Winter welcomers

There's enough slippery snow on the ground Saturday to get out the sleds and slide down hills on the hilly grounds of Spring Lake Country Club. Regina Houck [left] of Williamson Road, Independence Township, and her cousin Emily Hester of Pontiac are all smiles as they greet the coming season.

Village seeks $15,000 ideas

The Clarkston Village Council is looking for ways to spend $15,000.

The second public hearing to help determine how the projected income from Community Development (CD) should be spent is planned Monday, Dec. 8.

At the first public hearing held Nov. 24 on how to spend the federal grant, council members discussed the possibilities of a gazebo/bandstand for the village park, more street improvements, signs marking Clarkston as a historical village, and a bicycle-safety path from the pumping station on M-15 to the present path that begins on Depot Road.

In the past, CD money has paid for the historical preservation study, the safety path running from Depot Road to Deer Lake Beach, the parking lot outside Village Hall, the repair of sidewalks and tree plantings in residential districts.

Residents with ideas on how to spend the $15,000 are encouraged to attend the meeting.

The council meets at 7:30 p.m. at Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston.

Higher taxes sure bet in '81

Despite sluggish economy

If you drive a car, I'll tax the street/ If you try to sit, I'll tax your seat/ Get too cold, I'll tax the heat/ If you take a walk, I'll tax your feet/ Cuz I'm the tax man

By Marilyn Trumper

Property ownership is becoming a measure of wealth, said David Sherill, Independence Township assessor.

In 1981, Sherill predicts township properties will increase in value by 15 percent.

In 1980, property value averaged a 13-percent increase, he said.

"Even though the number of sales is down, the sales which took place in 1980 have been at higher values than 1979 and have shown a rise in selling prices," he said.

Dispelling a common belief, Sherill stressed the average lakefront property in Independence did not increase at a higher rate than off-the-lake residential property.

"It's my opinion they've increased at the same 15 percent for the most part. We don't have that much lakefront property to make a good comparison, but it's also important to remember there are always exceptions to the increase. I'm speaking on an average," he said.

Taxes are higher, because homes on lakes have always been assessed at a higher cost. If you have a $100,000 home on a lake and it increases in value by 15 percent, the home's worth increases to $115,000. Whereas, with a $20,000 home off the lake which receives a 15 percent increase in value, the home's value increases to $23,000.

"The real luxury today is living in a home you can afford. Taxes are becoming a deterrent factor in what type of home people buy. It's no longer, 'Can I afford the utilities?' 'Can I afford the payments?' It's become, 'Can I afford the taxes?' " he said.

County-side, property values have increased on an average of 16 percent over the past 30 months, said Herman W. Stephens, manager of Oakland County's Equalization Division.

This year the county's Equalization Department plans to enforce a new, more uniform tax base by having rolls broken down into various classes of property, he said.

The six classes for 1981 include: Residential, commercial, industrial, agricultural, timber cut-over and development.

By reviewing sale studies they arrive at an average price for sales in a specific class of property and at an average assessment value.

"For example, a home marketed for $80,000 would be assessed at $40,000 (or one-half the market value)," he said.

Party!

Bring a homemade ornament for the tree and your best Christmas-caroling voice and join the crowd in downtown Clarkston for "Family Night in the Village."

The tree-trimming party begins at 7 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 5, at the corner of Main and Washington streets.

There'll be donuts and hot cider to sip plus the feeling of togetherness Christmas provides.

The event is sponsored by the Clarkston Village Merchants.

Snow sculptors

Saturday's snow is just perfect for making snowmen and Kim Applegate [left] and Holly Hetherington are busy rolling giant balls of snow too heavy to stack in piles. No matter! The girls are having lots of fun in front of Kim's house on Middle Lake Road, Clarkston.

Adult foster care home nears opening

MORC predicts ok on state license for Lake Oakland Woods subdivision home within 2 weeks

By Marilyn Trumper

The issue of adult foster care homes (AFCH) is one that still faces Lake Oakland Woods subdivision residents.

Tuesday night, the Independence Township Board held a public hearing on two proposed foster care homes slated for the township.

The first, with a proposed location of 6450 Maybee, would house one developmentally disabled adult in a family situation, and was met with no opposition.

The second proposed home at 5127 Timber Ridge Trail in Lake Oakland Woods would house five developmentally disabled adults. This came before the board a second time following a new application for licensing by a different party.

The township had 45 days via a public hearing to respond to the state's inquiry that no other foster care home was located within 1,500 feet of either proposed home.

Independence's response deadline expires today on the Timber Ridge home, and Thursday on the proposed Maybee Road home.

"If you do not respond, the Department of Social Services interprets a non-response to mean no objection," said Corey Krause, group home development specialist with the Macomb Oakland Regional Center (MORC). "We have five residents waiting to move into the home. Almost everything's in place."

Lake Oakland residents earlier filed suit charging the home's establishment would be in violation of the township zoning ordinance and the subdivision deed restrictions, which limit the use of homes to a single family.

When the new application was submitted, residents dropped their suit and have yet to refile against the new applicant.

Independence Township has filed a lawsuit regarding adult foster care homes, fighting for its right to self-determination and for clarification on land use.

A state act says local zoning cannot prohibit an adult foster care home from establishing as long as the number of residents inside the home does not exceed six and it is not located within 1,500 feet of another such home.

With their hands tied, the board voted unanimously to notify the state that neither home violated the 1,500-foot limit.

The proposed Timber Ridge

Trail home has already undergone a majority of the inspections required for licensing, said Krause of MORC.

He predicted the home could be licensed within the next two weeks.

Clarkston Mills owners pledge cooperation

By Marilyn Trumper

The new owners of the Clarkston Mills have pledged their cooperation in working with Clarkston's Village Council and its residents.

The partners, Forrest Milzow, owner of Deer Lake Racquet Club; Ed Adler, co-owner and vice-president of Food Towns; and Dr. Gary Welch, Chief of thoracic surgery at William Beaumont Hospital, Royal Oak, appeared at the Nov. 24 village meeting at the council's request.

It was a formal introduction and a clearing of the air for council members and owners alike.

Along with owning the Mills comes the water rights to the Mill Pond. A valve at the south end of the pond controls the water levels.

Residents living on the pond have complained in the past of frequent rising and falling water levels from neglect of the valve. In addition, a United States Geographical Study on the pond's water level could be adversely affected by incorrect data, they have said.

Council member Ruth Basinger approached the three men about selling the water rights to landowners along the waterway or to the village.

"We took out a mortgage to buy the Mills, and I don't think we could get a release on the pond if we wanted to. But at this time we have no intention of selling," said Milzow.

"We will submit to you a record of water levels and negotiate any problems you may have for a water level you feel is accurate. We can't sell you the property. But, we're here to work with you. We'll join the Mill Pond Association. We're eligible," he said.

Adler offered a second opinion.

"The Mill Pond is a total village feature. We recognize its benefits as well as those living on the pond's perimeter. We're not going to do anything to adversely affect the pond," he said.

Council members pointed to the village zoning board's variance on signs for the restaurant in the Mills.

"Then they put up illuminated signs, big green and gold things," said James Schultz, council member. "That's not what the board approved."

Over and over the three men asked not to be judged on the performances of past Mills owners.

"We live near and work in this community," Adler said. "Forrest and I are right here — you know how to contact us if you have a problem. We're here if you have a problem or complaint. We're not going to damage this area."

Village President Fontie ApMadoc approved of a proposal offered by Milzow.

"Why not establish a new committee?" Milzow asked. "It could be made up of one of us, someone from the council and someone from the pond association."

"Problems could be reviewed by such a committee and communication would be established," he said.

ApMadoc indicated such a committee might be established in January.

Ring out the old

The old Palace Restaurant sign on Dixie Highway was coming down, and the new Rain Tree sign was going up. In the foreground, the resounding "Taps" played by Clarkston High School's Ron Wagner filled the air making restaurant owner Sally Nejip and friend Ed Santala laugh as they watched the transformation take place slowly. Sally, owner of the restaurant for the past seven years, recently dropped the Palace franchise and over the weekend transformed it into the Rain Tree restaurant complete with new interior design and menu. Santala arranged the ceremony and could only laugh when Wagner showed up with a mellophone, rather than to the traditional bugle. Sally, excited about her new venture, said the menu will offer fish and broiled foods, a special low-calorie menu and French onion soup and chili at all times. In addition, there's the special Rain Tree Salad, Julien salad and barbecued ribs and chicken. Located at 6540 Dixie Highway, Independence Township, the restaurant will continue to operate on a 24-hour basis, she said.

Looking to buy that special someone a lasting, meaningful gift they'll cherish for years to come?

Clarkston's Village President Fontie ApMadoc has the solution to the annual quest for unusual Christmas gift.

Donate a tree to Clarkston's Hillside Garden complete with a memorial plaque to mark your gift for posterity, she says.

Trees vary in price from $95 to $255 and plaques are approximately $25.

For those who wish to donate a few dollars toward the garden's development, there's another way to mark the gift receiver's name for posterity.

ApMadoc will give a certificate of appreciation for a donation to Clarkston Hillside Gardent in the receiver's name.

For more information, phone ApMadoc at 625-3480.

Most oft-requested gifts for Christmas this year are sweet-smelling Strawberry Shortcake dolls and Star Wars items, says Santa from his corner at the Clarkston Mills.

There are also several Clarkston area kids who think big and are wishing for TR-7 sportscars, he says.

And then, there's the around 20-year-old woman who walked by and said she wanted a job.

Now that's a sign of the times.

There should be less "slip-sliding away" as people enter Clarkston's Village Hall this year, following the installation of carpeting on the building's front porch.

In addition, the carpeting provides a "two-fer," it should keep the building's interior rug much cleaner.

Yeah for safer front porches!

Boo for preparing for snow!

An article appearing in the Nov. 26th issue of The Clarkston News incorrectly reported the number of homeowners in the proposed Chestnut Hills Estate subdivision who received a monetary settlement from the developers.

The story should have said that two of the four homeowners received $3,500.

Free winter parking becomes past luxury

By Kathy Greenfield

An unpleasant surprise greeted car poolers last week when they returned to pick up their cars in the American Legion parking lot on M-15.

"To help defray the cost of snow removal during the months of December 1980, January, February and March 1981, a fee of $20 per month per car will be assessed, starting Dec. 1, 1980," said the notes attached to windshields.

Payment was requested by Dec. 5. Identification tags would be issued and vehicles would be towed away at the owner's expense if left in the lot without a tag, the letter said.

The notice of intent to charge for use of the lot came without warning, said Ron Chambers of Church Street, Independence Township. He has been parking in the lot for about two years.

"I'm willing to pay something," he said, "but that $20 a month is excessive."

A veteran, although he doesn't belong to the Legion post, Chambers said he figured he found the right spot when he began parking there, because he considers car pooling the patriotic thing to do with the push to use less gasoline and oil.

Car pooling is part of a "whole program of national unity," he said. "The government's pushing this. To slap a fee of $20 on this just doesn't seem right."

"I understand they might have legitimate costs," he said, "but this is excessive — $5 or $10 a month might be fair."

Dave Froling, Legion post commander who signed the letter, said the decision to charge $20 a month during the winter was made by the post's executive board.

"When there were 10 or 12 (cars), there was no problem," he said. "It just kept adding on and adding on."

The matter came to a head when they discussed the cost of snow removal at $1 a minute, he said, and in the three or four years cars have used the lot, they have never been charged.

Since the letters appeared advising car poolers they have to pay to park, there have been several complaints, Froling said.

There are no plans to change the fee, however, at least for the first month.

"It could be reduced later," he said, adding that the money will be kept in a separate fund and it will only be used for snow removal.

"I'm quite sure we'll lose quite a few of them," he said, "but once spring comes, there is no problem."

Meanwhile, people like Chambers will be looking for a new place to park, more commuters' cars will again begin to take up spaces in downtown Clarkston lots or driving patterns may change.

"You might just as well drive to work," said Chambers.

There is a free car poolers' lot that was recently constructed near the power plant on M-15, just south of the I-75 entrance and exit ramps.

That lot is always full, Chambers said.

Creosote—silent killer

Michigan was struck by a disaster last winter that you may not be aware of.

It claimed 18 lives, injured at least 235 other people, and destroyed or damaged nearly 2,500 dwellings, businesses or other structures to the tune of almost $8,000,000.

No, it wasn't a tornado or explosion — it was uncontrolled fires stemming from wood-burning stoves, fireplaces or chimneys.

It could have all been avoided by proper care and caution.

And, with the increased numbers burning wood, the problem is becoming more severe each year.

Here are four basic guidelines for wood-burning safety:

*Buy only equipment approved by a recognized testing laboratory.

*Have it installed according to authorized standards.

*Learn the proper rules for operation and maintenance.

*Have the chimney and any stovepiping thoroughly cleaned at least once a year.

Not following the first two also is a violation of Michigan law effective last April 5.

After that date, only stoves, fireplace stoves, factory built fireplaces, and manufactured chimneys and stovepipe connectors tested and labeled by a recognized testing laboratory could be legally installed in Michigan.

In addition, all such equipment must be installed in accordance with National Fire Protection Association standards.

It's equally important to keep the equipment in top working order. The latest statistics show that its improper care and maintenance cause 54 percent of related fires.

Another problem results from users not understanding the tremendous amounts of heat radiated in the immediate vicinity by wood-burning.

Firewood stacked too close to the burning area is the type of material first ignited in about four out of 10 cases.

Creosote deposits in stovepipes and chimneys are a serious fire hazard and the main reason for their frequent cleaning need. If heavy deposits become very hot, they burst into flame.

Use of wood that hasn't been cut and stored in a dry location for at least a year produces the most creosote, but even seasoned wood produces some.

Fireplaces can bring joy and heat, but they should be used safely. JAS

Nameless lament

by Kathy Greenfield

Again, a letter to the editor has arrived on my desk without a signature.

That is particularly frustrating when it's a good letter — one that I would like to print.

I suppose what people don't realize is that even though we do not print the writer's name when requested, it's our policy not to print any letter unless it is signed.

If a person has requested anonymity, we do not reveal his or her name if asked, by the way.

Anyhow, back to the letter. It hit home, because it was about something important — mail theft — and something that becomes even more important this time of the year — when messages from old friends arrive with holiday greeting.

We used to joke about waiting for the mail carrier when we were young and living out of the state and eager to hear from our families back in Michigan.

You know what I mean — things like chuckling about waiting in the foyer by the mail slot all morning waiting for the mail to drop through.

I heard a mail joke again the other day — Dave Bickerstaff who just retired is the husband of Lorna who works in our business office and writes the weekly Recipe File.

"He just sits at home and waits for the mail," she laughed. (We all know that isn't the case at all.)

But we don't joke about many things that aren't important.

The person who wrote the letter said they have had several mail thefts and the latest one involved canceled checks and a checking account statement.

I decided to call the post office to see if they could tell me who the person was who wrote the letter and also to see how widespread the problem is in this area.

There was no luck in finding the identity of the writer.

Mail theft and vandalism is spotty, said Clarkston Postmaster Donald Stoll.

"Some of the destruction and vandalism is done by older kids," he said. "Why? I don't know. Maybe Halloween is 12 months a year now."

People who have problems with their mail have only two choices — one is to catch the culprit and the other is to make other arrangements for delivery.

One option is to pay for a post office box at a cost of $16 a year.

There are none available at the post office now, Stoll said, and those wishing a post office box are put on a waiting list.

If, however, the problem is serious, local arrangements can be made until a post office box becomes available," he said.

Stoll directed me to the postal inspection offices in Detroit.

Mail theft is a federal offense and is punishable by a fine of not more than $2,000 and a prison term not more than five years or both, said a spokesperson at the postal inspector's office.

The closest they could come with figures of the problem was that there were 6,757 complaints of mail theft in Michigan and Indiana over the past year.

As in all acts of vandalism, it's totally senseless and downright mean to tamper with someone else's mail.

How frustrating it must be for the person whose mail is missing.

As the letter writer said, "I was also told that they (the post office) 'depend upon the integrity of the neighborhood' to leave mail where it belongs, i.e. in the mailbox!"

It really should be that simple.

Jim's jottings

Look on bright side

by Jim Sherman

A person shouldn't wish their life away, but many will be glad to see 1980 gone.

The tragedies of recent weeks, especially those just before Thanksgiving, sent families reeling.

Two small children died in a house fire in Lake Orion, an Oxford woman was killed on the highway north of Oxford, 84 people perished in a hotel fire in Las Vegas, perhaps 10,000 people died in an earthquake in Italy, and over 150 homes were burned to the ground east of Los Angeles.

Of course, there were more disruptions, these few just come to mind at this moment. They came bunched in a couple days.

The decade has started on a sour note. Too many people are out of work, our money buys much less than the last year of the 70s, and 52 of our neighbors are still captives of the Iranians.

We'd just as soon join in the swan song of 1980, if you can get the band to start playing.

That can't happen. So, we might just as well make the most of it. Maybe we should rear up and fight, pledge to make it a good year to remember, and strike new determination into living the last twelfth of the year.

It shouldn't be too hard to get started. After all, December is the month for Joy. "Joy to the World" as the holiday song goes.

And, December is the month many of us feel a little closer to the Lord. Couple that feeling with the inner impulse to forgive, to show kindness, and to love one another, and we might overcome our immediate rejection of the past 11 months.

Right now we'll have to work on it. Let's see... We could take comfort in the notion that inflation could be worse. In some countries it's running to 150 percent a year and ours is only 12 percent.

Too, 80 percent of the people are working. And, more than 95 percent of the people aren't on pot, killing, robbing, and entering homes unannounced.

The fishing and hunting wasn't any better in 1980 than 1979, but it wasn't any worse either.

Tragedies are worse on those they happen to than to the survivors, and though the survivors suffer, many severely, they do survive and life goes on. There's not much comfort in that philosophy, but there is truth.

And, if we can get through a day at a time for another 27 days, maybe our mind will be changed on the starting of the 80s.

Jack Clarno's Japanese Yews proved to be a deadly repast for his two cows.

Deadly green shrub fells pair of cows

By Al Zawacky

A common decorative shrub found in many front yards can be a deadly poison.

Jack Clarno found that out the hard way. Or more precisely, two of his cows did.

Clarno recently did a little pruning work on the large Japanese Yews growing around his home on Bridge Lake Road in Springfield Township and decided to place the clippings in a brush pile in the fenced-in area where he kept his two cows and a steer.

The next morning, the two cows were dead.

"I poisoned them unknowingly," Clarno said. "I just put the clippings out in the brush pile in the pasture without intending to feed them to the cows—but they sniffed it out."

"I had no idea how poisonous these plants are. It's a very popular plant—a lot of people have them growing around their homes."

Apparently, the steer didn't eat much if any of the toxic shrub and was unharmed, he added. But the two cows, victims of their late-night snack, were both dead when Clarno found them the next morning.

The Japanese Yew, a spiny evergreen with small red berries, was determined to be the culprit when Clarno called veterinarian Dr. Thomas Barkham to report what had happened.

"The veterinarian said that this isn't all uncommon," he said. "People don't seem to be aware that the yews are poisonous."

Because the poisoning effect left the flesh of the cows inedible, Clarno's loss was total. He recently had the cows buried on his property.

Since the shrub can be toxic to other animals as well as humans, he advises other homeowners with yews in their yards to be careful with their young children and pets.

Glancing over at the innocuous-looking shrubs growing around his house, Clarno shook his head.

"And I've had a lot of experience with plants and shrubs, too," he said.

"You just never know."

Waif wife in wake

by Jim Fitzgerald

The husband invited the wife to go downtown shopping with him while he bought a discount suit. She was wearing a wool jacket and skirt, and he assured her the weather was mild and she wouldn't need another layer of clothing to keep warm. So she didn't wear an overcoat. Neither did he.

This fashion story gets even more fascinating as it continues.

He had to park several blocks from the store having a suit sale. "The walk will do you good," he assured her. He not only dispenses health advice free, he is also a sparkling conversationalist. He also said: "Fresh air is good for you."

"Also, I should eat an apple a day," she said.

The weather wasn't mild, it was cold and windy. He explained that the TV weatherman had promised mild weather. She explained that it was the husband's mother who had put dimes under his pillow when he was a little boy losing teeth. They mused onward to the suit store which had a new sign over the door.

The suit salesman explained that the name of the store had been changed from the store owner's last name to his first name so unlabeled suits could be sold at a 30 percent discount. "If you knew the name of the manufacturer of this suit, it would cost you $60 more," he said.

"Don't tell me," the husband said, and bought the suit, closing the deal less than five minutes after entering the store. Without being told, he knew the store had switched from surname to first name for tax reasons, which is why everything is done in corporate America. He wanted to get his $60 savings before the IRS showed up to investigate the owner's middle initial.

"There is one thing I should tell you," the salesman said while looking at the new pants covering the husband's shoes, and the new sleeves covering his hands. "We don't do alterations. But don't worry about it. Let's take a walk."

The two men went outside, where it was still windy and cold, and walked to a nearby tailor shop where the cost-conscious husband said he didn't want to know any of the tailor's names.

Nevertheless, the $60 savings shrunk by $16. And it was noted that after he took off the new suit and left it behind for alterations, the husband would have a chilly walk back to the first-name store where the wife was guarding the old suit.

No problem. The salesman produced a handsome topcoat, also unlabeled, which fit the husband perfectly. He not only wore it back to the store, he bought it. "I think I will wear it home," the husband said. "It is windy and cold out."

Wear it home? The wife thinks new clothes shouldn't be worn until at least a year after their purchase. It is the God's truth that she believes such a bizarre thing. Independent witnesses will verify it.

Dozens of times the husband and the wife have had this conversation: "Is that a new dress?" "No." "I never saw it before." "I never wore it before." "How long have you had it?" "About 18 months." "Why do you wait so long to wear new clothes?" "Because they don't feel comfortable until after they've hung in the closet for awhile."

So the wife was incredulous at the suggestion that the husband would wear his new coat home from the store. The salesman had to help him persuade her that such conduct was permissible in polite society, and that he wouldn't have to hang himself up with the coat when he got home.

Outside, the weather had turned windier and colder. The husband was warm in his new coat. The wife walked in his wake, seeking shelter from the wind, shivering and stumbling and trying to rub against the back of his warm coat.

"I wish you wouldn't walk so close to me," said the husband, who was afraid of appearing ostentatious. "I don't want people to think I am so rich I have my own waif."

She went into a drugstore where it took her longer to pick out two birthday cards than it had taken him to pick out a suit and a topcoat. This bizarre behavior can also be verified by independent witnesses.

Main Street renovation study ready for booklet

The $15,000 study proposing the renovation of Main Street facades in downtown Clarkston is winding up to completion.

A draft of the entire proposal is ready for print in booklet form complete with diagrams, studies, drawings and more, said Gary Symons, Clarkston Village Council member.

At the Nov. 24 meeting, the council voted unanimously to allocate an additional $3,000 from 1979-80 Community Development Funds to pay for the cost of preparing and printing 100 copies of the book.

Council member Jackson Byers expressed concern that the books were to be printed at a cost of $30 each, and the average person couldn't afford that investment.

"We'll have to decide later how much to sell the books for," said Village President Fontie ApMadoc. "But whatever we do, the money has to go back into the Community Development fund. Maybe we can use the money to order more books for printing, or beautification. I'll have to look into it."

The book outlines changes for each building, and provides suggestions for street furnishing landscaping and signs.

Architect Betty Lee Francis was hired over a year ago by the village to redesign Main Street facades to return them to their most original appearance and reflect the year in which they were built.

Teen's body found

The body of a 17-year-old Independence Township man was discovered in a field near the intersection of Sashabaw and Maybee Roads, Independence Township on Nov. 25.

The body, identified as Vincent Kelly Burlison of Oak Vista Road, Independence Township, was spotted by a Detroit Edison crew flying in a helicopter checking power lines in the area.

According to police, the crew saw what they thought looked like a body, landed the chopper and were assisted by a nearby officer on patrol.

Burlison had been reported missing one week earlier to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Cause of death should be released following completion of the Oakland County Medical Examiner's toxicology report.

Wolfpack goal: Extend 'dynasty'

4th straight title sought

By Al Zawacky

In the language of sports, a "dynasty" is defined as a team that wins three straight championships.

The Clarkston High School varsity basketball team fits the definition, having won three straight Greater Oakland Activities League titles while amassing a 61-10 win-loss record.

And Coach Gary Nustad and his Wolfpack aren't planning on seeing their "dynasty" become part of the history books in 1980-81. Four straight league championships is their goal.

"The past is something fondly to remember," Nustad says. "It's not something to be re-lived. We're looking ahead."

"The kids have set goals for themselves, and they all want to be league champs. And I don't care what the league is, or what sport you're playing — four straight league titles is a tremendous accomplishment."

But unlike the previous three seasons, the Wolfpack will be without the services of All-American center Tim McCormick, currently a freshman at the University of Michigan. Also lost to graduation are last year's starting guards, Ed Haddad and John Sheldon.

That puts the burden of leadership, both on and off the court, to Clarkston's two returning starters, seniors Scott McKoin and Greg Lane. It's a role that Nustad feels confident they'll be able to fill.

"McKoin is a legitimate college prospect," says Nustad. "We're looking to him to carry the bulk of the scoring load for us. He has the talent to play any of three positions."

McKoin, who stands 6-foot-5 and averaged 12.4 points a game as a forward last season, would seem to be a natural to return to the forward spot—or take the place of McCormick at center. Nustad however, figures he can make McKoin especially difficult to defend against by playing him at guard.

"With McKoin at guard, the opposition can only do one of two things," explains the coach. "One, they can put a short man on him—which will give Scott a big height advantage—or two, they can put their big man on him—which will put their big man 20 feet from the basket and make him that much less effective."

McKoin will probably see action at all three spots—guard, forward and center, Nustad adds, depending on the situation.

Lane is another forward likely to see action at guard this season. "Greg's a very strong defensive forward—defense has always been his forte," says Nustad.

"We're looking for a little more offensive production from him this year. He's an asset at guard or at forward."

In addition to McKoin and Lane, four other members of the Wolfpack stand at the top of the list for starting positions: Seniors Craig Schnabel, Ric Schebor and Brad Sheldon and sophomore Ray Kubani.

"Ray has never played a game of varsity basketball, and he's going to make some mistakes," Nustad says of his 6-foot-6 center. "But he's up here because I think he can help us."

"He's got the potential to be a fine high school basketball player—he's got size, mobility, and the ability to score around the basket—and having him allows us to be more flexible with the way we use McKoin."

Schebor will be counted on to provide the leadership and ball handling role at point guard. "Ric is one of the hardest workers on the team," says Nustad. "If McCormick went through what Schebor does during practice, he'd be frazzled. Ric gets the absolute out of his ability."

Sheldon, who played junior varsity ball two years ago, but sat out last year, should see action at forward.

"Sheldon's a hard-nosed type who knows how to win," Nustad says. "Our feeling is that he should be able to help us immediately, both offensively and defensively."

Schnabel, another forward candidate, "is probably as quick a forward as we have," Nustad says.

"Craig's defensive play and rebounding ability are both assets, and we're looking for a little more scoring from him."

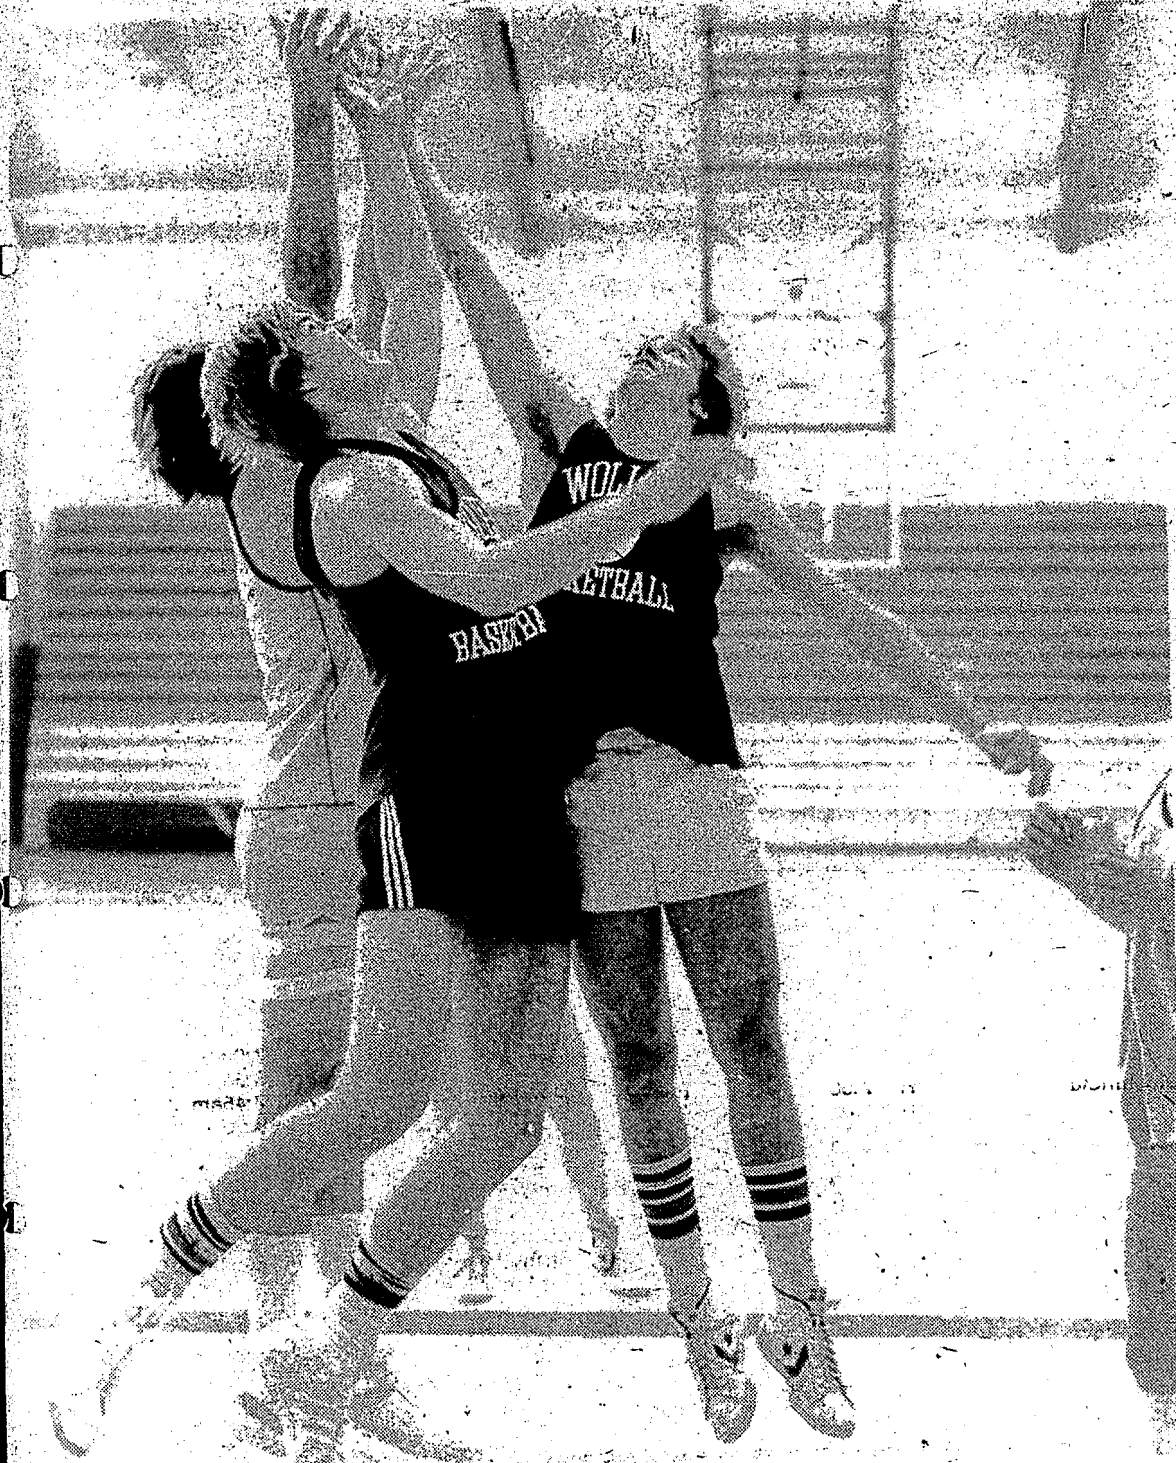

Also figuring prominently in the Wolfpack's plans are senior forward Brad Beattie and senior guard Scott Weaver. Beattie averaged 16 points a game as a JV last year.

"Brad's outstanding feature is his ability to score from outside," says Nustad. "Weaver's in a close battle with Schebor—he's got quickness and is a good passer. He'll be our first guard off the bench."

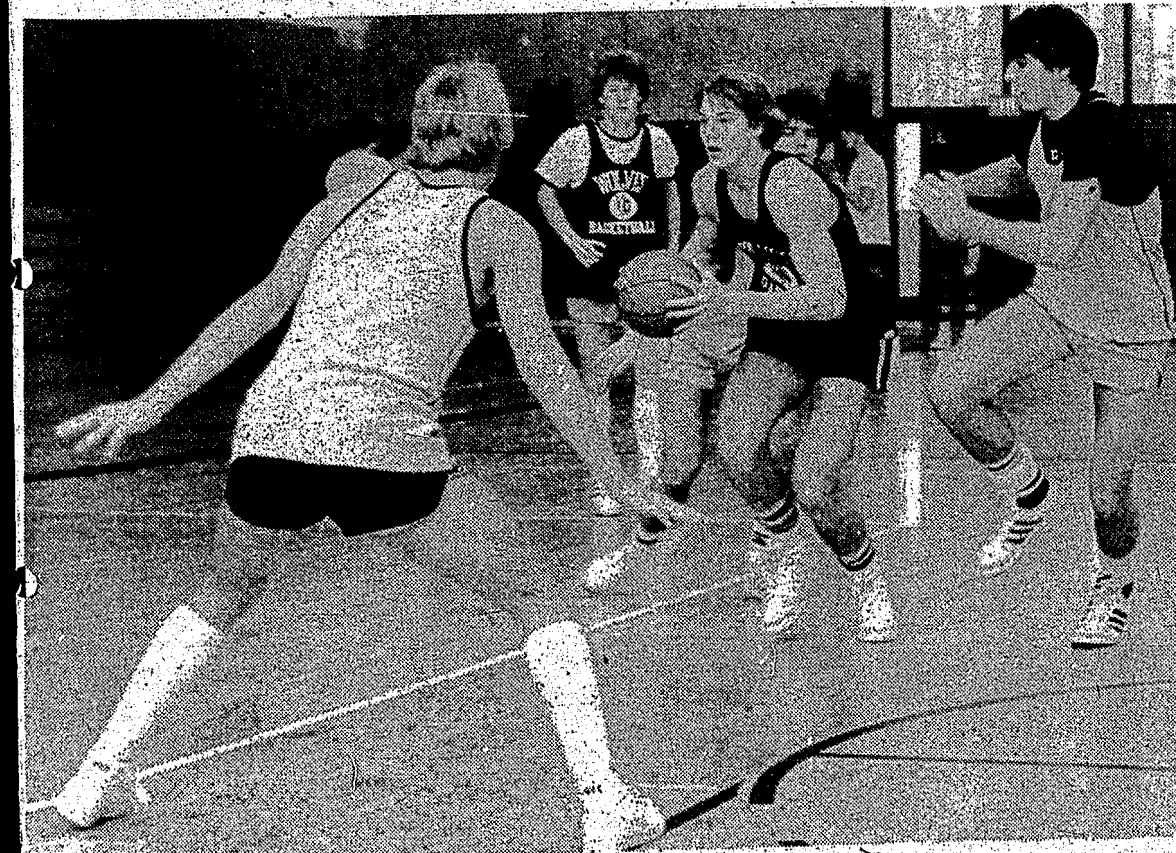

The Wolfpack will also benefit this year from JV alumni Duane Cahill, Klaus Ohrnberger and Todd Johnston and new comer Gene Wilson, a senior.

"Our league is going to be competitive, and we're going to be in the thick of the race," Nustad says. "I would hope that there isn't any negativity in the community about this basketball team just because McCormick and the rest are gone."

"We're going to be just as exciting as last year, and I can promise one thing: Nobody's going to outwork us."

Cleaning the boards: Three members of the Wolfpack battle it out for a rebound during practice last week.

Senior Scott McKoin [center] figures to see action at guard this season, a move coach Gary Nustad figures will make the 6-foot-5 McKoin an even bigger problem for the opposition's defense.

The Point After

by Al Zawacky

Enigmatic Wolfpack will be interesting

Forty-eight hours to D-day...

Forget the Friday night movies. Forget "Dallas." Forget your cousin's wedding, wife's anniversary, or night on the town. If you're a living and breathing Clarkstonite, how could you want to be anywhere else but in the Clarkston High School gymnasium Friday night for the season-opening tipoff?

OPENING NIGHTS ARE always special, regardless of the opposition, and the fact that the Wolfpack will face a formidable opponent in Davison will make things even more interesting. Openers always create a kind of pre-game electricity, a feeling of anticipation and apprehension that you can feel in the pit of your stomach.

How good — or bad — is the Wolfpack going to be? The question is raised again and again, reviewed and debated, but it remains an enigma. You can watch afternoon practices until the gray appears in Gary Nustad's mustache, and it won't provide many clues — you can't really judge the value of an army before it's been tested in battle.

Friday night's result should give fan and player alike a pretty good idea of what to expect.

THE 1980-81 CAMPAIGN certainly won't be lacking for interest and suspense, simply because the Wolfpack could prove to be either very, very good or very, very bad or any of a thousand hues in between. Clarkston could conceivably do an encore of its league and district title coup last season — or they could flounder in the recesses of the GOAL race and die quickly in the playoffs.

Take your pick. It's that uncertain. Coach Gary Nustad and his cagers do have one thing going for them — the overall talent in the GOAL this season appears to be thin. In the districts, Pontiac Central is only a shadow of its former self. If you don't pick Clarkston to win the league, who do you pick? Lake Orion? Milford?

Those choices are laughable, but there is one GOAL opponent poised to dismantle Clarkston's three-year grip on the league championship: The Rochester Falcons. Remember them? They were the guys that forced the Wolfpack to share its league titles in 1977-78 and 1978-79. The Falcons have lost some talent to graduation, but their JV team was solid and some good talent is returning.

I hate to be the Grinch at the Wolfpack's Christmas party, but I can't resist the temptation to suggest there will be no fourth league crown. Like a poker player who throws away a pair and goes for the straight, I've got a hunch and am determined to play it.

Figure Rochester to take the title with an 8-2 record, followed by Clarkston at 7-3, Kettering and Milford at 5-5, West Bloomfield at 3-7 and Lake Orion at the bottom at 2-8.

I've been wrong before. Friday night will provide the first indication of whether I'm a prophet or a fraud this time around.

CHS alum Steve Howe named National League's top rookie

By Al Zawacky

Clarkston High School alumnus Steve Howe, who racked up 17 saves and posted a 2.65 ERA in his first season with the Los Angeles Dodgers, has been named the National League Rookie of the Year by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Howe won the honor by a wide margin over Montreal Expo pitcher Bill Gullickson and Philadelphia Phillies' outfielder Lonnie Smith.

A star with the CHS varsity and later with the University of Michigan, Howe was signed by the Dodgers in 1979. In his junior and senior high school years in 1975 and 1976, Howe posted a combined 23-1 record and ERAs of 1.13 and 0.37.

Paul Tungate, who coached Howe during his prep days and is currently Clarkston High School's athletic director, said he felt a "deep sense of pride" in the rookie lefthander's accomplishment.

"I always felt that he could make it (to the major leagues)," Tungate said. "Steve always had the confidence and control — those two Cs that are so important for a pitcher."

Tungate and Howe's parents visited Cincinnati this past September to watch Steve perform against the Reds. "I remember saying to him that I hope he gets the rookie of the year," Tungate said, "and he said he'd much rather win the World Series."

The Dodgers were edged out in the National League Western Division race by the Houston Astros, but the rookie of the year dream has now been realized.

Howe's parents, Barbara and Virgil, reside in Independence Township.

GOLLING PONTIAC GRAND OPENING!

KNOW-HOW IN OUR NEW PONTIACS. Our 1981 line-up offers exciting innovations from Research and Development, Engineering and

In all gasoline-powered models, this System includes GM's Computer Command Control: A series of sensors continuously monitors engine temperature, engine speed, throttle position, altitude, barometric pressure and oxygen content in the exhaust. Tiny computer chips in the electronic control module analyze this data, then regulate the carburetion for a precise air/fuel mixture. But that's just the beginning.

Pontiac know-how shows up in many exciting ways. For example, Grand Prix glides into 1981 with dramatic new aerodynamic lines. LeMans and Grand LeMans 4-door sedans show

JVs aim to recapture league championship

By Al Zawacky

Coach Larry Mahrle hopes that last season was a fluke, not a trend.

Coming off two straight league championships, Mahrle's Clarkston High School junior varsity basketball team fell just short of a third title last year, finishing one game behind Rochester in the league and 13-7 overall.

Regaining that Greater Oakland Activities League crown is the junior Wolfpack's first and foremost goal.

well we can press. We're not a fast team, but if we execute and press well, we can still accomplish what we set out to do."

At center, the junior Wolfpack will call upon the services of Scott Temple, a 6-foot-1 pivot who is "strong and aggressive," according to Mahrle.

Tom Williams will be the backup center, while Kevin Brown, Rick Williams, Pat Rausch and Mike Clem are the candidates at forward.

"Brown is extremely quick," says Mahrle. "Rick Williams is

"We seem to be having trouble adjusting to high school basketball."

"But on the positive side, we've got a group of aggressive kids — kids who work hard. They're making mistakes, but they are learning and that's important."

The JVs will open their season Dec. 5 at home against Davison, game time 6:15 p.m.

'We've got a group of aggressive kids—kids who work hard.'

—Coach Larry Mahrle

"I really think we can do it," says Mahrle, assessing this year's talent. "We have some good shooters who can pull the ball in the hole."

Crucial to the Clarkston JVs success this season is the progress of the guards. Three prominent candidates have emerged in pre-season practices for the two guard spots: Mike McCormick, Joel Schrader and Mike Dearborn.

"One of the keys to our season is our guards — they've got to be able to handle the ball and control the game," says Mahrle. "Another factor will be how also vying for a starting job — he plays the game well at both ends of the court."

Clem, Rausch and backup guards Shawn Mosele and Scott Smith are all "helping the club tremendously in practice with their strong play on defense," Mahrle says.

Another JV forward, Craig Nicolai, has missed several practices due to illness and is just beginning to play himself into shape, he adds.

"We're weak fundamentally, so we're spending a lot of time on the basics," Mahrle says.

Odds Are...

Basketball is different from football.

That somewhat self-evident fact has been stated here to remind the reader that notoriously inaccurate football picks will have no bearing whatsoever on basketball predictions this winter.

Wipe the slate clean and prepare for some flawless forecasts.

DAVISON at CLARKSTON (Dec. 5): This will be the season-opener for both clubs, and considering the valuable momentum provided by a good start, it's not a favorable turn of events that the Wolfpack must play the Cardinals of Davison.

Davison is not going to be a piece of cake, a la 1979-80. Rob Crane, the Cardinal's big man who scored 26 points against Clarkston in last season's opener, is back and looking for revenge. What few graduation losses Davison sustained were more than compensated for by last year's strong JV team, which defeated the Wolfpack JVs handily both times the two teams met last year.

Clarkston may have the advantage of a large home crowd and a familiar floor—but it won't be enough to derail the Cardinals. DAVISON by SIX.

The play has been spirited among Coach Larry Mahrle's 1980-81 JVs in pre-season practice, as evidenced by this competition for a rebound.

League honors 4 CHS cagers

Four members of the 1980 Clarkston High School girls' varsity basketball team were selected for All-league honors last week.

Named to the first team was senior Lisa Forsyth, who led the team in scoring and rebounding. Sophomore Annette Ulasich and junior Tracee Antos were named to the second team, while junior Lanette Whitehead received an honorable mention.

Team awards went to Forsyth for most valuable players and junior Janet Zografos for most improved.

The All-league picks are made by the six Greater Oakland Activities League coaches, while the team awards, which were announced last night at the annual banquet, are chosen by the votes of the players.

'Acorn theory' nets hunter a trophy

By Kathy Greenfield

Bill Morse practices the acorn theory of hunting.

Just go out in the woods and act like an acorn and make about as much noise as an acorn," he explains, "and wait for the buck."

He has been hunting deer since 1940, when he was 18 years old. This year, he shot what he considers the best deer yet — a 145-pound, nine-point buck.

Bill brought the prize to his home on Glenburnie Road in Independence Township last week.

On Saturday, he was busy dividing the meat in four portions to share with his hunting partners — his brother Bob Morse, brother-in-law Jack Craven, who both live in the area, and cousin Vern Walker of Union Lake.

The group has hunted near Atlanta since 1965 when Bill and his brother built a cabin there.

It has only been about five years, though, since he found what he calls a perfect spot for waiting for the deer to pass by.

Located near where acorns grow, he compares the spot to a fox hole.

"It's just a natural depression in the ground," he says. "I get in there and all you can see are my eyes."

He's shot three deer from the location in the last four years, he says.

This year, the hunters saw nine deer, seven of which were bucks, but it took seven days before Bill got his buck.

"The Michigan whitetail is extremely wily," he says about the ones they missed.

Bill heartily disagrees with those who say deer should not be hunted.

"Then they shouldn't eat anything else that grows including asparagus plants — they were once alive," he says.

"I think of these deer as a natural crop in the forest and if they're not harvested, nature will see that they don't live long."

He plans to have the deer head mounted by a taxidermist. It will be a remembrance of a good hunting season.

"I couldn't be happier," he says. "I had my best friends, relatives and hunting buddies there. It turned out we got some nice eating meat and a trophy."

Bill Morse proudly displays the two-and-one-half-year-old buck he hunted from his "fox hole" in Atlanta during deer hunting season.

Talking about . . .

On Main Street, Clarkston, we asked this week's question:

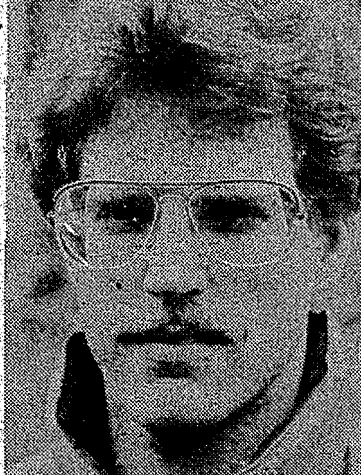

Recently, the Michigan Supreme Court abolished the "felony murder" rule which allowed juries to return first degree murder verdicts against persons who unintentionally killed someone while committing a felony. What's your opinion?

"The Supreme Court has made a lot of foul-ups in the past. I don't think it's right. Absolutely, a person who commits murder should go to jail for life."—Jack Parker, Holcomb Street, Clarkston, cemetery manager.

"I think it should be mandatory life imprisonment. Maybe they'll think about it first before they do it if they know they'll go to jail for life."—Mindy DeLong, Simler Road, Independence Township, housewife.

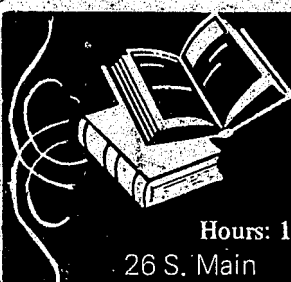

"I've read both the pros and cons and I almost agree with them both. I guess if a murder is not intentional a person should be charged with second or third degree. I don't see why a guy should go to prison for the rest of his life for something he didn't mean to do."—Rodney Latimer, Reese Road, Independence Township, electrical technician.

"I agree with the new law. I think actions should be considered on an individual level in criminal acts."—Janet Zarko, Troy, systems analyst.

"I think I'd go for life imprisonment. Anyone who kills someone has to be prepared to answer for their actions."—Gail Pettit, Greene Haven Road, Independence Township, clerk.

Springfield cemetery loses license

By Al Zawacky

Hillview Memorial Gardens loss of its license from the state to operate a cemetery should have little effect on persons presently owning property there, according to the state attorney general's office.

"Technically, any burials taking place there are illegal," said David Silver, state assistant attorney general. "But we're not going to stand in front of the gates and tell people they're out of luck, that there can't be any burials."

"There isn't any reason for the people owning lots there (in Hillview) to panic."

Located on Andersonville and Edgar roads in Springfield Township, Hillview Memorial Gardens officially lost its license Nov. 15. Owner of the cemetery is Frank Pilara of Flint.

"Cemeteries are required to maintain trust accounts to cover the costs of maintenance and services when they're needed," Silver said. "What happened here is that, based on audits by the state, Hillview's trust account was less than it should have been."

"So it is reasonable to assume that regular deposits were not being made into the trust fund."

Pilara's attorney, Ronald Grossman, said that the cemetery and its owner were victims of the hard economic times.

"Mr. Pilara has always been prepared to satisfy the customers, and he's done his best to try and turn around a bad economic situation," Grossman said. "It's just that people see the lawn growing, and they start to worry."

Grossman said that lawn maintenance was the lowest item on a list of priorities needed to keep the cemetery in operation. Combined with the wet summer, it gave the appearance that Hillview wasn't being maintained at all, he said.

"I don't believe he (Pilara) can sell property in the cemetery as a result of the license situation, but I would hope that the state wouldn't keep him from fulfilling his obligations to people who already own lots there," Grossman said.

"I hope the state moves expeditiously on this so that the property owners aren't hurt."

Silver said that a receiver should be appointed to manage the cemetery "before the end of the year." Until that time, lot owners should contact Pilara in the event of a needed burial.

"The whole situation is kind of in limbo right now," Silver said. "We're hoping down the road that we can find an interested owner for Hillview, but in the meantime there's no real cause for concern."

Springfield Township's Hillview Cemetery, located on Andersonville Road, has lost its registration from the state to operate as a cemetery and has technically been closed, according to the state attorney's general's office.

Sashabaw Presbyterian Church wins spot on National Historic Register

By Marilyn Trumper

Many a day in the winter of 1855, when Independence Township was blanketed with mounds of snow and biting winds sliced the air, a man named Beardslee rose to greet the dark early morning hours.

Making a path to the barn, he'd harness a team of horses to the sled and begin a daylong journey to the town of Lapeer.

The horses snorted vaporous mists as they pulled and strained through snow-laden dirt roads, perhaps making the first tracks of the day.

Beardslee's destination was the Lapeer lumberyard where he purchased material for the construction of the then dreamed about Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church.

A similar kind of determination which drove Beardslee those cold winter mornings has been pushing Jill Stringer for more than a year.

Her dream was to have Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church accepted to the National Register of Historic Places — and one month ago, her hard work paid off.

'People traveled long distances to worship here.'

"It had been over a year since I sent in the original application," Jill said. "I had to do a lot of research on things I didn't have the answers to in order to satisfy the register."

"But now it's done. I hope the community will now be aware of what they have, and have a special feeling for it."

The register's review board found the site to be of outstanding historical and architectural significance.

Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church, located at 5331 Maybee, Independence Township, is one of the oldest churches in the Detroit Presbytery.

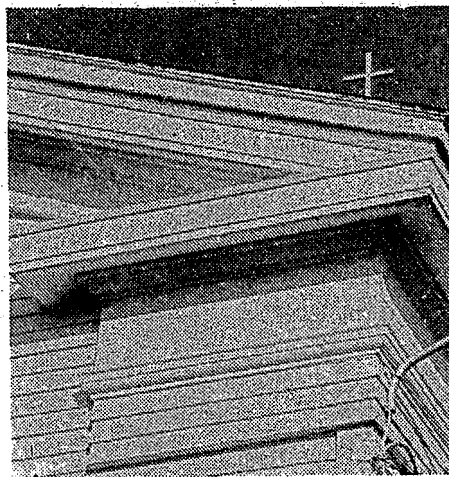

In 1855 on Jan. 20, the Detroit Church Society organized strategy for construction.

The building was constructed and furnished at a cost of $3,000 and was dedicated in June of 1856.

According to the church's new pastor, Bill Schram, the present congregation organized in 1946 and restored the building and steeple to their original condition.

In 1952, the church's basement was dug, and addition built on the back and indoor plumbing was installed, he said.

In 1971 the congregation built a new church across the street, but the original place of worship was not forgotten.

A fine broken pediment and characteristic entablature can be seen at each corner of the church. The relatively simply designed building is enhanced by these decorative corners.

The thick-paneled door rests inside pilasters in the traditional Greek style of architecture. Thousands have walked up the steps and through these doors to attend service and happenings inside the church over the past 124 years.

Jill Stringer, the church has been accepted to the National Register of Historic Places and should continue to stand proud and available for generations to come.

Over the past 124 years, the old church has celebrated many services, witnessed many weddings and funerals and served as the meeting place for several organizations.

It's just been within the past year that the building has been vacant, following the dissolution of the Independence Center.

But there are plans for interior restoration, and for utilizing the facility once again.

"We'd like to restore the upstairs for a chapel and use the downstairs for youth group meetings," Jill said.

"Or for classroom space," Bill interjected. "Or, for a small special church services, and we're always available for rent."

The balcony is beginning to show signs of age, sagging in the center, Jill said. The church's congregation is planning a fund raiser to pay the expense of restoration.

Inside, the church's original pews line the walls.

The well-over-100-year-old window frames that are 12-feet tall match the wood grain in the delicately inlaid wall paneling.

Steep, short-stepped stairs wind upwards to the choir loft which overlooks the church's main floor.

The original cross rests in a corner next to the 124-year-old pew cushions.

"One of the most important things about acceptance to the register is the fact we're now able to apply for federal funds to rehabilitate the interior," Bill said. "We've been a state historic site, and we've applied for state funds. But now we'll have the opportunity to receive federal funds."

To Bill's wife and co-pastor Jenny, it means something else.

"This says something about the history of our area," she said. "People traveled long distances to worship here. It was a focus outside the Village of Clarkson in the early days."

"People can get a real sense of church life before the changes and understand what went into the construction. There was community spirit and dedication," she said, referring to Beardslee's travels to Lapeer.

But, to Jill Stringer who's worked so hard and for so long to have the church admitted to the national register, its final acceptance means something else.

"To me it's always looked the way a church should look. I worked on this for posterity's sake," she said simply.

In 1855, Beardslee was instrumental in the church's construction.

It's the work of Jill Stringer in 1980 which insures the churches preservation for years to come.

Sweet feast makers

Mmmmmmm! The smell of fresh-baked goods fills the kitchen of Clarkston's Northwest Oakland Vocational Center. The aroma hangs thickly, like a hot air balloon suspended in the thermal winds at dusk. For the past month, in preparation for their annual bake sale, students have prepared and frozen enough baked goods to feed a camp of lumberjacks. Orders for food were taken weeks in advance. Hundreds of locals ambled into the kitchen Nov. 26 to pick up pumpkin, cherry, apple, mincemeat and coconut cream pies to grace the Thanksgiving tables. There were banana and cranberry nut breads, lemon cream rolls and all types of different cookies. At right, the first step is removing the pies from the oven and setting them to cool, a job Laura Shave and Michael Baugh have mastered without casualty. Lower right, Kathy Gravlin gingerly pokes at steaming hot apple dumplings to insure they're ready for pick-up. Below, a student hustles on the production line. Fold open the boxes, place the pie inside, close the box, tape the sides and mark on the outside what secret sweet is hidden inside. All sale proceeds are invested back into the food service classes at the school.

The discreet shopper

Flowers of pink, lavender and gold decorate the outside of the "Puppy Pomander" that holds Merle Norman fragrance pellets. The porcelain pup, complete with the sweet-smelling pellets, costs $8.50 at Patti's New Image in the Clarkston Mills in downtown Clarkston.

All the recipient of this gift needs is a match to light up a corner of the room. The handthrown stoneware candle holder and hand-rolled beeswax candle, that smells like honey, is from Tierra Arts and Design, 20 S. Main, Clarkston. The set pictured costs $15. There are three finishes—in tones of olive, blue or buff—and styles from single candle holders to a candelabra that cost from $11.50 to $33.

Music adds a special touch to antique-look porcelain dolls dressed in a range of styles sold at Daisy Chain Gifts, 32 S. Main, Clarkston, in the Clarkston Corners shopping mall. They cost $65 and come with keys for the music boxes inside that play "Yesterday," "You Are The Sunshine of My Life," "My Way" or "Try to Remember."

YOUR EYES

By Dr. Theodore B. Walton
OPTOMETRIST

The plastic material used for hard contact lenses was developed in 1936 for use in the canopies of fighter aircraft. Known as polymethyl methacrylate, it is as transparent as fine glass but only 40 percent as heavy.

This plastic is hard compared to most plastics although soft compared to glass. It is virtually unaffected by age and resistant to heat up to 155 degrees Fahrenheit. It has good tensile strength, absorbs very little water and does not decompose in eye fluids as even some glass lenses might do.

Would you be happier with contact lenses? Perhaps the newer soft contact lenses on gas permeable would be better for you. Make an appointment for an eye examination which will determine what type of vision correction is best for your eyes.

International living is Phillips' style

Country Living

by Marilyn Trumper

Fifteen-year-old Roddy Phillips has shed his traditional English school uniform in favor of new attire; blue jeans, flannel shirt and down vest.

The switch follows his introduction into the American school system, via American living.

Just a little over a month ago it was goodbye, Camberley, England for the Phillips family and hello, Pine Knob Lane — Independence Township, U.S.A.

Roddy's dad, the Rev. Aubrey T.B. Phillips was installed Friday as pastor of New Hope Bible Church, Independence Township.

It was this position which prompted the move from England to the states, but transition seems to be a way of life for the Phillips.

Aubrey, 58, spent 30 years with British Airways, a job which took him and his family around the world.

In a little more than two decades, the Phillips have lived in England, Sudan, Israel, Germany, Bahamas and now America.

Their oldest son Jeff, 20, was born in England; Roddy was born in Israel; and their daughter Shirley, 18, was born in the Bahamas.

Aubrey's wife Dorothy, 54, grew up in India, the daughter of a missionary.

"We've managed to adjust to the different customs, but after awhile you're sort of mixed up," she laughed. "We've had to learn to spell the English way and now we're learning to spell the American way."

American culture is not totally new to either Dorothy or Aubrey.

"As a former executive with British Airways, my territory and business took me into the western division. As such, I visited a lot of population centers in North America," Aubrey explains with a heavy English accent.

Although Dorothy grew up outside of the states, her accent is more American than other members of the family.

"I moved to California when I was 16 years old," Dorothy recalls. "My parents were originally from the states. While in India, I grew up in an American environment."

"I lived in the Himalayans at an elevation of 7,500 feet in a missionary enclave called Landour. I went from grades kindergarten through high school at an American supported school and studied American curriculum," she said.

The couple met in India where both their fathers were working.

"I met Dorothy through her parents when we were both young, many years ago," reminisces Aubrey. "Then we met again in L.A. — quite deliberately," he laughed.

There have been adjustments in their many years together.

"While living in the Sudan, there were dust storms to cope with. In Germany, they cherished their American friends. In the Bahamas, Aubrey was kept busy with the tourists."

"When we lived in the Sudan, Dorothy was never allowed in the kitchen," Aubrey laughed. "We had a great big bull of a cook who dominated the kitchen. It was his territory," he said.

"That was really fine with me," Dorothy interjected. "All the labels were in Arabic anyway. But one day the cook was off and we were going to go out and eat with some friends."

"A big sand storm blew in and we invited our friends to eat in our home. That was the first time I'd been in the kitchen and I didn't know where anything was," she laughed. "Before I could begin to look, I had to clean up the kitchen. There was an inch of dust all over everything from the storm."

Working with New Hope Bible Church's 120 member congregation is something Aubrey anticipates with enthusiasm.

When he was ordained in June in Canada, the Canadian fellowship mentioned to the American fellowship that Aubrey might fit the position open at New Hope.

"I got a call at midnight while I was sleeping," Aubrey said. "They wanted to know if I would consider being a candidate and I agreed. They asked me to come out for an interview and to bring my good wife with me."

"Since I traveled cheaply," Aubrey laughed, "it wasn't too much of a problem. I was elected and appointed."

"This is a very fine warm church and the people are super. The way they've looked after us is unbelievable and I have nothing but the highest praise," he said.

The Phillips' oldest son Jeff is adjusting they say, looking for a job in the field of aeronautical mechanics.

Their daughter Shirley has returned to England to visit a friend for Christmas.

Roddy, the youngest member of the family, says he likes the states, but misses one very important part of home.

"I miss my friends," he said, his British accent showing. "Other than that I like it here fine. School's much easier and the teachers are nice. Not so strict as in England."

"I don't have to wear a school uniform and I like that. I had to wear black trousers, white shirt, yellow and black tie and a blazer with a badge. I had another uniform for physical education."

Life here, he said, is not all that different from back home. Roddy is into a trend which has swept the English youth — the punk movement.

"I like punk music, and disco and jazz-funk," he said smiling.

"The kids around here laugh when I tell them," he said, shrugging it off.

"See," he grabbed an earlobe. "I pierced me ears twice."

"I did me hair too. I bought an aerosol can with special paint, yellow, and streaked one part of me hair. Then I went down to London. It's fun, I enjoy the people's reactions. Everyone does it there; it's a fad."

Roddy's favorite musicians are distant from the Detroit area's fascination with Rock and Roll.

"I like Lonnie Liston Smith, GQ, Two Tone and the group called the Crusaders," he said. "And, I'm really looking forward to summers at Pine Knob."

While Roddy enjoys listening to music, his dad prefers to play music.

"I've been playing piano since I was a young boy," Aubrey said. "But, I stick to the classical composers, Beethoven, Brahms and Bach are my favorites. I play for relaxation."

Against the wall rests a piano. "I brought that from England. It's an English walnut piano and I wouldn't part with it," he said. "It's a good friend."

Dorothy anticipates planting a garden this year as soon as she studies more of the planting season and what vegetables will grow well.

Thursday the Phillips celebrated American's traditional Thanksgiving. It's time now to begin gearing up for Christmas.

Independence Township became home for the Phillips just a little over a month ago. Originally from England, Roddy [left], Dorothy and Aubrey have lived in several different countries and moved here when Rev.

Aubrey T. B. Phillips was chosen pastor of New Hope Bible Church. General consensus among family members is that they enjoy the states and look forward to experiencing more.

Beginnings

Pastor Paul Vanaman (left) and Principal A. B. Rexroad do the honors at the Nov. 21 ground-breaking ceremony for the gymnasium being built for the Dixie Baptist Church and Springfield Christian Academy in Springfield Township. Slated for completion in late 1981, the building will feature a large gym floor and full locker room, kitchen and bathroom facilities. "All the money's being raised by free-will contributions," says Vanaman. "We're going to start building and pay as we go." Located next to the church on Dixie Highway, work began on the gym's foundation last week.

Say 'Cheese'

The two "blind mice" greeting shoppers and shopkeepers in Clarkston Saturday afternoon were making their rounds to promote the Clarkston Village Players' upcoming production of—what else—"Two Blind Mice." Even though the play is a comedy, the two whimsical mice who were roaming the streets will not be seen in the play. The "two mice" in the play are really old ladies who have been running their government agency—the Office of Seeds and Standards—four years after it has been abolished. The play is not really suggested for children, because of its somewhat sophisticated plot. It opens Dec. 5 at the Depot Theatre, 4861 White Lake, Independence Township. Other show dates are Dec. 6, 7, 11, 12 and 13. Tickets are $3.50 and are for sale at Tierra Arts and Design, 20 S. Main, Clarkston. The costumed mice pictured above are Linda Porter of Independence Township and her sister Charlotte Fischhaber of Petosky.

Members of the Clarkston United Methodist Church have been meeting for months and stitching, knitting and crocheting items for the Holiday Bazaar. Just a few of the goodies are put on display by [from left] Edith Simonson, general chairperson for the bazaar, Marty Johnston, and Gen Gordon. Edith and Gen are co-chairpersons of the Christmas Booth.

Holiday Bazaar beckons

There's something for everyone at the Clarkston United Methodist Church "Holiday Bazaar", Saturday, Dec. 6.

Doors open at 10 a.m. and close at 3 p.m. with gifts galore in the Country Store, Grandma's Attic, the Needlework Shop and the Christmas Booth, where hundreds of ornaments are to be found.

For the kids, there will be a cupcake walk and a shop for children only — where no adults may tread except those assigned there to assist the kids.

A play is also offered for children by the Senior High Methodist Youth Fellowship members at 10:30 and 11:30 a.m. and at 1:30 and 2:30 p.m.

For those who wish to nibble on donuts and other desserts or take a break with a warming beverage, there will be a coffee shop.

And luncheon is to be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. In addition to a $2.50 plate which includes corned beef casserole, jello and a roll, sloppy joes, homemade pies and beverages will be sold a la carte.

Crafts, goodies await

Holiday gifts, homemade Springfield Township, in Yule goodies and a free cup of downtown Davisburg. All craft items and baked goods are the creations of members of the Davisburg Rotary Anns.

The event is to be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Springfield Township Hall, 650 Broadway, Davisburg. Profits from the sales are to be used for community services.

HOLIDAY BASKETS MADE TO ORDER FOR CHRISTMAS GIVING

Millstream

Spinning participant

Gloria Bellairs recently spent a week "spinning her wheels" at the North American International Livestock Exposition.

She brought her own equipment for spinning wool into yarn, including registered Romney Sheep from her family's Hillside Farm on Big Lake Road in Springfield Township.

About 10 years ago, Gloria and her husband, George, started raising registered Romneys. Her love for the breed is what started her on a one-woman campaign to promote it...without compensation.

"Romneys have always been known for their carcass value," she explained. "However, their wool value has been somewhat neglected."

Betrothed

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bouchard of Griggs Drive, Independence Township, announce the engagement of their daughter, Tina Marie to Kirk Douglas Leitner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Leitner of Pontiac. The bride-to-be is a 1975 Clarkston High School graduate and a 1979 Ferris State College, Big Rapids, graduate. She is employed by Wilkie Turf Equipment. Her fiancé is employed by General Motors Corp. Truck and Coach. The couple plan a May 1 wedding.

Recipe File

Professionalism at Clarkston Hills Real Estate

Professionalism.

That's the keynote at Clarkston Hills Real Estate, says owner-broker Jean Bridson.

"We're your professional real estate counselors," says Bridson. "Everyone in our company has the training and experience you've got to have today — we have to be very well-rounded in our financing in order to keep selling homes."

Despite a depressed housing market and high interest rates, optimism abounds at 6769 Cranberry Lake Rd. at the corner of M-15, where Clarkston Hills opened for business in October.

Today's depressed economy shouldn't keep anyone from buying, Bridson notes, as bank financing is almost non-existent due to the prohibitive interest rates.

"I haven't seen the inside of a bank since February," jokes Judy Rosenberger, Clarkston Hills' director of advertising. "Creative financing is the key."

"Really, right now is the time to buy," Bridson adds. "The best deals are being offered right now, and creative financing means if there's a way to finance a sale, we can find it."

"We're very optimistic about the future — you can't get yourself down in the dumps, talking about the economy and be successful."

Bridson co-owns Clarkston

Doing Business

Hills with local attorney Jack L. Banycky. In addition to Rosenberger, her immediate staff includes Sales Manager Linda Sutton and Commercial Department Manager Kevin Banycky.

"We have highly trained and motivated personnel," Bridson says. "Basically, we're in the people business — all we do is help people and provide them with a service."

Advertising is an important aspect of Clarkston Hills business, Rosenberger adds — a factor that she feels gives her company an edge.

"We feel it's extremely important to advertise — it gives the houses more exposure and everybody benefits," she says. "We advertise very heavily."

"All of us go to some kind of classes all the time," says Brid-son. "We believe in constant education — even with the experience we have, it's a constantly changing field and you can always learn more."

Clarkston Hills' grand opening is slated for Dec. 5 from 2 p.m. until 9 p.m. Refreshments will be on hand and the public is welcome.

For Bridson, it's the realization of a dream.

"It's always been my goal to start my own business," she says. "And now, it's a goal attained."

Coping with kids

by Jim Windell

Communication falters; teen reacts

"We talked it over," a father said in a counseling office, "and we decided to bring Rick for some help."

Rick, age 16, and his mother were both in the office at the same time. Their following conversation helped to reveal, better than any formal history taking could, what the problem was about.

"He has too many outbursts," Rick's mother began. "We thought he needed help last year."

Rick assertively joined in: "I feel trapped and I admit I'm mad as heck. What is absurd is that they take things away from me like I'm a little kid."

"Well, Rick, going to church is very important." And looking at the counselor, "He refuses to go with us on Sundays."

"I work every day after school. It's the only chance for me to sleep in."

His mother came back with, "You're 16 and going to church is part of our family life. It's your house, too."

"Since when?" Rick said angrily. "You make all the decisions."

"You feel trapped!" his mother shouted. "What do you think I feel when you say you're going to kill yourself, or when you kick a wall?"

Rick looked somewhat sheepishly at the counselor and said, "I know I was wrong when I kicked a door. I feel guilty.

And I know I shouldn't say I'll kill myself. But, sometimes that's the way I feel. What can I do? I'd like to tell Mom to shut up at times. Or, I'd like to leave home. So, I kick the wall instead."

"I think a lot of the problem is me," Rick's mother began with a statement that sounded like it could finish with a piece of insight. "I think I've been too good to him."

Rick rolled his eyes up to the ceiling and look disgusted.

"Mother," he said in an exasperated tone. "You drive me until I get mad."

"But," his mother countered, "you're mad all the time."

"No, I'm not!"

His father got back in the conversation at this point. "Why do you get mad so often?"

"When Mom talks or says things that don't make sense, or she gives me an ultimatum or takes my privileges away, then I get mad," Rick said.

"Your grades are low and you did poorly on the tests to get into college," his mother said.

"He's basically a good boy, I don't know why he gets mad at the people who love him," his father said.

"We don't seem to resolve things and I don't know why," his mother said.

"No one ever listens to me," Rick said. "I'd rather not be angry."

This conversation is a classic case of poor communication in a family.

The only one who listens and says things that are logical and in the context of the discussion is 16-year-old Rick.

Yet, his parents think he is having a serious problem. Any reasonable person might be angry trying to talk to his mother who always manages to drag in topics that have nothing to do with the issue in question.

This problem cannot be blamed on Rick being in a phase of teenage life or on him being rebellious.

He might be seen as disturbed if he put up quietly with such communication patterns.

Strips of old ditto sheets are recycled via a blender into new sheets of paper. Robin Wittbrodt [left] and Christin Robinson quickly drop the strips into the gurgling machine.

Once the paper mixture is blended together, it is spread onto a screen and placed in the sun to dry. Young Robbie Robinson looks in wonder as parent volunteer Monarate Corliss [left] and his teacher, Jer Hon-Hawkins, give assistance. The projects are part of a Colonial unit of study designed "to try to come as close as possible to making things the way they were made many years ago," says the teacher.

Old-fashioned manufacturing

Among the Andersonville Elementary School second graders making patterns in foil, as a tinsmith would, is Jason Kenyon. Jason pauses from the task performed with a large nail, and says his palm is getting a little sore.

Before the feast begins, Andrea Wartewig joins the others in saying thanks for the food.

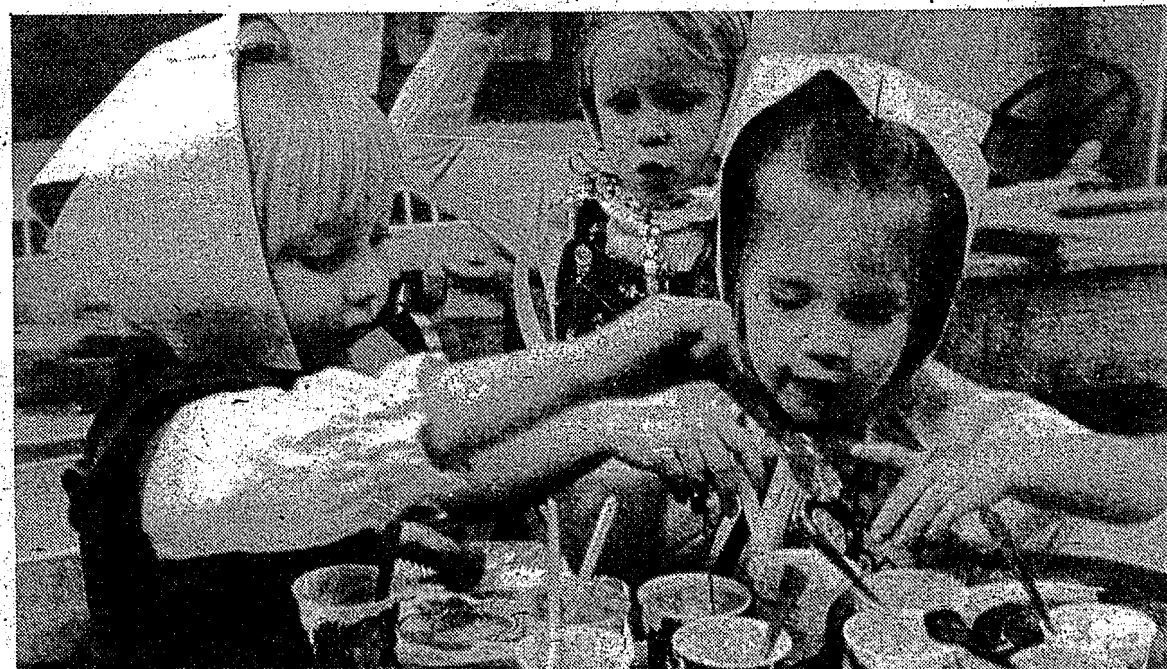

Raisins are a favorite of Janelle Dionne—she has a box on her plate and one in her hand!

The story of Thanksgiving is read to the four-year-olds enrolled in Clarkston Co-operative Nursery by their teacher Pat Pitcher. Shortly afterward, the tots sat down to a feast that they all contributed to with treats from home. "We're trying to emphasize that for the first Thanksgiving, everyone came together and brought something for the feast," said Mrs. Pitcher.

As her schoolmates eat while sitting at the long table, Andrea Ushman heads back for seconds.

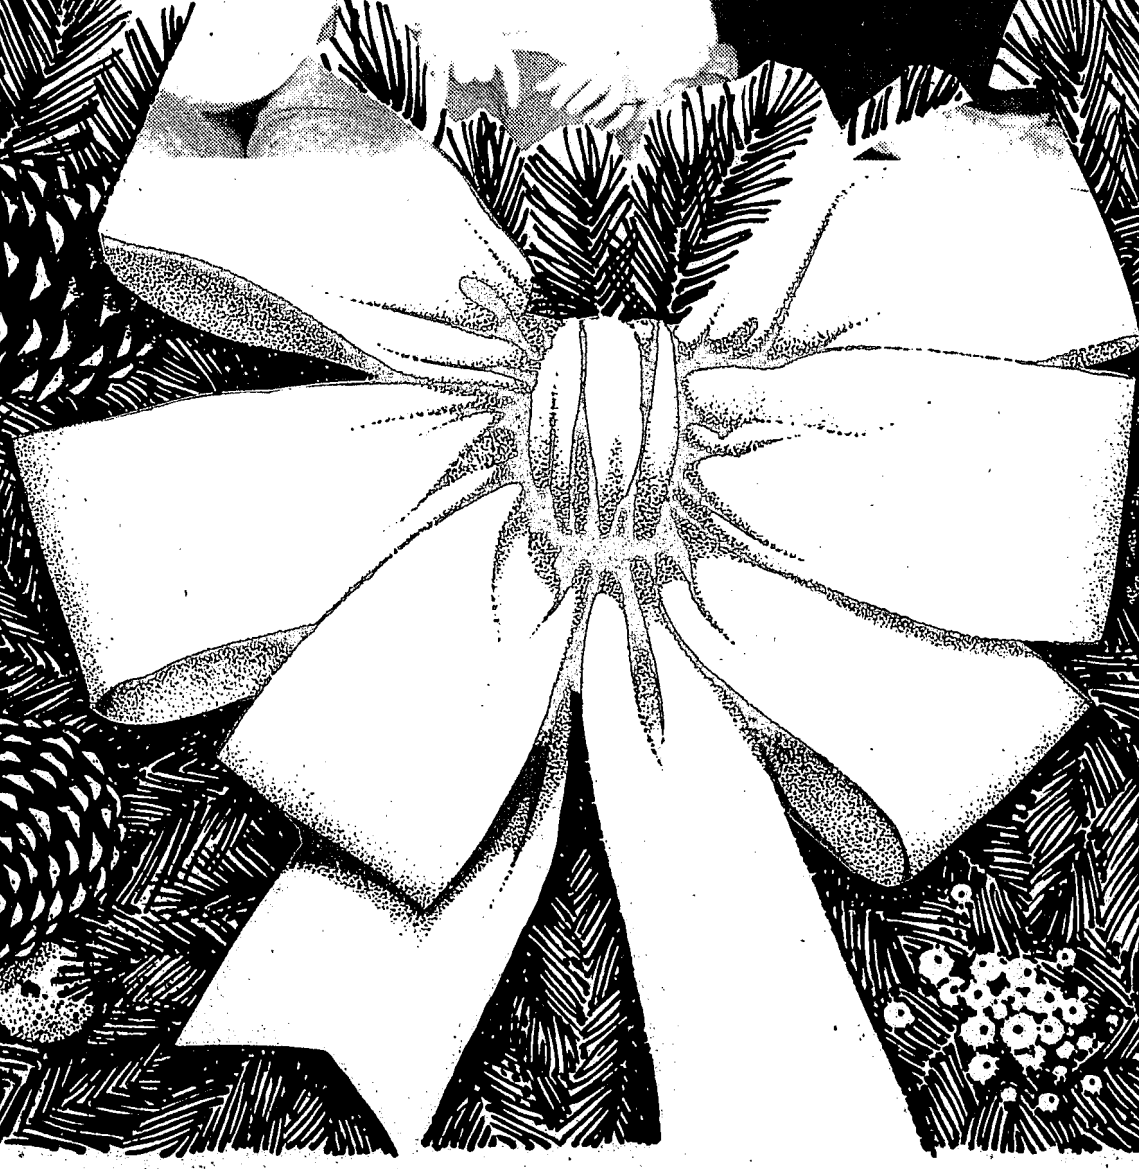

It's treat time and the youngsters dig in. From left are Stephanie Preece, Amy Stuetzer and Shawna Thompson. The snacks ranged from fruit salad and small boxes of raisins to donut holes and miniature muffins.

Togetherness makes Yule season special for Kyle, Raup families

By Marilyn Trumper

Christmas.
Love.
Togetherness.
A time for family.
That's what the upcoming holiday season means to the Bert Kyle and Dave Raup families of Clarkston.

The Kyles, Bert and Dorothy, live on Robertson Court.

Their daughter Kitty, son-in-law Dave and two grandchildren Kyle and Kelly Raup live on Holcomb Street.

They're all within walking distance of cookie baking/decorating parties, Christmas morning and an afternoon of celebration and reunion.

The annual Christmas tradition is one celebrated by three generations when Dorothy's mom, grandmother Marie Bickford, joins in the festivities.

"It's really Kitty, though, who prepares the celebration," Dorothy said. "She's picked up where grandmother Bickford left off and she's holding it all together."

The three generation family's Christmas would not be complete without the customary popcorn balls, nuts-and-bolts mix, the cookie baking party and annual quest for the perfect Christmas tree.

"We have a special evening for baking cookies," Kitty said. "Usually we meet over at Mom's and it's always a party. But everyone works, even the men."

"We invite the neighbors in to share with us. Mom bakes the cookies and we all frost and decorate them. Last year we made 500 and there were people all over," she said.

Bert's speciality is his "Nuts and Bolts" creation, Dorothy said laughing.

"It's that cereal mix. Sometimes he makes it too hot, but it's good. We put it in cans and give it away as gifts," she said.

Dave added, "The mix is good. It's like that chip commercial about eating just one. the mix is infectious. You can't stop at just one."

Another tradition is the giving of handmade gifts, Dorothy said.

"My mom started that tradition. Kitty makes stained glass, my other daughter Sandy weaves and I sew stuffed animals or clothes for the grandchildren.

"Many of the bulbs on the tree are handmade, too," she said.

"Some of them have dates and were ones the children made in school. But they're a tradition and every year they're put up."

"Most of our bulbs are from Hallmark," Kitty laughed. "That's because Dave works for them. Our presents are usually wrapped in Hallmark paper, too. They're really beautiful. We put on an album and stay up until 2 a.m. wrapping presents sometimes."

It's the annual quest for the perfect Christmas tree that inspires the group into action.

"We go out and cut down our own tree," Dave said. "Last year we went out to Ortonville, but it's getting harder and harder to find what we want."

"We like the short, needled trees like the blue spruces and balsams. Then; we come back home and warm up with a party. It's a tradition. We do it every year," he said.

Christmas morning is spend at the Kyles for coffee, date-nut bread and an exchange of gifts.

Christmas day is spent at the Raups with the big get-together.

Inside and outside the house on Holcomb Street is decorated.

Guests begin arriving at noon and the festivities go on and on.

"We try to have something of everything," Kitty said. "Sweet and sour meatballs, a different elaborate cheeseball every year, beef, pork, chicken and seafood are all part of it."

"And no one leaves without tarts or cookies in hand," Dave added.

The village happenings are as much a part of their Christmas as the family get togethers they said.

"Robertson Court is filled with candles glowing in sand bags and the neighbors carol," Dorothy said. "The Fahrner open their garage and serve hot cider. It's a fine tradition."

"When villagers decorate the big pine on the corner of Washington and Main streets and they're singing, well I really enjoy that," Dave said.

Kitty summed it up.

"The village's celebration is as much of an old-fashioned Christmas as you can get. Everybody is together."

Just a few short blocks away, the Kyles' daughter, Kitty and her family make their home on Holcomb Street. Kitty's husband, Dave Raup, holds their daughter Kelly while Kyle stands in front of his mom and dad.

Season's Greetings

We have just returned from the National Hair Styling Show in New York City. This will be the third year in a row we have attended. It is expensive, but it gives me a good look at what other stylists are doing around the country. At the New York Show I am able to view the new trends in hair cutting fashions for the up coming year. At Mr. G's my staff I are totally dedicated to giving you better service year after year. Give us the opportunity to serve you this Holiday Season.
