Village adopts stronger arcade law

By Marilyn Trumper

Just three weeks after proposing a list of amendments to strengthen the ordinance regulating arcades, Clarkston's Village Council unanimously adopted those changes—adding a few to the list including one that will require a public hearing.

With little discussion at the Nov. 9 meeting, the council gave its stamp of approval to the following regulatory amendments:

•An arcade cannot be located within 500 feet of a residence or a licensed establishment serving alcoholic beverages by the glass.

•The village council has the alternative to issue a 90-day probationary license. In addition, if the council finds the business is operating properly it can issue a complete license, which must be renewed annually.

•License fees are $1,000 annually for the first 25 machines and $500 for the next 25 machines.

•License fees are $50 annually for each proprietor.

•The council can require a uniformed security guard as a condition of issuing the license, if it maintains such guards are necessary to maintain order and assist in crowd control, traffic or parking.

•The council may require minimum lighting throughout the premises as a safety precaution for patrons as a condtion of issuing the license.

•Arcades may not open from midnight to 9:30 a.m. weekdays and from 1 to 9 a.m. Saturday, Sunday and holidays, or from 8 a.m. to midnight on the last high school day of classes for students in the Clarkston School District.

•No one under the age of 17 is allowed in the building during the hours and months when school is in session.

According to Village Clerk Bruce Rogers, the amendments become law 20 days after publication. No public hearing needs to be held for the amendments, because they are regulatory amendments, not zoning amendments, he said.

However, one amendment is slated to be both regulatory and an amendment to zoning, the one which says, "...the proposed business may not be within 500 feet of a residence and-or a licensed establishment serving alcoholic beverages by the glass..." will require a public hearing, Rogers said.

The hearing date will be set after planning commission review, he added.

The council's adoption of the amendments rides on the wings of Robert Warrington's proposal to open a video room in the village.

Warrington, who requested the council hold his license application for 30 days as he searches for a new location, has since opened a game room south of the village on M-15, near Dixie Highway.

Although he is embroiled in a legal dispute with Independence Township over that game room, and voluntarily closed the shop's doors until the courts make a decision in the case, Warrington indicated last week that Clarkston is still a targeted site for a video room.

Court decision to settle M-15 arcade fate

The new Game Room adjacent to Clarkston True Value Hardware on M-15, which opened and then shut down three days later, will remain closed until the court decides if its establishment violates the the Independence Township zoning ordinance.

That's the word from township attorney Richard Campbell.

On Nov. 11, Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Francis X. O'Brien issued a restraining order closing the game room's until attorneys for the township and business owner Robert Warrington argue their case. That move is expected to take place within the next two weeks, Campbell said.

"It's just like the (Detroit) Lions," Warrington said following the hearing. "Every time you go out to play you plan a victory. You just can't win every time."

Warrington voluntarily closed his doors when the township threatened to seek an injunction ordering

Independence Township's Building Department Director Kenneth Delbridge says the shop violated the zoning and building ordinance by not receiving the necessary permits required for building and wiring, and because conditional approval was not received from the zoning board of appeals before opening.

The township zoning ordinance allows areades only in enclosed malls. Its hours of operation, number of machines inside, etc., are outlined by the zoning board after approval is given, Delbridge said.

Warrington has argued his business is not an 'arcade,'rather that it is a 'game room,' similar to those located in Little Ceasars, the Deer Lake Racquet Club and Howe's Lanes.

The 25 machines located in the former hair salon next to the hardware store are not an independent business, but are part of the hardware store, he said. Entry between the two is made via a door in the shops' common wall.

'Mover and shaker'

A yellow Tonka bulldozer is the gift presented to Dr. James O'Neill by Roastmaster Robert Vandermark (left) at the end of O'Neill's roast by the Independence Township Republican Club. About 130 people attended the bash at Deer Lake Racquet Club Friday night. Inscribed on the bulldozer's shovel is "Dr. James O'Neill, The Mover and Shaker of Clarkston, 1981 2nd Annual Roast of the Independence Township Republicans." Until it came unglued, a poster hung behind the podium which read: "We're Nuts About Dr. O'Neill, Let's Roast Him." Clarkston News editor Kathy Greenfield writes about the affectionate tribute to O'Neill on Page 6.

Thanksgiving service Nov. 25

Round up the family and plan to meet with friends in Thanksgiving celebration Wednesday, Nov. 25, at 7:30 p.m., as the Independence Township Pastors' Association hosts a special service at Clarkston United Methodist Church.

The public's invited to worship at the church, located at 6600 Waldon, Independence Township, hear the words of the Rev. John Dister of Colombiere Center in Springfield Township, and enjoy the music of joint church choirs comprised of adults and children, according to the Rev. James Balfour.

for conferences

More parents than ever before in the history of Clarkston High School turned out for parent-teacher conferences—even with the decline in school enroll-

"We're really happy about the turnout," said Principal Dom Mauti. "It really is the only way for parents to find out what is going on, to meet and talk with the teachers and to ask questions."

At parent-teacher conferences the second week in October, the high school reported 2,378 conferences over last year's total of 2,024 during the same fall term.

"We think the fact that progress reports were sent home to every student's home a week before the conferences had a lot to do with it," Mauti said. "Attendance at fall conferences is always higher than in the spring. I think parents are eager to find out what's happening with their kids.'

Also, Mauti said, the high school's using new strategy, putting all the teachers in one room, instead of forcing parents to walk throughout the school looking for different classrooms.

'We've been doing that for awhile," he said. "It seems to be working real well. If a parent wants to see five teachers, they just line up before that teacher, and wait until spot is open."

Mauti elaborates on another reason for the increase in parents at the conferences.

"We have always sent home progress reports, but always to the kids who doing poorly, and always before, or after conferences, not on time with conferences. Now, we're sending them to every students, regardless of whether they're doing 'A'or 'E' work,'

Residents in dumps over new ditch

By Marilyn Trumper

Over a dozen residents along Sashabaw Road are angered with the Oakland County Road Commission's work on a ditch along their front yards, and are sking for repairs to what they see as a "very dangerous safety hazard."

Armed with a petition signed by 13 of his neighbors, Martin H. Bakken's spearheading the move, asking the county to install a culvert, cover it up and lay sod.

"Initially when they started to dig I didn't know what was happening," Bakken said. "Now, if they were to fill in that ditch, it would be an admittance of gross mistake. (The county) will never do that.

"So, I'm going to ask them to put in culverts and sod. My tack is they didn't finish the job.

During the first week in November, the road commission dug a drainage ditch in front of seven homes on Sashabaw Road, Independence Township, over residents' protests they suffered no drainage problems, according to another neighbor, Treat Marsh.

'There never was much water in there anyway,". said Marsh. "The land around here is all gravel, everything drains well. I've never really had to worry except in the spring when there's a thaw and the ground is still frozen.

"Now (the road commission's) put in this ditch. It's unsightly, they tore up my sod I put in when I moved here, and the kids now have to walk along our lawns to the school bus—the ditch is where their path used to be," March said.

In the petition, Bakken outlines what he and his neighbors see as hazards resulting from the ditch and said, "...a ditch, besides being an eyesore in front of our homes, lowering the value of our property, would also be a very dangerous public safety hazard for cars that have had a tendency to veer off the curve of our road.

The residents stress they "...hold the Oakland County Road Commission liable for any injury or death that occurs in front of our homes. This is certainly a case of curing a minor problem by creating a major disaster."

Dennis Pajot, spokesperson for the Oakland County Road Commission, said the issue is to come before the board of commissioners for comment and that a request for a staff report will be delivered before a decision is made.

"As I understand it, the ditch was dug to eliminate road icing problems and allow the water to run off," Pajot said. "The residents have been told this, and if they're not happy with that response, they can go to a meeting.'

Bakken, steadfast in his pursuit to see the ditch filled, says he'll be on hand when the issue is up for

According to Pajot, no agenda date has been set for the matter. The commission meets every Monday afternoon, and would hear the issue Nov. 23 at the earliest, he said.

Independence closes deal on Maybee Park

After more than a year of negotiations, Independence Township has formally purchased the Maybee Road Park. The deal was closed Nov. 12, according to Treasurer Frederick Ritter.

The 14.02 acre parcel cost $125,491, paid for with Community Development Block Grant funds.

Envisioned as a neighborhood park, the acreage is one day to offer ball diamonds, soccer fields, barbecue pits and picnic tables, but will not see any kind of development until spring, according to Timothy Doyle, director of Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department.

'Our first priority is to secure the property—put a fence around it—and we can't do that because we have no personnel," Doyle said.

Parks and Rec is annually forced to lay off labor when it closes its seasonal parks, which reopen in the spring, he said.

"In the spring we'll fence the property and begin mowing and clearing the land. We're working with a minimum budget," he said. "Perhaps we can put in some grills and picnic tables."

Independence Township has spent over a year waiting for the owners of the land to solve their legal dispute concerning sale of the acreage. The board dismissed an offer from a township resident to sell a parcel of his own property, and waited out annual cuts in federal revenue.

"I feel very good," said Doyle, on the sale. "We have prime acreage and good plans for it."

For art's sake

Bargain hunters, treasure hunters and those determined to spruce up the abode before the holiday season have a place to be Saturday, Nov. 21.

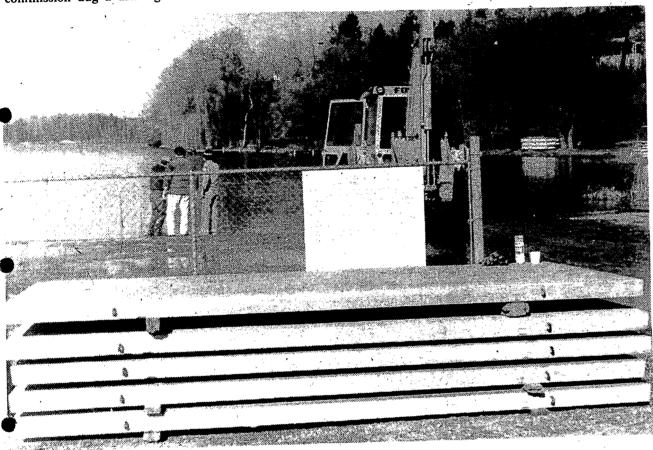

That's the evening of the benefit Art Auction sponsored by the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee at Spring Lake Country Club, 6060 Maybee, Independence Township.

The works up for bidding are to be on display at 7 p.m. and the auction is to begin at 8 p.m.

Donation for a ticket is $1 and there will be a door prize, champagne punch and a cash bar.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or in advance at Tierra Arts and Designs, 20 S. Main, Clarkston, or by calling 625-4007 or 625-4434.

Boat launch launching

The boat launch at under construction at Deer Lake Beach was expected to be completed last week. The two-day job included leveling off the land for proper elevation and the installation of 10 cement slabs, according to Jim White, general manager of Advanced Concrete Products of Highland Township. The work, which was bid at $5,995, is to be paid for with Community Development money. The new ramp replaces a rusted portable landing strip. In early September. Deer Lake residents formerly opposed to the project gave their stamp of aproval to the boat launch and turned their frustrations instead toward the Department of Natural Resources, asking for stronger controls on lake traffic and high boat speeds.

SCAMP raises $42,210 for 1981 program

Lew Wint ripped up the check for $42,210 and pulled $5 out of his wallet.

The Nov. 9 school board agenda said, "Donation for SCAMP," explained Wint, who serves as chairperson of the SCAMP Funding Corp., and he wanted to make a donation instead of a full payment for the fiveweek summer camp program conducted through the school district for children in northern Oakland County who may be handicapped or who may have special needs.

When everyone stopped laughing, Wint said the actual check had been accepted by the school district earlier and he had been provided with a "dummy check" for the presentation.

And then, he became serious about SCAMP. which served over 200 students last summer.

"It's the first time in the history of SCAMP where we had no outside funds," he said. "I'm very proud of the people who have worked so hard so we could have these kinds of funds.'

In the biggest fund raiser, the WALK for SCAMP in October, over $13,000 had been collected and another $7,000 was expected, he said.

"If we can continue to have the support of the community as we have in the past, we shall continue to have SCAMP," Wint said.

The total cost of SCAMP this year was $56,369. and $14,159 was provided by tuition payments, Wint said.

Roast glows with tributes

by Kathy Greenfield

In the three-plus years I've worked as a reporter and as editor at The Clarkston News, there has been one name that consistently pops up in the most unexpected places-Dr. James O'Neill.

He has stood behind the scenes in getting young people started in the medical profession, helping parents cope with the grief of losing a child, helping fellow doctors get a foothold in the community, helping entire families in times of crisis and visiting the homes of older people who are ill.

So, it was no surprise when some of the roasters couldn't quite bring themselves to say bad things about the local pediatrician at the Independence Township Republican Club's fund-raising bash Friday night.

There were some funny moments, but the roast's glow came from the affection and respect Clarkstonites have for O'Neill.

His brother-in-law Dr. Steven Werner revealed O'Neill's penchant for gardening. In Werner's quest to grow a better garden than O'Neill, a greenhouse helped give his plants the edge, he said.

"And just when the corn was three feet high and the tassles were about ready to emerge, he (O'Neill) let a cow loose in my garden."

Then there was Clarkston school's athletic director Paul Tungate. He poked fun at O'Neill for helping out during football games and deciding with the roll of the dice what treatment should be. He also blasted the doctor for not knowing his "3 R's."

"I couldn't read the name of the boy, his physical condition or the name of the doctor," laughed Tungate while describing a sports physical filled out by O'Neill.

Keith Hallman wrote a letter to be read at the roast about O'Neill spending more time drinking coffee and answering the phone at Hallman's Apothecary than at his office when he first came to town.

The "purple medicine" O'Neill prescribes for entire families at a time influenced the drug company's stock splitting seven times since the doctor began telling his patients to use the stuff, Hallman said.

Tom Rademacher asked the crowd, "How do you roast a living legend? Pretty difficult isn't it?

Rademacher did, however, get in a jab or two about some gifts from O'Neill to his wife.

'A few years ago, he gave his wife a beautiful tractor which went well with the heifer he had given her the year before," he laughed.

Gerald McNally talked about O'Neill's Irish heritage, and presented him with a brand new urine specimen bottle.

"You can drink beer in one of these all the way to the Mackinac Bridge and no one will stop you," he

The Rev. Charles Cushing let the crowd know O'Neill spent much of his spare time working on the stone wall at the new St. Daniel's Catholic Church

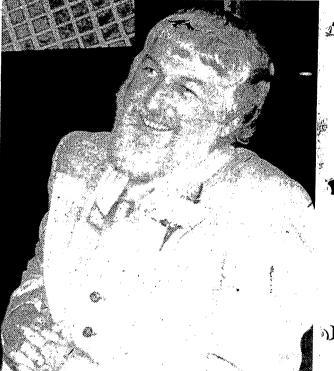

He managed a few quick jabs at the doctor, though, including O'Neill's diagnosis of Cushing's trick knee "after the 32nd visit."

State Rep. Claude Trim (D-Springfield Township) almost made it as a roaster when he said could tell what O'Neill had been doing by the way he smelled at a gathering at Roma Hall...but then he quickly added O'Neill had been putting hay in the barn for livestock.

Herb Rose painted a picture of an witch doctor rattling gourds and saying chants.

So, there you have it. At the end, O'Neill said someone told him anyone who agrees to be roasted deserves everything he gets.

The crowd of about 130 people provided the stan-

Blow to credibility

In the space we assign for the column 'If It Fitz' each week, Jim Fitzgerald takes on The Detroit News.

Since Fitz is on the Detroit Free Press payroll, one might conclude he's cutting up his competition with his especially sharp pen.

Of course, he is, but too he's making a pitch for accuracy in journalism. We recognize the latter may not have been foremost in his mind.

What the Detroit News did was print 30,000 copies of a paper telling of a successful lift off of the space ship Columbia Nov. 4. It was very descriptive, even poetic.

"Trying to get there first" was the lame excuse for the terrible inaccuracy.

Though not as obvious, it was not unlike the two newspapers' descriptions of the weather of opening day of trout season last spring. One said it was rainy, the other told of bright sunshine glistening on rippling streams.

One was wrong, but I've since forgotten which one. Maybe the same will be true of The News' writing-editing mistake.

In the meantime, the mark went down in both the column on credibilty of the News and of Journalism.

We are not pure, of course, Recently The Clarkston News carried two letters, both signed; critical of a school testing procedure (4. 96)

A belated (after the paper was printed):

check found neither person existed. Someone lied to make an erroneous point, intended to harm, and we lost credibility.

by Jim Sherman

We didn't really need their help. Our eight writers will err on occasion, though all work very hard to "report it like it is". Too, we label nonnews for direct attackers. Bylines or labels are a way of preventing even more mistakes, so we use them frequently.

In this cynical, critical world (made even moreso in these depression days) the public is generally down on the "press". As a profession our credibility is about 83rd on a list of 100.T

Thus we don't need honest imistakes let alone the dishonest ones.

The kids at Andersonville Elementary School have been busy as, well, Santa's elves.

They are making Christmasy items to sell at the School's third annual Arts and Crafts Fair on Monday, Nov. 23.

Hours of the event are 7 to 9 p.m. at the school located at 10359 Andersonville, Springfield Township.

In addition to giftables made by the children, there will be lots of adult craftspersons with works for sale, plus food, new and used items and more.

First with non-happening

The last few weeks, radio stations have been broadcasting a Detroit News commercial in which the first guy asks the second guy if he read about the great game played last night.

What game?" asks the second guy. He didn't see anything about any game in his newspaper.

The intent of the radio commercial is to persuade eners the the News reports news not reported by the Free Press. I'm persuaded,

Last Wednesday, in its first afternoon edition, for the second time in less than two years, the News used its front page to report news that not only wasn't reported in the Free Press, it wasn't reported in any other newspaper in the entire world. What a scoop!

It was in May 1980 that the News reported the indictment of a judge who hasn't been indicted yet. It took two investigative reporters to accomplish that spendid bit of journalism. They did it by writing what happened at a press conference before the conference was held.

Many people expected the News to win a Pulitzer Prize for reporting a press conference announcement that was never announced. But the Pulitzer competition was too stiff in 1980. That was the year the Washington Post won for reporting the drug problems of a boy who never existed.

The News may have better Pulitzer luck this year. thanks to its exclusive report on the second launching of the Columbia space shuttle. People who read other newspapers last Wednesday, or depended on TV or radio for the latest news, thought the Columbia never got off the ground because of clogged filters. Only readers of the Detroit News were informed that the launch was successful.

Reporting direct from Cape Canaveral, a News riter described in lyrical detail how the Columbia looked as it disappeared into space, riding a plume of white hot flame. It was an inspired piece of writing, rich in adjectives, and far superior to the rather mundane prose used 18 months earlier to describe the indictment of the judge who wasn't indicted. This vast improvement in the Detroit News' ability to report news that didn't happen should score points with the Pulitzer judges.

Naturally, many people asked why other newspapers and the electronic media didn't report the second launching of the Columbia. Their explanation was they didn't report it because it didn't happen. The same old excuse.

Any newspaper can report news that happened. It takes an unusual type of publication to report news that didn't happen. The newspaper than can do that has earned the right to claim that it reports news not reported in other newspapers. I think this is thee idea the Detroit News is trying to get across in its radio commercials about yesterday's game.

by Jim Fitzgerald

The guy who hasn't read about the game obviously suscribes to a newspaper that reported it was rained out. But who wants to read about a postponed game? An enterprising newspaper knows all ball games, like all Columbia launchings, are pretty much alike, so what the heck.

It is as simple for a sports reporter to create a ball game out of his imagination as it is for an investigative reporter to create a press conference out of his raincoat. The great thing about writing news before it happens is the headstart it gives printers. The first edition can be printed and ready for distribution the second the ball game ends—or in the middle of the fifth inning.

That's how scoops are made. And if the space launch is postponed, that's how radio commercials

"What space launch?"

"The one reported in the Detroit News. It was on the front page. If you take the other newspaper, you didn't read about it. You also missed the report on the seventh game of the World Series. The Yankees won, with Thomas Dewey pitching.

'If you read the News, you know you might be reading news that never happened. And remember, you can't read it anywhere else.".

ko: Breaks hurt Wolves

At first glance, not a bad season.

A final record above the .500 mark at 5-4/A third-place finish in the Greater Oakland Activities League. Five players named first team All-League.

And yet-better things were hoped for from the Clarkston High School varsity football team in the 1981 gridiron campaign.

In the following interview with Clarkston News sports writer Al Zawacky, Head Coach Walt Wyniemko fields some questions and offers his comments and observations on the just-completed season.

NEWS: Five and four overall, 3-2 in the league. After all that "challenge to repeat" stuff in the beginning of the season (to repeat as league champions), you and your staff must be a little disappointed.

WYNIEMKO: That's a hard question to answer. When you're in close ball games, like the ones we were in, disappointed that you didn't win some of those close ones, yes. But disappointed because the kids didn't play well, no. Our kids gave us 100 percent.

You know—the difference between a winning season and a losing season can be a milimeter long. What does that mean? Only that the difference of one break could have been the difference in us being 9-0 instead of 5-4. We were in every ball game, we played very hard, but we didn't get the breaks that we needed to go 9-0. But that's what makes football exciting—the intangibles. The unknown beating the known, David beating Goliath.

Hey, there was nobody that blew Clarkston off the map. We were in every ball game. Everybody who played Clarkston was glad to get the game behind them. I remember Lahser's coach telling his kids that they beat a heck of a football team. When you lose to the league champions (West Bloomfield) 6-2—nobody else did that in our league.

NEWS: But some people feel those games could have been won with a little more inspiration, a little more leadership. And that reflects on the coaching staff, whose job it is to instill that in the players. You and your staff have been criticized for being too lowkey.

WYNIEMKO: What takes place on the field and in the locker room is completely different. If people are looking for visual antics on the sidelines, they're not going to see them from this staff. We don't believe

Coach Walt Wyniemko: "If people are looking for visual antics...they're not going to see that from this staff. We don't believe in it."

in it. If that's what they use to critique us as to whether or not we're doing our job, that's their

I think this coaching staff is excellent, and did everything it could to get the most from the talent and personalities we had.

NEWS: The league—it wasn't a very good year for the GOAL (Greater Oakland Activities League) outside the conference. You might even say it was an embarrassing year. A team like Rochester goes 4-1 in the GOAL, and can't win a single non-league game. West Bloomfield, undefeated in the league, is 2-2 outside the conference. For the second year in a row, Rochester Adams beats all three GOAL teams it plays for its only victories of the season...

WYNIEMKO: I'll say one thing right now—I'm glad we don't play Rochester Adams anymore. That's been a terrible football game for Clarkston. Every time we play them, they have everything to gain and we have nothing to gain. We'd rather play the Donderos, the Groves, games where we have something to win and if we lose, it's not an upset. That's exciting football for the community, the coaches, the kids. It's awfully hard to get excited about playing somebody like Rochester Adams, who traditionally has not been a good football team.

As far as our league is concerned, I'll go back to the Andover situation I've mentioned before, where a guy who was in our league and who had been coaching for a long time (Frank Buford) sat down with us and said, hey, you guys are in a darn good football league. He said some of the people in the SMA (the league Buford currently coaches in after leaving Bloomfield Hills Andover and the GOAL) are over-rated, and said that everytime you play Clarkston, West Bloomfield, you know you've played a good football team.

NEWS: What about the future of the program? Looking at the small JV team and the two freshman teams, the varsity may be facing some hard times.

WYNIEMKO: How can anybody be a judge of that? High school football is played with enthusiam, heart and determination. We've had All-Leaguers who have been very small, we had an All-Leaguer this year who didn't play last year because he broke his leg, but he wanted to do the job. We've had guys who have been willing to pay a price. And if our guys want to pay a price, Clarkston football can be a powerhouse every year.

OL' NO. 33 STOOD there at midcourt in the Sashabaw Junior High: gymnasium, arms folded and whistle dangling around his neck.

On either side of him, 10 teenage boys were battling, struggling, trying to impress. Up and down. Jump shot. Layup. Rebound.

. The man at center court watched the action intently. His expression betrayed not a trace of emotion.

"This is the hardest part," he began. "Having to cut. We've still got over 30 kids here...'

Difficult, yes. But you could still tell the Dan Fife wouldn't have preferred to be anywhere else but right there on the Sashabaw Junior High basketball court.

"OH, YEAH," HE says when asked if it feels good to be coaching again. "It's good to be back—I've missed it for three years, right from day one. I'm really enjoying it.

How many junior highs have a former Big Ten assistant coach heading up their basketball program, anyway?

"I guess it's an advantage," Fife says: "But that's what it's all about. I'm here because I think I have something to give to the kids.

"I don't think I'll have any problem relating to them. I worked in summer camps at Michigan for three years and worked with all age groups. When it gets right down to it, basketball is basketball and basics are basics, whether it's at the college or the junior high level."

"That's what I like about this group—they seem to be going back to the way it used to be—hard work and we' instead of me. A lot of these kids played football—maybe that accounts for their aggressiveness. But so far, I've been impressed.'

Fire blamed on vagrant

A vagrant trying to keep warm in the early morning hours of Nov. Il is believed responsible for starting the fire that caused an unknown amount of damage to a house under construction on Chestnut Hill Drive, according to Capt. Dale Bailey of the Independence Township Fire Department.

"That's what we think," Bailey said. "It's hard to figure out what kids would be doing out at that time of the morning."

The fire was spotted and extinguished by a passing motorist shortly after 3 a.m., who then called the fire department, according to a report at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

The charred remains of a pile of papers was found at the foot of the stairs, believed to be where the fire began, Bailey said.

"The fire scorched the stairs. No, not real bad. I don't know what the damage is, I haven't been able to get ahold of the builder, but if he plans to replace the risers and treads (part of the stairwell) it'll cost more," Bailey said.

Mobile home standards on tap

Although there's not enough vacant land available in Clarkston Village to warrant development of a mobile home park, there are a few vacant lots which could house individual trailers—and the village council is keeping tabs on the possibility.

At the Nov. 10 meeting, with little discussion, council members voted unanimously to direct the attorney to draft an amendment to the ordinance which would regulate such sites, and ensure conformance with neighboring lots.

The move follows a decision handed down by the the Michigan State Supreme Court last March, which rendered unconstitutional those ordinances banning mobile homes from moving into residential zones.

The court said standards can be written to ensure mobile homes located outside trailer parks do not create safety hazards or depress property values.

Benefit auction planned Nov. 19

"Do I hear $3 for this golden-crusted loaf of homebaked bread?'

"$3," calls one person from the audience.

"$3.50," counters another.

"Do I hear $4?" asks auctioneer Mary Jane Chaustowich. "Going once, going twice...Sold! To the woman in the purple dress.

That's a sampling of possible dialogue expected to fill the halls of the Episcopal Church of the Resurrection, Thursday, Nov. 19 at 7:30 p.m., as volunteers from the Clarkston Community Women's Club host their annual arts and crafts auction benefit.

There are promises of fine handmade Christmas crafts and tempting homemade baked goods from member Chaustowich, who's first to announce all goods have been donated by members of the group.

Proceeds got to a yet to be designated target, she

"Of course last year it was the Lighting Fund and Clarkston Area Youth Assistance. Our big one is the (Independence Township) library," she added.

"Auctioning," she laughed, "for me is strictly amateur. But you know, people really seem to enjoy it and they don't mind paying a bit more for something when they know it's for a good cause.'

Santa's Workshop

Among the over 100 artisans with holiday items for sale at the Clarkston Jaycees' Santa's Workshop Saturday, Nov. 21, will be Adreena Harley with Raggedy Anns and Andys. The dolls have yarn hair, embroidered faces and, underneath, a heart with a warm "I love you." They range in size from 15 inches to 25 inches and cost $15 to $25 each. Adreena, who lives in Independence Township and works as a registered nurse at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak, began creating the dolls just a few months ago. "I got started making one for myself. When I worked on them at work, people kept asking me if I'd make them one," she says.

"I like art and sewing and make them on breaks at work—it seems a little more constructive than just sitting around." The annual bazaar has so many artisans this year, it expanded its territory to include the cafeteria, lobby and band room at Clarkston High School. Hours Saturday are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. There'll be bees making honey, a real gingerbread house, woodcarvers, baskets, calligraphy and lots of crafts demonstrations. Thanks to the help of the CHS Drama Club. there'll even be snacks and hot dogs for lunch, and kids can pick-a-pocket surprise from Clarkston Junior Miss contestants.

Dr. Bielak opens sports clinic specializing in care for athletes

Dr. Daniel Bielak presses some buttons, observes the numbers flashing in response and nods his head.

"This tells you you're one-and-a-half minutes into the test," he explains to a patient who is pedaling away on a computerized exercise bike.

'This number means you've burned eight calories. And these lights monitor your heartbeat and how fast you're pedaling.'

After 12 minutes, the test is over, the data is

"And the doctor says, 'Only run four miles." Bielak says with a grin.

"Today, we want to try and help him run that

Bielak opened his sports medicine clinic just last month and will also continue to practice family medicine at his Independence office as he has for the last three years.

His interest in the sports medicine field was kindled this summer when he attended a sports medicine seminar and began doing some extra reading and research on his own.

Today, he's working with everyone from high school athletes to joggers troubled with shin splints, and he's stressing proper nutrition, conditioning and injury treatment.

The days when prospective athletes received little more than a regular physical are dwindling fast, Bielak notes.

"Say a kid in high school wants to be on the school ski team," he says. "We check them out from top to bottom, advise them of any weaknesses and recommend an excercise and conditioning program.

"We give them an electrocardiogram. An electrocardiogram should be included in all sports physicals.

"And there are exercises that are wrong and hurt people. These are things every athlete should be aware

Each person's weight and age are entered into the computer, and the machine monitors the user's pulse throughout the test. By comparing the data at the end of the test with figures typical of an person in the same age group, Bielak can provide the person with his 'physical" age.

"This way, there's no hiding whether or not you've been doing your conditioning excercises,' Bielak notes. "If you haven't been doing them, it'll show up on the machine."

With more and more people taking a serious interest in physical activity and good nutrition, Bielak figures the future of his sports medicine clinic is

"Some sports clinics you go into look like gymnasiums, and everybody is pumping iron," he says. "That's not my intent here. We just want to help people by recommending programs that will make them

The procedure is a common one these days at Bielak's Sports Medicine Clinic at 5345 Sashabaw Rd., Independence Township, where the effects of computer technology and medical research are readily apparent.

"Sports medicine is really coming into its own," says Bielak. "There's a great deal of research going on in the field, and it's come a long way."

He recalls an old joke about a man who runs five miles a day, but who still can't conquer the fifth mile without a lot of pain. The man asks his doctor for ad-

"Mattress' rollicking good fun

Once Upon A Mattress CHS Madrigal Singers and Thespians Clarkston High School Little Theatre

There were more than a few rough edges in Clarkston High School's production of "Once Upon A Mattress," but the bottom line was an evening of good, fun entertainment.

A spoof of fairy-tale plots and royal snobbery, "Once Upon A Mattress" is a rollicking good time.

The story revolves around the search for a princess to marry Prince Dauntless, son of Queen Aggravain and King Sextimus. But prospect after prospect fails to meet the demanding and comically absurd royalty tests of the Queen and her court Wizard—to the chagrin of the ladies of the court, who are bound by tradition not to marry before the prince.

The situation is especially mortifiying to Sir Harry, a gallant knight, and Lady Larken, when Larken finds out that a "moment of weakness" has made their wedding a matter of pressing haste (enough said).

Sir Harry departs for distant lands determined to find a real princess for Dauntless, and returns with the unlikeliest candidate of all-Winnifred-who arrives at the castle by swimming the moat.

The queen is appalled by Winifred's unladylike conduct and concocts a test that Winnifred can't possibly pass: Winnifred will sleep on a stack of 20 feather mattresses, underneath which will be a single pea. If that pea disturbs her slumber, then and only then does she pass the test for princessly "sensitivity.

LANDSCAPE DESIGN & CONSTRUCTION

Bordine's Florist Clarkston starting Dec. 4th!

Creative, unique floral design comes to Clarkston with the addition of Bordine's Florist, backed by Bordine's 43 years of experience.

With some covert help from Sir Harry, the court Jester and Minstrel, Winnifred passes the test with flying colors—to the dismay of the queen.

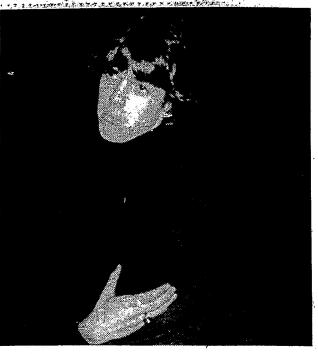

There were several outstanding individual performances. Kim Koerber was excellent as the garrulous and haughty Queen Aggravain, and Alec Puscus' pantomime as the mute and lecherous King Sextimus was first-rate. Marc Hewko made a convincing Wizard.

Marget Nelson was a scene-stealer as Princess Winifred. The funniest scene in the play takes place in Winifred's bedchamber when she tries out the stack of mattresses and labors to make herself comfortable—while being sweetly serenaded by a "bird" played by Bonnie Hines.

It's a simple concept, but the facial expressions and the utter comic absurdity of the king-sized bird make the scene a highlight.

All in all, Clarkston High School put together another fine effort in "Once Upon A Mattress."

Schoolmarm Anne Rasmussen finds Laura Ingalls Wilder Day a perfect time to wear leather lace-up shoes and a lace apron. The old-fashioned clothes once belonged to her husband John's mother or grandmother.

Yesterday today

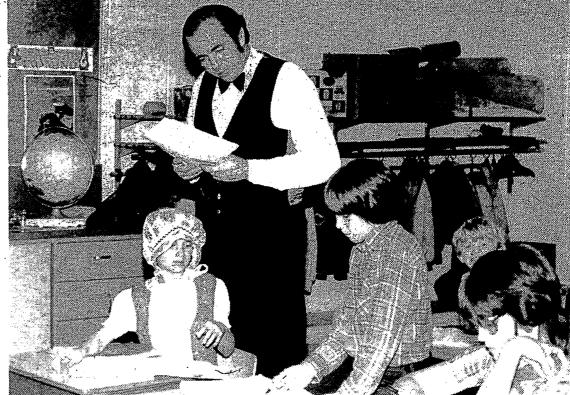

Laura Ingalls Wilder authored the Little House series of nine books about pioneers in America in the late 1870s and 1880s.

Most children and adults are familiar with the TV show—Little House on the Prairie—based on Wilder's works, but North Sashabaw Elementary School Media Center director Katherine Wlodarczyk wanted the kids to know more.

The descriptions of life for pioneers, and details about self-sufficiency are accurate and thorough in Wilder's books, she said, and are an excellent source for teaching the way it was.

"I'm delighted about Laura Ingalls Wilder," Wlodarczyk said.

And the entire school shared in her enthusiasm, as teachers and kids contemplated life 100 years ago and planned to read Wilder's books.

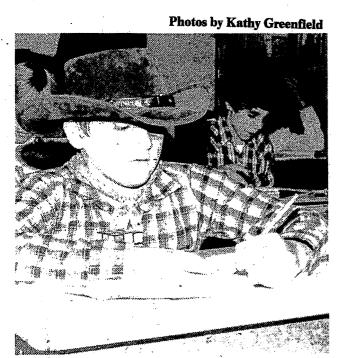

Some of the teachers dress for the occasion, like schoolmaster Tom Brown, whose vested suit is trimmed with a bow tie, pocket watch and wire-rimmed glasses, tucked away for the moment.

Gingham and bonnets are a common sight throughout North Sashabaw Elementary on Laura Ingalls Wilder Day. Edie Boston

Formal Vaccine

Mrs. Hobby Acting This Afternoon

Dr. Jonas Salk torpedoed polio into yesteryear

The Salk vaccine for polio.

Heralded as the wonder drug of the late '50s, the vaccine put an end to the disease that indescriminately ravaged children and adults, temporarily paralyzing, permanently crippling, sometimes claiming its victims lives.

That hated, dreaded polio.

Parents would wring their hands with worry at summer's open and didn't stop until winter's cold arrived. Their kids contracted the disease, an enteric virus, by swimming in lakes, pools and by eating unclean foods.

The virus ravaged the intestines and passed through the membrane to the spinal cord where it inflamed nerve endings.

A second strain, the bulbar type, attacked the base of the brain, making talking and breathing difficult, and often ended by confining its victims to iron lungs—machines which did their breathing for them.

The disease could render its victims' limbs totally useless, wreaking their bodies with a scrutinizing pain until the fever and nerve inflammation ended.

The more protected child was often first to contract polio, according to Dr. James O'Neill, Clarkston-area pediatrician, himself a victim of the disease.

"The protected child would often not develop the natural immunity they build up when exposed to small doses of it over the years. Normally they'd build up antibodies to ward off the disease," he said.

"When I was a resident at Ford Hospital in pediatrics in 1959, there was a polio epidemic so severe I was pulled out of residency and sent to Herman Keiffer Hospital. I did 1,100 spinal taps in two weeks.

"One entire building was devoted to polio," O'Neill recalls. "That was after the vaccine had proven effective, but parents who were not vaccinated contracted the disease.'

The vaccine was "revolutionary" and hailed on a parallel with penicillin, he added.

A polio treatment, the Sister Kenny treatment, was developed at Pontiac General Hospital in Pontiac, and involved placing hot wool towels around a patient's entire body.

The heat treatment, performed around the clock for three to six days, seemed to cutdown the inflammation of muscles, he said.

O'Neill fell victim to polio two years before he was to enter medical /) school.

"I'd pitched two softball games on a very hot August day in North Dakota, and overdid it," he said. "I came home, felt terrible, ached all over and went to bed.

"In the morning, I woke up and couldn't move. It hurt so bad anyone bumping the bed sent me into excruciating pain.

"Within two months I was fit, but it was scary, knowing what could have happened," he added.

O'Neill referred to the thousands affected by the disease, those confined to wheelchairs, iron lungs, now dragging behind them useless limbs and arms without strength.

He recalls seeing the last reported case of polio in Oakland County.

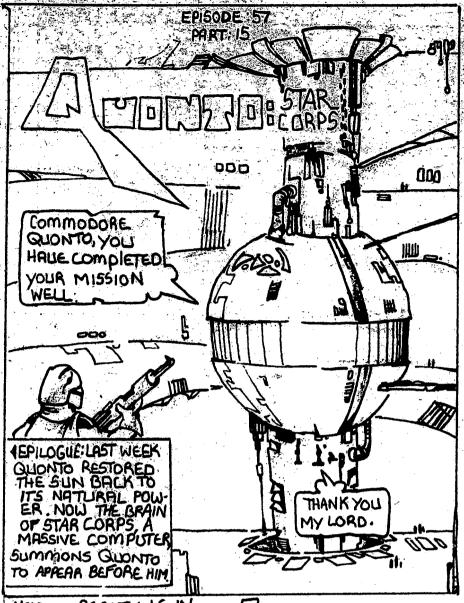

It was just 18 years ago, in 1963.

A boy would drag behind him a useless foot forever, because his father didn't believe in vaccinations.

The world owes its freedom from polio to Dr. Jonas E. Salk of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The man is responsible for torpedoing the dreaded disease into the past.

The Rosenthals

A family that works and plays together

Ryan squeals with delight and attempts a getaway while big brother Ross refuses to release his ankles. The football duo runs practice tackles on the south side of the Clarkston Motor Inn while their mom and dad work inside.

Ryan Rosenthal's dimples flash when you ask him to spell his name, or the name of his school, Montessori in Waterford.

Big brother Ross, 10, a student at Clarkston Elementary School, comes to Ryan's rescue and coaxes the 5-year-old on, encouraging the right answer.

In between giggles and spinning yarns of their adventures, the pair pet their cat Patches, who rolls and stretches, responding to each stroke and rub.

Their parents, Al and Pat, smother a laugh. They've seen Patches in action before.

Thirteen years ago, the Rosenthals moved to Indpendence Township, living on Placid Court, with frontage on Cranberry Lake.

When the boys aren't swimming, playing football or baseball, and when Ryan's not catching frogs and butterflies, they can be seen helping their dad make repairs at the family's business: The Clarkston Motor Inn on Dixie Highway, across the street from the Clarkston Cinema.

Al and Pat say that when they purchased the motel a year ago in June, it demanded much of their time those first few months.

"A 72-year-old woman had it before, and it really needed work when we bought it," says Pat. "We've done a lot to it, repairs, redecorating...trying to improve it."

Their oldest son Ross is responsible for mowing the one-acre parcel, and when the work's done, he heads out back to the Clinton River and a vacant canoe.

"No," he laughs, "I haven't mastered it yet."

Although the Rosenthals have a full-time manager at the Inn, Pat finds it demands much of her time, for she's responsible for all the ordering, bookkeeping and anything else that needs to be done.

Al, an industrial arts teacher at Rochester Adams High School, picks up hammer and saw with relish and tackles anything that demands his time.

"He built our house," Pat boasts. Al humbly adds, "Well, it was a shell, roughed in, and I finshed it."

The Rosenthals say they opted to buy the Inn after seeing the success their friends had in the same business.

"When we first bought it, it was really hard," Pat says. "Al would go to teach in the morning, and come home at night and stay in the motel. It was hard until we got a manager.

"Now, for me, it's nice. I used to teach, and this way I can choose my own hours and now be home for Ryan, which is important to me."

Labor of Love

A year ago, the old church was in a state of disrepair, but look at it now!

Thursday was moving day for the Catallo

It was a day marked by the happy and hectic confusion that typically accompanies moving days, but there's nothing typical about the Catallos' new address.

"This has been a labor of love," says Clarence Catallo, seated beside his wife Sharron in their dream home, the former Clarkston United Methodist Church on the corner of Church and Buffalo streets in Clarkston.

"When I turned 30, 10 years ago," he says, "I just got tired of living in Birmingham and decided to move to Davisburg. We built stables, raised horses—did all the things you're supposed to do out in the country."

But after living for 10 years in the Davisburg area, the family was ready for another change.

"When I turned 40, I guess I had my midlife crisis and wanted a change again," Clarence smiles. "We were going to build off Deer Lake, but after thinking it over, that really didn't seem that different. We were just changing lakes.

"My wife saw the church first, and asked me to take a look and draw my own conclusions. I stopped by on my way to work one morning at about eight o'clock.

'Three hours later the same day, we owned

Built in 1873, the church had stood empty since 1975 and was in a sad state of disrepair. Today, after a little over a year of work, the interior of the building would be all by unrecognizable to anyone familiar with the original.

"We gutted it out to the walls," says Clarence. "But we did try to keep as much of the original objects as we could."

The interior is now a picture of opulence and beauty. Two kitchens. Six bathrooms, including an indoor sauna. A wine cellar. A spiral staircase. Custom plastered walls, rich wood moldings, stained glass windows. Distinctive antiques make up much of the furnishings.

"We didn't work off any blueprints," Clarence notes.

He grins recalling the improvisations along the way.

"The master plan was done on napkins at the Clarkston Cafe," Clarence chuckles. Bob Adams (the building contractor who did much of the work on the house), Sharron and myself would sit down work out our ideas.

"I can't say enough for the workmen. Bob Adams and the men who worked here did a superb job. Everybody took a special interest, and they were treated like the craftsmen and artisans they are.

The workmen just took a particular pride in what they were doing-they'd bring their families here on the weekends and show them what was happening."

There are still a few things that need to be finished-some carpentry, glass and electrical work and landscaping on the outside. In the meantime the family is just concentrating on getting fully unpacked and settled in their new home—and appreciating some of the benefits of their new neighborhood.

"Today, I walked to Rudy's Market for the first time," says Clarence, who works in Southfield as vice president and manager of E.F. Hutton. "I think that's super—to be right in town. We've always liked the community of Clarkston.

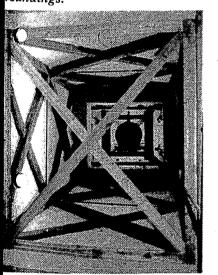

"At the age of 41, I just want to sit back now and enjoy it all."

To the right of the doorway at the end of the main kitchen, Clarence had a dumb waiter installed. At the very top of the picture above the door is the original bell tower ladder, incorporated into the kitchen's design as a place to hang pots and pans.

Accented by two hanging chandeliers, the dining area is located near the site of the church's original altar.

It's Garlak Greetings. The rhyming duo create a personalized card to fit any occasion, complete with locations, times, reference to friends, "anything they want to include," says Mary, who lives on Holcomb Street in Clarkston.

Eagle Scout Timothy Higgins' sash sports 27 badges.

Once scouting catches Higgins' fancy, he soars to Eagle rank

A friend who was a Boy Scout introduced Timothy Higgins to the organization five years

So, he was never a Cub Scout. And he was a semi-reluctant Boy Scout at first, but after becoming involved and working to receive the highest rank in scouting-Eagle-Timothy has nothing but good things to say about it.

"Now I guess I'm sort of proud of it," he says. "I've learned a lot."

The Independence Township man received his Eagle badge just three days before he turned 18 and became too old to be a Boy Scout.

Presently attending Oakland University and working part-time at McDonald's, Timothy is the son of Otis and Lillian Higgins of Bluegrass Drive, Independence Township.

Although no longer a member of Troop 189, he still remains involved in scouting.

"I'm not really an active member, but I stop in and help out," he said. "I plan on helping out in the troop in my neighborhood wherever I live."

On his way to the Eagle award, Timothy earned 27 badges (21 are required), made about 40 plaques used to mark trails at the Drayton Plains Nature Center, spent some 100 hours working there, and learned a skill he's found few know-how to correctly fold the United States

On Oct. 27, he received his award during a court-of-honor held just for him and another member of Troop 189, Steven Case, who received two awards above the Eagle badge-a bronze and à gold palm.

Speakers included State Rep. Claude Trim (D-Springfield Township) and Independence Township Supervisor James B. Smith.

Timothy was impressed by the formal affair, he said and he had a reaction that surprised him he was nervous. But, he was also proud.

Only about 2 percent of Boy Scouts get the Eagle Badge," he said with a grin ... -Kathy Greenfield
