Summer tax issue on August ballot

By Marilyn Trumper

Seeking input from voters before deciding whether to collect school taxes twice a year beginning in 1983, the Independence Township board voted 4-3 to place the advisory question on the August primary ballot.

The board split at the March 4 meeting when trustees Dale Stuart, Daniel Travis and Supervisor James B. Smith favored taking action that night to approve the collection, stressing the move does not require voter approval and is within the board's right. Residents would have a year to plan delivery of half their taxes six months early, they said.

Smith argued the legislature, faced with an election year, will wait until after November to approve the semi-annual tax and will stall local communities until then.

"Evidently the legislature is not going to face up to enforcing the tax. That puts us in the same spot we were in last year."

Stuart agreed.

"I support us setting a summer tax collection and setting it up now. The legislature is going to do it in January after the election. Let's give the people the opportunity to plan for that now," he said.

For months, Clarkston Schools Superintendent Milford Mason has gone on record opposing an advisory vote, stressing traditional low voter turnout on school issues and fear the electorate would turn down the plan, what he's termed "an unpopular issue."

The bi-annual tax collection would save the district $100,000 in interest, charged when the school district borrows to ease midyear cash-flow problems.

Clerk Christopher Rose stressed that his "yes" vote should in no way be interpreted as a slap to the school district's plea for delivery from a cash-flow bind.

"The Pine Knob Hotel advisory question very clearly showed the position of the people when the township board was going the other way.

"I don't think this is any way to shirk responsibility. It's a way to give people input on taxes. I think it would be very wrong to begin the collection without letting the people vote," Rose said.

Trustee Larence Kozma called it, "...a change in the form of taxes, in essence increasing the tax, because you have to pay half your taxes early.

"If we wanted to increase the millage that would be put on the ballot. I think this should too," he said.

After the meeting, Mason commented on the decision.

Convenience food store no hit

Village planners reject two outlines for gas station revamp

By Marilyn Trumper

Quik-Save Inc. has run into opposition in its quest to build a convenience food store/gasoline service chain in Clarkston's vacant Union 76 Service Station on Main Street.

In an 8-1 vote May 3, the village planning commission recommended the village council deny approval of both site plans offered by Robert Eastman, president of the Flushing headquartered organization with stores throughout Oakland and Genessee counties.

Two dozen residents filled village hall opposing the plan, according to commission Chairman Edward Thomson, who abstained from the vote because he lives directly across the street from the proposed site.

According to Thomson, the first plan proposed "the tearing down" of the building and relocation on the site, a move that would cause loss of non-conforming status, forcing the property to revert back to residential zoning which would prevent a commercial enterprise on that site.

The second plan involved a face-lift of the current site on the same lot. The commission agreed that plan created a "hazard" for entering and exiting the parking lot, Thomson said.

In addition the village the attorney via letter said "...the character of that building cannot be changed"

"If (an advisory vote) is the fashion they've decided to deal with the matter, we'll follow that lead and see what happens as a result."

Mason added he knew there was a "feeling" among board some board members that the decision was theirs, and did not require an advisory vote of the people.

"I was hoping that position would prevail," he said.

or it will lose its non-conforming status, according to Thomson.

The now-vacant service station is located in the village historic district which is restricted by laws aimed at preserving the character of properties in that district. The ordinance restricts everything from house siding to fencing.

The village council has final word on approval of the plan.

"And we will go before the village council, although, circuit court has the final word," Eastman said, indicating he might pursue the issue into litigation.

"I think there is a vested right to use that property for commercial. I could go in there today and open up a gas station, sell pop and chips and many of the thing I would sell in my store—and do it in a pigsty.

"What I'm proposing is to take that dilapidated building and turn it into an aesthetically pleasing building.

"I'm disappointed, and I think the residents of Clarkston should be too," he said.

Eastman can revamp his site plan and appear again before the planning commission, according to Thomson.

Eastman said he did not know when he would appear before the village council.

Township turns thumbs down on fund requests

By Marilyn Trumper

Today's economic climate and government cut-backs seem to be hurting everyone.

At the May 4 Independence Township Board meeting both the Bailey Lake Elementary Parent Teacher Association (PTA) and the Consortium for Human Development (CHD) sought a donation for their cause.

Faced with a swathe of cuts in state aid from Lansing, board members dipped into the township coffers and came up empty-handed in the PTA's bid for financing soccer field repair, and the CHD's plea for an assist with operating expenses.

Speaking for the PTA, Thomas Bills of Allen Road asked the board to consider donating $8,750 to help finance the earth work in the school's soccer fields. The group is attempting to implement a drainage plan to dry the school playground and soccer fields, creating three uniform-sized fields.

PTA volunteers will be providing the labor for site restoration as well as financing the remainder of the project, estimated to cost $27,900. The figure includes what labor would cost in the event the PTA went outside the group to hire.

"For three years (Bailey Lake's fields) have been a central site for (the township parks and recreation department's) soccer," Bills said.

"Your help in this could go a long way in helping the school system defray costs, and provide for the area as a whole, regardless of which coffer it comes from."

Board members briefly debated whether the township has a responsibility in development of dry soccer fields, or if the plan falls under the jurisdiction of the schools, because it is school property.

"We are confronted with a lot of problems, but first our revenue sharing has been cut.

"Desire may be a bit ahead of ability here," Smith said. "It all boils down to a matter of funding."

Speaking on behalf of the CHD, Dr. Fred Baumann made a plea for funding of the nonprofit out-patient psychiatric clinic on Sashabaw Road.

"We operate on a 'no-pay, low-pay' basis and service many Independence Township residents who cannot afford to pay for services elsewhere," Baumann said.

Currently the clinic receives $23,342 from the state and generates the rest of its operating expenses from client fees and insurance reimbursements.

Thirty percent of the clinic's patients in 1981 were township residents, Baumann said. Of those, 60 percent were there for substance abuse or youth counseling.

Clarkston Elementary School Principal Cecelia Wiar and Clarkston Junior High Assistant Principal Douglas Pierson praised the CHD for its work with students and close association with Clarkston Area Youth Assistance, a group geared to the prevention of juvenile delinquency.

After brief discussion, Smith again pointed to the cut in state aid and anticipated loss of $160,000 August payment.

Board members then voted, unanimously endorsing the clinic and "...their desire to investigate the feasibility of obtaining funding."

Clean up mailboxes for spring

Mailboxes should not be ignored during spring spruce-up time.

The week of May 17-21 has been named Mailbox Improvement Week by the Postal Service, says Clarkston Postmaster Donald Stoll.

"After the bad winter last year, a lot of the boxes to need attention," Stoll said. "We do have a number of bad boxes out there, which we intend to notify people during Mailbox Improvement Week that there boxes need attention and we hope they do cooperate."

If a mailbox is a safety hazard or does not conform to postal regulations, the post office can refuse to deliver the mail. The most drastic step is to return all mail to the senders, Stoll said, but that doesn't happen without ample warning including a certified letter and time to comply.

There are also rules that require numbers on rural mailboxes and street names when the house and the mailbox are located on different roads.

When purchasing mailboxes, those approved for size are stamped inside with "Approved by the Postmaster General."

Those opting for homemade or custom mailboxes can check receive information on specifications and requirements at the Clarkston Post Office, 5886 M-15, Independence Township.

Correction

A quote in last week's Clarkston News incorrectly attributed Clarkston High School with using the first of the school district's micro-computers.

In fact, Bailey Lake Elementary was the first to use the P.E.T., purchased through the efforts of the school's PTA.

Salem gravel issue ends with 4-year extension

By Marilyn Trumper

Ending four days of head-to-head talks, a half-hour-long unpublicized private meeting and two hours of closed-session discussion, the Independence Township Board at 3:30 a.m. Wednesday unanimously adopted the amended consent judgment for Salem Gravel Pit.

The new law gives Blount Materials of Michigan a two-year extension to mine the 200-acre pit on Oak Hill Road, with the option for two additional one-year extensions if reclamation is being met as outlined in the plan, and if the 2 million tons of gravel estimated in reserve are not mined, according to Clerk Christopher Rose.

Officials resolved the main stumbling block of levying a 6-cents-a-ton tariff on outbound tonnage, and approved instead an annual $24,000 fund to cover costs of monitoring pit reclamation. In addition, Blount agreed to pay township engineers' fees plus 25 percent to cover administrative costs.

The amended consent calls for the posting of no-left-turn signs at the pit's exit on Oak Hill Road, a move designed to ease neighboring residents complaints of truck travel in front of their homes.

The agreement also says Blount will chlorinate Oak Hill Road to Sashabaw Road four times a year in an effort to control dust, place no-trespassing signs every 200 feet along the property line, and erect around the site a four-foot-high fence topped with barbed wire.

Hours of operation under the new law limit truck traffic from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., processing and stockpiling from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. and front-end loader and crane operations from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

William H. Mullins, vice president of Blount International of Alabama, said the plan calls for counterclockwise mining of the site with reclamation to follow within 400 feet.

The acreage's northwest corner will be left relatively unscathed with work planned below the water table, he said. According to the plan, a 15- to 20-acre lake will be left.

Officials agreed to post a $650,000 bond to ensure reclamation, estimated to cost $650,000 as the pit now sits. Earlier figures from the township engineer set the reclamation cost at $1.9 million if compliance was regulated by specifications in an earlier consent judgment.

Richard Collins of Dartmouth Road, long in opposition to Blount's plea to extend mining, praised the board for its compromise efforts, but remained critical of mining below the water table.

"I'm right across the street from where they're going to be mining below that lake. I don't want anything to happen to my well. I'm not saying it's going to happen, but if it does what are you going to do to take care of me?"

Residents of nearby Round Lake echoed Collins' concerns, fearful their lake would be drained if the water table is disturbed.

Blount officials and township board members assured residents Round Lake is above the elevation of the proposed mining site, and that natural drainage under laws of gravity is impossible.

"You've milked an awful lot out of us, Jim (James B. Smith, supervisor)," Blount's Vice President Mullins said of the negotiations.

After the meeting, Smith summarized his feelings.

"I think we settled in the best interest of the township.

"I also think that if we'd had (Blount) thrown out, someone else would have been in under the township's Ordinance 59 (the gravel pit ordinance) to reopen.

"I also think we set important precedent for future gravel operations."

Township bracing for $160,000 loss

Independence Township finds itself bracing for budget belt-tightening and layoffs as unofficial word filtered down from Lansing to expect the year's first official cut in state aid—a $160,000 loss to the general fund.

"The one percent income tax increase was rejected by the senate, and will eliminate the township's August payment of state aid," Supervisor James B. Smith told members of the township board at the May 4 meeting.

"This will lead to a curtailment of services and layoffs," Smith said. "There is no way we can take a 12 to 13 percent cut in our general fund and continue to pay for those services."

The township's 1982-83 general fund budget totals $1.2 million, but does not reflect the anticipated $165,000 cut in state aid. Currently offices of the clerk, treasurer, assessor, parks and recreation department and library operate from the general fund.

There has been no official word from the capitol on the loss of revenue, but it's to be expected after the tax increase went down to defeat, according to Clerk Christopher Rose.

Pine Knob swamped by 1,500 job-seekers

With the announcement that Pine Knob Music Theatre applications were available, The Clarkston News was bombarded with hopeful teens eyeing summer jobs in maintenance, as ushers and rangers.

In one week the News had distributed over 300 applications.

Music theater personnel continue interviewing the over 1,500 applicants seeking the 150 available vacancies. Odds are 10 to 1 that any hopeful will be hired.

Super spellers meet for contest

Sashabaw 6th-grader Kelly Parker takes top prize 2nd year straight

By Kathy Greenfield

The signs of nervousness were subtle. Kelly Parker clasped her hands in front of her before spelling each word, and Elise Eidam's hands rarely left her pants' pockets.

The 30 top spellers from all Clarkston elementary school fifth and sixth grades had gone through 301 words in nearly one hour and 40 minutes, and Kelly and Elise were the only ones left in the Clarkston Spelling Contest.

Elise's hand flew up to her mouth when she misspelled "palmistry." Kelly spelled it correctly, then she received the next word. She paused, and spelled "receptacle," all the while looking at the panel of judges that determined if words were spelled correctly. The round of applause that followed sealed her victory.

For Kelly, a North Sashabaw Elementary sixth-grader, the district spelling bee win was her second in a row, making her the top winner both years the contest has been held.

Kelly studied for the contest for a half-hour to an hour each day for two weeks, she said, and she noted she won with a word that had given her trouble.

"I kept thinking it was 'reciprocal,' because of math, and I kept goofing it up," she said.

When the contest was over, Elise, a Bailey Lake Elementary sixth-grader, revealed why she had her hands in her pockets—her tiny "lucky bunny" with pink floppy ears was clutched in her hand the entire time.

The girls and their cocontestants had spelled words that would have sent most people scrambling for the nearest dictionary. The list included such stumpers as poltergeist, exchequer, gasconade, querist, sósaphone, reliquary, pulchritude and quadroon.

For winning, Kelly received "The American Heritage Dictionary," a twin of the one she won last year.

When the presentation was made, Kelly was told she could trade it in on another book.

The other participants and the alternates received certificates of achievement for their spelling prowess complete with color photos of the entire group of super spellers. Then the top spellers and the alternates were treated to lunch at the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center's Northwest Inn.

Elise Eidam (left) and Kelly Parker have an information-gathering chat with Clarkston schools Administrative Assistant William Neff right before he announces that Kelly Parker won the spelling contest two years in a row and that they're both sixth-graders.

Foster care suit goes to court

With no activity since last December in their year-and-a-half old legal battle to oust an adult foster care home from their neighborhood, the Lake Oakland Woods' lawsuit is gathering speed. Residents of the subdivision in southeastern Independence Township might soon see the court's decision.

Wednesday, April 5, the residents' attorney Donald E. Schuster and state attorney Jon R. Garrett offered short oral arguments before Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Hilda Gage took the case under advisement, which means no trial will be held.

Instead, according to Schuster, Gage is expected to deliver a verdict, or summary judgment, within 30 days.

Summary judgment is used when the facts of the case are not in dispute, only the law is, and the verdict is left to the judge alone, Schuster said.

"I'm pleased we've finally reached this point, although both parties have already said they'll go on to) the Court of Appeals or the Supreme Court, no matter who wins or loses," Schuster said.

Key in the court's decision will be the subdivision's deed restriction which limits residency to families, and defines families as those related by blood, marriage or legal adoption. Residents have long argued the foster care home housing six developmentally disabled adults violates that law.

The state has argued deed restrictions which prevent group homes from establishing are discriminatory and a violation of public policy.

News scholarship

The Clarkston News is establishing a scholarship for a Clarkston High School graduate who is planning to major in print journalism.

Through a phone sales campaign, which started this week, a portion of each new or renewed subscription will go into the fund.

Exact rules have not been defined, partially because the amount of money available for the scholarship is unknown until after the subscription solicitation is completed.

News publisher Jim Sherman said CHS Principal Dominic Mauti welcomes the scholarship and will work with the News in setting it up.

Death-defying tales

by Jim Sherman

Some happenings at funerals, or involving the deceased, are looked at laughingly . . . later. Certainly there is no humor in death. I don't think it's funny to have the bottom drop out of a casket while being carried out of a church.

This made national news a couple weeks ago.

I believe it's disrespectful to the grieving to break up at particular moments when something is said or done that really will be funny.

At a recent get together I heard a couple such stories.

One gentle lady reviewed a decision her mother had to make the day following her husband's (father's) death. He had died in the winter.

Clothes had to be selected and taken to the undertaker. Mother pulled open the dresser drawer with her husband's underwear, brought out a folded summer and winter set, and asked her daughter, "I wonder which one I should take?"

"I'm sure weather was the concern, not the direction.

— O —

This story prompted a fellow listener to tell what happened to an uncle's ashes after he was cremated.

The aunt decided to take her deceased husband to Florida in the jar given her by the undertaker, if that's what happens after the service.

It seemed logical to keep the ashes near her, so she put them in her knitting basket for the flight. No problem there.

In Florida there was a wake for the dearly departed. The jar was placed on the television set while toasts rang out and glasses raised.

Unsocial question

by Kathy Greenfield

Our kids were swimming in the motel pool, my husband was sleeping so he'd have the energy to run 15 miles the next day, and I was sitting with a group of runners and a couple of others at a table near the pool.

I knew I was in trouble when the conversation turned to black toenails and painful blisters popping up on the bottoms of feet.

Trying not to look too horrified, I had a rather lengthy conversation with one of the runners about what happens after toenails turn black. Apparently the real trouble begins after the nail falls off and a new one tries to replace it.

There was talk, too, of dealing with reactions of people who notice the black toenails.

Several of the runners admitted they shared the problem, and some blamed the running shoes. At $70 to $80 a crack, we're not talking about tennies regular people would trash if they caused foot problems.

But that's the interesting thing about runners—they are not regular people, but a gutsy breed. They're usually into good health, physical fitness and eating lots of food.

While there are times I stifle the urge to ask un-social questions—like "Didn't your mother ever tell you happy toenails don't turn black?"—I am constantly thrown into a feeling of admiration for their determination to excel.

I have watched other nonrunners in the group join the parade and begin running with gusto in races. They now talk about the excitement of competing or just taking part in what is becoming a large group activity.

In the Old Kent River Run the next day in Grand Rapids, the runners from the Clarkston area joined over 3,500 others in the 15-mile race where "everyone who finishes is a winner."

I admired the runners who looked like they could have run another 15 miles with ease, applauded the persons who participated in wheelchairs, cheered the characters in flowing capes and super hero costumes, watched in amazement the runner who wore Army combat boots, and clapped and yelled when runners from our group ran past.

The estimate of the watching crowd was about 10,000, making the event another in the long line of spectator sports.

But when the conversation turns to black toenails I know I am in trouble.

Commercial artist owes success to talent, cars

By Al Zawacky

As a commercial artist, some of Michael Hendrix's best work goes unappreciated.

You can find his creations in new car catalogs, in ads seen in Time, Life, Newsweek and other national magazines.

"A lot of people don't seem to realize what goes into these," Hendrix says, flipping through one of the car catalogs typically found filling racks in dealer showrooms nationwide.

Those sleek body lines, sparkling chrome and plush interiors aren't just the work of a photographer's camera.

Each is retouched and improved by the artist's pen to present the car in its most favorable light.

One photo, and interior shot of a truck, had a door post in it that had to be removed, Hendrix recalls. Wrinkles, creases and reflections are removed, areas are lightened and darkened as needed.

The end result is just as much a work of art as it is a photograph.

A few years ago, Hendrix worked on a national auto ad depicting a young couple standing near a Cadillac, elegantly parked on a hill overlooking the lights of a city below.

Actually, the ad was a composite of three different photos—the car, the scenery and the people were never together in the same place.

It took the artist's hand to bring the three together in a breathtaking scene.

But to typical magazine perusers, all that meets the eye is a picture of a Cadillac. The image of Michael Hendrix and others like him laboring over the finest detail never crosses their minds.

Maybe that's why Hendrix gets special satisfaction from working on paintings and drawings in his free time, busying himself in his home studio.

Personal creations decorate the walls of his Independence Township home, and a recent painting of his won two awards at the Pontiac Mall Art Show in February.

Hendrix's painting depicted a 1931 Stutz Bearcat parked in a rather macabre setting with two dogs standing like guards by the car—hence its title, "Sentinals."

The surrealistic effort made quite an impact at the Pontiac Mall. "Sentinals" won the Joe Franz Award from the judges. It was also named Most Popular by mall art browsers who were able to vote for their favorite work at a nearby ballot box.

"I appreciated that even more than the judges' vote," Hendrix says. "That means my work pleased people, and if it pleases people, then I'm pleased."

A 1964 graduate of Lake Orion High School, Hendrix didn't start to draw seriously until his junior year in high school.

"I did a couple pieces and really surprised myself when I discovered what I could do," he says. "When I graduated, I realized I had to do something, so I enrolled in art school."

He studied four years at the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit and emerged with a better understanding of what he terms "the chemistry of colors."

"The re-touching work I've learned has made me understand what makes a better photo, and I think that's helped me to become a better painter," Hendrix says.

Being located in the Detroit area, Hendrix's employer, AGA Studios of Warren, receives the bulk of its contracts from the auto industry and other related businesses.

That makes the summer months—prior to the introduction of the new cars in the fall—particularly hectic.

"Oh, 70-hour weeks aren't unusual," Hendrix shrugs.

This upstairs studio in his Independence Township home is where Michael Hendrix does some of his work—and indulges in painting for pleasure, too.

'If it Fitz. . .'

Medical reaction

by Jim Fitzgerald

Two doctors' wives insisted that their hard-working husbands are well worth waiting for. And Dr. James R. Smith of Petoskey wrote: "I'm quite sure patients crap on their doctors far more than the other way around. If I were your doctor, I would sever our relationship and let you go elsewhere. I'm not sure you even deserve care."

That was the negative reaction, in total, to my recent column rapping those doctors who overbook appointments and keep patients waiting for hours, making it clear that they think their time is much more valuable than their patients' time.

THE POSITIVE reaction was much larger. There are a lot of people out there still waiting at 3 p.m. for 2 p.m. appointments, and they are angry about it. I even heard from several doctors mad at other doctors for keeping them waiting. The most damning testimony came from an employe of a suburban eye clinic. Her name is withheld to protect her job but, believe me, she is real. Listen to her:

"Our senior ophthalmologist decided to group his patients by certain days: new patients only on one day, post-operatives only on another day, etc. There is no thought of the needs of the patients as to whether their particular complaints fit into that day or whether a patient's day off fits into the doctor's schedule. Patients often wait three hours for an examination to be completed.

The younger ophthalmologist often keeps patients waiting, too. An emergency case needing immediate attention? No. He and his assistant are closeted in one of the examination rooms discussing their love lives. When they finish their important medical function, they'll get around to the patients.

GOD HELP YOU if you have the first appointment of the afternoon with either optometrist and have taken part of your lunch hour. You may be docked for taking extra time off work, but you won't be examined until they finish the backgammon game they're playing in their office.

"The taxpayers have decided to fund medical care for the poor on the theory that if poor people are healthy, they might have a chance of being cured of poverty as well as illnesses. In many medical facilities, patients are not identified to the doctor as to whether they are fee-paying, privately insured or on Medicaid. That information is handled by the business office alone. But in our clinic the daily schedule contains the insurance code beside the patients' names. The doctor is able to decide whether the Medicaid patient deserves as much time as the fee-paying patient.

"THE JUNIOR OPHTHALMOLOGIST sees most of the Medicaid patients and is booked two to three months ahead, so if you are poor and can't see, you'll just have to wait. The optometrists won't see Medicaid patients at all. That would affect the patient-profit ratio of their cost center, and their salary increases would not be as large.

"The senior ophthalmologist won't see retarded patients, most of whom are on Medicaid. The junior ophthalmologist doesn't examine these patients as carefully as 'normal' patients because 'they are retarded and don't need to see as well.' The bill to Medicaid (taxpayers) is not lowered in these cases, of course. The taxpayers pay full price for little or no care for retarded patients who need to see better if they are to learn.

"If a doctor doesn't feel like working hard on a certain day, he yells at the receptionist for booking him too heavily. If he is in the mood to work, he yells at her for not booking heavy enough. Usually there are the same number of patients each day. He doesn't plan ahead for vacations. He just decides to take off and tells the receptionist to phone two or three weeks' of appointments and cancel them..."

End of quotations from clinic receptionist. She had more to say, but there's no more room. I will return to her the next time a doctor tells me that patients crap on their doctors far more than the other way around.

Township turns down fire union's contract offer

By Marilyn Trumper

A bitter battle is brewing between elected officials and the Independence Township Fire Department as negotiating teams enter the fifth month of contract talks with no agreement on the horizon.

On Thursday, May 13, both teams armed with attorneys and a mediator are scheduled to sit down to talks again.

Fire fighters are seeking a 30-month contract, and 6.4 percent pay hike, a jump down from the original plea for 14 percent.

The township wants to see the current sick day policy eliminated, according to Gordon Mason, past president of Independence Township Fire Fighters Local 2629 and member of the negotiating team.

Township Supervisor James B. Smith would not confirm that, and refused to comment on ongoing talks, criticizing the fire department for discussion of union negotiations.

At this stage, fire fighters are refusing to forfeit the current sick day plan, which allows employes to accumulate and use 26 sick days a year. Upon leaving the service of the township, an employe is eligible to receive payment for 50 percent of up-to 50 days, according to Mason.

"We said we'd give up the payoff but not the sick days. We offered to work something out on the payoff but (Supervisor James B. Smith) said 'no'." "We've earned our sick days. We've never had a problem with the current plan. Why change it?" Mason challenged. "And we've come down on raises. We'd settle for what AFSCME got, 6.4 percent."

Smith remains steadfast in his silence.

"(The sick day policy) is only one of five important factors included in discussions. As far as (elimination of the policy) goes, it's only one facet of that issue.

I believe talking about ongoing negotiations is in direct violation of the negotiations agreement. I have no comment," he said, offering criticism of what he called "a breach of faith".

Volunteer fire fighters continue fight for raise

By Marilyn Trumper

Sparks flew at the May 4 board meeting when Supervisor James B. Smith announced the township won't be talking raises for volunteer fire fighters until the union contract is settled.

"I don't think one has anything to do with the other," challenged William Rausch, a 14-year veteran of the township's on-call force of 30 men.

"It's been 10 years since we've had a raise and we're asking $8 an hour. I don't think that's unreasonable."

Almost immediately Smith ended discussion, cutting off the handful of fire fighters there to plea for an increase in pay from $5 to $8 an hour, a raise that's included in the fire department's 1982-83 budget.

After the meeting, Rausch elaborated.

"After sitting there until 1:30 a.m., I thought we were treated rudely. My time is as valuable as (the rest of those on the agenda.)

"It's not a question of money, money is not the motivating factor. But what really aggravated me is that we were treated shabbily, just like second-class citizens."

Rausch points to the umpire who's paid $10 a game, knows where he'll work and when.

"Then look at us. We're at home and that whistle can go off anytime, at 3 a.m., 3 p.m. or 6 p.m. We can sit down to a meal and leave in the middle of it.

"Christmas day was a prime example. We had the family over, my wife set a beautiful meal on the table, we started to eat and the whistle went off. I had to get up and leave," he said.

While the word volunteer rings of low-pay, no-pay, "...no one takes into account those 4 in the mornings when we're fighting a fire with ice thick on your coat. Or, the 60 hours of advanced first aid we just finished, putting in four hours every week. We weren't paid for that. Or, the CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) classes.

"Union negotiations have nothing whatever to do with our efforts, what happens to us, or where we go," Rausch said.

He denies the quarrel will cause a rupture between full-time and on-call personnel.

"If anything, it will make us stronger," he said.

Fellow fire fighter Brad Hale, a five-year veteran of the volunteer force, is in agreement.

"(The volunteer and full-time) are really two separate parties. The way the union is negotiating now it could go on for a year.

"Our raises from $5 an hour to $8 are budgeted. I think the township board should have the courtesy to bargain with us," Hale said.

Since January, fire fighters have been entangled in union negotiations, after winding up 1981's talks in October, following 10 months of negotiations.

In March, hoping to spur on snail-paced talks, fire fighters filed for mediation.

According to members of the negotiating team, it appears there is no agreement in sight on the contract talks.

After the meeting, Supervisor Smith would only repeat his earlier comments.

"We feel (the question of raises for volunteers) has a direct bearing on negotiations and the fire budget, and the board agrees the contract should be approved before any talk of raising volunteer pay."

Community award wins named, dinner May 20

26 contributors to the quality of life in Independence to receive thanks

The winners have been selected for community awards for outstanding contributions to the quality of life in Independence Township.

Their awards are to be presented Thursday, May 20, at the fourth annual Community Awards Dinner at Deer Lake Racquet Club. Tickets are still available for $12.50 in advance and $15 at the door. Call Jim Hibler at the township library, 625-2212, for reservations.

Sponsors of the event are the Michigan Week Committee, Clarkston Jaycees and the North Oakland Civitans.

In all, 26 individuals and organizations have been chosen to be honored.

•Outstanding Government Official is former village president Fontie ApMadoc.

•Outstanding Young Citizen is Melissa Savas, Clarkston High School senior class president and recipient of the 1981 DAR Good Citizen Award.

•The "Super Person" award goes to Virginia Walter for her efforts on behalf of the youth of Independence Township and the Clarkston school district as a volunteer with the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee.

•The Creative Arts Award winner is Homer Biondi for his participation in the Clarkston Village Players and for appearances as "Sandy the Clown" in numerous parades and other local events.

•Distinguished Service Award winners are Dr. Rockwood Bullard Jr. and Dr. Robert Buehrig, who have served the community for many years and are retiring from their medical practices this year.

•Winner of the Group Distinguished Service Award is the Clarkston Women's Club for 27 years of service.

•The Distinguished Service Award for a Project goes to Bottles for Building, a glass recycling effort developed in 1971 by Carolyn Place. Although the project has been discontinued, about $30,000 remains in trust for a future community center.

Additional awards are slated for 10 volunteers—Carol Balzarini and Karen Ohrnberger for their work in education, Nancy Deloney and Carol Zorka for coordination of the physical education program at Bailey Lake Elementary, Ray Welch and Joe Stetz for their years of coaching in the summer ball programs, Bev Palmer for her work as the parent coordinator of physical education programs at Clarkston Elementary, Kay Robertson for her contributions as treasurer and member of the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee, Violet Biondi for her work with the Red Cross, and Mary Jane Scharfenkamp for work developing and coordinating the M.O.R.E. program at Clarkston Junior High which offers after-school classes.

Awards are also planned for teacher Mary Ellen Steel who will retire this year after 41 years of teaching, including 26 in Clarkston; board of education President Janet Thomas; Spanish teacher Virginia Addis for her dedication to education; CHS senior Barbara Kevern; CHS senior Ron Wagner; Clarkston Rotary Club for its donation of a van to the township senior citizens; and the Clarkston School Lighting Fund project for raising $32,000 for high school football field lights.

A CONSUMER SHOPPING TIP

If your car engine doesn't turn over in cold weather, first have your battery checked. Have connections, specific gravity, and water level of your old battery checked before you buy a new one. And, if you do buy, shop around for prices and know exactly what the warranty covers and for how long.

Board OKs funds for townshipwide garbage cleanup

See that musty old couch with springs pushing up through the cushions?

That broken lamp? The refrigerator with a burned-out motor, the washing machine with the fizzled agitator and that wasted mattress?

Gather all that refuse together and mark June 19 and 20 on your calendar.

Independence is springing for the dumping bill as $4,000 in federal revenue sharing pays for 10, 40-cubic-yard dumpsters at yet-to-be named sites throughout the township.

At the May 4 meeting, board members unanimously approved the plan. It's aimed at easing the township's chronic rural dumping problem, that's become a "boar's nest" in the words of Vincent Rizzo of Iroquois Road.

Rizzo spearheaded the township's move at February federal revenue sharing hearings, suggesting public funds be used to finance townshipwide cleanups.

Clarkston grad Tim Birtsas hurls like pro

15 major league teams on prowl to snap up 'dominant' MSU southpaw

By Marilyn Trumper

Fifteen major league teams are seriously scouting Michigan State University southpaw Tim Birtsas, a 1978 Clarkston High graduate.

His goal: Strikeouts.

The ball player has emerged as one of the dominant pitchers in the Big Ten, according to MSU Head Baseball Coach Danny Litwhiler.

So far this season the 6-foot-6-inch Birtsas tossed a two-hitter to beat Indiana 2-0, striking out 12 batters; and led his team to victory against Purdue two weeks ago when he struck out eight, allowing just two hits.

The 21-year-old won six straight games, raising his record to 6 and 1, and lowering his Earned Run Average (ERA) to .94. Athletic Director Paul Tungate coached Birtsas in his junior and senior years at CHS, and says at that time he saw the spark of a pro.

"I remember seeing Tim pitch in high school. I told him, 'The way you throw, there's no reason you can't go onto the pros,'" Tungate said.

Tim's senior year, Tungate remembers calling Michigan State University to send out a freshman coach and see his star play.

That night, Clarkston went up against Milford. Birtsas struck out the first eight batters and the last seven.

"They were impressed with him," Tungate said. Birtsas boasts a 15-5 high school career with 187 strike outs.

"In college he's reached his physical maturity and his velocity on the ball has much improved. He's throwing balls at 91 to 92 mph—and that's professional speed," Tungate said.

College coach Litwhiler says all the major league teams are looking at Birtsas.

"If he doesn't get hurt, if he doesn't have any injuries, I'm sure he'll sign (with a major league team) either this year or next," he said, referring to junior Birtsas' still-to-be-completed senior year.

"He has the talent, size and ability to be a major league pitcher. He really blossomed this year. Tim concentrated on his pitches, the fastball and curveball, and was able to get them out and over the plate for the first time.

"That's what they like, that's what they look for. This year he really concentrated on throwing those strikes."

Major leagues, Litwhiler said, are always on the lookout for a young pitcher with good control and a mean fastball.

Tee off at 7 a.m.

Trophies and cash prizes await the winners of the Oakland County Two-Man Best Ball Tournament planned Saturday, May 22, at Springfield Oaks Golf Course.

Tee off times are available from 7 a.m. until filled. Registration is $50 a team.

In addition to the top prize for the first-place team, there will be additional cash prizes.

The Springfield Oaks 18-hole golf course is located on Andersonville Road at Hall Road. A clubhouse overlooks the course, and facilities also include a pro shop, cart rentals and a grill room.

To register for the tournament, call 625-2540.

Slowpitch slots

There are openings for teams in the Independence Township Parks and Recreation men's morning slowpitch softball league, which plays Tuesday and Thursday mornings at Clintonwood Park.

Sponsor fee for the Delta league is $100 plus a $50 security deposit. There must be at least 14 members on a team, with a maximum of 20. The players' fees are $20 for nonresidents and $15 for residents.

There is also one opening for a team in the men's Alpha league, the highest ability level players. The league's games are played on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at Clintonwood Park, and the fees are the same as for the Delta league.

For more information, call the parks and recreation department at 625-8223.

PK running

Runners can start stretching their leg muscles for the fifth annual Michigan Week Run coming up Sunday, May 23, at Pine Knob Music Theatre.

The 6.2-mile run is hosted by the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department.

Entry fee for those who pre-register is $6, and a T-shirt is guaranteed.

There will also be registration at the Pine Knob Music Theatre parking lot from 8 to 9:30 a.m. the day of the run for $7.

Starting time is to be 10 a.m. The course begins at the music theater parking lot off Sashabaw Road. There'll be prizes, including a gift certificate from Runnin' Gear for first-place winners, in the seven age categories for male and female runners. Awards will go to the top three runners in each division, plus a special award for the oldest and youngest finishers.

Runners may register at the township park and recreation office, located in the lower level of Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston. Office hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

There is also mail registration. Call 625-8223 for an entry form or more information.

Powers: Champion archer

SJHS 9th-grader multi trophy winner on the range

By Marilyn Trumper

Four years ago Mike Powers picked up a K mart bow and started shooting arrows for the first time. His backyard on Guyette Street, Independence Township, turned into a target range.

Today, with two years of lessons under his belt, Mike grasps his $200 bow made of sophisticated levers and pulleys, eyes up the site with the bull's-eye and lets go. Twang! He waits as the silent arrow moves through the air and meets with the center black circle, as if drawn by a magnet.

Whenever he misses, the 15-year-old gets angry and chastises himself out loud. Pulling an arrow from his quiver, he tries again.

'Mike is a good archer, a natural archer. There's something about their kind ...I guess it's their desire more than anything else.'

The outdoor target range in the woods of the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club is habit, a path known by heart. Hours are spent after school and on weekends roaming the hills and valleys of the specially designed archer's walk.

Proof of his accomplishments as an achieved archer, Mike's television set at home almost bends under the weight of trophies.

Last year he took the club's 1982 championship in his class and offers a plaque as proof.

A skilled hunter, the Sashabaw Junior High ninth-grader felled two deer with bow and arrow. Mike's teacher has been his dad Paul, an archer since the age of 12, who also instructs archery at the Sportsmen's Club Wednesday nights.

"Mike is a good archer, a natural archer," says his dad. "There's something about their kind. I've never really been able to put a finger on it and I see a lot of kids.

"I guess it's desire more than anything else. Their desire to be good."

In circles at the Sportsmen's Club, Mike's already proven his desire.

Ask any target watcher—and the shredded bull's-eye.

It's rare when an archer shoots an arrow into an arrow, locking the shafts—but Mike's performed the feat twice, and his dad has once. Mike offers the three "Robin Hoods" for view. According to legend, it was Hood's famed shooting throughout England that coined the term.

New wheels and ears for fire fighters

After weeks of talk with township officials, the Independence Township Fire Department has received the OK to purchase 50 new pocket-pagers for all fire personnel and a new Chevrolet station wagon.

At the May 4 meeting, board members unanimously approved purchase of the pagers for $14,750.

According to Fire Chief Frank Ronk, portable pagers, as opposed to the current bulky bay stations in volunteer and full-time fire fighters' homes, will allow the department immediate contact with all personnel. Communication will be "...right on their hip," in the words of Ronk.

In addition, board members OK'd purchase of a Chevrolet station wagon for $9,885, used for the chief's transportation, as standby at all sporting events and for transporting equipment at fires.

The new vehicle replaces the outgoing wagon, bought in 1975, which now boasts 60,000 miles, Ronk said.

Join July songfest for village's 150th

Singers wishing to lend their voices to Clarkston's 150th anniversary celebration and July 4th festivities can join in on practice sessions beginning Tuesday, May 18.

Patriotism is the theme of the songfest, says organizer Ralph Chambers, and songs planned are excerpts from the last two years' performances at the Depot Road Park after July 4 parades. From the "I Love America" and "Ring All the Bells of Freedom" musicals come such traditional tunes as "In God We Trust," "Oh Beautiful" and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

"Anyone who ever sang in a church choir, school choir or barbershop group, they can come and sing with us," says Chambers, adding that the voices of high-school-age singers are welcome, too.

Practices for the 30-minute presentation at the park are to be held every Tuesday beginning at 7 p.m. at the Clarkston High School music practice room.

Those interested in joining the group may call Chambers at 625-4690 or 332-9300.

Computer assist

Six new microcomputers shall make their homes at Clarkston Junior High School thanks to the efforts of the student government which sponsored the Christmas-season candy sale that raised about $7,000. The addition makes the number of microcomputers an even dozen at the school, said Principal Duane Lewis, and they will allow all ninth-graders to spend time gaining computer literacy. Officers of student government gathered around one of the new computers are (clockwise, from left) Secretary Julie Kaiser, Treasurer Kelly Haskins, Vice President Wendy Learmont, President Mike Galley, and Sergeant at Arms Shaun Mac-Cartey. A portion of the money was also spent to give lockers a coat of bright yellow paint.

Budding authors tell their tales

By Kathy Greenfield

Surprise endings, original artwork, sports lingo and covers that encourage curiosity are some of their talents.

The group of Andersonville Elementary pupils took the books they wrote and illustrated along when they attended the recent Conference for Young Writers at Oakland University, Rochester.

The day-long event was conducted by Mark Brown, an author and illustrator of children's books. The group remembers pictures Brown drew of creatures with parts of different animals as requested by conference attendees, the instructions for drawing characters...and lunch.

Pat Andrus, a first- and second-grade teacher at Andersonville, accompanied the youngsters on the outing. Once they arrived, though, the children attended functions together and the adults met in other locations.

That's the part that impressed fifth-grader Tim Banfield.

"When I came home, my mom asked me if it was a good experience," he said. "I said it was, because it was a good experience for learning what I could do on my own without any help from anybody."

When he was walking out the door at the conference's end, second-grader Jonathon Dunn said to his teacher, "I won't forget this day for the rest of my life."

That was Jonathon's creative expression of what he really felt.

To his teacher's surprise, he explained it later like this: "It was boring—everything but lunch."

The young authors and artists were selected by their teachers to participate in the event. Each wrote his or her own story, and parents helped put them together in book form.

First-grader Abe Savas wrote "Abe's Earth Story," a boy's adventure inside the world. He describes what the book is about in a word, "Me," and, sure enough, photographs of him are included in the pictures.

All kinds of hats cut out of different fabrics fill Jonathon's book, "Hats, Hats, Hats," an illustration of his poem.

Second-grader Rebecca Sanford's book, "The Chocolate Bunny," is shaped like a giant chocolate kiss. A bunny dreams he gets all the chocolate in the world, and he eats it. "He's still hungry and he eats himself," says Rebecca. And "POOF!" the story's over.

Denise Schulz, a second-grader, uses her name and her sister Dana's for her main characters. In "The Giant Hen," two princesses happen upon a hen "as tall as three castles" who kisses them, moves back to the castle and lays an egg every day. "I did all the pictures myself and my dad is an artist, and I wouldn't let him help me," she says with pride.

Tim's story is filled with the language of a sportswriter. He creates a football team—the Detroit Lions—made up of actual players in the National Football League. "That's why it's called 'The Dream Team,'" Tim says.

Fifth-grader Wendy Drake wrote "The Cat that Barked." "I'm happy with it," she says. In the story, the heroine discovers a cat that barks. She takes it to class, only to learn it will bark just for her. Early the next morning, as she awakes, she hears a bird outside her window that sounds like a cow...and decides to ignore it.

The books will be on display in the case at Andersonville's entrance, and then the pupils will take them home, to save and remember some special moments.

Bright lights dim as Edison flips switch to off

Remember when Gratiot and Woodward Avenue were lit up like the spokes of a Ferris wheel all year long?

Night and day neon lights blazed. Flashing lights flashed and after dark streetlights shone like strings of diamonds.

Deja Vu

Both strips, from Detroit's hub to outlying suburbs, seemingly pulsated with burning bulbs and lit tubes.

There was a time when the Detroit Edison Co. encouraged use of electricity—instead of discouraging it.

There were incentives to plug in household appliances, and good reason to burn every light bulb in the house and leave store signage on all night long.

Edison matched every burned out light bulb turned over to its counter with a "free" new bulb. And if a toaster's coils were shot—no problem. Edison offered low cost electric appliance repair.

For Edison the more neon left burning, the more outlets filled with plugs, the better. Electricity was a cheap commodity.

There was no energy crisis. No double-digit inflation.

In those days, electricity bills were going down, instead of spiraling upward, as Edison spokesman Mike Maurer explains.

Technology has so advanced with development of nuclear reactors, that a plant years ago producing 20,000 kilowatts now puts out 1,100,000 kilowatts, using the same amount of energy. The price of electricity went down and Edison created customer incentive to use more.

Double-digit inflation ended all that.

It was out of Edison's hands when, in another arena, storekeepers put the kibosh on the "free" light bulb service.

Ruling on a class action suit filed by southeastern Michigan retailers, the U.S. District Court ordered the free light bulb practice to an end in 1973.

The court held Edison in violation of antitrust laws saying it was taking business away from retailers.

Until the early '80s, Edison also repaired electric household appliances like toasters, mixers and irons for a minimal fee.

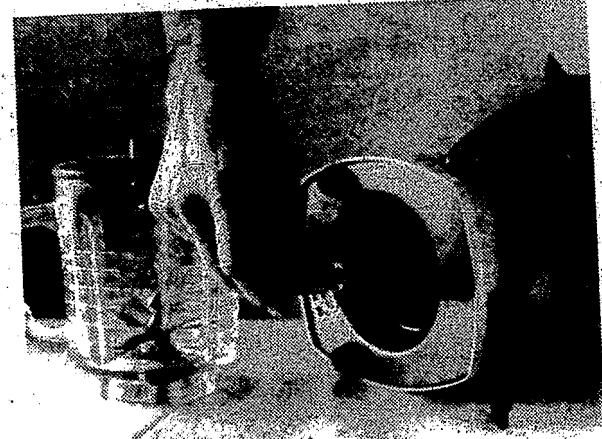

That practice ended Nov. 1, 1981, when Edison discovered it cost as much to repair that broken iron as it did to buy a new one.

Today cost-conscious moms and dads move from room to room, turning off light bulbs. Many businesses no longer leave their illuminated signs on after closing in an effort to cut costs. Light bulbs are now purchased at stores and broken irons are fixed at shops specializing in repair.

Edison's flipped the "OFF" switch on light bulbs and small appliance repairs for good.

—Marilyn Trumper

Detroit Edison, for a minimal fee, would make repairs to small home appliances like this blender, irons, toasters and the like, encouraging customers to plug-in and make use of electricity. The practice ended, along with other Edison incentives, when the cost of repairs, light bulbs and electricity spiraled upward.

Once in Spain, the group from Clarkston High School on the trip pose for a group portrait. In addition to Spanish teacher Virginia Addis, her husband Daniel, parent Eleanor Harned and the tour guide are CHS students John Kaye, Derrick Sorles, Carolyn Harned, Heather Kock, Rick Whitaker, Jim Nichols, Gina Ellington, Cindy Harned, Becca Folk, Jennifer Erck, Sue Manley, Del Bruce, Julie O'Neil, Karen Geukes, Dawn Todd, John Hughson and Scott Stanley.

Spanish pupils put lessons to work

Eleanor Harned and her daughters reminisce about trip to Spain

By Kathy Greenfield

Small cars, food laced with olive oil, street vendors and visual lessons in history.

These are some of the things Cindy and Carolyn Harned and their mother Eleanor remember about their trip to Spain with Clarkston High School Spanish teacher Virginia Addis, her husband Daniel and 15 other CHS Spanish students.

The group went on the trip to Spain April 11 through 18. Open to CHS Spanish students, parents were also able to attend, and Eleanor took advantage of the opportunity.

"Historically, it's unbelievable," she said. "We were all filled with a sense of history as we stood in the room where Queen Isabella gave the OK to Christopher Columbus to take three ships on his adventure. To actually be there! In fact, this is where it all started.

"History in school is 'memorize this, this and that.' History when you're traveling is so fascinating. You kind of put it all together—it makes so much sense. It was a lesson in history I'm sure none of these kids will forget."

For Cindy, a 12th-grader, her memories include some of the major differences between life-styles in the United States and Spain.

"I just remember getting out of the airplane and looking at the parking lot and all those cars—they were so small," she said. "Their streets are narrow. They can't have big cars!"

Having to pay for drinking water also left a lasting impression.

"You really appreciate purified water when you're paying $1.65 a bottle in some places," Cindy said.

A 10th-grader at CHS, Carolyn agreed the trip led to appreciation of some things she formerly took for granted.

"On the bus (in Spain), we were dreaming of coming back and laying on those (drinking) fountains. We got to J.F. Kennedy (Airport in Washington, D.C.) and headed for the fountains," she said.

Carolyn and two friends also learned how easy it is to get lost on the Metro, the subway system in Madrid.

They had gone off on their own to go shopping, and when they finished, they got back on the Metro and went the wrong way.

"Thirteen stops the wrong way," she said. "Nobody, but nobody spoke English."

They finally communicated with Spanish learned in CHS classes and were headed back in the right direction.

Then it was into a taxi to make it back in time for a Flamenco dancing show the students were scheduled to see.

Carolyn remembers saying in Spanish, "faster, faster" to the taxi driver as time was running out.

"We were worried about being late," she said with a laugh. "When we got there, nobody was even worried."

They also remember how excited everyone was to find a Wendy's restaurant among the Spanish shops. But, although the food looked the same, it was cooked in olive oil and even the catsup carried the tell-tale taste.

Eleanor, who has never taken a Spanish class, noticed a word similar to Fresca on the menu board, so she ordered one, thinking she'd be able to enjoy a diet soft drink. What she got instead was a strawberry milk shake. They all laugh at the memory.

One thing that surprised them all was people begging on the streets—young and old, and even some parents with their children.

"We have it bad, but they have it worse," said Cindy, noting that a taxi driver told her Spain has no welfare system.

"It was sort of general consensus that we'd rather have welfare and some cheats than a lot of people begging," said Eleanor.

They remember, too, working to get merchants in the market areas to lower prices on goods, and the bus.

The modern bus with reclining seats was a giant on the narrow streets, and they all talked with amazement about how the driver whisked along with only inches on either side of the vehicle.

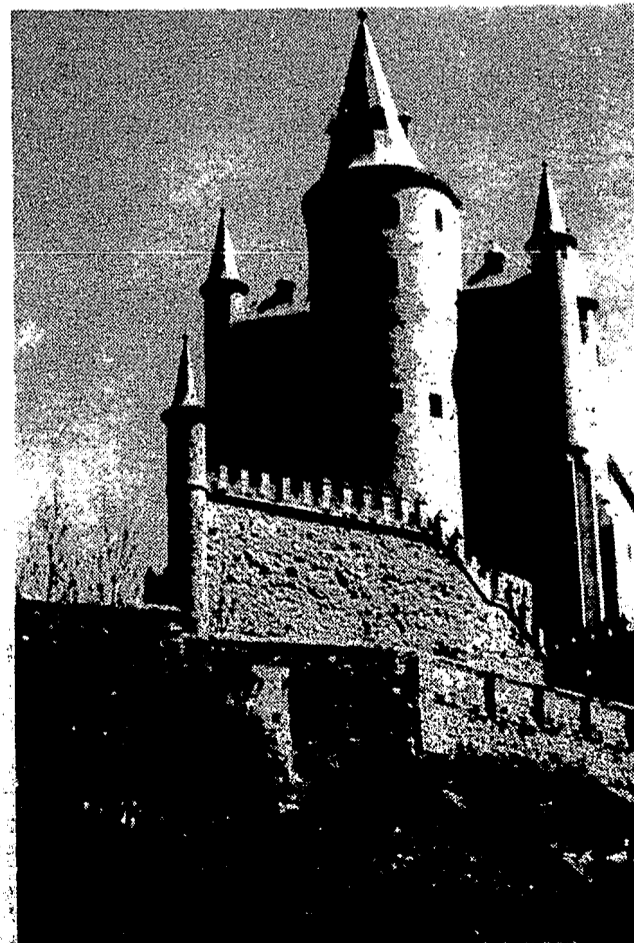

Once the driver and a tour guide got out and lifted a small car parked in the way onto the curb. The tour began in Toledo, the capitol of Spain until 1561 and the home of famous Toledo steel swords.

The modern city of Madrid was explored the next day. There were the Prado museum, and shopping downtown including finding Pac-Man on TV screens in department stores. A Wendy's and Burger Chef were interspersed with shops, street vendors and popular street games with people betting on the outcome.

stop. The Roman Aqueduct, still in use after 2,000 years, was a highlight, as was the visit to the Alcazar fortress palace of Queen Isabella.

Next stop, Granada. The Alhambra, taken by Queen Isabella in 1492 to end 800 years of Arab rule, was where the queen gave Columbus financial backing for his explorations.

The trip may be the last for Spanish students at CHS, Eleanor said, because their teacher Virginia Addis is moving to the west coast.

"Her departure will be a big loss to the community. At a time when teachers hesitate to plan a field trip to Cranbrook, she has continued to take the students half-way around the world to educate them," Eleanor said.

"I feel very privileged to have been given the opportunity to go."

New ownership for Davisburg Candle Factory

A classified ad brought Barbara Johns and Pam Ruggirello to the Davisburg Candle Factory in mid-February. When they walked inside, they knew they had found the business they wanted to buy, and they became the new owners May 3.

"We looked up Davisburg on the map and said, 'No way,'" remembers Barbara. "(But) the minute we walked in here—it fits like a glove. It became obvious to me that even if I had to drive, it was worth it."

"As we were driving away, we were saying all the things we were going to do and we hadn't even made an offer yet," adds Pam.

Barbara lives in Grosse Pointe and Pam is a Royal Oak resident. The women, who met through their Custom colors are also available. People can bring in swatches of material, wallpaper of whatever they want matched.

The prices have been lowered, by as much as $1, on practically all the candles, and there are special sales ongoing now on Christmas lines.

Before they took over the shop, Barbara and Pam spent six weeks learning to use the equipment and they also have a staff of expert candle makers.

They plan to operate the equipment every Saturday so people can stop by and see how the candles are made.

New directional signs are being put in place so drivers can easily find the shop located at 634 Davisburg Rd. in downtown Davisburg.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and noon to 4:30 p.m. Sunday. For tour information, call 634-4214.

Doing business

husbands who are employes of National Bank Detroit, say their families have become so enthused about the area they would eventually like to move there.

Barbara holds a degree in retailing, and Pam's a former teacher.

"We were excited about this shop because it answers both our needs," says Pam.

The free candle factory tours shall continue in the 125-year-old building, offering groups a view of the candle making equipment, hand dipping process and hand decorating of candles. And while expansion of the wholesale business is also planned, the retail business shall continue full force.

"The retail, we're going to hang onto. We love it," says Pam. "We're going to expand our retail line."

There will continue to be 31 colors of candles available in tapers, saucer balls, floaters and other designs. There will be candle holders of all descriptions, novelties, wedding candles and Christmas candles sold year round. Selections of gift items and country crafts are under expansion.

Pam Ruggirello (left) holds a grapevine wreath designed to circle a candle and Barbara Johns shows the hand-dipped pastel candles on display at the Davisburg Candle Factory. The women became the new owners of the business located in downtown Davisburg.

Ice cream target: Village Main

In 1925 the Cheesman family enjoyed a thriving ice cream shop on Clarkston's Main Street.

Dick Linenger's got his sites set on the same for 1982.

Linenger's set a target date of three weeks for the opening of his ice cream shop in the former bike shop on the corner of Main and Washington streets in Clarkston Village.

"I couldn't get anyone to rent it, so I figured I'd open my own shop. And I want to get started right away," he said. "Summer's here, and we just decided we'd go with this 10 days ago."

While nothing is firm on the shop's interior and exterior decor, whether he'll have booths or a soda bar, Linenger says he's working in close conjunction with the Clarkston Community Historical Society.

A tentative menu lists hand-dipped ice cream, sundaes, sodas and malts, hot dogs, popcorn and cotton candy.

Linenger, an Independence Township resident and former owner of Captain Dick's in Waterfall Plaza, still must get the OK from the Oakland County Department of Health, install equipment and make renovations.

Last reunion call

The deadline is May 15 for Clarkston High School Class of 1972 members to sign up for the reunion party.

There'll be dining and dancing at the Deer Lake Racquet Club during the Sept. 11 party celebrating their graduation 10 years ago.

For more information, call Bill Bildstein at 625-8326 or Bill Craig at 623-9638.

Silver celebration

It was a silver celebration for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gavette of Bluegrass Drive, Independence Township.

In March the couple celebrated 25 years of marriage, and over 40 people gathered at an open house given by their children Chelli and Craig at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gavette of Rochester.

Pettit-Mooney

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Pettit of Warbler Lane, Independence Township, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mooney of Chardon, Ohio, announce the engagement of their children, Deann Pettit and Kent Mooney.

The bride-to-be is a 1981 graduate of the University of Toledo. She is employed by Napoleon City Schools.

Her fiance, also a 1981 graduate of the University of Toledo, is employed by Burrough's Corp. of Toledo, Ohio.

An October wedding is planned.

Kline-Fincannon

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Kline of Waterford Township announce the engagement of their daughter Jill Lorraine to James Frank Fincannon, the son of Jerry Fincannon of Pontiac and June Gates of Burgandy Road, Independence Township. The bride-to-be attends Oakland Community College where she's majoring in accounting. Her fiance also attends OCC where he's majoring in industrial security. He is employed by Fleet Carrier Corp., Pontiac. A summer 1983 wedding is planned.

Local kids place 3rd in contest

Clarkston school district's academically talented pupils took an overall third place May 1 at Central Michigan University's Creative Competitions Inc.

Two teams drove handcrafted vehicles across a gym floor, and used scoops and a specially designed robotic arm to pick up bricks, water, balloons and an empty soda can. Working as astronauts from the planet OM, the teams sought to collect samples from the planet.

The two teams placed third and eighth.

Teacher Joette Kunze speculates the eighth-place team would have made a better performance had its engine not "disintegrated."

For weeks the kids, aided by mechanical engineers from Lawrence Institute of Technology, designed and assembled their cars and tools in preparation for the contest.

CJHS girls' chorus rates 'ones'

Top honors were won by the Clarkston Junior High School Girls' Select Chorus during festival May 1 held at Clawson High School.

The 32-member chorus rated "ones" from all three judges in the performance category and a "one" for the sight reading portion where they receive music they've never seen before and have to perform it, said CJHS music teacher Mary Conklin, who directs the group.

The girls meet in a regular class, but they had some special practices due to late-arriving music, Conklin said.

"They only had two weeks to learn it, so that's why they had a few extra rehearsals," she said. "They would have normally done it during school."

Judy White volunteered her time to serve as accompanist for the chorus at the festival and during rehearsals.

WORDS OF LIFE: "And the passover of the Jews was at hand and Jesus went up to Jerusalem. And he found in the temple those that sold oxen and sheep and doves, and the changers of money sitting; and he made a scourge of cords, and cast all out of the temple, both the sheep and the oxen; and he poured out the changers' money, and overthrew their tables; and to them that sold doves he said, Take these things hence; make not my Father's house a house of merchandise. Animal poems were the assignment for the second-graders in Elizabeth Bisbiskis' Andersonville Elementary School class.

Besides teaching children a bit about poetry writing, the use of adjectives and verbs was an important part of the lesson, Bisbiskis said.

Section 1. The Code of Ordinances, consisting of Chapters 1 to 21, inclusive, and Appendix B, is hereby adopted and enacted as the "Code of Ordinances, Township of Independence, Michigan" ("Code"), and shall be treated and considered as a new and original comprehensive ordinance of the Township, which Code shall supersede all general and permanent ordinances of the Township adopted on or before July 21, 1981, to the extent provided in Section 2, below.

Section 2. All provisions of the Code shall be in full force and effect from and after the 4th day of August, 1982, and all ordinances of a general and permanent nature of the Township, adopted on final passage on or before July 21, 1981, and not included in the Code or recognized and continued in force by reference, are hereby repealed from and after the effective date of the Code.

Section 3. The repeal provided for in Section 2, above, shall not be construed to revive all or any part of an ordinance that has been repealed by a subsequent ordinance which is repealed by this Ordinance.

Section 4. Unless another penalty is expressly provided, a violation of any provision of the Code, or any provision of any rule or regulation adopted or issued pursuant to the Code, shall be punished by a fine of not more than Five Hundred ($500) Dollars, and costs of prosecution, or by imprisonment for not more than ninety (90) days, or by both such fine and imprisonment, as provided in Section 1-9 of the Code.

Section 6. In case of the amendment of any Section of the Code for which a penalty is not provided, the general penalty, as provided in Section 4 of this Ordinance, and in Section 1-9 of the Code, shall apply to the Section, as amended; or, in case such amendment contains provisions for which a penalty, other than the aforementioned general penalty, is provided in another Section in the same Chapter, the penalty so provided in such other Section shall be held to relate to the Section so amended, unless specifically provided otherwise.

Section 7. Any ordinance adopted after July 21, 1981, which amends or refers to ordinances which have been codified in the Code, shall be construed as if they amend or refer to the corresponding provisions of the Code.

Section 8. A copy of the Code shall be kept on file in the office of the Township Clerk. It shall be the express duty of the Township Clerk, or his/her delegate, to insert in their designated places all amendments or ordinances which indicate the intention of the Township Board to make the same a part of the Code, and to extract from the Code all provisions which may from time to time be repealed by the Township Board. A medal for bravery goes to teacher Pat Pitcher (left) who planned the Pet Day at Clarkston Nursery for her 4- and 5-year-old preschoolers. Pat even had a neighbor bring her dog Sandy for the festivities Friday in the nursery school that meets at Clarkston United Methodist Church. Here, Tony Reppuhn and his mom introduce Peppy.
