Pig in a pickle

It took Hahn's Hog Hustlers 28.92 seconds to carry the pig to the post and keep it there 3 seconds during Ortonville's Countryfest Saturday. The team, representing Hahn Chrysler-Plymouth Inc. of Independence Township, placed 10th in the middleweight class of hog wrestlers, but they were pleased with victory in a sport they'd never tried before. There are more photos of the event on Page 28.

Salem gravel pit requests mining extension

By Marilyn Trumper

J. P. Burrough's Aggregate Division is seeking an extension to mine gravel from the 200-acre Salem pit on Oak Hill Road, Independence Township.

The pit has been in operation since 1960. It is now bound by a 1977 consent judgment which extended the pit's operation an additional five years with specific plans for restoration of the 200-acre site.

While the operation should be winding to a close by the end of April 1982, it appears mining may continue at least until 1987, with an additional year for reclamation, following a written request by Burrough's aggregate division President E. John Perry.

According to Kenneth Delbridge, director of the Independence Township Building and Planning departments, representatives of the company approached Independence offices last week.

"They made it clear they wanted to mine more gravel, and in a letter said through 1987 with a year for clean-up. They wanted to know about the new board," he said.

According to Delbridge, the men sought a contact person within the township to whom they could bring engineers and discuss the five-year extension.

"I pointed out to them the land does not appear to have been reclaimed as outline in the consent judgment," Delbridge said. "It was just a meeting, just a discussion. Nothing was done."

Perry agrees there's still some seeding reclamation to be done, but said there's some question as to the current slope of the area which may require excavation first.

When that question has been cleared by the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) the work will proceed he said.

Perry stressed Burrough's letter proposing the mining extension was an unofficial request, that he has not yet gone before the ZBA and does not expect to do so until township engineers have reviewed his plan.

The proposed extension to mine until 1987 is twofold, he said.

"First, business in the market area, northern Detroit-Oxford area, has been pretty slow and has not met predicted sales set in 1977.

"Secondly, we did develop work last December in preparation for reclamation and discovered additional reserves which would require mining underwater. This would leave a 50-acre lake," Perry said.

A lake, rather than a reclaimed gravel pit, is more acceptable to a developer, he said.

Perry could not say when Burroughs would appear before the ZBA with its request.

Ka-boom!

The roar of fireworks and their bright colors are to light up the skies over the Pontiac Mall on Friday, July 3.

The annual free event sponsored by the mall is to begin at dusk in the parking lot. Co-sponsor this year is WPON Radio.

In case of unsatisfactory weather, the fireworks display is to be held Saturday, July 4, at dusk.

The mall is located at Telegraph and Elizabeth Lake roads in Waterford Township.

Moon Valley to rebuild destroyed building

Moon Valley Rustic Furniture Co., marred in a May 27 fire, is on its way to full recovery as it begins rebuilding in its 20th season, says General Manager Kim Beattie.

"Oh, we were staggered, but not knocked down," Beattie said. "We've never really been stopped from the damage that resulted from the fire."

At a special meeting on June 23 the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) unanimously granted parking lot and setback variances for the furniture company, located at 6465 Dixie Highway.

The variances were required before reconstruction could begin. Neighbors and surrounding businesses voiced approval and encouragement from the audience.

Beattie is expected to appear before the planning commission for final site plan approval some time in July, according to Mel Vaara, ZBA chairman.

According to Beattie, the main building will be reconstructed on virtually the same site and will act as a combination manufacturing plant and showroom. In addition, it's to be approximately 700 square feet larger than the one destroyed by fire.

"We've never really been stopped by the fire," he said. "We've had a better season this year than we did last year at this same time. We really owe all our success to our employees. They're really a dedicated bunch who've worked hard to help us."

Historic ordinance completed

Clarkston's Village Council is a step away from calling a public hearing on the proposed historic district ordinance, following establishment of a five-member Historic District Committee.

If finally adopted by the council, the ordinance would force residents living in the historic district to first seek approval from a yet-to-be appointed five-member commission before remodeling, construction, conducting major repair or demolishing any of their homes or outbuildings.

It will not, stressed Trustee Gary Symons, prohibit or require approval for painting, ordinary maintenance or repair, for parts of the ordinance have been redefined to clarify just that question.

Council wound up drafting procedures at the June 22 meeting and created the Historic District Committee whose sole purpose is to make the final ordinance proposal to the state on the village's behalf and hold the public hearing.

The five-member committee is composed of Symons, village residents and historical society members, Jennifer Radcliff and Susan Basinger, and planning commission members, Chairman Ted Thomson and Jim McArthur.

Symons said the committee is shooting for a September public hearing date.

Approximately 100 homes in the village are located within the historic district, established last June when the area was admitted to the National Register of Historic Places.

Correction

In the listing of line items for the Clarkston Community School District's 1981-82 budget in last week's Clarkston News, there should have been a statement clarifying the amount budgeted for SCAMP.

Although the summer camp program for children who may have special needs is overseen by the school district, income for the program is completely covered by private donations and tuition fees.

Facilities are provided at no cost by the Clarkston school district.

CURE takes first steps to Lansing

By Kathy Greenfield

The first step in convincing Lansing legislators to "get behind education" has been taken by CURE (Citizens United to Restore Education).

A group of between 15 and 20 people headed to Lansing last week and spent the day talking to their senators and representatives.

They gave out packets which outlined the disadvantages a school district like Clarkston has with funding using the state formula by comparing figures with out-of-formula districts like Birmingham, said Carol Balzarini of Independence Township, who is one of three CURE co-chairpersons.

The legislators also received CURE-sponsored bumper stickers which say "Get Lansing Behind Education."

One goal of the group was not met—they had sought a meeting with Gov. William Milliken, but one could not be arranged, Balzarini said.

The purpose of the trip was to introduce CURE as a lobbying group, she said.

As expected, senators and representatives from meeting July 7, she said.

There was one truly bright spot in the trip to the state capitol, she added.

"I looked up and there was Gov. Milliken,"

Balzarini said. "I took his hand and said, 'It never occurred to us we'd meet you in the elevator.' Whatever conference we had took place between the second and third floors."

CURE members, representing nine Northern Oakland County school districts, visited Lansing June 23 and spoke with their legislators, including State Rep. Claude Trim [D-Davisburg]. Here, Trim and CURE members Carol McGowan [center] and Annetrude Welch discuss data comparing those districts which rely on funding using the state formula and those which are out-of-formula. Contacted afterwards, Trim said, "To get anything done, we have to bring the in-formula and out-of-formula districts together—there's deep trouble out there."

'We're not finished by any means.' — Carol Balzarini local districts gave the group a warm welcome, but there was also an unexpected reaction, she said.

One man, who Balzarini described as very influential, "came on very strong, and told us basically that the state was doing a terrific job in funding education and that if we had any complaints to take them back to the local people. If (his statement) was nothing we had anticipated," she said.

That doesn't mean, however, the group will give up its fight.

"We all decided we were going to do some more thinking," she said. "We're going to come up with as much data (on in-formula and out-of-formula districts) as we can and sort through it."

"We're not finished by any means," she added. "It's just a matter of regrouping—whatever you do when you lose a battle."

The CURE leaders plan a meeting this week and they also are going to the state board of education Controversy surrounds plans to truck nuclear waste from Canada through Michigan by way of I-75 this summer. What's your opinion?

"I don't like it. I don't like nuclear waste coming through here. Look at what happened with the double bottom tankers. They crashed all the time. Something like that could happen and more than likely will happen. Then we'll have radioactive waste all around." —Lyle Stuemke, White Lake Township, machinist.

"I don't see it coming through Michigan. There's always the chance of a mishap or spill." —Bob Armstrong, owner of Hilde Taxidermy, Independence Township.

"Nuclear energy is what we're going to be going to in the future. We've got to learn to live with it as carefully as possible. It's frightening and dangerous, but we must be careful." —Mary Louise Nicholas, Greenview Road, Independence Township, butcher.

"I don't think it's such a good idea. It's hard to say what would happen if it got loose. It might be around a long time." —Dan Vandenberg, Rochester, student physician.

"I don't think it should be done. First of all it's Canada's waste—not ours. Secondly, I don't like it coming across the bridge. Too much could happen." —Robert Cameron, Dubuque Road, Independence Township, shipping clerk.

Woman trapped in Knob bathroom

The Beach Boys' Pine Knob concert on June 23 stretched into an unplanned solo overnighter for a 19-year-old Burton woman.

According to a report at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, the woman was using the west-end restroom facility at midnight when someone opened and slammed the stall door, smacking her in the forehead, "knocking her senseless."

When the woman recovered and attempted to leave, she discovered the outside door locked, and remained trapped inside for six hours before a security guard heard her cries at 6 a.m. and came to the rescue.

The woman told police she was not intoxicated and had had only three beers.

She was transported to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac, where she was treated and released for a head injury, according to a hospital spokesperson.

He wants Flint happenings

May I suggest you institute a "What's Happening in Flint" page which might have boxes routinely allocate space to organizations such as:

- Flint Institute of Arts
- Flint Institute of Music
- Flint Symphony
- Flint Ballet Repertoire Company
- University of Michigan, Flint
- International Institute
- Sloan Museum

These organizations, and others, historically have presented outstanding plays, concerts, film festivals, art fairs, ethnic festivals, antique auto shows, etc.

It is more than a little exasperating to find that the opportunity for an evening's entertainment or a weekend afternoon's entertainment has passed completely unheralded by any local news agency.

You would be performing a service for the Clarkstonites if you could make them aware of what is happening only a little distance to the north.

Mud bath

by Kathy Greenfield

The mud saga began last week when I got a call from Ron Fry asking if I'd take pictures during the pig wrestling contest at Ortonville's Countryfest.

I had never viewed or photographed such an activity, so I thought, "Why not?"

On Saturday, the day of the big event, I called the festival planners to find out when Hahn's Hog Hustlers (Fry is sales manager for Hahn Motors on Dixie Highway in Independence Township) were going to compete.

I was told there were 40 some teams of hog wrestlers and no one knew just when a team would take on a challenge—that it was all up to the draw.

The end result was that I watched hog wrestling for roughly two hours Saturday afternoon while waiting for the team to make its debut.

In the center of the rows of bleachers and space for lawn viewers, sat the wrestling arena. It was filled with water and lots of thick mud. Snow fencing circled the arena.

When each four-person team was called to wrestle, a pig was led out—it was large, medium or small, depending on the combined weights of the wrestlers—and the team members had to stand with a hand on the fence, across from the pig, until the bell rang.

Then, the struggle began. The idea was to grab the pig and lift it onto a post for three seconds, before the bell rang again. The teams that managed to do that—and most of them didn't—then competed with the time it took to achieve the feat.

As I was watching some pigs reluctantly leave the pen, I began feeling sorry for them. My working knowledge of pigs isn't extensive—I'm a pig fan of Wilbur, the terrific, humble, radiant pig portrayed in "Charlotte's Web."

The pigs involved in the wrestling obviously lacked a Templeton the rat or Charlotte the spider to get them out of the mess they were in.

The pigs had some advantages. A few of the wrestlers had pig bites to nurse after the event. I didn't see any person bite back.

It was a challenge. Watching the victorious wrestlers—including Hahn's Hog Hustlers—smiling and yelling with pleasure at their success was a sight—when I say they were covered with mud, trust me, I have never seen so many destroyed tennis shoes in my life.

When the pigs really took off, leading their pursuers on a merry chase through the mud, everyone who was watching got sprayed.

I had gobs of mud on my clothes, in my hair, on my camera and in my left eye.

Hats off to a real lady!!!!

The lady who organized a movement to help our Clarkston school system. A lady that became so involved in a cause that she lost 15 pounds, because she missed so many dinners. A lady that has now devoted herself to moving the legislature in Lansing off their backsides to put public education up front in this state where it rightfully belongs.

Thank you, Mrs. Jeanne Molzon.

Knob's music requested

In a recent issue of The Clarkston News, I noticed that you have a small ad asking for new advice.

I would like to see a schedule of all the concerts that are going on at Pine Knob this year. I have read almost all of the papers you put out and that's one thing I haven't seen in The Clarkston News.

Mike Hauck

EDITOR'S NOTE: We did run a story about concerts planned before the season started, but that was several weeks ago. Because of Mike's request, we will include planned concerts in Around Town, which appears weekly across from the Millstream page.

Scintillating spirit

Recently the Clarkston Conservatory of Music was invited by the Borg-Warner Corp. to give four concerts at Avignon, one of the French Chateau Manor Homes at Pine Knob. Penny Manning and Joyce Borowa, PR ladies for the Pine Knob Manor Homes, arranged the beautiful setting, hired the Steinway Concert Grand Piano and planned a perfectly sumptuous champagne reception.

They are to be commended for the grace, skill and scintillating spirit with which they performed their duties.

The conservatory staff and students take this opportunity to thank Ms. Borowa and Ms. Manning for their assistance in making these concerts so memorable.

On energy and sports

by Jim Sherman

A few years ago Gov. Milliken appointed us to the Energy Awareness Committee. We've since resigned. A dinner meeting was the downfall. We sat with people from Consumers Power and Detroit Edison.

It seemed contradictory to us to have energy sellers serving on a committee whose charge is to conserve energy.

We asked the Edison man if he wasn't working against himself. He said he was, but felt they had to be there to protect Edison.

With such dedication, the Energy Awareness committee didn't need me.

The Gladwin County Record, among other newspapers, reports that 1,441,918 fishing licenses were purchased last year in Michigan. Editor Roger Moon didn't report that of those license holders, only the last 18 caught a keeper.

Played golf in a tournament recently in which an opponent missed a shot, flew into a rage, and threw his club into a bush.

It reminded me of my caddying days at Owosso Country Club.

Alongside one fairway the rough was actually clover, about a foot high. The golfer (?) hit his drive into the thick clover, lost his temper and threw his club into the same clover.

As I recall it went further than the ball. I found the ball with little trouble, but could not find the club. I was fired on the spot and sent back to the clubhouse.

One more caddying story, that's all I have.

Every caddy hated to be asked to caddy for the pro. He never tipped.

One day my number came up. Never had I carried clubs for anyone who hit the ball so far. I swear I never saw a drive, even on the short holes. But in each case the pro walked right to his ball, never giving me a chance to show my ignorance.

I love baseball. But, darned if I miss it. I think the attempt of daily papers to keep interest in the sport by writing up minor league games and incidents from the past are ridiculous.

Walt Dropo, featured one day in the Morning Friendly, didn't excite me even when he did the splits to catch a waist high throw from third.

May the players and the team owners both enjoy their soup.

People blockers

Bikes blocking the sidewalk in downtown Clarkston are a regular detraction. Meanwhile, the bike rack a short distance away sits empty. The result is frustrated shoppers, upset merchants and time devoted to trying to figure out how to solve the problem at Clarkston Village Council meetings—one solution to keep bikers off the sidewalk under consideration is to start issuing tickets to the mostly youthful law breakers. Certainly the easiest solution would be talking about the situation at home—a bit of parental advice about thinking of others.

'If it Fitz. . .'

Supporting evidence

by Jim Fitzgerald

Usually, I don't question TV commercials, I ignore them, or enjoy them, or curse at their stupidity, but I don't worry about what they mean. That's why I was surprised to hear myself ask my wife: "What is an 18-hour bra?"

Jane Russell was selling them on Channel 7 to women with mature figures. Maybe that's why I was unusually curious. I'm old enough to remember when Jane became famous for wearing a bra especially invented for her by Howard Hughes. At least, that's the legend.

I have never known exactly what a five-day deodorant pad is, and I have never cared that I didn't know. I've probably seen or heard over a thousand advertisements for the five-day pad, but I've never read enough, or listened enough, to learn exactly how it works. I'm just not interested enough, probably because there is no legend attached to the five-day deodorant pad.

This isn't surprising. I'm not sure, but I imagine the deodorant pad is worn in armpits. It would be difficult to carry a legend around under each arm, no matter how firmly the legends were attached to the pads.

Of course, it must also be difficult to wear a bra to which a legend is attached. This probably explains why you seldom see Jane Russell without her teeth clenched. Whatever. My point is that I was content to live my entire life without ever knowing much about the five-day deodorant pad, but the minute I heard Jane Russell mention the 18-hour bra, I wanted to know precisely how it works.

I'm sure the difference in my reaction to these two timed products isn't because of the 102-hour gap, but rather because of the aura of mystery surrounding any bra worn by Jane Russell. This aura, provided by the mysterious Howard Hughes, undoubtedly supplies the buoyancy required to keep the attached legend from becoming too much of a drag on the bra.

Lately, I've been intrigued by the advertising for Mitchum stick and spray deodorant. Mitchum claims to be so effective that "sometimes you can skip a day." I guess this means Mitchum applied on Monday will keep you smelling nice until Wednesday if the weather isn't too warm Tuesday. This makes me suspect that a five-day deodorant pad is worn continuously for five days, which seems like an awfully long time to keep your arms close to your sides. But I don't know if this is true and, as long as the five-day pad has no aura-wrapped legend attached to it, I don't care.

The only reason I mention the Mitchum advertising is to speculate on the fascinating possibilities it suggests. The deodorant industry is fiercely competitive, and when one deodorant claims to be effective x numbers of days, an escalation of claims is inevitable, the logical winner is a deodorant that has to be applied only "once in a lifetime." Or perhaps a deodorant that doesn't have to be applied at all, but merely lived in the same city with. Now that is a really great idea if I do say so myself. I think I smell a legend.

But back to the 18-hour bra. My wife said it is called that because it can be worn for 18 hours. Does that mean it is thrown away, like a disposable diaper, after being used less than a day? No, my wife said, it means the bra can be worn comfortably for 18 hours.

What happens if the bra isn't removed after 18 hours? Does the wearer begin to itch, or topple, or constrict? My wife said this isn't really important because almost no one stays awake for more than 18 hours a day and no woman wears a bra to bed. I don't know about that.

I knew an old-fashioned woman who couldn't sleep in her train berth because of the jiggling. So she put her corset on beneath her nightgown and slept soundly. That is a true story, reprinted by Readers Digest, many years before Charlie's Angels.

Another thing: How many hours rest does an 18-hour bra require before it can be worn comfortably again? And if there is a legend attached to the bra, does it sleep with the legend above or below the covers?

But resident has doubts

Test results clear Big Lake area's well water

By Al Zawacky

Testing of well water in the Big Lake area of Springfield Township has failed to turn up any evidence that the water is unsafe for drinking, according to Michael Niemann, Oakland County director of public information.

But at least one Big Lake Road resident remains unconvinced.

"We're still on bottled water," says Darlene Wheatley of Big Lake Road. "I think it (the testing) stinks."

The tests were prompted by complaints by area residents of chronic illnesses and discomfort possibly related to impure drinking water.

But according to Niemann, three groups of tests performed by the Michigan Department of Public Health testing facility in Lansing have failed to turn up any contaminants in the area's ground water.

"We did find extremely minute amounts of insecticide in some of the samples," said Niemann.

"But this could have been caused by crab grass killer, or somebody spraying their trees."

Questionnaires were also sent out to about 150 households to determine if there is an unusual amount of health problems in the area, he added.

The results are still being compiled and studied, he said.

"We've had a very poor response—less than 50 percent," Niemann said.

The questionnaires are designed to zero in on neurological disorders possibly associated with drinking impure water, he added. "But so far, we've looked around the country and haven't been able to come up with any kind of standards, or average of neurological problems you can expect to find in this size sample."

Wheatley, however, described the questionnaires as "for the birds."

"If I were the county, I would re-test the water and have someone going door-to-door," she said. "Just recently, I know of two more families with children with learning disabilities in the area."

Wheatley said she had suffered from headaches and fatigue and her 6-year-old son suffered from convulsive seizures prior to the family's switch to bottled water in April.

Her husband had also suffered from a similar condition as a child, but she dismissed the possibility that there might be a connection.

"I don't think that has anything to do with it," she said, noting that her husband's condition was believed to be the result of a lack of oxygen at birth and not to be genetic in nature.

"I haven't had a spell of fatigue or headaches since we went to the bottled water," Wheatley said. "And my son is 100 percent better. I feel. He was doing better in school, too—the teacher noticed the difference."

"I'm not at all satisfied that the water is safe."

July 4th parade blasts off at 10 a.m.

Bring a sparkler or two and roaring cheer!

When Old Glory flies high, fireworks shoot off and all of America celebrates its independence, local patriots can gather for Clarkston's annual parade sponsored by the Independence Township Fire Department and Firefighters Association.

The event's slated to begin at 10 a.m. with marchers traveling down Church Street to Main Street, north on Main to Miller Road.

At 9:30 a.m. on Saturday, July 4, marchers and musicians are expected to gather at Clarkston Junior High School, 6300 Church, to line-up for the parade.

Parade watchers can expect to see the Oakland County Sheriff's Department Mounted Division, Clarkston's Junior Miss, local politicians, Avon and Pontiac Township's Fire Departments and their antique trucks, the Clarkston High School marching band, classic cars, the VFW's marching officers, floats, a cement mixer and Independence's own fire department and trucks.

Those interested in helping a cause can rid themselves of empty bottles and cans and help a kid. SCAMP, an organization dedicated to sending handicapped children to camp, will be on hand in the village collecting bottles and cans for a fund raiser.

Sky over Pine Knob to shine July 4th

Pine Knob Music Theatre's annual fireworks display is set to fill the sky of Independence Township with bursts of yellows, golds and reds this July.

The Independence Township Board unanimously granted the fireworks permit at the May 26 meeting. According to George White, community relations director for the theatre, the celestial sphere should ignite in a blaze of glory at approximately 10:45 p.m. at the close of the Doobie Brothers' concert.

White cautions local residents to steer clear of exiting Pine Knob traffic—and to instead enjoy the fireworks display from favored secret vantage points or in the solitude of their own backyards.

Politics: It's the name of game at Boys' State

By Kathy Greenfield

Politics was the name of the game at Boys' State. The four Clarkston High school students who attended the week-long leadership and government camp June 17 to 24 at Michigan State University, East Lansing, came away with lasting impressions on how party politics work.

"I learned it's a little crooked," said Ken Peters of Knoll Drive, Waterford Township.

"I can see where the corruption starts," said Rob McLaughlin of Reese Road, Independence Township, who remembers "worrying about getting your candidate elected and not caring about all the individual members of your party, but caring about the mass vote."

"You don't always get the best politician in, even if it is popular vote," said Dan Blumenschein of Whipple Shore Drive, Independence Township.

"I understand how conventions work—there are a lot of shady deals," said Ron Wagner of Deer Park Trail, Independence Township.

The four, who are to begin their senior years at CHS in the fall, may have become toughened to the ways of gathering votes, but they all agreed on another aspect of Boys' State—the experience was worthwhile.

When they arrived at Boys' State, they were split up and sent to different "cities." Each student was assigned a political party—either federalist or nationalist—and they started the political whirl with a general assembly meeting.

From there, the week continued with elections in cities and counties for local governing bodies and then onto state conventions, a state election and functioning legislatures including a house of representatives and senate.

Wagner was elected to the office of state senator. "All I had to do was convince a majority of 80 kids to vote for me," he said, adding that he attributed much of his success to his job of announcing nominees and votes from his city which he did by screaming as loudly as he could so everyone would stop talking.

When it came time for his pre-election speech, he had his campaign pitch worked out.

"I said, 'You all heard me yesterday. Our views will be heard,'" he said.

The experience also taught him "how to be persuasive and how to get along with other people," Wagner said, adding that there were about 1,000 people at Boys' State and he saw the others from CHS only a few times during the week.

Wagner also won the Dwight Rich Award for the outstanding citizen from his city and he was nominated for Boys' Nation.

"I had a really great time, because I was really involved," he said.

Peters became county clerk and sat on the county board of supervisors.

The practice of block voting left a lasting impression when nominees were selected to appear on the state ballot.

Some of the students at Boys' State were upset over the practice and when a state politician gave a speech later, he was asked about the practice as it applies during actual conventions.

"He said it happens all the time—you'll help their candidate if they help yours. That's just the way politics went," Peters said. "When he said that, it really surprised me."

Peters' fondest memory, however, involved realizing he could get along with people he had never met before.

"You're just stuck there with a bunch of different kids you don't even know," he said. "We were able to get along—I didn't meet one kid I didn't think was super. I just thought the whole thing was great."

Blumenschein ran for state senator, but he "barely got beat out," he said.

He enjoyed the experiences he had, but remembers one in particular.

"After we had our government set up, the police had squirt guns to control everybody and the citizens had some squirt guns, too," he said. "I got into a fight with the mayor and with a squirt gun. The police arrested me and the mayor and put us in jail."

Blumenschein was able to break out, he laughed, because "I ran faster than they did."

McLaughlin ran for the state house of representatives and for the president's seat on the MSU Board of Trustees, but he was defeated in both cases.

Despite his loss, he came away with a better idea of political conventions, and he now understands what was going on last year when the Republican National Convention was held in Detroit, he said.

"The whole experience made me feel a little better about what to do," he said. "Now I know they're not just sitting around."

9,000-mile trek includes Clarkston

By Al Zawacky

Bill and Vera Debniaik opened their home to two weary travelers recently.

Two very weary travelers.

Even in a 747 jumbo jet, an itinerary from Texas to New York to Maine to Ontario to Michigan to Washington state to California and back to Texas would be a long and tiring journey.

By car, the trip would take weeks and probably result in aching backs and an advanced case of highway fatigue.

Now, ponder the thought of traveling that entire route—about 9,000 miles in all—by bicycle.

A bicycle built for two, to be exact—the mode of transportation selected by Texans Steven and Peggy Bales for their cross-country trek, a voyage that began in Ft. Worth last April.

It was on a business trip last May that Independence Township resident Bill Debniaik met the husband and wife bike travelers.

"It was at a diner near Batesville, in the southern part of Indiana," Bill recalls. "They said they were scheduled to be in a wedding party on Long Island on the 30th of May and were heading for the east coast."

From New York, Steven and Peggy were planning on going up to Maine and crossing Canada all the way to Washington state, detouring briefly to visit some relatives in Wisconsin.

Bill suggested instead they might be better off to cross over Ontario into Michigan and ferry over Lake Michigan into Wisconsin—a route that would put them in the vicinity of the Debniaik's home in Independence Township.

"I told them to give us a call if they came through Michigan," says Bill. "Still, I was a little surprised to see them again."

Their stay proved to be a brief one.

"They got here Tuesday night (June 16) at 6 o'clock, and left Wednesday morning about 8:30 for Saginaw," Bill says.

"We offered to let them stay longer. I said I could drive them up to Saginaw to make up for the lost time, but they wanted to be able to say they went the whole distance by themselves.

"I guess they really enjoy the challenge of it."

So far Steve and Peggy's trip has covered about 3,500 miles and worn out four sets of bicycle tires. They travel light with only the bare essentials in food, water and clothing.

Averaging about 80 miles a day, the couple carries with them a light tent and sleeping gear. Many a night is spent in parks and campgrounds—anywhere they can sleep undisturbed.

From Wisconsin, Peggy and Steve plan on bicycling all the way to the Pacific coast to visit Washington and Oregon. California as far south as Los Angeles is also on their itinerary before heading home to Texas.

Steve, a 26-year-old printer, and Peggy, a 30-year-old computer system's analyst, are both due back on their jobs Sept. 1, says Bill.

"It's taking them four days just to cross Michigan," he adds. "You know, when you fly, you don't really realize how big this country is."

"And so far, they say they've run into nothing but nice people."

Vera and Bill Debniaik [above] recently welcomed Peggy and Steven Bales and their tandem bicycle to their Independence Township home.

Local ballplayers shining in tough league

By Al Zawacky

Coach Jim Lowry and his ballclub go back quite a few years.

"I've had some of them since they were 9 and 10 years old," says Lowry, who along with co-coaches Bob Crandall and Tom Cuthrell have put together an 18-man squad of 16-, 17- and 18-year-olds in the American Legion 18th District baseball league.

With Lake Orion threatening to score, Coach Jim Lowry signals to his pitcher from the bench during last Friday's game.

Known as the Chief Pontiac Post 377 team, seven roster members hail from Independence and Springfield townships—Phil Breining, Brad Crandall, Kurt Esselink, Bud Holladay, Tom Lowry, Mark Piazza and Mike Stefanski.

It's the first time in 15 years that so many players have qualified for play in the 18th District, Lowry points out—a league that represents the creme de la creme of summer baseball for their age group.

"That's the only reward a coach has—being able to watch his players progress," he says. "This is the best league going, and it's a good feeling to know that you've taught them something."

Things have gone pretty well for the team in the early stages of a 26-game schedule. The squad is 3-2 on the season after splitting with Lake Orion at Waterford Township High School's diamond last Friday.

Breining, an All-League pick at Clarkston High school this past spring, is the team's starting shortstop. Lowry starts at first base, Crandall in right field, Esselink in left and Stefanski and Piazza are both starting pitchers.

Stefanski, with relief help by teammate John Eickenberry, picked up the victory against Lake Orion and currently holds a 1.91 ERA. Esselink is hitting .357, while Lowry is tagging the ball at a .333 clip.

Don Comparoni of Waterford is the club's leading hitter at .500. The remaining roster members, all of whom live in the Waterford-Pontiac area, are Jerry Cairns, Dan Diehm, Bob Lemarbe, Stu Lewis, Jeff Martin, Mike O'Hara, Dave Pasterz, Rich Wade and Rick Zwiernikowski.

"We've averaged seven runs a game on offense," Coach Lowry says.

"And our pitchers haven't given up more than six hits in any game.

"It's the unearned runs that have hurt us."

Tom Lowry [above] has found opposition pitching to his liking so far this season, having posted a .333 average through the team's first five games. Kurt Esselink, another Independence Township native, is hitting .357.

Wolfpack already setting sights on 'No. 5'

THIS IS THE quiet, peaceful, restful time of year for Gary Nustad, Clarkston High School's Highly successful varsity basketball mentor.

Or at least it should be. Shouldn't it?

School has been out for a month. The start of the 1981-82 basketball season is still a distance five months away. This is one man who should have plenty of time to grant an interview to a sports writer seeking a story out of his recently-concluded summer basketball camp.

Right?

Alas, even in the dormant days of summer, the Wolfpack head coach's time is at a premium.

"Let's make this quick," he says, pointing the way to the coaches' office. "I have to change the oil in my car.

"God, if there's anything I hate to do, it's change my oil."

Hmmmm. Somehow, it is a trifle disturbing to ponder the fact that your interview ranks just a notch above an oil change in the order of things.

FINDING GARY NUSTAD with spare time in the winter is like looking for Gucci loafers at K-Mart. But even the summer months find him busy with his basketball camp and inter-school scrimmages—and when he isn't oiling Clarkston's big blue machine for another run at the league championship, he's out changing the oil in his car. Makes sense.

"We've got 62 kids," Nustad says, reciting the census figures from his 1981 summer basketball camp. "That's down a little from last year, but not much—it's still a good turnout."

After Tim McCormick and a state semi-final berth in 1980, Clarkston's hoop program was at the apex. Basketball was the game in this community, and turnout at Nustad's summer camp last year predictably set records.

Nobody expects the Wolfpack to advance to the state semis again anytime soon. So, Nustad's key challenge after so successful a season was to maintain interest in the game, maintain a winning tradition and continue to build a perennially competitive program at CHS in the seasons that follow. That goal is being met.

"It's obvious that immediately following such a super season (1979-80), interest in the game would be at a peak," he says. "That interest hasn't disappeared. We still have a very good participation—many are returnees and some are new kids.

"I think that speaks well of the basketball program in general getting itself established."

SUMMER SCRIMMAGES WITH schools like Highland Park, Bloomfield Hills Lahser and Orchard St. Mary's are on the docket for aspiring members of the 1981-82 Wolfpack this month. And the players are acutely aware of the tradition they are expected to maintain.

Already there is talk of "five straight"—five consecutive Greater Oakland Activities League championships, the unprecedented achievement Clarkston will be shooting for this winter.

"You've got to start thinking and dreaming of the goals you want to accomplish now," says Nustad. "That's why we're working so hard. Teams are made in the fall, players are made in the summer.

"It's obvious you don't become a better basketball player by lying on the beach."

Five straight titles beats lying on the beach, anyway. It also beats changing your oil, but that's another subject—and the end of this interview.

Guests at their party included Joyce's parents, Harry and Mabel Boutin of Plymouth Mass, who will celebrate their 58th wedding anniversary this year.

Several other guests from Massachusetts also attended the silver anniversary party.

Country fair's coming this Labor Day

A country fair with games, food booths and contests like "Most Freckles" is coming to Clarkston Labor Day weekend, Sept. 5 and 6.

People willing to help with the fair and community groups who want to set up booths are being sought by the Clarkston Business Association (CBA) which is sponsoring the event.

"We think it could develop into something fun," said Carol Eberhardt, CBA president. "Since the Jaycees stopped doing their carnival, we felt there was a real lack of something to do on Labor Day weekend."

The association is looking for groups willing to sell one item of food per booth, conduct games or contribute in any way. A fee of $10 is to be charged for each booth and the money is to be used for advertising and promotion, Eberhardt said.

For booth rental or more information, call her at 625-1166 during business hours weekdays and Saturdays or until 8 p.m. Fridays.

They'll take your cans, bottles

Donations of returnable bottles and cans are wanted by SCAMP, and those who wish to participate in the fund raiser have three choices.

On Saturday, July 4, SCAMP workers will be collecting returnables at the Clarkston village parking lot at the corner of Main and Washington streets.

On Sunday and Monday, bottles for the cause will be collected at Ritter's Farm Market, 6684 Dixie Highway, Independence Township.

Those who have $5 worth or more of returnables may also have them picked up on Monday by calling the SCAMP office at 674-1344.

The family which donates the most bottles wins a $25 certificate for goods at Ritter's. The student who turns in the most bottles and cans wins a SCAMP jacket.

SCAMP is a summer camp for Northern Oakland County children who may have special needs or who may be handicapped. In its sixth year, the program is serving 191 SCAMPers this summer.

There are 99 staff members including 24 junior high school volunteers, giving SCAMP its highest staff to student ratio ever.

In addition, the program is serving 20 physically disabled children this year, which is twice the number it has served in the past.

5 acres rezoned

The Springfield Township Board recently approved a request for a zoning change, rezoning a 5-acre parcel near Dixie Highway from residential to commercial use.

The property is located east of Bordine's Better Blooms, 8600 Dixie Highway, near the nursery's lot. The rezoning was from residential R-3 to commercial C-2.

"They (Bordine's) bought the land about six months ago," said Supervisor Collin Walls.

The property was rezoned to be used as a storage area for plants and nursery stock, he said.

Smoother riding on 2 roadways

Residents in Independence Township's Woodhull Lake Subdivision can expect to see work done on two roads in the area, as the Tri-Party Road Commission comes to the rescue.

This year the plan is to pave the approaches of Woodhull Drive west off Sashabaw Road, and the approaches of Clinton Drive, east and west off Sashabaw Road.

Independence will pay $12,000 of the $36,000 project's cost, according to Supervisor James B. Smith.

The Tri-Party Road Commission enables the township to share in the costs of road repair projects with the Oakland County Road Commission paying one-third and Oakland County paying the remaining third.

In the past, the program has gone toward grading and graveling roads in the township.

Coping with kids

by Jim Windell

Critical parents strike out in baseball

Eleven-year-old Rickey seemed to hate himself after a softball game. "I guess I'm just no good," he would say in a sad voice following a game in which he had made an error.

It was important for him to play in each game and he was temporarily happy when his team won, but Rickey always managed to find a reason to be self-critical.

The ages 6 to 12 are years when kids are developing a sense of mastery in life. There is considerable activity, but a primary task is to increase his feelings of competence based on reflections of those outside the family. With expanding social horizons, skills help a youngster involve himself in games—such as baseball or softball—that are valued by others of the same age.

The task for the parent during this age period is to offer encouragement and support to aid the self-image, but not to interfere too much or try to help too often. Autonomy and independence are also things young boys and girls are trying to develop during this time period.

Pressure, humiliation, comparison or withdrawal of approval are the last things these children, like 11-year-old Rickey need.

When Rickey's father called his attention to the fact that Rickey rounded a base and then stopped, seemingly confused, the boy felt humiliation and a profound sense of his own incompetence.

It is important that mothers and fathers encourage participation in social activities like softball, because that offers a broadened exposure to peers and social activities. Comments about the youngster's performance though should always be favorable and encouraging even if the boy or girl obviously lacks skill or special abilities.

If Rickey has let a ball go through his legs or struck out with the winning run on third base, he doesn't need to be told that he needs more practice, that he should get down in front of a grounder or choke up when he's batting.

In other words, he doesn't need to have his nose rubbed in what he already knows only too well. What he does require is unconditional, no-strings-attached acceptance of him as a person.

McLeod victor at Waterford track

By Bill White

Clarkston News Special Writer

Lee McLeod, of Clarkston, may not have been the only winner last weekend at Waterford Hills road races, but he certainly took home his share of trophies.

Driving his Lynx No. 21 in the Formula Vee events—one on Saturday and two on Sunday—McLeod was victorious in all of them. This is a repeat performance of the May 30-31 weekend, when he also won three races: Formula Vee race cars, open-wheeled, with a long pointed noses and the motor in the rear, are made up of all Volkswagen parts and 2000-cc engines.

McLeod comes by his racing ability naturally, for his father, Vince McLeod, who runs McLeod Racing, of Clarkston, formerly raced at Waterford Hills, as did his brother Bob, who now drives nationally in SCCA meets. That stands for Sports Car Club of America, the governing body for such activities all over the country.

June 27 and 28 were just about perfect for amateur sports car racing on the hilly, 13 left-and-right-turn asphalt track just inside Independence Township. The sun was bright, there was a slight breeze, and the two thousand-odd spectators loved it all. There were seven races Saturday afternoon, all closely fought, and 10 on Sunday.

The first six races on Sunday, all 10 laps long, are arranged by groups: Formula Vee and Formula 440 race in the Group I. That was the race won by McLeod, with Dennis Hamilton, of Dearborn Heights, second.

The lead changed hands several times during the 10 laps, and it wasn't until midway in the final lap that McLeod took the lead for good. At the checkered flag he was only half a car length ahead of Hamilton—the closest finish of the day.

The second race, for Group II, G and H Production cars GT-4 cars, was won by Ross Becker, in an Austin Mini-Cooper, with Dan Hill, of Utica, also in a Mini-Cooper, runner-up. Ted Welleson, of Clarkston, in another Mini-Cooper, finished third.

The Group III 10-lapper, which came next, saw Jon Horgas, driving a Crossle, take the checkered flag after leading all the way. He was followed by Keith Averill in a Hawke. Competing in this group were Formula Ford, B, C, Atlantic, Continental, SV, and Formula 4 machines, which meant about two dozen cars on the track at the start.

The fourth race, for E and F Production cars and Sports Racing 2000 machines, was won by Paul Nawrocki, of Birmingham, in a Porsche. He led the entire 10 laps and was chased home by Lou Livengood, of Dearborn, in a second Porsche.

Bill Breen, in a Datsun, was the victor in race No. five, for Group V, GT-II and III, and all Showroom Stock cars—which means they are right off the dealers' floor—with Ken Nelson, in an Opel, second.

The fastest race of the day was for Group VI, C and D Production, GT-1, GT-X, and A Sports Racing, because this was the event that featured the Mallock U-2, driven by R. W. Schneider, of the Sports Car Exchange in Dearborn. This is a beautiful and speedy bright red car, with a wing on the back, resembling Grand Prix racers. He led from the start to finish, with Doug Buist, of J. C. Auto Parts, Birmingham, second.

Ed Murray, of Farmington Hills, in a yellow Chevron B29, a somewhat similar machine to Schneider's Mallock, put on the finest show of the day in this race. Starting dead last, when his engine gave him trouble on the pace lap, Murray passed car after car, and almost caught the leaders just before the final flag. He took third in a great surge at the finish line.

The four 15-lap feature races were almost repeat performances of the six class races: McLeod won the first feature, with Don Kitch, of Clio, runner up—both driving Formula Vees. Ross Becker's Mini-Cooper came home first in the second feature, and Hugo Carlson, driving an MG Midget, was second. The next repeater was Jon Horgas, who ran away from the competition in Feature Race 3; Keith Averill was second for the second time.

When both Schneider's red Mallock and Murray's yellow Chevron knocked out during the fourth and final feature race, Tim Clark, of Livonia, brought his Corvette home first. Runner-up in this 15-lap grind was Donald Clining, of Grand Blanc, in another Corvette, and finishing third was Lou Livengood's Porsche.

It was almost a typical Waterford Hills road racing Sunday: the wonderful quiet racers' roar—if there is such a thing, but mufflers are required on all the cars—the eerie whine as the little mounts skid and slide around the 13 curves—a driver or two plunging into the muck at Swamp Curve, half a dozen racecars charging off the track to bring out the yellow (caution) flag.

One driver did end up against the firewall, which is made up of a pile of old tires, when his Lola was nudged off the course at the first turn of feature race four: Ramon Berguer, of West Bloomfield. This brought out the red flag, stopping the race, so that an ambulance could get on the track. However, Berguer was not badly hurt and was able to walk back to the pits.

There were several complaints by drivers, sometimes hot and heavy, as if there were fortunes hinging on the outcomes instead of points and trophies. And because of protests, especially in the last event of the weekend, the final results were not announced until about 10 p.m.

This was the third Waterford Hills road racing weekend of 1981—their 23rd season. The next one will be held on July 25 and 26, followed by the last Saturday and Sunday in August and September. Everything runs on the up-and-down track from Porsches to Corvettes to Capris and Camaros.

The track opens for practice and qualifying at 10 a.m.; and racing begins at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday (seven races) and 11:30 a.m. on Sunday (10 races). Admission is $2.50 for Saturday, $4 for Sunday, and $5.50 for the entire weekend. Children under 12 are free.

March of Dimes benefit features tennis tourney, family 'Fun Day'

The 20th Annual Oakland County Open Tennis Tournament to benefit the March of Dimes is coming to Deer Lake Racquet Club July 10-19.

Sponsored by Anheuser-Busch and Michelob Lite, the tournament will feature special exhibitions by several internationally ranked tennis pros. The open tennis tournament will include competition for men, women, boys and girls.

There will also be a Novice Division for players without any prior tourney experience, including men's, women's boys' 18 and under and girls' 18 and under singles.

Entry fees are $18 for singles, $20 for doubles and $13 for novice. The deadline for tournament entry is July 6 at 5 p.m. All entrants, except novice participants, must be members of the United States Tennis Association.

The entry fee includes admittance to the March of Dimes Fun Day July 19, which will feature a number of local celebrities, entertainment, clowns, swimming, food and drinks.

Additional tickets for the fun day for those not participating in the tournament are $10 for adults and $2.50 for children 16 and under. Tickets will be available at the door.

For information and registration to the tournament, phone 625-8686. Deer Lake Racquet Club is located at 6167 White Lake Rd., Independence Township.

Oakland County's March of Dimes 1981 Poster Child, Jason Kramer, was on hand last week for promotion photos for the upcoming 20th Annual Oakland County Tennis Tournament at Deer Lake Racquet Club planned July 10-19. With Jason are John Hanichak [left], district manager for Anheuser Busch whose Michelob Light division is sponsoring the event, and entertainer Bob Posch, who is chairman of the event. Festivities include a "Fun Day" on Sunday, July 19, for the whole family.

There'll be CHS football field lights

All systems are go for a new lighting system at the Clarkston High School athletic field.

Work at the high school field will begin soon, Bruce says, adding that the new lights could be completely installed and ready to go as early as July.

Although the lighting committee remains about $2,000 short of its final goal, the remaining deficit can be covered by continuing individual contributions and help from the Clarkston Athletic Boosters.

"We're still looking for donations," says committee co-chairman Eric Reickel. "We don't want to have to rely on the boosters unless we have to."

Individual contributions are tax deductible, and can be mailed or delivered in person to the Clarkston Community Schools, 6389 Clarkston Rd., Clarkston 48016. Checks should indicate the money is for the lighting drive.

The popular event results in some creative watchers who find their standing-room-only atop an ancient piece of farm equipment. The Countryfest was sponsored by the Ortonville Jaycees and the Brandon Township Fire Department assisted with the hog wrestling contest. A fund raiser for the National Reye's Syndrome Foundation, the wrestling event resulted in a $1,400 contribution.

Man vs hog

Before the wrestling begins, the 300-pound pig hoisted by Hahn's Hog Wrestlers quietly waits. The pigs were provided by Jim Stone, whose farm is on Hadley Road in Alba.

While waiting their turn, the Hog Hustlers planned strategy. They decided the best method was to grab the hog at all four legs and lift in unison. It worked. Now, next year, they can tackle the time problem.

Most of the 37 teams that wrestled hogs at Ortonville's Countryfest didn't get the pig on the post, so those who did, like Hahn's Hog Hustlers, were likely to line-up for a victory photo. From left are Roger Board, who works in sales for Village American AMC in Birmingham, and Phil Giacalone, John Plaxco and Ron Fry, all members of the sales staff at Hahn-Chrysler-Plymouth Inc. of Independence Township. Hahn's Hog Hustlers managed the feat in 28.92 seconds, for a 10th place in the middleweight division. Another Independence Township team—Machine Engineering—placed third in the middleweight class, winning a trophy for a time of 18.63 seconds. In the flyweight Division, the winners posted a time of 18.26 seconds. Winner in the "Super Pig" division was Pretty Patty the Pig, a 500-pound porker that couldn't be beaten.

Being prepared

This is how it starts — and this is how championship teams are made. The beginning of the 1981-82 basketball season may be months away, but aspiring cagers ranging from fifth graders to Clarkston High School seniors were on hand for Coach Gary Nustad's recent summer basketball camp. "It's obvious you don't become a better basketball player by lying on the beach," says Nustad, shown above with camp participant Mike Gilbert. The hard work must be paying off—Nustad's CHS Wolfpack won its fourth straight league championship last winter.

Deja Vu

Quick change — and small change — cash out

Faster than a speeding bullet—More powerful than a locomotive—Can bend steel in his bare hands—Leap tall buildings in a single bound. Look—up in the sky—it's a bird—it's a plane—it's SUPERMAN!

By the time the announcer yelled Superman, Clark Kent, mild-mannered reporter for the Daily Planet, would already have dashed into a nearby phone booth (for they were always nearby). He would have changed. (A mystic process which stymied the most attentive viewer for the booth was of glass and all should have witnessed his act.) Then with red cape flapping and arms extended forward, he would have shot off into the wild blue yonder.

Ah yes.

Ye old telephone booth.

And wasn't it always the way that the Sup's street clothes stayed put. When he'd done the deed and captured the evil Luther, he'd head back to the phone booth, don the clothes, and read back to his typewriter, Jimmy Olsen and Lois Lane—in that order.

Nobody stole Superman's clothes. In Metropolis? Never. The city was filled with honest people.

Today Ma Bell can't keep glass in phone booths let alone anything as valuable as Superman's clothes.

Forget the glass. Ma Bell can't keep doors on the booths or receivers or cords.

The real three-walled phone booths with folding doors are no more, but for several reasons, says Len Singer, staff manager for Ma Bell's media relations.

The telephone company began phasing out traditional phone booths as early as 1967, Singer said. The move coincidentally aided a later conversion in 1974-75 when the federal government mandated obedience of the handicap laws.

Those bound to wheelchairs were unable to get through the booth door, he said. In addition the receivers were too high for a seated person as was the coin slot.

Vandals smashed the glass walls and Ma Bell found replacements too expensive, he said. While glass is still used in some booths, the sites are carefully selected, Singer added.

Now Ma Bell markets telephone booths like salesmen market suits, with full color brochures and a list of all the pros and cons of each model and where it best be located—and why.

There's a science, it seems, to outguessing vandals today. Where's Superman when he's needed?

With replacement of Ma Bell's traditional phone booth where's Superman to dress?

Who cares?

The most important question is not what happened to the phone booth, or where's Superman to dress. Rather it's this: Whatever happened to the 5-cent phone call?

Over 60 boys in all participated in the two-week camp at Clarkston High School, including most of next year's CHS varsity and junior varsity teams. Younger cagers, like these pictured above, are looking forward to the day when they'll have a shot at being a member of Clarkston's prestigious Wolfpack.

Clarkston High School Coach and basketball camp director Gary Nustad shows Dick Degener how to properly guard an opponent. Nustad's summer basketball camp ran from June 15-26 and featured daily lectures, skill instruction and games.

They'll lead the cheers

Red Cross volunteer

Violet Biondi celebrates the group's 100th birthday and revels in being a part of it all Violet Biondi shares notes with a nurse at one nursing station inside Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital in Pontiac. Violet's the Red Cross' Oakland County Regional Chairman of Hospital Volunteers and spends much free time organizing and scheduling volunteers for hospital duty.

Violet Biondi can answer a ringing telephone at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital (POH) and find satisfaction.

It's there when she sorts and delivers patients' mail.

When Violet gives directions at the hospital's information desk and schedules other volunteers for work, it's fulfilling, she said.

Her latest responsibility, Regional Chairperson for the Red Cross' Oakland County Volunteers, is proving stimulating, she added.

In this, the Red Cross' 100th anniversary, Violet Biondi of Cramlane Road, Independence Township, is a walking fount of information, praise and accolades for the century-old organization.

According to Violet, 90 percent of the Red Cross work force is volunteer. Her job overseeing 10 volunteers at POH takes 30 to 40 hours each month. She is one of the organization's 1.5 million volunteers world wide.

"I've found most people with the Red Cross wanted to be nurses and never got the chance," she said. "This is their way of compensating. I wanted to be a nurse, but like a lot of other women became involved in raising a family and never had the time."

Interaction is the highlight of her work, she said.

"Stopping and talking with patients is the best part of the job," Violet said. "If I find someone who's down or unhappy, I try to bring them out of it. But really we're so limited as to what we can do to that people--the positive part--are everything. Everybody likes a little TLC (tender loving care), to be remembered and to have attention."

Violet began working as a Red Cross volunteer six years ago.

"I lost my mother and Tuesdays were our day together. I knew I needed something to do on that day. The Red Cross does more for us than we do for them," she said. "It gets you out--it gets you with people. For a newly-widowed person or someone who's lost someone recently, it's the greatest thing in the world."

"The Red Cross has taught me to cope with situations in my own life," Violet said.

Under the shade of the giant willow tree, the Shivilies - Earl and Irma - fine respite from the sun. The redwood patio at the Clarkston Senior Citizen Center is fine for chatting with friends and relaxing just

The Shivlies: As seniors, they're involved and constantly on the go

Earl and Irma Shivlie sit on the redwood deck at the Independence Township Senior Citizen's Center basking in the willow's shade and enjoying the breeze.

It's one-half hour to lunch and the couple are ready to let someone else do the preparing, cooking and the dishes.

"Oh, two or three times a week we eat out here," 61-year-old Earl said. "We also go quite often to Ortonville's senior center. They've helped us out here, so we've got to do as much as we can to help them too."

Earl speaks from experience for he's chairman of the Senior Citizen's Advisory Committee and half the challenge in the job is going to bat for the center's improvements, he said.

Often it's Shivlie vs Independence Township. "I'm enjoying it," he said smiling. "In some respects you never give up the fight—and I fight for what I think is right. I try and make decisions that are tough, but will benefit the whole bunch."

Earl smiles again for the center means a lot to him and his wife, Irma.

His former job as chief union steward with the Waterford School District has cultivated his negotiating and bargaining talents for talks with the township.

Card playing could be a successful evening activity at the center if the township would provide a floodlight in the parking lot, Earl said.

"I've been after them—and I'm going to keep after them," he said. "The center in Ortonville is lit at night and they always have a real good crowd for cards. The people are afraid to come here for evening functions because it's so dark."

Earl's involvement and strong commitment to the center enhances his and his wife's free time and leisure hours.

"I don't think the seniors really know what's out here and available," he said.

"You just can't take it all in," Irma agrees.

"We're out here throughout the week for one thing or another. They have crafts, needlepoint, exercises—but I can't participate because I'm handicapped—ball and bowling."

"And don't forget shuffleboard," Earl interjected. "We play that, and depending upon how big the crowd is, we'll play inside the carriage house too."

"We have a lot of fun here and it beats sitting in a world of your own," Irma said. "I'm involved too. Last summer I made a quilt we sold for $300 at the flea market. We also go to the potluck dinners."

Irma, 77, must use a walker to get around but refuses to allow its presence to hinder activities.

In their free time, the Shivlies head up north.

"We have a place in Gladwin and skip up there for a few days whenever we can. We just beat around and fish," Irma said. "Sure, we clean 'em and eat 'em—the works."

Earl has a garden outside the trailer park where their mobile home is located on Joy Road in Independence Township.

"The man who owns the property was nice enough to let me use it for gardening," Earl said. "I just walk a short distance and I'm there."

Says Earl, "I piddle around with what I can do. I do a little and sit a little and do a little and sit a little. That's the way to do things."

Thanks to two moms, there's gym

You can search all through the hallways of Bailey Lake Elementary School from now 'til doomsday, but you won't find any large, open-spaced room with the familiar polished wooden floor and encircling basketball nets.

Like all six elementary schools in the Clarkston school system, Bailey Lake has no gymnasium.

But the school didn't go without a limited gym program this past school year, thanks to the efforts of two mothers who saw the need for physical education and decided to do something about it.

Nancy Deloney and Carol Zorka are the two parents who co-founded the gym program at Bailey Lake back in March. Once each week for a half hour, kindergarten through third graders participated in the program under the supervision of their teachers and a number of parents-volunteers.

"We feel that it's important that a child have some kind of physical education in school," said Nancy. "And not all children have a chance to participate in local recreation programs.

"This way, all the children participate."

All the lesson plans for the half-hour, weekly sessions were written by Nancy and Carol, who drew upon their experience as former teachers in outlining the children's activities.

The games and activities stress qualities such as listening skills, following directions, eye-hand coordination, physical fitness and team play. Weather permitting, each session was held outdoors.

And the response from child and teacher alike was enthusiastic.

"The kids love it," said Carol.

"We've even heard from the bus drivers that the children really look forward to coming to school on their gym day," Nancy added.

Last year's program was limited to kindergarten through third grade, but in the fall the program will be expanded to include the whole school, Carol said.

Nancy Davey was one teacher who felt she could see the difference in her class' performance and attitude when the gym program started.

"There's a definite correlation between physical activity and performance in the classroom," she said. "And this helps teach sportsmanship, too.

"Sportsmanship at this age tends to be real bad—everybody likes to win and nobody wants to lose. Sportsmanship is something we really work on."

—Al Zawacky

The enthusiasm of the participating children is evident when volunteer parent Sherry Coxen asks who would like to be in the middle in a game of "Star Wars." In the game, two children stand in the center of children walking in a circle, trying to get them "out" by hitting them with a ball of soft yarn.

Shannon Goins tosses her ball of yarn toward an unsuspecting classmate during a game of "Star Wars."

Geoff Lamb ducks and manages to stay in the game by eluding the flying ball of yarn.
