Lewis keeps CJH post; Potvin takes Clarkston El

By Al Zawacky

It seemed like Clarkston Community Schools' version of musical chairs.

While Duane Lewis retained his Clarkston Junior High principal job, former district director of building and planning William Potvin became the new principal at Clarkston Elementary and Cecelia Wiar, who formerly held the Clarkston Elementary post, became the new assistant principal at Clarkston Junior High.

The administration shifts were approved unanimously at the Clarkston Board of Education's Monday evening meeting.

The changes were the result of a series of administration reassignments and cutbacks recommended by district Superintendent Milford Mason at a June 28 board meeting.

One of Mason's recommendations was that Potvin be reassigned to the CJH principal job held by Lewis. Lewis then would have become assistant principal.

The board and several parents and teachers in the audience had reservations over the idea, and the board thus agreed to postpone its decision until its July 12 meeting.

During that time however, Wiar expressed an interest in the CJH assistant's post, which would allow Potvin to assume the principal job at Clarkston Elementary while Lewis retained his CJH duties.

"I guess necessity is the mother of invention," Wiar said, explaining why she suggested the plan.

"After the last (June 28) board meeting, I couldn't see how the district could choose between Bill (Potvin) and Duane (Lewis). And I'm also looking at it in terms of my own career—I need secondary school experience in the pursuit of my own goals."

Both Lewis and Potvin were pleased with the way things turned out.

"My first choice, obviously, would have been to keep things the way they were with Doug," Lewis said, referring to Doug Pierson, who served as CJH assistant principal until being reassigned to teaching in one of district's administrative cutbacks.

"But under the circumstances, I'm very happy. Cece (Wiar) has a lot of experience and is an excellent educator."

"I was obviously unable to anticipate the possibility of this kind of change," Mason said afterwards. "When I found out Cecelia was interested in becoming assistant principal, and we discussed it, I came to support it from the standpoint that it was in the best interest of the district."

School board recalls four Clarkston teachers

By Al Zawacky

Four laid-off teachers have been recalled by Clarkston Community Schools, an action prompted in part by the resignation of two district teachers, including Clarkston High School english teacher Chuck Screws.

At its regular meeting Monday evening, the Clarkston Board of Education unanimously approved the recall of Ann Craven, Ervin Thomas Smith, Mary Ann Oshier and Kathryn Germuska.

Superintendent Milford Mason recommended the recalls in light of the resignations of teachers Nancy Huff and Screws, and the expanding of the district's special education program from 21 students to 48.

The increase will net the district a corresponding hike in state funding, which helped pave the way for the teacher recall, Mason said.

Smith, Oshier and Craven will all teach special education this fall. Smith and Oshier both taught special ed prior to receiving layoff notices in April.

Craven did not, but does hold a special education degree and will be recalled to serve in that capacity, according to Mason.

Huff taught at Clarkston Elementary during the last school year, while Screws taught English at Clarkston High School.

Mason's announcement at Monday's board meeting that Screws was resigning to accept a job in Alaska brought audible sounds of surprise from the audience.

"He's been very active in the high school, and we're very sorry to see him go," Mason said.

Screws has been involved in Clarkston's SCAMP program, student government, the morning weight lifting program, and several other activities during his six years of teaching at CHS.

He said his reasons for leaving Clarkston were economic.

"I could see myself a year or two down the road being laid off," Screws said. "I'd love to finish out my career in Clarkston, but it was just a matter of economic security."

Screws said he had accepted a teaching post at East Anchorage High School in Anchorage, Alaska and would leave for his new home at the end of this month.

"I've got a lot of friends in Clarkston—parents, faculty, and students—and I'm going to miss them very much," Screws said.

"We've never been out there (Alaska) before, and don't know anybody out there, so this is kind of a gamble for me."

Concert in the Park

Thirty-two Pontiac musicians cramped into the new village gazebo, built with federal revenue sharing funds and erected just in time to kick-off the free Friday concerts in the park, sponsored by the Clarkston Village Business Association. In Clarkston's Depot Road Park the group performed Disney favorites like: the "Mickey Mouse March," "It's a Small World,"

"Chim Chim Char-ee" and "A Dream is a Wish your Heart makes." The crowd applauded loudly as the director said, "That was the Overture to the Marriage of Figaro." Mozart without strings. How did you like it? The public is invited to attend similar concerts each Friday evening for the rest of July, beginning at 7 p.m. For more pictures of the concert, see Page 23.

Conflict ruptures board in cable TV discussions

Trustees vote to strip task force of recommending power at study's end

By Marilyn Trumper

Conflict ruptured the Independence Township Board's July 6 meeting as three elected officials opposed the Cable TV Task Force's free hand franchise review.

While they finally approved the upcoming public hearing to question the three cable bidders, trustees Dale Stuart and Larence Kozma and Clerk Christopher Rose soundly opposed what the supervisor planned would be a final recommendation from the seven-member TV task force.

In addition, it appears the township is a ways from making a final commitment and awarding the franchise to any single company, as at least two board members favored hiring a professional consultant to review all data and give a recommendation.

Stuart soundly opposed the task force delivering a recommendation after the public hearing, set for July 27, saying any decision the township board would make after that would be "anticlimactic."

He pointed to the volunteer task force comprised of professionals who've spent hours collecting data, attending meetings and studying the issues.

"If in the end (the board) votes for something other than what (the task force) recommends, it will appear to be a vote in opposition and I don't want that to happen," Stuart said.

Repeatedly, each time a task force has been appointed, Stuart has gone on record demanding that the board be kept abreast of all work done by the teams and be given copies of data "...all along the line," rather than in sporadic reports.

"We've not gotten any of that here and have no way of knowing how they'll arrive at any recommendation when they do."

Stuart called the expected final recommendation a way of trapping the township board "in a box."

Kozma agreed.

"I don't believe (the task force) should hold a public hearing to decide who should get a franchise.

"We should review (each cable company's) proposal and have the task force tell us what areas to look at, what areas need work, what are the areas of conflict, than have the board hold a public hearing and make the decision," he said.

After the meeting, Kozma, long on record for strict task force perimeters, elaborated his position.

"This has always been one of my major concerns—that the task force's direction be laid out. This task force took its own direction and now people are throwing up their hands. Members of the board didn't know what to do at this late date.

Without a concrete scope of authority this is what happens."

Clerk Christopher Rose agreed it would be difficult to go against a task force recommendation and favored hiring a professional consultant.

After almost two hours of discussion TV task force Chairman Robert Hurlbert, stood in a quandry.

"Then what your're saying is 'No, all we want is your data—but don't give us your conclusion.' Then I think we can just quit right here, hand over our report and we're through," Hurlbert said.

The board then voted unanimously to have the task force host the public hearing July 27 for the purpose of "preparing criteria," which the board can use to make the final decision, and to proceed with the understanding it will not make a final recommendation.

The three cable companies vying for Independence Township's franchise will be available for public questioning at the July 27 meeting, where they'll again make their bids and presentations.

The hearing is set for 7 p.m., Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Rogers family is moving south

By Marilyn Trumper

After 15 years teaching at Clarkston Elementary School and a 10-year stint on the Clarkston Village Council, Clerk Bruce Rogers is resigning both posts and moving to Florida.

That's the word as Rogers closed on the sale of his E. Washington Street home which has been on the market for one year.

Wife Jane, son Eric and daughter Katy will be sad to leave the village, neighbors and friends, he said.

Asked if they were moving to the land of opportunity, Rogers laughed and said, "No, the land of warmth."

"We're outdoor people and we like the weather that's warm. The warm season is longer down there, and we have family and friends there."

To date, the 38-year-old Rogers has no job lined up and said he's looking into a possible career change.

Rogers was expected to tender his resignation to the village council at the Monday night meeting.

According to Rogers, the school board will callback one of the teachers on the layoff list to replace him, and village President Jackson Byers will appoint someone to serve the rest of his council term.

Change aimed at tightening zoning

By Marilyn Trumper

Applicants for site plan approval in Independence Township may soon be going before the zoning board first for variances, then to the planning commission—instead of the other way around.

Demanding the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) take responsibility for variances and rezonings without feeling obligated by another body's decision, township resident Michael Clark is asking the board to buck tradition and change procedure.

After brief discussion at the July 6 meeting, the board unanimously agreed to have the attorney review the law and appointed a three-member committee to begin revisions for the change in procedure.

Since a restaurant received variances to allow its construction in the Sashabaw Corridor, Clark has criticized local government for its laxness in zoning laws designed to control development.

He also expressed concern over the the proposed Sashabaw Corridor photography studio expansion and adjacent shopping development, and the variances that could be granted there.

"When you grant two variances or more, then anyone else coming into an area can go for a variance, and if they don't receive it they take it to court and win," Clark said.

"Our zoning is there for planned development. Variance after variance is going to destroy that planning. Certain zoning in the Sashabaw Corridor has been designated for low density development," Clark said.

"But the way it is now the applicant goes first to the planning commission which sits back and turns to the planner for recommendation. Then it goes to the ZBA for variances.

"The ZBA feels obligated to approve the variances even if there are problems, because the planning commission OK'd it.

"I say let's put the burden of responsibility where it belongs, on the zoning board."

Trustee Dale Stuart, who sits on the ZBA, favored Clark's plan.

"I know there have been a number of times that this has happened," Stuart said. "The applicant comes to us and he's been rolled over the barrel six times by the planning commission to do different things.

"He comes to us and we feel the planning commission is saying, 'Well, he's done so much. Why don't you give him these few (variances.) The pressure is really on the zoning board."

Supervisor James B. Smith, a 12-year veteran of the planning commission prior to being elected to the supervisor's job, also favored the plan.

According to Smith and Kenneth Delbridge, director of building and planning, the change will mean a time and money savings for the applicant.

Delbridge said he has often questioned why the procedure was the way it was. "I never saw a reason for it," he said, adding, "there's merit in the proposal."

Because the change in procedure will require an amendment to the zoning ordinance, it must first go before the planning commission for review and recommendation.

But the township board will have the final decision, according to Clerk Christopher Rose.

Opportunists

Never let it be said the Robertson Court gang isn't inventive. On the last day in June this trio of enterprising lemonade entrepreneurs filled a red wagon with cooler, cups and a resplendent homemade sign, and hit the sidewalks of downtown Clarkston with their mobile vending machine. After 15 minutes sales had topped the 95-cent mark. From left are Sarah Schultz, Julie Irish and Kari Shebelut.

Garbage: $16,192

By Marilyn Trumper

Independence Township has a whopping $16,192 bill for last month's community garbage clean up, $12,000 over its original budget.

Piles of discarded mattresses, broken refrigerators, car parts, tires and more dumped at 10 targeted sites throughout the township took two companies days to clean up.

As soon as one corner was cleaned residents would return and dump more refuse, Supervisor James B. Smith said.

The first few days the Oakland County Road Commission called township hall to complain that garbage was blocking street intersections and residents called to complain of the unsightly dumpsters.

According to Smith, outsiders from neighboring townships utilized the unsupervised sites which were to be limited to township residents.

At the July 6 meeting, board members voted unanimously to use $19,000 in earned interest from invested federal revenue to pay the bill. Originally the board had budgeted $4,000 in revenue sharing to finance the project.

Board to appeal PK decision

Current word is that Independence Township will seek a high court reversal to block Pine Knob's application for a ski run, according to township supervisor James B. Smith.

At the July 6 meeting, the Independence Township Board went into closed session to discuss whether to appeal to the Michigan Supreme Court, and seek a reversal of the Court of Appeals ruling that allows Pine Knob to apply for a building permit to erect the proposed 185 foot ski run, sans hotel.

The township has until July 12 to file the appeal, Smith said.

Earlier, the township attorney had stressed that while Pine Knob may apply for a permit, it may not necessarily receive one.

The township has maintained that Pine Knob Investment Co. must appear before the planning commission for site plan review of the proposal.

57 Springfield condos on auction block Sunday

By Al Zawacky

Fifty-seven brand new condominiums at the Bavaria on the Water complex in Springfield Township will hit the auction block Sunday afternoon.

"It's a way we feel to generate a lot of interest," said Herb Lawson of the upcoming auction, which will start at 2 p.m. at the complex on Dixie Highway just north of I-75.

Lawson, of Abbey and Lawson Inc., the real estate firm handling marketing for Bavaria on the Water, said the auction has already stirred up interest among potential buyers.

Units normally selling from between $50,000 and $80,000 will be auctioned off with bids starting at minimums ranging from $39,900 to about $59,000, Lawson said.

"In addition, we've been able to work out very favorable terms with the bank—five percent down and 11 percent mortgages," he added.

Lawson said the condos up for auction have never been occupied and offer an attractive setting and a multi-service club house.

"The development is just magnificent—it's surrounded by water, there are large trees—it's very picturesque," he said.

The club house features a pool, tennis courts and Jacuzzi. Covered parking in car ports is also featured at the development.

"We've already had a good response and anticipate a lot of people coming out here on Sunday," Lawson said.

Waterford Hill racquet club nets liquor license

By Marilyn Trumper

For Jeanne and Paul Clements the waiting's almost over.

After more than two months of study, the Independence Township Board bowed to the planner and planning commission's joint recommendation for approval and granted Waterford Hill Courts Inc. one of the township's four available liquor licenses.

"We're just delighted to have it," said Jeanne Clements, co-owner of the racquet club on Dixie Highway, atop what's known as Waterford Hill.

"As soon as the state give's the final OK we'll begin renovations for the bar and restaurant."

Trustee Dale Stuart argued against granting the license, dismissing the planner and planning commission's recommendations, although both bodies pointed out the zoning was right, the land use was right and that the site is on a major highway.

"The location is very dangerous to begin with," Stuart said. "If there's anything we don't need to do it's increase traffic on that hill were someone's judgment may be impaired."

"We have four licenses left to give out for the next 10 years. I think we need to be selective and careful about giving them out. I also think there are more areas conducive to this kind of business."

Supervisor James B. Smith agreed, saying that in 1976, when he chaired the planning commission, the explosion of commercial development on that stretch of the Dixie spurred the commission to rezone vacant property to office zoning.

"The idea is not to encourage higher density," Smith said.

After discussion the board voted 4 to 2 in favor of granting the license. Trustees Larence Kozma, Daniel Travis, William Vandermark and Clerk Christopher Rose voted "yes," while Smith and Stuart dissented.

Independence has 'clean' audit

Copies of report available at township hall, library

Independence Township's 1981-82 unqualified audit is clean, according to John Nantais of Doeren Mayhew & Co.

Nantais presented a brief report to the board at the July 6 meeting, noting the general fund budget boasted a $122,130 surplus and that the troubled water fund had been bailed out by a rate increase.

"I'm happy to report that all funds showed a positive fund balance at the end of the year. I'd like to compliment you all on your well-run system," Nantais said.

Copies of the report are available at Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston, and the Independence Township Library, 6495 Clarkston-Orion, Independence Township.

Editorial

We're on top of news, but can't be everywhere

Comments and criticisms from readers are an integral part of the newspaper business. One of our functions is to provide a forum for our readers to express their opinions, and we will always welcome and encourage letters to the editor.

Part of this ongoing reader-writer dialogue deals with criticism of our efforts. Reporters, after all, are only human; we make mistakes and appreciate well-intended critiques by phone, mail or in person.

Still, we are mystified by the letters that appear on this page pertaining to the concerts taking place every Friday this month in Clarkston's Village Park.

Constrained by space in the paper and our small staff, we could not photograph both the concerts and the Fourth of July parade for our July 7 issue. As is the case several times a day, we were faced with an editorial decision regarding which event to cover.

There are five concerts this month at the Village Park, while the Fourth of July parade, which attracted over 5,000 onlookers, is a once-a-year event. It didn't seem to us to be a matter of crucial importance which band concert we covered, and while the decision is one that lends itself to personal opinion, we feel comfortable with our choice.

This past weekend, we had planned to pass over the concert again in favor of another one-shot affair—the SCAMP softball tournament at Clintonwood Park. Coverage of the concerts would wait until July 16, when it would be assured a prominent place in our paper.

When we found out the tournament was cancelled, we moved our concert coverage up one week. Hence the pictures in this week's paper.

How does this reasoning on our part constitute a deliberate attempt to ignore the village?

It is interesting to note that in the past, some readers have chastised us for giving too much coverage to the village while ignoring Independence and Springfield townships.

Clearly, we can't be all things to all people and we can't be everywhere at once. While we may not have covered the park concert in last week's paper, we did, as is often the case, report news to our readers that couldn't be found anywhere else.

We reported the recent court decision regarding Pine Knob's ski ramp. No other paper had the story.

We reported news from a recent special school board meeting, pertaining to the renewal of the superintendent's contract, the 1982-83 budget, the 1982-83 school year calendar, and the controversy surrounding the Clarkston Junior High principal post.

No other paper, weekly or daily, even bothered to send a reporter to the meeting.

Each time the Clarkston Village Council meets on Monday nights, The Clarkston News is there. Other papers aren't so concerned.

We're not engaging in self-congratulation. After all, these are cases of us just doing our job. We only cite these examples to point out that no other newspaper comes close to our coverage of the village, the township, the schools, local sports and community news.

Week in and week out, we carry major stories that can't be found in any other paper, bearing out our motto of being "On top of local news for 52 years."

Space and time don't always permit us to be at a particular event. But we feel an examination of the entire picture clearly indicates we're doing our best—and that nobody else is doing it better.

—A.J.Z.

Letters to editor

News overlooks business association projects

Call it "pride in our community," or a strong belief that small town togetherness is important, or even that we want to give back to this community because of its support for us...perhaps it's not even necessary to label the efforts of the Village Business Association to bring back the "Concert in the Park" series for the third year.

Sometimes it's necessary to remind you that although many business people are not village residents, they are a viable part of the community.

We sweep the streets, paint our buildings, plant flowers and turn the village into a white twinkle of fantasy land at Christmas time.

The concerts in the park for the month of July involve many months of work before hand. Combined efforts of the VBA, the village council and Mr. Morris and his musicians help make this program a success.

This year community response to our fund raising efforts for this program have been tremendous.

We planned with pride the first concert, "Happy Birthday, Clarkston," and attendance at our "party," complete with birthday cake for 350 people was a tremendous success.

Needless to say, we were disappointed when The Clarkston News couldn't find the time or the space to give us coverage of this event.

The Clarkston News has a responsibility to this community to report events such as the July 4 celebration you recently covered.

The Clarkston News seems to continually overlook the business association's projects. We feel that the band concerts are a major part of the summer sesquicentennial celebration and should not have been overlooked.

Concert merits more coverage

For many years I have enjoyed the numerous aspects of Clarkston. The people, stores and the many activities that go on year round.

Clarkston has done many things for many people by putting some country charm in everyone's heart.

I have been working in Clarkston for two years now and I'm truly proud to be a part of Clarkston in my own way.

The thing I like most about this town is that everyone works together, always trying to do good things for the people of Clarkston and visitors who always come back.

The reason I'm writing to you is because I'm very disappointed in the way that The Clarkston News is handling the band concerts. It's almost as if you're trying to alienate yourselves from these events.

The people of Clarkston is what keeps you in business. Without them, you would most definitely be somewhere else (possibly in the unemployment line).

I feel that you should start thinking more of the people here in Clarkston. Give them more coverage on the band concerts. It's a great time once a week for a month when people from Clarkston and other areas get together to enjoy this beautiful town.

Making hay

by Jim Sherman

Have you seen the latest revision of the 1040 Federal Income Tax Form. After your social security number there is one question: 1. How much money did you make last year? Fill in that blank.

Number 2 is: Send it in!

Tracing stories is what we in the newspaper business do most well, second to drinking coffee.

When I was told a man from the Michigan's Economic Development Commission said the hay fed the horses of the Royal Family in England came from Engadine, I started tracing.

Certainly sounds like an important story to me. What greater claim to fame can a farmer in Engadine, Michigan have than his product eventually fertilizing the Royal gardens of the British Isles?

Where to start? I'm not about to call the Queen's stables to talk to the buyer of hay. Probably wouldn't be able to understand anyone speaking English.

The person who fed me the lead, Jerry Olrich of Oxford, suggested I call Richard Pershinske, owner of Engadine Feed and Grain, in where else?

Rich is a CPA by trade. Until five years ago he was one of this whole country's leading authorities on accounting for subcontracting firms. He lived in Mt. Clemens.

His folks have a farm near Engadine, and Rich and his wife, Jan, were going to retire there. (I learned all this trying to find out who buys Engadine hay.)

Five years ago the Pershinskes, still in their 30's, (I think), bought the Feed and Grain store and fled the then-coming depression of SE Mich, Smart.

Rich now farms 400-plus acres and is a big hay producer. However, his hay all goes to Mackinac Island, and it's by-product is washed into Lake Huron.

The Pershinskes know nothing of hay going to England from Engadine. And, since the community isn't that big and there isn't another feed and grain for many miles, you'd think they would know.

I did learn something else of interest to me at least. Rich has planted 10 acres of pickles. He's going to see if they can be raised in the Upper.

If he's successful, maybe he can sell his product to England. Then the Upper can claim they have a Royal Pickle instead of complaining about being in one.

Cooperation, not conflict key to sign law talks

We would like to respond to the July 7 Clarkston News article headlined "Village Business Association opposes sign law."

The first paragraph states that there is a "rift" between the business association and the village council. The lead paragraph should have read: "Business association and village council combine efforts for a workable sign ordinance."

The council sent a representative to our meeting to explain the proposed sign ordinance at our request. They extended to us an invitation to re-write the ordinance to reflect our needs and concerns.

We, in turn, re-wrote and submitted our suggestions. A good working relationship between the council and the VBA is necessary to complete a workable sign ordinance.

News articles with a writer's interpretation of the facts should not be misleading to the public.

Builder owes teens an apology

I am writing in regard to Mr. Ed Santala's accusations toward the teens in the subdivisions neighboring Chestnut Hills, where he is now building.

I realize the house that has been vandalized is worth a lot of money, but he has no right to assume it was local kids that did those things.

I am a teen living in Birdland, and we have trouble in our neighborhood with vandalism also. A house that expensive should've been built where it could be watched more closely.

I feel we deserve an apology, since all the evidence he has are first names.

'If it Fitz. . .

Thugs, nuts crowd world

by Jim Fitzgerald

The New York Times asked Phyllis Schlafly where she is going to direct her great energy and talent now that she's won the fight against the Equal Rights Amendment. She said her 50,000-member organization, Eagle Forum, will turn to such issues as a campaign against a nuclear freeze.

"The atomic bomb is a marvelous gift that was given to our country by a wise God," Schlafly said.

Certainly. The United States' armaments supplier is God. But where does Russia get its bombs? God knows.

Anyway, it is comforting to be assured by Phyllis Schlafly that God is the Pentagon's associate in the war business. Lately I've been worried about such things.

FOR INSTANCE, I received an unsigned note saying: "Ever since the Lebanon bloodbath began, I have been anxiously awaiting comments from you. Where is your sense of justice now? The Israelis, with unbelievable assistance from the U.S. government, plus tax-deductible American-Jewish dollars, are destroying not a village, not a city, but a whole country. And in the Fitzgerald column, light chit-chat as usual."

Attached to the note were newspaper clippings about Israeli jets bombing a Beirut hospital and about a 14-year-old boy maimed by a cluster bomb, made in the U.S.A.

My gut reaction to the bloody invasion of Lebanon is that Menachem Begin is a thug and the U.S. shouldn't sell him a popgun. I'm sure that's the reaction the unknown note-writer was looking for, instead of chit-chat.

But I might also receive a note citing PLO attacks on Israel citizens. And my gut reaction would be that Yasser Arafat is also a thug.

MY PROBLEM is I saw German youngsters maimed in World War II, and I saw camps where Jews were exterminated. So since age 19 I've been a confirmed pacifist. I'm as opposed to fistfights as I am to nuclear bombs.

Of course, it's a waste of time for me to preach such dreamy idealism with any hope of living to see the day when, for instance, Irish Catholics and Protestants will stop killing each other. But maybe my grandchildren will see the day when world leaders realize total disarmament is the surest way to substitute talking for killing.

There is certainly nothing unique about my noble attitude. Hell, everyone is against war. But most everyone is able to rationalize the death and destruction by claiming self defense. We have to kill them because they kill us, and they have to kill us because we kill them. Marvelous. Real statesmanship.

But sometimes the rationalizing comes hard. Cluster bombs, for example. They are designed to get the maximum kills per hit. Each casing contains 650 bomblets with serrated edges that spin away in all directions. Militarily speaking, cluster bombs make sense only when aimed at clusters of people. They are for crowded cities, not railroad bridges. When it comes to unbelievable obscenity, cluster bombs rank right up there with neutron bombs that destroy flesh but spare property.

IT SICKENS ME to know my government supplied the cluster bombs Israel dropped on innocent people in Lebanon. But, just in time, along comes Phyllis Schlafly to make me feel better. She says the atom bomb, even more horrible than the cluster bomb, is a marvelous gift to the United States from a wise God. So certainly God must approve of my government supplying Menachem Begin with the weapons a world leader needs to become a premier thug.

Obviously, God will help Schlafly and her Eagle Forum stop attempts to freeze the production of such a marvelous gift as nuclear weapons. And after that battle has been won, the New York Times may again ask, what next, Phyllis?

Well, according to the Times, members of two Eagle Forum chapters have already tried to ban books by such dangerous writers as John Steinbeck, Nathaniel Hawthorne and Mark Twain. That sounds like a noble cause for Phyllis to champion, God help her.

I would say the world is going nuts — and Phyllis Schlafly is the leading nut — except that would be light chit-chat.

Young artist to share talents in summer classes

By Al Zawacky

Behind the big farmhouse on Independence Township's Perry Lake Road sits a small white building.

That's 16-year-old Heather Hudson's art studio. Heather is putting her love for art to practical use. Around Christmas, she got the idea to form a summer arts program for children.

These days find her busy purchasing supplies and distributing pamphlets.

The pamphlets read in part: Arts and Crafts Classes—a summer arts experience for elementary age children—instructor Heather C. Hudson.

"A lot of people are out of work and their kids can't go to camp," she says. "I thought this would be a good idea."

'I like the feeling of creating something ...'

—Heather Hudson

Her credentials to teach art are extensive. While currently attending high school, Heather is enrolled at Oakland County Community College, studying art appreciation. She hopes to have enough credits to have her first year of college completed by the time she graduates.

She has studied pottery, drawing and painting, fabric art, weaving and scratch board techniques.

The courses offered in her summer program include candle making, scratch boards, paper mache, posters, weaving and sketching.

Heather's affection for the arts is a natural.

"I like the feeling of creating something—being able to make something out of the materials around," she says. "And, I enjoy working with children."

In the classes, she hopes to teach kids how to use various art techniques and put their own creativity to work.

"Art should be non-competitive—learning to work with yourself and with others."

Heather's classes are open to children in the first through eighth grades. The sessions will be held twice a week in July and August, Monday and Wednesday or Tuesday and Thursday, from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Registration forms for the program are available at Country Cords and Tierra in Downtown Clarkston.

Heather Hudson works on a sketch in her art studio behind her Independence Township home. The 16-year-old artist is currently recruiting youngsters to participate in a summer art program.

Council eyes handicap parking on Main Street

Trustee Ethel Sinclair's call for at least two handicap parking spaces on Clarkston's Main Street could become a reality in the downtown district's future.

"I checked into it and the state says we have the power to do it," she said. "We can do it today if we want to."

"I think we should have spaces on Main Street, one in front of the newspaper and one in front of Hallman's, so that the handicapped people don't have to park in the village lot, negotiate the sidewalk and cross the street," Sinclair told the council at its July 12 meeting.

"I don't see very many people struggling at my end of the street," said Carol Eberhardt, owner of One-More Time in the corner building on Washington and Main.

"If council feels there's a need, why not consider putting the spaces on Washington, maybe along the side of the ice cream store?"

Joan Kopietz, owner of Tierra Arts Design, said Main Street parking for the handicapped "seems dangerous to me," citing the high curbs that might force exiting on traffic's side of the car.

Village President Jackson Byers pointed to the existing spaces for handicapped persons in the village Mill Pond lot and at Clarkston Corners.

"I think we ought to ask Chuck Smalley (village traffic enforcement officer) how many people use the spaces that already exist to determine the need," Byers said.

The matter's expected to be discussed at the next meeting, July 26, Clarkston Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston.

Sign ordinance remains on drawing board

The Clarkston Village Business Association and the village council continued to disagree on a proposed sign ordinance, debating ordinance language and concepts at the July 12 meeting.

While council Trustee Gary Symons favored signage geared to "pedestrians," smaller signs like those proposed in architect Betty Lee Francis' plan to renovate the downtown, business spokesperson Joan Kopietz took a different point of view.

"Yes, while that's ultimately what we too would like to see—we're looking at something for right now," she said.

"We don't think the plan is something that's going to happen in the immediate future."

For four years the planning commission has been reviewing a proposed sign ordinance, with council shuffling the would-be law between its own members and a sign committee, comprised of council members and business owners.

After debating one word for over a half-hour, Village President Jackson Byers suggested the council use "a two prong approach. Send the ordinance back into committee and have it reviewed using the attorney's guidelines.

"We're to look at what we want to regulate and write the law around that. The council should do the same," he said.

The issue is expected to be discussed at the July 26 meeting, 7:30 p.m., Clarkston Village Hall, 375 Depot Road, Clarkston.

Board moved to collect Stickney pit's $20,000

By Marilyn Trumper

The Independence Township Board has its hands tied when it comes to forcing reclamation of the abandoned 23-acre Stickney Gravel Pit.

With little left to do other than go after a $20,000 bond, the board has ordered the attorney to begin forfeiture proceedings.

At the July 6 meeting Supervisor James B. Smith informed the board that after review of the abandoned pit on Stickney Road, the township attorney has recommended forfeiture of the bond which will be used to help cover the cost of reclamation.

The $20,000, Smith said, is "...only a drop in the bucket." There's no official estimate on what total reclamation would cost.

When the Stolaruk Corp. ceased mining and walked away from the pit last year, it failed to meet the reclamation plan outlined in a 1979 consent judgment, Smith said.

The corporation was to have completed work in June of 1979 and had posted the $20,000 bond to insure the work would be done.

The township hopes to avoid this helplessness with its new gravel mining ordinance, adopted at that same meeting, Smith said.

"Over the years the township's gone round and round with these pit operators, granting extension and outlining reclamation, and then nothing happens. They post the minimal bond and walk away when they're done leaving us with a hole in the ground," Smith said.

A $20,000 bond means little compared to the millions of dollars worth of gravel mined from a single pit, Smith said.

"Exactly, this is what we hope to avoid in the future with the new law," he said.

Strict gravel ordinance adopted

After months of drafts and re-drafts to develop a strict mining ordinance, the Independence Township Board adopted the new law at its July 6 meeting. It will take effect 30 days after publication.

The call for a strict law came to a head this year when Blount Materials Inc. made a bid for a five-year extension to mine the 23-year-old Salem gravel pit on Oak Hill Road.

Unwilling to again put the board in an 11th-hour negotiating position with its hands tied, elected officials held meeting after meeting to draft restrictive guidelines.

The new law covers licensing, regulations, inspections and requires topographic surveys, geological surveys, detailed plans of operation, reclamation plans; an environmental impact report and a $1,000 processing fee up-front for the first 50 acres; and $5 for each additional acre.

The law also includes development of a fund to cover reclamation and 25 percent of the administrative costs.

The licensee makes monthly payments to the township equal to what would be a 6-cents-a-ton levy on outbound tonnage, and to insure compliance the township will make an annual audit.

Mining officials have the alternative of creating a $7,500 fund, without allowing the balance to dip below that mark.

The law also calls for fencing of sites, the posting of signs, berm screening for neighbors and dust control, and limits hours of sales and operations.

Tips on handling grease fires

A teenage boy stands before a hot stove frying bacon in an iron skillet. It sputters and spits grease as fat fries in the pan. Suddenly the grease catches fire and orange flames rise up toward the stove's hood. Without blinking, the quick-thinking cook simultaneously turns off the stove and uses the lid to cap the pan. Without oxygen to fuel the flame, the fire dies. This is the way grease fires should be handled, according to Independence Township Capt. Dale Bailey, who offers these dos and don'ts:

- Turn off the stove.
- If using small pan, cover with the lid.
- Use CO² extinguisher or Class B extinguisher to put out the flame, but do not aim nozzle directly into the pan, it could spread fire.
- Baking soda may be used.
- Don't attempt to carry the pan outside or move it, the grease could spatter, setting you or the house on fire.
- Don't use water, it could create the same effect.
- Don't use flour, it acts as a fuel and will explode.

Tim McCormick: High hopes for 1982-83

By Al Zawacky

Two years ago, he was an 18-year-old basketball player with the world in his pocket—a world of league titles, broken records, press conferences, public adulation.

Then came a frustrating freshman year at the University of Michigan. Two knee operations, a season on the bench and months of rehabilitation followed.

Now is the turning point.

Tim McCormick stands at the crossroads.

Can he come back? Come back and play a major roll in the rebuilding efforts of Coach Bill Frieder's 1982-83 Wolverines?

McCormick doesn't doubt for a minute that he can—and will.

"A lot of people have sort of counted me out because of my knee injuries," he says, sitting on the front porch of his parents' home in Springfield Township.

"I'm not really sure what the fans think, but I know the coaches are counting on me. They're saying if I go out and play the way I can, and my knees are OK—I'm their center.

"I really expect to start. I'm the only center coming back with experience."

McCormick underwent two knee operations in 1981, the first on June 15 on the left knee and the second on the right knee two months later.

There were rumors at the time that Frieder didn't agree that the operations were necessary. Some fans also questioned McCormick's decision, figuring their 6-11 star recruit was too fainthearted to play with pain.

"Coach Frieder wasn't happy that I had to have the operations, but after listening to the doctors, he told me to do what I have to do," he said.

The pain issue draws a little sharper rebuttal.

"It really irritates me to hear people say I have a low tolerance for pain and that I didn't have the intensity to play over it.

"I've played with pain for the last six years. In all that time, I've never asked to come out of a game...I don't see any valid proof that I can't play with pain."

Even with the operations and an extensive rehabilitation program, he still feels some discomfort in his left knee.

"There are always going to be little setbacks, but the doctors are very positive and I feel really good. I realize that I'm going to have pain for the rest of my career, but it's tolerable now that I've had the operations."

Swimming, weight lifting, running and playing ball with some fellow Clarkston High School alumni are included in McCormick's regimen.

"From what the coaches and trainers tell me, the rehabilitation program has really helped. Nobody on the team is going to be in better shape."

And after a season of frustration watching from the bench, McCormick is anxious to return to the fray.

The bench was an unfamiliar post for him, after starting varsity for three straight years during a brilliant prep career at Clarkston High School.

"I try to look at everything positively," he said of Michigan's dismal 1981-82 season. "Last year really brought the team together, and it made me appreciate things a lot more. I'm a much hungrier player now."

"There are going to be times when I won't play as well I as I want to, and times when I'll read something in the media I don't like. But how could it bother me when I'm fulfilling a lifelong dream of playing college basketball?"

The 1982-83 team? The Wolverines are coming off a solid recruiting year, and McCormick is optimistic about how the Maize and Blue will fare once the season starts.

"As far as who's going to win the Big Ten, it's too early to tell. But Michigan is going to be in the fight."

Tim McCormick plans on being a part of that fight.

Tim McCormick hopes to put the past behind him and start at center this winter for Bill Frieder's 1982-83 University of Michigan Wolverine basketball team.

POINT AFTER

Howe's brilliance almost routine

By Al Zawacky

Clarkston High School graduate Steve Howe has been named to the National League All-Star squad.

STEVE HOWE, NO. 57 on the Los Angeles Dodgers, has lost the ability to surprise us around here.

Oh, Clarkstonites still feel an immense sense of pride everytime he notches another achievement in his belt, which is quite often. We all smiled and felt on-top-of-the-world last night when his face appeared on television and the announcer introduced him to the crowd along with names like Pete Rose, Gary Carter and Phil Niekro.

But surprise? Nope. It's an alien feeling when the subject of Howe comes up.

He has achieved so much in so short a time that we're all becoming a little laid back about the whole thing.

- All state in high school.
- All Big Ten in college.
- 1980 National League Rookie of the Year.
- 1981 World Series champion.
- 1982 All-Star.

Face it: This guy has us running out of praise and scurrying for new superlatives. He has not only proved he belongs in the major leagues—he is establishing himself as one of the best.

Case in point would be Paul Tungate, Howe's old high school coach, who became rather inarticulate when he was asked for a comment on Howe's All-Star selection.

In the past he had praised Howe's speed and control, his contributions to Clarkston's 1976 state title team, his confidence and natural talent.

So what's left?

"What more can I say about Steve Howe?" Tungate said. "There's not much more I can say. I'm running out of quotes."

He didn't have to say anything, really. Howe's talents speak for themselves. And without a word being spoken, you can tell that Tungate is a tremendously proud man to have coached him.

DODGER MANAGER TOMMY LASORDA, who managed the National League All-Stars this year, took some flack for some of his selections—but how could anyone quibble with the selection of Howe?

Particularly incensed with the picks were relief pitchers Gene Garber and Steve Bedrosian of the Braves. The fact that Howe is a relief pitcher for Lasorda's team may be the makings of a touchy situation, but Howe, quite simply belonged in Montreal last night. You don't have to be Tommy Lasorda to recognize his credentials.

Check the stats. At last report, Howe had a season record of 5-1, including seven saves and the best ERA on the Dodger staff at 1.44. That's a shade better than both Bedrosian and Garber's ERAs, by the way.

BUT WHERE TO from here? Other than shooting for a long career and continued general success, what big unfulfilled goals remain for Steve Howe? I recall talking to him in December of 1980

Couple share Florida vows

On June 5 at 4 p.m. in the Church of God in Homestead, Fla., Anita Louise North married Alc Robin Lee Schwartz.

Officiating their vows was the Rev. Westley Baker. Assisting Rev. Baker was Anita's grandfather Rev. Walter DeRossett of East St. Louis, Ill.

Best man was the groom's brother, Mark D. Schwartz. Maid of honor was the bride's friend Linda Hinden and the usher was Rodger North, the bride's brother.

Following the ceremony, a small reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Don and Billie North, in Homestead, Fla. Dinner for the wedding party and immediate family took place at the Red Lobster in South Miami.

The couple flew to Michigan June 7 and spent two weeks with the groom's parents, George and Cynthia Schwartz of Clarkston.

A reception was held June 19 for family and friends of the groom, welcoming the bride into the family. The couple returned to Florida June 21, where Robin is stationed on active duty at Homestead Air Force Base.

He is a 1980 Clarkston High School graduate. Anita is a salesperson at Zayres Department Store and a 1980 graduate of South Dade High School in Florida.

It's Sherm's 75th

There was a party at downtown Clarkston's Village Bakeshop recently as friends gathered to salute long-time Clarkston resident Sherm Lowery on his 75th birthday. Lowery's a fixture on Clarkston streets in the wintertime when he works plowing village walkways clear of snow. So one of his gifts will come in handy—a plastic helmet with a flashing light on top, sure to herald his arrival on winter mornings. Come December, it'll be "Gangway! Sherm's coming though!"

Dettore tosses no-hitter; Orioles triumph

By Al Zawacky

Tony Dettore has the batters baffled. Dettore, a 16-year-old pitcher in the Independence Parks and Recreation Pony League, tossed his first no-hitter of the season June 29 as the Orioles downed the Plaza Hawks 3-2.

The win over the Hawks lifted the Orioles to a 3-2 record on the season. Dettore also contributed to the triumph at the plate, racking up three hits, all of them singles.

Also leading the attack for the Orioles were teammates Jim Banfield with three singles; and Jeff Dufour, Bruce Hurren and Brian Harbaugh, each of whom collected a single and a double.

Through 17 innings so far this season, Dettore's earned run average is at rock bottom—0.00.

He has yet to allow a single earned run while walking only two and allowing just three hits in 17 innings worked.

In a previous start against the American Legion team, he hurled a three-hitter to lead the Orioles to a 2-0 triumph.

In another appearance, the ace righthander came on in relief and pitched hitless ball to preserve a victory.

An Independence Township resident, Dettore will be a junior at Clarkston High School this fall.

Tony Dettore

after his alma mater paid its tributes with "Steve Howe Night." He had just been named Rookie of the Year a month or so ago, and he listed winning the World Series and the Cy Young award as his next goals.

One year later, the Dodgers beat the Yankees and Howe got his World Series ring.

Nine months after that, and he's a member of the National League All-Star Team.

The Cy Young? A lot of great pitchers have never won it. It's the pinnacle achievement of the pitching profession, a tremendous accomplishment—and yet if Howe wins it some day, I already know how I'll react. I'll be very pleased and very happy for him.

But I won't be surprised.

Medical help for pets

by Ann Glenn

Medical emergencies, serious trauma or illness can be just as real for an animal as for a human.

I've had a week of handling six injured birds, a cat and a chinchilla. I'll outline a plan of action in emergencies.

Keep a cool head. If you can reach a veterinarian (there is always someone at the Oakland Veterinary emergency clinic in Pontiac), communicate concise, accurate information—how the animal was injured; what it consumed; when the incident occurred; his normal and current vital signs.

A basic course in CPR will help. Artificial respiration will restore breathing.

Examine the animal for vital signs—heartbeat rate, color (gums in dogs and cats should be pink and return to pink when pushed with you finger).

Examine the mouth for foreign substances, smell the breath for indication of poison, check feet between pads for cuts, cleanse wounds quickly with clear water, move extremities gently and feel for irregularities.

Speak calmly and quietly and move deliberately. If necessary, use gauze or a rag to make a muzzle; put it over the nose, under the chin and go around the neck and tie it behind the ears.

Determine bleeding: Arterial blood is bright red and it emerges in spurts, while deoxygenated venous blood is dark red and oozes.

Usually, a clean cloth and pressure is the best treatment. A tourniquet may be required, but there is risk in killing cells by cutting off circulation. Pressure points are located inside each limb—press to slow the blood flow between the heart and the wound.

Burns from heat, chemicals, electric shock and radiation can be superficial red or blistered and swollen.

Sunburn often occurs with long-haired dogs that have been clipped for the summer months.

Transporting can be difficult—a crate is best, but a stretcher can be made from a coat or a blanket held taut. Move the animal as gently and as little as possible.

Animals go into shock very rapidly. Signs of shock are a glassy-eyed appearance; subnormal temperature; rapid, weak pulse; slow capillary refill time (press the gums—if color doesn't return in two seconds, shock may be encroaching).

Lower the head to keep blood flowing to the brain and keep the animal warm. Very prompt treatment by a vet with cortosteroids can reverse shock.

A young puppy or a dog may ingest a toxic substance, and you can administer an antidote.

Five poisons and their antidotes are:

•Irritants—decaying or poison plants—dogs will usually vomit these.

•Narcotics—you need to know what the dog ingested and induce vomiting—ipecac works for dogs, too!

•Contact Poison—vomiting, burns, salivating, seizures—restrain the dog, apply mild soap, lather and rinse well.

•Pesticides—get the dog to vet immediately—take the pesticide container with you if possible.

•Acids, alkalis, petroleum products—for acid, rinse the mouth and give an antacid of two teaspoons per five pound of body weight. Alkalis—vinegar or lemon juice, mixed with water by a ratio of one to four parts. Do not induce vomiting; give 1-2 ounces mineral, olive or vegetable oil.

Emergency medications to have on hand include:

•Acetic acid .5 percent—counteracts alkaline substances in plants.

•Activated charcoal mixed with kaolin absorbs toxic substances.

•Apomorphine induces vomiting, it's available in pills and eye drops.

•Aspirin—aids in reducing pain and fever.

•Atrophine sulphate—controls salivation and vomiting by injection.

•Chlorine, hydrogen peroxide, alcohol—useful in cleaning wounds and killing harmful bacteria.

•Soap—liquid and bar to cleanse wounds and deactivate contact toxin.

•Sodium bicarbonate 1.5 percent solution—use on bites and stings, porcupine quills, and to detoxify external poisons.

I find the universal food for injured birds is hard-boiled egg. You can then identify the variety and research eating habits.

Birds eat much more than you would expect—they have high metabolic rates and require much food. People helping injured birds tend to underfeed them.

I also mix one half teaspoon honey into one half cup water the first day to keep blood sugar up.

Any questions? Give me a call at 625-2775.

Kids, boats and a whole lake to explore are a winning combination, as children in Independence Township Parks and Recreation's treasure clues planted around the shore lines of Crooked Lake. The day camp program is open to boys and girls ages 6-12.

Energy house

June 30 was the open house day at the "Approaching Zero Energy" home built by Cascadian Building Corporation in Independence Township's Deer Lake Subdivision. The home, utilizing Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation's new "Energy Performance Design System," includes the latest in energy-saving technology, including a geothermal heat exchange, a solar hot water heater, triple-glazed windows and heavy insulation. "We're projecting $550 a year for heating and cooling costs," says Bruce J. Keil, Owens-Corning construction specialist. That translates into an annual savings of about $400 over conventional forms of heating and cooling. Keil points out, and the savings will be even greater in the future in view of the fuel cost increases projected over the next decade. The home, located at 7027 Deerhill Drive and having 3,000 square feet of living space, will be used as a model. It is listing for $239,000.

The make-believe train trip for the Pre-School Story Time group makes a stop at the circus with two films: "Mole at the Carnival" and "Circus Baby."
The Story Time group meets at 4:30 p.m. on July 20 and at 11 a.m. on July 21.

A member of the Detroit Story League will be a guest at the Wednesday, July 21 meeting of the Summer Reading Club.

Stories will not be read, but will be told by a professional storyteller. To fully appreciate this unique program, it will be necessary for the room be as quiet as possible, and members and parents are being asked to keep this in mind.

Books will not be checked out until the end of the program. Movie for this date is "Incident at Hawk's Hill."

New books in the collection are "The Girl from Paris" by Joan Aiken; "Inside Weight Training for Women" by Doris Barrilleaux; "The Cinderella Complex" by Colette Dowling; "The Vow on the Heron" by Jean Plaidy; "E.T. The Extra-terrestrial" by William Kotzwinkle; and "Firefox" by Craig Thomas.

Included in the young adult section are "The Island Keeper" by Harry Mazer; "I'm still Me" by Betty Jean Lifton; and "Bogg's Brain" by Kin Platt.

Additions for children are "Great Moments in the Super Bowl" by Edward F. Dolan; "How to Bring up Your Pet Dog" by Kurt Unkelbach; "Wendy and the Bullies" by Nancy Robinson; "Guinea Pigs" by Fiona Henrie; and "Yours till Niagara Falls, Abby" by Jane O'Connor.

With a dual set of ears to hear the concert in the park, mom's lap proves the best place for relaxing and listening for this blond-haired lad. Sitting on blankets, lawn chairs, in cars along Depot Road, hundreds came and ate dinner and sipped wine while others just listened to the strains of 32 Pontiac musicians as they performed Disney theme pieces in the village park.

Dressed as Disney characters, kids competed in a best-costume contest. The Clarkston Village Business Association sponsored the competition and concert, offering prizes for the best outfit in keeping with the Disney theme.

The less daring donned Mickey Mouse ears to get into the spirit of things.

Lines form to sample 'Sweet Sue's' ice cream

Folks are lining up five deep outside Sweet Sue's, Clarkston's latest business—an ice cream store with everything from Stroh's cones to hotdogs. Open just two weeks, the Linengers, Sue and Dick, are enjoying a qualified success.

Doing business

"We didn't know it would be this successful when we decided to put it in," Sue said. "We own this building, and wanted to open something we felt the village could support, something it didn't have."

Inside, a vintage calico paper print covers the walls. Patron's sit on wicker ice-cream parlor chairs, a ceiling fan turns the air and everywhere tongues are going to work on ice-cream cones.

The menu boasts cones, sundaes, hotdogs, nachos, coffee, pop, and eventually should offer sandwiches, salads and soups, Sue said.

Sweet Sue's, on the corner of Main and Washington streets, is open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., seven days a week. Call 625-6211.

Two boys sit in the shade of Sweet Sue's stoop and tackle melting ice cream cones on a hot summer day. Owners of the village's newest business, Dick and Sue Linenger, were so anxious to set up shop they waived installation of the awning planned to adorn the front. The ice-cream store's proven to be a success in just two weeks of operation.

Business brief

New officers have been elected to one-year terms for the Business Association of Independence Township (BAIT), following the group's June 8 meeting.

New president is Betty Simmons of Pacesetter Bank; vice president is Conrad Bruce; secretary is Claudia Jakus of Clarkston Travel Bureau; and the new treasurer is Bud Grant, of State Farm Insurance.

Independence couple opens anti-smoking clinic

So, you want to quit smoking. Maybe you're tired of breaking the stillness of Clarkston's Main Street as you cough, out of breath from just walking between your car and place of business.

Are you disgusted because you can't play a simple game of catch with your daughter because your unable to catch your breath?

Are you tired of paying $1 a pack for cigarettes, sick of the smell, the holes burned in your clothes and the film that forms all over the car windshield?

For whatever reason you've decided to quit smoking, Independence Township residents Mary and Keith Conklin, both Clarkston Junior High teachers, are here to help.

In April the husband and wife team opened a Stop Smoking Center in Rochester, affiliated with over 80 other centers in the United States.

The program is based on behavior modification and aversion therapy which according to Mary, has been researched, tested and proven medically safe.

The program takes five consecutive days of one hour sessions with a full money-back guarantee. There are free weekly follow-up sessions, according to

Keith, a former smoker himself, say that most persons addicted to the smoking habit are unable to quit on their own. Statistics show that 85 percent of all smokers want to quit—but only 3 percent are successful without help.

The center boasts a 96 percent success rate. The Stop Smoking Center is located at 945 S. Rochester in Rochester. For more information phone 656-0166.

Racing data misses deadline, license to come

By Marilyn Trumper

With no adequate time to study sound data submitted by officials of the Waterford Hills Racing Association just hours before its July 6 meeting, the Independence Township Board unanimously voted to postpone discussion of a license extension.

Track activity legally ended the weekend of July 4 when a partial racing license expired.

The association can still use the track for two scheduled practices, but will not be able to use the track for racing the weekend of July 24 and 25 unless the board extends the permit.

The snag's been the township's wait for sound data collected by an audiologist, designed to offer alternatives to ease loud noise from racing cars.

At the meeting, racing association President James McIntosh apologized for handing in the late data, blaming the wait on clashing schedules.

Since April the board's been on top of track complaints, seeking to get sound levels and safety in compliance with ordinances. A partial license was designed to spur track officials into compliance.

The sound data is expected to outline a berm design that will ease noise.

Track neighbors who've long opposed noise and back-to-back weekend racing asked for copies of the sound report, and offered the board guarantees they would be back when the issue turns up at the next board meeting, scheduled for July 20, 7:30 p.m., Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.
