PTO holds out to keep Sashabaw El

By Kathy Greenfield

The proposed closing of South Sashabaw Elementary School has exploded into a major issue with the school's PTO working to keep it open despite Clarkston school administrators claims that the closing would save the district some $45,000 annually.

The board of education is to discuss the matter at the March 8 meeting; and the decision whether to close the school or not is expected to be made that evening or at the April 5 school board meeting.

Last week, over 100 people attended a meeting at North Sashabaw Elementary School led by Superintendent Milford Mason. Declining enrollment and decreasing revenue from the state were cited by Mason as the major reasons the school should close.

Mason explained, with charts and figures, why he was recommending to the board of education that the school should be closed. A letter from the PTO executive board was read objecting to the closing. And Mason and administrative assistant William Neff answered questions from the audience during the meeting that lasted over three hours.

Afterward, it was clear the issue was far from settled.

"I don't think we persuaded board members that night. I think it's really going to depend on public response," said Bonnie Campbell, PTO president, adding that letters had been sent home urging parents to call or write board members to let them know their feelings on the issue.

Built in 1949 with an addition in 1954, South Sashabaw contains nine classrooms. About 260 first-through third-graders attend the school. It is located on Maybee Road, and across the street is North Sashabaw Elementary which now houses kindergarten and fourth through sixth grades. If South Sashabaw closes, North Sashabaw would become a K-6 building. Boundary line changes would result with about 165 pupils moving to Bailey Lake and Pine Knob elementaries.

"It's not the money, it's the upset of the children," Campbell said. "The good that school does for children in first through third grades far outweighs the drawbacks. We don't think of it as a building, we think of it as a cocoon nurturing our children for the first impressionable years.

"Every child in that school knows every teacher. It's on such a small basis, the kids really benefit from it.

"It's just the general feeling of the building—you just feel the closeness of it and the love seems to pour out of the walls. It's going to hurt the children who have to make the adjustment of moving to a different school.

"The $45,000 they would save in closing that building is not worth what they would lose," she said. "I think the school board got the impression that the people were going to accept it, but that's not the case. If anything it just made them madder."

Residents working on stating their case to keep the school open have poured over the district's budget, researched land owned but not in use for school buildings in the district and come up with ways the district could save money without closing the school building.

In the letter read during the meeting at North Sashabaw, suggestions were made to eliminate funds for transportation of sports teams to non-league games, to cut administrative costs by eliminating expense accounts and cars used by administrators and to sell some of the acreage owned by the district.

Residents also expressed dismay over raises given administrators last year after the successful millage campaign, the hiring of a full-time director of community education, the purchase of a sophisticated copy machine for the central administration building and money spent to computerize use of electricity at the high school.

Mason answered each question at the meeting, and later again expressed his dismay at the district's financial position of having to consider closing the South Sashabaw.

"I know that it means a lot to some people in the area," he said. "It's been there a long time. I said at the meeting I take no pleasure in closing this school and I don't."

The irony, he said, is that while people are talking about affecting the quality of education for children at South Sashabaw, the move will help improve the quality of education for all children in the district by providing more money to spend on maintaining programs.

Mason also noted that those opposed to the closing are likely to be the most verbal.

"A gentleman came up to me after the meeting. His comment was this—'I came to the meeting to oppose the closing of south Sashabaw. After I've reviewed the information you presented, I understand why you made the recommendation and I have changed my mind.' I trust there were more people present than this gentleman who reviewed the information and came to his conclusion."

The school board meeting is to begin at 8 p.m. on Monday, March 8, at the administration building, 6389 Clarkston-Orion, Independence Township.

Clarkston mourns death of student

By Marilyn Trumper

Friends, teachers and administrators at Clarkston High School and the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center mourn the death of Mary Jolene Ferrin. A CHS junior, she was shot and killed by her father Friday afternoon in the family home on Cross Road in White Lake Township.

Before killing himself with the .22 caliber pistol, Ronald Ferrin, 35, also shot his wife, Helen Sue, 40.

Mrs. Ferrin is listed in serious condition at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac, where she was taken after the incident.

Sgt. Jerry McClure of the White Lake Township Police Department theorizes the shooting and murder/suicide stemmed from the break-up of the Ferrin marriage, because Mrs. Ferrin had recently filed for divorce.

Mary Jolene, 16, attended CHS and NWOVEC, where she was studying office procedure.

CHS Assistant Principal John Kirchgessner remembers Mary Jolene as "an average student grade-wise."

"But she was bubbly. A social butterfly. She knew a lot of kids," Kirchgessner said. "She was never in my office for disciplinary action—we had no problems with her."

Kirchgessner recalls an ironic conversation he shared with Mary Jolene about a week and one-half before the shootings.

Administrators at the high school were aware of the problems in the Ferrin home, he said.

"She was very distraught over the situation, and seemed unable to cope with her classes at the time," Kirchgessner said. "I tried to calm her down, to put things into perspective. That day apparently I was not successful. She wound up checking out of school."

According to Daniel Manthei, principal at NWOVEC, Mary Jolene was in class the day of the shooting until 1:50 p.m. when students were dismissed. The earliest reports of the incident occurred about one-half hour later.

Mary Jolene is survived by her mother; brother, Edward D., who serves in the Air Force in New Mexico; brother and sister, David and Rebecca, at home; and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Millard Baker of Kentucky and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hoffman of Lansing.

Funeral services were scheduled March 3 at Loveland Funeral Home with the Rev. Thomas Belczak of Our Lady of the Lakes church officiating.

Burial was to take place at Ottawa Park Cemetery, Independence Township.

Fire destroys aged farmhouse

A fire burned three hours before being reported early Saturday morning and totally destroyed an aged farmhouse on Clarkston-Orion Road.

The house, located east of the Independence Township Senior Citizens Center, was unoccupied at the time of the fire. It was so completely engulfed in flames and so gutted the roof would not support the weight of a ladder, according to Capt. Dale Bailey of the Independence Township Fire Department.

"We tried to get a ladder up there to ventilate the roof and the ladder went right through," Bailey said. "We estimate it burned two to three hours before someone called it in. We don't know why. That's something we couldn't figure out. That's a pretty busy piece of road, even that early in the morning."

Firefighters had the blaze extinguished at 5:50 a.m., three hours after arriving on the scene.

The value of the house is not known, Bailey said, adding that the residents were renters, and they did not have insurance. Loss of personal property is estimated at $5,000, he said.

The house, located at 5960 Clarkston-Orion, is part of the 80 acres involved in the township's condemnation suit against the Edward C. Levy Co., a firm proposing a 300-acre gravel mining operation near the headwaters of the Clinton River.

Arson has been ruled out, but cause of the fire remains under investigation, Bailey said.

Assessments in holding pattern

By Marilyn Trumper

For most Independence Township residents, 1982's assessments will be the same as last year's, unless the state comes in with a counter State Equalized Value factor and the final word.

According to township Assessor David Sherrill, the county last week submitted its County Equalized Value factor, a factor of one. Assessments as proposed by the township will be multiplied by one, which means they'll stay the same, Sherrill said.

Earlier, the county had suggested assessments increase 3 percent, and the state indicated a 5- to 10-percent hike was in order.

The state could disagree and come in with a final figure that would mean an increase, Sherrill said.

When assessment notices were sent out in late January, 90 percent of the residents did not receive notices, because their assessments did not increase.

The remaining 10 percent received word of increases based on sales in their area, value added to their homes from repairs or remodeling or because they'd been assessed too low, Sherrill said.

Residents wishing to appeal their assessments should plan to attend a Board of Review meeting on Monday, March 8, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. or Tuesday, March 9, from 1 to 9 p.m. at Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

The assessing department will be accepting appointments for the Board of Review which can be made by calling 625-8114.

Election all set for March 8th

Clarkston Village Clerk Bruce Rogers speculates the March 8 election's voter turnout will be "low, because everyone's running unopposed."

In all, seven positions are up open on Clarkston's Village Council; the president's seat, the treasurer, the clerk, assessor and three trustee slots—all two-year terms.

Polls open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m., Monday, March 8, at Clarkston Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston.

Jackson Byers, of 6051 Middle Lake Road, a six-year veteran of the village council, is running for the president's slot, vacated by outgoing Fontie Ap-Madoc.

Newcomer Ethel Sinclair of 37 N. Holcomb, a two-year veteran of the planning commission, is running for the vacant trustee seat left by Connie Fisher.

Jerry Powell, of 6134 Overlook, is a former trustee on the Independence Township board who has his bid in for a trustee seat, left by Byers seeking the president's office.

Incumbents on the election ticket are Clerk Bruce Rogers, Treasurer Artemus Pappas, Trustee Gary Symons and Assessor Ralph Thayer.

Slogan on tap

Clarkston Village could well be celebrating its 150th anniversary in unique style.

On the drawing board is a plan for a "slogan postmark" for exclusive use at the Clarkston Post Office. It would decorate every piece of outgoing mail in honor of the sesquicentennial.

According to Clarkston Village Council Trustee James Schultz, the special, temporary postmark requires the OK from Uncle Sam who takes approximately three-months to process the application—and it's good for six-months.

But, Schultz told council members at the Feb. 22 meeting, it could mean an expenditure of approximately $100 to put the plan in operation.

Council members made no decision, agreeing to weigh the proposal for future discussion.

Frank, the baying beagle, just couldn't calm himself while in line at the rabies vaccination clinic. When Frank's at home on Snowapple Drive in Independence Township he's usually quite, says his owner George Thompson as he tries to calm the worried beagle down.

Dog clinic makes beagle bay

"She wants this to be over," says Carol Allen as she and her husband Bruce sooth their part-terrier Daisy. The coming event was a rabies shot at the clinic held by the Oakland County Animal Control Division Saturday at the Independence Township DPW Building on Flemings Lake Road. The Allens reside in Brandon Township. Dogs, some anxious and some calm, lined up with their owners outside the building awaiting their turns.

Quik-Sav targets Clarkston for new store local

By Marilyn Trumper

Officials of Quick-Save Inc., a convenience food store/gasoline service chain, with stores throughout Genesee County, have targeted Clarkston's Union 76 Service Station on Main Street for the site of their next store.

Robert E. Eastman, president of the Flushing headquartered organization, produced three architectural renderings for Clarkston Village Council's review at the Feb. 22 meeting.

According to Eastman, the company plans to make use of the station's gas pumps, renovate the front office area and restore the bay area of the garage for the actual store, which operates similarly to a 7-11 or Sunshine Foods.

Parking is targeted for the front of the building, with greenbelts along the rear of the property in the predominantly residential district at the intersection of Clarkston-Orion Road.

The site is located in the Historic District and falls under the scrutiny of Clarkston's newly established Historic District Commission which regulates all construction, demolition, repairs and alterations to homes or outbuildings.

"We know of your Historic District Commission and have been in close contact with them on this," Eastman told council members. "We realize the importance of keeping the area looking the way it is. If (the commission) tells us we have to move the building to do it right, we'll do it, even though it will be at great expense to us."

Eastman added his company has located stores in historic Holly and Linden, worked with similar commissions there and understands the necessity of preserving the historical flavor of the area. He stressed the architectural designs of his stores are more flexible than those of 7-11 and Sunshine Foods.

According to company Vice President Robert Davison, Quick-Save Inc. is building a store now in Linden, with a 1910 storefront flavor, complete with wooden porch and sidewalk.

Eastman, awaiting blueprints from his builder, has yet to file for a building permit at the township. Both men stress that while "we know this is where we want to locate" the paperwork and different governing bodies are slowing the process down.

According to Davison, before pulling a building permit, officials of Quick-Save wish to first present the Historic District Commission with three building styles and see if one plan has more appeal than another.

"We're still in limbo about whether we'll purchase the building or lease it with an option to buy," Davison said. "We do know we don't want to disturb the setting—we want people in the community to tell us what they want."

According to Davison, the current gas station operates as a non-conforming use, a hurdle that may have to be jumped if village officials deem the proposed combination gas station/convenience store a change in use.

With that, the building would lose its non-conforming status and require a rezoning or full variance.

Seventy percent of Quick-Sav's sales are generated from gasoline sales, Davison said.

Ronk resigns civil defense post

Strapped for time, and feeling the job suffered because of it, Independence Township Fire Chief Frank Ronk resigned his post as Civil Defense Director.

"I did some time ago," Ronk said. "I just felt that I didn't have the time to do the job correctly. I didn't have the time to attend all the workshops and meetings that pertain specifically to that, and felt that was an area that should be covered and deserved extensive planning."

The position is designed to coordinate county and state civil defense at the local level and to coordinate work between police and fire departments in the event of civil emergencies like floods, tornados or air strikes, Ronk said.

The position is currently under review by the Independence Township Task Force on Public Safety as part of the responsibilities to be accepted by the soon-to-be appointed Director of Public Safety.

To Clarkston's DPW: Thanks for good job

As citizens of the Village of Clarkston, we would like to bring to the attention of the people the good work our DPW Department has done on our village streets.

The crew of men and Director Gar Wilson have done a beautiful job of keeping this village clean of snow. It made it easier to park and shop.

They work while we are all sleeping, and we do not feel that enough people realize what a good job they really do, and how hard they really work.

We had to go into the City of Pontiac after the last big storm. We could not believe the streets. Wide Track Drive, Huron Street and all main streets were not even drivable. You could not park at all.

The side streets had only one lane, and if you stopped, you were there to stay.

We personally would like to thank our DPW crew for the good job they do.

Sizing up

by Kathy Greenfield

I never experienced the thrill of growing taller than my parents.

Memories about height wishes began to come back a short time ago when my son grew to my nose, eyes, eyebrows and beyond until now I have to look up at him.

Although there was a time when I wanted to grow a few more inches, I never wanted to be as tall as my mother, who measures over 5 feet, 10 inches tall, or my father, who's 6 feet tall.

If I stand up ramrod straight, I'm a little over 5 feet, 2 inches. My mother always said she wanted to be shorter and she talked about the years when she towered over classmates. She let me know it was OK to be short.

I've watched people anquish over being short and listened to all the drawbacks of shortness, but I never really could understand what the concerns were all about.

In the first place, you are what you are. Besides, I've never rarely noticed height, mainly, I suppose, because everyone was almost always taller than I. Taller, then, was the way people were supposed to be.

On many occasions, I've been startled when I realize someone I know really is exceptionally tall.

Back to my son. He has looked forward to growing taller than I am for years. It really is a terrific thing—truly a landmark in growing up.

We have discreet marks on our doorway to the kitchen that show the progress. In a matter of months, he's met a long-held goal.

Discussions about this stage in parenting have emerged from all the uproar surrounding this event. One woman remarked she found she respected her children more after they grew taller than she is. Perhaps a large part of her change in attitude, though, came from the fact that age accompanies height.

Last week, my brother, who stands about a foot taller than I, was home for the weekend. When he telephoned and asked my son what was new, the big event involved my son's short mother.

"I thought you might want to tease her," said my son when he asked my brother if he wanted to talk to me.

Signing off from down below...the weather's just fine, thank you.

Jim's jottings

Scene stealer

by Jim Sherman

After Milton Berle heard another comedian crack a good joke, Berle said, "I wish I'd said that . . . and I will."

I've used that remark.

One of our newspapers recently had a 2 for 1 want ad sale. We stole the idea. Another promoted a mid-night madness sale. It didn't originate with us.

Our editors and writers see stories on national subjects, and take the idea for local adaptation.

We tell sales people to read Yellow Pages, magazines, and other newspapers for advertising ideas and copy the good ones.

Been doing such things for quarter century. By the same token, we're copied occasionally. And, we're flattered.

So, I chuckled at a call a couple weeks ago. The caller said a recent advertisement in one of our newspapers was a copy of something he'd done a year before.

After reviewing the background of how and when he placed the ad insert, and with whom (which rang no bells in my memory tank), the caller asked, "I think a person who steals another's advertising copy is a low life, and I just wondered what you think of such plagerism?"

That's when I chuckled, and said, "I don't agree with you. There's nothing new under the sun. We steal stuff all the time."

I was told — I just wondered what you'd think. I've been in touch with Jim Fitzgerald and he told me he'd be interested in what you had to say.

With that threat, the caller hung up. He'll probably never call Fitz, but if he does, our columnist friend will likely say, "Sherman said that? The dirty rat! I'm the one who told him 'there's nothing new under the sun' 20 years ago. 'He stole it from me.'"

The fall and rise of writing skills

Editor's note: Eric Hood teaches English at Brandon High School. In the note which accompanied his article, he wrote the following:

"Having read The Clarkston News for many years, I have noticed an increasing awareness of the status and problems of education in our community and in general. As a parent of Clarkston school children and an educator I, too, feel a tremendous concern for our educational system.

"I think we need to address many of the problems of education not with accusations and counter-accusations, but with logical explanations and solutions."

In a recent column, James J. Kilpatrick lauded a new book in which teachers were blamed for the poor writing skills of today's students.

Specifically, certain university professors were accused of not preparing future educators for the task of teaching children to write. This "illiterate bunch" has allegedly caused, in falling domino fashion, the demise of good writing in our academic system.

Like so many others, this explanation attempts to interpret a vastly complex phenomenon in simplistic terms. Indicting schools and teachers is an understandable reaction. It is, however, the consequences of a seriously flawed and misguided perception of the situation.

A perfunctory investigation of the circumstances indicates that there is no single cause for inferior writing. In fact, there seems to be compelling evidence that the basis for it is beyond our immediate control.

Consider that most American students spend only between 15 percent and 18 percent of a year's total time in school.

This is a 200-year-old tradition. It is an arrangement that cannot possibly meet the needs of present or future students.

Today's kids are more influenced by their culture than their parents ever were.

Our culture is pleasure oriented. Physical, visual and audio entertainment are not only prime leisure time pursuits, but actually the hobbies of many. Teenagers and young adults are rapidly being absorbed into a "party" culture unlike any known to prior generations.

The messages young people receive from this culture usually translate into irrelevant and counter-productive concepts. Concepts that inconsistently emphasize the fine and enjoyable aspects of life, while ignoring the discipline it usually requires to earn these things.

The necessary prescription is simple: Schools need more reinforcement time if they are to successfully compete for the minds of their students.

In addition, the proliferation of electronic information has convinced many students that reading and writing are becoming obsolete. There is the notion that anything one needs to know can be gathered from television, just as numerous transactions may be conducted without the use of writing.

Our youngsters are observing a modern society that appears to function well and is run by people who apparently don't read or write.

Before dooming them as zombies of tomorrow, we should review our method of encouraging and reinforcing language proficiency. Educational scientists tell us that learning is achieved in direct proportion to the amount of time spent on a task.

To improve skills, students need to write more. To write well, they need to read and think critically. The three are inextricably entwined.

The logical chore at hand, then, is to start and keep our young reading, thinking and writing. The emphasis must be renewed not only at school, but at home.

As unlikely as it may sound, our children need to be encouraged to think, read and write in their leisure time.

They need to be surrounded with books, magazines and words. They need to know that serious reading, critical thinking, logical discussion and writing (of any kind) are not just "homework," but acceptable forms of relaxation.

The transference of a total language and its tradition from one generation to another is a crucial process. It is vital not only to ensure the future of effective communication, but for the very survival of the language itself.

In the course of this, we can preserve and enhance what may be our two most precious resources, our children and our language.

We are not always able to bestow upon our youth the legacy of a better world. Indeed, every generation has left in its wake a future more bleak and uncertain than the one it inherited.

The least we can do is provide every opportunity for our youth to acquire their language intact. Maybe then, a written and spoken mastery of the English language will become the rule, rather than the exception.

'If it Fitz. . . ' Penny ante 'crime'

by Jim Fitzgerald

Crime is the reason I've decided not to vacation in Florida this winter. I'm not afraid of being mugged in Miami, I'm afraid of being arrested.

The crime I commit most often is betting 25 cents in a poker game. That is a prison offense in Florida. Because of a recent crackdown on amateur gambling, many Florida boaters, afraid of breaking the law, have reportedly quit playing poker above deck while smuggling drugs and dope.

On Feb. 4, the Miami Herald reported: "Eight balding or white-haired retirees, ages 63 to 70, were found guilty Wednesday of violating Florida's gambling law by playing nickle-and-dime poker at their mobile home village in nearby Largo."

These criminals quickly became known as "The Largo 8." After losing a two-day jury trial, they could have been sentenced to six months in jail and a $500 fine. But Judge William Blackwood let them off with $75 fines and one-month probation. For most of the defendants, it was the first time they'd been coddled in over 60 years.

The Largo 8's attorney acknowledged that his clients played for money, but insisted that gambling was not the purpose of the poker game. He said the men "just wanted to get together with friends at a time in life when most were too old or sick for other kinds of recreation." This argument was buttressed when two of the Largo 8 couldn't be present the second day of their trial because they were hospitalized for a heart problem and cataract surgery.

One of the Largo 8, Clifford McGough, is a retired New York policeman. He described a typical game at the Rancho Village Mobile Home Park in Largo. The maximum bet was 40 cents, he said, and the winners never got more than $6 or $8. Whenever McGough lost $3, he went home.

The Largo 8 game was raided by two undercover detectives who infiltrated the mobile home park disguised as pool players. The pool table was near the card table, and the cops observed the wicked gamblers for an hour before swooping down to make the arrests. Until the swooping, McGough said, he thought the cops were children or grandchildren of some other park residents. He even invited them to have lunch, but they refused.

In Florida, it is legal to bet on horse and dog races and jal alai games. The Largo 8's lawyer told Judge Blackwood it is an unfair law that condones such high-stakes gambling while forbidding penny ante poker games. The judge wasn't impressed. He said the court was obliged to uphold such laws until they are changed.

The Miami Herald clipping about the infamous Largo 8 was sent to me by two Michigan residents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Galloway of Owosso, who winter in Marathon, Fla. They solicited my reaction, which follows:

Naturally, I'm pleased by the persuasive evidence that crime in Florida is not nearly as bad as has been reported up here. It appears that Snow Belt media are exaggerating Florida crime to get even with Sun Belt media for adding inches and misery to our snowstorms. Certainly, it can't really be true that dope smuggling has become Florida's biggest industry and murder its most popular recreation. If it were, no Florida cop would have nearly enough time to sneak into a trailer park and break up a nickle-and-dime poker game.

That's the positive side of my reaction to the arrest of the Largo 8. The negative side is I'm not pure enough to vacation in Florida. Perhaps I could give up 25-cent poker for two weeks, but I have several other criminal habits, such as overtime parking and jaywalking, that would surely get me in trouble with law officers intent upon protecting the public from spat-upon sidewalks.

Also, it is usually a crime to be noisy in public, but when I'm confronted with rampant hypocrisy, I can't help screaming a lot. In Florida, where they enforce a law that says high-rollers can bet $1,000 at the track but retirees can't bet 10 cents at home, I could become the first man ever hanged for disturbing the peace.

Haeusler says he'll accept safety director post

By Marilyn Trumper

Roy Haeusler, a regular on the local political scene, has been targeted to be the first Public Safety Director and Director of Civil Defense for Independence Township.

The volunteer full-time position outlined two weeks ago by the task force on public safety, is a powerful and responsible seat designed to coordinate activity between fire and police departments and hosts of civilian volunteers.

Expected to give his decision whether to accept the position at Tuesday night's board meeting, Haeusler exclusively told The News before the meeting he would accept the job, but only as assistant to the supervisor. He would not, he said, take the title of Public Safety Director.

"I've decided to take the job as assistant to the supervisor with respect to public safety. I think it would be unwise to accept the title of Public Safety Director. As soon as people hear that they'll say,

"That's the person I talk to about the drug problem around here. That's the person I talk to about crime"—and I'll be overrun.

"I'll accept it on that part-time basis. I also don't know if they've considered anyone else for the job. If they have fine," he said. "I just don't have the time. I have too many commitments, too many irons in the fire."

At the last township board meeting Feb. 23, the task force's report was discussed a second time. Haeusler, who served as technical advisor to the task force, showed no surprise when Supervisor James B. Smith pointed to him as the logical candidate for the job.

Haeusler, who retired from the Chrysler Corp. in 1975 as Chief Engineer of Safety and Security, did not commit himself to accepting the position, but indicated he would offer his decision at the next meeting.

After further discussion, it became obvious

Haeusler has given the proposal serious consideration.

"The township will never provide enough police to cover all of the neighborhoods, the watch program would benefit this. We need to begin to watch each others' houses (to deter crime) and allow our police force to act as 'on-call' police, not surveillance."

Haeusler added that development of a township civil defence program is high on his list, stressing the need for increased dry food storage.

In other discussion, board members questioned Dr. James O'Neill, task force chairman, for clarification on several points in the report, including the feasibility of using deputies from the Oakland County Public Safety Division free of charge to step up street patrol.

Others praised the task force's plan to train police and citizens in emergency medical service and the proposal to have a community center used jointly by citizens and police.

Council steers CD funds to park

Clarkston Village's anticipated $10,000 in 1982-83 block grant funds is targeted for spending in three areas: public facilities and improvements, historic preservation and planning and management.

At the Feb. 22 meeting, council members unanimously approved the three-year plan outlining spending, without allocating specific dollar amounts to those three areas.

The "public facilities and improvement" fund is slated to go toward development of Depot Road Park, a pet project of Trustee David Raup. Raup has indicated the money will aid in the purchase of playground equipment, construction of a gazebo/bandstand and beautification barrier along Depot Road.

The "historic preservation" fund is targeted for use in funding landscaping, walkway improvements along Main Street, street lighting, beautification and for the partial rehabilitation of at least three village residences.

Finally, the "planning and management" fund is slated to help pay the costs of assessor plat review, sidewalk improvements, studies for historic preservation, improvements for Depot Road Park and planning.

In addition, the council targeted $3,806 in federal revenue sharing to police services, to supplement the cost of contracting the Oakland County Sheriff's Department through Independence Township.

New trash cans

An empty candy wrapper, victim of the wind, blows down Clarkston's sidewalk.

A pigtailed girl reaches down, scoops up the paper and deposits it in one of the village's 10 new garbage cans.

Clarkston's Village Council anticipates seeing that scenario on a daily basis as soon as the new cans grace downtown corners, storefronts and the Depot Road Park.

At the Feb. 22 meeting, council members unanimously approved purchase of the 10 cans at $244 each, to be paid for with block grant funds.

There's no word on when the cans are to arrive, according to Clerk Bruce Rogers.

Deduct up to $4,000 every year with a Community Individual Retirement Account

What's an Individual Retirement Account? It's a great new way you can cut your taxes and plan for your retirement...and Community National Bank makes it easy to do. New tax laws effective in the 1982 tax year let you contribute to an IRA, even if you're covered by an existing retirement plan. Individuals can contribute up to $2,000 each year to an IRA; working married couples, up to $4,000.*

Best of all, your annual contribution is tax deductible, and the interest paid is exempt from income tax until withdrawal, on your retirement. At that time, you'll likely be in a lower tax bracket, so the tax burden will be less. A

Menagerie magician

It took Alec Puskas a few hours to perfect his menagerie in the front yard of his home on Edgewood Drive in Independence Township. The Clarkston High School junior's work in snow sculpturing has brought neighbors with cameras and kids to "The Zoo," as words formed of ice name the group. There's a purple snail, bright yellow giraffe, an elephant with a cheerful orange smile, a swan and a zebra. Alec creates sculptures annually. "Last year, I made a banana split," he says. "Earlier this year, I made the Eiffel Tower and the St. Louis bridge." Warm temperatures resulted in a headless giraffe for awhile, but Alec made repairs and brought out his spray paint for touch-ups. While everyone may not be able to enjoy his yard decorations, Alec's work will be more visible during "Paint Your Wagon," the next musical at CHS. He's worked on most of the sets. Clarkston News MAGAZINE editor Kathy Greenfield took the photo.

Here's Herb

by Herb Rose

THE OTHER DAY, I risked financial destruction by barking at someone, "Quick, for a million dollars, how many animals of each type did Moses take into the ark?"

After thrashing around with possible meanings of the phrase "of each type" the respondee said, "One...or two."

After regaling him with the fact he had lost a million dollars with the chance of earlier retirement and financial security, I explained the correct answer was "zero."

Moses was a desert man, the builder was Noah.

The musical "Two by Two" rekindled my interest in the story of Noah, so I reread the version that was generated under the auspices of King James.

I find that Noah boy was 600 years old when he built that ark, and subsequently, lived for another 350 years. This type of longevity was apparently acceptable at the time, but today I think it would present almost insurmountable problems to an insurance company actuary.

Ark observations

King James' writer doesn't indicate what was Noah's profession, but if we assume he retired at the common age of 65, he then lived on social security, savings, early versions of IRA and so on for 535 years until he started ark building.

Then, although he was given direction from upper management, he was self-employed. In total, he continued on his retirement income for an unbroken 885 years.

Assuming he entered the labor market as a kindergarten dropout and had been paying into the various programs since he was 5 years old, he would still be drawing on the program 15 years for every time he contributed.

I would think this type of person would be a tremendous strain on the young men still paying into the fund.

Besides giving the executors of the program fits, he would also be having certain financial problems of his own.

Living on a fixed income is difficult. At best attempting to live on a pension established 885 years ago would try the expertise of the most talented and frugal budgeter.

Birthdays would be something of a problem, not for Noah, but for his friends and relatives.

"Well, it's his birthday again. What do we give the old boy this time?"

"What have we given him the past 200 times?"

I would think after 800 or 900 years, a man would tend to have everything he wanted.

I'm not sure I can itemize all the advantages of being 950 years old, but if you knew anyone who was casting a play about a New Year's Eve party, you would be a natural to play the outgoing year.

The two mismatched lovers pass through a quarter of a century with once-a-year meetings to renew their affair in the latest Clarkston Village Players production which opens Friday, March 5. Appearing as the only two characters in the play are Independence Township residents Charles Haskins and Karen Sage. Tickets for the adult comedy are $3.50.

Wednesday, March 10—Pre-festival concert with music by band students from Clarkston High School, Clarkston Junior High School and Sashabaw Junior High School; 7:30 p.m.; no charge for admission; in SJHS auditorium, 5565 Pine Knob, Independence Township.

The play is to be on stage at the Depot Theatre on White Lake Road in Independence Township March 5, 6, 7, 11, 12 and 13. Tickets may be purchased at Tierra Arts and Design, 20 S. Main, Clarkston, or they may be reserved by calling 363-0188. On March 26 and 27, the play moves to the Deer Lake Racquet Club for dinner-theater performances. Tickets may be purchased at the racquet club and reservations may be made by calling the club.

Saturday, March 13—Legislative breakfast with at least nine candidates for governor of Michigan expected to attend; 8 a.m.; Waterford Mott High School, 1151 Scott Lake, Waterford Township; for reservations, call Ron Arnold at 666-4000 or register the morning of the breakfast at 7:30.

Best in dog shows

by Ann Glenn

One way to solve winter blues is to go dog-showing in Florida or deli-hopping and dog-showing in New York City.

Instead of a 60-below zero chill factor and four- or five-foot snow drifts, we had a torrential rain, then the cold of the century with smudge pots, and radios and television monitoring the moments to minutes to hours when the mercury plummeted below zero, destroying one-third of the citrus crop.

Bedding, towels and clothing adorned yards and gardens to salvage precious vegetation from the slicing edge of cold. Leaves from some unprotected plants dangled like slimy florist's tissue as the sun brought the temperature up into the 60s the next day.

Instead of shoveling snow and creating schemes of how to carry water over the drifts or how to dig the rabbit hutch out of the embankment, you bathe a dog in the tub and blow it dry until 2 or 3 in the morning, catch a quick snooze, and head off at 6 a.m. for the next dog show.

From Jacksonville to the Tampa-St. Petersburg area to West Palm Beach and Miami, dogs, daughter and mom made one-night stands while Michigan was shivering in snow.

A run on the beach in a swimsuit with two afghans in tow brought queries from natives.

"Are you from the North Pole?"

"No, just from Michigan."

Then on to New York after a few days of getting fed up with snowbanks for the Westminster Kennel Club Show, the most prestigious dog show in the country.

Madison Square Garden is carpeted and rings are demarked with red velvet swags on gold posts. Judges wear formal attire, and owners and handlers are in a frenzy putting the mark of "groomed to perfection" on man's best friend.

Dogs stacked in crates on wheels roll into hotel lobbies as tourists in other than the world of dogs look on in amazement.

You catch a wink of sleep in the "bench" reserved for your dog and pick up a freshly fried egg on a roll or bagel for 50 cents at the deli.

Later the deli provides a Greek salad to share, and the patisserie has marvelous croissants.

Health food delis make fresh juice, homemade soup or meatless sandwiches and you can eat in New York healthily for less than $5 a day! (The hotel is another matter, however.)

Now my dogs are circling the fireplace and I see freezing rain glistening on the trees. And I look at a few blue, purple, and purple and white ribbons and remember.

The great show of Michigan is yet to come—March 13 and 14 the Detroit Kennel Club will put on its extravaganza at Cobo Hall. Watch for the judging schedule of your favorite breed.

It is a benched show where you can talk to breeders and handlers. There will be races and other doggy performances for your pleasure.

Mark your calendar—Cobo Hall, March 13 and 14.

Hand-clapping to square dance fun

Hand-clapping, foot-stomping family fun awaits at a square dance at Springfield Oaks Activities Center Friday, March 13.

Beginners are welcome at the event planned from 7:30 to 10 p.m. There'll be a dance contest and door prizes. Fee is $2 a person and the deadline for registration is March 12.

Cosponsors are the Oakland County Youth Assistance Advisory Council and the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission.

The activities center is located at 12451 Andersonville, at Hall Road, in Springfield Township.

To register or for more information, call Kay Karla at 858-0050 or Springfield Oaks at 625-8133.

SJHS takes 29 contest ribbons

Eleven first-place ribbons and 18 second-place ribbons were won by Sashabaw Junior High School students in the Solo and Ensemble Festival held recently at Oakland Community College.

Students receiving first division rating, which represents an excellent level of performance and musicianship, were Kim Millard, flute solo; Jackie Roberts, trumpet solo; Stephen Murphy, piano solo; Kristin Whisner, clarinet solo; Mike Weber and Eric Hofer, alto saxophone duet; Kristin Spiece, piano solo; and Mike Weber, Eric Hofer, Ron Hammond and Neil Matushin, saxophone quartet.

Second division ratings, which represent a good performance showing much accomplishment and promise, were awarded to Kristin Spiece, clarinet solo;

Tracie Mudge, clarinet solo; Tami Topous, Deanna Stricklin, and Rita Wiley, flute trio; Amy LaValley and Vickie Chenoweth, flute duet; Jennifer Fenton and Neil Matushin, flute duet; Weston Bringham, John Stapleton, Dave Cipparone and Dan Meissner, trumpet quartet; Doreen Stuart, clarinet solo; Julie Pescor, clarinet solo; Karen Jordan and Jackie Robets, clarinet and trumpet duet; and Karen Jordan, clarinet solo.

Other students participating were Julie Monroe, Ken Meisner, Chris Milam, Colleen Conway, Kim Brown, Larry Gratton, Steve Gerber, Eric Thomas and Mike Galligan.

"Congratulations goes to all these students for a job well done," said instrumental music director Douglas Doty.

CHS singers at bat

Kirk Gibson, whose mother Barbara Gibson teaches at Clarkston High School, won't be the only local resident ready to perform at Tiger Stadium May 22.

The Madrigal Singers of Clarkston High School are scheduled to be there, too, opening the ballgame against California with their rendition of "The Star Spangled Banner."

Grayce Warren, director of the vocal music department at CHS, received word early this month that the 16-member singing group was chosen to perform. They are to receive reserved seats at the game for their contribution.

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Cahill of Riverview Drive, Independence Township, announce the engagement of their daughter Cheryl to Donni Popour, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Popour of Columbiaville. The bride-to-be, a Clarkston High School graduate, is employed as a salesclerk and resides in Sidney, Mont. Her fiance, also a CHS graduate, is employed by Westwind Oil Co. and resides in Sidney, Mont. The couple plan a June wedding.

Grads

Among 700 recent graduates of Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant, were three local students.

Receiving a bachelor's degree in physical education was Michelle Gavette of Bluegrass Drive, Independence Township.

Kurt Gillis of Perry Lake Road, Independence Township, graduated cum laude with a bachelor's degree in accounting and economics.

Business administration and psychology were the majors of Lisa Lowe of Bridge Lake Road, Springfield Township, who also received a bachelor's degree.

Jeffrey Toombs has graduated from Ferris State College, Big Rapids, with a bachelor's degree in business administration.

He resides on Timber Ridge Trail in Independence Township.

New Eagle Scout

John McInnis received his Eagle Scout award at a court of honor held by Boy Scout Troop 49. Maxium Morrow presented the award and John Lynch of American Legion Post No. 63 presented a resolution on behalf of State Rep. Claude Trim.

John, 17, has been active in scouts nine years. He is a member of the Order of the Arrow. A senior at Clarkston High School, he plans to attend the University of Michigan in the fall. John is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas McInnis of Kier Road, Springfield Township.

Piston pal

Nicol Kelly, 7, recently had the opportunity to meet her favorite Piston, forward Terry Tyler. Nicol won the honor in McDonald's "Meet Your Piston" Contest. She had to opportunity to visit the Piston locker room, received an autographed basketball and four reserved tickets to the Detroit Pistons-Cleveland Cavaliers basketball game. She was even introduced on the public address system during the game! One winner is being selected from each participating McDonald's in the Detroit metropolitan area. Nicol, who lives on M-15 in Independence Township, represented McDonald's at 6695 Dixie Highway, Independence Township.

New arrivals

Alan and Joy Leonard welcomed their first child into the world Feb. 15.

Kenneth Edward weighed 7 pounds, 4 ounces at birth and measured 20 inches.

The Leonards reside on Princess Lane in Independence Township.

Grandparents are Lew and Diane Wint of Clarkston and Kenneth and Bernice Leonard of West Bloomfield.

Great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Euler of Bloomfield Hills, Russell Barrett of Clarkston and Lewis Wint of Lake Orion.

Don and Janet Trarop of Pine Knob Road, Independence Township, welcomed their new grandson into the world Feb. 17.

Andrew Michael was born to Jeff and Dorrie Cook. Andrew weighed 7 pounds, 13 ounces.

He is the first grandchild of Dan and Betty Cook of Pontiac.

Great-grandmothers are Mrs. Doris King and Mrs. Dantje, both of Pontiac.

A new baby girl joined the Miller family Monday, Feb. 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Miller welcomed Sarah Lindsay at 4:28 a.m. at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac.

Sarah weighed in at 8 pounds, 9 1/2 ounces and was 19 7/8 inches long.

She was cheerfully greeted at the family's home on Davisburg Road, Springfield Township, by Lisa, 13; Billy, 4; and Sammy, 2.

Grandparents are Mrs. Bernice Miller of Clarkston and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Keech of Hale.

Sophie and Nick Dureiko of Middle Lake Road, Clarkston, joined the ranks of grandparents Feb. 11.

Christy Lynn weighed in at 6 pounds, 10 ounces and measured 18 inches tall. Her parents are Nancy and Gary McIlroy of Waterford Township.

Gert McIlroy of Waterford Township is Christy's other grandmother.

College notes

Joan Ellen Moore, a senior voice major at St. Mary's College, Orchard Lake, is to give a recital Sunday, March 7, at the college's Little Theatre in Moreau Hall.

Highlights of the performance are "Nyolc magyar nepdal" (eight authentic Hungarian folksongs) by Bela Bartok sung in Hungarian, and an aria by John Cage, a work representative of Cage's philosophies on life designed to make audiences more aware of the world they live in.

Joan Ellen plans to continue her education next year, working toward a master's degree in vocal performance and vocal teaching.

She is the daughter of Thomas and Arline Moore of Glenburnie Lane, Independence Township.

Kalamazoo College student Leslie Wirpsa is participating in an off-campus Career Development Internship at Club Campeste, Guanajuato, Mexico.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hudson of Perry Lake Road, Independence Township.

Album tryouts spin into past

After 60 minutes worth of thumbing through piles of albums that fill the local music store's racks, the silver-haired man approaches the counter and sets down his selection.

Quietly he asks to be directed toward the listening room, a sound-proof cubicle where his discerning ears can savor the notes and decide if the product is worth the investment.

Once inside, the thick 78-size disc slips onto the turntable, the arm drops down and the sound of jazz floats through the air. Three songs later, the album's slipped back into the plastic cover, which in turn slips into the cardboard sleeve—and a purchase is made.

Savoring an album's sound before it's purchased is now a passe practice that was common fare 30 years ago, according to Gary McIntosh, manager of Harmony House, on the corner of Highland Road west of Cass Lake Road, in the Waterford Corners, Waterford Township.

"I still get a lot of people, especially the older ones, who don't understand why they can't listen to the albums before they buy them," McIntosh said. "To them, it just doesn't make sense."

"They also complain about about the prices, especially the increase in the past six to seven years," he said. "They don't understand we have no control over that at the retail level, it's the wholesaler who's raising the rates."

Wholesalers, schmosalers.

Those seniors are looking for the good ol' days when albums were made of thick, colored durable plastic, and were played on high-fi stereo systems that, according to McIntosh, were coming into their own in the '50s.

"I think that's when they did away with the listening rooms. Stereo was coming into its own, new sophisticated systems, and the albums were sealed in plastic.

Businesses couldn't afford to open each jacket and let customers play the album to see if they liked it—no one wanted to buy an album that had been open and played," he said.

The two just seemed to cancel each other out.

"But, it's my understanding that there's still one place, in Ann Arbor, that still lets customers listen to albums. It specializes in jazz and classical."

Let the discs spin.
Seniors are waiting.

Clarkston High School physical education instructor Gordie Richardson (right) and a group of CHS students put on an exhibition of jump roping skills during halftime at Friday night's JV basketball game. The show was a promotion for the "Jump Rope for Heart" fund raiser coming to the CHS gym March 13.

'Jump Rope for Heart'—a hopping fund raiser

Be on the lookout for students collecting pledges for the upcoming "Jump Rope for Heart" coming to Clarkston High School.

Sponsored by the Michigan Heart Association and the Michigan Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance, the event is to take place March 13 from 10 a.m. to noon in the CHS gym. The public is invited to attend.

Students plan to jump in teams of six, and the team that collects the most amount of pledges over $200 will all be awarded gym bags. Jump ropes will be given to individual jumpers who collect $50 or more.

All the money raised will go to the Michigan Heart Association in the battle against heart disease, the nation's No. 1 killer, says Gordie Richardson, CHS physical education teacher and coordinator of the event.

"Besides being for a good cause, it's fun and a great cardiovascular conditioner," he says. "We've got all the kids here jumping rope like crazy."

Teachers Sue Koslosky at Sashabaw Junior High and Mary Colwell at Clarkston Junior High are currently involved in recruiting volunteers from the junior highs, Richardson adds.

Students interested in volunteering for the the Jump for Heart or persons wishing to make a pledge can contact Richardson at the high school by calling 625-0900.

MAY THE LUCK O'THE IRISH BE WITH YOU!

Karen Yackell works the loom's bar, moving the spindle in and out of the many strands of string, working to create a scarf. Karen toils inside the basement of her Independence Township home on a loom she filed, sanded and assembled herself.

Weaving show, sale draws local artists

Karen Yackell sits before her and loom rhythmically pulls a bar back and forth. She slips a bobbin of wool in and out of the multi-strands of yarn and looks through the big basement window onto a winter landscape in Deerwood subdivision.

Under her careful scrutiny and patience, a wool scarf evolves with a central butterfly design.

A few miles to the south on Andersonville Road in Independence Township, 32-year-old Iris Charmer sits facing a smaller loom.

Silk strands of blue, rust and beige are woven together to create fabric, slated to be sewn into a custom-tailored suit.

Her view: a large picture window looking out onto a rolling valley filled with fallen tree limbs and acres of snow.

The women's backgrounds are diverse, but they share the same keen interest in creating and offering for sale that which they make.

Karen, with one year weaving experience and a bachelor's degree from Wayne State University, and Iris, with five years' weaving experience and an arts education from Cass Tech High School, are gearing up to fill their exhibits at the Michigan Weavers' Guild Exhibit and Sale scheduled March 4, 5, 6 and 7 at the Somerset Mall in Troy.

"I have a Bachelor's in Fine Arts from Wayne State University, I was an interior major. Since that time I raised a family and I wanted to get back into something related," Karen said. "So, I got a small loom, put it together myself, and set up this small area in the basement.

"Painting took so much clean-up time in between caring for the kids and everything else that I wanted something I could work on—and then walk away from."

For five hours a day, two to three days a week, Karen sits at her loom and works as a maestro would before a piano, surrounded by natural yarns of earthy colors, bobbins, wall hangings, dress dummies and mounds of woven fabric.

Natural woven pillows are Karen's forte.

Randomly weaving in and out different thicknesses and textures of yarn, the pillows take on individual characteristics, with no two ever exactly alike.

A boiling cauldron works to dye skein after skein of yarn in Iris' kitchen. Raw sheep's wool waiting to be combed, wool combed once, and pile after pile of cleaned, dyed and wrapped wool cover the upright piano along the wall.

A dress dummy models a beige coat with orange embroidery trim, and rug pattern squares cover a corner of a table next to the sewing machine.

"I became interested in weaving when I went to Cass Tech High School," Iris said. "There was a loom in my silver-smithing class, and I asked the teacher what it was.

"She said, 'Here's a book, I don't know any more than you.' So I read up on it. Later, I took a class at the Pontiac Art Center. But really, everything I know I really got from Cass Tech," she said.

Iris points to her designs for a rug.

"If I spent as much time making things as I do working them out on paper, I'd be pushed out of the house by the productiveness," she laughs.

"Weaving is like magic," she said. "I work the loom and (the fabric) just sort of blooms out in front like magic."

Both women are to be among the 150 juried artisans who've been selected to exhibit and sell their handwoven articles, baskets, rugs, pillows, wallhangings, blankets, and throws of all sizes.

A show highlight promises to be one-of-a-kind clothing and jewelry pieces.

From 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Thursday and Friday, Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m., followers of the best in weaving are expected to fill the Somerset Mall on Big Beaver at Coolidge Road in Troy.

For more information, phone 851-4683.

Silhouetted against the big picture window that looks out against a winter landscape, Iris Charmer tackles weaving silk fabric that's eventually to go into a custom made suit. The artisan's five years experience at the loom results in fine hand-crafted works to be on display at the upcoming Michigan Weavers' Guild Exhibit at the Somerset Mall.

Four CHS grapplers state bound

By Al Zawacky

It was a day fraught with bad luck, but the Clarkston High School wrestling team still managed to emerge with a strong third-place finish in the regionals Saturday.

Clarkston's Greg Ellis, Jeff Miracle, Bruce Burwitz and Tom Hecker all qualified for the state meet this weekend in Lansing. Four state qualifiers marks a year," said Coach Rick Detkowski afterwards, assessing his wrestlers' performances. "He was beating the kid that went on to win it (Rob Blake from Troy) 7-3, and wound up losing 8-8 on criteria. It's a good time for him to peak with the state meet coming up.

"If everyone can wrestle as well as Bruce did, they all have a good chance of placing at the state meet."

But it was a bitter-sweet Saturday for Coach Detkowski, who saw one of his seniors, Mike Conway, felled by some painful injuries.

Aggravating a back injury at the regionals, Conway wasn't able to compete to his usual form, edging past Mike Brady of Flint Kearsley 3-2 before being eliminated on losses to John Fisher of Flint Northern and Fred Toins of Flint Northwestern, by 3-0 scores.

"He'd been hurt all year long, but hadn't told anybody about it," Detkowski said later.

"It was a pretty touching situation—you knew he could beat the kid, but he just couldn't move. I was proud of him to go out there hurt like that and give his best shot for the team. It was an example of raw courage on his part."

Conway ended his varsity career with a 103-17-1 record over three years. He twice qualified for state competition, setting a CHS record by placing fourth in the state last year.

"We actually had a pretty bad day," Detkowski noted, reflecting on Conway's injury and Burwitz's 8-8 loss on criteria.

A healthy Conway or a Burwitz win against Blake could have netted Clarkston the regional championship, but then Detkowski couldn't really complain.

"When we left for the break Saturday, I wasn't even keeping score. I didn't figure we had a chance," he said.

"Then we came back from dinner and found out we were in first place. I was happy with the way we performed."

Clarkston's coach was also honored along with Troy's Gary Harlem as one of two Coach of the Year candidates selected by the assembled coaches at the regional. Detkowski and Harlem were both presented with plaques in a brief ceremony during the competition Saturday afternoon and thus became eligible for state-wide Coach of the Year honors, a choice that will be made at the state meet.

Sports

new school record at Clarkston High School.

Miracle and Hecker both placed second at 138 and 185 pounds respectively. Burwitz was third at 167 pounds, while Ellis placed fourth at 98 pounds. Ellis is the lone underclassman of the four, achieving the difficult feat of qualifying for the state meet as a sophomore.

Spikers rally to capture 3rd straight title

By Al Zawacky

A few weeks ago, everyone was throwing in the towel on the Clarkston High School varsity volleyball team.

The Wolves were a mediocre 2-2 in the Greater Oakland Activities League. Their chances of successfully defending their 1981 GOAL crown appeared slim at best.

But then something happened. Five wins in the next remaining six games, to be exact, including last week's title-clincher at Waterford Kettering in two straight games, 15-6, 15-9.

That victory gave the Clarkston spikers a final league mark of 7-3 and their third straight GOAL championship.

"I think the girls realized that teamwork is very important, more important than individual play," said Coach Linda Denstaedt, reflecting on her team's abrupt turn-around.

"We also learned how momentum can be the biggest factor in volleyball—you can be the greatest team in the world and lose simply because the other team stayed up."

"We still don't have our momentum problem totally solved, but at Kettering we didn't relax after we won the first game. That was good to see."

After the title-clincher at Kettering Thursday, the Wolves hosted the Clarkston Invitational Tournament Saturday and found the competition rough, failing to advance out of their five-team pool. Lansing Waverly emerged as the tourney champion, with Royal Oak Kimball taking runner-up honors.

The Wolves are scheduled to take on Port Huron Northern in Port Huron Tuesday in pre-district action. In a do-or-die situation, a victory would advance the Wolves to the district play offs Saturday at Rochester High School, while a defeat would eliminate Clarkston from play-off contention and end the season.

Last-second shot nixed—Wolfpack loses

By Al Zawacky

They may be arguing about this one for years. Did Ray Kubani get his shot off before or after the final buzzer in the midst of that last-second melee under the Waterford Mott basket?

At the scene, official Rick Pankey signaled the shot was good, and the Clarkston bench erupted in jubilation.

But a few moments later, after a consultation with the timekeeper, the officials had a change of heart. Time had run out before Kubani's shot fell through the hoop, the timekeeper said, and no one at the scorer's table contested that opinion.

Presto—instead of a 47-47 tie at the end of regulation and imminent overtime, the Waterford Mott Corsairs had squeaked out a 47-45 victory.

It was now Mott's turn to celebrate.

Moments later in the Clarkston dressing room, Wolfpack Coach Gary Nustad did the best job he could to conceal his sense of utter frustration.

Another effort wasted. Another close-but-no-cigar.

Did Kubani get his shot off in time?

"I'm not sure—it was that close," Nustad said afterwards. "That's what the official timekeeper is paid for."

"From my side of the bench, it's going to look one way, and from Mott's side it'll appear the other. The officials did their job the best way they can."

They've got to live with themselves tomorrow."

What really irked Nustad though, was the fact that the game had to come down to a last-second shot in the first place. Clarkston held a 19-10 lead in the first half and had numerous opportunities to deliver the knock-out punch.

"We got some very good shots in the first half and couldn't stick them in the hole," Nustad said. "If we had, it would have completely changed the complexion of the game."

"Mott deserves all the credit in the world for the way they played and should be commended for their effort. But we did not play as well as we have been."

Mike McCormick, who fouled out late in the game, scored 16 points to lead the Wolfpack offensively. Kubani followed with nine points, Mike Dearborn had eight, Rick Williams seven and Craig Kulaszewski five.

The Mott Corsairs were led by an 18-point performance by John Hingst. Kevin Cross was the other Corsair in double figures with 10 points.

The loss dropped the Clarkston High School varsity basketball team to 4-5 in the Greater Oakland Activities League and 9-8 overall, erasing the Wolfpack's hopes of finishing second in the GOAL.

Even if the canceled Feb. 5 game against league rival Lake Orion is rescheduled and Clarkston wins it—and there are no plans to reschedule the game at the present time—the best the Wolves could achieve would be a fourth place finish at 5-5.

"It hurts," Nustad said, the frustration still showing. "It's not just second place. Losing is a bitter pill to swallow anytime."

"But it's especially bitter in a game like this, a game we felt we should've won."

Pairings in the district playoffs at Waterford Mott, in which the Wolfpack will compete, were announced Monday. See Page 20 for details.

JVs wrap up league crown

Dynasty. Not a label to be applied frivolously. But the Clarkston High School JV volleyball team has earned it.

Last week the JV Wolves mowed down in succession Greater Oakland Activities League foes West Bloomfield, Waterford Mott and Waterford Kettering to wrap up their third straight GOAL championship in Coach Nancy Foster's third year at the JV helm.

All three opponents were dispatched in just two games—West Bloomfield 15-7, 16-14; Mott 15-1, 15-8; and Kettering 15-3, 15-9.

In addition to a group of regular stand-out performers, the Wolves also benefited from the big improvement shown by many of the players over the course of the season, Foster said.

Joyce Schmidgall, Amy Stark, Kris Tisch and Shannon Moore really came on as hitters, she said.

Lisa Ashton and Kelli Keating came on strong as the season progressed to provide the JV Wolves with top-notch setting. Denise Giroux, who suffered an ankle injury and was out for a couple weeks earlier in the year, came back to become a standout in the Clarkston back row.

SYNOPSIS

Synopsis of Clarkston Village Council Meeting Minutes of Feb. 22, 1982.

Present: Byers, Raup, Schultz, Symons

Absent: ApMadoe, Basinger, Fisher

Paid the $10 annual membership dues of the Mich. Historic District Network for our Historic District Commission.

Purchased ten metal trash barrels from Oliver Supply, at a cost of $244 each, to be paid for with Community Development funds.

Held the second Public Hearing on proposed uses for federal Revenue Sharing funds, based on the suggestions made at the two Public Hearings.

Discussed the recently enacted Truth-In-Taxation Act.

Decided to have the next council meeting on March 9th, since the regularly scheduled one of March 8th falls on election day.

Heard a proposal to remodel the gas station on M-15 at Clarkston-Orion Rd. and sell gas and food there.

Authorized the treasurer to borrow up to $2500 from the general fund to be transferred to the sewer operation maintenance fund.

Adjourned at 9:20 p.m.

All votes unanimous unless otherwise indicated.

Colombiere hosts programs for and by women

Five programs for women, by women to commemorate National Women's History week are to be offered at Colombiere Center beginning March 5.

Leading off the programs is to be a weekend retreat called "Sadhana" under the direction of Janice Brown March 5-7. The retreat is to explore Christian prayer exercises in eastern form using the writings of Jesuit priest Anthony DeMello.

A one-day program called "healing the feminine" is planned Sunday, March 7. Shanda M.H. Carignan, M. Div., is to present Jungian psychology's insights into feminine, healing and Christian growth. The schedule begins with an 11 a.m. mass and includes lunch and afternoon presentations. Cost is $12.

"Growing in Freedom" is planned Tuesday evening, March 9. Sr. Mary McDevitt, IHM, is to guide reflection on the biblical, psychological; personal and political aspects of freedom in women's lives. The program is to run from 6 to 9:30 p.m. Cost is $8.

"Womanpower" on Wednesday, March 10, is designed for working women, professional women and women volunteers. The day-long seminar is designed to increase self-knowledge and improve personal and professional effectiveness. Cost is $25 including all materials and lunch.

On Saturday, March 13, Colombiere is to offer a renewal day for women: "You are precious in my eyes." During the day-long program, participants are to reflect on the wonder of being created in God's image. Fee is $15.

For more information, call Colombiere Center at 625-5611. The center is located at 9075 Big Lake Rd., Springfield Township.
