But 4th graders' tallies drop

10th graders' math scores improve

By Kathy Greenfield

After posting dismal math scores on last year's Michigan Assessment test, over-23 percent more of Clarkston schools' 10th graders achieved acceptable scores this year.

But 10 percent more of the 4th graders' math scores dropped below acceptable tallies.

William Potvin, director of planning and evaluation for the schools, attributed the 10th graders' increase to two factors — letting the students know the test was important and having them take the tests with their teachers present.

"The kids don't know any more math," he told the Clarkston School Board last week. "We simply got this year's score quite a bit closer to what it should be."

While tallies for the 4th graders have yet to be evaluated by the individual school principals, that is the next step, Potvin said.

"We have some feelings, but we have not had time to meet with any of the principals," he said. "When we come back to you (on Dec. 8), we will have analyzed the results."

After the meeting, Potvin said he expects to find lower scores for 4th graders across the state, because there were some skill areas added to the test this year and some taken away.

"I would be surprised if the whole state didn't go down in fourth grade math," he said.

"This is not going to deter us from taking our results and analyzing our math program in early elementary as we do every year," he added.

The Michigan Assessment Program tests skill areas in mathematics and reading. Designed to test minimum skills, a score of 75 percent or higher for each pupil is considered acceptable by the state, Potvin said.

The test is given to 4th, 7th and 10th graders throughout the state shortly after the school year begins, but statewide results are not yet available because of several teachers' strikes.

Potvin expects the results to be completed sometime in December and he plans to present a statewide comparison, by at least using preliminary results, at the Dec. 8 school board meeting, he said.

The results of Clarkston schools' pupils are used by the district to study math and reading programs, and they illustrated one overall weakness in math programs.

"The lowest skill area in math is metric measurement," he said. "Metrics is going to be a high priority. There's no doubt about it."

District-wide reading scores for 4th graders in the six elementary schools showed an improvement over last year with 87.3 percent of the pupils achieving at least 75 percent of the reading skill areas this year, up from 79.8 percent in 1979.

In math, 81.2 percent of the 4th grade pupils received scores of 75 percent or better this year, while the number was 91.9 percent last year.

District results for seventh graders show an increase in both math and reading over last year with 93 percent attaining scores of over 75 percent in reading this year and 86.1 percent last year; in math, the figure was 77.5 percent this year and 68.1 percent last year.

For the district's 10th graders, over 75 percent of the reading skills were attained by 83.9 percent of the students this year, while only 65.3 percent showed that level of achievement last year.

In math, the number of 10th graders with scores of 75 percent or more jumped from 49.5 percent in 1979 to 72.9 percent this year.

Parents may view the scores for each school and discuss the results with Potvin or they may visit the school their child attends to review the scores.

Center of attention

At the center of the crowd gathered for the swearing-in party at Independence Township Hall Saturday is the new Supervisor James B. Smith. The seven township board members, who officially take office at noon Thursday, were there to take their oaths of office given by 52nd District Court Gerald McNally. Nearly 100 people attended the party. They watched the new officials being sworn in and snacked on cookies, coffee and tea. For more photos, see Page 3.

Commission approves ordinance amendments

Proposed changes crucial to future Pine Knob development

By Marilyn Trumper

Independence Township's Planning Commission has recommended approval for the first half of a proposed package of amendments to the zoning ordinance which includes limitations on structure height and regulations on amusement parks.

If the amendments are adopted by the township board, Pine Knob's proposed 185-foot ski run would be limited to a height of 35 feet.

In addition, the "Wonderful World of Pine Knob," the 2.5 acre, 12 ride amusement park approved for construction last spring would be limited to an expansion of one and a half acres, and four additional rides.

To date, the township's zoning ordinance has been void of structure height limitations and regulations on amusement parks.

The commission's vote of approval Thursday night followed five months of discussion and 12 tabled decisions on the controversial amendments.

Major points of discussion centered around related amendments on structure height and amusement park size.

Several related proposals would limit structure height to 35 feet and mandate that television, radio and microwave towers go before the zoning board of appeals for a height variance, and to the planning commission for site plan approval.

Another proposed amendment limits amusement park size to 4.5 acres, and the number of rides within the park to 16. The amendment also defines amusement park rides as structures and allows no amusement park within one mile of another.

At the Oct. 23 meeting, commission member James Brennan voiced concern over the proposed amendments, stating they were drawn up specifically to stop Pine Knob. He also said he questioned such specific legislation. A decision for a vote was tabled until the next meeting.

Thursday night, Brennan reiterated those comments, motioning to strike the proposed amendment limiting structure height to 35 feet.

"I've said consistently in the past, that this change was brought about specifically to stop development of the Pine Knob complex. There was never any study conducted to see how this would change or affect the rest of the township."

"I think this recent election showed the people want less government regulation. We already have a law," he said. "Why change it and say you have to go for an appeal if you want to build so the bureaucracy can look at it?"

"There are permits and ordinances now which enforce the law. To force an appeal — you're forcing bureaucratic selection," Brennan said.

The subject of the proposed high rise at Pine Knob was brought up, and a discussion ensued about limitations on the present building height but not on structures.

"On the subject of a building in the proper zoning, in the case of Pine Knob property, a high rise would not set precedent," Brennan said. "They have a lot of land, few places are like that in the township and their recreational zoning should allow it."

Commission member John Gray disagreed with Brennan's comment that the amendment was drafted to stop Pine Knob.

Commission member Jean Saile commented that many towers are erected for very good causes, and that an appeals process costs money.

The final vote to strike the amendment from the package failed to pass, following a 4-4 vote.

Members James Brennan, Jean Saile, Rudy Lozano and James Gardiner voted "yes." James Smith, Jean Benzing, Mel Vaara and John Gray voted "no."

The commission then voted unanimously to recommend approval of the entire first half of the package as drafted, and forwarded it to the Oakland County Coordinating Committee for review.

From there, the package of proposed amendments goes to the Independence Township Board for a vote on adoption.

After the meeting, Brennan explained his decision to vote recommending approval of the package.

"I made my effort to change what I didn't like," he said.

"There comes a time when you have to throw in the towel. There were other amendments to consider, and they were good amendments."

Independence should weather cut

Independence Township doesn't have too much to worry about in lieu of Governor William G. Milliken's proposed $20-million cut in state shared revenue to local governments.

That's the opinion of James B. Smith, the newly elected township supervisor scheduled to take office tomorrow.

"I just talked to the state's office of management and budget and the treasury, and, as I understand it, these cuts were the same the governor recommended in February 1980."

Some of the cuts were anticipated in February, he said, and the township board adjusted the budget on July 8 to reflect those changes.

Smith did say he sees two results if the proposed cuts are adopted in Lansing.

In June of 1981, we were scheduled to receive $1.02 per capita (per person), as our share of the state's Intangible Tax revenue. It appears now we will not receive this money if the proposed cuts are adopted," he said.

The cuts would mean between $25,000 and $30,000 or less to Independence, he said.

"As far as other areas where state shared revenue will be down, it's expected, because the state's budget is down all over. But, I don't believe it's a high or very significant factor at this time," Smith said.

New emergency facility opens

In the event of a medical emergency it's important to know where to take a victim for treatment.

Just knowing where medical care is available could capture those precious seconds needed to save a life.

Pontiac General Hospital is scheduled to open a new Ambulatory Care Center in Waterford Township on Dec. 1.

Located at 1305 N. Oakland Blvd., Pontiac, the new facility is designed to handle out-patient care, similar to an emergency room, said a hospital spokesperson.

It's also scheduled to be open seven days a week, 24 hours a day, with a doctor on constant duty.

In addition, the center is equipped with beds to house patients for overnight observation and has facilities for x-rays and laboratory work.

The center is also scheduled to provide family and health care services and function as an out-patient mental health clinic.

The public is invited to attend a formal opening, Saturday, Nov. 22, from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the new facility. Light refreshments are to be served, tours are planned as well as free blood pressure screening tests.

Leaf burning decision to be made later; donate trees

To the Village Residents:

I am writing to correct an error in last week's paper.

We are NOT going to make a decision to ban leaf burning in the village at the next meeting.

We are still gathering more information on the ozone and how it affects the lungs, who will help those who cannot rake and bag their own leaves, and how the leaves will be disposed of.

Someone is gathering this information and we hope to have some of the answers at the Dec. 8 meeting.

Now, while I have your attention, you still have time to donate a tree or bush to the Clarkston Hillside Gardens.

The latest donations have been from Mrs. Ron Walter, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Rogers and Dr. and Mrs. Gary Symons.

Please go to Bordine's and pick out what you want to add to the plantings this fall. It is going toward the beautification of the park and is tax deductible.

I have donated a Pin Oak for my latest grandson and a Red Jade Crab for my only granddaughter — so far.

Most are only memories. But the political signs dotting roadways in and around Clarkston were colorful symbols of the local battles.

As I drove around, I used to sometimes think about the pleasure sign printers must derive from elections.

I also remembered an interview with a couple who had just moved to the area. They talked about all the political signs along Main Street two years ago and liked the idea of a politically active community.

I noticed they donated money to candidates this year.

One thing about the signs that I found especially intriguing was that they showed, in black and white so to speak, just who liked whom.

It must be difficult to be cordial when a candidate who won or lost runs into someone they know gave them a run for their money.

This election varied from some in the past in the sign department — there was practically no mixing of signs for candidates from different political parties.

There were also some theories from the young set about which candidates they were certain would win, because they had the most signs.

That seems to be the case for practically every local winner — my thought is the number of signs indicated how hard the candidate and his or her supporters worked.

My favorite political statement sat on the lawn of a home on Clarkston-Orion Road. It won the most points because of its articulate simplicity.

The large golden peanut was circled in red with a diagonal stripe across, as in the latest no u-turn or no parking signs.

Barring anything unforeseen like a recall election, we should have a four-year break from such massive numbers of lawn decorations.

That means we can pay attention to the other small signs scattered across our landscape.

"This week I noticed anew the "M.S.M.S." myster letters ensconced in an arrow and sitting at the I-75 exit ramp at M-15 — I've been curious about that one for some time.

A couple of months ago, I was out on a Saturday taking photographs for the paper when I spotted a sign I couldn't resist next to the driveway on Davisburg Road:

"Old Broads' Picnic." I walked up to the back door and saw the makings of a party, but no people, so I knocked on the door.

The explanation was that the man who lived there threw a party when he retired for the women he worked with and affectionately called "the old broads."

The sign sprang from the need to identify the party place. The women and their husbands had such a good time at the picnic, they decided to have more such parties and the sign was saved and reused.

I asked the women who had arrived early how they felt about the moniker.

"We don't mind," they laughed. "You should hear what we call him!"

Why not mail lottery?

by Jim Sherman

You should know that the Postal Service wants to add another four numbers to the end of our existing Zip Codes.

It won't make the mails move any faster, but the service should be more reliable, they contend.

We have nothing against reliability, but let's consider speed as well. Would an additional four on top of the new four on top of the old five make things go faster? Or if we reduce two before we add the new four, would that help?

Why don't we just use our Social Security numbers instead of addresses? Everybody has one, and they have nine digits.

Maybe we could hold a daily lottery, and whoever held the lucky number would not only get his mail delivered reliably, but on time as well.

Or maybe we could just forget the whole thing and go back to the old drawing board for a better idea. After all, the committee that designed the Susan B. Anthony dollar coin could be reassembled and given another challenge.

0 — Inflation is not the leading cause for concern by the public, a study revealed.

6. Adequate health and medical care for Americans in general, including the poor and elderly;

7. Improving our education system;

Let there be light— at CHS athletic field

We've seen the light.

Or at least we hope to. Last week we printed a story about a local drive to raise funds for a new lighting system at the Clarkston High School athletic field, and we feel so strongly about the need that we're ready to help.

It might appear at first that something as frivolous as lights at a football field doesn't really merit mass community support — but the facts indicate otherwise.

- The present lighting system is 25 years old. It often shorts out, and the poles and cross beams are so decayed that servicemen refuse to climb them.

- The field is used by no less than five football teams, and is also needed for such events as homecoming and performances by the CHS band.

- The present light system is costing over $1,000 a year in maintenance and uses lights only one-fifth as efficient as modern units.

- The proposed new system would provide five times the light at a similar operating cost, making the events safer for the participants and more enjoyable for the spectators.

- Without the new system, it will be impossible to play night home games in the fall of 1981, according to Clarkston Community Schools Administrative Assistant Conrad Bruce.

Playing football games in the afternoon is not the answer. The athletic department and booster club rely heavily on gate receipts and concession traffic, and Saturday matinees almost always draw poor crowds. The larger crowds more than cover the $10-an-hour cost to operate the lights.

And, there's another reason, perhaps just as important. The Friday night football game is a tradition in our town — an event that brings family, friends and neighbors together.

If you'd like to help, tax deductible contributions can be mailed or dropped off at Clarkston Community Schools, 6389 Clarkston Rd., or The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston 48016. Checks should be made out to Clarkston Community Schools, and indicate that the money is for the lighting fund.

With the rallying of that old "spirit" indigenous to our community, we'll all be "seeing the light" next fall.

—A.J.Z.

Clarkston Community Schools maintenance employees Cliff Kintz [left] and Doug Green add the first stripe to the Clarkston athletic field lighting fund "thermometer". Kintz did the painting on the sign, which was attached to the scoreboard at the CHS athletic field Friday afternoon to keep track of the fund-raising drive to raise money for new lights at the athletic field. By Monday, the first stripe was ready to be painted in as the drive had already accumulated $1,000 toward the final goal of $60,000.

'If it Fitz. . .'

Knows no limit

by Jim Fitzgerald

So I won't be accused of favoring one sex over the other, I must report that Gov. Milliken broke the law in my former hometown, Lapeer, on Friday, Oct. 31, 1980. In broad daylight, he tried to fly over a train without a pilot's license.

Last year, the governor's wife, Helen, was clocked going more than 80 m.p.h. on her way from Lansing to Detroit. Of course, she didn't get a ticket for breaking the speed limit by 25 m.p.h. because the chauffeur of her limousine was a state policeman. Cops don't get tickets, they give them.

Mrs. Milliken's limo blew past Jim Brown, a former state legislator who was then publisher of the Ingham County News. He wrote an indignant editorial rapping Mrs. Milliken for allowing her tax-paid chauffeur to break traffic laws and waste energy. In reply, Brown received a note from Mrs. Milliken's secretary explaining that the speeding was necessary because she was late for an important luncheon.

Brown retorted that taxpayers probably wouldn't agree "that being late to a tea party is a good enough reason to fly 80 miles an hour past poor slobbs doing the legal 55, some of whom are probably also late but don't have a state trooper at the wheel."

It seemed like an interesting argument, so I wrote a column about it, suggesting first ladies should be required to obey the same laws obeyed by last slobbs. And that's why I'm writing about Mrs. Milliken's husband today. Both she and the governor support the Equal Rights Amendment, which has a flip side, so certainly they'll agree it would be unequal of me to write about her law-breaking but not his.

Gov. Milliken was in Lapeer to speak at two schools and on a radio talk show. The Lapeer County Press reported:

"The state trooper chauffeuring Gov. William Milliken through Lapeer Friday certainly didn't have a governor on his limo's engine. We clocked him doing 55 m.p.h. in a 35 m.p.h. zone. We were hot in pursuit of the story on hizzoner's visit, but one maneuver gave us pause as the gov's driver pulled to the left as if to go around the crossing gates at the Saginaw Street railroad tracks. The driver pulled back as an eastbound train sped through.

"When we asked one of Milliken's aides about their wild cross-town ride, he grinned. 'Is it true the governor flew over a train?' he asked. Trooper Mark Calcaterra said it's all right for state cops to speed, even when chauffeuring the governor."

Many times I have driven the route Milliken took, between Lapeer's two high schools. It's probably three or four miles. Traffic is congested, and much of the area is residential. The 35 m.p.h. limit is generous. According to the newspaper report, Milliken would have covered the distance in less than five minutes if he'd been able to get around those railroad crossing gates in time. Holy Cow!

I'm sure the troopers who chauffeur the state's first family are excellent drivers. I'm sure they would deny risking lives. I wouldn't bother arguing with them about that, because their driving skill isn't the point.

The point is that everyone should obey the same laws, or face the same penalties, and it's outrageous that the governor allows a policeman to break the law simply so he won't arrive a few minutes late to give a speech.

This is the same sort of unblind justice that sends the banker to summer camp for two weeks for embezzling $5 million, and the burglar to prison for 10 years for stealing $500. I realize white-collar speeding is peanuts compared to the greater injustices, but I purposely gag on peanuts to keep in shape for gagging on cantaloupes.

Not incidentally, Milliken's speeches in Lapeer included his doomsday criticism of Proposition D, the Tisch tax-cut amendment which, if it hadn't been defeated four days later, would have forced the state to cut back on many services.

For instance, it would have been necessary to lay off many state troopers. Milliken might have had to learn how to fly his own limousine.

House fire takes $15,000 toll

The kitchen and attic of an Independence Township home on Mohawk Road were damaged Friday when flames from a grease fire which began in the kitchen spread to the roof.

According to Lt. Neil Sage of the Independence Township Fire Department, owners of the home were out of town when a passerby spotted the flames at 11:30 p.m. and notified authorities.

The fire began when an illuminated lightbulb ignited grease which had collected in the hood over the stove, Sage said.

The flames spread upward and burned long enough to damage ceiling joists in the attic, he said.

The halls and kitchen also received heavy smoke damage. According to reports, an estimated $15,000 was lost in property and contents.

What goes up . . .

As restoration of the old Clarkston Methodist Church continues, the spire is dropped into place. The new owners of the church, Clarence and Sharron Catallo, plan to restore the building's exterior as close to its original look as possible, says Bob Adams, former owner of the church who is working on the restoration as the building contractor. In their quest for perfection, plans to remove the spire are underway. In order to better see the spire atop the church at the corner of Buffalo and Church streets in Clarkston, a step-up between the cupola and the over-20-foot-tall spire is to be added, hopefully before the snow falls, Adams says. The Catallo family presently lives in Springfield Township and they plan to convert the church into their home. Their story is on Page 30 of today's Clarkston News.

Pool slide or illegal sign? Dispute still smolders

By Al Zawacky

Peter Gannon says it's a matter of principle.

After three months of haggling with Independence Township over the legality of a pool slide that sits atop his business's roof, only the weather has changed. The slide remains.

"I think I'm right, and unless a judge tells me otherwise, I'm not taking my slide down," says Cannon, owner of Poolmart, a swimming pool and pool supply store at 5738 M-15, Independence Township.

"I still say that it (the slide) is a saleable product—it's no more a sign than all the cars parked out in Rademacher's parking lot," he adds, pointing out a nearby window to the Chevrolet dealership next door. They're going to have to prove to me that it's a sign. I say it's a slide."

According to township ordinances, a roof sign can not exceed the height of the roof—making Poolmart's slide a clear violation, according to Tim Palulian, head of the Independence building and planning department.

"We classify the slide as a display, which falls under the ordinance's definition of a sign," Palulian added. "I've spoken informally with the township attorney, and he agreed with our interpretation."

The dispute almost sent the township and Gannon into court last September, but the two parties worked out a temporary, out-of-court truce—according to Palulian.

"He (Gannon) said he'd take the slide down when his season ended and we would dismiss the ticket he's been issued," he said. "If he doesn't want to keep the slide down voluntarily, he can go to the zoning board free of charge for an interpretation. If he doesn't want to, I'll take it to the zoning board myself."

Gannon, however, says he never promised to remove his slide.

"I don't see any reason to," he says. "I did not promise to remove it—I only said I might. And under the circumstances, I can't."

"All my kids are out of town and I'm under doctor's care for a bad back. I'm not going to go climbing up there to take it down."

Palulian said that if the zoning board agreed with his contention that the pool slide constituted a sign, Gannon would have two options: Remove it, or seek a variance from the zoning board.

"If he does neither, then we'd begin the appropriate legal action," he said. "But that's still way down the road."

Gannon said he would consider Palulian's suggestion to take his case to the zoning board. Previously he had been told that the zoning board appearance would not be free of charge, but would cost $75, he said.

"It's something I'll take under advisement," Gannon said.

Two EDC members appointed

Springfield Township's Economic Development Corporation board of directors has two temporary members to help start work on the fledgling EDC's first project.

Appointed by Springfield Supervisor Collin Walls and approved by the township board were Marvin Menzies, 5500 Farley, and Larry Hartman, 8896 Crosby Lake. Menzies is a builder and Hartman is an executive for the United Auto Workers.

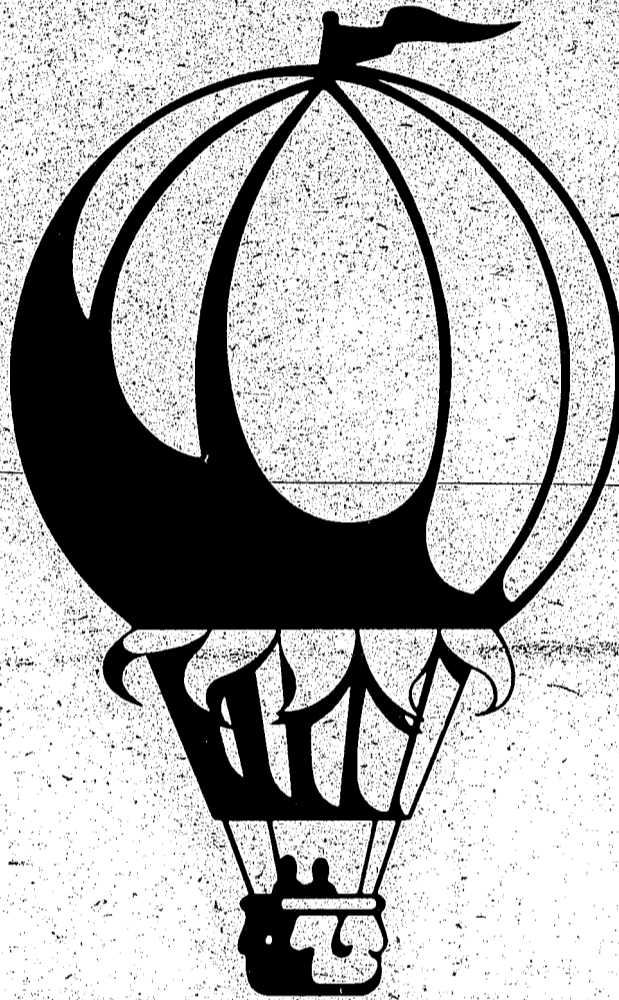

"The law says that we have to appoint two temporary members from the area affected by the project," Walls said. "They'll work with the regular nine-member board to review this project only."

The Springfield EDC's first project involves the Clawson Tank Company, located off White Lake Road.

"It's an addition to an existing facility," Walls said. "They want to construct an industrial, storage and warehouse facility."

Acting as a publicly-owned mortgage company, the EDC provides low interest loans to businesses and developers. The Springfield Township Board voted unanimously to create an EDC district in Springfield last May.

Springfield's EDC will meet Nov. 24 at the township hall to review the proposed project.

Wolfpack at work

Practice opened last week for the Clarkston High School varsity basketball team, as Coach Gary Nustad and his cagers prepared for their season-opener Dec. 5 at home against Davison. Although a senior, Brad Sheldon [above] will be a new face in the Clarkston lineup this year. An all-league quarterback with the CHS football team this fall, Sheldon and teammates will be looking for similar success with the varsity basketball team this winter.

New faces abound on the Wolfpack, but here are two familiar ones: Returning starters Greg Lane [left] and Scott McKoin. McKoin averaged 12 points a game as a junior last season, while Lane was Clarkston's defensive specialist at forward.

The Point After

by Al Zawacky

McCormick still casts a long shadow

Out in the corridors, by the doorways and along the gymnasium walls they stood — the curious who watched with interest as the 1980-81 Wolfpack opened up its first day of practice.

There is a mystique that surrounds the Clarkston High School basketball team, generated by three straight league championships and a near state title last March. Although only a handful of familiar faces remain, the aura endures.

And yet — you instinctively sense that something is missing. When senior Scott McKoin playfully jumped up and touched the rim, you couldn't help but think of another man that used to do that — and the void was suddenly brought into focus.

The big man is gone.

WHEN PRACTICE OPENED a year ago, an assistant coach from Ohio State was there, watching silently on the sidelines and looking very proper in his scarlet tie and gray suit. There weren't any scouts around this time.

Tim McCormick. For three straight years, this gangling teenager from Grosse Pointe was "the franchise," and in a very real sense the Clarkston basketball program is laboring in his shadow.

"I think most people realize that Tim McCormick was a once-in-a-lifetime dream," says Coach Gary Nustad. "How many times does a school — any school — have an All-American?"

"I think the fans understand that a team like last season's doesn't come along every year."

Indeed, it does not. With McCormick gone, there are undoubtedly people in Rochester, Waterford and elsewhere looking forward to exacting a measure of revenge for three years of humiliation. This is it, guys, they'll be saying. This is the season we get even with Clarkston.

Nustad realizes his team has quite a reputation to uphold — and seems to relish the prospect. He is looking forward to the upcoming campaign with genuine enthusiasm.

"We've established ourselves as the perennial champions of our league," Nustad says, the pride showing. "We're shooting for our fourth straight league title — that's an incredible goal. I don't think that's ever been done."

But does he have the horses to do it? Maybe so. Starters Scott McKoin and Greg Lane are back, and they'll be joined by seniors Ric Schebor, Jerry Tatu, Scott Weaver, Craig Schnabel and Brad Beattie. Senior Brad Sheldon, of varsity football fame, played JV basketball two years ago and is making a comeback. He'll help, too.

Ray Kubani, a standout at Clarkston Junior High last season, may make the squad as a sophomore — but that's just another in a long series of "ifs." If you prefer the mundane and predictable, eschew the 1980-81 Wolfpack. They'll be neither.

"It's going to be a tremendously exciting season," says Nustad. "We're going to be in the thick of the league race and the games are going to be exciting for the fans."

"Each year, we start anew. We're obviously hurt by graduation, but the kids that are left learned how to win. Some of them may not have played as much, but they still learned what it takes and how it feels to be a winner."

IN MANY WAYS, the upcoming season may prove better — from a spectator's point of view — than 1979-80. Victories by less than 20 points will be savored as victories — not branded as "off nights." Close games generate excitement, and Clarkston will be a scrappy, surprising, fun-to-watch team.

The Wolfpack would surely advise Rochester and Waterford to wait a while before ordering their champagne, but consider this sobering bit of trivia: In fully 13 of Clarkston's 26 wins last year, Tim McCormick's point total exceeded his team's margin of victory.

That 6-foot-10 shadow, no matter how you figure it, is still going to be pretty difficult to escape.

Hockey: It's a way of life for 15-year-old Kevin Reis

By Al Zawacky

—It was just past 6 a.m. on a chilly Saturday morning when 15-year-old Kevin Reis trudged out of bed.

Not even the faintest glint of daylight was yet visible as he dressed. Most friends and neighbors, it was safe to assume, were sleeping soundly.

Kevin wasn't getting up for work. And, it being a Saturday, he wasn't on his way to school. A centerman for the Paddock Pool midget hockey team, he was just on his way to an early morning practice at an ice rink in Dearborn.

The odd hours? Just part of being a hockey player, he shrugged.

"I've been playing hockey my whole life," Kevin said. "My brothers all played, and I started when I was really young.

"It just becomes a part of you. I guess once you get started, you can't quit."

He remembered being on ice skates for the first time at the tender age of 2 — and the early start must be paying off. Kevin is currently the second-highest point scorer on the team, noted Paddock Coach Blake Lindsay.

Like his father, Ted, coach of the National Hockey League

Detroit Red Wings, the younger Lindsay is known to be a no-nonsense type who runs a hard, disciplined practice.

Chatting after an hour and a half workout with his team last weekend at Lakeland Arena, Lindsay was generous in his praise of his 15-year-old centerman.

"Kevin keeps his head up and passes the puck really well," said Lindsay, noting that the majority of Kevin's points this season have come on assists.

"He's a smooth skater and he's always thinking out there."

And not all of his contributions to the team can be found on the scoring stats.

"He's the type of kid who's got a sense of humor and can use it to keep everybody loose," Lindsay says. "I'm really pleased with his attitude — he's definitely matured a lot."

Speaking over the drone of the ice resurfer as it traveled up and down the ice, Lindsay philosophized about his goals as a coach and the future of his game.

"I'm a firm believer that when you get kids involved in something like hockey, it keeps them busy and gets them to spend their time productively," he said. "My goal as a coach is to see all of them get scholarships to go to college.

"I have photostats of their report cards and keep in touch with their counselors at school. College hockey is the future — you're going to see more and more college hockey players in the NHL in the upcoming years.

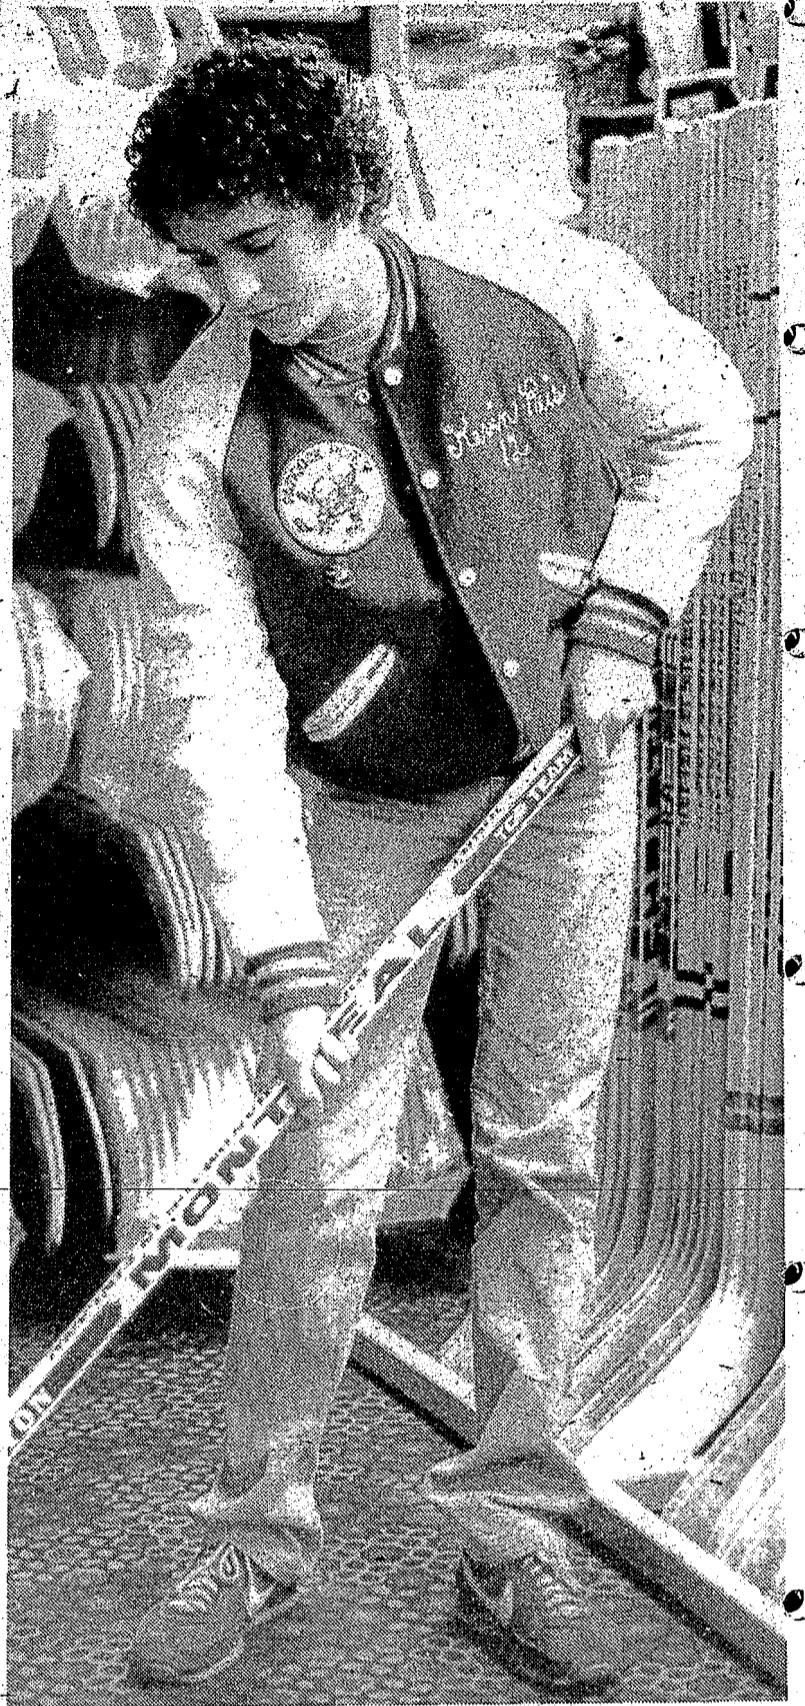

"I think it's important to have college educated players in the NHL — players who sound intelligent and can sell the game, like in pro football. Hockey's had a bad image in that respect."

A sophomore at Clarkston High School, Kevin would like to join the college hockey ranks in a few years — but he's realistic about his prospects.

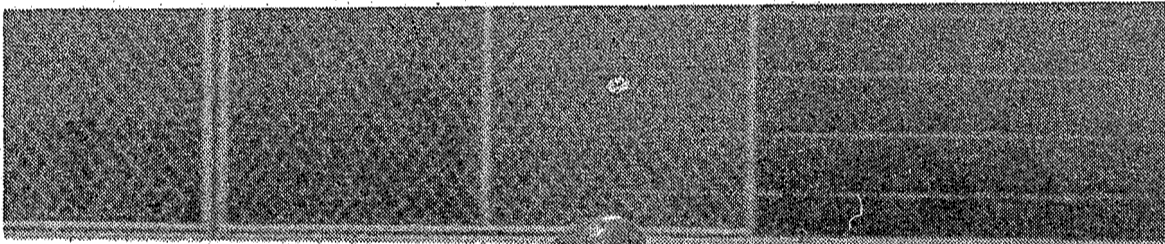

"I'm a little small, but my brothers are all big — so I should still grow quite a bit," he said.

In addition to hockey, he also plays baseball and soccer. But the ice sport remains a favorite.

"I guess the main thing about hockey is that it lets you take out your frustrations," Kevin said, citing the game's speed and frequent body contact. "If I didn't play hockey, all that frustration would stay bottled up inside."

Kevin takes time to select a new stick in the Lakeland Arena pro shop. Hockey's tools of the trade are usually expensive, and sticks are no exception: This particular stick carried a $13.95 price tag.

Kevin Reis finishes off one of Coach Blake Lindsay's drills with a shot toward the net during a morning practice session last weekend.

Cagers draw Kettering in district playoffs

By Al Zawacky

The result of the draw last week for the pairings in the upcoming district playoffs pretty well summed up the type of luck the Clarkston High School varsity girls' basketball team has had this season.

In other words, bad. Coach Dave McDonald's CHS Wolves wound up paired with undefeated league champions Waterford Kettering—hardly an auspicious turn of events.

Last week—the Wolves last full week of regular season action—Clarkston fell victim to powerhouse Oxford 56-37 Tuesday and dropped a home contest to West Bloomfield on Thursday, 45-34.

"We just ran into some buzz saws at the end," McDonald said of his team's brutal schedule over the last few weeks, a schedule that has dropped the Wolves' record from 9-5 in late October to a current mark of 9-10, including 4-5 in the Greater Oakland Activities League.

"The important thing is that the girls are all working hard. They're as discouraged as anyone about the last few weeks, but they're not giving up."

Senior Lisa Forsyth led the Wolves in scoring against Oxford, matching 10 points and teammate Janet Zografos also turned in an impressive performance. A Junior, Zografos scored eight points and led the team with 10 rebounds.

Sophomore Annette Ulasich was a standout for Clarkston against West Bloomfield, leading the Wolves with 11 points. Lanette Whitehead added seven to the Wolves' total.

In both contests, McDonald cited poor shooting as the main reason behind his team's demise.

"That's been our problem all year," he said. "We'll move the ball well, work a nice pattern—and then miss the layup.

"It's something we work hard on every day, but it's just not coming."

Looking forward to the playoff opener against Kettering, McDonald said he'll try a different strategy against the Wolves' GOAL nemesis.

"We played them twice in the regular season—the first time we just came at them and they beat us bad. The second time, we tried to beat their zone, but they just overpowered us.

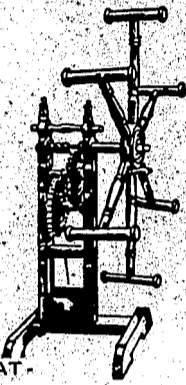

"I think this time we're going to go with the stall—play four corners and look for the layup. We've got to play a more position game, and we've got to beat their press. Kettering depends on their press."

The Wolves will tip off against Kettering at 7 p.m. Nov. 24 at Grand Blanc. Perhaps Clarkston will get a little assist from the old "three game jinx," McDonald added.

"They've beat us twice, and they say it's always difficult to beat any team three times in the same season," he said. "The girls always get fired up when they play Kettering, so I know we'll be ready."

Coaching changes abound; Krueger denies rumors

By Al Zawacky
New faces will be found in at least three coaching jobs in Clarkston Community School's athletic program during the winter and spring seasons. But don't look for any changes at the helm of the Sashabaw Junior High football program next year.

Chris Krueger says he's heard all the rumors: "I hear them every year," he says of continuing speculation that he will quit his post as head football coach at Sashabaw Junior High, a position he's held since 1974.

"I admit it's something I've thought about, but it's not in the foreseeable future. As it looks right now, I'll probably be back (in September)."

Sashabaw's gridders haven't been too successful of late — their 1979 and 1980 records were 2-6 and 1-6-1 respectively — and Krueger has felt the heat.

"It's frustrating, because every year we're doing what we're suppose to do and losing at it," he says. "But I'll probably be back."

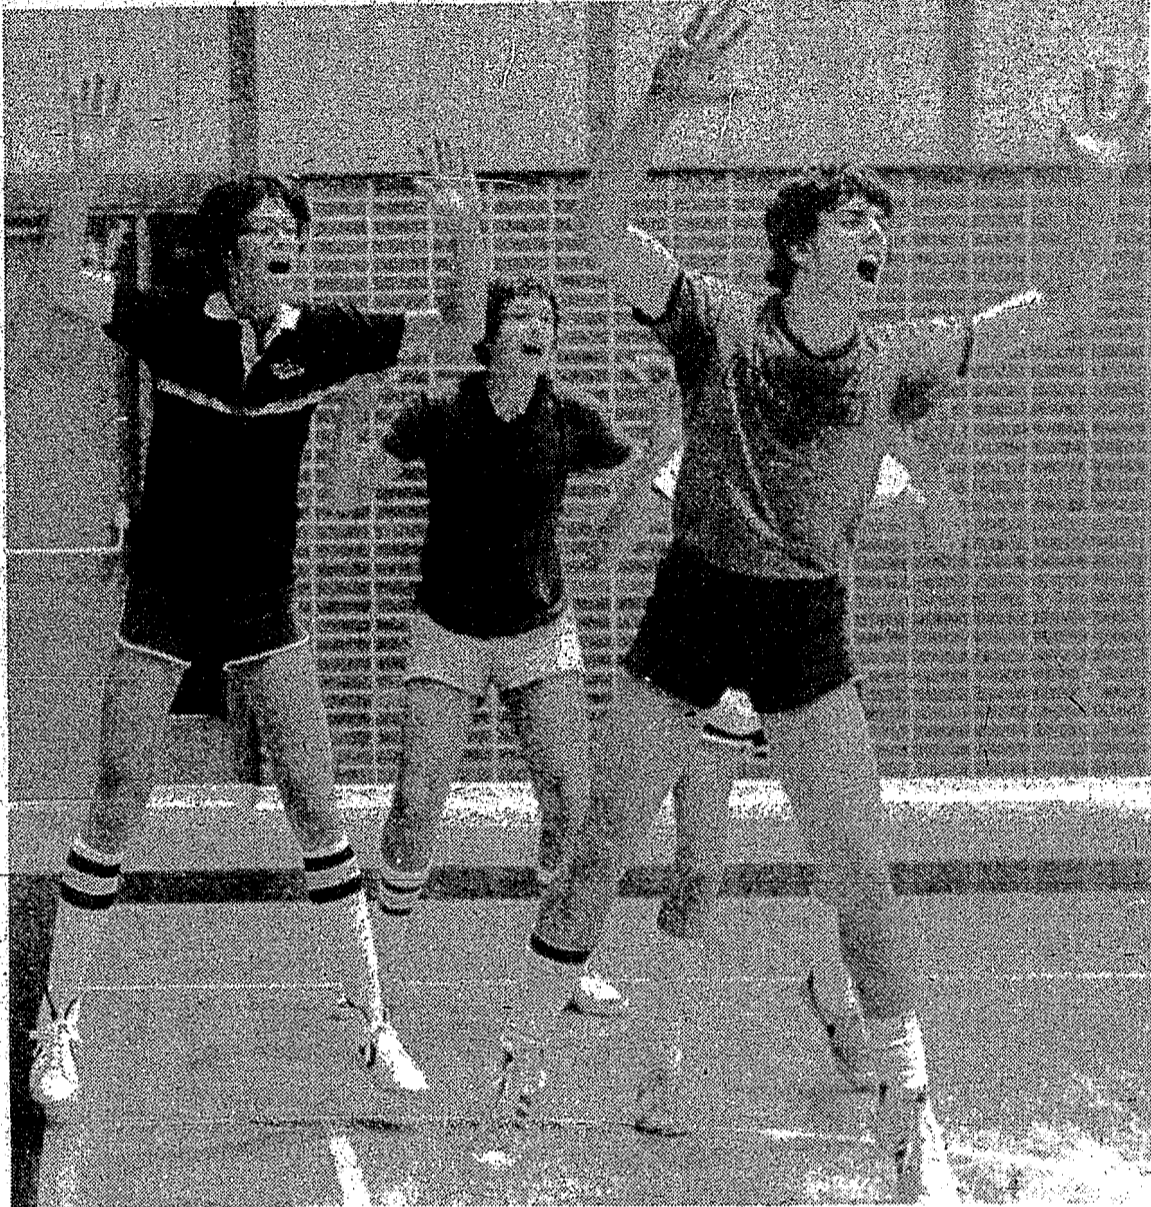

Clarkston High School Athletic Director Paul Tungate says that any football coaching change at Sashabaw is up to Krueger.

"It's his decision," says Tungate. "I've talked to him, and while he has thought about resigning, I think he'll be back."

Coaching changes have recently taken place in CHS varsity softball and Sashabaw Junior High wrestling, and another is pending in CHS junior varsity softball.

Karla Teare, who coached JV softball last season, has officially accepted the varsity post left vacant when Kathy Mahrle resigned two months ago. A replacement for Teare at the JV level is still being sought, according to Tungate.

Rich Weston, an industrial arts and drafting teacher at CHS will take over the SJH wrestling reins. A state-ranked wrestler at Warren Lincoln during his high school days, Weston is replacing the departing Dan Whiston.

JV warm-up

Like their varsity counterparts, the Clarkston High School junior varsity boys' basketball team is working hard in preparation for the season-opener now less than three weeks away. Last year the junior Wolfpack placed second in the Greater Oakland Activities League with a 13-7 final record after two straight league titles in 1977-78 and 1978-79.

Tornado warning hearing slated

A tornado warning system in Springfield Township will be the subject of a special public hearing at the next regular township board meeting Dec. 3.

The township board decided to hold the special public hearing at 7:30 p.m., one half hour before the start of December's regular monthly meeting.

"Basically, it's a matter of getting some public input, in addition to the people who signed the petitions, and discussing all of the alternatives," said Collin Walls, Springfield Township supervisor.

"Together, we'll look at what we have and the board will make a decision. I assume it'll probably take longer than a half hour and run into our regular meeting time, but that won't be a problem."

In May 1978 the Springfield Township Board voted down a plan to install a tornado siren system in the township, but about 150 township residents recently signed petitions asking the board to reconsider that decision.

A date for a public hearing on the matter was delayed until cost information was obtained from Oakland County, Walls said.

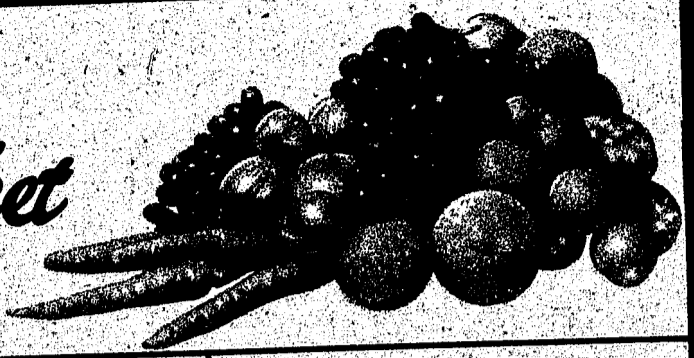

Springfield would probably need 10 sirens at a cost to the township of approximately $7,000 each, he added.

"My basic opinion of the sirens hasn't changed," Walls said, restating doubts about the cost effectiveness of the warning system.

"But that doesn't mean the board won't be open to public input — 150 signatures represent more public interest in the sirens that we had in 1978."

Springfield foster care concerns go to state

The concerns of Springfield Township residents over a proposed adult foster care home will be communicated to the state, said Springfield Township Supervisor Collin Walls.

But other than that, there remains very little that the township can do, he added.

Under present Michigan law, the only valid objection a municipality can raise to the placement of a foster care facility is the presence of another similar unit less than 1,500 feet away, Walls noted.

"Basically, there's little we can do other than inform the state that there isn't any other facility within the 1,500-foot limit," said Walls. "But we do want to make sure that the state is aware of citizen concerns raised."

At a public hearing on the proposed foster care home at 8420 Eaton held last month, neighboring residents raised doubts as to whether the structure's heating system and architectural design was conducive to a foster care facility.

"I don't object to the idea of having a (foster care) home there," said Roger Horton, 8484 Eaton. "It's just that it's hard to understand how the residents can be comfortable in there."

Claudia Baumgras, representing Bortz Health Care Facilities, the firm applying for the foster care license, said at the public hearing that all necessary steps to bring the facility up to standards would be taken.

The Bortz Health Care Facilities is also under investigation by the state for alleged Medicaid overcharges, Walls said.

At its regular monthly meeting earlier this month, the Springfield Township Board decided to draft a letter to the state licensing board citing the concerns of the board and neighboring residents.

"I would hope that the state takes all of this into consideration before granting the license," Walls said.

The clothes won't be the same and no one will be holding a script, but when the Clarkston Village Players' next production opens, these are some of the faces that will appear

Players to stage repeat performance

The more cockeyed aspects of life in the nation's capital are rocking the stage of the Depot Theatre as the Clarkston Village Players rehearse their production of "Two Blind Mice."

The lively comedy, written by Samuel Spewack, was the Player's first production after the theater group was formed about 20 years ago.

The play opens Friday, Dec. 5, and continues Dec. 6, 7, 11, 12 and 13.

The Thursday, Dec. 11, performance is a benefit for the Clarkston United Methodist Church senior youth group.

A cast of 18 is to present the play about two pixillated older women who conduct a government agency which is still going about its business four years after it has been officially abolished.

Suellen Fausel and Marlene Sewick portray the two women, the "Mice" of the title.

David Brock plays the journalist ex-nephew of the two women who comes to their rescue when they receive notice to vacate the premises.

Herbal warfare is his guise and he soon has everyone scampering in secrecy trying to be in-the-know about the secret activities.

Bob Cook, Mike Michalski, Hugh Rose and Denny LaLone play members of the Armed Forces Commission drawn into the hoax.

Others adding to the merriment under the direction of Janet Rose include Linda Porter, Mike Kaul, Homer Biondi, John Peters. Pete Rose, Doris Libstaff, Donald Porter, Tom Azoni, Mathew Hubchen, Dick Greenfield, Lee Noyes and Violet Biondi.

Tickets are now on sale for $3.50 at Tierra Arts and Designs on Main Street, Clarkston, or call 363-0188.

The Dec. 11 benefit performance tickets are $4 and they may be purchased by calling Tanis Pettit at 625-9532 or any Methodist Youth Fellowship (MYF) member.

Burning fate awaits study

It should be several weeks before the issue of burning leaves in Clarkston is decided.

The village council plans to review information on air pollution caused from burning leaves at the next meeting, scheduled for Nov. 24, said Village President Fontie ApMadoc.

Also, the council has plans to look into the feasibility of local residents hiring an area youth organization to rake and bag leaves for a small fee.

Senior citizens on fixed incomes and those physically unable to do the work themselves may find a solution there, ApMadoc said.

At the Nov. 10 village council meeting, council members were approached with a proposal to ban the burning of leaves in Clarkston.

At that time, Beverly Clemo, an Independence Township resident, proposed the ban, pointing to air pollution as the primary reason.

In addition, Clemo said, the smoke settles in the streets endangering pedestrians' lives. Clemo was also concerned about residents burning leaves without permits.

The Clarkston Village Council is scheduled to meet Nov. 24 at 7:30 p.m. at 375 Depot Rd., Clarkston.

Independence connection weaves its way into historical quilt's history

By Kathy Greenfield

The bicentennial quilt on display four years at the Henry Ford Museum has an Independence Township connection.

The hand-stitched, embroidered and appliqued masterpiece is the work of Della May Morris of Kansas.

But it was through the effort of Mrs. Morris's niece, Luana Hunt of Holcomb Street, that While at the Henry Ford Museum, Della May Morris pauses to pose in front of her Bicentennial quilt that is part of the museum's permanent collection. She designed, embroidered and appliqued the quilt pieces and put the whole thing together, taking nine months to complete the project by working 10 to 12 hours a day. The quilt ended up as part of the museum's collection through the efforts of Mrs. Morris's niece, Luana Hunt of Independence Township.

the quilt ended up in Dearborn as part of the museum's permanent collection.

"When I visited Kansas in 1976, I discussed with Della the value of the quilt," said Luana. "She said she was unable to place a value on it and said many people who saw the quilt felt it should be in a museum for all to enjoy for years to come."

"So I volunteered to contact Henry Ford Museum when I returned home, which I did."

Her offer was met somewhat less than enthusiastically.

"When I told them it was made in 1976, they didn't think they were interested — until they saw the quilt," Luana said.

After a study of slides and photographs, the gift was accepted by the museum's board of directors.

"I found out later they are very selective about accepting gifts," she said. "Also, this quilt is the only item in the museum less than 30 years old."

Born in 1908, Mrs. Morris made her first quilt at age 6 and has made over 400 since then.

Her love of history, which began in a one-room schoolhouse in Kansas, has continued throughout her life.

Most recently, her grandson, Shannon Morris, has assisted her with research for historical quilts. The bicentennial quilt is dedicated to Shannon.

Mrs. Morris worked on the quilt 10 to 12 hours a day, every day from September of 1975 until it was finished in May 1976.

At its center is a map of the eastern half of the United States which shows the original 13 states and each block around the map portrays a significant event in history.

Recently, Mrs. Morris, her sister Susie, daughter-in-law Barbara and friend Viola made the trip to Michigan.

It was the first time she saw the quilt on display, for the last visit to Michigan was in 1950 while her father and sister (Luana's mother) was still living.

Luana went along on the trip to the museum to see the quilt — it was just before it was taken down for storage. The museum rotates its collection every two years, but the bicentennial quilt was on display four years before it was taken down.

For her donation of the quilt, Mrs. Morris's name is engraved on a plaque near the museum entrance.

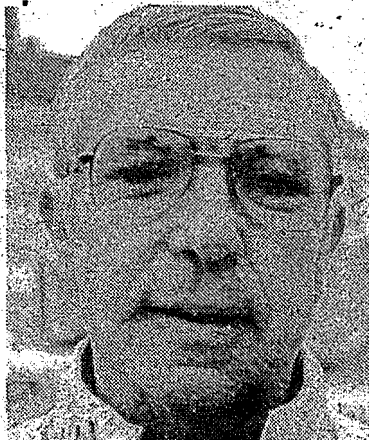

"They treated us like royalty," Luana said, "but what really impressed (Della) was her name right alongside Henry Ford's (on the plaque)."

YOUR EYES

By Dr. Theodore B. Walton
OPTOMETRIST

Probably the best known test for visual acuity is the Snellen test, which uses a chart to determine what is seen at a distance of 20 feet. It is from this test that the phrase "20/20 vision" originates. Contrary to the general impression, 20/20 vision is not necessarily normal vision. A 20/20 result merely indicates that one sees at 20 feet what he should see at 20 feet. Normal vision exists if you can see . . . easily, clearly and without strain . . . objects at distances from less than a foot away to infinity. Even people with 20/20 vision may not be able to do this.

If you have difficulty seeing at any distance or if you suffer eyestrain when trying to see clearly, your eyes may need help. Give your eyes the benefit of periodic check-ups. Phone for an appointment.

One-woman art show underway

Local residents have the opportunity to delve into the talents and artistry of Patricia Tews Boyer.

Now through Nov. 25 at Pine Knob Manor Homes, Boyer is scheduled to have on display over 30 of her finest works in her first public showing.

The artwork on display in the one-woman show entails three mediums — oils, watercolors and charcoal.

Boyer attended Alma College and Wayne State University's Center for Creative Studios in Detroit.

In addition, she received the DMI Award in 1979 and 1980 and the Birmingham/Bloomfield Art Association's Merit Award and Best Painting Award.

Boyer is to be on hand Nov. 21 and 25 from 5 to 7 p.m. The show is to be open from 1 to 5 p.m. daily as well. It will be closed Thanksgiving Day.

Pine Knob Manor Homes is located at the intersection of Waldon and Sashabaw roads, just off I-75 at the Sashabaw exit.

The art show is free. For more information, phone 625-1411.

CYA's workshop for dads: A certified first-time success

Over 30 fathers participated in Clarkston Youth Assistance's (CYA) workshop on Caring to be a Dad.

"The response was far greater than anticipated," said Garry Pullins, social worker with CYA.

"We are very pleased with the response," Pullins said. "I sat in on two of the programs and there was a great deal of discussion. I would guess total participation from the dads. There were a lot of questions asked and many comments made."

The workshop for fathers only, held Nov. 8, was geared to promote better father/child husband/wife relationships.

Speakers discussed such topics as fathers' priorities, listening, sharing thoughts and how time is spent with children.

A questionnaire handed out at the workshop's close, revealed fathers wanted another such program to include their wives, and a need was expressed for workshops on the single parent.

Pullins said he anticipates more such programs in the future.

Cattalos ready to call church home

A narrow, winding and often sharply banked dirt road leads to the Catallo's Springfield Township home.

Tiny fieldstone cottages, converted into year-young homes, follow the circumference of Big Lake.

A typical country grocery store filled with all the necessities sits at the crossroads.

All the boats have been dragged ashore and covered with tarps for winter.

Although no longer limited to being a summer community, the area keeps the feel and flavor of city families traveling north to vacation for three months.

It's probably the last place anyone would expect to discover a vice president of E. F. Hutton living with his family.

But for the Catallos — Clarence, 40, Sharron, 36, Curt, 13 and Cara, 11 — it's been home for the past 10 years.

"But not for much longer," said Clarence. "It's time to move onto new things."

"We used to have friends living on Eagle Road and we always came out for visits. That's how we became familiar with the area, and we moved here from Birmingham.

"That was 10 years ago. But now we've bought the old church on Church Street in Clarkston," he said, his eyes lighting up as he reveals their plans.

"We just erected the spire two days ago," he said, grabbing the historical society's book about Clarkston.

Abruptly he stops, locating the right page. "We referred to this picture in the book to give us an idea of how to restore it as original as possible," he said.

"We hunted all over and found one company in North Carolina that makes fiberglass spires. "It took negotiating, plans, cancellations and more plans but we finally got it up."

Both Clarence and Sharron have remodeling ideas and are enthusiastic about customizing the church.

"First of all, there's enough stained glass on the side windows to fill the front foyer windows," he said. "So, we have plans to do that and install more stained and beveled glass."

"The European kitchen is going to be in the back half. There's one loft now, but we're going to build a mezzanine. That's where my office and library are going to be.

"In all, not counting the loft, there's a total of 6,800 square feet inside the church," he said.

He also has plans to construct a three-car carriage house in the backyard.

Curt and Cara both agree living in the village has advantages.

They'll be close to stores, schools, and playgrounds.

"But the best part is that I won't have a 45-minute ride to school anymore," Curt said, smiling.

Sharron first came up with the idea to buy the church, Clarence said.

"I saw the for sale sign and I thought it would be nice," she said. "We've always liked the village and the idea appealed to me."

"Not only that," Clarence interjected, "but Clarkston is now a historical village, and I like the idea of living in a historical place."

The Catallos own two dogs and seven Himalayan cats.

"The gardens and temples of Siam were guarded by Himalayans, the cats should be right at home guarding the church," he laughed.

It will be at least nine months before the family can move into

Country Living

by Marilyn Trumper

their new home, and they're biding the time.

If the spread on Big Lake Road is an example of Catallo ingenuity, the church promises to be a delight.

The family's 100-year-old rambling house is filled with antiques to delight the eye.

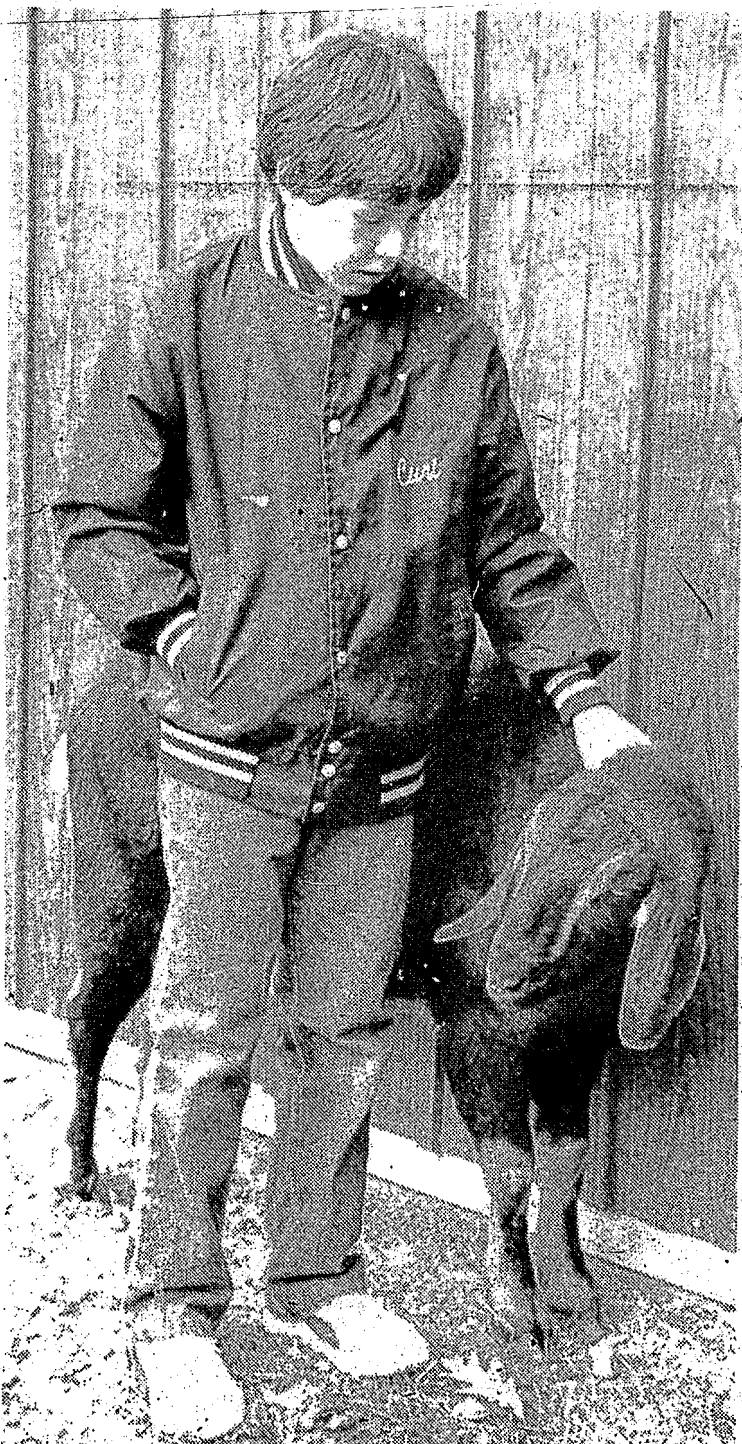

"I think everyone who has ever lived in this house has added onto it," Sharron speculated. "We have. There are no halls, you just move from room to room."

They own 75 acres comprised of land on both sides of Big Lake Road.

While Curt uses the place for riding motorcycles and Cara

Taking a quiet moment to stroke the family's pet goat, Curt gingerly scratches behind those hard-to-reach horns, maintaining a friend for life.

With most of the leaves down from the trees, the acreage of High Haven farms becomes more visible. Row after row of white-fencing separates the 30 horses stabled for training. The Catallos (from left),

Clarence, Sharron, Cara and Curt hold rein on one of the many horses in their care for training as others amble in from the field beyond.

Red Cross honors Clarkston donors

Three Clarkston area residents were among more than 500 special blood donors recently honored by the American Red Cross Blood Services Southeastern Michigan Region.

Receiving framed certificates of appreciation were Brenda DuPree, James Bleicher and Janice Ledogar.

The three residents participate as pheresis donors, a procedure that can take two or more hours to give a specific component of blood for a specific patient.

The presentations were made Nov. 2 at the fourth annual Pheresis Recognition Reception.

Pheresis donors range in age from 17 (with parental consent) and 65. For additional information about the pheresis program, call the Red Cross at 833-4440, ext. 252.

More Country Living

She owns High Haven Farms, a training stable for Arabian horses.

"I first started out riding horses and we had the opportunity to expand," she explained. "The business has its pluses, but I'm not involved in it as much anymore, I don't have to be since I've hired a full-time trainer.

The Catallos own 15 horses and board 15, they said.

"When we move, we'll keep the stables and I'll probably be out often," she said.

But while Sharron enjoys Arabians, her real love is hockey, Clarence said.

"I go to as many Red Wing games as I can. I've always loved it, even from the time I was a little girl. And, I've always stood by the Red Wings," she said, smiling.

Clarence's hobbies are varied, exciting and dare-devilish.

Oh, it's just the mid-life crisis," he laughed. "I have a sea plane, a regular plane, and I enjoy hot air ballooning."

A new balloon is in the planning stage, he said, which should ultimately sport the words, "My broker is E. F. Hutton."

"I wanted to be able to use Big Lake for my sea plane, so I bought 20 acres across the road, dug a canal for the plane, and a pond which is stocked with fish," he said.

"But buying this church is all part of turning 40 and the mid-life crisis. I've always thought it would be fun to try something different.

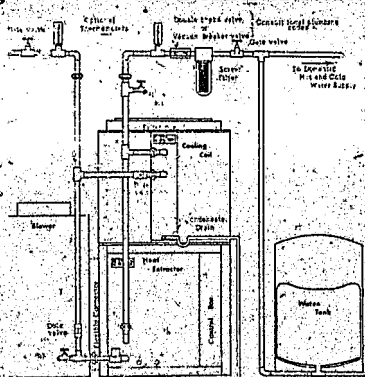

Residents living in the Village of Clarkston — watch for the Catallos. They're moving into a place near you.

Venison Recipes & Cookery

Many people are going to be having venison in the next couple weeks, some whether they like it or not.

All can just as well like it. There are enough ways to prepare deer meat to satisfy everyone's tastes. Some may take longer than others, but there are ways.

Michigan Natural Resources Magazine has some recipes we'd like to pass along.

First some marinades:

- 1/4 cup wine vinegar
- 1 T soy sauce
- 1 tsp onion salt
- 1/4 tsp. pepper
- 1 T catsup
- 1/8 tsp garlic powder (or one crushed garlic clove)
- 2 T salad oil or olive oil

Soak venison round steak in marinade for two hours in the refrigerator, turning every 20 minutes. It may then be grilled on a Weber grill, or broiled, depending on the thickness of the steak. The meat will still be a little red in the center when it's done. Baste with marinade for the last 10 minutes.

This quantity will marinate two pounds of venison sirloin or round steak.

- 1 cup water
- 2 beef bouillon cubes
- 1/2 cup soy sauce
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic (1/8 tsp. garlic powder)
- 2 T honey
- 2 T lemon juice

1 tsp salt
Slice meat diagonally across the grain about one-quarter inch thick. Mix other ingredients for marinade. Pour over meat and refrigerate overnight. Drain meat, broil three to four inches from heat for about five minutes on the first side, baste with marinade, broil three minutes on the other side, baste again, and remove from the broiler. Do not overcook. Heat marinade to serve with meat.

Now for some cookin' recipes:

How about a stew?

- 2 pounds cubed venison stew meat
- 1 package stew seasoning mix
- 3 1/2 cups water
- About a dozen small red-skinned potatoes
- 3 stalks celery (chopped)
- 4 carrots (chopped)
- 6 small whole onions

Roll meat in flour, salt and pepper, then brown in shortening. Add seasoning mix, one teaspoon salt, and water. Cover and simmer for about 45 minutes, depending on cut of venison used. Add vegetables and cook another half hour.

The crock pot way

Another favorite way of cooking venison is a crock-pot. Simply brown stew meat in a skillet, then turn into the crock pot with onions and water. For flavoring add dried onion soup mix and mushroom soup mix. Simmer for several hours, adding vegetables later so they don't overcook. Serve when meat is easily separated with a fork.

Venison Vegetable Soup

In a large soup pot brown 1 1/2 pounds of cubed venison in 2 tablespoons of shortening. Sauté one onion with a dash of sage. Stir until browned, then add water to fill about 1/2 of the pot. Add 1/4 head chopped cabbage, pieces of celery, pieces of carrots, and salt and pepper. Let cook until vegetables are tender, then add diced potatoes. Cook until potatoes are tender then add 1/2 quart stewed tomatoes and one can green beans. She says this soup makes a hearty meal for cold outdoor days—during wood-chopping season—and that you may add other vegetables to suit your taste.

CHS student named finalist in WSU contest

David Moss, a Clarkston High School senior, is a finalist in the Wayne State University manuscript contest.

He and his creative writing teacher Nancy Albyn are planning to head for the campus in Detroit Saturday to participate in Manuscript Day, an event for all 65 finalists.

Davis received the honor for his short story "On a Thought." During the time they spend at WSU, the activities planned include a work critique, a speaker, luncheon, the announcement of prizes and an afternoon at Hillberry Theatre to see a production of Shakespeare's MacBeth.

This is the third time a Clarkston student has been a finalist in the annual competition.

"It is quite an honor, because the competition is extremely stiff," said Ms. Albyn.

Honors

Nancy Bryan became an international winner recently when she and her quarter horse, Shiek's Warrior, took second place at the Rathripen Combined Driving Event in Toronto.

Nancy, who lives on Clarkson-Orion Road, Independence Township, was the only American winner in the competition which netted her a blue ribbon.

Club notes

The Ladies Auxiliary Veterans of World War II, Clinton Valley barracks No. 2803, were honored as outstanding achievers in excellence for publicity in television and radio reporting.

The recognition came from the National Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of World War of the U.S.A. Inc. at the national convention held in Rosemont, Ill. last August.

In celebration, the auxiliary gathered Nov. 8 at the Springfield Township Hall, Springfield Township, and feasted upon turkey dinners with all the trimmings.

Dinner at the North Port Inn located in North Port, Fla., on E. S. Hwy. Dr. (just off US-41) also included a nice visit with its owners Paul and Bessie Rice, former Clarkston residents.

They are sharing one of their delicious specials called Turkey Melt. The Rices said to say "hello" to all their friends in Clarkston.

Turkey Melt

Breast of turkey
Ham
Bacon
Tomatoes
Cheddar Cheese
Toast Points

Start with toast points, then turkey topped with ham, cooked bacon, sliced tomatoes and cheddar cheese. Pop in micro wave a few seconds or under broiler until cheese melts.

Future fun from candle sales

Candles to brighten gray winter days should be lighting up all over the place.

The kids at North and South Sashabaw elementary schools just finished a fund-raising effort last week and with only six selling days, they raked in a profit of $11,803.51.

Sponsored by the schools' PTO, the sale benefited two projects with $2,443, or 20 percent of the total, earmarked for sixth grade camp and the remaining $9,360.51 slated to be used for playground equipment.

In an outdoor assembly Nov. 11, there were also prizes given to the top salespersons.

Larry Molonev won $75 for his sales efforts,

Tim Hoskins $50, Jeremy Andres $25, April Irelan $15, Jennifer Whaley $10 and Anita Kirk $5.

There was also a drawing from names entered when 10 items were sold and entered again for each five additional items.

Winners in the drawing were Tiffany Hamilton $50, Tammy Smith $25, Richelle Hamby $20, Paul Colom $15, Richard Hunt $10 and Jennifer Whaley $5.

Each child who sold at least 10 items also received a certificate for a sundae at McDonald's, donated by the Clarkston store—over 300 in all.

Going once, going twice—sold!

An auction with a Christmas theme is an annual event of the Clarkston Community Women's Club.

It is planned Thursday, Nov. 20, at 7 p.m. at the Church of the Resurrection, 6490 Clarkston-Orion, Independence Township.

Homemade items will be on the auction block and will include dolls, ceramics, pictures, 6490 Christmas ornaments, candles and baked goods.

Everyone may attend. Refreshments will be served. For more information, call 625-5978.

Miming around in Clarkston

Images and Illusions, a mime show by the Clarkston Junior High School drama classes, is to be on stage this week.

Admission is $1 and the final show is Thursday, Nov. 20 at 7:30 p.m. in Room 24 at the school.

Over 90 students are participating in two shows, the first show was earlier this week.

The mime pieces are all originals, created by students under the direction of their drama teacher Jan Gleeson.

Gietzes make home in New York

Maid of honor was Julie Whinton of Clarkston who wore a deep rose gown of Oiana fabric.

Bridesmaids were Terri Douglas of Clarkston, Lori Hankins of Clarkston and Deidra Gietz, the bridegroom's sister, of Wilson, N. Y.

Wearing a pink floral print organza dress while serving as flower girl was the bride's niece Stephanie Evely of Drayton Plains. Brian Hubbard, the bride's nephew, was ring bearer.

Best man was Marc Mosher of Lockport, N.Y. Other groomsmen were Keith Dixon of Wilson, N.Y., Paul Fournier of Wilson, N.Y. and Dan Gietz of Grand Island, N.Y.

The 150 guests were entertained with dinner and dancing at Holly Greens.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Gietz honeymooned in Toronto, Canada.

There's no room for negative attitudes at PMS

A glass jar containing a collection of pocket change sits in the newly-opened Property Market Specialist (PMS) realty of-ice — a testimony to PMS's optimism about the future and lack of tolerance for negative attitudes.

"We have a little rule in the office that anybody who comes up with a negative thought has to drop 25 cents in the jar," says E.J. Goodwin, president of PMS realty.

"There's just no room for negativity here," she adds with a grin. "I guess when we get enough change in the jar we'll all go out to dinner — but that should take a long, long time."

whole country, we should take the time to show the people from Troy, Detroit and other places interested in living here just what our little town is like."

Prospective customers are taken on a tour of the community, including downtown Clarkston and the Main Street area, the Clarkston Mills shopping mall and the surrounding neighborhoods and countryside.

"We tell the tale that makes the sale," Goodwin says.

"Our motto is 'Total Lifestyle Housing.' No matter what the individual or family is looking for — subdivision living, estate living, a condominium, a vacant lot — we can help them."

Proper training, Goodwin notes, is the key to success in the real estate business — and the customer is the benefactor.

"Our training program is a very big part of our business," she says. "The days are gone when you could just go out and get a license and expect to start selling homes.

"I've been in the business six years now, and I know there are still courses I can take. And the way the law is set up now, we've all got to take classes every year just to keep our licenses."

"You learn through street experience," adds Sheron Balhorn, PMS associate broker. "But you've got to have the tools first. It all comes back to training."

That emphasis on training enables PMS to work out a personal plan for potential customers who might have their doubts about their ability to buy, says Goodwin.

"That's one of the most satisfying aspects of the business — to be able to put a deal together when somebody else can't," she says.

"We can sell you a house when other people are laying back and saying how bad times are," Balhorn adds. "But there is a way — and we can find it."

"That's where the expertise and training come in."

"We tell the tale that makes the sale," says PMS President E. J. Goodwin, who feels that Clarkston's charm and status as a historical district are important selling points for her newly-opened real estate business.

Doing Business

Located at 8480 M-15 in Independence Township, PMS recently celebrated its grand opening with free cider, doughnuts and special tours of the Clarkston area.

The special nature of the Clarkston community is one reason Goodwin is so optimistic about her business's future.

"We're selling more than just a house," she says. "We're selling an entire community."

"All the people who work here know that there's something special about Clarkston — after all, we're down as a historical district, which puts us in a lot of exclusive company."

"If we're that important to the

Coping with kids

by Jim Windell

Children of alcoholics can cope too well

How do you know when a child is coping well?

The usual barometers include his ability to deal with the important events in his life in an adequate manner; lack of emotional outbursts; ability to carry on relationships.

When it comes to the stress of a child living with an alcoholic, don't be too sure of those usual barometers.

Experts working with children of alcoholics say that often such a child appears well adjusted. He may be able to take over parental-like duties in the home, organize his own life in a very efficient manner and be a good student capable of earning high grades. This, they say, may be one of the things that suggest that a child is not adjusting well to the alcoholic life of a parent.

Children who react in the above way may often be the oldest or only child in the family and may actually reverse roles with one or both of the parents. Out of his need to survive, the youngster may take on usual adult responsibilities.

For instance, Dana, age 9, when her mother was drinking, would cook meals, get her younger brother off to school, do housework, handle telephone calls for her mother and, in general, run the house.

She was also doing well in school and her teacher found her to be delightful, because she always had her work done and seemed like such a nice, young adult.

But, Dana had little choice given her personality.

The price she was paying for stability in this situation was the giving up of her childhood which includes having fun and being spontaneous.

While she looks like she is well-adjusted, in the future she may not be able to stop being so adult, organized and serious.

One of the things that goes on in the family of alcoholics is that no one talks about these things. Children like Dana never have a chance to talk about the pressure they feel to be an "adult" or the fear, sadness and loneliness that is underneath that well-organized and efficient exterior.

It is a family secret that mother is alcoholic; somehow, if no one talks about it, maybe the problem will go away.

For Dana, the problem won't go away until she has an opportunity to express what she feels and learns to be a real child.

The danger is, that while she and those around her may think she would be the last person to become an alcoholic, she is a prime candidate, because it may be the only time (when she is old enough to begin drinking) that she may feel relaxed and like she can let down the barriers and have fun.

Peeking into the past

by Harry Fahrner

25 YEARS AGO

November 17, 1955

Walter Barrows and Herbert Baynes returned from a successful hunting trip in Penn., where each bagged a white turkey.

The Dixie Saddle Club elected the following officers for the new year, Lyle Garnett, Russell Blackett, Roland Carpenter, George Murphy, Erma Lerchenfeld, Louise Hemsing and Ardie Grubaugh.

Ann Barrows Cunningham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Barrows has been selected for inclusion in the 1955-56 edition of "Who's Who among students in American Universities and Colleges".

THE ENERGY HOUSE

by Harry (Pat) Tinson

Time was . . .

Traveling through childhood memories

I recently visited the Springfield Township Library.

As I parked, I noticed several children working and playing in the yard. It seemed like time moving backward.

When the door was opened and I entered what was once the boy's entry, I looked inside and saw a young lady at the desk.

Almost instantly it was 1935 again. That was the year our family — my mother, father, me and my younger brother Jimmy — moved to the Roy Hansard Farm on Big Lake Road.

Our farm was not a big-time operation. It was more like what is known today as homesteading, more a matter of survival and self-sufficiency than money.

We had a team of horses, a couple of cows, a few chickens and pigs. My father worked in the factory and there were a lot of times he had no work for many months.

With all of these things, most younger readers might say, "How could these be good times?"

This was a time of loving, caring, and everyone pulling together.

My mother was a very hard-working lady who had time to bake 40 and 50 loaves of homemade bread a day, along with raising two sons and working in the field.

Some of the bread would be loaded in our old coaster wagon and peddled to people who lived around Big Lake.

We also sold vegetables, butter, eggs and even fresh huckleberries picked from back in Timberland Swamp.

It was a time for hard work, but also a time to enjoy the simple things so often forgotten today — the evenings around the radio listening to Amos and Andy, Lone Ranger, Jack Armstrong, playing ball in the yard in front of the barn; riding the big farm horses bareback; going to Big Lake swimming or skating according to the season.

Aah, yes. Those were the days, and it seems like only yesterday. More later.

A special thanks for the Springfield Township Librarian Cathy Phillips who was very gracious and helpful.

Thank—full

Editor's note: This remembrance of some past Thanksgivings has been around Pat Tinson's family for many years. He asked us to share it with our readers.

Ye old dining table
So long have ye known
The sting of Depression
That now ye must groan
Beneath all the goodies
I'm longing to eat,
For rationing is over.
It's time for a treat.

With turkey and stuffing
And ham on the plate,
With chicken and gravy,
(I'll never be late)

With pies and with pudding
And plenty of tart
And honeyed potatoes,
So dear to my heart.

With tea and with coffee
And strawberry cream.
I'm anxious! I'm waiting
I hope it's no dream.
My stomach's not made
Out of rubber, but, say,
I'll stretch it or burst it
On Thanksgiving Day!

A woven bookmark is the craft Ron Rizk, a fifth grader, works on. Other projects underway by Sherril Bailey's fourth and fifth graders are decorated soap and thumbprint stationery. Money earned by the classes during the bazaar will be spent as the classes decide by voting later, the teachers said.

Michael Mathews puts the finishing touches on a clothespin ornament. A project of Jer Hon-Hawkins' second graders, the colorful ornaments will sell for $1 each.

Crafty kids create

Like the little elves busy in Santa's workshop, children at Andersonville Elementary were hard at work last week creating items to sell at the school's annual Craft Bazaar.

The event is planned Monday, Nov. 24, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the school located at 10350 Andersonville Rd., Springfield Township.

The bazaar promises to be a good spot to take the kids to shop, for in addition to goods that will delight adults, special emphasis has been made to provide gifts suited to a child's budget.

Twenty craft tables are to be on hand plus potential gifts made by five Andersonville classes and bake sales by a Girl Scout troop and a Blue Bird troop from other schools.

Honey, miniatures from Lilliput Interiors, dried flowers, homemade candy, pine cone creations and craft items from Tierra Arts and Designs are to be included in the sale.

The PTO, sponsor of the bazaar, will have a gift wrapping booth just for kids so choices can remain secret for a fee of 15 to 30 cents per package plus 10 cents for a bow.
