Drivers and "doorbrides" gather 'round the latest addition to Pine Knob's Hamburger Mansion—replica 1860 Omni carriages pulled by Percheron draft horses. If Pine Knob's latest hotel plan comes true, the carriages are to also carry overnight guests to their lodgings.

Carriage traffic to mansion adds romantic dining allure

In the evening, with candle-lit lanterns glowing, horse-drawn 1860 opera carriages move up the winding road leading to Pine Knob's Hamburger Mansion.

"Doorbrides" and drivers dressed in jodphur-like pants, black knee high riding boots, top hats, and red, silk-lined capes aid passengers on and off the carriages with a flair for the romantic unseen since the 19th century.

"That's it," said resort General Manager Matt Locricchio. "It's the romantic image for the most elegant Hamburger joint in the world."

"These are replica 1860 Omni buses that took people to the metropolitan opera houses," he said. "They were designed by Joseph Locricchio (co-owner of Pine Knob Investment Co.) and were made by the Amish in Topeka, Ind."

Like all Amish-made products, the carriages lack modern headlamps and will instead use candle power in lanterns to light the way, said one driver.

Currently Pine Knob has two pair of Percherons, Clydsdale like draft horses sans feathered hooves, and two carriages. The resort anticipates purchasing an additional horse, Locricchio said.

At all times, shuttle bus service to the mansion from the remote parking lot is available, while carriages run periodically, he added.

Pine Knob proposes all-new hotel

By Marilyn Trumper

For the past year, Independence Township and Pine Knob Investment Co. have been locked in a $30 million legal battle over a proposed ski-run-roof hotel.

Now willing to compromise, Pine Knob co-owner Joseph Locricchio has informally presented the township with an alternative proposal.

In one hand Locricchio holds his initial plan: A 600-room, contemporary, 20-story, ski-run-roof convention hotel and a promise to pursue his $30 million lawsuit.

On the other hand he offers the alternative: A five-story, 175-room, French provincial hotel accompanied by a free-standing ski ramp with a restaurant on top.

"I'm trying to compromise with the township in my quest for a hotel, so I'm offering a scaled down hotel without a contemporary look," Locricchio said.

"If size was the negative aspect of the first hotel, which was the township's argument, this five-story hotel doesn't exceed the height limit of 40 feet. I've balanced the architecture to the site and it (the hotel) will be back in the pine trees where very little of it will be seen," he said.

A month ago, Locricchio unofficially submitted to the township an artist's rendering of the proposed hotel and an engineer's line drawing of the ski ramp.

The proposed hotel, slated for a site east of the Hamburger Mansion and north of the first golf hole, is shown abutting the hillside. It's rich, decorative facade includes arched walkways and windows topped by keystone. An ornate ballustrade follows the flat roof's perimeter.

"The hotel will be very elegant," Locricchio said. "A convention resort needs at least 600 rooms to be successful. This hotel is smaller, but will be expensive, and that's the way to overcome debt service."

Horse-drawn 1860 opera carriages are to carry patrons from the remote parking lot to the hotel, adding to the elegance, he said. The carriages are now in use at the Hamburger Mansion.

If Independence Township approves the hotel concept, but turns down the ski ramp, Locricchio said he will pursue the $30 million lawsuit.

"I'm not going to give up the ski ramp. I'll use all my alternatives and continue the suit," he said.

Independence Township Supervisor James B. Smith termed the proposed French provincial hotel "very beautiful."

"I was favorable impressed with the location and concept, and the way it was designed it appears to be within the 35-foot height limitation," Smith said.

But, Smith said, the ski ramp leaves many unanswered questions, "like public reaction, township policy and zoning restrictions."

According to Smith, the township expects Pine Knob to return in the future with more information outlining the investment company's past, present and future development plans and with more

7 year old recovering from pit bulldog mauling

By Marilyn Trumper

Seven-year-old Stacey Secatch of Springfield Township is listed in good condition at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac, where she is recovering from over 50 dog bites sustained in an attack by two pit bulldogs April 21.

Her father Stephen Secatch of 8612 W. Ellis and 10-year-old friend Sandra Sugen were also injured and treated and released by the hospital.

According to Secatch, plastic surgeons worked seven hours to repair damage to his daughter's face, arms, legs and buttocks. She is expected to be released sometime this week.

Secatch is unsure why the girls entered the backyard of William Turk Jr. at 10099 King in Springfield Township, where two pit bulldogs were kept. Turk was out of town at the time.

"I got the story from my daughter, her friend and the neighbors," he said. "Some neighborhood kids were throwing rocks at the dogs, and Sandy went into the backyard. I don't know if it was to play or quiet the dogs down. She helped Stacey over the fence."

"I don't know if they (the dogs) started to sniff Stacey or what, but something frightened her and she started screaming. That's when the dogs attacked," he said.

According to Secatch, he was in his house 200 feet away when his son came in yelling Stacey was being attacked by dogs.

Secatch said he ran across the field, jumped the fence and found his daughter face down on the ground with her girlfriend's body trying to shield her from the attack.

"A neighbor woman who was standing there screaming realized the dogs weren't hurting Sandy. The dogs knew her, she was a relative of the Turks," Secatch said. "The woman told her to cover Stacey. Thank God she did. I don't know what would have happened. They might have been able to drag Stacey off into a corner," he said.

Secatch grabbed his daughter and tried to pass her over the fence to the waiting woman.

"I tried to kick the dogs off but they wouldn't let go," he said. "They just latched onto her legs. When I picked her up the dogs came too--still biting her. I finally got her up high enough to where the dogs let go and then they started biting me."

Secatch said he told the woman to call for help and ran home with his daughter in his arms.

"I got about 20 feet from the garage and here came another dog--it had scaled the fence," he said. "It started biting again. I handed Stacey to my son, told him to get in the house. I thought, 'My God, isn't this ever going to end.' Then I started kicking the dog and I smashed its head into the cement. It kept coming."

Secatch said he finally escaped by smashing the dog in between the garage door.

The dogs have been quarantined by Oakland County

Animal Control at the Springfield Township Veterinary Hospital for 10 days, he said.

"I'm going to have them (the dogs) put away," Secatch said. "I don't want to do it--I know they're his pets--but these kinds of dogs are strictly used for pit fighting."

"I'm going to get a court order to put them away. I already have a show-cause scheduled for next week."

"I never knew those were the kinds of dogs he kept there. If I'd known, Stacey would never have been allowed around there. I never want this to happen to another little girl," he said. "You can replace a dog, but you can never replace a child."

Residents win motion

Foster care battle headed for trial

Now that the court has ruled there exists a question of fact, Lake Oakland Woods subdivision is slated to go to trial in its quest to enforce deed restrictions and oust an adult foster care home from the neighborhood.

Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Hilda Gage denied the state's motion for a summary judgment on April 22, which means theoretically the issue will go to trial, said residents' attorney Donald E. Schuster.

"A trial will allow us to bring out facts and testimony concerning ways the program is run, the decline of property values and public policy," Schuster said.

No trial date has been set, he added.

For nine months, residents in Lake Oakland Woods have fought to limit use of homes in the subdivision to single family, defined by deed restrictions as those related by blood, marriage or legal adoption.

An application for licensing of an adult foster care home on the subdivision's Timber Ridge Trail was filed for last August. In February five developmental-ly disabled adults moved in.

detailed engineering drawings.

Both Smith and Locricchio stressed the artist's rendering of the hotel was submitted unofficially for nothing more than discussion.

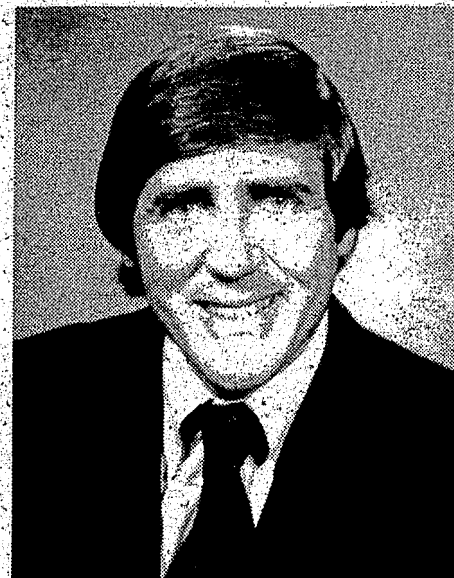

When Independence Township denied Pine Knob Investment Co. a building permit to construct the proposed ski-run-roof hotel on grounds it violated the Zoning ordinance's height restrictions, Pine Knob filed a $30 million lawsuit.

That case has yet to be heard in Oakland County Circuit Court.

Independence man helps catch thief

By Marilyn Trumper

Say the name "Joel Burnell" to sheriff's deputies at the Independence Township substation and hear in return high praise, resounding accolades and intense thanks.

The 20 year old's quick thinking enabled deputies from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department to apprehend one man accused of breaking and entering the Burnell home on Waldon Road.

A second man is suspect in the break-in and is being sought by police.

"That young man really deserves credit for his quick thoughts and ability," said Deputy James Snover, one of the first officers to arrive on the scene. "He took immediate and positive action without endangering himself or anybody else."

Joel is modest about the afternoon events of April 21 and says, "I never felt fear. That wasn't in my mind. All I could think was that I had to do something to help the police."

Joel was in the back bedroom of the family home typing some notes for Bible study scheduled for that evening.

Events began to unfold when the dog started barking.

"I had just gone into the room and shut the door, something I never do, and had typed about four lines when I heard the dog barking," he said.

"Someone was knocking on the (back) door. I looked out the window and no one was there. Then I heard someone knocking on the front door. I waited a minute--then I heard a crash--and heard someone walking down the hall. They said, 'I don't think anybody's here,'" Joel said.

"It was hard to believe at first that there was someone in the house. I thought about trying to overpower them and then thought, 'No, why try to be a dead hero, they might have a gun.'"

The two thieves went from room to room, smashing and banging and opening drawers, Joel said.

"I knew it would just be a matter of time before they opened this door and found me here," he said.

Joel turned and knocked out the window screen, crawled outside and ran to the neighbor's for help.

"That's when I saw their (the thieves') car," he said. "I memorized the license number and then I realized the car was running and had the keys in it. So I reached in--took the keys and put them in my pocket--and took off."

Within five minutes police had arrived on the scene.

The thieves realized the car was no longer running when they carried out their first load of loot, Joel said, and they took off down the road on foot in separate directions.

Police have arrested and charged 28-year-old Kenneth Cory of Sterling Heights with breaking and entering and possession of a firearm in the commission of a felony.

Cory was arraigned before Rochester District Court Judge James P. Sheehy and placed on two $50,000 cash bonds. He remains in the Oakland County Jail.

According to police, a .38 caliber pistol was recovered at the scene and is believed to have been carried by Cory.

"When the police told me I could go back in the house that it was all clear, I stepped onto the porch and saw the same typewriter I'd been typing on just sitting there," Joel said. "They (the thieves) must have gone into the room after I left--probably when I was taking their keys."

"I wonder if they noticed it (the typewriter) was still hot?" Joel said.

Sex-ed stays put

The sex education classes now offered to Clarkston schools pupils as part of required classes shall stay the same.

Michigan Attorney General Frank Kelley recently issued an opinion that the classes cannot be part of a course required for graduation.

Because the ruling is only an opinion, the district is not going to take any action.

"We're going to continue going right along," said Mel Vaara, assistant superintendent, adding that Kelley's ruling would probably be tested in court eventually.

In the Clarkston district, sex education is included in two required classes -- seventh grade gym and tenth grade gym for about a week during the school year.

"I've had no complaints in this office from the parents," Vaara said. "I've had many compliments on the program."

There have been four or five students who have asked not to participate in that portion of classroom discussion, Vaara said, which is allowed.

Vaara stressed the need for sex education for young people, citing a study he received from Michigan Bell.

"Only four out of 10 girls know about when they can conceive for pregnancy," he said. "Three out of 10 don't even know about contraception -- that's an alarming statistic isn't it?"

Deputies seek assault info

Oakland County Sheriff's Department deputies are seeking witnesses of an assault on a 17-year-old youth on Main and Washington streets in downtown Clarkston early Tuesday evening.

The boy was driving his bicycle at the intersection at 5:45 p.m. when the passenger in a 4-wheel drive, brown Chevrolet pick-up threw a beer bottle at the youth, knocking him off the bike, according to Deputy Robert Wark.

The passenger jumped out of the vehicle and began beating and kicking the youth, knocking him to the ground where he continued the assault, Wark said.

The driver got out of the truck and "either pulled the guy off or helped kick him," Wark said.

The two then jumped back in the truck, turned west on Washington Street and were last seen at the corner of Holcomb and Washington streets, he said. The passenger is between 6 feet and 6 feet, 2 inches tall; medium to heavy build; with brown hair below his ears, almost to his collar. He is clean-shaven and was wearing blue-jeans and a flannel shirt.

The driver is at least 6 feet tall with a stocky build. He has sandy brown, shoulder-length hair.

Police were provided with a license number on the vehicle, but would like to be contacted by anyone else who noticed the number in order to verify it.

The pick-up had large tires and there was a yellow racing trail bike in the back, believed to be a Yamaha.

The youth, who lives on Perry Lake Road in Independence Township, suffered severe bruises to the shoulders and back. He was taken to the hospital, treated and released, Wark said.

Any witnesses with more information are asked to call the sheriff's department public information office at 858-5007.

Loyalty Day Parade Saturday

The parade bash of the year is coming to Clarkston this Saturday, May 2 at 1 p.m. in honor of Loyalty Day--the day Americans pledge allegiance to their flag and country.

Over 30 different organizations and more than 1,000 marchers are expected to turn-out for the VFW's Loyalty Day Parade which begins on Miller Road, travels down Main Street, turns onto Church Street and winds up at Clarkston High School.

Enthusiastic watchers should choose their vantage points early in anticipation of seeing marchers, riders and cartwheelers traverse the route.

Regis Little, Clarkston's VFW post commander, expects the Oaklowns, Civil Air Patrol, Eagles motorcycle team and drum and bugle corps, Oakland County Sportsman's Club, Clarkston's two junior highs and senior high marching bands, Oakland County Sheriff's Department Mounted Police, Elks and Shriners, Dixie Saddle Club, senior citizens, color guard drill teams, Army and Navy, Boy and Girl Scouts, Camp Fire, decorative floats and more.

Following the parade, color guard drill teams will put on a show at the high school football field and nine awards will be presented to winners of the parade competition, Little said.

A hot air balloon is scheduled to be on site offering rides if weather's permitting, Little added.

The VFW is providing free hot dogs and drinks and the band boosters will also have a booth set-up, Little said.

"The hot dogs and drinks at the VFW booth are free," Little said, "But anyone who wants to make a donation to the school's lighting fund can do so, we'll have special drums set up,"

Deputies from the sheriff's department were unable to find the youths, reports said.

Sunday, vandals caused $400 in damages to a house and yard on Ashwood Way Road, Springfield Township, when they smashed outside light globes, cut down a maple tree and threw rocks through a screen and window, according to police reports.

Sunday, thieves stole a trailer valued at $350 and two fishing reels valued at $60 from a house on Mary Sue Road, Independence Township, according to police reports.

Sunday, deputies from the sheriff's department recovered a JC Penny moped from the banks of VanNorman Lake, Independence Township, according to police reports.

The above information was collected from reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Independence feels vandals' costly touch

By Marilyn Trumper
Independence Township's municipal property is feeling the costly brunt of vandalism.

Over the past two months, activity from destructive thieves has increased and has cost Independence about $5,000, according to Clerk Christopher Rose.

"We could be putting in $100, $200, $500 and $900 claims, but our insurance is $1,000 deductible," Rose said. "We're looking into raising our deductible, but the insurance agent recommends against it. If we lower it to $100, we could collect more often, but then our premiums would go up."

Most often hit is the department of public works (DPW) building on Flemings Lake Road.

Such deserted areas always seem to be targeted sites for vandalism, Rose said.

Thieves stole two wheels off a car parked in the DPW lot—and left it on blocks, he said. A vandal tried to drive a vehicle through the DPW door and caused $500 in damages. Other vandals have broken—then rebroken the DPW gas tank.

Thieves stole 900 gallons of gasoline from one storage tank housed on other municipal property. That cost the township almost $1,000, Rose said.

"They even siphon gasoline out of cars parked overnight on lots," he said.

About a month ago, vandals smashed out all the windows of a small building, located behind the Senior Citizens' Center at Clintonwood Park on Clarkton-Orion Road.

"That cost the township between $3,000 and $4,000, we estimate," Rose said.

The Oakland County Sheriff's Department has been asked to increase patrols in hard-hit places, Rose said, and, in the meantime, officials continue to review the insurance policy.

New principals

Two Clarkston schools principals have been assigned to different elementary schools due to the early retirement of Ruth Purslow, principal of Pine Knob Elementary School.

John Reabe has been named principal of Pine Knob Elementary School.

Reabe is currently the principal of North Sashabaw Elementary School.

Jack Hayden, principal of South Sashabaw, will now be principal of that school as well as North Sashabaw Elementary.

The changes are effective July 1.

The Governor's luster is losing its glitter

It's taken some time, but tarnish has appeared on the armor of Governor William Milliken.

It was last September or October when criticism became more consistent, or perhaps loud enough to penetrate our resistance.

We've always felt Governor Milliken was a "good" governor. He said the right things, promoted the right objectives, and obviously pleased the most people.

He has served in Lansing longer than any other governor.

Prior to the last election, we began hearing Mr. Milliken referred to as "Weepin' Willie," accompanied by unkind and certainly unrepeatable comments.

The "Milliken" tax cut proposal on the Nov. ballot was not looked upon with favor in north Oakland county. His pressure for passage, along with his condemnation of the Tisch tax cut proposal, turned people off.

In this case, people turned off were turned around.

Right now the feeling in these parts is "Tisch or nothing," and more abuse is being poured on Gov. Milliken for pushing Proposal A May 19.

The governor is also pushed into a heap with state legislators and senators, and as Oakland Press editor Neil Munro writes,

"The credibility of state government is simply not very high right now."

There are fears from many directions, especially owners of cabins and business property, that Proposal A will sock it to 'em.

There is no limit on tax increases for these lands. Too, there is general fear that when Proposal A is interpreted, if it passes, that now-hidden meaning will emerge.

People are asking, "Why is Governor Milliken pushing Proposal A for passage so hard?"

Lansing has long since given up "cutting taxes." Remember the Single Business Tax and what it was going to do for the small businessman?

It has turned out to be what the Single Business Tax "did to" the small businessman. This tax was also a pet of Governor Milliken.

We suspect Governor Milliken sensed his decline in popularity before we did. The feeling is very strong that Jim Brickley was brought from University to Lansing to be groomed to continue the GOP reign.

Milliken at 59 is too young to go back to Traverse City, and we certainly don't know what he has in mind, but we do believe he hears the same noises we do and they have penetrated.

Try OCART—you'll like it

Dear Readers:

On April 22, Lennea Carlson and I took the OCART bus to the Pontiac Mall and back—it was great.

I called Monday and the bus was completely busy for Tuesday, so we made our appointment to be picked up at home at 9:30 a.m. on Wednesday and returned to our door at about 1:15 p.m.

It was a pleasant ride with a very courteous driver, of whom I asked a lot of questions.

You can be taken to doctors' offices, to friends' homes for a visit, etc.

They cannot always be punctual, because there are not enough buses and drivers.

If we support it more, maybe this problem would be solved.

TRY IT, YOU'LL LIKE IT. Call 625-1677.

P.S. Round-trip to the mall was $1.20.

Jim's jottings

Light boggling

by Jim Sherman

We haven't changed an automobile headlight in years. But with the simple-to-repair cars they're building today, why not?

Perhaps we're confusing commercials. Maybe the advertisements promoting easy repair didn't apply to Pontiac Phoenix.

The fact that the headlamp needed replacing after just over a year cannot be blamed on GM. Unless, of course, one of the vice presidents threw the stone.

However, with the easy-do ad in mind, we consulted our "Owner's Manual" for directions.

In the index under "Headlight," beam changer and switch are listed. No help there. Try "Light bulbs." Use only bulb number 6052.

Ok, let's have a look at the light. We looked through all three sections of our trifocal glasses, and still couldn't figure out what kind of screw driver to use to remove the frame to get to the lens.

A trip to the friendly, neighborhood hardware. For $2.99 we found the right size screw remover... it probably won't fit any other screw in the whole darn car, we mused.

The lamp was $7.50, but not available in the same store as the tool.

Back home in the quiet of our garage we attacked the headlamp frame. That removed, we started pulling on the big bulb. It didn't budge.

Ah, ha! There's one more frame. This one is held in by screws with different heads... Phillips. At least we had the right tool for that screw.

But, we knew when we removed the screws it would be no easy chore putting them back. It wasn't. What you really need is a Phillips driver with a gadget that holds the screw head tight to the driver.

Access to the screw holes is obtainable only by getting your eye level below the headlight, and, using very thin, long fingers, hold the screw in place while driving with the other hand.

Since no one is equipped with the right fingers, or the right tool, one has to balance the screw on the end of the driver and carefully search out the tiny hole in the fender cavity.

The whole operation shot a Saturday morning.

Needless to say, it won't happen again.

Golden arches bite the dust

by Kathy Greenfield

We wore sweaters and pleated skirts, knee socks and tennis shoes or loafers.

After school, we'd sometimes pull into a gas station, order "a dollar's worth" and head out to McDonald's in Pontiac.

It was a new place. For about 45 cents, we could sip a Coke, eat a hamburger and munch on hot french fries made from fresh potatoes.

Now, we'd get laughed out of the station for requesting less than a gallon of gasoline, kids wear bluejeans, the french fries are prepared from frozen potatoes and THEY'VE TORN DOWN THE OLD MCDONALD'S.

Sure, they're going to replace it with another, modern McDonald's with a drive-in window and inside seating for 75.

But the golden arches of yesterday that spanned the front of the building and held the announcement of how many hamburgers had been sold are gone.

The building was about 20 years old—the first McDonald's in Oakland County.

The memories aren't gone. But the demolition makes me feel old somehow. Buildings are supposed to last longer than 20 years. What if you all of a sudden decide to visit a place from your past?

Still, what can you expect after the piles of paper wrappers, paper cups and plastic straws just one person has cast away in 20 years?

In the garbage they all went. And so went the building—another piece of Americana bit the dust.

As I think about Pontiac as a whole, it seems that it may be worse to tear down a building than to vacate it.

I'm probably wrong, because Pontiac depresses me. As a teenager growing up in nearby Rochester, Pontiac was a place we visited.

We went shopping to the city for clothes, went there with friends to see movies and didn't worry about driving through after dark.

All that has changed—the downtown area is torn apart with Wide Track, most of the stores sit empty and a great deal of the city is like a ghost town.

But the beauty of many of the old buildings is still there. They could be restored. The city could live again.

They deserve raise, praise

To the Editor:

I am sick and tired of reading letters from people who are condemning our Independence Township Board members for the raise they received.

As far as I'm concerned, my husband is UNDERPAID.

He is a newly-elected trustee on the township board and spends a great many hours preparing for each meeting. He will not sit on the board unprepared. Then, the meeting may last anywhere from two to five-and-one-half hours.

So, for a man who works full-time in Detroit to support a family of four daughters and who spends many evenings and some weekend hours for the good of the township, there should be thanks and encouragement, not ridicule and condemnation.

By the way, you who have time to complain, what are you doing for the township?

Do you attend the meetings that are there for your attendance?

Offering facts on proposal A

Dear Editor:

I'm writing in regard to your article on school financing and the effects of Proposal A.

The statement of a 50 percent reduction in the assessments is incorrect.

Proposal A would reduce by 50 percent (up to $1,400) property taxes for operating purposes on homesteads and farms.

Any reduction on local revenue would be made up 100 percent by the state from the increase in sales tax and from budget cuts.

The statement that twice the millage would be needed if Proposal A passes is questionable.

Since all reductions in local revenue will be made up by the state, the only limit local government and schools will have is the 6 percent cap on property tax revenue increases.

The 6 percent is considerably lower than what we've experienced in past years, so future dollars will be limited.

However, if the 6 mills is also to increase the district's equity standing, I think this should be explained.

Having gone through the Clarkston school system, I realize the need for additional millage.

I cannot, though, accept a statement on the 6 mills without question.

'If it Fitz. . .'

Go rope a cat

by Jim Fitzgerald

Today, if all the boys dressed like cowboys were really cowboys, there wouldn't be enough cows to go around. I like to write wise things like that, in memory of Confucius.

The other evening I watched a man wearing a cowboy hat sit in a movie theater. He never took his hat off. The people sitting behind him got up and moved. They didn't say anything to him, for fear he was wearing his six-gun.

"Where do all the dumb cowboys come from?" my wife asked.

"The rodeo is in town," I explained.

It really was. That doesn't mean I am unchic enough to believe that everyone wearing a 10-gallon hat rides in a rodeo. I realize most western clothing is worn by stylish suburbanites who have never been farther west than the back hyphen in their cul-de-sacs. But the dumbest cowboys must be with rodeos. They keep insisting rodeos are not cruel to animals, and anyone who believes that has got to be really dumb.

Take calf-roping, for just one example. A young cow running about 25 miles per hour is jerked to a sudden halt by a rope tied around its neck. Then a cowboy slams the calf into the ground. This is done in the name of macho sport, for the profit of the cowboy and the pleasure of his audience, not to make veal cutlets.

If you don't think this type of treatment is cruelty to animals, you should rent a stadium and stage a kitten-roping event. You could also dig spurs into puppies. Angry people would throw rocks at you, and the Humane Society would have you jailed.

I know. Cats and dogs are domestic pets, but cows are hamburgers that must be roped, slammed, and branded to thwart cattle rustlers. Sure. Using this type of argument to justify rodeos makes as much sense as selling tickets to a slaughterhouse.

Many people think it's unpatriotic to question a sport based on the traditions of the Old West. If football evolved from tribal warfare, why shouldn't baby cows be abused in memory of the last frontier? What's the difference? A smartie answer is that the pigskin is dead and doesn't squeal in pain and fright. However, smartie answers aren't much comfort to those anti-rodeo people who feel defeated by the hopelessness of calling Great American Cowboy games inhumane, if not sadistic.

But, thanks to modern science, there may come a day when the tradition of roping and branding calves will have faded from memory, and it will no longer be necessary to torment animals in honor of John Wayne. There is now an electronic device called a transponder which could replace the lasso and branding iron.

Scientists have implanted transponders in cattle. This enables cattle ranchers to identify individual steers by number when they walk over an electronic scale. It isn't necessary to burn initials into their hides. The transponder also signals the animal's temperature and weight which are recorded on a computer. Important information can be gathered without the expense and hassle of frequent roundups.

In theory, a centralized computer system using implanted transponders will allow one cowboy to keep individual track of 100 million cattle. Tomorrow's Roy Rogers will sit in front of a computer instead of on a horse. This means trouble ahead for rodeos.

Transponders are probably implanted in cattle the same way pacemakers are inserted in people. The calves go to Dr. Cowboy, where they are anesthetized, and Blue Cross pays. People won't pay to see this non-macho procedure mimicked in Madison Square Garden by cowboys wearing surgical gowns and carrying hypodermic needles.

You may live to see the day when baby cows will no longer be roped and slammed for dollars, suburbanites won't want to look like cowboys who play golf every Wednesday, idiots won't wear cowboy hats in theaters and there will be more than enough cows to go around. That will be nice.

Marooned

There's glamour associated with being lost on a deserted island. Ah! Adventure, romance and Robinson Crusoe. Enter reality—the boat is gone, it's getting dark and cold and it's a long way back to the other side of Maceday Lake.

The marooning of John Chatterton and his 3-year-old daughter on the evening of Friday, April 24, was anything but glamorous.

Chatterton had borrowed a row boat from his neighbor, Mike Mihalcheon, and had rowed over to investigate Blain Island that had once held a large estate. The house had been destroyed by fire long ago.

He parked the boat and set off to explore.

When he came back, the boat was gone. he could see it with a person inside rowing away across the chilly waters. Alongside was another rowboat with another passenger.

Chatterton yelled at the thieves, but to no avail.

"They just laughed and kept going, rowed across the lake, and went through a culvert," said Mihalcheon as he tells the tale.

There is a small road that leads to the "island" that is, in fact, a peninsula. Chatterton had lived in the area for less than two weeks and he realized that he was lost and alone with his little girl.

He went to a nearby house and waiting for someone to come home who could drive him the three-mile distance home.

Then, Chatterton had to break the news to Mihalcheon that his rowboat was gone.

He went to Kurt's Konery on Airport Road in Waterford Township, that Mihalcheon owns, and told him the tale.

The Waterford Police Department was notified and the search for the boat began, to no avail.

"The next morning, I got up at 7 and took the motor boat out," Mihalcheon said.

He went around the lake and couldn't find it, finally decided to look in surrounding bodies of water and discovered the boat alongside a dock near Dixie Highway and Andersonville Road.

"They'd ditched it about a mile and a half down the way," said Mihalcheon. "The cars were hidden under the dock."

If there's a moral to the story, said Mihalcheon, it's this: "Never lose sight of your boat."

CHS scholarship fund established

Friends remember Dobsons

The Tim and Jennifer Dobson Memorial Scholarship fund totaling $3,000 will aid five Clarkston High School seniors destined for college next fall.

The Dobsons, Tim, Jennifer and their father Robert lost their lives last May, when the plane Robert was piloting crashed in a field near Owens Sound, Ontario.

Mrs. Janet Dobson survived the accident and now lives in the family home in Clarkston.

She joined Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson in presenting the scholarship fund to school Superintendent Milford Mason on April 14.

Last summer, Patterson organized the Dobson Open at Spring Lake Country Club on Maybee Road in Independence Township, with proceeds from the golf outing establishing the scholarship fund.

"After the accident, there was not a lot left we could do to help, and everyone wanted to do something," said Patterson, a close friend of the Dobsons.

"We decided to have a fund-raising effort and put the proceeds into a scholarship for the school. This was a way for us to keep the memory of the kids alive and express how much we loved them," he said.

Mason said the Dobson Scholarship is the largest single fund program available to high school seniors.

"We are pleased that Mr. Patterson made the scholarship available, and thank him and those who helped, cooperated with and participated in the golf tournament," Mason said.

One senior will receive a $1,000 scholarship and four others will receive $500 scholarships, he said. Their names will be announced at a students awards assembly June 4.

Patterson is planning the second annual Dobson Open July 24 at Spring Lake Country Club. He asks those interested in participating or seeking information to phone him at 858-0646.

Village park greenery

As the days grow warmer, keep an eye out for bright red blooms on a freshly planted Indian Magic Crab Apple tree at the entrance of Clarkston Village Hall on Depot Road.

Donated by Bordine's Better Blooms of Clarkston, the greenery served as both an offering for community goodwill and marked the coming of Arbor Day on April 24, says Robert Clack, landscape designer.

"I think they're (Bordine's) great people for doing it—and doing it every year," said Clarkston Village President Fontie ApModoc.

"I'm so pleased Arbor Day is remembered and I thank Bordine's for their yearly donation."

Drivers' ed returns

Sixteen year olds in the Clarkston school district can breathe a sigh of relief—they'll be on the road come summer.

"We're going to run a driver's education program," said Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara.

The district had considered eliminating the program, because of needed budget cuts and the lack of automobiles available at no charge from dealers.

The district now has five cars for sure, and Vaara said he hopes to line up seven more.

"It could be a limited program," he said. "It could be a full-blown program. The more cars I get, the more kids can participate."

Last year, about 400 students were enrolled in the drivers' education program that runs during the summer months.

With five cars -- three provided by Randy Hosler Pontiac of Clarkston and two usually used by the district for school activities -- only about 100 students could take the class, Vaara said.

But, he's waiting to hear from General Motors Corp. where the availability of four more cars is under consideration.

"I'm hoping General Motors will come through for me," Vaara said.

To serve all the students, there is another plan to gain the use of three additional cars.

As is the practice in some other districts, Clarkston schools is looking for used cars to be donated by residents.

A '75 or '76 car that has high mileage and low cash value could be donated to the district and used as a tax deduction by the person who offers the car, Vaara said.

The program is to be self-sustaining with money from the state department provided for the classes and the cars provided without charge.

Depleted ranks sink Clarkston cindermen

By Al Zawacky

If only last week's boys' track meet had been held in Florida. Maybe then the Clarkston High School thinclads would've fared a little better.

With most of the team's seniors and top performers soaking up the Florida sunshine during Easter vacation, it was a skeleton crew of Clarkston cindermen that showed up for Saturday's West Bloomfield Invitational boys' track meet.

The results were predictable—Clarkston failed to score a point. But coach Walt Wyniemko refused to use the Florida Factor as an alibi.

"It's the same story for everybody," Wyniemko said. "Having your seniors in Florida at this time of year is a universal problem."

Fifteen schools made the trek to West Bloomfield High School to participate in the meet, and when the cold and damp afternoon came to a close Flint Northern emerged as the invitational champ, edging out Ann Arbor Huron 83-82½.

Pontiac Northern was third with 54½ points, while Ann Arbor Pioneer nailed down the fourth spot with 44.

Chris Makdisi of Warren Lincoln and Dan Kenwell of West Bloomfield were named as the meet's two outstanding performers.

"On the bright side, I think this was a good experience for some of our younger kids to have a chance to compete in their first invitational," Wyniemko said.

"The kids are still working hard, and our times are coming down."

Baseball squad nips Lake Orion

The Clarkston High School varsity baseball team posted its first league win of the young season Monday afternoon by downing Lake Orion 5-4 in eight innings.

Orion tallied first in the game, scoring a run off Clarkston starter Kurt Esselink in the opening inning. Grant Anderson got it back in the Wolves' half of the first with a solo home run, his first of the season.

Clarkston took a 4-2 lead in the third inning on a three-run outburst highlighted by Greg Lane's two-run double, only to have Orion tie the contest with two runs in the fifth.

The Wolves scored the winning run in the eighth when Pete Carpentier walked and Don Mack ripped a single to right that skidded through the right fielder's legs for an error, scoring Carpentier.

Mike Howe, who got Clarkston out of a jam with the bases loaded in the eighth, picked up the victory for the Wolves. The win put Clarkston at 1-0 in the Greater Oakland Activities League and 2-0 overall.

The Point After

by Al Zawacky

Thoughts on pro soccer—and Joe Louis

SO THERE'S GOING to be a pro soccer franchise in Detroit this year after all.

Express II will arrive with no better chance of prospering in the saturated Detroit sports market than its Cougar and Express I forebears—but the soccer people are nothing if not persistent.

Let's be fair. It's impossible to argue with soccer's credentials. The game is loved with a passion that transcends reason across South America and Europe, where big games bring whole cities to a standstill and triumph and defeat are met with a Mount St. Helens of emotion.

But we can't avoid this nagging problem of saturation—the fact that here in southeastern Michigan, there just aren't many loose entertainment dollars floating around, waiting to gravitate to another pro soccer franchise.

It's not just the economy. In the great contest for local fan and media attention, the competition is smothering. There are the Tigers, Lions, Pistons, Red Wings, U-M football, MSU football, MSU basketball, University of Detroit basketball, U-M basketball, golf, boxing and tennis.

That doesn't leave much room for a newcomer.

THE EXPRESS USED to like to kick around statistics that seemed to indicate that every boy and girl within a 100-mile radius of the Pontiac Silverdome was involved in youth soccer. The logic was that these kids would eventually form the foundation of the Express' fan following.

That never panned out, and there's little reason to believe it ever will. It is a mistake to lump together games people play with games they're willing to pay to see, as if the two are invariably the same.

It would be nice to have a permanent, thriving pro soccer franchise here in the Detroit area. But the odds for success in the long run appear slim.

A NOBLE PERSON was laid to rest last week when Joe Louis was buried following a hero's funeral. Louis was mourned by an entire nation, and it was fitting that the nation honor an outstanding American with a grave in Arlington National Cemetery.

And yet—after the eulogies and the tributes—some might still ask why we thrill at the sight of two men squared off like gladiators in a ring. Why we get goosebumps when the full force of our hero's fist crushes the enemy's face. Why we seem to relish the sight of blood and cheer and jump out of our seats when a man crashes to the canvas.

We crown Joe Louis with glory because he knocked out over 50 opponents in his professional career. Wow, 50-plus KO's.

What is a knock out? How often does anyone pause to consider exactly what happens?

It happens when one man bashes the face of another, beating his head and jarring his brain to the point that he can no longer stand. He may lose consciousness entirely. Literally, it is beating a man's head until he is one step away from death; as boxing's grisly casualty list over the last 25 years would indicate.

We call this sort of thing entertainment, and we place Joe Louis in our special pantheon of heroes, because he did it over 50 times.

It makes you wonder.

For myself, I prefer to remember Joe Louis as a quiet and decent man, a patriot who served his country and an individual who achieved true greatness by never allowing success and triumph to turn his head.

Others will remember him for his 50 KO's. So be it.

Two programs combining exercise with music to provide maximum muscle toning are coming to the Springfield Oaks County Park Youth Activities Center.

The "Total Exercise Program" beginning May 6 promotes endurance and good breathing through yoga and calisthenics. The "Dancercise" program starting May 4 is comprised of choreographed dance routines, designed to improve flexibility, balance and strengthen the heart.

The Dancercise class will be offered on Mondays and Wednesdays at both 9 a.m. and 8 p.m. Cost for the eight-week session is $38. The Total Exercise Program will be held Wednesdays at 10 a.m. or 7 p.m. Cost for this class is $28.

Springfield Oaks Activities Center is located at Andersonville and Hall roads in Springfield Township. To register for the classes, phone 625-8133 by May 1.

Independence Township Parks and Recreation plans a trip to Cedar Point amusement park in Ohio June 23.

The group will leave Clarkston for Cedar Point at 6 a.m. and return at 10 p.m. Persons interested in going should contact the recreation department at 625-8223.

Bicycle motocross racing returns to Waterford Oaks County Park when the new season opens May 2 at 10:30 a.m.

Races will be preceded by opening ceremonies that include trick riding demonstrations by top local riders.

The Waterford Oaks BMX track is located off Scott Lake Road behind the Wave Action swimming pool in Waterford Township. For more information on the races, phone 858-0915.

"Spring Dancers," and "Tip-Toe Near the Trilliums," two public interpretive programs, are coming to Independence Oaks County Park.

Spring Dancers features bird watching and will be held May 8 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Tip-Toe Near the Trilliums focuses on the park's wide variety of wildflowers. Participants must pre-register to participate in either program by calling 858-0903.

CHS softball team bows

The pitching was there, but the attack was absent for the Clarkston High School varsity softball team Monday, as the Wolves bowed to Lake Orion 7-6.

Lanette Whitehead provided Clarkston with more than adequate pitching, but teammate Jane Acton was the only Clarkston batter with two hits.

Although the Wolves led 3-0 at the end of the third, Orion rallied to tie in fourth and pulled ahead to stay in the fifth to wrap up the win.

The loss dropped the Clarkston to 1-1 overall and 0-1 in the Greater Oakland Activities League.

In addition to regularly scheduled games this week, the Clarkston squad will also compete in the Girls Fast-Pitch Invitational Tournament this weekend, co-sponsored by the Pontiac Parks and Recreation Department and St. Mary's High School.

The Wolves' first two games in the double-elimination tournament will be Saturday at 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. at Beaudette Field in Pontiac.

Junior varsity off to solid start

The Clarkston High School junior varsity softball team is off to a flying start.

The JV girls opened their season with two lopsided non-league victories earlier this month, ripping Bloomfield Hills Lahser 14-2 and downing Grand Blanc 15-8.

Marina Hamlett provided Clarkston with outstanding pitching against Lahser, and also kept the enemy bats under control against Grand Blanc.

Audrey Campe went three-for-three, knocked in two runs and scored two runs in the Lahser game, while outstanding fielding at second base by Dawn Willett highlighted the Grand Blanc win.

Tracey Sherman went a combined three-for-four in the two games, while teammates Lori Martin and Tammy Wilder each batted three-for-five.

Seniors seek players

The Independence Township Senior Citizen Center is looking for men and women 55 years old and older to play on its senior citizens' softball team.

Persons interested in playing on the team can contact Rina Chemin at the Senior Citizens Center by calling 625-8231.

JVs are undefeated

Two non-league wins highlighted the Clarkston High School junior varsity baseball team's opening week of action in the 1981 season.

Led by some outstanding pitching and strong hitting, the Wolves humbled Bloomfield Hills Lahser 17-3 and coasted past Grand Blanc 5-1.

Dale Hesse worked the mound for Clarkston against Lahser, while Scott Temple went the distance in posting the win against Grand Blanc.

Hesse and teammate Bill Weeks have also been hitting well for the Wolves. Richie Schrader has been a Clarkston standout in both games both offensively and defensively.

Davis named to LIT golf team

Clarkston's Frank Davis has earned a place on the 1981 inter-collegiate golf team at Lawrence Institute of Technology.

Davis, a 1979 Clarkston High School graduate, is a sophomore in the mechanical engineering program at LIT. He will join 31 other students on the squad.

The golfers will play opponents from Washtenaw Community College, Wayne State University, Detroit College of Business, Siena Heights College, Spring Arbor College and Aquinas College.

In addition, the team will play in the Spring Golf Classic in Grand Rapids, the Furniture City Classic in Grand Haven and the Pine Knob Classic, coming to Pine Knob golf course in Independence Township.

NWOVEC teacher wins professional speak-off

Donna McCall of Main Street, Clarkston, represented the Clarkston-Waterford Chapter of the Business and Professional Women's Organization and won the district competition speak-off.

She is now qualified to go on to the state competition scheduled at the end of May.

Donna, instructor in greenhouse management and landscaping at Clarkston's Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center, competed against other career women under the age of 30. They gave oral presentations on their career aspirations and goals.

If Donna wins at the state level, she'll join other first-place competitors from all over the United States at the national convention in California.

Raffle brings $118

Delores Hall of Drayton Road, Independence Township, was the lucky winner in the recent raffle held by the Independence Township Firefighters' Auxiliary.

In the drawing held April 7,

Delores won $118.

The auxiliary also made $118 in the fund-raising event. The money is to be used for such causes as helping needy families who have fires, said an auxiliary spokesperson.

Club notes

The Clarkston Community Women's Club sold 81 tickets for the benefit performance of "Bus Stop" by the Clarkston Village Players.

WSU Club to sing at Colombiere

For an evening of entertaining enrichment, plan to attend Wayne State University Men's Glee Club choral concert on May 10, as they perform great works from the 14th century to the present.

The Colombiere Retreat Conference Center at 9075 Big Lake in Springfield Township will swell with the sounds of music by such composers as Palestrina, William Byrd and the contemporary Samuel Barber.

The glee club is under the direction of Dr. Harry Langsford who six years ago took his students to great fame when they won the Welch Eistfodd, the highest competition of choral societies in the world.

Curtain rises at 7 p.m. and a good will offering for tickets is welcome.

For more information, phone 625-3640.

Senior wins state contest

With the state competition behind him, Chuck DesJardins, a student at Clarkston's Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center (NWOVEC) can breathe a sigh of relief, but just for a short time.

Competition begins again the week of June 11 through the 18 as Chuck's off to Anaheim, Calif., to compete in the national Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECCA) contest.

Last weekend at the state competition, held at Hyatt Regency in Dearborn, Chuck placed third against 70 students in the food marketing competition from all over Michigan.

He tackled two written tests on food marketing, one comprehensive, the other on product knowledge. The third test was oral.

Chuck is a senior at Waterford Township High School.

HOW TO PLAY THE MARKET WITHOUT RISKING YOUR LIFE.

It used to be so easy. Risk some money in the market for growth. Keep the rest in the bank and buy a life insurance policy for security. Inflation has changed all that. A lot of people are risking that "security" today just to stay even with the economy.

There's a better way. John Hancock Variable Life. Like any whole life plan, it guarantees you the face amount of the plan you buy, but unlike most other plans, it also lets you invest in the market, with the opportunity to add to the value of your coverage.

Send us the coupon for more information. In uncertain economic times like these, an insurance plan that gives you an opportunity to help keep up with inflation could be the best plan in the market.

Coping with kids

by Jim Windell

Boys' search for sexual identity is difficult

Mrs. Worth thought she had faced everything in raising three children until her 14-year-old son Bart began wearing girls' clothing.

This threw Mrs. Worth when she found Bart one night watching television in the den with his sister's nightgown on underneath his own bathrobe. As events later came to light, Bart had taken and hidden in his room various other feminine apparel including underclothing.

Mrs. Worth thought in her own mind that Bart was sexually disturbed and perhaps she had caused him to be some sort of sexual deviate.

Parents of teenage boys who exhibit sexual problems--and the "worst" problems seemed to be reserved for teenage boys--are usually greatly perplexed about behavior such as transvestism (wearing the clothing of the opposite sex), voyeurism (getting pleasure from looking at something sexually stimulating), exhibitionism (showing others his sexual parts) and sexual play.

The reason is basically simple; achieving sexual identity for a boy is much more difficult than for a girl.

For one thing, a boy has to first learn to stop identifying with his mother and then learn to identify with his father.

With confusion about who he is and how to find gratifying sexual outlets, most teenage boys go through periods of time when deviant sexual behaviors are more normal than not.

Almost any or all normal substitute behavior for heterosexual behavior, which will be possible when he is older, will be tried by boys.

The problem for the parent is to recognize the behavior for what it is and deal with it calmly and appropriately.

An over-reaction ("What will he do next, rape someone?") will not be wise either for the worried parent or the young adolescent.

In most cases, greater information about sexuality and aid to find more appropriate sexual outlets will help.

Too frequently, the boy who feels that he doesn't belong in a group or that girls don't like him, will be the one who turns to maladaptive solutions for an age-old, but age-appropriate problem.

Professional offices open

The long wait is over for Dr. Charles Munk.

He began designing the Clarkston Professional Plaza three years ago and it has been under construction two years.

On Monday, the building officially opened. It is located at 5825 S. Main, just north of Dixie Highway in Independence Township.

There was a festive mood. The office staff wore yellow corsages, builders and visiting doctors toured the building and Munk was able to see his ideas come to life.

"The whole thing that is exciting to me is the concept of all the dental specialties in one building," he said, "I think that is so great--that all the specialties blend so well."

The open, airy feeling of his offices pleased him.

"I want people to feel like they're walking into my home," he said, "that they're not walking into a dental office."

In addition to Munk's orthodontist office, two others are now open:

•George Krull, D.D.S., who specializes in children's dentistry as a pedodontist.

•David Buelde, a maxillofacial prosthetic technician who does lab work for regular bridges and dentures and works with doctors on reconstruction for accident and cancer victims.

•Within the next two weeks, several other specialists are expected to open their offices.

•Romauld Szymanowski, M.D., an ear, nose and throat specialist.

•Joseph Heitsch, M.D., an orthopedic surgeon.

•James Williams, D.D.S., an oral surgeon.

•Carl Botvinick, D.D.S. and Allen Jacobs, D.D.S., root canal specialists.

•Karee Weber, a speech pathologist whose office will be located in Munk's suite.

A CONSUMER TIP

Getting the most out of your food dollar begins by planning at home. Check what you have on hand before you make your list. Plan your menus and shopping list before you shop. Waiting until you get to the store can be costly. Keep your list flexible so you can take advantage of unadvertised specials. Food wasted is money wasted. Plan attractive meals proportioned for the number you're feeding.

Sooth sweet teeth at the Village Bakeshop

Everybody's discovering Clarkston's latest! Oakland County Sheriff deputies on break from patrol have found the new haunt. In early morning hours, they side-up to the snack bar inside The Clarkston Village Bakeshop, order up cups of piping hot coffee and a half-dozen of Bill Lyon's big custard-filled donuts with inch-thick chocolate icing. In the afternoon, a towheaded lad just tall enough to see the counter's top ambles in with a fistful of pennies and sets his sights on a mouth-watering three-inch-in-diameter since grand opening one week ago.

Bill and wife Susan strived to create the bakery shop's old-time, sit-around-the-stove-and-talk atmosphere.

"It's the way we live. It's the way our house is," says Bill. "We live in an old historic house in Rochester. It was the general store for an old dairy farm called The Sign of the Black and White Cow."

"I remodeled most of the house's interior, but I really learned a lot doing this," he said, surveying the shop.

All the trim is oak, the floor is hardwood and part of one wall is the original irregular masonry of the old opera house.

The snack bar along the building's front inside window is a strategic spot for Main Street watching. Groups of old-timers opt for the traditional seating and gather round the shop's tables and chairs, swapping tall tales and drinking coffee.

An antique glass bakery showcase is filled with confectionary delights. Donuts come in all shapes, sizes and flavors with custard, cream and jelly fillings dominated by icy toppings.

Bill and Susan sell coffee, cakes, chocolate cakes, date bars, blueberry and bran muffins, and dozens of different cookies.

In addition, The Clarkston Bakeshop offers fresh oatmeal, pumpernickle, whole wheat, Jewish rye and herb breads.

"We've yet to make all the breads we'll offer," Bill said. "The oatmeal bread is good for breakfast. It's great for toasting and sandwiches. The herb bread is not for breakfast; it's definitely a dinner bread."

The burners always keep the coffee hot, the milk's always cold and The Clarkston Bakeshop has a whole shelf filled with herb and flavored teas.

By night, Bill bakes in the shop's basement.

By day, Susan mans the store. The Clarkston Village Bakeshop is open 24 hours and is located at 10 S. Main, Clarkston.

Bill and Susan Lyons (center) are joined by what Bill calls his righthand crew, Joe Lyons (left) and Karen Prather at right. The Lyons have made the Clarkston Village Bakeshop a booming success in just a couple of short weeks.

Doing business

chocolate chip cookie.

After 6 o'clock in the evening, a businessman on the way home from work stops in to The Clarkston Bakeshop, sets down his briefcase and orders the Danish coffee cake as big as a steering wheel.

Customers from all walks of life in all shapes and sizes have discovered The Clarkston Village Bakeshop, the best, nearest and fastest way to end sweet tooth trauma.

"I saw the void here for a bake and coffee shop, and the need for a place to be. I've been very pleased," said owner Bill Lyons, reflecting on the large amount of traffic in and out of the store

Musical height

An album by the band SUMMIT puts to song and music the Rouse brothers' struggle through life and their continued fight to reach the top. Clarkston News MAGAZINE staff writer Marilyn Trumper visited Roy Rouse's home on Clintonville Road in Independence Township, where he spoke candidly about his past and dreams for the future. Pine Knob's towering peak above the Rouse backyard provides daily incentive for Roy to reach his goal of performing there.

Touch of gold hits kitchen remodeling

"... Where a woman should be standing around in an antebellum dress talking about problems with people."

When we decided to redo the kitchen, I found that "redo" was a euphemism for "everything changes except the chimney."

Walls disappeared, windows changed shape and an adjacent bathroom moved two steps south. The only feature that did not change shape or position was the chimney.

When the kitchen had been redefined, the new perimeter included part of a room that had started life as an open porch and had been walled in sometime during its adolescence. It would never have been called large and, after the encroachment of the kitchen, it appeared miniscule. I decided to move the wall out "aways."

I enlisted the aid of a friend of mine who is knowledgeable in the building trades who immediately noted that panels come in four-foot widths and I would eliminate cutting if I moved the wall 12 feet.

Then he glanced over my sketches showing a porch built as an integral part of the structure and suggested I involve an architect. He would recommend a friend of his.

The architect rather pointedly observed that I was designing trusses that could only be made from deformed trees.

In the ensuing weeks, a dialogue was established between the architect and the builder which did not actually include me, although occasionally either one might look up from a technical discussion with the query, "Right, Herb?" I rarely knew to what I was agreeing, but silence was considered tacit approval.

It was discouraging when someone asked: "What are you doing to the back of your house?" and I could only answer: "I really don't know."

As the project raged out of control, various aspects demonstrated a curious growth pattern. The porch, which I had visualized as a modest gazebo where a man could "set down good," had

by Herb Rose

become a two-level, L-shaped covered deck system where a woman should be standing around in an antebellum dress talking about problems with the people.

What I thought would be a picture window had become a four-panel doorwall large enough so that with everything open an apprenticed driver could negotiate through it with a mid-sized tank. An area I thought was for storage turned out to be a bathroom.

Someone observed: "You'll love this room when it's finished. You'll live out here."

All I could think was: "I'll have to live out here. I'm renting out the rest of the house to pay for it."

Sometime in this unnatural course of human events, I seem to have become a cross between Moses and Midas.

Like Moses, I have my people: my plumber, my electrician, my window salesman.

Like Midas, whatever I touch, or even think about, unquestionably turns to gold. The gold, regrettably, is not for me. It is always for one of "my people."

Déjà Vu

Sodas sipped no more in downtown drug store

Before the days of Dairy Queen, Baskin-Robbins 31 Flavors and the illustrious Farrell's Ice Cream Parlour, there was O'Dell Drug's soda fountain—and the place was bopping and buzzing every Saturday night.

The year: 1935.

The place: Main Street, Clarkston.

The village's business district was alive with activity as country folk and townies hit the strip early, ambling into the drug store and sitting down for one of O'Dell's famous chocolate sodas, said former owner Rowena O'Dell.

At the noon hours, bands of Clarkston High School students looked the other way at mom's balogna sandwiches and headed downtown and hit the fountain for a refreshing cherry coke.

The hang-out was so well-known that even dentist Don Stackable prescribed "ice cream at O'Dell's" for a child's bruised courage following an examination.

The soda fountain lined one wall of the drugstore and had plenty of round stools, sans backs, Mrs. O'Dell said. The drugstore used to be where the village bakeshop now stands, she added.

In later years, O'Dell installed four booths for those who shunned stools.

"Vinyl booths?" Rowena laughed. "No way. They were plain old wood. Who ever heard of vinyl in 1935?"

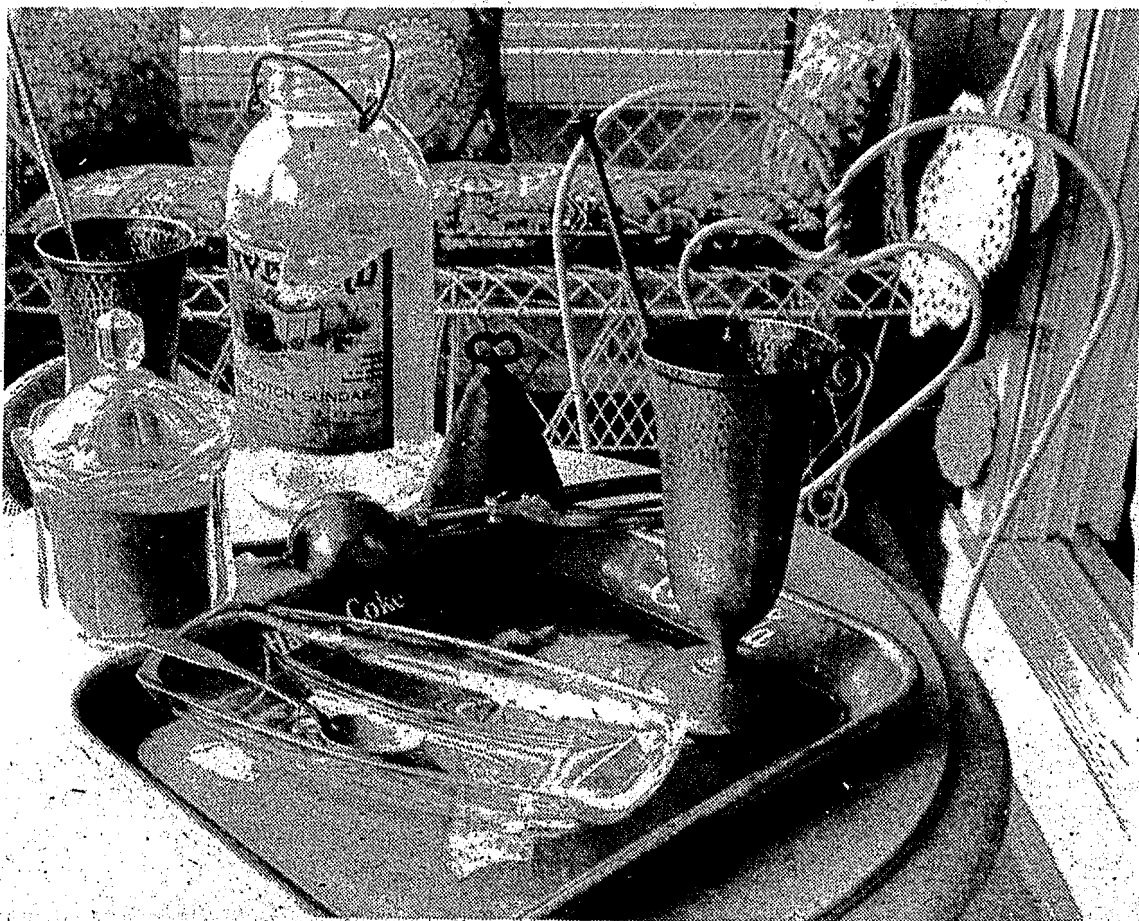

Sundaes were served in tall, thick tulip-shaped glasses. In those days, all ice-cream confections were served in glass with real spoons, she said.

"We had sundaes, banana splits, cones, sodas, cherry and chocolate cokes, milk shakes and we used real whipped cream," she said.

In 1935 O'Dell's was the place to be, where sodas cost 10 cents and the adventurous could feast on banana splits for 25 cents.

Those were the days.

—Marilyn Trumper

On the tables of drug store soda fountains of yore, or behind the counters, these items were put to practical use. Most are from the '20s—the Coca Cola tray, banana split bowl, sundae syrup jar, and glass jar used to hold nuts to sprinkle atop confectionary delights. The metal soda glasses are from Shettler's Drug Store, once located in the David Whitney Building, Detroit. The item that resembles a bell is an ice cream scoop from Vermont that's at least 75 years old. The items are all for sale at Main Street Antiques in downtown Clarkston.

SUMMIT

"I want to go out on the Pine Knob stage, or Meadowbrook, or wherever, and see all the people out there. I want to be able to relate to what's happened to me. I want people to understand the basis and the reasons for what I'm doing. There is a summit for everybody."

—Roy Rouse, member of the band SUMMIT.

The American Dream still lives for those in every generation who struggle to survive, to achieve and climb the rickety ladder toward success against all odds.

That's the way of the dream.

It means an endless pursuit toward the top in a journey where only the strong survive.

For 34-year-old Roy Rouse, the dream is becoming reality.

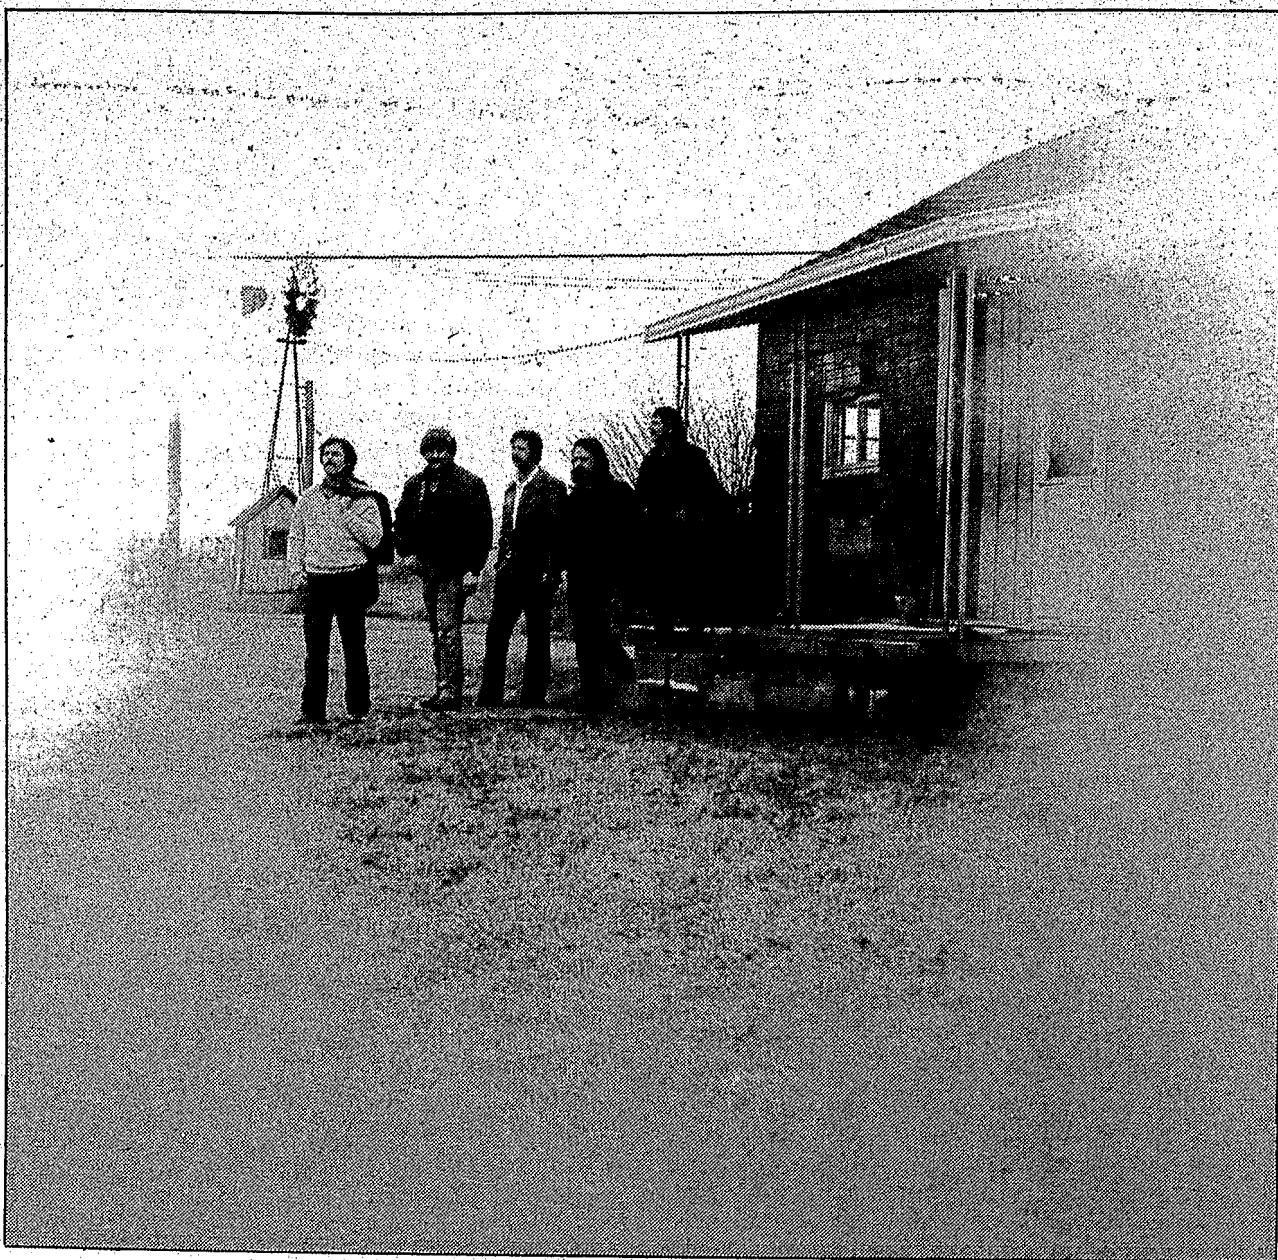

Today he enjoys the love of his wife Jeanie and their three children, a successful construction business and life in a rambling Spanish style house on Clintonville Road in Independence Township.

But the scenerio was different 25 years ago.

It is the past, adolescence, teenage years, the time spent struggling to grow up which serve as the foundation for the Rouse brothers' saga.

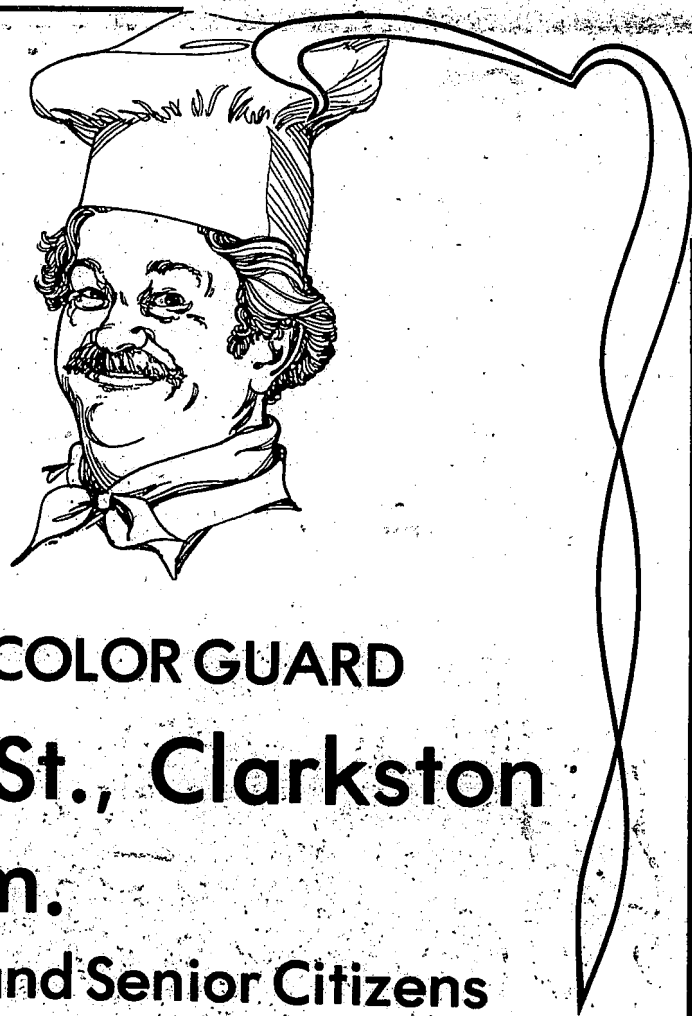

It is this story line put to words and music in the band SUMMIT's new album, "Life's a Dream," which Roy believes will skyrocket them into the forefront and to the heights of the music industry.

The American tale is one Roy believes will make a movie, and he's already approached Alex Karris with the plan. Karris recently produced and directed a film in Plymouth called "Word of Honor," and last year filmed in Detroit the movie "Jimmy B and Andre," which explored the life of

"The point is that no matter how hard life is, there is a summit." — Roy Rouse

Jimmy Butsicar, owner of the Lindell AC in Detroit.

The Rouses' story involved the struggle of 11 brothers raised in a broken home, their forced separation by juvenile courts and a brief, shared success in the 1960s in the music industry shattered by the Vietnam war.

It goes on to cover their respective successes in business and their blazing return to the music industry.

"All this music was written off our life," said Roy. "It's a great feeling, almost impossible to believe it's happening. We've put it together and have been able to make it come out the way it has."

"That's what the song 'Life's a Dream,' is about. If you want it—go for it. And don't stop. It's a dream come true the way it's happened."

"But we don't want people to think, 'Those poor buggers; they really had a rough life.' The point is that no matter how life is, there is a summit for everybody," Roy said. "It can be done."

"Life's a dream for you and me/ Wait your turn and you will see/ I can't turn my back on what will be/ It's not a fantasy."—Life's a Dream

"When I was 11, and my youngest brother was 5 years old, my parents separated and we all went into the juvenile home. It happened again, we were separated a second time when I was 15. We spent nine months there, because we had no place to live. My mom was in poor health and my dad was in jail."

"My father was a good man, but he was an alcoholic. He died in El Paso, Texas. We gave him a good funeral in one of the best suits he's ever seen," Roy said. "I think my dad felt he never could give us what was needed. I have no regrets. You have to keep going."

"So I try to stay alive/ Take what's yours and leave what's mine/ As I turn my life around." — "As I Turn My Life Around."

In the 1960s, several of the brothers shared a short success as The Shaggs.

"We were good," Roy said. "We could have signed with a label and we had contracts to tour with The Rolling Stones and Bob Seger. We were the Roostertail's house band for six months."

"We played with Seger in his westside days. Then three of the brothers were drafted during Vietnam."

Our program was blown apart; Seger's went on," he said.

Making a comeback from the days of the 60s is what the song "Hello, It's Me Again," is all about, Roy said.

I didn't know/ I couldn't see/ How I lost my way?/ Just moving constantly/ So now/ I'm off again/ It seems to me this could finally be the end/ I said hello, hello it's me again."

Like torn mountain climbers scaling the steep and slippery walls of life, the Rouse brothers have fallen down paths, been struck by boulders freed in avalanches—but they've continued and now say they are within inches of reaching their summit.

"Perry and I do most of the song writing," Roy said. "We both play guitar and sing. Randy, another brother, is in the band too. He sings and is percussionist."

Two other members of SUMMIT are Ed Kubilus on trumpet, saxophone and piano, and Marty McCarrick on drums.

"Not all the brothers are in the band, but this album is to be a continued thing. The whole concept is to bring us together as more albums come out. We start out on the back cover of the album leaving our old house in Oxford, and eventually we'll be on the album cover, at the summit," Roy said.

When the hired band backed out just three days before the Rouses' Christmas party in December, 1980, the men decided they'd provide the entertainment, Roy said.

"From there we stepped into the studio and cut the album. It's on our own label," he added.

Released a few weeks ago, SUMMIT's "Life's A Dream" has sold 5,000 copies. Roy's been steered to store promotions, has poster advertising the band, T-shirts cover the backs of fans and there are autograph signing sessions and radio talk show appearances.

"We've been hustling for air play on CKLW," Roy said, adding the band will be home free once that happens.

"We have to give it our last shot. This is a lifetime dream I can't seem to let go of," he said.

Baylises fulfill dream with horse farm

The monogram "L.B." holds a prominent place in the family of Shelby and Maria Baylis. Very prominent.

The Baylises have nine children, ranging in age from 27 to 13: Linda, Lisa, Loren, Lance, Laura, Larry, Louise, Lincoln and Lee.

Now, those nine names definitely follow a pattern, but Shelby and Marie didn't really plan it that way when they got married.

"Well, we didn't think we'd have quite this big a family," Shelby begins to explain, breaking into a grin.

"It started with Linda—Linda is one of my favorite names. It means 'beautiful' in Spanish."

Then came Lisa, another favorite name. Then Loren, Lance and Laura. By then, the Baylises had started a trend which they found themselves very reluctant to break, Maria chuckles.

"We were thinking of naming Larry 'John,' but decided against it," she says. "You know, he would have looked at Linda, Lisa, Loren, Lance, Laura and John and said, 'Hey, what happened to me?'"

A scenic, 30-acre parcel off Ortonville Road in Independence Township is the place the Baylises call home. In the corner of the property sits the large homestead, overlooking a horse barn, harness race track, trees, rolling hills and a small sparkling pond complete with geese swimming serenely on the surface.

Before moving to the Clarkston area two years ago, the family made its home in Bloomfield Hills for some 20 years. A love of horses and the rural life prompted the move.

"I always wanted to live on a horse farm," Shelby recalls. "The first time we saw this property I said I'd like to live there someday, and told a real estate man at Times Realty to let us know if it ever becomes available."

The Baylises bought the land in 1978, but couldn't move in until the existing house on the property was expanded to meet the needs of their large family.

Out in the barn are 25 stalls, and 15 of them are occupied.

"Some of the horses belong to our trainer," says Shelby. "Five of them are my own, and three of those are race horses."

"Six now," corrects 13-year-old Lincoln, a comment that puts a smile on everybody's face.

"That's right, we just had a new addition," Maria says happily, remembering the foal recently born on the farm.

On any given morning, there's usually a member of the family, a friend or the trainer out on the harness race track with one of the horses.

And although the Baylis home is currently a long way from where Shelby works, that's soon going to change.

A physician with 20 years of experience as a surgeon, Shelby has been a plant physician at Fisher Body in Warren since 1978, but soon plans on going into private practice in the Clarkston area.

A serious heart operation forced him to give up surgery, and take the position at Fisher Body. Today he is looking forward to going into private family practice when his new medical center opens up on M-15 north of I-75 in Independence Township.

"Surgery is very stressful," Shelby says. "I like my patients, and as a surgeon you don't have the chance for personal contact that you do in family practice."

"We've had patients calling and asking, 'When is Dr. Baylis going into family practice?'"

How soon?" adds Maria. "The medical center is just about ready to open—probably around the first of May."

Maria recites her sons' and daughters' names and accomplishments with motherly pride, from eldest to youngest—although she jokes that it's sometimes hard to keep all the names right. "I'll go through two or three names before I get it straight," she laughs.

Linda is the eldest at 27, Maria begins, holds a bachelor's degree in musical performance from the University of Cincinnati, and is a cellist in the Charleston, West Virginia Symphony Orchestra.

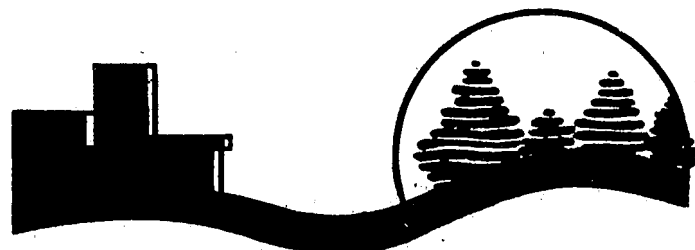

Twenty-six-year-old Lisa has an art history master's degree from the University of Southern

Twenty-five-year-old Loren is completing his third year of medical school at Georgetown University.

Lance and Laura are 22-year-old twins. Lance will graduate this year from Albion College and plans on attending law school. Laura is in her third year of hotel and restaurant management studies at Michigan State, and has worked in the past with famous chef Duglass Duglass.

Larry is an 18-year-old freshman at Oakland University and plans on attending medical school. Seventeen-year-old Louise is a senior at Clarkston High School and is also interested in studying medicine.

Thirteen-year-old twins Lincoln and Lee are 8th graders at Clarkston Junior High. Lincoln is thinking of a career in law or medicine down the road, while Lee is interested in becoming a veterinarian.

Larry, who played a prominent role in Clarkston High School's state semi-finalist basketball team last year, remembers vividly his days with Clarkston's best-ever cage squad.

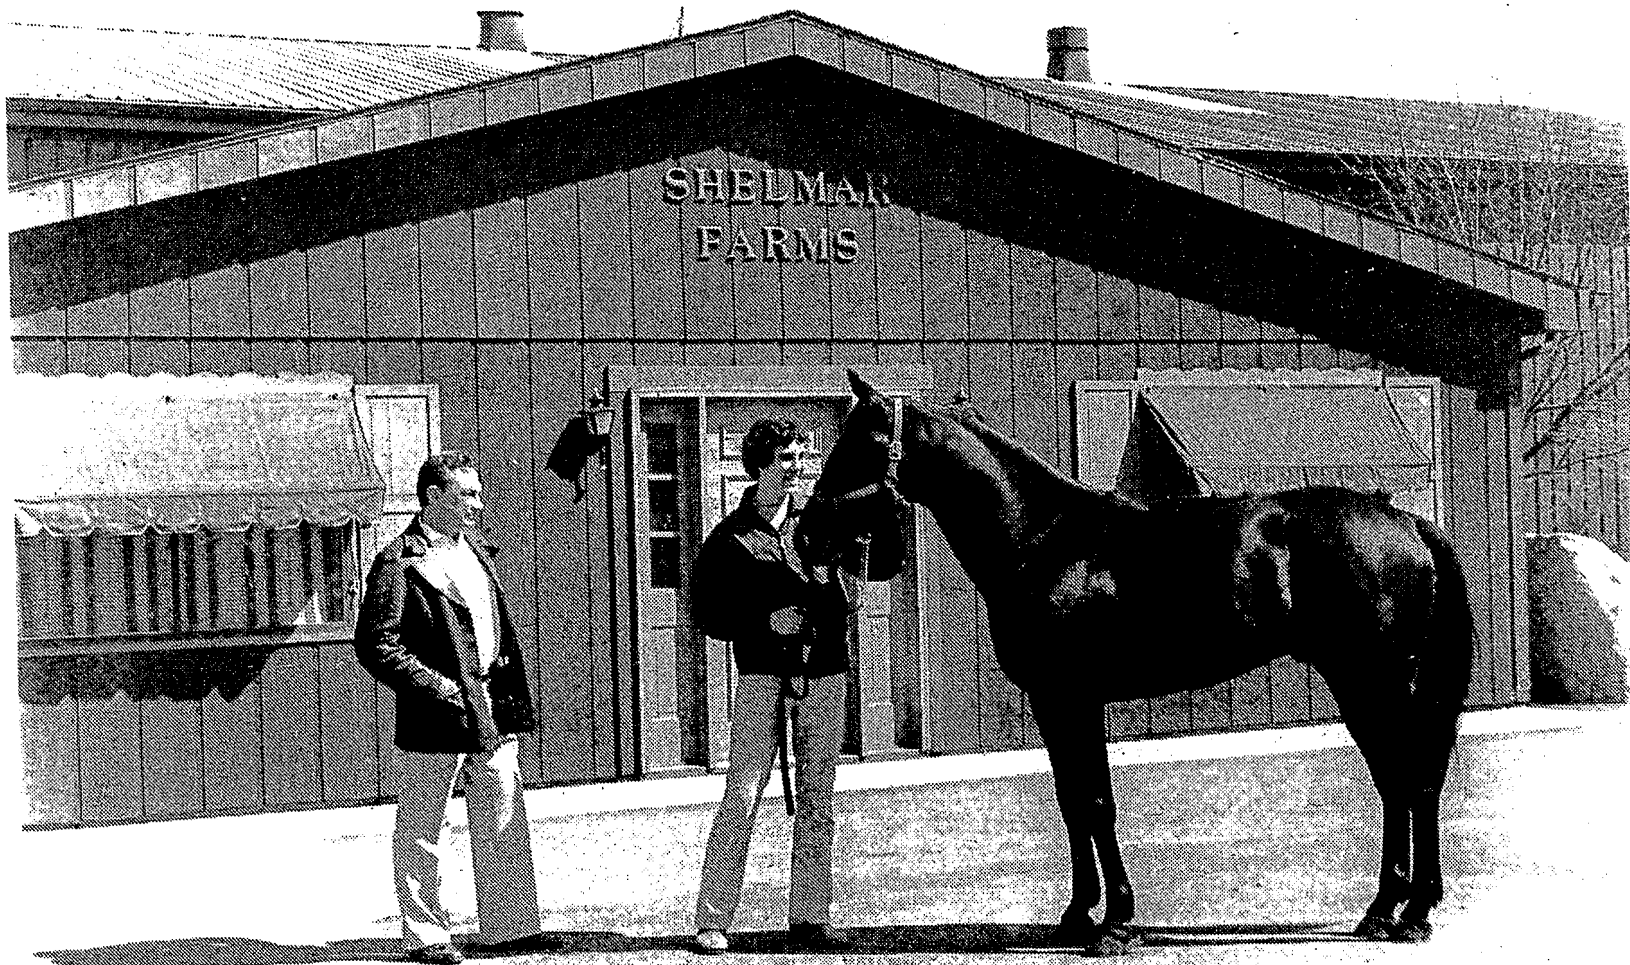

"We gave it our all—you can't really feel disappointed," he says, recalling a Friday afternoon in East Lansing when Highland Park quashed his team's state title hopes with a one-point win over Clarkston.

"I felt funny coming here as a transfer in my last year—but my senior year turned out to be the best of all. I've got a lot of memories."

—Al Zawacky

Owning a home "on a horse farm" had always been a dream of Shelby and Maria Baylis when they lived in Bloomfield Hills. Two years ago, dream became reality when the family moved to this home in Independence Township.

Shelby and son Larry admire their top race horse—"Dixboro Dynamite." The barn bears the official name of the property—"Shelmar Farms," an acronym for Shelby and Maria.

teachers and actors alike enjoyed a potluck dinner, four plays were presented, including "The Wise People of Gotham," shown above.

The wise girl, played by Heather Walls, gives advice to a suffering king on how to cure his toothache.

News publisher Jim Sherman and his wife, Hazel, toured eight states via van in March with Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Olrich of Oxford. This is one of Sherman's reports on that trip.

Sightseeing & Kommentare

By Jim Sherman, publisher

It's good to travel with a 'reader'. Marsha Olrich picks up every available piece of literature in each area we visited, plus she bought the Mobil Travel Guide before we left. It's an excellent history/travel info book.

However, we learned of a great eating place in Biloxi while at Glosters restaurant in Tupelo, Miss. A couple of men told our wives to not miss Mary Mahoney's in Biloxi. We're grateful.

Mary Mahoney's is an old (1737) French house and more. It has a bricked courtyard, gift shop, clothing store, cafe, slave quarters - converted to lounge, outdoor cafe, needlepoint shop, and Mary.

Everything on one side of the menu is $14.50. Select Shrimp Italienne appetizer, seafood gumbo (Mary claims its the best in the south and it is good), half lobster Georgo (chopped lobster with shrimp sauce), Sisters of the sea au gratin, Crab au gratin with mushrooms. Each served with vegetable, salad and desert.

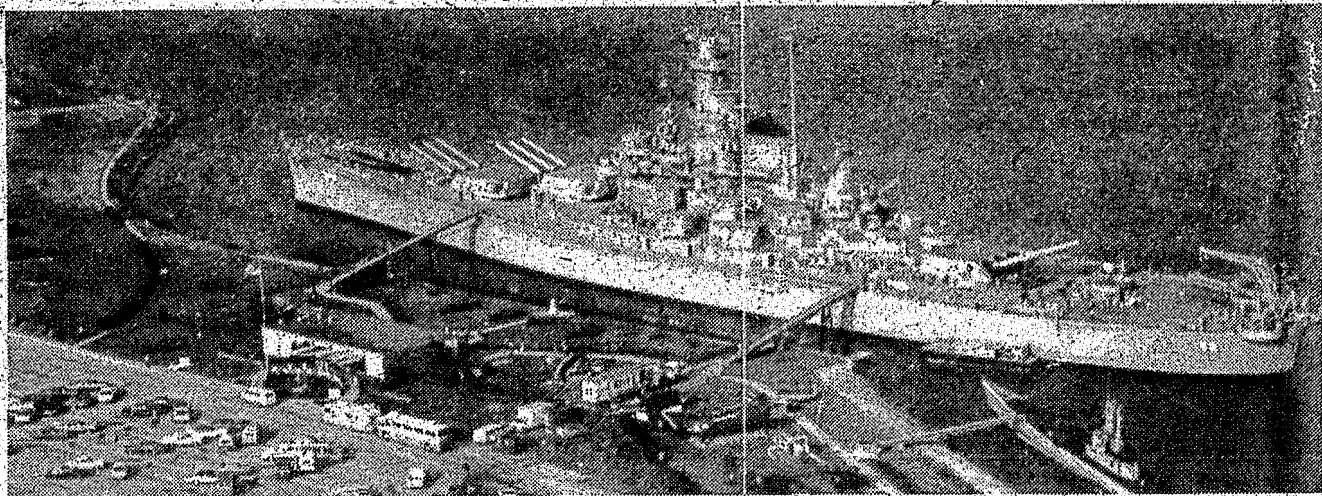

It's an interesting, unusual and inviting place right on highway 90, but set back from the road on Rue Magnolia.

The Factory and LeRoys we also recommend. LeRoys is almost fast food. His catch-of-the-day was a fish we never heard of and it was great.

The Factory is just that, a converted shrimp factory. The buffet was $6.50. We probably had 15 oysters on the half shell plus the gumbo soup, fish, and salad. We ignored the Hush Puppies, and were disappointed that there was no shrimp.

In fact, shrimp is not readily available in Biloxi. You get better in Detroit. We expected the gulf coast to abound with shrimp stands.

Marsha's literature said the battleship USS Alabama was in Mobile permanently. That was a of towns of equal size with one having a college and the other not. The college town will have bigger homes and be better kept.

Not true with Tuskegee, Alabama. It's the must for an ex-Navy man.

But, so was our trip getting from Biloxi to Mobile. We dropped south on route 188 into Bayou la Batre, a peninsula sticking out into the gulf, and found two shrimp boat building and restoration yards.

They are not tourist towns, but working welder/paintertowns with friendly folks.

Mobile is a "stately southern" town to drive through. On the streets where the black people live there are no curbs, just ditches with culverts under the driveways. Small houses and smaller yards.

Turn onto route 10 and there are mansions on both sides, with large mature trees and azaleas in bloom. But here, too, an attractive mansion would be next door to a deteriorating mansion. It's an oft-repeated scene in the south.

We didn't go aboard the Alabama, just admired its size, looked at the submarine along side and WWII airplanes tied down in the visitors area.

We left Mobile on a bridge that appears to be built lengthwise of a river. It's a divided highway bridge and between the lanes and below a speedboat went past.

There are miles and miles of lowlands east of Mobile. We soon headed north toward Montgomery, then east through Auburn and on to Pine Mountain Georgia and Calloway Gardens.

You get the idea in car travel, towns entrances are looking more and more alike. First there's the golden arches, then a plastic statue of a big boy, a picture of an old white haired man with a goatee and another with a hamburger with lettuce and cheese.

Add in a Krispy Chicken, Krystal's hamburgers, Chevron, Long John Silvers, Texaco, and a big Pizza sign and you have Welcome to City, USA.

Montgomery is another "south" town. All the government buildings, and there are lots of them, are very white.

There is often a big difference in appearance home of the largest black enrollment college in the US. Main street reflects a low income population.

Right next door is Auburn and Auburn University. It appears vibrant and prosperous.

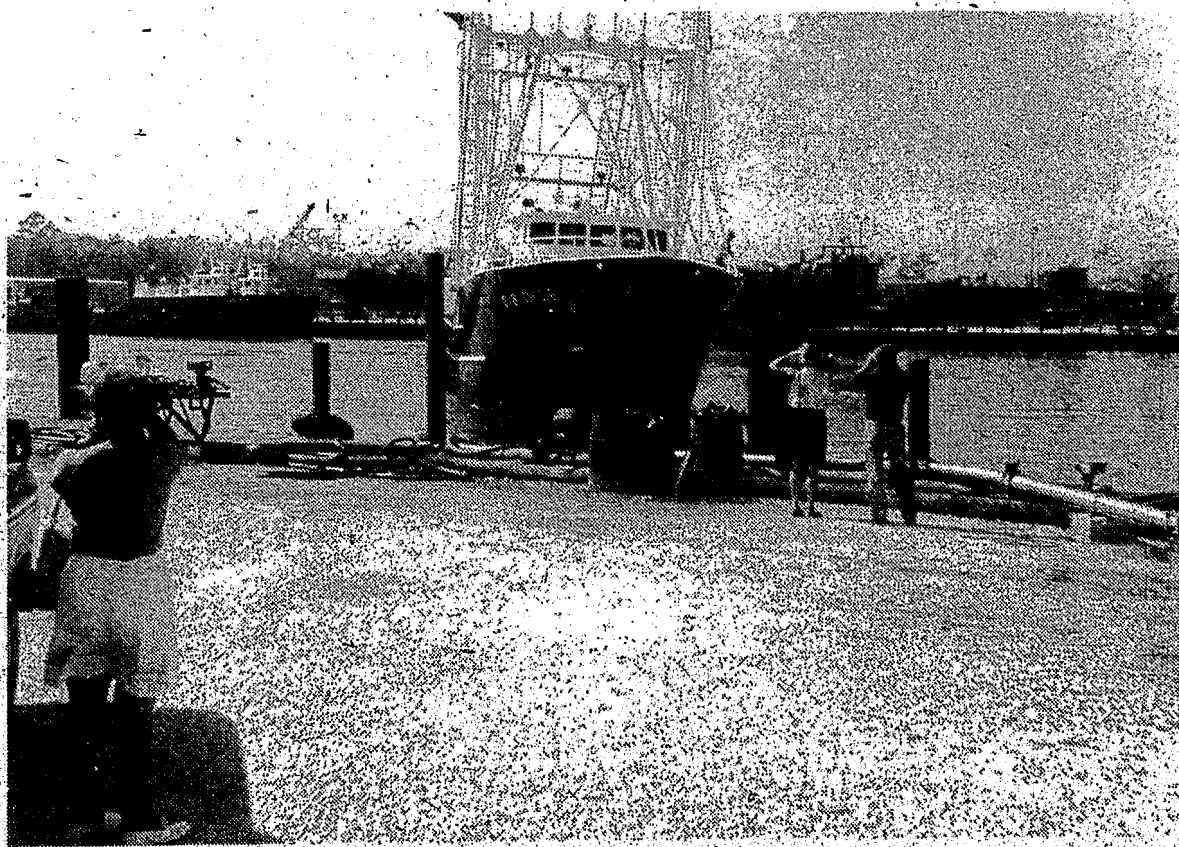

At least one of us always ordered the specialty of the house in a restaurant. Often it was the best choice. That tip is good all over, probably.

Our VISA credit card was accepted wherever we presented it. Jerry Olrich's aco.

Our non-freeway driving took us onto a country road that ended in Bell Buckle, Tenn. It had one grocery, one general and one antique store. It also must have had a government grant to make a nice parking lot in front of two of the open stores and the eight vacant stores.

We saw a lot of very interesting stuff on our 2,950 mile trip, some we knew we'd remember and didn't write it down. Next time we'll write more and take a picture, too.

Hazel, left, and Marsha and Jerry Olrich look across a bay at Bayou la Batre, Ala. at shrimp boat building yards as a recently refurbished shrimp boat turns at the dock. Shrimp boats are repainted every 3 or 4 years at a cost of $15,000. The boats work the coast from Mobile to Maine.

'With this ring, I thee wed'

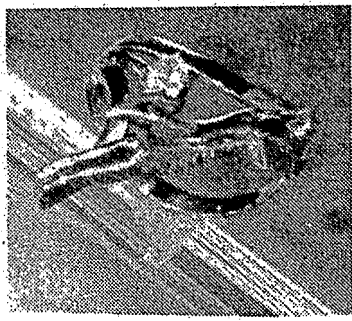

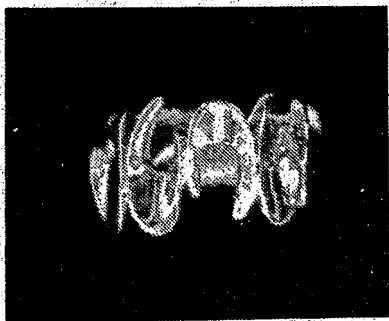

For centuries, the ring has stood for the symbol of love, a circle of unending faith promising life together forever for a couple about to embark in marriage.

Each wedding is special, personal and privileged, as individual as the couple making their vows. For many, the need to capture that same quality in wedding rings sends men and women in search of custom jewelry.

"You can draw us a picture—we can make it," says Tom Brown Sr., owner of Waterfall Jewelers in the Waterfall Plaza. "Draw your dream—we can make it. We help fulfill your dreams."

"Our design or your design, it doesn't matter. And price? It doesn't matter. Cost and price is not a factor. We can make a special simple design for $200."

"They're all beautiful because a dream is beautiful. A ring is something a girl waits for most of her 18 years," he said.

Custom designed rings for men and women have become an important aspect of the wedding for couples searching for that individual touch. Lovett's Jewelers will create anything from golden whippets to topaz, surrounded by a diamond guard (left). Waterfall Jewelers also offers custom designed jewelry for men and women from the contemporary to the traditional.

Joan Kopietz, owner of Tierra Arts & Design in Clarkston, says wedding rings don't have to be expensive and she cites ways to get around cost.

"People working with a low budget have come to me in the past and we've been able to create some really nice rings," she said.

"I remember one couple who brought in a wide band, and we made two narrow band rings by cutting the wide band in half. Then we custom textured each surface."

Joan says she'll do any design a customer requests.

"My jewelry has a clean look. Rather than a lot of stones I make more use of the solitaire with extra designs in the metal."

"I use metal as the principle with stone used to highlight the metal, rather than metal highlighting the stone," she said.

One patron desired a turquoise wedding band, and Joan created a ring she describes as "golden steps dropping down to levels with a turquoise triangle in the center."

Designer Lynn Fill at Lovett Jewelers in the Clarkston Mills Mall, accepts each creation with challenge, be it contemporary or traditional.

"We'll do anything the customer wants. Many couples come in and want one style or the other, something not too far out, yet traditional, not too different from what mom and dad wore," he said.

Lovett's usually begins custom design work with a sketch and can often go on from there, Fill said. On other occasions, a wax mock is presented to give a three dimensional grasp of the design, he said.

Be it a $30,000 custom gold and diamond ring or simple band sans decoration, the circle of faith remains a symbol of love and an integral part of the wedding ceremony.

Traditional wedding toast calls for some special sparkle

Words of warm wishes for a long, happy life for the bride and bridegroom culminate with the clink of crystal and sips of champagne.

Choosing a champagne just right for the wedding toast is the sort of detail exacting wedding planners think about.

Melanie Black of the Peanut Barrel in Waterford Township recommends two popular and elegant choices—one a French import and the other a domestic sparkling wine.

Brut Imperial Moët et Chandon, 1975, costs $28 a bottle.

Grapes for the bubbly beverage are grown in Epernay, France, the champagne is probably the most prestigious available, says Melanie.

Champagne de Chardonnay, 1974, is from the Beaulieu vineyards in Napa Valley, Calif. It costs $15.99 a bottle.

There are lots of other champagnes to choose from. As Melanie says, "These are just two really nice ones."

Champagne is not only the perfect drink to serve during nuptial celebrations, but there are also many related events

Time cannot touch two hearts that truly love.

before and after a wedding that call for what Charles Dickens described as "one of the elegant extras of life."

Before: Serve the sparkling wine at a champagne shower or to bridesmaids and ushers after the wedding rehearsal. It's also appropriate at engagement parties or at an intimate dinner for members of the family.

After: Champagne is ideal for a bon voyage party en route to the honeymoon, a candlelight dinner to end the glorious day or a wedding breakfast the next morning.

Champagne is also an ideal gift. A half-bottle is a nice touch when attached to a present for the couple.

A case of champagne is also an excellent choice—providing something special for future dinner parties, brunches or buffets hosted by the newlyweds.

Just like new the second time around

As she walks down the aisle headed for the altar oohs and ahhs rise from family members and relatives seated throughout the church.

Her wedding gown trails the floor. All lace and satin, a white veil shades her face and a bouquet of white roses cascades over her clasped hands.

Her gown could have been purchased secondhand at the Velvet Pumpkin and Bridal Exchange in Waterford Township—and no one would know the difference says owner Carol Cawley.

"The idea that someone would purchase a used dress is really unique," Carol said. "But when you walk in the door here you forget these dresses are resale and are pleased with what you see."

The Velvet Pumpkin has wedding dresses from size three to size 18, some are new and have never been worn, others have been worn once and others are sample dresses, she said.

"Most people are surprised they cannot order our dresses," Carol said. "We have women buying dresses now for fall, winter and spring weddings for 1982."

Customers can realize big savings by purchasing secondhand wedding dresses, Carol said.

"We have a two-tone white lace and ivory dress with a high Victorian neck covered in lace, and a ruffled bodice," she said. "It has a soft ivory chiffon skirt and an underlying of lace. It originally sold for $320 and we're offering it for $185."

"Another gorgeous gown by M'Lady has lace on the bottom that's 14 inches deep, it has re-embroidered lace, pearls, a deep yoke with a ruffle down the front and a matching chapel veil."

"The wedding was called off and this dress was never worn. The bride said she originally paid $650 for it. We're offering the dress and veil for $250," Carol said.

The shop also offers dresses for $100 and less on the budget rack, and there are gowns for the mother-of-the-bride and attendants, too.

This ivory organza gown with mandarin collar, ivory appliques and seed pearls sells for $75 at the Velvet Pumpkin and Bridal Exchange.

Cooking —

A time for togetherness

The kitchen was once solely a woman's domain, but, as times change, more and more couples are beginning to share in the task and creativity of meal preparation.

After a day of work for both, time spent in the kitchen preparing dinners and weekend feasts can be a time of togetherness.

The trend toward prowess for both sexes in the kitchen is one Phil Alper, owner of Somethin's Cookin in Clarkston Corners, has seen.

"The older men, they come in and look at the cookware and cutlery, but they're basically looking for their wives," he says. "The younger men, they look for themselves."

"We're finding more men shopping for kitchen gadgets, some types of kitchen appliances and convection ovens," he adds.

To outfit a kitchen, there are basics that must be met.

But, after that, personal interests in cooking and eating come into play. For the newlywed couple, as well as the gift-giver, only imagination stands in the way of items that can be chosen.

Alper suggests special things to make a kitchen intriguing and inviting, like coffee grinders, whistling tea kettles, steak platters and pizza dishes.

Then, too, there's always an item sure to set the mood for some serious cooking—matching aprons.

FIRST KITCHEN BASICS

7 or 8 inch frypan	• For omelets, crepes...
10 or 12 inch frypan	• For panfrying chicken, beef, fish...
1 or 1½ quart saucepan, 2 or 2½ quart saucepan	• For vegetables, canned soups, hard cooked eggs, sauces...
5 or 6 quart pot/Dutch oven	• For stews, fricassees, spaghetti...
Bake and roast pan	• For meat loaves, roasts, lasagna...
Electric frypan	• For braised, fried, sauteed dishes, portable and great for entertaining
Coffee pot	• Electric or top-of-range
Tea kettle	• For boiling water for tea, instant coffee, cocoa
Knives	• For paring, slicing, carving; but never cut in cookware
Wooden spoons	• For stirring—metal scratches cookware surfaces
Plastic spatulas	• To preserve non-stick cook- ing surfaces
Pair of tongs	• For turning meat, chicken— never use a fork, it lets the juices run out
Vegetable peeler	• For carrots, potatoes

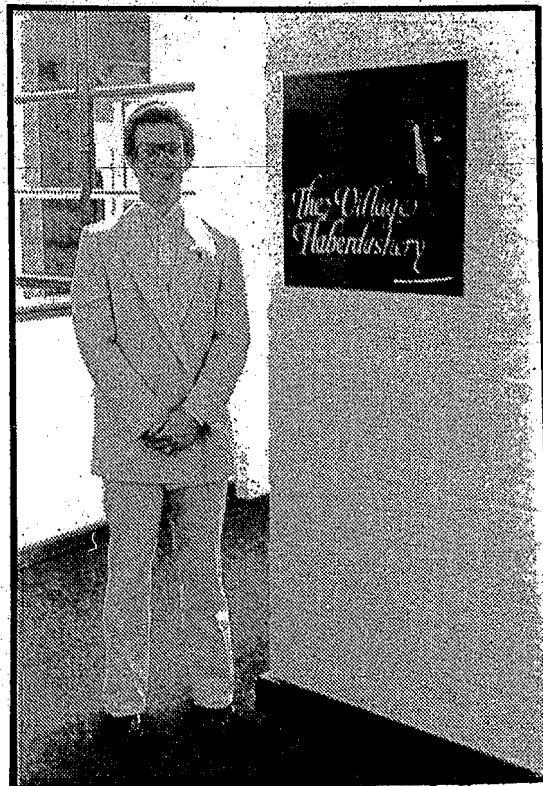

There are, of course, many other items that a young couple will covet for their new home—a blender, food processor, slow cooker, toaster oven, corn popper, loaf pan, cookie sheets and muffin pans with "SilverStone"—all useful and handy to have. These make great gifts for family and friends to give newlyweds, so register those you want with the bridal registry at your favorite store, along with your china and silver patterns.

Wedding costs: Who pays for what

Tradition surrounds the dividing of expenses between the families of the bride and bridegroom.

Although it is not unusual for the bridegroom's family to share in the cost of the reception, it is most often the custom that the bride's family is entirely responsible for the ceremony and reception expenses.

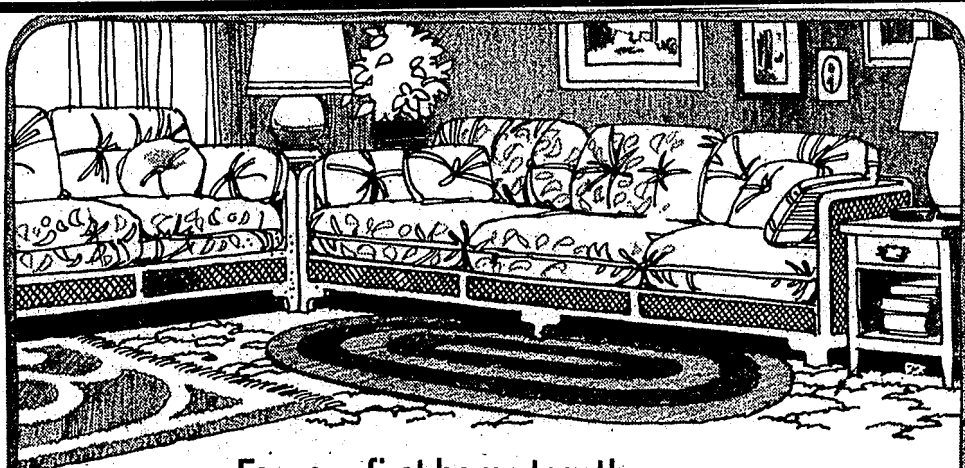

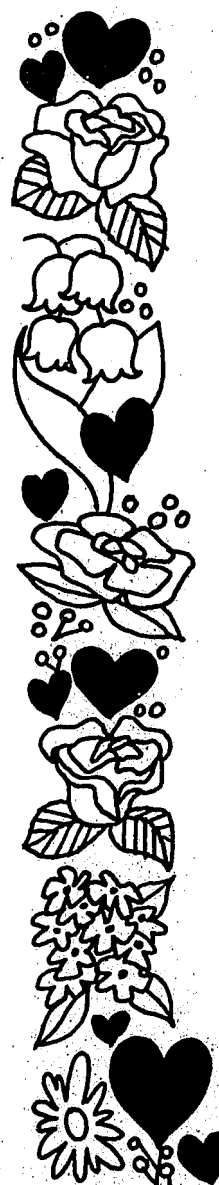

As pointed out in Bride's magazine, wedding costs are customarily divided as follows:

Bride or bride's family expenses:

- Invitations, announcements and enclosure cards.
- Bride's wedding dress, veil and trousseau.
- Bouquets for wedding party.
- Flowers for church and reception.
- Engagement and wedding photographs.
- Fees for church, sexton, organist.
- Transportation of the bridal party to the church and reception.
- Entire reception, including food, beverages, music and decorations.
- Bridegroom's wedding ring and wedding gift.
- Gifts for bride's attendants.
- Hotel accommodations for bridesmaids from out of town.

Bridegroom's expenses:

- Bride's engagement and wedding rings.
- Marriage license.
- Clergyman's fee.
- Bride's bouquet.
- Boutonnieres for men of the wedding party.
- Flowers for mother and grandmother.
- Bride's wedding gift.
- Gifts for best man and ushers.
- Hotel accommodations for ushers from out of town.
- Complete wedding trip.

The park: A beautiful place to be wed

The white-steepled church is nowhere to be found.

Picnic tables replace the traditional pews.

A search for an organ, some stained glass or an altar will be in vain.

But then, a couple doesn't decide on an outdoor wedding ceremony for the sake of conventionality—although traditional aspects of the ceremony often remain.

"We're going to have our first wedding here on June 6," says Ron Stravel, who works in Independence Oaks County Park for the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission. "It's really a pretty nice idea."

Outdoor weddings at Independence Oaks are nothing new, although usually no more than four of five couples each year decide to join hands in the park's natural setting.

"A lot of people don't know you can have them (weddings) here," Stravel says. "I think it's a lot better than inside a church, especially when it gets hot in the summer."

By far the most popular location for the ceremony is at Independence Oaks Twin Chimneys shelter overlooking scenic Crooked Lake, says Stravel. The walls on the Twin Chimneys building can be removed for larger gatherings or remain for an enclosed ceremony with a smaller group, according to the couple's wishes.

With its rolling green hills, stately trees and blue waters, the Twin Chimneys area is the epitome of a back-to-nature setting, but the bride and groom usually opt for the traditional gown and tuxedo, says Stravel. And basic modern conveniences are available as well.

Portable restrooms are set up on the grounds, and there's electricity to accommodate a band. Catering trucks and alcohol are permitted.

One of the few drawbacks is the park's 10 p.m. closing time, which translates into an earlier-than usual break up of the festivities.

And then there's the weather. Gambling on a dry afternoon and evening is part of the experience.

"All you can do is hope," Stravel says. "A little rain isn't going to stop a wedding—there's the shelter, and even if you're in a church, you've still got to walk outside to your car."

Cost of the use of the park is $250 for the first 200 guests, and 50 cents more for each additional person.

The park stays open during the wedding, but the public is barred from the area being used, Stravel says. The park security force keeps trespassers at bay.

"We've never had a bit of trouble," Stravel adds.

"It's really a beautiful place for a wedding."

The Twin Chimneys shelter, overlooking the waters of Crooked Lake, has served as a setting for many wedding ceremonies over the years as a cool and green alternative to traditional church service.
