Residents deny Independence raises

By Marilyn Trumper

With little fanfare at Saturday's annual meeting, township residents recommended approval of the 1982-83 $1.2 million general fund budget, and agreed to freeze administrators' salaries at current levels.

"In as much as the UAW has made concessions to the auto makers, I move the board's salaries remain the same for the fiscal year," said Kenneth Wilson of Rattalee Lake Road.

The motion was "enthusiastically" seconded by Iva Sommers Caverly of Waldon Road and, in the verbal vote, the "ayes" were offset by a few scattered "nos."

This year board members budgeted over $1 million, or 37.3 percent of the revenue for the 40 full-time payroll employees.

The about 50-member audiences' vote to keep pay scales at current levels caps the supervisor's salary at $31,296; the clerk's at $28,689; the treasurer's salary at $28,689 and the four part-time trustees at $3,525.

Last year department heads and elected officials received a 9.3-percent raise.

Offices of the clerk, treasurer, assessor, parks and recreation department and library operate with revenue from the general fund, which this year was budgeted to brace for an expected $165,000 cut in state shared revenue.

The township's remaining budgets tentatively total $744,000 for fire; $244,200 for police; $130,000 for safety paths; $74,000 for property purchase; $110,250 for the water department and $417,800 for sewers.

The township board is expected to adopt the budget prior to the beginning of April 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

Village help gets 10-percent raise

The 1982-83 year brings approximate 10-percent raises all around for two elected Clarkston Village officials and all other village employees.

At the March 22 meeting, President Jackson Byers and council trustees bowed from accepting raises for their part-time posts, and unanimously approved pay hikes for the clerk and treasurer and all other village employees.

Currently the village president is paid $50 a meeting and trustees $20 a meeting. The village council meets for regularly scheduled meetings the second and fourth Monday of each month.

The clerk's salary has been increased from $4,000 a year to $4,400 and the treasurer's salary from $3,750 to $4,125.

The parking enforcement officer and crossing guard's pay has been upped from $5.50 to $6 an hour, and the village secretary from $6 to $6.60 an hour.

The council approved a raise for the department of public works director from $115 to $130 a week and raised his employees' pay from $6 to $7 an hour.

Members of one Camp Fire group did some serious thinking last week about the fate of Harp Seals. As they worked to receive a "Save the Seals" patch, they were told about the killing of baby Harp Seals for fur, signed a petition stating their concerns to be sent to Greenpeace, an organization devoted to stopping the killing of the seals, and made posters expressing their views. As the meeting ended for the 15 members who attend Clarkston

Springfield board receives pay hike

By Al Zawacky

After an hour and a half of spirited debate and a parade of nine defeated motions, an overflow crowd of residents at Springfield Township's annual meeting Saturday approved $1,200 raises for their supervisor, clerk and treasurer.

Approved in the same motion was a $10-per-meeting increase for the township board's two trustees, from $40 to $50 per meeting. The trustees' annual salary of $600 will remain the same.

The increases amounted to less than one-third of those sought by the township board, which had recommended increases in the range of 21 percent for Springfield's full-time officials.

"I'm human, and I would have appreciated more," said Collin Walls, Springfield Township supervisor. "But it just didn't happen."

"I was pleased with the turnout, and pleased with the way people conducted themselves. With that kind of issue and that many people, things could've gotten out of hand."

Walls said the crowd was the largest he had ever seen—117 residents signed in at the front desk, "And some of the people that came had to stand at the back door and never made it in to sign," he added.

The crowd was in a feisty mood, and some comments drew groans and boos as residents took sides on the salary issue.

The recommended 21-percent increases were explained in the proposed budget packets available at the meeting. Cited were the state's inflation rate and comparisons with the salaries of township officials in similar communities, such as Milford, Brandon and Oxford.

Walls also noted that Springfield residents had frozen officials' salaries at last year's annual meeting.

"Last year we were asked to to tighten our belts, and we did," he said to the assembled residents. "It did have a psychological effect on us at first, but we pulled ourselves out of the doldrums and went our and did the job you elected us to do."

"These increases are a suggestion, a guide. The decision is totally yours."

Comments both pro and con were heard, and in the course of the debate, nine motions went down to defeat.

Sharon Norberg of Pony Lane made the motion calling for $1,200 raises for Supervisor Walls, Clerk J. Calvin Walters and Treasurer Patricia Kramer; and the $10 per meeting increases for trustees Glen Vermilye and William Whitley.

Norberg's motion passed in a show of hands 66-47.

The increases will give Walls an annual salary of $21,700; Walters will earn $20,600 per year; and Kramer will make $18,800.

After 32 years

Dr. Bullard heads to retirement

By Marilyn Trumper

After 32 years in the Clarkston area, Dr. Rockwood Bullard, 64, is retiring.

"Just in time for Social Security to kick in," the surgeon says, his blue eyes sparkling behind gold wire-rimmed glasses.

Bullard performed surgery at the operating table his second to the last day on the job, taking his work down to the wire.

As he talks about his career, there are signs inside his Independence Township office of the pending retirement.

Empty hooks hang on the yellow walls.

"I took my diplomas down."

The room's dominated by a big desk, topped with a blue phone, a seasoned in-out box and an aged telephone pop-up directory. An electrocardiograph fills one corner of the room.

"And it's not mine," says Bullard.

This is the day before his last day on the job, the culmination of a 32-year surgical career. He's saved a lot of lives, helped a lot of people, and is proud his office thwarted lawsuits until 1978.

"Surgery is really not a pressure thing as far as I'm concerned. It's changed in the past 10 years. The legal ramifications and governmental regulation, well, the pressure's on when you do have a lawsuit."

The silver-haired doctor clasps his hands behind his head as he bitterly announces some lawsuits have been filed since 1978, and it's making him miserable.

"I just don't need the aggravation. That's why I'm retiring. The fun's out of it."

Bullard was responsible for bringing Dr. James O'Neill, pediatrician, to Independence Township in 1951.

"Most important is his concept of taking care of the community, as well as individual people. Schools, fire and police services, zoning, everything that went on, he was very concerned with," O'Neill says of his friend and colleague.

"For years he did general practice work, took care of babies and all that. Rocky did everything.

Then as he got in each new specialist, he gave up those to the specialists."

O'Neill points out Bullard was Chief of Staff at Pontiac General Hospital, is an avid fly-fisherman, excellent hunter, "...and I understand he's average at golf," O'Neill says with a laugh.

Paul Tungate, director of athletics for Clarkston Schools, offers his tribute.

"Dr. Bullard always has cooperated in athletics here," Tungate said. "He's been very supportive and spent in excess of 20 years on the sidelines. We're proud to have had him be a part of all this."

In addition Bullard offered free physicals to the players, or if he charged a fee, turned all the receipts over to the athletic program, Tungate said.

If a player was injured, Bullard was among the doctors who took to the field as the immediate physician.

"And he never charged us," said Tungate.

Golfing, fishing, boating, gardening and "...a lot of projects" lie ahead for the retiree, who'll spend days of newfound leisure at home on Parke Lake Drive with wife Maryetta.

"I've enjoyed it very much, and am proud to have been a part of Clarkston," Bullard said.

Dr. Rockwood Bullard, surgeon, sits behind his desk in the waning days of his 32-year-old Clarkston-area practice. March 23 marked the end of his medical practice as Bullard moved into retirement.

Neighbor pressures schools to clean-up 80 acres

By Marilyn Trumper

Kenneth Wilson wants to see Clarkston schools clean up its 80-acre parcel near the junction of Rattalee Lake and Reese roads, and he's putting pressure on Independence Township to muscle the district into an impromptu spring cleaning.

"I think the school board should be as responsible as any other property owner," Wilson told the board at the township's annual meeting March 27 as he briefly touched on the issue.

Supervisor James B. Smith pointed to the $4,000 in revenue sharing budgeted to cover the cost of bi-annual township-wide cleanup, and said he would personally approach school Superintendent Milford Mason.

The 80-acre parcel is marred with piles of brick and concrete, grass clippings, brush, piles of crushed blacktop, plastic jugs, an old snowmobile, couches, stoves, refrigerators, tires, mattresses, cinder blocks, an old barbecue, shingles, bottles and much more.

"If this were my property the township would be out here ordering me to clean it up," Wilson said, surveying the acreage. "My position is the school board is as much a part of the community as any other property owner."

"We're going to end up like another Maybee Road, and this isn't just junk that's put back in the field. It's coming up toward the road now."

Wilson, a neighbor of the vacant acreage, says he's seen the problem escalate in the past two years.

There is no barrier erected at the road entrance to dissuade illegal dumpers from entering the property.

"The road isn't even blocked off. They just drive right on in," said Wilson.

Clarkston Schools Superintendent Milford Mason was sympathetic when briefed on the situation.

"I know in past years we've taken grass clippings and branches out there, but we cut that out a long time ago," Mason said.

"We'll see what we can do, but it will depend on the cooperation of those who are dumping. We'll have to look into it."

A berm or tree or pipe across the road won't keep out trespassers, they'll just drive around or over or cut up the barrier, he said.

An inspection of address labels in a pile of mail reveals some of the trash originated in Fenton.

According to a spokesperson for the township building department, there is an anti-litter ordinance that includes an up to $200 fine for unauthorized dumping.

Kenneth Wilson uses a piece of wood to prod a pile of rubble dumped on an 80-acre parcel of Clarkston schools property near Reese and Rattalee Lake Roads.

Unofficial dump site breeds anger, frustration

Delbridge: 'There are some real slobs in society and they're the ones that do it.'

By Kathy Greenfield

Looking like a trail left by a giant casting aside debris, discarded sofas lead to the big dumping ground where all sorts of garbage sits around a sign that says: "No Dumping. Ordinance Enforced by Independence Township."

The place—where Maybee Road turns to dirt in the northeast portion of Independence Township—is one of about a dozen "drop zones" scattered around the township, said Kenneth Delbridge, building department director.

"It's basically like a city dump," says Jerry Karr who lives down the road. "We have probably six sofas, mattresses, washers, dryers, stoves, horse manure—everything's dumped there."

Calls to the township have received the response that they can't do anything about cleaning up the dumping area, Karr said, and the owners of the three residences that sit at the end of the half-mile dumping strip don't have the resources to do the job themselves.

"It's not a very pleasant thing when you're going to come home and you have to go on by it," he said.

After a call last week from The Clarkston News, Delbridge drove out to the dumping area.

"I went over there and looked and that is a mess—couches all over the place," he said.

When he was looking through the garbage, Delbridge said he found some mail with a nearby address on it, but when he checked the residence, he found it vacant.

A letter, nonetheless, will be written to the address indicating the garbage must be cleaned up, he said.

Independence Township is one of only a few in Oakland County which enforces its dumping ordinance that can lead to a fine up to $200, Delbridge said, but there's one problem.

"You have to almost catch them in the act," he said. "I'd love to go out there and find somebody dumping a bunch of stuff from a pick-up. I'd make them clean up the entire area."

"There are some real slobs in society and they're the ones that do it."

If anyone sees illegal dumping going on, getting a license number is the first step.

Another way a resident can help catch the culprits is to try to pinpoint a time when dumping takes place and then request surveillance from Delbridge's office.

As far as clean-up goes, he suggests they ask the township board for help, or seek some volunteers from a scout troop.

"(A group of residents) can ask the township board if they will appropriate X-amount of dollars to send a truck down," he said.

Parents to voice lunchroom concerns

Parents of elementary school pupils throughout the Clarkston school district are taking their concerns about snack-type items sold at lunchtime to the board of education.

The matter is on the meeting agenda for Monday, April 5, said Pine Knob PTO President Lynne Coxen.

"We're going to have facts at our disposal as to why these types of food are not beneficial to our children," she said.

The decision to organize a protest against items including cookies, snack cakes, potato chips, ice cream, and peanut butter and cheese crackers began early this month when Pine Knob Elementary was chosen for a pilot program that offered all the snack items for sale in addition to a regular hot lunch each day. In the other elementary schools in the district, one item is sold each day.

Parents have been asked to attend the meeting, there will be petitions signed by concerned parents, and doctors, dentists and counselors have been asked to lend their support to the protest, Coxen said.

Federal regulations allow practically everything to be sold during lunchtime at schools with the exception of gum, soda pop, flavored ice on a stick and some kinds of candy, she said.

"Our goal would be to have the school board adopt a more stringent policy about what can be sold at school," Coxen said.

Most parent-teacher organizations in the district have sent letters home with school children informing

He's also willing to post more no-dumping signs when areas are cleaned up, he said, but that can make the situation worse.

"The thing is when you post a no-dumping sign it alerts people that has been a dumping site," he said.

The only real solution, he added, is more development.

"It will stop when more houses go into the area, but not until then."

them of the protest, she said, but some school offices have refused to cooperate.

"It's making it much more difficult for them to find out how many people are really supporting the protest," she said, but some PTOs are contacting parents by phone or going door-to-door with petitions.

Coxen said petitions are available for signing at the following locations—the Clarkston Village Clinic, 5905 M-15; Hallman Apothecary, 4 S. Main; the Independence Township Library, 6495 Clarkston-Orion; and the office of Dr. Michael Prudhomme, 5649 Sashabaw.

The school board meeting is to begin at 8 p.m. at the administration office, 6389 Clarkston-Orion, Independence Township.

DNR, Army engineers at odds

Garner ordered to fill in canal

By Marilyn Trumper

While the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the Army Corps of Engineers remain at odds on the dredging of a canal to feed a newly dug pond off Dark Lake Trail, Independence Township has moved to shut down operations until a wetlands permit is issued to developer Hugh Garner, owner of Winchester Real Estate.

Township building Director Kenneth Delbridge calls it "...a case of the right hand not knowing what the left is doing. I wish (the DNR and Army Corps of Engineers) could get together on these things."

According to Delbridge, the DNR issued Garner a permit to create a half-acre pond on an eight-acre parcel off Deer Lake. The Army Corps of Engineers improperly issued the developer a permit to dredge the canal from Deer Lake to feed the pond, on the recommendation from the Department of Fisheries that the pond would make good breeding ground for Deer Lake wildlife.

The DNR was never notified of the move.

Last week Garner voluntarily ended the dredging off Deer Lake when the township found him in violation of the law requiring a wetlands permit at the local level. And the township, with the DNR in tow, directed Garner to refill the canal, arguing it was dug illegally.

"That canal should never have been dug," said Jeffery King, regional representative of the DNR's Land Resource Program. "We've authorized him to refill the canal, and we'll monitor that project."

Peat and mounds of gray marl, a spongy clay-like material, are piled high along the cattail infested wetlands off Dark Lake Trail in Deer Lake Subdivision, around the banks of the half-completed pond.

In the words of one local resident, "...It looks like the aftermath of Mount St. Helen all over again."

Delbridge says he'll steer Garner before the planning commission for a public hearing when application is made for the wetlands permit, a decision that can be made administratively as well as before a public body.

Before getting the DNR's final word to refill, Garner threw up his hands.

"You can't fight these guys."

Garner indicated he felt he was on firm footing because he'd received permits from the DNR and Army Corps of Engineers, even though he had failed to receive the wetlands permit at the local level.

As of Friday, Garner had not yet applied for the township permit.

Township trustee opens law firm

Dale A. Stuart, trustee on the Independence Township Board, recently announced the formation of his new law partnership, Murphy, Kimmel & Stuart.

"It should be very good," Stuart said, about the offices opening at 7368 Highland, Waterford Township. "It's so much closer to home, although I'll still be keeping my Detroit office."

The opportunity to open practice with control over the firm spurred the milestone move, he said.

Stuart, a Wayne County Public Administrator, will continue to maintain Detroit offices at 1540 First National Building, Detroit.

Realism on rollers

Last summer my moderate curiosity about biking exploded in what seemed only a few nanoseconds into a consummate fascination.

But when the snow accumulation passed the nine-foot mark, I was facing a dilemma. I could either stop biking or equip my bike with studded tires and a modified version of a snow removal blade.

I had heard aficionados claim that if you hang your bike up in the fall, in the spring you have a spare tire.

I resolved the problem by purchasing a "set of rollers," a device which consists of three fairly sophisticated rolling pins so placed in a framework that you can place a bike on the rollers and ride the bike.

The normal relative motion between the vehicle and the surface on which it rests is maintained, but now the bike is still and the road moves. There is nothing holding the bike vertically except the rider's skill and profanity.

The first time I attempted to ride on this sinisterly benign-looking device, I found myself clutching a basement post with the ardor and affection of an amorous inebriate who has rediscovered a long lost but fondly remembered lamp pole.

As I became more proficient I could hear the rollers howl as I shifted the bike into higher and higher gears. I was waiting for what would be a memorable instant when the rollers stuck and I crashed into the furnace going 32 miles per hour.

The problem with that type of accident is not only the bruises, contusions and multiple fractures, but trying to explain it to the attendants at the emergency room.

"Now let's go over this again, sir. You say you were riding a bike in your basement and you crashed into the furnace doing 32 miles per hour. To build up that sort of speed, sir, your house would have to be 175 feet long. I think we better check that white stuff you put in your coffee."

I was explaining to one of my non-biking friends that the advantage of rollers over an exercise bike is that you can fall off the rollers, thereby simulating an accident.

My friend wasn't convinced this was an advantage.

I noted that some people use fans to simulate crosswinds and he suggested that if I had such an insatiable appetite for realism, why didn't I have a small phonograph by my feet with a recording of a barking dog.

Or if I wished a simulated rainstorm, I could have Anne throw a bucket of water in my face. I suppose she could put fish in the bucket so I could think I was fording a deep river.

What do you expect from someone whose total exercise program consists of mixing drinks and drinking same?

The expense of the rollers seems to be part of an ongoing commitment in support of my habit. Buying a bike irrefutably established a need for the accoutrements and ancillary equipment.

I sometimes feel uneasy about diverting funds into a biking account.

But then I take solace from making contact with someone who has just purchased some expensive sticks with which to hit a little white ball. Not one or two multi-purpose sticks but 10 or 12 specially designed sticks.

I am comforted by finding someone who has bought flat boards that can be affixed to the feet so he can slide around on the snow.

I am almost warmed by talking to fishermen. One of my associates spends his spare time ice fishing. From an economic standpoint, the food put on the table so far this winter has cost just under $173 a pound.

I conclude that when sports are measured with the inflexible yardstick of practicability, they tend to fall somewhere between "ridiculous" and "ludicrous."

Team shocked at Nustad firing

We, the players of the 1981-82 Clarkston High School Varsity Basketball Team, would like to take this opportunity to express our feelings concerning the firing of Coach Nustad.

We were shocked, hurt and confused by the action of the individuals involved. We feel these people acted irresponsibly by not giving the people who support Coach Nustad an opportunity to respond in his defense.

Who is it that speaks for us? It wasn't our parents. Is this a lesson in democracy? Is there a lesson to be learned here?

We look to those in a position of power in our schools for guidance. We hope they have the best interests of all the students at heart.

We do not feel that Mr. Mason and Mr. Vaara can explain why this action was deemed necessary. Surely it was not Coach Nustad's excellent record. Give us a valid reason—one that we can accept.

Coach Nustad was a friend, adviser, teacher and a substitute father when needed. Knowing him has been an honor. We feel Coach Nustad should be reinstated to his previous position as Varsity Basketball Coach.

Parents claim they had no say

As parents of young men who played basketball under the direction of Mr. Gary Nustad this year, we are appalled that an open forum was not held prior to his dismissal.

If in fact "a series of meetings involving parents and administrators" (Clarkston News, 3-24-82) took place, why were we not contacted?

We do now know that at least one such meeting took place on Tuesday, 3-2-82. Apparently because we support Mr. Nustad and his efforts, the majority of us were not invited to join in the discussion.

It appears a decision has been made based on the opinions and misconceptions of a select group of parents, most of whose sons will not participate in varsity ball for a year or two.

We resent the fact that our feelings and opinions were not worth solicitation and our position not given hearing when the decision affects our sons now.

What is it we as a community and a school ask of our coach? Is it not training in the sport? team work? sportsmanship? gentlemanly conduct? how to handle defeat as well as success? a winning season? Our coach has achieved these objectives.

How can one enumerate Coach Nustad's accomplishments and then say, as Mr. Vaara did, that he has been dismissed "in the best interest of our basketball program"?

Mr. Nustad led the varsity to five consecutive winning seasons, four consecutive GOAL championships and a State semi-final berth, all in the last six years. That leader was honored as "Coach of the Year" by his peers as well as others.

Does this sound like someone you would fire?

Turnabout's fair

Just a couple things this week that may make you feel better, as they did me.

A couple weeks ago Keith Marsh of Pine Knob Road, Clarkston, was hauling some cattle in his truck east of North Branch on M-90.

He stopped the truck when he realized it was out of oil, and soon found some help. The man took Keith into town for oil, brought him back to his truck, and refused to take any pay.

There are a lot of people like this man in the world, thank goodness. It's such a great pleasure to run across them.

Last Wednesday afternoon I got a phone call from one of our paper deliverers, Betty Beard-sley. The muffler had fallen from her car, and wedged under the bumper.

One end remained fastened to the undercarriage.

I went over and took a look at it. Lacking tools, I went to a nearby farm. Keith Marsh came to the door.

You can guess the rest. Keith pulled on his coveralls, grabbed a set of tools, and went to Betty's car with me. He wouldn't even let me dirty my hands. Keith took off the two bolts, and accepted my thanks.

Like the man who helped him in North Branch, Keith refused pay.

Gestures like that sure make life wonderful.

Now comes Jim Downey, Lake Orion insurance man and golfer. He's better at selling, but devotes more time to stick swinging.

Jim was planning to go to Myrtle Beach with 23 other afflicteds, and part of his preparation was making absolutely sure he thought of everything connected with the game before he left.

Two days before he left he called Dr. David Jennings and asked for a prescription. Dave asked Jim if he was sick. "No," Jim told his physician, "But I've had a sore throat a lot this winter, and if it comes back while I'm down south I want to have something for it."

Having seen Jim Downey swing at a golf ball, I assume he has a very wide belt and a back brace in his duffel.

There's a very good chance he's going to tear something loose when he whiffs in South Carolina.

Letters to editor

Dismissal is 'unwarranted'

This week I was shocked and saddened by the dismissal of Coach Gary Nustad.

I played two years for Coach Nustad and never started a single game. Yet, I learned a far more valuable lesson from Coach Nustad—I learned that there was much more to life than winning or losing basketball games.

I also learned the value of working hard to become the best that you could, because Coach Nustad worked hard to become the best that he could.

No matter who the coach is, or how loud some parents complain—or how vicious the politics—the athletes will still decide the final outcome.

Coach Nustad has instilled confidence into those people who are most damaged by this shameful injustice, those whose opinion was neglected by the decision makers, those who know exactly what has been lost, those who have to play through their town's mistake—the two sophomores and seven juniors Gary leaves behind.

For the first time in my life, I am truly disturbed and disappointed by the unwarranted, inconsiderate and self-serving actions of our decision makers.

Painting promo

A painting crew of 10 Sashabaw Junior High School students descended on McDonald's on Dixie Highway in Independence Township last week and left colorful windows in their wake. All ninth-graders and Art III students of Susie Kiser, the students created barnyard scenes, farm animals and other promotional pictures for the Quality in the Bag Game now underway at McDonald's. In the photo above, Amy Marshall works on Rocky the Rooster while Debbie Kent (left) puts the finishing touches on blue-eyed Harriet the Cow. In the photo at right, Mike Johnson paints details on the bag he and Dave Adams designed. Also working on the project were Lisa Norris, Jack Hines, Richard Dix, Laura Wixom, Becky Engle and Melinda Queen. Her art students have been painting McDonald's windows for holidays and special events for about three years now, Kaiser said. "It's gotten to the point where the kids look forward to it," she said. "It gives them a chance to use something they've done in class outside in the community." McDonald's manager Cathy Foster talked about how the artwork decorates the store and pleases the customers. "The kids do such a good job," she said. "And it looks professional, too." The artists' reward for their volunteer efforts was lunch on the house.

'If it Fitz. . .'

Pro bono vs. the stork

by Jim Fitzgerald

The day is coming when lawyers won't have time to do pro bono work because they'll be too busy representing auto workers who don't care how much it costs to hire a lawyer.

A colleague recently handed me a news release from the State Bar of Michigan. It announced that "over 60 percent of Michigan's practicing attorneys" did "pro bono work" last year. Across the top of the news release, my colleague had written: "Fitz, if you believe this, you believe in the stork."

If a lawyer does pro bono work, it doesn't mean he (or she) handles Sonny Bono's divorces. Translating from the Latin, it means the lawyer provides free legal services "for the public good." According to the news release, more than 50 percent of that free legal aid went to charitable organizations and poor people who couldn't afford to pay for legal help.

MY COLLEAGUE was skeptical because the survey that uncovered the lawyer's magnificent generosity was taken by the lawyer's private club—the State Bar—and no proof was offered. The State Bar didn't present testimony from a litigant who won $100 million in damages and whose lawyer refused to accept one cent because the litigant was poor before the verdict.

The only evidence offered came from the surveyed lawyers themselves. They testified that, on the average, they spend about five percent of their total practice time on pro bono work. The State Bar believed the lawyers' claims and presented them to the public as fact with absolutely no unbiased substantiation.

My skeptical colleague said the lawyers' case for their own generosity was flimsy and he was far from persuaded that any attorney will work for free instead of working for Sonny Bono. I told my co-worker he shouldn't be so distrustful of his fellow man. I also told him how much better I feel about the future of the nuclear family since I learned that a committee of storks took a stork survey that proved that 60 percent of all storks spend five percent of their work hours delivering babies to barren couples.

But, since General Motors and the UAW reached a tentative agreement on a new contract, I don't feel so good about the future of poor people who can't win $100 million settlements without the help of free lawyers. The proposed contract gives company-paid legal aid to workers who want to sue someone, for instance, or get a divorce.

EVERYONE KNOWS what happened when auto companies began paying for most of an employee's medical and dental care through insurance plans. Workers suddenly didn't care how much it cost to go to the hospital or get cavities filled. Union members who used to take two aspirins for a broken leg suddenly began going to hospital emergency rooms to have slivers removed from their pants.

The same thing will happen when auto companies begin paying workers' lawyers. "This should spur people to go to a lawyer and go earlier than they otherwise might," Michael Franck, executive director of the State Bar of Michigan, told a reporter.

That will be nice for formerly-oppressed workers who will finally be free to get married without worrying about whether they can afford a divorce. Also, instead of being forced to suffer the embarrassment of asking a neighbor to turn down the TV, a worker will be able to sue the neighbor for $100 million for disturbing his sleep, ruining his health, cutting his income and fracturing his consortium.

But what about other people who aren't Sonny Bono? Once auto companies begin paying for workers' lawyers, law offices will become as crowded as medical clinics. To meet the demand for paid services and still have time for themselves, lawyers will form troops and require clients to accept representation from strange lawyers on Wednesday afternoons, nights and weekends.

Under those busy circumstances, lawyers will have no office time to give away. Poor people in search of pro bono legal services will have to stay home and wait for the stork to bring it.

Thief steals $600 raised for charity

Over $600 in pledges collected for the Jump Rope for Heart fund raiser were stolen last week from a portfolio sitting in the Sashabaw Junior High School gymnasium.

"What we're doing right now is waiting," SJHS Assistant Principal George White said Monday. "We have actively involved what I would hope to be the consciences of our student body to try to get them to tell us what they know."

The Oakland County Sheriff's Department is investigating the incident and school authorities are also looking for suspects, White said.

The money was taken from an envelope inside the carrying case Thursday, he said, and there were about $300 in checks and $300 in cash.

The teacher who had collected the money "got distracted and lost sight of (the portfolio) and when she went to lunch it was left in the gym," White said.

"I'm optimistic we will find out the person or persons (who took the money)," White added. "I feel very confident that will surface real soon because 900 kids can't keep their mouths shut."

When the theft was discovered, all the school lockers and gym lockers, as well as the school's roof, trash cans and a nearby field were searched, White said, but nothing was found.

The fund raiser was held March 20 at the Clarkston High School gymnasium. Participants from CHS, Clarkston Junior High and SJHS gathered pledges and jumped rope for two hours. The proceeds are to be donated to the Michigan Heart Association.

"Other than (the theft), the collections have gone pretty well. We've got probably $850," said CHS physical education teacher Gordon Richardson who coordinated the event.

A total of about $1,700 was pledged, and collections by participants are nearly completed, he said.

New ice cream store proposed

If all goes as planned, ice cream's coming into the Sashabaw Corridor.

Land just south of the Sashabaw and Maybee Road junction on Sashabaw's east side has been proposed as the site of a soft ice cream store come summer, with Charles F. Halpin of Lakeview Drive and Robert J. Pearson of Waterford Road proprietors.

On March 25 the partners received conceptual site plan approval from the Independence Township Planning Commission for their proposed seasonal ice cream store, which promises a selection of dietetic ice cream for the weight conscious.

Before final site plan approval, the men must seek size and lot width variances from the zoning board of appeals. The property, zoned highway commercial, is required to have 150 feet of road frontage and 20,000 square feet of land. The partners must seek variances to allow 100 feet of road frontage and 18,300 square feet of land, according to Kenneth Delbridge, director of the township's building and planning departments.

Pearson says he and Halpin have worked diligently since last August to purchase an abandoned house on the nonconforming lot to the north of the property in an attempt to increase the lot size without a variance, but they have been unsuccessful.

The partners are scheduled to appear before the ZBA at 7:30 p.m. on April 21 at Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Carter wins accolades as 'Volunteer of Year'

For years Al Carter's served the developmentally disabled at the Oakland County Mental Retardation Center, and he was just named "Volunteer of the Year" by the Association of Retarded Citizens of Oakland County.

Carter: Top volunteer.

Volunteer work is key to Carter's life-style.

At the local level, he boasts a good second year as chairman of Clarkston Area Youth Assistance (CAYA).

The 57-year-old Springfield Township retiree is humble, attributing the group's success to his colleagues and committee members.

"A chairman's really a figurehead. I couldn't do any of this if it weren't for them," he said.

For 20 years he's worked with youth assistance, a local organization that develops and conducts programs of guidance aimed at community youth and their families to prevent delinquency and neglect.

CAYA had a fruitful '81-82 year with its first-time-around projects like "Caring to be a Dad," aimed at fathers; the single parent program; and a recent program for parents and their children was so successful the group had to turn 25 people away, Carter said.

In addition, CAYA sent 62 kids to summer camp and made five matches in PLUS, similar to the big brother program.

Always working, striving to better the group and develop fresh ideas, there are more plans for the coming year.

"We're working on getting in a drug program for young people right now, but we're hitting a snag in getting the right people to promote it," Carter said. "It's my love for people. That's why I do it. I want to see changes and share the experiences of my life. The same problems I confronted while coming up as a child," he said.

"If I see success in one child, I figure the whole program is worth it, and I have seen changes. I've seen children mature, introverts become extroverts, more responsible young people in the community, and I've seen it help parents and their children."

McDonald's receives final site plan approval

Independence Township resident Michael Clark lost his bid to keep the McDonald's Corp. from building on 2.74 acres in the Sashabaw Corridor when the planning commission unanimously approved the final site plan March 25.

Planner Richard Carlisle clarified what he saw as the intent of the zoning ordinance.

"...While it is clear the goal of this district is to promote shopping centers, nowhere is it stated permitted uses will be confined exclusively to shopping centers."

Secondly, Carlisle said, "...it is clear to us that McDonald's is a permitted restaurant use...McDonald's provides adequate indoor seating and is not dependent upon serving patrons in a manner which allows food to be consumed on the premises while seated in a motor vehicle."

Finally, Carlisle reminded the commission that the lot is landlocked, and "...impossible for any permitted use to meet the lot and size width requirements for the site in question."

Clark had argued the week before at a zoning board of appeals meeting that the property, located between the Pontiac State Bank and a medical complex on Sashabaw Road, is zoned planned shopping center and allows for the development of a sit-down restaurant.

Repeatedly he said no variances should be granted to allow the restaurant's construction. Instead, he said, McDonald's should seek a rezoning. The ordinance requires a minimum of five acres to build and 400 feet of road frontage for entrances and exits. And the passing lane on the east side of Maybee Road that the county requires will come within three feet of the new bike paths, creating a safety hazard, he said.

Commission member Jean Benzing pointed out that in many communities bike paths are part of the roadways.

Commission member Walter Eidam echoed that philosophy, maintaining Sashabaw Road is targeted in the county's master plan to be widened, eventually requiring relocation of the safety path.

Bob Chappell, real estate manager for the McDonald's Corporation Southfield office, said earlier the company would begin construction by the end of April.

Independence has dusty road stopper

Although some Independence Township roads are under snow and others are a muddy mess, summer's drying heat and the resulting dusty roads are not far behind.

With this in mind, the Independence Township Board at its March 16 meeting approved paying 10 cents a foot for road chloriding in an effort to share some of the financial burden carried by residents.

Each year groups of homeowners on dirt roads unite, collect funds and independently contract the county to chloride roads in front of their homes.

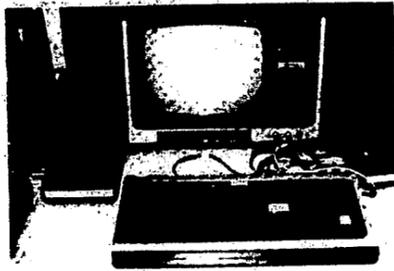

Traditionally the township has budgeted federal revenue to share the cost.

Seeks uniform plan

Business association eyes new sign ordinance

Clarkston Village Business Association's going one step farther than the new proposed village sign ordinance outlines with its specifics for size, lighting and lettering. The business owners are opting instead to develop a plan for uniform storefront signage for all village shops.

A majority of the association's 27 members in attendance at the March 16 business meeting favored the "uniform proposal" and the ordinance concept, according to President Phil Alper.

At least one group, the Clarkston Mills Mall, argues the ordinance is discriminatory and hamstrings the 13 businesses located under one roof.

"We want to make it clear we're not opposed to controlling signs, or to tastefully done signs," said Mills manager Trish Walker, speaking positively on the plan for uniform signage.

The Mills' objections are, instead, centered on the proposed village sign ordinance's limitations on the size of signs.

"We don't feel we have enough signage now, and this would prohibit us from putting up more. The proposed ordinance limits us to no more than 200 square feet," she said.

"We don't feel we should be restricted to having as many signs as a single business on Main Street. We have 13 merchants under one roof."

According to Alper, most village businesses are in compliance with the proposed ordinance and would not be forced to remove their current signage.

"We're working now with a professional company to come up with a uniform design, one that would be in the best interest of all, and we'll show it to the council when we have one together," Alper said.

For the past four years, the village planning commission has been considering amendments to the current law regulating signs, with strong emphasis on aesthetics for the historic district, approved in the summer of '80.

The proposed law which awaits council adoption, prohibits roof, marquee and overhanging signs, but allows canopies and awnings to advertise.

It prohibits illuminated, flashing, revolving or rotating signs, and says abandoned signs, due to the closing of a business or a change in business, must be removed by the property owner within 30 days. The law gives the planning commission the power to determine when a sign has been abandoned. Existing non-conforming signs have five years to meet the letter of the law after its passage.

Jaycees host egg hunt April 3

Easter events for kids go into full-swing this weekend in Independence Township.

On Saturday, April 3, the annual Clarkston Area Jaycees' Easter Egg Hunt is to begin at 10 a.m. at Clintonwood Park. The event is free and there'll be prizes plus lots of eggs and candy for the searchers. Parents are asked to use the Independence Township Senior Citizens Center entrance, 5980 Clarkston-Orion, right next to the park entrance.

Beginning Friday, April 2, the Clarkston Mills Mall hops into a special week-long holiday celebration.

A brand new baby lamb from Hillside Farms of Springfield Township is to visit the mall from 2 to 4 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, April 2 and 3, and the farm's owner, Gloria Bellairs, is to provide a spinning demonstration using sheep's wool from 2 to 6 p.m. Friday and from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday.

Kids can say "hi" to the Easter Bunny at the mall on Saturday, April 3, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Also planned Saturday is a Ukrainian egg-making demonstration with finished eggs and supplies for do-it-yourselfers for sale.

Art class on tap

Independence Township Parks and Recreation is offering an art class for children from kindergarten through third grade entitled "Explorations in Art."

The class focuses on the exploration and discovery of visual arts. It will stress learning to see, sense and recall, while becoming more aware of the environment and learning to express those concepts confidently through a variety of materials.

The class is to start April 20 and run for six weeks from 4 to 5:30 p.m. at Sashabaw Junior High School. For more information, call 625-8223.

Meeker to wed

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Meeker of Almond Lane, Independence Township, announce the engagement of their daughter Jane Elizabeth to Stephen Mark Brady, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Richard Brady of Springfield, Ill. The bride-to-be is a senior at Bob Jones University, Greenville, S.C. Her fiance also attends BJU, where he is a graduate student. An August wedding is planned.

College notes

Clarkston High School graduate Deborah Dobleske has been selected for inclusion in the 1982 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges."

Deborah is currently attending Baker Junior College, Flint, and is enrolled in the data processing program. She is to graduate in June.

Selection for the publication is based on academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and future potential.

Among the 37 Alma College students selected as resident assistants for the 1982-83 year was Jane Acton.

The job entails serving residence hall students in a variety of roles including resource person, referral agent, counselor, activities programmer, disciplinarian and administrator.

Acton, a freshman at Alma, is the daughter of John and Paula Acton of Sashabaw Road, Independence Township. She is a 1981 Clarkston High School graduate.

Gail Lynn Richard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent W. Richard of Cramlane, Independence Township, is an August 1981 graduate of Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant.

Gail, a 1975 graduate of Clarkston High School, worked six years to receive her bachelor's degree in business administration, with a second degree in French.

St. Mary's College in Notre Dame, Ind., was the site of a recital March 7 by senior voice major Joan Ellen Moore of Independence Township.

Highlights of the performance were "Nyolc magyar nepsdal," eight authentic Hungarian folksongs by Bela Bartok sung in Hungarian; and an aria by John Cage, a work representative of Cage's philosophies on life designed to make audiences more aware of the world in which they live.

Joan Ellen plans to continue her education next year, working toward a master's degree in vocal performance and vocal teaching.

She is the daughter of Thomas and Arline Moore of Glenburnie Lane.

Sashabaw band rates top honor

For the first time in the history of Clarkston schools, a junior high band received top rating at the district competition, says Doug Doty, Sashabaw Junior High School band director.

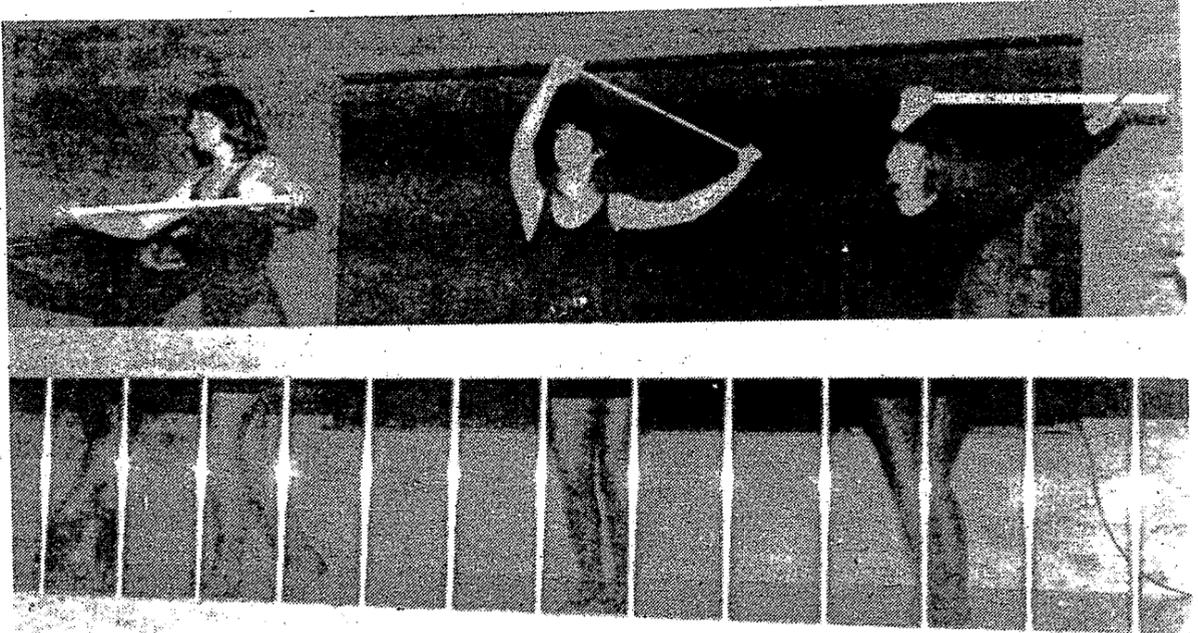

The SJHS Wind Ensemble received a first-division rating at the recent Michigan State Band and Orchestra Association's District 4 Band Festival.

"Sashabaw has always had good bands, but has never received a first division before," Doty said. "The difference this year is the old saying, practice makes perfect."

"This is the first year in my 13 years of teaching that I have required my students to practice at home. Their practice time has to be verified by a parent and is 25 percent of their grade. To receive an A for practice, a student must practice 30 minutes each night."

The band performed three pieces in the festival: a warm-up march, "Mighty Mac"; the required number, "Little Haydn Suite"; and the selected number, "Suite from Bohemia."

Each of the three judges rated the Sashabaw band as outstanding and gave it an A rating, Doty said.

Vegas floor show

They'll be dancing at the Clarkston Rotary Club's Las Vegas Night at Deer Lake Racquet Club Saturday, April 2. Practice for the floor show was underway last week as the six-member troupe prepared for the big event when they'll don black satin tuxedo jackets, black bow ties and tap canes to the music. The routine was choreographed by Sue Turner, owner of The Dance Place in Waterford Township. Participants are Sharon Bachand and Anita Weston of Clarkston, and Barb Allen, Sally Lucca, Carla Edens and Carolyn Sexton of Waterford. The Las Vegas Night includes blackjack tables, roulette wheels, crap tables and a Big 6 Wheel, said Rotary President Richard Ayers. And it's all for a good cause. "The profits are going to pay off the senior citizen van we purchased for the (Independence Township Senior Citizen Center) last year," Ayers said. For $15 a person, Las Vegas Nighters will be able to dine on a buffet and hot hors d'oeuvres, be entertained by a the Jimmy Stevenson Quartet throughout the evening, and begin their gambling with $2.50 in chips. They will also be eligible for the two grand prizes—a trip for two, including flight and hotel room, to Las Vegas and a trip for two to Atlantic City. There'll be a cash bar. At the evening's end, participants will be able use their winnings to purchase prizes donated by local merchants. The party begins at 8 p.m. at the racquet club, 6167 White Lake, Independence Township. Tickets must be purchased in advance. They are available at Mr. G's, Beattie Interiors, the Deer Lake Racquet Club or from any Rotary Club member.

Students rally together to 'Jump Rope for Heart'

By Kathy Greenfield

Some jumped rope for fun, some to be with friends, but for cousins Amy Huntwork and Missie Moss, the reason was far more serious.

Amy's father died eight months ago from a heart attack. When they heard about the Jump Rope for Heart fund raiser, Amy, her niece Missie and four friends signed up as a six-member team.

They gathered pledges, like the other 70 participants from Clarkston High School and Clarkston and Sashabaw junior highs, and jumped roped during the two-hour session March 13 at CHS.

Helping others is what she had in mind, said Amy, a CHS ninth-grader.

"I felt like it was a good cause to raise money to help people with heart conditions," she said between twirls. "And I'd like to help out."

The fund raiser was co-sponsored by the Michigan Heart Association and the Michigan Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance, a professional organization for teachers.

CHS physical education teacher Gordon Richardson worked to coordinate local participation with physical education teachers Mary Colwell from CJHS and Sue Koslosky from SJHS.

Clarkston's participation was a way emphasize cardiovascular fitness and to make people more aware of the physical education program, Richardson said.

"What I think some people perceive physical education to be is roll the ball out and let the kids play," he said. "The three of us, we believe in the education part of physical education. That's why we've rewritten the health education curriculum."

"We teach kids in health class the number one killer in the United States is heart attacks—it far surpasses accidents, strokes and cancer.

"Approximately one million people will have heart attacks in the United States in a year and 65 percent of these people die on the first occurrence."

If all the pledges are collected, Clarkston schools will donate $1,700 to the heart association.

Show and tell grandparents

By Kathy Greenfield

Grandparents, about 200 of them, went to school with their grandchildren March 18.

Waterford Village School was celebrating Grandparents and Grandchildren's Day.

There was entertainment—the Waterford senior citizens' kazoo band and a play by the children.

Information was shared—grandparents in one first-grade class talked about one-room classrooms, riding on the sideboard of the teacher's car for an annual picnic and wildflower gathering, being punished with the slap of a ruler on an open hand or by having to sit in the corner with a dunce cap on, and drying soaked socks and feet around the wood-burning stove that heated the classroom on cold days.

"I think this is the greatest thing they've ever done for the schools," said Vera Rizzuto of Waterford Township who spent time with her grandson, first-grader Jared Silvey of Independence Township. "I think maybe the grandparents get more of a kick out of it than the children do."

As she looked at the chairs full of grandparents circling the entire classroom, Eileen Lewis said, "I think the response is terrific."

She and her husband Ralph traveled all the way from Ohio to spend the day with their grandson, Chris Lewis of Independence Township.

Six years ago, March 18 was established as Grandparents and Grandchildren's Day, said founder Louella Davison of Sylvan Lake.

"This was a dream of mine," she said. "I could just visualize grandchildren and grandparents having a day together."

"It's in times of divorce and the way situations are and families. I think it's good for children to get back to the older generation, to get back to the roots and the foundations. You can see the love that's there."

Steps are underway, she said, to make the day an annual event in the state. Her plan is to encourage churches and schools to place special emphasis on the importance of the relationships between generations. "It's not like a national day—we don't want gifts, we want the opportunity to be with our grandchildren," she said.

The day has been observed by state proclamation since 1977, said State Rep. Claude Trim (D-Springfield Township).

Now the bill to make the event an annual one has passed the House and is in the Senate, Trim said, and he expects it to pass without problems.

"The relationship between families is indeed important—one that should be closely recognized," he said. "I know what my grandparents meant to me."

Chris Lewis of Independence Township walks toward his first-grade classroom with his grandparents Ralph and Eileen Lewis, who traveled all the way from Ohio for the event.

Doing business

Sheldon, Bloch merge

Sheldon Real Estate of Clarkston and Bloch Brothers Real Estate of Drayton Plains have announced a merger and expansion of operations.

The two firms shall now work together in the management of their joint properties in eight states including Michigan and the Caribbean.

The combined value of the two companies will total more than $50 million, according to Sheldon Fuller, owner of Sheldon Real Estate and general manager of the new joint operation.

Firm specializes in industrial equipment sales

Specialization.

That's the key word for Bruce Hynes who knows a good thing when he sees it.

Recently, Hynes opened the doors of his business, Furnace, Ovens and Baths Inc., 4790 White Lake Road in Independence Township. It specializes in the buying and selling of used industrial heat

Village Towing moves to Dixie

Quik-Save Inc.'s plan to move into the former Village Towing on Clarkston's Main Street didn't really have any bearing on owner Don Clinansmith's plan to relocate.

Don says the move came because he needed a bigger shop and more bays.

On March 15, Don opened the new Village Towing at 7400 Dixie Highway, just north of White Lake Road.

The shop still offers AAA road service and 24-hour towing and services cars seven days a week with Don's staff of experienced mechanics.

"In the winter (at the Main Street location) people would drive by and see a guy outside in the snow and the slush and the cold. That guy was me. I'd let my mechanics stay inside and work in the warmth, and I, the boss, would be outside working on that water pump.

"Not any more," he says proudly. "I won't have to be outside rebuilding carburetors in 20-degrees below. My new shop has room for six cars. I can work inside, and so can all my mechanics. We have exhaust ventilation, access to another lift. It's going to be great."

Already seasoned customers are seeking out Don at his new site.

"I really appreciate that," he says. "That's what it's all about."

In addition, Don says if he can acquire a better grade of gasoline, one that will allow him to compete in cost with other stations, he'll continue selling gas at the Main Street site.

Wolves bubbling with optimism

Getting in the swing of things: Cold and wet weather have kept the Clarkston High School varsity softball team indoors through most of the preseason.

By Al Zawacky

It's difficult to keep the expectations and optimism under control when surveying the Clarkston High School varsity softball roster.

•The Wolves have six returners from last year's squad that went all the way to the state semifinals.

•Among those six are senior Lanette Whitehead, who was named the team's Most Valuable Player after leading the Wolves in RBIs while posting the club's top batting average of .436.

•Two more returning seniors are Sandy Mason, who had the second highest total of RBIs last year; and Annette Ulasich, who hit over .400.

•Whitehead and Mason were both named first team All-league last season, while Ulasich received an honorable mention.

•The remaining six roster members are alumni of a CHS junior varsity squad that finished the year with 15 wins and just one loss.

Spring Sports Preview

What this all adds up to is a far different situation for Coach Carla Teare than the one she faced last season in her first year at the varsity helm.

Confidence and motivation are already there on this year's team. Teare has to keep things in perspective and guard against overconfidence.

"After a season like last year's, the girls are more apt to be motivated and work hard," she says. "Winning the state always seems so far out of reach, but now they realize it isn't."

Before getting hot in the playoffs, the Wolves posted a rather pedestrian regular season, finishing at 6-4 in the Greater Oakland Activities League, one notch below the league champion Lakers of West Bloomfield.

Improving the league record is one of Teare's goals, but it won't be easy—West Bloomfield has five girls returning from last year's squad.

"It's probably going to be the same type of race as last year," she says. "At this point, it looks like it's going to be between us and West Bloomfield, but then Lake Orion has some good people. You never can tell."

Whitehead, Mason, Annette Ulasich, Michele Ulasich, Becky Buhl and Shawn O'Brien are Clarkston's six returning ballplayers.

The JV additions are Denise Gretz, Audrey Campe, Lori Martin, Traci Sherman, Jeanne Herron and Dawn Willett.

In the pitching department, the Wolves will rely on the skills of Whitehead, Annette Ulasich and Herron. All three have looked good in the preseason workouts.

"Annette is excellent at third base, and I hate to take her out of there," Teare says. "But she's worked on her pitching over the summer and has really looked good so far."

"Jeanne has pitched quite a few years. She doesn't have speed, but she's got control. Lanette will be steady and looks a lot more confident than last year."

O'Brien was a fixture in the infield last year, turning in a standout job at second base. This time around, however, will probably find her behind the plate handling the catching duties.

Mason and Michele Ulasich are the Wolves' two mainstays in the outfield. Both have accurate arms and both can damage opponents at the plate.

"Sandy is a power hitter, and Michele has excellent bunting ability," Teare says. "I can remember two or three games we won last year on her ability to bunt."

Buhl figures to see action at third, second or short. "She's much more confident and shows great ability in the infield," says Teare.

Gretz can play first or handle the catching chores, Campe is an outfielder, Martin a versatile infielder, Sherman is an outfielder by trade and Willett can play outfield or second.

"I'd expect our hitting to definitely be above average," says Teare.

Turnout up for boys' track

By Al Zawacky

Well, at least Clarkston High School boys' track teams are consistent.

Unfortunately, that is consistent as in consistently losing.

Each year there are individual bright spots—last season senior Steve Wyckoff placed third in the state in the high jump.

Spring Sports Preview

As a team, however, the news is generally grim. Last year, Clarkston finished last in the Greater Oakland Activities League and managed just one victory, a non-league meet against talent-lean Brandon.

The year before that? Zero wins, period.

But hope springs eternal. The Wolves have impressive numbers this season—48 in all—and coaches Walt Wyniemko and Mike Kaul are hoping for better times ahead.

"This is the third year Coach Kaul and I have worked together, and we're really enthusiastic about the upcoming year," Wyniemko says.

"Each year we've had more and more numbers. Three years ago we talked about wanting to have about 50 kids out in the spring, and now it's happening."

"And they're all working hard. They're going to do the best they can to improve their times. That's the big thing in track—to try and improve yourself."

Clarkston has nine seniors on their 48-man roster, and several will play key roles in the Wolves' success. Eric Beamer will be counted upon in the shot put and discus; Tom Hecker in the pole vault; Dave Ryeson in relays and hurdles; John McInnis and Steve Coleman in the two mile; Phil Haase in the discus and Craig Vergh in the 440.

Wyniemko and Kaul will also be hoping for points from juniors like Paul Burch, Rusty Bennett and Kevin Brown; senior newcomer Duane Cahill; and sophomores John Selent and Dave Newblatt.

"I'm not in the business of making predictions, but if we continue to work hard it's going to pay off in the end," Wyniemko says.

"We know we're in a very competitive league, but that's what athletics is all about."

Deadline: Friday is last chance to register for recreation baseball, softball

Friday, April 2 at 5 p.m. is the absolute deadline for late registration in the Independence Parks and Recreation summer baseball and softball leagues.

Players must register in person at the parks and recreation office, 90 N. Main, Clarkston. A $5 late registration fee per family will be charged.

"This is a new policy of ours," said Tim Doyle,

Independence Parks and Recreation director.

"Saturday (April 3) is our baseball and softball draft, and if kids aren't signed up prior to the draft, they won't be allowed to play."

For more information, contact the parks and recreation department office at 625-8223.

SCA Eagles post best cage season ever

By Al Zawacky

The Eagles were soaring this winter. Soaring to their best basketball season in school history.

When the dust settled in March, the Springfield Christian Academy Eagles had wrapped up a 27-6 record, including an unprecedented 15-game winning streak and undefeated, first-place record in the Southeast Christian Conference.

"It was very satisfying to see the guys really start to work together and improve," said Coach Tom Norton.

"The guys were always looking for each other—we had no problems with selfishness, nobody hogging the ball. And the more we played together, the more things started meshing."

The Eagles capped off their league championship season by winning the state American Association of Christian Schools bracket and placing second in the Michigan Athletic Association of Christian Schools.

Springfield thus advanced to AACS regional competition and played in La Porte, Ind., the weekend of March 13 where the Eagles lost their first game to Heritage Christian of Ohio, 73-60.

But Springfield came back to defeat Temple Christian of Indiana in a consolation match later that same day, 64-54.

"I think we could have beaten Heritage but for the fact Ken McClusky had the flu so bad he didn't even make the trip," Norton said.

"And we just didn't seem ready to play—we fell behind by 17 in the first quarter."

McClusky, a 6-3 junior at forward, broke the double-figure barrier this season by averaging 10 points a game. Senior forward Jerry Gould was the team's leading scorer with a 19-point per game average.

Gould and senior forward Matt Anderson were the Eagles leading rebounders.

In addition to Gould and Anderson, Springfield had four other seniors on its 13-man roster—Tigg Vanaman, Pat Clarno, Steve Henning and Mike Sanders.

McClusky, Brad Dunn and Nate Hayward were the team's juniors and Jeff Roettger, Rich Sanders, Tom Cox and Bryan Bullock were the sophomores.

Each player contributed to the team's success, Norton noted.

Vanaman helped make Springfield a fast-break threat, scoring points with his speed. Dunn played the point, and proved to be the team's best ball handler, making up for a lack of size with his hustle.

Cox improved his defensive play and developed into an inside threat. Bullock came through in the clutch and scored 13 key points in the second half against Temple Christian.

Hayward used his jumping ability to become the one of the Eagles leading shot blockers. Mike Sanders

"isn't flashy, but gets the job done," said Norton, pointing to his defensive and rebounding abilities.

"Steve Henning was the most intense competitor on the team," Norton continued. "He wants to win and always hustles and works very hard."

Rich Sanders utilized a good shot and is a "smart ballplayer," he added. Jeff Roettger settled down and improved his play dramatically, making use of a good shot.

Clarno "has an excellent shot, that's his best asset—and as he gained confidence through the year, he improved a great deal."

"I'm pleased with the way we peaked and with how hard the guys worked," said Norton. "I think with the people we have coming back next year, we've got a good, strong nucleus to build on."

Clarkston weight room gets a lift

Clarkston High School senior Dave Fulcher proved to be the top performer at the 1982 Lift-a-thon, held March 20 in the CHS gymnasium.

Fulcher pressed an imposing 325 pounds at the event. He was also the top weight lifter in last year's Lift-a-thon with a 280-pound press.

In all, 26 athletes participated in the 1982 Lift-a-thon, and the CHS weight room got a big lift from the final result—$1,771.51 was pledged for new weight equipment.

"We're real happy," said Walt Wyniemko, CHS teacher and coach. "It's $1,700 we didn't have before. That can get us four or five new pieces of equipment."

"It's a start to having the best weight room in Oakland County."

Fulcher was presented with a trophy for being the top lifter, and CHS sophomore Keith Edwards also won a trophy for collecting the most pledges at $398.

Top weight lifters were also recognized in each of the eight weight class.

The winners were Dan Mullens in the 115 pound weight class with a lift of 145 pounds; Dave Rash at 129 with a lift of 150; Jeff Swan at 144 with a lift of 200; Rusty Bennett at 159 with a lift of 245; John Robenault at 174 with a lift of 270; Ray Myatt at 189 with a lift of 245; Kirk Charboneau at 204 with a lift of 300; and Fulcher at 205 with his 325-pound lift.

Enroll now for drivers' education

Enrollment applications are now available for the free drivers' education course offered this summer by Clarkston schools.

Those eligible for the course must be 16 years old by Nov. 15, 1982. They need not be enrolled in Clarkston schools, but must live in the school district.

The forms may be picked up at the main offices in Clarkston High School, Clarkston Junior High School or Sashabaw Junior High School. After the form is signed by a parent, it may be returned to one of the offices.

The three-week courses are scheduled Monday through Friday, June 14-July 2 and July 6-July 23.

There is one Saturday meeting date during the second session on July 10.

Enrollment in the course is to be determined solely by age, with the oldest first, said CHS Assistant Principal Jan Gabier.

If there are conflicts with family vacations, the students will have to find someone to trade sessions with after they are assigned a class schedule, she said.

If there are openings in the courses after all those who turn 16 by Nov. 15 have signed up, stand-by list cards will be made available, she said.

For more information, call CHS at 625-0900.
