A high speed automobile chase ended in collision on I-75 near the Sashabaw Road overpass on Friday. The quick thinking efforts of two Oakland County Sheriff's Department deputies and a passing citizen

Historic ordinance hearing date set

By Marilyn Trumper

Clarkston's Village Council has scheduled Oct. 28 as the public hearing date for opinions on the proposed historic district ordinance.

Residents living in the village's historic district can expect to see notice of the hearing in their mailboxes this week, said Trustee Gary Symons at the Aug. 24 village council meeting, stressing the hearing is limited to property owners in the designated district.

This, he said, is the residents' opportunity to speak out on formal adoption of the proposed ordinance, which will make it law.

If finally adopted by council the ordinance would require residents living in the historic district to first seek approval from a yet-to-be appointed five-member commission before remodeling, conducting major repair or demolishing any of their homes or out-buildings.

It will not, Symons has said, prohibit or require approval for painting, ordinary maintenance or repair, for parts of the ordinance have been redefined to clarify that question.

Council wound up ordinance drafting procedures in June and created the Historic District Committee, whose sole purpose is to make the final ordinance proposal to the state on the village's behalf and hold the public hearing.

The five-member committee is composed of Symons, village residents and historical society members Jennifer Radcliff and Susan Basinger and planning commission members, Chairman Ted Thomson and Jim McArthur.

The hearing is set for Oct. 28 at 7:30 p.m. Clarkston Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston.

Approximately 100 homes in the village are located within the historic district, established last June when the area was admitted to the National Register of Historic Places.

Reward offered for sign thief

The Oakland County Chamber of Commerce through its Silent Observer Program is offering up to a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the June theft of over $700 worth of Clarkston Village street signs.

Citizens with information may remain anonymous if they wish by calling police and giving only a number which they themselves can readily recall, like a social security, telephone or license number.

Persons with information are asked to call the Oakland County Sheriff's Department at 858-4950, and should identify themselves as a Silent Observer.

100-mph chase ends in two-car crash on I-75

An automobile chase encompassing two townships and exceeding speeds of 100 mph resulted in a high impact collision on southbound I-75 under the Sashabaw Road overpass in Independence Township Friday, shortly before 2 p.m.

According to reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCS), a 34-year-old Flint man driving a Cadillac, sped past an OCS routine patrol in Springfield Township near the Dixie Highway interchange. The officer, Deputy Gary Spalo, gave pursuit and witnessed the Cadillac collide with a car driven by Gerald Patrick Ormiston, 58, of Farmington.

Deputy Spalo and Detective Kerry Krupsky, an OCS deputy who was in the area and heard the report of the chase over the police radio, aided by a passing citizen, Jerry Snead of Byron, were able to break out the front window of the Farmington man's burning car and pull him to safety.

Seconds later the car was totally engulfed in flames.

The driver of the Cadillac was arrested and is being held at the Oakland County Jail. His name is being withheld pending arraignment.

Correction

The school building that is likely to house a community education program for Clarkston schools was incorrectly identified in last week's Clarkston News.

The building that may be closed for classes and used for community education if enrollment continues to decline across the school district is South Sashabaw Elementary School.

Labor Day festivities to fill Clarkston to brim

Country Fair, pet show, parade, pancake breakfast, American Legion corn roast and more

Pray for good weather Labor Day weekend, for there's going to be enough of a Clarkston-area hootenanny to please even the most stoic — three days of games, contests, races, food, corn roasts, a parade and more.

On Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 5 and 6, the Clarkston Business Association (CBA) is holding its Country Fair, filled to the brim with carnivals, a rotten sneakers contest, baking contest, the most freckles contest and hot air balloon rides. There's a tug-o-war battle, entertaining square dancers and much more.

Those wishing to enter their child in the baby picture contest are asked to drop off photos at One More Time on 6 Washington Street in Clarkston. Proceeds from the event go to Muscular Dystrophy. The pictures will be on exhibit in the park, says Carol Eberhardt, president of the CBA.

Members of the public will be able to vote on their favorite child by slipping a dime into the box that will be below each photo.

Other weekend outings include:

- Pet show in the park sponsored by Main Street Antiques. Locals are invited to bring everything from their pet fish to their moose and assemble on Sept. 5 at 1 p.m. in Depot Road Park on Depot Road in Clarkston. Ribbons will be awarded to winners. The event is free.

- The annual Rotary Club Parade kicks off at 10 a.m. on Sept. 7, with "Star Wars Comes to Clarkston," as this year's theme. The Rotary welcomes all parade entrants to appear between 8:30 and 9:45 at Clarkston Junior High for the judging before all floats and marchers begin the walk down Church Street, north on Main Street to Miller Road. Trophies will be presented for the president's float, the best theme float, the best costume and honorable mentions.

- Monday, Sept. 7 from 7 to 10 a.m., the Independence Township Firefighters are sponsoring a Pancake Breakfast at the Main Street Fire Hall, with all proceeds going to Muscular Dystrophy. Donations are $3 adults, $2 children.

- Monday, Sept. 7 at noon all hungry parade watch-chers and marchers are expected to amble up to the American Legion Hall on M-15, just outside Clarkston, for the annual corn roast.

For a more detailed outline of upcoming Labor Day Weekend festivities in the Clarkston-area, see next week's Clarkston News.

Good old-fashioned square dancing—a real slice of Americana—will be just one of the many activities coming Labor Day weekend to Clarkston's Depot Park Sept. 5 and 6. Other events on the holiday docket include fun contests, games, food and beverages.

Township to request second Deer Lake hearing

By Marilyn Trumper

A handful of township residents were left speechless on the proposed Deer Lake Beach boat ramp controversy when the Independence Township Board made a surprise move at its Aug. 18 meeting.

Supervisor James B. Smith opened the floor to comment from those residents who felt they had not yet been heard on the issue, prefacing his remark by proposing a resolution from the board recommending the state's Department of Natural Resources (DNR) conduct a second hearing in October to discuss the safety and number of boats on Deer Lake.

Residents geared for debate fell silent as the board unanimously adopted the resolution.

According to Clerk Christopher Rose, the earliest the DNR can call the proposed second hearing is late September or early October.

Smith warned against confusing the proposed second hearing with the hearing scheduled for Sept. 3 at 7 p.m., Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston, where residents are slated to air views on the proposed boat ramp installation on Deer Lake Beach, not high speed boat traffic on the lake.

The proposed boat ramp at Deer Lake Beach stirred waterfront owners into action intent on blocking construction and arguing the ramp will enhance access to the lake, thereby increasing traffic.

Beverly Clemo of Church Street, asked board members to investigate marine patrol of the lake by the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

"That should give you a good indication of what their future plans will be on patrolling," Clemo told the board.

Smith indicated plans were underway to post Explorer Scouts on Deer Lake to monitor activities.

According to Smith, the OSCD agreed to sponsor an Explorer Post for Clarkston, an arm of Boy Scouts of America, where young men and women interested in police and law enforcement work can explore such a career.

Council's on record, thumbs up for boat ramp

By Marilyn Trumper

Clarkston's Village Council is going on the record with its about-face, and voted unanimously at its Aug. 24 meeting to notify the township and state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) that it approves the installation of the proposed Deer Lake Beach boat ramp.

meeting (the DNR's public hearing scheduled for Sept. 3) and say so," Byers said.

The controversy surrounding boat traffic and high speeds on Deer Lake should be a concern of the village's but should be held separate from the highly debated boat ramp, said Trustee David Raup.

His stand was echoed by other council members.

designated ramp and not the conceived concrete structure.

In addition, the letter is to endorse the proposed second hearing for late September or early October where the issues of high speed boats and the number of boats on Deer Lake is to be discussed.

Members also agreed to request the ramp plan be taken off the planning commission's agenda where it was slated for review and a recommendation to the village council.

The controversy over the boat ramp began in late July when members of the Clarkston village Council openly expressed disillusionment about being notified of the township's plan by the DNR.

Acting on advice from counsel, members agreed that since Deer Lake Beach belongs to the village and is leased to Independence Township, the village ultimately as landlord has the last say in what's done there.

The issue is slated to go before a public hearing on Sept. 3 at 7 p.m., Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

"I feel other council members think the same way. If we're in accord I think we should go into that "I personally have done a 180-degree turnaround on this," said Trustee Jackson Byers. "I envisioned a huge concrete pier, but after looking at the Judah Lake facility I see nothing wrong.

"Boat traffic is a concern because village residents have access to the lake," said Trustee Ruth Basinger. "But I agree it's a separate issue."

After discussion, council voted unanimously to write Independence Township and the DNR, approving the proposed launch on the basis it is a DNR

Standring, 21, dies in crash

A 21-year-old Independence Township man died early Sunday morning when he lost control of his car on Maybee Road near the Waterford Road intersection.

Dead is Sydney J. Standring of Clintonville Road. According to Deputy Kenneth Hurst of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, Standring was driving west on Maybee Road, in Independence Township, at 12:58 a.m. on Aug. 23 when he lost control of his car, hitting a sign, a culvert, became airborne and came to a stop after landing upside down. There was no other passengers in the car. The accident remains under investigation, police said.

Knob moves to block Borg-Warner development

By Marilyn Trumper

Borg-Warner Equities and Pine Knob Investment Co. are at loggerheads on future development of the Pine Knob Complex.

At an Aug. 18 Independence Township Board meeting, Gary Francell, co-owner of Pine Knob Investment, announced he would block development of Borg-Warner's proposed Pine Knob Manor East subdivision.

Borg-Warner is seeking tentative preliminary plat approval of the development planned to be 65 single family homes on 15,000 square foot lots, 45 acres on a looped street off Waldon Road, parallel to Royal St. George, the access road to the Hamburger Mansion, condominiums, golf course and pro-shop.

"This will not be a buffer between the commercial use," Francell told Board members, calling for multiple development instead.

"I feel that this will destroy the concept of rural zoning and the total idea of what we've tried to do.

"Bringing in more roads, cutting down more trees and topping hills will destroy it all—we'll have a bald mountain."

Representatives of Borg-Warner were absent from the meeting.

Independence Township on advice from its engineers, made no decision, tabling the matter until both parties submit master plans.

Township engineer Frank Biehl, of Hubble, Roth and Clark, termed development at Pine Knob "piecemeal," and said it appears neither Pine Knob or Borg-Warner know what the other is planning.

Biehl called for master plans outlining the complex's utilities like water, sewer and storm drains, and termed the absence of such plans "a major problem."

Supervisor James B. Smith pointed out a good faith effort on the part of both parties meant an expeditious solution, and he queried Francell on when the township could expect to see a master plan of Pine Knob Investment.

"We'll put ours on the table at the same time, (as Borg-Warner)," he answered.

The Independence Township Planning Commission approved the plat when it was submitted in February.

The property is zoned multiple but Independence allows the construction of single family homes in a multiple zoned acreage as long as lot sizes meet the 15,000 square feet lot requirement.

Bottles for Building ends with close of center

Dear Editor,

It is with deep regret that I inform you, the people of Independence Township and surrounding areas that glass recycling via Bottles for Building is no longer possible.

The drop-off building at the A & P shopping center at M-15 and Dixie Highway will be removed as of Aug. 28.

The reason is the Oakland County Recycling Center will be closing at the end of August, and we will no longer have a nearby place to transport or sell our glass.

I wish to thank Mr. Buddy Atchoo who graciously allowed us to use a portion of his parking lot over this eight year period for placement of our building.

Thank you to the hundreds of residents who have saved all those millions of bottles we have recycled.

Special thanks go to the Oakland County Trusty Camp on Brown Road, who since 1973 have transported our glass to the Oakland County Center in Pontiac. If it had not been for their cooperation, the project would have ended years ago.

An official status report will be submitted by October as the Oakland County Center closes out their books, letting all residents know the final amount in trust to the township for a community activities center.

My special thanks to Mr. Lew Wint, who has served as treasurer since 1971. He has done a very careful job of reinvesting our funds in order to produce the most interest.

Thank you again everyone for your concern for our environment.

Speak up for school's gifted children program

To The Editor:

I am very disappointed in the Clarkston School Board. I don't understand how the gifted program could be postponed again.

Hooray for Superintendent Milford Mason and the members of the board that realize the importance of the program. There are more children than you realize that will qualify for this program in the future.

I think you had better check in this community and find out how many children are attending Roeper, Cranbrook, etc. because Clarkston does not offer a gifted program. Unfortunately, many parents cannot afford to send their children to those particular schools.

I was considering calling all the board members to voice my opinion. I hope this letter will encourage the residents of this school district to speak up for this program. Statistics show that a majority of gifted children become drop-outs, because they are bored with the programs offered in their schools. If we can provide special educational programs for the physically and mentally handicapped children, why can't we provide them for gifted children?

We don't shelve raises for the administrators, community education, etc. Why do we shelve programs for the gifted?

Interested residents—please attend the next school board meeting and speak out for this program. We are gathering together with other parents in Oakland County to try to obtain an insight into gifted children and programs. Maybe if our group becomes large enough, they will listen to us.

Arline J. Briney

Put Deer Lake ramp to a vote

To The Editor:

The population of Independence Township of over 20,000 and a boat registration of approximately 300 boats is self-evident that a boat ramp for a choice few is NOT democratic.

The expenditure of $6,000 of federal revenue sharing funds for a new boat ramp for Clarkston was passed unanimously by the Independence Township Board, for a choice few as previously stated.

The irony of this is that the board KNEW they were employing BUREAUCRACY to counter POPULAR demand.

The average taxpayer in the township does not make boating his hobby, and does NOT own a boat, but our thoughtful local township board voted to build this new ramp, using federal funds paid by ALL taxpayers (like it or not).

There are many ways to spend these federal funds, such as bike paths, library projects, park improvements, only to name a few. At least these projects would be shared by ALL, not just a CHOICE FEW.

I feel that if this boat ramp is so important to the township, why not put it on the next voting ballot.

This democratic procedure would at least give the taxpayer an opportunity to make his choice. I'm sure the board owes this much to the taxpayers who voted them into office, and unquestionably should have a voice in this expenditure.

Jim's jottings

Graduating grammar

by Jim Sherman

Two readers of this column have commented on a recent grammatical error we made. We point this out for those who can't understand why anyone would read Jottings, let alone take time to write.

The goof followed our August 5 column that mentioned my father saying we should always say "We were graduated", not "We graduated".

We went on to say "Hazel and I". That earned us a "tsk, tsk and tut-tut" for one kind reader. Helen Winegar Teague said had we stayed in Morrice High School the full term we would have been taught the proper use of the objective case.

She's probably right. We tend to write in the awful vernacular of the streets.

Speaking of dad... He was recalling the other day doing our college laundry. Starching shirts in particular.

Remember those days folks? Starch came in powder form. It was mixed with water in a wash basin or other wide topped vessel.

For a time in the mid 40's dad did the laundry. He described the starching feat the other day. He'd hold most of the shirt under his arm, then dip the cuffs in the starch and wring them out.

Then came the collar and it's wringing. And, in those days, the starchers stiffened the front buttonhole-band. Dad, with most of the shirt squashed in his armpit would gather the band and dunk it in the starch.

It was during this process he sometimes forgot what was under the arm and would drop the shirt on the floor. This would immediately be followed by language usually confined to the upper end of the railroad yard in Durand.

It's no wonder the spray can went over so big so fast.

Don't let another day go by without reflecting on this summer. Certainly there has never been a "summer" like this in our 55 years.

No prolonged 90 degree days, no 100 degree days. Just plenty of summer... swimming weather, golfing weather, outdoor weather.

Only the pessimists are complaining. You may have heard them say... "We're going to pay for it this winter". May be, but love it while you can.

Linda Porter of Sagamore Road, Independence Township, assisted in the film's make-up department and worked as an extra in the production. Here she's seated on the running board of a vintage car with fellow thespian Bill Dulmage of Orchard Lake. The movie was filmed this past summer on the streets of Detroit, near such places as the Masonic Temple, the David Whitney House on Woodward Ave., the Detroit Zoo and the Wayne County Jail, Linda said. Eddie Mecca who plays Carmine Raguso on television's Laverne and Shirley, starred in the film, she added. The movie is slated for a Detroit world premiere in December. "I was there for 10 days, got to know the crew and enjoyed working," Linda said. "It was really nice to be a part of the production. It's a good fascinating experience."

'If it Fitz. . .'

Only his advice is free

by Jim Fitzgerald

Lately whenever a bunch of us is sitting around talking and the conversation turns to economics or to parking on HUD property, I always say the same thing: "There is no such thing as a free lunch."

I say this so people will know I'm no dummy.

Any dummy can explain the complexities of an economic policy that cuts rich people's taxes to make poor people happy. Any dummy can lecture on the economic implications of the fact that, despite the high cost of money, every store on the block is anxious to borrow millions of dollars in order to buy the Conoco station on the corner.

But that's humdrum stuff, and I leave it to the dummies. During economic discussions, I prefer to mostly listen and look wise, and when everyone else is done talking, I smile world-wearily and say: "Everything you've said may be true, but don't ever forget that there is no such thing as a free lunch."

This is basic economics. Nothing is free. Someone must always pay the lunch tab. But you knew that. "No free lunch" has become a cliché. Everyone uses it to explain the high price of living. It's simply a shorthand way of saying wealth can't be redistributed without nicking the source of the wealth.

The trouble is that most people won't refuse to eat a free lunch, even though they know there's really no such thing. They figure if they don't eat it, somebody else will, so they'd better get theirs while they can. That's how dams are built, congressional votes bought and welfare families extended. Not many people will skip lunch just to save someone else from paying for it.

However, I'm not discouraged. When talking economics, I continue to say there is no such thing as a free lunch. Admittedly, my audience usually reacts skeptically, but sometimes they quit eating lunch to listen. Every little bit helps, speaking of clichés.

So my wife certainly wasn't surprised when, while we were discussing the economics of parking our car, I told her there was no such thing as a free lunch. She said I should tell that to HUD. It won't do any good.

HUD, sometimes known as the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development, owns 1300 Lafayette East, the Detroit apartment building where we live. HUD took possession when the original owners pooped out on a government-guaranteed loan, forcing taxpayers to buy some more free lunches. Currently, HUD is repaving the two parking levels in the high-rise basement, and hundreds of tenants must scramble for parking places on the street for eight weeks. Car thieves have welcomed the extra business Tenants in one-bedroom apartments are billed a monthly fee for basement parking, and naturally they don't have to pay while their cars are evicted. But, for tenants of the larger apartments, the parking fee is included in the higher rent, and HUD has decreed there will be no drop in rent while there are no parking spaces provided.

"The manager said our parking space is free," my wife explained.

That's outrageous, of course. There is no such thing as a free lunch. My rent covers the cost of the parking space. It is ridiculous that people should pay as much for no parking as they do for parking.

"The manager said if we didn't have a car, we would still have to pay the same rent," my wife said.

Oh, sure. No one owns a car these days. Everyone rides a horse. And even if I didn't have a car, would the parking space that goes with my apartment remain vacant, or would management rent it to someone else and give me the money? The answer is obvious: There are no vacant spaces.

Parking spaces are the same as lunches. There is no such thing as a free one. Someone, somewhere, somehow, pays for it. At my apartment building, I am paying for a parking space, but I am not parking in it.

Take a dummy to lunch. I'm available.

County oks sewer ownership

It's official—Oakland County now owns the sewer treatment plant it's been operating for years serving the Bavarian Village apartment and condominium complex off Dixie Highway near I-75 in Springfield Township.

For the county, the complex developers, the property owners and Springfield Township, last week's vote by the county board of commissioners approving county ownership of the plant drew to a close a long-raging dispute.

"I'm happy the ownership question is resolved," said Collin Walls, Springfield Township supervisor. "I just wish the county could have been more willing many months ago—it would have saved Springfield Township a lot of trouble.

"But certainly, this is better than having to go to court."

The ownership dispute arose when changes in state law and Oakland County's form of government led the county to opine that it could not legally own the complex. The complex developer, on the other hand, insisted that the county already held a deed to the plant.

A solution to the problem was to have Springfield Township assume ownership of the plant while the county continued to oversee its operation, but township residents gathered at a special electors meeting in June rejected the plan.

"This was an existing system that the county had operated for many years," said Milton Handorf, Oakland County director of public works.

This wasn't something we wanted to do, but since Springfield Township had rejected ownership, we felt that somebody had to step in."

Patriot works to raise flag

The prospect of raising $650,000 to hang a 7-ton flag on the Verrazano Bridge in New York City doesn't phase Ernest May.

The 42-year-old Lake Orion resident has taken on the task with gusto and he wants the people of the Clarkston area to help him out.

"When I see a flag up, I know I don't have to worry about America," he says, and he mentions that he has noticed flags in Clarkston and the town's patriotism.

May's quest became official Aug. 1 when he opened up an account at the bank for the Great American Flag Fund. A week later, he had $108 in the account, not a bad start for a project just underway, he says.

The flag is the one that welcomed the American hostages held in Iran during their homecoming, and May thinks it should be hung on the bridge in New York City to honor Vietnam veterans.

He became involved in the flag-raising efforts when President Ronald Reagan said it was time to "turn the page" and leave the memories of Vietnam in the past.

"It's not too late," said May. "When President Reagan said, 'It's time to turn the page,' I was recovering from a heart attack and I thought, 'We can't turn the page until we turn it back first'."

May is at work planning a Vietnam Honors March in Lake Orion for Oct. 10. His plan is for Vietnam veterans to line the street and for supporters of their efforts to march past them carrying flags. After the march, a Great American Flag Rally is to be held at Lake Orion High School.

Across the country, others are working to cover expenses also involved in raising the flag on the Verrazano Bridge—for such things as storage and lights, says May.

Those who would like to donate $1 to the fund may send the money to Great American Flag Fund, P.O. Box 652, Lake Orion, MI 48035.

Those who would like to march in the parade, Vietnam veterans who would like to participate and those who would like to volunteer their time for typing, running errands or other such work may call Ernest May at 693-7131.

Final varsity roster takes shape

Norman, Karrick captain 45-man squad

By Al Zawacky

Seniors Kurt Norman and Mark Karrick will co-captain a 45-man squad when the Wolves take to the field Sept. 11 at Swartz Creek.

Out of that number, 25 are new faces to the Clarkston High School varsity football squad, most of them being alumni from Coach Gordie Richardson's 1980 JV team.

But on the coaching staff? Just one new face in the group, and that's the way varsity coach Walt Wynnemko likes it.

Assisting Wynnemko this season at the varsity level are Kurt Richardson, George Porritt and Dave Martin, all holdovers from last season. All three will hold the same responsibilities they had last year.

"It's like anything," says Wynnemko. "The longer you work together, the better you know the system and the better you know what has to be accomplished."

The responsibilities break down this way: Richardson will handle the offensive receivers and be defensive coordinator; Porritt will coach the quarterbacks and outside linebackers; Martin has the specialty teams, tight ends and the defensive line; and Wynnemko will oversee the inside linebackers and the offensive line.

The Wolves' lone addition to the coaching staff is Dean Callison, who has been helping out at recent workouts.

At the junior varsity level, Gordie Richardson and John Getzan are back, and the freshmen tandems of John Craven and Dave Smith at Clarkston

Junior High and Chris Krueger and Jim Smith at Sashabaw will remain the same.

Clarkston's 20 returning seniors from last year's league championship squad are Norman, Karrick, Kevin Teague, Todd Thompson, Craig Verch, Greg Roselli, Mark Petterson, Tim Ellis, Dave Hastie, Adam Kline, Bruce Burwitz, Dave Fulcher, Tim Brennan, Tony Wilson, Steve Nichols, Bill Ross, Mike Stefanski, Guy Hubble, Eric Beamer and Duane Cahill.

Of the 25 newcomers, five are seniors: Fred Roeser, Dave Ryeson, Tom Brand, Bruce Smith and Ed Zabrelski.

Seventeen of the 19 juniors on the varsity roster played JV ball last year: Steve Hamelin, Kevin Brown, Ed Goldner, Rich Schrader, Mike Clem, Brad Moshier, Rusty Bennett, Brian Davies, John LaPorte, Will Williams, Mike Weiler, Pat Rausch, Dave Maloney, Rich Cole, Peter Maierle, Kirk Charboneau and Greg Seddon. The two juniors who didn't play JV at CHS are Larry Liggett and transfer Jeff Swan.

Rob Mortimore, a 10th grader from Clarkston Junior High, stands a good chance of being Clarkston's first varsity sophomore since Kurt Norman made the club in 1979.

Mortimore was still with the varsity following last week's football camp at Saginaw Valley State College, but is still "battling for a spot," according to Wynnemko.

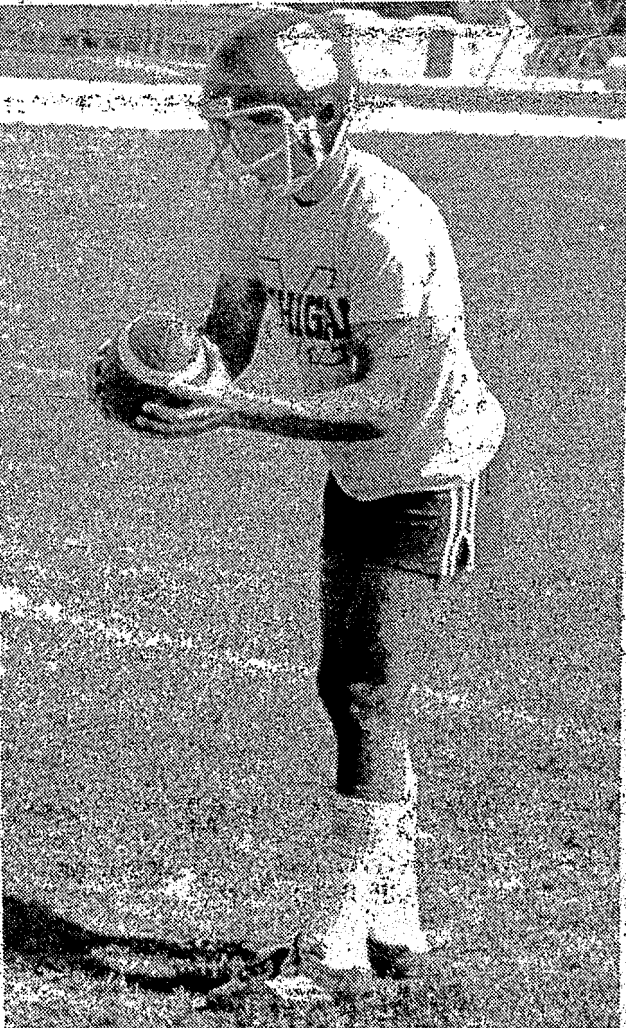

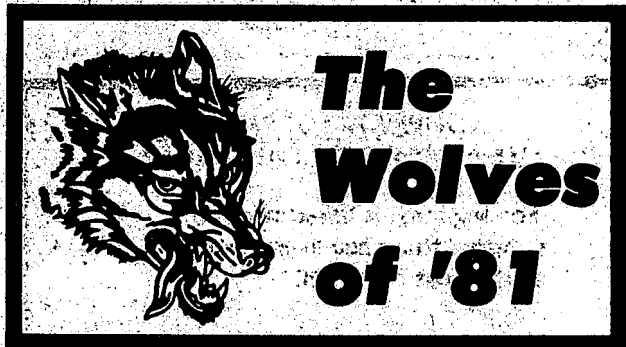

"We feel we accomplished a lot of things as a team," Wynnemko said of the week at camp. "We put out whole offense together and we got to know each other better."

Next Week: A look at the Wolves' entire nine-game schedule, focusing on the competition awaiting in the Greater Oakland Activities League.

While varsity coach Walt Wynnemko and company were up at football camp last week, this was the scene on the domestic turf near Clarkston High School, as JV coaches Gordie Richardson and John Getzan were putting their gridders through daily workouts. The 1981 Clarkston JVs have quite a reputation to uphold: In the last three seasons, the junior Wolves have amassed a 24-3 record while marching to three straight league championships.

...to the kick sending the pigskin on its way...

...to the follow through. The JVs open their season Sept. 10 at home against Swartz Creek.

Shock, sorrow in wake of Standing's loss

Syd Standing [second from left] was one of five co-captains on Clarkston's 1977 football team. Shown accepting the league trophy with him in 1977 are teammates and fellow captains [from left] Chris Campe, Tim Fogg, Randy Cummings and Brian Snyder. [Photo from Clarkston News files.]

Shock waves were rippling through the ranks of former teammates and coaches early this week at the news of the death of Syd Standing in an auto accident early Sunday morning.

Standing, a 1978 Clarkston High School graduate, was the first Clarkston football player in school history to earn first team All-State honors.

A resident of Independence Township, he died early Sunday when he lost control of the car he was driving westbound on Maybee Road near Waterford Road, according to Deputy Kenneth Hurst of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

There were no passengers in the car and the accident remains under police investigation, Hurst said.

"I am absolutely shocked—it's like losing a son," said former Clarkston head coach Rob White, reached at his home in Middleville, Mich.

White coached Standing during the record-setting 1977 season in which Clarkston advanced to the state quarterfinals on the strength of a 9-0 regular season record.

"He was a young man who gave me everything he had — we had a great relationship," said White. "What else can you say? News like this is terrible."

"He was one of the key people in the 9-0 season," added Kirt Richardson, who served as an assistant to White. "He was a likeable kid—not just a good football player, but a good person."

In addition to being named All-State, Standing was also selected All-League, All-County and co-captained the 1977 Wolves to the most successful campaign in school history. [Syd Standing's obituary is on Page 4.]

Nan's aces softball playoffs

It always feels good to win, but the unexpected victory is especially sweet.

Nan's Coiffures, a team in the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Women's Beta softball league, finished a modest third in the regular season and seemed to have little chance of knocking off first-place nemesis Millrace Salon in the playoffs.

But those slim chances blossomed into a 7-2 win for Nan's over Millrace, an upset trim victory that gave Nan's the momentum it needed to move onto the finals and sweep the playoffs with a 3-2 triumph over Crest Homes.

It was excellent," said Jan LeClaire, one of Nan's players. "We were the underdogs and weren't expected to beat them."

Sue Myers provided the pitching for Nan's in both playoff victories, and got plenty of offensive support from her teammates.

Sue Schultz had a double that knocked in two runs for Nan's against Millrace; Kelly Howenstine had a triple; Barb Facer, Mary Olney and Myers each had two singles; and LeClaire, Mary Ann Hopp and Kathy Risinger each had one single each.

Against Crest Homes, the attack was paced by a two-RBI triple by Howenstine that knocked in the tying and winning runs in the third inning; Hopp's two singles; and singles by Myers, Schultz, Facer and Vonníe Johnson.

"Boo" Hopp wrapped up the playoff triumph by making the final putout against Crest Homes.

Nan's Coiffures were coached this season by Kris Kilgore and had 13 players on its roster: Barb Hurron, Jan Ritter, Marlyn Carry, Bev McCall, Schultz, Hopp, Myers, Johnson, Risinger, LeClaire, Howenstine, Facer and Olney.

Mason defends raises to local business leaders

By Al Zawacky

Clarkston Community Schools Superintendent Milford Mason took his case to local business leaders last week, defending the salary increases recently granted to Clarkston school administrators and non-affiliated supervisory personnel.

Mason spoke at a membership meeting of the Business Association of Independence Township (B.A.I.T.) held at Spring Lake Country Club Aug. 19 and answered questions from the audience.

Following the question and answer session, B.A.I.T. member Harvey Craft, who had spoken against the salary increases, made a motion that the business association go before the school board requesting that the raises be revoked.

But the motion died when no one rose to second it.

"Harvey made his views known to me prior to the meeting," said Tom Ritter, B.A.I.T. president. "He's entitled to his opinion, and I felt that meeting was the proper time and place to air it."

"It's just that a lot of people in the business community don't have a problem with the seven percent raises. I'm a little surprised that nobody seconded the motion, but based on the feelings of the group I think it would have gone down."

Mason began his presentation by noting that some had charged that the pay increases, coming so soon on the heels of the millage campaign, was a case of "bad timing."

"I submit that under the circumstances today, at no point would the timing have been good," Mason said. "Why should we delay into September or October, when that will just look like we were putting it off?"

The need to submit a complete budget also required the board to act as soon as possible, he added.

"People have also said to me, 'You agreed to wage freezes.' A freeze was never mentioned. It would be foolhardy of me to say we're going to freeze wages, and then turn around and not do it. I'd be signing my own death warrant."

What the administration did agree to, Mason said, was to take a smaller increase than the nine to 10 percent granted to the teachers. The seven percent increase granted follows that pledge, he said.

Even with the seven percent raise, Mason noted that his annual salary of $49,787 ranks him 18th out of 28 districts in Oakland County.

"We are cutting costs," he said. "Our salaries for all administrators is going to be less this year than last year," he added, citing the elimination of the vocational education director position and the reduction of the athletic director's post to part-time.

"We've implemented a program that's saved money by cutting down our consumption of natural gas in the schools. But these are things the papers don't write about; or at least they don't elect to write about them."

Golfing with Palmer for charity

Golfers, here's an opportunity to spend an afternoon on the green with ace Arnold Palmer and members of the Detroit Lions, by participating in the March of Dimes—NFL Players Association Celebrity Golf Classic at Indianwood Country Club in neighboring Lake Orion.

On Sept. 29, Palmer's slated to conduct a public golf clinic beginning at 12:30 p.m., and join four area players in an 18-hole Texas scramble tournament. His partners will be selected from those buying $10 clinic tickets and who paid participants in the tourney.

For golfers there's incentive for posting a hole-in-one for a Cadillac Seville will be the prize on the 17th hole while the prize on the 77-yard third hole will be Craft, however, asked if the raises didn't set a bad example for the rest of the school system employees.

"You've got to start at the top," he said. "If you don't start with the administration and freeze wages there, everybody else is going to want more."

When asked after the meeting if the salary increases to the administration could affect teacher contract negotiations next year, Mason declined comment.

But B.A.I.T. member Bob Olsen, responding to Craft, defended the wage increases.

"They (the administration) were nice enough to say, 'Hell, we'll take seven percent when the teachers are getting 10 percent.'" Olsen said. "It isn't fair for the rank and file to get 10 percent while the top management gets zero."

a custom Zorba Duntov Corvette convertible with turbo-charged engine. The Corvette, however, will only be available to amateur players participating in the tournament.

The day begins with a buffet luncheon at 11 a.m. with Palmer's clinic scheduled for 12:20 p.m. The 18-hole Texas scramble will begin with a shotgun start following the clinic. Cocktails and dinner, with entertainment by the Scottish Pipers and Red Garter Band, follow.

New science experiments perk kids' curiosity

By Kathy Greenfield

"As the Sand Sinks Slowly on the Horizon." "Gone With the Wind." "Land Layer Delight." "Day and Night."

They could be song titles or names of books. But instead, they are the catchy titles of scientific experiments geared to help kindergarten through ninth graders with learning disabilities learn scientific principles.

The project, called C.A.S.E. (or Classroom Activities in Science Education), is one of the most exciting to come from work at Oakland Schools, says Donald Place, a special education consultant with Oakland Schools who provides services to the public school system in Oakland County.

The idea, he says, was "to create, using low cost materials, some hands-on experiences for kids to make this stuff come alive."

In the summer of 1980, the C.A.S.E. packet was put together by a group of science and special education teachers and, last year, it was used on a limited basis across the country.

The response has been excellent, he says, and teachers in general education are also requesting to use the materials.

"They're saying, 'I teach sixth and seventh grade, but may I have one of those earth science packets? Wow, that's good stuff!'"

This summer, while their pupils were on vacation, a group of teachers met at the Oakland Schools building in Pontiac and continued to perfect the materials.

One teacher, who helped put the projects together last summer as well, is Clarkston Junior High School instructor Chuck Keegan.

In addition to regular classrooms, Keegan teaches a science class to learning disabled students at CJHS. He was able to use many of the materials developed for C.A.S.E. last year.

He calls the projects "super." They supplement the regular curriculum and make teaching easier because all that is required is pulling a file and proceeding with the activity, he says.

Several criteria were used for forming the projects, says Keegan. "They had to be low cost, available, durable, simple to use and the projects have to be workable."

This summer, Keegan and three other teachers continued work with the experiments, perfecting them for use in the classroom.

"You normally don't have time to do this," he says. "It helps you for your year, taking this stuff back into the classroom with you."

One experiment was called "Blowing Your Top." A small, clay "mountain" with a peroxide and yeast mixture inside bubbled up and showed how land builds up around an erupting volcano.

The C.A.S.E. materials come in desk-size file boxes with each topic in a labeled file folder. The science experiments will go out this year for testing in classrooms all over the county with materials needed for the experiments.

Work on other packets is underway, says Place.

In years to come, teachers working with disabled pupils will have assistance with language-arts, mathematics, vocational education and home economics as well as earth science, physical science and life science.

CJHS science teacher Chuck Keegan (left) discusses "Blowing Your Top" with Walled Lake schools fifth grade teacher Barbara Velkoff.

Other experiments on the table include a wind vane and measuring devices.

Connie Head's setting her sights on the Ice Capades

Skaters walking through the doors at Lakeland Arena in Pontiac slip into an all-empowering cold, so thick it's wall-like.

The dampness numbs the legs. The chill is deep and a mist rises from the skaters' mouths as they move in spins and strides amidst a chorus of grunts and groans, spraying up ice when they slide to an immediate halt.

Skating at high speeds in and out of the half-dozen young women on the ice is 14-year-old Connie Head.

She's been on the rink for one and a half hours and has at least two and a half more to go. The rigorous routine which begins some days at 8 a.m. is a ritual.

Wear and tear has rolled up knap balls on her fuzzy burgundy leg warmers. Her skimpy yellow skirt keeps out very little cold—for that she relies on a white wool pullover sweater.

When Connie moves her white skates become a blur.

When at rest, her face and arms are flushed red, not from the cold, but from the work out, she says.

*... day in and day out,
Connie skates, putting herself through rigorous routines.*

Connie's been taking ice skating lessons for the past six years, and recalls her introduction to the world of ice with some amusement.

"It was a church New Year's Eve skating party—and I wore skates with two runners," she laughs.

Summer, fall, winter, spring, day in and day out, Connie skates, putting herself through rigorous routines.

After a work out the muscles ache, she's tired and the pressure to excel, to conquer, to perfect that move and technique is ever present.

"I really enjoy it, though. When you're out on the ice you don't have to think about anything except what you're doing. I've learned a lot—more from this coach than any other teacher," she says.

There is method and reason to Connie's steadfast determination for perfection. It's the reason she's on that ice at 8 a.m. It's the reason she takes criticism—and aims to perfect each move.

It is not the olympics, for a climb in that direction takes more money and time than she has or can give, Connie said.

"I want to skate in the Ice Capades," Connie said.

With six years of lessons behind her, does she ever fall—perhaps once a day?

"Yes, at least that," Connie laughs.

As if on cue a second skater at the rink's far side lands with a sound thump, rises, and shakes her fists, then continues on with the routine.

"If I get frustrated—I stop and work on something else," Connie said. "I like to do double flips, because they're forward and I like to go forward—because I can see where I'm going."

She demonstrates a complicated series of turns and spins, than nonchalantly throws a hand forward and says, "Like that."

"Right now I'm working on a double salchow. That's the one I don't like because it scares me. The way you have to turn and bring your leg and foot up into the air...well, it's hard because it really sets you off balance. I've been working to perfect it for two months," she said.

It's dedication that seems to make all the difference.

A year ago, Connie fell and broke her arm while practicing jumps.

"I came and skated then anyway," she said.

When she smashed her finger in the door and the doctor said no skating for a month, "I skated anyway," she said.

She answers, "Yes," when asked if there are just those mornings when she doesn't feel like rising to skate, "...but only when I'm sick," Connie says.

The Zamboni machine cruises along the ice scraping off the top layer and squirting out water to form a smooth fresh surface for skaters.

The young women scurry to the dressing room for a break, and certain warmth.

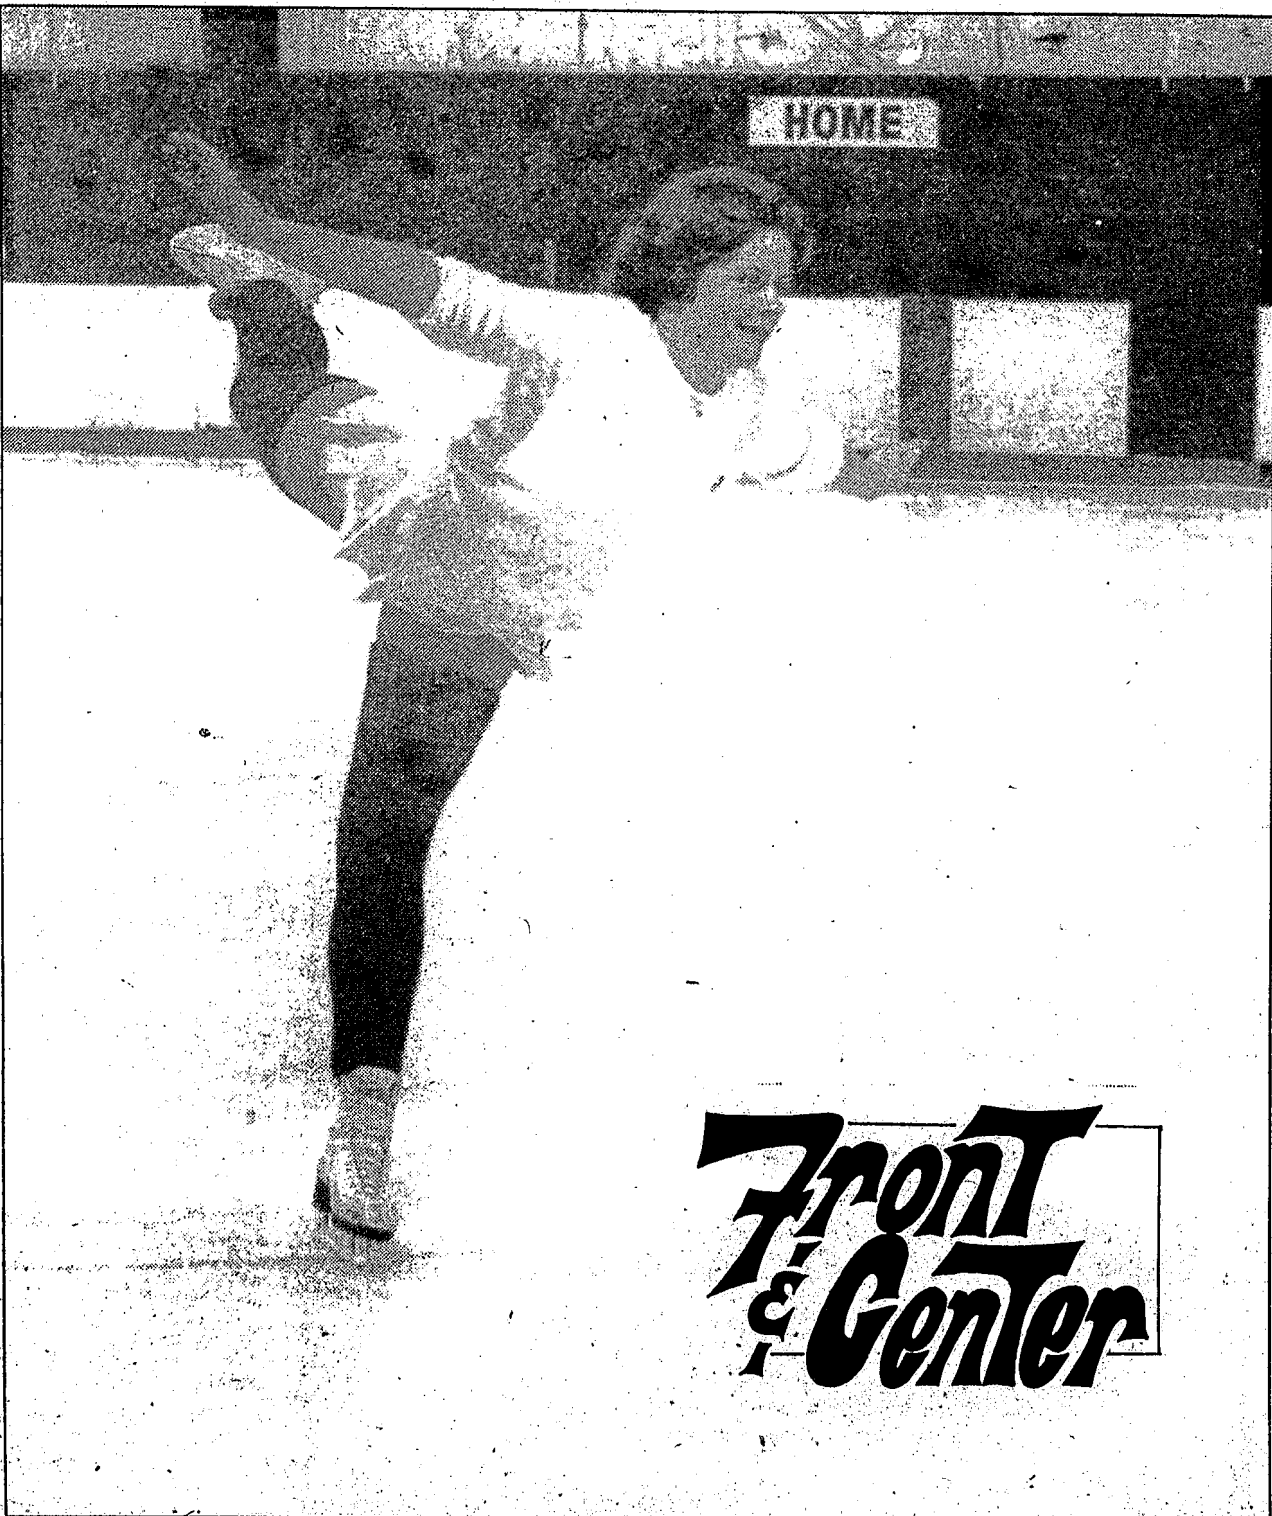

"She works really hard at her skating all the time—and it paid off. She took fourth in tri-state last year," says Connie's coach, Joan Lissolo.

"That kind of dedication carries over into their everyday lives," he says of the daily practices. "Even if they quit skating they've learned that and know what it takes."

The Zamboni ice machine's done its work—the ice's new layer is frozen and the young women skate out once again to the cold for more hours of practice.

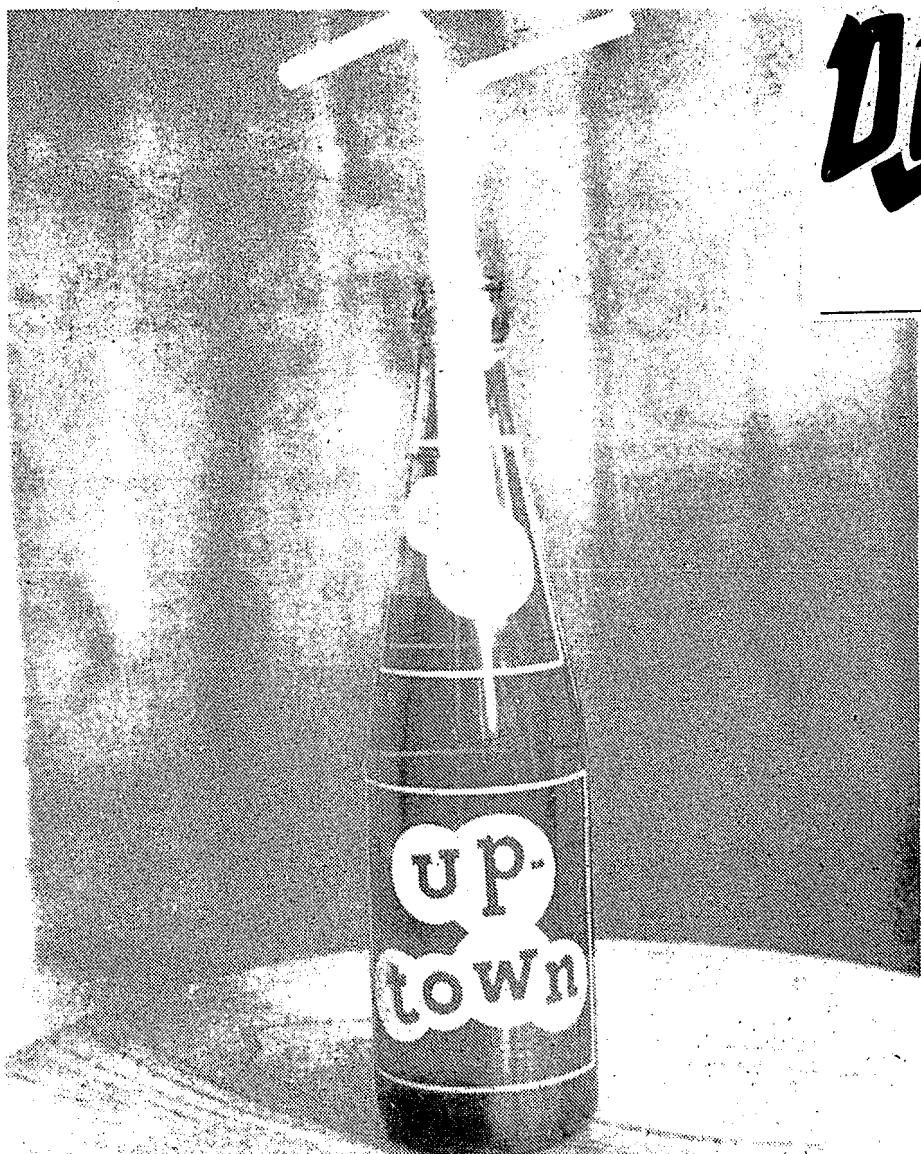

Connie has two hours of figure eights ahead of her, she says, and they have to be done...and done again...and again until they're right.

Deja Vu

Plastic straws and an old Faygo Up-town pop bottle mix a little of the old with the new. Fifteen years ago paper straws would have filled the bottle's lip opening. Now they, along with Up-town, are gone.

How sipping has changed

A child seated at the kitchen table struggles to reach over the long, slim-necked pop bottle to the waiting paper straw.

In a second's time the straw is bent to a 90 degree angle and the spiraled paper begins to unravel, ruining the suction and bringing an immediate halt to prospects of easy drinking.

The paper, now thoroughly wet, begins to fuzz up and disintegrate.

Ah, the joys of paper straws and the challenges of using one.

Fast food restaurants have all but eliminated the paper straws.

Today's sippers make speedy use of plastic straws sans spirals—for that effect is painted on instead of built right in. Biodegradable's been replaced by the permanent.

But paper straws underwent an evolution.

When the pastel blues, greens, yellows and pinks replaced the mundane white straw—that was different. Then came the corrugated bending straw which prevented the 90 degree breakage bend.

It appears paper straws are no more and have slipped away with other aspects of the '50s and '60s along with drive-ins and convertibles.

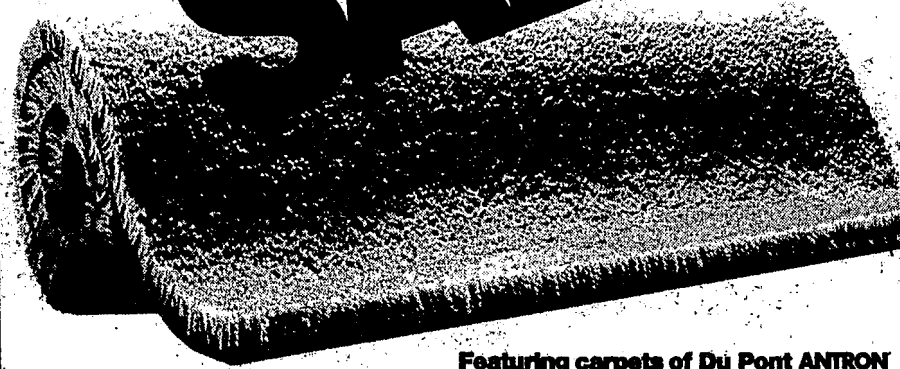

Paper or plastic?

It doesn't really matter.

Form follows function and paper and plastic straws have slurped us well.

CHS Band

They take their music seriously

It's far too early for the wool uniforms, but the music floating through the air each day marks the beginning of the season for the Clarkston High School Marching Band.

Although the students are dressed in the casual garb of summertime, the T-shirts, cut-off jeans, and tennis shoes, they are serious about their music.

The group of about 90 spent the week of Aug. 10 at band camp at Clarkston High School. They worked on music, marching and team spirit 12 hours a day.

In the past, band members spent the week away from home at camp, rather than returning home each evening as this year, said Band Director Clifford Chapman.

"Having not gone away, we lost some of the social closeness that you get, but we accomplished what we set out to accomplish and that was the first third or one-half of our show," he said.

The 11-minute show is the one football fans will see at half-time during home games this fall and the performance the band will put on during competitions with other schools.

"This year's kids that came to band camp were marvelous," Chapman said. "I think everyone on the staff feels it's definitely one of the nicest groups of kids we've worked with, very much in terms of self-discipline.

"We stressed discipline, the kind of discipline that keeps your mind on what you're doing and stresses that no individual is more important than the group," he added. "It's been an exceptional group in that respect."

Last year, the band was judged second place in all Class A schools in the state at the state championship competition, Chapman said.

Although he said it's too soon to make predictions on how this year's marching band will do, Chapman expects the best from his crew of marchers.

There are now 90 members of the band, and 20 more members are needed he said, particularly in the wind and brass sections.

Anyone who wishes to participate in the marching band can, said Chapman. The only requirement is that the ninth through 12th graders must be members of the concert bands in their schools.

"The only way they can't make it is not to attend," he said. "We find a roll for everyone to fill. You might say it's like a sport where no one sits on the bench."

All practices are held after school and competitions and performances are on weekends or evenings.

The schedule of upcoming performances follows:

●Sept. 12— as guests of Eastern Michigan University, the band is to play at half-time in the opening mid-America conference football game in Ypsilanti.

●Sept. 18—home football game at CHS with the Wolves vs. Bloomfield Lahser.

●Sept. 26—the fourth annual Clarkston Invitational where other marching bands compete and Clarkston, as hosts, put on an exhibition performance.

●Sept. 27—post-game show at the Pontiac Silverdome when the Detroit Lions play the Oakland Raiders.

●Oct. 2—home football game at CHS with the Wolves vs. West Bloomfield.

●Oct. 3—the Michigan Invitational at Atwood Stadium, Flint against 24 other marching bands. All bands compete in the morning and the top 12 perform in the evening.

●Oct. 10—the Montrose Invitational.

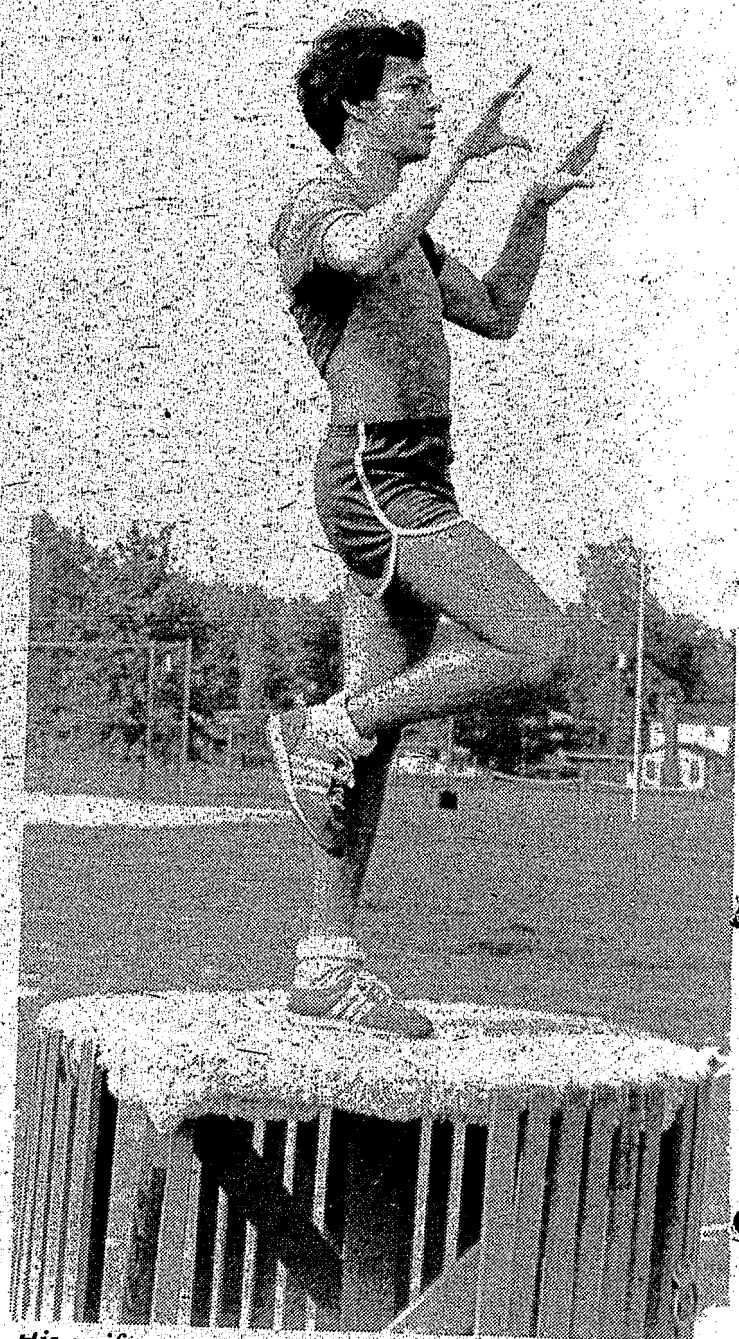

●Oct. 17—the Plymouth Invitational.

●Oct. 23—home football game at CHS with the Wolves vs. Waterford Mott.

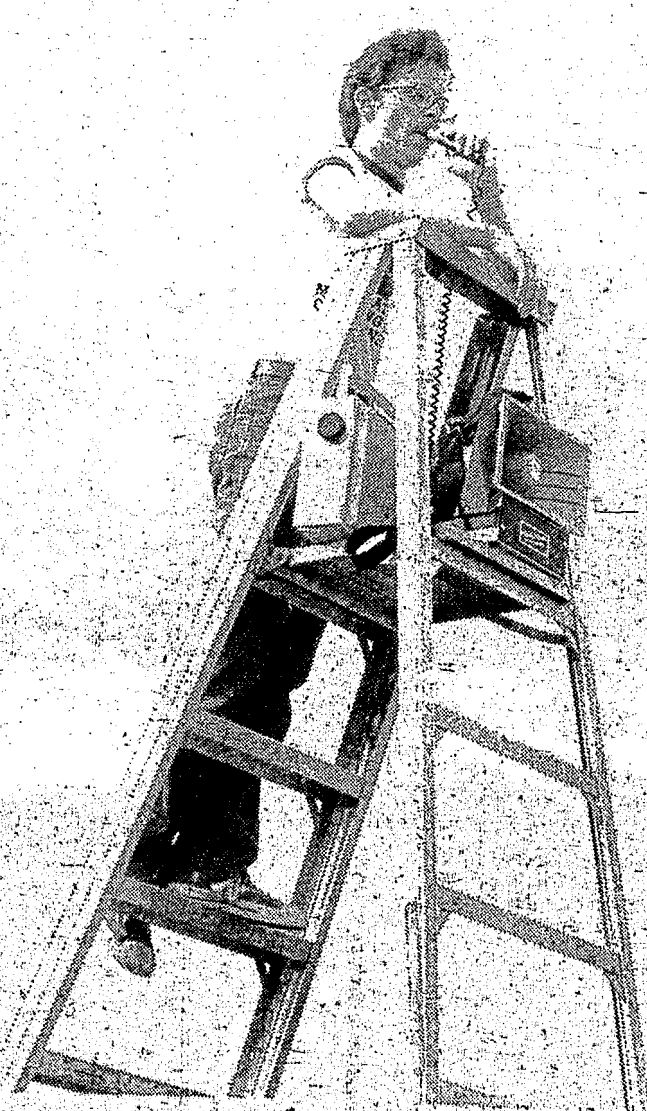

●Oct. 24—State Marching Band Championships at Durand.

●Oct. 30—home football game at CHS with the Wolves vs. Rochester Adams.

●Nov. 6—home football game at CHS with the Wolves vs. Waterford Township.

With the wind in her hair and sun glasses to shield her eyes, Dawn Lamberton gets into the music while playing her mellophone. After school begins, Dawn and her fellow band members will practice two or three nights a week, about three hours each night.

Joy Curry tosses her rifle into the air as she marches with the band. Members of the CHS Color Guard, like Joy, are part of the Marching Band during the fall for shows and competitions.

Bob Ward and 'crew'—riding high on the crest of nature's mighty winds

Gliding along the surface of the water with the wind whispering in the sails.

When the weather is fair and the winds blow briskly, Bob and his 15-year-old daughter Cathleen can often be seen out on the waters of Deer Lake, sail boat in the water, riding on the wind.

"The excitement of it—it's just really hard to describe the feeling you get," says Bob of his favorite sport and hobby.

"It's a thrill, and the boats are really fast. People don't appreciate the power the wind has got to be able to take a 500 pound boat and lift it out of the water."

Cathleen echoes her dad's observations.

"It's indescribable," she says. "You're running—literally running with the wind. It makes me excited just to think about it because I enjoy it so much."

Bob's boat is a "shark" a sail boat that requires a two-man crew to sail. He jokes that daughter Cathleen is his "crew."

Racing events have taken the dad-daughter tandem from Grand Traverse Bay to Oscoda to New York State.

"I enjoy pleasure sailing, but the only way to learn and find out what you're doing wrong is to race against somebody," says Bob.

Whether it's being used for racing or leisurely pleasure sailing, the Wards' shark is always the focal point of family activity.

Bob, wife Nancy, Cathleen, 13-year-old Nancy and 8-year-old Robert all share a hand in the fun. The boat's been the scene of several water-bound picnics.

"It's a great family boat, because you can fit a whole slew of people on it," Bob says. "I remember having 23 people on board on Williams Lake once, just sailing around."

"We were pretty low in the water," he grins, "but we were sailing."

"Really, the only reason I stay in racing is because we can do it together as a family. If I had to race with just a group of guys, I wouldn't do it."

Father and daughter had their share of triumphs and disappointments in their racing career. Last year they won the regional competition, but this year just within the last month they encountered some familiar bad luck in the nationals held in New York.

"We've always been plagued with bad luck in the nationals," Bob chuckles. "I don't know what it is."

There's a great deal of skill involved in being a good sailor, he notes. Whether racing or pleasure boating, sailors are constantly monitoring the wind, adjusting their sails and moving their weight from one side of the boat to the other to use the wind to its full advantage.

A polished sailor in her own right, Cathleen remembers taking her first ride when she was 8 years old.

"I thought it was great right off the bat," she says. "I wasn't allowed to do much, but it was fun just to watch."

All the Ward children know how to swim—an indispensable skill for anyone into sailing.

"You can't have a fear of the water, because sooner or later you're going to go over," says Bob. "But it's a slow-motion thing—it's not just 'bang!' and you're in the water. A 500 pound boat isn't going to go over easy."

The threat of capsizing makes wife Nancy—the only non-swimmer in the family—a little wary of sailing. But with life jacket securely in place, the sensation of gliding on the water is enough to convince her to climb aboard.

"You just can't describe the feeling," she says.

Bob adds that accidents are rare, and that sailing is really one of the safest sports around.

"I've never seen any body get hurt. A few bruises are the worst I've ever seen happen," he says, scanning his 10 years of sailing.

It was back in 1971 when a neighbor, Brook Bennett, asked Bob if he'd like to help out on his two-man shark.

"He needed somebody to crew for him," Bob says. "That's how I got involved."

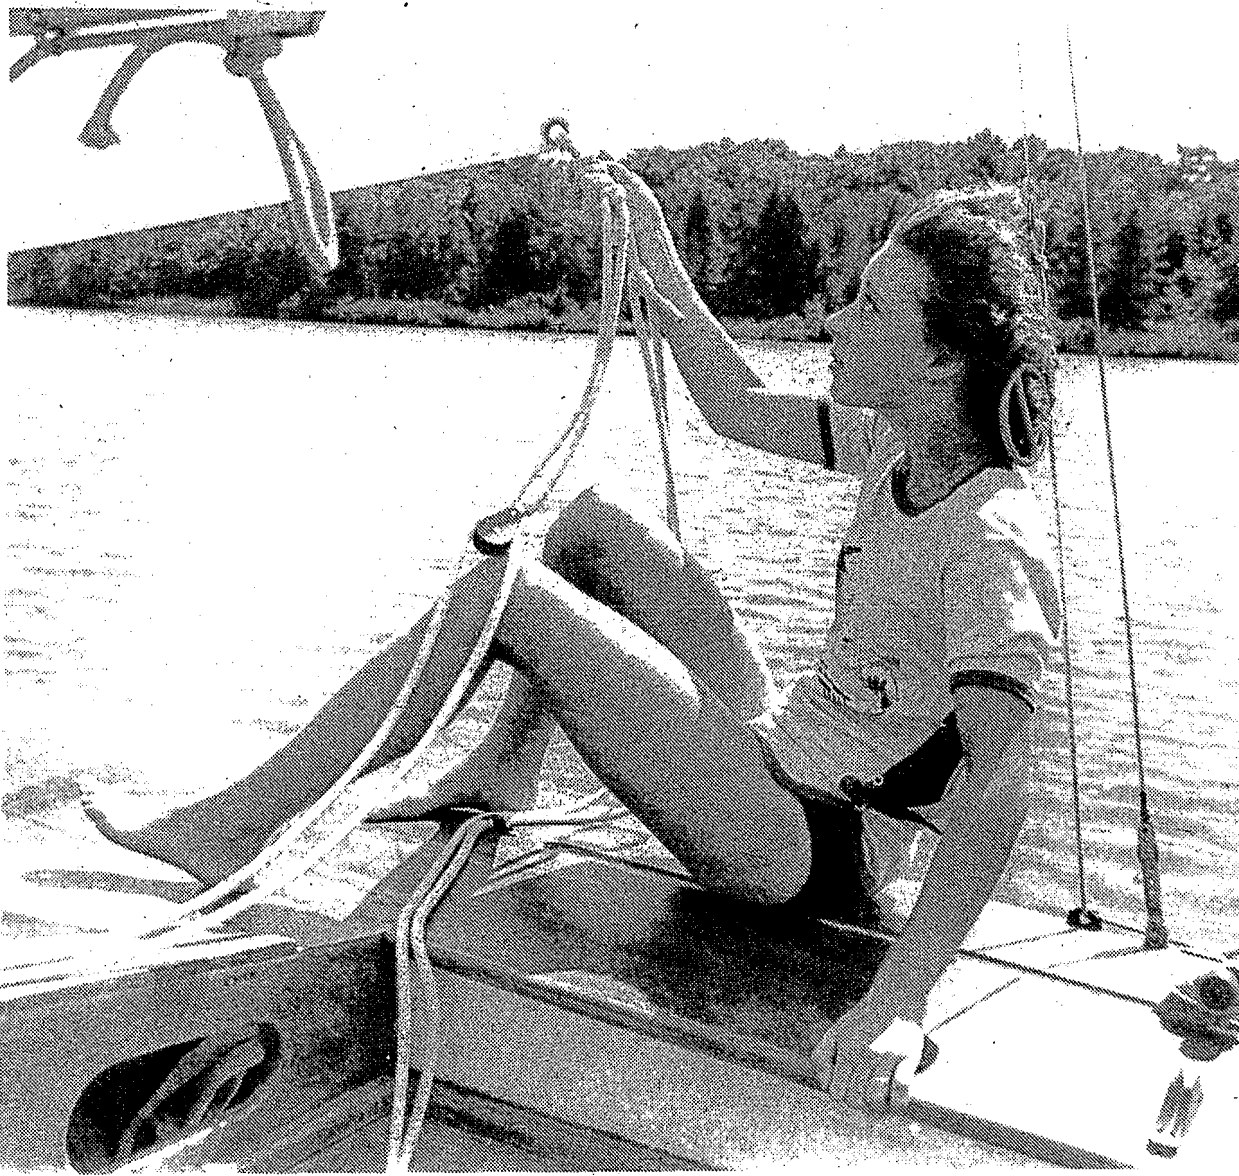

From that moment on, he was hooked. Two years later, he bought his own boat.

Preparing the "shark" for the water is an endeavor that involves the entire family—wiping down the boat, checking the rigging, making sure everything is secure and ready for sailing. From left are Cathleen, Nancy, Nancy, Bob and Robert.

Intently monitoring wind and wave, Cathleen peers off into the distance as the breezes of Deer Lake effortlessly fill the sails and send the boat clipping across the water. She can remember her first ride aboard at the age of eight, and today she's become a seasoned sailing hand, regularly racing with her dad Bob.
