Arcade pros and cons debated

Clarkston Village Council decides to make decision at next meeting

By Marilyn Trumper

Although Robert Warrington repeatedly asked for the OK on his proposed pinball arcade in Clarkston, the Clarkston Village Council, after 45 minutes of discussion from the 25 business people opposing the issue, voted to table the decision for "further study."

Later, council members again discussed the matter before an empty village hall and agreed unanimously to have attorney Thomas Gruich investigate "precedent-setting cases to use to update the ordinance" regulating arcades and report his findings before the issue is again up for debate at the next meeting.

At the Sept. 28 meeting, Conrad Bruce of Country Cords presented the council with a petition signed by 19 village business people opposed to the proposed arcade slated for the lower level of the Max Brook Inc. real estate building at 29 S. Main.

Bruce said he was speaking on behalf of those who signed the petition and his fellow Emporium shopkeepers, and asked the council to "do everything in their power to not approve this type of business in the village."

Bruce cited five objections which included that the arcade would increase vehicle and pedestrian traffic on the already busy Depot Road, the existing parking spaces are needed to service present retail businesses, and the arcade would not enhance the need to make Clarkston a more complete place to shop.

He also said the business would add to the problem of young people, left for the most part unsupervised, who gather at the Depot Road Park and that the arcade would hamper curtailing of truancy because it is within walking distance of schools.

Trustee Jackson Byers pointed out the 1977 ordinance strictly regulates the hours the arcade can open, prevents anyone under 12 from being inside without a parent, ousts anyone under 16 during school hours and mandates the arcade close at midnight on weekdays and 1 a.m. on weekends.

Karen Sanderson of Holcomb Street argued steadfastly against the proposed arcade.

"My kids can't sleep at night for the yelling and squealing of tires," she said of activities at Depot Road Park. "(The arcade) will be a haven—and open to 12 on weekdays."

Laurie Stern, owner of Country Greens, said, "This will be in a fairly close proximity to a residential district. I live in the village. A lot of arcades are in a more isolated area like a mall. It is not a proper business in a residential area—I think that makes a difference."

Edward Adler, co-owner of the Clarkston Mills Mall, spoke out in favor of the arcade, and said his mall had more available parking than any other village business.

Adler said he'd had requests for arcades but would not have an arcade in his mall. And when pressed by Trustee Ruth Basinger, he elaborated.

"Because I felt it was not appropriate in the kind of shopping center we have. It is directed primarily at the adult woman. That's the kind of clientele we want to attract."

Adler also said he's known the applicant Warrington since childhood.

"I can tell you right now you will have an arcade in Clarkston. My feeling is I'd rather have it run by someone I know, than someone I don't. Bob didn't create the problems in this town," Adler said.

Trustee Gary Symons, after discussion weighed the possibility of amending the ordinance regulating arcades, offered his opinion.

"We really can't restrict this particular type of use—or can we prohibit this?" he asked the attorney. "As far as I'm concerned I do not particularly like to see it. Whether we can legislate that is another problem."

The village, said Trustee Jackson Byers, can deny a proposal if it's deemed to adversely affect the public's health, safety and welfare. He also speculated whether the proposed arcade would meet the parking space requirement based on size of the business.

"I don't think it will," he told the council.

If the requirements are not met, Warrington will have to appear before the zoning board of appeals for a variance, he added.

After discussion, the council voted to table the matter for further study, pending reports from building and fire departments.

Warrington promised he'd return for the next village meeting with information in hand on Oct. 13 at 7:30 p.m., Clarkston Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston.

Township takes gravel pit to court

J.P. Burroughs Aggregate Division has failed to meet the terms of reclamation for the Salmen Gravel Pit on Oak Hill Road, and Independence Township, intent on enforcing those requirements, has taken the issue back to court.

On Sept. 22, acting township attorney Robert White filed an order to show cause in Oakland County Circuit Court. Burroughs is expected to post a $100,000 bond and appear in court Oct. 7 before Judge Robert B. Webster to show why the terms of reclamation have not been met, White said.

"They claim they have been doing some of the reclamation," White said. "We see that the majority has not been done."

The Salmen Gravel Pit has been in operation since 1960. A 1977 consent judgment extended the pit's operation for an additional five years with the pit expected to close in April, 1982.

Last July, in a letter to the township, Burroughs indicated it had discovered additional gravel resources and would move to extend the mining permit to 1987, with an additional year for reclamation of the 200-acre site.

Budget trimming knocks out 2 Independence employees

By Marilyn Trumper

The budgets are being trimmed, the pink slips are being handed out and the Independence Township Building and Planning Department must learn to limp along without its ordinance enforcement officer and second secretary.

After three years as ordinance enforcement officer with Independence, James Hock's been laid off, effective Sept. 30.

A former building department secretary with eight years seniority has utilized the domino principle and bumped the custodian for his job. The custodian, with six years seniority, works his last day Sept. 30.

The layoffs are a result of the Building and Planning Department feeling pressure to keep it in the black, says Director Kenneth Delbridge.

"When the township board was going over the budgets they took the position not to allow departments to go over budget," Delbridge said, "I'm new, I had to analyze this, and I know we'd be in the red now if we hadn't made those layoffs."

Hock's absence will hurt the department, he added.

"Sure, anytime you have someone doing the ordinance work, it's a luxury. When the economy picks up, I have plans to go back to having an ordinance department.

"But," he added, "we will still be taking care of the obvious violations of the ordinances."

The township board's insistence that departments remain within their budgets drew Delbridge to review his own department, said Clerk Christopher Rose.

"Really, they're laying off people he doesn't need. Revenues are down, and the work's just not coming in. Plus, when Delbridge came in he and Palulian (the former director) worked together for some time." The additional salary created a drain on the budget, Rose said.

In addition, the former director left with back vacation pay, which eliminated additional dollars, Rose added.

The assessing department clerk had her hours halved beginning Sept. 28 as outlined in budget talks last March. Director David Sherrill will hire a part-time appraiser to fill those 20 hours, and gear up for the tax season.

"No, Sherrill said, he would not be hurting. "If anything, this is really a plus for me."

Sportsmen's club target of vandals

By Marilyn Trumper

An arsonist's fire that caused $23,000 in damages to the Waterford Race track observation tower is the culmination of relentless thievery and vandalism at the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club, says Manager Jim Schell.

He's tired of patrolling the grounds and finding damage, he said.

"See there," he pointed to muddy tire tracks on one of the paths that wind through the 235-acre facility. "Someone's been in here today-and they didn't have authorization."

Recreational vehicles, including motorcycles, are a major problem at the club, nestled between Waterford Road and the southern Independence Township line.

I don't want to point fingers and say it's this sub or that sub, this person or that person, but anytime someone is caught, they run right back into there," Schell said, gesturing toward a nearby residential area. "From there, they could keep right on running back to Detroit for all I know."

The vandals know the club closes each Monday and Sunday afternoon, Schell said, and they take the opportunity to strike when no one's around.

I've given up calling the police because most of the malicious stuff will cost less than $100 to repair. Our insurance won't cover it.

It's fortunate we have good talent among our own people here. They donate their time, all we have to pay for is the materials," Schell said.

He does not find fault with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

"They can't solve all this, no one could. They handle the more drastic crimes and leave the petty stuff. They come when we call them. Although, since we've placed a person in residence on the property, I think he's kept the vandalism from increasing," Schell said.

Schell outlines some of the crimes.

"In the skeet and trap area they've broken out a majority of the building's windows, and we've replaced almost all of them with plastic. They break those out too.

"They keep busting out the locks on the skeet and trap houses, damage the machines, and once they went in and took 83 cases of traps at $5.50 a case, carried them out and emptied them on the ground upside down. Then just went off. They did it for no reason at all," he said of the maliciousness.

Last year, vandals kicked in a storm door on the range house and caused $100 in damages, he said. The flood lights are repeatedly shot out, many electrical and water hook-ups in the campground are vandalized and damaged beyond use, Schell said.

The power building's door has been removed and bricked in, and the other door's been replaced with a steel door, because vandals return repeatedly and knock the meter off the wall.

"Two weeks ago they threw boulders into the doors of the new pole bar and dented it. That caused $150 in damages," Schell said.

The problem has become a way of life, an existence for the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club, he said.

"It's been this way as long as I can remember, and that's three years, as long as I've been manager," Schell said.

Clarkston High School's 1981 Homecoming Court was selected Friday to the beat of the traditional hand-clapping and drum-beating. Above, the three candidates for queen tap Todd Thompson as the 1981 Homecoming King; below, Kari Jo Svenkensen [left] and Cindy Larkin embrace and happy tears flow after Cindy is tapped; and a few moments later Cindy is all smiles as the 1981 Clarkston High School Homecoming Queen. Borg refiles suit against Pine Knob, Independence . . .

Dismissed from Federal Court when a judge abstained from hearing the case, Borg-Warner Equities has refiled suit in Oakland County circuit Court against Pine Knob Investment Co. and Independence Township.

The suit, refiled Oct. 2, says, the development of the halfway house at Pine Knob, into a full-service restaurant is unlawful and contrary to the zoning ordinances of the township. In addition, Borg charges a breach of the Pine Knob Investment Co.'s development plan and says the addition of such a restaurant will change the character of the entire complex, overburdening the service drive with additional traffic.

Borg also charges in the suit that Kenneth Delbridge, director of Independence Township's Building Department, failed to require the necessary zoning changes and hearings prior to issuing the permit.

The company is asking the court to order a cancellation of the permit.

The suit, before Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Francis X. O'Brien, has not yet been given a hearing date, and according to Pine Knob attorney Anthony Locricchio, the status of the case has not changed.

Pine Knob remains steadfast in its argument that the halfway house has always existed as a restaurant and that the addition is just that—an addition, not a new restaurant.

Independence Township attorney Richard Campbell has taken the position that the addition is allowable under the zoning ordinance.

. . . but halfway house nearly open

Pine Knob Investment co-owners Gary Francell and Joseph Locricchio are winding up completion of the halfway house remodeling and addition.

Independence Township Building Department Director Kenneth Delbridge issued a temporary occupancy permit Sept. 25 with the stipulation that the enclosure to the halfway house be completed in 30 days.

The halfway house, which recently underwent a complete interior remodeling, opens onto a patio. The patio enclosure is slated for completion within 15 days, according to Delbridge.

Asphalt spill stops traffic

Traffic was backed up for a half-mile Saturday afternoon when a truck pulling a homemade trailer filled with 20 55-gallon drums lost control and flipped over on northbound I-75, spewing 1,100 gallons of asphalt sealer across the interstate, just north of the weigh stations in Independence Township. No one was injured in the mishap. Police and the Independence Township Fire Department worked three hours to clear the substance, hosing off a majority of the black goo, and calling the Oakland County Road Commission to dump sand on the spill. A half-dozen cars attempting to avoid the spill were stuck in the meridian. The truck driver, an employee of M&T Sealing and Coating of Kawkawlin, was ticketed for excessive speed, according to reports at the Michigan State Police Department.

Solid 'no way' to pinball arcade

Dear Village Councilpersons:

As members of the Council of the Village of Clarkston, you must consider the serious consequences of allowing a "pinball arcade" to occupy a place in the village. You can act to control or prevent such an establishment when it threatens the health, safety and welfare of the public.

The operation of this arcade will increase the traffic flow on Depot, Holcomb, White Lake Road and other connecting roads. Holcomb Street is currently over-burdened by motorists ages 16-20 leaving the Village Park and racing on Holcomb and White Lake Road.

It is in vogue for members of this age group to leave the Village Park and accelerate as rapidly as possible up the inclined portion of Depot and proceed on Holcomb at 50-60 mph. The smell and noise of burning tires is annoying, to be sure, but consider the serious threat to other motorists, bikers, joggers, and especially the young children of Holcomb Street.

At all hours of the day and night, the 16- to 20-year-olds dominate the Village Park (provided and maintained for them by our tax dollars). The park provides them with a spot for the illegal consumption of alcoholic beverages and ready exchange of illicit drugs.

These, of course, are strictly prohibited, which makes me seriously doubt that the manager of the arcade will prevent the consumption of food and drink on his premises as promised. He will have no control over what goes on just outside his door.

The opening of this arcade to cater to the 16- to 20-year-old age group will obviously propagate a totally intolerable situation.

As members of the Village Council, you cannot control Holcomb and White Lake roads because they are owned by the county. You can and you must, however, be sensitive to the will of the people of Clarkston and stop this sort of problem from getting worse than it has already become.

Also consider the feelings and concerns of the village merchants that will adjoin the proposed arcade. These people work hard to maintain nice, clean, pleasant shops and stores.

Ask them if they want an increase in the 16- to 20-year-old age group hanging around the area. Ask them if they will enjoy the litter, vandalism and shoplifting inevitably associated with this age group.

Most of these merchants don't vote in the village, but they have put their lives, devotion and money into this community. They don't want this kind of aggravation.

Finally, councilpersons consider the effects this arcade will have on the historic significance of Clarkston. The people of Clarkston have worked hard to become recognized by the Michigan Historical Commission and to have Clarkston included in the National Register of Historic Places.

I don't expect to find a pinball arcade in Marshall, Romeo, Leland, Harbor Springs or Greenfield Village, and I won't take pride in showing out of town visitors our historic town when we drive past the proposed pinball arcade.

The opening of the pinball arcade in the Village of Clarkston will jeopardize the public health, safety and welfare. Not only will it have a deleterious effect on the residents, but also a damaging effect on the village businesses and the historic preservation of Clarkston.

You have and you must exercise your authority to prevent such a detriment to the already strained comfort and tranquility of the Village of Clarkston.

Bruce W. Harlton, D.V.M.

It has come to our attention that a certain person in the village deserves a big hand.

Since the revival of the Clarkston Business Association, Carol Eberhardt has given unselfishly of her time and talents to create a viable business district downtown.

A big bouquet to Carol.

Jim's jottings

Bottom line

by Jim Sherman

Ok, innerman, you said you had more to say on countering economic reports last week. Explain yourself some more.

You bet, I was saying last week there are conflicting reports and rumors that give us tremendous peaks and valleys in our chart of the times.

Within 10 minutes one recent day we were exposed to two rumors of giant magnitude.

Lots of people know General Motors is building an assembly plant south of Lake Orion. First cars are due off the line in 1983, so we were told.

Rumor one is that date has been pushed back a year. Something about high level indecision on whether to stretch out the car body, which carries a hint that Americans are not committed to the small car. . . if the rumor is true.

Rumor two has to do with another car maker. The grapevine has it eleven executives from Volkswagen are searching for residential dwellings in the very general Metamora area.

"VW is interested in the American Aggregates-Oxford property," rumor spreader said.

A spokesman for Am Ag thanked us for letting him know about it.

See what I mean . . . it's the old good news, bad news story, and the bottom line is 'continuation of the same' until fall of 1982.

Hang in there ol' buddy. I've heard you say each season is your favorite, now just which one is it?

The bird caper

by Kathy Greenfield

This is a hunting story.

It's also about my father, who according to family legend, once shot a deer but couldn't stand to eat it because all he could think about were its sad eyes.

I'll add a bit more background information. A long time ago when I was young, hunting was allowed in the rural area of Avon Township where I grew up. Each year, the air resounded with rifle shots and we weren't allowed to go far from the house, because the wooded area around us was usually filled with men dressed in red.

Pheasant were plentiful, but they'd all go into hiding right after the first shot rang out.

Now, back to the summer of 1981.

My father takes pride in his large and productive garden. It provides fresh vegetables for my parents and about five other families within our family.

Something was eating every tomato that ripened during the beginning of the season—taking a big bite of each red tomato under cover of nighttime.

My father decided the culprits were pheasants. He didn't want to harm them—he even usually plants enough so that wildlife around their house can have a few bites of garden goodies without hurting the supply.

But, enough was enough. The creatures were enjoying the first fruits of the garden and no one else was.

So, he set a trap. The plan was to catch the responsible birds and release them down the road a bit.

The trap was baited with bits of corn and tomatoes. And, sure enough, the next morning, something was inside.

Only it wasn't a pheasant.

Much to my father's surprise, he had caged a possum. He took my mother out to see it—she said it was young and looked like a kitten—and they opened the door and let it go.

The trap was set again, and the next morning something else was inside.

This time it was a young skunk. My parents laughed, Dad threw a tarp over the cage and slipped the door open with a stick. It only smelled a little while.

That's when he decided that maybe he had blamed the wrong creature—maybe the foul deed was perpetrated by creatures other than fowl.

Someone suggested putting dishes of water around the perimeter of the tomato plant plot—it was dry then and thirsty animals could have been after some tomato juice.

The water seemed to do the trick. My mother canned over 100 quarts of tomatoes after that and there were very few bites out of ripe tomatoes.

My theory is that possum and skunk were scared silly and they decided to look elsewhere for midnight snacks.

Actually, each is a favorite on the day designed for its proper place on the calendar. I'm looking forward to fall's perfect day. There will be a hint of crispness, the leaves will have turned to their right hue, and the sun will be bright, setting off the scattered billowing clouds. And, I'll be standing in the midst of it, totally absorbed and fully appreciative.

Beautiful, now one last quick question. Now that you've had your shore lunch of fresh caught fish, and enjoyed it so much, will you quit yaking about it?

Yes . . . with this comment. How often do you expect (want) something to be great and have it turn out even better? Oh, how I loved it!

Easy riding

The blue and white van filled to capacity and another followed in tow as over a dozen Independence Township Senior Citizens left the center on Clarkston-Orion Road, enroute for Windsor, the Bingo Palace, bingo tables and a $500 jackpot—traveling in their new vehicle donated by the Clarkston Rotary Club. This, the van's virgin trip, would find seniors switching from van to van, so all would have the opportunity to ride in their latest addition, said Rina Chemin, center director. After a day in Ontario, there'd be dinner at the Red Lobster. The Clarkston Rotary presented the seniors with the vehicle Sept. 21, and from then on, said Rina, it'll be in constant use, enroute to the doctors' offices, grocery shopping and more.

'If it Fitz. . .'

Chic or chicken?

by Jim Fitzgerald

"We have finally made it," my wife announced while reading the newspaper. "We are chic."

She showed me a gossip item which said, "Mailboxes of Detroit's chic set spilled forth a number of titillating invitations this week" and one of them was to a party honoring actor Richard Harris and the cast of "Camelot," which is currently playing in Detroit.

We were invited to that party. I'm saving the invitation, in case I ever have to prove I'm a member of the chic set to get discount when buying new hiphens for a busted cul-de-sac.

Which reminds me, Vera-Ellen died a few days ago. When I mentioned her death to a couple of newspaper colleagues, they said they'd never heard of her. Good Lord.

If the newsroom where my desk is located were in a 1936 movie, everyone would call me "Pops." When I was young, you had to be old to work at a big newspaper. Now tht I'm old, you have to be young. I'm not sure where today's newspaper writers and editors disappear to when they become older than 35. I think they all get jobs in the euphemism department of auto companies where they spend their declining years writing palatable paragraphs explaining why it's disloyal to buy imported cars but patriotic to buy domestic cars made from imported parts.

Fortunately, it's all right for columnists to be old. This is so there will be someone who knows what to do when managing editors, who can also be old, holler "23 skiddoo." What you do is skeddadle.

Anyway, Vera-Ellen danced in several movies with Fred Astaire and Bing Crosby in the 1940s and '50s. She not only had the most sensational calves ever bulged, she also was the first woman to demonstrate the potential of the hyphen. If it weren't for Vera-Ellen's pioneering, Ann-Margret would be a nobody today, and a liberated wife would be unable to separate her surname from her husband's surname.

But that's enough punctuation. You want to know if I enjoyed the Richard Harris party. I didn't go. Now you want to know why. There were two reasons.

First, a few days before the party, I saw Harris on TV. He was wearing a floppy felt hat with the brim down, dark glasses and a bulky coat with both an ascot and a long scarf around his neck. He was not in costume for a role; those were his everyday clothes. He looked like a caricature of Errol Flynn imitating John Barrymore. (If you never heard of Flynn and Barrymore, I know a newspaper where you can get a job.)

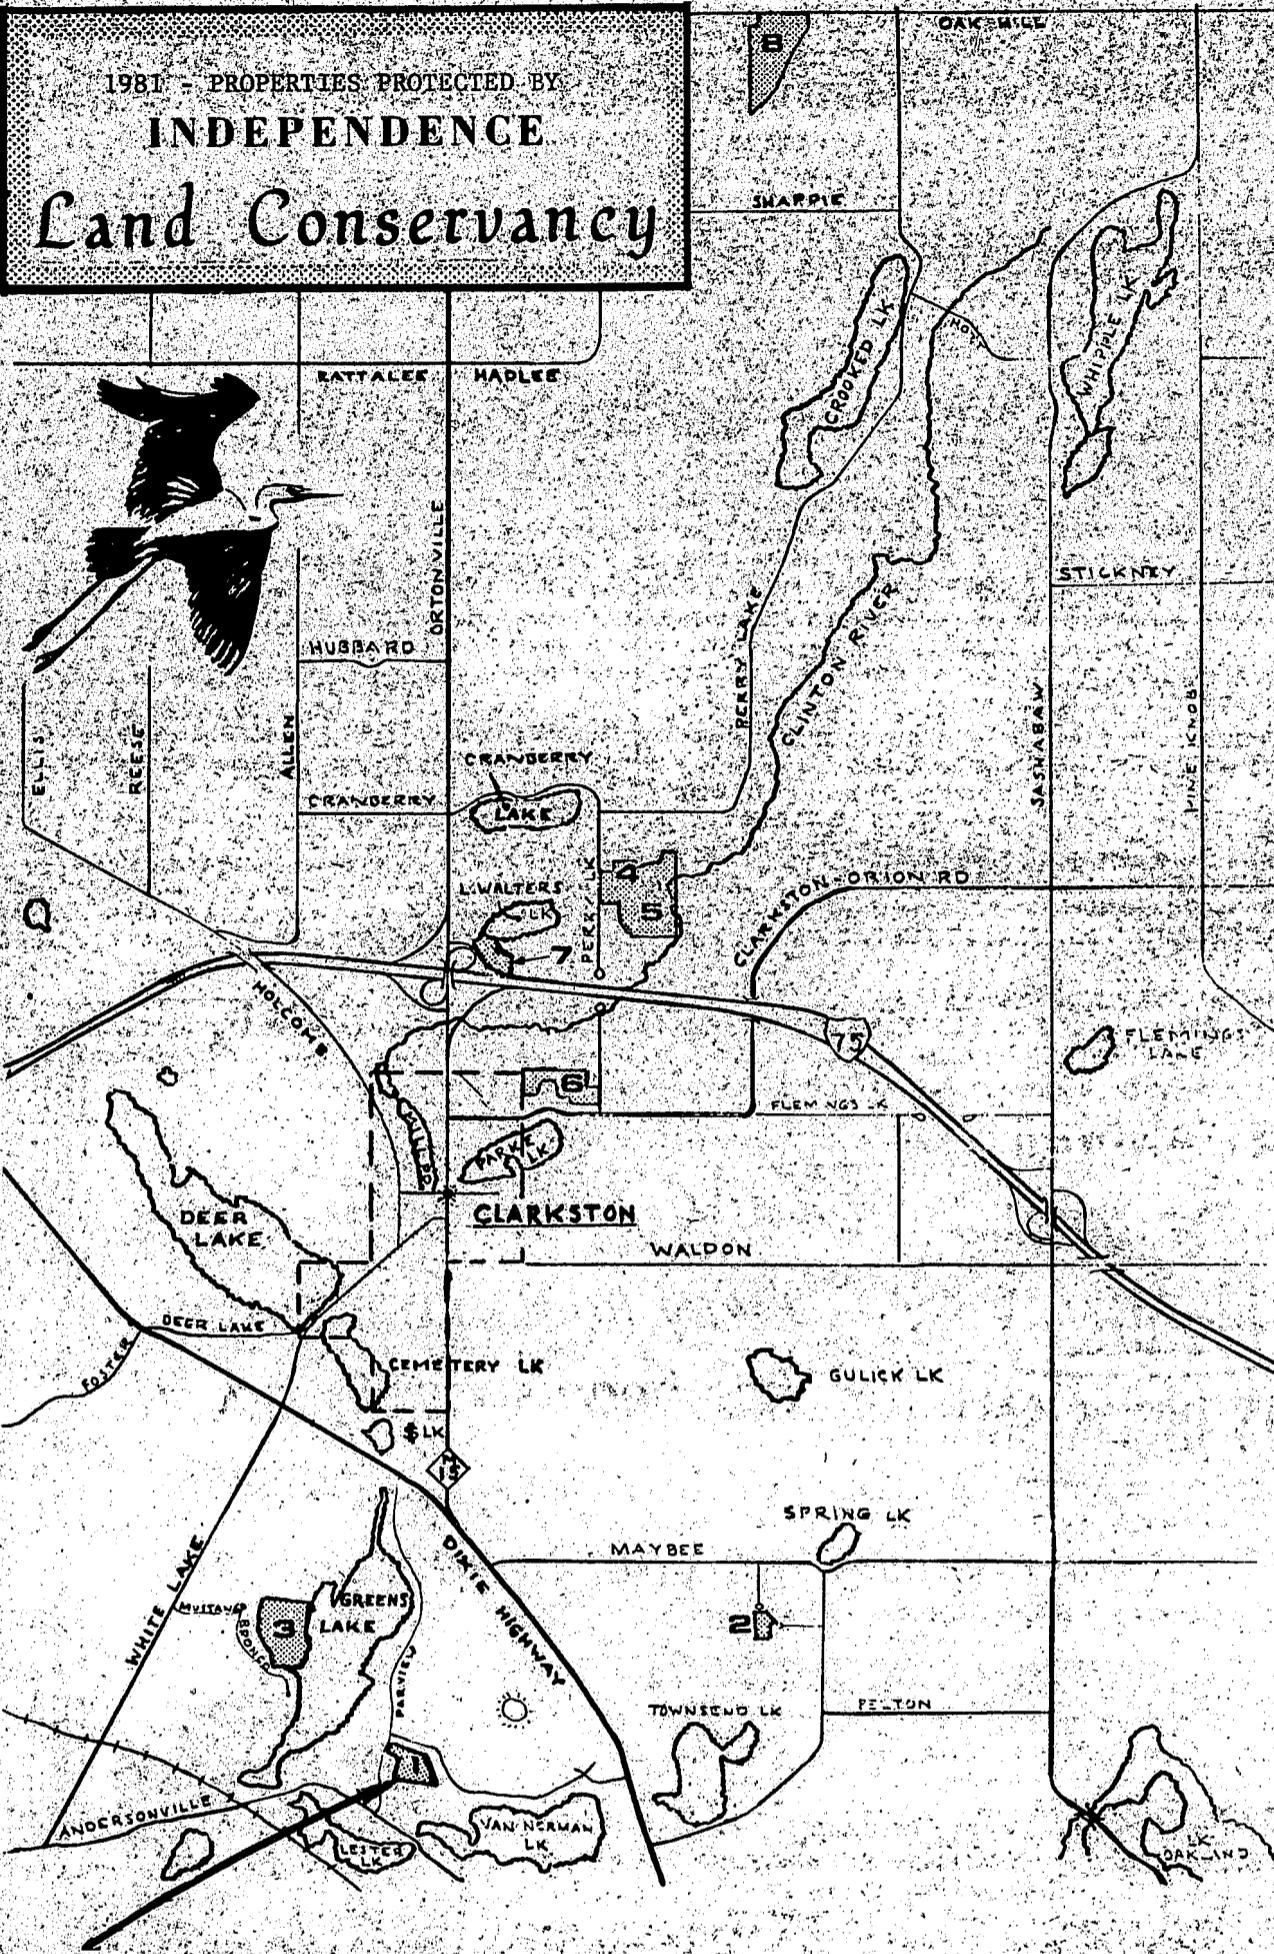

I was afraid Harris would wear tht get-up to the party and I would embarrass myself by falling down laughing on the tail of his scarf.

The second reason I didn't go to the party was because it was hosted by Tom and Diane Schoenith, who are famous as Detroit's most darling party-givers. It's nothing personal. The Schoeniths are gracious every time we meet for the first time, and I'm sure my name would be on one of their invitation lists even if I didn't write a column. Diane probably wants my wife's recipe of starched cuffs.

But lately there has been much publicity about Tom's feud with his twin brother, Jerry, concerning money and the family business. According to one news account, the twins' mother is on Jerry's side and Daddy favors Tom.

I know how unpleasant that can be. When our children squabble over my money, my wife and I always end up in opposing trenches. I insist the kids shouldn't have their inheritance until I'm dead, but my wife thinks I should give it to them now. She is afraid I will fall dead in a gutter while walking home from work and disappear forever into a sewer, taking all my money with me. I admit it probably isn't a good idea to carry every cent I own in my pocket, but it's necessary in case I decide to take a bus.

My fear was that Jerry Schoenith would crash his twin's party, to get a look at Richard Harris' clothes, and there'd be a simply ghastly scene. I don't think it's chic to watch other families fight. All I ever want to do is skeddadle.

Conservancy's yearly meeting slated Oct. 8

By Al Zawacky

In the midst of rapid growth and development, the Independence Land Conservancy works to assure that some areas of Independence Township remain untouched by change.

The land-conservancy group, which got its start in 1972, currently owns or has scenic easements on over 100 acres of property spread over eight different locations throughout the township.

"Specifically, our intent is to preserve open space in the area," says Douglas Roeser, Independence Land Conservancy president.

"There are a number of different thoughts as to why that's important, ranging from pure aesthetics to the ecology and wildlife preservation."

The group will hold its annual meeting at the Clarkston Village Hall on Depot Road Oct. 8 at 8 p.m., Roeser says. Independence Township Supervisor James B. Smith will be the guest speaker at the meeting, which is open to the public.

"We're hoping to make more people aware of what land conservancy is and what to do," says Roeser.

Through the years, parcels of land have come under the protection of the group through donations, purchase of the land or the granting of a permanent scenic easement.

A scenic easement is a legal device limiting developing rights on a piece of property. The Poquosin scenic easements (see chart) held by the land conservancy group stipulate that a buyer can only develop a small portion of a lot, while the remainder must be left in its natural state.

Most of the property protected by Independence Land Conservancy has been acquired through scenic easements, says Roeser.

Keeping portions of land in Independence Township in its natural condition—sans picnic tables or playground equipment—is the goal of the organization, he adds.

Membership in Independence Land Conservancy can be obtained by sending $1 (the minimum annual dues) together with name and address to Independence Land Conservancy, P.O. Box 282, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Bootleg T-shirts bring police

By Marilyn Trumper

The illegal sale of bootleg T-shirts appears to be a lucrative business for violators working the Pine Knob Music Theatre.

Twice during the recent appearance of Journey, deputies from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD) arrested people for selling counterfeit merchandise—once just outside the theater entrance in the parking lot and the second time on the corner of Sashabaw and Maybee roads, an area over one mile from the theater.

According to Lt. Gerald Reeves of the OCSD, the crime is a misdemeanor, akin to scalping tickets, and violators are arrested usually for the illegal sale and for selling within a township without a solicitor's permit.

"These people follow the different groups around from city to city and sell the merchandise," Reeves said. "In fact, when we arrested the guys (selling at the Journey concert) we found on their possession a list of the group's itinerary. We wondered where they got it. Journey would like to know too. But, I guess it can be had if you know the right people."

Joel DeShane, theater general manager, says Pine Knob is periodically the target of black market T-shirt sales, but he added it's rare.

Such lawbreaking is more common at places like Cobo Hall, for Pine Knob has its own parking lot with a three-quarter mile walk from the entrance to the theater, he said. Pine Knob rangers will usually see and apprehend violators and oust them from the premises, he added.

"Most of the major acts have concession companies they hire which do the merchandising for them—T-shirts, jerseys, jackets and golf caps. They work inside the vending booths wherever they go. But, they are licensed and approved by the acts."

"Bootleggers follow these acts around and undercut their prices, usually selling T-shirts of a lesser quality," DeShane said.

Journey, he added, sees a phenomenal T-shirt business and other groups hit by black market salesmen are Chicago and Santana.

"There is a lot of money to be made," he said.

Rare atlases offer glimpse of history

Who was supervisor of Independence Township in the mid 1840s?

Bildad Phillips of course!

Clarence Phillips, his grandson, was supervisor in the early 1900s.

For everything you always wanted to know about Oakland County—but were afraid to look—consult the Clarkston Community Historical Society's latest acquisitions, 1872 and 1876 atlases.

They rest inside the shelves at the Independence Township Library on Clarkston-Orion Road, just waiting for inquisitive eyes of historians.

The society has benefited from the Phillips' involvement in local government and so can everyone else as they pursue the atlases donated by Mrs. Ethel Phillips Cleveland, who received them through her father and great grandfather, Clarence and Bildad.

Clarkston running back Bruce Burwitz [center, light jersey] charges for some additional yardage in the second half of Friday evening's 12-7 Greater Oakland Activities League defeat at the hands of Rochester. As they did in the Lahser game played the previous week, the Wolves moved the ball well several times but couldn't come up with the big plays deep in enemy territory.

Struggling Wolves falter again

by Al Zawacky

Rochester head football coach Dick Ulrich sat in his office, narrowed his eyes and declared in sonorous tones: "We don't think this was a fluke."

Ulrich's Falcons had just wrapped up a 12-7 upset victory over the Clarkston Wolves, and any suggestion that the result was an accident might have turned the smiling players and coaches in the Rochester dressing room into a lynch mob.

"We always felt the league race was going to be a dogfight," Ulrich continued. "And Clarkston is one of the teams you have to beat to be there. They're a very, very good football team."

But on this damp Friday evening in Rochester, the Falcons were better.

Rochester totally dominated the first half, rolling up a 12-0 lead on a five-yard run by Brian Ray and a four-yard pass from Dean Ulrich to Henry Dombrowski. Both PAT attempts went awry, but in the long run it didn't matter.

The Wolves came to life in the second half, but in a scene reminiscent of their 15-6 loss to Bloomfield Hills Lahser, always seemed to run out of gas short of the enemy goal line.

Clarkston's only TD of the night came in the fourth quarter when Steve Nichols blocked a Rochester punt and Kurt Norman recovered for the Wolves in the Falcon end zone. The extra point kick by Will Williams was perfect, and the Rochester lead shrunk to 12-7.

Ulrich recalled the blocked punt well.

"I was dying—we knew they were coming and we were blocking, but they pulled it off," he said. "It's a shame, because our defense deserved the shutout."

With less than two minutes left in the game, Clarkston again drove deep into enemy territory to pull within striking distance of pulling out a win—only to turn the ball over on a fumble that sealed the Wolves' doom.

"We just beat ourselves," said a somber Clarkston head coach Walt Wyniemko. "We're our own worst enemy. We have to start playing four quarters of football and coming up with the big plays."

Friday night's game was also the Wolves' League opener, and the loss cast a pall over Clarkston's hopes to repeat as Greater Oakland Activities League champions this season. At 1-2 overall and 0-1 in the GOAL, Clarkston will find itself in a virtual must-win situation when West Bloomfield comes to town Friday evening.

"We're the spoiler right now," said Wyniemko. "West Bloomfield is tough. But if we put together four quarters of football, we can play with anybody."

Stalemate disappoints unbeaten Cougars

True, the Sashabaw Junior High football team is still undefeated.

But don't try and congratulate the Sashabaw coaching staff. You're not likely to get a very cheery response.

Following a 6-6 deadlock at home against Waterford Mason last week, a game that gave the Sashabaw Cougars a 2-0-1 record on the season, Cougar assistant coach Jim Smith admitted to a feeling of disappointment in the Sashabaw camp.

"I think this (Mason) was a team we could've beat," Smith said. "They weren't bad, but they didn't move the ball on us much at all."

Mason took a 6-0 lead at the start of the second quarter on a passing play good for 30 yards and a touchdown, but the successful PAT attempt was washed out by a penalty.

The Cougars came charging back late in the third quarter, when Doug Colling crossed the goal line from the four on a reverse play, finishing off a successful drive that began back on the Sashabaw 40. The try for the two-point conversion failed, and the score stayed knotted at 6-6.

With less than two minutes remaining in the game, the Cougars came within a whisker of pulling out a victory, advancing deep into Mason territory only to see their momentum stall just five yards from the endzone.

"If we hadn't stalled on their five, the game would've been ours," Smith said.

"Still, we're improving from game to game. We have a lot of things to work on, but we're doing some things better. We took a lot less penalties (against Mason)."

Smith cited Mike Powers, Bob Weir, Don Fischer and Bert Skelton as four standouts in Sashabaw's strong defensive effort.

JVs in league title quest

By Al Zawacky

One down, three to go.

Three more wins to another in a long series of league championships in Clarkston High School junior varsity football.

Last week the JV Clarkston Wolves hosted Rochester in their Greater Oakland Activities League opener, and when the game was over Clarkston's winning tradition was alive and well.

Final score: Clarkston 26, Rochester 13.

"We've got 28 kids, and in the past we've had 40 and 50," noted Coach Gordie Richardson afterwards. "But the 28 we have are 28 good ones."

Clarkston took control of the Rochester game right from the opening kickoff, marching down the field in their first possession and punching into the Falcon endzone on a one-yard dive by quarterback

Craig Kulaszewski. Mike Harbaugh kicked the extra point, and the Wolves led 7-0.

Dave Newblatt made it 13-0 Clarkston before the first half ended on a four-yard stint across the goal line, but the PAT attempt failed.

It was Newblatt again in the second half, this time on a 28-yard run. Harbaugh kicked the extra point, and the Wolves held a comfortable 20-0 lead.

Rochester put its first points on the board on a one-yard dive, but Clarkston struck back on another quarterback sneak by Kulaszewski to open up a 26-6 lead. The Falcons scored again before the game ended on a two-yard run to close out the scoring and arrive at the 26-13 final.

Kulaszewski finished the game with an impressive day's work through the air, completing six of 13 passes for 170 yards. Newblatt was the Wolves leading rusher.

Clarkston cagers clipped by Mott in OT

By Al Zawacky

Coach Dave McDonald could only shake his head and wonder how it ever could have happened.

His Wolves brought a 4-0 record to Waterford Mott. They opened up a lead of 11 points at one point in the game, and seemed to be home free for their fifth win of the young season.

But when the buzzer signaling the end of regulation time echoed through the Mott gym, the score was knotted at 51-51. And when the three-minute overtime came to a close, it was league rival Mott and not the Clarkston Wolves who were on top, 56-52. "We just didn't take it to them on offense," McDonald said. "We seemed a little tentative. Why, I don't know."

"We've been so poised all year and against Mott we just lost it. But they're good girls, though—good ballplayers. I expect to see us bounce back."

A feature of McDonald's Clarkston High School girls' varsity basketball team this season has been a balanced attack, and the Mott game was no exception.

Annette Ulasich, Lanette Whitehead and Janet Zografos each had 11 points to tie for the lead in team scoring. Despite an injured shooting arm suffered in a motorcycle accident, Ulasich also led the team in rebounds with 11.

Earlier in the week, the Wolves coasted to an easy 53-36 win over Brandon. Michele Ulasich paced the attack this time with 14 points, while Tracee Antos contributed eight. Whitehead led Clarkston with 10 rebounds.

The week's action left Clarkston at 4-1 overall and 1-1 in the Greater Oakland Activities League.

Cross country posts perfect week

The Clarkston High School cross country squads competed in just one meet last week, but they made it count.

Running against Greater Oakland Activities League for Lake Orion, both the girls' and boys' teams posted victories, the girls winning by a score of 26-30 to remain undefeated on the season, while the boys triumphed 26-31.

Clarkston's Sheri Rowland took first in the meet for the girls with a time of 19:55, her second best time ever and the second time she's run the three miles in under 20 minutes.

Teammate Pam Stoecklin took third with a personal best time of 21:00; Chris O'Rourke was fifth at 21:41; Aileen Collins was eighth at 22:39; and Traci Sherman was ninth at 23:09.

The win gave the girls' team a 2-0 record in the GOAL and a perfect 4-0 mark overall.

The boys' effort was paced by Paul Burch's first-place time of 17:11. Lake Orion took the second, third and fifth spots, but Clarkston won the meet on the strength of its fourth, sixth, seventh and eighth place finishes.

"We knew Lake Orion had several good runners that would be among the top finishers," Coach Mike Kaul noted. "But we felt we might have more depth."

That proved to be the case as Jim Locher took fourth at 17:40; John McInnis took sixth at 17:55; Gil Delgado took seventh at 18:11; and Ty Patton took eighth at 18:13.

The win squared the boys' league record at 1-1 and improved their overall mark to 2-3.

Parks & rec

Independence Township Parks and Recreation hosted the Class B Metro Detroit A.S.A. Softball Playoffs recently at Clintonwood Park.

Schram's Auto Parts, a Clarkston-area team that competed in the Independence recreation leagues this summer, finished in first place and qualified for the state's playoffs in Wyoming, Mich. Sept. 12-13.

The Clarkston Fuel Pumpers finished in fourth place after a loss to Luxury Lanes.

The Independence Township Men's Advanced Summer Tennis League concluded the 1981 season at Clintonwood park Aug. 26.

Mike Block narrowly edged Mac Wisner .602 to .600 to gain the top spot in season win-loss average. Vic Kubani took third with a .588.

The balance of the top finishers were Tom Hopper .549, Bill Schram .537, Don Bush .530, Dan Travis .489, Gordon Andringa .487 and Gary Bowes .481.

Persons interested in participating in the league next year should contact the Independence Parks and Recreation Department in the spring. Play in the 1982 season will begin in early June.

JV hoopsters chalk up 3-2 record

The potential is there on this year's Clarkston High School junior varsity girls' basketball team.

Coach Karla Teare likes what she sees.

"I've got more height than I've ever had and good rebounding ability," she says. "We've got a lot of potential."

"We have to improve our passing and ball handling, but we're coming around. With every game, I can see a lot of improvement."

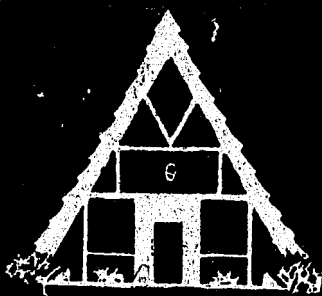

The JV Wolves opened their season with a 27-25 win over Avondale and followed that with a 36-35 thriller over Rochester Adams. Clarkston bowed to West Bloomfield in its next contest 36-27, and split in last week's action by downing Brandon 36-23 before losing to Waterford Mott 29-23.

That gives the Wolves a 3-2 record overall and 0-2 mark in the Greater Oakland Activities League, a statistic they will be working to better in the coming weeks.

Against Brandon, Janet Herron paced the Clarkston attack with nine points. In the Mott game, Renee Jones had six points and Shannon Moore five to lead the way.

Lin Klingler and Julie Beamer were one and two in the rebounding department against Mott with 13 and 11 respectively.

Talking about . . .

Did anything unusual happen on your wedding day?

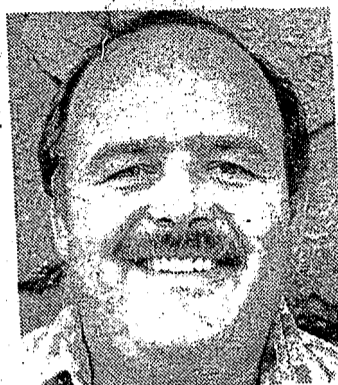

"My brother forged my signature on the marriage license because I had been drunk for three days before the wedding. After the wedding, on the way to the reception, they cut across a field and it [the vehicle] got buried in water. I walked out through the water, but someone else had to carry my wife out."—Chuck Morgan, Groveland Township, manufacturer's representative.

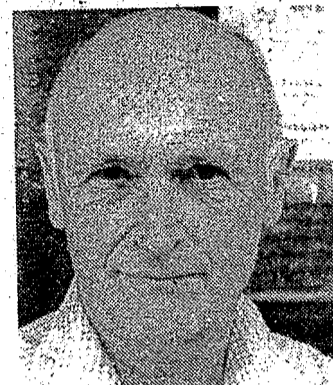

"It was the 27th of December and we had lots of snow. The best man was late and he had the rings."—Doris Langendorfer, Buffalo, N.Y., housewife.

"We were so nervous that my husband tried to put the wedding ring on my right hand and he would not let go so I could give him my left hand. He finally just put it on the right hand."—Kathy Austin, Knox Road, Springfield Township, student.

"My brother-in-law got the ring stuck on his little finger. He had put it there to keep from losing it."—Murray Hoss Peters, Kansas City, Kan., sales manager.

"Oh gosh, that was 40 years ago. After the wedding, they kidnapped the bride. I got her back after a few hours."—Stanley White, South Main Street, Clarkston, retired.

A celebration complete with the repeating of vows, cake, rings and a reception marked the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Frick of Waterford Township.

Over 200 friends and relatives attended the affair hosted by their children at the Faith Baptist Church on Airport Road, Waterford Township.

The 2 o'clock ceremony on Aug. 22 was conducted by the couple's son, the Rev. Marvin Frick of Grand Rapids.

Youth Assistance renames Carter to top post

By Al Zawacky

Help for the single parent is going to be one of the major focal points for Clarkston Area Youth Assistance (CYA) in the coming year.

"Going it Alone" is the title of the new program slated to begin this fall, said CYA Chairman Alfred Carter at the group's annual meeting Monday.

The increasing number of single-parent households prompted the creation of the new program, he said.

"We also can make the organization stronger with fresh faces, fresh ideas," Carter added. "If there's anything of community interest that people think might be beneficial, we're open for all types of suggestions and ideas."

Delinquency prevention through community involvement is the credo of Clarkston Youth Assistance, and in the past year the group has been involved in parent education, and anti-shoplifting program, the PLUS program which matches a child with a volunteer adult, and several other community activities.

The national problem of child abuse is also a concern of CYA, and Monday's guest speaker, Al Barr, spoke extensively on the extent of the problem and programs designed to prevent it.

Barr, treasurer of the Michigan District Exchange Clubs, a national organization of volunteers committed to community service, said in his opening remarks that a congressional study in 1974 revealed that an estimated three million children a year are the victims of child abuse.

Barr cited the success of a program in Arkansas named SCAN (Suspected Child Abuse and Neglect) in dealing with the problem, and said his organization is currently dedicted to implementing a similar program nationwide.

"We've found that it's best to keep the family intact whenever possible," he said, "and educate people on the frustrations of raising children and how to handle them."

"There have been a very small percentage of second offenders in the program, so the people are learning something from it. It's up to us to try and teach them how to be good parents."

Kay Karla, director of Oakland County Youth Assistance, also spoke at the meeting and read a letter from a mother about the positive effects the CYA summer camp had on her sons.

"People wonder what the camp program does for a child—believe me, it does have a very positive effect."

Congratulating CYA on its 20 years of service to the community, she added, "I know the coming years are going to be just as productive as the years past."

Chatting after the Clarkston Youth Assistance luncheon are [from left] Sylvia Carter, probate Judge John J. O'Brien and guest speaker Al Barr.

Parview hearing set for Oct. 7

Residents planning to speak out on the high-speed, high-volume car traffic and vandalism on Parview Road and on a proposal to dead end the street in the middle, should mark Oct. 7 on their calendars.

That's the date the Oakland County Road Commission has set aside for a public meeting at 7:30 p.m., Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Since 1977, Parview residents have voiced complaints on the road's increased traffic and use of the street as a thru-way between Dixie Highway and Andersonville Road.

After several studies, the county is offering the following six alternatives, slated for discussion at the meeting.

A county official stressed no decision would be made that night.

Lizzie Borden: The plot thickens with suspense

Director of the play is John Witherup, who has been active in the Clarkston Village Players for years. After a brief hiatus—his last director's stint was three years ago in "Picnic"—Witherup's back, adding his enthusiasm to the production. "Directing is a great challenge and a real thrill," he says. "It's going to be a very taut, dramatic mystery play about a real-life situation which no one yet has the solution to—history doesn't even know yet."

The plot thickens as the Borden sisters and their father argue over moving to another home. Playing the roles in the Clarkston Village Players' production of "Lizzie Borden" are [from left] Stacy Nichols as Emma, Barbara Lacy as Lizzie and Pete Rose as Andrew Borden. The play is based on a true occurrence—in 1896, Lizzie Borden's parents were killed in Fall River, Mass. The crimes were committed by an ax-wielding murderer, but no one was ever convicted. Some say Lizzie did it. Play dates are Oct. 2, 3, 9, 10, 16 and 17; tickets are $3.50; and they are for sale at Tierra Arts & Designs, 20 S. Main, Clarkston. A benefit performance for the Clarkston Junior High School Drama Club is planned Thursday, Oct. 8. Depot Theatre is located at 4861 White Lake Rd., Independence Township.

Question teachers

Parents can take their questions right to the teachers during parent-teacher conference nights planned at Clarkston Junior High School and Sashabaw Junior High School.

The meetings are scheduled Thursday, Oct. 8, from 6 to 9 p.m. and on Friday, Oct. 9, from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m.

All teachers at both schools are to be available in designated areas and appointments are not necessary. Both parents are urged to attend.

It's camp time for Bailey Lake Elementary School sixth graders. The 127 youngsters who attended the camp last week took part in varied activities, including "Predator-Prey." On our cover, Mike Gauthier pauses to look for danger before he takes off running through a wooded area about one-acre in size. More on the activities and purpose of the camping program are found on Pages 6 and 7 of this week's Clarkston News MAGAZINE.

Here's Herb

by Herb Rose

Old age creeps up while waiting Wrong line woes

I WAS WALKING THROUGH town the other day when a friend came out of the bank choking and sobbing inconsolably, a condition that had been induced by a recurrence of the all too familiar experience: standing in the wrong line.

While he had been waiting in feigned patience, a casual acquaintance had walked in, made a few last minute calculations at the desk, stood in the right line a moment or two, transacted his business, chatted with someone not frequently seen and strolled out whistling the Londonderry Air.

My friend had seen this theme repeated several times with variations while scrutinizing the back of an immobile person, and he began to feel he was getting older.

He thought of his loved ones with tears. He visualized his children growing up, leaving home, getting married and having their own children who would never know their grandfather.

Through racked sobs, he asked me if I could do something. He may have been remembering an earlier conversation when I boasted that more than a half dozen people had admitted to reading my column, and it gave me a heady sense of power to know that when I talked seven people listened.

I tried to explain that the pen is not mightier than the bank manager's whim, and if he called to complain, he would probably be told: "I'm thinking of starting an express line that will help the situation."

I don't know exactly how many times this statement has been made, but one person claims he was told: "I'm thinking of starting an express line that will...line that will...line that will..."

Actually, if one window were dedicated to express customers, whoever they might be, there would be a decrease in the availability of normal-business windows and a corresponding increase in the probability of being caught behind someone buying Peruvian bank drafts.

I conclude that Jefferson may have been guilty of a sin of omission in compilation of the inalienable rights with which man is purported to be endowed.

The list should have read: "Life, liberty, the pursuit of happiness and access to the next available window."

Students have been known to support themselves in unusual ways, and Valerie Sinclair upholds that tradition in fine style.

Driving a milk truck for the university dairy is not something most people get to do during their days at college.

Valerie found the job at the dairy through her activities as a resident assistant in the campus dormitory. She was responsible for 52 students—20 percent freshman, 30 percent sophomores and the rest upperclassmen.

"It does not matter what their class rank was, they all were crazy," she laughs. "Knocks on my door at 3 a.m. were not unusual."

As a resident assistant, she was involved in planning floor and campus-wide activities for students. One outing was a tour of the dairy and that's how she found out about the milk truck driver's position.

Late parties are another college tradition, but Valerie probably won't be taking in many of those this year. She lives off-campus, has a 20-minute walk to classes, and dairy life starts early.

"They milk the cows at 4 a.m. and start making cheese at 7 a.m.—no matter where I work in the dairy, I'm going to be up early!" she says.

A senior at Michigan State University, East Lansing, Valerie is majoring in communications. In addition to her classes and her job at the dairy, she has other activities planned to keep her life full—and hectic.

For part of her college studies, she plans to work as an intern at the office of State Rep. Claude Trim (D-Springfield Township) doing research and office work.

And for the third year in a row, her Saturday mornings are to be spent teaching swimming motor skills to children of all income levels to detect learning deficiencies for a developmental study underway at MSU.

In addition to her part-time work, Valerie is paying for her education with some assistance from the Clarkston Farm and Garden Club.

"Without the scholarship provided by the club, I would have had to work full time for a few years to accumulate enough money to go to school," Valerie says.

She found out about the scholarship through her counselor at Clarkston High School. A five-member committee from the garden club questioned Valerie about her school activities, community service and future plans.

Valerie was working during the CHS Senior Awards night and did not know she was selected for the scholarship. Her parents received the letter saying she had won, but they saved it, planning to present it at her open house after graduation.

"I couldn't believe it and just kept looking at the letter over and over again," Valerie says.

The garden club usually awards the scholarship to students who expect to major in horticulture or agriculture. Although not her major, Valerie has taken courses in those fields and she donated the plants she grew in a horticulture class for the garden club's plant sale.

The club has many activities to support the scholarship and other community programs like sponsoring teachers at summer workshops at Higgins Lake Environmental Camp, says Joanne Mason, president of the club.

There are plant sales, a beer tent during the Labor Day fair, a luncheon and fashion show, a bake sale during Crafts and Cider and the group sells Christmas wreaths.

Valerie left Clarkston to go back to school last week. Her car was filled to the brim with necessities for a year away from home, and it took almost a week to get that much gear together.

With graduation less than 10 months away, this will be the last time she has to pack for school.

Deja Vu

Coal lumps vanish from school

Before gas furnaces...even before fuel oil furnaces...schools and larger buildings were heated with coal, and in such a large quantity they used an automatic stoker to feed the hungry furnace, says Daniel Manthei, principal at Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center.

"I can remember being a student in a parochial grade school in Wisconsin and hearing the rumble and rattle of coal dumped down the shoot and into the bin," reminisces Manthei.

"I'd be sent on errands to find Ziegfried the custodian and I'd find him down there before a hopper device, shoveling coal."

The big hoppers held up to 800 pounds of coal and someone had to fill the bin at least twice a day, depending on how cold it was.

Classy stokers took the coal right from the bin eliminating the need for the physical labor Ziegfried had grown accustomed to.

About 1945, just after World War II, the automatic stoker industry took a nose dive and began phasing out as more and more businesses turned to fuel oil, and ultimately gas heat, says Bud Millmine, owner of Automatic Stoker in Pontiac.

His business still carries the name.

Millmine says his company now sells and services boilers as stokers have all disappeared.

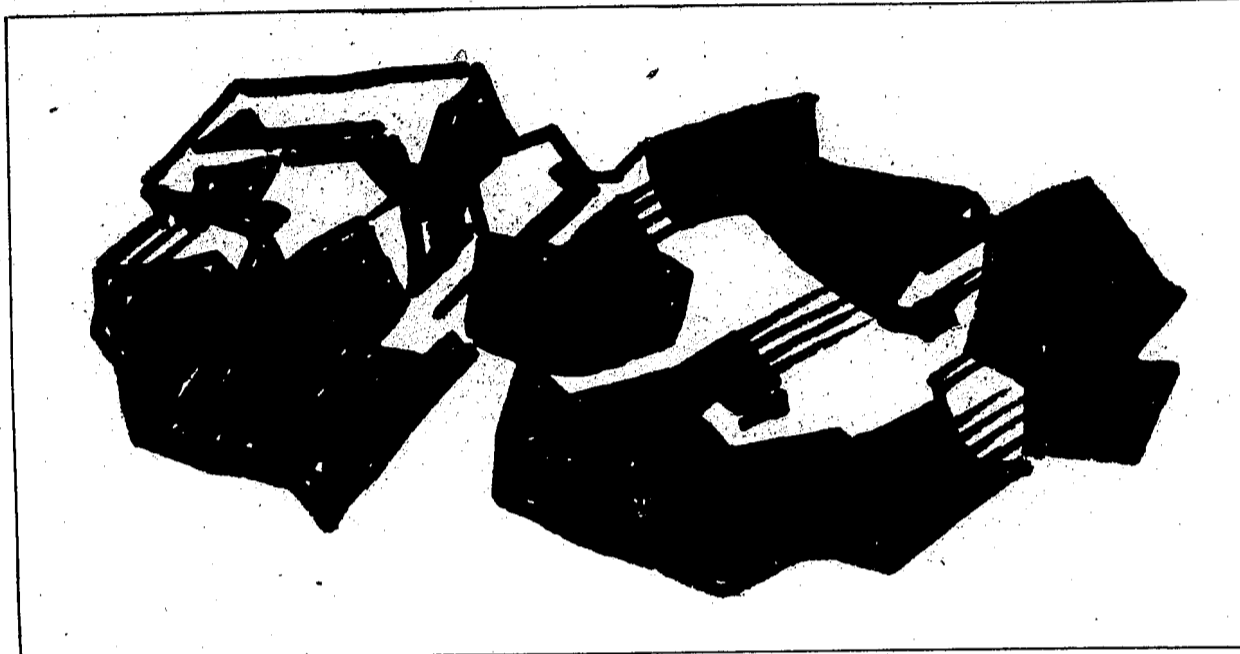

Back alleys might still have a bit of the remains, the "clinkers," he says, or cinders, left after the coal's consumed.

Kids would drag buckets of "clinkers" curbside for weekly pick up. They'd then be used for road coverings or on high school tracks.

Today students sit in warm schoolrooms heated by clean, efficient, cost-effective gas.

Coal furnaces, automatic stokers and jobs like Ziegfried's are no more.

As a wolf, and one of the most powerful predators with only man to fear, Brad Blake has a great time crashing through the undergrowth and jumping over downed branches. But, as it goes in nature, Brad scurries off when disease and weather, two elements that are enemies, appear.

DISCOVERIES

Bailey Lake sixth graders romp through forest, study plant and animal life and learn to care about each other during a week at Camp Tamarack.

“OH NO” GROANS Bailey Lake sixth grader Gretchen Spiece as she spots disease lurking in the forest. The game is “Predator-Prey” and Gretchen says she’s a rabbit or other small animal—she’s not sure which one—and one of the elements is after her.

She runs, but is caught and one more of her six lives, symbolized by white cards is relinquished. She’s down to one life card now and she’s tired.

Jerry Fortin, another Bailey Lake sixth grader, plays the role of disease, and he has but one thing to say about the chase when everyone runs away the minute they spot him—“It’s tiring.”

The purpose of the hour-long activity is to teach kids how animals survive in the forest, says Bailey Lake Principal Doris Mousseau.

It’s one of many activities 127 sixth graders in the school participated in during their Monday through Friday stay at Camp Tamarack in Brandon Township last week.

This is the fourth year Bailey Lake sixth graders have been offered the opportunity to go to camp. The program is offered in most elementary schools across the Clarkston district, with some camp sessions in the fall and some during winter months.

“We assume, because the children live out here in Clarkston, they know about the woods and nature,” Mousseau says. “We find very few children know much about that and it gives them a chance to be out in the woods and learn. They really have excellent knowledge when they come away about how to survive in the forest, the geological make-up of the area, the study of water—kids don’t think about what they drink—and they learn to read maps and compasses.

“They come away excited about what they learn and parent response has been excellent.

“The other part of this is the socialization,” she adds. “From Monday to Friday, it really makes a difference. They really start to care about each other.

“Super experience. A lot of hard work,” she sums it up. “But I think the kids gain from it and that’s what counts. I think it’s a very worthwhile program.”

Togetherness may help as Audrey Schliter [left] and Michele London run from fast-moving enemies.

Part of a class in pond study includes taking the water temperature. Kim Bailey reads the figure—about 60 degrees Fahrenheit, she says—and counselor Brenda Rexford, a Clarkston High School senior, reaches over to show Kim where it shows the Celsius reading.

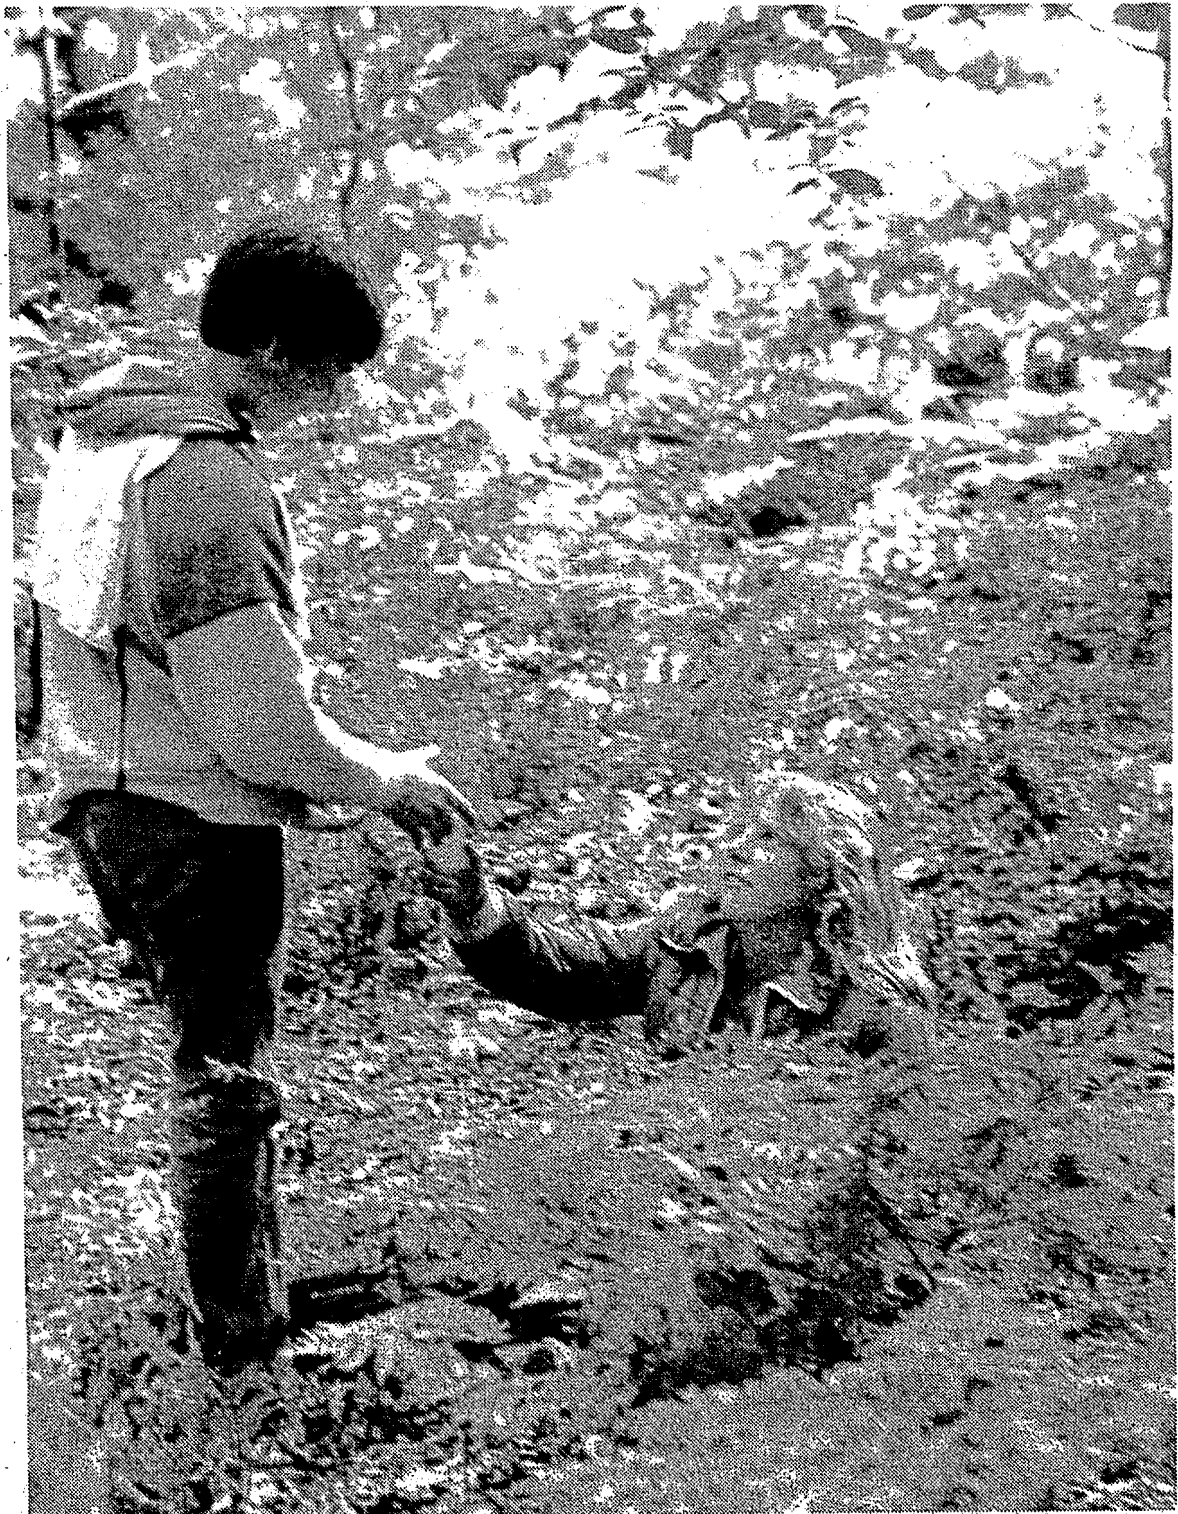

Water from the pond, even before it's scrutinized further, catches the attention of Gary Ratliff [left] and Darrin Dimitry. In addition to small jars of water that include objects scooped from the bottom of the pond, a full plastic bucket is carried up the hill for study in one of Camp Tamarack's buildings.

Counselor Barry Collins [left], a CHS student, takes off after an opponent in Morris as the game of "Predator-Prey" continues.

Her stamina trounced, Gretchen Spiece reluctantly gives up one of her six lives to a predator, the role of Jerry Fortin [left]. Another part of the activity is to collect food, and Gretchen has done well in that department, with a hole handful of red pieces of paper to symbolize her success.

SCAMP

Capture true Christmas spirit

Cards to benefit Clarkston SCAMP go on sale

It might be a little early to be thinking about Christmas, but it's never too early to think about love.

Here's a chance to spread Christmas cheer in the truest sense of the word and contribute to a gift that will be appreciated far into the summer months and remembered all year round.

Buy a box of specially designed Christmas cards and help send a kid to camp.

SCAMP, a non-profit organization which provides summer camp for educationally impaired and handicapped children is offering Christmas cards for sale. Sale proceeds go toward the financing of the summer camp, according to Diane Wint, whose husband Lew is chairman of the SCAMP Funding Corp.

The cards are available at the Lewis E. Wint Funeral Home, 5929 M-15, Independence Township, and are slated to be on sale at the Pontiac Mall on Telegraph Road, Pontiac, Oct. 8, 9 and 10, during mall hours.

Art students from Clarkston High School designed the cards in a contest last spring. There are three styles to choose and they come 25 to a box for $6, including envelopes. In addition, a post card is available, with 20 to a box for $2.

"Without this program, the kids would be lost when they return to school," Diane said. "Otherwise they would lose all the time the teachers have worked and taught them."

Clarkston SCAMP is a five-week camping program for North Oakland County youth and just wound up its fifth summer. Housed at the Sashabaw Junior High School, activities include swimming, arts and crafts, music and field trips.

Staffed with highly skilled special educators, adult aides who are frequently general educators, high school volunteers and others, the youth are grouped according to age and special needs. Staff to pupil ratio is generally one staff person for every three pupils.

SCAMP 1980 cost in the neighborhood of $60,000 and next year's expenditures are expected to top that mark, Diane said.

This summer was the first time the funding corporation received no outside help, raising its funds through the annual Walk for SCAMP, softball tournaments and bazaars as well as donations.

While children who are financially able pay tuition to attend the summer camp, the income doesn't come close to covering the cost of the project, according to Chairman Lew Wint. The organization depends heavily on fund-raisers and volunteers, he said.

Smooth sipping

With chilly days upon us, a bit of sherry sipping may smooth the advent of autumn. The Nickelodeon Party Store, 10081 M-15, Independence Township, has a very smooth sherry that does not burn the throat, according to Martha Pruneau who buys the wine for the store. Enscorced in a mysterious black bottle, the sherry is Meier's No. 44. The dark bottle protects the sherry from light that could destroy the flavor, says Pruneau. She suggests tipping the bottle onto leg of lamb or mushroom soup for a flavor enhancer. The warming addition to the wine rack is $9.95 for four-fifths of a quart.

Plant pals

A well-known theory has it that plants need company and someone to talk to for good health. Country Greens, 25 S. Main, Clarkston, carries just the thing for poor, lonesome plants—Pot Perchers. These lovable creatures cost $4.95 for two-to-three-inch Perchers and $7.95 for the taller variety. Select from 16 different plant pals including Uzziah Unicorn, Boris Bird and Tullulah Turtle. The people concerned about the company plants keep are from Minnesota and they hand-make every aspect from the Perchers' bodies to their whimsical eyes.
