Secret meeting theory surfaces

Knob attorney charges 'serious cover-up;' ZBA members don't remember

By Marilyn Trumper

Alleging a "serious cover-up," attorney Anthony Locricchio says the reason Pine Knob Investment Co. wants members of Independence Township's Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) questioned under oath is to establish "they held an illegal meeting" during review of the proposed 20-story, ski-run-roof hotel in October 1979.

For months, Pine Knob has remained virtually silent on its endless pursuit to depose ZBA members.

"We have no fear of revealing our legal strategy now," Locricchio said, criticizing earlier reports that Pine Knob sought to "enter the sanctity of ZBA members' minds."

"The reason we want to take depositions is to discover that they held an illegal meeting. We have definite proof they did," Locricchio said. "We have a witness."

Locricchio's allegation was neither confirmed or denied by the three ZBA members contacted, who said they did not remember any such secret meeting.

Locricchio charges that on Oct. 10, 1979, one-and-a-half hours before the ZBA was expected to rule on the question of height for Pine Knob's proposed hotel, Chairman Mel Vaara called a covert meeting where all ZBA members assembled in the basement of the township hall.

According to Locricchio, ZBA members voted on strategy for action to be taken in the public meeting scheduled later that night.

The ZBA was expected to decide the height question that night, and instead produced an outdated zoning map showing most of the proposed hotel site was zoned multiple family and not commercial/recreational, Locricchio said.

The vote in the alleged secret meeting was the same as the vote in the regular meeting. Locricchio said, when ZBA members in a 3-2 decision dismissed the question on height until clarification of the map could be made.

The delay allowed residents to vote on an Oct. 16 special election in which a 71 percent majority of voters rejected the use of recreational districts for resort-convention-hotels. And, in an advisory vote, 75 percent of the voters said a height limitation in recreation districts should not be increased from 35 feet to 200 feet.

"We want to show that there was an illegal meeting which violated the Michigan Open Meetings Act," Locricchio said. "It interfered with our rights for due process of law. Subsequently we lost our $30 million investor and had to wait until after the election to return to the ZBA—and then go onto court."

"It's interesting that all five ZBA members agreed the map was incorrect when we came back later," he said. "All we wanted them to do was take the step—we couldn't move until they did. They made sure we couldn't be working out strategy."

ZBA Chairman Mel Vaara said he did not remember any secret meeting.

"I honestly can't remember. I don't know. We met all the time in the basement because at the time that's where ZBA meetings were held. I can't remember us doing that," Vaara said.

Jerry Powell who has since resigned from the ZBA also said he couldn't remember if such a meeting were held, and added he had gotten rid of all his records.

"That was a long time ago and we had so damn many meetings back then. I don't think we did. The issue was and [Continued on Page 2]

Sun Day

Raking, weed-pulling, planting and hedge-trimming were all underway Friday at Clarkston High School as about 150 students enrolled in Gary Nustad's social studies courses did some spring sprucing up around the grounds. The clean-up project began about five years ago to honor Earth Day and is called Sun Day by the students. Here, sophomore Glen Schreitmueller takes on the task of transferring rakes between locations. There are more photos of students at work on Page 32.

Thursday, thieves stole a moto-cross bicycle valued at $75 from inside an unlocked garage on Clintonville Road, Independence Township, according to police reports.

Friday, thieves stole an aluminum row boat valued at $400 from a beach on Curtis Lane, Independence Township, according to police reports.

Friday, vandals pulled letters from a mailbox on Cornell Road, Independence Township, and tore them in half, according to police reports.

Friday, thieves stole a 10-speed bicycle from a yard on Mann Road, Independence Township. Cost to replace the bike is not available, according to police reports.

Friday, thieves broke into a house on Paramus Road, Independence Township, and stole an AM-FM radio valued at $50 and two bottles of apple brandy valued at $5 each, according to police reports.

Saturday, thieves kicked in the door of a house on Big Lake Road, Springfield Township, and stole an assortment of guns, TV, stereo and speakers valued at $1,966, according to police reports. Cost to repair the damaged door is estimated at $75, reports said.

Saturday, thieves stole two six-week-old English sheep dog puppies valued at $300 each from a house on Hadley Road, Independence Township, according to police reports.

The puppies were found later in a vacant field next door. They were freshly bathed and combed. Police theorize the thief returned the dogs when inquiries were made throughout the neighborhood by the owner.

Saturday, vandals caused $100 worth of damages to the Michigan National Bank, 6725 Dixie Highway, Independence Township, according to police reports.

Saturday, vandals throwing rocks smashed the picture window of a house on Cayuga Road, Independence Township, according to police reports.

Sunday, homeowners on Sashabaw Road, Independence Township, woke up to discover thieves breaking into the garage.

According to police reports, the thieves were intoxicated, thought they were on Cooley Lake Road and were seeking a place to get out of the rain.

Deputies from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department were unable to locate the thieves who left on foot, according to reports.

Sunday, vandals caused $120 in damages when they slashed three tires on a car parked on Waldon Road, Independence Township, according to police reports.

Sunday, thieves broke into a car on Warbler Road, Independence Township, and stole an AM-FM stereo and 18 tapes valued at $200, according to police reports.

Sunday, thieves stole chrome wire hubcaps off a patron's car parked in the lot of Howe's Lanes, 6697 Dixie Highway, Independence Township, according to police reports.

The above information was collected from reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

PK awaits police contract

Pine Knob Investment Co., Oakland County and its sheriff's department have agreed on contracts for police control for the 1981 music season, according to James Brennan, director of the county's Office of Management and Budget.

Representatives of Pine Knob met with county officials and finalized the agreement May 5, he said. The contracts allow deputies' pay to be $17.90 for each hour of overtime work, and cover police protection and traffic control inside and outside the theater.

The contracts are expected to go before the county's Public Safety Committee May 12 for recommendation, and then on to Oakland County Board of Commission for final approval and adoption, he said.

Brennan speculated the contracts might meet with commission disapproval, because Pine Knob owes in excess of $20,000 for police services last year.

The first concert at Pine Knob is scheduled May 31.

ZBA can't recall meeting

still is so important I'm sure we would not have taken the chance and violated the open meetings act," Powell said. "But, what his (Loerichio's) proof is I don't know."

John Dunlop, third ZBA member, said he could not remember any covert meeting, but said he thought he recalled two or three members discussing litigation with the township attorney. Dunlop was also unsure whether those meetings took place in October 1979 or February of 1980, when the ZBA was ordered by the Oakland County Circuit Court to hear and decide the height question.

ZBA members Paul Menke and Robert Newlin could not be reached for comment.

Township attorney Richard Campbell said he knew of no such meeting, and was certain if a meeting were held, he was not there.

ZBA minutes for the Oct. 10, 1979 meeting show only the meeting on the question of height, and that no special meeting was called, and then closed, as regularly by the Michigan Open Meetings Act.

For the past eight months the township has been fighting a circuit court ruling which allowed Pine Knob to question ZBA members on their review and denial of the proposed hotel. The Court of Appeals dismissed the township's bid to overturn the lower court's order, and three weeks ago Independence appealed a second time to the Michigan Supreme Court.

"We are going to win—and we are going to question the ZBA," Loerichio said. "If they want to perjure themselves let them. We have a witness. We won in the circuit court, we won in the court of appeals and we'll win in the supreme court."

Officials' views vary on Proposal A

By Marilyn Trumper

Local government, school, county and state officials have mixed reactions regarding Proposal A, the termed tax cut slated for Michigan's May 19 ballot.

"It's a difficult decision," said Independence Township Supervisor James B. Smith. "As a citizen, not as a public official, I believe it's going to limit the financial growth of the township."

"I don't think it comes with

If proposal A passes, Smith said the township anticipates losing in excess of $100,000 annually.

State Rep. Claude Trim (D-Davisburg) said he's relieved by the attorney general's opinion that it was not the intent of Proposal A to incorporate a value added tax, but says he opposes the proposal for several reasons.

"I have deep reservations as to whether the 1.5 percent sales tax increase will gain enough money back to the fund to fulfill to go in and bond using that money to clean up a deficit operation. The proponents say 'If Detroit goes down, we all go down—this is the best way to stop that,' Trim said.

"My problem is I look at these cities and I've seen too much responsibility—compare their salaries; Detroit for instance is above most other city employees in the nation."

Trim added he was not anti-Detroit, but there's only so much in the pot.

"Really, there is property tax relief in the proposal if that's what people are looking for," Trim said. "I feel this is an issue which needs to be resolved and I feel responsible to the people. Therefore, even with all the time I've put into this proposal I must oppose it."

"If it passes, I expect pressure in other areas to increase taxes," he said.

Clarkston School's Superintendent Milford Mason has thrown up his hands in despair and has no opinion on what he's termed an "uncertainty."

"I'm not advocating it (Proposal A) either way. If there was a really clean and concise plan in terms of implementation, I'd be more willing to say something."

"But, I have no opinion. The way it's described in different quarters disagrees with what I've read elsewhere. There are enough points of uncertainty that I don't have a position," he said.

Mason added the Clarkston School Board has yet to take a position.

James M. Brennan, director of Oakland County's Office of Management and Budget, offered the executive offices' opinion.

He added the Oakland County Board of Commission has yet to give its opinion.

"We're opposed to it," Brennan said. "Our opposition is not to revenue limitation which we estimate will average 9 percent. We don't think that's impossible to live with. There are several reasons why we are opposed to the proposal."

The first area the county is concerned with is the 50-percent credit reimbursement by the state, he said.

"We know there'll be a cash-flow problem and the state won't be able to reimburse us on a timely basis. We estimate because of that we'll lose investment income of $240,000 with one month's delay."

"Secondly, while the proposal is in answer to tax reform, the state will benefit with greater revenue," he said. "We estimate the state's revenue will increase by $400 million after the first three year's accumulation."

Brennan called the proposal a "tax-shift" whereby the state extracts another degree of control over local governments.

"Thirdly," he said, "the proposal is so complicated and complex that administration will be damn near impossible. We've figured it will cost one-quarter of a million dollars to reprogram our computers for calculations."

Brennan also struck out at the negative impact the proposal's sales tax increase would have on business.

"Michigan already ranks as the third worst state to do business in," he said. "The increase in sales tax on transactions of which business pay 20 percent of the cost is something they (business) can't afford."

Remember to vote May 19; polls open 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

unmixed blessings. I do think that on a balance it's better than nothing. Any alternative would not be on the ballot for more than a year. It does provide pronounced relief for a majority of homestead property owners and does provide a much needed cap on increased property taxes in future years."

everybody's needs.

Trim pointed to the proposal's original intent to help fund schools, and commented on how that intent has been expanded to include bonding for cities in financial strife.

"My concern for the proposal is that we've allowed cities where they have deficits; any deficits,

Molzon chairs Clarkston pro-millage committee

By Kathy Greenfield

Among the group shots and single portraits of members of the Molzon family tacked to the cork board wall in the kitchen are report cards.

Next to the telephone sits the Clarkston schools' calendar, ready for quick reference.

Seated in this room, that emanates the importance of kids in her family, Jeanne Molzon talked about the events that led to her being named chairperson of the campaign to get the proposed school millage passed on June 8.

"Mr. Mason (Milford Mason, superintendent of schools) said when he asked me to do it, it was my involvement in school and the organization I had done of various volunteer programs in the schools," she said. "They felt I could organize this."

She smiled, paused and added, "And I didn't know what I was getting into."

Her first step was to assure that the campaign would not be solely a local one.

The first phase is to get the millage passed and the method is to inform residents through neighborhood coffees.

The theme for the local campaign is "Kids STILL Count in Clarkston."

"The neighborhood coffees are going to be the whole crux of the campaign," she said. "People are inviting just a few people in their neighborhoods into their homes, mostly in the evening hours so husbands can attend."

Five area co-ordinators are organizing the coffees and 12 residents have volunteered to present the information at the coffees. A school board member and/or school administrator will also be present to answer questions.

"That's how we hope to reach everyone—not just people with kids in school, but the senior citizens and those without children," she said.

"If people understand the issues, I think we will be able to pass the millage."

The second part of the campaign is to work on the state legislators in Lansing to change the funding procedure for kindergarten through 12th grade education.

Molzon's co-chairpersons Karen Ohrenbereer and Carol Balzarini are working with other school districts to form a united effort.

Plans are underway for a caravan to Lansing, but a date has yet to be set.

"It will take several years, most probably, to get Lansing to straighten things around," she said.

"We want to get through a small millage to get the basic younger, and I didn't want to go," she added. "Even as a kid, I liked public schools."

Still, if the millage does not pass, her son who is now in junior high school will attend a private school if athletics are dropped in Clarkston, she said.

"But, why not work to provide Clarkston with what we want rather than go someplace else?" she said. "I want to see it happen here."

There's another factor in Molzon's life that has complicated the campaign. Due to Millage campaign slogan:

'Kids STILL Count in Clarkston' things the school needs and then work with Lansing to make education more fair to the people," she said.

Her reasons for supporting public education are both practical and philosophical.

"Property values are bound to decrease in a school system that has a great many cuts," she said. "People will think twice about moving into that area."

Already, several people she knows have made plans to send their children to private schools.

Her children, as well, could attend private schools without placing a financial burden on the family.

"I believe in public school education," she said. "I basically feel that if a kid goes to school in the community where he lives, he receives the most well-rounded education."

"I had an opportunity to go to a private school when I was her husband's work, a move out of the area may be forthcoming.

She knew about the possibility when she took the job as chairperson of the campaign, yet her feelings about the area were enough to keep her fighting for the millage.

"Once you get into this community, and feel so strongly about it—the involvement, it's like a family," she said.

"As the millages go down in our surrounding communities, Clarkston is still going to stand up and say, 'We're going to see that our children have the opportunity for a good education.'"

Donations to the campaign are still needed. Checks made out to the Citizen's Committee for Millage may be mailed to the Administration Building or dropped off there or at any school in the district.

Jeanne Molzon says her education at Duke University, from which she graduated with a bachelor's degree in nursing, helped develop the organizational skills necessary to run the "Kids STILL Count in Clarkston" millage campaign.

Director resigns

After eight years as director of Independence Township's Planning and Building Department, Timothy Palulian has resigned.

In a letter to Supervisor James B. Smith, Palulian stated the resignation would allow him to "further his professional and personal growth."

"Independence has been good to me. I've learned a great deal and feel we've made some excellent strides for the good of the community," Palulian said.

"You always regret leaving the people you've worked with—but this move is something that's going to be good for me and my future."

Palulian has accepted a position elsewhere, but would not elaborate on the kind of work he would be doing.

Supervisor James B. Smith said the township will begin looking for a replacement immediately.

VFW poppy sale's on

Beginning Thursday, May 14, and continuing through May 17, members of the John Schmude VFW Post of Clarkston will be out on local streets selling their traditional red poppies.

Sale of artificial poppies raises funds to aid disabled veterans and maintain the VFW National Home where financially strapped children of veterans receive care.

Leads dwindle as search continues for local woman

Police have few remaining leads in the May 2 disappearance of a 34-year-old Springfield Township woman, according to Detective Sgt. Michael Bray of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Cherie Lynn Albertson, mother of four children, was last seen at 2 a.m. Saturday night at the Shamrock Bar, 7715 W. Auburn, Utica.

According to Bray, Albertson was at the bar with a female friend and requested to leave early. However, she remained until just before closing time after striking up a conversation with a member of the band, he said.

"One waitress did see her leave the bar," Bray said. "No one was with her (Albertson) when she left, no one left prior or after her."

"Everyone I've talked to has said she is a dedicated mother and has never done anything like this before," Bray said of the disappearance. "It was very unlike her."

Police searched areas of M-59 and I-75, the most likely route Albertson would take if hitchhiking to her Springfield Township home.

Her four children are staying at their uncle's home in Clarkston, Bray said.

Albertson is 5 feet, 2 inches tall and weighs approximately 115 pounds. She has blue eyes, curly brown neck-length hair and was last seen wearing a light brown suede jacket, dark blue slacks and beige sandals. She carried a brown purse, wore a gold neck chain with her initials and a turquoise pinky ring.

Anyone with information is asked to call Bray at 858-4978.

Lansing should...

When all the votes were counted last November we felt the people of Michigan, and particularly in these parts, had spoken rather clearly.

They went for Reagan and cutting taxes.

The state representative from this district got the message. Mat Dunaskiss didn't vote for, and he says he does not favor, Governor Milliken's Proposal A.

And, if anything, the support for cutting taxes is stronger today than last fall.

We've spent considerable time with Proposal A, and it worries us.

It is bothersome that 20 or 21 bills have to be passed in Lansing to enact Proposal A. It's like both houses are saying "Trust us", and frankly we don't.

Even if we thought the present legislators would do what we favored, nothing is to prevent the next group from changing it.

Senator Donald Bishop (R-Rochester) said, "We have the power right now to do everything Proposal A allows except raise the sales tax."

With approval Tuesday, they'll have that power.

The 1½ percent increase in sales tax will be a constant irritant. Gasoline will go up 2 cents a gallon, automobiles $150 a car, new home construction $750 to $1,000, utility bills 1½ percent, etc.

It bothers us, too, that Proposal A, at least twice, mentions collecting taxes on "tangible personal property".

Will assessors be putting our cars, furniture, boats, silverware, etc., on the tax rolls?

Then there's the re-use of the word "use tax". Robert Tisch, drain commissioner and tax fighter from Shiawassee county, says "use tax of tangible personal property" means a tax will be added at each manufacturing step along the way.

If that be the case, a cutback in your homestead property tax will soon be eaten up.

We own a home assessed at $18,000. It's not our homestead, but we went through mental gymnastics to see what the savings would be if it were a homestead.

It's about $193, provided Proposal A, when finally interpreted, says that the bill backers are saying.

But, the most bothersome part of the proposal is... What will the final wording be? What will it really say?

Attorney general Kelley refuses to review it before the election. The legislature has not passed implementing legislation. The courts have not had points argued.

There is this about it, and the point is repeated by varying outposts... "Vote for it, it's the only game in town."

We would understand if the electorate take that approach. As for us, we're more inclined to reject Proposal A and wait for the legislature (or Tisch) to do it right. JAS

Faces tell all

by Kathy Greenfield

It took 512 words.

Bailey Lake Elementary School fifth grader Kathy Garascia spelled envisage incorrectly. Kelly Parker, a North Sashabaw Elementary fifth grader, spelled that word correctly, then regency and it was over.

Kelly became the champion speller of the first Clarkston Spelling Contest.

The spelling bee took two-and-one-half hours. At the beginning, there were 30 fifth and sixth graders representing the district's elementary schools.

As the morning wore on, it was obvious the kids had done their homework. They had been provided with the words that would be used in the spelling contest, and they had studied.

When it was their turn to spell, they walked up to a microphone in front of the announcers, listened to their word and then spelled it.

Some leaned into the microphone and spelled with gusto. Some were quiet, the letters spilling out in a soft cadence. Some spelled the word and turned around, knowing they were correct, and walked back to their seats. Some ended each spelling with a question mark, eagerly looking at the faces of the two announcers for a nod of the head or a spoken "That's correct."

Without fail, when a child missed a word, disappointment spread all over his or her face. They had studied hard. They knew they could win.

The air of confidence was going strong when the first list of 450 words was finished and the back-up list, which the children also were given, was used.

Many of the children appeared more nervous—these were the words that hadn't received as much attention in study sessions.

Still, it took awhile for eight of the 10 remaining children to miss a word.

Then it was just Kelly and Kathy—spelling word after word, until envisage came up.

It's a word both girls will probably remember forever. There was an awards ceremony at the end. All the spellers and the five alternates received certificates.

Kelly and Kathy received a Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, the latest edition, with shiny dust jackets waiting to be cracked open and used.

As he presented the prizes and congratulated the children, Superintendent Milford Mason summed up the feelings of all those who watched the spelling contest.

"There are no losers," he said. "They're all winners here today."

Jim's jottings

Finicky, fast flipping fish

by Jim Sherman

This is a fish story. More specifically, a trout fishing story.

Some say trout are the most difficult of all fish to catch. And, there is probably more affection between trout seekers and their quarry than any other fish or perhaps game.

No other fish is involved in more "catch and release" programs and beliefs than the trout. A relationship can be built between the line thrower and the hook catcher when trout are involved that is akin to the tamed wild animal that returns to his savior's home just in time to bring a life saving smile to the face of a small child... you know, the plots Disney made fortunes with.

Trout are wary creatures. They dart under a sunken tree branch when a shadow hits the water. They scurry under the washed out creek bank when a clumsy fisherman walks too heavily along the shore.

And they are darn finicky what they put into their mouth.

The second day of the season this year found son, Jim, and I walking along a stream near Naubinway, MI. Big trout had been seen here opening day.

Sure enough, we spotted one lying still in the 4-ft. wide stream. He must have been 2 feet long and maybe 6 pounds. A fine looking rainbow trout.

We sank low and Jim crept into a position far enough up stream from the lunker to let his lure float with the current... into the fish's mouth.

Well, Jim let that lure dangle for 10 minutes all over the dumb trout's face, fins and freckles. Then I tried a Flatfish. Jim tried a fly, worms, and plastic spawn.

The trout didn't even breathe.

By now there was no caution. Another fisherman in our party came by to watch (laugh). Don Davidson, of Oxford.

Seeing we were getting nowhere and aware darkness was coming, along with cocktail hour, the suggestion was made that Jim go across the stream and grab that big devil by the tail.

After all, only Don had caught a trout in two days, two just over the size limit.

Jim was game and the fish was patient. Jacket off, sleeves rolled up, Jim lay on the stream bank, reached over, and grabbed a tail.

The trout flicked, lost Jim, moved a couple feet up stream and darned if he didn't return to the same spot again.

Jim became more determined. He'd have spit on his hand except it was already wet.

He leaned over the creek a little further this time. With a clearer view and more experience, Jim worked his hand down the trout's belly and onto the narrow tail.

Jim closed his grip, the trout flipped twice, lost Jim and went downstream. "I was stroking him," the astonished grabber said. Just about the time Jim considered using bad works in front of his father, Don said, "There's another one there just as big as the other one."

Jim's spirit for adventure returned. "This time I'll try a right hand grip," he announced.

Well, his right hand may have been stronger, but the trout was equal. One quick flip and she went to join her mate downstream.

The trout are alive and well as far as we're concerned. And, while we didn't build a lasting friendship with those two big devils, we sure are grateful for the hour of entertainment they provided.

5th graders win district spell down

Kelly Parker wins; Kathy Garascia comes in second

Thirty-top spellers from five Clarkston elementary schools view for the top spot during the district's first Clarkston Spelling Contest held Wednesday at the Administration Office.

After two-and-one-half hours of fierce competition, two fifth graders were the winners of the group composed of fifth and sixth graders.

Kelly Parker, of North Sashabaw Elementary, was the champion and Kathy Garascia, of Bailey Lake Elementary, was runner-up.

Judges for the event were elementary school media specialists Susan Kott, Linda Spannaus and Katherine Wlodarczyk.

The words were given to the pupils by announcers Vince Licata and Pat McArthur, English teachers in secondary schools.

The list of youngsters participating in the spelling contest follows:

Pine Knob: Michael Koslosky, Jill Laurell, Jeffrey Billig, Martin Simpson, Joanne Spicuzza, Kristin Douglas, Alternate—Joseph Herron.

North Sashabaw: Coreen Hummel, Jeannie Pinho, Chris Johnson, Kelly Parker, Wendy Cohoon, Scott Desgrange, Alternate—Wendy Scroby.

Clarkston Elementary: Melissa Wilkinson, Ruth Webb, Marni Banker, Rachel Young, Sheryl Molzon, Michelle Pettit, Alternate—Elizabeth Hurlbert.

Andersonville: Michelle Blomberg, Samantha Savas, Peter Preston, Nancy Warden, Norman Warden, Lisa Brudnak. Alternate—Shelley Baker.

Bailey Lake: Susan Haran, Kelly DuPree, Heather Srock, Joseph Hamelin, Kevin Heber, Kathy Garascia, Alternate—Jennifer DuPree.

The contest is to be an annual event by the school district. In the past, the Detroit News sponsored statewide spelling contests, but this year the practice was discontinued.

A smile and a hug await Kelly as the North Sashabaw Elementary spelling bee co-ordinator Marlene Sewick offers her congratulations.

The other 28 spellers were down and then Kathy and Kelly competed for about 20 minutes before a word was misspelled. Both fifth graders, the girls may meet again in next year's district-wide bee.

No 'yes' license plates

by Jim Fitzgerald

Phyllis Schlafly would be pleased to learn that Michigan is leery about issuing auto license plates that say YES.

"It could be offensive to women's groups," said a spokesman for the Secretary of State's Office, explaining that "yes" could have a double meaning. He is afraid of "had" for the same reason.

Certainly. As Schlafly recently told a U.S. Senate committee, "Men hardly ever ask sexual favors of women from whom the certain answer is 'no.'"

She was referring to pedestrian women. "When a woman walks across the room, she speaks with a universal body language that most men intuitively understand," Schlafly said. Her theory is that walking women who are sexually harassed usually get what they're looking for. She disapproves of these women who use body language to ask for inches and propositions from men.

I'm sure she would also disapprove of motorist women who willingly drive across town with YES on their license plates. After all, what purpose could such a plate have, other than to tell male motorists that the woman at the wheel wants to be pulled over and ravaged?

Sure there are those fanatical Women's Libbers who would suggest that a woman has YES on her license plate because her name is Yolanda Estelle Smith or because she is a loan officer at a bank where all loans are guaranteed by the federal government or because she is trying to stamp out negativism.

Nonsense, of course, such explanations of an obvious attempt to have curbside sex are as weak as saying a certain woman walks with her shoulders back and her chest out because she learned good posture when she was a Girl Scout. Everyone knows that a woman who walks like that is selling more than cookies. Virtuous women slouch. A recent survey of shoe-repair shops proved conclusively that women with round shoulders never have round heels.

Naturally, a woman who wiggles when she walks will welcome a YES plate on her car, especially when she can't find a parking place and get out and wiggle. Such rolling advertising will give her instant rapport with intuitive men who use cars in their never-ending search for women to sexually harass. But what about women like Phyllis Schlafly?

That is what's worrying the Secretary of State's Office. By 1983, Michigan auto plates will have three letters, including vowels for the first time, along with three numbers. The secretary's office is scrutinizing those three-letter combinations, such as, AAS, SAP, HAD and YES, that might have unacceptable connotations. Plates are sold haphazardly, so unless a scrutinizer rules otherwise, it will be possible for a round-shouldered woman to have YES on her license plate.

To counteract the universal language on her plate, she will have to drive with her head out the window, shouting no. And you can bet that some extremely intuitive man will shout back: "Your lips tell me no, no, but there's yes, yes on your plate." And as quickly as that, an innocent woman will be sexually harassed without even getting a chance to get out of her car and prove her virtue by slouching.

Or what if one of Schlafly's shuffling followers gets a HAD plate? The poor woman will have to keep shouting out her car window that she hasn't been had. She can hardly be more explicit without risking her virtue, no matter how badly she slumps while shouting. Such an oblique message can hardly be expected to dissuade men who operate on intuition alone.

Obviously, license plates containing such blatantly sexually suggestive words as "yes" and "had" would cause terrible trauma for female drivers with virtue. It is to be hoped that Michigan's secretary of state, a man, will ban these two words. Such a wise action would prove that Michigan protects virtuous women who are forced to hide their sluggish hips from public view while driving.

It would also prove that a person doesn't have to be female to be a monumentally silly as Phyllis Schlafly.

Letter to editor

Say 'nay' to Proposal A

To the Editor:

On May 19, the electors of this state are being asked to vote on a so-called tax cut.

It is a TAX SHIFT and eventually will result in a TAX INCREASE.

Overall tax relief is absolutely essential for the citizens in the State of Michigan. Something must be done to grant property tax relief.

Proposal A is definitely not the answer. Proposal A will not limit the continued growth in state revenues or expenditures.

Proposal A will increase the power of a state government which has continually failed to recognize the cries of people for relief.

During a time when our state is facing a deplorable employment and business climate, Proposal A offers no relief to businesses.

Proposal A will not help generate jobs nor expand our overall state economy. It will increase the numbers of businesses closing and moving out of the state.

Proposal A does offer some property tax relief to homeowners, but it does nothing to change the assessment process nor to limit the rapidly escalating assessed values of our area.

Proposal A creates many more questions than it answers. The legislature has already discussed limiting the size of a homestead and redefining operating millages, which would reduce the amount of exemptions available.

They have discussed a sales tax on services. Does this sound like a state government interested in offering meaningful tax relief?

Proposal A will grant some relief on city income tax. However, this will result in all of the taxpayers in the state contributing to the support of cities whether we live or work there or not.

Sales tax is charged to all of us and sales tax receipts will be used to reimburse the cities whose tax revenues are reduced.

I believe Proposal A should be soundly defeated.

No one can afford to stay home on May 19. Maybe the governor and the legislature will get the message if the voters turn out in record numbers and vote NO.

Wanted: Used cars

Used cars that are running and in reasonably good condition are wanted by Clarkston schools for the drivers' education program.

The district now has six cars and between 10 and 12 are needed, said Mel Vaara, assistant superintendent of schools.

"A lot of districts are using the same approach," Vaara said. "They're asking people in the community to donate cars and Clarkston would like to do the same."

Those who donate cars will receive a receipt for the blue book value of the car for income tax purposes.

There are presently only enough cars to serve 125 drivers' education students and an enrollment of over 400 is expected, Vaara said.

To donate a car or for more information, call Vaara at 625-4402.

Dogs destroyed

In compliance with a court order, Oakland County Animal Control has destroyed two pit bull dogs that attacked and injured three Springfield Township residents in late April.

On April 30, Oakland County District Court Judge Gerald E. McNally, in accordance with Michigan law, ordered the two dogs destroyed in response to show-cause action filed by one of the victims.

Seven-year-old Stacey Secatch of W. Ellis Road, Springfield Township, sustained over 50 dog bites to her face, arms, legs, buttocks in the April 21 attack.

Her 10-year-old friend Sandra Sugan and father Stephen were also injured.

Bowling feast

The bowling season came to a feast-filled end last week as students of the Waterford Developmental Training Center enjoyed a banquet prepared by members of the Clarkston Eagles Auxiliary No. 3373. Kenneth Adams, who graduates from the school in June, calls the bowling activity his favorite. Serving dessert is Ruth Purslow, secretary and past president of the local auxiliary and trustee in the state auxiliary. She is also principal of Pine Knob Elementary School.

JVs maintain winning tradition

By Al Zawacky

A proud past of league championships and winning seasons dominate the history of the Clarkston High School junior varsity baseball team.

"We tied for first last year," says Coach Kurt Richardson. "It's something we try and instill in the kids—Clarkston has a long history of being the top dog in the JV GOAL league."

Midway through the 1981 campaign finds that winning tradition in good hands. Richardson's JV Wolves recently swept a non-league double-header to boost their overall season record to an impressive 10-1.

"They're a good bunch of kids," said Richardson. "They play together well, are very coachable and do everything you ask of them."

"Everybody knows their roles really well. If I put a kid in late for defensive purposes, he knows why he's there. If I put in a pinch hitter, he knows his job."

When it comes to pitching, the roles are being filled well enough to merit a few Oscars. Shawn Mosele has a 1.10 earned run average. Dale Hesse had a 1.43 ERA. Scott Temple sports a microscopic 1.50.

Mosele, Hesse and Temple are the three mainstays of the staff, and with help available from the likes of Bill Turk and Rick Williams, enemy traffic on the bases has been light this season.

"I consider pitching to be our strongest point," Richardson says. "We've got five good pitchers we can count on—anytime you've got ERAs like that, you're going to win ball games."

At the receiving end of the JV Wolves pitching is regular catcher Mike Dearborn. "Dearborn's a real tough defensive catcher," says Richardson. "He makes some great blocks behind the plate."

Bill Weeks holds down the first-base job, and with a .300 average carries as good a bat as he does a glove.

Richardson shuffles his defense a bit at second, shortstop and third depending on the situation and who's pitching. Turk and Kevin Reis split the duties about evenly at second; Hesse regularly sees action at short when he isn't on the mound; and Turk and Williams are the Wolves' top two candidates at third.

Turk is currently hitting .333, Williams is at .350 and Hesse is hitting safely at a .450 clip.

Richardson's regulars in the outfield are Adam Kline (.346) in left, Kevin Teague (.300) in right and Richie Schrader in center. Schrader has been a terror for enemy pitching with his .550 batting average and team-high 13 stolen bases.

Dave McIntyre holds an equally impressive .500 average as Clarkston's designated hitter and extra first baseman, and Kevin Brown is the Wolves' utility man at first base, in the outfield or behind the plate.

Wolves rebound to perfect week

By Al Zawacky

Coach Carla Teare and crew are on the comeback trail.

Bouncing back from a slow start at the beginning of the season, Teare's Wolves swept all five of their games last week, rekindling hopes of a Greater Oakland Activities League title.

"We still have a shot at it," Teare said. "We've got to beat West Bloomfield on Wednesday, win the rest of our games and hope West Bloomfield loses another one."

Those might seem like big ifs, but Teare has reason to believe it can all still happen.

"From what I've seen, I'd say we're the best team in the league," she said. "It's just that we got off to that slow start."

"In the beginning, we weren't hitting and now we are. And lately we've been playing great defense."

Both observations are reflected in the scores from last week's action.

Opening on Monday against Milford, the Wolves picked up a strong pitching performance from Lisa Forsyth and a bases-loaded triple by Becky Buhl in the third to earn a 3-2 victory.

Against Rochester the Wolves' bats came to life with a vengeance, as Clarkston slammed 18 hits including five triples to romp to a 12-4 triumph.

In the Clarkston-Rochester Adams clash, both squads managed only one hit, but the Wolves' defense assured the victory. Clarkston won by a 4-1 final, with Forsyth again providing the pitching and Ulasich picking up the Wolves' only hit and one RBI.

Shaun O'Brien's excellent defensive work at second base robbed Oxford to two hits on Thursday while Clarkston hitting was ripping enemy pitching for 12 hits to provide the impetus for a 13-8 Wolves' win.

Friday afternoon saw the Wolves continue their hot hitting by bombing Lake Orion for 17 hits en route to a 18-1 victory. Acton went five-for-five at the plate, including a home run and a double, and drove in five runs.

Clarkston scores another run in its double-header sweep of Birmingham Groves at home on Saturday.

Dale Hesse has been as good in the batter's box as he's been on the mound for the JV Wolves this season, hitting the ball at a .450 clip and owning an impressive 1.43 ERA.

Point After

By Al Zawacky

High school—those were the days?

THE MALADY GOES by many names—summer fever, senioritis, the June flu.

I get it everytime spring rolls around, even though my classroom days are behind me. It's a hangover from 18 odd years of schooling, and it's depressing to feel the weather turn warm and realize that you've lost your student birthright—a two and a half month summer vacation.

This time of the year always makes me nostalgic about my old high school days, those hallowed years when Big Al was a B.M.O.C.—that's Big Man On Campus, in case you didn't know. By now they must have engraved my high school athletic records in solid granite in the gymnasium wall, including my three-year grip on the coveted "Memorial Cut Trophy." I was always proud of that.

In my three years of high school, I was cut by 11 teams, making me the runaway of the Memorial Cut all three years and establishing a record that will no doubt withstand the test of time. My football records were especially impressive; for three straight years I never made it past the first practice. As a sophomore, I was almost cut half way through the physical.

I still remember how my coach would break the news. "Zawacky," he would say, slapping me on the shoulder. "I really respect you for coming out for football year after year."

"Thanks, coach," I would reply. "I've worked hard over the summer."

"Yep," he would continue, "I respect a man with a sense of humor, and you've sure given the coaching staff plenty to laugh about at our first practice."

"Take a hike, right?"

"Ten-four."

I never did like that man.

All my talent, all my potential—wasted. It was the same story in every sport—basketball, wrestling, baseball, swimming. Cut after the first practice. I had to limit my prep sports activities to playing poker and wrestling defective vending machines in the cafeteria.

I was without peer at beating the Coke machine into submission. There was a trick to it—you had to kick the machine at precisely the right spot just below the coin slot, with precisely the right amount of force. Kicking too softly would fail to convince the machine you meant business; kicking too hard would make too loud a noise.

You didn't want to make too loud a noise because that would wake up the cafeteria monitor, who was peacefully snoozing about 50 feet away, oblivious to an ongoing food fight.

Cafeteria monitors generally took a dim view of students beating up on the Coke machine, even though I had it on good authority that the Coke machine in the teachers' lounge was regularly thrashed to within an inch of its mechanical life. The old double standard.

Ah, memories of high school—those blissful days of English lit, physics, inedible hot lunches, chemistry, fist-fighting in the johns, history, getting your tires slashed in the parking lot...

Hmmmmmm. What is it they say—"you can never go back again?"

That's comforting.

Girls fall to powerful Rochester

Rochester 99, Clarkston 23. Clarkston Coach Gordie Richardson initially reported the score in a very matter-of-fact manner, sans comment.

None was really needed. The Rochester Falcons are traditionally a track powerhouse, and last week they showed the Clarkston High School girls' track and field team how they got the reputation.

"We're working hard and our times are getting better," Richardson said, citing his team's improvement in the win column from the 1980 campaign to 1981.

"But they're still not really close to being competitive in this league."

The loss to league opponent Rochester dropped Clarkston's Greater Oakland Activities League mark to 1-3 overall record to 3-4.

Clarkston had just two first-place finishes against Rochester, both of them earned by April Hodges. Hodges took the top spot in both the 110 yard dash and the 220 by times of 28.78 and 11.8 and 28.78 respectively.

The 118 in the 110 made her the fourth Clarkston thincad to qualify for competition in the Oakland County meet coming up later this month. Teammates Kelley Craig in the high jump, Dana MacCartey in the discus and Sherry Rowland in the 2-mile are the others.

Bowlers fare well

Several local bowlers fared well in the Michigan Youth Bowling Association State Singles Championship Roll-Offs held in Port Huron in April.

Qualifying for the state championship slated for May 30-31 in Kalamazoo were Liz Turnbull in the Junior Girls category with a 706 series and Michele Green in the Prep Girls category with a 657 series. Both girls won trophies for finishing first overall in the roll-offs.

Qualifying for the boys were James Gates in the Peanut Boys category at 632, Brad Morrissey in the Junior Boys category at 707 and Greg Morrissey in the Major Boys category at 685.

Three other local bowlers who competed in the roll-offs were Kellie Raedeke, Lyndsey and Kelly Olsen with scores of 585, 608 and 561 respectively.

Boys lose, 107-25

If the Clarkston High School boys' track and field squad never sees the Rochester athletic field again, it'll be too soon.

Last week, the Clarkston thincads traveled to Rochester for their fourth Greater Oakland Activities League meet of the season. And when the meet mercifully drew to a close, Clarkston found itself on the short end—very short end—of a 107-25 final tally.

The high jump, 220-yard dash and mile relay were the only events in which Clarkston finished on top. Steve Wynckoff cleared 5-11 in the high jump and Joel Partlo ran the 220 in 25.0, while the victorious relay team consisted of Dave Ryeson, Partlo, Mark Hughes and Mark Reene.

"Our times are still improving," said Coach Walt Winiemko. "The guys are working hard—hopefully, we'll be able to do something in the regionals and the league meet."

Wolves falter—losing streak now at three

By Al Zawacky
The once-booming bats have fallen silent.
The sure-handed gloves have turned to Jello.

And the GOAL title race has turned into an anybody's-game dogfight.

It hasn't been a kind week for Coach Roy Warner and his Clarkston High School varsity baseball team.

"We're having problems now getting any type of consistency," Warner said after his club dropped four of its seven contests last week.

After opening strongly on Monday and Tuesday with league wins over Milford and Rochester, Warner's Wolves had only a 7-3 win over non-league Oxford to console them the rest of the way.

After beating Rochester, Clarkston took on Rochester Adams the same afternoon and lost 7-4. The Wolves lost by the same score to league rival Lake Orion on Friday, and were bounced twice on Saturday by Royal Oak Dondero and Birmingham Groves by scores of 6-1 and 13-3 respectively.

In their last three games, the Wolves amassed a humble total of 10 hits while committing 18 errors—figures that put a marked crease in their coach's brow.

We'll get a good pitching performance—but then we don't get the hitting," Warner said. "Or we'll just boot the ball around out there.

"In order for us to play our game, we've got to play almost flawless defense, get the steady pitching and hope for the key hits. We're not putting it together."

Despite the less-than-successful week, the Wolves are still tied for the top spot in the Greater Oakland Activities League. Both Clarkston and Lake Orion have 4-1 league records, followed by Kettering at 3-2. The Wolves overall record stands at 7-5.

Ron Feneley started on the mound, went four innings and allowed just one run to lead Clarkston to its 13-3 win over Milford. Greg Lane blasted a grand slam home run in the second inning to set the pace for the Wolves.

Mike Stefanski tossed six solid innings and knocked in a run with a double as Clarkston pulled past Rochester, 4-2. Kim Lair had two RBIs and Lane had one.

Duane Cahill suffered the loss in relief of injured starter Kurt Esselink in the Wolves' 7-4 loss to Rochester Adams.

John McIntyre pitched five-and-two-thirds innings of shutout ball in relief of starter Mark Piazza to give Clarkston its 7-3 decision over Oxford. Joel Schrader and Krause each had two RBIs.

A six-run inning in the second against Lake Orion proved fatal to the Wolves, who went on to lose 7-4. Phil Breninger and Stefanski each had two hits and Stefanski had three RBIs.

Against Dondero, starting pitcher Klaus Ohrnberger went five innings and didn't allow an earned run, but fell victim to the Wolves' sloppy fielding and inept hitting.

Birmingham Groves had just eight hits but was helped along by seven Clarkston errors to roar to a 13-3 victory. Esselink was the loser, surrendering Groves' only two earned runs of the game.

School millage on the ballot

EDITOR'S NOTE: The comparison of Clarkston schools to other districts in Oakland County is the second installment in a six-part series designed to provide voters with information so they can vote knowingly on the school millage on the June 8 ballot.

By William Neff
Administrative Assistant
Clarkston Community Schools

A common question concerns how the Clarkston school district compares to other districts in Oakland County.

In the chart below, the first six districts compare to us in enrollment and the bottom group are from North Oakland County. Some people like to compare us only with that group.

Figures are last year's (1979-80). They are the most recent available from Oakland Schools.

| | Students | Total Personnel | Ratio Personnel To Students | Admin | Ratio Admin to Stu | Transportation | % of Budget Instruction | % of Budget Admin | % of Debt To Valuation |
|---------------|----------|-----------------|-----------------------------|-------|--------------------|----------------|-------------------------|-------------------|------------------------|
| Berkley | 5470 | 489.5 | 11.2 | 16 | 341.9 | 104,548 | 60.83 | 5.61 | 1.06 |

Areas of importance when comparing Clarkston to other districts of like enrollments:

1. We have the highest student/personnel ratio (12.7).
2. Mid-point in the number of administrators.
3. Mid-point in student/administrator ratio (342.4).
4. Second highest transportation costs.
5. High percentage of budget spent on instruction.
6. Low percentage of debt to valuation.
7. Lowest total state aid/local tax dollar per pupil.
8. Teachers' salaries are low at the B.S. and M.A. levels.

The following comparisons should be noted when comparing Clarkston to school districts in North Oakland County.

1. Highest student/personnel ratio.
2. Compares favorably in number of administrators.
3. Compares favorably in student/administration ratio.
4. High transportation costs.
5. High percentage of budget spent on instruction.
6. Compares favorably in percentage of budget spent on administration.
7. Lowest percentage of debt to valuation.

Comparing Clarkston to the other 27 school districts in Oakland County is the more appropriate method. Clarkston students must compete with all of these students in testing data, in the job market and for advanced training.

The following chart shows where Clarkston ranks in several categories:

Millage meetings slated at two schools

Informational meetings on the Clarkston Schools millage request slated for the June 8 ballot are planned at the two local junior high schools.

On Wednesday May 20, the meeting is to begin at 8 p.m. at Clarkston Junior High School, 6300 Church, Independence Township.

On Wednesday, May 27, the meeting is to begin at 7:30 p.m. at Sashabaw Junior High School, 5565 Pine Knob, Independence Township.

A citizen is to speak on the millage issue and a question-and-answer session is to follow. A school board member and a school administrator are to be present at each meeting.

If Proposal A passes, voters shall be asked to approve 6 mills for 10 years on June 8. If Proposal A fails during the May 19 election, voters shall be asked to approve 3 mills for 10 years.

Independence changes Dear Lake Beach fees

Individuals will be the only residents to benefit from Independence Township's price hikes and new cost breakdown for Dear Lake Beach passes.

For the first time in three years, at the May 5 meeting, board members voted 5-1 to increase pass fees and implement a cost breakdown.

In the past, township residents purchased a $12 pass which allowed an entire family access to the beach. Couples and singles paid the same fee.

For 1981-82, families will pay

$4.50 more, or $16.50. Couples will pay $2 more, or $14. Individuals will pay $10.50—a $1.50 savings.

Trustee Larence Kozma favored the stepped fee scale and said he had received complaints from residents in the past on discriminatory pass prices.

Trustee Dale Stuart adamantly opposed the increase and voted against it, arguing the township had not increased services or facilities to warrant the raise and said the township should encourage use of the beach.

Supervisor James B. Smith, Clerk Christopher Rose and Trustee Daniel Travis also favored the rate hike. Treasurer Frederick Ritter and Trustee William Vandermark were absent.

According to Timothy Doyle, director of parks and recreation, sale of the passes will bring $12,000 in revenue to the township.

Prices for senior citizens remain the same but follow a different format.

All seniors registered with the township's Senior Citizen's Center will pay $4 for a beach pass and receive a $3 refund. All seniors not registered with the center will pay $4 for a beach pass.

Deer Lake Beach passes can be purchased at the treasurer's office in Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston, between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Township weighs spending $11,131

Independence Township has $11,131 in unspent transportation credits and is looking for areas to channel the revenue.

The money was collected from the tri-county tax on motor vehicles and was distributed by SEMTA (Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority) back to the local governments to be spent in areas of transportation, according to Christopher Rose, township clerk.

At the May 5 township board meeting, Supervisor James B. Smith offered several proposals to spend the money which included:

- Defraying salary costs of school bus drivers from

Clarkston schools who transport senior citizens.

- The possibility of driver reimbursement for transporting seniors, if the seniors were to be presented with a van.

- To pay for public parking lot lighting if lights were installed.

- To plow snow from church parking lots if local commuters received permission to park there.

Board members made no decision and tabled the matter until the next meeting, pending further investigation of SEMTA services available in the township.

Village ZBA vacancy

There's a vacancy on the village of Clarkston's Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA).

Jennifer Bisha of 89 N. Holcomb resigned her post at the April 27 village council meeting.

In a letter read by village President Fontie ApMadoc, Bisha said she had enjoyed serving and that her resignation was submitted with regret.

Bisha will continue her job as village secretary, ApMadoc said.

HOW TO PLAY THE MARKET WITHOUT RISKING YOUR LIFE.

It used to be so easy. Risk some money in the market for growth. Keep the rest in the bank and buy a life insurance policy for security. Inflation has changed all that. A lot of people are risking that "security" today just to stay even with the economy.

There's a better way, John Hancock Variable Life. Like any whole life plan, it guarantees you the face amount of the plan you buy, but unlike most other plans, it also lets you invest in the market, with the opportunity to add to the value of your coverage.

Send us the coupon for more information. In uncertain economic times like these, an insurance plan that gives you an opportunity to help keep up with inflation could be the best plan in the market.

Addresses can be a matter of life and death

A frantic call comes in to the dispatcher at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

"Help me—help me! My father's beating me. Please help me!"

Deputies on patrol steer their squad cars to the street address given by the caller, searching in vain for the corresponding number on the mailbox and house.

It can't be found.

Usually deputies frustrated by the absence of an address call back the dispatcher for more information. What color is the house? What are some landmarks? What kind of car is in the driveway?

"Only this time we couldn't call back for the kid whose father was abusing him," said Independence Township patrol Deputy Douglas Edgar. "His father might have been the one to answer the phone. We found the street and then asked some neighborhood kids where he lived."

The police found the boy, but an address on the mailbox or house could mean the difference between life and death, Edgar said.

"It's not bad for a guy who regularly patrols the township, knows the streets and has a handle on the way addresses go," Edgar said. "But what about the guy who fills in for somebody? He doesn't know."

"Thendara (Park) is a nightmare. When you get a call you know someone needs your help and you have to help them—but you can't find them."

"I told one guy, 'Unless you plan to live in your mailbox—get a number on that house,'" Edgar said.

Rural route mailboxes are the worst, he said.

"People have their houses back on the end of a long driveway that they decide to name themselves. The name is not on the map. Or, they live on a long driveway and give their address a Oakhill. We can't find them. There are no streetlights to find their address and no numbers on the house. Just a bunch of mailboxes at the end of the road."

"We do go to the wrong house," Edgar said.

Independence Township's Lakeview Road is also known as Sunnyside and Sunnydale, he said, and a caller to the police department will not differentiate.

"We got a burglar alarm one night out on Lakeview. It took us 15 minutes to find the house. When we got there it was a false alarm but it could very well have been real," Edgar said. "If people would just have addresses on their mailboxes..."

Clean up, fix up shabby mailboxes

Scrungey, paint-peeling, pole-leaning mailboxes township wide are breathing sighs of relief as Mailbox Improvement Week, May 18 through 23, draws near.

Clarkston postmaster Donald E. Stoll offers the following suggestions as residents take spring cleaning streetside:

•Boxes should be within easy reach for letter carriers. On rural routes, the carrier must have access to the box without leaving the vehicle.

•Rural and contract route mailboxes must be located on the right hand side of the road in the direction travelled by the carrier.

Seals on boxes should be tight to prevent rain and snow from leaking in and ruining mail.

•Box numbers should be clearly visible on the box. Inclusion of the owner's name is optional.

All mailboxes must meet certain requirements for size, strength, safety and location. Those guidelines are available at the Clarkston Post Office, 5886 M-15, Independence Township.

Goods to hit OCSD auction block

Unclaimed stolen property hits the auction block Saturday, May 16, at the annual Oakland County Sheriff's Department Auction.

Starting time is 9 a.m. Goods include 77 bicycles, several rowboats, a 14-foot sail boat, jewelry and a tractor.

Immediately following the sheriff's auction is the Oakland County Executive Auction of surplus government property including 70 vehicles from cars to a school bus, office equipment, pedal boats and a snowmobile.

Inspection of the vehicles is possible on Thursday and Friday, May 14 and 15, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on the morning of the sale beginning at 7 a.m., when all items to be sold will be on view.

The sale site is behind the Oakland County Central Garage in the Service Center Complex, 1200 N. Telegraph, Pontiac.

Golf balls, records, pictures: Frames-N-Art does it all

A large selection of custom and ready-made frames are the fare at Frames-N-Art in the Waterfall shopping plaza. Manager Terri Douglas says she can usually have a custom made frame ready in just a week to 10 days.

"You name it, we frame it," is the proud motto of Frames-N-Art.

Whether it's an original oil painting, a reproduction, a graduation photograph, a certificate or something less conventional, manager Terri Douglas has the frame you're looking for at 5637 Dixie Highway in the Waterfall Plaza shopping area.

"We can frame just about anything," says Terri, "and we've had some weird things. We framed a record, and we framed a golf ball and a scorecard for somebody who shot a hole-in-one."

The business was called "Frame Mart" when it opened in 1979, but the name and ownership changed two months ago when Terri's parents, Bob and Mary Douglas of Independence Township bought the store.

Terri was the store's original manager, and when the first owners decided to sell the business earlier this year, it was "only natural" for the Douglasses to buy it.

"Our whole family is into the arts," says Terri. "All of us draw and paint—I took a lot of drawing and painting classes when I was in high school."

And providing a picture with the proper frame is an art in itself, she notes.

"You need some imagination. My number one priority is making a picture look its best, and for that the frame is important. I don't like to just throw a picture in a frame and say, 'there you go.' It takes imagination and experience to do it right."

The waiting time for a custom-made frame at Frames-N-Art is usually no more than a week. Terri and her parents do the work themselves in the store's busy backroom.

True to its name, the store also has a selection of works by local artists for sale.

"Eventually, we're going to have more original art work," Terri says.

Business briefs

Former Clarkston resident Stuart Mahler, a senior banking representative, is the recipient of the 1981 Alumnus-of-the-Year Award, presented annually by the University of Michigan-Dearborn Alumni Society.

Mahler is the senior vice president and senior lending officer of the Hibernia National Bank in New Orleans, La. Formerly, he was associated with the Michigan National Bank Corp.

He and his wife Lorry and their children now reside in Mandeville, La.

The Selhost Real Estate staff recently attended a land contract seminar at Commonwealth Land Title.

Land contracts are voluntary agreements of sale of property over a period of time payable on an installment basis.

There are benefits for this type of sale, both to the purchaser and to the seller, says owner Tom Selhost, and the two parties agree upon their own terms.

"We at Selhost Real Estate feel it is important to understand the gymnastics and semantics of land contract purchasing," he said.

Douglas Chadwick

Promoted

Douglas Chadwick has been appointed vice-president of the Pontiac Ceiling and Partition Co. Inc.

Previously, he was the marketing manager, heading the sales and engineering departments.

Pontiac Ceiling and Partition Co. is one of seven corporations in three states owned by the Gibson-Lewis Association.

Chadwick resides in Springfield Township.

Law Day writer

Catherine Rauth of Independence Township was one of 12 winners in an essay contest sponsored by the Lawyers Wives of Michigan and the State Bar of Michigan. There were over 4,000 entries from junior high school students across the state. Chief Justice Mary Coleman presented awards of plaques and United States Savings Bonds during ceremonies held in Lansing on May 1, in honor of Law Day. Catherine, who took fourth place in the category for ninth graders, is a student at Marian High School, Birmingham.

Honors

Susan Geukes has been inducted into the Phi Kappa Phi Honorary Society at Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant.

Phi Kappa Phi is the highest honorary on campus and includes students and faculty from all fields of study.

A junior, Susan is majoring in accounting.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Geukes of Snowapple Drive, Independence Township.

Clarkston High School senior David Roosa is one of two recipients of the University of Michigan North Oakland Club's annual scholarship.

The scholarships are the first awarded by the club. The other recipient is Chae Chu, a senior at Waterford High School.

Roosa plans to attend the University of Michigan this fall.

Several Clarkston area students who attend Our Lady of the Lakes High School in Waterford Township won awards at the recent Science Fair.

A second-place trophy was won by Robert Cogswell.

Receiving honorable mention for their scientific displays were Bob Spicuzza, Eric Schulte and John Bleau.

Two Clarkston High School graduates were recently awarded scholarships by Oakland Community College for the spring semester.

Sharon Wilson, who is majoring in liberal arts, received a $100 scholarship.

Edna Shaver, a respiratory therapy major, was granted a $50 scholarship.

Tim Cassidy, a Clarkston area resident, has received an "I Dare You" award from Our Lady of the Lakes High School.

The national award is for leadership and citizenship.

Tim is president of the Class of 1981, a member of the football and basketball teams, the French club and the Lakes Players.

First runner-up in teenage pageant

Molly McGuire was selected as a state finalist and placed as first-runner-up in the 1981 Michigan National Teenager Pageant held at the Plymouth Hilton in Plymouth.

On May 1, 2 and 3, 122 contestants were judged on scholastic achievement, leadership, poise, personality and appearance, and recited a 100-word speech on the pageant's theme "What's Right About America."

Seventeen-year-old Molly's stage and acting experience lent a hand in the presentation of her speech, "The Expression of Patriotism Through the Arts."

Molly is the daughter of William and Nancy McGuire of Oak Hill Road, Brandon Township.

She was sponsored by The Deer Lake Racquet Club, Barry Young Realty, Featherstone Hardware and the Nickelodeon.

Molly, a senior at Brandon High School, plans to attend Oakland University in Rochester this fall.

First runner-up

At college

When the Luther College men's track and field team defends its Iowa Conference championship this spring, Michigan and Clarkston will be represented among the defenders.

Sophomore Seth Scott is a member of the championship Luther squad. A sprinter, Scott is a 1979 Clarkston High School graduate. His family makes their home on Roselawn in Independence Township.

The members of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity at Michigan State University, East Lansing, announce that Kari Peterson has been elected president of the Little Sisters of Beta Theta Pi.

Kari, a 1980 Clarkston High School graduate, is the daughter of Ken and Elaine Peterson of Clarkston.

She is a freshman at MSU majoring in advertising.

Louise Siebert is to graduate May 8 with a bachelor's degree from the Cincinnati Bible College, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Louise, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Siebert of Clarkston, majored in education for the deaf and Christian education.

In late May, she is to become the associate public relations director for the Illini Children's Home in St. Joseph, Ill.

Louise is a 1976 Clarkston High School graduate.

Mary Jo Berwick was awarded a bachelor's degree from Easter Michigan University, Ypsilanti, during spring commencement ceremonies.

She resides on Dixie Highway, Springfield Township.

Six Independence Township students are degree candidates this spring at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Expecting bachelor's degrees are Corinne Blumenschein of Whipple Shores Drive, Christine Duris of Hillside Drive, Andrew Hull of Heath Avenue and Janice Luvera of Deerhill Drive.

Master's degree candidates are Joanna Copes of Sashabaw Road and Maureen Spariosu of Evee Road.

Steven Sawyer has completed requirements for an associate's degree in auto service from Ferris State College, Big Rapids.

He resides on Church Street, Independence Township.

Among the 1,483 degree candidates from Michigan State University, East Lansing, at the end of the winter term are three from the Clarkston area.

William Hamilton of Church Street, Clarkston, is a candidate for a bachelor's degree in criminal justice.

A bachelor's degree in communication is to be awarded to Pamela Novosel of Simler Drive, Independence Township.

Kathryn O'Neill of Holcomb Road, Independence Township, majored in economics for her bachelor's degree.

Bailey Lake's All-American voices

Duane Procter's sixth-grade class at Bailey Lake Elementary School busily practice Thursday afternoon for their patriotic choral reading and musical program entitled, "That is what America is about," performed that evening. Accompanied by teacher Howard Wright on the piano, pupils sang and recited famous songs and words from our nation's past, such as the "Star Spangled Banner," "America The Beautiful," Theodore Roosevelt's "An American Creed," and Patrick Henry's impassioned "Give me liberty, or give me death" speech.

Voc-ed enrollment up as schools end programs

By Marilyn Trumper

Administrators at Clarkston's Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center (NWOVEC) are realizing increased enrollment as more and more surrounding school districts implement budget cuts and cancel in-house voc-ed classes.

"Demand for spaces in class from the four school districts (Brandon, Holly, Clarkston and Waterford) is greater than we've experienced previously," said NWOVEC's principal Daniel Manthei. "There have been more and more voc-ed classes eliminated at the local district level and schools are re-directing their voc-ed course offerings here."

According to John Tucker, admissions counselor at NWOVEC, all but two of the school's programs have been over-enrolled for the coming school year.

"We are 30 to 40 students above capacity on paper," Tucker said. "Several months down the road that could change and usually does. The number is apt to decrease in the fall."

When reserve enrollment ended last year, NWOVEC still had 150 classroom seats available for students. This year at the same time the count had decreased to 50, he said.

Some of the programs have long waiting lists, higher in number than the full classroom capacity.

The school's most popular program, auto body, has a waiting list of 47 students. Classroom capacity is 48, according to Tucker.

Commercial art has a capacity for 44 students and a waiting list of 17.

Diesel mechanics has a waiting list of 38 and a classroom capacity of 44 in two sessions, he said.

Sixteen students are waiting to take food service in a classroom capacity of 76 in two sessions.

Office procedure has three students on its waiting list, printing has nine, retail and marketing has five, and dental assistance has three, he said.

Only greenhouse and landscaping management and appliance repair have openings for students.

"In the past when local districts increased student numbers, it was easier to add and maintain new and existing programs for voc-ed," Manthei said. "Now, schools are seeing less enrollment -- suffering from decreased funding -- and they're looking at the cost-effectiveness of programs. Due to the money squeeze they're finding it advantageous to send students out here (to NWOVEC)."

Brandon schools does not have any voc-ed classes, according to high school principal Richard Kremkow. Students in that district depend solely on NWOVEC for on-the-job training classes.

Holly has withdrawn from its shared time voc-ed program with neighboring high schools in different districts, and now will rely solely on NWOVEC for its vocational programs, said David Charles, director of four high schools' voc-ed programs.

Clarkston High School plans to eliminate its food service program and perhaps its building trades program, dependent upon the millage, Manthei said.

The result has meant an increase in NWOVEC student body and long waiting lists for classes which provide on-the-job training unavailable elsewhere.

USE WHO TO CALL

Coping with kids

by Jim Windell

Stress attacks kids, too

Eight-year-old Jason asked to go to bed early the night before his very first softball game. It was his first experience in organized sports.

It was also the first time his mother had ever noted any indication that the normally happy-go-lucky Jason felt tension and pressure.

Just before that game, Jason and his 8-year-old friends were jumpy and anxious, talking at random and quite unable to sit still.

"If we lose," Jason was heard to say, "I'll die."

Another youngster complained about the "butterflies" that were creating turmoil in his stomach.

The team lost and Jason took it in stride. But, the amount of stress he and his little friends felt suggest the amount of anxiety and pressure young people can experience.

If they can feel it about a softball game, particularly without pressure from their parents to win or do well, consider what kinds of stress they are subject to when they have to face big, important events in their life like divorce and separation from one or both parents.

We are all concerned about the stress that adults experience and how this affects them both emotionally and physically.

But, we have been less concerned about children and stress perhaps reasoning that children are resilient and flexible and somehow not subject to the tension and worries of contemporary life.

It is becoming apparent that children can have physical ailments once thought the exclusive property of adults. High blood pressure is an example. Stress is often a contributing factor in increased blood pressure.

Perhaps when parents are able to recognize the signs of stress in their young children and react appropriately, children will be in a better position to deal with pressure.

Parents who are aware can help reduce some of this stress, or at least, not increase it unnecessarily.

Support during times of stress can be most valuable for youngsters.

'West Side Story' exudes precision

West Side Story
Clarkston High School Drama Club

CHS Little Theater

May 7, 9, 10, 13, 14, 15, 16

When describing Clarkston High School's production of "West Side Story," where do you begin the long list of accolades?

Even more difficult, once you've begun, where do you stop?

Every facet of "West Side Story" exemplifies quality—two hours of excellent acting, excellent singing, excellent music, excellent entertainment.

From the pit to the back stage, there isn't a weak link to be found in this theatrical chain welded so well by director Barbara Gibson, orchestra director Clifford Chapman, choral director Grayce Warren, choreography director Nancy Albyn and their talented cast of CHS students.

As with any musical production, success or failure begins in the orchestra pit, where balance and fluency are critical. From the opening measures of the overture, the audience is happily assured that the fate of "West Side Story" is in good hands, as nine capable musicians breathe life into Chapman's praiseworthy interpretation of Leonard Bernstein's familiar score.

There are some opening-night jitters detectable in the first scene of act one Thursday evening, but they disappeared by the time scene two began. A few slight technical problems did pop up, and occasionally somebody's Puerto Rican accent would slip.

But what is truly remarkable about this production is the precision and polish brought to so many difficult scenes—a precision and polish worthy of the professional stage.

This balcony scene involving Tony (Don Lanpher) and Maria (Sonya Funck) could be a schmaltzy disaster in the hands of many high school performers. Lanpher and Funck however, turn this scene into the sentimental pearl it is meant to be, capturing the tenderness and sensitivity so vital to its success.

The vocal and choreographical skills displayed in the "America" scene in act one, and "Gee, Officer Krupke," and "I Feel Pretty" in act two are nothing short of superlative.

Cheryl Maxim, Stacey Nichols, Kevin Rose, Corey Lawson and co-performers exude a humor and vitality that makes these scenes worth the price of admission all by themselves.

Lanpher and Funck are actors and vocalists of the first rank. John Territo and Scott Siple turn in shining performances, and Alec Puscas' brief cameo appearance as Glad Hand leaves us wishing he had a bigger part.

To repeat an earlier observation, where should you end the accolades?

One needn't purchase a ticket to "West Side Story" out of a sense of obligation to the students, or because a daughter, son, family member or friend is involved in the production.

You can buy one simply because you enjoy first-class entertainment. "First class entertainment" is a concise and accurate description of Clarkston High School's "West Side Story."

Spotlight

by

Al Zawacky

A school dance is the scene in "West Side Story" where members of the "Jets" and "Sharks" meet on neutral turf. Above, the dancing skills of members of the troupe are highlighted in routines like the one by Kathy Cunningham and Jon Territo. Above at left, the plot thickens as Puerto Rican Maria, played by Sonya Funck, and Tony, played by Don Lanpher, discover love at first sight. At left, members of the rival gangs leap and bound across the stage with Jan Wilton [left] and Paul King in the foreground. Tickets are still available for all remaining performances on May 13, 14, 15 and 16. Most are $2.75 for chair seats. Playgoers may also still sign up for the dinner-theater May 15 for $6 a person plus the cost of a playticket. To make reservations, call CHS at 625-0900 weekdays.

Working in a courtyard, senior Bill Glass removes unwanted weeds and grass from the base of a tree. In honor of Sun Day, the students also planted a tree in a courtyard in memory of Mary Lee Jervis, chairperson of the Clarkston High School Business Education Department, who died May 1.

After removing dead bushes and raking up debris, Kelley Craig [left] and Jim Robertson pile the trash in a bag. The sophomores were going to plant new bushes as their next step, in an effort to improve the appearance of the area next to the high school's main entrance.

Popcorn, anyone?

Few cinemagoers expect to be seated by a pint-size lad of 10, who may sell them their tickets, pour their pop, box their popcorn and hand up the Jufyfruits—but then they probably don't hit the Clarkston Cinema. Ten-year-old Jeff Daniel does all that and more at his dad's theater. Clarkston News MAGAZINE staff writer Marilyn Trumper visited the cinema just before showtime to see firsthand how Jeff works and to discover the scope of his responsibility. Jeff's philosophy, observations and anecdotes about the job are in his story on Page 7.

Here's Herb

by Herb Rose

Ever since I bought an aluminum extension ladder I have been lamenting about its weight, suggesting that the seller had a financially rewarding arrangement with a surgeon who specialized in hernia corrections. After all, such clandestine relationships are not infrequent.

I know of several expressway interchanges that were apparently designed by a wealthy retiree who, in his active years, owned a chain of automotive bump shops.

Recently, however, I realized that the weight of the ladder had been significantly increased by the number of informational stickers that had been affixed, thereto giving directions for correct use.

I have always thought of a ladder as a simple device where the design has remained basically unchanged since Ulmac lashed something together to stand on when he was decorating the big cave, at which time he probably muttered to himself, "If I use a good quality paint, these pictures will be around for years."

The requirement for instructions on ladder use are about as necessary as a procedure manual for a sidewalk.

One notice advises that caution should be used when working around wires because "aluminum conducts electricity." No kidding? I can't really consider that statement a blinding revelation.

While it is true that there aren't too many people you could wake out of a sound sleep at three o'clock in the morning and ask: "What is the coefficient of electrical conductivity for aluminum?", and get anything more than a malevolent glare, there are fewer people that don't know that metal conducts electricity.

There is also a yellow warning sticker that displays a black line and advises the reader that when the line is vertical the ladder is leaning at a safe angle. This statement may be valid, but the only way of checking the angularity of the line is with a surveyor's theodolite.

The average man would examine a theodolite with the same wary suspicion with which an early Chippewa Indian would inspect a gieger counter. The operator will put the ladder at what he believes to be a safe angle and assume the line is vertical.

The sticker that bothers me the most is placed near the top of the ladder and admonishes people not to stand past this point. I wouldn't question this bit of sagacity, there are only two rungs past this point. It strains my credulity to think of someone climbing past the end of the ladder, attempting to scale a vertical wall, crashing and burning because there wasn't a little warning sign.

It makes a man feel mighty humble to know that the federal government with great benevolent wisdom is watching out for him.

Steam canner evaporates into days gone by

Near the turn of the century, money-conscious households harvested and canned the summer's yield of fresh fruits and vegetables. Such activity was annual fare—a way of life—a necessity.

Seventy years ago, folks didn't use coldwater baths, pressure cookers or hot plates for canning. Households used steam canning—difficult but with a high-volume yield.

Two tiers high, the dual shelves would hold 16 jars, twice as many as today's coldwater bath canning process.

The steam canner's copper bottom was filled with water, it was seated upon the stove and as the water boiled steam drifted upward, enveloping the jars and escaping through a purge valve at the top.

Longtime Independence Township resident Iva Sommers Caverly called the News to speculate on the steam canner's demise and what replaced it.

Says Iva, the steam canner evaporated into the past when electric stoves entered the scene, when the introduction of coldwater baths made canning easier, and because the steam canner was difficult to store.

"You had to watch what you were doing when you used this canner," Iva said. "You'd think you had steam and you wouldn't."

"You can't see inside the doors, it's not like a roll boil in a pot. You also had to keep a close eye to make sure all the water wouldn't boil away or you'd burn the copper bottom out of the pan."

According to Iva, the steam canner needed a flame to work efficiently and electric ranges just didn't do the trick.

"You had to have a constant, steady heat to keep the canner steaming," Iva said. "If it was irregular, your food would not be cooked right and would spoil."

"But, the steam canner held more than a coldwater canner so it was faster and you didn't have the trouble of a pressure cooker exploding or the irregularity of a hot plate," she said.

Today's generation enjoys a resurgence of home canning—a return to Mother Earth. Iva's practiced the art all of her life.

She's holding onto her steam canner for it's one of a few left from an era past.

—Marilyn Trumper

Chilly campers

A rain storm passed over Oakland County on the night of April 30. It was a cold, chilling rain, too.

The next night, there was another late-season frost coating the ground.

No big deal, right? Just turn up the thermostat, roll over and go back to sleep.

Not if you were one of 44 students and four teachers from Sashabaw Junior High who departed their warm school that Thursday afternoon for the annual nature study at Highland Recreation Center in Highland Township.

These 48 hearty souls had only tents and blankets to protect themselves from the chilling elements.

"I can tell you exactly when the rain started—and when it stopped," said grinning science teacher Roger Bower of that first night in camp. "It's been chilly, but not too bad compared to some of the other times we've been out here."

All 44 field trip participants were ninth grade honor science students, and the four teachers who supervised the outing were Bower, Cliff Irwin, Debbie Shotwell and Jan Knapp.

The students spent their two days at camp conducting pond studies, identifying plants and animals, using a compass to find their way on a hike through the fields and woods and roughing it in camp with only a minimum of modern conveniences.

Saturday afternoon marked the journey back home and to the school for conventional classes on Monday morning.

—Al Zawacky

If you're going to eat and stay warm, starting a fire is an invaluable skill. Dave Newblatt shows how.

Three way hikers, Lisa Ashton, Marta Sanchez and Deanna Stuart, hear some reassuring words from teacher Debbie Shotwell [right] about the snake population in the woods.

Where to? That's the question being pondered by [from left] Dave Martin, Rod Dovelian and Chris Bruce at the start of their multi-mile trek in the compass course.

The cinema kid

Jeff Daniel takes theater duties in stride

Hot buttered popcorn and cold pop, ready for munching and drinking, are poured, boxed and served by that master cinema laborer Jeff Daniel. Without spilling a drop or losing a kernel of corn, Jeff deftly fills and pours, snaps on caps and hands out straws without blinking an eye.

Nary a hair is out of place. Hands are scrubbed clean and name tag's on straight. Dressed in tailored navy blue vest and trousers with spotless white shirt and shiny patent leather shoes, 10-year-old Jeff Daniel ushers latecomers to seats inside the Clarkston Cinema.

Jeff hustles behind the counter, expertly scooping lightly salted and buttered popcorn into cardboard cartons and deftly filling glasses with ice and sparkling Coke.

Jeff also turns on the heat, empties wastebaskets, gets out the straws, napkins and salt shakers, sells tickets and candy, answers the phone and turns on the projector.

"Yes," he says without hesitation, "I'm paid what I'm worth."

His parents, Dan and Kathy own the cinema on Dixie Highway in Independence Township. Each Friday night, and sometimes on the weekend, Jeff accompanies them to work.

Quiet, reserved, calm, cool and collected, Jeff's manner is akin to that of a 40-year-old seasoned sales rep, for it's all under control.

Every once in a while, the facade crumbles and suddenly he smiles. The reserve's gone and Jeff can be pictured in faded jeans with grass-stained knees, a well-worn pair of tennis shoes and baseball mitt in hand.

"The very first night we owned this (the cinema) I cleaned up after the show and found a $10 bill on the floor. I've probably found ohhhh, $20 in those two years," he said, pursing his lips and squinting his eyes as he tallies the figures in an effort to be extremely accurate.

One job he anticipates mastering is putting the reels on the projector. When he's 12, the job's his, but until then his dad takes care of it.

Jeff describes the reel on the projector opportunity with the fervor of a 16-year-old about to get his driver's license.

There's little else at the cinema that's out-of-bounds territory for Jeff when there's work to be done.

"Once a man asked me, 'Aren't you a little young to be working here?' Jeff laughed. "I just told him 'maybe'.

"People treat me okay. Sometimes it will be quiet in the show except for a few people yelling. I'll go over and tell them to be quiet. Girls are the worst—they're always gabbing.

"Sometimes they won't listen to me so I go get my dad and real quick they..." Jeff demonstrates by zipping his lips.

Does he tire of seeing the same film over and over again?

"Sometimes they get boring after the second or third time, but there are some I never get tired of, like Star Wars and the Empire Strikes Back," Jeff said.

With that, the child in Jeff disappears as the first customer of the evening walks in. It's back to work.

Peace Corps volunteer Jeff Bleau

A thatch hut's his home; he's called Abdoul-Karim Ciss

For the seeker of money or status, the Peace Corps offers few rewards. Separated from family and friends in a far-off Third World nation, Peace Corps volunteers find few modern conveniences in the villages they work. The pay is just enough to cover expenses.

But in human terms, the dividends are very real.

There is the satisfaction of helping people who need help—a factor that weighed heavily in Jim Bleau's decision to volunteer his services, say his parents, John and Eris Bleau of Independence Township.

"He just thought maybe he could help people," Eris says. "Being young and unattached, now would be the time for him to do it."

Jim works in a village in Senegal, formerly a French colony, but since 1960 an independent nation on the coast of northwest Africa.

Letters from their son regularly arrive, after a journey of over 5,000 miles, in the Bleau's mailbox on Kingfisher Street.

"He says the people are so friendly—they're really wonderful people," Eris says. "He was accepted right away."

Living in his small thatch hut with just a modicum of furniture, Jim was accepted so well by the natives that the village chief "adopted" him as his son.

The chief even gave him a new name: Abdoul-Karim Ciss.

"He had to get used to the food at first," John says. "They eat a lot of millet, rice, chicken—it's a pretty bland diet and he got sick a few times."

But now he's gotten so accustomed to the local cuisine that it's the greasy and spicy American food that causes the problems, his dad chuckles.

Jim attended high school at Pontiac Catholic and was a parks and recreation administration major at Central Michigan University when he first became interested in the Peace Corps. After graduating from Central in December 1979, he decided to join and spent five days in Virginia training for the work.

"Basically, his work involves community development—the villagers decided they wanted to work on three projects," Eris says.

Those projects are the digging of more wells to improve water supplies, and the building of a school and a pharmacy in the village, she says.

"He's just there to help—help obtain equipment to dig the wells, help organize the projects. Right now, they have all the equipment they need to dig the new wells, and they've started work on the school."

"There's just so much poverty," John adds. "It's a culture shock at first. The mortality rate is so high and so many of the children die. It's quite a shock after living in America."

Volunteers sign up for two-year periods, which means that Jim will be coming home in the spring of 1982. His parents are looking forward to the reunion.

"He called us over Thanksgiving, and we talked to him on the phone," says Eris. "It was good to hear his voice."

The greenhouses at Callaway Gardens are magnificent. Hazel and Marsha Olrich, left, read all the labels and absorbed the atmosphere.

Callaway Gardens

'Do hurry back if you must leave'

'Any way you look at them,
that's a lot of beauty'

Callaway Gardens could well be America's most unusual and unique resort and garden complex... just like it bills itself.

After being there and using a few of its offerings, it's hard to believe we never heard of it before we committed ourselves to going there.

Located 75 miles mostly south of Atlanta, GA, Callaway Gardens is 2,500 acres devoted to frolic and leisure, gardens and lakes, beaches and hills.

Bob Harrell, writing for the Atlanta Constitution said of Callaway Gardens while we were there March 28 and 29, "A journey into living color can be your Getaway in a matter of days, weather permitting."

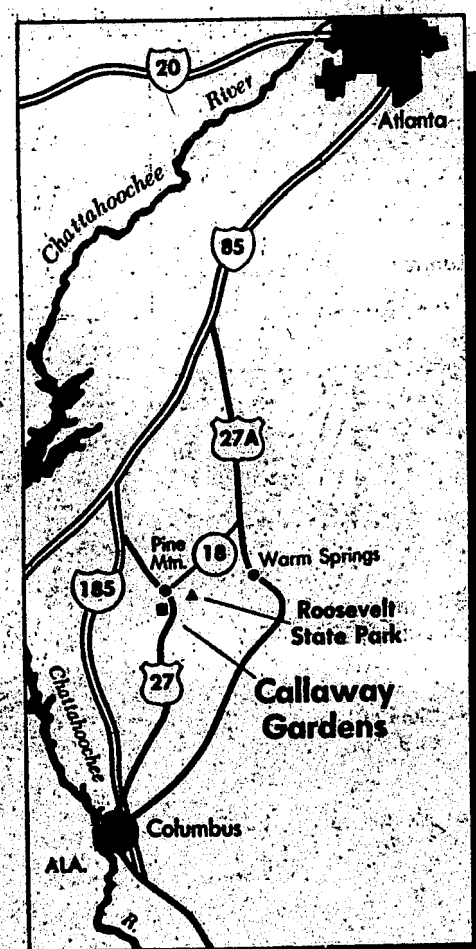

Flowers and colors are not the total "Gardens", but what a display of flowers they have. Along the trails and in the beauty spots are 700 varieties of azaleas and more than 50,000 individual plantings.

As Harrell said, "Now any way one looks at them, that's a lot of beauty."

There are 15 miles of roads within Callaway Gardens, and whereas many of the miles are in natural Georgia surroundings, many too are in cultivated areas.

And, the greenhouses are outstanding.

News publisher Jim Sherman and his wife, Hazel, toured eight states via van in March with Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Olrich of Oxford. This is one of Sherman's reports on that trip.

Number 6 hole on the Mountain View course is tortuous. It's 501 yards, sloped toward the lake which runs the full length of the fairway and juts in front of both the tee and green. The green is rounded on top of knoll. The best way to play it is off a turtle.

All the viewing is available to all for $2.75 for adults, $1 for children. If you are a guest of the Inn, as we were, or one of the 175 Cottages, admission is free.

Along the driving trail are signs suggesting you turn your radio to 640 to hear a recording of plantings in the vicinity.

Callaway Gardens was founded by Cason J. Callaway, a Georgia textile industrialist, and his wife, Virginia. Their idea was to create a place where all may find beauty, peace, inspiration, knowledge and wholesome recreation.

If they had that in mind we don't see why they built the Mountain View golf course. Maybe it was to do something to please the Devil.

The Callaways built the Gardens at their own expense, and turned over its entire operation to the Ida Cason Callaway Foundation, which they founded and endowed in 1936.

The Foundation is a not-for-profit organization. That's ok for the Garden portion of the 2,500 acres. The rest of it we'd say at least has the idea of making a profit.

Callaway Gardens is a year around recreational facility. It offers more opportunities to recreate than any single place we've ever heard of.

In case you have a place to compare it to, just to prove us wrong, does yours have nine circus shows a week, quail hunting, trolley tours and nightly backgammon?

We'll run through the offerings quickly, without explanation. You can call them toll free, 1-800-241-0911 for more details.

An Inn with 345 rooms, 5-bedroom lodge, private 5,000 ft. airport (lighted), Country store, gift shops, golf and tennis pro shops, biking, fishing, fitness center, golf on 3, 18-holes courses and one 9-hole, horseback riding, jogging.

Quail hunting, skeet shooting, swimming, paddle boating, canoeing, water ski shows, tennis, walking trails (many), and five restaurants.

Callaway Gardens is an informal place that has

For that you get 2 meals, fishing, one round of skeet and trap (ammo extra) and 18 holes of golf, and oh, yes, a welcoming cocktail.

Without the package golf is $15 a person and $15 for a cart (required).

Tennis packages are $15 less per person. A horse is 8 bucks for 45 minutes.

We went for "golf" but also to do something different. Weather was outstanding. The golf course greens are fine, but there is no turf on the fairways. They are green and pretty, but not padded.

They are also busy. We played the Mountain View (professional) course twice, and found it extremely challenging. We barely broke 100. The

'You'll want to stay two nights; we're just the most accomodating people' an atmosphere of formality. It's neat, clean, polite, and casual.

Yet you feel like a jacket after 6 p.m., keeping your feet off the bed (that's the only way to watch tv in a motel room), picking up a blowing leaf, and apologizing for whatever to whomever.

We didn't see the circus or water skiing championships. Florida State University circus performs from mid-June to Labor Day. The big water show is in July.

Callaway Gardens is above average in expenses. A Holiday Inn-like room (2 double beds) was $60. Cottages have to be taken for a week in the summer, and are $500 for 2 bedrooms (4 persons).

Golf being such a big thing for the Gardens, there are 2, 3, and 5-night packages. Rates vary for the three "seasons" but the Mar. 13 to Nov. 28 period is $68 a night for one person in double room.

Lake View course is magnificent. It is reasonable in distances and pretty in layout.

Callaway Gardens is in Pine Mountain, GA, a very small town. It is near Warm Springs, President Roosevelt's summer white house. We urged our driver, Jerry Olrich to take us to Warm Springs, then I slept through it.

We assume from all the glowing reports we heard from our friends, we didn't miss a thing.

The thing we really enjoyed most about Callaway Gardens in our March visit were: the greenhouses, flowers and more flowers in organized plantings, sculptured walks, and friendly people.

Friendliness is all around, from the reservation operator who told us on the phone, "You'll want to stay two night's because we're just the most accommodating people" to the welcoming brochure that reads, "Have a great time. And do hurry back if you must leave."

This is one way to get into Callaway Gardens Greenhouses, but not the only way.
