Soaring sledder

Jimmy Whitten takes to the hill leading to Greens Lake Saturday and delights in winter sledding despite the frigid temperatures. Jimmy lives on Parview Drive in Independence Township. His choice of a spot to sled with the rowboat beached nearby helps keep in mind that spring is less than 11 weeks away.

Law changes auto insurance rates

Good news for young men; bad news for others

By Al Zawacky

Depending on where you live, your age, marital status and sex, Michigan's Essential Insurance Act will be good news or bad news for your 1981 car insurance rates.

The new law, which went into effect Jan. 1, outlaws the use of sex or marital status in determining rate structures. It also places limits on the practice of charging more or less based on where an individual lives.

As a result, male drivers under the age of 25 will be primary beneficiaries of the new law—while other drivers will have to pick up the slack, according to Bud Grant, local agent for State Farm Insurance.

"It would be great if we could analyze every individual to determine their rate—say this one will do this, this one will do that—but we can't," Grant said. "The numbers make it prohibitive."

"The whole idea of insurance is to lump together similar risks. I don't think it's fair to charge a married male the same as a single male when the single group costs us a lot more."

Under the new law, women's rates will experience the sharpest increase, said Grant. Using the old rates, he estimated that at a given adult rate of $100, a 20-year-old woman paid an average of $165, while a 20-year-old man paid $350 for car insurance.

The new rates would charge both the 20-year-old woman and the 20-year-old man $270, an amount which represents a 64 percent increase in the women's rates.

"We fought this tooth and nail," Grant said of insurance industry efforts when the new law was being formulated and voted on in the Michigan legislature.

"We sent out letters to our policy holders, asking if they felt it was fair for good drivers to subsidize the bad ones."

"I think that's what this amounts to. According to the new law, a guy can come in here drunk to his gills with a terrible driving record, but if he's got a driver's license, I've got to write him (a policy)."

"There are some people that you can't charge enough just to break even—and so our other customers are going to have to subsidize them."

Clarkston area residents do stand to benefit a bit from the portion of the law that limits how much more or less an individual is charged on the basis of where he or she lives, Grand said.

"Although this is basically a rural area, we're still in Oakland County, and Oakland County has a relatively high rate compared to some other areas, I would think people here might get a little break in that respect," he said.

Make that four...

Never underestimate the memory power of a Clarkston News reader.

Recently a caller informed us that to the best of her memory, Steve Howe, Dan Fife and Tim McCormick were not the only Clarkston High School athletes to have their jersey numbers retired at the end of their high school careers—as reported in a Dec. 24 Clarkston News story.

Girls' Basketball star Beth Cowen also belonged on the exclusive list, according to the caller. A check with the CHS athletic department confirmed that Beth Cowen did indeed have her number retired in 1971.

Our apologies to Beth, and a tip of the hat to an alert reader.

Possible county dump site in Independence resurfaces

By Kathy Greenfield

The possibility that the Oakland County solid waste plan presently under study could include a site in Independence Township concerns the township board.

With that thought in mind, the board unanimously approved the establishment of a five-member solid waste task force recommended by Supervisor James Smith at Monday night's meeting.

Smith listed two problems the task force shall be asked to study.

The first is to update a solid waste plan established by the township in 1974.

The plan was devised after township officials and residents fought to keep a solid waste disposal site out of the township.

Although Oakland County officials never confirmed their intent to develop a site off M-15, about one mile from the Village of Clarkston, the area was outlined on solid waste disposal plan maps, Smith said.

"This (the solid waste plan update) is made somewhat urgent by the growing indication of county and state encroachment on our rights of self-determination in relation to solid waste disposal," Smith said.

The second area of study proposed for the task force was to conduct objective, independent research and recommend methods of collection and disposal of garbage included whether the current method of individual contractors and individual customers should be continued, if a regional contractor should bid competitively for township-wide waste disposal, or if costs for rubbish collection should be included in the township budget and be paid with taxes, Smith said.

At the beginning of the meeting, Smith urged the board to add consideration of forming the task force to the agenda, explaining that the item had been accidentally left off.

Later, he cited the need to begin work on a solid waste plan immediately.

"The county is presently generating a new plan for a county-wide solid waste disposal program, an update of a plan submitted two years ago," Smith said.

Although the township had the right not to be included in the plans of six and two years ago, the law has changed and each county represents every municipality in its area, Smith said.

"The state can adopt a plan without input from a community," he said.

The board approved the appointment of Dennis Kacy of 8750 Allen, who was co-chairperson of the previous fight against a solid waste disposal site in the township, according to Smith.

Other members of the task force are William Basinger, 8 Washington; C. Fred Hancock, 6382 Peach; Edward Thomson, 135 N. Main; and Robert Vandemark, 6657 Snowapple.

Trustee Daniel Travis recommended the township board include in its approval of the task force its wholehearted support.

After the appointments were confirmed, Smith again expressed the need for the board to "stay on top of things."

A meeting of the solid waste advisory committee for Oakland County is scheduled Feb. 9 in the Oakland County Commissioners' auditorium, he said.

The presentation is to include findings of a county-hired solid waste consultant.

After the meeting, the recommendations for solid waste disposal sites are to go to county employees for a final plan.

July 1 has been set as the date the county-wide plan is to be sent to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources for approval and implementation, Smith said.

Independence Township ranks sixth in growth

Independence Township has been ranked as the sixth-fastest growing township out of 23 in Oakland County, according to the latest set of unofficial tallies released from the 1980 census.

The federal government is still calculating totals and percentages from the figures gathered last April, and have yet to release final figures.

But, a comparison of the first set of unofficial figures released in July to those sent out last week, show marked increases for Independence Township and constant figures for the Village of Clarkston.

July's figures showed the township's population had jumped 22 percent in the past 10 years, from 17,361 in 1970 to 21,182 in 1980.

The latest figures show the population increased by 25.5 percent, from 16,327 in 1970 to 20,520 in 1980.

Housing units in July were shown as growing by 43.2 percent from 1970's count of 4,794 to 6,866 in 1980.

The latest figures show a housing unit jump of 45.5 percent, with 6,454 in 1980; compared to 1970's figure of 4,435.

The count for the Village of Clarkston's housing units remains the same in the latest report when compared to the July report, with 413 homes in 1980 compared to 1970's figure of 359, an increase of 15 percent.

In addition, the village population count remains the same in the second set of released figures; 957 in 1980 to 1970's count of 1,034. That's a decrease of 7.5 percent.

All figures released to date are preliminary and subject to change.

Springfield's population jumps 89 percent

A leisurely drive down Springfield Township's winding roads might make the latest U.S. Census figures a little hard to believe.

Rolling hills and green pastures aside, the figures indicate Springfield Township to be the seventh fastest growing community in Oakland County in terms of people and the fourth fastest growing community in Oakland County in terms of housing units.

The 1980 revised figures indicate that 8,294 people currently reside in Springfield Township, up 89 percent since 1970. Housing units in that 10-year period jumped 105.9 percent, from 1,387 in 1970 to 2,856 in 1980.

"In many respects, the figures look a little scary," said Collin Walls, Springfield Township supervisor. "Most of the people you talk to out here think we're growing too fast — or would just as soon not have the township grow at all."

But percent figures can be misleading, Walls added, pointing out that a total of 8,294 people in an area the size of Springfield Township is still quite small.

"The numbers just conform that this is a nice place to live," he said. "I don't think we have to worry about having 60,000 people here in 10 years."

Wixom led the list of fastest growing communities in Oakland County with a 234 percent increase, followed by Novi City, Brandon Township, Highland Township, Milford Township and South Lyon.

Avon Township experienced the sharpest percent increase in housing units in the last 10 years with 154.6 percent, followed by Milford and Brandon townships.

Suspect sought

The Oakland County Sheriff's Department is looking for a man, approximately 19 years old, suspected of breaking into Tierra Arts & Design, 20 S. Main, Clarkston, on the second day of the New Year.

According to the police report, two people saw the man inside the store and phoned police.

Realizing he'd been spotted, the suspect dove through the door, shattering glass and fled on foot through the alley behind the business.

Deputies with tracking dogs searched the area, but lost the scent, reports said.

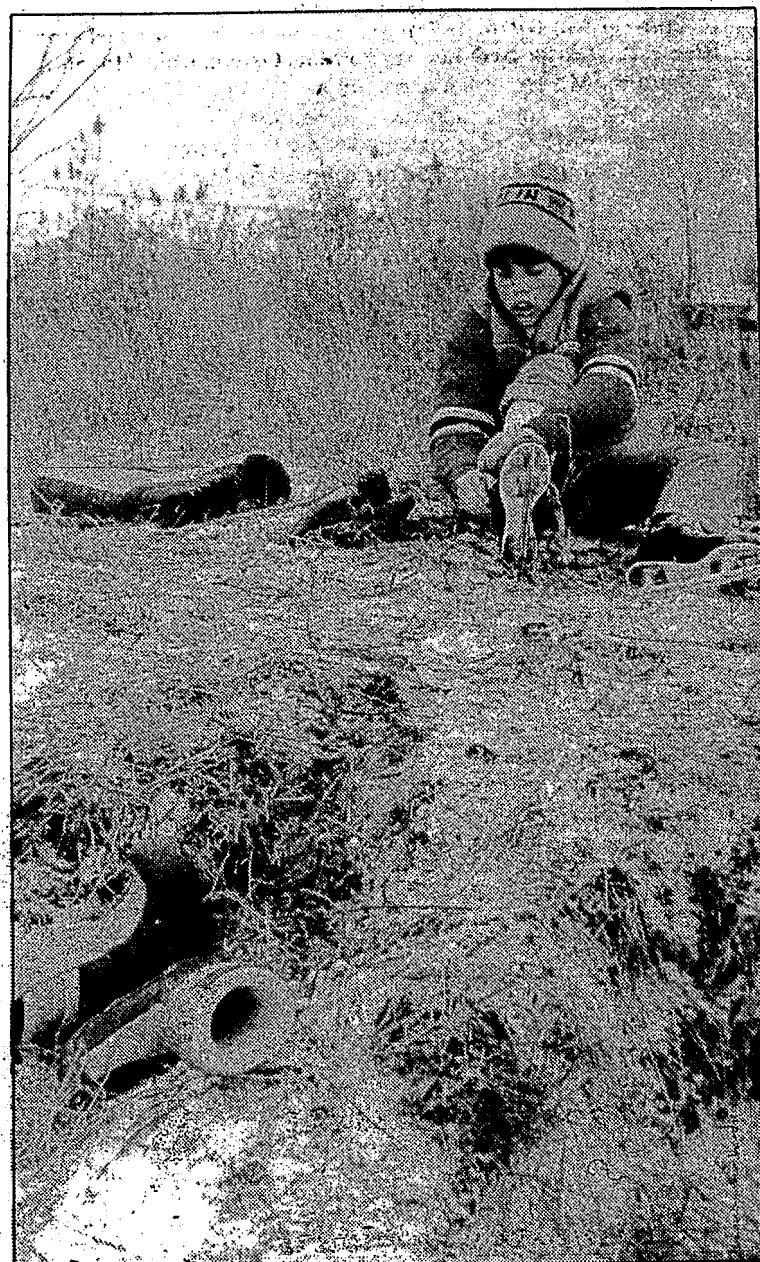

Nothing was taken from the store.

Police are looking for a medium built man with dark, collar length hair, last seen wearing a buckskin colored jacket with a lambs wool collar and light colored pants.

Slap shots

Once the skates are in place, some serious hockey practice begins on the pond off Maybee Road. Chris Morgan [left] of Guyette Street, Independence Township, joins Greg in the skating session.

Vandals put school on ice

Water from a spigot forced open and left running during the winter break forms a cascade of ice down the front steps of Clarkston High School.

Clarkston High School students and staff were greeted with a cascade of frozen water down the school's front steps when school re-opened Monday.

School maintenance workers were busy cleaning up the water works with sand, salt, shovels and long-handled ice wedges.

Vandalism is suspected, said Principal Dom Mauti.

"The janitor found snowmobile tracks right up to the outside spigot," Mauti said, and although the tracks were followed, the trail was lost.

There was no damage to the school, he said, and once the ice is cleared, the problem will end.

The spigot, which was forced open with a tool of some type, is located by the "CHS" Little Theatre adjacent to the school's front entrance.

Mauti said he figures the spigot was opened sometime Saturday or Sunday, and the water ran for a relatively short time because it froze rapidly due to frigid temperatures.

"Otherwise things look pretty good around here," he added, and the only other incident during the long school holiday was a freezer that was turned off, resulting in some melted ice cream.

"We're trying to figure out how that happened," he said. "It was off about 48 hours."

It's possible that the freezer switch was bumped accidentally and turned off, he said.

The Ed Thomson Family

Behind the board

by Kathy Greenfield

The art of game playing can involve more than just dealing the cards, following the rules and winning or losing.

Any Poker player knows that, but there are times when the element of intimidation can surface in other games as well.

My father-in-law and I have been playing fast and furious games of good, old-fashioned Cribbage for several years.

During that span of time, he has shown me the ultimate winning weapon—just convince your opponent you're better at the game.

Cribbage is relatively easy to learn and it's the kind of game that spans generations—my children were good at knowing how to play when they were still in early elementary school.

Using a deck of cards, you add up points awarded for runs, pairs and combinations of 15 on a Cribbage board. The winner manages to tally a score of 120 first.

Details on how to play the game aren't important here; the conversation is what counts.

The six cards are dealt and my father-in-law scans his hand.

"The game's over!" he grins.

Or, he twists his mustache. He doesn't really have a mustache, but the pantomime means he has it made, as with the mustache-twisting, victorious villain in an old-fashioned melodrama.

The idea is to rattle your opponent. I try to fight back. "All right," I say, meaning, "This is a great hand."

Or I borrow his term—"The game's over," I say and smile triumphantly.

The thing is I was never as good at playing the game behind the game. That is until a few weeks ago.

He was moaning and groaning about my string of wins. "It's not skill, it's luck," he declared. Then, the ultimate card trick came to me.

"I have ESP," I announced. "That's why I know what to discard."

Ah, intimidation.

I basked in the glory of my previously secret talent as long as I could.

The problem is my husband didn't believe. The next time we sat down to play a few rounds of Cribbage, he beat me soundly four games in a row.

The worst part came when we were wrapping up a game and his father arrived, only to watch my husband skunk me—a term used to describe a win in Cribbage by more than 25 points.

Hmmm. I wonder if my father-in-law would buy x-ray vision.

Here's Herb Mysterious mystery

by Herb Rose

The other day someone gave me a study tracing the development of the fictional detective in American literature.

I feel that books are of limited value until they are read. But, as I perused this treatise, which included storied accounts of well-known detective heroes, I was impressed with the contrived premises upon which successful detective stories can be based.

The stress on my credulity mechanism reached maximum when I read a script for the old radio show "The Shadow."

The setting was one of the classic mystery story situations: a remote country house peopled with a wealthy couple, a recently adopted son, a huge dog purchased as a companion for the son, a phony count, a breathtakingly expensive necklace for stealing, and a corpse.

In the denouement it seems that the couple have inadvertently adopted a midget, not a kid.

I find it difficult to accept as perfectly understandable that a family could fold into its bosom a short 43-year-old homicidal jewel thief under the mistaken impression they were adopting an adorable little boy.

I keep thinking of conversations that might take place, like:

"Have you noticed how much little Murgatroyd smokes cigars?"

"Yes, and I'm going to put a lock on the liquor cupboard."

There also might be some fascinating dialogue between an ersatz kid and a nursemaid when it came to beddy-bye time.

Or perhaps some guest would observe:

"Have you ever noticed how that funny-looking kid goes around attacking all the women."

I would also think that the adoption agency would undergo some serious introspection with the objective of tightening their screening procedures.

The adopting couple was not on a winning streak. It seems that the dog they acquired as a playmate for their son was a savage killer who, in the last act, dispatched the midget.

I would think that the twin psychological impacts of discovering that your adopted son is a midget and your pet dog is a ferocious killer would leave you shakily cutting out low-quality paper dolls.

Jim's jottings

9 is enough

by Jim Sherman

We sort of agree with the way John Haire, publisher of the Cass City-Chronicle sums up 1980. He used his personal column "The Haire Net" to summarize.

If you were to grade old man 1980 on a scale of one to 10, you'd be generous if you gave him more than a five.

Man, he's leaving us with more problems than he faced just 12 months ago. Many more.

If you are one of Michigan's 15 percent unemployed you certainly question what 1980 has done to earn even a point on the rating scale.

The old man did all right weatherwise here although in other parts of the nation they'll tell you when it comes to controlling the weather he was a negative one.

For the farmers in the Thumb his rating has to be around a seven or better. If it weren't for high operating cost he might have been a perfect 10.

That's inflation, of course, and the old man never did seem to be able to come to grips with it. Rather it appeared to have him in its grip.

It was a vice-like hold, too. Inflation of above 12 percent coupled with record interest rates put a wrinkle in the brow of the old boy and more than one in the people he served.

When it comes to dollars and cents 1980 was a dismal failure. In the spirit of the season let's be generous and give him a three over-all.

On the international front 1980 can leave with his head up.

All's not roses. The hostages are still in Iran. The oil cartel (foreign and domestic) has us by the throat. The dollar has depreciated and detente is very sick, if not dead.

But there's not one American that lost his life in battle and even though the hostages are not free, they are alive.

That has to be worth a seven on anybody's scale.

If 1981 can do as well he'll have done a good job, too.

For the youngster comes on the scene where nations are playing with matches and the lid is off the gas tank.

On the domestic front many have high hopes for the new arrival.

After all, given the conditions today, many feel there's no way to go but up.

Of course that was the stuff that 1980 heard when he came strutting in.

Certainly if 1981 can meet expectations he'll rate way up there on the scale.

And if he does everything that Republicans are promising will happen and keeps us out of war, too, he'll be greater than all his ancestors.

A perfect 10? That's too much to expect or even hope for.

But if he rates a nine I'd guess we'd all be happy.

I know I would.

Amy Glaven [front] and Becky Engel are all smiles as they see how fast they can make their sleds go. The girls live on Parview Drive in Independence Township.

Sisters Terri [front] and Becky Engel share a "flying carpet" ride down the snow-covered hill off Parview Drive.

Flush with advise

by Jim Fitzgerald

It was 5:30 in the morning when the toilet in the bathroom off the bedroom began to flush. The husband reached for the wife on the other side of the bed.

"What is going on?" she asked.

"I thought I'd reach out and touch someone, but I couldn't find the phone in the dark," the husband explained. "If we are both here in bed, who is flushing the toilet?"

The husband investigated. The toilet was flushing itself. As he watched, fascinated, it finally gurgled into silence. He went back to bed.

"Maybe that toilet was trying to tell you something," the wife said.

Whenever an inanimate object behaves in an unusual fashion, the wife takes it personally, as a warning of an impending tragedy which will surely happen unless her dumb husband gets off his lethargic duff and phones a mechanic, plumber, landlord or priest.

"At 5:30 in the morning I refuse to have a conversation with a toilet," the husband muttered, and went back to sleep.

Three hours later, when he got up to shave and shower, there was no water. No hot water, no cold water, and no water in a teakettle on the stove. When the wife heard him sobbing, she said he should have listened to the toilet.

"That toilet was warning us that something was going wrong with the water system," she said. "You should have immediately filled the bathtub with water, and then you would be able to brush your teeth for days without walking to the river."

The happy couple live at 1300 Lafayette East, a 28-floor high rise on the east edge of downtown Detroit, with about 300 other families. None of them had water.

Their apartment building is invariably described as "plush" in newspaper and TV reports about how the original owners of 1300 renege on a government-guaranteed loan, thus forcing the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to take possession in the name of millions of taxpayers everywhere.

"I don't think I can stand much more of this plush living," the husband said, washing the sleep out of his eyes with Listerine. "Too many landlords are spoiling this building. If Chrysler ever defaults on its famous loan, and the bureaucrats take over, the strange noise you hear in the streets will be square wheels."

HUD is trying to sell 1300, and many of the present tenants want to buy it and establish a co-operative. Then there will be only a few hundred owners, instead of a few million, and the government will be out of power, hallelujah! It is believed by ye of much faith that under co-operative ownership, the toilets won't have so much to say.

The husband is hopeful, but skeptical. He has found much to complain about since becoming an apartment renter four years ago. But he had even more grief when, for 25 years, he was a home owner. He is convinced the problem isn't who owns the housing, but who built it, who maintains it, and who causes the toilets to talk.

The husband doesn't ignore messages from toilets and cars and other inanimate objects because he disbelieves the wife's contention that he is being warned of approaching trouble. He knows she is right. He also knows it's no use trying to decipher the message and ward off the trouble. It will arrive, regardless.

Nothing works the way it's supposed to, as long as it's supposed to. That is a law of modern life. If inanimate objects were animate, and honest, they would confess their shame at the shoddy workmanship that made them, and at the sloppy repair work that keeps the repairman always coming back to them, always a week later than he is needed.

Only the consummate handyman can profit from conversing with toilets. For the ordinary man, such as the husband, such conversations are fruitless. Even if he had understood what the toilet was saying at 5:30 that morning, and he had tried to store water as the wife advised, he would have discovered too late that the plug in the bathtub doesn't work.

Crowley's Olympic feats win posthumous award

Francis A. (Frank) Crowley, and Independence Township resident of more than 30 years who died last April, has been honored with a posthumous award by Manhattan College as the school's first Olympian.

His widow, Mrs. Billie Crowley, accompanied by three grandsons, traveled to New York City on Nov. 29 to receive the award and attend a ceremony held in her husband's honor.

"It was really an emotional thing and at the same time it was one of the most thrilling experiences I've had," Mrs. Crowley said.

"It had a sad note. It's a shame they don't do this when the people are alive to receive them."

Crowley was honored as an outstanding miler and a 1,500-meter specialist, she said.

He participated in the 1932 Olympic games in Los Angeles as a member of the U.S. track team, carrying the college's colors to national prominence.

As a freshman, Crowley joined a select group to compete internationally. Pitted against the cream of South Africa's athletes, he swept the opposition. He also competed against athletes from China, Manchuria, Korea and the Philippines.

Crowley led the school's team, the Jaspers, to their first IC4A title, and became the college's first individual NCAA champion in the two mile run.

In addition, Crowley was inducted into the Manhattan College Alumni Hall of Fame.

He is immortalized in the Varsity D Race, now known as the Manhattan College Interscholastic Cross County Race, held each October. It is one of the largest meets in the country.

Mrs. Crowley plans to return to the school each year and present the winner of the race with the award.

Fourth house condemned

Another house in Independence Township bites the dust.

At the Dec. 16 meeting, the township board voted unanimously to condemn a house on Waldon Road, east of Clintonville Road.

"The home is an add on," said James Hock, ordinance officer for the building department. "The roof was taken off and a second story added on with the wrong support beams. There is no water or heat in the house and the inside is a mess. It's unoccupied."

At a condemnation hearing Oct. 3, the homeowners were given 60 days to make repairs on the house or face its possible demolition, he said.

The owners did not show up at the meeting, Hock said.

The township directed the attorney to notify the owners of the move to condemn, allowing them an additional 30 days to make repairs.

If by the end of the 30 days repairs have not been made, the supervisor was authorized by the board to award the demolition job to the low bidder with demolition costs to be added on to the tax rolls.

This is the fourth house condemned in the township within the past month.

Leddi joins park commission

For the second time this year, the Springfield Township Board has appointed William Leddi to the Springfield Township Park Commission.

Springfield Supervisor Collin Walls read a letter from incumbent park commission member Stephen Dice at last week's township board meeting, in which Dice said he was moving to Rose Township and would no longer be eligible to serve. Dice recommended Leddi as a replacement to serve the remainder of the term.

Leddi had previously been appointed to serve the remainder of Charles Mallett's term on the park commission in June when Mallett moved to Independence Township. Leddi left the board in November when two park commission members, Charles Going and Frederic Stewardt, were elected.

The township board approved Leddi's appointment unanimously.

His term will expire in 1984, according to Walls.

"Because of the state law mandating four-year terms, there won't be any local election in 1982," Walls said. "So the terms expiring in '82 are being extended two years."

A physical education teacher in an Oakland County school system, Leddi resides at 5521 Ormond Rd. in Springfield. He has also been active in little league programs for the past two years.

Clarkston High to host OU extension courses

The long and winding winter drive down I-75 to the Oakland University, Rochester, campus may have stymied thoughts of working on a bachelor's or master's degree.

Fret no more—Oakland University is bringing several evening classes to Clarkston beginning this month.

And students who decide to take courses at the last minute can sign up and apply for admission to the university the first evening of class.

The seven courses meet once each week beginning at 6:30 p.m. and offerings at Clarkston High School include anthropology, area studies, human interaction, learning skills and political science. An art history course on Michigan architecture is to be taught at the Clarkston Village hall.

Ten to 15 students must sign up for an extension class for it to be offered, according to John Tower, acting director of the center for general career studies at the university.

Although the number of courses offered this semester is limited, if enough interest is shown, the university will offer more, he said.

"We have as many as 40 courses at one site," Tower said, referring to other extension course areas. "If that kind of demand is there, we'll meet it."

The normal cost of one four-credit course including fees is $167 and each subsequent class usually is $152, he said.

A brief description of each class follows:

Art History—AH355/555 Michigan Architecture: first class Tuesday, Jan. 13, 6:30 to 10 p.m.; instructor John Cameron; meets at Clarkston Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston.

ture of Michigan from early settlement to the present.

Introduces physical anthropology and archaeology as applied to the evolution of man and culture with stress on man's development in adaptation to the environment.

Anthropology—AN190 Current Issues in Anthropology: Sex in Cultures; first class Wednesday, Jan. 7, 6:30 to 10 p.m.; instructor Philip Singer; CHS.

Area Studies—AS210 Introduction to China: first class Monday, Jan. 12, 6:30 to 10 p.m.; instructor John Marney; CHS.

English sentence and paragraph development.

Political Science—PS305 Politics of the Local Community: first class Tuesday, Jan. 13, 6:30 to 10 p.m.; instructor Roger Marz; CHS.

Study of local governments, political forces, trends in metropolitan and suburban politics and problems of planning in an age of urbanization.

For more information on registration or admission, call Oakland University's Evening Program office at 377-4010.

Clarkston site delights instructor

A request from the Clarkston Community Historical Society brings the Michigan architecture class to town.

The Oakland University course is taught by John Cameron, and as he looks forward to teaching the course that begins Monday, Jan. 12, Cameron is, in a word, delighted.

"It's wonderful to see this much interest in Michigan architecture," he says. "It's not a good course if I don't learn a lot from the students -- not a little, a lot. I'm expecting to learn a lot in Clarkston."

The class, which meets once a week from 6:30 to 10 p.m., is an art history course, and it is offered simultaneously on the undergraduate and graduate level.

It covers towns and cities in southeastern Michigan and includes some visits to historical monuments.

"A person could take a course like this who never had an art history course before," Cameron says, and although there is some technical material included, students may choose to pass it by.

"I tell the students if they'd like, they can tear (the technical sheets) off and make paper airplanes of them," he says.

Actual buildings in the Clarkston area are not included in the course, but rather similar types of architecture and methods of documenting historic structures.

Cameron has followed the work of the Clarkston historical society, however, and he speaks about them with admiration.

"I've kind of taken the Clarkston group as representing an ideal," he says, referring to work underway in his neighborhood in Pontiac to gain inclusion on the National Historic District Register.

"It's the pride that people have that's very important," he says. "When there's no local impetus to save something, it goes."

Those interested in more information about the class may call Cameron's Oakland University office at 377-3375.

Marygrove classes

Marygrove College comes to the Clarkston area with extension courses beginning Jan. 20 when 12 non-credit courses are to begin at Colombiere Center.

Each course is offered one evening a week over a period of several weeks at the center located at 9075 Big Lake, close to the I-75 intersection at Dixie Highway in Springfield Township.

Courses include those with religious themes as well as spelling skills, basic mathematics, real estate investing, and rapid reading.

There are also classes related to psychology including an exploration of dreams and a course called Masculine/Feminine."

For complete schedules and information, contact Colombiere Center, PO Box 189, Clarkston 48016 or call 625-5611.

At the Dec. 16 meeting, the township board unanimously gave final plat approval to developer Hugh Garner to build 135 single-family homes on 75 acres.

The approval to go ahead came with the stipulation that Garner place $113,000 in an escrow account to guarantee completion of the sanitary sewer, water main, storm drainage and a well house.

Garner can begin building as soon as the plat is registered with the state, said Christopher Rose, township clerk.

Spikers have height; will work on passing

By Al Zawacky

For the Clarkston High School varsity volleyball team, last year's weakness is this year's strength.

Short on height last season, the CHS spikers will open the 1981 campaign next week with "three 6-footers," according to Coach Linda Denstaedt.

But there's a catch.

Last year's strong point—the passing game—will need a little polish this time around.

"We'll be much more aggressive at the net," Denstaedt says, "but our weak area will be our passing."

"Last year we had great passing—this year, we have the offense, but we can't always get it going because of our passing."

includes four seniors: Beth Haddad, Julie LePere, Beth Walker and Patti White. All four are strong servers, while White and Haddad are "probably my strongest hitters," says Denstaedt.

Juniors Kathy Weber and Lanette Whitehead are two of the Wolves premiere blockers, she adds, and LePere and junior Michelle Ulasich are two standouts in the setting department.

"We play a multiple of offenses," Denstaedt notes, "so our setters have to be quick in order for things to work."

Also figuring prominently in the team's plans this winter are juniors Sandy Mason, Gina Red, Shaun O'Brien, Diane Pfahler and Tami Wilder.

'We'll be much more aggressive at the net—but our weak area will be our passing.'

—Coach Linda Denstaedt

One aspect of last year's season that the Wolves are in no hurry to change is the final location of the Greater Oakland Activities League championship trophy. Clarkston and Rochester shared the top spot in the GOAL in 1980, each posting an 8-2 league record.

Denstaedt figures Rochester will be one of the league's top contenders again this season.

"Both Rochester and Kettering had strong juniors last year," she says. "They'll both give us a tough time."

"We also have a new team in the league this year in Lake Orion. We've played them in the past, and they seem to be improving—they should be stronger."

Clarkston's 12-player roster

Denstaedt won't have to wait long to assess her team's talent against some tough competition. Some formidable non-league opponents await the Wolves in their first week of action, including Grand Blanc, Flint Northern and Dearborn Fordson.

"I like to play tough non-league games—they prepare you for the league games later on," Denstaedt says. "I think it's better to have a close game and maybe even lose if you can learn and grow with the experience—instead of having a walk-away."

"This group doesn't like making mistakes, and they don't like to lose," says Denstaedt. "That's going to be another one of our strengths—I know we're not going to quit."

Clarkston's Patti White [8] leaps up in action at the net during a pre-season scrimmage held Friday at Clarkston High School. The Wolves open their 1981 season at home against Flint Northern and Grand Blanc on Monday.

The Point After

by Al Zawacky

A day in the life of an uncanny seer

Scene: The Clarkston News office.
Time: 10:15 a.m. Tuesday. The phone is ringing.

"Clarkston News, may I help you?"

"Al Zawacky, please."

"One moment, please, Al, line one."

I pick up the phone.

"Yes, Mr. Zawacky? I just wanted to tell you I'm a regular reader of your 'Odds Are' column. In fact, I was wondering if you could pass along a few tips about the pro contests."

"Sure. Shoot."

"The Superbowl."

"I like Oakland."

"Hear that, Bennie? Everything we've got against the Raiders."

"What?"

"Nothing—I've just got a friend of mine on another line. How about the NBA championship?"

"The Lakers won't do it again..."

"Bennie, $1,000 on Los Angeles to repeat. What about the Stanley Cup?"

"Montreal, all the way..."

"Damn, I had the Canadiens, too. Bennie, change that and put our dough on Philadelphia. How about the World Series?"

"Well, Winfield will be a bust, but the Yankees will still win it."

"Great—put a grand on the Royals."

"Hey, I'm sure about the Yankees..."

"Make it two grand, Bennie."

"Wait a minute—why ask my advice if you're not going to listen to it?"

"Al, we are listening. Aren't you the guy who picked Rochester to take the Greater Oakland Activities League basketball crown this winter?"

"Yea..."

"And the guy who picked Clarkston to beat Swartz Creek in football by six points? And the guy who picked Rochester to down Kettering in football? And the guy who picked Clarkston to beat Kettering last month in basketball?"

"Yea, well..."

"Geez, and I was going to bet on Clarkston against the Captains until I read your column. You're a life-saver."

"You mean you deliberately bet against..."

"I've made $10,000 just since September betting against your predictions. Al, you're making me a rich man."

"Well, uh...thanks, I guess..."

"By the way, who did you pick to win the World Series last year?"

"The California Angels."

"The Stanley Cup?"

"Buffalo."

"The Super Bowl?"

"Houston."

"The NBA championship?"

"Philadelphia."

"Al, you're uncanny. Take it easy—I'll be reading you."

I hang up the phone.

Somehow, I don't feel like the recipient of a compliment.

Wrestlers place fifth in county

Captain Rick Detkowski felt it could have been better.

But overall, Detkowski was satisfied with the performance of his Clarkston High School wrestling squad, which placed fifth in the 11-school Oakland County tournament held Dec. 20-21.

Clarkston placed behind tournament champion Lake Orion, Millington, Hazel Park and Avondale to earn fifth place honors. Last year, in their best performance ever, the CHS grapplers finished fourth.

"We could have done better, but the tournament served its purpose," Detkowski said. "The county meet is good training and experience for the state tournament."

"We realized what we did wrong and know what we have to work on."

(145) and junior Tom Hecker (185) each placed fourth and junior Bruce Burwitz (167) finished sixth.

Clarkston will play its first Greater Oakland Activities League meet of the season Jan. 8 at home against Waterford Kettering. Although Detkowski's Wolves are currently ranked 12th statewide, the squad faces a tough challenge in defending its 1979-80 GOAL title.

"Our league put in a really good showing at the tournament," Detkowski said, pointing out that three of the GOAL's six teams placed in the top ten county-wide — Lake Orion, Clarkston and West Bloomfield. Rochester wasn't far behind, placing 15th.

The tough competition ahead isn't making the Clarkston coach apprehensive.

"I think it's great," Detkowski said. "The only way to get better is to wrestle the tough teams."

Odds Are...

More flawless forecasts:

WEST BLOOMFIELD at CLARKSTON (Jan. 9): The Lakers have been a bit of a surprise this season, figuring early in the GOAL title race.

It's an aberration. West Bloomfield is simply not that good, a fact that the Wolfpack should be able to demonstrate. If Clarkston holds on to the ball and avoids the third-quarter blahs, this should be the Lakers' first league loss. CLARKSTON by FOUR.

MILFORD LAKELAND at CLARKSTON (Jan. 13): Another contest that should end up in the Wolfpack win column. CLARKSTON by SIX.

Recreation shorts

Independence Township Parks and Recreation hosts a winter softball tournament, the "Slip and Slide Classic," on Feb. 7-8.

The tourney will be open roster with classes for men, women and co-ed teams. T-shirts will be awarded to teams finishing first and second.

Entry fee is $40 per team. Interested teams should contact the recreation department by calling 625-8223.

Cross country skiers can star gaze during "Astronomy on Skis," a public interpretive program at Independence Oaks County Park Jan. 19.

The program starts at 7 p.m. Another program, "Owl Search on Skis," will be held on Feb. 13.

Pre-registration is required for both programs. A non-refundable fee of $1 per person will be charged to participants. Interested persons may register by phoning 858-0903 weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Novice cross-country skiers can learn the basics at a series of clinics offered at White Lake Oaks County Golf Course this winter.

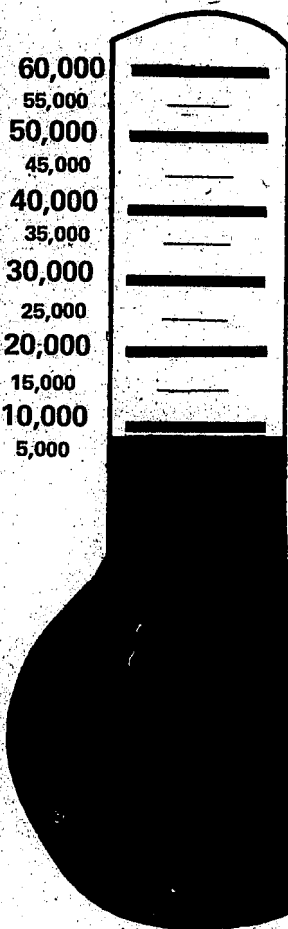

Offered through Waterford Parks and Recreation, the clinics begin Jan. 17 and run successive Saturdays through Feb. 14. Sessions are to be offered at 9 a.m. and 11 a.m.

The fee is $9 including ski rental and $5 for those who bring their own skis. Pre-registration by mail or in person is required at Waterford Parks and Recreation, 5860 Andersonville Rd., Waterford, Mich. 48095.

There's still time to sign up for the Independence Township Parks and Recreation ski trip to Schuss Mountain Jan. 16, 17 and 18.

Payment in full is required by Jan. 9. Anyone interested should contact the recreation department at 625-8223.

KEEP THE THERMOMETER RISING...

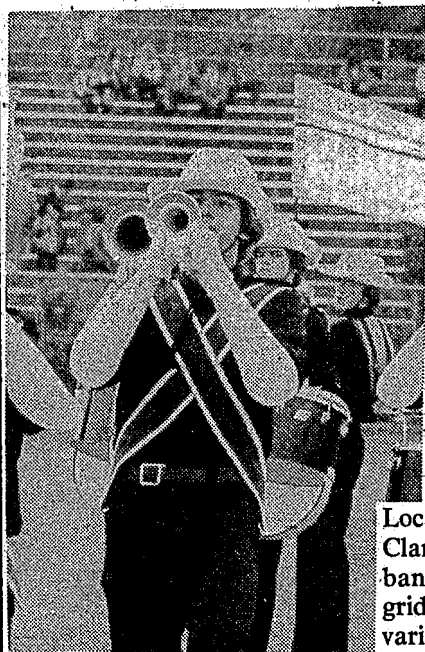

The lighting drive committee recently said goodbye to the old year with a total of $6,350 in contributions and pledges.

That means the first months of 1981 will be busy ones, as the committee works to reach its March 1 goal of $60,000, the amount required to install a new lighting system at the Clarkston High School athletic field.

Without the new lights, Friday night football games—a long-standing Clarkston tradition—won't be possible in the 1981 season. Junior varsity and freshman football, as well as band concerts and other events will also be affected.

Tax-deductible contributions can be mailed or dropped off at Clarkston Community Schools, 6389 Clarkston Rd., or at The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston 48016.

Checks should be made out to Clarkston Community Schools and indicate that the money is for the lighting fund.

Local football teams aren't the only ones with a stake in the Clarkston High School athletic field lighting drive. The CHS band also performs during the traditional Friday night home gridiron contests, and utilizes the field on a solo basis for various competitions and events as well.

Coping with kids

Don't ignore children's good traits

by Jim Windell

When Shawn admitted he used marijuana and drank some whiskey, his father thought his 16-year-old son should immediately begin seeing a counselor at a drug abuse and alcoholism clinic.

When Mr. S. found a poem Shawn had written on another occasion, he interpreted it as a "cry for help."

In fact, whenever Shawn used poor judgement or made mistakes, his father was ready to either throw in the towel on his son or send him off for help or institutionalization.

It was difficult for Mr. S. to understand that part of being a teenager is to experiment, try out new things and find out things "for myself." By over-reacting and seeing the worst side of things, Mr. S. failed to see some admirable traits in his son.

He did not see that Shawn had a good sense of humor, an ability to see his own and other people's follies and that he had a lot of guilt feelings after he made errors in judgement.

Most of all, Shawn had an ability to convey thoughts and feelings in writing poems. His father's feeling that Shawn's poems were a desperate act and a cry for help obscured the wit and insightful choice of words which made his poems full of feeling and emotion.

When his father judged them as a prelude to suicide or a mental breakdown, he missed out on sharing an emotional experience and some important discoveries in his son's life.

It took only a few minutes of talking about how the most recent poem was written to understand how Shawn "had" to write to express himself.

He said that he didn't write poetry very often, but after a recent school dance when he left out, he came home and wrote for two hours.

"For the last hour, I was writing in my bed, laying there with the paper on an album cover trying to write while holding it up in the air," he said, "but I couldn't stop until it was finished."

What he had to say related to sad feelings and self-respect.

It was quite evident that what had been going on for months in his mind, and in his peer relationships had come together and he was, if anything, celebrating some newly found integrations in his maturation process.

He was not regressing or falling apart as his father thought.

He had made important strides in self-realization.

Unfortunately, Mr. S. could only see some superficial misbehavior.

Underneath that was a young man with sensitivity and insight who had, perhaps this is the desperate part, learned to communicate to himself through writing rather than to talk to others about how he felt and about the great discoveries of the teen years.

Shawn will make it in life, but his father will perhaps never be any closer to his son. But, he will probably always wonder why.

Furnace is surprise in energy-efficient home

Most of the features on the "Super Insulated House" are invisible.

Visitors cannot see the double walls, quadruple-pane glass, foam caulking, Visqueen built into exterior walls and ceilings, extra insulation or insulated foundations.

The impact of all the hidden energy savers hits home in the basement furnace room.

It's the size of a large closet. And the furnace itself is about one-third the size it would usually take to heat the 1,840-square-foot home, says builder Bob Futrell.

The house was designed by Futrell, who is co-owner with his father Charles of Futrell and Futrell Builders of Independence Township.

As construction of the home on Almond Lane in the Woodglen Subdivision nears completion, Futrell's enthusiasm grows.

"I think it's a refreshing change," he says. "All of a sudden, you've got a house that heats for a fraction of what it did."

"It's just a very exciting house to work on. We've had to put a lot of extra care on the house. It's absolutely imperative to plug up all the leaks."

Futrell has lived in Independence Township 14 years. A builder 18 years, he has worked with his father for the past 16 years.

He designed the house after studying different types of energy efficient homes for the past two-and-one half years, he says.

A seminar at the Michigan Institute of Technology offered some of the information and he's visited energy-efficient homes in Kansas, Massachusetts and Michigan.

"In my concept, I tried to come up with something that was cost-efficient," he says. "I think it's shaping up very well. There's nothing better than to come out of the cold air into a warm house and have it heated with 58,000 BTUs."

A 120,000 to 160,000 BTU furnace would usually be required to heat a three-bedroom home with a family room and den, he says.

Doing Business

R-11 is the normal measure of resistance to heat loss in a home and the "Super Insulated House" pulls an R-32, he says.

There's even a sealed wood-burning stove instead of the standard fireplace in the family room, and Futrell says it's possible to heat the home with that.

The house does such a good job of keeping the heat inside, there's one problem.

"Because it's so efficient, the heat loss is very low. You gain heat from lighting, humans, cooking and appliances," Futrell explains. "Because the house is so tight, you run into an air quality problem."

A normal house has one to two complete air changes within an hour, but this house has only one-fourth to one-third of the air exchanged, he says.

Air-to-air heat exchangers solve the problem — the small machines filter the air and return most of it to the house.

During installation of the dry wall when heat was necessary, the furnace in the house came on only three times during the day, Futrell says. The temperature outside was 20 degrees and the wind was blowing.

The true test, however, is yet to come.

"We're looking at between 75 and 66 percent fuel savings — that's what we're hoping to attain," he says. "That will depend on the family that lives in the home."

Charles [left] and Bob Futrell look forward to when a family moves into the "super insulated" home they built and puts its qualities to the test.

Watch for 'Tin Man'

Add another to the many faces of Homer Biondi. The Independence Township man whose clown character "Sandy" appeared in the Hudson's Thanksgiving Day Parade and who portrayed the Town Crier during recent Yule festivities in Holly is now taking on the appearance of the Tin Man of "Wizard of Oz" fame.

Biondi is to appear in opening ceremonies of the Detroit Auto Show at Cobo Hall on Saturday, Jan. 10, and during children's nights at the show on Jan. 12 and 13.

The "Tin Man" is to be part of a group of four with his wife Vi appearing as Winnie the Pooh and two friends as the Cowardly Lion and Yoda.

Engaged

Dr. and Mrs. B. J. Page of Allen Lane, Independence Township, announce the engagement of their daughter Peggy to Michael Gooch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Gooch Jr. of Kingston, Tenn. The bride-to-be is a student at the Oxford School of Business. Her fiancé is a graduate of Oakland University, Rochester. A Feb. 14 wedding is planned.

Betrothed

Tamera Ann Nelson and Thomas Lowrie plan a July wedding. The bride-elect is the daughter of Nancy McDonald of Farmington Hills. A graduate of Western Michigan University, she is employed by K. D. Butler Levi Store of Rochester, Troy and Farmington. Her fiancé is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Lowrie of Brandon Township. Also a WMU graduate, he is self-employed with Lowrie's Landscape.

Recipe File

By Lorna Bickerstaff

Laurie Stern of Country Greens is sharing her recipe for Carob Brownies with The Clarkston News. Laurie said carob is a good, inexpensive and healthy alternative to chocolate. It is available in health food stores and some markets. The brownies keep well and stay moist for a long time.

Carob Brownies

- 1 c. whole wheat pastry flour
- 1 c. baking powder
- 1/2 t. salt
- 1/2 c. butter or margarine
- 1/2 c. carob powder
- 1 c. honey
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1/2 c. broken walnuts
- 1 t. vanilla

Sift flour, baking powder and salt. Melt butter over low heat. Add carob powder and honey, blend and take off stove. Add beaten eggs. Add dry ingredients and mix well. Blend in nuts and vanilla.

Pour into oiled 8-inch square pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 to 45 minutes.

Needy families get Yule boost

Christmas for two local families was made better this year through the caring efforts of two area groups.

This year, as in past years, the Clarkston Community Women's Club gathered for the annual tradition of gift wrapping.

There were toys for the children and each member of the family received an outfit.

Christmas dinner consisted of a turkey, ham, nuts, fruits and the ingredients for pies.

The Clarkston Cinema provided six theater passes and the Coney Island Inn donated passes for dinner.

Job's Daughters gathered this year for their special offering to another local family.

The group caroled throughout the township, collecting money of canned goods. This, coupled with their own donations of meat and fresh vegetables, was delivered to a township family who four years ago had suffered a fire in their home, and are still unable to recover their losses, according to group member Linda Smith Kath.

Job's Daughters would like to thank all those who donated canned goods, and made someone else's Christmas that much better.

Smith-Tarki exchange vows

Theresa L. Smith and John W. Tarki were recently united in marriage at Orchard Lake Community Church Presbyterian.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Smith of the Clarkston area and Sulo J. Tarki of Southfield.

The Rev. Edward Pierson performed the traditional candlelight service on Oct. 25. Scripture readings were done by Sue Schweier and Marge La Pointe.

Sister of the bride, Donna Farnsworth of Clarkston, served as matron of honor.

Jayne Geneau of West Bloomfield and Lynette Smith of Mt. Clemens also attended the bride.

The flower girl was Jenette Smith of Mt. Clemens.

Dale LaPointe of Walled Lake performed the duties of best man. Groomsmen were Bill Tucker of Southfield and Larry Smith of Pontiac.

The reception was held at the American Legion Hall in Independence Township.

The couple's honeymoon trip was taken to the East Coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Tarki now reside on Morrison Road in West Branch.

She is the nutrition director for TRIO Council on Aging. He plans to attend Kirtland Community College.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tarki

CHS senior Sonya Smallwood previews banking information donated to the school by Pacesetter Bank-Southeast.

Pacesetter donates how-tos

Materials to aid in learning the practical aspects of banking are on hand at Clarkston High School for the second consecutive year, thanks to Pacesetter Bank-Southeast.

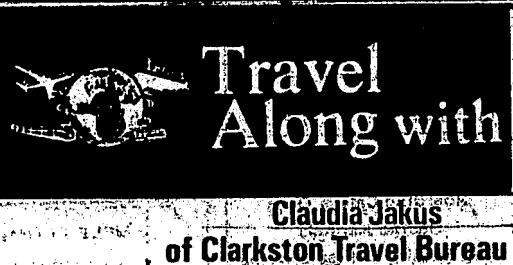

The bank donated enough film strips, transparencies, and teachers' manuals and workbooks for about 500 students.

"It's nice of them to contribute that kind of material," says Gary Nustad, business and consumer economics instructor at CHS. "It gives the students some very good, practical background in dealing with savings accounts, checking accounts and establishing credit."

Pacesetter donates the materials in an effort to give students some background on banking techniques.

"Many high school students graduate and begin using banking services without ever learning how they work," says Pacesetter's Clarkston branch Manager Betty Simmons. "It's our hope that each Clarkston student will be exposed to this course during his or her school career."

Claudia Jakus
of Clarkston Travel Bureau

Mont Ste-Anne is a mere twenty-five miles from Quebec City. The mountain top ski lodge has a sun deck which faces the St. Lawrence. It is an excellent spot for a scenic, heart-warming breakfast. The north side faces the Canadian wilderness. Mont Ste-Anne boasts No. 1 La Crete. "The Crest" is the mountain's premier racing trail and a stop on the World Cup Tour. Its two mile course provides a hair-raising vertical drop of 2,050 feet. For the less adventuresome, the base lodge provides a full view of the trail. There is also an after-ski disco bar. In all, this location provides quite a run for the money.

Complete travel service is provided by us at CLARKSTON TRAVEL BUREAU INC., 6 N. Main St., 625-0325, conveniently located in downtown Clarkston with ample parking. Friendly attention is given to all our clients. Businessmen have your secretary call us. John Collier's carving talents Caricaturist: lead to spot on UAW calendar

By Marilyn Trumper

Two cases flanking the walls of Jack Collier's living room are filled with intricate carvings—complete with fine detail rivaling that of Norman Rockwell.

They're testament to Jack's self-learned artistry.

Twenty-five years ago, Jack ambled over to a bench, and sat down to wait out his two sons' baseball practice.

Reaching down to the ground, he picked up a stick and began whittling with a jackknife.

That was the beginning.

"I started with whittling and what I'd done looked like the base of a chess piece, so I kept going," he said. "It took me a long time to finish the set, and after that I didn't carve for a long time.

"I don't know why," he said softly, "I always like it."

As with many of Jack's works, each chess piece is a caricature.

He's tossed tradition out the window.

The word "chess," denoting a serious man's game where single moves can take hours, was not in Jack's vocabulary.

Huge-headed horses sporting protruding buck teeth sit on the board. They're accompanied by bishops with tongues sticking out and Frankenstein with electrodes on his neck.

"That's the way I see everything," the 56-year-old man said. "I don't try to make them that way; they just come out that way.

"I modeled the horse after an old AC Spark Plug ad picturing a smiling horse," he said. "But I never really think about the actual carving. It just kind of happens magically. If I make a clown's feet too big, it's okay, because they're supposed to be too big.

"It seems hard to make them realistic. They always seem to turn out cartoonish. I've always liked caricatures. I'd practice drawing them and then just started one day in wood," he said.

Jack's cabinet inside his home on Warbler Road, Independence Township, sports clowns with rag-tagged coats, wiry hair and grand round noses.

One good humoredly totes a pig in a bag.

A grotesque court jester with exaggerated appendages flails his arms, nearly bouncing the bells on his cap.

A crippled, bent old woman with her face shrouded in a peasant's veil, hauls a load of sticks on her back. She's a vision of the Middle Ages.

"That was originally to be a tooth pick holder for my wife," Jack said.

A few weeks ago Jack finished his 101th caricature of a head. It was a farewell gift to a retiring co-worker at General Motors Truck and Coach.

"I do most all of my work from memory, but when you see the guys at work every day, you really get a chance to study them," Jack said.

A second toothpick holder, carved in 1975, gained Jack a spot in the United Auto Workers (UAW) and the UAW Local Union Press Association's 1981 Calendar.

It's a caricature of himself.

And for that one, Jack admits, he studied his reflection in the mirror.

"It's hard to believe I won," Jack said smiling. "I carved it so long ago. I saw the contest advertised in the Solidarity House paper and I really thought I wanted to carve something about the union. I thought about Doug Fraser or Walter Reuther, but I couldn't make the deadline."

The carving depicts Jack hauling a garbage can.

The resemblance is striking, and the only difference is the specs now resting on Jack's nose.

"Years ago, I drove a truck and hauled scrap wood," he said. "The carving is about that."

Truly it tells the story of the working man, the blue collar employee complete with work boots, work pants and gloves.

In a second contest judging in which Jack took second place, Jay Belloli, Curator of the Detroit Institute of Arts said, "I particularly like Collier's carving of himself taking out the garbage, because it says an awful lot about the job; the stance shows Collier really knows how it feels to carry that garbage can."

Jack's work for the calendar was chosen from 1,500 entries in an international contest sponsored by the UAW Local Union Press Association.

His is among the top 24 works of art on exhibit at UAW headquarters, Solidarity House, at 8000 E. Jefferson Ave., Detroit, now through January, daily, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Doubling as a catalog for the exhibit, the full-color calendar displays the top 24 works in the show.

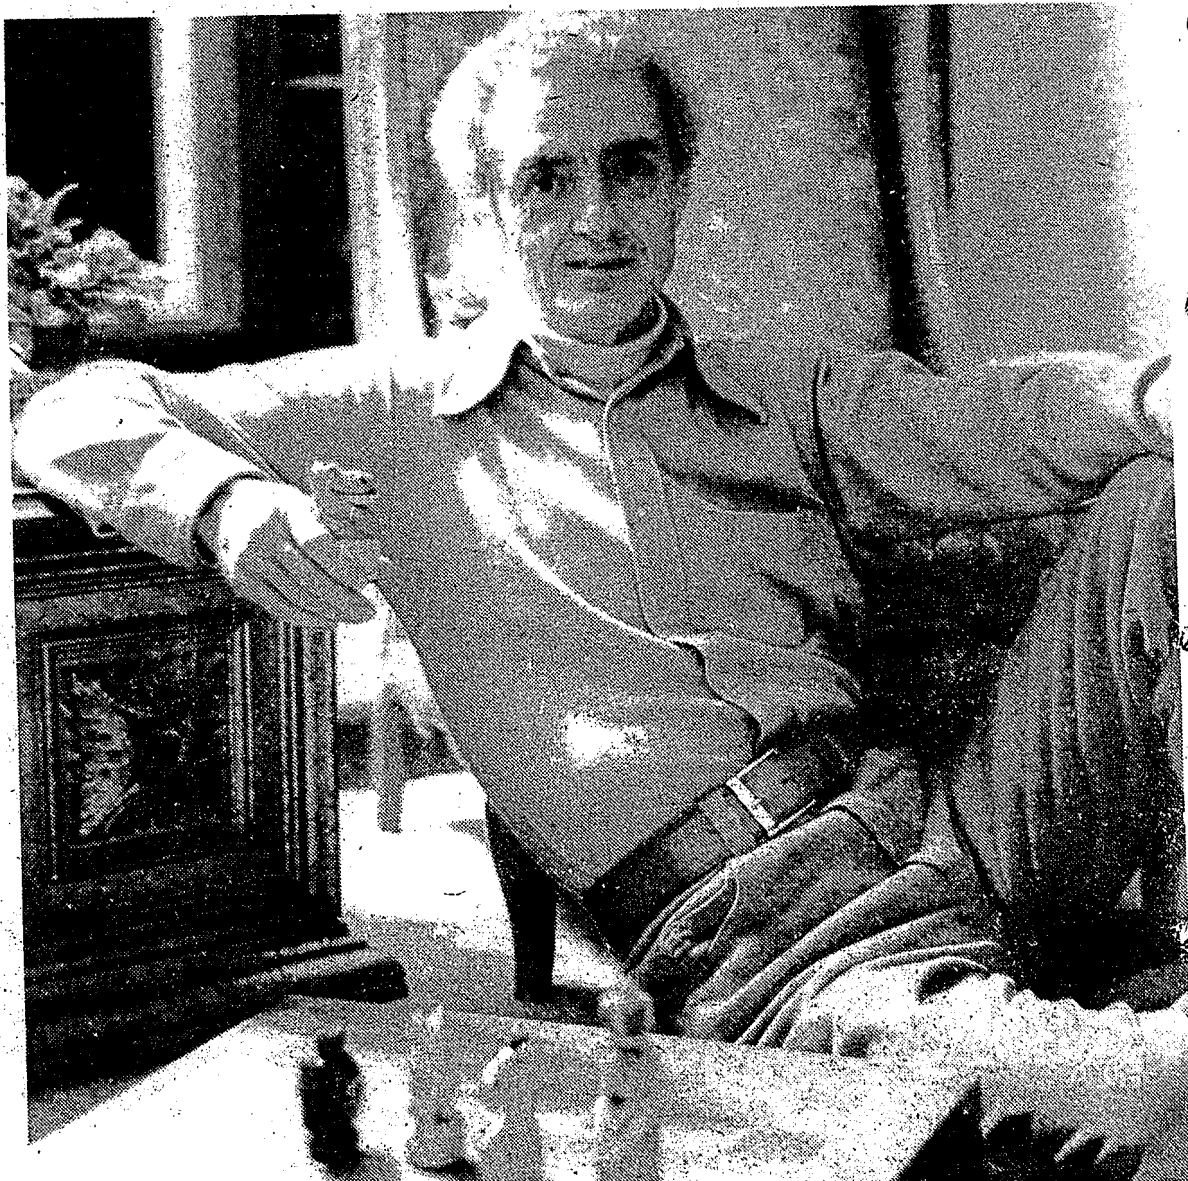

Copies can be obtained by sending a check for $3.75 to the UAW Local Union Press Association, 8000 East Jefferson Ave., Detroit, MI 48214.

Huge feet, wide smiles and grand noses make it easy to distinguish these as clowns. While one of the delicate carvings brandishes a spiraling walking stick, the other opts to adorn his ensemble with a pig in a bag.

This carving's detail rivals that of Norman Rockwell, and the subject for the piece is Jack's youngest daughter. The cat actually seems to flick its tail and stiffen in the awkward position while the family's dog joins in the act.

The wide smile and protruding buck teeth of this chess piece reflect Jack Collier's caricature carving ability. Hour after hour he worked to create a unique chess set with each piece as individual as the next. Even the most serious of players would find it difficult to sit down to a game without a snicker.
