Leanne won't have any trouble remembering the date she became a United States citizen—it was St. Patrick's Day, too!

She's so glad she's livin' in the USA

By Kathy Greenfield

Leanne Reed was proud.

The party in her first grade classroom at Andersonville Elementary School last week was just for her, and it was even more special than a birthday celebration.

She had become a citizen of the United States just the day before on March 17, and now it was time for her young friends to share in the excitement.

For this special day, she wore red, white and blue—her T-shirt said it all with "I Love the USA!" in a stars and stripes design.

The day before, when Leanne missed school because she was at the Oakland County Court House taking her oath with about 100 other people, her classmates made cards with happy messages about her new status.

Leanne shared her memories of the day with the other first graders and her teacher, Lois Grice.

"They talked to all of us," she said. "There were a lot of people there--adults, like dads and moms.

"And then," she said, her eyes sparkling, "you got to have cookies."

Leanne's mother, Carolann Reed, brought in another surprise—a gift from the pastors of their church, the Rev. Bill and the Rev. Jenny Scram of Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church.

It was her citizenship certificate framed and under glass.

"You can hang it in your room," her mom said.

Then the youngsters sat down to apple juice and slices of cake with red white and blue frosting—and each piece was topped with a miniature US flag.

Leanne was adopted by the Reeds—Jim and Carolann—two years ago. She was born in Korea.

The Reeds, who have five other children, live on Ellis Road in Springfield Township.

$20,000 bond forfeiture asked

By Marilyn Trumper

The Stolaruk Corp. has reached the end of the line as far as Independence Township is concerned.

The corporation failed to reclaim the Stickney gravel pit as outlined in a 1979 consent judgment and the township has moved for forfeiture of a $20,000 bond.

At the March 19 special meeting, township board members voted 6 to 1 to move on forfeiture. Treasurer Fredrick Ritter dissented.

"We've come to the point where we've tried to be cooperative and do the right things," said Trustee Dale Stuart after the meeting. "But when they (Stolaruk) don't do it, it's time for us to take action."

"It was time to call them on it. They've wreaked havoc on all the citizens around the project and there is serious safety at stake," Stuart said.

In 1972 the Stolaruk Corp. appeared before the township's zoning board of appeals (ZBA) for permission to mine the 23-acre abandoned gravel pit off Stickney Road.

The ZBA approved the request, but with stipulations which included a reclamation plan, hours of operation and road oiling, said Timothy Palulian, director of the township building and planning department.

In 1978, Stolaruk appeared before the ZBA for an extension, and one was granted which mandated mining be completed by December of that year, he said. In December of 1979 the township took court action when Stolaruk continued to mine, and in February of 1979 the township and the corporation entered into a consent judgment.

The agreement allowed Stolaruk to mine until the spring of 1979 with June 1 as the targeted deadline date for completion and reclamation, Palulian said.

At this time, Stolaruk upped the bond to $20,000 as assurance to the township the work would be completed on time.

Since that time, the township has been in and out of court on this issue, with the courts extending the mining deadline, Palulian said.

In 1979, the circuit court ruled in the township's favor, but Stolaruk appealed the decision.

The case has since been handed back to the circuit court, on a technicality, Palulian said, and Independence Township has begun prosecution all over again, with its first move seeking forfeiture of the $20,000 bond.

Local man dies in car crash

A 30-year-old Independence Township man lost his life in an automobile accident early Monday morning, when the car he was driving crossed the center lane on Dixie Highway, veered into oncoming traffic and struck a lumber truck.

Dead is Jeffrey Duane Richardson of 5720 White Lake. According to reports from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, Richardson pulled out of the Deer Lake Inn, 7504 Dixie Highway, at about 2:30 a.m., and began driving in the northbound lane. The driver of the lumber truck, Mitchell Larry Minto of Alpena, said he saw the car without lights veer across the road and back again before it struck his truck. Minton did not require medical aid at the scene, but sought treatment later, reports said.

Correction

Three items included in a list of recommendations regarding a condominium-commercial development proposed off the I-75 and Dixie Highway intersection were incorrectly attributed in the March 11 edition of The Clarkston News.

Although the items were discussed during the township board meeting, Trustee Larence Kozma did not recommend that it should be noted that condominium residents would not have access to Deer Lake on private beaches, that a passing lane should be constructed off Dixie Highway near the Deer Hill Drive entrance, nor that the third lane on Deer Hill Drive be constructed on the commercial property side.

Lakeview Cemetery enforces rules

Adopted in 1949, staff cuts spur implementation

An old adage is quashed. Contrary to popular belief, there's no peace in the land of eternal sleep. Even the dead are haunted by Independence Township's budget crackdown. Effective immediately, there are rules regulating operations at Lakeview Cemetery, 6150 White Lake, Independence Township. The rules were adopted by the township board in 1949, but this is a first for implementation, said Bud Parker, cemetery superintendent. Dead bushes, broken pots, faded flowers and scattered statues have proved too much maintenance for the staff, Parker said. "We've been tolerating conditions, but we've come to the point where we can't take it anymore. With budget cuts, we won't have the help we've had in the past to do the work," Parker said. A sign at the cemetery entrance offers these guidelines:

•No artificial flowers between March 15 and Nov. 15.
•No rose bushes.
•Metal and cement urns only, no plastic or clay pots.

- No statues or toys.
- No pets.
- Urn not in use after June 15 will be removed.
- One urn per lot.
- All plantings must be supervised.
- An 8 mph speed-limit will be enforced.

Parks, buildings, roads to get federal assist

By Marilyn Trumper

Spend federal revenue sharing money to benefit the many—and not the few—said residents at the Independence Township Board meeting.

Approximately 25 people attended the March 17 meeting and many offered ways to spend an expected $100,000 in 1981-82 federal revenue.

None who spoke favored the construction of a boat launch and dock at Deer Lake Beach, an earlier proposal by Timothy Doyle, director of the township's parks and recreation departments.

"I think we should look at reversing the erosion process and concentrate on the beach, rather than the boat ramp," said Roy Haessler of Hillside Drive. "The beach benefits more people."

Bud Volberding of Deer Lake Road offered other alternatives for spending.

"I'd much prefer the money be used on lowering taxes, or for the senior citizens program, or for paving Deer Lake Road. That way you benefit thousands instead of 88," he said, referring to the number who would use the dock. "You have a whole range of alternatives."

Doug Carlson of Phelan Drive, echoed those sentiments. "It's getting increasingly more crowded on Deer Lake. I don't want to do anything that would increase boat activity."

"An additional boat ramp would increase traffic draw to the lake. I suggest we fix the fence, sand or ball diamonds," he said.

A representative of the Clarkston Community Historical Society asked for a $5,000 allocation for restoration and fencing of Case Cemetery.

"It's in deplorable condition and is filled with some of the early settlers of Clarkston," she said. "We do not have adequate funds to do the whole thing ourselves."

Trustee Dale Stuart proposed allocating $4,000 to the parks department for one park laborer to compensate for the loss of CETA employees.

The proposal met opposition from members of the board.

Supervisor James B. Smith and Treasurer Frederick Ritter reminded the board of communities which had relied heavily on federally funded employees and the results when the CETA

"It was a wreck," Smith said. "I foresee, that for whatever good reason, if we pick up labor this program was cut and workers laid-off."

year (with federal revenue) we'll have a harder time next year. "Parks and rec will survive without that laborer. Interns are available on a fairly regular basis, and they're good and hardworking," Smith said. After discussion, the board voted 6 to 1 to approve a $25,000 allocation to parks for management and maintenance, $25,777 for buildings and equipment, $25,000 for road chloridation, $20,000 for library materials and $5,000 to the Case Cemetery. Trustee Dale Stuart voted "no."

Independence takes over cemetery

There's help on the way for some of Clarkston's earliest settlers buried in abandoned Case Cemetery off Dartmouth Road in Independence Township.

They may be gone, but the Clarkston Community Historical Society has not forgotten.

On March 11, the cemetery became the property of Independence Township, following a ruling by Oakland County Circuit Court Judge James S. Thorburn.

The historical society's first priority is to install a fence around the land, said Marilyn Rosmer, chairperson of the Committee for Case Cemetery.

"The township board gave us a $5,000 grant in federal revenue sharing money, and we'll use that to put up the fence," Rosmer said.

"Then after the township begins cutting the weeds we can begin restoration of the headstones.

"The historical society is not a rich society, but we want to help with some of the funding and plan to do so," she said.

In December, the historical society petitioned the township to vacate the abandoned property and maintain gravesites for preservation purposes.

Vandals had smashed and stolen headstones, grass was growing five-feet high and the fence around the perimeter had fallen down.

Graves date back to the 1800s and the last burial took place in 1950, according to headstones.

The last recorded title dated September 1856 named the cemetery association, Hammon Union Burying Ground, but no one appeared in court to protest the township's move to vacate, said Robert White, acting township attorney.

Sediment sparks concerns

By Marilyn Trumper

Clarkston's Village Council may already have a job for newly hired engineers Mosher-Kapalczak Inc.

If the retention basin in Deer Lake Farms is causing sedimentation in the Clarkston Mill Pond, Trustee Ruth Basinger wants to know.

"I think the new village engineers should get started with the retention basin in Deer Lake Farms, and see if it's... causing sedimentation in the Mill Pond," she said at the March 16 village council meeting.

No council pay hikes

Will there be pay hikes in the 1981-82 fiscal year for Clarkston's elected officials and planning commission members?

No way, said council members at the March 16 meeting.

"I myself am very happy with (my salary). I'm taken care of as far as I'm concerned," said President Fontie ApMadoc.

Trustee Gary Symons echoed ApMadoc.

"In these inflationary times, I move we stick with our present sums," he said.

Council members voted unanimously to hold salaries the same for the 1981-82 fiscal year which begins April 1.

Salaries are: $50 per meeting for the president, $4,000 annually for the clerk, $3,750 annually for the treasurer and an additional $850 for sewer billings, $20 per meeting for the planning commission chairman and secretary and $5 per meeting for its members.

Village President Fontie ApMadoc disagreed.

"I see that as us spending out money on something that should be done by the township," she said. "I think we should take it up to the supervisor in Independence. I don't even know that Jim (James B. Smith, Independence Township Supervisor) is aware of our problem. He might take it from there."

Deer Lake Farms subdivision is on land in both Independence Township and the village of Clarkston.

The basin was designed to keep sediment from draining into the Mill Pond, and the township is responsible for the maintenance agreement.

"I don't think it would be improper to have the village engineers look into it and see if the retention basin is functioning properly," Basinger said.

"It would be helpful to village residents to know what the sources of pollution are and, with advice on those sources, the village would be in a better position to act," she said.

Trustee Jackson Byers agreed, and proposed more than a cursory look by engineers.

"It looks to me like there's a moral obligation on our part and we shouldn't throw it into the lap of the township," he said.

Council directed the engineers to provide an estimate on the cost of the proposed review.

Talking about . . .

Should police go after escaping suspects when pursuit results in an automobile chase?

"Yes, if what they're doing is against the law, if they've committed a crime, they should be pursued."--Dennis Wright, Springfield Township, carpenter.

"I suppose so, but I can't really put it briefly. I feel if a person is suspected of committing a crime and walked out that business's door, he should be pursued. The fact that he might jump into a car doesn't mean he shouldn't be chased." Gwen Kage, Independence Township, CJHS volunteer.

"I think so. I don't know how else they would be caught. If someone commits a robbery and say they are chased, people could get hurt. But what about the people who are hurt anyway if the guy gets away"--Kathi Dennis, Pontiac, clerk.

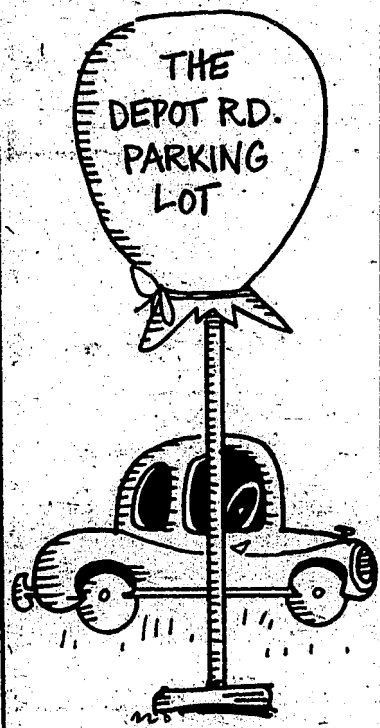

"I would say police should use reason and judgment when approaching a suspect and they shouldn't blindly pursue. Should the situation show they could hurt themselves or other people, I don't think so."--Maynard Hall, Waterford, salesman.

"Not if it's going to endanger other people's lives. You'd have to look at the area first, like for example, Dixie Highway. That would be pretty dangerous for a chase scene."--Cindy Keller, Independence Township, clerk.

Letters to editor

Now's the time to speak out

Independence Taxpayers:

Are you angry enough to attend this year's Annual Township Meeting, this coming Saturday, March 28, at 1 p.m. at the Township Hall on North Main?

Are you going to let all attending township officials and township employees and all others there know how you really feel about taxes, property assessments, township budgets (past and future)?

Are you going to propose motions on any raises and spending of your money OR are you going to pass the buck?

Are you going to just bitch where it doesn't count or are you going to put yourself where your mouth is?

It is your choice, again, but don't blame anyone for your own apathy if you don't attend.

Iva Sommers Caverly

Grable Benefit raises $1,700

To the editor:

Thank you for the recent article for the Ken Grable Benefit. The benefit was a great success and the Clarkston bus drivers raised $1,700. The community response was overwhelming and many, many unknown supporters donated baked goods for the bake sale.

There are so many other people helping out and money is still coming in.

Anyone wishing to make a donation may do so by sending a check to the Grable Benefit Fund at the Clarkston Community Schools Employees Credit Union. The address is 32 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Friends of Ken's will be glad to know plans are underway to transfer him to William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak.

Ken's condition is improving somewhat and having him closer to home will be a great help for the whole family.

Thank you,
Lois Schilter

Misleading photo

To the editor:

We were extremely disappointed in the picture on page B-3 in The Clarkston News edition of March 11.

The article included information about industrial growth in Springfield Township.

The photograph that you ran was of the Sys-T-Mation sign with the Larden Plastics facilities shown in the background which would indicate that Larden Plastics was the Sys-T-Mation plant, which of course it is not.

It is our opinion that this photography was misleading.

Gasoline blues

by Kathy Greenfield

There is absolutely nothing that grinds me more than parting with $30 or $35 for a tank of gasoline.

With other expenses that are also skyrocketing, it seems like there are positive steps that can be taken, steps that aren't quite as painful.

Food bills can be chopped by simply eliminating junk food—everyone's healthier. I can cope with the rational that if I buy seedless grapes or strawberries at an inflated price, I can eliminate candy and still be about even.

Cost of natural gas for home heating can be reduced by turning down the heat or and adding blankets to make beds more snugly. The big bonus here is that spring is coming and summer, too—relief from heating bills is within sight.

Electricity, too, can be kept under wraps. Candlelight is special, after all—so is an evening spent playing board games and leaving the TV set off.

There's even adventure to be found in shopping more wisely for clothing—buying an outfit, perhaps, that will last longer because it is made better rather than three items that will look good until they've been washed a few times. Bargain hunting can be fun.

But, back to gasoline. What do you give up? Do you stop visiting your parents? Stop going to movies? Stop driving to work?

Thoughts turn to buying a new car—one that's smaller and more fuel efficient.

After getting over the shock of the cost, you realize that a car made in Japan, Germany, England, France will get better mileage than one made in America.

Then, you feel guilty about even considering not helping the economy by buying a car made in the United States.

Still, I can't help it—I sometimes yearn for the days when I drove a trusty Volkswagen for miles and miles and miles on one tank of gas.

Someone said the other day that all the problems with the economy can be traced back to the soaring costs of gasoline.

When I begin thinking of all this, I remember back about eight years ago when there were several books out on the environment and predictions were made about changes that could take place.

One prediction involved a change in the whole society—a back to small-town sort of atmosphere where people would again be dependent upon a relatively small area for shopping and socializing.

It seems we are now rapidly moving in that direction.

Jim's jottings

Inflation fills federal coffers

by Jim Sherman

Mother would worry if she knew how some of our thought processes have changed since she's gone. Father probably agrees with me.

Take for instance the group of people in Wisconsin (who call themselves a 'posse') who have given their homes to the church, so they won't have to pay taxes.

Then they went on welfare. Got to admire these people who make the unfair tax system work for them.

Then there's the two or more guys who saw a bag of money fall out the back door of a van out east.

They stopped their old jalopy, tossed the loot in the back seat and rode off, laughing merrily. We wanted them to laugh unto eternity... rich.

We laughed with them, thinking of the dopy or lazy security truck drivers who were apparently negligent in latching the back door of their money wagon.

We knew the drivers wouldn't lose their jobs. They'd claim discrimination, job stress, or pimples, if charged with negligence.

It wasn't to be. They got caught and had too little chance to spend some of the $1.2 million they picked off the streets. There they were in the right place at the right time, but they couldn't hold back their emotions.

We think these sinful thoughts when we read some items of double talk from D.C.

Washington says it wants to curb inflation...but does it?

The Consumer Price Index figures are used to determine growth of inflation. President Reagan and his cabinet, and others, want the CPI to be reduced, they say.

But, every time there is a one percent rise in the CPI there is a $1.5 billion addition in federal coffers for spending, according to Hudson Home Magazine.

The writer says the incomes of 68 million Americans are pegged to the CPI. Of those, almost 60 million are receiving Social Security payments, food stamp subsidies, and military and Civil Service pensions.

All, of course, are paid out of federal taxes. When the CPI goes up, moreover, so do the wages of many workers in private industry, continuing the inflationary spiral.

The conclusion is the government's Consumer Price Index itself actually plays a part in fanning inflation.

Maybe a church would like a newspaper plant.

Art museum culture hits classrooms

By Marilyn Trumper

It may seem a violation to some when a slide of a Roman bath is compared to Vic Tanny's—the Roman bath of today.

Or, when a slide of a crumbling coliseum is compared to the Pontiac Silverdome—the 20th century's sporting arena.

For Ann Wood, they're two of the best analogies for students in

'I love working with the youngsters and it keeps me reading and interested.'

When the slides are returned to the carousel, the screen's back in place and the audience disperses, Sharon Hurlbert (left) and Ann Wood take time out to relax and talk over the presentation. The women, volunteers in the Detroit Institute of Art's "Art to the Schools" program, visit metropolitan Detroit area schools, bringing a piece of the museum right into the classroom. The women specialize in ancient and American art, delivering presentations with a flair of collegiate instructors.

school, who for the first time are introduced to the ways of ancient art.

Ann and co-lecturer Sharon Hurlbert, both of Independence Township, are volunteers in the Detroit Institute of Art's (DIA) "Art to the Schools" program.

They bring the museum right into the fourth, fifth and sixth grade classrooms of public, private and parochial schools in the Metropolitan Detroit area and surrounding communities.

Volunteers lecture, show slides, pass around reproductions for examination and discuss art.

They teach history, the evolution of art and students are encouraged to look for detail and explain why a work is good.

Students learn of the different mediums, why a painting was done a certain way and what symbolism is.

Both women just wound up visits to sixth-grade classes in the Clarkston Schools where they lectured on their own specialties. Ann's expertise is ancient art and Sharon lectures on American art.

In the classroom, they tackle the job with the finesse and delivery of college professors.

But, their ability evolved after a full year of classes at the DIA, rigorous testing and plenty of research.

Once a week for a year, the duo traveled to the DIA and studied under the direction of Michael Farrell, a University of Windsor professor.

Ann and Sharon have incorporated his philosophy, which Sharon says makes art complete, into their lectures.

"He taught me that art is fun and inspired me to make it fun. He taught that it's something we can laugh with, that it doesn't always have to be serious," she said.

"I personally like art and have found I'm able to create an enthusiasm with the children. But, the one thing I've discovered is you're never quite ready enough for a lecture.

"There is always the child who asked you a question the week before that you couldn't answer. So you research, because you want to be ready for the next time. You're never really done."

Sharon said her involvement with the DIA followed the "Picture Lady Program."

The move was a natural, she said.

"I wanted to learn more, discovered the institute's program and became involved."

Ann said the research and challenge are the best assets of the program.

"I find it very satisfying. I love working with the youngsters and it keeps me reading and interested. One question always leads to another piece of history," she said.

Neither woman is paid for her efforts and they are not reimbursed for gasoline costs.

Weekly, they visit schools all over the southeastern metro-Detroit area.

"I'm very grateful for the training I received at the art institute," Sharon said. "And you know, the best thing about it is that Ann and I are no different than anyone else. All the women who are involved in the program receive the same training."

The DIA offers training in talks on ancient, American, African-Native American, introduction and modern art.

Anyone interested in further information on the DIA's volunteer "Art to the Schools" program may call Laurel Sichelsteel at 833-7883.

Lost: One umbrage

by Jim Fitzgerald

There are a few things I've been meaning to tell you...

...A young man I know well has learned that hitchhiking can be approached reverently. Due to circumstances beyond his control, he was in church on a Sunday in St. Louis, Mo., with no wheels, short funds and no idea how he would make it back to Detroit in time for college classes the next morning. Long ago he promised his mother, the world's champion worrier, that he would try to accomplish his world travels without thumbing rides from stranger. His tries usually fall short of success.

But this time the stranger driver was found with the assistance of someone whose credentials are good enough to calm the most fretful mother: God. Many churches, including the one in St. Louis, have a "time for sharing concerns" as a regular part of Sunday services. People in the congregation stand up and describe a particular problem that is concerning them and ask everyone to pray to God that everything comes out all right.

On this Sunday in St. Louis, a woman announced that she was concerned about her husband, sitting beside her, because he had to drive all the way to Detroit that afternoon. She asked everyone to ask God to make his trip safe. You can fill in the rest. It was the first time the young man ever thumbed in an aisle and the first time he ever told his mother a hitchhiking story without making her chew her wrists. Religion is the opiate of worried mothers.

Recently, while reporting that this column is out because it is in, I complained that it's not easy being chic. A lot of things aren't easy. For instance, recently my wife and I dined in a fancy restaurant with Harry Satchwell and Mary Conway, co-authors of the annual "Meet, Eat and Enjoy" book of Detroit-area restaurant menus. Harry tasted the wine and pronounced it "assertive."

I said my whitefish was bellicose, and I was immediately wrestled to the floor by half a loaf of belligerent bread.

It's not easy being a gourmet. Several things I wrote prompted a reader to write: "You are forever hanging on piano bars or listening to live music in saloons or theaters. Tell me, most weekends, where do you hear the best music?"

I cannot tell a lie. Most weekends, the best music I hear is on Sunday in downtown Detroit's Old Christ Episcopal Church where Dr. Malcolm Johns directs a splendid choir replete with magnificent soloists.

The noise you just heard was the walls of Port Huron's Alibi Bar crumbling at the thought of my tapping time with a swizzle stick in church.

As a man with four sisters, I know it is important to treat a female sibling fairly, lest she take umbrage out of your hide. So this is a correction. Last Saturday I wrote that my favorite quote of the year was voiced by Nancy Korte of St. Clair Shores who watched while her sister Carol pranced in a beauty competition, and Nancy said: "I wouldn't do it. I think it's a meat market—but my sister's a nice cut."

The quote is correct, but Nancy didn't say it. She phoned to say I was a victim of a reporter's error. It was another Korte sister, Mary Beth, who said Carol is a nice cut. Nancy said the credit should go where it is due, or maybe she meant blame, and I quickly agreed. That's the way my much older sister, Terrible Jean, brought me up. By the time I was 10, I didn't have any umbrage left.

M-15 widening under latest task force scrutiny

By Marilyn Trumper

For years, a proposal to widen M-15 to five lanes south of the village has hung like a cloud over many heads of Clarkston area residents.

Each spring, conversation at the annual meeting swells around road repair, paving and upkeep.

Residents living on private roads have thrown up hands in despair, unable to receive aid from state, county or township.

At the March 17 meeting, Independence Township Supervisor James B. Smith produced his latest task force targeted at searching for solutions to private and arterial road trouble spots.

The first area dealt with the proposed widening of M-15 south of the village. Smith noted such action would irreparably violate the aesthetics as well as many structures on historic Main Street.

"Yet widening of at least a portion of this highway between the village and the Dixie Highway is becoming imperative to alleviate crowded conditions in the commercially developed portions of the corridor," the letter said.

The task force was directed to look into the feasibility of alternate routes, bypass controls and traffic lights.

Smith's second target concerned other arterial highway problems, including the routing of southbound Dixie Highway traffic onto northbound M-15 and proper development of the Sashabaw corridor from Dixie Highway to I-75.

In addition, the task force is gearing up to review private roads—their repair and maintenance and the township's role in both.

In unanimous agreement, the township board approved the task force on private and arterial roads.

Chairing the five-member team is Lewis E. Wint of Overlook Drive. He is owner of the Lewis E. Wint Funeral Home on M-15 in Independence Township and chairman of the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission.

Second member of the team is Roy Haeusler of Hillside Drive, a retired civil and mechanical engineer.

Next is Jennifer Radcliff of North Main Street, Clarkston, former president of the Clarkston Community Historical Society.

Fourth team member is William D. Vandermark, of Cherry Lawn Road. Vandermark is an engineer with Borg & Beck, and a trustee on the Independence Township Board.

R. Eric Reickel of Roselawn Road completes the task force. He is manager of Oakland County Parks and Recreation.

Boys' track squad eyes improvement in '81

By Al Zawacky

There's nowhere to go but up for the Clarkston High School boys' track and field squad.

Last year, the team went through the entire season without winning a single meet, a situation that coaches Walt Wyniemko and Mike Kaul would like to correct in 1981.

"Coach Kaul and I are very optimistic—we feel we're farther ahead now than we were at this time last year," says Wyniemko.

"We'll get a chance to go against Catholic Central (the season opener March 26), and that should give us some kind of barometer on where we stand.

"Last year wasn't a good season record-wise, but we were always competitive. We were in every meet and never got blown out by anybody."

If numbers are any indication, the Clarkston cindermen should make some impressive strides this year. Forty-eight names make up the Clarkston roster, up over 50 percent from last season.

One of the most prominent names on that roster is senior Steve Wyckoff, who established a CHS record last season in the high jump. Wyckoff cleared 6-foot-7 in 1980, a mark he'll be aiming to top this spring.

In the 880, Clarkston can call upon the services of seniors Mike Schumborg and Scott Ferguson, while senior Joel Partlo figures to see action in the 440 and 220 and senior Greg Wilson in the 100 and 220.

Senior Mark Hughes will be a mainstay in the 100 and the relays, Wyniemko adds.

Clarkston's distance runners include seniors Mark Reese, Ed McInnis and John Weiler and junior John McInnis. Seniors Curt Runey and Dave Ryeson will be two hurdlers of note this year.

Junior Tom Hecker is looking to be Clarkston's premiere pole vaulter.

"We also have a number of sophomores who we feel are going to help us," Wyniemko says. "They're all working real hard and should be able to step in and contribute."

CHS boys' track coach Walt Wyniemko proudly reports that he has 47 cindermen coming out for the '81 track team.

Although they compete separately during the season, members of the boys' and girls' track teams often work out together. Last week's wet and chilly weather kept many of the two teams' practices indoors.

The Point After

by Al Zawacky

The language of the locker room

Bits and pieces...

BUDDING LANGUAGE: I have it from a reliable source that this humble column has spawned a new language among Clarkston High School athletes, a language as indispensable to jocks as German is to Germans or Italian is to Italians.

As a public service, I will define four prominent terms in this new language and will use each in a sentence. Learn these by heart and you'll be well on your way to fluency.

HACK-TAIN: A wild carnivore native to the Waterford area and noted for vicious attacks with its deadly elbows and knees. "My uncle was killed in the woods when he was mauled by the elbows of a wild Hack-tain."

BROWN BRICK BUILDING: Any office, business, or place of employment noted for waste and low productivity. "Dodge Main was just a Brown Brick Building, so Lee Iacocca closed it."

MOAL: Short for Mediocre Oakland Activities League, any high school athletic conference where the best way to gain ground on an opponent is to have a cancellation. "The way we're playing, we couldn't even win the MOAL."

GEEK: Meaning obscure. (All I know is when Eric Turner does it, he goes and beats Lansing Eastern.)

WHAT'S TO CHEER? The Milford cheerleaders took first place in the GOAL cheerleading competition recently, and if you ask me that's one heck of an achievement.

I mean, can you imagine a tougher job than being a cheerleader in Milford? Hey, I salute those Milford gals. In fact, just to help them out, I decided to show a little poetic flair and write a cheer for Milford fans.

*Hail, hail ol' Redskins!
Nineteen losses, zero wins!
Our cagers are a motley bunch,
The football team? They're out to lunch.
We shake our heads and close our eyes—
My God, it's tough to cheer you guys.*

Sweet, eh? (I'll have to remember to stay out of Milford for fear of my life.)

SPRING FORECASTS: I haven't given much thought to my varsity baseball and softball predictions yet. I still need about two weeks to mull them over, after which I will give one GOAL baseball squad and one GOAL softball squad what amounts to a kiss of death by picking them to finish first.

Remember what happened to Rochester in basketball after I named them as eventual title winners?

In the meantime, here are my prophecies:

- George Steinbrenner's millionaires to finish first in the American League East—credit that to his new third-base coach.

- I'll take the Angels in the AL West.
- The Tigers will be out of serious contention by July. Figure Sparky and crew for fourth place.

- Los Angeles in the National League West; Pittsburgh in the East.

- Al Zawacky will attend a total of two

(2) games, and will find the electronic scoreboard more entertaining than the Tigers both times.

WOLFPACK FEVER? And the winner of "Big Al's Phony Baloney Award" for the 1980-81 athletic season is... (drum roll, please)... those Wolfpack fans who stayed away in droves from the basketball games this past winter.

Remember last year? Those community-spirited souls who stood in line at 6 a.m. for tickets, attended grandiose team banquets, and forever spouted pap about how all this spirit could only happen in Clarkston?

More than a few of these sunshine patriots hardly poked a nose in the Clarkston High School gym this past season. See, if you win 26 games in a row, we'll love ya, guys. But if you just play decent basketball, well, we frankly couldn't care less.

How does that kind of attitude make Clarkston special?

Girls working hard, says coach

By Al Zawacky

The work ethic is alive and well on the Clarkston High School girls' track and field squad.

"I've never had a group of girls work harder with no complaints," says Coach Gordie Richardson.

"Our nucleus from last year is back, and we've got all those sophomores from Sashabaw who were very successful last year—they know how to win and understand that it's going to take more work now that the competition is tougher.

"That's the good thing about this team—I don't have to beg and plead to get things done. The girls finish one thing and then ask what's next."

Last season the girls finished the campaign with just one victory, beating non-league opponent Pontiac Catholic. "Obviously, one goal this season is to win more than one meet," says Richardson.

Although last year's squad may not have had a good season collectively, several individual school records tumbled. In fact, in the last two years all but four girls' track records have been broken, Richardson notes.

"That's not particularly a reflection of great coaching, but of a lot of hard work by the kids," he says.

Among Clarkston's returning seniors, three are school record holders: Seniors Dana MacCartey in the discus, and Gina Thomas and Mary Healey in the relays.

Other standouts on the 28-member roster include juniors April Hodges, Kim Hughes and Chris O'Rourke.

"Our biggest problem is depth," says Richardson. "We're still a little weak in some spots, and the competition is going to be as good as ever.

"Other than the Saginaw Valley and the PSL, I'd say our league is the toughest in the state for girls' track."

No, it's not a popular dance from the 1950's—it's two members of the CHS girls' track team, working out in the school's hallway.

A showdown is brewing between the Oakland County Sheriff's Department and Clarkston Community Schools teachers.

On Friday, March 27 at 7:30 p.m., the war begins.

That's the tipoff time for the Clarkston teachers vs. OSCD deputies basketball game, a eager contest coming to the Clarkston High School gymnasium to raise money for the Clarkston Lighting Drive.

Clarkston High School head football coach Walt Wyniemko will coach the faculty team, made up of teachers from CHS, Clarkston and Sashabaw junior highs, while Mike Bray of the sheriff's department will lead the OSCD hoopsters.

CHS principal Dom Mauti, Clarkston Community Schools Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara and Dave Larkin will officiate the contest.

Concession stands will be open for the event, and tickets may be purchased in advance at the high school office or at the door for $1.50. All proceeds will go to help purchase a new lighting system at the CHS athletic field.

Lifting for lights

Over $4,000 was raised for the Clarkston High School athletic field lighting fund at the "Lift-a-thon" held in the CHS gym Saturday afternoon. Several CHS football players and even a griddier from arch-rival Waterford Kettering collected pledges for the number of pounds they would lift during the event, and as the $4,000 final figure would indicate, the result was a smashing success. Here, CHS senior Mark Hughes tackles 230 pounds of iron. Dave Fulcher pressed 280 pounds in the event to top all weight lifters, followed by successful 275-pound attempts by Kurt Charboneau and Tim Brennan. Brennan led the way in pledges collected, earning $450.

Mike Whitehead (pictured above) and Gary Cobb of the Detroit Lions made guest appearances at the Lift-a-thon, and gave the Clarkston High School gridders present a few pointers on weight lifting and conditioning.

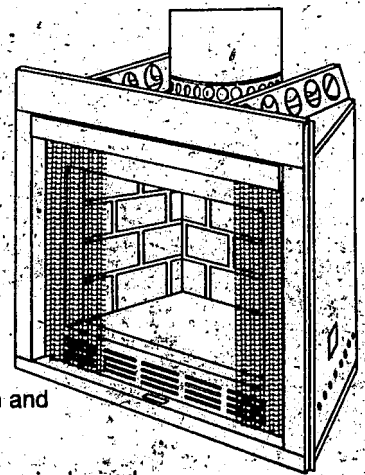

Using CHS junior Mark Petterson as a teaching aid, Detroit Lion Gary Cobb makes a point about upper body strength.

Officials seek 5% pay hikes

Springfield Township's $380,000 proposed budget for fiscal 1981-82 will be a major topic at the township's annual meeting Saturday.

Springfield electors gathered at the meeting will be able to look over and make comments on the budget and set township officials' salaries.

Included in the projected budget, which represents an increase of approximately $69,000 over last year's figure, is a 5 percent pay increase for Springfield's supervisor, Clerk, treasurer and trustees.

Supervisor Collin Walls currently makes $20,500 per year. Clerk J. Calvin Walters' annual salary is $19,400 and Treasurer Patricia Kamer makes $17,600 per year. Trustees Glen Vermilye and William Whitley currently receive $600 per year and $40 per board meeting.

At last year's annual meeting, township officials were granted 10 percent pay hikes by the electors.

"Five percent seemed like a good idea," said Walls. "We had seriously considered no increase at all, but the way things worked out the 5 percent increase fit right into the budget." Other items on the agenda will be Springfield's legal publication for public notices, setting times and dates for the township board's regular meetings and the reading of reports on Springfield's past year and proposals for the future.

The annual meeting is open to all residents of Springfield Township and is to be held beginning at 1 p.m. at the Township Hall, 650 Broadway in downtown Davisburg.

Coping with kids

by Jim Windell

Time to tiptoe out of their lives

It was common in the '40s and the '50s to hear parents talk about wanting to give their children "a better chance than I had."

This was the reaction of people who had lived through the Depression and had opportunities denied them.

It was also not uncommon to hear parents say to their children, "I want you to go farther in life than I did."

But, it is less usual these days to hear that, yet it may be every parent's wish that their children make a greater mark on the world. One father voiced this recently by saying, "I want my daughter to be a better person than I was."

Certainly, most people see in their children a chance to live out unfulfilled fantasies. In the 1980s, though, children have their rights and they are not to be pushed around or "made" into anything they don't want to be.

So, what if this man's daughter doesn't want to be a "better person" than her father? Or, what if she resents his attempts at molding her to meet his desires for her life?

One of the reasons for parent-child conflict is that a child fails to live up to a mother or father's expectations for him. The distressed parent may view the child or adolescent as lazy or unresponsive.

In fact, what is often true, is the child is simply no better or worse than the parent.

To a father who wants to live his life over and make a better job of it this time, the child's lack of cooperation may be a decidedly bitter defeat.

When a parent finds that there is too much conflict with a child and also hears, in one form or another, the young person complaining that they aren't allowed to have their own opinion, it may be time to re-examine priorities for the child's life and the role as a parent.

It may well be time to tiptoe quietly out of the son or daughter's life and let them live out their own existence with their own set of problems, faults, deficiencies and personal triumph.

Calling all writers

Writers and would-be writers of the Clarkston area interested in forming a support group may attend an informal meeting on Thursday, April 2.

The meeting is to begin at 8 p.m. at 6290 S. Main, Independence Township.

Further information is available by calling 625-4355.

7-pounder no fish story

Hey, did you hear the tale about the 7-pound pompano Leslie Johnson caught while fishing from the Jensen Beach, Fla. surf?

It's true.

Johnson, of Flemings Lake Road, Independence Township, took the lead in the 46th Annual Metropolitan South Florida Fishing Tournament with his catch.

If no lucky angler lands a larger pompano between now and May 3, Johnson will win the Penn Reels award for the heaviest entry of that species.

10-year reunion slated

Clarkston High School's Class of 1971 is gearing up for a celebration.

Plans for the 10th year reunion are underway for Aug. 8.

Class members interested in attending or those who know the location of fellow classmates may call Gail Poeppé at 363-5895 or Linda Champeau at 681-4992.

Reservations are necessary to attend the reunion.

New arrival

Karen and Mark Postal of Norman Road, Springfield Township are parents of their first child.

Brett Michael was born March 16 at Pontiac General Hospital weighing 7 pounds, 8 ounces.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. William Neff of Warbler

Drive and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Postal of Hummingbird Lane, all of Independence Township.

Great-grandparents are Lenora and Grant Wilton of Florida, Sigvarta and Raymond Postal of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. David Brown of Pontiac and Mrs. Jack Moore of Nevada.

Club notes

The flu and those in warmer climates were responsible for attendance of only 10 members of the Clinton Valley Barracks 2803, Veterans of World War I and the Ladies Auxiliary at the March 14 meeting.

Welcomed back were Helen Bates after eye surgery and Barbara Craghead after her fall on ice.

Letters of thanks for donations sent were read from five V.A. hospitals and the Michigan Veterans' Facility.

The National Legislative Committee is again trying for pensions for WW I veterans. Sponsored by Rep. Anderson of California, HR 1918 is now co-sponsored by 83 representatives.

It asks for a pension of $150 a month. WW I veterans are passing away at an alarming rate each year, and it is our organization's aim to see this through before the Doughboys of WWI have all gone to the Supreme Commander.

The Buddies and Sisters were guests of Campbell Richmond Post 63, American Legion, Clarkston at their 62nd annual birthday party.

The meal was most delicious and grateful thanks is extended for the fine gesture.

The next meeting is April 11 at Davisburg Town Hall. WW I veterans, their wives or widows, daughters and grand-daughters may join in.

Education in energy

Billy (left) and Brad Mathisen were two of the first participants in a vacation-education program offered by Walt Disney World, Lake Buena Vista, Fla. The boys recently completed the one-day course on "The Energy That Runs Our World," designed to give youngsters a perspective on the ways man has used energy in the past and what challenges lie ahead for the future. Pictured is a prototype solar energy project. The boys, who live on Clarkston Road in Independence Township, were on a family vacation with their parents, Bill and Sandy. Because they took the course the first day they were there, Sandy said, the boys were reluctant to go. But all turned out well. "When they came back, they were enthusiastic," she said, adding that they shared knowledge of energy-related things at Disney World when the family toured together, pointing out details that would have gone unnoticed otherwise.

Ann's ark

by Ann Glenn

'What is man without beasts?'

Seattle's namesake, Chief Sealth of the Dawamish Indian Tribe, wrote a letter in 1855 to the President of the United States.

It contained these words: "What is man without beasts? If all beasts were gone, man would die from great loneliness of spirit, for whatever happens to the beast also happens to the man. All things are connected. Whatever befalls the earth befalls the sons of earth."

Not only are we sons and daughters of the earth recognizing the importance of animal life in our environment, more and more we acknowledge that the companion animal has an enormous impact in combating the great loneliness of spirit.

Pet animals are invaluable companions for children, for the elderly and beneficial resources for people with a variety of psychological, emotional or physical handicaps.

The interactions between animals and people have captured public imagination and the support of health care specialists.

According to Dr. Leok Bustad, head of the Veterinary College at Washington State University, a strong people-pet bond is critical to a healthy community.

Animals are a source of unconditional love and unqualified acceptance and they provide contact between the city dweller and nature.

Within the last 10 years, remarkable work has been done in this and other countries to prove animals have a significant, positive impact on handicapped and disturbed people.

Prison inmates have become involved with companion animals and made greater strides toward rehabilitation because of them.

Nursing home residents are successfully interacting with dogs, cats and birds.

Dog people have always intuitively known that people who are involved with animals are happier, healthier and better adjusted, but scientists have had to verify the beneficial effects for the skeptics.

I heard recently the story of a woman who was the live-in supervisor of 12 severely mentally retarded adults.

She began to have a slight hearing loss and worried about sleeping through one of her patient's needing her.

She was given a 7-month-old miniature poodle with a sound temperament and obvious intelligence, but a frolicking, fun-loving youngster.

After a few weeks, the dog had become an adult. He had risen to the challenge of his new tasks.

The dog had become the center of the group's lives, physically and emotionally. He was still the clown the poodle is known to be—amusing and joyful—but he also realized the duties that were his to help his mistress with her job.

The dog stayed alert to his family and they cared for each other in a unique way.

Tax tips

by George Bennett

Maximum tax on personal service income

For individuals with a variety of income items which fluctuate from year to year, the tax computation can be a mind-boggling task because of the necessity to consider the various methods of tax computation.

Under the regular method, taxable income is multiplied by graduated tax rates, escalating from 14 percent to 70 percent, to arrive at the maximum tax on personal service income and the general income averaging method (the general income averaging method will be discussed in a later article.)

The maximum tax method limits the tax rate on personal service taxable income to 50 percent.

Very generally, personal service income is earned income and includes:

- Wages, salaries, tips and other compensation for personal services actually rendered;
- Professional fees;
- Bonuses;
- Commissions on sales; and
- Taxable pensions and annuities if there is a connection with earning income from past personal services.

Personal service income is reduced by certain tax preference items and an allocable portion of itemized deductions and personal exemptions in order to arrive at personal service taxable income.

Since the maximum tax, as computed on Form 4726, is imposed at a flat 50 percent rate, it can only benefit taxpayers with a substantial amount of personal service taxable income.

These taxpayers would include:

- Married taxpayers filing jointly and certain surviving spouses, whose personal service taxable income exceeds $60,000;

- Single taxpayers whose personal service taxable income exceeds $41,500; and

- Heads of households whose personal service taxable income exceeds $44,700.

The maximum tax benefit cannot be used by married taxpayers filing separate returns or by a taxpayer electing the general income averaging method.

If you qualify for the maximum tax and income averaging methods, you should compute your taxes under both methods to determine which is more beneficial.

Ducko's a star

Lisa Glenn's pet duck recently made a cameo appearance on television in "Those Amazing Animals," and that prompted Clarkston News MAGAZINE staff writer Al Zawacky to pay a visit to the Glenn home on Reese Road in Independence Township. In the best tradition of a temperamental star, Ducko refused to grant an interview, preferring instead to let Lisa do all the talking. It's not easy to have an eccentric duck around the house who thinks he's a human being, Lisa laughs, but she's fond of her pet just the same.

That amazing web-footed Ducko

First there was Donald, then there was Daffy and now there's Ducko.

Donald Duck and Daffy Duck, those well-known stars of Walt Disney and Warner Brothers cartoons, need no introductions, of course.

We introduce to you, then, Ducko—a genuine one-year-old Grey Call drake and resident of Independence Township. While considerably less famous than his animated brethren, this feathered biped is also a television performer of some note.

Earlier this month Ducko appeared on ABC's "Those Amazing Animals," emerging unruffled and blasé after a suave performance under the bright lights in the company of his owner, Lisa Glenn.

"He was a hit because of the way he looks," Lisa says, "but I wish he could have done more."

Some of Ducko's entertainment repertoire includes "communicating", "meditating," and "riding his bike," says Lisa.

"When I say something to him, he'll look like he's listening, and then he'll 'talk' when I'm through," she explains. "I think he reacts to the tone of my voice."

A few soothing words from Lisa will put Ducko into a simulated meditation, eyes closed and motionless like a bearded guru on some Himalayan summit.

Hold him aloft and he'll "ride his bike," pedaling his orange webbed feet through the empty air.

Alas, however, Ducko was not in the mood to show off his talents under the watchful eye of the television cameras.

"He was unruffled by the whole thing," says Ann Glenn, Lisa's mom. "He just sort of sat there most of the time."

Filmed in February, Ducko's TV debut aired locally on March 1 on Channel 7. "We heard it announced on the radio that they were looking for people with talented or unusual animals, so we decided to give it a try," says Lisa.

"They had more animals than you could count—dogs, cats, monkeys, anything you can imagine."

His TV career behind him, Ducko now spends his time in and around the Glenn's Independence Township home, basking in the limelight of celebrity status.

And like many celebrities, Ducko often displays some rather eccentric personality traits, or "duckonality" traits, if you wish.

"I think he thinks he's human," says Lisa. "I've had ducks before, but Ducko is really unusual."

Ann has an explanation.

"Ducks will imprint to the first thing they see, and the first thing he saw (when he was hatched) were people," she says. "He thinks more like a human being than a duck."

Ducko's affinity for human companionship has made him somewhat of a dud in the duck social world, however. "He has one friend who's a chicken," Ann chuckles, "but he doesn't associate much with other ducks."

And his fondness of human company has proven to be a nuisance around the Glenn home at times.

"Ducko's pretty amazing, but he can be horrible at times," says Lisa. "He'll follow me around outside, zigzagging between my feet and getting in the way."

Even when she leaves in the family car, Ducko will sometimes fly in hot pursuit, Ann says.

"He doesn't show any signs of wanting to leave, and that's pretty unusual for a duck," she adds.

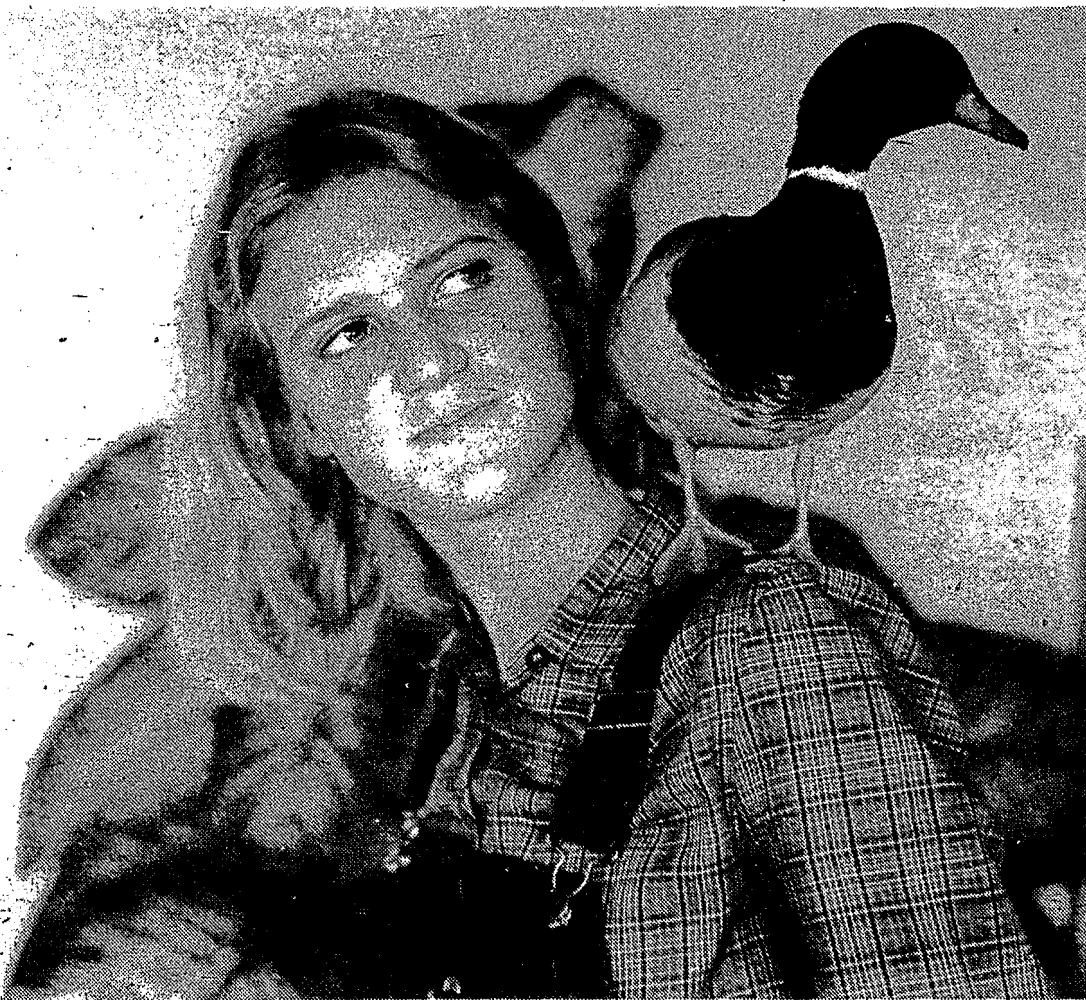

With proper care, Ducko can expect a long and comfortable life of 10 or more years in retirement, Lisa notes.

"I guess he'll just be with us the whole time," she says.

Front & Center

'I think he thinks he's human. I've had ducks before, but Ducko is really unusual'

Serenely surveying his surroundings, Ducko perches on Lisa's shoulder. Although he spends much of his time outdoors, Ducko hasn't shown any inclination of leaving the Glenns, says Lisa. He usually sleeps on the back porch at night.

Schultzes look forward to springtime

Iowa, Illinois, Missouri, New York, Indiana...

And now Michigan.

For the Rev. Craig Schultz, and his wife Martha and his family, the Clarkston area represents the latest stop on a long and winding itinerary.

Just six weeks ago, the Schultz family

"Of course, we don't plan on re-packing tomorrow," he adds with a laugh.

Moving can be rough on children sometimes, notes Martha, and the Schultzes have three: 7-year-old Laura, 4-year-old Emily and 1-year-old Rachel.

"It's bad when children have to leave their friends, but they're settling in well

We're anxious to see the village in the spring," Craig says. "We're curious to see the parks around here when the weather warms up, too. The whole area around here is really nice.

"Basically, we still haven't got a good handle on the life-style here yet, but we're happy to be here."

One thing that Martha has noticed—and it's a welcome difference—is the multitude and variety of specials and sales offered by local merchants.

"You can't beat the bargains here," she says. "It seems like no matter what you need, you'll find it on sale somewhere.

"Actually, the church here is pretty much the same—it's about the same size and design, and the people are the same type of nice and friendly people."

Craig recalls wanting to be a minister "as far back as I can remember." His brother Randall Schultz is also a pastor at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in Caseville.

"It's rewarding," Craig says of his work. "I'm doing what God expects and wants me to do, and I'm helping people where they need it most.

"You don't go into the ministry consciously seeking rewards, you do it because basically you're able to serve—and there is gratification in helping people.

"American life has become extremely complex...I think one of the biggest challenges facing a contemporary minister is to be relevant to the times, but at the same time remain faithful to the Bible.

"One important goal and a project of my ministry is marriage and family enrichment. The family is really an integral institution of our country, and we noticed in Indiana that when children have so many activities at school and the parents have interest outside the home, a lot of families never really saw each other. The parents never know what the kids are doing," he says.

"I think it's important to offer classes and counseling in family communication these days."

—Al Zawacky

made the move from Noblesville, Ind. to their new home on Cramlane Drive in Independence Township.

And the Rev. Schultz is familiarizing himself with his new church congregation, St. Trinity Evangelical Lutheran on Sashabaw Road.

"When a congregation is vacant, the call is extended to the church pastors," Craig says, "and receiving the call, you evaluate what the Lord wants you to do.

"You have to assess your abilities, look at your present congregation, and ask 'Is there anything more I can do here?'"

"It's part of the education process in the ministry," adds Martha. "You know from the start you're going to be moving, although you don't come into a community planning to move again."

The Schultzes hope to remain in their new home for a while, but as Craig says, "It's something you really can't determine—we'll be here as long as the Lord wants us to be.

here," she says. "That's one of the reasons we wanted a house in this neighborhood—there are a lot of children here."

Although both Noblesville and Clarkston could be described as small towns in the industrial mid-west, Craig notes that there are some differences between the two communities.

"Actually, the village of Clarkston is smaller than Noblesville, but I think Noblesville is a little more isolated than we are here," he says.

"Noblesville is a bedroom community of Indianapolis, but there's some countryside between the two—here you never seem to have a break.

"I think there's a little slower life-style in Indiana—there's a lot of traffic here."

"The whole family is looking forward to the upcoming weeks as warmer weather brings Clarkston's streets and gardens to life.

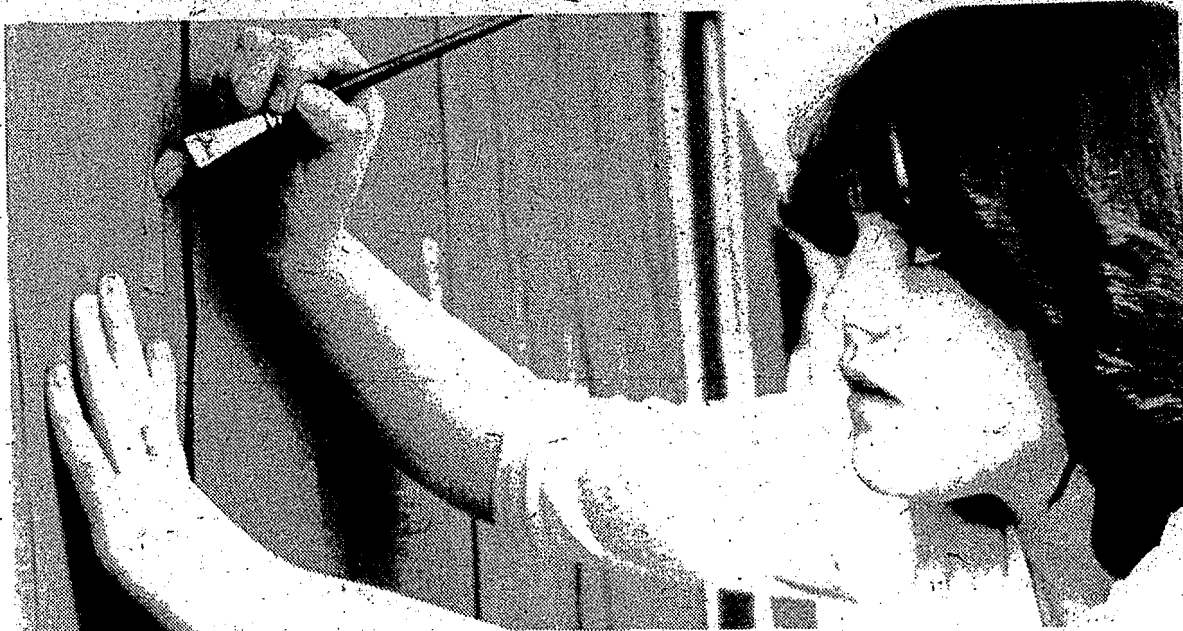

Working together

Members of the Sashabaw Junior High School Art III class teamed up with the music department and provided the background scenes for the recent musical production, "Teen." Here, Andrea Corpus works on the finishing touches on a table in the rec room, complete with its roaring fire inside the fireplace. The ninth graders are students of Suzanne Kiser. In past years, only one backdrop for the annual musical provided by art students, but this year, there were three. "We decided to get more involved with it and change the scenes," she said. "I'm glad we did. The students have really worked hard and I'm pleased with the results."

Dan Traynor paints the purple background around his orange-vested, rock star. The singer is part of a backdrop for the dance scene from "Teen."

Setting the stage for the portion of the musical that takes place in a school hallway is Wendy Vandenberg's task as she paints the gray locker handle on one of a line-up of blue lockers.

With newspapers spread to protect the table, Richard Cech demonstrates the ways to find fingerprints. "I'm going to roll up my sleeves, because I will get dirty," he told the kids before he began dusting with objects white or dark powder.

Fickle fingers leave traces

It was better than magic. Richard Cech, a member of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department Crime Division, took a bottle, a can, a piece of paper and a white box, brushed a fine film of powder over them and —presto!—fingerprints appeared.

Looks of amazement and oohs and aahs of appreciation filled the sixth grade classroom at Pine Knob Elementary School.

After seeing the tools of the crime detection trade, talking about the identifying characteristics of fingerprints and watching Cech's demonstration, the kids got to try the tricks of the trade themselves.

The experience was part of the "Me, Myself and I" unit of the career education program.

Teacher Lee Brown followed the suggestion in the teacher's workbook and called the sheriff's department to ask for a fingerprinting demonstration.

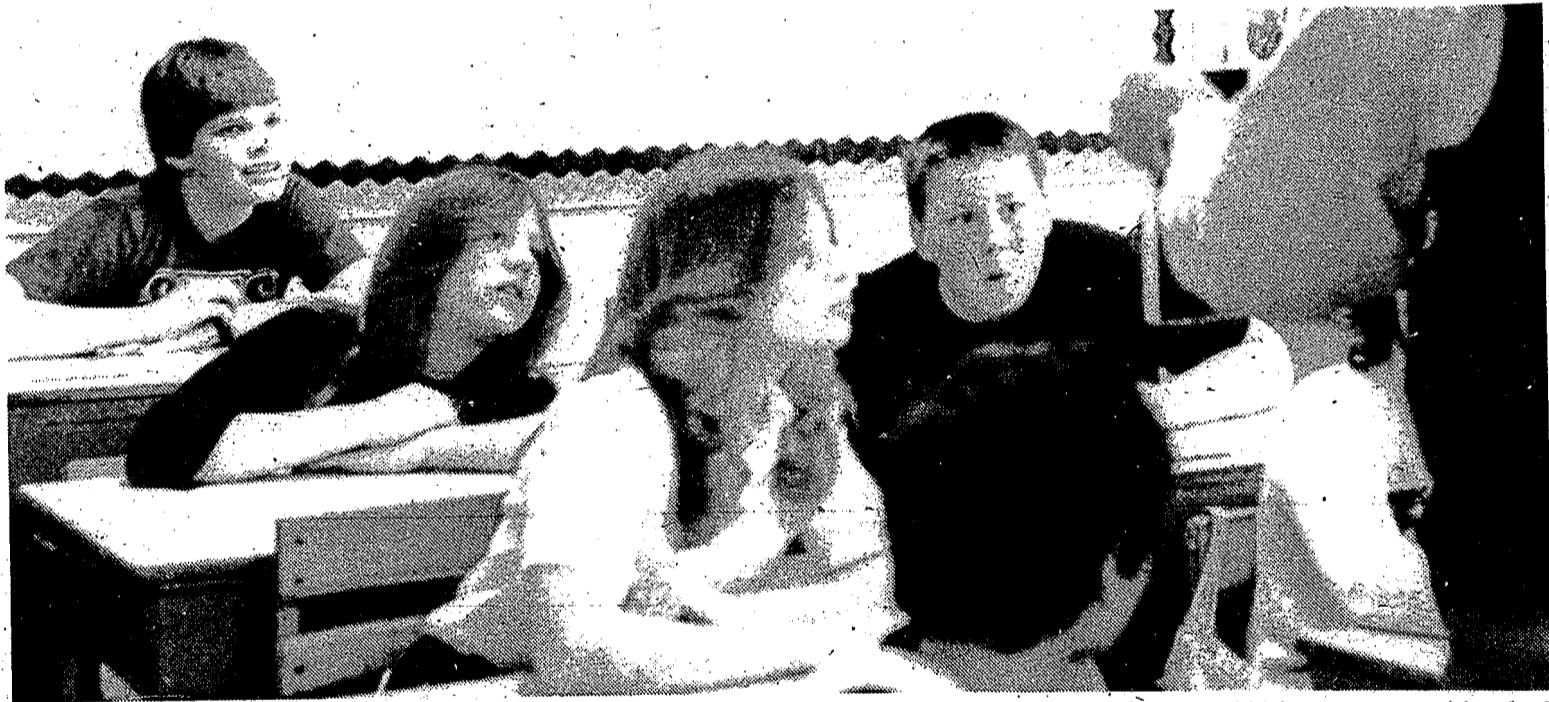

Cech received the call and agreed to share his knowledge with the youngsters. Such activities are not his usual line of duty.

On his job, he usually hunts for clues at crime scenes. He told the children that they carry miniscule clues that can identify where they've been.

"Theoretically, if I look long enough and hard enough, I can find what you brought from home here and what you brought from here back home, so I can physically place you at the scene," he said.

They believed.

—Kathy Greenfield

The sixth graders are mesmerized by the "magic" of finding fingerprints on objects, like a box, that looks perfectly clean before fine powder is applied with a soft brush. "The brush has to be very, very fine, because if it's coarse, you'd rub the fingerprint off," explains Cech.

Signs fall victim to fast lane

IF HUGGING/ ON HIGHWAYS/ IS YOUR SPORT/ TRADE IN YOUR CAR/ FOR A DAVENPORT/ BURMA SHAVE.

Or, how about:

OUR FORTUNE/ IS YOUR/ SHAVEN FACE/ IT'S OUR BEST/ ADVERTISING SPACE/ BURMA SHAVE.

Those funny, fresh rhyming rhythms advertised the new "brushless" shaving cream across our nation's highways from 1926 to 1963.

"Whatever happened to the Burma-Shave signs?" one caller to the News wanted to know.

An end to the signs came in 1963 when the Burma-Vita Company was bought up by Phillip-Morris Inc., and the new owners opted for television, radio and newspaper advertising.

Signage became obsolete.

The answer was found in a book titled "The Verse by the Side of the Road," by Frank Rowsome Jr.

As the book relays, the sign advertising gimmick was the brainstorm of Al Odell, son of George, the company's founder.

Al often traveled the road between Joliet and Aurora, Ill., and he spotted a small series of signs advertising a gas station.

Admitting that each time he saw a sign, he read it, he wondered to himself about marketing a product the same way.

The company did.

The fact that Burma-Shave is still widely remembered is evidence of their success.

The signs were funny, to the point, subtle, captivating and had a controlled reading pace.

SLOW DOWN, PA/ SAKES ALIVE/ MA MISSED SIGNS/ FOUR AND FIVE/ BURMA SHAVE.

The five small messages planted 100 paces apart took three seconds to read when traveling 35 mph.

In 1948, the company reported a loss in sales and an increase in production costs. Other problems cropped up.

There was the re-use of bought and paid for rhymes, the jingles turned hard-sell and few new jingles were written.

The magic in the Burma-Shave signs slowly rolled away like melted wax off a burning candle.

Then came the advent of super highways with wide right-of-ways and less commercial highway advertising.

People were driving at higher speeds.

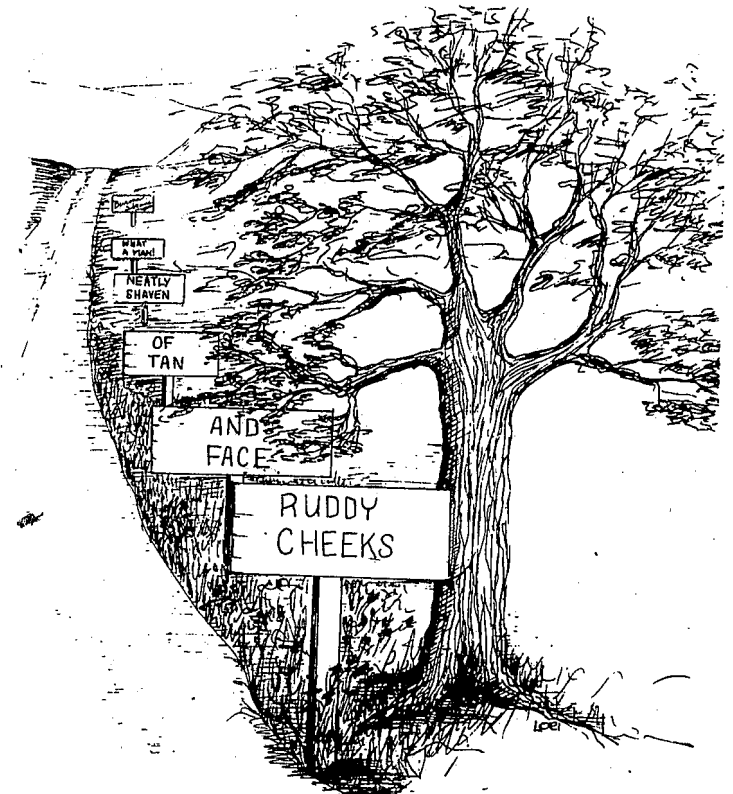

When Phillip-Morris Inc. bought the Burma-Vita Company in 1963, trucks were sent out for the last time to bring down all the signs erected nationwide.

They've become collectors' pieces, and a set rests inside the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C.

Perhaps there's sweet irony to one Burma-Shave jingle:

SHAVING BRUSHES/ YOU'LL SOON SEE 'EM/ ON THE SHELF/ IN SOME/ MUSEUM/ BURMA SHAVE.

From kitchen . . .

Chef Matt Larhing samples the wafting smells emanating from the barbecued chicken with mushrooms. Matt boned the chicken, adding the mushrooms and is well on his way to completing the finished product.

Scalding hot water from boiled potatoes is carefully poured into the waiting floor drain by Chef John Bain of NWOVEC. The potatoes are slated to be rolled in butter, sprinkled in parsley and set before senior citizens for lunch at the Independence Township Senior Citizens' Center.

Talents of NWOVEC students put to work for senior citizens

Slowly, Lois Sadler of Holcomb Street unfolds her napkin and, after situated, samples the first mouthful with relish. Lunch partner Pat Patton also of Holcomb Street, has already dug in. Both concur the lunch rates a 10.

At noon, 36 senior citizens sat down to a hot lunch of barbecued chicken with mushrooms, onion bread, green beans, sliced peaches and baked potatoes smothered in butter and sprinkled with parsley.

Ruth Halstead of Sashabaw Road, Independence Township, found a chair and sat down at one of the tables inside the Independence Township Senior Citizens' Center at Clintonwood Park.

"Mmmmm," Ruth crooned, after tasting that first mouthful, "We used to have a different caterer. Their food was edible—that's about all I could say for it. Since we've changed caterers, the food's delicious. This is delicious."

Chefs Matt Larhing and John Bain would revel with pleasure if they were to hear such comments.

They spent Thursday morning inside Clarkston's Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center (NWOVEC) preparing the meal.

"Too tart," said Bain, of the barbecue sauce he'd mixed. "It needs more brown sugar."

"These chickens were supposed to have been boned," Larhing said, "but look at what I'm finding."

The bread is sliced, the beans and peaches ready for trays, while both chefs dip potatoes in butter and garnish them with parsley.

From the school, the food is loaded into a truck and transported to the Center, where seniors can feast for a 61-cent suggested donation.

Students at NWOVEC's food service alternate in two person teams on a two-week basis, preparing a nutritionally balanced meal for the seniors, said instructor Lynn Meade.

According to Kathy Barnard, part-time site hostess at the center, the number of seniors eating lunch has increased by 30 percent since NWOVEC began preparing the food in September.

Concerned about your water?

Dr. Robert O. Unsworth, D.D.S., Clarkston resident, had a Reverse Osmosis Water Purification System installed in his home.

Dr. Unsworth, D.D.S. was . . .

With the news full of polluted water stories Swartz Creek and all, I was concerned about drinking our hard raw water, and equally concerned about drinking softened water because of the salt content. My question was, how can I get pure water!

Art Suma, owner, Suma Pure Water Co. suggested the Reverse Osmosis Water Purification System.

Art explained the R.O. System forces water through cellulose membrane to purify the water. The R.O. System was installed. I am satisfied & confident we are getting the purest water possible and in the long run, the R.O. System is more economical than bottled water.

Mrs. Unsworth says . . .

We drink a lot of water. In the morning for juice & coffee or tea and with meals. I particularly like the crystal clean ice cubes we receive with the R.O. System. And . . . it just tastes better!

Mrs. Robt. Unsworth, in her kitchen the Reverse Osmosis system is a compact, attractive unit.
