Smith, village clash on M-15 stance

By Marilyn Trumper

Clarkston Village Council Trustee Jackson Byers is adamant that M-15 south of the village, from Waldon to Paramus road, shall not be widened.

Independence Township Supervisor James B. Smith is not making any promises.

While both men agreed Clarkston's Main Street should remain undisturbed, the possible chasm developed when Byers and other council members queried Smith at the Aug. 10 meeting, intent on discovering more of the state's plan to widen M-15.

Smith stressed he was speaking as the township task force's "clearing house" and not as a member of the township board, though both bodies were invited to the meeting to discuss the unfolding events concerning the M-15 widening proposal and update the village council.

In March, Smith appointed a five-member team to search for solutions to private and arterial road trouble spots. The group's first target was to look into the feasibility of alternate routes, bypass controls and traffic lights.

"Independence holds either the bag or the key, depending on how you interpret it," Smith said.

If Independence is willing to promise $100,000 to pay its share of the drainage improvement costs, then the state is willing to have a consultant review alternatives to the proposed five-lane widening, he said.

If the township does not agree, the state won't move to proceed with the study, or the widening, and has already moved the project to a "back-burner" as a low-priority item, he added.

"I'm not sure we can confine our study to the area below Paramus," Smith told the council. "We know Main Street must stay as is, but we must develop a program to decide what may be needed between Paramus and Waldon."

Byers remained adamant. "We certainly don't want to encourage the state's widening of Main Street in the village, and we will certainly do everything we can to discourage widening from Paramus to Waldon," he said.

"It's not the township's intent to ride roughshod on this," Smith replied. He then called for input from the village council.

After the meeting, Smith elaborated.

"My thinking was the township would not be a party to any state plan of widening to five lanes from Dixie Highway to I-75. We value the integrity, culture and beauty of the village, just as those do who live in the village."

He spoke of future areas of concern.

"In the long run the impact on M-15 may be far more than we're considering now," Smith said.

He pointed out the now defunct plan to extend I-275 from Monroe up through Springfield Township and an earlier proposal to extend Telegraph Road through to M-15.

"The proposed widening of M-15 is just one in a series of changes," Smith said. "If 275 doesn't happen, something else will and the people of Clarkston and the township will have to meet the challenge when the time comes."

After discussion, council members agreed to review this year's community development budget and discuss a possible reallocation to help Independence with the cost of an independent study for alternatives to the five-lane widening.

Council seeks thief catchers

Angered by vandals and thieves defacing and stealing public property, Clarkston's Village Council is gearing up to fight back and has begun investigating secret witness programs to apprehend lawbreakers.

Shortly after thieves stole over $700 worth of signs from village streets in June, Trustee Jackson Byers began investigating the secret witness program used by the Clarkston school district.

"Apparently it's been very successful," Byers told council members at the Aug. 10 meeting. "However, I've just been made aware of another program used by the Oakland County Sheriff's Department and will investigate that one too."

Byers said he favors those programs which allow persons reporting acts of vandalism and thievery to remain anonymous and collect the reward money following prosecution of the guilty. This is the plan used at Clarkston High School, he added.

He is expected to report new findings at the next village council meeting, Aug. 24 at 7:30 p.m., Clarkston Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston.

Clarkston community-ed program underway

The first steps were taken last week toward developing a community education program run by Clarkston schools.

The board of education voted unanimously to begin the process of hiring a director for the program, with a goal of having it underway around the first of next year.

After the meeting, board President Janet Thomas stressed the program would pay for itself.

"Last year, community education brought $17,000 into the school district and it was self-sustaining, but we want it to grow into something larger," she said, referring to the plan to have a full-time director rather than a part-time director as in the past.

An interviewing committee to go over applications of prospective directors is the next step, Thomas said, and Superintendent Milford Mason is to appoint the committee that will probably be made up of at least five people—two teachers, two residents of the district and one school board member.

Last month, a 37-page report and recommendations for community education was presented to the school board by chairperson Alberta Ellis and her committee of four.

"Our full name is Clarkston Community Schools, but if you look at Clarkston schools, we're not really part of the community," she said, emphasizing that community education's goal would be to serve people from pre-schoolers through senior citizens.

Among the areas community education could cover listed by Ellis included enrichment activities for children after school, programs for adults and summer school.

"Quite frankly, I think there's a disparity between what's being offered at the schools," said board member Mary Jane Chaustowich. "I feel this would be one way to equalize the programs—camping, enrichment programs after school..."

The plan would also put the school buildings into optimum use rather than one-third of the time as they are now, Ellis said.

After the meeting, Ellis said it was likely the North Sashabaw Elementary School building would serve as a community education building if enrollment continues its decline as expected over the next couple of years and the district ceases using it as a school for first through third graders.

34.6 acres up for school annexation

The Clarkston school board has initiated action that could lead to 34.6 acres of a Springfield development becoming part of the Clarkston school district rather than the Holly school district.

The 20-lot subdivision, Greentree Estates No. 1, would easily fit into the bus transportation system provided by Clarkston schools, said Superintendent Milford Mason.

The property is bound on the east side by Bridge Lake Road, on the west by Ellis Road, on the north by Oak Hill Road and on the south by Rattalee Lake Road.

While petitions to initiate school boundary changes, are sometimes initiated by Oakland schools and sometimes by the school districts involved, in this case, the developer asked Clarkston schools to make the request, Mason said.

None of the lots in the subdivision have been sold and no homes presently exist there, Mason said, making the matter easier than in some cases where persons already live in homes when the change is requested.

The question of whether to allow the change will come back to the Clarkston district and will also be asked of the Holly Board of Education before Oakland Schools makes the final decision, Mason said.

The school board voted unanimously at last week's meeting to initiate the action.

Locals cheer Patterson's candidacy

By Kathy Greenfield

Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson tossed his hat into the race for governor of Michigan last week, and several local residents were there to cheer on their native son.

The $25-a-ticket breakfast fund raiser at Roma's of Bloomfield was where Patterson made his intention to run as a Republican candidate for governor official.

While waiting for Patterson's speech to begin, people gathered near the front of the room or sat around tables and talked about their candidate.

Former Independence Township Board trustee Rudy Lozano said he was instrumental in forming the Committee to Draft L. Brooks Patterson for Governor.

The organization, which now numbers about 150, began in December when a group of about 45 gathered to find a candidate to support, Lozano said.

"We've talked to them all," he said, "Richard Headlee, State Sen. John Welborn, Lt. Gov. James Brickley, as well as all the other possible candidates.

"After interviewing them all, this is the only guy who has statewide recognition tied in with the conservative policy that can win," said Lozano.

Two other members of the committee—Dr. John Cowan, a chiropractor with offices in Independence Township, and builder Joe Noll of Independence Township—also talked about why they support Patterson's candidacy.

"Besides being a neighbor of ours, I think (Patterson's) a heck of a guy," said Cowan. "I've always looked at him as a cavalry coming over the hill when things are tough—Brooks is the cavalry coming over the hill to save the state."

"I feel that Brooks can give us the leadership we need in the government and I'm a little tired of the Milliken syndrome we've been through in the past few years," said Noll.

Others also spoke of their displeasure with the Gov. William Milliken.

"I'm looking for a change and I think Milliken's done such a lousy job in the past few years," said Delton Lohff, co-owner of Kieft Engineering, Independence Township. "And I think Brooks has a good shot at it."

Others just mentioned their support for Patterson as a person and as a candidate.

"I think Brooks is so great that I want to make him president, because he has so much integrity," said Salley Benefiel, hair stylist at the Hair Scene, Independence Township.

After Patterson made the speech announcing his candidacy, Forrest Milzow, owner of the Deer Lake Racquet Club, co-owner of the Clarkston Mills and builder, commented on the crowd of between 600 and 700 persons who gathered to hear the announcement.

"The support at this point just was really surprising," he said. "I was just amazed so many people were here this morning. It's just great. It's good to see him running so early."

As Patterson makes the announcement that he's running for governor, he's surrounded by the microphones and tape recorders of radio and TV stations.

His speech over, Patterson curls it up in his hand as his wife, Kathy, joins him to face the cheering crowd. Then, it was off to nine other Michigan cities to announce that he's running on the Republican ticket for governor in 1982.

Church adds berms, gets permit

Construction halted after runoff muddies ponds

September marks a year since construction began on St. Daniel's new Catholic church on Holcomb Road, but progress came to a halt this week as Independence Township issued a stop-work order for failure to acquire necessary soil erosion permits.

On Friday, Aug. 14, work legally began again, but not before Clarkston's upper and lower Mill Ponds caught dirt and clay runoff, carried from the construction site.

The violation was discussed at the Aug. 10 village council meeting when members questioned Building Department Director Kenneth Delbridge about how construction of the church's parking lot could begin without the necessary permits.

Lower Mill Pond waterfront homeowner Clark Lynn said he was angered with the newly-polluted waters, and explained, "I have one-quarter inch of fresh yellow mud on my beach."

Delbridge told the council he had stopped work on both the church and parking lot for failure to have the necessary permits.

"As I understand it, the contractor left it up to Father (Charles) Cushing to acquire the necessary permits for the parking lot," Delbridge said. "Now what does a Catholic priest know about permits? Nothing."

"I'm not blaming the good Father. I don't think he realized a special permit other than the building permit was needed. If he had, I think he would have gotten it."

The township does not require a building permit to construct a parking lot, but does require a soil erosion permit if the land to be developed is over one acre, Delbridge said.

The contractor for the church, Oscar Chapaton Builders of Sterling Heights, knew this, but the church subcontracted the parking lot work to Stolaruk Corp. which left acquisition of the permits to Cushing, Delbridge said.

"The county has since issued the proper permits, the church has erected the proper straw berms to filter the water and the church is free to begin construction again," Delbridge said on Aug. 17.

Although the site is north of village limits, what occurs there directly affects Clarkston, said Trustee Ruth Basinger at the meeting.

She asked Delbridge to keep the village council informed of all activities outside Clarkston which could affect the village and its ponds.

Hit and run suspect at large

The Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD) is looking for any information which can lead to the apprehension of a man suspected of fleeing the scene of a hit and run accident during the early morning hours of Aug. 2 in Brandon Township.

According to Investigator Gary Holtz of the OCSD, police are looking for a white male between 17 and 21 years old with light brown-blond hair in a bushy afro style that is wider on the sides than in height.

Police believe he is driving a 1973 to 1978 red primer colored Camaro without a rear spoiler and with damage to the left front fender.

The car has been spotted in the Independence Township, Waterford, lower Genesee County area, Holtz said.

Those with information are asked to call the OCSD at 858-4950, day or night.

Springfield buries sewer treatment proposals

Citing prohibitive costs, the Springfield Township Board has buried proposals to improve waste water treatment in the downtown Davisburg business district.

Earlier in the year, the board requested a study be made by the township engineers, evaluating the septic tank and drain field problems in Davisburg and suggesting alternatives.

But the price tags of the two joint use sewer treatment systems proposed in the study prompted the board to shelve the idea at its regular monthly meeting Aug. 12.

"Unless there's a great human cry for it, we're not going to get involved in any joint use system," said

Collin Walls, Springfield Township supervisor. "With the cost involved, we're not going to pursue it any further."

The study set forth two proposals—one, the construction of a giant drain field at the abandoned Oakland County Road Commission gravel pit off Eaton Road; and two, the upgrading of a lagoon owned by the Holly School System off Davisburg Road, currently servicing Davisburg Elementary.

The cost range for the drain field would be between $331,000 and $443,000, and for the lagoon system between $162,000 and $430,000, according to the report.

"We don't have a problem with the existing buildings," Walls said of the current waste water situation in Davisburg. "The problem is, that under present conditions, it's impossible to expand."

The problem was brought to light back in March when a proposed restaurant in Davisburg was ruled out by poor drainage and sewage disposal, he said.

DPW building price settled

After weeks of discussion and court hearings, Independence Township has settled on the purchase of its new Department of Public Works (DPW) building for $312,000.

Under the agreement, the township pays the full price of $312,000 to the builder, Clements and VanWagnen, and drops its claim against the firm for damages suffered when occupancy was held up for eight months and interest rates rose.

Builders Clements and VanWagnen of Lapeer have agreed to drop suit against the township for failure to pay off the contract.

Township attorney Richard Campbell has termed the settlement "successful," and says in essence Independence saved itself $64,000.

The DPW building on Flemings Lake Road has been occupied by the township since last December, but purchase has been on hold while Independence worked to settle a financial disagreement with the builders who had filed bankruptcy.

The township had sued the builders for $55,000, the amount of loss when construction delays prevented acquisition of a loan at 8.5 percent interest

Man dies in crash

A 60-year-old man lost his life in a head-on collision on Aug. 13 when he drove his car southbound in the northbound lane of I-75, near Sashabaw Road, in Independence Township.

Albert H. Brown of Arlington Heights, Ill. was pronounced dead on arrival at Pontiac General Hospital, Pontiac, according to Deputy Kenneth Hurst of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

The driver of the second car, Janice Suzanne Kirt, 34, of Fenton, was taken to Pontiac General Hospital for injuries sustained in the crash and is listed in serious condition, according to a hospital spokesperson.

All should rally NOW to assist ERA ratification

Dear Clarkston,

"ERA by '82" is the phrase resounding across America since the June 30th Countdown Rallies, led by Betty Ford and Alan Alda, refocused national attention on the ratification movement.

Alda summarized the situation aptly when he pointed to each of us and said, "There is no ERA ratification movement unless each of us MOVES!"

NOW is the time to take a personal action to prove your commitment to not only Equal Rights, but the Amendment that will guarantee equality of rights under law throughout the nation.

Join or support the ERA "Move-a-thon '81" jointly sponsored by the Clarkston Education Association's Women's Concerns Committee and North Oakland County NOW to be held on Belle Isle, Sept. 27, at noon.

WALK — RUN — JOG — RIDE A BIKE — SKATE for ERA!!! Participants are urged to get sponsors for the six mile "Move-a-thon" or to make a personal contribution or to just attend and MOVE.

We no longer can afford the luxury of simply declaring, "I'm not discriminated against... I'm independent... I have a good job and education..."

I believe in equal rights, so who needs an amendment."

These self-righteous statements disregard our SHARED responsibility for improving and, more importantly, guaranteeing by law the status and economic position of women, AND men, in America today—and tomorrow.

We must honestly and compassionately realize that there are women across the country who are victims of discrimination we can hardly comprehend and may never have to endure in the relatively progressive state of Michigan.

The ERA "Move-a-thon '81" will raise action funds and generate vocal, visible support for ERA passage by June 30, 1982.

NOW is the time to commit yourself and organize a group to participate in the "Move-a-thon '81." Across Michigan and the USA, all kinds of people are organizing every kind of group: Kids for ERA, Homemakers for ERA, Religious Families for ERA, Joggers for ERA, Laborers for ERA, Students for ERA and even Mormons for ERA.

Call 625-5456 or 673-5910 for more information, for help getting organized, for pledge sheets. If you can't participate, call and volunteer to be a sponsor or to make a direct contribution to NOW-ERA Walk. TOGETHER is better!

Campaign kickoff's exciting

by Kathy Greenfield

When the call came in last week inviting me to Roma's of Bloomfield where Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson was going to "make an announcement," I considered the pros and cons of attending.

The announcement was scheduled early Wednesday morning, which would mean any coverage by us would have to wait for our next paper a week away. The announcement was identified as just that; there were no more details. The place was bound to be crawling with newspaper reporters, photographers and TV cameras, all of whom would report on the event well before we could.

There was only one thing Patterson would be likely to announce—his candidacy on the Republican ticket for the governorship of Michigan. Patterson lives in Independence Township. If he succeeds in his bid for governor, the event would be a historic occasion. I was curious.

Sure enough, when I arrived, it was confirmed. "Good Luck in '82" read the billboard outside Roma Hall.

There were hundreds of people—later newspaper reports placed the number between 600 and 700. The stories which appeared in all the daily papers also listed Patterson's campaign issues.

What they didn't do was capture the excitement of the event. Here's how it went:

Once inside the building, there were tables filled with people selling tickets. Members of the press didn't pay, they were there to cover the event. But all around me, people were plunking down $25 a head to breakfast on a cup of coffee, glass of orange juice and a danish or two.

At the door to the large room, there was a line. At the end of the line stood Patterson and his wife, Kathy. As they shook hands with all who entered, they smiled a lot and did a remarkable job of greeting most of the people by name.

In front of the podium where Patterson was to speak, there were numerous tape recorders ready to remember each statement, TV cameras were in place, their bright lights shining, and members of the press were gathered at tables in one corner, some reading over the speech Patterson was to give, some drinking coffee, some chatting with their co-workers.

There were lots of familiar faces in the crowd and they were a lively group, especially considering the hour—8:30 a.m.

Then, the speech began and the cameras rolled.

Afterwards, Patterson called his wife to the front, a banner calling for "Patterson for governor" was unfurled above the podium and the crowd cheered.

From a table near the front of the room, came a cry. "Yea, Uncle Brooks," yelled the young woman. Patterson, who was just walking away from the podium, stopped and smiled.

The crowd surged around him once more, there were a few more brief handshakes and he was gone, walking quickly down the hallway to a waiting room before the entourage was off to the next stop in a whirl of two days of the announcement across the state.

Outside, a hot air balloon was going up. As the cars lined up to carry passengers to work or back home, they passed the giant red, white and blue balloon with its slogan—"Patterson for governor."

Perhaps some day, such events will be ho-hum—but it was a first for me and no one can deny that politics can be exciting.

Another candidate for governor also lives in The Clarkston News coverage—State Sen. Kerry Kammer of Springfield Township.

We just received word that Kammer will officially kickoff his campaign in October at Mitch's II in Waterford Township. I plan to be there.

Jim's jottings

Coney Island hopping

by Jim Sherman

Since marriage, in this case our daughter's, has been on the family's collective minds recently, it was naturally the topic of conversation at mealtime a week or two ago.

And, since the coming marriage was interfering with golf, both subjects came up.

We observed that "Marriage is like a golf game. Some times you shoot par, sometimes under par, and sometimes you have a bad round!"

I think it was Hazel who suggested, marriage is like a golf game. "Some days you whiff."

And, it was Susan who closed the meeting with, marriage is like a golf game... some times you take a practice swing.

I've been a Coney Island nut since I was 16. Ah, yes, I remember it well, as the song goes.

It was 1943 and a war was on. Defense plants could hire 16-year-olds as janitors. A-C Sparkplug on Industrial Avenue in Flint recognized broom-pusher talent when they saw it.

We lived in Vernon, some 20 miles west of Flint, and I'd borrow Dad's car to get to work.

Right downtown Flint was a 5-corner intersection. A Coney Island was on each corner, the way I remember it. One became a favorite. My dinner was six Coney Islands and a glass of milk. It came to about a buck. (15c each for Coney).

Several years ago I took the whole family to that area. One stand was left and that was disappointing.

In the meantime I've searched for that "just right taste."

For the most part we've found the Coney sauces soupy. After one bite you need a bath. The store bought variety isn't worth warming.

It's taken 39 years—but I found the original Coney taste last Monday. It was in Flint, and might have been an offshoot from one downtown: Capitol Coney Island, VanSlyke at Bristol is open 24 hours a day.

The Coney sauce isn't a sauce, but crumbly, mouthwatering goodness, especially with some mustard. We used to always have onions, but TV has made us too breath-conscious.

Capitol's Coney's are $1.05 and have the great taste of the 15 centers, which makes 'em worth it.

Battle with bottle

By Robert Downes

It can start as a few beers after the football game in high school or with an occasional drink at a cocktail party or a bar after work. For some people, that's all it ever amounts to: social drinking, a pleasant form of recreation that the majority of adults are equipped to handle.

Hetherington

But for approximately 10 percent of the 95 million people who drink alcoholic beverages in America, the occasional glass of booze turns into a deep well from which many feel they must drink to cope with the world. These are the people who fall in and either claw their way back to sobriety or drown. They are the alcoholics.

Toni Hetherington is a certified Alcoholism Counselor at Insight, an alcoholic treatment facility located at Colombiere Center, 9075 Big Lake, Springfield Township.

Insight has been located at Colombiere since August, 1978, beginning as a 27-bed residential alcoholism program and expanding by 1981 to some 52 beds.

Insight provides care for alcoholics from throughout southeast Michigan and claims an 85 percent success rate based on patients who return to the center and follow up on their aftercare plans.

During the three years that it's been in Springfield Township, about 25 alcoholics from the Clarkston area have received treatment there.

Ms. Hetherington began working with Insight three years ago as a result of a crisis she faced with her husband who was a problem drinker. She worked hard to get help for her husband but it was a losing battle and eventually they divorced.

"I chose not to live with the drinking and he chose not to get well," she remembers.

Ms. Hetherington says that alcoholism is just a symptom of a physical, emotional and spiritual affliction that strikes a wide variety of people, including blue collar workers, housewives, business executives and teenagers.

"Everyone starts out as a social drinker," she says. "We don't know how it develops after that but there is an 'X factor' that occurs in some drinkers and not others, causing dependency."

She says that there's really no time line as to what age the disease can strike a person and that even teenagers can be addicted to drinking.

She says that an alcoholic, unlike the myth, does not always drink in the morning and can be dependent upon as few as three beers per day to two or three fifths of whiskey.

"The mean age for alcoholics is 35 years of age," she says. "They're often the best workers in the company and are compulsive perfectionists. Many of them are also very sensitive persons."

Eventually, however, problem drinkers create nightmarish situations for themselves, abusing their families and falling behind in their work in order to continue drinking.

"It's amazing how long people let it go on," she says. "Wives hide it and make excuses, hoping that the husband will get better but as long as an alcoholic doesn't have to take responsibility for his behavior, he'll continue to drink."

She says that the typical shop worker alcoholic will drink on his lunch hour, sometimes smoking pot as well. He misses work often, calling in sick. At home he may abuse his wife and children, resorting in some cases to beatings and even incest.

The white collar worker can be guilty of these things as well but executive drinkers are often harder to spot because their subordinates cover up for them.

Women, the hidden alcoholics, are sometimes the most tragic cases. "Housewives don't have jobs that they can lose, drawing attention to themselves," says Ms. Hetherington. "Their husbands cover up the situation and many women die sooner of the disease because it takes longer for them to seek treatment."

In her own situation, she says that she initially covered up for her husband out of feelings of guilt.

"You get the feeling that if you love him enough, he'll be different. I felt that it was all my fault."

Many alcoholics finally seek treatment as a result of losing their jobs.

"If you lose your job, you lose your source of supply," she says. She adds that most alcoholics go through a long process of denial that they are ill but that many face the reality once their job is at stake. The process of curing them usually involves the whole family.

Ninety-five million people drink in America and 10 percent of them are problem drinkers.

At the Insight program, a patient is first sent to a medical facility for a three to five day detoxification treatment. The patient then enters a 28-day rehabilitation program at Insight and is treated with intensive education as well as personal, nutritional and recreational therapy. Participants are also scheduled for regular out-patient treatment and Alcoholics Anonymous sessions.

"We try to hook patients into continuing positive support and therapy," says Ms. Hetherington. "Once you quit there can be no return to social drinking or pill usage." She adds that many doctors prescribe pills such as valium to alcoholics but the practice sometimes serves to compound the problem.

Treatment at Insight is not inexpensive. Care at the non-profit facility is $114 per day but the costs are often paid by health insurance policies.

Insight offers more than just a facility where alcoholics can receive help—it is a place where members of the family can seek information and assistance as well.

"If we can't take them here, we will refer them or place people and answer any questions people may have regarding alcoholism in general," said Barb DeRousse, admissions secretary. "We encourage people to pick up the phone and get some assistance, whether it be verbal or physical."

Insight's telephone number is 625-0400.

IRS should send bills

by Jim Fitzgerald

The long and short of it...

...This is an exclusive report. The uncle of Sgt. Wojehowicz, of the Barney Miller TV show, recently spent 15 days in jail. Rona Barrett didn't tell you that, and neither did Shirley Eder. I think I'm getting more darling all the time.

Bill Gail, 64, was locked up in the Lapeer County Jail for not paying his Lapeer City income tax. He is the uncle of Max Gail, who plays Wojehowicz on my favorite sitcom, and also of Emily Gail, Detroit's best-known booster and owner of Emily's Across the Street.

Bill Gail is what is generally known as "a character." He says he can't or won't pay any income tax with paper money because only gold and silver are legal tender in the United States. He also insists that if Lapeer City claims he owes it money, it should send him a bill telling how much.

The Lapeer City Commission is not thrilled with Gail, who often appears before it to explain his economic theories. At least once, a policeman had to be summoned to persuade Gail to shut up and sit down. And when he sits down at commission meetings, he sits at the press table. He is a free-lance writer and does some reporting for a local radio station.

Apparently, the free-lance business isn't so good. Gail acted as his own attorney during his jury trial and, after he was sentenced, told the judge he was indigent and asked that a lawyer be appointed to represent him. The judge refused. Even in little Lapeer, population around 6,000, the fact that you can't afford a lawyer doesn't mean you're poor, it means you're not a millionaire. Gail was able to pay a $600 fine.

Emily Gail didn't know Bill Gail was jailed until I told her, exclusively. She didn't say I was darling, but surely she thought it. Emily, who feels fondly toward her uncle, was concerned. She immediately phoned him and then reported back to me that he enjoyed his term in jail. He read some good books and feels great.

As for Sgt. Wojehowicz, I wasn't able to reach him. I wanted to suggest that his uncle would make a popular prisoner in the Barney Miller lockup. The average TV viewer would identify warmly with a man who doesn't want to pay income taxes and claims dollar bills are worthless.

Personally, I don't like the idea of my money subsidizing tax scoff-laws. But I do like Gail's idea that the taxing unit should send the taxpayer a bill for income tax owed. That is, I like it if Gail means the government should make all arrangements with H&R Block and pay all bookkeeping costs out of a fund created by slapping a special tax on the malevolent bureaucrats who create tax forms. There are few things more outrageous than the fact that our income tax forms are so inhumanely complex that the average slob citizen, who barely survives from payday to payday, must hire an accountant to figure out how much money he owes the government.

It is interesting to note that, although the Lapeer County Press has published several articles about Bill Gail, its present editor, Lynn Myers, didn't know he was Sgt. Wojehowicz's uncle. She didn't even know who Wojehowicz was until I told her. She is not nearly as dumb as the former editor—that's me—and doesn't waste her time watching TV when she could be reading deep books.

That explains how I was able to make this report on the uncle of a famous policeman being in jail truly exclusive. It can be darling to be dumb, or vice versa, but you probably knew that.

More show biz stuff: Given the heat of morning competition between this area's most popular radio personalities, I wasn't surprised to read that Dick Purtan's face will soon be on my TV set. Just the other morning, when the light went on, I saw J.P. McCarthy's face in my refrigerator. I was surprised to see J.P. on my milk carton, but probably not as surprised as the guy standing in the unemployment line behind Elsie the Cow.

Dressed in summer camp clothes, tuba players Jay Smith [left] and Greg Bailey march across a field near Clarkston High School. They are among over 90 ninth through twelfth graders who attended the summer band camp program at CHS last week, meeting five days for 12 hours each day. The group worked on fundamentals and the opening numbers of the 11-minute show they'll put on at CHS home football games and at competitions with other schools. The band is still taking more members, and those who join have only one requirement—that they belong to the concert band in their school. Practices are going on now and continue after school when it's back to the classroom Sept. 2. "We find a roll for everyone to fill," says CHS Band Director Clifford Chapman. "You might say, it's like a sport where no one sits on the bench." There'll be more band camp photos and a schedule of marching band activities planned in the coming months—including an appearance at the Silverdome—in next week's Clarkston News MAGAZINE.

Pay taxes later

For at least the tenth year in a row, Clarkston's Village Council extended the property tax deadline for its residents.

The annual move is a courtesy extended to Clarkstonites, says Clerk Bruce Rogers, to give them more time to pay taxes.

Normally due at the end of August, village council members voted unanimously at the Aug. 10 meeting to extend the tax deadline to Oct. 19.

Newcomers welcome to attend junior high orientation

To grade-schoolers, it's a labyrinth of halls that twist and turn, opening into alien classrooms with faces of unknown teachers. There's always the fear classes are tougher, books are harder and memorizing the locker combination will prove hopeless.

Now's the time to waylay your soon-to-be junior high schoolers' fears as both Clarkston and Sashabaw Junior High welcome newcomers with orientation sessions.

On Wednesday, Aug. 26, all new 7th, 8th and 9th grade students and their parents are invited to attend an orientation.

At 7:30 p.m. Clarkston Junior High Principal

Duane Lewis and Assistant Principal Douglas Pierson are scheduled to greet newcomers in the gymnasium.

Sashabaw Junior High Principal Gus Birtsas and Assistant Principal George White are slated to welcome new students at 7 p.m. inside the school gym.

Following introductory remarks, students from both schools can expect to receive their schedules, student handbooks, locker combinations and time will be given to tour the building and untangle that labyrinth of hallways.

Both schools request older brothers and sisters previously enrolled not attend this orientation, but all parents are urged to attend.

Board split on starting class for gifted children

'We did pass 3 mills, but that was for restoring programs.'—Fernando Sanchez

Whether or not Clarkston schools will begin a program for gifted children is a matter to be under discussion at the Sept. 14 board of education meeting.

The school board discussed the issue at the Aug. 10 meeting, but decided to table it after an agreement could not be reached.

The program would serve about 31 fourth, fifth and sixth graders and would cost $51,200 for two teachers, materials and conference fees. The students would be transported to North Sashabaw Elementary School two days a week for special classes.

During the second year, third and sixth graders would be added to the classes, making the total about 40 pupils.

The number of pupils expected is based on 2 percent of the total enrollment in those grades, as recommended by administrator William Neff.

Board members disagreed on whether the program should be started this year.

"I feel right now is bad timing for this particular program," said board Treasurer Addison Hubbard. "We're talking about $1,600 per student for about 31 students."

Board member Fernando Sanchez said he would like to see other programs added that would benefit all pupils, not just a few.

"We've talked about fifth grade band for years, nothing has been done about it. We've talked about physical education for years, nothing has been done about it," he said. "We did pass the 3 mills, but that was for restoring programs."

"I feel it's a good program, but maybe we should make it an after school program or work it into our community program," he added.

Superintendent Milford Mason reminded the board that the beginning of a gifted education program was a goal set by the board a short time ago, and that physical education and band were not goals chosen to work toward immediately.

"I think it goes by too lightly that we work with the regular students, we spend an exceedingly high amount on students enrolled in special education and we haven't treated another type of handicap and that is the child who is academically gifted," he said.

"I think we're derelict in our duty by not addressing these youngsters," he said. "I just feel if we don't get started, we'll never get to it and I think that's a real shortcoming of our district."

The vote to wait to make a decision was 4-3 with Carolyn Place, Hubbard, Vincent Luzi and Sanchez voting "yes" and Mary Jane Chaustowich, Stephen Werner and Janet Thomas voting "no."

'Clarkston'—a name to respect

By Al Zawacky

Walt Wyniemko summed it all up in just five words.

"Clarkston's back on the map."

The mass of football players gathered around him at last week's conditioning drills responded affirmatively.

The response would probably be the same anywhere around the Great Oakland Activities League, where "Clarkston" is once again a name to be respected.

A year ago, the Clarkston Wolves were perceived by some as a squad of limited and undistinguished talents—a team that had struggled to 2-7 and 3-6 campaigns over the previous two seasons.

The 1980 Wolves changed all that. After a three-year absence, the GOAL championship trophy returned to Clarkston High School last fall.

The 1981 Wolves would like to maintain the new tradition.

"People know that Clarkston is around," said Wyniemko, relaxing in the CHS coaches' office after conducting another day's drills.

He elaborated on that point.

"Number one, our millage passed—being one of the few that was able to pass a millage has earned a lot of respect for our community. Number two, our football program is to the point where people know Clarkston is going to be a factor."

But don't expect the unflappable Wyniemko to be too impressed by all the pre-season praise and high expectations making the rounds in this, his third season as Clarkston's head varsity football coach.

"There's potential there—a lot of potential," he said cautiously. "We've got a good nucleus of seniors and juniors—but there are just too many question marks now to say any more than that. We haven't even put on the pads yet.

"All the superlatives and adjectives are nice, but they don't mean a thing. You can say anything you want, but you've still got to prove yourself Friday night when you take to the field."

Football camp will give Wyniemko and his coaching staff a clearer picture of the coming season. The Wolves left for camp at Saginaw Valley State College last weekend and will return home on Saturday.

In all, Wyniemko expects to have 46 players on his varsity roster when the Wolves open the season Sept. 11 at Swartz Creek.

Based on participation in pre-season weight training, running and conditioning drills, Clarkston will be ready.

The tradition is in good hands.

Next week: A preview of the 1981 varsity roster, and a look at the Wolves' freshman, JV and varsity coaching staffs.

Fresh from a quick lap around the field, a group of Wolves trot back to home turf under the watchful eye of Coach Wyniemko. The Clarkston coaching staff figures to bring 46 players to the team's season opener Sept. 11 at Swartz Creek.

Their final day of team conditioning drills at an end, the Wolves listen to some instructions from Coach Wyniemko on their coming week at football camp. Last year the Wolves attended camp at Grand Valley, but this time around they're spending the week up in Saginaw Valley State College. They'll return home Saturday for the final three weeks of preparation for the 1981 season.

Midget team a near miss in state title bid

By Al Zawacky

They were close. Oh, so close. Just one more win, and the boys from the Moscovic Building Company's midget league baseball team would have wrapped up a state championship in the Michigan Class F State Tournament.

They fell short of that goal, but coaches Ed Ball and Dave Muhleck's 17 players were still able to put together a brilliant season that included a first place and playoff championship in the Independence Parks and Recreation baseball league.

After wrapping up an 11-1 regular season record and winning the league playoffs, Moscovic Building bombed Pontiac 16-4, ripped Monroe Frenchtown 15-4 and edged Allen Park 4-3 to earn the right to compete in the state finals Thursday afternoon in Dearborn.

The string of victories ended there, as Saginaw downed the Clarkston boys 10-1.

"They took it pretty hard, but they'll all try and be there again next year," said Coach Muhleck. "We figured we were only a second-year team, and some of the teams we played were together for six or seven years."

Mike Walters went the distance and surrendered just five hits to lead Moscovic Building to the win over Allen Park.

Allen Park held a 3-1 lead in the sixth inning, but Walters smashed a two-run double to drive in the tying runs. Jim Muhleck followed with an RBI hit that sent home what proved to be the winning tally.

Mark Bush had a solo homer and a single, while teammates Dave Lederman, Bob Harrison and Steve Zoss each contributed singles to Moscovic's attack.

Muhleck, Mike May and Kevin Krupp had the only hits against Saginaw in the finals.

In the regular season, Moscovic's offense was paced by Jim Muhleck, who hit at a sizzling .720 clip. May finished the season at .583, Lederman and Bush at .500, Zoss at .458, Keith Krupp at .400, Harrison at .368, Wiedemann at .367 and Kevin Krupp at .353. Bush had the best average in the playoffs and tournaments at an even .500, and also led the team's pitching stats with a 9-2 record.

Coach Muhleck also cited the strong defensive play of Lederman, Zoss, Wiedemann, Bush, Muhleck, Harrison, May and Walters as being instrumental to the team's success.

"The guys worked real hard and gave everything they had to get as far as they did," said Coach Muhleck. "We had a good year."

Point After

By Al Zawacky

Anticipation: 23 days to opening kickoff

Countdown: T-minus 23 days and counting . . .

Summer is entering its final lap. The days of beach parties, barbecues, pretzels and beer are dwindling fast.

This calls for some kind of just compensation, and our society thoughtfully provides one. Football season. The never boring, sometimes brutal and always dramatic football season.

JUST WHEN YOU'RE about to despair about the coming shorter days, cold weather and weeks on end without vacation, the gridiron comes to the rescue with its nippy Friday nights, mugs of cider, good company and "... he's at the 40, 30, 20, 10... touchdown!"

What is it about this game that makes it so special? Every sport has its unique thrills and elements of drama, but football is truly in a class by itself. The band, the cheerleaders, the fierce competition taking place out on the field all combine to create a grand human spectacle. It's more than just a game.

The thing I like about the gridiron is the sheer emotion it generates—an electricity in the air you feel from the moment you arrive until well after the contest is over. More than any other sport, football offers the fan an exhilarating release for pent-up emotion.

Simply put: You can act like a jerk at a football game with complete impunity.

When the long bomb is completed, you can jump to your feet and scream. When the enemy quarterback is sacked for a loss, you can clench your fist and scream again, as if to say, "Take that!" And when your team's running back breaks a tackle and crashes into the endzone, and the official's arms shoot skyward to confirm six more points for the good guys—you can go absolutely bananas.

It's OK. This if football. You're supposed to act a little crazy.

IN JUST 23 days, the hometown Wolves will open the new season in a little burg west of Flint called Swartz Creek. It's going to be grand, It's going to be exciting, it's going to be emotional, so please don't spoil it by asking "Swartz who?" and dismissing the game as a laughable mismatch.

It seems like everybody is predicting good things from these 1981 Wolves, and that is going to make these next 23 days pass awfully slowly. In the meantime, we have our memories from last year . . .

No. 24, a blur of blue and gold by the name of Hughes, busting up the middle for another first down.

Sheldon back in the pocket... throws it long and deep to Krause... great catch! Touchdown!

Walt Wyniemko shrugging and saying, "We've got to take them one at a time."

Defense with a capital "D"... Schumborg, Wyckoff, Norman, Pilditch . . .

Clarkston 41, Milford 0... wrapping up an undefeated romp to the GOAL championship.

In just 23 days, it will again be socially acceptable to go bananas on Friday nights.

I can't wait.

A CONSUMER TIP

Manufacturer's prices printed on cartons, packages or labels are often used on cheap items to give the illusion of bargains. Widely advertised items will be featured at special prices way below list prices in many stores. These so-called list prices can be misleading. Don't let yourself be fooled. Coping with kids

Child blames self for marriage break-up

When 14-year-old Frank was at camp this summer, his parents got into their final argument and split up.

While his father was devastated by his own feelings, he was very concerned about telling Frank and wondered how his son would handle his mother leaving the home. Immediately on picking up Frank at camp, Mr. M. couldn't hold it in and told Frank.

The boy's first response was, "Oh, no. Not again." The 'not again', one of the things Mr. M. feared, related to the breakup of the first marriage with Frank's natural mother. His stepmother, although having a long and sometimes stormy relationship with Frank's father, had always assured Frank she would not leave him as his first mother had.

In the weeks that followed, Frank and his father talked about feelings and shared a few cries together. They were closer than ever. But Frank could not shake his feeling that he had been abandoned again that that perhaps he was to blame for driving mothers away.

Many people think that because a young person is a teenager he will be logical and reasonable in his thoughts and reactions to a separation or divorce.

They see a 14- or 15-year-old doing well at school and using splendid reasoning processes to deal with school subjects or practical everyday problems. It does not mean, however, that such will be the case when it comes to something that hits hard at the emotions.

Frank had always harbored a feeling--one he couldn't talk about--that he was to blame for his natural mother leaving when he was 3 years old.

It was only after his stepmother left and filed for a divorce that his father became aware, because of his reaction of "Oh, no. Not again," of his inner feelings and explained what had happened to that first marriage.

Explaining that they were young when they got married and that Frank's birth had actually kept them together longer rather than driving them apart, Mr. M. began the slow process of revealing enough about himself and his marriages so that Frank would have more information to work with.

An immaturely held belief, as Frank's was, does not change so easily. If Frank and his father can be candid with each other long enough, Frank may actually in time come to think differently about himself.

Guests were enjoying food and conversation at the special pre-grand opening of Foxys at the Mill restaurant in The Clarkston Mills shopping mall in downtown Clarkston last week. A crowd including officials from Independence Township and Clarkston and members of the business community sampled the food and checked out the new decor as the restaurant prepared for its public opening last weekend. "The response has been terrific," says Martin Kreger, executive vice president of Machus Enterprises, of the reactions he received to the pre-grand opening. Machus owns and operates several restaurants in Oakland County, including the Sly Fox and Red Fox in Birmingham and Foxys in Rochester, and the menu of the new Clarkston restaurant is a duplicate of the fare offered in Rochester, says Kreger.

Contract OK'd

Clarkston schools bus drivers will be on the road for the next two years, working under a contract ratified by the school board last week.

The drivers agreed to an additional $5,000 in term life insurance and raises of 47 cents an hour for the first year of the contract and 54 cents an hour the second year, said administrator Conrad Bruce, who served as negotiator representing the district.

"I think this is a very solid agreement for the school district," said Bruce. "It's one of the lowest settlements I know of non-instructional school employees in Oakland County."

The school board unanimously approved the contract.

Change wanted

Crosswalk termed 'dangerous'

The Main and Washington street intersection in downtown Clarkston is not a "safe place to cross," said village resident Virginia Walters at the Aug. 10 council meeting.

"I was nearly hit twice trying to cross there. The light is so short on Washington that the cars try and beat the pedestrians. Don't people know they're to give pedestrians the right of way?" she asked.

Walters called for the council to officially request the state to reprogram the traffic light, allowing pedestrians additional time to cross over.

She also suggested an official request be made for a sign to hang from the traffic light, pointing out pedestrians do have the right-of-way.

According to Deputy Marc Cooper of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, drivers can be ticketed for interfering with a pedestrian crossing with the light.

Barnraising lives on

In one week, the work is complete with just a few loose ends to tie up, say the three builders of Thendara Park Subdivision's new community pavillion. The octagonal structure is located in the subdivision's one-acre park on the corner of Algonquin and Cherokee roads. Work on the structure revives a type of barnraising, say the three men, while subdivision residents' association fees are paying for the project, which should run approximately $1,500. Doug McAlpine (left), John Dunlop and Jeff Jeffery all took one week off work to volunteer time as carpenters for the job.

Club notes

The August picnic of Veterans of World War I, Clinton Valley Barracks and Auxiliary was enjoyed at the home of Iva Landon on Oak Hill Road, Holly.

Uppermost in their minds was the recent hearings in congress of Bill 1918, a proposal to grant a pension to the WWI Veterans. The barracks and auxiliary urge Michigan's support for the efforts of these now aged men in order to rectify a tragic situation which has existed for 63 years.

Many veterans and auxiliaries plan to seek donations for extras for the Michigan veterans' hospitals at Christmas and Easter by selling apple blossoms.

The national convention is to be in Minneapolis the first week of September. Lucille Gries is to be our representative.

The September meeting is scheduled on the 15th at the Springfield Township Hall.

Corvettes put best wheels forward

Classic Corvettes of all ages—from the Vette's genesis days in the early 1950s to the $15,000 models of the 1980s—were on display at Rademacher Chevrolet Saturday morning and afternoon for the fifth annual North Oaks Corvette Club's Concours D'Elegance. Corvette owners like Dennis Leland [above] were busy preparing and polishing their cars from 9 a.m. to noon in preparation for the afternoon judging. Leland had a friend do the special paint job on his 1975 'Vette pictured above.

The pristine finish, shining chrome and blue and yellow 1967 Michigan license plate can instantly transport the onlooker 14 years back in time.

A glittering relic from pre-energy crunch days, this 'Vette power machine packs 435 horse power into 427 cubic inches.

Marking the early days of the Corvette design's evolution is this 1961 model. Later in the early 1960's the 'Vette's form changed radically to resemble more closely the Corvettes of today.

A CONSUMER TIP

A way to reduce loss of heat in the winter is to install proper insulation. In a cold to moderately cold climate, such as Michigan, a homeowner can save enough on his or her fuel bill to recover the cost of the insulation within eight to twelve years.

A CONSUMER SHOPPING TIP
When waterproofing your basement, make sure your contractor's reputable. Read your contract carefully before signing. Question all language you don't understand. Be prepared to remove your own interior basement walls if contract so states. And don't let a salesman tell you soil conditions and water table are irrelevant. They're important.

Afraid You're Going Deaf?

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of one of the smallest Beltone aids of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

Send for this model, put it on and wear it in the privacy of your own home. While many people with a hearing loss will not receive any significant benefit from any hearing aid, this free model will show you how tiny hearing help can be. It is not a real hearing aid, and it's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a fourth of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 0000, Beltone Electronics, 4201 W. Victoria St., Chicago, Illinois 60646.

Here's Herb

by Herb Rose

If Goldilocks were to make amends to the Three Bears...

ANNE WAS RESPONDING to some curious scholastic demand imposed by her quest for a library degree, so we were discussing possible sequential events to the story of "Goldilocks."

I felt that any sequence should have the rotten little delinquent serving time for breaking and entering, petty larceny, trespassing and malicious destruction of property. Anne suggested that perhaps Goldilocks would try and make amends for the consumed consume and fractured furniture by gathering armfuls of wild flowers and taking them to the Three Bears.

It seemed more reasonable to me, considering the demonstrated criminal workings of an obviously warped mind, that if she gathered anything in the woods it would be marijuana from her sequestered little illegal garden; and if the bears got any "gatherings," they paid the going street price.

Furthermore, she was riding such a losing streak that, had she picked any wild flowers, she probably should have been busted by the Environmental Protection Agency for destroying a number of prime samples of endangered species.

I find it best not to dwell on the absurd situations that result from having a children's librarian (almost) in residence. All over the civilized world I assume intelligent couples are discussing the relative merits of various art forms, the role that poetry plays in the social world of today and problematic future developments of the American governmental budget cuts on the Sri Lankian economy.

Not us.

Over our after-dinner coffee we may be conducting an in-depth analysis of the character developed in "Little Red Riding Hood." I claim her credibility as a witness would be understandably jeopardized if it were known that she couldn't pick her grandmother out of a line-up of wolves. My grandmother, on her worst day, looked nothing like a wolf.

Once, when I provoked the ire of the literary distaff side by opining that Snow White was a psychotic groupie living in a cave with seven transistorized wierdos, it was suggested that I go talk to my muse.

This suggestion was totally uncalled for. Anne knows I have had trouble with my muse. I always thought the muse was supposed to be the inspiration of ne'er-do-wells who would be creative and I visualized an affable muse who would leave the museum and frequently whisper in my right ear.

It would appear, however, that I have the world's fatest muse. Every time I could use an idea, he is apparently out having a pastrami sandwich and a bottle of beer. When he does meander in, exhaling a plume that kills flying insects, he is apt to be extremely bellicose.

The concept of having a meaningful conversation with a truculent, overweight music with beer-garlic breath is simply not viable.

With my luck, if I had a fairy godmother, she would probably flunk her Wasserman.

The idea of a wildflower bouquet from Goldilocks presented to the three bears in a sequel to the old folk take is more than Herb can swallow.

Clothes, cars, leisure and jobs mixed with a hefty helping of high-school-aged kids makes for an interesting recipe.

Bob Jones grew up in Clarkston and he still calls the town home.

And for leisure—frequent parties, dancing 'til dawn, $15 rock concert seats and dinner at the London Chop House.

Things have changed for teens within the past 50 years, says Bob Jones.

At 67 years of age, he knows of where he speaks.

Bob grew up in Clarkston, was president of the 1931 graduating class and has instant recall on what it was like to be a freshman, sophomore, junior and senior in the late '20s, early '30s.

He remembers boys' pants that never fit, 1924 Fords with straight four-cylinder blocks that had 40 horsepower engines and 55 mph top-end speeds. Bob recalls working odd jobs to keep busy and inventing his own work.

A big time was a Sunday night at the Pontiac show with your best girl, he said.

Before the high school was built, the building which is Clarkston Junior High, Bob attended classes in what is today the Independence Township Hall on Main Street in the village.

"There were privies outside. Right there..." he said, pointing to where the portable dumpsters stand. "I never used them though—I just tipped them over at Halloween, and they'd tip them back up again."

The civilized lavatories were off the side of the building, he said.

"At the time I went to school there, I lived two doors down from where I live now," Bob said, from his home on Robertson Court in the village.

"All I did was cut through the field on my way to the school grounds. Then in my last year of school we had class in what's now the junior high. I'd walk across Parke Lake when it was frozen in the winter to get to school. In warm weather, I'd drive to school."

Kids didn't wait until they were 16 years of age to get drivers' licenses, Bob said. In the late '20s, early '30s, they were driving at 14.

"They had to. There was no other way for the country kids to get around," he said.

Clothes in the past half-century have changed too.

"I remember that boys' pants never fit around the waist. We used to have to fold the middle over to keep them on," Bob laughs. "I remember a young fellow came in from Detroit and he had pants that were tailor made and that was unusual."

"The farmers' kids all wore overalls and the rest of us wore hand-me-downs. You'd get your big brother's pants and that's why they never fit. But we never really paid too much attention to clothes in those days anyway."

There was little free time for teens in 1931, especially for those who proved to be enterprising, Bob said.

"I was always working, for almost every city lad had two or three odd jobs. The country lads worked on the farms a lot."

"I cleaned ashes out of furnaces after a winter of use," Bob said. "I remember I had a trailer and John Miller, Dr. Miller's son, and I would haul ashes from the backs of people's houses and barns to the dump—where the village park is now."

The price was 50 cents a load, he laughed.

"I also had my own machine and sold popcorn every Saturday night when everybody came to town. It was always busy. The businesses stayed open and pooled their money to offer free outdoor movies to entice people into town," he said.

"They used to show them on the side of Rudy's on a big screen they had built," he said. "People would bring their chairs or just sit on the ground. They'd eat my popcorn and always Cheeseman's ice cream store did a land office business. You could get three large dips for 5 cents. Cheeseman's had a manufacturing plant on Parke Lake off Clarkston-Orion Road, and had a store where the travel bureau is now."

As high school youths, Bob and friends saved money earned from various jobs and then spent it on camping trips up north or to the boat races in Detroit.

"We'd drive to all those places. I remember gas was 10 cents a gallon and once I remember a gas war when it was 12 gallons for $1," Bob said.

Transportation was a high priority item in those days, and Bob enjoyed his two 1924 Fords which he paid $15 for, and his four 1925 Fords.

But he laughs as he confesses the Jones' have driven Pontiacs for the past 18 years.

"In those days, a farmer would drive one until something went wrong and then he'd put it out in a field," Bob said. "We'd drive by and spot it there and offer to trade bodies because his might be a better one than he had."

"You'd go out driving in a coupe and wind up coming home in a four-door and the next time in a roadster body."

"Those cars hardly ever broke down and if they did you could fix them with bailing wire. Just open the car, get out your pair of pliers and cut the fence," he laughed.

Clothes, cars, leisure and jobs have changed in the past 50 years.

Now they're history.

Under the shade of a tree-lined walk, Bob Jones reminisces on classes and life when he attended school inside the Independence Township Hall.

That was 50 years ago, and he's first to admit that times have changed.

Robert Waters: CHS principal 1931 to 1941

Forty years ago, teaching and administrative jobs in the Clarkston School District went hand in hand, says Robert Waters.

And he knows, for from 1931 to 1941, Waters, now 72, taught, administrated and coached at Clarkston High School, in what now houses Clarkston Junior High.

"I came in as an athletic coach in 1931 and left as principal in 1941," he smiles, remembering. "As principal there were 125 students in the top four grades of the high school I was responsible for."

The school was ranked Class C athletically, Waters recalls, and the principal's job was "more assisting the superintendent than anything else."

"My primary area was discipline," he said. "I don't think there's been an increase in the number of bad kids today—there's just been an increase in kids."

"Back in the '30s we had kids that were vandals, and we had problems. But we always solved them ourselves. I don't remember involving the police, or expelling the students or calling for outside help."

"Today teachers are more police—we had time to teach," Waters said.

The football season began with roughly 20 players, "and there was never enough for a scrimmage," he laughed.

"During the Depression we had no money for referees so we'd call Howard Huttenlocher and he'd come out and ref the ball games. His wife coached girls' basketball games. I taught six subjects and coached four sports then and when I was principal I taught chemistry and physics on alternate years."

Waters has perspective and theory on the past 40 years.

"I think teachers were more self-sufficient then. They didn't have a lot of administrative back-up. There was the superintendent and me. That was it. I started out on a salary of $150 a month and taught 10 months out of the year. We were only paid for 9 of those 10 months though because of an operating contract change during the Depression."

"Yes, $150 a month was good money then."

Today they have unions. Aw, I don't know. Unions came about obviously because they were needed. But I think somehow today teachers have lost perspective. Public employees have a responsibility."

Waters easily sums up his life.

"When I came to Clarkston in 1931 I was going to be a dentist. I wound up coaching, teaching and being principal. Then I spent 30 years engineering at GM. I've had a lot of fun."

—Marilyn Trumper

All-American rebel grows up to become Fire Chief

Said Robert Waters, former Clarkston High School principal, "...if you really want to know what kind of disciplinarian I was, ask Tink Ronk, he'll tell you."

Then Waters laughed.

Ronk, former Clarkston High School student, now Independence Township Fire Chief, laughed too, releasing an "Oh no," in the bargain.

"Mr. Waters was a good teacher, a good disciplinarian and a good principal," Ronk said, beginning to unravel his school days' tales.

"I remember one time, I was at about the seventh grade level, I kicked a girl, she screamed—and he (Principal Waters) put me under his desk for the rest of the session.

"Every once in a while throughout the class, he'd kick me...I guess to let me know what it felt like," Ronk said.

"Anyway, it's good for an annual laugh between the two of us."

Discipline today just isn't what it used to be in school, he said.

"In those days, teachers were the disciplinarians and someone students looked up to and respected. Teachers and schools weren't sued like they are today.

"In those days, a kid got it at school—then he went home and got it again."

Ronk says he was then what is now commonly referred to as "an all-American boy."

"There was one time...well, I was relieved from chemistry class for throwing erasers. You see, an orange got mixed up along with the erasers and when it hit the blackboard it made kind of a mess. So, three of us were expelled from chemistry class that year and had to wait until the next year to take it over."

Ronk recalls an after-hours basketball game in the high school gym.

"Another time we found the school door open and decided to go and play basketball in the gymnasium. While we were playing basketball, Mr. Waters caught us."

"One of the guys said, 'Watch this shot.' Mr. Waters said, 'I'm watching.'"

There was no punishment that time, Ronk said, "We just had to vacate the building."

And those are some of the tales from an all-American boy who grew up to be Fire Chief.

Music's her high note in life

Elizabeth Sans has two main interests in life—music and animals, in that order.

She has played the clarinet since sixth grade and when she begins her senior year at Clarkston High School in the fall, she'll be a member of the wind ensemble and the marching band.

Although music has been part of her life as long as she can remember, being in school bands, receiving encouragement from CHS Band Director Clifford Chapman and gleaning experiences from music camps have resulted in music as her career goal.

Elizabeth and her clarinet joined some 100 band students at the band camp held last week at Clarkston High School. The band students spent nearly 12 hours each day at the day camp, practicing music and routines for the marching band's coming season.

All the hours of practice have been worth it, says 17-year-old Elizabeth, who has lived on Rattalee Lake Road in Independence township since she was 2.

"It's hard to learn music," she says. "You can't just pick up an instrument and learn to play. It's a struggle.

"You spend your whole life, you have to start young. I played the piano before the clarinet and I've always sung, so you just have a well-rounded background before you start."

Elizabeth has yet to decide whether to become a performer or to teach music, but she knows for sure that what may have been a struggle in the beginning is now rewarding.

"I enjoy just sitting there and playing for two hours, or whatever practice time is," she says, "because I can almost get lost in my music."

One of 11 CHS students who received scholarships from the Clarkston Band Boosters to attend music camps, Elizabeth spent two weeks at Interlochen Fine Arts Camp earlier this summer.

That experience made her decide for sure that music will play a large part in her future.

"It was like I was on a wall and almost falling off to 'yes'," she explains. "Now I know I'd like to be a music major."

Last week, Elizabeth was one of about 100 band students at the week-long band camp held at CHS.

She took a break from her studies to talk about herself and about the upcoming school year.

Back-to-school preparations mainly involve buying notebooks, pens and pencils— "all the stuff to learn with," she says. "I like things that challenge me and I find it challenging to get good grades."

She compares membership in the CHS Marching Band with being on an athletic team. There are practices after school, competitive performances against other schools and appearances at all the home football games on Friday evenings.

In her free time, she sings with the St. Daniel's Church Choir and cares for her animals, rising at 5 a.m. with her four brothers and sisters to feed and tend the horse, dogs, chickens, goats and turkeys raised on the family's 10 acres.

For Elizabeth, much like students who lived in the Clarkston area years ago, entertainment is mainly found close to home.

"I don't really go anywhere for fun," she says. "What I do is fun, like being with my music, my animals and my family."

—Kathy Greenfield

During the school year, Elizabeth and her family usually rise at 5 a.m. to feed and care for their animals before the kids catch the bus to school.

After working one-and-one-half years as a bagger at Food Town, Scott has the routine down cold.

Scott's '71 Firebird is a beauty, and it's worth it to buy gasoline for the car even if it only gets 11 mpg, he says. His car fits into his plans for the future, for Scott would like to be an automobile mechanic.

'Typical' teen buys own car

If Scott Momany isn't busy bagging groceries at Food Town, it's likely he can be found working on his bright red '71 Firebird.

The 17-year-old begins his senior year at Clarkston High School in the fall. His job made him independent, for with his earnings, he buys his own clothes, pays for entertainment and, after working at the grocery store located on the corner of Maybee and Sashabaw roads in Independence Township for one-and-one-half years, he now owns the car.

"It looks like a show car almost, that's why I bought it," he says with a smile that lights up his eyes.

The car, says Scott, is in excellent condition. He uses his mechanical skills when it needs work, but more time is spent just keeping it in shiny condition.

"I wash it almost every day," he says, showing the care of a car buff with a two-month-old purchase.

Scott has lived in Independence Township on Stevens Road for 16 of his 17 years. He has three younger brothers.

During summer months, he works 40 hours a week at Food Town. When school starts, it will be back to a half-time schedule, four or five hours a day, four or five days a week.

"Most of my time, I spend here, during the summer at least," he says while taking his morning break from bagging duties. "It's a good job and good money."

He makes $4 an hour and, if he works Sundays, the pay is doubled, which makes Sunday a good day to be on the job, says Scott.

Sports play a large part in Scott's life. In the summer, he finds entertainment by swimming, water skiing, fishing, or putting in some time at the putt-putt golf course.

He also enjoys bowling and, during the winter months, snowmobiling.

As Scott begins to think about going back to school, his plans include the purchase of some Levis and some shoes—the style he wants is the runner's version of tennis shoes now popular.

He's looking forward to his senior year and the end of his senior year, when he can say goodbye to school.

"Homework all the time," he says, thinking of what's coming next. "Especially when you're working here and have to do homework at night."

But there is one class he's especially looking forward to—art. His main interest is oil painting and he manages to pick up a brush even in summer months to paint outdoor scenes, his favorite theme.

There's still some time before school begins to get in some cruising in his car with friends. Usually, the place to go is the Pontiac Mall "to see what's going on," he says.

If there is such a thing as a typical high school student of the early 1980s, Scott figures he fits the bill.

"Everybody else does the same thing," he says, "goes to school, works..."

Books, desks, blackboards just might fade into past

The days of blackboards, chalk dust, pencils and textbooks are on the wane.

The computer revolution is here.

Wristwatches whistle us a tune and remind us to start dinner. Pocket calculators smugly flash the answers to complex math problems in the blink of an eye.

Scarcely a business or occupation in existence has been left untouched by the onslaught of silicon chips and cathode ray tubes—and education is no exception.

The computer revolution has begun.

"I'd say my students spend about half their class time with computers," says Art Pappas, who teaches an accounting class at the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center.

"Out of about 400 to 500 hours in class, I probably don't lecture more than five hours total—just to make announcements and get things started on the first day, of course."

There are still pencil and paper exams, he notes. But the trend is clearly toward work at the keyboard and one-on-one instructing between teacher and student.

Books, pencils and mass lectures are taking smaller roles in the education process. And that trend will probably continue.

"Certainly, I'd venture to say that you're going to see a lot more of the mini-computers in the classroom in the future," Pappas says.

"The computer's usage is exploding—it's already become a way of life with us."

Less time at the lecture podium will mean teachers will have more opportunities to work with individuals, permitting each student to learn at his or her own pace, says Pappas.

And economically, the electronic brains are rapidly more and more practical.

"The costs are coming way down," he says. "Ten years ago, you had to pay $400 for a calculator you can pick up for $11 today."

But although the computers are making their mark and will continue to grow in importance in the education field, it's far too early to be ringing the death knell for conventional textbooks and human teachers, according to Milford Mason, Clarkston Community Schools superintendent.

Most of the traditional elements of the classroom will remain the same in the foreseeable future, he says.

"The computer will play a role in the 21st Century, but it's certainly not going to replace teachers, in my opinion," says Mason. "Computers are just another teaching tool—they're a means to an end, not an end in themselves."

Taking a look at the larger picture, Mason says he perceives education nationally as "in a down cycle," but sees that changing in the future.

"Education runs in cycles," he says. "It's filled with events and ideas that come and go."

Back in the late 1950s, the Soviet Union's sputnik launch created a national uproar for more emphasis on science and technical training, Mason notes. Then in the 1970s, a "free thinking" approach to education began to take hold.

Exactly what lies ahead in the future is difficult to say, he says.

"Eventually, we'll swing back and enter another cycle. There are a lot of fiscal problems in the education field today, but I think eventually the resources will come back."

Wendy McIlrath, soon to be a Clarkston High School 11th grader, tries her hand at one of Clarkston Community School's new mini computers. Computers are making their presence felt in education today, and will undoubtedly grow in importance and become standard features of tomorrow's classrooms.
