Average 1981 tax bill totals $1,879

By Marilyn Trumper

The county, school and local taxes have been tabulated for 1981, and this year's typical Independence Township property owner living in the Clarkston school district outside Clarkston Village will pay $1,879.31 in taxes.

That's the word from Independence Township Assessor David Sherrill, who estimates the typical taxpayer has property assessed at $40,000, or one-half the market value of $80,000.

Last year, if property was assessed at $40,000, the assessment would have increased 13 percent, the average increase, and the taxes would be figured on an assessed valuation of $45,200. With the change in the tax rate, the property owner's taxes would increase $288 over last year.

The county's figures are still termed "tentative," Sherrill said, because the commission's yet to officially approve those numbers, but they're "99-and-nine-tenths sure," he said.

Even with the Headlee rollback calculated in and waiving of the sewer ad valorem tax, bills have increased this year. Assessments increased by an average of 13 percent over last year and voters approved an additional 3 mills for the schools last June, Sherrill said.

The bright spot was that the township waived collection of the annual sewer ad valorem tax, which saves homeowners an average of $40.

Last year's millage rate totaled 45.6292, while this year's tally is 46.9827 for the county, schools and township.

The school's millage is 32.7521, up from 30.1180 last year.

The county's tax rate totals 8.3981 with 4.6391

for the general fund millage, .2466 for the parks and recreation department, .25 for the Huron-Clinton Metro-Parks Association, 1.7261 for the Oakland Intermediate School District and 1.5363 for Oakland Community College.

Independence Township's tax rate totals 5.8325, with the fire department levy of 2.8534, safety path levy .4640, general fund levy 1.3086 and police levy .2784.

One mill equals $1 of each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

The Headlee rollback factor reduces the millage in order to increase revenue only by the amount the consumer price index goes up.

Village arcade advocate claims he'll buy building

The fervor's dissipated and with it Robert Warrington's proposal to open a video arcade in Clarkston Village.

Denied a lease to rent the lower level of the Max Brook building at 29 S. Main, Warrington says he is forced to buy a building in Clarkston and has notified the village council to table the matter of licensing his proposed business until the purchase has been made.

"Really, I was not surprised at (Brook's) decision," Warrington said. "I really felt my location (opening onto the alley off Depot Road) was best suited, because it was off the Main Street.

"But now, I guess I'll have to buy a building in downtown Clarkston. There are a lot of them for sale," he said.

Warrington could not speculate when the sale would be made.

Sonya claims Jr. Miss title

The $600 scholarship, medallion, plaque and title of 1982 Clarkston Junior Miss belong to Sonya Funk. Sonya received the honor Sunday night when she was chosen for the title by a panel of five judges at the finish of the Jr. Miss Program. There were 18 contestants, and each took part in group routines for physical fitness and poise and appearance, appeared on stage alone with a talent presentation, and was interviewed individually by the judges. Here, Sonya smiles to the words of a well-wisher after the program's finale. There are more photos of the event on Page 7 of this week's Clarkston News. Fire fighters sign one-year contract

Salaries up 11.3 percent, but cost-of-living clause dropped

By Marilyn Trumper

With just 10 minutes of discussion at the Oct. 20 meeting, the Independence Township Board wound up 10 months of negotiations and ratified a one-year contract for the Independence Township Fire Fighters Local 2629.

Two days later, on Oct. 22, the firefighters signed the contract, making it official.

The package includes an 11.3 percent salary hike for employees, excluding the secretary and chief, the elimination of Cost Of Living Allowance (COLA), new long-term disability over the former short-term disability, term life insurance of $30,000 (up from $15,000) and, for first time, a food allowance for men working 24-hour shifts, according to Gordon Mason, Local 2629 president.

Although employees received an 11.3 percent pay hike, in actuality, the increase was 9.3 percent with the COLA folded right in, said Supervisor James B. Smith.

Titled driver-engineers, the men's salaries are now $19,365 annually, up from $17,002. The COLA, or $50 received every three months, is no more.

"We had to trade it off for an increase in wages," Mason said. "All in all, I'm fairly happy with the contract. I'm glad to get it over with and ready to get started again on next year's contract," he said.

The men's contract expired in April and negotiations for the new contract are slated to begin in January, he said.

Contract language was the primary hold-up which forced both parties into mediation to solve their differences.

At the meeting, Trustee Larence Kozma chastised the union for its 11.3 percent salary hike.

"You got a good contract. I shudder to think what the township is going to pay you next year," he said.

After discussion, board members unanimously ratified the one-year contract. Trustees Dale Stuart and Daniel Travis were absent.

Realtors spiff-up property for sale

By Marilyn Trumper

Eight salespeople from Clarkston Hills Real Estate donned blue jeans, boots, gloves and knock-around coats, and ventured up the marshy entrance drive to five acres off Clintonville Road Monday morning.

Their goal: To remove 10 years' worth of illegal dumping so the property's sale closing would go through the following day, a stipulation of the contract, according to salesman Bob Bridson.

Two pick-up trucks parked roadside offered empty beds waiting to be filled with rotting, half-burned mattresses, wringer washing machines, broken furniture, rubber tires and more.

"It was a stipulation as part of the closing that the land be cleaned up before it's sold," Bridson said. "So, here we are. We agreed to do it."

Stepping back, he said the crew had just started at 10 a.m., about 15 minutes earlier, and would no doubt be at it until dark.

"We'll be here all day," he said. "This junk goes back all along the roadway, about 500 feet."

The garbage will be taken to the Pontiac Dump and won't cost the real estate crew anything to get rid of it, for dumping is free to city residents, which Bridson is.

Russ Harvey, who organized the clean-up, said the move was twofold. Not only would it allow them to sell the land, but, he said, it's a statement about Independence Township.

"We felt this area is an important concern to the township—there's a lot of junk here, and this type of thing does not have to exist," Harvey said.

The person buying the property has plans to build a home on the five-acre parcel, making it the first residence for miles.

"We think that once we get a home in here, a lot of this will end itself," said Bridson, indicating the solitude of the area has proven inviting for illegal dumping.

With that, the grunts and groans, and hauling resumed. The acreage was itching for its first clean-up since "ad infinitum," Bridson said.

Members of the Clarkston Hills Real Estate team massive work effort. The group speculated it would join forces to clean-up five wooded acres on Waldon Road. Sale of the property was contingent upon the from the Pontiac City Dump.

Dump report has Springfield residents in limbo

By Al Zawacky

A report out of Lansing last week containing test results from waste dump sites in Springfield and Rose townships has residents living near the area hanging in limbo.

The report, submitted by the Department of Natural Resources to the state Toxic Substance Control Commission, indicated that despite clean-up ef-orts, high concentrations of toxic contaminants remain at the sites, located off Shindler Road in Springfield and Demode Road in Rose Township.

Detected in highly localized areas at the sites were high levels of PCB (polychlorinated biphenyls), a suspected carcinogen, and toxic metals such as lead.

Although the report indicates there are lingering problems and a potential for hazard, the test results don't indicate an immediate threat to residents, according to Collin Walls, Springfield Township supervisor.

"From the moment the problem was discovered, there have been three main concerns," Walls said. "First and primarily, there was the danger to the residents who live there, and the experts all say the danger is passed."

"Second, there was the problem of removing the barrels and cleaning up the sites, and that's been done."

"Third, was to test the soil conditions and water at the site and immediately around it to determine how much additional cleaning up and soil excavation needs to be done."

Walls said the current testing involves the third concern—the determination of what contaminants might be left in the soil at the dump sites.

"The report is the result of test wells and soil samples around the worst areas," he said. "It appears there was some difference between the Rose and Springfield sites—the Rose figures were apparently much worse than what came out of the Shindler Road (Springfield) area."

But according to health experts, area residents' well water remains safe, he added.

Barbara Kozar, a Shindler Road resident, reacted cautiously to the news from Lansing.

"We've been so up and down like a rollercoaster on this thing, that it's gotten past the point of getting frantic and excited whenever something new comes up," Kozar said.

"We've been on bottled water on and off for the past two years, but since we've been told that the water is clear and there's no reason to worry, we've been drifting back to our well water."

"I wouldn't be surprised if there are still problems (at the dump sites)—those barrels had been sitting there for years. But the experts have all told us the water is OK."

Party by day before haunting

Getting ready for the carved pumpkin contest is Kari Abbott.

What to do Halloween night is all set. And now ghosts, goblins and witches looking for adventure Halloween day have a place to go.

The Clarkston Elementary School Fair is planned Saturday, Oct. 31, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. The theme is Halloween and kids can wear costumes for judging and bring pumpkins they've carved at home for another contest.

Spooky times await at the Haunted House, and a make-up booth can prepare kids for a night of Trick or Treating.

New this year is an Atari Game Room, and the regular school fair games and activities like the fish tank, country store and cake walk will also be offered.

To appease hungry haunters, there'll be hot dogs, hot and cold drinks, cotton candy and popcorn for sale.

Tickets, sold at the door, are 25 cents each or five for $1. The school is located at 6595 Waldon, Independence Township.

Danny Martin strives for perfection as he touches up the chin of Scot Trowbridge (left) who is undergoing transformation as a clown. The CJHS Drama Club members plan to be at the Clarkston El fair.

Hours set for trick-or-treaters

Terrifying vampires, ferocious Franksteins and howling hobgoblins take heed, for Independence Township government is recognizing legal trick-or-treaters from 6 to 7 p.m. only on Halloween Eve.

The policy established by the previous administration will be in effect again this year, according to Supervisor James B. Smith.

In addition, McDonald's at 6695 Dixie Highway in Independence Township is doing its share to make this Halloween safe for youngsters.

From 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Oct. 31, they'll have a deputy from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCS) on hand with a metal detector to check kids' goodies for foreign objects. This service is free. There'll also be free coffee for parents and all kids receive a gift as well, according to the store manager.

With safety in mind, the OCS also offers several suggestions for trick-or-treaters.

- Walk in well-lighted areas only.
- Parents, escort your young children.
- Older, unescorted children, tell mom and dad what route you'll be taking.
- If wearing a mask, ensure you have a clear field of vision and are able to see at night.
- Parents, check your child's bag for open candy, pills, fruit that appears damaged and suspicious looking food.
- Be wary of older children who come to your home more than once, because they may be "casing" it for burglary.

The Automobile Club of Michigan offers these suggestions for drivers and children alike:

- Use face make-up instead of masks so you'll have a clear field of vision.
- Cross streets only at intersections after looking both ways first.
- Wait until getting home before munching treats, allowing mom and dad to first review the take.
- Fashion costumes of bright colors and have luminous paint or tape attached to the outfit, making it more visible in the darkness.

Party boosts Kammer's campaign

Speaking before the approximately 500 people gathered at last week's fund raiser, State Senator and Democratic gubernatorial candidate Kerry Kammer announces the evening's record-setting single-event total of over $50,000 raised.

By Al Zawacky

State Senator Kerry Kammer's gubernatorial campaign got a big boost last week as friends and supporters gathered for a $100 a plate fund raiser at Mitch's II restaurant and lounge in Waterford Township.

"According to the Secretary of State's office, this is the most successful fund raiser ever held by a Democratic candidate for governor," said Kammer, who later announced the total raised at over $50,000, to the applause of an audience of approximately 500 people.

Kammer, who lives in Springfield Township with his wife Carole and their three children, was first elected to the state senate in 1974. He is currently completing his second term in office representing a district that includes most of northern Oakland and part of Livingston counties.

The 32-year-old Democrat is looking forward to the continuing challenge of running a statewide campaign for Michigan's highest office against a crowded Democratic field that includes 18th-district congressman James Blanchard, 1978 Democratic gubernatorial candidate William Fitzgerald and Shiawassee County Drain Commissioner Robert Tisch.

"I've never enjoyed anything so much (as the campaign), and I can't begin to express how deeply touched I am to see so many people here tonight," Kammer said.

"I've spent the last two years talking to people throughout the state trying to determine if we could attract the kind of broad-based support needed to run. I'm convinced we can do it."

One Kammer backer is Paul Felice, an Independence Township resident and Waterford grocery store owner who was present at last week's fund raiser.

"I think he's the best candidate," Felice said. "He's done a super job as a state senator, and I like his stands on the issues."

"He's not way out in left field and he's not an ultra-conservative. He's in the middle of the road and can understand everybody's problems."

"I've known the man for nine years," said Billy J. Nolin, a captain with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department and a resident of Springfield Township.

"He's hard-working, dedicated and anything he says he'll do, he'll do. He's an honest and straight-forward guy," Nolin said.

"I like the fact that he's not affiliated with the big unions, big business or any big special interest groups. He can relate to the small businessman and his problems."

For wife Carole Kammer, the upcoming year promises to be a busy one, but like her candidate husband, she's looking forward to it.

She's used to the role of being a politician's wife and wouldn't at all mind a move to Lansing in the near future.

"He's been in politics ever since we were first married—on our honeymoon he was planning his first campaign," she laughed.

"I always knew he would make an excellent governor. I know that sounds like a wife talking, but he's got an excellent mind and is always prepared for every outcome. He's never surprised or caught off guard."

"We expected a hard race—most of the people that have announced we knew would be in it. It's going to take a lot of work and a lot of time, but I know we can do it."

Independence OKs planners' contract

Following up on the hiring of new planners Ayres, Lewis, Norris and May of Ann Arbor, the Independence Township Board has approved the group's one-year contract.

Effective immediately and expiring in 1982, the contract allows for the average hourly pay-rate of $47.33, according to Clerk Christopher Rose.

In addition, the contract sets up a scale for flat fees to be charged in plat reviews, but allows the township to waive the scale in lieu of an hourly rate to compensate large developments, he said.

C'mon Clarkston, show spirit

We attended the final night of the Clarkston Junior Miss Program on Sunday, Oct. 25, and were disappointed to see such a small crowd.

We were told that Saturday night's crowd was even smaller. This was the smallest crowd in 20 years.

The absence of school administrators and teachers was especially noticeable. Why no interest in these students you helped educate?

The Junior Miss Program has the following aims: "By presenting college scholarships and other awards to Junior Miss participants, the program seeks to focus attention on the constructive achievements of all youth, to encourage excellence and enkindle a sense of dedication to the future."

It is a fine activity to be involved in and most girls feel they are better off for having participated. Eighteen contestants had spent many hours in preparation. It was a good evening of entertainment.

It is important to encourage our youth...they're our leaders of tomorrow.

We believe in supporting ALL school activities. Come on, people of Clarkston, you've got more community spirit than this. Let's support the Junior Miss Program in the future.

Her chili rates

by Kathy Greenfield

L. Brooks Patterson may have lost the backing of the highly influential and powerful chili lobby (trust me) in his bid for governor of Michigan.

Patterson, who lives in Independence Township, was a no-show judge at the American Legion Auxiliary's Chili Contest held Friday at the Campbell-Richmond Post on M-15.

Word came through that he was at an anti-pornography rally, or something like that, in Keego Harbor and couldn't get away. Priorities, priorities.

When it was announced that Independence Fire Chief Frank Ronk and I would have to go it alone as judges, someone said, "I'm voting for Tisch." We laughed.

Undaunted, Ronk (who was there to put out any fires caused by the hot stuff) and I (who was there because I like chili) proceeded in our quest to choose the best pot of chili from the eight entries.

Taking first place and winning the prestigious yellow T-shirt with a dragon on the front and "No. 1 Chili Maker" on the back was Myra Wrobel of Felix Drive, Independence Township. Second-place honors went to John Adams of Brandon Township.

Myra was surprised and delighted, and she donned the snappy T-shirt over her blouse, wearing it with pride the rest of the evening.

And, she agreed to share her tasty recipe with readers of The Clarkston News.

Myra Wrobel's Prize-Winning Chili

- 1 1/2 lbs ground beef
- 2 lbs stewing beef
- 4 T cut-up onions
- 1 level t garlic powder
- 1/2 t salt
- 1 t oregano leaves
- 15 1/2 oz can Ragu Spaghetti Sauce
- 1 small can tomato paste
- 1 can Old El Paso beans
- 1 can hot chili beans
- 1 can kidney beans
- 2 T chili powder (or to taste)
- 2 c water

Brown stewing beef, add salt and pepper to taste. Add onions and ground beef and brown lightly. Add rest of ingredients, simmer five hours. Better if it sits overnight (in refrigerator). Reheat and serve.

State advocates school testing

Clarkston School District Residents:

I would like to make a few comments concerning our reviewing practice prior to the administration of the Michigan Assessment Test.

Apparently some people who read Kathy Greenfield's article failed to read it in its entirety and, as a result, missed its most significant fact.

That fact is: There is but one person in the entire state who has the specific responsibility (as determined by the State Legislature via the State Department of Education) for determining whether our reviewing practice is "legal" or not.

That person is Dr. David Donovan, the director of research, evaluation and assessment services for the Michigan Department of Education. He is in charge of the Michigan Assessment Testing Program.

I would like to quote Kathy Greenfield's article concerning what he said:

"What they're (the Clarkston school district) doing is what we have really advocated over the past 10 years of testing."

According to Dr. Donovan, not only is what we are doing acceptable and legal, but also actually something his department advocates.

I would also welcome the opportunity to answer questions and/or discuss our testing program and practices with anyone. Just give me a call.

Thanks

for van

The Independence Township Senior Citizens would like to thank the Clarkston Rotary Club for donating a van to our senior citizen program.

The van will help develop a much needed transportation program. Many area senior citizens are expected to benefit from the generous donation of the Clarkston Rotary Club.

The van is scheduled to pick up senior citizens in need of transportation services on a daily basis and bring them to the center.

As soon as a permanent part-time driver is secured, transportation services are expected to expand. This expansion will include taking people to the grocery store and to doctors' appointments.

If you are in need of transportation services, please call Rina at 625-8231 today.

Thanks again to the Rotary Club. We appreciate your support in our senior citizens of today and tomorrow.

Catch-all

by Jim Sherman

Every man, woman and child should have a catch-all basket, drawer or box. Probably every man, woman and child does have such a place to put 'things'.

In our houses, mother's and Hazel's, their place was (is) a kitchen drawer. Boy-type children have pocket storage, and I don't know what girls do with their some-day-I'll-want' goodies.

I have two places to put things 'until I get around to use them'. The biggest is on a roll top desk at home. It's a wire basket like the in-out kind you see on executive's desks in tv shows.

Photographs make the basket most messy. Until they get some attention a person doesn't realize how many different sizes there are to drug-store processed film.

Then there's the envelope they come in that cannot be opened and closed neatly. It's built for store convenience, not customer.

Of course, there's a partial box of color slides that 'have to be filed'.

A petcock is always falling through the basket. It's there to remind me we need a new one at our up north place. A new one has been in place over a year, but the reminder is still falling to the floor.

And, there's a pair of clip-on colored glasses, Dad's WW I diary, a small glass window from an outdoor light (another reminder of something to do), a cut golf ball, and a red glass reflector that fell off a trailer.

There are many more such items, all reminders, possible needers, and/or waiting to be filed.

Surely, you have such a collecting place. At the office, my entire desk is a collection area. But, it's being used for it's intended purpose. It's another roll top desk with 24 pigeon holes and seven drawers.

The man who invented the pigeon hole desk was a man with lots of common sense. Everything is at your finger tips or glance.

Two cubby holes are just for maps. Want to talk about Canada? What province? There are three magnifying glasses, a pocket size transistor radio, a 1916 book of synonyms, antonyms and associated words, and a "genuine mahogany stake".

The latter was given me by Milt Francis, from whom I once won a "steak" on the golf course and forgot to spell out the stakes "??".

At home or office a catch-all is important. Or is it?

Clarkston Jr. Miss: Sonya Funck

As their daughter receives congratulations from friends, Sonya's parents, Gwen and Glenn Funck, look on with pride.

Behind the scenes, the dressing room is a busy place, and captured in the mirror are the images of Lisa George (left) who was named first runner-up in the Junior Miss contest, and Clarkston's 1982 Junior Miss, Sonya Funck. Sonya has just completed her talent presentation in which she sang "If I Had a Voice" in mime regalia.

No glamor to his hurting

by Jim Fitzgerald

There was a painful period of my life when I often suffered from yo-yo finger, but I was never a snob about it.

A Canadian doctor, Douglas Waugh, recently wrote in the prestigious New England Journal of Medicine that he had cuber's thumb. He said he got it from playing Rubik's Cube which, according to its inventor, is an arty game for smart people.

"This is no yo-yo, but rather an intellectual game," said Erno Rubik in a newspaper interview. Boy, I really hate that.

The cube is a three-dimensional, six-color plastic toy about the size of a baseball. When you buy one, you must buy nourishment separately because the cube is too big to fit inside a Crackerjack box. A cube costs 66 forints ($2.25) in Hungary where Erno Rubik lives and $5 in the United States where I was a neighborhood yo-yo champion, but never a snob about it.

The way to play Rubik's game is to mix up the six colors by twisting the cube's parts randomly around a central pivot, then return the colors neatly to where they belong. That's it. Once you've licked the cube, you are automatically qualified to be a professor of geometry at Oxford University.

There are cube competitions in which speed counts as much as neatness. The winner of a recent contest in Budapest was a 12-year-old boy who took 28 seconds to return the colors. He is resented by older cube players, not because of his youth, but because he has never publicly denied the vicious rumor that he once played with a yo-yo.

As for cuber's thumb, Dr. Waugh said a person gets it from manipulating a sticky cube, which is a sticky wicket. The condition is characterized by swelling of the joint between the fingers and the wrist. At first, Waugh's family physician diagnosed gout, probably contracted while hanging around a well joint. Most people think gout is a disease of the foot, and immediately it was suspected that Dr. Waugh didn't know his thumb from his big toe.

However, Waugh had witnesses to prove he always holds his cube in his left hand with one of the corners firmly braced against the base of his left thumb, while never taking off his shoes. Because it is Waugh's left thumb that hurts, there is little doubt that people who play with Rubik's Cube may get cuber's thumb.

There is also little doubt that people who get cuber's thumb will brag about it, the same way other people brag about their tennis elbow or jogger's nipple. In our warped society, there is glory in hurting from tennis, jogging and cubing. The victims are proud of their injuries. They think they are better than people who hurt from swell joints.

As evidenced by the Erno Rubik quote mentioned earlier, people who play with cubes also think they are better than people who play with yo-yos. They think more mental exertion and physical dexterity are required to master the cube than the yo-yo.

I doubt it. I think it's harder to rock the baby with a yo-yo than put some silly colors back where they were. But that's not the point. Even if cube players are superior, they shouldn't be snobbish about it. They shouldn't look down on people who might not have 66 forints to buy a cube. And people with cuber's thumbs shouldn't flaunt their ache like a medal of valor. Whatever happened to aw-shucks modesty?

I remember when I had yo-yo finger. It was caused by the string pulling tightly around my middle finger when I snapped the yo-yo down hard enough to make it walk the dog for a week. The string cut cruelly into the flesh, and my finger throbbed painfully. But I never told the New England Journal of Medicine about it. I never acted superior to kids whose middle fingers didn't throb.

In fact, the day I won the yo-yo championship, I was not only suffering from yo-yo finger, I also had jacks knuckles. That was from scraping my knuckles while playing jacks on the sidewalk. I didn't brag about that any more than President John Kennedy bragged about invading Cuba.

Go-ahead on Maybee Road Park site

Independence Township has tunnel vision for the proposed Maybee Road park site project, and at the Oct. 20 meeting, the board voted unanimously to sign the offer to purchase and dismissed resident Michael Clark's counter-offer for land off Pine Knob Road.

The offer to purchase was signed with the stipulation that the township receive a certified land survey of the acreage off Maybee Road and that the title insurance company hold money from the sale of the property in escrow until all clouds in the title have cleared.

After more than a year of negotiations to purchase 14.2 acres off Maybee Road for a municipal park, the landowners remain embroiled in a legal dispute over joint sale of the property. They have until the first week of December to come to an agreement and redeem the land from the bank to sell to Independence Township.

Clark, who two weeks earlier had offered the township 16 acres on Pine Knob Road for $86,000, pointed to the use of federal money to develop the proposed park mandated it be built in Census Tract 3 adding the Pine Knob site met that requirement.

He added his offer bettered the township's plan to spend $126,1180 on 14.02 acres.

Supervisor James B. Smith said the Pine Knob Road property had been inspected and was indeed wetlands as outlined by the township map. He also pointed to the close proximity of I-75 as a disadvantage.

Motorist takes pot-shot at 2 kids

On the way to the school bus stop Friday morning, two Springfield Township youths became the target of a passing gunman, according to a report at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

The two 12-year-olds, a boy and a girl, were walking near their homes on Bridge Lake Road when the lone driver of a southbound red pick-up truck fired a single shot, missing both children, the report said.

The incident remains under investigation.

TV task force to ask companies 'What can you offer township?'

By Marilyn Trumper

Culminating eight months of work, the Task Force on Cable TV spent almost two hours briefing the Independence Township Board at its Oct. 20 meeting and offering a proposal on how to approach the cable TV issue.

Independence should solicit ordinances, rate scales and a list of incentives from individual companies instead of drafting an ordinance and inviting companies to bid, said Chairman Robert Hurlbert.

"While we realize this is a bit unorthodox, we really think this is the best way to go," he said, adding it would hopefully circumvent what's happened in communities where such a stringent ordinance was drafted that only one company responded with a bid.

"We (as a task force) don't have the ability to define the system and incentives for the township and we don't have the population (density) for the bargaining power. In this economic climate, it would be better to invite the most successful franchises and ask them in broad terms to develop the kind of system they would like to see us put in here, and give us an ordinance and outline their incentives, (fee) rates, regulations and (installment schedules)," he said.

Cable TV systems have been designed to transmit township and school board meetings, village council meetings, citizens' rallies, school football games, drama and more, according to Milford Mason, superintendent of Clarkston schools and member of the task force.

He praised cable for what he termed its "tremendous possibilities in education," and offered the board a list of incentives he'd like to see instituted in the schools which included a portable color station and hook-up to every school in the district.

Incentives are those "goodies" cable companies offer in an effort to make their package more appealing than the competitor, Mason said.

According to Hurlbert, most cable franchises cover 15 years and initial costs to install systems run anywhere from $25,000 per mile for below-ground cable to $17,000 per mile for above-ground cable.

With its low density, Independence may find that joining with Waterford Township could provide a better and more financially feasible package for residents, he added.

After discussion, board members voted unanimously to authorize the supervisor to solicit the bids as outlined in the task force proposal.

Republicans put O'Neill on hot seat

Dr. James O'Neill is to be the target of friendly barbs from friends and neighbors at a fund-raising "roast" sponsored by the Independence Township Republican Club Nov. 13.

The event is planned at Deer Lake Racquet Club, 6167 White Lake, Independence Township. The bar is to open at 7 p.m. and the roast is to begin at 8 p.m.

Bob Vandermark, former Independence Township supervisor, will serve as master of ceremonies. All proceeds are to go to the Independence Township Republican Club.

Tickets are $10 a person and can be obtained by calling Bev Clemo at 623-7422, Carol Balzarini at 625-5948 or club President Bob Borrer at 673-6631.

They'll remember this one as the Mud Bowl—the cold, wet and muddy afternoon in Waterford when the Clarkston High School Junior varsity football team extended its mastery of the Greater Oakland Activities

League to four straight years. The JV Wolves wound up beating Mott 13-2 to wrap up their fourth undefeated GOAL crown in as many seasons.

JVs ace league title

Clarkston dominates GOAL—again

By Al Zawacky

The rain was falling, the cold was penetrating, the field was a pool of mud—it was absolutely miserable at the Waterford Mott football field Thursday afternoon.

But in the Clarkston High School junior varsity football team bus, where chants of "we're No. 1" were echoing off steamed-up windows, ah, the sun was shining.

After all, it isn't every day that a team wraps up a fourth straight Greater Oakland Activities League championship—four straight titles without a single league loss along the way.

That's what the irrepressible Clarkston Wolves had just finished accomplishing, thanks to a 13-2 triumph over the Corsairs of Waterford Mott.

"This group," said assistant coach John Getzan later, "is probably the most intelligent group of kids we've ever had. They're not the biggest, and they're not the quickest, but they're just so easy to coach—they listen and they execute."

The list of Clarkston heroes was long. Dave Newblatt and his 185 yards rushing. Glenn Sherman, awarded the game ball for his outstanding receptions on offense and solid play on defense, including an interception. Mike Harbaugh, who led the team in tackles.

Dean Callison, Tom Gillis—the entire defensive line that rose to the occasion again and again in the wet and muddy second half to preserve the win.

The weather really started taking its toll in the second half," said Coach Gordie Richardson. "We'd fumble, they'd fumble, we'd throw an interception, they'd throw an interception.

"But on defense, the kids just came through and stuffed them. Really stuffed them. You could tell they really wanted to protect that league championship."

It was Newblatt that got the Wolves off dead center in the first quarter, and he didn't waste any time in doing it. On the third play of the game, he broke through for an 83-yard romp into the Corsair end zone and a 6-0 Clarkston lead.

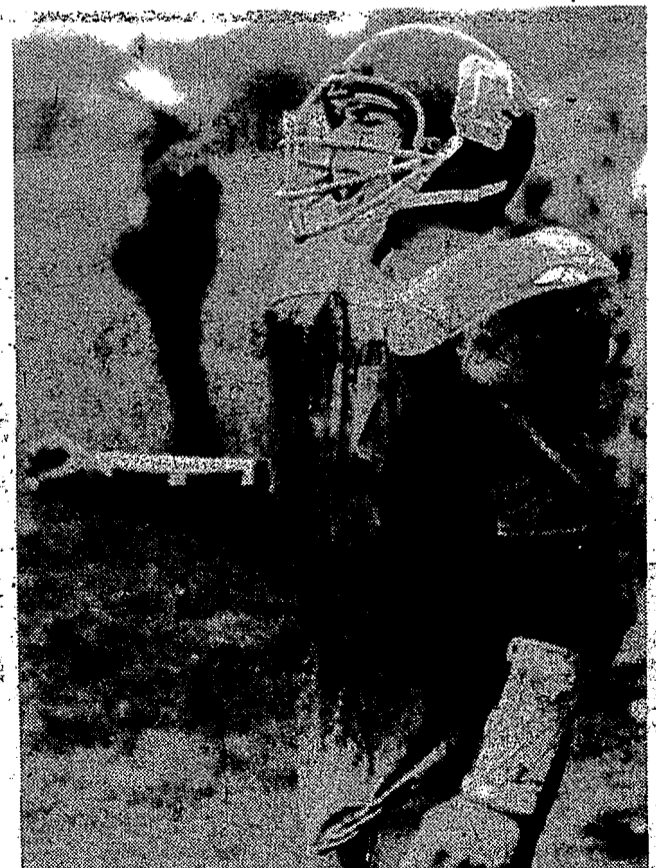

The point after attempt went awry, and Mott cut the lead to 6-2 before the quarter ended, trapping the Wolves behind their own goal line after a bad snap on a punt bounced into the end zone.

But Clarkston came back to score again before the end of the half, marching the ball down the field in a 64-yard drive climaxed by quarterback Craig Kulaszewski's five-yard sneak across the goal line. Harbaugh kicked the extra point, and the Wolves had their final margin of victory, 13-2.

The win left the Wolves with a final GOAL record of 4-0 and a 5-0-1 mark overall with two non-league games left on the schedule—at Rochester Adams and at Waterford Township.

Quarterback Craig Kulaszewski listens to some first-half instructions from JV Coach Gordie Richardson.

Seeing the Wolves turn in another good play out on the field, Clarkston's Dean Callison responds accordingly from the sidelines.

Wolves club Mott, finish 3rd

By Al Zawacky

Do you suppose we could roll the calendar back seven weeks and start this 1981 varsity football season all over again?

If we could, all that optimistic talk at the beginning of the season about league titles and playoff berths might pan out, for the Clarkston Wolves are now playing the type of football everyone knew they were capable of.

Friday evening the Waterford Mott Corsairs had the misfortune of facing the Wolves in the last Greater Oakland Activities League contest for both teams, and when it was over the Corsairs must have thought they were trespassing in a mine field.

Final report from the Clarkston High School athletic field—Clarkston 34, Waterford Mott 12.

"I'd say it's maturity," said Clarkston Coach Walt Wyniemo of his team's steady improvement over the last few weeks.

"Our passing game has become very effective, our running game is getting together and our offensive line is opening up the holes.

"And we've still got two football games left," Wyniemo pointed out. "Six and three—that's a pretty good season."

With the victory, the Wolves lifted themselves above the .500 mark for the first time since the season opener Sept. 11. Clarkston finished in third place in the GOAL with a 3-2 mark and is currently 4-3 overall with non-league games remaining against Rochester Adams and Waterford Township.

Despite the 34-12 final, the Wolves got off to an inauspicious start against Mott. It was the Corsairs who drew first blood, scoring in the first quarter on a 14-yard pass from Ken Grace to Joe Cook.

Clarkston pulled in front to stay before the half ended, scoring twice in the second quarter on two touchdown runs by Dave Fulcher.

The Wolves put the game away in the second half on a TD pass good for 48 yards from Mike Stefanski to Tim Brennan, Fulcher's one-yard plunge into the end zone and Larry Liggett's 30-yard romp across the goal line.

Point After

By Al Zawacky

World War III? Nope—it's homecoming

THE OTHER DAY I was describing my job to a friend who was curious about how I spent a typical day.

"It's a dangerous vocation, involving great hazards and tremendous risks," I began. "Flying shrapnel. Complete and total chaos. Open warfare all around you. It's not something a man with a weak stomach can handle."

"Gee," my friend replied, "I didn't know you were a war correspondent. Where have you been assigned? Iraq? Lebanon? Cambodia?"

"Worse than that," I said. "Waterford Kettering High School's homecoming."

My inquirer's face went white. His lips trembled and a look of consummate fear appeared in his eyes as he cleared his throat to speak.

"Wa-Wa-Waterford Ket-Ket-Kettering? Oh my God. I've heard about that place."

"The agony. The combat. The human suffering and man's inhumanity to man," I said, listing the horrors I had witnessed. "It certainly wasn't a very pretty sight."

"Good Lord, how could you stand it?"

"It takes a special kind of individual," I shrugged.

AH, THAT GOOD old-fashioned Waterford-Kettering hospitality. They really roll out the red-carpet and the welcome mats when the Clarkston Wolves come to town.

The friendly rain of rocks and spit at the Clarkston football team's bus.

The fights in the stands during the game.

The morons marauding through the parking lot afterwards, looking for Clarkston varsity jackets—anything with the hated Clarkston hues of blue and yellow. (One Ketteringite, it is rumored, attacked a blue mailbox; another was seen biting a yellow fire hydrant.)

As I drove home that evening, I began thinking what a shame it is that rock throwing, spitting and grandstand brawling aren't competitive sports in the Greater Oakland Activities League. If that were the case, these frustrated fans wouldn't have to watch on the sidelines, they'd be able to participate themselves. What a rock-throwing team Kettering could field.

Or maybe the game of football could be modified so that a team gets an extra point or two on the scoreboard for each late hit. That change would have given the Captains a hands-down victory over Clarkston, and maybe that would have soothed some of the Kettering savages.

I think these suggestions are worth bringing up at the next league meeting.

MYSELF, I FELT proud of the fact that I was able to get out of Waterford alive that fateful Friday. I envision a silver-haired and mellow Al Zawacky 40 years hence telling his grandchildren war stories about how he "survived Waterford Kettering's homecoming." I wonder if they'll believe me.

Anyway, I think I'll pass up the big event next year. I can't spit more than a foot or so, my rock throwing stinks and I haven't grandstand brawled in years.

Besides, if a man is going to tell war stories to his grandchildren, he's got to live to see them first.

KEEP THE ROOF "ICE BLOCKADE" FROM DAMAGING YOUR HOME'S INTERIOR WITH

WRAP-ON Roof & Gutter CABLE and SAVE

How the roof "Ice Blockade" forms

First, downspouts freeze up, preventing melting snow from running off the roof. Then gutters become ice clogged; and heat from the sun as well as the roof causes melting snow to run down over the gutter, forming icicles. When there is an overhang, valley, or dormer, this ice blockade causes melting water to back up under the shingles and drip down through the roof and ceiling—causing damage to both the roof and interior ceilings and walls.

How Roof and Gutter Cable prevents this

Wrap-On Roof and Gutter Cables produce the right amount of heat to keep gutters and downspouts freeflowing. Cables are 115-volt AC and develop 8 watts per running foot. Heavy lead cores bend to the installation contour and hold the cables in position during heavy storms. Cables come with aluminum clips for roof attachment, and a 10-ft. cold lead (non-heating section) for plugging into an electrical outlet. Their neutral gray color blends with roof.

Clintonwood Park shelter, fitness trail winding forward

Plans to erect a shelter and fitness trail in Independence Township's Clintonwood Park sputtered to life again at the township board's Oct. 20 meeting when word came the federal government's key matching funds grant had arrived.

Board members voted to match the fed's $17,250 grant with more federal funding, perhaps incoming revenue sharing yet to be earmarked, to finance the cost of constructing a shelter and fitness trail.

In addition, the board directed the supervisor to work with Timothy Doyle, director of parks and recreation, to formulate the required plans to construct both projects.

"I'm in favor of matching funds, but I'm not in favor of such an exotic shelter," said Trustee Larence Kozma.

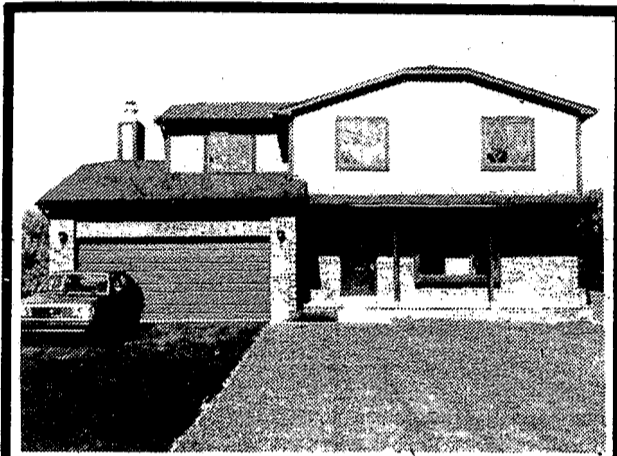

"I think we ought to shorten (Doyle's) leash and not let the guy come back with plans for a ...," he trailed off.

"You're pretty frugal," he then told Smith.

Last December, Doyle proposed a physical fitness course, to be used by residents ages 7 to 70, made of stop-off stations where different gymnastic equipment would be located.

In addition he proposed a shelter, built onto an existing building where the park restrooms are now located, which would be open on three sides and have a fireplace where skaters could warm-up and groups could gather in bad weather.

For antique buffs

Antique seekers can shop in the comfort of the Clarkston Mills Mall this weekend when an Antique Show and Sale comes to town.

On Friday and Saturday, Oct. 30 and 31, antiques large and small are to be found in the mall located at 20 W. Washington, Clarkston.

A first for the mall, such shows are planned on a twice-a-year basis.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday, and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday. Admission is free and so is the parking.

CHS band takes 3rd at state level

The Clarkston High School Marching Band wrapped up 1981 season competition with a third place finish in the Michigan State Marching Band Championships held in Durand Oct. 24.

Clarkston's score of 64.85 placed them behind perennial rivals Durand and Lakeview, which finished first and second respectively. Through the organizational efforts of Marty Johnston, a good-sized following made the hour-long drive to cheer the band on despite freezing temperatures.

Featured soloists for Clarkston included Rich Beckman, Ron Wagner, Paul Hayward, Todd Johnston and Phil Haase.

In other competitions this season, Clarkston placed first at the Montrose Invitational and third at the Plymouth Invitational.

Recipe file

By Lorna Bickerstaff

Dick Plamer of Orionville had his wife drop this recipe for Onion Shortcake off at The Clarkston News. She said, it is very good for a large crowd.

Onion Shortcake

- 1 small box corn meal muffin mix
- 1 can cream style corn
- 1 egg, well beaten
- ¼ t. salt
- ½ c. milk
- 1 large onion, thinly sliced and halved
- 1 c. sour cream
- 1/8 t. dill seed
- ½ c. cheddar cheese, grated.

Combine corn meal mix with ½ c. milk, salt, well-beaten egg, and cream-style corn to form your batter. Place in greased casserole dish.

Saute thinly sliced and halved onion in butter until transparent; add ¼ c. of grated cheese, sour cream, and dill seed.

Pour this topping over the batter in bottom of casserole; sprinkle other ¼ c. grated cheddar cheese over the top and bake for 45 minutes at 350 degrees.

Allow to set 15 minutes before serving as a side dish.

Safety path pal donates land

Llyod E. Marlowe waived payment for safety path easements fronting his Clarkston-Orion Road property and gave the land to Independence Township.

Virtually everyone else has been paid so far for property to be used for safety paths, according to township Treasurer Frederick Ritter.

Board members at the Oct. 20 meeting unanimously approved a resolution praising Marlowe for his generosity.

Two weeks ago yellow Caterpillars moved in, cutting a swath along Clarkston-Orion Road from Chapelview Estates subdivision to Clintonwood Park, and earlier paths were cut in the southeastern section of the township along Sashabaw Road south of Maybee Road.

The project is being funded with .5 mill approved by voters in August of 1980 to be collected annually for the next 10 years. The tax generates $100,000 annually and will total $1 million at the end of the 10-year period.

One-mill is $1 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

Commission weighs Sashabaw Corridor study decision

The planning commission, after listening to three property owners at the Oct. 22 public hearing on the Sashabaw Corridor, is weighing what changes if any will be made to the township's master plan.

According to Kenneth Delbridge, director of the township's building and planning department, none of the three residents opposed the proposed changes to the land use plan, only questioned whether it would mean immediate changes in zoning.

"When they were assured it's just a plan on how the township should be developed, and that it did not mean there would be immediate changes in zoning, they weren't concerned," Delbridge said.

Former township planning consultant Tod Kilroy, in one of his last official studies, proposed the elimination of some single family housing and the addition of multiple and cluster housing in the Sashabaw Corridor, the area south of I-75 to the township line.

According to Delbridge, the planning commission has asked the township's new planners, Ayres, Lewis, Norris and May, to review Kilroy's work and offer their viewpoint to see if the firms are in agreement.

When changes are proposed to the master plan, the planning commission has the final decision, and then directs the building department on what action to take, Delbridge said.

The planners are expected to make their report at the next meeting, scheduled for Nov. 12 at 7:30 p.m., Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

The master plan was last revamped in 1975. Over the past year and a half, the township planning commission has approved several rezoning and land use changes different than what's outlined in the master plan, indicating there's a new trend in development for that stretch of road, Kilroy has said.

ZBA puts home for seniors on hold

By Marilyn Trumper

In a quandry on why it was hearing a request for a variance on an adult foster care home, the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) has tabled a decision until it receives the answers from the township attorney.

According to ZBA Chairman Mel Vaara, three families opposed Ralph Eichorst's request to rent his mother-in-law apartment on Allen Road to two senior women, a move which required licensing by the Michigan Department of Social Services.

"They felt their property would depreciate in value and said that over the years they've put a lot of money into their homes. They felt if they ever decided to sell, they'd lose that," Vaara said, explaining the residents' opposition voiced at the Oct. 21 ZBA meeting.

"Also, they feel the property is zoned single family—not multiple—and they want it to stay that way."

The zoning board is scheduled to rehear the case

Nov. 4 at 7:30 p.m., Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Associate township attorney Robert White acknowledged the zoning board has never heard a variance request for an adult foster care home; historically those decisions have been left to the township board.

But, since the new act went into effect, all proposed group homes have been challenged, and this is the first family home proposed since that act became law, White said.

"So, until there is a definitive resolution in the law and we've exhausted all our appeals, we'll send them in for variances," White said.

"There still remains a question of whether they're exempt from zoning," he added.

According to White, a group home consists of up to six adults living together under the supervision of an administrator. A small group home is when a traditional family agrees to take in independent adults, as in the proposed Allen Road home.

Eichorst said earlier the home would help increase the family income while providing a home for two elderly women.

A CONSUMER TIP

A way to reduce loss of heat in the winter is to install proper insulation. In a cold to moderately cold climate, such as Michigan, a homeowner can save enough on his or her fuel bill to recover the cost of the insulation within eight to twelve years.

Phillip said, If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest, and he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God...they went down both into the water...and he baptized him." Acts 8:36-38. "Whosoever therefore confesseth me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven. Borg-Warner tentative plat approval postponed

By Marilyn Trumper

Pine Knob Investment Co. and Borg-Warner Equities remain at odds on future development of the Pine Knob Complex.

The Independence Township Board, at the Oct. 20 meeting, balked at granting Borg-Warner Equities preliminary plat approval for its proposed Pine Knob Manor East Subdivision when Pine Knob alleged "over 80 things wrong" with the plat.

Joseph F. Galvin, attorney for Borg-Warner, repeatedly asked the board to approve the plat as it "meets every requirement outlined in the township's ordinance."

Galvin also pointed out that Borg had included every suggestion made by the planning commission, planners and building department and that the plat had been on the drawing board since last February.

Anthony Locricchio, attorney for Pine Knob, asked the board to table a decision until its new planner had time to review the proposed plat, as there are "several violations of the statute and ordinance of such a serious nature that the proposed road and lot layout, we propose, is impossible to do."

Locricchio charged the retention pond Borg proposes to use is currently half-filled with natural runoff and would be unable to accept the increased volume of water that would result from development.

In addition, he alleged faulty zoning and cited several areas where the sewer storm and water lines cross Pine Knob property without the legal documentation to do so.

Locricchio's major argument centered around what he termed the "rape and bastardization" of scenic easements if the development is allowed.

"In 1972 or '73, when Pine Knob's master plan was approved, Pine Knob exchanged scenic easements at the insistence of the board. That land must not be torn apart, have earth moved or trees destroyed. But it will be if that road (planned by Borg) is to be brought up to county specifications," Locricchio said.

"The condominium owners bought believing this land would not be bastardized or raped. If that happens, we'll have to consider the contract void."

After brief discussion, board members on the written advice of building director Kenneth Delbridge, voted unanimously to table the matter until the next meeting, giving the new planner time to review the controversial plat.

Supervisor James B. Smith, Treasurer Frederick Ritter, Clerk Christopher Rose and Trustee Larence Kozma voted "yes," trustees Dale Stuart and Daniel

Travis were absent and Trustee William Vandermark abstained from the vote as he is an employee of Borg and Beck, a division of Borg-Warner.

The matter is next up for discussion at the Nov. 3 meeting, 7:30 p.m., Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Here's Herb

by Herb Rose

The Owl and the Pussy-Cat:

Talk about an unlikely match...

I HAVE OBSERVED more than once that conversations with my resident librarian on children's literature lead to some bizarre mental convolutions. We were discussing fictional owls, the other day, which were apparently the focal point of a symposium Anne was putting together for the pre-school set.

I was commenting on the ramifications of an unlikely shipboard romance that, for years has been foisted off on children here and in other countries. The scenario of this tryst starts:

The Owl and the Pussy-Cat went to sea
In a beautiful pea-green boat.

For starters, Romeo and Juliet's family problems pale when compared to what the couple on this cruise had to overcome. Actually, any meaningful relationship between an owl and a pussy-cat seems unlikely.

I would think that an aggressive owl approaching a cat with a great flapping of wings, and calling "Who, Who, Who," would provoke a response of "Not me, you wide-eyed wierdo. Lay one feather on me and I'll scratch you bald."

Apparently the cat was more acquiescent than one would first think. She is purported to have said:

"Oh! Let us be married, too long
We have tarried: But what shall
We do for a ring?"

If her lament, "Too long we have tarried," means what I think it means, I find it curious she should be worried about a ring. At any rate, the owl apparently decided to do the right thing, but then:

They sailed away for a year and a day,
To the land where the Bong-tree grows;

Now I don't know what the attraction of a Bong-tree is, but a "year and a day" seems an overly long time to sail after the girl has made an abundantly clear necessity for haste.

It's rather like an abortion clinic requiring a 12-month waiting period. This odyssey continues:

And there in a wood a Piggy-wig stood,
With a ring at the end of his nose.
"Dear Pig, are you willing to sell
For one shilling your ring?"

Said the Piggy, "I will."

The owl must have been the Diamond Jim Brandy of the feathered set—a real spender. I don't know what the exchange rate at the time of the proposed transaction, but a shilling used to be worth approximately 12 cents.

When I was married, even an expensive ring would cost two or three times that much. The conclusion of this saga notes:

So they took it away, and were Married next day by the Turkey
Who lives on the hill.

I would think that would be the final blow to the poor girl's shattered ego. A mixed marriage, a 366-day wait, a dime store ring and then the marriage is solemnized by a Turkey.

The next time I marry a librarian, I'm going to make sure she wrote her thesis on something logical—like "Pornographic Literature of the Late 1970s."

Merry marchers

On Sunday, Oct. 18, volunteers gladly

WALKED for SCAMP

This group of merry marchers for SCAMP hams it up a bit while crossing over the I-75 overpass on Holcomb Road. This year, SCAMP WALKERS again outnumbered previous years and the pledges were the highest ever, says Pat Loveless, co-chairperson of the event. The 689 walkers gathered $20,036 in pledges for the summer camp program for children who may have special needs:

Feet clad in walking shoes are everywhere to be seen as the walkers hike either three miles or 10.

Chiefs charge ahead to victories

It was all Clarkston from the opening kickoff of the freshman game to the final play of the varsity contest Oct. 18 when the Clarkston Chiefs Little League football teams squared off against the Braves of Walled Lake.

In fact, the Chiefs' freshman, junior varsity and varsity units all posted impressive shutouts in the three contests played in a chilling rain and wind at the Clarkston High School athletic field. The scores: The freshman Chiefs posted a 12-0 victory, the junior varsity rolled to a 18-0 triumph and the varsity capped the Clarkston sweep with a 19-0 win.

The victories enabled all three Chiefs teams to even their season records at 2-2.

The Chiefs will wrap up their 1981 football season at the CHS field Nov. 1 when they square off against the Wolverines of Madison Heights. Game time for the first game—the freshman contest—is noon.

—Al Zawacky

Jerry Lawrence (34) cuts around the left side en route to another first down for the Clarkston Chiefs' freshman squad. The Chiefs went on to win, 12-0.

Music, sweet music

Marching along with the Clarkston High School Band

EDITOR'S NOTE: Clarkston News MAGAZINE staff writer Al Zawacky accompanied the Clarkston High School Marching Band on its trip to Plymouth Oct. 17 when the band competed in the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park Invitational marching band competition. He writes here about the experience.

Band Director Cliff Chapman's amplified voice echoed across the Clarkston High School athletic field, chiding at times, correcting at times, encouraging occasionally as the band rehearsed its musical repertoire.

When the rehearsal was over, Chapman stood at the base of the grandstands speaking in sharp staccato tones to the band members assembled below.

"We can do it," he exhorted. "We can do it, I know we can. But it's going to take an outstanding effort from everyone..."

There was talk of point spreads, execution, dedication and 100-percent efforts. With only a few minor modifications, it could have passed for a football coach's pre-game speech.

"OK, now everyone is going to have some time to eat dinner before we leave."

It was about 4:30 p.m., and three buses were scheduled to leave the school at 5 for the one-hour-and-15-minute drive to Plymouth. A sack lunch was the only dinner that time would permit.

We arrived pretty much on schedule, and the next half hour was spent unpacking and assembling equipment. The rain that had been threatening most of the day finally arrived and the sky grew dark, but the band hardly seemed to notice.

"OK, it looks like the rain has started," Chapman said. "We're going to have to take the plumes out. If it stops raining later, we can put them back in."

Each plume was removed from each band member's hat and placed in a plastic bag. And then, oblivious to the rain, Chapman and the band continued with their warm-up.

Their gear assembled and ready to go, a few members of the Clarkston High School Marching Band drum corps engage in a little small talk before the start of the performance.

After a few minutes of playing and re-playing, the director threw his hands up in exasperation.

"You know what the problem is? Your heads just aren't here tonight. I'm going to give you all five minutes amongst yourselves to get it together, and then we'll try it again."

For the next five minutes they stood there in the dark, in the gentle rain, some talking in small groups, others concentrating alone on the performance—the musical D-Day now less than an hour away.

Finally, it was time for the last warm-up of the evening inside the school, where bands were entering and leaving with assembly-line regularity—one band out, another band in.

A precise tuning of each instrument, another run through the repertoire and a last minute pep-talk followed.

It was then time to march outside to the field, marching in line to the solemn beat of the drum like soldiers to battle. There was tension in the air as the band halted at the entrance to the field and waited its turn, flags fluttering in the breeze, instruments at the ready. What little talking there was came in hushed tones.

Far away from home, the Clarkston High School Marching Band was advancing onto the field. The PA announcer's voice introduced the visitors from Clarkston to polite applause, and in a few moments their music was flowing across the field.

How long is an entire performance? Only 11 minutes. Yet under the watchful eyes of the judges, those few minutes can seem like an eternity.

Chapman pondered the final tallies: Durand in first place with 79.90 points; Lakeview in second with 79.40; Clarkston in third at 63.40; John Glenn in fourth at 53.30 and Eisenhower in fifth at 48.05.

He was not pleased with what he had seen on the field, and the big gap between third and second was especially disquieting. Prior to leaving on the buses, he let his band know in no uncertain terms how he felt.

One of the three buses broke down in the parking lot, which made for a late and extremely cozy ride back.

It was about 1 a.m. when Chapman sat in his office at the end of the day and reflected on what he had seen.

"We should have had 65 points at least," he began. "But still, we've never scored this high before at this point in the season."

"I thought we did the cleanest marching job overall that we've ever done, and the music did have its moments. And when you consider the weather conditions and the travel, overall I thought we did pretty darn good."

But like most individuals in his field, Chapman pursues perfection. There is so much room for improvement, so much talent still slumbering...

"This particular group," he says, "has much more potential than they've shown on the field. Right now we're kind of like a stained glass window without glue to hold the pieces together—all the right things are there and they sparkle occasionally, but we just can't get the whole thing together."

Speaking as a former band member (trumpet), but making no pretensions of expertise, I enjoyed the show and appreciate the talent and hard work involved.

And there are still two opportunities to see the band perform. They'll be playing at halftime of the varsity football team's Oct. 30 and Nov. 6 home games.

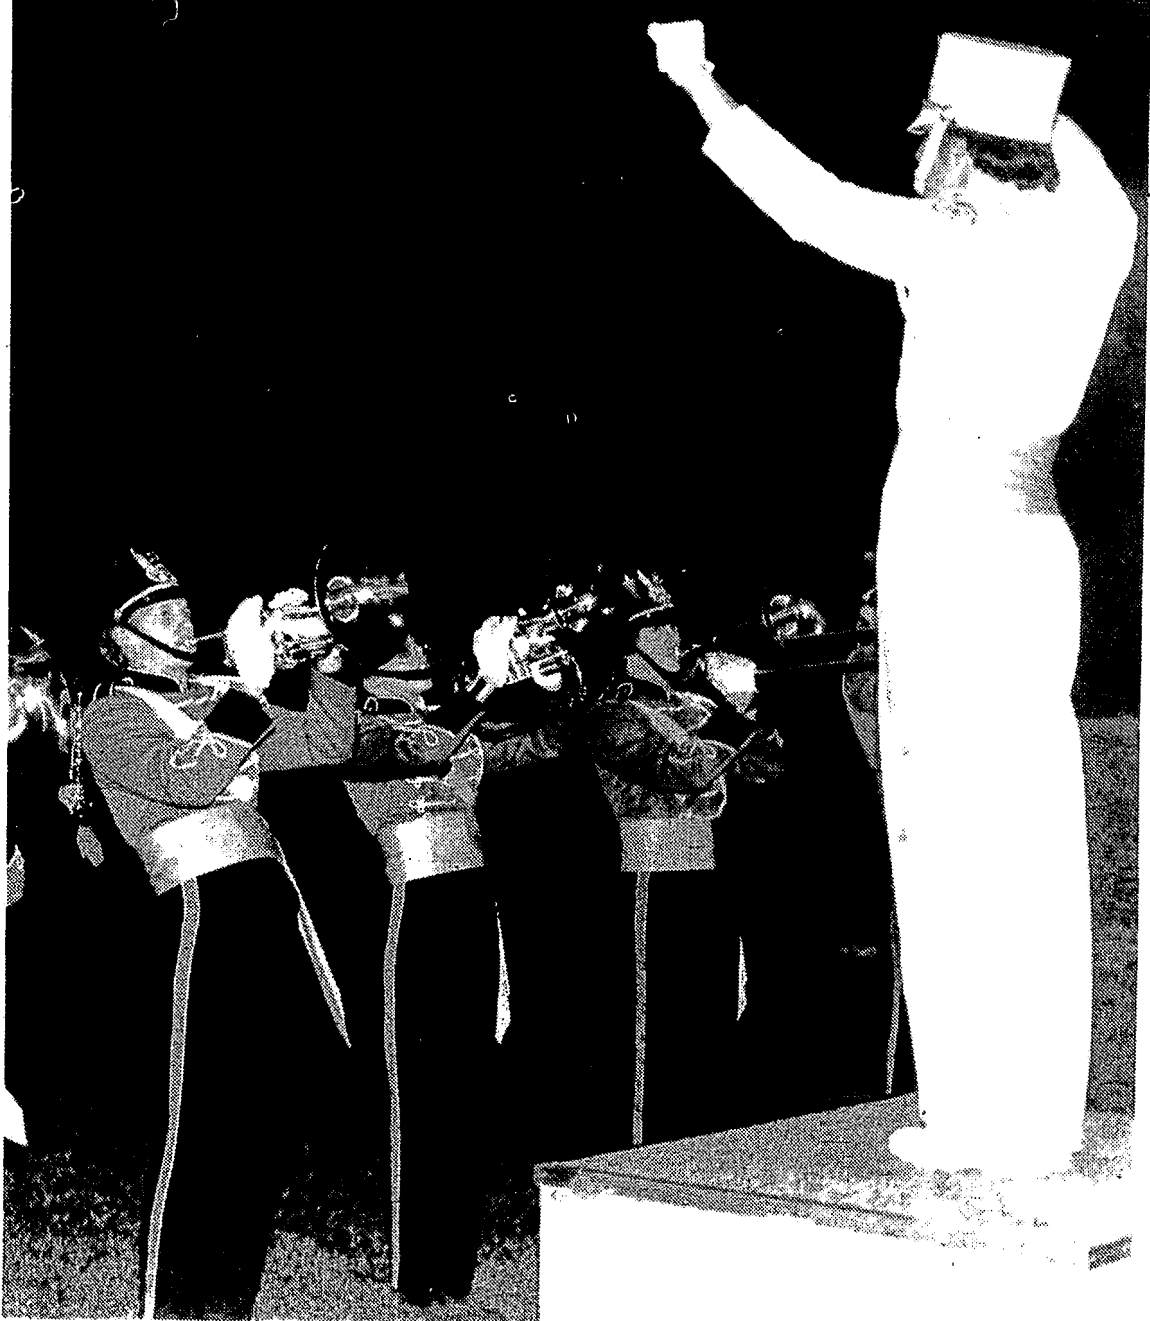

Band Director Cliff Chapman hushes the band at a diminuendo during the last rehearsal before the performance.

Student teacher Paul Schreiber makes a few adjustments on Shelly Monroe's uniform prior to leaving for the field.

Marc Hewko, Audrey Chenoweth and Todd Johnston [from left] respond to drum major Brad Collins' exhortations during the band's performance under the watchful eyes of the judges.

When the Boy Scouts held their Fall Camporee the weekend of Oct. 16 at the Bald Mountain Recreation Area in Orion Township, Troop 189 from Clarkston was there. The boys spent two chilly nights at camp, had some rain and some sunshine for the varied activities. There were competitive games that tested their scouting skills, a campfire attended by the 400 campers and work clearing a one-and-one-half mile cross-country ski trail on the property. It was all in keeping with the theme of the

Boy Scouts put code to action at Fall Camporee

Dragging an old stump away from the proposed ski trail is a task Craig Frasa tackles with gusto. Craig lives on Warbler Drive in Independence Township.

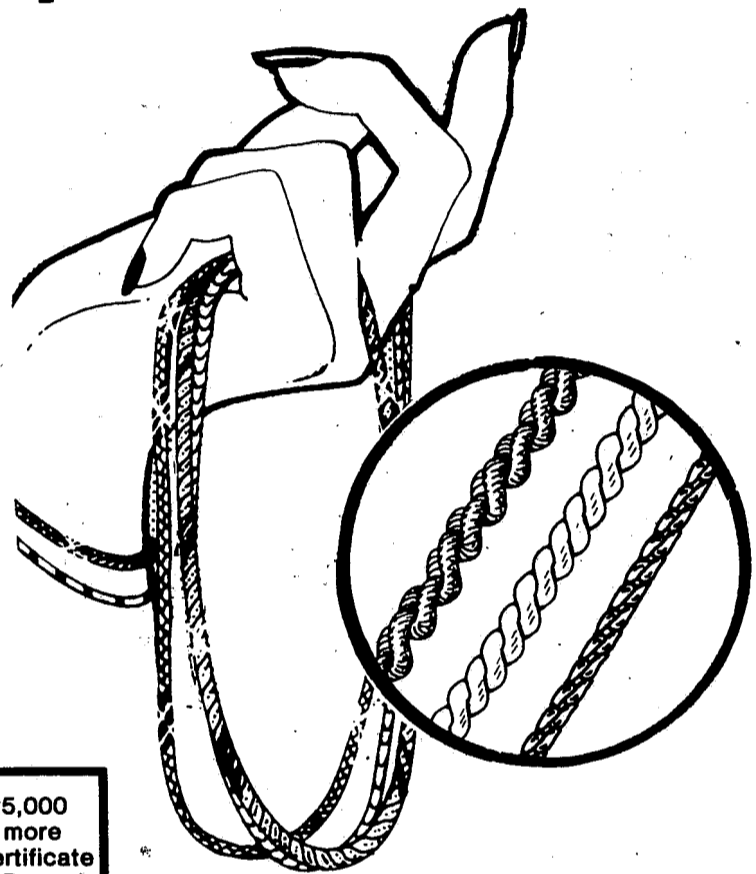

Paul Latham digs out an old tree limb, then picks it up and tosses it off the trail to prepare the area for the winter cross-country skiers. Paul lives on Felix Drive in Independence Township.
