The race is on

Voters in the November general election can expect to see the results of the race for congress in Michigan's 6th District covered by national news. An indication of the importance of the race came Monday night when former President Gerald Ford made an appearance at a $100-a-ticket fund raiser at the Deer Lake Racquet Club on behalf of Republican Congressman James Dunn, who's seeking reelection. In the photo above, Ford and Dunn (behind Ford's left shoulder) are talking to well-wishers during the fund raiser. Dunn's opponent, Democrat Robert Carr was in town a week earlier, and he appeared at a fund raiser at the home of Independence Township Treasurer Frederick Ritter. Carr is in the photo below, standing at left, as he responds to questions during the "neighborhood" gathering. Clarkston News editor Kathy Greenfield comments on the two events in her column on Page 6 of this week's Clarkston News.

Cancellation: Aug. 13th concert

The Concert in the Park planned Friday, Aug. 13, has been canceled.

"I can't lift the load alone," said organizer Ivan Rouse, who was forced to cancel the event when the Clarkston Village Singers lost their director and were unable to appear.

The event was an effort to continue free concerts in the village park located on Depot Road, Rouse said. The concerts held there during the month of July were sponsored and paid for in a joint effort of the Clarkston Village Business Association and the Pontiac Federation of Musicians.

In August, Rouse attempted to keep the music in the park going for two more weeks by finding people willing to perform without charging a fee, and he helped organize the Aug. 6 concert.

While he regrets having to call off the concert, Rouse notes his appreciation of the previous events.

"I think things have been beautiful, and concert cancellations happen from time to time," he said.

Music lovers will have the opportunity to attend two more concerts this month sponsored by the Clarkston Conservatory of Music for which Rouse serves as director.

The musical events are planned on the last two

CHS's building program folds; gone this fall

By Al Zawacky

Clarkston Community School's four-year-old building trades program has been placed in mothballs for the 1982-83 school year.

Citing the sluggish real estate market and the problems it has created selling the completed houses built by the program, Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara recommended at Monday evening's board of education meeting that the program be dropped this fall.

"As of right now, there will be no building trades program this fall," Vaara said afterwards.

"I'm a strong advocate of the program, but in light of the money we have tied up in it now, I think it would be best for us to stop the program until the fall of 1983."

Vaara pointed out that the district has had difficulty selling the last two homes built by students in the program.

Building trades program director Dick Moscovic was the sole bidder for the 1980-81 house built on Waldon Road, which was purchased on a five-year land contract, and the sale of the recently completed 1981-82 house on Goldfinch has hit a snag.

In June, the board voted unanimously to accept the bid of $78,500 for the house from Independence Township residents Charles Robinson and his wife Betty Anderson. The agreement was made contingent on the selling of the couple's present home within 45 days.

That has proved impossible, bringing about the following agreement between the couple and the district: Robinson and Anderson will make a $15,000 down payment immediately, and pay $600 a month for 10 months.

The balance will be due in June of 1983, by which time the couple will hopefully have their present home sold. Failure to pay the balance will result in the forfeiture of the $15,000 down payment, Vaara said.

Still, the arrangement—combined with the land contract terms in the previous house—leaves the district with approximately $120,000 tied up in the two houses, Vaara said.

"Hopefully, by June of 1983 things will be picking up," he said.

Receiving the balance for the 1981-82 trades house in June of 1983 and starting up the program again in the September of the same year will put another house on the market in June 1984, "and American should be rolling by then," Vaara said.

Vaara added that program director Moscovic would be reassigned to an industrial arts classroom teaching position at Clarkston High School.

Moscovic, who started with the program at its birth in the 1978-79 school year, was unhappy to see it shelved.

"I'm very disappointed. I just felt we were getting stronger and better every year," he said.

The program, which enabled CHS students to earn classroom credit while learning practical building trade skills, has accounted for four homes all together, all of them in Independence Township.

"I understand that times are tough, but I'm concerned whether the program will come back," Moscovic said. "Once something is dropped, it's difficult to revive it."

Board readies to seek tax for garbage pickup

By Marilyn Trumper

The Solid Waste Task Force's interim report at the Aug. 3 meeting shook the foundation of the Independence Township Board, as a townshipwide tax levy for garbage pickup appears more and more the key to implementing the controversial county plan.

After lengthy discussion, the five-member task force was asked to draft an advisory ballot proposal that would indicate whether township residents are hot or cold to the idea of a special assessment or ad valorem tax to pay for community garbage pickup. The question would be on the November ballot.

To date, according to task force chairperson Edward Thomson, Independence Township has emerged unscathed in Oakland County's solid waste plan. It is not targeted for an open pit, collection site or incinerator, Thomson said, recommending the board approve the plan when approached by the county in the coming months.

In the county's proposed plan, garbage collection is the township's responsibility, with local communities forced via contract to dump all refuse at the county's central incinerator site. The communities would pay for the privilege of dumping at the only available site.

In turn the county would burn the refuse, creating steam and making electricity which would then be sold; hopefully to one day pay for the system.

Currently Independence Township is serviced by five individual garbage haulers making runs on different days of the week. Routes often overlap. Because trash collection is voluntary, residents dump in vacant fields and empty lots instead of paying for pickup, said Thomson.

tractors would have to competitively bid for the job. Treasurer Frederick Ritter expressed concern over abolition of the free-enterprise system.

"If we go with one contractor, the others are going to bite the dust," Ritter said. "Now I know enough about the small businessman to worry. For some of these guys this is their bread and butter and we'll be putting them out of work."

'If we go with one, the others are going to bite the dust.'

The task force is expected to return with the ballot proposal at the Aug. 17 meeting. Ballot questions for the November election must be filed by Sept. 14.

The township board is expected to discuss the issue at the Aug. 17 meeting that begins at 7:30 p.m. in Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

No-go concert

Fridays of the month, Aug. 20 and 27, at Sadows Auction Galleries, inside the Clarkston Mills Mall, 20 W. Washington, Clarkston.

They are both to begin at 7:30 p.m. The Aug. 20 concert features sonatas for cello and piano by James Willhelmsen and Richard Piipo. The Aug. 27 concert features the introduction of the Clarkston Trio with classic, romantic and modern music performed chamber-style. Joining Willhelmsen and Piipo is to be Kirk Toth on the violin.

Tickets for both concerts are for sale at Tierra Arts & Designs, 20 S. Main, Clarkston, and at Sadows. They are $5 for adults and $2 for students.

Independence keeps planner

Independence Township will stay with planning consultant Richard Carlisle, as he joins the Utica firm of Community Planning and Management, fired by the board last fall in a fee dispute after four years of service.

At the Aug. 3 meeting, board members voted 4-2 in favor of retaining Carlisle and breaking the contract with Carlisle's former firm, Ayres, Lewis, Norris and May of Ann Arbor.

Trustee Larence Kozma and Dale Stuart voted "no." Stuart favored the "vertical intergration" offered by the Ann Arbor firm and Kozma, left out of discussions with the firm's principals said, "I made it clear I wanted to be there when they were questioned to decide for myself. I feel I'm getting the interpretations of other people and I can't base a decision on that."

The specific contract between the township and the Utica planning firm is still on the drawing board.

Patterson, Kammer win at home

Headlee, Blanchard place second in their party races here

By Marilyn Trumper and Al Zawacky

Local voters bucked statewide trends in yesterday's primary balloting in the gubernatorial race by casting their votes for hometown candidates.

Across Michigan, Democrat James L. Blanchard and Republican Richard Headlee earned the right to square off in November for the governor's chair.

Locally, Independence Township's L. Brooks

Voter turnout low

Patterson (R) was "killing them at home," with 60.07 percent of the GOP votes cast in Independence and 57 percent in Springfield.

Springfield Township's Sen. Kerry Kammer (D) received 36.44 percent of the Springfield tally and 37.70 percent of the votes cast in Independence.

Unofficial tabulations from Independence Township Hall show that locally Patterson took the Republican party by a landslide with 1,616 votes, followed by Richard Headlee with 682, James H. Brickley with 340 and Jack Welborn with 52.

Springfield Republican tallies gave Patterson 464 votes, followed by Headlee 266, Brickley with 66 and Welborn with 18.

In the Democratic party, Sen. Kerry Kammer came in first in Independence with 477 votes, followed by James L. Blanchard with 438, Zolton Ferency with 120, William B. Fitzgerald with 100, David A. Plawecki with 66, Edward C. Pierce with 55 and John Safran with 9.

In Springfield's Democratic balloting, Kammer led the way with 207 votes, followed by Blanchard with 167, Ferency with 62, Fitzgerald with 58, Plawecki with 41, Pierce with 24, and Safran with 9.

Independence Township Clerk Christopher Rose described Patterson's sound victory as "...killing them at home," saying the 32 percent voter turnout was unexpectedly low.

"In the last primary we had 35 percent and I really expected this year that we would do better. I figured Patterson and Kammer would bring them out to the polls and that turnout would be around 40 percent," Rose said.

Voters reject summer tax ballot proposal

By Marilyn Trumper

The school district's bid to collect taxes twice a year took a solid beating in both Independence and Springfield townships and finds Clarkston Schools Superintendent Milford Mason now shooting for the state legislature to do the job.

Unofficial tabulations at Independence Township Hall showed 927 voters in favor and 1,435 opposed. The question was defeated in each of the township's 11 precincts and tied 118 to 118 in the Village of Clarkston.

In Springfield Township, the question lost 726 to 302 with only 29.38 percent of the voters in favor of the bi-annual tax and 70.62 percent against. A total of 1,028 of the electorate voted on the tax issue.

Reached at his home after the polls closed, Mason, who anticipated defeat, was quick to point out the question was "advisory" and that the final decision is still in the hands of the township boards.

"It was an advisory question with no inclination for an immediate result in action," Mason said. "If that's the vote without campaigning, I think that with explanation a majority of the people would have been in favor."

According to Mason, the schools will not be back pressuring the board to approve the bi-annual tax collection.

"We'll wait and see what the legislature is going to do after the November election," he said.

Tax rate drops

Clarkston Village taxpayers will enjoy an additional .3-mill savings in this year's general fund levy, according to Treasurer Artemus Pappas.

A last-minute dictum from the state to the county has meant a new millage total for the village. In May the council had voted to levy 4.7 mills to keep current levels of service. The new number is 4.3 mills, Pappas said.

One mill is $1 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

The drop will only affect those residents whose SEV (state equalized values) increased, "And there's no way to tell what kind of savings that will be," Pappas said, "because everybody's is different."

1982 summer taxes are due Aug. 31, unless the council extends the deadline to the third week in October, an annual tradition.

New face at school

Ginny Farmer begins her new post as adult education coordinator for the Clarkston Community Schools Community Education Department this week.

Her major area of responsibility will be adult high school completion, and her duties include those of advisor, counselor and recruiter.

For more information on adult high school completion, she may be reached at 625-0904 in her office at Clarkston High School from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Evening appointments will be available.

Hot air balloons floating quietly in the skies around Clarkston are commonplace sights, especially since balloon owners and operators like Clarence Catallo live here. Catallo's balloon was spotted recently and followed until it made a perfect landing in a field off Dartmouth Road near Oak Hill Road in Brandon Township. When full of hot air, the balloon stands seven-stories high. To find out what happens when it comes down, see Page 21.

Board wary of lawsuit

Partial licensing continues at Waterford Hills Race Track

By Marilyn Trumper

Debate over the Waterford Hills Race Track continues with action on several fronts, and the Independence Township Board has yet to extend officials there a license to race for the remainder of the season.

Instead, fearful the township would lose in court on its ordinance that limits sound to 55 decibels at residential property lines, an ordinance that's been termed "abusive and overly restrictive," Supervisor James B. Smith began calling for compromise between government and track officials and neighbors.

In a 4-1 vote at the Aug. 3 meeting, the board sanctioned track practices set for Aug. 14 and 15, with more talk of race licensing to take place at the Aug. 17 meeting, in time for the track's scheduled races Aug. 28 and 29.

In the interim, the board awaits a report from consulting engineer Richard Kolano, who continues to study and compare sound data collected by himself and an audiologist hired by the track.

On another front, Sundale Road resident Robert Hall has distributed a race track questionnaire to 60 neighbors. Among the 15 questions, Hall asked neighbors to specifically cite if a race has interfered with a party, etc.; if the public address system is audible inside the home or yard; if overnight camping inside the track is annoying and if flying car parts or tires have destroyed their property.

The completed questionnaires are being sent to the Independence Township Board and its sound consultant to give a first-hand indication of subdivision homeowner complaints.

Hall was visibly frustrated with the postponement on the licensing decision and asked Smith, "Should we appear next with our boxing gloves on? Is this the bargaining table?"

"If we don't bargain, the courts will," Smith said. "And no court will uphold an abusive or overly restrictive ordinance."

Trustee Larence Kozma, the lone dissenter in the vote, argued against the extension saying the track is "...already in violation of our sound ordinance by almost 100 percent." Trustee Daniel Travis, a life-member of the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club, abstained. Trustee William Vandermark was absent.

The issue is expected to be discussed at the Aug. 17 meeting of the Independence Township Board, to begin at 7:30 p.m. at 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

For summer pastime

Our two daughters thoroughly enjoyed the summer reading club at the Independence Township Library.

It was very well-organized and kept reading a fun thing to do.

In these days of top prices for almost everything, it's wonderful to find a free program and we want to say "thank you" and "well done."

Some party politics

by Kathy Greenfield

Political fund-raising functions rarely result in coverage by The Clarkston News, because they fall more in the cheerleading category of government—we're great, the other political party is rotten; hurray for us! Balanced news coverage of such an event is impossible.

But when former President Gerald Ford came to town Monday night, I made an exception. Ford participated wholeheartedly in the fund raiser at Deer Lake Racquet Club for Congressman James Dunn, a Republican running for re-election in the 6th District. During the redistricting following the 1980 Census, the redrawn lines of the 6th District now include Independence and Springfield townships as they cover an area from Lansing to Pontiac.

Dunn's opponent is Democrat Robert Carr. Carr represented the 6th District as the United States Representative from 1975-81. He lost the seat to Dunn in the 1980 election.

Because I planned to cover the fund raiser for Dunn, I also took my camera and note pad to a fund raiser for Carr held a week earlier at the home of Independence Township Treasurer Frederick Ritter.

The idea was to compare the two events. What I ended up with didn't measure up to my plan.

When a group of about 60 people meet a candidate in someone's home, it's altogether different. I took notes about the atmosphere: cans of beer surrounded by ice in an antique copper washtub, mosquitos swarming around everyone as they sat on the deck during a question-and-answer session. After a time of discreet and not-so-discreet swatting at the miserable buzzing insects, the people rushed in a swarm to get back in the house.

Before attending Carr's "neighborhood" gathering, I also talked with him in my office. That morning he had started off by shaking hands of an estimated 4,000 workers as they entered an automotive plant in Pontiac.

Carr presents the image of a Democrat's Democrat, following the old party line of being for the working people.

"The government plays by two sets of rules," he said. "There's a set of rules for the...wealthy and there's a set of rules for the rest of us."

Carr also called President Ronald Reagan's economic policy "trickle up" rather than trickle down. "People at the upper end of the economy are better off today," he said.

The interview turned to Ford's scheduled appearance, and Carr had an opinion on that, too.

"The entire nation is going to be looking at this district," he said, noting that national TV news stations and newspapers from across the United States had already contacted him about the upcoming November election. "They're (6th District voters) are going to provide a litmus test. They're going to say, 'This is the message the American people have for Ronald Reagan.'"

Ford's appearance in this area began to make sense.

So, I decided to attend the press conference with Ford at Pontiac-Oakland Airport during the afternoon before the fund raiser at Deer Lake Racquet Club and to take photographs at the event held later in the evening.

I knew there would be an aura of sophistication and importance around a visit by our 38th president.

TV cameras—four of them—were in place, recording the event. Ford appeared at the podium surrounded by curving, protective walls with an area roped off in front of him so no one could get too close. He answered questions by press members. The TV cameras rolled, and the press cameras clicked away during the entire time. It lasted some 15 minutes. At one point, he asked for questions and there were none.

As Independence Township Supervisor James B. Smith, who was there, pointed out later, the Detroit area press corps doesn't appear to be as tough as their Washington counterparts.

Ford supported President Reagan's economic policies, stating that the nation wouldn't be in such bad shape if it hadn't been for President Jimmy Carter and his counterparts. He noted that it takes time to get things back in shape.

Later, when he spoke at Deer Lake, his speech touched on the same theme—he pointed to the dropping inflation rate and interest rate, citing the improvements since Reagan took over.

Ford also gave his undivided support to Dunn. He called him a good congressman and urged the 225 people there to continue their support and to get their man re-elected.

According to organizers of the event, Ford was not paid to appear, but expenses were covered. The cost, they said was between $3,000 and $4,000, mostly for flight expenses. (Ford flew into the Pontiac-Oakland Airport on a private plane.) I never was able to count how many Secret Service people were there, but the group following Ford numbered over a dozen.

Although security was tight—those attending the fund raiser at Deer Lake had to give their Social Security numbers and birthdates so they could be checked—when Ford appeared, he was surrounded by cameras and people wanting to shake his hand.

I was also trying to take photos and my biggest feeling was one of being too short. "Terrific," I thought. "I can get a great photograph of the backs of people's heads and say somewhere in the mass is former President Ford."

One of the most interesting parts of the event was the obvious presence of members of the Secret Service. Some were highly visible because of the plastic wires that ran to speakers in their ears.

Others, like the two men standing next to the podium where Ford spoke, were also interesting. One man was well over six feet tall. His eyes never stopped moving, back and forth over the crowd, and he even turned his head to look out the windowed wall for trouble. "If I make a quick movement to get a pencil out of my camera bag, it's all over," I thought, feeling a bit of paranoia.

Dunn was by Ford's side during the entire time, but he had little chance to speak. He introduced Ford at the earlier press conference and at the fund raiser, noting that the date, Aug. 9, was the anniversary of Ford taking his oath of office as the 38th President of the United States eight years ago.

But it was impossible to get a clear picture of the candidate.

For that, the event would have to be the same type as the one Carr appeared at in Independence Township.

So there you have it—what I'll remember most about the fund raisers are the mosquitos and the Secret Service people.

The issues will have to be covered in a debate or in interviews found in newspapers as the November election draws nearer.

Jim's jottings

Break may be yours

By Jim Sherman

First of all, I understand auto wear out and maintenance. I don't understand recalls and repairs of wrong things. They've been making cars since the turn of the century and they ought to know how to do it right in the factory.

Too, with so much engineering and testing I can't understand how a part can be deficient, forcing a recall.

But, if there has to be a recall, the manufacturer should provide the dealers with cars and personnel to let them come out and pick up my car and leave me with one to drive.

The last time I priced a Buick it was over $14,000. For that money the car should be perfect. If not, it's their fault and it's criminal to cost the customer additional time and money (time is money) to take the car to the dealer.

Now, about repairs. My Phoenix with 38,000 miles needed some rejuvenation. It was hesitating in the starting blocks. Our friendly service station did his thing.

A couple days later the car started worse than before. Not only that, but it hesitated on the road until extremely warm.

I reported the symptoms to the service station. They said they would adjust it if I could leave it for a while. Since the trouble wasn't causing me to miss any golf tee times, I drove on.

Then one day the car stalled in an on-coming traffic lane on a very busy road.

Car troubles have plagued all drivers by the time they are 25, I'm sure. Probably just as many drivers have alternately cursed the factory, company president and repair man.

To be sure, I was reviewing my vocabulary of expletives all during my recent car hesitation days. About three weeks.

"I bring you the car to get it in running order and the next day it doesn't work! What kind of repairs do you call that?" I was thinking.

I really don't like to lose my temper and/or have confrontations, so when I took the car back I described the symptoms and left.

An hour later I stopped by. Yes, my car was all ready. What's the trouble? Your number 3 wire had a break in it!

Wow! Am I glad I stayed calm. It certainly isn't my friendly service station man's fault if a wire breaks. And, it certainly wasn't on the list I gave him when I asked for the rejuvenation.

The lesson I'm trying to convey is: Don't be quick to get hot and lose your cool. The break might be your own.

McCharacter hits radio

By Al Zawacky

Sunday, July 18. The date stands tall in the minds of Jim Radich and Marty McCarrick.

It was on that day that Marty's band, McCharacter made its debut on the airwaves as WWCK in Flint played "Whispers," a tune on McCharacter's first album, "Share the News."

"That," says Jim, "is a big first step. If you could see the stack of records and albums of people who have aspirations in this business and never make it that far, you'd know how big a step it is."

Jim, an Independence Township resident, is a professional music promoter currently working with the McCharacter band—Marty McCarrick, Dave Williams, Larry Eisenberg, Roger Stevenson and Ed Kubilus.

How he came upon the group was by an act of chance: He happened to see Marty's first album at a fair in Lake Orion about three weeks ago.

Promoter Jim Radich: "I like to hear new talent—it gives me a lift. And Marty has got his own, fresh style."

"When I first listened to the music, I knew it was consistent with the trends that are becoming popular today," Jim says.

"But at the same time, it's different. The lyrical content is really unique in the way Marty looks at life."

The hookup with Jim paid quick dividends in the form of the air time with WWCK. "Basically, my job as a promoter is just to take the talent on that album, get it out to the public, and let them evaluate it," he says.

"The group just complements each other so well. Marty's an artist, a true artist."

Jim got started in the promotional end of the business by being a long-time music lover and writer.

"I've been involved in music for a long time, and I also enjoyed writing music," he recalls. "But there comes a time when you have to question your ability. I was making more business contacts than I was making headway with my writing."

"This gives me an opportunity to stay in the field. I like to work with people and I like to hear new talent—it gives me a lift. And Marty has got his own, fresh style."

Marty, who lives in Orion Township, remembers with a smile his start in music at the age of 13.

"I had a paper route and saved 50 or 60 bucks and bought a snare drum and cymbals," he says. "It didn't take me long to realize that this was definitely for me."

He describes the music of McCharacter as "pop rock." The album is currently on sale at a few record and book stores in Oxford and Lake Orion, and regular air time and wider marketing of the album are goals for the future.

He credits producer Calvin Simon with much of his success so far.

"Calvin backed the album money-wise—I'm very fortunate to have him as a friend," Marty says. "He's a man with 10-11 gold albums himself, so he knows what he's doing."

But regardless if the gold albums, fame and fortune ever come, Marty insists there's a lot more to success than dollars.

"Money is not the bottom line with me, in all seriousness," he says. "To have the 100 original songs that I've spent 15 years working on, and to know that it was all worthwhile—to know that I'm capable—that's the real satisfaction in success."

"The money's nice, but that's not why I started writing music. I started because I think I have something to say."

PR pointer for Ford

by Jim Fitzgerald

If I were a member of the public relations firm that enhances Gerald Ford's public image by performing such vital functions as researching the correlation between political power and the color of his golf shirts, I would have a splendid suggestion for him. I would suggest Ford could score a lot of PR points with the general populace by doing something nice for Shirley Kincaid.

You don't need me to tell you Gerald Ford is the former congressman from Grand Rapids who, by being appointed vice-president, became wealthy enough to move to Palm Springs. But you've probably never heard of Shirley Kincaid, unless you work for Social Security in the Office of Disability Operations in Baltimore.

As the Reagan administration struggles valiantly to keep next year's deficit below $151 billion while still spending $173.3 billion on weapons, the sad stories of people like Shirley Kincaid are becoming more and more familiar to newspaper readers and TV watchers. The media, ever nasty, take a perverse pleasure in publicizing the bloodiest victims of Reaganomics: it's almost as much fun as making sport of "Bedtime for Bonzo."

ONE WAY the Reagan administration limits the deficit is by the cutting disability benefits of people deemed not as disabled as they claim. The deeming is done by the Office of Disability Operations which recently sent Mrs. Kincaid this message: "your hospital and medical insurance coverage under Medicare ends the last day of July 1982. Please destroy your health insurance card..."

Despite the documented protestations of her doctor and her therapist, Social Security decided Mrs. Kincaid, a 49-year-old resident of Lapeer, Mich., is healthy enough to work.

In a letter to Social Security, her doctor explained that because of serious spine problems, "Mrs. Kincaid is truly disabled and will not be able to find any useful work. She has been disabled for a long time, and I do not believe she would be able to have any rehabilitation potential."

Mrs. Kincaid's mental therapist told Social Security: "She is also potentially suicidal as the result of her chronic pain, and the further trauma of losing her Social Security disability at this time could precipitate a suicide... Mrs. Kincaid has always prided herself on her ability to work, and much of her current depression is related to her feeling of uselessness now that she is no longer able to work. I would strongly recommend the continuation of Mrs. Kincaid's disability payments."

The recommendation was ignored, and Shirley Kincaid lost a few dollars a week, probably in the interest of national defense. Some way must be found for taxpayers to afford $175.3 billion worth of weapons next year, or the Russians will surely take over New Jersey.

ANOTHER BILL taxpayers must pay, no matter how much the many Shirley Kincaids must suffer, is $3 million yearly to protect Gerald Ford. It costs more to guard Ford than other ex-presidents, such as Nixon and Carter, because Ford travels so much to play golf and sell speeches for thousands of dollars per spiel.

But how about this for brilliant public relations? Everyone knows Gerald Ford is a multimillionaire who can easily afford his own bodyguards if he thinks he needs them. So why doesn't he play just one golf game a year without a Secret Service shadow and designate the money saved to restoring Shirley Kincaid's disability payments?

An impressed populace would say: "Hey, that Jerry Ford isn't so dumb after all. He realized it is absolutely outrageous for the government to pay millions to guard a ham golfer while refusing to pay peanuts to keep a disabled person from committing suicide."

Also, Ford would be setting an excellent example for other wealthy ex-presidents. It is estimated the annual bill for guarding them and ex-first ladies is $27 million. Try to explain that to Shirley Kincaid whose government ordered her to destroy her health insurance card.

Renaissance Fest opens Aug. 21 at Colombiere

Practice thine olde English and prepareth ye for merriment—the Renaissance Festival at Colombiere Center in Springfield Township is approaching. While work on the rustic setups continued in the background, the search for talent to perform at the annual event was going on Saturday. Bagpipers piped, poets read their verses and dancers danced in auditions before the court of the King (Rory Rice), the Queen (Janet Cheff) and the Ladies in Waiting (Cynthia Foster and Phylis Counts.) Here, aspiring talents receive applications from the King's Jester, played by Paul Sheier. The festival, which will feature entertainment, food, fun and craftworks, will run for six consecutive weekends beginning Aug. 21.

Road paving plan gets big boost from township

By Marilyn Trumper

Residents of Sunshine Acres Subdivision, Pine Knob Trail and Pine Knob Lane could be driving on paved roads by the summer of 1983.

At the Aug. 17 meeting, the Independence Township Board committed itself to spending $111,125 in Community Development funds to cover 25 percent of the total $444,500 paving costs.

Subdivision residents, led by Karen and Milt Haines of Mary Sue Road, have committed themselves to a 10-year special assessment district to pick up the cost difference. The levy means approximately $1,117 to each property owner spread over the next decade.

Branded the "lesser affluent" area of Independence, the property is in Census Tract III in the southwest corner and has been targeted by the federal government to be the prime recipient of Community Development Block Grant funds.

Treasurer Frederick Ritter remained adamant that local government should support residents ready to commit to a costly special assessment, and insisted the board support the project by paying 25 percent.

"After all, that area is where the Community Development money is designed to go," Ritter said. "There are so few places in this township this money can be used, and it's rare when we can spend it and see something for our dollars."

After the meeting, Milt Haines was relieved that the over year-long battle had been won.

"I'm glad we got the funding. I was so afraid that a project elsewhere in the township would be chosen. It seems that something is always done for people on the other side of the township."

"Now we have to go back and ask our neighbors again. We already got over 60 percent to sign in favor of it, but that was months ago. The economy is still bad," he said.

To institute a special assessment district, the county requires that 51 percent of the front footage on the project be represented by property owners' signatures, with front footage key to user benefit.

If the plan is implemented, the county has tentatively scheduled construction for the spring of 1983.

Rev. Delaney celebrates 50th

By Marilyn Trumper

The Rev. Frederick J. Delaney recently celebrated 50 years in the priesthood at Our Lady of the Lakes, and hundreds whose lives he's touched for half a century gathered to say thanks.

At the front of the line was Nancy Bradley of Waterford Township.

She attended Our Lady of the Lakes grade school and high school, both founded by the priest. He performed the wedding ceremony for Nancy and her husband, and baptized their children.

The cycle began again when the Bradley kids began to walk the halls at the Lakes.

"My bother's a Maryknoll missionary. I know he was influenced by Father Delaney. Father Delaney influenced so many."

About that the 74-year-old priest, now retired and living in Marine City, is humble.

"I wouldn't want to be that proud that I would think I solely influenced someone's decision. I'm sure Almighty God had a great deal to do with it."

Delaney speaks rapidly and as he talks about Clarkston and his memories, it's almost as if he's driving down Main Street in a car with the buildings whizzing by. Without a struggle he remembers grocers long gone, and easily recites the names of people he's known, their children and grandchildren.

"Clarkston was a beautiful, beautiful little place. We used to call it the town that time forgot," he said.

Delaney was responsible for the development of St. Daniel's Catholic Church, originally a mission in 1961, now boasting a parish list totaling 800 families.

Waterford Township was a "cow town" when Delaney arrived in 1948. He was also responsible for founding St. Patrick's Catholic Church in Union Lake.

For half a century Delaney's sacrificed to help

Catholicism grow in Oakland County. He's worked long hard hours, begged for diocese funding, worked as pastor, priest and counselor. He's married men and women, baptized their children, given first communion and performed last rites.

He's inspired young men to enter the priesthood and young women to join the convent.

Two-family generations have come to know his work.

These days he enjoys Lake St. Clair and the peace of retirement.

"I wouldn't change it. I haven't a regret in the world. The years I've spent as a priest have been the most happy."

The rules are simple: You must be an amateur. Each person may enter each of the three categories once. The photos must have been taken in 1982. Entries may be in black-and-white or color. Only 5-by-7-inch prints will be considered. Be sure to include your name, address, age, phone number and the date and place the picture was taken on the back of the photo.

Guidelines and prizes in each category follow:

GENERAL CATEGORY

Cash prizes will be provided by The Clarkston News—$25 for first, $15 for second and $10 for third. The Clarkston Community Historical Society will provide five copies of their hardcover publication, "Heritage," for honorable mention awards.

ARCHITECTURAL

Judges will be looking for a photo of something that's typical of village architecture with artistic value.

Cash prizes, provided by the Clarkston Community Historical Society, are $25 for first and $15 for second plus copies of "Heritage." There will be two honorable mention awards of copies of "Heritage."

HISTORIC VALUE

This category seeks photos that will show how the village operates today, so it will be significant in the future.

The historical society is furnishing the cash prizes of $25 for first, $15 for second plus copies of "Heritage." There will be two honorable mention awards of copies of "Heritage."

All entries become the property of the Clarkston Community Historical Society to provide a sample of life in the village in 1982 to be enjoyed by future generations.

Photos of the winners will be printed in the fourth Clarkston News special section honoring Clarkston's sesquicentennial on Sept. 15.

Entries will also be on display during Crafts and Cider, the historical society's annual fund-raising event held in the Clarkston Village Park in September.

Thief escapes in get-away boat

Police are on the lookout for a thief or thieves who may have made their escape on a get-away boat Saturday night.

Friday, a pop-up camper and travel trailer parked on property off Marquoit Street in Springfield Township became the target of thieves, according to Oakland County Sheriff's Department reports.

The property, protected by a locked gate, is difficult to reach by land, leading police to speculate that a boat may have been used to gain access to the camper and trailer and to haul away the stolen items.

Included in the missing items are a portable television estimated to be worth $200; a boat battery worth an estimated $80; fishing reels worth an estimated $60; and assorted fishing rods, knives, a tackle box, lamps, sleeping bags and camping supplies of undetermined value.

According to police reports, entry was gained by breaking the glass and opening the door of the camper and prying open a small door lock on the camper.

Four Clarkston employes return

Four laid off Clarkston Community Schools employees will be back on the job in September.

At its Aug. 9 meeting, the Clarkston Board of Education unanimously approved the recall of teacher Debra Licata, teacher-supervisor Dorothy Neff, secretary Elaine Inglis and building aide Donna Montreuil.

Licata is being recalled to a half-time position teaching kindergarten at Andersonville Elementary. Her recall was prompted by a request for a one-year leave of absence by another teacher on the staff, according to Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara.

Neff is being recalled to the teaching and supervisory position she held in the 1981-82 school year at North Sashabaw and Pine Knob elementaries.

Inglis will assume the secretary duties at Clarkston Elementary, a position that opened when the secretary at the now closed South Sashabaw Elementary assumed the secretary position for the newly formed community education program rather than the Clarkston Elementary post.

Montreuil's recall was prompted by a retirement of another building aide, Vaara said.

Groups can sign up for Crafts & Cider

Civic or service groups interested in participating in the Clarkston Community Historical Society's Crafts & Cider Festival should apply now.

Schools' loan means $270,000 in interest costs

Clarkston Community Schools will pay an estimated $270,000 in interest to borrow operating money in anticipation of December property tax revenue, according to Stan Darling, district business manager.

The school district is currently accepting bids from lending institutions for $4.2 million in anticipation of property taxes collected annually at the end of the year.

The bids will be opened and a decision made at a special meeting of the board of education Aug. 16.

Darling estimated the district would probably pay an interest rate of 10 1/4 percent to borrow the funds.

That would translate into an estimated $270,000 in interest costs to the schools.

"Interest rates are falling, and it's hard to tell the exact rate we'll have to pay," Darling said. "But 10 1/4 percent is a good guess."

The terms of the loan will stipulate that the money be paid back in full by April 1, although the district's fiscal year doesn't end until June 30, Darling said.

"Taxes collected after April 1 are considered delinquent, and as far as the state municipal finance commission is concerned, delinquent taxes cannot be used (to pay off the loan)," Darling said.

Springfield youth struck by car

A 15-year-old Springfield Township boy was listed in stable condition Monday after being struck by a car on Sashabaw Road late Friday night.

According to reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, Jeff Allen Gidcumb was struck by an oncoming vehicle when he walked out from between some parked cars and attempted to cross Sashabaw Road near Clarkston Road.

The youth was transported by Riverside Ambulance to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital in Pontiac.

He was treated for minor scrapes and cuts and is being kept under extended observation for a possible cerebral concussion, according to a hospital spokesperson.

Dan Fife settles down to Wolfpack routine

By Al Zawacky

Dan Fife is quietly going about his duties as Clarkston High School's new varsity basketball coach these days.

The controversy that revolved around his hiring four months ago is all but over. Only a few embers still glow from the firing of former Coach Gary Nustad at the end of last season.

Still, the situation has had some effect on the way Fife approaches his job.

'There have been so many negative things said about me recently...'

"I'll probably be a lot more nervous about what I say (to reporters) this year than next year," Fife says. "There have been so many negative things said about me recently—and I take everything that people write and say to heart."

Putting distance between himself and the controversy, Fife is upset at versions that portray him as the "bad guy" in the incident.

"I'm hoping that when the season starts, all the small talk in town will come to a close," he says.

That will probably be the case, for two reasons: Number one, the 1982-83 Wolfpack has been blessed with abundant talent; and two, Fife has the coaching ability to develop that talent to the fullest.

That combination is expected to put a lot of W's on Wolfpack fans' calendars next winter.

"I expect to have good season, a winning season" Fife says. "I put a lot of pressure on myself to perform, and I'm going to be demanding of the players. That's the way I've always been."

The Wolves recently wrapped up summer scrimmages with Flint Central, Flint Northern, Flint Northwestern and Flint Beacher, and Fife says he's impressed with his team's talent and ability.

"We did OK at Northern, but we got chewed up a lot," he says. "We're tall, but our foot speed is not as good as it should be."

"Basically, what we did this summer was work on our man-to-man defense—we didn't play a zone all

New Clarkston High School varsity basketball coach Dan Fife has quickly established a friendly rapport with his players. But his teams will display a no-nonsense, hard-work approach to the game, he says.

summer. Other than that it's hard to say what we accomplished other than the players had a opportunity to get to know me as a person."

In addition to key returning players Ray Kubani, Mike McCormick, Craig Kulaszewski, Mike Dearborn, Rick Williams and Chris Bruce, Fife has picked up the services of Dave Jokisch, whose brother Paul was an All-State athlete last year at Birmingham Brother Rice.

The Jokisch family moved to Independence Township a few months ago and Dave will start at Clarkston High School as a junior this fall.

"There's no question he can help us at forward or at center," Fife says of the 6-foot-5 Jokisch. "He's a good ball handler for a guy his size and he plays the game aggressively. He's going to put a lot of heat on our returning seniors."

Another possible new face on the varsity is

"I wouldn't keep him up there (with the varsity) unless I thought he was going to be contributing," Fife says. "Erik has a lot of ability—he just has to develop the confidence to play with kids who are older than he is."

If there's one thing Fife feels he and the Wolves must work on, it's that intangible known as intensity—both on offense and defense.

The Wolves will be a relentless, tenacious group of ballplayers at both ends of the court this winter, Fife promises.

"From what I've seen in high school situations, it appears as though a lot of teams will work hard on offense, and rest on defense," he says.

"What I expect is for us to work hard on defense, and if we do that, the offense will come."

Adray's ends Herk's state title hopes, 11-5

By Al Zawacky

Herk's Auto Supply's hopes for a state title came to an end Monday afternoon in Dearborn.

Having won the Independence Parks and Recreation Midget league playoffs and fresh from a state playoff triumph over a Pontiac Midget team, the boys of Herk's Auto Supplies finally met their match in a Dearborn Midget squad sponsored by Adray Appliances.

Playoff Wrap Ups

Adray's pulled out a 11-5 decision, but not before Herk's made a run for it in the seventh and final inning.

"We had the bases loaded twice and had a shot at them," said Larry Beamer, who along with Eric Reickel co-coached Herk's to a final overall record of 17-3.

"But things just didn't work out. Still, it was a great season, and we had a great group of kids."

Danny Lewis and Mike Ender had big days at the plate, Lewis going two-for-two including a triple, while Ender had two hits and drove in a run.

Mike Walters, Rick Reickel and Brian Galley accounted for the other Herk's hits.

On Aug. 3, Herk's defeated a Pontiac Midget team to qualify for play in Dearborn. The game proved to be a thriller, with Herk's scoring three times in the final inning to pull out a 5-4 victory.

Rob Figa's bases-loaded single proved to be the difference, as Figa's base-hit ball bounced by the centerfielder, allowing Herk's to clear the bases. Walters and Jon Miller scored ahead of Rob Ronk, who crossed the plate with the winning run.

Even the loss a week later to Adray's couldn't tarnish an excellent season or take away from the thrill of just being there in Dearborn.

Dearborn's pre-game festivities had all the trappings of a contest in Tiger Stadium—the players were introduced over the PA, the game was televised on the city's cable TV channel and a lot of fans filled the stands, Beamer said.

"The kids had a ball, and we really appreciated all the people from Clarkston who drove all that way to see the game," Beamer said.

Errors prove costly as Trim's is bounced in Pony playoffs

By Al Zawacky

First the good news: David Ladd and Todd Olsen both had a hit, and pitcher Bob Saiz put in a credible performance on the mound.

Now the bad news: Five Trim's errors and a final score of Pontiac 7, Trim's 1.

During the regular season in the Independence Parks and Recreation Pony league, Trim's posted an undefeated record—but the early exit in the state playoffs followed, as the team fell to a Pontiac Pony squad 7-1 in Pontiac.

"Errors are what hurt us," said Coach Bill Cox, pointing out that starting pitcher Saiz allowed just three hits and struck out six.

"The boys seemed a little tight going into the game—it was just one of those things."

Pontiac was in control from the very outset, scoring three times in the first inning and adding a single tally in the third.

Trim's made it 4-1 in the fourth on three walks and a wild pitch, but the host team came back with three unanswered runs in the sixth to end Trim's hopes of a state title.

Still, with a first-place trophy, league playoff championship and final mark of 13-1-1, Cox couldn't find much fault with the season.

"We had a good season," he said.

"It's a 15- and 16-year-old league, and we only have two 16-year-olds. If we can keep these guys together, we're going to be strong again next year."

Surprising Panthers take first in Pee Wee

By Al Zawacky

Coach Connie Hawks didn't expect it, but she's certainly glad it happened.

Her Nutri Foods Panthers finished on top of the Independence Parks and Recreation Pee Wee league this summer with an 11-1 record, tied with Oak Management.

"I never thought we'd finish first," she says, citing the team's ordinary record the previous summer.

"They were just really a good group of boys. They listened and did what they were told to do."

The final batting Panther batting averages are certainly first-place material. Leading the pack was first and third baseman Jason Randolph, who hit at a 25-for-29 clip—an average of .862.

After perfect season

Harvey falls to playoff jinx

By Al Zawacky

It must be some kind of playoff jinx.

After posting undefeated regular season records in the Independence Parks and Recreation Midget league over the last two years, Harvey Electric wound up on the short end in the playoffs both times.

"I'm not really disappointed," said coach Dave Larkin after his team succumbed to Herk's Auto Supply in the playoff finals. "You can't feel bad when you finish 12-0 (in the regular season)."

A win against Herk's would have netted Harvey Electric a playoff championship and a berth in the state playoffs. "You always would like to keep on going, but the season has got to end somewhere," Larkin said.

Eddie Adkins was one of the big reasons Harvey Electric went as far as they did. As a pitcher, the southpaw struck out 61 batters in 42 innings while walking only 10 and permitting just nine earned runs. His final earned run average stood at 1.50.

With the bat, Adkins was equally effective, racking up the best average on the team at .614.

As their league's representative in the state playoffs, Herk's was permitted to add one player to its roster from one of the other teams in the league. Adkins, to nobody's surprise, was Herk's choice.

Harvey Electric's other top batting averages belonged to Kevin Pitcher at .555, Scott Harvey at .533, John Stapleton at .394 and Tom Larkin at .300.

Not far behind were John King at .852, Andy DeLoney at .815 and Danny White at .806. Second baseman and pitcher Dale Hawks led the list of five .700 or better hitters at .767, followed by Joel Lowl at .757, B.J. DeLoney at .750, Scott Weaver at .714 and Chris Edwards at .706.

Sporting .600-plus and .500-plus batting averages were Freddie Hehl at .697, Todd McLaughlin at .641, Matt Thibert at .594, Kevin Kildal at .571 and Brad Stricklin at .556.

The Panthers collected five home runs in the season, three of them authored by shortstop and third baseman John King.

B.J. DeLoney and Freddie Hehl accounted for the other circuit clouts. Hehl's coming in the last game of the season. DeLoney also had two triples during the campaign.

Throwing the ball to the hitters this season was Assistant Coach Gail McLaughlin, while Dale Hawks and Todd McLaughlin fielded the pitching position.

After five-year term in state, scout exec takes Arizona post

Leaving the Clarkston area won't be easy, but Clinton Valley Scout Executive E. Earl "Sonny" Hays is moving on to take the position of Scout Executive of the Theodore Roosevelt Council, Phoenix, Ariz.

"It's one of the top posts in Boy Scouts of America, which is my profession and my career," Hays said. "And, of course, I'm looking forward to it."

As Hays says goodbye to his job and his home on Chickadee Lane, he talks about the fond memories he and his wife Betty will take along.

Hays: He's moving on.

"Clarkston has a special charm to it. It's just been a great area in which to live and work," he said. "The five years in Michigan have been marvelous, very special."

Before he leaves in September, plans are to dedicate the new administration headquarters for the Clinton Valley Council presently under construction on County Center Drive and Telegraph Road in Pontiac.

Hays notes that a number of people in the Clarkston area are very active in scouting and the new administration headquarters will be named after a Clarkston resident—the Harold E. Fox Service Center.

Since Hays' arrival in 1977 to take over the helm of the Clinton Valley Council, the organization has experienced continued growth and has been the foremost council in the nation in the expansion of the Exploring teenage co-educational youth program and has made major strides in the areas of Handicap Scouting, inner city programs and the Hispanic communities.

The Clinton Valley Council serves over 21,000 scouts. In his new post in Arizona, Hays will administer a budget of $1.3 million for the Theodore Roosevelt Council which serves 27,500 youth members.

They'll fence it in

A fence is going up around Independence Township's new Maybee Road Park.

At the Aug. 3 meeting, board members voted to spend $22,000 for fencing the 15-acre site, with completion targeted for Sept. 1.

Timothy Doyle, director of the parks and recreation department, was pleased with the progress.

"It feels good to finally get going on that," he said. "People are finally going to know they have a park out there. We've been cutting the grass and cleaning all summer, but now they'll really know."

Financing for the fencing will come from Community Development funds.

After years of negotiations, the Maybee Road Park was finally purchased last year, and is ultimately targeted for ball diamonds and a soccer field.

Miss National Pre-Teen Pageant contestants

Nancy Cross: Going for the title

Nancy Cross, 10, a fifth-grader at Bailey Lake Elementary, is practicing the song "Ben" for her talent in the upcoming Miss Michigan Pre-Teen Pageant. Summing up her feelings in one word, Nancy smiles and says, "Scared."

By Marilyn Trumper

It won't be long before all the folks up and down Independence Township's Foster Road know the name Nancy Cross.

The 10-year-old fifth-grader at Bailey Lake Elementary is a finalist in the 1982 Miss Michigan National Pre-Teen Pageant to be held September 10 and 11 in Grand Rapids.

Nancy will compete against hundreds of other girls from around the state, including her own Independence Township, for the title of Miss Michigan Pre-Teen.

The winner goes on to the national competition. The state winner receives a cash scholarship, crown, banner and round trip flight to the national competition.

"I'm scared," she whispers. "But, I thought it would be a fun thing to do, a way to meet new people and to do my talent—one of the things I do best."

Nancy's long, dark brown hair shines and her eyes sparkle as she talks about her talent.

"I'm going to sing 'Ben,'" she says, laughing when asked if that isn't a song about a rat?

"My pet hamster Ben was going to be a part of the act—but he died. So, I decided to sing the song anyway."

Nancy's a member of Clarkston United Methodist Church's choir, so she's an old hand at public singing.

"No, I've never done a song solo before. I'm kind of nervous about that."

In addition to music, Nancy enjoys figure skating, roller skating, baseball and reading, and wishes aloud the pageant could provide an ice arena so she could do what she does best—figure skate.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David C. Cross.

Elise Eidam: Competing to win

By Marilyn Trumper

Erika Eidam says that when daughter Elise hosts a pajama party, the 12-year-old and her friends have mock beauty pageants where they "...parade around and have a judge and a winner."

This interest spurred Erika to enter Elise in the Miss National Pre-Teen Pageant, affiliated with the Miss National Teen-Ager Pageant, now in its 11th year.

The blond, blue-eyed seventh-grader at Sashabaw Junior High is a Michigan finalist, and will compete for the state title against hundreds of girls this September in Grand Rapids.

"Ohhhh," Elise giggles. "I'm excited. And nervous. And scared."

From the other side of the patio picnic table, her sister 9-year-old Gretchen, just as blond and blue-eyed, watches all the goings-on and says, "Remember Elise, you didn't want to do it at first."

Elise nods.

"No, I didn't. But after they sent all the letters I got more and more interested."

All contestants will be judged on poise, personality, talent, the interview and appearance.

For her talent, Elise plans to perform Beethoven's "Für Elise," made famous in a Highland Appliance commercial.

In that commercial an anxious baseball player sits before the keyboard and uses a reel-to-reel tape to record his music lesson.

Clicking on the recorder, the boy escapes out the window and across the field, bat in hand. While his mom none-the-wiser, is talking on the phone and listening to the music.

"I don't think I could get away with that," Elise says, giggling again.

The Beethoven piece is a favorite for it bears Elise's name, and won high marks with her piano instructor this past winter.

"I practiced it about an hour every day. There's this one part that's really, really hard for me."

In addition to the piano, Elise plays the saxophone and enjoys singing, dancing, tennis, snow skiing and swimming.

She is the daughter of Walter and Erika Eidam of Wah-ta-wah Road, Independence Township.

Twelve-year-old Elise Eidam enjoys the shade of her family's backyard patio on Wah-ta-wah Road, Independence Township. The Sashabaw Junior High School seventh-grader is gearing up to compete in October as a finalist in the Miss Michigan National Pre-Teen Pageant.

Teens' designs to adorn Lion lapels

By Marilyn Trumper

In the middle of summer with sun and fun on the brain, neither Jennifer Trester or Judy Guite thought any more about the industrial art assignment they did two months ago at Clarkston High School.

Jennifer Trester of Tuscarora Road, Independence Township, took first prize, a $75 savings bond for her lion design in a competition sponsored by the Clarkston Lions Club. Ultimately the roly-poly lion will be transferred to a lapel pin and traded at the group's international convention.

Eighteen-year-old Judy Guite of Fawn Valley Circle, Independence Township, took second place for her lapel pin design and won $50. Clarkston Lions Club Treasurer D'Arcy Gonzales termed the three-panel pen and ink drawing "unique" and said it had real "trade appeal."

Twenty-three students designed a logo for the Clarkston Lions Club lapel pin, competing for the prize.

That was in early June. So it came as "quite a surprise" to 16-year-old Jennifer when she slid open an envelope two weeks ago and found she'd won first place: A $75 savings bond.

Judy, 18, who took second place and won a $50 savings bond, said she felt the same way.

"I forgot all about it, even what the design looked like. So I was really surprised to find I'd won."

"I got the idea (for the design) from that red Clarkston historical book to use Main Street homes. I like Main Street. It's unique."

While Judy's design is sophisticated, Jennifer opted for the comical and captured a roly-poly cartoon lion on its back waving a Clarkston Lions Club banner.

"That idea just came to me when I was sketching. I just kept working and working with different ideas, tearing them up and trying again and that was the finished product."

"I was really excited to find I'd won. Really amazed. I'm quite happy and still in shock."

D'Arcy Gonzales, past president and current treasurer for the Clarkston Lions Club, said the judging was tough and the competition stiff.

"We wanted something we know would have 'trading appeal,' something with Clarkston on it, something that would look good on a pin. We selected Jennifer's for its cuteness."

"From an artist's point of view, we thought the Main Street scene was good because you could read so much into it. It was really unique. The detail was so good."

When the designs are transferred to a lapel pins, and traded at the International Lions' Convention, they could wind up decorating the coat of an Irishman in Dublin; an Englishman as he walks the moors; and in Paris, on a Frenchman's coat as he picnics along the Seine.

Clarkston will be known worldwide.

SECTION TWO

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed., Aug. 11, 1982 21

Case of the shrinking balloon

When full of hot air, the giant balloon is a magnificent splash of color in the sky. To solve the mystery of what happens to the seven-story dome of cloth after it lands, we hung around to take photos. Beginning in the upper left corner, the air begins to leave the giant balloon, and the characters on its sides shrink and produce wrinkles. In the middle photo, balloon crew chief Don Boron of Birmingham works to push the air out of the balloon. Then, at right, the fabric is stuffed into an amazingly small bag by (from left) Boron, Kara Catallo whose father piloted the balloon, and two of the riders, Vi Smolek and Sarah Paalman.

Eric Schnabel Colorado bound

Goalie, 16, to join U.S. Olympic hockey clinic

By Al Zawacky

No one was more surprised by the news than Eric Schnabel himself.

That was a month or so ago when his dad, Stan Schnabel, told the 16-year-old hockey player that he'd been invited to participate in the U.S. Olympic Hockey Team clinic in Colorado Springs, Colo.

An invitation to the clinic is the first step on a long road that could lead someday to a spot on the U.S. Olympic team roster.

"My dad just asked me, 'How you like to go to Colorado?'" recalls Eric, who has been a goaltender since he was seven years old. "I almost hit the roof. I couldn't believe it."

Selections for the camp are made on the recommendation of a player's coach. Eric played last winter with the Flint Icelanders Midget AA team and is currently playing summer hockey in Bloomfield to tone up for the upcoming trip to Colorado.

ting hurt."

Eric says he has aspirations of playing college hockey somewhere in Michigan after he graduates from Clarkston High School next year. But in the meantime, his thoughts are focused westward—on Colorado Springs.

"I'm just going to do my best and have a good time," he says.

'I'm just going to do my best and have a good time.'

The clinic, which will run from Aug. 15-21, is just one in a series of talent searches for the team that will represent the USA at the winter games in 1984.

"It's kind of a tryout for the tryouts," Eric says. "If you impress somebody there, you're invited to the next tryout."

Despite the inherent hazards of the position he plays, Eric says he enjoys playing hockey.

"When I first started nine years ago, I remember the coach just came in and said he needed somebody to play goal, so I said I would," he says.

"My mom was against the idea at first," he grins, "but I got to like it."

"The worst injury I ever had was about two years ago. I was playing out in Grosse Pointe, and took a shot just above the eye."

He points to the scar.

"I wound up with nine stitches. It was swollen at first and a little hard to see out of. I was playing again five days later."

After that close call with a serious eye injury, Eric switched from a fiberglass mask to the metal wire "cage," reputed to offer better protection from slap shots and high sticks.

"What I like about playing net is when the play is coming down my way, I know I'm the last guy there to stop it."

"The only thing that bothers me about it is that I can't do anything on offense. I never worry about get-

Goaltender Eric Schnabel: He's looking forward to participating in the tryout at the United States Olympic Hockey Team's training site in Colorado Springs this month.

Her 'Sweet Cherry Soda' finds cookbook fame

By Al Zawacky

A few years ago, Helen Austin just happened to have a few odds and ends on hand in her kitchen.

Experimenting a bit, she whipped together a mixture of fresh sweet cherries, sugar, ice cream and carbonated pop.

It was the birth of a recipe that was destined to find a place in the Farm Wife News, a national monthly magazine for rural women.

Mrs. Austin submitted her recipe for "Sweet Cherry Soda" to Farm Wife News' cherry recipe contest and it proved to be one of the top 125 entries chosen for the magazine's "Cherry Delights" cookbook.

"Almost every month, they'll pick a topic and ask for readers to send in recipes," explains Mrs. Austin, a Springfield Township resident. "They test them and publish the ones they think are best."

She was a little surprised to find her Cherry Soda recipe on the list.

"It's real simple—I was just fussing in the kitchen one day and used some things I had around. And everybody loved the drink," she says.

"I sent in some other real complicated recipes, but this was the one they liked."

The Cherry Delights cookbook leaves no stone turned in the realm of cherry cookery. There are cherry pies, tarts, squares, bars, cobblers and crunches; cherry cakes, muffins, breads, syrups, jams, relishes, salads and even cherry puddings and fruit soups.

Copies of the cookbook can be obtained by writing Country Store, P.O. Box 572, Dept. J, Milwaukee, Wis. 53201. The cost is $3.95, plus 75 cents for postage and handling.

SWEET CHERRY SODA

1½ c sweet pitted cherries
 ½ c sugar
 vanilla ice cream
 cherry flavored carbonated beverage

Chill two 12 oz. glasses. Combine cherries and sugar in blender; add large scoop of ice cream. Blend well; pour mixture into glasses and fill with carbonated cherry beverage.

Seated in her country kitchen, Helen Austin holds a copy of the "Cherry Delights" cookbook from Farm Wife News, which includes her own recipe for Sweet Cherry Soda.

25th anniversary

The guests numbered about 100 at a surprise party celebrating the silver wedding anniversary of Jim and Pat Freitag. Wed on July 6, 1957 in Toledo, Ohio, the Freitag's have lived in Independence Township on Transparent Drive about 15 years. Their children planned the party held July 25 in the couple's backyard. On hand to celebrate with their parents were Diane, Doreen, Danny, Doris and Darlene. Their sixth child, Debbie, was unable to attend, but she phoned her congratulations from Hawaii. The Freitag's have five grandchildren.

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Seth Cummings of Sashabaw Road, Independence Township, announce the engagement of their daughter Sharon Lynn to Michael John Peter Klein, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Klein of St. Clair Shores. A 1979 Clarkston High School graduate, the bride-elect is presently attending Oakland University, Rochester, where she is a senior music major. She is employed by Sentry Insurance Co. and gives private music lessons. Her fiancé is a graduate of Wayne State University, Detroit. A Certified Public Accountant, he is employed by Harry M. Guard hosts road rally fundraiser

The adventure of a road rally is the latest fundraising effort of the Clarkston Winter Guard.

It's planned Friday, Sept. 17, at 7:30 p.m. and reservations must be made by Sept. 6. The donation is $20 a couple.

The rally will feature a party at the finish line with a light meal, cash prizes, live music and dancing. The meeting place is to be announced.

The winter guard is a group of Clarkston High School students who march with flags and wooden rifles. The funds for their travels to compete with other high school color guards are raised entirely by the group.

For more information, call Eunice Mandilk at 625-8793, Linda Little at 625-9214 or Connie Farmer at 623-1138.

Couple wed in double-ring ceremony

Christina Marie Smart and Michael Joseph Smith were wed in a candlelight, double-ring nuptial mass June 26 at Colombiere Sacred Heart Chapel in Springfield Township.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Smart

The bride is the daughter of Bill and Dolores Smart of Clinton Shore Drive, Independence Township. A Clarkston High School and Oakland University, Rochester, graduate, she is employed as a

Her husband is the son of Truman and Mary Ann Smith of White Lake Township. A General Motors Institute student, he is employed by General Motors Corp., Truck & Coach Division.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown she designed which was made by her mother. Of lace and chiffon over satin fabric, the gown had bishop sleeves and a cathedral-length train scattered with pearls and iridescent sequins.

The bride designed and made her cathedral-length, silk illusion veil, held in place by a Juliette cap.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Jean Marie Smart of Independence Township. She wore a gown of lilac and blue flower-printed chiffon.

Bridesmaids were Laura Hooyer, Maureen Smith and Theresa Smith.

Serving as flower girl was Carissa, the daughter of the bride's brother Mike Smart and his wife Jeanette of Wyandotte. She wore a miniature version of the bride's dress and carried violets in a basket.

Best man was Tim Moery. Groomsmen were Lorán Brooks, Tim Reed and Gary Stroshein.

The 200 wedding guests celebrated with dinner at Spring Lake Country Club, Independence Township.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Michael Smith honeymooned in Traverse City. They are residing in Waterford.

What would an Oakland County 4-H Youth Fair be without kids and amusement rides? There were plenty of both on hand last week as Springfield Township hosted the annual 4-H fair at Springfield Oaks County Park. Food, entertainment, rides, livestock shows and youth project displays were the rule at the fair, which wrapped up on Saturday with a Championship Class horse contest and a rodeo.

The action is frenzied and fearsome as rodeo riders hang on for dear life as the bucking broncos try to rid themselves of an unwanted passenger.

Old Glory leads the way in the opening ceremonies at the start of Friday's rodeo.

What's new in '82?

Every year there's an adventure or two awaiting youngsters returning to school—new teachers, classmates and, some years, a different building. One school in the Clarkston district that will change dramatically is North Sashabaw Elementary. Formerly just housing kindergartners and fourth- through sixth-graders, the school will now serve all seven elementary grades. Our cover photo symbolizes summertime marching on with two Clarkston school youngsters riding toward September and the beginning of school. On their bikes are Bryan Momany who will begin seventh grade this year at Sashabaw Junior High School and Nathan Griffith, who will be a new fifth-grader at North Sashabaw. They lead the way into our special back-to-school section devoted to the theme of "What's New" in the Clarkston school district.

Clarkston Community Learning Center

District's newest program is ready to roll

By Kathy Greenfield

The smell of fresh paint provides the first clue that renovation is going on inside the former South Sashabaw Elementary School building.

Closed at the end of the school year in June, the building will reopen in September as the new Clarkston Community Learning Center.

And before long, the building will be a hub of activity as it serves the needs of the community, says Kathleen O'Donnell, the director of community education for Clarkston schools.

"It's a school closed we're going to open up and give to the people," she says, summing up the plan.

Here's what she has in mind: The bustling building will be busy from morning until 10 or so at night six days a week, and on Sundays when groups want to use it. There'll be a volunteer at the front door to greet people coming into the center. The walls will sport work of local artists, depicting life in the Clarkston area. In addition to classes of all types, there'll be cultural activities like concerts and plays, as well as birthday parties, wedding receptions and meetings. The possibilities, she says, are endless.

While adult education and a smattering of other types of classes have existed in the past, community education with such broad purpose is brand new in the Clarkston area.

O'Donnell was hired in January. She's worked putting the program together since then.

At $350,000 her budget is impressive, but perhaps misleading, for it covers all sorts of educational and recreational opportunities with classes that will meet not only at the new learning center, but also at Clarkston High School, the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center and Clarkston Junior High School and could eventually meet in every school building in the district.

She's aware of the criticism by some that followed her hiring in a time when the district was cutting programs for lack of money.

But, she says, the program's goal of being self-sufficient should be met within one year, and she adds, "If we're fortunate we'll even generate revenue for the district."

And while she's excited about having a community learning center—"It just doesn't happen that you come into a community and get a building right away"—she's aware that those living in the Sashabaw area still retain some unhappy feelings about the closing of the elementary school building that used to house first-through third-graders.

"It's important for the community to understand that there were four people who really presented a strong case for calling (the building) the Sashabaw Community Learning Center," she said, referring to the decision by the majority of the 19-member community education advisory committee to name it the Clarkston Community Learning Center.

The final decision was made so the building's location would be identifiable for people coming in from other areas who wanted to take classes. While they know the name Clarkston, Sashabaw is a location generally only known by local residents.

The brochure which lists all the offerings of the Clarkston Community Education program is due to be mailed to every resident of the Clarkston school district at the end of August.

Programs to be offered in the new learning center include the following:

LATCHKEY PROGRAM

For a small fee, childcare for first-through sixth-graders who attend North Sashabaw Elementary School will be available. Designed to serve families with parents who work, the idea is to alleviate the problem of what to do with the children before school and after school—the name comes from the need to tell children to lock the doors and stay home until the school starts or parents can return from work. "They can bring them here and know they'll have good care," says O'Donnell. A pilot program of sorts, the service may be offered in every elementary school if it's successful. During the daytime, the room will provide free daycare for children of people enrolled in classes at the center.

SPICE

The four rooms taken by SPICE (Special Program in Child Education) will be rented by them. (See Soon the name will be in place and the brand new Clarkston Community Learning Center will open at 5275 Maybee, Independence Township. Director of Community Education Kathleen O'Donnell is excited about the prospect of reopening the school building closed last fall and giving it to the people. The classes and programs offered can change to reflect the community's needs, she says.

related story on this page.)

JOB CLUB

A cooperative effort between community education and the Oakland County Department of Social Services (DSS), those attending Job Club will be referred by the DSS. The five-week program is an effort to teach people how to get jobs and to have them employed by the end of the course. Similar programs in career education for adults are to be offered in the evening in the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center and possibly at Clarkston High School.

COLLEGE CENTER

Oakland Community College, Oakland University and the Detroit College of Business are to conduct classes at the Clarkston center during the daytime and possibly in the evening. Classes offered by OCC and OU are to continue to be offered at Clarkston High School. Some classes may also be offered there by Wayne State University.

HIGH SCHOOL COMPLETION CLASSES

The goal will be high school diplomas for those enrolled in the classes. Classes will be available during the daytime, the evening and also on Saturday morning. There will also be a GED (General Equivalency Diploma) skills program for those who opt to take the GED test rather than working for a diploma. Classes in Adult Basic Education (ABE) will also be offered for reading improvement, math improvement and spelling and writing skills.

CULTURAL

The cultural arts committee of the community education advisory board is presently working on a schedule of events "drawing from the enormous talent pool we have out here in Clarkston," said O'Donnell. An art competition for interior design plans and murals for the new center is in the offing as well as programs featuring chamber music, dance programs, art shows, permanent art displays, sculptures and more.

ALTERNATIVE HIGH SCHOOL

Open to 16- to 18-year-olds who have dropped out of high school, the program will offer a way for students to keep working toward a diploma without having to go back to a traditional program. It will be more personalized and individualized than a regular high school. The school is to meet three-and-one-half hours a day and students will be encouraged to attend classes at the vocational school in the late afternoon or evening to increase their employability. An open house is planned in the fall for parents and students to find out more about the program.

LEISURE TIME

Enrichment courses for adults are to be offered in the daytime. They will not duplicate what the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department offers, O'Donnell said, but will reflect the efforts of the two groups to work together. A dual brochure listing courses offered by community education and the parks and recreation department is planned for the future.

AFTER SCHOOL SPECIALS

Designed for elementary and junior high school pupils, the courses will be offered on a limited basis to see what the demand will be. MORE, the after-school selection of classes offered at Clarkston Junior High School, will continue under the community education department with the founders of the MORE program continuing to volunteer their organizational skills and knowledge.

SUPER SATURDAY

Planned during the winter school term, the Saturday classes are to include a wide variety of activities including academic, enrichment, social and cultural.

In addition to the above programs, vocational training for high school credit, for those wishing to embark on a new career and for leisure time are to be offered at the vocational school. Mini-classes for leisure training might include a newsletter workshop with commercial art emphasis, O'Donnell said.

She's also looking for people willing to be part of a "talent data bank." Those with a special skill or talent they would be willing to share are wanted as well as people willing to speak on any topic.

For more information, to volunteer or to present ideas, call 625-4402 or 673-7756.

SPICE makes move to center

For the third time since SPICE (Special Program in Child Education) was formed by the Clarkston school district, the program has moved to a new location.

When first begun in 1976, SPICE met inside the Clarkston United Methodist Church for one-half of the school year. Then the program moved to Sashabaw Junior High School. Now, it will be conducted inside the new Clarkston Community Learning Center, the former South Sashabaw Elementary School building on Maybee Road.

The move will allow double the enrollment—from 24 to 48—and enough space for two classroom settings with a third room in between to provide an activity area for music, art and indoor play. A fourth room will be used by the occupational therapist for working with children to strengthen muscles and increase coordination.

SPICE serves youngsters from birth to school age who live in the Clarkston school district. Some children from Holly and Brandon Township are also enrolled in the program.

The SPICE classes are much like a nursery school. In the past, most children in the classes were between 3½ and 4. Now with the expansion, children as young as 2½ will be able to attend.

"We've always had to prioritize, because we only had 24 spaces. This gives us much more latitude in picking up the younger children," said Pat Loveless, SPICE coordinator and teacher. "This move gives us the opportunity to allow our staff to take the younger children and work with them."

Many of the children in the program have been referred by area pediatricians, Loveless said. They may need help with speech, may have emotional problems or may be physically handicapped.

Parents with concerns can contact SPICE directly for assistance. Questions about things that are happening with a child's development that don't seem right can be answered, and help can be provided.

Some curriculum changes to greet CHS students

By Al Zawacky

Personnel and curriculum changes await students at Clarkston High School this fall.

In the language department, the school has a new Spanish instructor—Cheryl Seelbinder. She will be replacing the retiring Virginia Addis and Joe Fetsco, who is taking a one-year childcare leave, according to CHS Assistant Principal John Kirchgessner.

Despite the fact that 29 teachers remain on indefinite layoff districtwide, Seelbinder is a new hire.

One visible change awaiting students at Clarkston High School this fall is the gymnasium—painters have turned the once mundane walls into a sea of bright blue and gold—Clarkston's school colors. Assistant Principal John Kirchgessner surveys the new-look gym.

"There's no one on the layoff list certified to teach Spanish, so we had to look for someone," Kirchgessner explains.

English teacher Joan Eaton is also expected to pick up the remaining slack in the Spanish department by teaching a few classes, he adds.

Mike Taylor, Kate Germuska and Doug Pierson, all three of whom were at Clarkston Junior High last year, are three more new faces on the CHS teaching staff. Taylor will teach science and Germuska will teach English.

Pierson served as assistant principal at CJH last year but was assigned to the classroom on the basis of seniority in recent district administration cutbacks. He will teach industrial arts at CHS.

Changes in the curriculum include a new business law class taught by Kathy Pierson and an advanced placement English program which has enrolled 18 seniors in the coming semester.

There will also be four team-teaching classes in science, math, health and social studies for students in the Learning Resource Center program. The classes will be taught by a two-person team consisting of a special education instructor and a regular staff member.

"We want to catch the borderline students here—kids between LRC (special education) and general education," Kirchgessner says.

"The idea is to beef-up their skills and get them into general education, rather than having them fall the other way."

Plans for the future include expanding the advanced placement program into the science and math departments, and offering college courses such as calculus during regular school hours that CHS students can take for college credit.

Oakland University currently runs such a program in Bloomfield Hills, Kirchgessner says.

"We're currently investigating the possibility of conducting something similar with Oakland University here, along with Holly, Brandon and Waterford schools."

New librarian, computer expansion lead SJH list

By Al Zawacky

Katherine Wlodarczyk is tackling a big new responsibility at Sashabaw Junior High.

After handling the library responsibilities at Bailey Lake and North Sashabaw elementaries last year, Wlodarczyk is now the new media director at Sashabaw Junior High—but she won't have the assistance of a library aide.

Economic cutbacks are the reason. Ruth Eaton, the former SJH media director, retired in June and Loretta Shrapnell, the former SJH library aide, was reassigned to Clarkston High School.

With the position of library aide eliminated, new director Wlodarczyk now has the responsibilities previously shared by two people.

These days find her already busy about her job, preparing for the opening of school just a few weeks away.

SJH Assistant Principal George White welcomes Wlodarczyk aboard and hopes that although the circumstances are less than ideal, things will turn out well.

"We're pleased to have her," White says. "She's going to have to do the jobs of two adults, so we expect the student aides to help pick up more responsibilities."

Another cutback has made itself felt in the school's attendance office.

"We're going to be operating without an attendance clerk this fall," White says. "We're coming up with a revamped attendance procedure that is going to put a lot of expectations on parents to notify us when kids are absent from school."

"We just don't have the manpower we had in the past to initiate calls home."

Previously, SPICE met in room 217 at Sashabaw Junior High—that room will now be used for physical education classes, says White.

Declining enrollment has also meant the transfer of two SJH teachers to Clarkston Junior High—Jim Wasvary in industrial arts and Bernie Bidinger in English and science.

"We lost a very large ninth-grade class, and the incoming seventh-grade class is not nearly as large," White says.

Declining enrollment aside, the school's computer literacy program taught by Dick Swartout and Roger Bower will expand this fall.

"There are going to be more sections offered," White says. "Hopefully, the expansion will give more kids hands-on experience with the computers."

Kindergarten program broadens to serve more

By Kathy Greenfield

Developmental kindergarten classes, open to all pupils in each elementary school in the Clarkston district, will be underway for the first time this school year.

"Heavens, yes!" responds administrative assistant in charge of elementary education William Neff about whether he's excited over the new program. "It's nice in a time when we have to cut, cut, cut to be able to put something new in."

The classes are designed to serve kindergarten-age youngsters who are not quite ready for a regular classroom experience.

"It's needed, because I think there has been a percentage of our kindergarten youngsters in past that we have not served as well as we could have and with this program we'll be able to bring into school youngsters who have stayed home for the year," says Neff, adding that most youngsters in the program will attend a regular kindergarten the following year.

During the first 10 days of school this year, kindergartners will meet with two teachers in one class in each elementary school. Then, those who would benefit from a developmental kindergarten class will be placed (with parental approval) with the teacher who has attended workshops to prepare for the specialized teaching.

The new classes will differ from regular kindergartens by placing more emphasis on group activities, talking a lot, singing, working on the balance beam and reading readiness and less emphasis on paper and pencil tasks, according to Neff.

The classes will also be smaller, with a maximum enrollment of 15.

The Clarkston district has approached the program cautiously, studying those in several other districts before starting its own developmental kindergarten, says Neff.

According to studies done by the Bridgeport-Spalding district, the program has numerous long-term benefits for the pupils including higher test scores, the almost total elimination of children being held back a grade in later years, a reduction in the need for remedial teaching in higher grades and a lower dropout rate when students reach their teens.

"Children will enjoy school more. It will be a more positive experience rather than being at the bottom of the class," he says.

Math, computers garner attention in Clarkston elementary schools

Computer education; the on-going review of mathematics, reading and English skills; and an expanded academically talented program are on the horizon for elementary school children during the 1982-83 school year in Clarkston.

All fifth-graders with the exception of those enrolled at North Sashabaw Elementary School will get hands-on experience with micro-computers, says William Neff, Clarkston schools administrative assistant in charge of elementary education.

They'll begin a two-year computer literacy program designed to teach them the basics of computer usage and language.

The North Sashabaw pupils will not be included, because the school does not have computers, most of which have been purchased by PTO or PTA groups in other schools throughout the district, according to Neff.

And, while he'd like to include all elementary pupils in the computer literacy program, the shortage of machines is the drawback, he says.

"The ironic part is there will be children in our school district, there will be kindergartners and first-graders, who have computers in their homes," he says. "But, we have to have a starting point."

Another change for some third-graders will be involvement in the district's program for academically talented and gifted youngsters, which began last year for fourth-, fifth- and sixth-graders.

The pupils selected for the classes will meet for the day once a week with other academically talented youngsters from across the district, following the same procedure as last year.

In addition, seventh-graders who were in the academically gifted program last year will meet during one hour a day with other gifted children in a new seminar-type class in each junior high school.

Because the district has been concerned with mathematics scores on achievement tests, some work can also be expected this year in that area.

A new study committee will look at the present math texts and also consider other books presently on the market.

There will also be a continued emphasis on reviewing the reading and English skills of Clarkston pupils, Neff says.

A STRIKE?

Not likely, says district negotiator

The question is on most Clarkston parents' and school children's minds: Will the teachers go on strike, delaying the Sept. 7 start of school?

Probably not, says Clarkston schools' administrative assistant Conrad Bruce, chief negotiator representing the district in contract talks.

The present three-year contract between the Clarkston Education Association (CEA), which represents the teachers in the district, and Clarkston schools officially expires Aug. 24, but talks have been ongoing all summer.

Progress is being made, Bruce says, with a tentative calendar and several non-economic articles of the proposed contract agreed upon.

Meetings to discuss negotiations are now being held two to three days a week and they will likely increase to five days a week later in the month, he says.

But the good news is that teachers are not expected to strike.

"I don't think so, I really don't," he responds to the possibility of a strike. "The economic conditions the way they are, I just don't think they'll do that."

It's more likely that if the contract isn't settled by the time school is to start, teachers will go back to work without a contract and negotiations will continue until it's settled, he says.

"I personally feel that's more probable than for them to strike," he says. Then he adds a note of caution: "...but I've been wrong before."

Four years ago, the heating, air conditioning and refrigeration lab closed down at Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center. The room was used for storage in the interim, but it's coming back to life under the direction of NWOVEC's newest teacher, Jesse Riojas. Formerly a full-time instructor in the same field at Henry Ford Community College, Riojas was recently hired for his NWOVEC post and he's been working to get the program back in order. "I think the challenge of developing the program is the most interesting part for me," he says. His goal is to give NWOVEC students the confidence they need to gain employment in the field or to continue their education in heating, air conditioning and refrigeration at a junior college. A two-year program, it will follow the climate outside, beginning with heating (including solar), then air conditioning and refrigeration with emphasis on residential work the first year and an introduction to light commercial work the second year. In addition teaching, Riojas has also been a heating and cooling contractor. But, he's decided school is where he wants to be: "Teaching is my kind of bag, because I don't want to do the 11 o'clock, go fix the furnace in the basement routine," says he.

Computer population continues to rise at CJHS

By Al Zawacky

Enrollment is holding steady at Clarkston Junior High—but the computer population continues to grow.

Three new computers, one destined for office use, one for counseling and one for student use in the school's computer literacy program will make their appearance in the 1982-83 school year.

As far as human staff members are concerned, there will be five new faces—teachers Bonnie Valuet, Bernie Bidinger, Dennis Templeton and Jim Wasvary and administrator Cec Wiar, the school's new assistant principal.

Valuet, formerly of Pine Knob Elementary, was one of a handful of teachers recently called back after being placed on indefinite layoff at the end of the 1982-83 school year. She will teach seventh-grade geography and ninth-grade English at Clarkston Junior High.

Bidinger and Wasvary both came from Sashabaw Junior High. Bidinger will be teaching eighth-grade science and eighth-grade English, while Wasvary will teach industrial arts.

Temple taught at Clarkston High School last year and will teach seventh-, eighth- and ninth-grade drafting.

Wiar, who formerly held the post of principal at Clarkston Elementary taken over by Williams Potvin in July, is enjoying her new duties at Clarkston Junior High.

"I'm excited and looking forward to school starting," she says. "A lot of things are totally new to me, but I'm enjoying the change."

"Discipline will be heavily my responsibility, but I've taught before at the middle school level, so working with the age level isn't new to me."

Wiar has plans to use some positive reinforcement in school discipline procedures—perhaps recognizing top students in a "Student of the Week."

As for the school itself—at 52 years of age and easily Clarkston Community Schools' senior building—the usual summer clean-up and fix-up is in evidence.

"The woodwork on the old staircases has been stripped and redone, and it looks just beautiful," Wiar says. "Plus, they've redone and varnished the gym floor, and been working on the roof."

Contrasting a drop in enrollment at Sashabaw

Junior High caused by the departure of a large ninth-grade class, enrollment at CJH will see little change this fall from last year.

"The enrollment decline is being felt in the elementary schools right now," Wiar says, "so it won't be felt at the junior highs and high school for a few years yet."

NWOVEC's schedule draws principal's praise

It may seem like a little thing, but there's a first-time event at Clarkston's Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center (NWOVEC) that will be good for the students, teachers and programs, says Principal Dan Manthei.

With students from four school districts attending the school, there has never before been a common starting date.

This year, however, all schools start on the same date—Monday, Sept. 7.

"I'm sure it's a first for the 12 years the school has operated," says Manthei. "I think it's because Labor Day is relatively late—it's just a combination of calendar and labor negotiations."

In the past, Clarkston was one of the only school districts to begin school before Labor Day. Because NWOVEC follows the Clarkston schools' calendar, students in the other three school districts were encouraged to go to classes, but they weren't required to attend until their own schools opened.

This year, barring the unexpected, programs can get underway for everyone on the first day of school.

From more volunteers to a new nature center...

Andersonville Elementary's new principal has numerous plans

By Marilyn Trumper

Change is in the wind for Andersonville Elementary when the doors open this fall.

William Neff will be seated behind the principal's desk, juggling the responsibility of his past full-time job as administrative assistant for elementary education—and he's got some definite ideas for change in the status quo.

Neff: New principal.

At the top of his list: Increase parent volunteers; step-up activity in the Parent Teacher Organization; send the sixth-graders to camp and develop a nature center behind the school where it abuts Hogback Lake.

"I haven't really had a chance to spend any time studying the school and student body at Andersonville, and I'm still thinking about the things I want to do. Before I commit myself I need to be able to assess what is the most important thing to do first and do it," said Neff.

"First, I really want to involve the parents out there and see if we can't revive the PTO or PTA, whatever they have out there. I'd like to see more involvement in the volunteer situation, to get the parents involved in the school.

"The examples are limitless," Neff said. "I see where we can use them in the classroom, in the library...everywhere."

For the first time in Andersonville's history, Neff sees the sixth-graders going to Camp Tamarack like the other elementaries in the district.

"You just can't beat it," he said. "Instead of having a kid learn about bugs living in a hollow log, take them out to the woods, break out the hollow log and let them see it. It gives these kids the chance to go outdoors and do hands-on kinds of work. Nature study is best done outside."

In addition, Neff has plans to increase use of the micro-computers purchased last year, incorporating them into as many classrooms as possible.

"I'd also like to develop the property behind the school into a nature center. We have a beautiful lake back there and I think it's prime property for something like that."

Neff came to the Clarkston School District six years ago, after 15 years in the Pontiac educational system. It was there he learned the rudiments of being principal.

Life in the central office, surrounded by adults, cushioned from the classroom, has not been a hindrance to jumping feet first back into the elementary stream, Neff said.

"I have not been that removed from the kids. I've stayed directly involved and I'm really looking forward to this new job."

"I look forward to working with the people of Andersonville. It's a good school, in a good community. I enjoyed my years as principal and I really think that's where education is."

Wiar takes positive approach

By Marilyn Trumper

When talk of the football season begins this fall around the Wiar dinner table, 13-year-old Ruth faces off against mom Cecelia, the new assistant principal at Clarkston Junior High.

Wiar will be a Wolves fan. Ruth, an eighth-grader at Sashabaw Junior High, is a Cougar fan.

For perhaps the first time, that infamous rivalry between schools has hit home.

That may be the only bad thing about the new post, says Wiar with a laugh, as she talks about forfeiting the principal's job at Clarkston Elementary and moving up to the disciplinarian's job at the junior high.

It was a calculated move. "I really loved being principal, but I knew that one day I'd like to move onto a different level of responsibility, to the central office. To do justice to the system you have to have a good background in elementary and secondary education."

"I had two days to decide and made the decision. I really didn't have too much time to think about it," she said.

Wiar has definite ideas on not just what "changes" she'll make, but how to "...expand on what's already in use."

Discipline will go hand in hand with praise and rewards.

"I guess I do have the reputation of being a strict disciplinarian," she said. "I'm very heavy into affective education. You have to be firm, you have to make sure the child knows what you're talking about, that they've done wrong, that they themselves earned the consequences of the punishment by their actions and that you're not dumping on them."

"I hope to go beyond that. I feel I have a reputation where the kids know they can come to me and have someone who will listen to them. I hope I can help them figure out a better way to perhaps handle the situation and go beyond the immediate."

The elementary school's volunteer parents who've followed their children to the junior high will work once again with Wiar, something she's excited about.

"I know about the chaos involved with the transition from elementary to junior high. The students get so worried. Because of my knowledge I hope to make that transition smoother. I also want to increase the cross-age helpers program, where junior high students go to help out at the elementary school."

Sports are key to Wiar's new responsibilities at the junior high as she tackles schedules, intramurals, extra-curricular sports, equipment ordering and the like.

"That will prove to be real interesting," Wiar laughed, recognizing it's all Greek to the novice.

Clarkston High School issues cover-up dress code

By Al Zawacky

Bare legs and mid-sections will be a no-no at Clarkston High School when school opens next month.

The school's former tolerance for girls in halter tops, boys in cut-off T-shirts and shorts on both sexes has come to an end.

That may be bad news for some wandering eyes, but it's good news for the educational process, according to CHS Assistant Principal John Kirchgessner.

"It just became distracting, there's no other way to put it," says Kirchgessner, explaining the new cover-up policy.

"It's one thing when the kids are wearing bermudas, but before long they start cutting them off higher and higher—and with the tops, it's the same thing. Some girls almost seemed to be in a competition to see who could wear the skimpiest top."

Kirchgessner said the decision to alter the CHS dress code was reached last May at a conference that included Superintendent Milford Mason, Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara, CHS Principal Dom Mauti, Assistant Principal Jan Gabier and himself.

It was also decided then not to implement the new rules until the start of the 1982-83 school year, thus avoiding possible problems that would arise in trying to change the dress code late in the year.

According to an opinion handed down by state

Attorney General Frank Kelley, school dress codes are legal if a certain type of dress is shown to be "disruptive to the educational process," says Kirchgessner.

Leaving too little left to the imagination in hallways and classrooms fits that criteria, he says.

"This is only going to affect a couple hundred kids," Kirchgessner adds.

"It's a small minority that are wearing shorts. And this rule has been in effect at the two junior highs all along."
