township. Branch officer Dan O'Connor stands outside the contemporary-style building located on the corner of M-15 and Bluegrass Drive in Independence Township, just north of the Village of Clarkston. The building's design takes advantage of the sunshine with windows placed to produce warmth in winter and keep it cool in summer months. The Clarkston branch has been open about 10 months, formerly located in a temporary trailer on Bluegrass Drive. Free refreshments, balloons and coloring books for the kids are on hand for visitors to the open house through Saturday, Nov. 15. Hours are 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday for the drive-in windows; 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday for inside banking; and 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Saturday for drive-in and inside banking.

Caring for oil-soaked birds

The call came in the night saying they needed people: People to patrol Waterford Pond in Northville to prevent geese, swans and ducks from landing where 22,000 gallons of oil slithered on the pond's surface and in the marshes.

They needed people to help capture geese, swans and ducks coated beyond recognition in the black slime.

Saturday morning began with a trip to the Humane Society in Pontiac to get pens in our van and begin our trek.

We stopped in Northville and asked directions to the pond. No one seemed to know where it was or that oil had spilled.

A stop at the state police provided us with an escort, as well as a seat for our daughter Lisa in one of the boats which would race at approaching birds to prevent them from landing in the oil-infected waters.

We were greeted by people of all ages telling tales of woe about trying to help geese smeared black, unable to fly, mouths clogged with grease; about trying to get help from the DNR, the Humane Society, or wherever they could.

Birds were dying in people's yards. Swans were black and feathers wrinkled to their pink skin.

First of all, we tried to assess which birds were critical and needed immediate help. Then, we tried to "train" our troops in the manner of quiet, calm, slow movements.

There were eager youngsters who would move too quickly. We had to banish them to the sidelines.

The method: Slowly circle the birds, narrowing in one step at a time, talking quietly.

We would try to get them as far from the water as possible, often in underbrush, to inhibit their attempts to fly.

Then usually one of us would bend down and grab around their wings. They would quietly accept capture, or they would lunge — and we would hold tight.

Fourteen geese, three swans and several ducks later, dusk fell and our faces tingled with wind, sun and cold.

The smell of oil permeated our nostrils and the smell of geese permeated our van.

We shook hands with many who helped, who took time to care and to know more about the people from all walks of life who walked that day through marsh and woods and oil and water to repair a bit of man's uncaring of nature.

One man said, "Lisa, you caught the most" to our 14-year-old daughter.

"I haven't herded ducks and geese to the barn for 14 years for nothing," Lisa said.

We returned to the Humane Society and began bathing our catch in huge tubs, cleaning their mouths and nostrils, filling their craws with glucose and drying them with electric dryers. Over 150 birds were treated in all, many washed as many as five times. The DNR released them to safer territory — another story!

It was 4 a.m. when we walked in our home door, having enjoyed a full day together.

Rich's comment: "Memories are made of this."

At 7 a.m., we received another call about a very sick swan, and back we went — more memories.

If an individual or group would be interested in helping with an undertaking in nature like this, contact me, and when an occasion arises, I'll contact you.

STOP ICE DAMAGE

Keep the roof "Ice Blockade" from damaging your home's interior with WRAP-ON Electric ROOF and GUTTER Cable.

Typical installation — protects interiors and exteriors from possible serious damage. Typical roofs require 2 1/2 feet of gutter cable for each foot of roof, and one foot of cable for each foot of gutter and downspout. For larger roof overhangs, it may be necessary to use more cable per foot of roof.

As the holiday Bazaar approaches, food preparation is underway for the luncheon served during the event planned Friday. Getting ready to chop celery for the turkey casserole and prepare lettuce for the salad are [from left] Marie Schlaütmann, luncheon chairperson; Karen Donnellon, bazaar chairperson; and Jerry Hunter, general chairperson for the crafts booth.

Forget long lines; shop St. Daniel's

Everything from special Christmas gifts and stocking stuffers to something for your sweet tooth will be on hand at St. Daniel's Holiday Bazaar on Friday, Nov. 14.

Members of the parish have been at work since February creating all the items to be sold at the bazaar.

There will be general crafts, Christmas items, baked goods, candy and religious items for sale from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the church located at 7010 Valley Park Drive, Independence Township.

Luncheon, for $3.50 a person, is to be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

On the menu are turkey casserole, cranberry salad, homemade roll, apple dessert and coffee or tea.

Skiing is a family sport. Although the logistics of preparing for such a vacation may be difficult, there is one way to enhance the success of a family ski vacation. Choose a ski resort with a variety of trails to challenge every member of the family. Such areas as Big Sky, Montana; Sugarloaf, Maine; or Boyne Mountain, Michigan offer something for everyone. If the young ones need lessons, Buttermilk at Aspen, Colorado; Bromley, Vermont; and Gray Rocks, Quebec should be considered. Teens will find plenty to do away from Mom and Dad at Snowmass, Colorado or Snowshoe, West Virginia. And, for the very young Grand Targhee, Wyoming; Mt. Snow, Vermont; and Alpine Meadows, California offer toddler teaching programs.

Successful vacations start with a visit to our knowledgeable people. Whether you prefer to ski on snow, or surf, you can be sure of having a great time when your trip is planned by us at CLARKSTON TRAVEL BUREAU INC., 6 N. Main St., 625-0325. We are conveniently located in downtown Clarkston with ample parking facilities. Hours: 9:30am-5:30pm Mon thru Fri, 9:30am-1pm Sat.

Coping with kids

by Jim Windell

Parental power can be used wisely

Probably one of the reasons many parents experience problems of rebellion with their teenagers has to do with the use of power and authority.

Many parents justify the use of power in their dealings with their youngsters. When the child becomes a teenager, with more power and mobility of his own, some of the early parental power tactics will no longer work.

When a usual technique doesn't work, it is typical for people to intensify rather than change the mode of dealing with a problem. Increasing power with a child or teenager often brings about resentment, hostility and revengeful uses of power by the young person.

One mother of an eight year old found herself in a power struggle and may have learned a valuable lesson for the future. The problem developed like this:

Mrs. Hamilton and her son and daughter were eating dinner when, as is normal behavior in most families, Jennifer, 6, began to tease Rod, 8. As the teasing and bantering back and forth began to get serious, Mrs. Hamilton attempted to stop the interplay.

Jenny and Rod didn't seem able to quit on their own and eventually both were angry to the point they were ready for a physical fight.

There was some kicking under the table and Mrs. Hamilton, when she reached her limit, announced that both Rod and Jenny would have to stay in the house after supper.

"You hate me," Rod angrily said as he stomped out of the dining room.

Mrs. Hamilton felt compelled to explain that she didn't hate either he or his sister, but because of the teasing and fighting during dinner neither could go out to play this evening.

"I'm going out anyway," Rod shouted.

"You can't," Mrs. Hamilton said. "I've already explained why you can't go out."

"I don't care what you say, I'm going," Rod said as he headed for the closet to get his coat. Keeping an eye on his mother, Rod slowly put his coat on. "I'm going out," he announced.

Mrs. Hamilton tried something different than usual. "If you really feel that strongly about going out," she said, "go ahead."

Mrs. Hamilton immediately left the room to finish the clean up in the kitchen.

A few minutes later, she found Rod, with his coat still on, sitting on the living room floor playing a game with Jenny. There was no further discussion about him going out. He later went to bed at his normal time after playing peacefully with Jenny for over an hour.

In this situation, Mrs. Hamilton could have pursued the power issue and, because she is bigger and stronger than eight-year-old Rod, could have won.

But, she revealed to her son that she could not in fact stop him if he insisted on doing something. Rod controlled himself. And, in the end, Mrs. Hamilton won. But, so did Rod.

Perhaps, when Rod is a teenager, there will not have to be serious power clashes between he and his power. Some things, Mrs. Hamilton discovered, are more powerful than power.

Terry Thomas of Pear St. Director of Student Services for Oakland Schools, was given the Outstanding Guidance and Counseling Award by the Michigan School Counselor Association.

Lillian McAboy of 5461 Columbia says to her recollection she has never missed an opportunity to vote. Although many people can say that, her recollections go back a long way. She will be 97 years old on Friday the 13th.

The engagement and February 20 wedding of Sandra Kaye Smalley to Mario DiPonio has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smalley.

Wa-Ki-Ya Camp Fire Girls officers for the coming year are Genene Collins Chairman, Annette Sommers Vice-chairman, Barbara Olney Secretary and Felicia Bosques Treasurer.

Cauliflower is 39c a head, pork roast 59c a pound and pioneer sugar is 5 pounds for 65c.

Although Mark Swanson and Rick Prasil scored 2 touchdowns each in an all-out offensive battle, Milford edged the Wolves by a score of 30 to 28.

Business briefs

Children's dentist open

Dr. George Krull announces the opening of his specialty practice in children's dentistry.

Although he has been practicing in the area for about one year, he received his specialty licensure in children's dentistry in July.

His office is presently located at 5905 S. Main, Independence Township, in the Village Clinic. (625-3603).

Krull plans to move into the Clarkston Professional Plaza, under construction on M-15 just north of Dixie Highway, upon its completion.

He and his wife Pam and their two children reside in Independence Township.

New podiatrist arrives

Dr. Harvey Rose, a foot specialist and foot surgeon, opened his offices in Independence Township on Monday. Rose, 38, is a graduate of the Ohio College of Podiatric Medicine. He has been in practice 10 years with offices in Warren and California. His two specialties are working with children and with sports enthusiasts. In the past, his clients have ranged from joggers and high school track and field runners to the Detroit Pistons—he served as the team podiatrist for the Pistons about four years ago. His practice includes the care of hands, feet and ankles. He can treat cuts and warts on hands, feet and ankles. He can treat cuts and warts on hands as well as care for simple fractures and remove foreign objects. For feet and ankles, he can also perform corrective and reconstructive surgery if necessary. His office is located in the Clarkston Pharmacy Building, 5980 S. Main. Office hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and he is on call 24 hours a day. The telephone number is 625-1153. A Southfield resident, Rose plans to move to the area soon.

Newly appointed

Clarence Catallo, a vice president of E.F. Hutton and manager of the firm's Southfield office, has been named to Hutton's 1980 President's Club. Appointment to the group is limited to managers of the company's top 25 branch offices. Hutton currently has 252 branch offices in the United States. Catallo, who earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Detroit, joined Hutton in 1965. He resides in Springfield Township.

Fixtures galore

For the past four years, Ravine's Lighting has specialized in lights and lighting fixtures to fit every need. A few short weeks ago, the business opened up a special display area with a new line of decorator items and accessories to fill that space on an empty shelf. They're now offering sconces, crystal mirrors in heavy wood frames, original oil paintings and items made of brass, glass and wood to fit decorating needs. Located at 7200 Dixie Highway, Independence Township, Ravine's is open Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Fridays from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. For more information, phone 625-0118.

Just moved in? WELCOME WAGON wants to say "hi."

When someone moves, WELCOME WAGON likes to visit. To say "Hi," present gifts of greeting, shopping tips and useful information about the neighborhood.

As the WELCOME WAGON Representative, I'll also present invitations from civic-minded businesses that you can redeem for more gifts.

My visit is a special treat. It's free, and there's no obligation. We've been greeting people on the move for over 50 years. That's why we've become "America's Neighborhood Tradition." Please call.

Practice makes perfect

The 24 Clarkston High School girls vying for the Clarkston Junior Miss title are required to compete in a talent contest. Sharron Schmidgall's mime routine takes serious concentration as she tries to get out of an invisible box.

Singing is her talent, and Jan Wilton gets in some practice with the help of volunteer piano player Carol Thousand.

Julie Greetham claps to the rhythm of the music.

Ann Fairse twirls around while practicing the dance routine.

Hours of practice are necessary for the girls to ready their physical fitness routine. In keeping with the "Rhinestone Cowgirls" theme, Amy Bradley [left] and Ann Dutton do some high kicking to square dance music.

With all the hours of practice, the girls study whenever they can. Here, Maria Livieratos [left] and Nancy Westlund hit the books while waiting for the group practice session. The Jr. Miss contest, sponsored by the Clarkston Jaycees, is to be held Friday and Saturday, Nov. 21 and 22, to allow all 24 girls time to present their talents. Clarkston's Junior Miss is to be chosen Saturday evening. Tickets are $4 each night. Tickets are also sold for dress rehearsal on Thursday, Nov. 20, for $2 a person. To reserve tickets at the door, phone 625-3691.
